Poetry.
THE SEASONS IN PASSING.

The Seasons in passing, one sweet moral brings,
And well—if he marked it—would man do it.
"Spread pleasure like me!" is the language of Spring.

"Make all hearts as glad as you can do!"
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed every mourner a brother.
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

The Summer but varies the lesson—"Make good!"
Treat all men with love and affection!
My son shines alike on the good and the bad,
And shall you dare to think of selection?
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed each a bad man your brother;
And if each, while he did a bit for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

The Autumn proclaims—"Lo! my stores are for all!"
But should one in the scramble get favor, Let him share it with those to whom little may fall.

And what's left will have the more saved!
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed the unshaky a brother;
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

And Winter affirms it while shaking the door,
And bidding the stream with his fetters—
"Keep the cold that I bring from the hearths of the poor,
And your own will burn brighter and better!
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed every poor man a brother;
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself, Did a little bit, too, for another!"

LETTER
From JOHN W. GERRARD, Esq., to the Hon.
William H. Merritt, on the Toronto and Goderich Railroad, as a medium of Colonization.

To THE HON. WM. HAMILTON MERRITT.
Toronto, February 27th, 1849.

My Dear Sir,—The interest which, in the face of much apathy upon the part of some, and of much opposition upon the part of others, I have for some years past taken, in endeavoring to promote the Colonization of this Province, through the medium of the Colonization Society, has emboldened me to draw your attention to such suggestions as have occurred to my mind, calculated to establish and confirm the wisdom and propriety of the plan which, I am aware, you have long entertained, that it is the duty of every man to endeavor to realize what remains of the public domain in an extensive and judicious manner, and to apply it to purposes of general improvement and education; and I cannot but express the hope that the opinions upon the subject, submitted on the application of that domestic purpose of general public improvement, as one of the great objects to be attained by the establishment of the Colonization Society, will be agreed to by the House in the session of 1844-5 upon the petition of the Toronto and Lake Huron Railroad Company for an amendment to the Act in relation to the same.

The principle upon which I sought for the Incorporation of the Toronto and Goderich Railroad, in 1847, is known to you. By the report of the Committee of Railroads and Telegraphs, presented in that year to the House of Commons, it appears, that west of the Home Township, there are about 1,814,200 acres of Crown Lands. These lands, I am convinced, never will, either under any former mode of administration, or by the present mode of giving 50 acres to actual settlers, realize a sufficient sum to meet the expenses of the road, and I cannot but think that the disposal of them, in the manner which I propose, will be the most advantageous to the Province.

The manner in which this domain would be enhanced in value by the construction of the Toronto and Goderich Railroad, you have in that report pointed out: indeed, as there is no tract of land of equal extent in the western section of the Province, offering equal facilities or inducements for settlement, it is but natural that in endeavoring to preserve or enhance the value of the public domain, our attention should be most directly and immediately attracted to this favored Peninsula; and whatever difference of opinion sectional interests may create, I cannot but express the hope, as I sincerely certainly believe, that the more it is considered, the more it will become apparent, that the project of the Toronto and Goderich Railroad Company is one deserving the most favored consideration of Parliament, and that good matter with any other project of a similar nature, but as the only one which, by its construction, will create a wealth which Parliament can reach, and thereby facilitate the construction of similar works.

Unless some means be adopted for increasing the value of the public domain, by permanent improvements, affording facilities for intercommunication—an opportunity for the beneficial investment of capital—and occupation for an extended population, it can scarcely be expected that any surplus revenue can be derived from the Crown Lands, or that they will become settled in any greater proportion than their present state.

It would appear, therefore, that before any revenue can be derived from any particular tract of the public domain, a great arterial communication should be constructed through it.

If, then, and it cannot be denied, it is desirable that the residue of the public domain should be preserved for purposes of Education, and if at the same time and by the same means, reason can be provided for colonizing the country upon an extended scale; and of making this Province the channel for the transit of the exports of all the grain growing States of the neighboring Union, it must be admitted, that any project calculated to attain these objects is worthy of the greatest consideration of the Legislature.

It is to be regretted that in this country the novelty of any proposition, however excellent it may be, has been sufficient to insure its defeat; but the principle of the project to which I wish to draw your attention, has not done so.

What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed every mourner a brother.
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself,

works.

Unless some means be adopted for increasing
the value of the public domain, by permanent improvements, affording facilities for intercommunication—an opportunity for the beneficial
investment of capital—and occupation for an extended population, it can scarcely be expected that any surplus revenue can be derived from the Crown Lands, or that they will become settled in any greater proportion than their present
state.

It would appear, therefore, that before any revenue can be derived from any particular tract
of the public domain, a great arterial communication should be constructed through it.

If, then, and it cannot be denied, it is desirable that the residue of the public domain should
be preserved for purposes of Education, and if at
can be provided for colonizing the country upon

an extended scale; and of making this Province
the channel for the transit of the exports of all the grain growing States of the neighboring
calculated to attain these objects is worthy of the greatest consideration of the Legislature.

It is to be regretted that in this country the novelty of any proposition, however excellent
it may be, has been sufficient to insure its defeat;
but the principle of the project to which I wish to draw your attention, has not done so.

What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed every mourner a brother.
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

The Summer but varies the lesson—"Make
good!"
Treat all men with love and affection!
My son shines alike on the good and the bad,
And shall you dare to think of selection?
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed each a bad man your brother;
And if each, while he did a bit for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

The Autumn proclaims—"Lo! my stores are for all!"
But should one in the scramble get favor, Let him share it with those to whom little may
fall.

And what's left will have the more saved!
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed the unshaky a brother;
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself,
Did a little bit, too, for another!"

And Winter affirms it while shaking the door,
And bidding the stream with his fetters—
"Keep the cold that I bring from the hearths of
the poor,
And your own will burn brighter and better!
What a world it would be, if less mindful of self,
You esteemed every poor man a brother;
And if each, while he did a bit good for himself, Did a little bit, too, for another!"

From JOHN W. GERRARD, Esq., to the Hon.
William H. Merritt, on the Toronto and Goderich Railroad, as a medium of Colonization.

Toronto, February 27th, 1849.

My Dear Sir,—The interest which, in the face of much apathy upon the part of some, and
of much opposition upon the part of others, I have
for some years past taken, in endeavoring to promote the Colonization of this Province, through
the medium of the Colonization Society, has
emboldened me to draw your attention to such
lated to establish and confirm the wisdom and
have long entertained, that it is the duty of every man to endeavor to realize what remains of the public domain in an extensive and judicious
manner, and to apply it to purposes of general improvement and education; and I cannot but express the hope that the opinions upon the subject, submitted on the application of that domestic purpose of general public improvement, as one of the great objects to be attained by the establishment of the Colonization Society, will be
agreed to by the House in the session
of 1844-5 upon the petition of the Toronto
and Lake Huron Railroad Company for an amendment to the Act in relation to the same.

The principle upon which I sought for the Incorporation of the Toronto and Goderich Railroad, in 1847, is known to you. By the report of the Committee of Railroads and Telegraphs, presented in that year to the House of Commons, it appears, that west of the Home Township, there are about 1,814,200 acres of Crown Lands. These lands, I am convinced, never will, either under any former mode of administration, or by the present mode of giving
sum to meet the expenses of the road, and I cannot but think that the disposal of them, in
advantageous to the Province.

CHIEF JUSTICE ROBINSON'S OPINIONS ON THE LIBRARY-BURNING LEAGUE.

The Civil and Criminal Courts have been held at the same time, because our Jury laws contemplate that, in this District as well as in others, and there would be several inconveniences attending the separation of the Courts; but when it is found, by the course of the law, that it is found, by the course of the law, that it is found, by the course of the law...

A man of the dress next made his appearance, and was greeted with indignant shouts of "The Bond! The Bond!" He said he was a Heron, (loud shouts of "The Bond!") He said he had been a Heron, and all supporters of Mr. Cayley had found it profitable. Mr. Cayley was a great man! Look at his Measures!—rather than his Measures! Who was it that had made and published the important discovery of sticking the Tavern License Fund to the Marriage License Fund for the payment of the Rebellion Losses?

When any one high in authority is made the subject of such an exhibition, the offence is not at all accounted more grave, and where the object is to bring odium on the Government and its measures, it becomes a matter of course that such proceedings should be allowed to pass unchecked, for they will sooner or later be found to occasion riots fatal to the security of property, and which may be attended with loss of life.

Whether the persons so labelled public situations, or not, and however willing they may be to forbear taking notice of the indignities to which they are subjected, they should be allowed to pass unchecked, for they will sooner or later be found to occasion riots fatal to the security of property, and which may be attended with loss of life.

It is part, gentlemen, of your duty, as well as of the duty of every citizen, to be present to enquire into the sufficiency of the Gaol, and the treatment of the prisoners confined in it. I believe the office in charge of the Gaol of this District has usually been one of the most respectable and honorable in the Province, and it is a matter of regret that it is now in the hands of a man who is not fit to be entrusted with the management of a prison.

"GENTLEMEN.—I receive with sincere gratification your loyal and patriotic Address. I lament with you the excesses which have occurred in the City of Montreal, and their ill results to the Province. I am glad to see that you are all so united in your devotion to our Gracious Queen, and to the best interests of the Colony, to administer its Government on constitutional principles. By this rule my conduct has hitherto been regulated. I am not conscious of having in any instance deviated from it; and to it I am resolved consistently to adhere.

By this rule my conduct has hitherto been regulated. I am not conscious of having in any instance deviated from it; and to it I am resolved consistently to adhere.

I regard it as a most auspicious circumstance that the great body of the Inhabitants of Upper Canada should come forward at the present crisis to express their abhorrence of violence and animosity, and their determination to uphold Constitutional Government in its integrity. That legislative measures should be so framed as to give unqualified satisfaction to all the members of a large community is hardly to be expected: everything that is reasonable should be done to achieve this result, but complete success in manifestly unattainable. Political society must therefore pass through a series of convulsions to dissolution unless minorities when constitutional means of opposition are exhausted be willing to acquiesce in the determination of majorities expressed through their accredited organs.

Had you not so pointedly referred to it, I should not have alluded to the fact, that petitions are in course of preparation soliciting my recall. I admit to the fullest extent the right of petition, and all I can say on that head is, that if such petitions are transmitted through me they shall be forwarded with the request that they be laid respectfully at the foot of the Throne.—I am conscious of no other motive in the conduct which I have pursued during my administration of the Government, but a desire to do my duty to my Sovereign and to the people of the Province. I am confident that ere long justice will be done, not only to my intentions but also to the wisdom of my policy, for I have a profound conviction that situated as this Colony is, I best secure not only the liberty of the subject but also the prerogative of the Crown, by co-operating cordially with Parliament in the work of Legislation; and acting not blindly nor passively, but frankly and resolutely, on the advice of those who have its confidence.

ELGIN & KINCARDINE. Reply of His Excellency the Governor General to the Address from the Inhabitants of the City of Kingston. GENTLEMEN.—The manly and patriotic sentiments expressed in your Address afford me the most sincere gratification. The love of order and the love of true liberty are congenial affections. I cannot wonder that they should find a home in the bosom of the great body of the inhabitants of Canada.

As respects myself, the path of duty is plainly marked out before me; and if it be sometimes rugged, I have no reason to complain. I am constrained alike by a regard to the commands of my Queen, and to the best interests of the Colony, to administer its Government on constitutional principles. By this rule my conduct has hitherto been regulated. I am not conscious of having in any instance deviated from it; and to it I am resolved consistently to adhere.

can colonies have arrived at such a stage in their growth that public opinion in those colonies themselves will, and must be the supreme power to decide upon laws affecting their own internal interests. I believe it to be neither practicable nor desirable that any other rule should hold, I am trying to force on the colonies any particular system of local and internal legislation. But, on the other hand, I am persuaded that if the powers of the Crown be judiciously used in this country, it, distinctly recognizing their limits—clearly discerning how far we may go, and how far we may not go, those powers be exercised wisely and moderately, then I am convinced that they may be exercised with the greatest advantage in the interests of the colonies themselves. These opinions, my lords, will be found in despatches of mine moved for in the other House of Parliament. In those despatches I have endeavored, as clearly as I could, to state my views to the governors of these North American colonies. I have informed them that they are not to consider themselves freed from responsibility; that, on the contrary, a great and heavy responsibility is laid upon them—that they are responsible for every measure to which they assent. But, on the other hand, I have always stated that, under the form of government which prevails in these colonies, we cannot shrink from the conclusion that in the public opinion must be upon all points on which the authorities may be at issue."

The views enunciated in this passage are quite in accordance with the principle of self-government, and an amount of independence that stops short only of separation. The application of the principle to such colonies as Australia will very materially reduce the Imperial expenditure, remove the complaints that must necessarily arise from a system of centralization, and distant government, and develop, to an extraordinary degree, the resources of the Colonies. It is greatly to be desired that Earl Grey should take more frequent opportunities of acquiring his practice by these intelligent and liberal principles.—Birmingham Journal.
