Tokio, Nov. 30.-Official advices re ceived at the war office from Japanese headquarters at Port Arthur state that the attack upon the fortress, which began in the afternoon of Nov. 26, was most desperate.

That day was one of disappointment to the Japanese, Generals Nakamura and Saito, leading specially trained bodies of swordsmen, charged into the forts, utterly regardless of the withering fire directed at them. Many of the season, arrived at North Sydney attackers were shot in their tracks, but the others continued the wild rush over the bodies of their dead and wounded, and finally reached the

No man has more earned the gratitude of his countrymen.

Before the Canadian Club of Ottawa this week. Prof. Robertson, who is Sir William Macdonald's guide, philosopher and friend, outlined the schemes of his distinguished patron, and unfolded a tale of marvelous progress and promise. Sir William Macdonald was seized with the idea that in some departments of education, chiefly on the scientific and technical side, Canada was not abreast of several states of the Union and foreign countries. His first move was the introduction of manual training. As a starter he brought 27 teachers from England, the United States, and Sweden, and put them to work, 7. 000 pupils taking up the subject. > That Jim Corbett will make one final effort to regain his lost laurels from Bob Fitzsimmons is the information contained in a letter received by his brother Tom, the other day, says writer in St. Louis. Corbett intends to have one last battle, if Fitzsimmons will consent to an encounter, and will then retire from WITHOUT GIVING THEM FAIR TRIAL the ring, Although realizing that he is now no match for the massive Jeffries, Corbett thinks that he would like to wind up his pugilistic career by a victory over the man who once defeated him at Carson City.

"Jim has always claimed that it was a chance blow that put him away,' said Tom recently, "or rather, he is free to admit that it was his own care lessness. He had been avoiding Fitz so easily that he merely drew back his head when Bob made a pass at him, thus throwing out his stomach and solar plexus until Bob had the one chance of his life.

'Fitz took the one chance and anded, Jim was tired at the time, but so was Bob. It's easy to talk now about how exhausted Corbett was in that encunter, as a good many alleged ports are doing. But he wasn't half as ired as was Fitzsimmons, and would have wor if he had not become overconfident.

"'Fitz and Jim are both getting long in years, from the standpoint of dampening his ardor in trying to care about any more battles. And as there's nobody in the heavyweight line they can't lick, outside of Jeffries, it seems as if the fight ought to prove good card.' "In the letter referred to, Jim merey stated that, while there had been much talk about his desiring to make other matches, he wanted to fight Fitzsimmons and would make an effort to do so in the near future.

"Corbett is scheduled to go to Europe later, but he would be willing to stay on this side if a match were arranged."

City Engineer Graydon's suggestion to have the snow-cleaning area of London increased, as outlined in The Advertiser the other day, meets with much approval on all sides. The district named by Mr. Graydon is one given over to business, and for the most part the wealthier classes, and the ery that the workingman will suffer is thus robbed of its weight. No Further Action in Case of Frank Roberton-New Hose

The case of Fireman John Swanwick, who was injured in the Sterling fire in January last, and who is now asking the city for damages, engaged the attention of the members of No. 3 committee for nearly an hour last night. Those present at the meeting were Chairman Matthews, Ald. Greenlees, Greer and Garratt, Fire Chief Clark, it was decided to reaffirm the committee's former action, and recommend to Serenata. Inspector McCallum, Market Clerk Maker, and Secretary Bell. At a meeting held a couple of weeks ago the committee decided to recommend to the council that Swanwick be paid $150, and also that his doctors' bills be paid by the city. The area suggested by the engineer is generally occupied by those who can either do the work themselves or pay to have it done. If for one winter we had decent walking within these limits, the benefits would be so marked that its residents would be unwilling to return to the present abominable condition of things, and the citizens generally will wish to have it cover the whole city. "I have never known a town or city in Ontario where the walking was so atrociously bad as it is every winter in London. The only ones who benefit Archdeacon Williams, upon his election to the exalted and acred position of bishop of the great Diocese of Huron. That Archdeacon Williams appealed to the members of the synod on his merits as a man and a clergyman and without adventitious alds, is all the more gratifying to those who know him and esteem him as we people of Stratford have learned to do. We have no doubt at the same time that the feelings of Bishop Williams over the outcome are those of deep humility and an overpowering sense of the great responsibilities laid upon him. No man, no matter how able or gifted, should enter upon the duties of such an office as that of bishop with any other feeling. We desire to place on record our high appreciation of the character of Bishop-Elect Williams, of his ripe qualifications as a scholar, of his broad human sympathies, of his high conscientiousness, and his devo-tion to high ideals of duty and conduct. We wish him a long and worthy in-cumbency of the bishopric and that he may acquire a deep hold upon the affections not only of his own people but of all denominations such as his sainted predecessor attained.'
