The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Douglas Library
Queen's University

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

VICTORIA, PAST AND PRESENT.

Pioneer SS. Beaver.

THE foundations of the present City of Victoria were laid in 1843. It was June of that year when the "Beaver" landed a small force and the Hudson's Bay Co.

fort was erected. In 1846, Colonel Holloway reported, "Fort

Old Hudson's Bay Co. Fort.

Victoria is situated at the southern end of Vancouver Island. The fort is a square enclosure of one hundred yards, surrounded by cedar pickets twenty feet in height, having two octagonal bastions, each containing six six-pounder iron guns, at the north-east and south-west angles. This is the best built of the company's forts." From another source it is learned: "The building is even now (1846) though plain to a fault, imposing from its mass and extent, while the bastions or towers diminish the tameness which its regular outline would otherwise produce. The interior is occupied by the officers' houses, or apartments they should rather be called, stores, and a trading house in which smaller bargains are concluded, tools and agricultural implements, beads, shawls, blankets, and all the multifarious products of Sheffield, Birmingham, Manchester and Leeds are offered for sale."

In 1852 Victoria was laid out in streets, then bounded on the west by the harbour, on the east by the present Government Street, on the south by the old fort and on the north by Johnson Street. Beyond these boundaries were fields, all under cultivation. Outside the fort there were but twelve houses within the city limit. In 1853 some two hundred additional colonists arrived and at the close of that year it is estimated that there were in Victoria and the vicinity three hundred whites.

As It Was in the Fifties.

In 1861 the population had grown to 3,500 whites, English and Americans predominating. During the next two following years considerable progress was made, as early in 1863 the population is reported at 6,000. The buildings numbered 1,500, including substantial warehouses, stores, commodious hotels, a "theatre, a hospital, five churches and five banking-houses."

The sudden growth was the result of the discovery of gold on the Fraser River in 1858. Victoria was the first and last place of call for the miners, who arrived from California and elsewhere in thousands. Of this floating population no notice has been taken in the figures given, but it may be stated in passing that 30,000 has been estimated as the number camping at one time at Victoria en route to the Fraser River.

No Fear of the Future.

The question will arise, "What can 25,000 people do with so much merchandise in addition to what is produced on Vancouver Island?" The answer is easy, "They consume what they need and distribute the remainder." As Victoria was the distributing centre par excellence fifty years ago, so to-day she is the chief distributing

From the foregoing it will be seen that the importance of Victoria as a commercial centre was recognized from the first.

Incorporation was effected in 1862, the city being divided into three wards. The population was then about 5,000. To-day the residents are more than five times that number and it is safe to assert that considered per capita Victoria is the wealthiest city on the Pacific Coast.

From mercantile and trade reports it will be seen that nowhere is business conducted on a more sound and profitable basis. The volume, too, ranks high. For comparison it may be stated that the shipping of Victoria is the fourth largest in the Dominion of Canada.

point for the whole of British Columbia. Victoria merchants supply goods to every part of the Province, including the northern gold fields of Atlin and the Yukon beyond.

Although transcontinental railway cars do not enter the city, Victoria is under no disadvantage, for first class steamers meet the trains at the mainland termini every day and bring freight and passengers from eastern Canada and United States points, the rates being the same as if destined for railway terminals on the mainland.*

A Spending Point. At the close of the salmon canning season, fishermen and others come to Victoria and spend their earnings. It is in the fall of the year that the population is increased largely, by the return of wage earners who have been out in all directions and who then come home to live in comfort during the winter months.

An Industrial Centre. Local industries, such as iron works, flour and feed mills, chemical, soap and paint factories, lumber mills and several others, furnish employment for many hands. The proportion of factory hands and artisans is unusually large for a city of the size of Victoria.

It is impossible to state whether the fur traders of the early forties selected Victoria's situation for other than geographical reasons, but it is certain that a more ideal site for a large city could hardly be found. Its natural beauty and adaptability to the purposes of commerce and residence, are remarkable. The land undulating slightly gives easy grades to the streets and admits perfect drainage and sewerage. Within certain limits only stone or brick buildings can be erected, and the numerous recent additions of such structures furnish indications of confidence which the owners have in the future of the city.

Owned by Its Citizens. In one respect Victoria differs very materially from most cities inasmuch as the business blocks and dwelling houses are nearly all owned by residents. These are rented as freely as elsewhere, but the rents go into the pockets of the inhabitants, and it is certainly a great advantage to business men to pay to residents, instead of to some outside capitalists, as such rents return again either directly or indirectly in trade.

*Arrangements are now completed whereby the cars of the Canadian Pacific and Great Northern Railways will come to Victoria.

Some Churches and Schools, Victoria, B. C.

The city corporation has borrowed money for improvements, such as waterworks, sewerage, electric lighting, etc., but Public Works. here it will be found that the assets of the city are largely in excess of the liabilities. Taxation is very light compared with other cities in Canada or the United States.

Excellent free and non-sectarian educational facilities exist for children six years and upwards, nor Educational Facilities. is there any charge for advanced education in the High School. These schools are controlled by trustees, of both sexes, elected by the ratepayers. Besides the public schools there are excellent private schools, day and boarding, including kindergartens.

The liberality of the citizens, assisted by the Provincial Government and city corporation, has provided a hospital of fifty-six beds known as the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital. This was erected in 1890 in commemoration of The Gorge on Queen's Birthday.

Her Majesty's Jubilee, and it ranks high in every branch of medical and surgical science. The private rooms, which are, of course, paid for, are frequently occupied by persons from all parts of the Province and neighboring State of Washington, who come to Victoria for the greater skill than is found nearer their homes. The poor of the city are treated free.

Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Climate is an important consideration when deciding upon a place of residence or a pleasure trip. The rain fall at Victoria is light compared with other parts of the Province. Snow is an infrequent visitor and even then seldom lies on the ground more than forty-eight hours. So it is easy to understand why four dollars per hour is charged for sleighing, which but at best is an apology for an eastern sleigh ride. Skating can be rarely indulged in and when possible is carried into the small hours of the morning, as those who enjoy skating must make the best of their opportunities.

Perfect Climate.

The prevailing winds in the summer are from the south-west, and passing over the snow-capped Olympians and the Straits of Fuca are comfortably tempered upon reaching the south end of Vancouver Island. Dr. Bryce in "The Climate and Health Resorts of Canada" says of Victoria: "The fruits of temperate climates grow well and farm animals live outdoors the year round. The climate is milder than in many parts of England, with less rain and less seasonal variations." Instead of spending holidays far from home in search of health many Victorians camp out on sea beaches near the city for some months each year.

As a Health Resort.

It is the common remark of visitors from the United States that Victorians have mastered the art of combining business with pleasure. It would, indeed, be surprising if such were not the case, for no one acquainted with Victoria and surroundings would gainsay that there is not another spot on the Pacific Coast where nature has so abundantly provided for the pleasure seeker. Victoria has unequalled natural advantages in picturesque location and climate, and for commercial and industrial purposes is not less favorably situated. It would be beyond the scope of this article to attempt to describe the beauties of Beacon Hill park and the residential portion of Victoria. A feature of the residences is the spacious grounds in which they are set. The ordinary size of the Victoria lot is 60 by 120 feet, but the better class of suburban houses stand in lovely grounds measured by acres. In many cases only a peep here and there can be obtained from the highways, trees and shrubs affording the privacy which seems so much desired. It is not difficult, however, to outline beautiful homes with tennis courts, well-kept lawns, trained ornamental trees and cosy arbors of evergreens. Many such residences command a view of the Straits of Fuca, pleasure yachts flitting hither and thither, give life and peculiar interest to the scene. The brush of no artist could depict the beauties of such scenery under the ever changing lights.

Victoria is the seat of the Provincial Government and the home of the Lieutenant-Governor, and in addition to the merchants and business men of Victoria there are a number of wealthy residents whose business interests lie in other parts of the Province, but who elect to live there in order to enjoy the social and other advantages of the capital. The Garrison and Naval forces add a pleasant feature to Victoria society not elsewhere possessed on this side of the continent. There are three social clubs in flourishing condition.

Among the amateur organizations for purposes of entertainment it is difficult to say which takes the lead, but the Arion Club, a musical society of some fifty male voices, is perhaps the best known and longest established. There are also local theatrical and orchestral societies, and amateur theatricals and concerts in aid of charities and other objects are numerous, and their success is best judged by the invariably large audiences which they attract. There is a first class cornet band in connection with the local militia organization and during the winter months there is a weekly promenade concert in the Drill Hall and in the summer two or three open air concerts are given every week in the park and adjacent resorts.

A Music Loving People.

There are excellent golf links. Tennis, cricket, yachting, lacrosse, football, boating and canoeing are among the favorite summer amusements. Bicyclists and amateur photographers their name is legion.

There are so many attractive spots in the neighborhood of Victoria that it is really difficult to decide among them for superlative merit. If boating be selected a trip up the Gorge will probably be chosen. This is a stretch of about four miles parties revel in the shade of the firs and there are as well many ideal open spaces for those who desire to use them.

such as are sought by tourists. There are many residences at Oak Bay and along the route of the car line, and in addition to the resident population there is in the season a constant stream of visitors by car, carriage and bicycle. Frequent band concerts enliven the evenings there. One of the golf links and an enclosed park for lacrosse matches and bicycle races, for which a cinder path is provided, are located at this resort. a fine thoroughfare which skirts the sea all the way from the Outer Wharf, passing through Beacon Hill park and along the golf links. There is probably not another road on the Beautiful Pacific Coast possessing equal charms for driving Drives. or wheeling. It is good at all seasons of the year and the rare scenic effects are ever present and striking.

It would require the pages of a pretentious book to do justice to all the numerous drives within twenty miles of Victoria. These are always well kept and afford equal facilities for all popular modes of locomotion.

Esquimalt, Her Majesty's naval station on the Pacific, is four miles from the post office, and is connected by electric cars which leave every fifteen minutes. The men-of-war, dry dock, naval yard and canteen grounds are the principal attractions, but the scenery all along the car line and at the village of Esquimalt itself possesses a singular charm which never fails to make a lasting impression. Naptha launches and row boats can be hired and a visit made to the naval hospital, passing the marine railway en route. The water in the harbor is never rough.

The barracks at Macaulay Point are situated a short distance from the Esquimalt road. Visitors are not allowed inside the fort, but the scenery from the vicinity, embracing the entrance to Esquimalt harbor, the straits and the Olympias, is very beautiful indeed.

Two railways terminate at Victoria. The Victoria and Sidney runs to the end of the Saanich peninsula, distance seventeen miles, and is of value to the farmers of that district in marketing their products, and for tourist purposes. Sidney should be visited, as it is a very pretty spot and some idea can be formed en route of the agricultural possibilities of the island. Hops, barley and fruit do remarkably well in this section. An hotel is situated near the railway terminus. Steamer connection

E & N. Railway Views.

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway at present has its terminus at Wellington, though its extension to the north end of Vancouver Island is contemplated in the very near future. It serves the finest collieries on the Pacific Coast. At

Along the E. & N. Railway.

Chemainus there is one of the largest and best appointed saw mills in British Columbia from which is marketed about half of the lumber exported from the entire province. Not far from Chemainus copper mines on Mt. Sicker are being opened up from which ore is being shipped. Large iron deposits are also being developed.

Near Chemainus, too, is the new town of Ladysmith, at which place are erected the coal bunkers for the output of the big extension coal mine at Alexandria, and where many of the miners have their residence. A railway to haul the logs to the Chemainus mill has been built in this section and a tramway runs from the Mt. Sicker mine to Osborne Bay.

Mineral deposits of copper and gold have been located at other points on the southern end of the island and development work is progressing with satisfactory results. Large stretches of farming lands are already under cultivation and much more remain to be opened up. All these important industries are tributary to Victoria, the head office of most of the collieries and railways and mining and lumber interests being established there. The very beautiful scenery along the E. & N. Railway attracts many excursionists from Victoria. Sportsmen in quest of game and fish drop off at different places all along the line for miles, and this is in season one of the favorite Saturday afternoon recreations. The steeplechase track at Colwood is distant eight miles.

Goldstream on the line is another favorite resort. There occasional band concerts amuse those who do not care for sport, and a well appointed hotel furnishes refreshments

Shawnigan, farther on, is a popular camping place, and is visited by numerous excursion parties. There are Shawnigan Lake. two good hotels, and small summer cottages can be rented. The lake furnishes good fishing and the surroundings are an entire change from the coast.

It is a common practise to leave the train at Shawnigan and wheel to Duncan, fourteen miles further on. The road is shaded and parklike in places, with easy grades all the way.
Duncan Station. Numerous well kept farms adjoin on both sides, and that portion which passes through the Indian reservation has especial interest. There are two hotels at Duncan close to the railway station, and it, too, is a very popular resort and the headquarters for many sportsmen. The river affords excellent fishing and of deer and birds there is an abundance.

The trip to Cowichan Lake from here should not be missed. The distance and the journey is made by stage. The attractions are hunting fishing and scenery.

Cowichan River Bridge.

The west coast of Vancouver Island is reached by rail to Nanaimo and thence by stage across to Alberni, or by steamers which leave Victoria regularly at frequent intervals. All the south and west coast of Vancouver Island is rich in minerals—gold, copper, silver and iron.

One of the objects of great interest to all visitors to Victoria are the beautiful new parliament buildings, in which the people of British Columbia take a special pride, and conspicuous among the attractions afforded by a visit to these buildings is the Provincial Museum, which has the distinction of being the best exposition of local fauna and flora to be found anywhere on the continent.

In the parliament buildings there is a Bureau of Provincial Information, also a complete collection of specimens of British Columbia minerals.

With so many important tributary resources the future of Victoria is assured. Its present growth is steady, a fact which affords greater satisfaction than if a "boom" was experienced.

The Basis of Prosperity.

Besides its commercial growth the number who come here to reside is steadily increasing, and it will undoubtedly become the residential metropolis of the coast and especially of British Columbia. The tourist travel is a very important factor in the prosperity enjoyed by Victorians, and deservedly so. This may be divided into two classes,

those who visit the city regularly every year, of whom there is a large number, and those whose visits are irregular and occasional. Of the latter, passengers on the Australasian and Oriental steamers inwards and outwards, and visitors from eastern Canada and eastern parts of the United States swell the aggregate travel, which is yearly growing larger in volume.

The object of this article is to interest the stranger in search of a good business, a desirable place of residence or an attractive tourist resort, and incidentally to refresh the memory of persons acquainted with Victoria, but who are now living elsewhere. Victoria, the Capital city of British Columbia, can supply all the requirements of visitors, and any information of a specific character will be cheerfully imparted by
