Several weeks ago Tin Cow, as a medicine man, declared that a 14 yearold lad of the tribe, was bewitched, and that as long as the boy lived disaster and death would attend the tribe. Accordingly, a council of the Indian families was called and it was decided to burn the boy alive. The victim was taken to the woods, but before the deed was performed there arose a dissension among them, with the result that it was deemed advisable to fry the witch test.

This test is that two members of the accused person's family should spend three days in the woods, and with rice and bait catch a rat alive. This rat is then taken to the Indian village and in whichever house the rat may run, there will the witch be found.

Before this test was resorted to the boy, while in confinement, blew out his brains.

The news of the affair was brought to City of Johannesburg to Be Blown Wrangel by Indians, sent by the missionary at Kake village, 100 miles distant, Deputy United States Marshal Grant and United States Commissioner Tustin chartered the steamer Earanoff AN for Kake, and brought Tiu Cow and his

Boer Losses

English newspapers published the tollowing estimate of Boer losses prior to Gen. Buller's operations around Spionkop. The figures are said to have been carefully compiled and many items have been verified by persons who have lately arrived from the republics. The general opinion is that the figures are underestimated:

Mafeking, 500; Kimberley, 300; Belmont, 400; Graspan, 250; Modder river, 400; Magerstontein, 700; Kuruman, 100; Douglas, 75; against Gen. French, 300; against Gen. Gatacre, 100; Glencoe, 300; Elandslaagte, 600; Ladysmith, 2000; total, 6425.

From the tenor of Gen. Buller's dispatch after Spwion Kop and of Winston Churchill's telegram after the same affair, the Boer losses must have been quite heavy. Several correspondents state that after the terrific bombardment by Gen. Warren and the abandonment of the outermost positions by the Boers, 200 bodies were taken out of the Boer trenches. If the losses are placed at a thousand in this operation they are still far below those of the British, and the number is probably a conservative one. This would bring the Boer casualties in all to about 7500 as against 10,000 Britsubport of entry. Then-the Washington ish. Many of the British wounded are, correspondent of the Post Inteligencer of course, convalescent, some even fighting again, and the same doubtless applies to the Boer wounded. The large figure of 2000 for Boer casualties at Ladysmith is made up chiefly from until a continuous line of tele-storm of protest from American ship losses in the two disastrous attacks on the pacific coast. Must Have Six Feet of Slack in Cold Countries.

Bennett-Dawson Line Hung too Tight Which Accounts for Various Breaks During the Past Winter.

Sup. J. B. Charlson thus explains the very plausible cause of the intermittent breakings of the telegraph line between here and Bennett during the winter just closing. He also gives interesting information regarding the construction of the Quesnell line. The Skagway Daily Alaskan in a late issue reports Mr. Charlson as saying :

"I care little for the aid of a surveyor or engineer," says Mr. Charlson, "in the construction of a telegraph line. I can usually survey a good commonplace route with my eyes pretty well.

"In building the Atlin Quesnelle line we shall, in traversing a forest country, cut a swath 12 feet wide. Large trees and small will be slashed, and nothing will be left standing that will prove a menace to the line. Whenever possible good standing trees will be utilized for telegraph poles.

"The wire to be used is No. 8 galvanized steel, the same as is used in the Bennett Atlin system. It is a good wire, and the breaks that have occurred in the system have not been the result of using poor wire, but having too little slack in the line at some places. The fault for the little slack lies on the shoulders of the subordinates. I instructed them to give six feet of slack to every mile of wire. They did not follow instructions and the result was the line was too tight at places to stand the extreme tension under the great cold. The giving of more slack would have meant the hanging of a trifle more wire and therefore the carrying of a few more coils of wire on the part of some them for that they flee to the nearest horse before the season is well adtrouble.

Entertained His Friend.

Mr. Chas. Sperry and Dr. J. Arlan Hornsby, both at present in Dawson, were former citizens of Skagway and intimate friends. The former came to Dawson on one of the last steamers to been here ever since; therefore, he feels that he is an old timer and in position to show his newly arrived friends the wonders of the city.

Dr. Hornsby "arrived a week ago and was here two or three days before meeting his friend Sperry, since which ern Alaska excursion business has time they have been very much together, the latter acting in the capacity of pilot and trail blazer. While escorting the medical man along Front street one bright afternoon Sperry chanced to see a fine specimen of moun-tront of a Dawson restaurant. 'Here,' said Sperry to himself, "is where I will shine and show my friend that during tthe five months of my resiclose up to the sheep he began: "This, this far northland. Pleasure Seekers and Tourists This Year.

Anyone who has seen a good collection of views taken along the water ways of the interior from Bennett to St. Michael longs to take the trip and enjoy the famous scenery and the exciting scenes of the mining camps Of course, in winter the journey over the ice is not such as would attract the come down the river last fall, and has adventurous tourist but in summer time when daylght is almost continous, the trip is an ideal one and one that is beginning to draw the attention of easterners accustomed to spending an extended outing in the west. It is only in the last two years that the southeastassumed any importance, and now that a trip to Skagway, and return via the glacier, has become commonplace the more venturesome of the tourists are planning to take the trip by steamer to Skagway by rail to Bennett or Closetain sheep hanging by the heels in leigh and thence down the Yukon river for its entire length and by ocean steamer from St. Michael back to Puget sound again. The trip will necessarily be an expensive one and dence here I have acquired a large stock will not be extensively patronized until of knowledge." NEVINS VS. BULYEA ET

Decided By Gold Commissioner Senkler This Morning.

Three Protest Cases Were Instituted Today, Which Involve Title to Valuable Clams.

Commissioner Senkler has decided the case of Nevins vs. Smith and Bulyea. The property affected is the hillside, left limit, opposite the upper half of 3 below upper discovery on Dominion. The decision is as tollows: "At the hearing of this case the original locator was added as a party defendant. Upon the evidence being heard, the relocators withdrew from the case, it being apparent that the representation work had been done under the original location. A renewal grant shall therefore issue upon application to the owners under the original location."

O'Brien, and Hugh Ferne. The ground involved is a fractional creek claim, men and horses back to the city, and in numbered 58b below discovery on Sul-phur. The hearing of the case has been arraigned on the charge of working fixed for April 7th.

C J. Ekman has entered a protest against Humboldt Gates and Fred horse in question was in the royal Hutchinson. The plaintiff alleges that stable just across the alley from the court room, and ordered that the animal be led out in front of the courthouse right limit, opposite the upper half of door, which order was obeyed. It is No. 28 Eldorado; that the defendants, not a prevarication to say that for all who own said creek claim, No. 28, are trespassing upon said adjoining hill side. The hearing has been set for April 9th.

A protest action has been filed by Henry Piece and W. H. Lucus vs. William Heath and H. L. Thomas. The suit involves a dispute regarding the boundaries of the hillside, left the money in his behalf, limit, opposite the lower half of 6 above on Last Chance. The case will be tried on April 12th.
