DAVE MARION OPENS AT THE GRAND TODAY

Ziegfeld Production At Popular Prices—Bargain Matinees For Ladies Daily.

A Ziegfeld production will open for three days at the Grand Opera House with a bargain matinee for ladies this afternoon at 2:15, when Dave (Stuffy) Marion, with his company of 70 people, will give the first of his twice daily performances. This production will probably be one of the most lavish presented in London this season, as Mr. Marion purchased the entire scenic and costume investment used last season by Flo Ziegfeld in his "Polites." This is the most sumptuous outfit owned by any of the Columbia Amusement Company's attractions, and is bound to set a new standard for this class of entertainment.

The company includes 70 members and carries two carloads of scenery. Already arrangements have been made for additional stage hands to handle the production in its local appearance. Draped in silks and satins, lighted by electrical effects of dazzling beauty, containing burlesque hits and turns, the Dave Marion show has proven a winner all along the line. There are 22 episodes in the show, each of a beauty and individuality of its own.

"Temptations of 1923" at the Grand last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, proved an eye-opener to the people of London, but the Dave Marion show opening this afternoon is said to be an even better attraction than its predecessor.

To popularize this class of entertainment with the ladies of London, the management of the Grand has arranged that a special 25-cent admission will be charged to ladies at the daily matinees. The shows are clean and clever, the best show value offered at the price, and on their merits are deserving of capacity business at every performance.

FURS PERSIAN LAMB BACK AGAIN

The war put Persian Lamb out of the American and Canadian market, but it has come back again and its past favor is restored. Yet a word of caution is necessary. The stored-up raw Persian pelts of war years are now being marketed and great care should be exercised in purchasing Persian Lamb Coats, because great numbers of skins now used in the trade through long storage are very unsatisfactory.

Make sure when buying your Persian Lamb Coat that the garment is guaranteed by a reliable merchant and that he also knows reliable pelts.

We manufacture all our garments and examine very carefully all pelts and give a guarantee with every garment.

DECLARES CLERGY TO SOLVE TANGLE

Rev. William Beattie States England Slowly Recovering From War.

MUSSOLINI A CAESAR

The situation in Europe, its cause and its cure was the subject on which Rev. William Beattie of the First Presbyterian Church last night addressed his congregation. He based his discourse on the text, "Take the Yoke Upon You," and speaking from his own impressions gained in a recent visit to Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany, he gave a summary of the present unstable conditions under which Europe generally is trying to struggle onto a surer footing.

The European situation is very difficult to understand, not so much from its intricacy as from the divergent expressions of opinion which are broadcasted by the press. From the impressions which I formed in England, conditions there are better than they have been, more especially in regard to the Irish situation, but they are still far from healthy. I believe that it would be difficult to form any really stable government in England at present, even granting that strong men politically are exerting themselves in the difficult task of improving the national situation and incidentally that of the whole of Europe. In this connection I would draw your attention to work that has been done, quietly and inconspicuously, by Ramsay MacDonald during the last year or two. He is a man who has not been popular in England on account of a certain socialistic leaning which is credited to him, but nevertheless he is working earnestly to better conditions in the motherland.

People Not Satisfied.
Speaking further on the political attitude of official England towards the French occupation of the Ruhr, he said: "The general public in England does not favor the policy adopted by the government. I am at a loss to explain this, other than that they feel that were the position of France and Germany reversed Germany would have collected her reparations before evacuating the conquered country. It is well known that Germany can pay. Poincaré's recent speech, stating that France was in the Ruhr only to create the 'will to pay' on the part of the German people, and that when a reasonable payment was made they would withdraw, has increased the unpopularity of the British government's attitude of coldness towards her French ally."

Speaking of the Belgian situation, he stated that Belgium has been practically rebuilt, and that it is better built than the Belgium of pre-war days. He added that while reconstruction had advanced almost as fast in France, it is to be regretted that these countries are making no effort to balance their budgets, but are awaiting the payment of reparations before attempting to strike any kind of a balance.

Not Greatly Affected.
In so far as Italy is concerned Rev. Beattie does not think the European situation is greatly affected by Italy's actions. He likened Mussolini to a modern Caesar, adding, that since the first burst of popularity had worn off, Mussolini had sought a foreign war as a means of increasing his hold over the Italian people.

In summing the matter up, Mr. Beattie spoke of the increased interest in church matters that is noticeable in the old country, and said: "The church offers the only hope of escape from the present international entanglement in Europe. Every other means has failed or has fallen short, and our hope of a new-born and reconstructed Europe must be based on something other than a maternal foundation."

In conclusion he stated: "No great politicians, but great preachers will solve the European situation."

Everything for Baby In the Infant's Shop

Small, but important, is this young member of our family who rules our hearts—and so we have assembled everything he (or she) could possibly need. Tiny booties to encase little feet. Warm robes and sweaters. Sheer frocks and underthings. Things to play with. Accessories, perhaps, not so romantic. Here is everything that the infant wardrobe requires—as inexpensive or as costly as you desire. All assembled in one cosy little corner on the fourth floor—secluded and quiet by itself, where you may sit down and make your selection quietly and unmolested. Here, too, you will find to your surprise many devices and necessities for baby's comfort that you would never think of—conveniences you'd give the world for when you see them.

Wearable Clothes For Nursery and Kindergarten

The Ladies' Aid!
Here is practical assistance for the busy mother who is wisely conserving her youth and energy by making use of the attractive ready-to-wear offerings in our Infants' Shop on the Fourth Floor.

For Baby Days
Our tiny Dresses, Coats, Hats and little Sweaters are just as dainty, carefully made and inexpensive as any you can make yourself. They relieve your busy needle, and give you many leisure hours for rest and recreation.

TINY GARMENTS FOR FALL WEAR In Many Colors and Prices

Fall and Winter Headwear

A large assortment of Bonnets and Hats for the important small people has just been received. Light of public, and they aren't even going to get an honorable mention today. Let's just talk about you and me!

It is rather late for me to formally introduce myself. Probably I should have paused on the threshold and made my bow to you when this little column first appeared. I really didn't have stage-fright, but there were so many other things to tell you that I just forgot.

To paraphrase a once-popular song, you have made me what I am today, which is your personal shopper, and truly I do hope that you are satisfied. Every day so many letters come pouring in with requests for samples and information and advice. It is these letters of yours which have brought me here as your personal shopper. I'm thanking you for them.

And it is such fun! I never know what I may find in the mail bag. It may be requests for advice about draperies or wallpaper or ribbons or dresses or coat materials; or the selection of embroidery, silk or linen or lingerie—or a gift for a kitchen shaver.

Whenever you can't come to the store yourself, won't you please let me shop for you? This invitation is extended to every one of you, but especially to our out-of-town friends. Oh! I hope you will make use of it. Just think how popular and useful I shall feel when the morning mail brings a pile of letters addressed to "Judith!"

If I weren't afraid of sounding exactly like Polyanna, I'd say that I am GLAD you brought me here, and that I'll truly try to "say it with service."

HOW ENGLAND IN 1815 HEARD THE NEWS OF WATERLOO

LONDON'S EXPERTS NOT IMPRESSED BY SUPER-WOMAN THEORY

By Sideburned Sons of Mid-night Nearest Approach to Species Yet Seen Locally.

MAYBE SUPER-WOMEN

Local doctors and students of biology are generally agreed that no superman will appear in London for some centuries to come. They make this statement in the face of an announcement from Capt. A. Pape of the Edinburgh University, that a new type of superman will shortly arrive in our midst.

Captain Pape, a noted English anthropologist, declared that after long study he was satisfied a new race was evolving in Australia and America. The younger generation of these countries was so infinitely superior to their parents mentally, that he felt certain they were the advance guard of a nation of supermen.

Another biologist thought he saw signs of super-qualities in the modern type of young man who roams the streets at midnight. "They certainly have it all over their fathers," he averred. "They can drive a car faster, and get dinner quicker than their parents. They also have a finer appreciation of beauty, as anyone can see who has observed the beautiful sideburns that run down their temples."

Dr. H. W. Hill, of the Institute of Public Health, said that he had about 200,000,000 years out in his estimate as to when the superman shall appear on earth. "There is no doubt but that the modern youth thinks he is superior to father," Dr. Hill said. "He is always selling father's head of cabbage to his large family and the antics of his sons and daughters have probably convinced him that the superman is there at last."

Another authority thought Pape was referring to the "super man." This is a relative type of citizen, who is always running in his friends' home in time for supper. Quite a few of them were in evidence Sunday evening.

SEEKING YOUNG WOMEN TO ENTER NURSE CLASS

Course at University of Western Ontario Will Open On October 1.

The scarcity of graduate nurses and the increased demand for nursing services generally has prompted the Graduate Nurses' Association of London to canvass the city for young women to attend the post-graduate nursing course now being conducted by the University of Western Ontario.

All women who have had experience in this line will be urged to attend these classes. They are being held in London and in Toronto, and instruct pupils in post-graduate work. The course will be completed in the first week in October.

FAIR AUGMENTS TRAFFIC ON CANADIAN NATIONAL

Ernie Ruse, local ticket agent for the Canadian National Railways, states that the passenger traffic over the week-end from London to United States points has been unusually heavy. He thinks that it is the return of large numbers of people who were connected with the exhibits of the Western Fair which has caused the rush. Mr. Ruse announces that the last train from London to Sarnia leaves tomorrow and that from now until next summer the additional tourist accommodation will be cut down.

Sheriff D. A. Graham, acting high constable of Middlesex County, has received a circular bearing the pictures, descriptions and finger prints of the four men who escaped with Edward McMullen from Kingston Penitentiary recently. McMullen was the only one of the five jail-breakers recaptured.

Conquest At Waterloo Told In Humble Manner

Copy of London, England, Times, 108 Years Old, Gives News of Victory On Inside Pages.

If the battle of Waterloo had happened this year instead of more than a century ago imagine the furore it would have excited in metropolitan newspapers? Imagine the shrieking headlines announcing the defeat of "Bonaparte!" Imagine the dozens of extras circulated on city streets as the wires buzzed with reports of casualties, skirmishes and victories.

On Tuesday, June 22, 1815, when word of the epochal triumph of the Duke of Wellington reached England, a despatch announcing the wonderful news was printed in the London Times. It was one of the biggest "stories" the world has ever known.

Laurie Clappison, 73 Birmingham street, Stratford, is the owner of a copy of the London Times dated Thursday, June 22, 1815. It contained the first news England received of the battle of Waterloo.

Mr. Clappison sent the rare document into the Advertiser office. It is still in good condition, and its news columns are very precise and well written. The Times was then the largest newspaper in the world, having a circulation of about 19,000. It sold for sixpence, which in those days was not a small sum, when you consider that a pair of chickens could be purchased for the same price.

The first intimation of the great victory came in the form of a letter from Major the Honorable H. Percy, who was at the Duke of Wellington's camp at the time. It was secured June 19, and indicated that Napoleon had been repulsed but only at the cost of many British officers and troops.

"During the night, the Prussians, under Marshal Blucher, who joined in the pursuit of the enemy, captured sixty guns and a large part of Bonaparte's baggage. The allied armies continued their advance on the 20th, and the French generals were two days later in the hands of the British. The Times, editorially, goes on to glorify in the great and glorious result, and the mastery movements by which the heroic attempt of the Rebel Chief, G. Ch. G. Wellington, to our gallant soldiers

ATTENDED SCHOOL DESPITE THE FAIR

No Falling Off in Attendance Record in Western Fair Week.

Contrary to all expectations, the school attendance Fair Week did not fall off to any extent. This was the statement this morning by Attendance Officer Marcus M. Sims, who said there had been little irregularity of attendance in the past six days. This, he thought, was accounted for by the fact that Monday and Friday were holidays for the pupils, but even at that, the attendance was good.

Mr. Sims informed The Advertiser that in one school the principal had reported 100 per cent attendance and while others had told nearly the same story.

Action of James G. Seale Set Down For the County Court.

One case has been set down for the non-jury session of the Middlesex County court, at which Judge Talbot Macbeth will preside, and which opens Oct. 2.

James G. Seale is suing Bertha Borland to recover goods and chattels valued at $276.50, which, he claims, she wrongfully seized and detained. He is seeking damages, and an order of replevin. He claims she is the lawful owner of the goods, and says she holds a receipt proving her contention.

How England Learned of Waterloo

Thursday Morning, 8 o'clock. We stop the press to insert the following letter received this morning by the LORD MAYOR.

[COPY.] DOWNING STREET, June 22, 1815, 1 a.m.

My LORD,—I have the greatest satisfaction in informing your Lordship that the Hon. Major H. PERCY is just arrived with despatches from the Duke of WELLINGTON, dated Waterloo, the 19th instant, containing the account of a most decisive and glorious victory having been obtained over the whole of the French army by the Allied Forces, on the 18th instant, the result of which has been the overthrow of the French Army, with the loss of more than 200 pieces of artillery, an immense quantity of ammunition, and a part of the baggage belonging to BUONAPARTE.

The loss of the British Army upon this occasion has unfortunately been most severe. It had not been possible to make out a return of the killed and wounded when Major PERCY left head quarters. The names of the officers killed and wounded, as far as they can be collected, are annexed.

I have the honour to be your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant, BATHURST, To the Right Hon. the LORD MAYOR. BRITISH KILLED AND WOUNDED.

C. N. R. NAMES SLEEPER AFTER CITY OF LONDON

Name of London Given to One of Thirty of Newest Type of Car.

The City of London, together with a number of other important Canadian municipalities, has acquired a new name. The name "London" has been given to one of the 30 new sleeping cars being built in Canada for the Canadian National Railways.

Hydro engineers are expected in the city today and City Engineer Near says he is quite willing to inspect the job in their company, and learn anything they may have to teach him. "That is what we are here for," he says.

Says Sir Adam Should Put His Charges In Writing

Urges Sir Adam to Write. "Sir Adam Beck is no different from any other resident," said the mayor, "and we have a complaint department where he may register objections. Sir Adam is no part of the London city council and has no authority to call a meeting of the board of works."

Ald. Douglas agrees that the conference this morning without his sanction and out of order. He explained at noon that Sir Adam had since registered a personal request with him to talk things over.

As a later development, members of the board of works staged a wordy engagement at an informal session in the mayor's office at noon. The gathering was called by Mayor Wenige, following a second request from Sir Adam Beck for a meeting to consider his charges on the Richmond street paving job.

ALD. HAYDEN SAYS HALF MOUTHFUL OF WHISKEY NOT BLOCKED BY "PLOT"

Charges Certain Parties Have Telephoned Ratepayers On Street Regarding Proposal.

MAY DEFER WORK. Ald. Edmund Hayden, ward 4 member of the board of works, charged this afternoon that "derand methods" are still being employed to block the proposed paving of Oxford street, from Richmond to Adelaide streets.

That certain members of the finance committee have been busy all morning "trying to put something over" is Ald. Hayden's belief, basing his claim upon information tendered just before noon today.

Ald. Hayden stated quite clearly that it looked to him as if certain influences were vigorously at work in the council's paving program as outlined for the remainder of the year.

It looks very peculiar to me," he stated. "I have heard that only this morning certain members of the committee have been interesting themselves in this matter, apparently with the view of halting the work this year."

Ald. Hayden states, in fact, that he has been given to understand that another reading, since then, however, attention was called to the fact that this vote was irregular, in view of the fact that authorization must be made by a two-thirds majority of all the aldermen, and not of all the aldermen present, as was generally understood at the time.

Ald. Hayden questions the numerous delays in connection with this job since it was "initiated," and charged that the two-thirds majority has caused him to believe that the deliberate, and obviously successful, attempt had been made to block the measure.

He will air his views again at tonight's session of the council.

AYLMER FARMER DIES FROM GUNSHOT WOUND

William Moorecraft, a young farmer who resides near Aylmer, died a few hours after he reached Victoria Hospital, Saturday night, as a result of a shooting accident at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the farm of H. McConnell near Port Burwell.

Moorecraft seemed to feel his time had come for a doctor. He called for a doctor, and the doctor, who was called, found the farmer lying on the ground, with a bullet in his chest. He died before the doctor could reach him.

Moorecraft, however, failed to rally after the bullet was extracted, shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday, and died early Sunday morning losing the same amount of blood.

TO STRICTLY ENFORCE SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Now That Fair Is Over, the Attendance Officer Will Get Busy.

Beginning this morning, strict enforcement of school attendance regulations will be carried out by Attendance Officer Marcus M. Sims.

Mr. Sims said that owing to the fact that the Western Fair had followed close on the opening of the schools, the enforcement had not been strictly carried out, but that now the fair was over the pupils must settle down into their regular routine and carry out the year's program of studies.

Nazlo Determines To Question Mrs. Harkness About Terry Desmond

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
MILES SHERIDAN, aware of his wife's infidelity, is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to JULIET DIVINE, a beautiful show girl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to do herself, but, greedy for the money, she betrays him.

TERESA DESMOND (Terry), her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister, an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Mrs. Harkness did her in childhood, Terry has made her Dream Prince.

PAUL DI SALVANO, a handsome Italian.

EUSTACE NAZLO, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in surprise to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

MRS. HARKNESS, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll," is won over by Terry's sweetness and good nature. Miles stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering, although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

MISS CAROLINE SHERIDAN, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Nazlo reviews what has gone before between him and Terry. The girl had run away from him. The girl back in New York, and her unscrupulous father, Desmond, had told Eustace she had gone to stay with friends.

CHAPTER LVIII
The Shoe King, a Detective.
Nazlo returned to New York, but from his apartment he called up a detective agency. It was not difficult to discover who the man was, such as Desmond described had been delivered. In fact, he had received none at all on the morning in question. The next step was not so easy; and more than a week passed before the detective engaged to run the girl to earth could learn from an old gardener at the convent that Teresa, Desmond had not returned to the fold.

Desmond had lied. Nazlo wondered why. The girl's father had trusted her to him in the first place, knowing that he had not one night of a saint. The proprietor of the Elue Moon couldn't be shocked at what happened in New York, even if he'd heard an exaggerated story. There was a different reason for his evasions. Nazlo racked his brains for it, and news of Natalie's illness in Marsellias found no other thoughts. She'd been ill before, and the nurse was on hand to look after Eustace junior.

It occurred to Nazlo that Desmond wished to turn his attention from New York to New York, he deduced that Terry was there. But New York was a big haystack in which to find the needle.

Because the task looked hopeless, Nazlo never ceased thinking of it and the girl. Mentally he lived through every woman off their evening together, hoping to stumble upon some clue. Then, at last, he recalled her interest in Riverside Drive, how she'd asked to pass along slowly and look at the houses.

Now he asked himself: among the thousands of dwellers on Riverside Drive, in which she had been interested was there one likely to be a friend of little Teresa Desmond's? He reviewed names, and finally that of Juliet Divine sprang into his head. That likeness! What a tenth-rate fool he's been not to put two and two together, before this!

strain in the Greek Shoe King, and an instinct that told him he might "pick up something" down at the harbor.

Having arrived, he got out of the car and walked about, pretending to interest himself in the small, brightly-painted boats lying ready for hire. He had eyes to spare, however, for other things, and he blinked in the sunshine as he stared at "Silverwood," white as a great swan in the green water.

As he gazed, a woman's figure slowly descended the gangway, and seated itself solidly in a waiting boat; the figure of an elderly woman, he thought. Two smart sailors began to row her swiftly towards shore, and they had not taken many strokes, before Nazlo was inspired. A taxi was standing near his car. He went to it, and offered hundred francs to the chauffeur. "Go up to the Hotel du Louvre and ask if Mr. Eustace Nazlo is staying there," he ordered. "You needn't come back to tell me. I shall expect you only if the answer is 'Yes.'"

The man drove off grinning, though he had been engaged to take a woman to Mentons. He would not have received more than forty francs for that service, counting return fare.

Nazlo was sure that the taxi would not come back.

ON HOW MEN TREAT WOMEN

Men treat WOMEN
Like women treat ROSES—
For a woman will select
From a large bouquet
The prettiest blossom,
And will adore and caress it—
She will hold it
To her LIPS, maybe;
To her HEART, maybe.
But after a while,
When she begins to FADE
And decays—her no longer,
She tosses it away
And takes ANOTHER—
Why NOT? There are so many

Roses and ALL are beautiful.
A MAN selects a blossom
From the garden of Life,
Adores her, CARESSES HER,
Presses her to his LIPS,
To his HEART—maybe.
But after a while,
When she begins to DROOP
And pleases him no longer,
He chooses another—WHY NOT?
There are SO MANY women
And all are BEAUTIFUL!
YES! A man CAN do this
IF—
A woman will LET him!

Peter Learns Many Things About Spotty's Manner of Eating

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit can see a joke even when it is on himself. What is better, he can laugh at himself. This is something a lot of people cannot do. It came over Peter all in a flash that it was his own ignorance that had given Spotty the chance to play such a joke on him. When Spotty had said that he was going to get a lunch-Peter had asked if he might go along, and Spotty had told him that he might. Then Spotty had dived into the water and disappeared. Of course, Peter couldn't follow him, and of course, Spotty had known that.

Spotty kept his face straight, but his eyes twinkled. "What are you laughing at?" he demanded.

"At myself," replied Peter. "Of course you have been laughing down inside ever since I asked to go along to lunch with you. I don't blame you for a bit. It was a good joke on me. Now, tell me, Spotty, do you get all your food in the water?"

"Every bit of it," replied Spotty. "Don't you ever get a bite when you are out on the bank?" Peter asked.

"Not a bite," replied Spotty. "You had heard the same thing about Snapper. He remembered that when he had first heard it he hadn't believed it. It was hard to believe now, but he felt right in his bones that Spotty was telling the truth. "Whatever I can get," replied Spotty. "Tadpoles are very good eating, and so are young fish. Then down on the bottom of the Smiling Pool there are insects which are very tasty. Also there are water plants by way of variety. It was some of these that I had for lunch just now. If you had come along, Peter, you might have tried them too." Peter's eyes twinkled.

Peter laughed. "I'll take your word for it that they were good," said he. "Now I understand that you've never had a bite of water. Then down on the bottom of the Smiling Pool there are insects which are very tasty. Also there are water plants by way of variety. It was some of these that I had for lunch just now. If you had come along, Peter, you might have tried them too." Peter's eyes twinkled.

Dear Snooty colon paragraph.

Yes comma Snooty comma I did get your letter about the man selling the sulphate of quinine tonic delivered to the house by the gee which was supposed to be by the gee which you said the man was a scoundrel a deceiver and a criminal of the worst sort and should be apprehended by the most tortuous tolls of the law if he came to this city and would I have the cops watch out for and order a lot of his cases and when he didn't get here until yesterday and when he did he didn't do anything to get pinched for in fact he furnished some of the gang with a good guffaw paragraph.

This mysterious fellow pulled in to the Commercial House yesterday morning and he gave it out that he would sell anybody one or more cases of his sulphate of quinine tonic delivered to the house and then he would wink and say gentlemen there is nothing in it but quinine and water and if the health creates vim and vigor so a lot of the boys said they knew a good thing when they saw it and ordered a lot of his cases and when he tasted it it was terrible and he took a bottle of it to Carney's Drug Store and get Carney to analyze it and by that time there were sixteen other fellows in there with bottles too and the mysterious stranger had hopped No. 18 for Cleveland and the gang would have filled him full of his own vim and vigor but it seems to me there wasn't anything to get excited about because when Carney got through analyzing the stuff he found it was sulphate of quinine and water period.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

NURSE WALKER.

"And what can I do for you?" asked Dr. Henry Hardwick, lifting rather tired gray eyes to regard the young woman who had just been ushered into his private office. She was a stranger, and as was Dr. Hardwick's custom he was trying to diagnose her case before she had even mentioned her symptoms. But she looked amazingly well — far too well to pay him a visit. Still, she was agitated — so agitated, in fact, that her hands shook, and she had to moisten her lips before she could speak.

"Mr. Peters — Samuel Peters — is one of your patients?" she began, and as the doctor nodded an affirmative — "He is my fiancée. Our engagement has not been announced, but I tell you in due season you will understand. There is opposition to our engagement. His mother is a widow, you know, and would object if she didn't want it known. And now he is ill, very ill."

"Yes, Mr. Peters is very ill," the doctor replied. "But I believe he will live. And to himself he was wondering how Mrs. Peters, as he knew her, could possibly object to so charming a daughter-in-law. I will be glad to keep you informed of Mr. Peters' condition."

"No, it isn't that," Abigail went on. "You see, he might need me very much, and he would not be able to send for me. He might — might die without seeing me. I must see him. I must see him, in spite of his mother's objections. I am sure there is no other reason for his not wanting our engagement announced besides his mother. I thought that you could suggest a nurse — an additional nurse, if he already has one — and I could be the nurse. I know something of nursing. At boarding school we had lectures and little practice at the children's clinic. Wouldn't you please let me, doctor? You must see how important it is."

"There was a plea in the girl's voice that left but one answer. "It could possibly be arranged," he said, and then doubting whether assistance in this direction would be quite compatible with professional dignity, he added: "You see I had really decided that a nurse would be necessary, but I don't think my list are engaged. I would have no right to do anything but accept. I had better not tell Mr. Peters. You might go on duty this evening at about six. He will perhaps not recognize you — rather high temperature still. You can, I suppose, do that. Yes, I will see to it."

"Yes," said Abigail. "Oh, I am so grateful."

It was further arranged that the doctor would call at the Peters house and tell them of his engaging little nurse whose name for the Peters family should be Miss Walker.

As up the doctor's stairs, Samuel Peters was not quite rational enough that night to recognize in the little nurse in unlearned uniform the girl to whom he had pledged his truth. Abigail was full of concern for her patient, but somehow her anxiety over her patient's critical illness was a measure relieved by the feeling of surprise that her first meeting with Mrs. Peters caused. She was not at all as her son had described her. She was a woman of middle years, rather plump, with a friendly smile. She was not at all as her son had described her. Mothers and Their Children

Proper Ventilation.
One Mother says;
My son and daughter have learned the principles of ventilation. They know that the window must be open both top and bottom, so that the used air may go out while fresh air comes in. The children take turns with the week in having charge of the ventilation of our living room, and I have impressed them with the importance of their responsibility for seeing that the air we breathe is fresh.

GERMAN MARKS PASS European Situation Is Greatly Improved by Expected Change of Policy.

By STUART P. WEST, Special Correspondent of The Advertiser. New York, Sept. 15.—The dip which security prices followed in the wake of the savage volume of selling which swept across the stock and bond markets was the feature of the financial situation of the week.

The attitude which promoted that situation was psychological and professional rather than real. There was a doubt, apparently well founded, as to whether the advance which had taken place since late in July and August in prices on the stock exchange had not fully measured the trade and business possibilities of the public in the movement.

Neither the foreign developments nor domestic trade news could be held responsible for the sharp decline. Participation by the public in the movement of the market was not only expected but was actually in evidence.

Buying Advance Slow in Developing. The sharp advance in buying which was expected to develop in domestic trade circles after the first of September has not materialized, yet the volume of trade, both present and prospective, is such that the profits of the industrial groups in the near future are freight car loadings, according to the latest available reports, have again exceeded record production.

German Mark Passed Out. Perhaps the most significant event in international business was the elimination of the German mark as a standard of value. One of the leading international banking interests in the world decided during the week to cease quotation of the mark, and this position was followed by other banks.

Trouble in Oil Industry. International dimensions are reliably reported to have had a bearing on the movement of the oil market. The question of maintaining prices for crude at a certain level to provide support for independent producers was raised, and the prevailing opinion that crude oil at advantageous prices while their own crude oil was shut in received another setback.

Coal Contracting Factor. The fact that there seems no possibility of the contract between operators and miners in the anthracite fields not being continued in the local mines workers' convention held that controversy over anthracite was a factor.

Everything the Farmer Trades In

Local Market

Hay of standard quality meets with brisk selling on the local square, $18.90 to $19.00 per ton being paid, but that of inferior quality is not wanted at any price. On Monday, ten loads were received, seven of which were readily disposed of at the higher figures, but three others were unable to command over $10.00 per ton, and at noon were still unsold.

GRAIN MARKET. Barley, per bu., 98 to 99; Oats, per bu., 95 to 97; Rye, per bu., 95 to 97; Wheat, per bu., 95 to 97.

BUTTER AND EGGS. Butter, per lb., 45 to 46; Eggs, per doz., 25 to 26.

CHEESE. Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, Sept. 16.—The cheese market was quiet. Total receipts from May 1 to date have been 624 boxes in excess of those for the same period a year ago.

EGG MARKET REVIEW. Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Sept. 15.—There is practically no change in the market, although there is a very firm undertone, and it looks as if prices for the better grades will go higher. Further orders for export of 27 1/2c, f.o.b. Montreal, for equipment have been received.

BUTTER AND EGGS. Montreal, Sept. 16.—Butter—Higher; creamery extras, 47c. Eggs—Unchanged; receipts, 14,193 cases; first, 34 1/2c.

Butcher Grades Firm and Quantity Scarce

Trade Continues Good for Quality Cattle at Toronto Market.

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, Sept. 17.—There was a good market today for butcher cattle with anything like killing quality about them. Black packers and smaller local wholesale men wanted good cattle, and all complained that there were too many rough cattle in the market.

WAGNIPPEG. TODAY'S OPENING PRICES. Wheat—Oct., 94c to 95c higher at 94 1/2c to 95c; Nov., unchanged to 94c higher at 94 1/2c to 95c.

CHICAGO. TODAY'S OPENING PRICES. Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Sept. 17.—With prices higher than on Saturday, the wheat market here showed an upward tendency today.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET. Reported for The Advertiser by Jones, Easton, McCallum Co. Chicago, Sept. 17.—Close.

TORONTO. Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Sept. 17.—Wheat—Spot, 94c; 1 northern, 11.10; 2 northern, 11.10; 3 northern, 11.10.

MINNEAPOLIS. Associated Press Despatch. Minneapolis, Sept. 15.—Wheat, No. 1 northern, 11.10; No. 2 northern, 11.10; No. 3 northern, 11.10.

EARLY FROSTS INJURE CROPS ON LOW GROUND

Frosts which have occurred the last four nights in Western Ontario have brought outdoor growth of most crops to a sudden stop. They have not been sufficiently heavy to injure the corn, but the fact that the first frost is here has speeded up the cutting, and on many farms the corn binder is working hard to get the crop, but before real injury takes place.

Grape growers report that the grapes are not affected as yet, and in the case of gardeners located on high ground, tomato vines are still unharmed. Those gardeners who are working on low flat land say that practically all outdoor crops, with the exception of roots, are cut down by the frost and work is going forward rapidly in the harvesting of pumpkins and hubbard squash.

The potato crop is frosted down and in Canada some growers have commenced digging. Potato growers who have dug some of their crop say that the yield will be above average and mention the freedom from blight as one of the biggest factors in the splendid yield that is reported from most districts.

The root crop is reported to be doing nicely since the heavy rains of a week ago, and some growers go so far as to say that the hot dry weather of early summer will not be felt in the yield, provided an open fall gives the turnips a chance to take on a little more size.

The majority of the farmers who have been questioned say that in so far as the whole season is concerned, it has been a profitable one, for although the spring grains were a light crop, and straw is rather scarce in this district, hay, corn and root crops are well above average, and on most farms there will be an abundance of winter feed.
