Douglas Campbell Gordon,

Aged 5 years and 9 months.

Drowned at Port Perry, May 6, 1881.

A Friday night all dark and wet,
The heavy rain fast falling.

A fluttring gray bird strives to get Thro' window pane,
Away from rain,
To where the light is calling.

A little boy with wonder sees
The poor wee birdle beating.
His father then, the child to please,
The window lifts,
From darksome rifts
The bird the child is meeting.

Now, Sunday comes, bright day of rest,
Death's angel, sure, is sleeping.
But ere the sun sinks in the west
The child has found,
Ah! blessed sound,
The Light—where's rain nor weeping.

Robt. Cochran received this despatch from his New York agents to-day:

NEW YORK, May 8.—The bulls were greatly disappointed at the change in the temper of market speculation, and those found at the Windsor last night were wondering how much further the reaction would extend. Many thought that the worst was now over, and they looked for an improvement some time during the day. It is generally conceded that a great deal now depends on Rurope. If London and continent do not take alarm and sell out stocks purchased since Friday, the shorts will be tempted to cover, and this will mean a rise in all active specialities of anything between 2 and 5 points. The best informed people were suyers yesterday, and do not think prices will yield much more if at all. Gould was not seen sround the hotel, but gentlemen who spoke with him say that he is as sanguine as ever. He holds bears accountable for the slump. Cammaok appears to be in high glee, as he generally is when market, goes his way. He claims not to have covered his shorts because he believes bulls have lost their grip on the market. J. G.
