NERVOUS TROUBLES ON THE INCREASE

They Are Due to an Impoverished Condition of the Blood.

Nervous exhaustion—or neurasthenia, as medical men call it—is one of the greatest evils of the present day, for it is destroying the life and energy of thousands of men and women, or worse, driving them to insanity. The causes of this trouble include overwork, mental strain, worry, indiscretions, and sometimes it follows influenza or grippe. The signs of this trouble are usually great weakness, after any exertion, nervous headaches, trembling hands, shakiness in the legs, irritability of temper, weak digestive power, insomnia. The life of the sufferer becomes full of miseries.

The true treatment for this trouble must consist of a building up process, for the above signs mean that the exhausted nerves are calling for more nourishment from the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make new, rich blood that feeds the starved complaining nerves, and in this way they have cured thousands of times neurasthenia, neuralgia and other nervous disorders, and have restored strength and nerve-energy to despairing people. Mrs. Isaac Wilson, Calabogie, Ont., gives thanks for having been restored to health through the use of this medicine, she says: "When I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was a nervous wreck; I couldn't do any work, could not sleep at night, suffered from nervous headaches, and the least noise would completely upset me. Only those who have suffered from nervous trouble can tell what I suffered. I doctored for a time, but did not get any benefit. Then I learned of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and sent for a half dozen boxes. By the time I had used these I was almost well, and a couple more boxes completely restored my health, and I have had no return of the trouble. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those who suffered from any form of nervous trouble."

If you are weak, nervous or out of health begin to cure yourself to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAPTAIN BECKER MAY GET OFF ENTIRELY

Attorney Whitman Now Sees Little Hope of Success in New Trial.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Charles Becker, former police lieutenant convicted of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who has just been granted a new trial, was visited in the death house at Sing Sing prison to-day by his attorney, Joseph A. Shay. To-morrow the attorney told Becker he expects to serve the remittance of the court of appeals on the prison warden. Becker will then leave the death house, where he has been confined since the fall of 1912 and be returned to a cell in the Tombs prison here until the final disposition of his case. Behind him in the death cells, Becker will leave the four gunmen convicted of the actual killing of Rosenthal, and they will be executed next month unless the governor grants executive clemency. The opinion was expressed by the attorneys and friends of Becker that he would never be tried again as the instigator of the murder of Rosenthal and there was also much talk that Becker, if he eventually goes free, will seek reinstatement on the police force.

District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, who will determine whether Becker shall be tried again, has thus far refused to say what further action he will take in the case. It is known, however, that Mr. Whitman believes that a second trial would be futile in the face of the court of appeals' decision. That decision in effect stamps "Sam" Schopp one of the principal witnesses for the state as an accomplice in the murder plot, which "Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Webber and "Harry" Vallon confessed, implicating Becker. The decision it is pointed out, also leaves the district attorney in an embarrassing position with reference to Rose, Webber and Vallon, who might under certain circumstances of a new trial, be held and tried for the murder of Rosenthal.

Becker's stay of sixteen months in the death house has resulted in changes in his appearance. He has improved in health and his make-up is that of an athlete in training. Also he has read a good deal—the Bible, Shakespeare and many works of literature—for a purpose which he refused to disclose.

Jack Rose, the Chief witness for the state against Becker said to-day that he was ready to testify again in the case if wanted. He showed feeling when mention was made of the suggestion that Becker was made a victim in order that he and others who confessed their part in the plot, might be saved. "If it can be proved," he said, "that it was a frame up, I want to take the cell made vacant by Becker. I want also to pay the penalty, and I will waive immunity. We must all face the judgment of God. There and there only can I be judged on the testimony I gave at the trial."

"Bridgie" Webber, who is living in Passaic, N. J., refused to discuss the Becker decision. "I have nothing to say. I don't want to be bothered about it anymore," he said.

MILITANTS GOT SEVERE DOSE

Sentences were Handed Out in the Bow Street Court Today.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] LONDON, Feb. 25.—Five prominent suffragettes were charged before the police magistrate at Bow street to-day with obstructing the court during last night's demonstration in parliament square, when they protested violently against Premier Asquith, who had refused to receive them.

The prisoners were Laura Housman, author, and artist; Henry W. Nevinson, war correspondent; Mrs. D. A. Thomas, wife of the Welsh coal magnate; H. D. Harben and Miss K. Haig.

The magistrate ordered them all to be bound over in a bond of $25 each to be of good behaviour for six months. The prisoners all refused to enter into the bond.

In a speech from the prisoner's enclosure, Laurence Housman said he was there as a protest against the treatment of women political offenders, and he would continue to protest so long as he thought it justified and necessary.

In the ordinary course, offenders refusing to be bonded over, remain in prison for six months.

Alfred Meynell, another prisoner, was charged with assaulting the police on the same occasion, and was fined $10, or as an alternative, seven days imprisonment.

Oldtimers Bested In Argument

Last night the old members of the Farrington Debating Society met to defeat an attempt of the present members on the subject of "City Government by Commission." There was a very large turnout of both past and present members of the Society in the Board Room of the public library. The affirmative was taken by the old members, composed of Messrs. Frank Cockshutt, T. Harry Jones and W. G. Raymond, with the former acting as leader. Many strong points were brought out by these gentlemen, in favor of City government by commission.

The negative was taken by Mr. Stearns, John Noble and Gordon Cockshutt and they put up such a strong argument, opposing that form of government that the judges, Messrs. Arthur Watt, Archie Harley, W. G. Helliker, were forced to award the decision to them. The present members gave some very convincing arguments against government by commission, showing in a way how disastrous it would be for a city to have it. The old members accepted the defeat very gracefully and congratulated the present members on their splendid speeches.

Young Peoples' Societies Meet

Congregational Young People's Guild
A most interesting and instructive debate was given by the Young People's Guild on Monday night. Why Brantford should have local option and the reasons why it should not. Mr. Quirk and Owen delivered their local option bill to the house, which was hotly contested by the opposition and other interested parties. Pastor Kelly and Miss Winegard acted as judges, after deliberating, brought in an unanimous verdict for local option for Brantford. During the evening Miss Dickson rendered a solo, Miss Winegard played the accompaniment. The president, Mr. Foster, in bringing the meeting to a close, intimated the guild intends to visit Hamilton and Burford Guilds in a masquerade. Good times therefore lie ahead of the Congregational Zion Guild.

Recital Was Pleasing One

New Organ at Alexandra Church Formally Dedicated Last Night.

The new organ of Alexandra Presbyterian church was formally opened last night when Mr. H. K. Jordan gave a recital assisted by Miss Sweet and the choir of Brant Avenue Methodist church. The church was crowded to the doors by a large and appreciative audience, who listened with interest to a lengthy and varied programme of instrumental and vocal music. Rev. A. E. Lavell of Brant Avenue Methodist church also pleased the audience with a well rendered reading of one of Dr. Drummond's poems entitled "The Habitant."

No special mention can be made of any one number on the programme. Every one was excellent. Miss Sweet was perhaps the star of the evening, her rendition of Thayer's "My Lullaby" and Chittam's "Swing My Cherub" fairly captured the audience. Time after time she was encored and gracefully responded each time. Too much cannot be said of the chorus work of the choir. Their work last night showed many weeks of hard and careful training. Perhaps their best number of the evening was "The Slumber Song" by Lohr. The beautiful mellow tones of each part were brought out with pleasing effect and fairly brought the house down. The chorus of ladies' voices in their rendition of Abt's "Twilight" and the "Song of the Bow" by the mixed double quartette could not have been improved on.

And then the organ. No finer music has been heard in this city than that which Mr. Jordan brought forth from the fine new organ, which the church has installed. Every number fairly thrilled the audience. From the loud, piercing notes of Rossini's Overture to Semiramide to the soft slow notes of Guilman's Funeral March, the work of Mr. Jordan was, to say the least superb. He showed himself to be a perfect master and a thorough musician in every sense of the word.

After the recital the ladies of the church entertained the artists of the evening to a supper in the basement of the church at which speeches were made by a number of the prominent members of the church and a vote of thanks passed to the visiting talent for the splendid programme which they had received. The following was the programme Chorus "And the Glory of the Lord" (The Messiah) (Handel); chorus "Lift Up Your Heads" Haide's Messiah; overture to Semiramide (Rossini); two solos (a) "Swing My Cherub" (Chittam); (b) "My Lullaby" (Thayer); Miss Sweet; chorus "Night" (Gounod); double quartette "Song of the Habitant" (Aylward); Romance in D Flat (Mare); Minuet in A (Boccherini); march; Hungarian March "Raisons" chorus "A Legend" (Tschaiikovsky); chorus "A Slumber Song" (Lohr); Reading Rev. Alfred E. Lavell; Pastor's March and Hymn of St. Paul; Guilman Op. 172; chorus for the ladies "Twilight" (Abt); Chorus "Hallelujah" (Handel); Messiah; overture "Saviour Breathe an evening blessing."

A STRING OF PEARLS.

A New York millionaire has refused to pay a promised reward for the finding of his wife's $25,000 pearl necklace. Up to date he has paid but $100 of the $5,000 offered, withholding the rest on the ground that the poor girl who found it retained it and wore it a week before restoring it.

As it is not even claimed that the necklace was injured in the wearing, a nice question arises as to the real value of a pearl necklace for a week. The sum extorted, $4,900, seems rather large for a poor girl to pay.

It is not well at all times to take proverbs too literally. "Virtue is its own reward," is true, as a rule. But there is more than mere virtue in the voluntary return of a lost string of pearls. The obligation does not all rest on the finder.

A poor girl—or a rich one, either—might be very good and virtuous as to the words go, and still hesitate to go to any great trouble to hunt up the owner of a string of pearls that had fallen in her way, fitted her neck, tickled her vanity, won for her admiration, and seemed altogether to be a fine stroke of luck.

Of course, it is easy to moralize and know just exactly what to do—until one finds the pearls.

Duty is clear, conscience active and honour bright so long as somebody else has found—the pearls. Moral proverbs then line themselves up in invincible phalanx.

But to the poor girl who actually finds the pearls, puts them upon her neck and surveys herself in the glass, it is a good deal different.

The shine of the pearl gets into her eyes and somehow blinds her to things that before were plain. She may be good and virtuous and honest, but the glass tells her that the pearls make her prettier. One standing aside and coldly looking on could easily reason out the right thing to do, but the girl before the glass, with the pearls about her neck, and their shine in her eyes, can't reason so clearly.

The millionaire offered his $5,000 by printed advertisement. Perhaps when he found the finder to be a poor girl, whose services are not reckoned valuable in money, he thought $100 would look sufficiently large to her. Counting only her actual trouble in returning the necklace, that amount is probably sufficient and far more than she could have made in any other way in the same time. But he cold-bloodedly forgets the pain of a girl's sacrificed vanity. He overlooks the high heroism underlying her action.

SUPPORT THE BY-LAW

The Expositor is going pretty wide afield when it garbles an expression of opinion found in the Courier news columns, and picked up on the street in the municipal gossip of the day, and attempts to make insinuations that this paper is opposed to street railway purchase. It is questionable newspaper etiquette in the first place, but more important still, the cupola corner attempt to blindfold people to its past iniquities in regard to municipal ownership is not fooling anybody in the least. If the Expositor had its own sweet will Brantford would still be paying 8 1/2 cents per kilowatt for electric lighting. The organ has no shame whatever.

From the very first the Courier has supported the acquisition by the city, if possible, of the street railway, and the situation to-day in regard to the by-law to be voted on makes action more imperative than ever. If the by-law is not carried the 38-year franchise will not be wiped out, and Brantford will still be at the mercy of any interests who might come along and grab the railway. If the city completes the purchase, it has been pointed out, more as possibilities than probabilities, that there are alternative ways of operating the road. The ideal, of course, is municipal operation, but it is absurd to imagine that if the city does not operate the railway itself that any body of aldermen will ever grant a long-term franchise and give away street rights to another private corporation. The day of such franchises, similar to the one the Expositor supported heart and soul with the electric monopoly, is past.

The street railway purchase is a big municipal question. It must be handled in a big way. First the 38-year franchise should be wiped out, and this can only be done by the carrying of the by-law. Extensions must then be made and a proper service inaugurated to the various sections of the city now without the same. Rebuilding a defunct railway will require time, money and a far-sighted management. But the first step in all this is carrying the by-law. After that the city's position is supreme and unassailable. To this end there should be no hesitation on the part of any ratepayer to heartily support street railway purchase. In fact, it would be a municipal crime at this stage of Brantford's history if the opportunity were rejected.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Get behind the purchase by-law.

President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting" is now adopted generally in regard to the approach of summer.

The greatest inventor of the day is either Thomas A. Edison or that man who devises schemes to get liquor into the Cobalt district.

Flat-dwellers in New York are advised to place hives of bees on their window-sills, to combat the cost of living. Most of the time would have to be spent combating the bees.

In passing, it might be noted that February is a perfect month. The first was a Sunday, the last is a Saturday—four complete weeks. Weather grumblers please note.

Juvenile criminal offenders increased by thirty per cent. in Canada during the past year. We should not develop too much complacency over our juvenile court system.

Brantford will no longer be a partner in the Lake Erie & Northern Railway if the bill to raise the bond issue of the road goes through. But we are jumping from one railway enterprise to another, just the same.

The United States Government has captured the bandit Castillo, and doesn't know what to do with him. This predicament is a base reflection upon the ancient and honorable profession of vaudeville promoters.

Everyone who has enjoyed the works of the late Robert Louis Stevenson will note with regret the passing of the great novelist's wife, who did her woman's share in helping Stevenson to realize the full measure of his genius.

The Expositor knows where the Courier stands and always has stood in regard to municipal ownership, and yet that organ continues to misrepresent this paper in a brazen-faced way. Its own record is its real source of worry.

Marvellous reductions in electric lighting rates have been made in this city, but up to the last minute before Hydro was turned on the last pound of flesh was exacted. And yet this was the state of affairs which the Expositor, an eleventh-hour convert to public ownership, only a year ago wanted to perpetuate.

A lady correspondent who says the ignorance of Canadian men prevents women from obtaining the suffrage in Canada, falls into a common habit of "blaming the other attorney." The late Grover Cleveland, who so stoutly opposed woman suffrage, was not by any means an ignorant man; nor is Mr. Taft or Mr. Asquith. Super-heated argument of this kind is too much like militancy to be effective.

Those people who object to an occasional and casual reference to British subjects as "Englishmen" should not overlook the fact that the late Captain Scott's diary contains a glaring offence of this kind. Captain Scott wrote that if he had lived he could have told a story to "thrill the heart of every Englishman." Here is rather a good example of the wide application of the term, and one which has not caused any protest. No one imagines for a moment that Scott intended it to cover the men of England only.

"Beulah" Davidson and Gordon Bricker are working out with St. Michaels and one or both may be against T. R. and A. A. Victoria, champions of the Pacific Coast League and Vancouver, will play an exhibition game at Winnipeg, while the former are on their way east to compete for the Stanley Cup.

Got Good Dates

Pres. Nelson at League Meeting in Toronto Yesterday.

President T. J. Nelson, of the local ball club, was in Toronto yesterday attending the scheduled meeting of the Canadian League. Mr. Nelson is very pleased with the first draft made which assures Brantford of her share of the holidays for the coming season. All the Eastern cities open in the West, and this is due to the fact that they are all training in the west and therefore they will save considerable expense by opening there. Toronto wanted to open the season here, but President Nelson objected, as return dates could not be had until June. Therefore Hamilton got the preference. Hamilton is going to have an exceptionally fast team this year, in Mr. Nelson's opinion, and one which will give the other teams of the league a hard tussle. They will open here Thursday, May 7, for a three game series, and Brantford will go to Hamilton in all probability one week later on the 14th. Five umpires have signed contracts with President Fitzgerald, only one of last year's staff returning in the person of Umpire Flynn. Flynn was never seen in this city, but his work in other cities in the circuit was of a high class order.

President Fitzgerald is drafting the schedule, and will submit it to the club owners for their approval about March 9th in Toronto.

FINDING FAULT. The kicking game will bring you fame unpleasant, grim and ghostly, so call a halt if finding fault is what you're doing mostly. Some men seem born distressed, forlorn, then nothing ever pleases; in every cause they find the flaws, the spavins and diseases. They kick at home, and when they roam about the town they grumble, and every talk they make a knock, and every step a stumble. They scare, they scowl, they hoot, they howl, as every forward movement; they hurt the town, and hold it down, and balk at each improvement. There is a trail of woe and wail where'er they've gallivanted; the booster hates such moldy skates and thinks they should be planted. They are a bore, the town grows apace beneath their ceaseless wiggings; the band will play some music ray when they have skipped the diggings. Just look around and note, cogs wound; how much the grinch is hated, then make a vow to clear your brow, and keep your bile abated. So call a halt if finding fault is now your daily pastime; let out a roar just one time more, and let that be the last time!

THE TRAMP.

Did you ever stand and ponder, when you were on the street; did you ever note the difference, in the people that you meet. Sometimes you'll see an honest face, all times the polished scamp; but the man that needs your sympathy, is the man you call the tramp. So don't look on him scornfully; he may have done no wrong, there's not one that would befriend him, in that mighty human throng; like you he had a mother, and when she rocked him in her arms, he was her hope and joy. She may have died when he was young, and left him all alone, with none to guide his footsteps until into manhood he has grown; for you know the great temptations, in this wicked world abide, and into those great pitfalls, how easily you will glide. If he should knock at your back door, and ask you for a meal, don't look upon him fiercely, and tell him he would steal; just invite him to come in, and give him a warm seat, for oft beneath a ragged coat, a noble heart doth beat. When his weary limbs are rested, and he starts upon his way, fill his pockets up with victuals, that will last him till next day; when you retire at evening, and extinguish your night lamp; Ask God to show his blessings, on that man they call the tramp.

P. S. A. BROTHERHOOD.

The usual pleasant Sunday afternoon was spent in the Congregational Church on Sunday by those who attended the P. S. A. Brotherhood. There was a good attendance of members as well as quite a number of visitors, all of whom were given a hearty welcome. Principal Burt of the Collegiate Institute addressed the gathering on "Some of the tendencies of the times." He dealt with his subject in a most free yet masterful manner and gave his hearers many good points to think about. He showed that in most respects the world of to-day is much better than ever it was before and that there are tendencies afoot which will in time eradicate many of the existing social evils. The pessimist looks back with longing on the "good old times" and deplors the state of the world at the present time. He has only to view the conditions of to-day however, with an unbiased mind and compare them with those which existed in years gone by to see that we have moved and are still moving far above them both morally, intellectually and spiritually. This was the trend of Mr. Burt's argument and at the conclusion of his address every-one present must have had a much brighter outlook on life than he had before. During the afternoon Mr. J. L. Dixon rendered a solid and the orchestra played selections which were very highly appreciated.

To The Editor

ABOUT THOSE FOREIGNERS. To the Editor of Courier; Sir—Will you permit me a few lines to tell about those two foreigners who as you complain have been able to pay fines amounting to $100 and yet received charity and that you came to the conclusion that the city is imposed upon. Let me tell you that I take full responsibility in these two cases. I have investigated them myself before I recommended the one to the Very Rev. Dean Brady and the other to the Associated Charities of this city. Both of these men live at 175 Dundas street and both are without any means whatever. If good people would not have come to their assistance they would likely have starved. Now as to the fines Myk had to pay $25.00. I got interested in his case a young Ruthenian who went up to that house and found a helpless woman in very delicate condition with four small babies, one sick at the hospital and one sick at home. That young boy is himself out of work and is living on his savings. I advanced the $25 till he will be able to draw some out of the post office. We felt that the woman in her condition cannot be left alone to look after the children. Now as to the case of Brotoek who had to pay $75.00. He did not have one red copper with him. He has one married son in Bridgeport Conn. who himself is a married man with a family. He lived last summer in Brantford and was all summer out of work. It is only about four months since he got employment in Bridgeport. It was his son who sent him at first $10 out of which Brotoek paid to his lawyer $2; he kept the $8.00 expecting to pay his fine with that. When he was convicted to pay $75.00 I sent a telegram to his son as he requested me to do so. His son was able to borrow from his friends there $29 (without the knowledge of his wife, by the way). The old woman, Brotoek's wife, was yesterday and to-day all the time either at the police station or at my house, crying and begging for extension of time that the son might be able to get the balance of the money. The woman is feeble and weak-minded. I could not stand the misery of that poor woman, and advanced out of my own pocket $38, and we paid the fine last night at 8 o'clock. So you see these people themselves did not pay a cent toward their fines. As to their crime let me assure you that both of these men are more fools than crooked. If you could have been present at their trial I am sure you would have come to the same conclusion. I hope you will print this letter for the sake of the

In conclusion I might say that any one interested in this case, I will be only glad to go along with and show them the house and the people and let them judge for themselves. Thanking you sir, for your valuable space. Yours truly, LOUIS STANLEY. LIBERAL CANDIDATE WINNIPEG, Feb. 25.—The Liberals of Russell constituency have nominated Donald C. # Bad Blood

Is a poisonous and dangerous thing. It affects every organ and function and brings about that low condition that predisposes to most diseases and ailments. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA corrects it, and makes pure blood.

Good people who cannot see their fellowmen starving, and who may say they have felt griefed after having read in your issue your complaint about mis-spent charity. In conclusion I might say that any one in a position to do good, will be only too glad to go along with and show them the house and the people and let them judge for themselves.

Thanking you sir, for your valuable space,
Yours truly,
LOUIS STANDER.

HON. S. H. BLAKE IS AS FIERY AS EVER

He Issues Letter To-day on Proposal to Read Bible in Schools

(By Special Wire to The Courier)

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The proposal to introduce religious instruction in the Public Schools which has precipitated a heated controversy all over the province has aroused Hon. S. H. Blake. In an interview this morning he expressed himself in his usual vigorous style. "Seventy years ago in Upper Canada College, the Bible was used as a text book," remarked Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., speaking on the proposal to introduce the study of the Bible into the schools of Ontario. "In the classes," continued Mr. Blake, "it was read verse about by the scholars. If the Roman Catholics desired it they were at liberty to use their own Douay edition of the sacred volume. It was made the subject of examination and rewards were given for 'scripture learning,' he true incentive to the studying of the book was thus given to each pupil in the college."

In a letter to Dr. John Seath, Mr. Blake regards the charge as most grave and as true as it is grave, that our people, as a body, do not seem to possess an adequate knowledge of the Bible and of the principles of morality. He quotes the late Lord Justice Bowen's remark that a system of education which omits religion, educates its children to become "skilled villains."

Mr. Blake agrees with the remark of Dr. John Seath that experience shows that the Department of Education would not be justified in entrusting the teaching of our schools, He states that the teachers are influenced by "those loose views of university professors and teachers," and adds:

"Look at the teaching in our colleges as proclaimed by our students. Look at the flippant irreverence of the literature which they have been taught to admire and which they insert in the 'university monthly.' How can you expect a Godly recurrence on the part of our students or the teachers in our schools when one of its professors publicly reads at a dinner given to one of his fellows a song from which the following is taken: 'The following four verses of a song in which Melchizedek and Melchizedek are introduced for purposes of comparison with the guest of the evening and the last line is: 'Corks poppin' champagne fizzin.'"

Mr. Blake refers to the verses as odious as to either taste or reverence and regards the reference to Melchizedek as blasphemous.

Mr. Blake then speaks of the teaching in the schools. "Is it not much better," he asked "to have shorter courses, fewer subjects, more amply paid and more efficient teachers? Why not put first things first?"

"Teach our children the duty to God, the duty to their parents, the duty to man and thereby build up a true character. And introduce the forgotten subject of manners. Teach them how to speak. There used to be an English language in Canada; we may possibly get it back. One of the great benefits of introducing and reading the bible, will be to teach our children that there is an English language, that there is true poetry, that there is true letter writing, that there is true history and that in this book they can get the best specimens to be found in the world."

MILITANT SENTENCED TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Phyllis Brady, a militant suffragette accused of arson, was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment at hard labor by a magistrate at the London Sessions yesterday, despite the jury's recommendation of mercy on the ground that she had been led astray by older militants.

Miss Brady was arrested January 17 last on the charge of being one of the suffragettes who set fire to the residence of Lady White, widow of Field Marshal Sir George White, at Englefield Green, Surrey, on March 20, 1913. She is twenty-four years of age and graduated at Cambridge University with honors in mathematics and economics.

WOMEN FAILED TO CAST THEIR VOTES IN U.S.

Only About 30 Per Cent. of Them Went to the Polls in Chicago

(By Special Wire to The Courier)

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Comparatively few of the women yesterday took advantage of the first opportunity to vote under the provisions of the new state suffrage law. Returns more than two-thirds of the registered women remained away from the primary elections held in any cities and towns of the state.

In Chicago the total number of women who voted was 47,529 or about 30 per cent of the 158,524 who had qualified. The heaviest woman's vote in the state was at Galesburg, the scene of a "wet" and "dry" contest, where the women cast nearly one half of the total vote.

Absence of important issues and stormy weather were reported as the reason for the light suffrage vote in the other cities of the state.

Seven Chicago women, who had no opposition, were nominated for aldermen. Three of them were Progressives and four were Socialists. Two women, candidates on the Democratic ticket, had strong opposition and were defeated. The aldermen were returned to private life. All of them were Democrats and with one exception, were opposed by the Municipal Voters League.

In some cases their male opponents received the votes of more women than did the female candidates.

Juvenile Carnival Children Had Fine Time At Tutela Rink Last Night.

The juvenile carnival held on Tutela Park last night proved a great success. The ice was in excellent condition; the best yet this season, and extra lights added to the illumination.

The boys and girls of Eagle Lake certainly did not fail to take advantage of the good skating, there being about one hundred in costume, which gives some idea as to the competition entered into.

The prizes were awarded as follows: Girls' fancy dress; Miss Golden; second, Miss C. J. Fowler; third E. Creighton.

Girls' comic dress—Miss D. Moon; M. Sharp.

Boys' fancy dress—G. Ryerson, 2 W. Smith.

Boys' comic—J. Spicer, 2 W. Johnson.

The races proved very exciting and interesting and were fast considering the size and age of the competitors.

Girls under 14—L. Davies.

Girls under 8—F. Sutherland.

Boys under 14—Lloyd McGowan.

Boys under 8—Irwin Young.

Owing to the success of the recent carnival for older people there have been numerous requests for another such event. The committee in charge of the rink of which Mr. Billo is chairman, have decided to hold one on Friday night, Feb. 27, when prizes will be offered as follows in the different classes: Ladies fancy dress, 1, 2 and 3; ladies' comic, 1 and 2; girls' fancy 1 and 2; girls' comic 1 and 2; double fancy dress, one prize; double comic dress, one prize. Races—1, single, one prize; girls' single, one prize; double, gent and lady, one prize.

The costumes which were awarded prizes on Feb. 19, will not be allowed, to compete at the coming carnival.

Should the weather not be favorable it will be held on the following Monday night.

Members Accept Liquor License At Ontario Club

This is the Headquarters of the Liberal Party in Ontario.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Newton Wesley Rowell, K. C., leader of the Opposition, was confronted with a hard fact, challenged to reply and yet sat silent in the Legislature this afternoon.

J. W. Johnson, of Belleville, was the man who flung out reply to the Opposition charge that the Government and the liquor interests were allied.

In the Ontario Club in Toronto, there is a liquor license," he declared "I want to know if any member of the Opposition ever attempted to have it cancelled. This everyone knows is the headquarters of the Liberal party in Ontario. If the Opposition and the Opposition leader is sincere here is an opportunity to show it. I pause for an answer."

All eyes in the House turned to Mr. Rowell, but no answer came.

KING GEORGE TO SEE CHICAGO AND N.Y. PLAY

His Majesty Accepts Invitation to Witness Baseball Game.

(By Special Wire to The Courier)

LONDON, Feb. 25.—King George and some other members of the British royal family are to be present to-morrow at the baseball game between the New York team representing the National League and the Chicago team representing the American League, which is to be played at the Chelsea football grounds. A number of prominent personages who always follow His Majesty's lead, will attend, together with the staffs of the American embassy and the consulate general.

The King, who is an ardent follower of football and cricket, has never witnessed a first class baseball game and announced to his suite when he heard that the teams were coming to England, his intention of seeing a game if possible. To-day he definitely notified the managers of the visiting team that he would be present.

The two teams were the guests of honor at luncheon to-day of the American business men's colony. Consul Griffiths presided.

MR. MEANS, M.P.P., VISITOR IN CITY

Former Brantford Man Discusses Manitoba's School System.

Mr. L. McMeans, M.P.P. for South Winnipeg, in the Manitoba Legislature, is in the city to attend the funeral of his father, the late Andrew McMeans, which takes place on Friday. As an old Brantford boy, Mr. McMeans met many friends in the city to-day and received expressions of sympathy in the loss of his father.

Discussing things in the West, the member for South Winnipeg declared that conditions were decidedly hopeful.

"They say you have a very poor school law in Manitoba," was asked, Mr. McMeans, who is a supporter of the Roblin administration, immediately waxed warm. "We are the only province in the Dominion with out separate schools. When our educational act was originally formed, a clause enforcing compulsory education was stricken out by Messrs. Sifton and Joe Martin, because such a clause might be taken as prejudicial to the rights of the minority, and it was held would constitute an appeal to the Privy Council. Manitoba did not want any appeal, but a new way was found. A Provincial police act, which could not be appealed, was passed. By this, Manitoba has a truancy law, the equal of which does not exist in any other province. It enforces rest with government officers, and not with local men. It was impartially enforced, and the statement that thousands of children don't go to school in Manitoba is as absurd as it is unfounded. If children are not at school it is because they are over 14 years of age, and there are never less than thousands in Ontario who never see the inside of a school after they are 14 years of age."

After attending the funeral of his father on Friday, Mr. McMeans will journey at Nassau with his wife and family before returning West.

Sporting Comment

Hockey is nearly ended for this season as far as O. H. A. circles are concerned. Only the finals remain to be played and these will be decided by the end of next week.

Now that Chas. W. Murphy has sold out his share in the Chicago Cubs, we may hear a new song with a new name on the despised Federals who are raising Cain with organized baseball.

O. H. A. has seen faster hockey this year in both junior and intermediate divisions and no doubt next year the junior series has brought out a lot of extra fast material for the intermediate season.

Now that the hockey season is about over and both Hamilton intermediate teams are out of the race, they are starting the old song of the amalgamation of the two clubs. Drop it, it doesn't sound good.

February 24th and 15, ball players or supposed to be ball players have been signed by Manager Deneau with more to follow. It looks as if the Rubes was going to have a team here this year.

Bowling is becoming a popular sport at the Y. M. C. A. and the alleys are crowded nearly every night. Some good scores have been made by the older members of the game and the younger men are coming along in great style.

Boxing is becoming very popular in this city, and three good events have been pulled off. The management of the bouts are to be complimented on the way they handled the fights, and the good class of scraps they have staged.

The Hamilton Tigers are able to clean up nearly $4,000, and the Ottawa rugby club show a deficit. True, the Tigers have a shorter jump to Toronto and they had the Dominion final gate, but the Ottawas drew just as big crowds through the year.

Hamilton is head over heels in trouble about its manager for this season in the Canadian League. Davy Rowan has a signed contract with the old club, but now people are wondering if he can collect a salary from the new shareholders. Can he? Wait and see.

An endeavor will be made to-day to revive lacrosse in this city. Two of the lacrosse games most worthy exponents will speak to the school boys at the Y. M. C. A. at 4.30 this afternoon in an attempt to form a school league. The idea is a very worthy one and it is hoped will be followed up.

Nothing has been heard of Rube Deneau since he left this city one week ago. The Rube is not a corresponding manager and believes in keeping his face closed regarding his material, but it is safe to say he isn't loafing and when April 15th comes, he will be here with a big squad to try out.

A couple of good indoor baseball games are scheduled for this week at the armories. To-morrow night the buglers and A Company will battle and on Friday night the Sixth Battery of London will be here to play the Duffs. This will be a hummer and no doubt will attract a large crowd.

Hap Myers is said to have been given a contract by the Buffalo Federals which allows him his freedom if he isn't satisfied with the team's line up. And he got $500 for signing that contract. The Federals appear to be going too far in their freeing of the baseball "slaves." It will take a very few years for them to pile on all the old restrictions of the players will own the league by that time.

It might turn out that the present heads of organized baseball really have control of the Federals and that all this 'war' talk was merely good advertising. If the major leagues are really losing all their men and fear the Feds, why didn't Ban Johnson listen to the plan to give Weeghman an American Association franchise and bust the outlaw league? The ball magnates are pretty shrewd advertisers.

The Ottawa next winter will have a couple of defense men getting well along in years and they will have to stand the western draft, which means the loss of a couple of men. The amateur crop appears to have been well harvested with Gerard, Lowrey, Phedict, Greg George, Howie, Alex Hill, Leth Graham and Kendall in the best couple of years. It will take time growing another amateur crop for the N. H. A. scythe.

The Western Stanley Cup chasers look very likely to play that series at Toronto with the Toronto. Playing on artificial ice at the Coast the invaders will get the same surface at Toronto. They'll also have those freak off-side rules every second game, while the western players are not a bit strange to the eastern style of play. The advantage rests with the 'Patrick's' clubs and they should win the first world's hockey series in a walk.

The Expositor bug, who writes comment on hockey matches, throws out a few insinuations regarding the game between the two papers. Now the Courier isn't going to participate in any baby quarrels with the author of those insinuations, but we want to assure him that when their "hock of dubs" appear on the ice next Friday night at 6 o'clock, the time scheduled for the game, they will look like a kindergarten when they see us. It's a shame to take the money boys.

Baseball Club Directors Are Down to Business

The first meeting of the shareholders of the Hamilton Baseball Club was held in the Board of Trade rooms last evening. The meeting was simply a preliminary affair, in which the provisional directors presented their report of what had been done to date, and made arrangements for the first meeting, when the officers for 1914 will be elected. This meeting will be held early in March. In the meantime it was announced that enough stock had been subscribed to warrant the company in taking over the holdings in the club held by Messrs. Burns, Lee and Robinson, and authority was given to the provisional directors to do this at once. The provisional directors, who are Messrs. A. L. Garthwaite, Controller Cooper, Mayor Allan, A. M. Ewing, J. E. Frid, John Lynch and Lery Awrey, were also instructed to proceed with the selection of a manager. Several applications for the managerial position have been received, one of them being highly recommended by Connie Mack, manager of the champion Philadelphia American League team. Mr.

Mack has written two letters to the local club in connection with the selection of a manager, and is taking a deep interest in the affairs of the local organization. All applications are to be carefully considered, while, in order that the best results can be secured, it was decided to send A. L. Garthwaite to Philadelphia at once to take up the matter of a manager with Mr. Mack. The latter has also expressed a desire to place some young material with the local club, plenty of indication that the jump of the Canadian League to class B, containing many of the big leaguers. Mr. Garthwaite will likely leave this evening for Philadelphia and should have something to report to the directors by the middle of the week. The grounds question was also dealt with and after the shareholders had expressed their feelings on the matter it was decided to have the directors proceed with the deal at present under way for Britannia Park. Over thirty of the fifty-seven shareholders were in attendance, and a most enthusiastic spirit was shown. The feeling is that everything should be done to give Hamilton a winner, and it will not be for want of effort that this desire does not materialize.—Hamilton Spectator.

Hamilton to Open the Season Here

Of all the people have some kind of humor. Impure blood causes a vast proportion of the ills to which flesh is heir. As a great physician has said, "Every part of the body is fed every moment from the same blood, and the blood cannot be impure without causing disease." We see people every day who carry about the signs of impure blood. Some have scrofula, others are afflicted with pimples and eruptions which disfigure their faces. Rheumatism, catarrh, dyspepsia and many other diseases depend upon the unhealthy condition of the blood, and are cured by making the blood pur with America's Greatest Blood Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great remedy not only expels impurities from the vital fluid, but it makes it rich and nourishing, and thus feeds and strengthens the nervous system and all the organs of the body. It is the great safeguard of health, and should be found in every family. Its timely use saves a vast amount of suffering.

ONE SYNDICATE WITHDRAWS OFFER

Only One Group of Men Now Seek Control of the Cubs.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Only one syndicate has been left in the field of those who sought control of the Chicago National League Baseball Club. The bid of $700,000, offered by the Behan group for 51 per cent of the club caused the other two syndicates to assume a waiting attitude until Charles P. Taft, owner of the majority of the stock, has passed on the Behan proposition. It was said that a coterie which proposed to put John P. Harding at the head of the club would have a representative in Cincinnati to-day, however, the Pugh-Thompson-McCulloch group has withdrawn from active participation, Chas. A. McCulloch announced.

Louis J. Behan, who is handling the offer of the six men who compose one syndicate, left for Cincinnati last night.

The Federal League will not open its playing season until April 23, and the stands and grounds in most of its cities will be ready by that time, it was said yesterday by Charles Weeghmann, president of the Chicago club.

The Brooklyn Federal club manager has not been named. Sam Crawford, the Detroit outfielder, President

Gilmore intimated, might be named manager. Catcher Wingo is also a possibility.

New Man for Royals.

MONTREAL, Feb. 25.—An infielder, who comes recommended by Joe McGinnity, as the best in the Pacific Coast League, will wear a Montreal uniform next year. He is C. P. Keller, who comes from Tacoma, Keller, who is said to be a fast clever fielder and a good hitter, is a second sacker, and the Royals can certainly use him in that position.

Keller played in 166 games last year, leading the second basemen of the Northwestern League with an average of .952. His batting average was .263. He stole 34 bases.

Concessions to Players.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 25.—The National Baseball Commission yesterday officially promulgated the interleague waiver rule that was made upon application of the Players' Fraternity at the commission's recent meeting in New York.

ORILLIA GOES INTO THE FINAL ROUND

Defeats Wiarion 5-1 in Return Game—Round Ends 7-6.

ORILLIA, Feb. 25.—In the second of the home-and-home games in the semi-final round of the O. H. A. intermediate series, Wiarion was last night put out of the running by one goal on the round. Wiarion won at home, 5 to 2, but lost here last night, 5 to 1. Orillia now enters the finals with the winner of the Berlin Sarnia series.

The ice last night was first class and the game was one of the best ever played in Orillia. Rutledge, the visiting rover, was the classiest stick handler on the ice, and had the visitors puzzled with his dodging.

Both teams played hard and every man worked like nailers, but the visitors could not get by the Orillia defence, and if they did there was Teddy Corbould, who took care of everything that came within his reach.

Wiarion Strong, Wiarion's defense played a good game; in fact, every man of the visitors did. But the Orillia boys had it over them on back-checking, and held them down so close that they had no chance to break away at all.

Canadian League Circuit Clippings

The decision of the local shareholders to start right by grabbing the best managerial prospect available is evidence enough of the kind of team that is going to represent Hamilton. If the Ambitious City does not win the Canadian league pennant this year, it will not be for want of trying. Money and energy will be put to the best possible use, with the result that a new era will surely dawn for the baseball men in the spring of 1914.—Hamilton Spectator.

Connie Mack has many warm admirers in this part of the country, but he will have more as the result of the manner in which he has acted with the Hamilton club. In his desire to help and be as fair as possible he enough to Buffalo so that he won't lose track of his business interests while away from that city. Besides that the fact that the league doesn't open up until after the bowling season is closed and closes before the p.m. season opens again, fixed matters just right for him.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy will not be left behind in the scramble for players this Spring. He will have first call on all Detroit youngsters, which means that the Senators will get the cream of the minor leaguers who will need seasoning before they are in line for major league ball. With such managers as Doc Reising, Shag will need a mighty good baseball connection to get players of the same calibre as the London and Erie clubs will be able to secure. This arrangement agreed to by President Xavin of Detroit will ensure the Senators a good team. A Canadian league meeting will be held to-morrow at Toronto, at which the preliminary draft of this year's schedule will be made.—Ottawa Evening Journal.

When is a manager not a manager? That is the question that has been asked repeatedly by the fifty-seven stockholders in the Hamilton Baseball club, and which was answered at Friday night's meeting by Leroy Awrey, the club's legal adviser.

When the option on the local club was first taken by Geo. O'Neill, of London, who was acting for the local interests, John Burns, who held controlling interest in the club, did not deem it wise to take any chances on the option not being exercised, and he accordingly signed Davey Rowan as manager for the season of 1914. With the attaching of his signature to the contract, Rowan commenced at once to scout about for likely looking material and after he had managed to get a line on a number of players he learned that the option was sure to be exercised and that if he was retained as manager at all he would have a new boss. It was to ascertain the exact condition of affairs that he came here some weeks ago to confer with A. L. Garthwaite, the prime mover in the joint stock company.

Since then the club owners have been debating as to the validity of Rowan's contract with Burns, and at Friday night's meeting Mr. Awrey was asked to give expert legal opinion on the matter. He stated that the contract was not binding to the new owners of the club, and that they were free to appoint any of the other three applicants. Now the question arises, if Rowan seeks remuneration for his services, and requests that his contract be recognized, who will have to settle?

One of the men behind the stock company called on one of Hamilton's foremost baseball fans a few nights ago with the object of selling him stock. The following conversation took place.

"Who will manage the club?"

Smith is an old hand at the game, and in his years on the diamond he has gained experience which will be of great value to him in conducting the team through the present season. After learning the game from a player's standpoint, he was chosen captain of the Patterson team in the Atlantic League, and was with that outfit in 1896-97. very carefully explained that in making his first recommendation he did not know that the Canadian League had been advanced to Class B company.—Hamilton Spectator.

It is likely that the Ottawas will go to Dayton to train instead of Fort Wayne. They received a letter from President Varnell of the Fort Wayne club, yesterday, advising them to switch to Dayton or Springfield, because of the uncertain weather and river conditions at Fort Wayne, where the park was under water for several weeks last year. The question of training grounds will be decided in a few days and the players notified where to report. The Chatham springs have been placed at the disposal of the Ottawas, but it was so cold there two years ago that the champions are not likely to return.

Tim Jordan may figure on the Toronto team in the Canadian league. He is still the property of the Maple Leafs, though he wound up last season with Buffalo.

Ottawa Citizen: It is now said that Davey Rowan will not land the managerial berth at Hamilton. They have been negotiating with a former Philadelphia Athletic man to take the job. Now that they have had things straightened out at Hamilton, it would not be surprising to see them spring Harry Davis or Home-Run Baker as manager. Nothing is too good for those Tiger people when they start in to win anything.

enough to Buffalo so that he won't lose track of his business interests while away from that city. Besides that the fact that the league doesn't open up until after the bowling season is closed and closes before the p.m. season opens again, fixed matters just right for him.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy will not be left behind in the scramble for players this Spring. He will have first call on all Detroit youngsters, which means that the Senators will get the cream of the minor leaguers who will need seasoning before they are in line for major league ball. With such managers as Doc Reising, Shag will need a mighty good baseball connection to get players of the same calibre as the London and Erie clubs will be able to secure. This arrangement agreed to by President Xavin of Detroit will ensure the Senators a good team. A Canadian league meeting will be held to-morrow at Toronto, at which the preliminary draft of this year's schedule will be made.—Ottawa Evening Journal.

When is a manager not a manager? That is the question that has been asked repeatedly by the fifty-seven stockholders in the Hamilton Baseball club, and which was answered at Friday night's meeting by Leroy Awrey, the club's legal adviser.

When the option on the local club was first taken by Geo. O'Neill, of London, who was acting for the local interests, John Burns, who held controlling interest in the club, did not deem it wise to take any chances on the option not being exercised, and he accordingly signed Davey Rowan as manager for the season of 1914. With the attaching of his signature to the contract, Rowan commenced at once to scout about for likely looking material and after he had managed to get a line on a number of players he learned that the option was sure to be exercised and that if he was retained as manager at all he would have a new boss. It was to ascertain the exact condition of affairs that he came here some weeks ago to confer with A. L. Garthwaite, the prime mover in the joint stock company.

Since then the club owners have been debating as to the validity of Rowan's contract with Burns, and at Friday night's meeting Mr. Awrey was asked to give expert legal opinion on the matter. He stated that the contract was not binding to the new owners of the club, and that they were free to appoint any of the other three applicants. Now the question arises, if Rowan seeks remuneration for his services, and requests that his contract be recognized, who will have to settle?

One of the men behind the stock company called on one of Hamilton's foremost baseball fans a few nights ago with the object of selling him stock. The following conversation took place.

"Who will manage the club?"

Smith is an old hand at the game, and in his years on the diamond he has gained experience which will be of great value to him in conducting the team through the present season. After learning the game from a player's standpoint, he was chosen captain of the Patterson team in the Atlantic League, and was with that outfit in 1896-97. He joined the Louisville club in 1898, but in 1899, 1900 or he was with Rochester in the Eastern league and captained the team. Rochester had a longing for him, however, and he returned there for the seasons 1904-05-06. Buffalo, of the Eastern circuit wanted him; however, and he went to the Blain City as manager and had full control of the team. Then he went into business for himself and operated one of the biggest bowling alleys in that city.

"Heinie" didn't believe that he would ever again hear the seductive call of baseball, but when Owner O'Neill met him and dangled a fancy salary under his nose, together with a bonus of $500 if he developed a flag copping squad, he capitulated.

But even the fancy pay check might have failed to tempt him had it not been for the fact that Eric is close

"We have not decided, but are counting on Connie Mack supplying us with a capable man," said the club member.

"What's to become of Rowan's application? Doesn't he figure?"

"If Mack sends us a manager we will be sure of also getting a few young and speedy ball players, and for that reason we favor taking the man Mack selects for us."

"Well," went on the fan, "Rowan's record in the big leagues and his performance with the Peterboro Canadian league club looks plenty good enough to me. If I purchased an interest in the club I would certainly favor Rowan."

UNIFORMITY IN WEIGHT NEEDED

Housing Problem Solved In England By Model Villages

(By Ray C. Pearson.)

Continual harping over the weight problem has proved the bugbear of the game of pugilism, and unless something is done by those who pose as the "head and shoulders" of the sport there is not likely to be a cessation of present unsatisfactory conditions.

Nothing to be done, the only thing in fact, that will bring an end to the warring incident to match-making, is the establishment of a uniform set of weights for the various classes.

In several years the boxers in the every division of the sport have been stretching the limit. As a result many of the bouts that have been held were not fought at all, the figures generally regarded as legitimate. This has been true of the contests in which championships were at stake, and although there are several classes to-day with recognized title holders, there are other champions who are not entitled to being able to scale in at the figures which always have been considered standard.

Lightweights are Big.

It is particularly in the lightweight ranks that most of the haggling over weight for matches has resulted. In that division to-day there are numerous boys of class who probably would not enter the ring at 133 pounds, unless without taking off a leg. Among these might be mentioned Willie Ritchie, the champion, and Packey McFarland, the Chicago miller. There are several others, but these two are mentioned for the simple reason that they pose as legitimate lightweight, although always most bashful about stepping on the weighing machine.

There are few who believe that Champion Willie Ritchie ever will make 133 pounds at any time for a contest. It must be conceded that Ritchie is not in any way to blame for his failure to do so, for he won the title from Ad Wolgast after making that figure. Ritchie has grown heavier, and as champion he certainly has some right to dictate the terms under which he milks. The best that Ritchie can make now is 135 pounds, and that is the weight billed for his coming bout with "Harlem Tommy" Murphy.

Ad Wolgast started something a short time ago at the time he began his successful "come-back" effort. He announced that he would claim the 133 pound lightweight championship if he found that he could defeat the men he met. If Wolgast does that there will be two lightweight champions—one who is able to make 133 pounds and one who isn't—further complicating the situation.

In sizing up the situation it would seem that the thing most needed is a uniform scale of weights that would apply not only in this country, but in England, Australia, France, and other countries where the game is so much followed. For several years efforts have been made in a half-hearted sort of way to bring about the adoption of uniform weights, for it is believed that they would do away with what appears to be over-matching, and also would result in keener competition for the titles.

Scale of Weights.

The scale of weights in America at the present time, at least those which the New York commission accepts, and those of foreign countries are not the same, and Breyer's desire to secure uniformity prompted his communication to the New Yorkers. As showing the disparity of weights, the following table is apppointed:

Bantamweight . . . . .	115
Featherweight . . . . .	125
Lightweight . . . . .	133

A BIRD IN THE BUSH

Is Overbalanced By One In The Hand

When mamma and I went to London we took letters to persons there who were abundantly able to introduce us to society. Lord Barkdale, eldest son of the Earl of Edgerton, showed me special attention and ended by proposing to me. He told me he loved me desperately, and when I protested that a marriage between us was out of the question, owing to my not having money, he declared that he would do so well that a dowry made no difference to him whatever.

Now, the facts about my pecuniary condition were these: While I had no fortune and my parents were only passably well off for worldly goods, I was to inherit $2,000,000 or more from an old bachelor uncle who had one foot in the grave. Very few persons in America knew anything about this expectation, and I had not only refrained from telling any one in England, but had especially cautioned mamma not to do so. I was therefore satisfied that Ralph Barkdale loved me for myself alone, and since he was a fascinating man and I was pleased at the prospect of some day becoming Lady Edgerton I accepted his proposal.

I was invited to the country seat of the Edgertons and well received by the earl and the rest of the family. This was very gratifying to me because I had been told that the earl, except my land, was poor, and it seemed to me that he would expect his successor to the title to marry some one with means. I had a charming visit and went back to London well satisfied with my matrimonial arrangements. Nothing was said about setting a time for the wedding, but since we were only recently engaged that was not expected. I was young, had not seen much of life and was in no hurry.

It was about a month after this visit, when the London season was at its height, that Ralph said to me one day:

"There's something I wish to say to you by way of precaution. If you were English I wouldn't need to say it, but I have understood that you Americans expect from the moment of an engagement that your fiance shall devote himself exclusively to you. Our girls know that any attention we pay to any one else doesn't mean anything and are not so exacting."

"That's just the reason I'm going to tell you about," he said, "and I wish to draw your attention to an individual. My cousin, Roger Battersea, has got himself engaged to Lady Constance Everard, a younger daughter of the Duke of Wellington. Roger is a sensible man and I don't think Lady Constance, while she is of good family, is well-will you keep a secret?"

"Yes, go on."

"Lady Constance has a husband. The world doesn't know it, but which is the fact, she married a miserly and her father packed the fellow off by a payment of £10,000. They're getting an annulment or divorce or something of the sort, and when it is obtained she is going to marry Roger. His mother is furious over it. She asked me if I wouldn't try to persuade her son to give up his infatuation. I told her that to interfere would be to get myself disliked. Then she suggested that I prove to him how unreliable Lady Constance is by winning her away from him. I told her I couldn't do it without your consent."

"I didn't like the arrangement at all and said nothing for some time while he waited my reply. Presently I gave it:

"You are free and with my consent to devote yourself to any one you like until we are married. After that I will not divide you with any other woman. I have heard that marriages made among the nobility are usually made for convenience instead of love and that the wife is expected to stand a great deal from the husband. If other American girls care to put up with that sort of thing they are welcome to do so. I won't. You may tell your aunt that you have my consent to save her son from an unfortunate marriage, and I confess I think your plan an excellent one."

"Spoken like a sensible girl," said my fiance. "You American girls have so much snap to you! One of our girls would have whined and made a fuss."

I met both Roger Battersea and Lady Constance in society and became acquainted with both of them. Battersea struck me as a man who would not need to be saved from a mistake, and Lady Constance seemed to be an ordinary woman of fashion, with no especial depth to her, but otherwise unobjectionable. But one doesn't get to know persons by meeting them casually, and for some time after I met these two I saw very little of them.

I was aware, however, that Ralph had begun the work of proving to his cousin how fickle was the woman he wished to marry. I heard nothing about this secret marriage of Lady Constance, but since it was secret I did not expect to hear anything of it.

One evening at a function of some sort Battersea came to me and said:

"Miss Bradley, I suppose your fiance will not object to my giving you my much attention, provided, of course, you honor me by accepting it, as he gives another woman."

"I consider myself free," I replied, "to accept all the attention offered me till married. After that I shall be bound to decline any to which my husband shall object."

"That's an American idea, I fancy, but I admit it is the correct one. Our men over here would not consent to be so tied up to a wife."

There is a lot of chicanery going on in the world, especially in society. I didn't pretend to know or understand why this man was devoted to that woman, who were jealous or what infidelities were practiced. These things were all vanished over so smoothly that they were not apparent. I did not know why Roger Battersea chose to show me attention, but it seemed probable that he was preparing to pay his cousin in her own coin. I found Battersea so agreeable that I was quite willing to spend with him the time he chose to spend with me. I couldn't understand how a man of apparently such force of character could be in love with a woman of as little depth as Lady Constance, and I told Ralph so. He said that he had never been so interested with intellectual women, they almost always married the dull kind.

The situation in time became somewhat unpleasant to me. My fiance was devoting himself to another woman, though when with me he was as demonstratively affectionate as before. Roger Battersea's attentions to me became so constant that they were beginning to be remarked. One day I asked Ralph how long a time would be required to bring the matter he had on hand to a head. He said he was trying to get Lady Constance down in writing. If he went to Roger with a story that she preferred to marry a Lord Rosset, instead of being his fiance, he showed Roger a note to that effect there would be nothing further to do in the premises. Somehow, although Ralph's object in saying his cousin had gone to London to get a divorce, it seemed to me that his way of doing it was unwarranted.

One evening when Roger and I were together he began to talk to me in a roundabout way. He said nothing directly about his cousin or Lady Constance, but I knew well that he was speaking of the situation in which the four of us were interested. But Roger and I gradually threw off the mask and agreed that matters were not going to be settled in the way that Roger requested my attention. He said that one feature attending his cousin's engagement to me had surprised him. He could not understand how Ralph would be willing to marry, or the family would consent to believe him, if a woman without a fortune. "They need money," he added, "and can't get on without it."

For the first time it occurred to me that Ralph might know of the proper time in which to bring the matter to a head. I straightway began a series of investigations, probing here and there among those intimate with these two young men, which resulted in a discovery that my fiance had learned through agents in America of my expected fortune. From this starting point I did a lot of theorizing. I did not believe his story about Lady Constance's unfortunate marriage. Then I hit upon the information that my fiance had received in her own right of £100,000. "This opened my eyes still further, and I began to see my fiance's scheme."

He was balanced between a fortune of half a million dollars in the hand and two millions in the bush. Unfortunately for him, the smaller amount was contingent upon his supplanting his cousin.

I was tempted to break with him at once, but refrained, desiring to let comedy play itself out. Mother and I went to Paris to do some shopping and were gone a month. When I returned to England my fiance received me with a more demonstrative affection than ever before.

"Thank heaven!" he exclaimed, "I've got rid of that bothersome, meddling affair of Roger's. It has not been to my taste at all and has kept me away from you."

"Have you saved him?" I asked.

"Not that I know; I simply decided to have nothing more to do with such an underhand business. I told my aunt that if Roger wished to make an ass of himself I would not aid him. I was at a loss to account for his change in Ralph, but was disposed to think that he had noticed a change in me and was fearful of losing me and my millions. Or perhaps he had learned that he could win my love or my fiance. But I was not ready to show my hand, and, enduring his caresses as best I could, I said not a word to enable him to judge of my suspicions."

The very next day after he made his announcement I received a letter from America announcing the sudden death of my uncle, and, since I was left his sole heir, I was advised to return at once.

"That accounts for it," I said to myself. "Ralph has some one in America who has been keeping him posted on my affairs."

A steamer sailed from London that afternoon, and mother and I sailed on it. I hadn't a minute to write a line to Ralph, and I don't know that I should have written him if I had.

On reaching home I wrote Ralph, breaking our engagement. He was more successful in the other part of his matrimonial—or, rather, financial—scheme than that which pertained to me. Though he was obliged to give up my two millions, he secured Lady Constance's half million, having supplanted his rival, doubtless, by means of his being heir to a title.

As for Roger Battersea, he afterward married a lady better suited to him, I am engaged to an American business man.

The good physician occupies a field of great usefulness in the world. No one questions this, and no one would think of eliminating him. Music and Drama

At the Brant Theatre.

The Brant Theatre maintains its popularity. Crowded houses visited the performances yesterday and came away feeling well satisfied with the entertainment served up. In addition to the vaudeville there are five photo plays and they are perfectly depicted upon a well managed screen. Sawyer and Tanner please with a clever animated picture scene in which he paints a pretty background in a frame while she supplies the ever changing face presenting different nationalities. The feats of the La Noce who are novelty trapeze artists combined with their humor make them worthy of well merited plaudits. Simonsen and Wegner gave a really high class turn of singing and monologue. They are top-notchers. For American humor Morgan and West will be hard to beat. He, of the two, has a dry, quaint, way of doing things and his methods took the house. The miniature theatre scene staged by Franklin and Marlow was very cleverly worked and the scheme was played with an adroit touch of comedy. A fine film of two parts entitled "At Cross Purposes," brought an excellent programme to a close.

If Manager Moule continues to bring such performers he need have no fear of the attendance falling off.

Reception Committee of Federal League will Wait Upon "Wahoo" when the Tourists Arrive.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Federal League will have a reception committee of its own to meet the world touring Giants-White Sox baseball players when they arrive here on March 6 from Europe, according to President Gilmore of the Federals, who arrived in New York last night. The committee will consist of Chas. Weegham of Chicago; Otto Steifel of St. Louis; Robt. B. and Walter owners of the Brooklyn Federal franchise and Mr. Gilmore.

"And we may have something to say to some of the players who made the world trip," added Mr. Gilmore.

The Federal League president said that as Jake Stahl had declined the management of the Brooklyn team the Federals now have in view for that position a member of the world tourists. He intimated that the man is Sam Crawford.

"The attitude of organized baseball has changed considerably toward me in the last few weeks," continued Mr. Gilmore. "We will be admitted to organized baseball as a third major league before long, much sooner than many people are inclined to think."

LOVING TRIBUTE TO MR. MANSELL

Further Details of Untimely Demise in Peterboro Paper.

The Peterboro Examiner contains the following reference to the death of the late Rev. T. J. Mansell: "Appalling and inconceivably sadder was the death on Sunday evening of the Rev. T. J. Mansell, pastor of Charlotte street Methodist Church. Deceased expired from heart failure, at his home, 302 Reid St. within an hour after the close of the regular Sunday evening service. He had been unwell for several days previous to his death, a condition that was manifest on Sunday to many of the members of his congregation. The late Mr Mansell had completed his duties and was proceeding homeward, accompanied by Mrs. Mansell. When near the house deceased slipped on the sidewalk, and it was then thought that he was suffering from the attack, which later culminated in death. Upon reaching the parsonage Dr. F. C. Neal was summoned, and restorative applied. These had the effect of increasing the heart action for a brief period. When those around him were beginning to feel hopeful of recovery, deceased stretched out his arm and expired.

His Last Message
Those who attended the evening service at Charlotte St. Methodist church, and heard what proved to be the pastor's last earthly message, assert that he showed marked signs of distress. He frequently placed his hand over his heart, and throughout the sermon used the pulpit as a means of support. His condition caused his wife grave concern. At the close of the service Mrs Mansell remarked that he was not looking so well. He replied that he was suffering from a sharp pain in the region of the heart, which he attributed to indigestion. Medical aid was summoned almost as soon as he arrived home.

Came from Brantford.
Rev. Mr. Mansell's death will oc-casian a wave of universal regret, and sympathy for the bereaved family. He was known from coast to coast, and his removal from this life will be a severe loss to the cause for which he so faithfully and consistently laboured. It is nearly two years since he accepted the pastorate of Charlotte Street Methodist Church coming here from Brantford, and succeeding the Rev. G. W. Henderson, now of St. Catharines.

He was in his sixty-first year. The late Mr. Mansell entered the ministry in 1877 and as a probationer, occupied pulpits in Athens (formerly known as Farmerville, Leeds County) Aultsville, and Wraker. His first independent charge was Sutton, then West Brome, Bebec Plains, Coaticook, Quebec City, Montreal, Brockville, Dundas, Brantford and Peterboro. He has filled the various offices of the church from time to time and on more than one occasion has been honoured with the position of chairman of the district in which was located. He was a member of the General Conference, and President of the Montreal Conference. He took an active interest in matters pertaining to the temperance movement, and on Saturday night, prior to his death attended a meeting of the License Commissioners, in connection with the transfer of a liquor license. He has figured in more than one campaign in which the Scott Act constituted the issue.

Funeral Deferred.
Deceased was born in Almonte, Ontario, and was the third son of the late Isaac Mansell. His mother's maiden name was Margaret Bingham who is also deceased. The late Mr. Mansell received his early education at Almonte, after which he attended Victoria College, which was then located in Cobourg. In 1881 he was united in marriage to Miss Jessie Ault of Moulinette, near Cornwall. The union was blessed by three children, two sons and one daughter. The latter predeceased her father during his pastorate in Brockville. The sons are Robert Dow Mansell, of Martinville, Indiana, and Charles A. Mansell of Cincinnati, Ohio. Two brothers and two sisters, also survive. The brothers are Dr. C. E. Mansell, of Vancouver, and Mr. R. J. Mansell, of Brockville. The sisters, Mrs. Rev. D. Whittington and Miss Mansell, both of Vancouver.

of the metropolis on the opposite side was practically tied up because of their inadequate system. The latest tribute had come from Lyons, France, where an international tuberculosis congress wanted the Canadian car to go this summer for demonstration purposes. The president had named it the best in the world.

Then came housing legislation, which Mr. Rowell had criticized the Government for during the year and now designated as "backward" and ten years behind the rest of the world. The minister held the suspicion that Ontario was in advance of any country in this direction. Hon John Burns, whose housing bill in England had been remarked as the most progressive known, and yet the Ontario Act to it was simplicity itself and in municipal legislation made a beginning almost ideal.

He then led the members through the work of the public institutions, touching upon prison reform, care in dairies and other strong points. Deputations had come from Kaiser William in Germany, and from President Woodrow Wilson to learn of Ontario in humanitarian work.

The Hydro Commission, Workmen's Compensation Act, educational work, the spread of the gospel of agriculture into every nook and cranny of the province and a host of other points which constituted the administration as anything but backward were in turn enumerated. Mr. Hanna concluded in a burst of oratory.

They may be pessimistic as they like," he declared, waving his hand at the Opposition benches. "They may write the chapter of lamentations as long as they like, but we will not. We are travelling in another road. We believe in the stamina of the boys and girls of Ontario. We look forward to better things and leave the Opposition to travel its own road alone." (Applause.)

BERLIN OUTSCORES SARNIA AT HOME

Visitors Prove Best Team at Tunnel Town Last Night.

SARNIA, Feb. 25.—Berlin proved the better team in the O. H. A. game here last night and Sarnia went down to defeat by a score of 7 to 3. At half time the outlook was not quite so dismal, for the score was 3 to 1 in favour of Berlin.

The game was fast all the way through and the play centered around the Berlin net as often as about Sarnia's. Hainsworth tended goal for the visitors and his work caused the Sarnia fans to hold their breath. It was more than wonderful; it was marvelous. Cameron, Sarnia's goal, was a little off form, and let three easy ones get by him. McCarr and Dodds for the locals put up a splendid game.

Storey was knocked out in the first half and Sarnia finished the game with six men. Noxen, of Toronto, refereed.

WATEROUS KEEPS ON WINNING

The Waterous Apprentices kept up their winning streak last night by defeating the fast Maple Leaf team by the score of 2 to 1. This is the Leafs second defeat this season, the time before being administered by the Cookshutt team. The game was fast and a nice one to watch, play being close at all times, and the interest never lagged. There was one change in the Apprentices' line up, Carpenter playing in the place of Ratcliffe. The playing of Main at right wing for the Leafs was good, while Jackson was the best for Waterous.

Field Marshal Sir John French Describes Characteristics of Famous Leader

Field-Marshal Sir John French, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, was the principal guest at the annual Wolfe birthday dinner held under the auspices of the Westerham society at the George and Dragon Hotel, West-erham, where the hero of Quebec stayed on his last visit to West-erham in 1758. Colonel C. E. Warde, M. P., presided.

Dinner was served in the coffee room, the walls of which are rich with interesting painting and prints of General Wolfe and his contemporaries. In front of the chairman was the claret jug which formed part of Wolfe's cabin furniture on the occasion of his last voyage to Canada. Another interesting relic produced was a mutilated volume of historic importance, it being no less than a journal written by Wolfe himself of proceedings during some portion of the three months before the taking of Quebec. It was discovered amongst some old books after a fire at a West of England mansion recently.

"I believe I am right in thinking," General French said in the course of his tribute, "that not a few of the greatest military commanders the world has known have been distinguished by a certain grand simplicity of character. Indeed this simplicity seems, if not essential, at any rate of very great value to the military commander, because it is most likely to mean fixity of ordinary mind and purpose, power of concentration, and a wise direction of thought. Wolfe possessed it in a very remarkable degree.

"Another marked characteristic of this extraordinary man was his indomitable courage. Nor was his physical courage one whit less than his moral courage during the severe strokes of illness which laid him low in the very middle of the field of his operations around Quebec, and perhaps more than all when he was struck down again just three days before the final assault, when he beseeched a doctor just to patch him up regardless of consequences in order that he might finish his task with success. Indeed his wretched physical ailments would have broken down the courage of any ordinary man and it made no difference to him. Readers of his history will also remember the time when he landed in this country after his successful campaign at Louisburg, utterly broken down in health, and he had hardly settled down at Bath to recruit when the order reached him to go out again and undertake the capture of Quebec.

"His correspondence with Pitt at this time will demonstrate the nature of the man. His life presents indeed one of the finest examples we could have of the triumph of soul and spirit over body. (Cheers.) But what has struck me more than anything, in reading Wolfe's history has been the extraordinary fertility of his brain in the ingenious and varied forms of stratagem which he conceived to deceive his enemy and effect surprise.

"His military genius came out very strongly in this way in his exploits at Louisville, but the consummate skill and daring of his surprise of the morning of September 13, 1759, is unsurpassed in the annals of military history.

Murphy and McCamus of St. Michael's are both on the sick list, and the latter will be unable to take his place against the champions on Friday night in the first game of the O.H.A. finals. He has a badly sprained ankle. Murphy is said to be suffering from a floating knee cap. With these players out of the game, St. Michael's chances are not bright. Even if Murphy does play he will not be able to do himself justice.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantage of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, or turns gray and looks dry and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Witch's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger. Agent T. Geo. Bowles.

WITHIN THE LAW

By MARVIN DANA From The Play of BAYARD VEILLER

Copyright, 1913, by H. K. Fly Company.

"Are you?" Mary's tone was non-committal. "Yes," Burke declared, heartily. "And I mean it! Give up the truth about young Gilder. I know he shot Griggs, of course. But I'm not taking any stock in that burglar story—not a little bit! No court would either. What was really back of the killing? Was he jealous of Griggs? Well, that's what he might do then. He's always been a worthless young cub. A rotten deal like this would be about his gait. I guess. Tell me, now, why did he shoot Eddie Griggs?"

There was coarseness a-plenty in the inspector's pretense, but it possessed a solitary fundamental virtue; it played on the heart of the woman whom he questioned, aroused it to wrath in defence of her mate. In a second, all poise fled from this girl whose soul was blossoming in the best realization that a man loved her purely, unselfishly. Her words came stumbling in their haste.

"He didn't kill him! He didn't kill him!" she fairly hissed. "Why, he's the most wonderful man in the world. You don't hurt him! Nobody shall hurt him! I'll fight to the end of my life for Dick Gilder!"

Burke was just what I thought," he said, with smug content. "And now, then, who did shoot Griggs? We've got every one of the gang. They're all crooks. See here," he went on, with a sudden change to the respectful in his manner, "why don't you start fresh? I'll give you every chance in the world. I'm dead on the level with you this time."

By now Mary had herself well in hand again, vastly ashamed of the short period of self betrayal caused by the official's artifice against her heart. As she listened to the inspector's assurances, the mocking expression of her face was not encouraging to that astute individual, but he persevered.

"Just you wait," he went on cheerfully, "and I'll prove to you that I'm on the level about this, that I'm really your friend. There was a letter came for you to your apartment. My men brought it down to me. I've read it. Here it is. I'll read it to you." He picked up an envelope which had been lying on the desk, and drew out the single sheet of paper it contained. Mary watched him, wondering much more than her expression revealed over this new development. Then, as she listened, quick interest touched her features to a new life.

This was the letter: I can't go without telling you how sorry I am. There won't never be a time that I won't remember it was me got you sent up; that you did time in my place. I ain't going to forgive myself ever, and I swear I'm going straight always. Your true friend, HELEN MORRIS.

For once, Burke showed a certain delicacy. When he had finished the reading, he said nothing for a long minute.

Mary's eyes were luminous in the joy of the realization that for her, after all, rehabilitation might be in a measure possible, though nothing could ever repay the degradation of years infinitely worse than lost.

Burke's harsh voice, cadenced to a regular sympathy, broke in on her reverie of pleasure and of pain. "You knew this?" he inquired.

"Yes, two days ago." "Did you tell old Gilder?" he asked. Mary shook her head in negation. "What would be the use?" she reminded him. "I had no proof. No one would believe me." "They'd believe this. Why, this letter sets you clear. If old Gilder should see this letter, there's nothing he wouldn't do to make amends to you. He's a square guy himself, if it comes to that, even if he was hard on you. Why, this letter wipes out everything." Then, the insistent question beating at his brain forced him to speak roughly, building hope on the letter's inestimable worth to the woman before him.

"Who killed Griggs?" There was no reply. And, presently, he went on, half ashamed over his own intrigue against her. (To be continued.)

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The leader and his colleagues and dumbfoundered, Liberal members was faced in the Leg day with the proof that he had offered political influence to Hotelkeepers' Association, and to oppose his and his party. The most astounding dramatic moment of the night had its limits against the Conservative connection with the created a sensation. The Grenville men reluctant to read the letter challenged Mr. Evanurel's interests. The French-Canadian italy denied it, and a gunson proceeded through to its sorry end.

Once or twice Mr. Evanurel objected to the letter being read. It was not fair to bring it, he contended. He claimed authorship, however wanted to explain.

"You will not need to the House hear all of Mr. Ferguson's gruffly have explained yourself here."
