GLADSTONE ON ARMENIA.

Chester, England, Aug. 7.—The town hall was packed with people yesterday. The audience included numbers of Armenians, in anticipation of hearing the long-looked-for speech of Mr. Gladstone upon the Armenian question.

Armenian question, says: "If Turkey is to be coerced, as she must be, the six signatory powers will have to be consulted. Their response can hardly be doubted."

The Morning Post says it fears that Mr. Gladstone's speech at Chester will prove dangerously mischievous. His extravagant criticism and wild words, says the Post, may kindle a civil war in the Sultan's dominions.

The Standard says: Broadly, Mr. Gladstone gave expression to the general convictions of his countrymen. But it is not premature to sound a note of warning against well-meant exaggerations. Fanatical distortions of a healthy impulse, unless sympathized by approval by Russia, would not harm than good.

Trustee Logan moved that John Brown be appointed. It was true that he did not know gymnastics - neither did Mr. McCrimmon. The latter's father had taken the position, but he knew nothing about gymnastics, but that he could read it up in one night. It was finally decided to place the names of the three Londoners interested and the three trustees on the board and take an open vote. The result justified the committee's selection. The vote: John Brown 9 10 7 W. A. McCrimmon 12 12 10 Col. Sergt. Griffin 11 7 G. W. Wright 4 The division on the final vote was as follows: Brown - Logan, Turner, Sanders, Anderson, Craig, Keenleyside, Blackwell - 7. McCrimmon - Campbell, Hunt, Martin, Wilkins, Murphy, Griffin, Johnson, Johnston, Stevenson and Jeffery - 10. THOSE ERRORS EXPLAINED. No. 1 committee recommended: That a third room be opened in the Waterloo south building, overlooking the foundation of a class from Simcoe street school during the model school term. The errors in the examination paper used at the recent examinations for grade 4 were caused by an oversight in reading the proof; and the committee accepted the explanation of the examiner as satisfactory. That C. W. Horton, Cobourg (a Middlesex man), be appointed to fill the position of assistant English master at the Collegiate rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Porter; salary to be $900 per annum. Should Mr. Horton not accept, that Mr. Norman, of Ingersoll, be appointed. The report was adopted. A FEW MOVES. Trustee Griffin moved that Mr. Latta, of the Simcoe street school, be placed in charge of the high school, and rendered vacant by the resignation of W. F. May. The motion carried, and Trustee Johnston moved that Mr. W. R. Manning be appointed to the position at the Simcoe street school, rendered vacant by the advancement of Mr. Latta. Mr. U. A. Buchner seconded. Trustee Griffin moved that F. Bryant be appointed. Mr. Anderson seconded. The motion was finally referred to No. 1 committee. FIFTH FORM MUDDLE. Trustee Hunt moved that the test for entrance to the high school, ceremonial form, be the high school entrance examination, or any pupil in the senior fourth whom the inspector or the principals feel fit to recommend. Trustee Jeffery moved, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that the examination be similar to the examination for the fourth form work. Trustee Buchner moved that the matter be referred to No. 1. It came out that the fifth form, which it is proposed to establish after the holidays, did away with the high school entrance classes at the Princess avenue and Abernethy schools. "And where do they go?" asked Mr. Logan, in alarm. "To the other nearest school," replied the secretary. "That's a rotten way," commented Mr. Logan. "I don't think the members understand that - especially the members in the Fourth. I think it is ridiculous. The trustees must have been of their base that night." Trustee Anderson - I must plead ignorance myself. I thought that the principals of each school taught the work. Finally the chairman ruled the whole matter out, as No. 1 committee is already engaged in the formation of a curriculum. Trustee Jeffery moved a resolution of condolence with the parents of the late Miss Flo Pococke, teacher in the Simcoe street school. Both the mover and the seconder - Mr. Craig - paid a glowing tribute to the sterling worth and integrity of the deceased, and her untiring labors in connection with the staff. The trustees carried the resolution by a unanimous standing vote. Trustee Jeffery succeeded in having a motion carried making it necessary to supply extra seats where the rooms are crowded. A motion of Trustee Martin, No. 2 committee will consider the question of additional room in the Waterloo street south school. AFTER THE FIFTH FORM. Trustee Logan gave notice of motion to have the matter of fifth form reconsidered, and that the clause instituting the same be expunged from the minutes. Another motion was also given by Mr. Logan to reconsider all resolutions as to salaries. FIGHT FOR SALARY INCREASE. Trustee Logan moved, seconded by Dr. Campbell, that Mr. Bryant, principal of Princess avenue school, receive $900 salary instead of $700. Trustee Jeffery held that there were no funds. There would be an over-run bank account if the board kept on. Chairman Blackwell ruled that there were no funds. The

"The nursing-bottle Parliament it should be called," says the clever Boston Herald, in speaking of the new English House, and really, when one considers the cause of Lord Salisbury's return to power it is not an unfitting appellation. A most unusual number of young men were returned by the recent elections, among them the Viscount Milton, who is only 23 years of age. For the next number of years it is expected that the Government benches will present a very juvenile appearance.

A new poet has risen in the North-west, and he writes verses like this: "I never saw a purple cow, I never hope to see one, But I can tell you anyhow, I'd rather see than be one."

Max Nordau says that we are degenerating, but with such evidence of genius we must beg leave to differ with the scientist.

While the world holds happy children and indulgent parents, and "love's old story" is ever new and sweet, the annual protest against plagues will avail little! They will be classed as abominations by people without sympathy for simple innocent enjoyment, claiming that a feast out of doors affords invitation to every winged and creeping thing, and is, therefore, common and decidedly uncomfortable.

Nevertheless, long, happy days will be spent in the shaded woods, pleasant in social intercourse, merry with jest and song, and there, as in no other banqueting hall, will "Good digestion wait on appetite, And health on both."

The German name for street car is Pferdstrassenbahnwagen. It looks formidable, but so would the English equivalent if written in one word in the German style, horse-drawn railway carriage.

There was once a prominent man in Chicago who had a very exalted opinion of his own city. He died, and when he reached his eternal home, he looked about him with much surprise and said to the attendant who had opened the gate for him: "Really, this does great credit to Chicago. I expected some change in heaven." The attendant eyed the Chicagoan a second, and then observed: "This isn't heaven."—Philadelphia Record.

An English journal tells a good story at the expense of Lord Derby. Whether he drew from it a moral no one can say, but it may suggest to the impartial reader that if one feudal restriction is to continue, there is no very evident reason why another should not be revived.

The earl was one day walking over his estate, when he met a collier who was also strolling there, but without permission. "Do you know you are walking on my land?" inquired the nobleman.

"Thy land?" was the reply. "Well, I've got no land myself, and I'm like to walk on somebody's. Where did the get it from?"

"Oh," explained his lordship, "I got it from my ancestors."

"An' wheer did they get it from?" "They got it from their ancestors."

"An' wheer did their ancestors get it?" "They fought for it."

"Weel," said the collier, squaring up to the earl, "I'll fetch the force for it. Perhaps the moral is none the worse for the doubt inevitably suggested that a nobleman would waste many minutes in giving a trespasser reasons for ceasing to trespass."

Mayor's Secretary: "You can't see the mayor now; he's in his private office." Seedy Politician: "What right's he got to private office? It wuz a public office we elected him to, wuzn't it?" You tell him to come right out, quick, or I'm agin him."

There is a story of Thackeray, shortly after the publication of "Vanity Fair," dining with a friend, and receiving an introduction to his next neighbor, "Capt. Crawley, of the Life Guards." Thackeray looked greatly annoyed, scarcely opened his lips to this gentleman, and afterwards told his host, in an aggrieved tone, that "he liked a joke as well as any man, but there was a time and a place for all things." No joking allusion to a character of his novel had, however, been designed or perpetrated; the fellow-guest was a Capt. Crawley, and held a commission in the Life Guards.

An unpleasant truth is often given expression with the hope that it may receive contradiction, and in this way conscience be put at ease.

"The friend not blind to faults To oft is counted as an enemy."

because this balm is not administered, even if judgment decides otherwise. A young mother expects a very different reply from the loving relative to whom she said: "I really believe my husband is jealous of the baby!" The woman, already awake to the great mistake of neglecting all else for her child, found scant consolation in the honest, serious response: "I am sure he has every reason to be, poor fellow!"

DAILY HINTS TO HOUSE-KEEPERS.
We rise by the things that are under our feet.
By what we have mastered of good and gain.
By the pride deposed and the passion slain.

Home is one of the dearest and dearest words in the language. It stands for an association of human beings the most sacred and momentous. The true home is built upon sacrifice, the surrender of each to the good of all.—Rev. George A. Gordon.

Make the daily meals a means of grace. A cheerful face with cheerful conversation is an excellent condiment.

A nautical fever seems to have broken out among us, now that the international yacht races are so close at hand. Since the trial races we have been thinking and talking nothing but sailor lingo, and it crops out in our clothes whenever we have the slightest excuse for allowing it to do so.

We go to the seashore or enjoy that greatest of blessings, a trip on some yacht, and Jack Tar would easily recognize us as his sisters by our garb.

Materials for yachting suits are legion. Among them are pique, duck, serge, and Marseilles, denim and flannel, but the greatest of these is denim. None are more chic than the suits made of it. The dark side of the material may be used for the costume, and the collar, cuffs and the forepart lined with a material of the "lighter side" for them. Denim never loses its stiffness, but stands with a dignity all its own.

The boating skirts are rather short and full, sleeves not a whit smaller than those of our evening gowns, and collars, sailors in shape, opening in front to reveal a vest, which is probably of white pique. Skirts almost invariably have bands about the hem of braid or some contrasting material.

The young lady whose gowns we have copied is enjoying the first vacation after her graduation. She wears a yachting costume of blue linen, with two rows of white braid about the hem of the skirt. The feature of this gown is the large sailor collar. It is very long in front, and each side comes to a point well below the waist, where they are knotted together in true sailor fashion.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
Busy Housewives Will Find These Suggestions Very Simple and Useful.

Any woman doing her work may so systematize it that it will be the easiest possible thing imaginable for her. She need not follow any other person's methods, unless they are the very best for her own conditions.

A new finish for furniture is that of Epping oak, and is a green with a real lustre in its brown depths. Chairs and high, straight-backed settees, intended chiefly for halls, though they are seen in other parts of the house, are furnished in this way.

You cannot make good tea with hard water, unless you soften it with a tiny pinch of bicarbonate of soda. Let the water be freshly drawn and quickly boiled, then use at once. The tea will be ready to use after an infusion of about seven minutes.

To make a mustard plaster for a child take one teaspoonful of ground mustard and three of flour, with water enough to make a good stiff paste. Spread between two cloths on an adult, use one quart of mustard to two of flour. Mixed with the white of an egg it will raise a blister.

Don't bathe your head and temples in cologne, and don't try to scent your hair that way, because the alcohol in it will turn your hair gray, and burn out the natural oil. Above all things don't keep trying all the new patent medicines that are advertised to make the hair grow on the back yard fence, even. They may do harm and they seldom do any good.

The system of washing-linen with petroleum said to be customary in Paris and Russia, has been introduced into a German military hospital. Fifteen grams of petroleum are added to fifteen liters of water containing soap and lye, and the linen is boiled in the mixture. The cleansing is much easier than by usual methods. The linen suffers less and assumes a whiter color.

Ribbons used to ornament various pieces of fancy work often need washing. Wash them in the same way as embroidered cloths and protect them from the iron with clean brown paper or cloth. Iron them before they are dry. Scarlet washes best among the colors for ribbons, and the finished ribbons will appear after laundering almost as fresh as new, but moires lose their unique finish.

What Keeps Women Young.
A woman is happy just in proportion as she is content. The sun has a way of changing the spots upon which it shines. Especially is this true of our land, where one is up to-day and down to-morrow and vice versa. The wisest woman is she who trusts in a to-morrow, but never looks for it. To sit down and wish that this might be, that that would be different, does a woman no good. It does harm in that it makes her dissatisfied with herself, unpleasant to her friends, and makes her old before her time.

Happiness is not always increased in proportion to enlarged success. This may sound like an old saw, and I think it is, but there is a world of wisdom in many an old proverb just the same. Contentment is a wonderful thing to cultivate. There would be fewer prematurely old women in the world if it were given more of a trial and it became a more universal quality in womanhood.

Fashion's Enormities.
The expansion of sleeves is becoming a crying evil, and a positive source of discomfort in crowded auditoriums and public conveyances. If the evil does not abate we may be compelled to revive the following ordinance in regard to them, adopted by the town of Dedham, Mass., in 1639: "And be it further enacted, that hereafter no person whatsoever shall make a garment for women or any other sex with sleeves more than half an ell wide in the widest part, and so proportionate for bigger or smaller persons. And for present reformation of immoderate great sleeves, and some other superfluities which may easily be redressed without much prejudice or spoil of garments, it is ordered, etc."

CLAIMS JAY GOULD'S ESTATE
Was Married to Gould When 15 Years of Age—A Startling Suit Threatened.

New York, Aug. 7.—The World-to-day says that Mrs. John Angell, of Rouses Point, N. Y., claims to have been married at the age of 15 to the late Jay Gould, then aged 17, and alleges that the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Clayton, of Champlain, N. Y.

The plaintiff, Mrs. John Angell, declares herself to be the first and original and only legal wife of the late millionaire. Mrs. Angell has collected evidence to prove this surprising claim, and her case is in the hands of several well-known firms of New York lawyers.

Not only do Mrs. Angell's allegations, if established, illegitimize the present family of Jay Gould, but they upset the entire estate, and throw into inextricable tangle the vast millions of the late millionaire. Mr. Gould, it is claimed, was married to her at the age of 15, and she is now married, living in a western state, and is a party to the claim against the Gould estate. She is represented by a separate law firm, one of whose members has recently been here in her interest.

AFTER THE MASSACRE.

There are 462 American Protestant missionaries in China, and 833 Protestant missionaries from other countries. The Protestant missionaries, all told, number 1,295; native ministers, 209; native helpers, 1,440; communicants, 37,287; school pupils, 15,250. The Catholic returns are astonishing. They give 471 priests, 281 native helpers, and 483,403 Catholic Christians. If the 1,800 missionaries scattered over a great country are to be adequately protected from the attacks of a fanatic and often ignorant people, the western powers will have their hands full. The recent massacre of British missionaries will, no doubt, be well paid for by indemnity, but it is questionable if an exemplary assessment will reform the character of the populace. There are few grounds for believing that they will be much more favorable to Christianity in the future than they have been in the past. The Chinese do not form a nation. The people do not have common aims and aspirations. Even the Emperor is practically defied by the viceroys of various sections of his domain. Recently he had to withdraw his warrants at the bidding of the Viceroy of Szechuen; he has been ignored by the Viceroy of Kwang-Kiang; while the Viceroy of Kwang-tung Province cared so little for him that he openly sent his troops to aid in the rebellion in the Island of Formosa. This disunion is manifested in almost every commune, and to make unity less easy, over thirty different languages are spoken by the tribes or clans, though vocal speech is limited to a small range, without vowels. What the country needs to arouse it from its torpor, and to make its people more tolerant, is, primarily, the instillation of the Golden Rule and the promotion of arts and manufactures, in order that the wonderful natural resources of the nation may be developed. China has been fighting, and she has been beaten by a nation with not much more than a tenth of her population, because she has failed to conform to modern methods. If she desires to keep up with the times, she must first of all get rid of her exclusive intolerance, whether it be regarding trade and commerce, or the freedom of those within her borders. But it is doubtful if such a change can be brought about without a break-up of the present Manchurian Tartar dynasty. Grave results may flow from the recent outrages on missionaries. Not China alone, but the whole civilized world may be affected by the changes that will be compelled in that Confucian land before many years have elapsed.

The following extract from a speech by John Morley at Newcastle, in support of the Local Option Bill, reveals the frank and fearless nature of the man:

"Our bill (local option) is a bill, mark you, by which, stand or fall, we abide. I do not believe in Governments and I do not believe in men who bring in bills dealing with great social questions and then say: 'We will drop the bill if you don't like it.' What I say is this: stand by that bill whether the constituencies like it or not. If they beat us, we are beaten. There are worse things in this world than being beaten. If you are beaten in what you know or believe to be a righteous cause which will uplift the condition of the people of the country to which you belong, never mind whether you are beaten or not. I know that is not what is called good tactics. You know that on this platform I have never troubled my head very much about tactics. I have told you what I have thought; I have told you the proposals that I cared for and that I would support; and I shall go on upon that line until you turn me out for Newcastle."

John Morley is a type of the best class of British public men. He is an honor to his country.

WILL BEAT ITS RECORD.

Among the latest newspapers to adopt the Linotype is the London "Advertiser," which in thus reducing its expenses has benefited its readers both by its improved appearance and by being set free to give more scope in other directions to a spirit of enterprise which has always kept pace with possibility. The "Advertiser" has now a record of 32 years public service, and is apparently starting out to make the next 32 years surpass the past.—Montreal Witness.

A Lively Rejoinder

Hon. David Mills Replies to Rev. Dr. McKay—An Unwarranted Attack Met—Treatment of Public Men by Critics—Recent Declarations by a Preacher—Past Records Appealed To—Why Are One Set of Public Men Attacked and Another Let Alone?—The Right to Prohibit as It Affects the Provinces and the Dominion.

An "Advertiser" reporter called on Hon. David Mills yesterday to know what view he took of the attack of Rev. Dr. McKay on him at the Patron-Prohibitionist meeting at Woodstock, and of the doctor's criticism since, in a letter to the Globe. We here give the report of the interview:

Reporter—Have you seen Dr. McKay's speech at the Patron convention held at Woodstock?

Mr. Mills—Yes; I saw the speech a day or two ago in the "Advertiser" I was away from home at the time, and was engaged in matters which prevented me giving it any special attention.

Reporter—What do you think of Dr. McKay's statement in reference to Mr. Charlton, yourself and others?

Mr. Mills—I think Dr. McKay is far too inaccurate and too extravagant in his language to warrant any importance being attached to what he may say.

Reporter—Then you question the correctness of what he said? You do not think his statements and charges legitimate criticisms?

Mr. Mills—Certainly I am making no objection in that direction. But I object to Dr. McKay or anybody else assuming to personally instruct me as a representative of the people on a question of national concern. It is the right of every citizen who is wronged, or who has a grievance, to present it, either by petition or personally. But upon a question of general national concern, don't you think it savors a good deal of presumption on the part of two or three men, having no special knowledge and but a common interest to come to the House of Commons and undertake to advise and direct men whom the people have elected, in regard to a matter of common interest to all those whom they represent? Is it to be supposed that those whose business it is to make themselves conversant with all matters affecting the public welfare, and in which a portion of the public take a deep interest, are less conversant with a question of this kind than a minister who, if he discharges his duty to his congregation, is the most of his time otherwise occupied? Does Dr. McKay know more about the domestic evils springing from drunkenness than men who are among all classes of the community much more than he? Nor do I know that he had any special information to give upon the subject. His attacks upon the Liberal representatives is neither novel nor relevant, but you know a few of Dr. McKay's professions assume that the character and motives of public men are legitimate subjects of attack. They have no rights that any other men are bound to respect. Every little flock must be taught this, so that those in authority may find their proper level.

Reporter—What is there beside the statement that you were present at the meeting to which you take exception?

Mr. Mills—Dr. McKay says that in giving my reason for voting for a certain amendment I put forward a fallacious plea, and I knew it to be false. Now I have this to say of that statement, it is untrue. Look at the facts. Here is a resolution on the subject of prohibition proposed near the end of the session, the mover and the seconder both declaring that it is impossible to propose any legislation at that period, and so the resolution is an abstract declaration of opinion which cannot hasten any practical legislation on the subject, by an hour. The question of jurisdiction had been taken by appeal to Her Majesty and was then pending. It seemed to me the only proper course was to await the judgment of the Privy Council before declaring that Parliament ought to deal with it. When Sir Oliver Mowat was asked to legislate upon the subject he declined to do so until it was settled that he had the power. That was a perfectly statesmanlike course to take. I know of no reason why the Parliament of Canada should take a different one. In the case of Russell vs. the Queen it was decided that Parliament could pass a prohibitory liquor law. That decision was given early, and rested upon the peace, order and good government of Canada, less the power of the provinces to legislate on the specific subjects assigned to them. It was not shown during the argument that prohibition was included in any of these specific subjects, and upon that ground the appellants failed. And the power embraced prior to the Union in the enumeration "municipal institutions," was not even referred to. Their lordships in that case seemed to consider that the area over which the law was to operate, irrespective of the subject matter, might give to Parliament jurisdiction, a view which would now hardly be maintained. The Supreme Court based their decision on the power of Parliament to regulate trade and commerce, but in another case the Privy Council pointed out that in the Articles of Union between England and Scotland it was provided that the regulation of trade and commerce should be uniform in the two countries, but this had not prevented the regulations respecting the sale of liquors being notoriously different in the two kingdoms. So that the regulation of trade and commerce must be held to refer to inter-provincial and foreign trade, and not to the local trade carried on within a Province. Otherwise the retail sale of beer in every shopkeeper would be a subject of Dominion and not of local or municipal regulation. As to manufacture, I know of no rule by which it could be held to be an act of commerce. There is no difference in legal principle between the production of a ground that I was actuated by party motives. These statements are sufficient to show you that the doctor and his friends have two codes of political ethics—one for the members of the Liberal party, and another and a wholly different code for their opponents. But apart from the political animus shown in the Rev. Dr. McKay's attack upon Liberals, I may say to you we do not expect to revolutionize the world by prohibitory legislation. We regard such legislation as purely a matter of police, and we aim solely to promote peace and good order, and do not expect through such an instrumentality to change the hearts of men. If you represent the good and evil tendencies in man, by X and Y, you cannot reasonably expect to alter their values by legislation; you simply alter their modes of expression. Men never have gathered grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles. What a man does will, in the end, always depend upon what he is. I do not expect to see men by the authority of Caesar made meet for the kingdom of heaven. I am of opinion that the great source of all lasting reform in the moral condition of mankind must be Christian faith, and not sumptuary legislation. If by legislation the world could have been made virtuous and pure, Christ need not have come, and faith in Him would be wholly unnecessary. Dr. McKay claims to have received the great commission. So did Peter. And he for a night forgot his high calling, and returned to the business of fishing—and was not he severely censured? Is not Dr. McKay walking on a still lower level? He has in part laid aside the most exalted work in which a man can engage, the only one which can radically change the character of man, for a business that Ingersoll, or a Brahmin, could perform, at least as ably and with much more fairness than he has shown.

Reporter—You are not questioning the doctor's sincerity in the advocacy of prohibition?

Mr. Mills—I think the doctor is much more anxious to make war upon members of the Liberal party than he is to bring about the prohibition of liquor. Look at his letter in the Globe of Saturday. Whom does he attack? Messrs. Laurier, Mills, Casey, Charlton, McMullen, and even Sir Richard Cartwright, who voted for the resolution that we should not have driven Dr. McKay to distraction. Reporter—You are not questioning the doctor's sincerity in the advocacy of prohibition?

Mr. Mills—I don't know that he has made any efforts in favor of temperance. Do you recall that favoring temperance to abuse all the prominent men in the Liberal party? The doctor has confined his attacks to Liberals. This is always the policy of our enemies, who do not hesitate to avail themselves of our hostility to us. As I have told you, no one took the platform on our behalf because we enacted optional legislation. Did they think we were without human feeling? But when we were defeated, and our opponents returned to office, a large prohibition delegation, headed by a Mr. Watson, waited upon Sir Leonard Tilley in Ottawa, congratulated him upon his return to office, and congratulated the country upon having so powerful an advocate of the cause of temperance in the Government. Sir Leonard Tilley had been in seven years before, and what had he done for temperance? Nothing. He was from that time in seven years more, and what did he do? Nothing. Experience showed that the Scott Act required amendment. Dr. Sir Leonard Tilley secure any amendments? Not he. Was he censured for any neglect of duty in this regard by the Government? Never. Sir Leonard is a Conservative. When we were in office, our prohibition friends declared that it was the duty of the Government to assume the responsibility of dealing with the subject. We admitted it. We discharged that duty to the utmost. When our opponents came into power, they were backed by a large majority; and it was found that the temperance act required amendment. I proposed a resolution in the House, declaring that it was the duty of the Government to amend the law, and to make administratively efficient every Conservative prohibitionist in Parliament voted against my proposition; and what is more, the Alliance was then in session, and instead of giving me their support excused their friends, not on the ground that my motion was improper, but on the ground that I was actuated by party motives. These statements are sufficient to show you that the doctor and his friends have two codes of political ethics—one for the members of the Liberal party, and another and a wholly different code for their opponents. PEANUT WAS CHOKING BABY.

Bridgeton, N. J., Aug. 5.-The 6-month-old baby of S. B. Davis got hold of a peanut this morning which became wedged in the child's throat. A physician could not get the peanut out and the child was dying. He called for a tub of cold water, into which he tossed the child. The shock loosened the nut and it flew out. The baby is all right now.

THE UNANIMOUS VERDICT.

A traveling man who sells patent medicines asked us the other day why we did not sell a home remedy for alcoholism. He said "The Oakville treatment for whisky is the only thing I have heard of in twenty years that satisfies everybody who tries it." Popular approval is largely consequent upon our persistent refusal to send out home remedies. Not one in ten derives benefit from such preparations, whereas no one fails to obtain a radical cure at Lakehurst, where scientific individual treatment is administered by physicians who devote their whole time to it. No treatment is given by us elsewhere than at Oakville. Toronto office, 28 Bank of Commerce Building, or J. A. Tracey, 417 Hill Street, London. xt

Flavor all your cold Drinks with ten to fifteen drops of ANGSTURA BITTERS, to keep free from summer diseases and all sorts of indigestion. Dr. Slegert's is the only genuine.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly, and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

The Japanese method of lacquering is said to be at least 2,000 years old. Pieces made ten centuries ago are still exhibited.

A LIFE SAVED.-Mr. James Bryson Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

HOT WEATHER COMING.

Two months of very hot weather are promised us by E. B. Dunn, weather forecaster to the United States Government.

The months of August and September, he says, will be the warmest of the year.

"Everything points to scorching weather from now on," remarks the weather prophet with candor. "I've staved it off as long as I could, but I can't do it any longer. No doubt there are many who imagine the hot season to be practically over because it has been cool so long, but, as I have said, let them now prepare for warmth." It may be that the prognostications of the weather forecaster will be verified. As a rule, every year bring so much hot and so much cold weather, and if we do not get it one month we get it another.

IF THE TIMES ARE DULL. To cure dull times-apply an advertisement to the afflicted part.

A sign-board can't tell anything. It takes an advertisement to do that.

All who advertise do not get rich, but precious few get rich without it.

The world's memory is short. It will forget if you do not jog it frequently.

Mrs. Foster, of Kent street, has just recovered from a serious attack of La Grippe. This is the second siege she has had of the influenza, the first of which attacked Mrs. Foster about three years ago, and left her with a very troublesome cough, accompanied with chronic bronchitis, and a complication of other diseases, which made it almost impossible for her to attend church without disturbing the congregation by coughing, and, indeed, Mrs. Foster assures us that so bad were the spasms that she often feared she would burst a blood vessel during one of these severe attacks. It was very natural that under such circumstances numerous friends would recommend as many different "cure alls." She tried Cherry Pectoral, Tar, Linseed and other preparations, but was growing generally worse when a friend who had been benefited by Barkwell's Bronchial Balm advised her to try that, and in a few days she was out of bed, and the best feature is that she is now entirely freed from all symptoms of the Bronchitis, of which she never hoped to be cured. Mr. Millar, a neighbor, also had a bad cough and was completely cured by the same preparation. zxy

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER.

She Gave Fatal Doses of "Mothers' Treasure" to Still Her Crying Baby.

Attleboro, Aug. 7.-The wife of Frank Aubie, a Canadian, whose family is about taking up its residence in Dodgeville, was, the other day, on a train bound for her new home, with her infant son. To still the crying baby she gave him two doses of "Mothers' Treasure," a patent medicine used considerably among French in this vicinity.

When she reached Dodgeville the baby was unconscious. Dr. Duhaime worked over the child all night to no purpose, for he died yesterday morning. The medical examiner, Dr. Holden, found all the symptoms of opium poisoning. The mother is heart-broken.

Great Improvement in the Health of a Well-Known Peterboro Lady.

Peterboro, Aug. 5.-General satisfaction is expressed here at the greatly improved condition of health of Mrs. K. Stephens, the well known music teacher of this town. Her friends have been much exercised over her condition for a long time, and a number of remedies have been tried during the ten years she has been a martyr to a complication of complaints, which recently became severe. She suffered frightfully with pains in the back, nervous prostration and swelling of the limbs. She has been taking the new remedy for Kidney troubles, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and has already experienced the most beneficial results.
