Forward!

Buller's Forces Continue to Advance.

His Column Has Reached Paardekop, in the Transvaal, 31 Miles From Standerton—Many Boers Are Surrendering.

London, Friday, June 22—A. m.—Gen. Buller is pressing his advance. On Wednesday he followed the Johannesburg railway to Paardekop, 31 miles from Standerton, about 300 Boers, singly or in small parties, having surrendered. A dispatch, dated Paardekop, Transvaal, June 21, says: "The British column arrived here today. The presence of the army has induced many burghers to lay down their arms. The retreating Boers have destroyed a bridge and culverts, but the Sandfontein bridge is little damaged."

BOERS WANT FUNDS.
The Transvaal government, according to the Lorenzo Marquez correspondent of the Times, is endeavoring to meet the emergency with treasury bills, but the people refuse to accept them.

The first train for Pretoria left Cape Town yesterday.

Lord Roberts has adopted the Transvaal mining regulations for military administration.

A WARNING.
The colonial office publishes a notification by the military government at Johannesburg of the stoppage of a check for £40,000, drawn for the National Bank of the South African Republic, and warning all persons against dealing in the check, as the funds of the National Bank are the property of her majesty's government.

BOER BULLETIN.

A dispatch from Lorenzo Marquez says: The Boers printed and posted at every corner the following: "Machadodorp, Monday.—The Paris Exhibition has closed, and France has declared war against England. Fifty miles of railway have been destroyed. The British have surrendered. Fifty miles of telegraphs have been cut. The Boers are down, and native runners traverse the distance. The Boers continue to assert that they have had successes east of Pretoria."

The war office has issued a list of casualties in engagements around Heilbrunn, previously undisclosed.

THE MACHADODORP FIGHT.

London, Thursday, June 21.—Again it is rumored in Lorenzo Marquez that there has been a big fight at Machadodorp, which the Boers have abandoned, retreating to Lydenburg. There is, however, no mention of any such fight in the official dispatches, and there is nothing to indicate that Gen. Roberts has been engaged since Gen. Botha escaped from him on June 13.

RECENT ENGAGEMENTS.

Correspondents' reports of the fighting on June 11, 12 and 13, east of Pretoria, are now arriving. They show that the Boers fought with great vigor and pertinacity. The British horse artillery was at one time in considerable danger of capture. They were rescued by a charge of the Lancers, in which the Earl of Alderley was killed. The Lancers on this occasion killed 22 of the burghers. The immense area covered by the operations, and Gen. Botha's handling of his force, which is said to consist mainly of foreigners and Cape rebels, prevented a junction of the British on the left with the Mounted Infantry on the right, and this allowed the Boers to retreat. The correspondents claim that at least 200 Boers were killed. Forty bodies were counted at Pienaar's Poort, the result of the shelling by the naval contingent.

Gen. Botha's escape, according to the standard correspondent, is a great disappointment. It had been hoped to end the war by one staggering blow. The same dispatch says that the historic ground of Bronkhorst Spruit was the scene of a gallant feat by the West Australians, who, pursuing the retreating Boers, stampeded them and killed several by their rifle fire.

There is no report of any change in the Orange River Colony. The Boers under Commandant Steyn have been reinforced by many of the burghers who withdrew from Laing's Nek, and commandant Piet Viljoen reports that 50 miles of railway in the Orange River Colony have been destroyed by his men. Another engagement on June 15 resulted in the capture of 31 British troops.

Capt. Loesberg, an American attached to the Boer artillery, has arrived at Lorenzo Marquez. He says that the Transvaal's ammunition factory has been removed to Lydenburg. He declares that Gen. Dewet has 6,000 men in the Orange River Colony, and Gen. Botha 2,500 in the Transvaal. Fifteen hundred men in small bodies are elsewhere.

It is announced that the Malalane bridge will be restored in two days. Evidently the interruption in railway communication between the Transvaal and Lorenzo Marquez caused by the destruction of this bridge was not as important as the first dispatches stated. Passengers have been able to cross the spruit afire, and take trains on the eastern side.

AT STANDERTON

Gen. Hamilton and Buller Likely to Join Hands Tomorrow.

London, June 22.—Lord Roberts reports that Gen. Ian Hamilton reached the springs yesterday, en route for Heilbrunn, to join hands with Gen. Buller, who is expected to reach Standerton tomorrow.

The dispatch of Lord Roberts in full is as follows: "Pretoria, June 22.—Ian Hamilton's column reached the Springs yesterday, en route to Heilbrunn, where they will join hands with Buller's troops, who reached Paardekop yesterday, and will be at Standerton tomorrow, thus opening up communication between Pretoria and Natal, and preventing any joint action between the Transvaalers and the people of the Orange River Colony."

"Lord Edward Cecil, the administrator of the Rustenburg district, has to date collected 3,000 rifles."

"The commissioner at Kroonstad reports that 341 rifles have been handed in at Wolmaranstad."

Rev. A. R. Griffin gave notice of motion to request his lordship the bishop to issue a pastoral in regard to the early prayer by the bishop.

debate on the proposed canon on inadequate collections was resumed, those participating in it being Mr. E. Jenkins and Rev. T. L. Armstrong, H. Bray, P. Leigh, W. Stout, C. R. Gunne and Canon Young. Rev. A. R. Griffin moved to amend the constitution (page 68, Synod Journal, 1899) with reference to line 24, that the last sentence of clause 16 of the constitution, commencing on line 24, be amended to read as follows: "It shall be the duty of the executive committee to prepare in due form all such matters as the bishop may desire to have brought before the Synod, and all notices of motions as they may deem expedient; and a circular containing a statement of such business to be submitted to each clergyman and representative two weeks before the meeting of the Synod, which business shall stand first in the order of the day."

The proposal to discontinue the printing of the appendix to the Synod Journal and send a copy of the Journal to each clergyman, and lay delegate, and each subscriber of $1 or upwards to the funds of the diocese, was carried after considerable discussion.

Rev. W. Cooper, of Campbellford, in the Diocese of Toronto, was admitted to a seat on the floor of the synod.

Very Rev. Dean Innes moved to amend canon viii. regarding examinations of students seeking ordination, or clergymen entering from other dioceses. The canon as amended, reads as follows: "No person shall be admitted to the exercise of the ministry in the diocese of ordination or transfer from another diocese, or receive a first license to any parish in the diocese until he shall have first produced and delivered to the registrar the certificate of the synod physician, stating that he has examined the applicant, and that the latter is in good physical health. The synod physician shall be appointed annually by the executive committee at its first meeting after synod, and all charges in connection with such examinations shall be paid by the applicants."

On behalf of the vestry of Trinity Church, St. Thomas, Judge Ermatinger submitted the following proposed canon as to select vestries:

"1. This canon shall apply to every church in this diocese whose vestry shall, at any annual meeting or any special meeting called for the purpose, pass a resolution adopting the provisions of this canon, and declaring them to be thereafter in force in the parish."

2. The said vestry shall, at the annual meeting which resolution has been passed, or if passed at a special meeting, at the next ensuing annual meeting, elect not less than three, nor more than eight select vestrymen from among the members of the vestry, who shall hold office until the next annual meeting or the election of their successors, if elected at such annual meeting, and shall form, with the rector or incumbent and churchwardens, the select vestry of such parish. 3. In case of a vacancy occurring in the select vestry, whether by death or resignation of any vestryman, except the rector or incumbent or a churchwarden, the select vestry shall have power to fill such vacancy by electing another qualified vestryman, until the next annual meeting or other election of select vestrymen. 4. A majority of the members shall form a quorum of the select vestry, which shall meet quarterly or more frequently if its members by resolution decide, or at the call of the rector or incumbent, who shall be chairman, or two churchwardens, or of any other members, by notice to all other members. The vestry clerk and any other officer of the church shall, if so requested, attend all or any of the meetings of the select vestry, to afford information and assistance. 5. The select vestry shall possess all the powers and privileges now possessed by the churchwardens, who shall, nevertheless, perform the duties and functions heretofore performed by churchwardens, but subject to the direction and control of the select vestry, whose duty it shall be to manage and direct the temporal affairs of the church and parish. In support of this canon Judge Ermatinger referred to the practice of the church in Ireland, New Brunswick and parts of the United States, where the plan worked very successfully. He read letters from places where select vestries had been established, showing excellent results.

The matter was debated by R. Bayly, Q. C., Matthew Wilson, Mr. Principal Dymond, James Woods, Mr. Rogers, Hicks, McCosh and Dunn, and afterwards the motion carried to refer the matter to the executive committee to consider, and with power, if deemed advisable, to take such action as might be necessary to obtain an act of parliament to give effect to the same.

Adjourned.

In the evening when business was resumed the report from the committee appointed to consider the points in the bishop's charges was read. The synod adopted the recommendations, (1) that the portion dealing with the relations between Christianity and science be separately printed and distributed for the instruction and study of members of the church throughout the diocese; (2) that the bishop's suggestion respecting united prayer in deaneries be strongly urged upon the attention of rural deans and deaneries, and suggesting that the bishop issue a pastoral on the subject; (3) that the bishop's reference to the attendance of the laity be noted, and a special committee to make full inquiry and suggest means for improving the present position in this regard.

A subscription list was opened for the widow of the former caretaker, who is in reduced circumstances.

A lengthy discussion followed Mr. Henry Macklin's motion to amend the constitution and canons of the synod so as to admit females as well as males to be members of vestries, and also members of congregations for the election of lay representatives of the synod. He referred to the fact that women comprise the large part of the congregation, and that they are the main contributors and should not be treated as minors or wards. He mentioned the rule that exists now in municipal matters. Women, he said, were always on the side of truth and right and justice, and their right to vote had been accorded them in the Diocese of Ontario, Niagara, Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal. He also believed that it would be putting them at the franchise to women, even though they were not demanding it.

Mr. V. Cronyn seconded. He felt that women were as much members of the church as men, and were just as intellectual, well-educated, and more religious. They should be given equal rights with men at church meetings. Revs. P. M. Baldwin, J. Downie, W. Stout, Mr. T. H. Luscombe and Mr. J. Higginbotham were inclined to favor the motion, although the latter considered that married women whose husbands were entitled to vote should be prohibited.

Rev. G. C. Mackenzie spoke strongly in favor of the motion.

It was combated by Mr. C. Jenkins and Rev. J. C. Farthing, both considering that as the synod was not held for religious, but for purely business purposes, the women should be debarred. The latter felt that the previous speakers had talked around the subject without touching it. He had no desire to stop the work of women, but wanted it to be women's work and not men's work. He did not believe the statement that women are more religious than men, and reminded the synod that vestries do not deal with religious matters, but only with business. He admitted there was force in the argument that if women pay to support the church they ought to have a voice, but felt they should consider the consequences of admitting them to vestries. He did not favor taking women out of their sphere.

TRACK RECORD BROKEN

Ace Does a Fast Mile on the Closing Day of the London Races—London Ball Team Still Dropping Games—Latest Sporting News.

THE TURF

CLOSING DAY AT QUEEN'S PARK.
The three-day race meet of the London Trotting and Racing Association closed yesterday afternoon with the finest day's racing ever put on in this city. The promoters of the sport are to be congratulated on the eminently satisfactory manner in which every detail was carried out, and at the great success that has attended the meet in point of attendance and splendid list of entries. Yesterday the crowd numbered over 3,000, and all enjoyed the sport immensely. The attendance this year was far in advance of last season. In 1938, when the association put on the first meet, things looked anything but rosy for speeding in London. There was very little interest taken at that time, but through the energetic work of the association officers and members the meets in this city have at last taken on the right proportions, and after the present splendid meet the association should be liberally patronized in 1901. Next year the association will be favored with some of the speediest animals on the continent. The purses hung up for closing day amounted to $1,350. The event of the day, the free-for-all, was won by Ace, Harry Simon's horse. Ace was a strong favorite, having made some pretty good records on the big tracks in Canada and the States. The speedy little beast was not in the pink of condition, but made the mile in 2:14, lowering the track record for a mile, made by himself two years ago, by one-quarter of a second. Mustapha captured the 2:30 trot, and Mamie Calan took the three-quarter mile run.

THE 2:30 TROT.

The first event was called shortly after 1 o'clock and drew a large length of the programme. Six horses started in the race. Nutspra was the favorite. In the opening heat he finished in sixth place, but in the three following heats he had no trouble in coming under the wire in first place. The summary:

2:30 trot, purse $400:
Nutspra, C. James, Chicago... 1 1 1
Nordine, B. H. Stevens, Galt... 2 4 5
Duke Sprague, S. W. C. Ross, London... 2 3 2
Gertrude, B. M. D. A. McEwen, London... 3 6 3
Superior Lily, Ch. M. H. Wilkins, Owen Sound... 4 5 4
Arketa, G. M. W. Garbutt, Brampton... 4 5 4
Time—2:24, 2:22, 2:25, 2:26.
Drawn—Wentworth and Maud A.

THE FREE-FOR-ALL.
Ace, the favorite, finished third in the first heat, and the time was 2:13. This was not fast enough for the judges, and the drivers were warned by Starter McIlroy that no such time as made in that heat would be allowed. In the second heat Ace was in third place until in the stretch, but when urged he stepped away from his rivals in good style, taking first place quite handsily. It was in this heat that the track record was broken. The time for the quarter was 34, half mile, 1:08, three-quarters, 1:41; mile, 2:14. The third heat fell easy to Ace, and in the fourth he was leading until the stretch, when he broke, and Charlie B. crossed under the wire in first place. Summary:

Free-for-all, purse $500:
Ace, B. H. H. Simon, London... 1 1 1

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE

What Becomes of the Patient?

Doctors have their hobbies as well as other people and in the treatment of disease often carry them too far for the patient's good. For instance in the treatment of indigestion or dyspepsia many doctors give bismuth and anything else, others rely on pepsin to bring their patients through, still another doctor treats stomach troubles with the various vegetable essences and fruit salts.

Now one or the other of these excellent remedies becomes a hobby with the doctor who has had most success with the particular one in question, because all of them are first-class remedies for indigestion and dyspepsia, but no one of them alone is so good as a combination of them all, such as is found in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which contain not only vegetable essences and fruit salts, but also the freshest, purest pepsin and bismuth, making a remedy of a remedy, a remedy for every form of indigestion, sour stomach, nervous dyspepsia, belching of gas, distress after eating, sleeplessness, headaches, etc.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is not a secret patent nostrum, but you can see for yourself what it is and knowing this, its success as a dyspepsia cure is not surprising. All druggists recommend and sell them at 50 cents.

The noblest motive is the public good.—Virgil.

STILL ANOTHER TRIUMPH.—Mr. Thomas S. Bullen, Sunderland, writes: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with piles; and frequently I was unable to walk or sit, but two years ago I was cured by using Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. I have also been subject to Quinsy for over forty years, but Electric Oil cured it, and it was a permanent cure in both cases, as neither the Piles nor Quinsy have troubled me since."

[Special to The Advertiser per C.P.R.]
Ottawa, June 22.—The commission to investigate corrupt acts in bygone elections will hold a preliminary meeting for organization in Toronto on Wednesday next.

Grand Lodge Discusses Changes in the Constitution.

Hamilton, Ont., June 21.—The grand lodge resumed its labors yesterday. Grand Master Clarke, in the chair. The discussion of the proposed changes of the constitution was continued. The age limit was reduced from 49 to 45. The clauses relating to hazardous risks was under discussion for a considerable time. The definitions given of what might be hazardous were varied and multitudinous, although much information was received. Finally they were referred back to the committee on constitution and by-laws.

The proposed changes in the registration were that all candidates for initiation, no matter what the amount of the beneficiary certificate, pay a fee of 50 cents. It was pointed out that this would materially affect the revenue, and upon resolution it was decided to retain the former fee of 50 cents per $500, $1 for $1,000 and $1.50 per $1,500.

For slight changes were made regarding the disability claims. However should a member become permanently disabled, he may draw four-fifths of the total amount for which he is insured.

For a number of years the members of grand lodge have had under discussion the advisability of making the sick benefit fund optional. Judging from the opinions expressed yesterday afternoon, it will be made optional. This is one of the most critical questions before the grand body as so many side issues presented themselves.

Grand Trunk Progress.

General Manager Hays, of the Grand Trunk Railway, has given the quietest to the rumor, set on foot in Toronto, that he would leave the company's service next year, when his contract with the directors expires. It was stated that he had been offered a larger salary as head of another great system, and that he would desert the Grand Trunk in consequence. Mr. Hays may have been offered more money than he now receives—he is doubtless well worth it—but he has done very much to put the Grand Trunk system into the excellent shape which it now is in, but he does not mean to leave the road. He says his relations with the board were never more cordial than they are now, and he is comfortable and happy in the work in which he is now engaged, and in which he has scored so signal a success as to draw forth the praise of directors and shareholders alike.

As indicating Mr. Hays's ability to improve conditions that have not been promising, his success with regard to the rearrangement of the affairs of the Chicago and Grand Trunk System may be mentioned. Mr. Hays has just returned from England, where, by careful work he has managed to secure the consent of the bondholders of that system to its reorganization, and the result will be that it will be placed on a thoroughly business basis, and make a paying link in the great line.

Canadians are especially interested in this information. The Chicago and Grand Trunk is the line that runs between Port Huron and the metropolis of the Western States. It has hitherto been handicapped by lack of capital, but through the new arrangement capital will be obtained to supply a double track the entire distance, and thus to make it possible to provide a system that will be speedy, safe, and, to the Grand Trunk Railway Company, paying. That is an achievement in which Mr. Hays will be likely to succeed, and once more score as a shrewd, capable, progressive manager.

A Splendid Record.

Canada was never more prosperous than she is at the present time, as shown by the trade returns for the past eleven months. The total of $223,506,476 was greater by $114,081,743 than the trade for the twelve months of 1899—10 ten years ago. It is greater by $81,995,144 than for the twelve months ending in 1896—the last year of the Conservative regime.

It is, indeed, the growing time of the Dominion, and nothing must be allowed to happen that will bring back the old order of things.

Welcoming a Hero.

On the 10th of May of the present year Capt. Lambton visited the ancient city of Durham in the north of England, and it is not necessary to say that he received a hearty welcome. As one of the heroes of Ladysmith the town turned out to welcome him, and gown also played a great part. There was the gift of the freedom of the city, when the mayor, Lord Durham, was glad to have the "unique honor of presenting my own brother with the freedom of the city, conferred upon him by the mayor, corporation and citizens of this town." Capt. Lambton made the perfectly natural reply, "I have been a great deal over the world, but I prefer the city of Durham to any other town or city in the world. Like all those who bear the name of Lambton, we are north countrymen. Of course for Capt. Lambton as for others, there is no place like home."

Then there was the presentation of the degree of D. C. L. at the University, when the gentleman who made the speech said if the sailors did not understand the academic meaning of these mystic letters, they could interpret them as "Defender of Cheerful Ladysmith." When referring to the siege of Ladysmith he said they could almost fancy they heard the storm of artillery, one ironical student remarked, "You are drawing a little upon your imagination," and there were other manifestations to show that students are pretty much the same everywhere. However, they all joined in "He's a jolly good fellow," and welcomed the new graduate with the utmost enthusiasm and cordiality. Then followed the banquet, torchlight procession, and all the other accessories of a glorious reception, so that the local journal can truthfully say: "Not since the Duke of Wellington came to the city as the guest of Bishop Van Naldest, well nigh three quarters of a century ago has Durham been visited by so distinguished a 'hero of the hour.'"

Well, this is all very pleasant reading. It is one of the brighter sides of the war, and it shows us that the warrior receives honor in his own country, and in his own town. The honor in this case was deserved. Capt. Lambton is a real sailor and a true servant of the Queen. He and his handy men rendered important service at a critical time. Without their rush to Ladysmith, things might have been different. The British sailor is, as a rule, cheerful and modest. As one speaker said, there is nothing blue about him but his jacket; and so long as the men of the navy are led by men of the stamp of Capt. Lambton, they will give a good account of themselves in Africa, China or on the high seas.

Speculation as to War.

The impression of the know-alls has been that if Russia desired to go to war with Japan over Corea or to make trouble with Great Britain by advancing into Persia, or extending her influence unduly in China, she would choose the present time, when Britain has so many of her best soldiers engaged in South Africa. The Pioneer of Allahabad, one of the leading journals in India, starts the novel view that the present is not a good time for Russia to cause dispeace. "If," says our contemporary, "alarmist reports are published in June of the massing of Russian troops, they should be regarded with equanimity. Even the most adventurous of the Russian war party will hesitate to pick a quarrel with England when her armies are on the flood-tide of success, and when the nation is in the mood to 'take on' all comers wherever the integrity of the empire is threatened."

All may go well if the concert of the powers, at present cordial, is maintained intact; but he would be a rash man who would prophesy what will be happening in a year, or even six months, from now.

Japan, we know, believes that war must come between her and Russia sooner or later. Japanese statesmen have an abiding belief that Russia is a grabber, and that she means to grab Corea. The Japanese have many varied interests in that land, and Russian acquisition they say they will resist. They look to Great Britain for assistance in this work of maintaining the status quo.

The Government will welcome a few more vacancies in Ontario with like results to that achieved in North Renfrew.

Rev. Mr. Courtice, editor of the Christian Guardian, declares that he believes in divine healing, but not in Christian Science.

Did not we tell you that the majority for the new premier of Ontario would grow? Two on a division has been added to it by North Renfrew. Well done, Mr. Munro!

The explanation of the Opposition in North Renfrew is that they lost the seat, hitherto theirs, because they could not get a candidate. The worst possible excuse. It is a poor cause, indeed, that can find no advocate.

The West is the great annexing power. Only the other day British Columbia annexed the ex-premier of Prince Edward Island. Now it is announced that Sir William Whiteway, ex-premier of Newfoundland, will take his family to the Pacific Province in the fall, and that he will make his future home there.

Mr. Whitney made charges re-reputable citizens in connection with the West Elgin election case, and when asked to make them good under oath—flunked. He made charges in the Assembly against the Government, and when asked to make them good in the first bye-election—flunked. The Opposition leader takes the belt as the champion flunker.

A careful statistician makes out that last year 562 persons were killed and 820 injured by lightning in the United States. This is not a very large number of casualties in a population of nearly 70,000,000, but it is large enough to suggest the propriety of caution in time of danger. But advice on the subject cannot very well be given, as people seem to be killed in all sorts of places. One thing that has been discovered, however, is that it is never safe to take refuge under a tree during a thunderstorm.

Premier Ross and North Renfrew.

[Hamilton Times.]

Premier Ross's majority in the Legislature jumped from 7 to 9 yesterday. Mr. John W. Munro, Liberal, was elected by acclamation to succeed the late member, Mr. A. T. White, Conservative, as member for North Renfrew. Among the speeches was one by Mr. Thomas Murray, M. P., mayor of Fambrook, who declared that it was the Scotchman who had made him a Liberal by sticking to him, notwithstanding that he was a Roman Catholic and an Irishman, and contrasted with this Sir Charles O'Donnell's speech at Odessa last week, in which he sought to foster prejudice against the Premier of the Dominion because he was a Frenchman. Mr. Murray intimated that he was being urged to contest Pontiac for the Commons. He was not so ambitious as he was once to go back, but if he decided to go in he knew that his friends would stand by him as in the past, regardless of his creed and race. The compliment to the Scotch was appreciated, but perhaps Irish Mr. Murray's good Scotch name had something to do with it. What Scotchman could go back on a Murray because he happened to be born in Ireland?

The steamer Alpha (Canadian), which landed freight and passengers at Cape Nome, May 25, without a permit from the United States Government, was chased on her homeward trip by the United States revenue cutter Albatross. The Alpha cleared $20,000 by the trip.

THE FLAGGING ENERGIES REVIVED.—Constant application to business is a rare tax upon the energies, and if there be no relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parnelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Closing Sessions.—Note of Warning on Neglect of Sabbath Observance.

Halifax, June 21.—The General Assembly met yesterday, with a comparatively thin house, some of the commissioners having already taken their departure. The morning session was devoted almost entirely to a consideration of the composition of the standing committee of the church for the current year. A long debate took place on the question of extending the term of study for students, so that the mission fields of the west may be more easily supplied with preachers. A special committee, of which the ex-moderator, Dr. Campbell, was chairman, recommended that better remuneration be given to students, so that they may remain in their fields for sixteen months; further that the home mission committee make inquiries into the United States and Europe for men who can do mission work in the Northwest among Galicians, Doukhobors and other nationalities, and that the committee consider the desirability of establishing a school for the training of catechists to extend over two summers of two months.

Dr. Robertson urged that the supply in the Northwest be quite inadequate, and Dr. MacLaren and Dr. Tyle were afraid the adoption of the recommendation would result in impairing the standard of theological education. Dr. Caven supported this latter view. Principal Grant strongly urged the adoption of the recommendations of the committee. Dr. Warden expressed concurrence with the report. President Forrest, Halifax, attacked the report on the side of dual language. He disapproved of any effort that would perpetuate dual languages in Canada. What was wanted was to bring the Galicians to learn English rather than to let in European missionaries to preach in foreign tongues. Dr. Herdridge took exception to Dr. Forrest's remarks, holding that there were many who had no objection to variety of race and language which was consistent with national unity.

The recommendations were withdrawn. Messrs. Gow, Beaudreau and McRae were admitted to the ministry of the church, and will be received by the presbyteries vouching for them. Applications on behalf of the following students were granted: Messrs. M. F. Grant, R. P. Murray, J. Steele, R. Barber, J. L. King, J. Russell, C. H. Munro and W. Simons. An application to license J. Steel was not entertained. The application of Mr. Boyle, British Columbia, was granted.

Dr. Somerville advised the employment of more students and fewer catechists in mission work. Prof. Falconer opposed and the assembly voted down the proposal.

At the evening session Dr. Caven moved a resolution of congratulation to the Free Church and United Presbyterian Church of Scotland on the fact of their union.

Dr. McLeod presented recommendations of the committee on church life and work. He also presented the report of the committee on Sabbath observance.

Dr. Caven, in addressing the Assembly, said that a crisis had arrived in the matter of Sabbath observance. He pointed out the unsatisfactory decisions given by various courts in various cases arising under the act regarding Sabbath observance. He pointed out the necessity for a firm conviction in the hearts of the people of the church regarding the sacredness of the Sabbath day. The assembly then completed its labors and adjourned until next year.

LITTLE VIXEN

She gazed at him, appalled by his passionate outburst; but he continued unheeding.

"Mother, you know I despised her in the days when she was only Lettie Davis, the vain, arrogant daughter of the old gardener, and her accession to fortune has in no way changed my regard for her. If she had been other than she is, I might have loved her; but I shrink more and more from the thought of linking my life with that of one whom I can never love. Is there no way to save me from this horrible marriage? Believe me, I care nothing for Cedarhurst; it would not count a feather's weight against my love for Dawn Douglas!"

"You are mad, indeed," she cried, bitterly. "Oh, I can hesitate no longer. You must hear all, know all, that we have risked for your sake, then you will understand that there is no retreat from your marriage with Aurora Douglas! Retreat, did I say? Great heaven, it is a mercy to you, a blessing that the girl took an unreasoning fancy to your handsome face, otherwise your father, who dared so much for your sake, must occupy a felon's cell!"

"Mother!" He sprang up, pale and startled, and faced her. Then she poured forth the story concealed from him all this time—the story of Mrs. Douglas' long imprisonment in the ruined wing at Cedarhurst, her escape and her intention to prosecute her faithless guardian for his wicked betrayal of trust—all of which she had promised to forego for her daughter's sake if she married Tracy Tempest.

"Now, you know all," she said bitterly. "We loved you so well that we trampled on the rights of others for your sake, hoping to escape the penalty of our sin. But a day of reckoning dawned unforeseen, and now it lies in your power alone to save us or ruin us. Now break your troth with Aurora Douglas, and her mother will take vengeance as she wishes to do. But—throw your father into prison, and break your mother's heart if you will—yet—will the proud, boastful Dawn Douglas, with a hundred noble suitors at her feet, turn from him to clasp a dishonored hand, a hand that has been lifted to betray his gray-haired parents to shame? Will she indeed do this, my son? And even were she fond enough, weak enough, could you bear to thus drag her down?"

The hoarse, excited cry came to a pause, and she fell back, pale and exhausted, in her chair. He stood before her, pale as a marble statue, his eyes staring in horror, his brow beaded with great drops of sweat, his lips where they showed beneath the line of his dark mustache drawn and livid. Had a dagger pierced his heart, he could not have looked more deathlike. Reeling down upon his knees by her sofa again, he muttered hollowly:

"Then my doom is written! There is no appeal! Death to heaven it were the doom of death instead!"

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"I am romantic," said Dawn Douglas, "I believe in 'all for love and the world well lost.'"

One at least of the group surrounding her believed the same. He said to himself that only to gain her all else were well lost.

But when he felt her gaze upon him his dark cheek flushed and his eyes fell. He knew that the shaft was meant for him—for him who must turn traitor to his heart and wed for gold.

She was holding a little court upon the sands, this princess of beauty who held his heart—there were Duval, Wentworth and another young soldier, Capt. Langdon, besides Lindsay Greville, and his Damon in the form of Herbert Arden. And there was Tracy Tempest. Indeed, there was always Tracy Tempest. Col. Duval, who did not relish it much, declared that Tempest had vowed Ruth's vow.

"Where shall I go, I will go!" The author and the artist had only come today, and Tempest's dogged devotion displeased them as much as it did Col. Duval. They were dismayed when they found that he was not married yet.

"And he has had three weeks with her while we dawdled away time in Washington. 'Pon my honor, I should have let my chapters go if I had known it, and come to the rescue,' the author said to his sister.

"Nonsense, Lindsay. He can do nothing but make eyes at her, after all. He is engaged to the heiress of Cedarhurst, you know," she replied, lightly.

"Engaged, yes. But 'there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip,' gloomily.

"Patty Mrs. Elmore answered sagely.

"If you mean that Tracy may throw his fiancée over for this new face, I answer that he cannot afford to do so. He is obliged to marry money to keep up his extravagant tastes and habits contracted before the claimants to Cedarhurst appeared."

Greville watched her keenly when he formed one of the gay group that surrounded her that evening on the sands, where they were watching the glorious sun sink below the level of the sea.

He saw what others saw, that her glances and her smiles for Tracy were just a little different from those she gave the rest—a little different and a little sweeter.

"Is it coquetry or love?" he asked himself in dismay.

They were making a lion of him—they talked to him of his novels, the clever creations of his fancy, and quite naturally the drift of the conversation was of romance—the romance of love.

"I am romantic," said Dawn; "I believe in 'all for love and the world well lost.'"

Capt. Langdon smilingly replied:

"It is charming in a novel, Miss Douglas, but in real life, you know, when poverty comes in at the door, love flies out of the window."

"I do not believe it," said she, frankly.

Her blue eyes wandered to the sea in that absent way they had, and she continued lightly:

"Love and riches may both take wing, you know, Capt. Langdon. Let us suppose another case; suppose one married for riches, and riches flew out of the window?"

"Confusion!" he answered, laughing.

"Both may happen, but the latter is far more likely to happen," said Dawn with her pretty meditative air. "One may spend gold, but how can one spend love? You know the poet says:

"Love grows by what it feeds on."

She felt Tracy Tempest's dark eyes on her face; but she would not meet their burning gaze. More than once she had met them, full of silent misery, and her heart had ached for his pain.

She rose to go, and he was quickly by her side. Everyone tacitly made way for him, as if it were his right.

They walked on, side by side, along the level sands towards the Hygeia. Dawn stole one look at his face, and met his dark eyes full.

He said quickly:

"Miss Douglas, when I was a lad at college the boys used to say that it was unfair to hit a fellow when he was down."

The full white lids drooped over her eyes, and she blushed warmly.

"You mean," she said, and paused.

"I mean that you were cruel in some of the things you said just now. Of course, all the fellows know you aimed at me. My pending marriage de convenience has afforded much gossip at the Hygeia this season—but really it was the first time he had spoken to her of his engagement with Lettie. Her heart beat fiercely, jealously; all the womanhood within her exulted at the thought that his heart was her own.

"Yes," she said with outward quietude.

"Let us walk out on the pier. The sea is beautiful from there, and I—I must speak to you, Miss Douglas," he said in strong agitation.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Annual Convention of the Lobo Township Association.

Interesting Addresses and a Paper on "Qualifications for Effective Teaching."

The ninth annual convention of Lobo Township Sunday School Association was held in the Disciples' Church, Poplar Hill on the 14th inst. The local pastor, Rev. J. H. Coulhard, conducted the devotional exercises, which opened the first session at 2 p.m. They consisted in a word of welcome to the workers in the cause throughout the township now convened, prayers for wisdom in the deliberations for the success of this convention, the singing of hymns, and reading of a portion of Scripture, with appropriate comments thereon. The remarks of the president, Mr. James McArthur, teemed with wholesome advice to the teachers.

The report of the last convention, made by the retiring secretary, Miss Maggie Sinclair, was read by the acting secretary, Mrs. Ella Zavitz.

In the statistical report of the schools nothing unusual is noted. Each school seems to continue on the even tenor of its course.

The only paper presented to the convention was read by Edgar M. Zavitz, the rest being addresses. One address was given by Mr. John Morrison, of London, on "The demands of the scholar upon the teacher." The first demand of the child is to find its relationship to God. Childhood is the most impressionable period in life, and any incompleteness that happens to the soul then goes on eternally. Do not neglect the regeneration of the child. A little effort may save it then, while a desperate struggle may not afterwards.

The second demand is that of the Bible as the guide-book. Aside from its unique spiritual truths, the Bible supercedes all other books. Bible teachers should be systematic. In this the teacher has the aid of the International Lesson system, which covers the whole Bible every seven years, and it is an added inspiration to know that 25,000,000 pupils are studying the same portion of God's truth on the same Sabbath. The third demand is the development and training of the intellectual side. Keep the boy or girl from cultivating a kelp for light, trashy, poisonous literature, by supplying that which is sweet, pure and wholesome. Many of our criminals become so through the want of guidance in their early reading. To sum it all up, let each teacher possess the conviction that he is to help Christ to save the world.

The first address of the evening session was by Rev. E. J. Stobo, Poplar Hill, on "The Divine Teacher Our Model." The style of Jesus' discourses was more that of the teacher than that of the preacher. In the first place, he is our model in regard to spirit. Only as we can catch his spirit will we be successful. He was wonderfully sympathetic. Only as you love your scholars will you be enabled to lead them to Christ. He was wonderfully patient, giving line upon line, precept upon precept; therefore the teacher must also be patient. He must be convinced of the truth himself; then he can "speak with authority."

His teaching must be practical. Religion is to color the whole life; its finale is character. To be more successful the teacher should employ the Socratic method. Lecturing is not teaching. As we said, Jesus did not preach, but he taught. He used the conversational method. He taught by questions and illustrations. So should every teacher strive to do. Then Christ should be our model as to aim. He came to give men a true conception of God—to reveal God to men.

The other address of the evening was given by Rev. S. J. Farmer, of Petrolia, on "How to increase spiritual results in Sabbath school work." His efficiency in this line is well known. He is a true institution for amusement, but by its spiritual results, and these results are bringing the children to a personal knowledge of the Saviour. His teaching must be practical. Religion is to color the whole life; its finale is character. To be more successful the teacher should employ the Socratic method. Lecturing is not teaching. As we said, Jesus did not preach, but he taught. He used the conversational method. He taught by questions and illustrations. So should every teacher strive to do. Then Christ should be our model as to aim. He came to give men a true conception of God—to reveal God to men.

The question drawn was ably conducted by Rev. Mr. Marshall. A great variety of important questions were handed in, which showed that the audience were of the thinking class and had been deeply interested.

Both sessions were pleasantly interspersed by the singing of hymns, led by the efficient choir of the church. A junior choir, trained by Miss Kellar, rendered in an admirable manner some of the pieces.

The two sessions a beautiful and bountiful repast was spread on tables prepared on the lawn, where the needs of the physical man were duly attended to. Thanks are due the young men and maidens that administered in this department. The rest of the time was pleasantly and, we might add, profitably spent in friendly sociability. This feature, though a by-product, may, like other by-products, net the greatest clear gain for the spirit of unity and love.

The convention accepted the invitation to meet next year at the Friends' meeting-house, Coldstream.

THE PAPER.

"Qualifications for Effective Teaching."

The first qualification that one requires to enable him to teach effectively, or to teach at all, is of course, knowledge. One cannot give what he has not got. Yet one must not think that he knows so much that there is nothing more worth knowing. That condition would be fatal to his own and his pupils' advancement. He needs a naturally unqualified but the ability of adapting, accompanied with the desire to adapt it to the various needs of the individuals in his or her class. A person may be blessed with an abundance of knowledge and yet be naturally unqualified to impart it. We have no quarrel with such a one. We simply drop him out of the teaching staff and console him by making him superintendent. But the man of knowledge who fails to impart it, because he is centered in self, and who does not know that knowledge unused becomes useless, and who will not learn that the more one gives of this commodity the more he has, and if he will not be cured of this egotism, he is fit neither for teacher nor superintendent. He himself has one of the fundamentals yet to learn.

To be effective as a teacher one must have an interest in others. Jesus spent his life in going about doing good. His own center of being was for the time in the soul of his suffering sister or brother. And we cannot do better than to strive to imitate the great model held up before the world these nineteen centuries. He has never been surpassed or equalled, or even approached during all these ages. His success as a healer of the physical malady, as well as of the soul's sins is due to his deep, unselfish, penetrating sympathy. Make your pupils feel that you have an interest in them, and you hold the key to their hearts.

Hand in hand with sympathy goes charity, without which words are as tinkling cymbals. All minds at all times hold preconceived ideas, and no matter how erroneous these be, they are dearly cherished. Win the worshiper from these idols by presenting the fairer forms of truth. Make credibility to wane by strengthening the reasoning powers, for the truth is very reasonable as well as very simple. The theologian may become bewildered, but to the simple mind the truth is plain. Jesus on one occasion said: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and learned, and hast revealed them unto babes."

Along with interest in others comes punctuality. This may seem a trifling matter, but not so. If the members of my class do not come regularly, I feel that they are not interested, and that is a source of discouragement. If I should get careless in this respect they would feel, and justly, too, that I was not interested in the work and in them, and when that feeling gains ground you may as well throw up the sponge. Be sure they are giving the best of themselves. Their promises and pretences are unavailing. That last half-hour doze on Sunday morning may stand between success and failure. Mighty concerns swing sometimes on little hinges. Be sure they swing the right way when you stand at the helm of fate. You have in your charge the training of young minds for the kingdom, the development of spiritual life in youthful souls. Have you, brother and sister teachers, a justly profound sense of your great responsibility? You are ambassadors in the service of no earthly king, but in the service of the King of Kings.

Finally and supremely have you dedicated yourselves to God, your mind that it may not think evil; your hands, that they may not do wrong; your feet, that they may not lead you astray; your tongue, that it may not speak ill of any; your heart, that it may not harbor hate; your whole being, that it may not be the home of sin. That implies have you crucified selfishness, annihilated lust, toned down your ambition, curtailed your pride, purified your pleasures, checked your greed and dishonesty, stamped out ill-will, envy and jealousy, learned to control your passions, your thirst and appetite, have you uttered triumphantly in the severe and supreme test of temptation, "Get thee hence Satan, for it is written, 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve?'" If this is your condition you stand in the sunlight of God's presence and you reflect his beams. Like the moon, you have no light of your own. If you think to trust in your own powers you will fall utterly. But placing yourselves in God's everlasting light your reflection of that light will be as everlasting. Have you ever thought what made the difference in other's influence over you? The presence of some, you have noticed, is depressing, is like the chill from an iceberg that floats nearby, while the presence of another brings back the warm sunshine, and how we enjoy their company. There is love in their voice, there is sweetness in their smile, there is a thrill of ecstasy in their handshake. A moment under their spell blesses us all day long. Whoever you get to teach in your Sabbath school don't choose the one that has an iceberg in the heart. Tender plants won't flourish in the vicinity of an iceberg. Some night a chill will come out of this blighting blast, and according as the soul is good or bad it blossoms or it withers. The lying tongue cannot conceal, fine clothes cannot cover up the poisonous exhalations of a crafty heart. Likewise words fail to express half the beneficent influences that silently and gently emanate from a pure soul. There is going forth continually to the class from such a teacher inspiring influence for good, just as from the sweet-smelling woodbine and aromatic rose there is distilled an odor that sweetens all the air around it. Like Jesus, such persons are mediators between man and God, sent out from their home in the bosom of the Father to uplift the fallen, to direct the wayward, and by virtue of love's magnetism woo them back to the fold. There is a power for good in a virtuous heart, inspired of God, beyond the conception of our weak and doubting minds.

Brother and sister teachers, whatever be our creed, we stand today side by side with a single aim and in the service of one common Master. All plans and methods in the Sabbath school work, even the best, are more or less human, and therefore more or less imperfect and ineffectual. The object of these yearly gatherings is to perfect those plans. I have given you here the result of my own meager experience, my own guessing at the inscrutable wisdom of God. Take of it what will do you good; look charitably upon the rest. God does not give us all to see alike, but he has love enough to fill every soul, and enough left for every soul to bask in here and hereafter.

POPULAR CONCERT COURSE.

The Y. M. C. A. management, in accordance with their determination to maintain the high standard already set, have arranged for an exceptionally good concert course for the season of 1900-1901. The series will commence some time in November with the Durno-net combination, who are entertainers of excellent reputation. The Chicago Marine Band, under T. P.
Brooks, is probably the biggest attraction. It will play here on Thanksgiving Day. Edwin P. Elliott will be on the next date. He introduced a new style of entertainment, and a very successful one, in presenting the comedies. Following him will come the original Fisk Jubilee Singers, who will appear on New Year's Day. The Ernest A. Gamble Company has been secured for one night. This is one of the best of the course. Cecelia E.
Gamble is assisted by Mrs. Cecelia E.
Bailey, soprano, Miss Ruth Anderson, violinist, and Mr. Edwin M. Shonert, pianist. Daniel Webster Davis, who ranks with Paul Dunbar, as a delinent of negro character, in verse, and who is also one of the most original entertainers appearing in public, has also been engaged. The course will be concluded with the concert of the Parker Concert Company. The course tickets, at reduced rates will only be sold to bona-fide members of the association.

Dairy Salt Tests.

The necessity of using pure salt is apparent to every butter and cheese maker. In butter making it serves three purposes. First, it aids in the removal of buttermilk and surplus moisture, salted butter containing less water than unsalted as a rule. Secondly, it aids as a preservative, and third it helps to improve the flavor of the butter, which, from our standpoint, is the most important. In a recent study of this subject by the Wisconsin Experiment Station, it was found that it was more difficult to evenly distribute a coarse-grained salt throughout the butter than a fine one, but that the difference in weight of the finished butter was 1.8 per cent more when the coarse salt was used. On the whole, salt with a medium-sized grain that was flat and flaky gave the best satisfaction. For cheese making a coarser salt than for butter is preferable.

The chlorides of magnesium and of calcium give to butter its bitter flavor.
These two chlorides tend, probably, to bring about a slow decomposition of the butter fat, which accounts for the unpleasant taste. While, therefore, their presence may not be noticeable in fresh butter, it becomes apparent in butter kept in storage for any length of time and hence is particularly objectionable in salted butter in the manufacture of butter not intended for immediate consumption. Analysis showed that the following may be taken as fairly representative of the best brands of dairy salt used in this country: Sodium chloride, 98.32; calcium sulphate, 1.1; calcium chloride, 0.27; magnesium chloride, 0.18 per cent. The total amount of impurities in the ten leading domestic brands ranged from 0.56 to 2.56 per cent, averaging 1.60 per cent, but the percentage of impurities is of less consequence than their character.

Sore Hands

Soak the hands thoroughly, on retiring, in a hot lather of CUTicura Soap. Dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA Ointment, the great

Three points that Count high in the Massey-Harris.

Strength—beauty—easy running—not one of them but there abundance of evidence—by tests, experiments and comparisons—to prove Massey-Harris all they're claimed to be—the highest of the high-grade wheels. By comparison with American wheels purchased by the New South Wales Government, as with Massey-Harris purchased by the Victorian Government, each for the same work, the Cyclo Postal Departments—it cost TWENTY times more to repair the American wheels than the Massey-Harris. For their beauty you have the almost universal opinion of riders generally, ladies and gentlemen. For ease in running, their very mechanism is a guarantee of it, developed to the highest degree of perfection by the most skilled experts, having at their disposal the most improved appliances known in the world of mechanics—every detail of making fitted with the accuracy of a watch and Chloe Up-to-Date.

(With apologies to some Elizabethan poet or other.)
My Chloe in her spring attire
Doth show a patriotic zeal;
Her hat and robe of khaki hue
Love for our arms reveal.
Now winter's past, her "Cronje" muff
She gladly casts aside,
And dons a dainty "Roberts" blouse
With faded "Orange" dyed.
In April's sun her winsome face
Peeps 'neath a "Plume-r" hat.
With health from Table Mountain doctored—

She wears a "White" cravat.
The latest "Snyman" bow's folds Around her neck doth cling.
Enveloping her swan-like throat
As Boers did Mafeking.
Beneath a "Redvers Buller" skirt,
Tenacious, trim and sweet,
In "Baden-Powell" shoes appears
Her slim and twinkling feet.
A Paardebergian zone is girt
About my Chloe's waist—In short her costume's "Frensch" and not Parisian in taste.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangements of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parme-lia's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.
