CHAPTER XVII
 A FAVOR FROM A CLIENT.

"On the contrary, you will be doing me a very great kindness indeed," he laughed. "What gave you that idea?"

"Well," she said, as they turned eastward, "I'm afraid I shall be interrupting some very deep train of thought. When you spoke to me you looked almost like a man who had awakened from a dream."

"You're perfectly right, I was in a sort of trance. A gentleman from London—a detective, in fact—brought me what I might call the basis of a very mysterious story, and I came out to try and find some solution to the mystery."

"Oh, in that case I couldn't think of intruding on your thoughts," she said, looking out to the sea, so that he should not notice the strained expression which had suddenly come over her face.

"Quite on the contrary," he replied. "In fact, I believe if you were to allow me to take advantage of the confidence between lawyer and client, which I spoke of just now, and tell you the story, or, rather, the few bare facts, it might help me, and perhaps you might help me, too. Women often see things, you know, that men, however well trained they are, somehow manage to miss."

"Very well, then," she said quietly, but with a strange feeling of apprehension at her heart. "Tell me, and I promise—"

"Oh, there's no need for that," he interrupted. "I know you won't violate confidence. Now, the story, what there is of it at present, is just this—"

And he went on and told her what he had heard from Mr. Burnett, and wound up with such conclusions as he had already formed himself. When he had finished, he almost stunned her by saying:

"I have told you this, because I thought it right for you to know that one of the bills, the one for five hundred, was accepted, or supposed to be accepted, by the man whose heiress I hope to make you."

If the words had been by any other man they would hardly have affected her, but, coming from Kenneth Markham, they seemed to strike a deadly chill to her heart. She could almost have screamed in sheer pain, but she managed to say, with a little quaver in her voice, which she might well put down to natural emotion:

"Not Sir Arthur, surely?"

"Yes," he replied. "It was dated about three months ago, which must have been very soon after he came back to England. The bill itself was written out in a quaint ordinary clerical hand, and the acceptance—if you happen to know what that is, just the word accepted—and the signature were a most excellent imitation of Sir Arthur's somewhat shaky hand."

"But why do you say imitation?" she asked, after a few moments. "Are you sure it is?"

"Oh, perfectly," he replied, with a modest, self-confidence that could not fail to impress his companion. "You see, in the ordinary course of business, the bill would have gone through a bank like a check, or it would have been discounted by some one who would have presented it for payment when it became due, and then it would have gone back to Sir Arthur, just as the check would. It certainly would not have got into the hands of a common burglar, simply because, as far as value goes, it wouldn't have been worth stealing, unless, of course, it was stolen after it reached Sir Arthur, by some one who wanted to correct the forgery."

"What would be the penalty for doing a thing like that?" she asked, looking up at him with anxiously questioning eyes.

"If the forger had been convicted before, or if it were proved that the same person forged all these four things he or she would get certainly five, and most probably seven years."

"Seven years' penal servitude!" she echoed, in her soul. "Well, Mr. Ashley, I don't think I shall have to suffer your miserable persecutions much longer."

"But why," she said aloud, "if any one forged that other paper, what sort of a policy was it?"

"A policy of underwriting," he replied. "A person who underwrites shares, as they call it, makes himself responsible for the full face value of them in case they are not regularly liquidated. Just before the smash, a very large number of shares were issued at what we now see were absurd prices; and if that policy had been registered, my father could have been compelled to redeem the whole lot; and this was evidently intended to be sprung upon him after the announcement of the failure. Unless he had repudiated his signature, as everybody under the circumstances would have believed it to be, his whole private fortune would have been got hold of by the directors and the manipulators of the new companies, whereas the shareholders in the old company had no claim whatever on him. But when he died, and I proved the will, his fortune belonged to me and to my mother and sister, and they couldn't make us take up the worthless shares."

"And you," she said, in a voice that had a note of pathos in it, "you gave it all up to save the poor shareholders. I don't think anything so noble was ever done before. You don't know, Mr. Markham, how proud I am to think that you are going to plead my case for me, and save my honor, as you saved your father's."

Kenneth Markham was a man who hated flattery, but there was no flattery in these sweet and gracious words, or in the exquisite voice which spoke them. He had never heard such words spoken from a woman's lips before. He looked down at her, and in the bright moonlight caught a glimpse of the lips which had uttered them, trembling with emotion. He turned his head away, and said, in a voice which he did his best to keep steady:

"I did nothing more than common justice, Mrs. Ashley. If I hadn't done it, my mother and Kate would have begged themselves in a hopeless attempt to do it, and they would never have spoken to me again. And, you know, there is something in this world a little better than money."

She looked up at him again, feeling for the moment as though she could have thrown herself at his feet, have confessed everything, even the fast-growing love for him which was at once her blessing and her most grievous curse, and then have left him, to go and seek peace in that seductively smiling silver sea.

"I have only too good reason to know that, Mr. Markham," she said very softly, after they had walked on in silence for a few moments. "I know what you mean—truth, honor, justice, and—love, too, from a woman's point of view."

Her tone said more than her words, and he understood them, with his usual quickness of perception.

"There could only be one of those in which you could be lacking, Mrs. Ashley, and yet, pardon me if I say that that seems quite incredible."

"And yet it is true," she said. "When I was quite a girl, almost a child, in fact, and before I really knew what a terrible thing I was doing, I was, as I told you, half forced, half persuaded, into a marriage with a man who was supposed to be wealthy, and who—well, to put it quite frankly, wanted to buy me. I needn't tell you what an awful awakening I had. I was not a wife, I was a slave, until that pistol shot released me."

Before she had done speaking, Kenneth had learned why his almost life-long love for Mercia Reynolds had so suddenly changed to a mere brotherly friendship, and why, in the most matter-of-fact way, he had been able to recommend her marriage to Nevil Jarvis, the man who had been his rival for years. He did not know whether this passion, which was surging up in his heart and setting fire to his cool, legal brain, was real love or not. He only knew that it was intoxicating, overwhelming, irresistible; and when he spoke again, after a little silence, there was a tremor in his voice which was music in her ears.

"Mrs. Ashley, I am going to ask you a curious, but, for all that, a very great favor."

"And what is that?" she said, looking up with a smile on her lips and a mist of real tears in her eyes.

"It is this," he said, trying hard to steady his voice: "Suppose that we lose the case—which I still fervently hope we shall not do—will you give me permission to try to fill in that blank in your life?"

Again they walked on a little in silence, and then she said, so softly that he could only just hear her words:

"But why if we lose?"

His heart gave a great jump, but he answered almost coldly:

"In that event, it would be obviously out of the question."

Another little silence, and then she stopped and laughed a soft, little laugh with a wonderful joy in it.

"Well, Mr. Markham, win my case for me, and we'll see. And now I think we had better go home."

CHAPTER XIX.
 A LITTLE SURPRISE.

The remainder of the stay at Eastbourne passed delightfully for two, at least, of what Mrs. Markham called her party.

HOW WEAK WOMEN ARE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Westmoreland Tells in the Following Letter.

Harrison, N. Y.—"When my first child was born I did not know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a very hard time. I read in the newspaper about the Vegetable Compound and when my second child came I took it and was well during the whole time, and childbirth was a hundred times easier. Ever since then I have used it for any weakness and would not be without it for the world. I do all my work and am strong and healthy. I am nursing my baby, and I still take the Vegetable Compound and keeps a woman in good health. You may publish my testimonials for the good of other women, if you choose to do so."—Mrs. C. WESTMORELAND, Harrison, N. Y.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, alocation, headache, headaches and nervousness should lose no time in giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

When you get Indigestion

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapepsin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach. "Pape's Diapepsin" by neutralizing the acidity of the stomach, instantly relieves the food souring and fermentation which causes the misery-making gases, heartburn, flatulence, fullness, or pain in stomach and intestines.

"Pape's Diapepsin" helps regulate disordered stomachs so favorite foods can be eaten without causing distress. Costs so little at drug stores.

As the sunny days and the moonlit nights slipped away, Kenneth became more and more hopelessly intoxicated with not only the loveliness but the infinite charms and talents which Lillias rapidly developed. One night he persuaded his mother to give a little dinner, and to invite Lillias and her aunt.

Of course, Mrs. Markham could only say "Yes, if you wish, Kenneth," but she did it against her own inclinations. It was quite apparent to everybody by this time that Kenneth had no eyes for any other woman save this brilliant widow for whom he was going to use his skill and learning to win a splendid fortune.

Mrs. Markham could not, of course, entertain for a moment the idea that the prospect of the fortune had any influence upon her son, for he had already proved that he was totally incapable of any such feminine eyes, that Mrs. Ashley was just as much fascinated by her advocate as he was by his beautiful client.

Nevertheless, although she was the gentlest and most charitable of women, she found herself compelled to share the instinctive dislike or mistrust with which Lillias had inspired Kate. She could not explain it to herself. It is usually impossible to account for such feelings, but they were none the less real.

And then there was Mercia. As her daughter had done, she had always expected Kenneth and Mercia to marry. She was the one girl of the hundreds she had known that she had ever thought worthy to be welcomed as a second daughter; and she knew, too, that until this fatal meeting at Eastbourne there had not been the slightest reason to believe that her hopes would not be gratified. But now everything had been changed by the advent of this brilliant being from the unknown.

As for Mercia herself, she kept the bitterness in her soul and the sorrow in her heart. She recognized that the one love and the greatest hope of her life were now only dreams, and that she could do nothing more than dream them over and over again, through the long, loveless years to come.

Having come to that sad conclusion, Mercia shut up her beloved relics in the inmost shrine of her being, and no one, not even Kate herself, ever saw them. She took the outside world just as she had taken it before; she was the same bright, happy, healthy girl that they had always known. It was only when she was absolutely alone that the change itself was revealed, that the smile faded away and the soft lips hardened a little, and the bright, hazel eyes grew dim with unavailing tears.

The little party was a great success, and Lillias charmed everybody, whether they wanted to be charmed or not. For the time being, while the spell was on them, they simply couldn't help it. Even Kate and Mercia were unable to resist the subtle fascination nor could they help recognizing that the strongest of her spells consisted in the fact that with all her wit and brilliancy, and her keen insight into the heart of things as they are, she never for one moment ceased to be a perfectly natural woman.

After dinner they went into the drawing-room, whose open windows looked out over the sea, and after coffee they had music and song. Both Kate and Mercia played and sang infinitely better than the ordinary drawing-room amateur, and, of course, the usual little knot of promenaders gathered under the windows to listen; but when Lillias went to the piano and began to sing "Robin Adair," yet another spell fell upon those in the room, and the knot of people rapidly swelled into a small crowd.

RECONCILIATORY BUT FIRM.

Britain Does Not Recede From Her Position -- Hopeful of Amicable Settlement--Belgium Sends Troops to Help French -- Naval Flotilla to Patrol the Rhine -- Scotland Wants Complete Local Control -- Fourth Public Session of League of Nations.

AMICABLE ARRANGEMENT CERTAIN.

London, April 11. Dispatches from Paris to-day are optimistic regarding hopes for an amicable settlement of the Anglo-French difficulty over the occupation of French troops of German towns. According to a statement from an authoritative quarter to-night the situation still bears grave aspects, first because there seems to be no intention on the part of the British Government to recede from its firm demand against any important action which the Alliance is concerned, and secondly because no sign is yet apparent that France is willing to withdraw her troops, but rather there is a disposition to extend her occupation.

THE ANGLO-FRENCH DIFFICULTY.

PARIS, April 11. The Earl of Derby, British Ambassador to France, this morning handed to Premier Millerand, Great Britain's reply to the last French note concerning France's invasion of the Rhineland. The note is animated with a spirit of conciliation according to the semi-official communication, and allows of the hope that within a brief time the difficulties which have arisen in the past few days will be smoothed over, and that the representative of Great Britain will return to the Ambassador's conference. Premier Millerand this evening transmitted to the Earl of Derby France's reply to the British note delivered to-day. The British note will not be made public by the French Government, but it is believed that it attaches special importance to the interpretation of the sentence of France's note made Saturday, the British Government assuming that France is reserving liberty of action in all connections with approval or consultations with other Allies, and also that it contemplates that Great Britain was duly informed of France before occupation of the towns. The text of the last sentence of France's note on which Great Britain requests an interpretation is as follows: "Preceding considerations stated, the French Government hesitate to declare that in all the questions arising from the execution of the Treaty, it foresees in which it should not be glad to act in concert with its Allies." Concerning the second point raised in the British note, the French say that diplomatic documents will finally elucidate the matter. The diplomatic commentator of the Paris Press sums up the situation as follows: "Premier Lloyd George asks France to bind herself not to act in future without obtaining in advance the approval of the Allies. Millerand replies that France is disposed to make sure beforehand of the assent of her Allies. On one side it is desired that France renounce all liberty of action."

BELGIUM BACKS FRANCE.

ARION, Belgian Luxembourg, April 10. A battalion of Belgian troops, five hundred strong, with bands playing and flags flying, left here to-day by way of Coblenz for Mayence. The troops will arrive at their destination on Monday evening, and be officially received by the French army, and then will proceed to the occupied cities.

FRENCH GUNBOATS FOR THE RHINE.

PARIS, April 11. The Petit Parisien says it learns that four small gunboats armed with machine guns, have left Cherbourg for the Rhine, where they will supervise the river.

JAPS CAPTURE IMPORTANT RAILWAY.

HONOLULU, April 11. The Japanese have captured the entire Usuri railroad between Vladivostok and Habarovsk, according to a cable despatch received from Tokyo by the Shimpo. The Usuri railroad from Vladivostok to Habarovsk is about four hundred miles in length.

GEDDES LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON.

LIVERPOOL, April 11. Sir Auckland Geddes sailed yesterday afternoon for the United States to take up his post as British Ambassador. In a message to the press he told of his appreciation of the manner in which the British press had helped him since his appointment.

SCOTLAND WANTS HOME RULE.

GLASGOW, April 11. Under the auspices of the Scottish Home Rule Association, a meeting was held yesterday, at which a resolution was adopted asking the Government to pass a bill giving Scotland control of purely Scottish affairs. The meeting was non-partisan and speeches were made by Alexander MacCallum Scott and Neil MacLean, members of the House of Commons for Glasgow.

FRENCH EXTEND THEIR LINE.

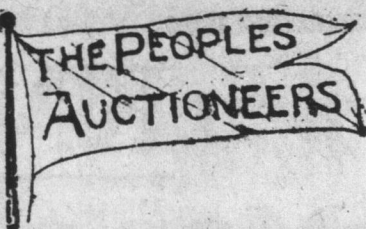

LONDON, April 10. The French forces are extending their zone of occupation in the Mainz region, according to a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Berlin, quoting the Lokal Anzeiger. Stockholm, in Bavaria, and Bevenhausen have already been occupied, and it is understood French troops are marching toward Aschaffenburg from Darmstadt.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS MEETS.

PARIS, April 11. The fourth public sitting of the Council of the League of Nations took place this afternoon in the Luxembourg Palace, Leon Bourgeois, President of the French Association of the Society of Nations, presiding. Herbert A. L. Fisher, British Minister of Education, representing Great Britain, read a report on the Armenian situation, advocating the constitution of a state of Armenia on a free and independent basis. The best means for reaching such a solution, the report said, was the acceptance for Armenia by some state under the League of Nations. Baron De Galfier D'Hestroy, Belgian Minister, read a report on minorities in Turkey affecting the fate of two million non-Muslims. The Council agreed to accept the request of Earl Curzon of Kedleston, British Foreign Secretary asking the Council to consent to a guarantee clause in the Turkish Treaty of Peace now under preparation concerning the protection on minorities. As the guarantee clauses have not yet been settled, however, it is announced that the Council had found it impossible to evolve a practical solution until the Treaty is finished.

A GALLANT AIRMAN.

TORONTO, April 11. Lieut.-Col. Wm. Barker, V.C., D.S.O., has been awarded a second silver medal by the King of Italy for his wonderful and heroic fighting in October, 1918, in which he tackled sixty Hun single handed and shot down six of them before he was brought down by enemy fire. The award reads, "Protector of Air." Col. Barker now holds

HUNGER STRIKERS IN SERIOUS STATE.

DUBLIN, April 11. Over one hundred Sinn Fein prisoners, who have been for six days on hunger strikes in Mount Joy prison, are so weak that their relatives have been sent for. Both prisoners and Government seem determined not to yield.

Handcuffs have been removed from the hunger strikers, and some of the prisoners have been sent to hospital, but they still refuse to take food so long as they are in custody.

Wesley Church Has Missionary Service.

Yesterday was observed as Missionary Sunday at Wesley Methodist Church. The preacher at the morning service was Rev. C. R. Blount, of Victoria. A very large congregation was present to hear the preacher, who took as his text, "And He said unto them, go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Mark 16-15. He emphasized the call or work of the Church; even without this command, Christ Himself and His life impels mankind to spread the Gospel. The preacher showed up in language clear and pointed out that Christianity had not failed as some people would have us believe, but the trouble was it had been tried very little or not at all in the national and international life of the world. Failure is not with Christianity, but with the people of the Western World who had not grasped the true idea of brotherhood. Yet there was a tendency in most cases to think much of China and Japan and the Eastern countries and not give sufficient study to the problems that are facing the peoples of the North American Continent and even our own land. The problems at home should be and must be dealt with. It is no sacrifice to be a missionary in this or any other land; it is a pleasure. The Church is doomed without the missionary spirit, as witness the importance of the Protestant Church in the 17th century. As soon as missionary zeal laid itself upon the Church she started to grow and has been growing ever since. An able and practical discourse was closed with an eloquent appeal to the people to pray, work and give, and words of congratulations on the sermon were freely expressed.

The 6.30 service took the form of a platform meeting. Mr. A. C. Peters was the chairman. Rev. Mr. Bugden gave the report, and the speakers, Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., and Rev. C. R. Blount. Mr. Mews in a specially interesting and instructive address, told of the missionary activities of the Church in China, Japan and in Canada and Newfoundland. Mr. Mews is the Newfoundland lay representative to the General Board of Missions, and has been for a number of years, thereby acquiring a knowledge of his theme of last night which makes him a real bureau of information on missionary work. His closing appeal, which he gave with a burning zeal, was for the Methodists to do their duty and thereby show their loyalty to the Church of their choice. Rev. Mr. Blount easily sustained the reputation he had gained for himself at the morning service delivering an able and telling address, outlining the Methodist National Campaign, emphasizing the point that it was no sectarian thing, but that Anglicans, Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Baptists had all united with one great object in view, the christianizing of the world. He expressed the hope that this united action on the part of the churches would continue as it was said by one great divine that with this much to be hoped for united action, the object would be obtained in forty years. Sacrifice was then dealt with in a telling manner and its meaning explained very ably. A splendid address was closed by an appeal to the congregation to do not only their bit but their best. Under the able chairmanship of Mr. A. C. Peters and the able address of the speaker, together with the assistance given by the choir under Organist Pratt and the solos contributed by Mrs. A. Goobie and Misses Abbott and Evans, the meeting was easily one of the best ever held at Wesley and the whole day one in keeping with the great object of this Missionary Church.

All Are Looking for It.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In Friday morning's 'News' there was published a letter signed "Old in Harness" from the pen, I presume, of a civil servant, and showing in a very decided manner that the salaries of civil servants are utterly inadequate to meet the demands of the strenuous times we live in.

That letter, Sir, but feebly (though well written) conveys the immediate need of an increase in salary for the civil servant. The terse truth is apparent that the body of civil servants will have to make a demand on the present Government, and to a man look for at least a living wage. There is not a working man, not a mechanic, not a laboring man in St. John's to-day who is getting less than (at least) $3 for a day's work. There are civil servants receiving $1.50 and $2 per day, and some of these latter are trying to support families on this disgraceful daily dole.

How can body and soul be kept together on the salary of $60 or $70 per month? How is a man going to dress himself respectably so that he can be presentable to the public that he is supposed to meet, on a $70 a month salary?

Where does the educating and feeding of children, the home expenses, the hundred necessities of domestic calling come in? Figure out even at a minimum, a month's list of family living and see how far seventy, eighty, or a hundred dollars will go to cover it?

Does the present Government or any Government imagine that a man can live on less than one hundred a month at the rate life's necessities are now?

Some of our gentlemen at the head of affairs are receiving their thousands of dollars a year, and ARE LOOKING FOR MORE, but does the idea ever strike home that other applicants of the same common circle are trying to live on a paltry sum not sufficient to keep a decent table.

The 'News' correspondent "Old in Harness," speaks of keeping the civil servant HONEST, and 'tis wisely written. The civil servant is honest, and he must be kept honest, and as human nature is but too liable to err, he must be paid enough to live on if he would be honest. The churches teach the splendid law of "paying the laborer his hire," and to employers—"pay your workmen." Let the present Government wake up NOW. There are good men doing public duty to-day; let the Government therefore give enough to enable them to live respectably and honestly.

Yours truly,
"9000 A YEAR."
St. John's, April 10, 1920.

An $800,000 Hotel for Sydney.

SITE ALONE WILL COST $50,000.

In view of the contemplated $500,000 hotel which is to be built in St. John's this summer, it should be of interest to know that Sydney is also to have a big hostelry. There is to cost $800,000. The site on which it will probably be built will cost $50,000. This is the Lortway Property, situated on George Street, near Wentworth Park. Capt. Charles Lortway, the owner, has set his price at this big figure. The land covers about 6 acres and is considered to be an ideal location. The company which is to build the hotel was formed in Sydney a few days ago. It is composed of those directly interested in the project, and will be called the Cape Breton Hotel Company, Limited, with H. J. McCann, vice-president of the Dominion Steel Corporation, as president. The directors are D. A. Cameron, E. E. Shaw, P. C. Campbell, J. R. Gillis, and C. V. Wetmore. Mr. Shaw has been named as Vice-President, and J. R. Gillis as Treasurer. Mr. Wetmore is Secretary. This hotel will without doubt prove a boon to Sydney.

The new hotel which is to be built in St. John's will probably be begun this summer. The promoters are interesting various business and minded men of the city, and a company is to be organized and the stock floated. Many have signified their intention to be in on the project, and the result will be that St. John's will at last have that which it has long needed—a fine, modern, up-to-date hotel.

Popular Preacher.

The Rev. J. W. Bartlett, of Wesley Smith Memorial Church, Halifax, was the preacher at George St. Methodist Church last evening, and delivered a very impressive discourse on the subject of the Methodist National Campaign now being carried out in Newfoundland. Mr. Bartlett asked the question "Is it worth while?" and then proceeded to show the value of "the drive" from a religious, social, educational and inspirational standpoint—even if financially one dollar had not been raised during the campaign. Mr. Bartlett was in good form and his old friends of George St. Church were delighted to have the opportunity of again hearing their former Pastor. The choir rendered the Hallelujah Chorus at the close of the service.

The Opening of St. Joseph's Hall.

St. Joseph's Hall will be formally opened on Tuesday, April 13th at 4 p.m. by His Grace, Archbishop Roche. The new Hall, which is practically finished, is a valuable asset to St. Joseph's Parish and an ornament to the East End of the city. It reflects the greatest credit on its designer Mr. W. J. Ryan, and its builders, Messrs. Tavenor and O'Brien. Mr. Ryan planned the building so as to combine solidity of construction with maximum seating capacity, and at the same time not exceed a moderate cost. His solutions of these conflicting problems have been admirable, and several contractors, among them Mr. Coaker and Mr. George Lilly, have given the highest praise both to the plan of the structure and its execution. The painting and decoration of the Hall, stage and proscenium have been committed to the capable hands of Mr. James Walsh, who has been even more happily inspired than usual in his color effects and depth tones.

After His Grace has declared the Hall open, teas will be served by Mrs. Brophy and the other ladies of the Parish, and various useful and dainty articles will be offered for sale. At night there will be a musical and dramatic entertainment under the management of Miss Ida Howlett, whose name is a sufficient guarantee for the excellence of the performance. The sale will be continued on Wednesday evening, and will conclude with an entirely new musical programme prepared also by Miss Howlett.

DO YOU TRY TO READ FACES?

I think there is no study in all the world more interesting than learning to read character by faces. The Authorman and I often amuse ourselves by picking out the faces that interest us in a magazine or newspaper, and speculating as to what lies behind dangerous if you allow yourself to form fixed opinions or prejudices before you have really mastered the art (it takes unusual ability and many years to master it and even then mistakes will occur). It is something like learning to translate a very difficult language. You would not expect, after a little casual study to be able to translate Sanscrit well enough to translate a highly important message—a message that might have a great influence on your life and on the lives of others without getting it verified, would you? And it is much harder to really master face reading than Sanscrit.

Screen Version of Passion Play Produced

Seventeen members of the College of Cardinals formed the first audience which viewed "The Eternal Light," the massive screen version of the Passion Play, shown at Tremont Temple Boston. At the end of the picture these distinguished prelates, each an authority on sacred art, and sacred history, unanimously indorsed the production. Since this memorable showing, the most notable ever accorded a film production, hundreds of prelates and clergymen of all denominations have viewed and indorsed the production. Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is among those who most heartily approve of it.

The special musical program played during this wonderful picture, was written expressly for it, by a noted Italian maestro.

HUNGRY FOR SPRING.

Lord, I am hungry for spring! For the birds on the wing, For the laughter of the children at play; For the blossoming trees, And the soft southern breeze, And a glimpse at the beauties of May.

Give me back the blue sky And the clouds drifting by, And the rookling laugh of a stream; Let me get back to Thee, With my spirit set free, Let me live out a day in a dream.

I would wonder once more Where there's ne'er a door, Or a roof or a sheltering wall; And find there anew, Where man's worship is true, The power which has fashioned us all.

From the sham and the strife Of the game we call life, And the poor little goals that we crave; From the madhouse called town, With its sneer and its frown, I would go where all creatures are brave.

Tired of stone and of steel, I want things which are real, The birds and their courage to sing, The trees and their speech, And the lessons they teach— Lord, I am hungry for spring!

Mainly About People.

George Weston, to get first hand material to write about, went to work in a ball-bearing factory. He made good as a workman, subscribed to stock issued to employees only, mastered the trombone to get a place in the factory band, and became so infatuated with the job that he threatened to give up writing.

At all English ceremonies the Prince of Wales stands fourth of the list of toasts, the King, the Queen, and Queen Alexandra preceding him. His experiences in Canada and the United States have made him so proficient as an after-dinner talker that the King and Queen are coupled in one toast, then comes his turn, and Queen Alexandra must follow her grandson hereafter.

There are several former cowboys in the United States Senate. They are Senate Asburst of Arizona, Senator John B. Kendrick of Wyoming and Senator Francis E. Warren, General Pershing's father.

Will Payne, the novelist, thinks the best place to fitfully see a tennis game is from a shady bench; ideal golf is played only at the 19th hole, and the most inspiring incident of a fishing trip is resting on the hotel verandah after supper.

The Duchess of Aosta who was at the head of the Italian Red Cross during the war is now in Africa shooting big game. She has gone to meet her son, the Duke of Puglio, and the Duke of Abruzzi. The duchess spent most of her girlhood in England until her father, the last pretender to the throne of France, died.

N. H. Hudson knew of a female thrush that flew to the table at dinner time and had a helping from every member of the family. Her mate was wild and couldn't even be coaxed. He would leave every winter and reappear regularly every spring. The mother bird would bring her young to her human friends.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said just to humor her. Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so." (Signed) FRANK E. JOHNS, Montreal.

BACK TO NORMAL.

We won't get back to normal ways until we've had some rainy days. So long as roubles grow on trees, and greenbacks wave in every breeze, we'll hit high places and repeat and scorch the length of Easy street. We can't be prudent while the rest are blowing money galley west. It's epidemic, like the flu, this gorgeous spendthrift howdydo. Some day a panic, large and pale, with four white feet and braided tail, will land upon us while we spend, and to our orgy put an end. Then you will see men out of jobs, and you will hear the housewives' sobs; and you will mark the loan sharks thrive, while others scarce can keep alive. Then we'll quit blowing useful coin for canvasback and tenderloin, and thank our gods if we've the price of wholesome liver off the ice. And we'll cut out the silk attire, the princely tips, the chauffeur's hire, and all the costly pomp and vain, and demonstrate that we are sane. Then every sad and chastened gent will ponder ere he spends a cent, and figure for a weary time before he cuts loose from a dime.

Household Notes.

Neglected brass candlesticks can be cleaned with ovalic acid and flannel. The acid is poison.

Firm vegetables may be diced and boiled, then served on lettuce or spinach with French dressing. Lettuce which is wilted may be diced and chilled in ice water or served with hot oil and vinegar.

Put a little salt in the water that goes into the hot-water bottle and the water will retain its heat longer. Instead of grating cheese or the rind of a lemon, pare it off carefully and put it through the meat chopper. Ruffia is an excellent thing for tying packages when you wish them to have an odd and pretty appearance. Printer's ink doesn't suit moths; therefore, use old newspapers to wrap winter clothing in when putting away.

Discoloration on bathtubs can be rubbed off with kerosene, afterwards rinsing with hot and cold water.

It is not worth while to peel a pumpkin. Cut it in half, put it in the oven and bake it; then scoop but the inside.

Stoves which will not be used in the summer can be kept from rusting by oiling them well, then covering with newspaper.

Put a cross-stitch in red on tiny children's garments to indicate the middle front, and they will have less trouble in dressing.

The Call of the Times

"The times call for true leadership in our political life. We are coming to a crisis. Leaders show the way. Go in to it yourselves." (Talks by Timberius.)

A moment's reflection will show the least discerning the appropriateness of the above quotation, especially in its application to existing political conditions in Newfoundland. Last fall there was a demand for new leaders, and that demand was supplied. The majority of the electorate sought for, found and elected to power new leaders. But did they elect true leaders, such men as the times call for? Has Newfoundland placed the governing power of the dominion into the hands of the leader who has shaped up to the requirements of his high position? The Woodford affidavit says NO! most emphatically. Therefore the crisis is upon us.

The Woodford affidavit is a most amazing document, and the more it is studied the more apparent is the brazen duplicity of the men implicated. No true leader of a party would descend into the filth of such a corrupt purchase of position. No true man would be willing to sell himself—to become a prototype of Judas—at the behest of another, and no Minister of the Crown, having in view the dignity of his high office would demean himself by negotiating with a political opponent, with a view to the venal purchase of his retirement, unless there was some kind of a kink in his moral nature. True leadership uplifts not alone followers but opponents in political life. The Parnassian descent is easy, and he who slides down from a lofty eminence, be it political, social or moral, loses the respect of associates and friends alike.

Timberius exhorts leaders to show the way. The Prime Minister of Newfoundland is a leader in more circles than politics. Has he, according to the Woodford affidavit, set an example of rectitude and sterling principle to those who look up to him? He has not, but on the contrary has evidently approved of political depravity and jugglery. As a party to the piece of "political jobbery" exposed in the affidavit he has shown the way to his followers to go and do likewise. He has gone in the way of evil (political) himself and has by this one act undone any and every bit of good that his more devoted efforts toward purifying public life might have accomplished. A man is not only known by the company he keeps, but he is furthermore rated according to his actions. If then the record of the Prime Minister, as given in the Woodford affidavit, is a true one—and until it is denied upon oath there is no valid reason why Mr. Woodford's ipse dixit should not be accepted—the way in which the leader of the Government has gone is a very tortuous one indeed, and his direction cannot be safely imitated by his followers, unless they as well display an utter disregard of the proprieties. Ere the House opens there are two courses open to the Premier. He has the choice of either: "The times call for true leadership." If the first Minister is true to himself, to his party, to his district and to this dominion, he will take immediate steps to clear himself of the charges made against him. Should he be unable to do so, the correct and manly course for him will be to resign. The country will demand either his vindication or his resignation. He owes it to the electorate to hearken to the call of the times.

Beaumont-Hamel.

COLLECTION ON WEDNESDAY. This coming Wednesday, April 14th, is another day hallowed to Newfoundland by the sacrifice of so many of her sons on the field of Monchy. It is also a day that reminds us of their deeds of heroism and bravery. This is the day chosen by the Beaumont-Hamel Committee for the collection to be held for the purchase of this battlefield. It is little that they ask from each one—just one dollar—but think what it will mean; the perpetual satisfaction of having done your share in keeping this spot for ever sacred. The fallen seem to cry to us from there, "Do not desert us, do not leave us to the stranger." And no heart in Newfoundland can refuse. It is their appeal for protection that we are echoing, and you cannot refuse. A number of ladies have volunteered to carry through this house to house collection. Please have your dollars ready, so as to facilitate their work as much as possible.

S. S. Diana in Port.

S.S. Diana, Capt. Parsons, the sixth arrival, returned from the sealfishery at 5:30 p.m. yesterday. The ship did not reach the whitecoats till March 30th, when the ice was in bad condition. The Thetis had been in the patch for three days, but though the Diana was only a few miles away she could not make her out owing to thick weather. The ice conditions all through the spring were the same as reported by the other ships. The Diana hails for 3,100 seals.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DANDRUFF.

Supreme Court.

HYNES vs. JONES. The case was continued on Saturday morning, when Messrs. Joseph Tilley, Chas. Mercer, Abram Bishop, Geo. Tilley and Richard Walsh were cross-examined by Howley, K.C., and Higgins, K.C. Arthur Clarke, Michael Conran and Samuel Cluney were examined by Mr. Mews. During the cross-examination of one of the witnesses it came out that the petitioner Chas. Hynes was now the Customs Officer at Kelligrews in place of Frank Tilley. This appointment, it is understood, was made since April 1st and since the petition against Dr. W. E. Jones by Mr. Hynes was filed.

KELLY vs. WOODFORD. This morning, Arthur Clarke, of Horse Cove, was the first witness called to give evidence in this case. His testimony was practically the same as that given in the Jones case. He stated Mr. Woodford gave him $50 for work done within the past 4 years. He brought Mr. Woodford up to see the condition of the road. (Here some pertinent questions by Mr. Mews were objected to by Mr. Howley and some cross-firing ensued.) The witness further stated that Woodford promised him another $50 if he was returned, but he never got it. He had not seen the candidates for four years previous to a meeting at Horse Cove. Cross-examined by Mr. Higgins he said he met Dr. Jones for the first time the day of the Horse Cove meeting. The following questions were put to the witness by Mr. Higgins:

Was money paid for work done? Yes. Did you talk to Woodford about work to be done next spring? No. Will work have to be done on the road in the spring? Yes. Michael Conran, of Chapel's Cove, who was next called and examined by Mr. Mews, stated he saw the four candidates but not at Chapel's Cove; got a promise of $30 from Woodford in September. The amount was suggested by himself for work on road to his house. Road was used by both Jews and Gentiles. He received the cheque at the Board of Works Office on October 3rd. Cross-examined by Howley, he stated he got the cheque with return sheets in an envelope at the proper office. He took sick and afterwards received a notice not to work up the money within the period between Nomination and Polling Days. The weather was bad ever since and he still had the return sheet. Samuel Cluney, of Kelligrews, the next witness, deposed to receiving cheque for $30 as a special grant for work on Harvey Road. Asked if it were better to repair the roads in the fall or spring, he replied in the spring. Asked why he did not wait until spring before he asked for the grant, he replied, "If I did it would be like the spring and I would never get it." He saw the candidate, Woodford, at Harbor Main on Nomination Day. There were three or four hundred horses and carriages there. Cross-examined by Mr. Hibbs, M.H.A. for Fogo, but if he was offered $100 for doing the road he would take it, sure. He did not expend the $30 on the road as in the bungling up he did not know what was going to happen, so he still has it. George Jennings, Foxtrap, examined by Mr. Mews, said he asked Mr. Woodford for $25 or $30 for work done during the past two years. The further hearing was discontinued till after recess.

Police Court.

For failing to report at the Customs a coastal skipper was fined $100. He took a clearance at Port aux Basques, called at Rose Blanche and thence at St. Pierre, forgetting to report on arrival from the latter foreign port.

A man charged with the larceny of $40.00 in cash, cheque, $34.15; 5 bottles liquor valued at $10; one oilcoat, $6.00, the property of Stafford's Pharmacy, pleaded guilty. The evidence adduced showed that the man broke into the store door by throwing a stone through the window. He brought the stolen spirits to a boarding house, where he treated a number of the boarders. Before leaving, however, he recompensed himself for his liberality by stealing $35.00 from one of the boarders, who reported the matter. He was sentenced to 12 months in the Penitentiary with hard labor.

A breach of the Street Traffic Regulations was dismissed. In another breach of the same regulations, defendant was fined $2.00. For a breach of the Municipal Regulations, defendant was fined $5.00.

The Isolated Battery.

An action by the Municipal Council against a resident of the Battery, heard on court this morning, disclosed a peculiar state of affairs there. This place is practically the best fishing settlement of its size in the island. The Council will not do anything to improve the place nor will the Government. The Council does not collect any taxes there and will not permit repairs. If a roof springs a leak it has to be stopped in the dark. It is not known definitely who owns the land, but some of it has been leased in the past by brokers. The counsel for the defence told the court that it was not fair to the residents—some 200 householders—to treat them thus, and that if the Council tried to enforce their regulations, there would be a rebellion worse than the Easter Day affair in the Emerald Isle. It was suggested by the court that these people be given a road board.

Methodist National Campaign.

Conjoined With the Inter-Church Forward Movement.

A great meeting of 300 earnest men and women of the City Churches will gather to-night in the Methodist College Hall at 7 o'clock sharp. The programme consists of a social hour or evening supper, followed by addresses from the official representatives from Canada. Then final instructions will be given the Divisional Commanders, Captains and members of 22 Teams. The movement is so great, and this aims so appealing and convincing that many that are not on the lists of teams are beginning to pity themselves for being outside the circle of active workers. Such an event has never taken place before in the history of the Evangelical Churches of Canada and Newfoundland. Anglicans, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists and Methodists are only beginning to realize what the Inter-Church Forward Movement has done for their Churches separately, but more so, as a United Spiritual Force in the advancement of the Kingdom of Christ, and the ushering in of the "New earth in which dwelleth righteousness."

A better knowledge of the aims, motives, methods, desires and life of each other is surely leading on to co-operation in work that will eventually set Jesus Christ "in the midst" as Lord and King.

The following lists, while not fully complete, show the composition of the organization on Saturday night. The required additions will no doubt be forthcoming at the meeting to-night.

West Coast Fishery Poor

The fishery between Rose Blanche and Hr. LeCoul is poor, according to a late report to the Board of Trade. The catch for 63 dories and skiffs in that section is 9,137 quintals. On last Monday the schooners and boats were out, even as far as the Banks, and found no fish, although it was plentiful a few days before and there was no drift ice to prevent fishing. Several schooners have gone home with only a few quintals. That the fish are on Cape Breton coast, which has been ice-free for sometime, is the belief. The fish taken the last fortnight are very poor and is of the kind generally called "looties." The liver is so poor that no one cares to buy it. The catch is at present 5,000 quintals short of last year's catch at this date.

Remove the Cloud.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Your able editorial of Saturday "Under a Cloud" must have made many in the colony ponder. The situation is now far beyond any political arena for it touches the honor of all Newfoundlanders. We, the people, are before the bar of the world's public opinion, and if we do not take some means of publicly and emphatically expressing our views, the world will say by condoning the offence, we stand equally guilty. The reputation and integrity of Britain's oldest colony is in our hands to jealously guard and keep! Are we going to allow it to be trampled upon and besmirched by venal politicians, or will we take action to place on record the views of all decent and right-thinking people.

Our public men must wake up to the fact that owing to the changes of surroundings and broadening of views, the mentality of our people has undergone a great development during the war, and knowing what large problems we now face, and realizing somewhat our relative position in world trade and affairs, we demand that our public business must be conducted by big strong men with clean hands whose one idea and objective is the advancement of the country. Terra Nova must either advance or retreat, there is no half-way course open to us.

Most serious charges have been made under oath, and for weeks, the honor of three of our public men is at stake; silence reigns, presumably in the hope that things will "blow over," but they won't; the situation must be cleaned up, and that which is unclean must be cast out from amongst us. Since the start of this discreditable affair we must appreciate that it has been followed in the U. S., Canadian and English Press, and we as a people stand discredited. Why should self-seeking politicians be allowed to tarnish the reputation of Newfoundland? We hold meetings to arrange for the purchase of a site on "Beaumont-Hamel" battlefield to be held sacred to the memory of our fallen boys. Suppose the dead who went overseas to fight for Flag, Newfoundland and Empire, could be raised, and your editorial "Under a Cloud" or any other fair statement of the facts of this unsavory business could be read to them, would they not answer, "It was not for such as this we fought and died, and we appeal to our living comrades who proudly wore the King's uniform ashore and afloat and who faced death with us for the sacred honor of our native land, to see to it that honor remains unsullied."

This surely is a sacred trust, and it is our duty to fulfil it to the letter so that when the time comes to meet our former comrades in the Great Beyond, we can report that the "mopping up party" did their work effectively, and that public life in Newfoundland is on a higher, straighter and cleaner plane than ever before. The difficulties may be great, as in all matters of public scandal the "higher up" are hardest to reach, and lawyers, as a close corporation are banded together in an offensive and mutually defensive alliance, have an effective barbed wire entanglement protection, which can only be broken down by the close sweeping fire of public opinion.

My motives in writing this are entirely divorced from politics, as I voted at the election for the party in power, but I also appreciate the fact that unless we clean up and start afresh as all other countries are doing, and effectively raise our standard of public life above the gutter-snipe ward heeler's level, we will lose ground and lose population, as our best men will not stay here but will go elsewhere to carve out a home and a career for themselves away from such wretched, squalid, narrow, soul-starving, ambition-choking surroundings as maintain at present. If all else fail we can place ourselves on record by drawing up and signing a petition to King George, the head of the Empire, and the soul of honor and straight dealing, setting forth our views as decent, clean-living citizens of his empire.

This letter may not appeal to all the members of our Government, or the members of both Houses, but the sooner they appreciate the fact that a change has come over the ideas of the people as to the public service of the men in whom they have reposed confidence by their support, the sooner we will have clean, effective and practical control of our affairs by men whom we will not be ashamed to honor and follow.

The reptile press will take umbrage at my remarks, but I would also state as far as the REPTILE Press is concerned their days are also numbered. "Hew to the line and let the chips fall where they may," should be our watchword.

Yours truly,
OVERSEAS.

MILLERAND CONTUMACIOUS.

PARIS, April 12.

(By the A.P.)—Nothing has as yet been decided as to Premier Millerand's attendance at the Supreme Council meeting at San Remo, and it was declared this morning, in reliable sources, that if the conference there is to discuss the misunderstanding between France and Great Britain, he will not go at all. A personal talk on the subject with Premier Lloyd George would be welcomed by the French Premier, if Mr. Lloyd George could find it convenient to come to Paris, but it is considered in official circles that as the point at issue interests France and Great Britain only, it is needless to discuss it before the representatives of other powers. Premier Millerand's reply to the latest British note has not yet been made public, but it is declared to make no material change in the situation. It expresses regret that there has been occasion for any controversy, but it points out that if France acted alone in her occupation to move east of the Rhine, it was because she was left alone in the face of a situation which required prompt action. The note assures Great Britain that France is determined to remain faithful to the Alliance, but intimates that the Government cannot promise to abstain from defending the interests confided to it, when its action is not contrary to the objects of that Alliance.

Young Men's Meeting Postponed.

The meeting of young men, which was to have been held in the Methodist College Hall last evening, did not come off. A big joint meeting was being held in Gower Street Church, and it was thought best to postpone the young men's meeting, so that they should not conflict. The meeting will be held at a near date, to be announced later.

Boy Injured at Ropewalk.

An 18-year-old youth named Bartlett, an employee of the Ropewalk, was injured there this morning when his arm got caught in a roller in the yarn spinning department. The flesh was torn and lacerated but no bones were broken. A doctor, who was called, ordered the boy to hospital, where the wound was dressed. The machine was not the one at which he worked, and in fact he had no business tampering with it.

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF.
 'Tis said that truth is stranger than fiction, and many events prove the assertion to be correct. The truth that history repeats itself has never been seriously challenged. In view, however, of our vaunted progress the truth is very strange and possibly calls for some explanation. That history repeats itself absolutely is not correct. For instance, we can never have the tragedy of the original Good Friday repeated, nor the transcendent glory of the original Easter Sunday. That is so because there can never be a reduplication of the supreme character in that tragedy and in that glory. Yet the conditions of the world morally and socially may be just the same again, and again the holiest and purest things and persons may be stamped and trodden in the mud and mire or hung in ridicule and shame on a tree or on a cross; following which there may again be the gloriously resplendent resurrection from the dead of the "holiest" and "purest," even to be more glorious and resplendent. I think that something like this has already happened on several occasions. In this sense history repeats itself.

FRENCH AND AMERICAN REVOLUTIONS.
 We may never have another French Revolution. France may never more be burdened and bound by an absolute monarchy at once domineering and wicked. The essential individual characteristics and characters may never be repeated in history and probably will not, though one can never be sure. But there is a Revolution going on all over the world which has been brought about by just such conditions as produced the French Revolution, and which will be followed by similar conditions as those which have featured France in the years since the Revolution.

Horace Greeley describing the United States after the Revolution in the United States, and preceding it, states:—"Industry was paralyzed by the absence and uncertainty of markets. Idleness tempted to dissipation, of which the tumult and excitement of Civil war had long been the schoolization of such an issue. In 1786, the famous Shay's Insurrection occurred in Western Massachusetts, wherein fifteen hundred men, stung to madness by the snow-shower of writs to which they could not respond and executions which they had no means of satisfying, undertook to relieve themselves from infestation, and save their families from being turned out into the highways, by dispersing the courts and arresting the enforcement of legal process altogether. And thus industrial paralysis, commercial embarrassment, and a political disorder combined to overbear inveterate prejudice, sectional jealousy, and the ambition of local magnates, in creating that more perfect union whereof the foundations were laid and pillars erected by Washington, Hamilton, Franklin, Madison, and their co-peers in the convention which framed the Federal Constitution."

THE MODERN REVOLUTION.
 Greeley's words could be taken verbatim almost and applied to modern conditions. A study of the Napoleonic wars and their industrial, religious and social consequences would find practically the same conditions. The years of famine are bound to follow the years of plenty, and happy is the country which has a Joseph as a Prime Minister and National Director. There is always a need for a Political Joseph, in times of plenty to conserve the wealth, and in times of famine, to secure equity and justice for the common people. A terrific revolution is proceeding today following the Great War which so recently and so happily terminated not many moons ago. Nor is it bloodless. Nemesis is hard after Germany. Blood has yet to smear the streets of Berlin, as crime and sin have, and still do, stalk about her buildings, and avenues of life; whether it be Ebert or Kapp or the Kaiser-that-was, and his puppets in the national drama, the law is fixed, "He that lives by the sword shall also perish by the sword." Russia, poor Russia, with its struggle for a life; she will yet live, but the demon of anarchy has had a high day there for the past two or three years. Her reign of terror is still on. Vienna is starving; Armenia is starving; Turkey is starving; England is torn by labour and political turmoil; Ireland, sad Ireland; America, the U. S. A., with its millionaires and her multimillionaires and her divided government and unfortunate position in the League of Nations; and her millions of dissatisfied and clamouring poor, ever crying, Labour, Capital; wealth; poverty; these terms mean more to-day than ever before. The high cost of living, and the cost of the high living are disastrous in their effects. Strikes, lockouts, etc., and so on, are the order of the day. A wave of mal-content; of yearning for more; of strife and industrial and economic war, has passed over and is passing over the world. This is due to the war; the world is unsettled. It has always been so; war has ever reaped such a harvest and ever will. But just as other wars have been the birth throes of a new and better nationhood, so will this one; these conditions are again the labours of a new and more beautiful life, the world will even be brighter for the darkness, as when the brightness of silver for the moment is hidden beneath the paste which cleans it. The world's troubles of to-day, are the purging cleansing flame. Phoenix will again rise out of the ashes. Fair as the noon-day, bright as the sun; terrible as an army with banners.

DEMANDS OF THE TIMES—FAITH.
 The nations are sick and sore. The daily record of their life is a record of woe, and one turns with genuine pity upon the leaders in State and Church who have to guide the destitute of Empire. It is fortunate for the world that within itself it has the laws and powers of recuperation. It is wonderful the power of recovery that is inherent in nature and in the world. Our wounds will heal and our own aches and pains and ailments will leave us if we give them only half a chance. Doctors and medicine never cure anyone; they only give more just a little help; she herself is the greatest healer. Even outside the realm of the physical we see the same tendency to restoration. Time lays his kindly hand upon our griefs and sorrows and troubles, and somehow the sharp edge of them is taken off and we can bear them. Sometimes even we forget all about them. Let us thank God for this. It is a sign that it is God's world and that somehow kindness and sympathy and goodness are at the heart of things. Looking too closely at the pain and the grief and sorrow, they seem to be about all that there is. We so easily forget the great healing processes that are at work, turning sickness into health and making even sorrow to become a great and abiding peace. It is also a medium of comfort to know that faith in the future good, co-operating with the healing of time and nature and faith in the same, tends to eliminate the cause of much of the world's sorrow and pain. One of the greatest needs of the hour is the need for a firmer and more assured faith on the part of every one of us, in the possibility of a Christian future for the world. Looking at it to-day from the outside, it looks like an ugly pagan affair, does it not? And superficially the future does not

Had Suffered Since Childhood, Says Mrs. Smith
Forced to Stay in Bed Days at a Time From Indigestion and Weakness — Tanlac Proves Merit.

"I can't begin to express my gratitude for what Tanlac has done for me. It has been the greatest help in the world to me, and has overcome troubles that have been with me since childhood," said Mrs. Annie S. Smith, of 162 Preston St., Halifax, Nova Scotia, when speaking with the Tanlac representative at Kinley's drug store.

"Even as a child I had a very weak stomach, and of late years it has been much worse. I cannot say that I had a great deal of pain, but I had a faint, weak, empty feeling. Like I imagine a person would have who is starving to death, that seemed to take every ounce of strength and life out of me. I also had frequent attacks of indigestion, when I could retain nothing except a cup of tea, and when anything I ate would form gas and cause me great distress. Sometimes I went for two or three days at a time without a bite of solid food. Of late these attacks occurred so often that I would hardly get over one before I would be down in every way, and had absolutely no appetite, and what I ate seemed neither to satisfy me nor give me strength. I can hardly describe to you how weak I was at times, but I often had to stay in bed for days at a time hardly able to raise my hands or to speak above a whisper. I had the most frightful sick headaches, my nerves were all on edge, and I felt despondent and depressed.

"But Tanlac has changed all that for me, and I am like a different woman to-day. I began to improve from the very first dose, and before I had finished the second bottle I noticed that my stomach was much stronger, and that I could digest my food perfectly. I soon had a splendid appetite, and that faint, empty, exhausted feeling left me. My nerves are much better, and I never have sick headaches now. I have improved wonderfully in every way, and feel better and stronger than I have done for years past. I cannot praise Tanlac too highly, and I shall certainly recommend it to my friends."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

look any brighter than the present. Preparedness, campaigns and threats of bitter trade wars do not preface the immediate dawning of the day of Universal Brotherhood. Sometimes it looks like the devil's world, but it is not, in fact it was never further from being his than it is to-day. One of the things that you and I need is a strong clear vision and faith that will enable us to see in the turmoil and strife of our day, the struggle of great divine principles that points to the day of the triumph of righteousness and brotherly kindness on earth. The Great Father of us all in this struggle and He will bring out of it, as we will let Him, a good to the race that will be past our reckoning. That, at least should be, our faith and hope. So with our moral courage strengthened by patience and faith, let us look for the better day to be.

"Grow old along with me,
 For the best is yet to be,
 The child is yet the father of the man."

DEMANDS OF THE TIMES—THRIFT.
 Patience and faith involve and imply something that another does for us. The Eternal Super Being is in His heaven and all's right with the world, "but," and I would indicate that I mean that "but" to get all that is intended by a kindly providence. I remember that Lord Morris, in one of the last addresses he ever gave in Newfoundland made a statement like this: "You know both Heaven and Politics help those who help themselves." I expect he knew whereof he spoke. It is true, "Heaven helps the man who helps himself." So we ought to help ourselves. Our country is sharing in the darkness which, commercially and industrially, prevails in other lands. Patience and faith will go much to help us through our dark day, but we need to do something ourselves. The high cost of living evil, may be largely cured by demanding less; by thrift. To waste or be extravagant at any time is a crime and a shame, it is much more so these days. We have had our years of plenty. These years developed habits of idleness, deception, inefficiency, luxury; we must now save. Rich and poor; old and young, should cultivate the habit of industry applied to producing and conserving the essentials of life, and their efficient distribution.

It is a National duty. Anything that tends to waste the national money or strength or courage or self-sacrifice, or anything that contributes to national insecurity, should be eliminated.

minated. H. H. Asquith, in London on June 29th, 1915, said: "All money that is spent these days on superfluous comforts or luxuries, whether in the shape of goods or in the shape of services, means diversion of energy which can better be employed in the national interests." Times has not changed this.

It is a personal duty. To do without such as intoxicants, drugs, dopes, nicotine, will make us stronger in body and clearer in mind, keener in moral and spiritual perception. It will be of great personal benefit. It will help us pay our debts, and enable us to pay cash for what we buy. Let Newfoundland Co-operate with a kindly providence. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

The Abdication of Napoleon I.

On the 11th of April, 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte, the greatest figure in French history, crushed and beaten, and the abdication of his once mighty power. Just ten years before the Cathedral of Notre Dame, he placed on his brow the crown of France, and again, just ten years before that, he had taken the step on the ladder of fame, when, as reward for the re-taking of the city, his appointment as a General of the Republic. Stupendous crowds were crowded into the space these two decades. They witnessed the rise of an obscure Lieutenant to a height of dazzling popularity, and triumph wherever he went, and finally his fall after a long and bloody struggle against the whole of Europe in arms. It was that tremendous struggle of 1813, terminating in the disaster of Leipzig, which put an end to Napoleon's dream of universal dominion. Yet the lessons availed him nothing, and when once it became clear to the Allied Powers that nothing was to be done with the intractable French Emperor, preparations were made to invade France at all points. To the immense armies arrayed against him Napoleon could not oppose a third of the number, yet he was not without hope, and the first encounter was in his favour, and by a singular coincidence, this opening battle was fought at Ruenne, the place where Napoleon had received his military education. At the sight of the wounded lion, who, thus brought to bay, could yet deal blows so deadly, Europe stood amazed. But the net was really closing round Napoleon. As a last attempt to save at least something, Napoleon, on the 4th of April, announced his abdication in favour of his son, a child of four, under the regency of Marie Louise, his mother. The hope that the Austrian monarch might interpose in favour of his daughter, however, proved a vain one. Many a pathetic picture has been drawn of his alternate rage and despair; his outbursts of fury against those who had deserted him, and his emotional welcoming of those who still remained faithful. But, shrink as he might the last step had to be taken, and on the 11th April, Napoleon Bonaparte signed his unconditional abdication. Such was the end of a dominion which had for years overshadowed the world and threatened its complete enslavement.

NEWSPRINT SHORTAGE.
 LONDON, April 9. The shortage of newsprint paper was yesterday emphasized at a luncheon given to Stanley Cousins, the noted paper maker, and Lord Dunsam, proprietor of the Daily Telegraph, who will head the Imperial Press Conference visiting Canada, who said it was difficult to see how supply can be assured, unless the resources, particularly of Canada, were utilized with far greater potency than at present. Mr. Cousins said that the present quotations of pulp, representing six hundred per cent. advance, was unjustified, but paper makers could not help it with the price of raw material so high. Lord Riddell, Director of several newspapers, said that very few papers with large circulations now earned a profit, and he feared they were going forward blindly and would have a serious reckoning to face when present stocks were exhausted.

WANT LAW ENFORCED.
 MONTREAL, April 10. At the sixth annual meeting of the Anti-Liquor League of the Province of Quebec, the report of the secretary made reference to the "scandalous condition of the liquor traffic," which was attributed to laxity in law enforcement. The fact that not a single member of the Provincial Legislature on either side of the House had made any protest in respect to these conditions, would only force upon the electorate the need of a change in the personnel of the Legislature, without regard to party affiliation. The report stated that among the resolutions, passed unanimously, was one that the Legislative committee of the League take immediate action to secure the proper enforcement of the Quebec prohibition law.

Household Notes.

The tiny knockers, which are used abroad on bedroom doors, are coming into use over here—and very useful and sensible they are.

A good filling for a sandwich is hard-boiled eggs chopped fine, combined with minced sweet peppers and moistened with mayonnaise.

Save the upper half or a wornout pair of trousers and put a band on where it is cut off at the waist, and you have an excellent bib.

When you crush dried bits of bread don't roll with a rolling pin, but put them in a clean salt or sugar bag and pound with a potato masher.

If you do your own cooking and wish to go out until late in the afternoon, plan a casserole of meat and vegetables, put it in a slow oven when you go, and when you return your dinner will be ready to serve.

To save time in making cookies, roll the dough out into a thin sheet, bake it in a large pan and immediately on taking it out of the oven score it into squares or triangles.

No other medicine will restore lost weight so quickly as "Brick's Tasteless" Cod Liver Oil.—mar29,t

"LITTLE PEGGY O'MOORE" TO-NIGHT.

The Young-Adams Company begin their second week to-night. This week is undoubtedly a bumper one, and needless to say it will attract crowded houses. The play for to-night and Tuesday is—"Little Peggy O'Moore" the adventures of a little Irish girl in America. The story is in four acts brimful of sensation and comedy, stirring climaxes and mirth provoking situations. Marjie Adams who has become a supreme favorite will more than delight her many admirers as Peggy O'Moore. Mr. H. Wilmot Young as Daniel Murphy, Mayor of the city, has also a very popular part in this play, whilst the other members of the company are well cast. Wednesday and Thursday will see the performance of the ever popular "East Lynne." Everybody wants to see this play and they will see it acted by capable performers. Friday and Saturday the company will present an entirely new play, namely "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." All who have read the book and know the song will want to see this play. Mr. Young stars in a comedy-drama for every Friday and Saturday during the engagement. Seats are now on sale at F. V. Chesmans. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Higher Rates of Wages.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—As is generally known there is an agitation going on for higher rates of wages particularly by Longshoremen and wharf labourers. Everyone would like to see the highest wages paid which may be consistent with general prosperity. It is very distressing to see numbers of men who are willing to work standing idle at present, but it is not generally understood that the higher the wages in St. John's the less work there is for the men.

The time has now arrived when it is much cheaper to ship fish from the Outports than from St. John's, and each year an increasing number of vessels is loaded in Outports for market direct. Also imports are going direct to the Outports partly from Halifax and partly by local steamers and vessels via Sydney—and of course to points all along the railway. The demands which are now being made by Longshoremen for a large increase in wages will entail an advance in freights, which must immediately be connected with an advance in all articles of import, particularly in Coal.

These considerations may be worth the attention of the workmen who are demanding a large increase in wages.

Yours truly,
CAUTION.

Essex Almost Doubles Small Car Endurance.

ESSEX has performance like the costliest fine cars—its world endurance record has never been rivaled.

The most important thing that ESSEX has proved is that weight and size are no longer necessary to finest car quality.

All concede average ability in any modern car.

So it was to prove ability far beyond what any light car ever has shown that ESSEX made its famous endurance tests.

Its 3,037 miles in 50 hours is a world's endurance record. The test was official. Supervisors of the American Automobile Association certified the ESSEX stock chassis in every detail.

Never before was a car driven at top speed for 50 hours. The grid was more severe than years of road use. Yet at the end the ESSEX showed no measurable wear. Indeed, the same stock chassis in three trials was driven 5,869 miles, at an average speed above a mile a minute.

FISHERMEN!

Here's the Boot for You:

"Excel" Boots

HAVE

Pliable Uppers. Weather Proof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to Wear Out.

For Men and Boys.

Pliable Uppers, Weatherproof and Wear-Resisting, Tough Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to wear out.

You know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of the rubber and how the rubbers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life of resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the dry-in-out action of sun, heat and cold far longer than other boots, consequently they don't crack anywhere so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

These are exclusive features of "EXCEL" boots.

The picture at the left, of an "EXCEL" boot, with every detail of construction visible, shows how "EXCEL" boots are reinforced at every point of strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure which leaves the rubber pliable, weather-proof, and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Below are listed seven special features which make "EXCEL" boots superior. Read them carefully so that when you need boots you will know how to get the best value for your money.

Seven Special Features that make the "Excel" Best.

FEATURE No. 1—The entire boot is cured under heavy pressure, forcing all parts together in "one-piece", and retaining the full life and resiliency of the rubber.

FEATURE No. 2—An 8ply double sole of tough, durable rubber, made like an Auto Tire, running all the way under the full moulded heel. This sole and heel are so wear-resisting that they are commonly called the "tough on rocks" sole and heel.

FEATURE No. 3—A heavily reinforced boot which will withstand the hardest kind of wear.

Most reliable dealers sell "EXCEL" boots. Be sure to look for the name "EXCEL". Substitutes and "just as good" boots will not give you "EXCEL" service. If your dealer does not have them in stock, write us for name of nearest dealer.

FEATURE No. 4—Six plies at the instep relieves strain and prevents wrinkling or cracking.

FEATURE No. 5—Reinforced five-ply leg for extra wear. Just the right amount of strength to stand up, yet not be uncomfortable.

FEATURE No. 6—Four-ply top, very pliable.

FEATURE No. 7—Heavy duck lining, and a heavy insole prevent dampness and keep feet dry and comfortable.

With Military Honors.

Church Lads' Brigade, Avalon Battalion of the First Nfld. Regt. Church Lads' Brigade paraded at their Headquarters at 2.15 p.m. yesterday for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Bugler William J. Churchill, of the Brigade's Bugle Band. The Battalion was in charge of the Lieut.-Colonel Commanding, Colonel R. F. Goodridge, and the following officers paraded: Majors Raley, M.C., Adj. and G. R. Williams, Captain Avalon Goodridge, Lieut. Lance Hayward, Harold Hayward, Rev. E. H. Fletcher, W. R. Moty, Phil B. Rendell and Regt. Sergt. Major Rowland Williams. The brass and bugle bands were present, the former in charge of Captain Morris, and the latter in charge of Corporal Cook. The battalion marched to the home of the parents, Monkstown Road and thence proceeded to the Church cemetery near Quidi Vidi. Leaving the home the band played The Dead March in Saul, followed by the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee." The casket rested on a gun carriage, kindly loaned the Brigade by the O.C., H.M.S. Briton, and the officers are grateful for the courtesy. The gun carriage crew was in charge of Co. Sergt. Major Rendell, and did their work with great satisfaction. At the entrance to Forest Road the band again played the solemn music of the Dead March, and the hymn, "Jesu Lover of My Soul" very effectively; and the burial service was read by Rev. Capt. Clayton, C.F., and Rev. C. A. Moulton of the C.L.B. In the Chapel the Brigade hymn was sung "Fight the Good Fight." At the graveside the full military honors were given. The firing party in charge of Sergt. E. Best, gave three volleys, and Bugler Cook sounded the "Last Post" as the remains of their beloved comrade was consigned to Mother Earth "until the day dawns and the shadows flee away." The late Bugler Churchill was an active member, and participated in last year's camp at Topsall, and at that time looked as healthy as any lad in camp. He was formerly employed in the Postal Telegraph Department until his recent illness. His comrades of the C.L.B. greatly regret his passing, none more so than the Lt.-Col. Commanding, Capt. Avalon Goodridge, and the officers and lads who visited his bedside during his illness. The Brigade sent three floral tributes, one each from the officers' mess, No. 4 section, A Co., and Bugle Band and the N.C.O.'s mess. The Brigade extends its sympathy to the bereaved parents, with the knowledge that his soul is at rest with God. "Father, in Thy gracious keeping, Leave we now Thy servant sleeping."
