The Sound of Wedding Bells

—OR—

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER IV.

They pace the room, and Dulcie, with downcast eyes, directs a little sidelong glance at him.

Yes, decidedly he is handsome. It is just the manly beauty which she has always pictured as her beau ideal. And if he looked distinguished out there, fresh from his encounter with the mob, he looks doubly so now that the suit of tweeds has been exchanged for correct evening dress, and the severe outline of black sets off the stalwart shoulders and upright, soldierly form.

In silence they walk round, and then suddenly the absurdity of the thing, the absurdity of walking with a man whose name she does not know and who has done her most effectual service, strikes Dulcie; and though she struggles to suppress it, the ever-ready laugh ripples from her lips.

He doesn't look surprised; but he turns his dark eyes on her inquiringly.

"May I venture to ask," he says, "what has excited your risible faculties?"

She laughs again. "This is too ridiculous," she says. "As if it were not hot enough standing still here, without promenading round this dreadful room, mute as if we were at a funeral, and one of us as uncomfortable."

"One of us? That one I presume is, in your opinion, myself?" he says, touching his breast.

"Of course," she assents. "I am not uncomfortable—I am perfectly happy. But you are bored with the whole thing, are you not? I know what you will say—that you are not—that you never spent such a delightful evening, and all that," she goes on; but he does not speak.

"At least you are candid," she says—"that is, sometimes. Why did you tell a falsehood about that wretched bracelet?"

"Was it a falsehood?" he says, with a quiet smile. "An evasion, perhaps. I said 'No doubt,' if you remember."

"Yes, and led my aunt to infer that you had picked it up in the room. I call that as good as a falsehood. Why did you say that?"

He looks round; there is a quiet little alcove containing a rickety wooden chair and a dingy sofa, near which they stand.

"Suppose we sit down?" he says. "We shall be less like mutes in a funeral procession, perhaps," and he pushes aside the curtain and hands her to the sofa, taking the rickety chair for himself.

"That will let you down," she says, calmly. "Nine out of ten of the chairs in the hotel have broken limbs or strained spines. I don't know why; perhaps it is because the proprietor hopes an accident may occur which will necessitate a visitor remaining for months."

He props the chair against the wall, and deposits his tall form upon it, stretches out his legs, and looks at his boots.

She watches him for a moment over her slowly sweeping fan, then she says, abruptly:

"You haven't answered my question. Isn't that rude?"

"I beg your pardon. I have a bad habit of growing absent-minded. I have lived much by myself. Your question? Yes. Well, I thought perhaps that you had not yet had time to give an account of your adventures to your aunt. I think you said!"

"That is a roundabout way of accusing me of deceitfulness and secrecy," says Dulcie, calmly, but with a flash of light in the eyes that, while it enhances their beauty, gives indications of a certain warmth of temper.

"If that was your impression," she goes on with unnatural calmness of manner, "you are quite wrong. I never conceal anything from my aunt, because—slowly and emphatically, not to say defiantly—"I never do anything I am ashamed of."

He looks at her. She makes a picture at the moment that is well worth looking at. The clear oval face warmed by the color of indignation, the dark lustrous eyes, the half-parted lips, the silken hair, the whole graceful, lithe body in its background of dingy moreen curtains—a beautiful, entrancing, bewitching picture that keeps him for a moment silent.

"I see," she says with dangerous

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely. It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

suaveness, "you don't believe me. You think that it was unlady-like, improper"—she draws a breath at the ugly word—"for a girl so young as I am to be out in the streets alone."

"And to accept the aid of a stranger. Oh, I quite understand. Your manner said so quite plainly, when you stood on the pavement."

He colors faintly under his tan, and his lips move for a moment. It is all so true.

"At least," she says, turning crimson, "you are too candid to deny it."

"I beg your pardon," he says, with a smile. "You haven't given me time. I was going to say that you quite exaggerate my estimate of the little, to me very agreeable, incident."

"Oh, please don't," she says with a little curl of her lips. "It didn't appear that you thought it very agreeable at the time."

It is quite true; he didn't. He remembers distinctly the feeling of annoyance with which he felt compelled to drag her out of the crowd, the feeling of censure with which he looked down at her, a young girl alone in the streets.

"Perhaps you think," she goes on, hurriedly, "that it is altogether singing against the proprieties that aunt and I should be staying at this big hotel, two women alone—"

"I—" he tries to break in, but she will not allow.

"At any rate if you do, you quite agree with aunt; poor aunt! She has never ceased to utter moaning and lamentation for the hour of weakness in which she was induced to fly the situation."

"Situation?" he says with polite curiosity.

She colors and looks aside, her under lip caught for a moment between her teeth as if she had let slip a word she would willingly recall. Then suddenly she looks round and laughs. It is a strange laugh, almost defiant, and matches the sudden daring and audacity that shine in her eyes.

"I am the most indiscreet of persons," she says; "I was on the point of telling you a secret. Do you know"—she pauses, and her lips part with a mischievous smile—"I am sorely tempted to tell you."

He looks at her. What is this mad-cap creature about to say now?

"I sincerely hope that you will yield to the temptation," he says. "It would be rather amusing," she says; "your horror and disgust at my 'impropriety' were so enjoyable this evening that, I almost court a second edition."

"I will promise to be as horrified and disgusted as possible if you will tell me," he says; "have you committed any very great social crime?" he adds, coolly, and in as matter-of-fact a tone as even Dulcie could desire.

"Perhaps I have," she says; "though perhaps," and she turns with a little gesture of eagerness, "you might think I had done quite right."

"I feel sure that I should think you had done quite right. I feel sure that you 'would never do anything you were ashamed of.'"

This quoting of her words nettles her.

"I spoke the truth," she says; "I never have. You shall judge. By the way, we have not been introduced."

"True," he says. "Permit me to introduce to your gracious notice—"

She stops him with a sudden touch of her slender hand.

"Stop! Let us be strangers. We don't know each other, and we don't want to."

At this sublime piece of candor he stares, then smiles.

"If you would speak only for yourself—" he says.

"I do," she says. "Candidly, I really should not like to know you. Did you not notice that I was going out of the room when I saw you? Yes"—with a sigh—"I see I shall have to admit that I, too, tell stories! Well, then, I am ashamed of what occurred this afternoon, and I want to forget it; and, don't you see, that every time I saw you I should be reminded of it, so that I do not desire, for my part, an extension of our acquaintance. You, on your part, will certainly not wish it—"

"I beg your pardon!"

"Therefore," she goes on, smoothly, "let us remain strangers. Tonight we shall part, as the song says, to meet no more. You will go on or remain in Rome, and I—that is on, my aunt and I—will go on our journey. Is that agreed?"

He is silent for a moment.

"Well," he says, "if the telling of your secret is conditional on this, so be it; but if you think that it is impossible we shall meet again, I tell you that you are reckoning without remembering the very smallness of the world."

"I will risk it," she says, with a laugh. "After all, you and I have spent this much of our existence without previously meeting; it is not too much to hope that we may spend the remainder in the same manner."

He smiles, and his eyes wander from her face, so beautiful, so fresh, so pliant, to the garish room, round which awkward men—most men are awkward when they dance—are ambling, rushing, jostling, with young girls, married women, gay widows, in their arms—the usual foreign hotel contingent, in fact, that every traveler is familiar with. It seems so hackneyed and stale, and the girl beside him, with her bright, natural but extraordinary frankness, not to say audacity—seems so fresh by contrast, that his eyes come back to her face, and he sighs.

"Very well," he says, in his quiet voice, "we will hope that we may never meet again. And now for your secret."

But apparently she has forgotten, or repents her promise to disclose; for she has fallen into a little reverie as silent as those which distinguish the man at her side. Suddenly she turns with a little start, and laughs softly, meditatively.

"I was thinking," she says, explaining her silence—"wondering whether you will believe me."

"Believe you!" he says.

"Yes," she says, leaning back, and smiling ruminatively over the edge of the fan, against the dark crimson satin of which her dark eyes shine large and lustrous. "It is such a strange, such an absurd, such a preposterously 'novelish' sort of story, that you will very likely think I am romancing."

"I assure you—" he begins.

"It is for that very reason," she goes on, apparently taking no notice of his interjection—"because of its strangeness and absurdity—that I feel I must tell you. Do you remember the story of the man in the poem, the 'Ancient Mariner,' who button-holed the wedding-guest, and insisted on boring him with a long story in 1

We trust that our customers will appreciate the fact that we have advised them ahead when tea prices were advancing and have protected them as far as possible. The tremendous freight rates are responsible for the rises in the price of teas. Today the freight and insurance on a pound of tea from Ceylon is 16 cents per pound. This compares with about 3c. in normal times.

We have cheaper teas in stock than our "Mount View," but the higher grade teas are the most economical and "Mount View" Tea is becoming a great favourite and we would like you to try it.

STRIKES.

The strike is a neat surgical operation performed on the neck of the ultimate consumer. It usually consists of an amicable arrangement between labor and capital whereby neither loses anything so long as the common people remain solvent.

The strike is a plain, blunt method of raising wages which have fallen several laps behind the high cost of living. Some strikes are more blunt than others, and have to be quelled by the brandished billy of the uniformed police. In our large cities, however, a very poor brand of quelling is done, especially if a strike is pulled off just prior to the city election.

The strike is always accompanied by a physical culture exercise known as the walk-out. This is accomplished by leaving a flourishing manufacturing plant flat on its back, with all four legs in the air, and waiting for the board of directors to listen to the voice of reason. As every board of directors would rather go without bread than dividends, the strike is soon broken, and the price of hard coal is lifted four notches above the boiling point.

The strike is always accompanied by a physical culture exercise known as the walk out.

Sometimes labor and capital cannot get together, in which case it is agreed to arbitrate. The man who invented arbitration as a means of settling a strike had a bright, thoughtful mind, as it is one of the most satisfactory methods of extracting money from the pockets of the common herd that has ever been thought of by any thinker. Whenever a street-car strike is submitted to arbitration, the pigeon-toed strap-hanger sends for a trained nurse and begins to figure on a change of climate.

One of the worst forms of strike is that which occurs when some neighbor lures the hired girl away by promising her higher wages and free access to the piano. Thousands of married women, surrounded with dull care and high-spirited children, are subjected to this form of strike every year, and yet they are not even allowed to arbitrate. The law will not even permit a married woman to retain her maid's jewelry and chiffon velvet dresses in case of a walk-out. In view of these facts, we would like to ask: Where is woman's vaunted freedom in this country, anyway?

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me whether it is considered good form to wear a band of black on one arm when a member of the family has passed away," asked Stella.

"This is a custom of olden times. If one cannot afford black garments it is best not to wear a black band or any outside sign of sorrow," said her friend.

Some of the new winter dresses have collars and wide skirt panels of striped material, the stripes running across.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Hawco to Edward Walsh, both of Chapel's Cove, took place at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 11th, at the Church of St. John. The Mass was performed by the Rev. Father Shean in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Mrs. John Healey, a sister of the bride, was her matron of honor and only attendant; Michael Walsh, a cousin of the groom, served as best man. After the wedding the happy couple then left for St. John's where they will spend a few days before leaving for Sydney, N.S.; in the latter place they will make their future home.

The new, straight coats of tailored suits show very charming straight lines.

Pockets which are useful but not over-conspicuous are hinted at for coming-tailored suits.

Many new blouses have sleeves above the elbow.

Bedsteads, Springs, Mattresses

WHITE ENAMEL with Brass Trimmings, well made very reliable.

Some exclusive patterns.

In Springs we have the Ideal, the acme of perfection, 120 continuous springs securely fastened to solid steel frame, makes it the most durable spring on the market.

The Improved Oxford is a Spring we also recommend very strongly, being made of steel wire coppered over, and one continuous weave makes it a very strong and lasting Spring. We also have the Woven Wire Spring from $2.00 up.

The NEVER-SPREAD Mattress.

This represents the chief advance in the past decade of Mattress manufacture. The construction of narrow bands, five crosswise, two lengthwise, which encircle the Mattress over the felt and under the ticking to which they are fastened. These bands are stitched and cut to finish exact size of Mattress, which therefore cannot stretch, spread or sag. We recommend it as the very latest in Mattress manufacture. Our Fern Felt New Health are also good reliable Mattresses. Nothing but pure cotton wool, and wood fibre is not allowed to enter them. Other Mattresses down to $2.00 each.

THE ONLY WAY TO DEAL WITH THEM.

MONTREAL, To-day.
 The Anti-Conscriptionist oratory of Ferdinand Villeneuve came to a sudden termination to-night a few minutes after he had addressed a gathering of anti's in the Fontaine Park. He was quietly arrested at the corner of Amherst and Roblin Streets and taken away without any disturbance and the meeting came to an end. It was announced shortly after that it was not for his speech to-night that Villeneuve was taken into custody by authorities but for previous offences, though his address to-night was specially violent. He said, "When the time is ripe it would be far better for the Canadian people to raise the flaming flag of a free republic over the Parliament buildings at Ottawa than stay under the tyranny of the Union Jack." If this could not be done, he said, American aid would be called in and the Stars and Stripes would be a much better flag than the Union Jack. Alphonse Berrier, just after learning of the arrest of Villeneuve, declared that the English flag is the most corrupt flag in the world. Later he announced that he was going down to St. Catherine Street, and wanted 10 stout French-Canadians to go along to see that he got there. The wished-for body guard responded and Berrier made his departure. Michaelis Levi, one of the speakers said the British flag gave more freedom than the flag of the United States.

BUENOS AIRES IN EPIROAR.
BUENOS AIRES, To-day.
 The downtown section of the city was the scene of wild disorders tonight in connection with the great anti-German demonstration, in which a thousand Americans took part. Many of those in the mobs carried fire brands and, as a result scores of buildings were set on fire. Several blocks of German business houses were destroyed. Among the structures attacked were the German Club, one of the finest edifices in the city and the building of the German Daily La Union. As fast as fired these buildings were extinguished and started again. Mounted patrols and the entire fire department kept rushing from one point of the city to another in an attempt to quell the riots and put out the flames. In several instances the police who were attempting to shoot at those wielding the torches, were set upon by the crowds and disarmed. Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the authorities to protect Count Laxburg, the German Foreign Minister, when he arrives here to-morrow morning to receive his passports.

RUSSIAN SITUATION IMPROVING.
PETROGRAD, To-day.
 According to statements made by the members of the Cabinet late last night, and the news of this morning, the situation of the Provisional Government is continuing steadily to improve, although in view of what is regarded as the desperate position of General Korniloff and his assistants in revolt, with whom it is declared that the Government will tolerate no compromise, there is still a danger of armed collision. The measures for the defence of the capital are completed. Troops upon whom the Government can rely continue to arrive, while the small minority of Korniloff's supporters at Petrograd, appear thoroughly cowed. Similar conditions are reported from Moscow. Finance Minister Nekrasoff, Premier Kerensky's mouthpiece for giving out news, declared to-day that the Government's position was satisfactory. It was untrue that Korniloff's troops had been allowed to occupy Tsosna. He said that dissension among Korniloff's forces was general, while there was absolute solidarity among the Government troops. Many additional assurances of loyalty from Generals and political organizations have been received by the Government. The women soldiers of Russia will fight for the Government. The women's battalion declares it is its duty to take an active part in the domestic struggle. The Bolsheviks, who have been in jail for complicity in the revolt of July 16th, have published a demand for their liberation in order to fight the present revolt, giving a pledge that they will present themselves for trial when the revolt is crushed. The Minister of Justice has consented to release all those against whom no formal indictments have been preferred. An important fact in favor of the Government is that the President of the New Ukraine Parliament and Ukraine's representative here has issued orders to resist Korniloff by force and loyally to support the Petrograd Government. Perfect order is being maintained in the capital. Street meetings have been forbidden. Additional papers have been suppressed. The Rech appears to-day with four blank columns. Arrests continued during the night, the latest, according to the morning papers, being Colonel Clerzake, Director of Military Censorship. General Korniloff's real difficulty seems to be the resolute opposition of the rank and file of the front army, and the resolute action of his adherent troops outside Petrograd. At a Cabinet meeting last night the Ministers emphasized the need for ending the revolt speedily. In view of the bad effect on the country and abroad, but so long as Korniloff does not open hostilities there is a strong feeling in favor of avoiding bloodshed, and probably the Government will postpone attacking the rebel troops until all hope of their secession from Korniloff is lost. Officials of the Provisional Government declare that Petrograd is amply supplied with provisions to withstand a siege.

LINER SUNK AND LIVES LOST.

NEW YORK, To-day.
 News was received here last night from England that the Atlantic Transport Liner Minnehaha was sunk by a submarine last Friday a short distance off the coast of Ireland, and fifty of her officers and crew were lost. She had a crew of 140 men all told.

NEW FRENCH MINISTRY.

PARIS, To-day.
 M. Painleve has succeeded in organizing a Ministry to replace Ribot's Cabinet, and presented the new Ministers to President Poincare last night.

BIG AIR FIGHTING.

LONDON, To-day.
 Reporting aerial operations on the British front in France, a war office statement issued last night says: "After midday of the 11th the bad visibility of the morning improved and aerial activity became great. Very successful artillery and photographic work was carried out continuously. During the day 281 bombs were dropped on various targets including two airfields south of Lille and a large ammunition dump in the vicinity of Roulers. During the night 89 bombs were dropped on railway stations and ammunition dumps and trains in the Courtrai area, making a total weight of over six tons in 24 hours. The air fighting was very vigorous and strong formations of enemy scouts were encountered by our patrols. Our artillery and photographic machines working well over the enemy's country also, there were frequent engagements." Seven hostile machines were downed in the combats, twelve driven down out of control and one was shot down by anti-air craft guns; eight of our machines are missing.

SHIPPING LOSSES.

LONDON, To-day.
 The summary of shipping losses for last week follows:—arrivals, 2,744; sailings, 2,288. British merchant vessels sunk by mine or submarine of over 1,600 tons, including one previously mentioned, twelve; under 1,600 tons, including one previously mentioned, six; British merchant vessels attacked unsuccessfully, including three previously mentioned, twelve. British fishing vessels sunk, four.

GERMAN MILITARY POSITION DETERIORATING.

LONDON, To-day.
 The Times prints an article from a German Journalist, who recently left Germany, in which it is stated that it is clear to all who know the internal conditions of Germany that the fourth war winter will bring a deterioration in the German military position. The first symptoms are even now to be discovered. Three causes lie at the root of this deterioration: first, there is an increasing deficiency of raw materials in the Munitions Industry which with sharper control of import by neutral countries, will lead to a catastrophe in England with the growing traffic crisis in Germany will play not an inconsiderable part. Second, there is the flagging, becoming steadily more evident, of the submarine war, the results of which in the less favourable conditions of autumn and winter will largely decrease and convert the joyous hopes of the overthrow of England into a melancholy resignation. For the domestic condition of Germany, however, nothing is more dangerous than military depression. The third cause and the one which appears most important, is the deterioration in quality of the reverse.

NO ITALIAN LOSSES.

ROME, To-day.
 It is announced that during the week ending Sept. 9th, no Italian ship was lost as a result of submarine attacks, or by striking mines. One pocket boat was attacked by a submarine but escaped.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.
 According to the Wister Zeitung, considerable importance is attached in political circles in Germany to the conference which Emperor William was holding yesterday in Berlin. Dr. Karl Helfferich, Vice-Chancellor, interrupted his holiday to attend the conference, and various army commanders came to Berlin for that purpose.

FROST KILLS BUMPER CROPS.

BOSTON, To-day.
 Eighty per cent of the bumper crop of New England was destroyed by two nights of frost this week, and squash beans and tomatoes suffered in a proportionate degree.

WILL BE TREATED AS REBELS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
 The Provisional Government yesterday issued a decree handing over to the Courts of Justice as rebels General Korniloff, General Denikine, Markoff and M. Klialakoff.

DOMINION PROSPERITY.

OTTAWA, To-day.
 For the first five months of the fiscal year the Dominion had a total revenue of $112,000,000, an increase of $22,900,000 over the same period of last year.

KORNILOFF'S MOVEMENTS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
 Gatchia, thirty miles south-southwest of Petrograd, has been occupied by the forces of General Korniloff after it had been evacuated by Government troops. Another Korniloff force is thirty-four miles south of Petrograd in the direction of Tsarskoe Selo.

THE BUENOS AIRES RIOTS.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day.
 The rioting which began here late yesterday in an anti-German demonstration continued through the night. Every German business house and restaurant in the downtown district were wrecked. The German club and other buildings were damaged severely. The police wounded seven rioters seriously when they fired into a crowd, three of the injured are expected to die. At first the crowds were so unmanageable that the police closed all the streets leading to the Legation and Consulate. The archives in the Legation were taken to storage vaults for fear of being looted. The rioting prevented the mob from destroying the offices of the German Trans-Atlantic Company which supplies the city's light. Heavy forces of Provisional troops are guarding the railway over which German Minister Luxburg will arrive this morning. The Cabinet late last night approved the action of President Yrigoyen in presenting passports to Count Laxburg. It is said to have considered similar action in the case of Baron Lowen, Swedish Minister, but no action will be taken pending the receipt of further details from Washington and Stockholm.

MOSLEM TROOPS PARDONED.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
 A Division of General Korniloff's forces composed of Moslem troops has reached Tsarskoe Selo. Kugushoff, a loyal Mohammedan, was sent to treat with them, and they agreed to abandon resistance to the Provisional Government on condition that they be sent home to the Caucasus, where they must not be employed against Turks, their co-religionists. Premier Kerensky agreed to the proposal.

CIVILIAN EVACUATION OF BELGIUM.

HAVRE, To-day.
 The removal of the civilian population of Belgium continues, according to advices received here. The town of Roulers, immediately behind the battle line in Flanders, has been evacuated completely. Ostend is being emptied gradually and two thousand persons already have been sent from Courtrai.

Do You Weigh the Cake of Soap You Buy?

The increase in the cost of nearly everything that is used in the manufacture of soap makes it impossible to give the same size, same weight and same quality as heretofore, without increasing the price.

Of Peace.

What! Peace with those that made this war? That they might dominate the world, And all that dared dispute their sway Be unto dark oblivion hurled?

What! Peace with those that breathed upon Mankind with pestilential breath, And where tranquilly long dwelt Brought desolation, torture, death?

What! Peace with those that murdered them? Who were beloved by you and me; With those that watched our loved ones die, And glistened o'er their agony?

Pay heed to their designing words? O God! thou knowest this may not be! We must be faithful to ourselves, Our King, our dead ones and to Thee.

Who bids us clasp the War Lord's hands? (Be he of high or low degree), He shows himself the War Lord's friend, Proclaims himself our enemy!

With all our hearts we long for Peace! But Peace may be too dearly bought; Peace with a stubborn, crafty foe, Were with appalling danger fraught!

Their record stands so ghastly bold, It can be read by those most blind; Upon their Cross of Selfishness, They strive to crucify mankind!

Peace cannot come until our foe is humbled even to the dust, Until from out his hand we wrench The sword in which he puts his trust!

O Germany! thy name shall live Throughout the ages yet to be, To valiant souls a deathless shame— A synonym for infamy!

Head-on Collision with Shell.

With the British Armies in the Field, Aug. 30, via London, Sept. 3.—To have had a head-on collision with a big shell is an experience which has befallen few airmen in this war, but to have lived to tell the tale is all the more remarkable. This terrifying adventure recently befell one of the pilots of a noted British air squadron. He lost a foot and suffered many severe bruises, but hopes to get into service again at no late date.

It was a Major who told the story of the accident.

"It was during the bombardment of the German lines," he said, "that this pilot went up. He had gone well over the German guns and had been strafed by their 'archies.' During his flight back he came down to a much lower altitude, and was coming toward our lines at full speed when he met, head-on, a big shell from one of our own guns.

"It was a wonder that it did not explode immediately and 'blow him and his machine to shreds.' Instead, it cut away two cylinders of his engine, ranged downward and carried away his steering gear, and then blew up under the tail of the machine. It stunned him and badly mangled his right foot, which afterwards had to be amputated.

"As strange as the accident itself was the performance of the airplane. It came to earth with him in it, turned over as it landed, and he was lifted out of it through the hole which had been torn in it by the shell."

FROM AVE MARIA, AUGUST 1917.

Impartial non-Catholics will hardly accuse our coreligionists of being clamorous in their professional or business relations,—of patronizing Catholic lawyers, doctors, and commercial firms to the exclusion of their Protestant competitors. In fact, it is a reproach that we have sometimes heard directed against our people that they do not patronize their own far more than they are wont to do. Be this as it may, the following declaration of Archbishop Duhig, of Queensland is a fair statement of the belief and practice of the average Catholic the world over:

"My honest belief is that the man who tries to get into Parliament or to build up his business on his religion is a fraud; and the business man, be he Protestant or Catholic, who subjects his employees, or permits them to be subjected, to petty persecution on account of their religion is in the most detestable type of citizen. If I know of such a man my shadow shall never darken the door of his office or place of business.

"As for the nondescript politician who Catholicity blossoms out only when an election is within measure, the Protestant or Catholic who pleads for votes on the ground of that Catholicity, he deserves the contempt which we like to believe, he most generally receives."

Bathless Berlin.

Philadelphia Ledger: Berlin, ruthless for three years, careless for some days, is now, it appears, to be bathless. The list of things verboten and curtailed is already long. The prohibition of bathing in the home, to save water and fuel, will not entail the suffering a shortage in foodstuffs and various other commodities means. The German who practices total immersion nowadays generally does so not in a bathtub, but in a boat. The German still has much to learn in this way of personal ablution from his cleanly ally the Turk, with whom cleanliness is not merely next to godliness; but an integral part of the religious ritual. The German vapor bath has proved, however, a useful innovation, and it has been found possible to use the surplus product in State documents. Though it is a crime to bathe within doors, Germany still has the River Rhine. But the derogatory verse is recalled: "The River Rhine, as is well known, Doth wash the City of Cologne; Tell me henceforth, ye nymphs, divine, What power shall wash the River Rhine?"

Those who still persist in the use of the matutinal tub might go to Bulgaria, where the people get up at dawn to patronize the great municipal bath house in Sofia. There would be a further saving of soap and water if Berlin would forbear to wash dirty linen in public.

An Expensive Restort.

London Daily Express: In his book "Le Dernier Romanoff," M. Rivet tells a nice story of Rasputin and the Grand Duke Nicholas. The monk went to the Grand Duke and told him that the Virgin had appeared to him in a dream and had told him that Russia must at once make peace with Germany and end a wicked war. The Grand Duke inquired when the vision had appeared. "Three days ago," said Rasputin. "That's strange," replied the Grand Duke. "for two days ago the Virgin also came to me in a dream and warned me that a scoundrel called Rasputin would come to me with suggestions for a separate peace. She told me to kick the rascal out!" The sequel to the story was that within a week the Grand Duke was relieved of his command and sent to the Caucasus!

The French Man Power

Springfield Republican: Now that American troops are beginning to arrive in France finds it less needful to put stress on the limitations of its man power, and Andre Tardieu chooses rather to give assurance as to the fighting strength of the French army. It is stronger by a million men than at the battle of the Marne, and the present total of nearly 3,000,000 is the largest that France has put in the field. French losses are a jealously-guarded secret, partly for fear of the effect on the nation of publishing them, partly because from them the Germans could accurately calculate the reserves. Germany itself has chosen the alternative of systematically falsifying its losses. M. Tardieu, however, gives assurance that there are still French reserves, and that in gun power France has made a wonderful development. What war is on the western front is strikingly illustrated in his statement that there is a gun for every twenty-six feet of the offensive front.

How fortunate you are if your hair is light, for the sun is always ready to shed its beneficial rays on your head and aid in the lightening process. The commonly accepted household bleaches—ammonia, borax and soda—will lighten and brighten the hair a little but they must be used with great care for they have a very drying effect on the scalp and, after they have procured a pretty coiffure for a few days, the hair is apt to seem more lifeless and dead than before.

A harmless mixture for lightening the hair is one made of equal parts of rhubarb stalks and honey steeped in three parts of white wine. Let the mixture stand for twenty-four hours, strain and use as a lotion when the head is wet. Massage it on to the scalp and let it dry in the hair.

Many a woman dyes her hair because she believes it will make her more beautiful. And every one has noted her subtlety because her complexion does not tone into the line of the hair about her face and her eyebrows seem meant for someone else. If your hair is light naturally you want it to look as bright as possible, and if it is dark you want it to stay that way and not become streaked after the shampoo. There are certain harmless ingredients that may be added to the shampoo water and these will help to retain for a long time all the natural beauty that the hair ever possessed.

The Governor to Leave

In a letter to the Colonial Secretary of yesterday's date, which we publish, His Excellency the Governor announces his appointment to be Governor of New South Wales. The appointment dates from November next, so that the Governor will leave Newfoundland early in October. Neither the change itself of Governors nor the promotion of His Excellency, which even our none too modest self-esteem must regard as a high one, comes altogether as a surprise. The extraordinary times have not occasioned a departure from usage, and the Governor leaves Newfoundland at the end of the customary four-year period; while the greater honour that is attached to the greatly increased responsibilities which he goes to assume in the sister Colony will be felt by all to have been well earned. Though he came to us in a time of profound peace, when no perceived the gathering clouds, Sir Walter Davidson will always be known to our future history as our war Governor. As such we shall regard him and as such we trust he will always remember us: whatever increment of honour and dignity other duties and other years may bring to him—and we trust it will be great—he will, we like to think, remember that it was in Newfoundland that the heavy burden fell upon him of guiding and controlling the part of one of His Majesty's dominions in the new and strange situation, and through the later and more terrible stages, of the greatest of all wars; mention of the war in after days of peace will recall to his mind the little colony, which strove, not without heroism and sacrifice, to fulfill its share of the common splendid task.

What part he has played himself in that service we need not tell. When the bolt fell and all men's lives were changed, he was among the few that saw further into the future than a few short weeks and months. He threw himself into the new duties that were demanded with an earnestness born of the not general knowledge that they would be demanded long. Newfoundland was not equipped for war and warlike service. Our effort has been completely and from the beginning a voluntary one, and these outside of us have observed and have given us generous credit for the fact. The various parts of it—and they have been many—have been created, organized and directed by one body, representative of our civilian character and as such unique. The Governor identified himself at once with the national effort by accepting the position of Chairman of the Patriotic Association. It is a position which has entailed responsibilities which he has borne with judgment and success, duties which he has discharged indefatigably. While occupied with a hundred cares, his first concern and pride has been plainly in the welfare and deeds of our splendid sailors and soldiers. He is Colonel of our Regiment, and we do not think he will hold the title the least of those he bears. If, when he goes to the old country and to his new post, he is asked of the part Newfoundland has played, he will find it embarrassing to answer if he is not to tell at the same time the part that he has played himself. But it is not the men alone of Newfoundland that have served her cause and brought her honour: nowhere else in the Empire have British women laboured more incessantly and more usefully than our own, among whom Lady Davidson has been a leader and an example. Government House has been both the fountain-head and channel of most of the splendid services our women have rendered to Britain and her Allies and to their own sons fighting on land and sea, the headquarters of the Women's Patriotic Association, a workshop, a meeting place, the heart-centre of an admirable system extending into every corner of the Island. In Lady Davidson's departure the Association and its many branches will lose not only their chief officer but an inspiration, encouragement and direction which it will be impossible soon to replace. The announcement is not accompanied by the usual designation of the Governor's successor, concerning whom speculation will be busy. In the meantime, until it is known whom we must welcome, the common feeling will be one of undivided regret that their Excellencies must leave us, the common wish that the same success, the same esteem and popularity will be theirs in their new far-distant home that they have enjoyed in Newfoundland.

The Governor for New South Wales.

Government House,
St. John's, Nfld.,
Sept. 12, 1917.
The Honourable
The Colonial Secretary,
I have the honour to state for the information of Ministers that I have received an intimation from the Secretary of State to the effect that His Majesty has been pleased to appoint me to be Governor of the State of New South Wales.
Immediately on receipt of the telegram last night, I communicated the information to the Acting Prime Minister by personal letter.
In view of the fact that this day is a public holiday I understand that the newspapers are not issued, but I request that you will be so good as to convey the announcement to the press for publication to-morrow.
The office of Governor of the State of New South Wales becomes vacant in November. The Secretary of State has instructed me to visit the United Kingdom before proceeding to Australia. I would therefore ask the concurrence of Ministers for my departure from Newfoundland early in October (on a date to be hereafter arranged).
The dominant Commission for the administration of the Colony during the absence of the Governor lies with the Honourable the Chief Justice, and I suggest for the concurrence of Ministers that I be authorized on behalf of the Government to notify the Chief Justice that he will be called upon to administer the Government from a date early in October.
I have not received any intimation from the Secretary of State whether the King has yet designated my successor as Governor of the Colony of Newfoundland.
I desire to take advantage of this opportunity to express to Ministers my deep personal regret at being called upon to lay down the Governorship of Newfoundland, and to sever those connections with Ministers and the people of Newfoundland which have been of the most cordial nature. It has been a matter of gratification to me that in every issue of public importance my personal views have been identical with the policy of my Ministers. We have passed through periods of great public importance and of deep personal anxiety, and I believe that the issues which the Government has been called upon to solve have been settled with wisdom and discretion and to the honour of Newfoundland.

W. E. DAVIDSON,
Governor.

Lumber Thieves Caught Red-Handed

On several occasions recently the contractors building the new church for St. Joseph's Parish, Holytown, had been missing lumber from the property. They had a strong suspicion that the theft was going on at night time and that the perpetrators lived in the immediate neighborhood. Constable O'Flaherty, who was sent to watch the place, caught the thieves, two young men named Drover, one red-handed last midnight. One brother acted the spy while the other stole the lumber. O'Flaherty saw the thief getting away with one cargo and shadowed him to the place where he discharged it. On making his second trip the marauder was pounced on by the officer, who was also brought to task by the other Drover brother and threatened if he did not let go the prisoner. O'Flaherty O'Flaherty acted discreetly and released the prisoner, meanwhile watching the house they went into. The officer then went and got assistance and arrested both Drovers, who appeared before Judge Morris to-day. When charged with the offence they said what they took was only a few pieces of clapboard, but a fine of $5 or two weeks in jail was imposed as a reminder that the lumber was church property.

Here and There.

BOWRING'S SHIPS.—The Portia left St. Lawrence at 7.20 p.m. yesterday, due here to-morrow. The Prospero left LaSalle at 5 a.m. to-day, due Saturday.
EDITOR SUMMONED.—An Editor of a city newspaper was summoned to court to-day, charged with two violations of the Motor Car Act. Both cases were postponed.
BONAVIDA RAILWAY RE-OPENED.—Repairs to the burnt trestle on the Bonavista Railway and the clearing away of the wreckage have been completed. Yesterday the regular train passed over the road and everything is again running as usual.

ORPHANS WILL ATTEND.—The management of the Wonderland shows has invited the children of the City Orphanages to the performances one day next week, and would be glad if citizens who can would send autos to convey the children along.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. Ernest F. Ewing left by to-day's express on a visit to her mother at Rose Blanche, where she will remain during the absence of her husband from the city, who leaves by the next Thetis for Carriwright, Labrador, where he will be busy during the winter months looking after the interests of the Hudson Bay Company.

WOMEN HAVE BATTLE ROYAL.—For pulling the hair of her neighbor and otherwise causing a lively scene at the North Battery a few days ago, a married woman was before court to-day and fined $5 or 14 days; she was bound over to keep the peace in her own recognizance of $100. A woman of an uptown locality was also summoned to court to-day for using "flowery" language towards two other females. The defendant failed to put in an appearance and a warrant was ordered to be issued for her arrest.

HOSPITAL OVERCROWDED.—In the interests of our outport people who require medical or surgical treatment at the General Hospital, St. John's, we regret to inform them that there is not a single cot in that institution vacant at present. Mr. Eli Whiteaway informs us that he has a large number of patients waiting their turn, many of whom come from the outports, and in the meantime have to put up at boarding houses. The hospital doctors and nurses are never idle and do their work in a very satisfactory manner.

The Belgian relief ship Eburon, which went ashore at Portugal Cove near Cape Race is high and dry on the rocks now. Parties, who have been at the scene of the wreck and that returned, inform us that the ship will, in all probability, become a total wreck. Her cargo of sugar, canned meats, etc., is now being salvaged as expeditiously as possible, as with the first heavy sea, her condition is such that she is likely to go to pieces. The wrecking tug Amphitrite is now due here from the wreck with a load of salvaged goods.

When One is Half Sick.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON.

Unless one is a perfect fool (one kind of perfection few of us claim to be) there are some subjects on which one changes one's mind as one grows older. One on which I have changed mine is the point at which youth merges into middle age. I used to place that at thirty-five. Another is whether children should be spanked or not. 'Till I guess which side of that fence I am now on.

And third is the proper way to treat oneself when one is in that unpleasant condition known as "half sick." I dropped in on a neighbour of mine one day last week and found her looking miserably.

She stuck to her Preserving. "Yes," she said, "I've been feeling mean for a week but I simply won't give into it. I've got some preserving that I want to get done and every day I make myself do a little. But, oh it drags so. Even that little tres more than a good day's work would if I were feeling properly. I know lots of people would simply give in and go to bed but I'm not that kind."

"Perhaps if you did give in for a day or two you'd be better!" I suggested.

She shook her head stubbornly. "I'm not that kind," she repeated. "I stick it out as long as I can stand."

And I didn't try to argue with her. For didn't I know just how obstinate I used to be on that very point?

I, too, forced myself to do each day the little that in the dejected state of my energies was more tiring than a good day's work when I was fit. I was proud of bullying myself. I, too, was unable to throw off my indisposition quickly because I never gave myself a complete rest. I, too, was proud of it. I, too, thought people who didn't force themselves to keep on working were "sloppy."

And, I, too, was wrong. It may be plucky to force yourself to work when you are in no condition to work, but it certainly isn't efficient or wise. You won't accomplish much and you won't give yourself a fair chance to get better.

As if You Had Weights On Your Arms. "I feel as if I had weights tied to my arms," my neighbour said, "every movement is an effort."

We all know how that feels. Now carry that simile out. Suppose a day's rest would remove those weights and the lack of it would keep them there for a week. Would you accomplish more by trying to work the whole week so handicapped, or by giving up one day (or two) and finding yourself free the next?

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs,—I had a Bleeding Tumor on my face for a long time and tried a number of remedies without any good results. I was advised to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, and after using several bottles it made a complete cure, and it healed all up and disappeared altogether.

DAVID HENDERSON, Belleisle Station, Kings Co., N.B., Sept. 17, 1904.

Rust red is one of the new autumn colors which will be used in millinery. Absolutely straight, without a sign of a waistline, is the proper silhouette.

While I was wading, there swam into sight a line of queer ships wading up to their anchorage in the middle of the Gulf of Trieste. They steered like a haystack on a barge, and steamed like a traction engine. They just ambled up to the point which was aimed at, found it clumsily and opened fire on the reverse of the Hermada. They were Italian monitors, which are, reaching from the sea to aid the ponderous forces which ashore are smashing against the granite front of the Hermada.

Warships Help Army. That is the measure of this great battle. It stretches from the sea, where warships supplement the army, across flats, where the shy Timavo ventures like an Austrian trench garrison into the daylight. It steps up to the heights and valleys of desolate stone known as the Carso, sinks thence into that little wet hell of tangled trenches on the southern end of the Gorizia plain, swerves east to the conquered city of Gorizia to the tragic and blood-soaked heights of the hills of San Marco, sinks again across Sal Canò, Gorizia's northern fashionable suburb, then lifts to the murderous heights of Monte Satto, whose ruined monastery is sprawling in stone heaps. Then north, it wanders intricately across a thousand crests and valleys, like a highland mist.

There is never a moment when one could draw the front upon the map accurately, because even while the pencil moved the line of Italian victory goes creeping on, but in each hour it gains ground. I suppose the Austrians have feelings like the rest of God's creatures, and there are moments when I am sorry for these slaves and dupes of Germany.

Greatest of Battles. This is the greatest of Italian battles that the great war genius, Cadorna, held in his hand till armed as never armed before. His artillery compares with the masses of guns on the Somme, where fresh from Russia, I saw howitzers and field guns standing wheel to wheel over miles of country and heard for the first time in my life 10,000 shells fired in a single hour. The British batteries here alone fired 15,000 shells in the first twenty-four hours.

A Nest of Death. Yesterday I saw the Carso boiling like a cauldron. Every dreary distance of that stony desert was obscured by the drift of gun smoke and the sudden jump of shell fountains reddened with the blood-colored earth.

Greatest Italian Battle Tells Against Austrians

Monitors Assist Cadorna—Carso Front is Like a Boiling Cauldron—Over Thirteen Thousand Prisoners Taken—Fifteen Thousand Shells an Hour Fired From the Batteries.

(By PERCIVAL GIBBON.)

With the Italian Army on the Carso, Aug. 22—Puntas Dobba does not appear on ordinary maps. It is where the languid Ionzo leaks into the Adriatic through a maze of mud islands and a lagoon. The former are now masked with a six-foot-high growth of reeds. Yesterday, awaiting events, I tried to bathe there and waded a mile before the water was up to my waist.

While I was wading, there swam into sight a line of queer ships wading up to their anchorage in the middle of the Gulf of Trieste. They steered like a haystack on a barge, and steamed like a traction engine. They just ambled up to the point which was aimed at, found it clumsily and opened fire on the reverse of the Hermada. They were Italian monitors, which are, reaching from the sea to aid the ponderous forces which ashore are smashing against the granite front of the Hermada.

A Nest of Death. Yesterday I saw the Carso boiling like a cauldron. Every dreary distance of that stony desert was obscured by the drift of gun smoke and the sudden jump of shell fountains reddened with the blood-colored earth.

There is no knowing at the moment exactly where we stand. The Austrians are in strength and the Italian victory is hard won against choice troops. Italian grenadiers have been into and out of various positions at least twice, and their success in this assault against a filthy Carso village, organized into a triple line of super-defences, is not yet officially announced. The Selo defences at the Southern side of the Carso, a stone-heap, changing contour daily under unceasing fire, are in Italian hands, and they are blowing out a sort of bladder of positions between the remains of Selo and the shell-devastated hole in the ground which was formerly the pauper hamlet of Coffe.

I spoke yesterday of the spirit and morale of the Italian troops. To-day I can confirm my original impression of their plan. Prisoners with whom I have spoken repeat parrot-like their yearning for peace. A Romanian Sergeant, speaking perfect German, said to me: "It is time we had less of the Kaiser and more of God."

of this wilderness. In that mist of death and terror the sturdy, silent infantry of Italy was working, at its heroic trade. It served to convey in the restricted medium of telegram that stubborn motive, that outward joylessness, that grey, dusty effect which these line battalions make on the British observer. They do not sing, they do not swagger, but go soberly into action with a kind of devout righteousness which one attributes to Cromwell's "Ironclads," and they bring back victory.

I cannot yet precisely indicate their gains, but these would be worth anything only on a map. Yesterday's figure of prisoners was swelled to over 13,000. The Italians enumerate only those captives who are actually in cages, so each day's total excludes the melancholy convoys still trudging along the roads. I asked a certain General this morning how many machine guns he had taken. "Goodness knows," he replied. "I am sending lorries to fetch them in."

I walked to-day over a hill upon the Carso where it had been hitherto impossible to show oneself in daylight. I looked down into the great Brizovizza valley, which was captured in the offensive last May.

There is no knowing at the moment exactly where we stand. The Austrians are in strength and the Italian victory is hard won against choice troops. Italian grenadiers have been into and out of various positions at least twice, and their success in this assault against a filthy Carso village, organized into a triple line of super-defences, is not yet officially announced. ## War Messages Received Previous

THE KORNILOFF PETROGRAD Information concerning Korniloff's revolt was received until today. The Palace no special precautions were taken. Moscow was in a state of alarm until yesterday. The heads of the Committee there were aware of the General Verkhovsky, Petrograd Government's cautious against any movements. Verkhovsky was summoned by telegram to join in the emergency refusal he made with arrest. His reply was his immediate resignation. The railway strike and that cut off the army from the rest of the troops, especially the troops concentrated on the front in order to further his pro-Korniloff troops in Petrograd to have had no knowledge of his plot. Up to day night the rank and file knew nothing of the Premier Kerensky is taking action to prevent the Committee of the All-Russian Deputies has declared a strike. Socialists ask him to Constitutional Democrats a firm with his own committee leader of the Labor Party democracy to rally round the denouncing, Doretsky, inclusion of reactionaries. THE KORNILOFF REVOLT.
 PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.
 Information concerning General Korniloff's revolt was kept from the people until to-day. During the sessions of the Cabinet in the Winter Palace no special precautions were taken. Moscow was also kept in ignorance until yesterday, though the heads of the Council of Deputies there were aware of it on Saturday. General Verkhovsky, loyal to the Petrograd Government took special precautions against counter-revolutionary movements. Verkhovsky was recently summoned by Korniloff and urged to join in the revolt. On his emphatic refusal he was threatened with arrest. His reply was that unless his immediate release was permitted all railway officials would strike and thus cut off Korniloff's army from the rest of Russia. He was then released. The Korniloff revolt appears to date several weeks back, the troops, especially the cavalry, being concentrated on strategic points in order to further his aims. Some pro-Korniloff troops in Petrograd are reported to have had no prior knowledge of his plot. Up to late on Sunday night the rank and file of the army knew nothing of the conspiracy. Premier Kerensky is taking vigorous action to prevent the spread of disaffection. The Central Executive Committee of the All Russia Council of Deputies has declared for Kerensky. Socialists ask him to discard the Constitutional Democrats and replace them with his own nominees. The leader of the Labor Party urges all democracy to rally round the Premier, denouncing Directorate rule. Exclusion of reactionaries from the Democratic Assembly is demanded. The following statement has been made by Premier Kerensky to the Associated Press for transmission to have sent delegates to Petrograd with the request that they be furnished with orders to arrest these commanders who have betrayed the Provisional Government. The Government has taken measures to put Petrograd in a state of defence against attacks, and hope is entertained that all bloodshed and civil war will be avoided. Evidence of the loyalty of troops and people of the Provisional Government is being received from all the provinces, while all the public organizations have announced their determination to support the revolutionary government by every possible means. It is essential to the safety of the Fatherland that complete unity of action be preserved. The Government enjoins complete calm and urges submission to the Government and its representatives. (Signed) Kerensky."

COSSACKS LOYAL.
 PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.
 Cossack troops who formed part of the army sent by General Korniloff against Petrograd, have sent delegations to the Provisional Government expressing loyalty to the revolution, declaring they would arrest their officers who had deceived them.

FRENCH SUCCESS.
 PARIS, Sept. 12.
 French troops last night attacked German trenches in the region of St. Souplet in the Champagne and succeeded in smashing the first two German lines, and entering the third position. All the German troops, garrisoning these trenches, were either killed or taken prisoners.

HANDS PASSPORTS.
 BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 12.
 The Argentine Government to-day sent to the German Legation, passport to be delivered to Count Luxemburg, German Charge d'Affaires in Buenos Aires. The whereabouts of Luxemburg is unknown to the Argentine Government.

FRENCH SINKINGS.
 PARIS, Sept. 12.
 Sinkings, according to the statement of the Ministry of Marine, issued this evening, shows that for the week ending Sept. 9th, one French vessel of more than 1,600 tons and five under 1,600 tons were sunk by mines or submarines.

THE WEEK'S SINKINGS.
 LONDON, Sept. 12.
 A very marked decrease in the destruction of British merchant ships by mine or submarine is indicated in the weekly Admiralty statement issued this evening. Twelve vessels of more than 1,600 tons, and six less than 1,600 tons were sent to bottom, compared with 20 in the large and 3 in the small category sunk in the previous week. To-night's statement shows that four fishing ships also were lost.

WILL SEE WAR THROUGH.
 LONDON, Sept. 12.
 In the course of his address to-day before the Empire Parliamentary Association, Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said: "Perhaps I may be excused from speaking of the Russian situation, except to say how much we sympathize with Russia in her time of anguish, and that we hope she yet may be able to render us assistance in the great cause. The American people, like us, are people of hard, practical sense, and realize that the war has become largely a question of nerves, endurance and staying powers. Thank God, we of England and America have those qualities, and shall see this thing through to victory. We have two special reasons," the Chancellor said, "for satisfaction at the coming in of the United States: First, it is the best possible proof that our cause is just and righteous; and second, we know we now have on our side resources which are more than sufficient to achieve victory. The States possesses the greatest wealth and resources of any nation in the world; moreover as a nation they have shown inventive genius and adaptability which they might apply successfully to the prosecution of the war."

NEWFOUNDLAND-CANADIAN FOOD CONTROL.
 OTTAWA, Sept. 12.
 There is to be close co-operation between Newfoundland and Canadian food administration. Newfoundland's representative on the Board of Food Control, at present in Ottawa, has had a number of conferences with representatives of the Canadian food administration. He declares that Newfoundland's food control policy will be so devised as to harmonize with the policy adopted by the Canadian Food Controller.

BRITAIN SURPRISED.

QUEEN OF BULGARIA DEAD.

MOSCOW IN STATE OF WAR.
 PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.
 The Provisional Government to-day declared that a state of war exists in Moscow.

THE TONNAGE PROBLEM.
 LONDON, Sept. 7.
 (Delayed by Censor.)—A Government official informed the Associated Press to-day that as Britain's great effort of the first year of the war was to create a huge army and for the second and third year to create an inexhaustible supply of munitions, so that of the fourth year must be not only in Britain but also in America, to create a merchant navy to replace submarine losses and supply the constantly increasing demands. There is no disguising the fact that the shipping situation is serious. Do not misunderstand me. The shipping situation has not grown serious through any increased success of German submarine warfare. As a matter of fact that is being held down very well and the average sinkings show no increase, either in number of ships or tonnage. Sinkings in the Atlantic main route are now very low, and the greater proportion of sinkings occur at out of the way spots, indicating either that the submarines have been forced afield or that a larger number of them are operating. But the total available tonnage is shrinking slightly, while on the other hand demands for tonnage are increased tremendously. Where three ships were needed a year ago four are needed now. France is very short of coal, one of the vital necessities for winter. Italy is short of coal and the shortage is so serious that it is causing the Italian Government the utmost concern. For all these shortages there is only one remedy, namely tonnage. But a still more important demand for tonnage comes from America whence the Entente's great reserve of men must come this winter. The necessity of tonnage to transport the American army and keep them supplied is perhaps the most important feature of the shipping situation. So the Entente statesmen have arrived at the conclusion that the war may depend on the new effort which will be demanded of England and America this winter: an effort to push quickly to completion, more quickly than ever attempted before, fleet upon fleet of ships to carry the sinews of war to the fighting nations.

LA FOLLETTE ENTRAPPED.
 NEW YORK, Sept. 12.
 Special despatches from Philadelphia to a number of New York morning papers say that evidence seized by the Government agents in their raid on Monday on the Philadelphia Tageblatt, a German language paper, shows that this paper was part of a national conspiracy against the United States. In his despatch to his paper, the Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Sun, says that in the correspondence of the paper, letters were found from several prominent Americans including Senator La Follette, certain Congressmen and others, who may be seriously embarrassed by the Tageblatt raid. The records seized show that the paper was in constant communication with Germans throughout the country.

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)

The loss of the fish carrier S. S. Haakon VII. by a Hun torpedo is another serious blow to the Trade, and places the Tonnage Committee in exactly the same position they were a fortnight ago. It serves also to illustrate the truth of the old saying that it is never wise to halloo until you are out of the wood. Almost before arrangements for the chartering of this ship were finalized, the subsidized puppets of the Government began dealing out congratulations to one another in much the same manner as they hand out Government positions, forgetting that the ship had not then left the danger zone. Here is a specimen: "We congratulate the National Government, the Trade, the fishermen, and especially the gentlemen on the Tonnage Committee upon such splendid results and arrangements." One feels like asking, are these men capable of realizing the responsibilities of the positions which they have assumed? Common, everyday prudence at least should have kept them from trying to make political capital out of the fact that they had chartered the ship before she had arrived. Anyway her loss is a calamity to the whole country. The time is rapidly approaching when the fishermen will be coming here in their thousands to dispose of their record catch of fish. It is to be sincerely hoped that the National Government and the Tonnage Committee will be able to grapple with the situation in such a manner as will prevent any serious loss and heartaches to the fishermen, and win the approval and congratulations of the country for themselves.

Hundreds of people all over the country want to know why the position of Inspector General of Police was not given to one of our returned heroes. A friend of mine from the Southwest Coast pertinently asks what claims to merit did the successful candidate have to justify his appointment over such men as Carty, March, Goodridge and others. It all goes to show what little real sympathy the present Government has for the returned soldier, and emphasizes the necessity of a returned soldier's Union, or encampment, in order to secure for themselves fair and just treatment after the war is over. It is interesting to read in the Daily News the debates of the House of Assembly before the coalition. How eloquent, for instance, did Mr. Coaker get in opposition when he asked for proper treatment for disabled soldiers? How has he carried out his views since he got the Government? The answer is, he turned down Carty and March and appointed Hutchings to the Inspector General of Police.

THE FAULT HUNTER.

The most unfortunate of men is he who hunts for something wrong, who strains his ear, again, again, to hear the false note in a song. 'Tis he who marks with gloomy eye the bridal couple as they pass, and will soon pass by, and they'll grow old; all flesh is grass. 'Tis he who stops the flow of mirth by preaching trouble and despair, who says that everything on earth is but a pitfall and a snare. He sees the ring around the moon, when other men behold the moon, and says a storm will come full soon, with hail and sleet and bitter cold. He sees the sundogs standing guard when other men behold the sun, and says we'll all be frozen hard before the current week is done. Oh, gloom and trouble are his pets, with them he eats and drinks and sleeps; he's only happy when he frets, he's only joyous when he weeps. It would be no concern of mine, if he would nurse his grouch alone; but publicly he weeps his brine, and heaves his deep, heart rending groan. And in these crucial times we need no added weight to loads of care, no sighs that make our bosoms bleed, no threats or omens of despair.

Irish Night.

Celebrated at B. I. S. Club Rooms.

On Tuesday night the members of the B. I. S. and lady friends held an enjoyable "At Home," marking the unique occasion of the presentation of two championship cups, won by the Society's Football and Baseball teams this season. There was a large gathering present, including representatives of the other athletic clubs. The office of Chairman was tactfully filled by Mr. J. L. Slattery, Vice-President of the Society, who opened the programme of the evening with a well merited tribute to the teams on their remarkable success and trusted that it would happen again. Mr. W. J. Higgins, Vice-President of the Football and Baseball Leagues, and in the absence of Messrs. Chaplin and Hawvermale, respectively, presented the cups to Captain F. Brian and Manager, B. T. McGrath, whose work he praised highly and in fact the prowess of the individual members of both teams. Fitting replies were made by the recipients, who then formally handed over the trophies to the Society, they being received by President J. D. Ryan. Another happy and surprising presentation then took place when Mr. A. Brazie was presented with a loving cup by Manager McGrath in appreciation of his services to the baseball team. Mr. Brazie replied in suitable terms.

The various speeches were interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections contributed by Messrs. M. Ryan and R. Brophy; Messrs. A. Devereaux, F. Bradshaw, J. MacDonnell and J. L. Slattery, Mrs. Cleary and J. Slattery, Jr., acting as accompanists. All the musical items were well received, but thunderously applauded and doubly endorsed was the original and localized chorus, entitled: "They're all good old baseball names," the composition of Messrs. J. L. Slattery and P. J. Grace. Refreshments were served by the ladies before dancing was taken up at 11 p.m. and continued up to 2 a.m. Miss T. Power furnished the music in excellent style.

Put the Railway in Order.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—Is the Acting Prime Minister aware that the trains are running off the track every now and then. If he is, he should get after the Government Engineer and insist upon him attending to his duty. The Public do not want Mr. Hall to be spending his time on the High Cost of Living Committee. They want him to get after the Railway Contractors and make them put the road in order so as the Public can feel safe from being bowled off the track any old time that they go over it. This man is paid as Government Engineer to protect the lives of the Public. He is not intended to enquire into the high price of food. It is not his business, he therefore, knows simply nothing about it. Why is the Advocate so quiet now, we see no flaring headlines now demanding that the railway line be put in order. Where is the great Coaker now? No shouting for his mouth is being used with the day was spent outdoors by practically the entire population. At noon the town was deserted, people having gone countrywards in the morning berry picking and on other forms of holidaying. Thousands of people took advantage of the excursion train to the Southern Shore and points as far as Kelligrews; there was a goodly sprinkling of people at Bowring Park, Smithville and other popular suburban resorts; the baseball games at St. George's Field between the City and Bell Islanders were attended by crowded gatherings of spectators, whilst not a few drove to Pouch Cove and helped to make Fr. O'Callaghan's garden party the success it was.

How the Holiday was Spent

Yesterday was the last public holiday for the season and the weather being fine the day was spent outdoors by practically the entire population. At noon the town was deserted, people having gone countrywards in the morning berry picking and on other forms of holidaying. Thousands of people took advantage of the excursion train to the Southern Shore and points as far as Kelligrews; there was a goodly sprinkling of people at Bowring Park, Smithville and other popular suburban resorts; the baseball games at St. George's Field between the City and Bell Islanders were attended by crowded gatherings of spectators, whilst not a few drove to Pouch Cove and helped to make Fr. O'Callaghan's garden party the success it was.

With the holiday season over the business community will at last settle down for the beginning of the Fall trade, which is expected to be

The City team left by to-day's express for Grand Falls to play for the championship of Newfoundland and the R. G. Reid Inter-Town trophy. Through the kindness and courtesy of the Reid Mfg. They will be under the management of Major Montgomerie, while accompanying them will be Vice-President Hawvermale representing the League. Mr. F. V. Chesman is with the party to umpire the games. The first game will be played tomorrow afternoon and the finals on Saturday, which is the Annual Sports Day there. Following are the players:—
