Steady Improvement in Trade.

LONDON, March 14 .- The president of the Board of Trade, the Rt. Hon. A. J. Mundella, at the annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, said that there was a steady and improving trade, but while England's customers abroad aced monetary troubles and were groaning under heavy taxation there was little prospect of a large increase of trade.

Letter From Mr. Gladstone. LONDON, March 4.-Evan Jones, Liberal M. P. for a Welsh constituency, has received from Mr. Gladstone a letter in which the ex-Premier says: "Apart from every political question and looking to my sight and hearing, the only choice before me was between resignation and the close of the session and a short continuance of the struggle against difficulties best known to myself. With certainty this struggle must in any case have terminated in the midst of the business session, with much greater inconvenience to everybody interested."

Liberal party,' Michael Davitt (Anti-Parnellite) has letter in the Daily Chronicle, in which he declares that it is a ridiculous and unwarrantable assumption that the Irish supported Mr. Labouchere's amendment to the address owing to Lord Rosebery's hadly expressed views on home rule. The Irish never doubted the Premier's sincerity. and they were prompted when they voted with Mr. Labouchers merely by the passionate conviction that the House of Lords must be abolished. London, March 14. - During her first visit to Florence in 1888 the Queen took a great fancy to the Villa Fabbricotti, which she has obtained this year. Her Majesty tried to obtain it last year, but Count Fabbricotti-Towner, after whom the villa is called, could not be induced to let it, as he wished to live there himself during the spring. It faces the south and is well ented by her Majesty. The Queen, accompanied by Prince Ienry of Battenburg and his wife, Priness Beatrice, left Windsor at 8:20 this morning for Sheerness, where they emparked on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert for Flushing, Holland, en route for Florence. The British warship Alexan-by King Humbert's nephew, the Duke tof Aosta, who will act as the representative of the King. The royal party will proceed to Coburg after April 19, to attend the marriage of Princess Victoria of Saxe-Coburg and Grand Duke Ernest Louis of Hesse, grandchildren of the Queen. British Parliament.

London, March 14.-The House of Commons was crowded with members and visitors to-day.

Sir William Harcourt announced that the Government had taken advice from a reliable source and had decided to make the declaration that the judgment given last evening in amending the address did not show a mature and well-considered decision of the House of Commons. This was a grave question, he said, and the Government would not present the address as amended to the Queen, consequently the Government proposed to bring up a new address, amounting merely to an acknowledgment of the speech from the throne.

A. J. Balfour, Conservative leader, said the Conservatives would not object to the Government eating its own address. The Opposition had no desire to take advantage of the Government's difficulty, but were prepared to assist in extricating them from their unpleasant position.

Mr. Labouchere, amid cheers and laughter, defended his amendment, the success of which was abundantly justified. It was not intended to hinder the Ministers in regard to these purely formal documents, the Queen's speech and the address in reply

Joseph Chamberlain said the vote of the last evening must either he rescinded or remain in the shape of a vote of want of confidence. The Government ought to dissolve Parliament, and seek a fresh mandatefrem the country.

Sir William Harcourt's motion to rescind the address ar amended, and substitute one merely acknowledging the Queen's speech, was agreed to without a division.

The amendment to the address offered last night by John J. Clancey (Parnellite) impugning the Government for virtually continuing in Ireland the policy of the late Government was put to a division and rejected, 351 to 15.

The original address was then withdrawn, and Sir William Harcoust formally moved, and John Morley seconded, the new and shorter address acknowledging the Queen's speech. The new address was adopted without division. Mr. Labouchere, in the course of his remarks defending his amendment to the address which was passed by a vote of 147 to 145, said it was not intended as a vote of want of confidence in the Government, but was merely intended to hasten their action. A majority of the Government's supporters in the country had demanded the abolition of the veto power of the House of Lords, and the Government should take some action in the matter. The Radicals would not oppose a substitute for the address as amended, but would rest satisfied with having done their best, as attested by the majority given his amendment last evening. Continuing, Mr. Labouchere said: "You may withdraw this address and bring in another, but the first one remains the decision of the House of Commons. We are the representatives of the people and the Government are our representatives. I do not recognize that the Government are my masters. I always regarded them as the servants of the majority of the House. Whether you take the majority of the members on this side of the House or the majority of the Liberals outside the House they are with me in this matter and demand prompt, speedy and drastic action. (Radical cheers.) Outside the House they do not care whether you abolish or destroy the House of Lords." Mr. Labouchere was frequently interrupted by cheers and Parnellite Manifesto.

London, March 15 .- The Parnellites have sent out another manifesto. They point out that their previous warnings as regards the slighting of Irish rights under the new Government have been verified much sooner than they expected. No crisis so grave as the present one, they say, has arisen since the death of Parnell. They close their manifesto with a call for a national congressin Dublin on April 3.

Donovan, who is now at Mount Clemens, Mich., will enjoy reading that he may be "debarred" from playing in the States, and that he is a Canadian.

Manager Chapman is a believer in Anson's theory of signing ball players. The latter always had great faith in placing 'youngsters" on his team. He has steadily year after year been on the lookout for promising players in the amateur ranks. Chapman follows "Pop" Anson's management, as he never lets a chance go by of giving an amateur with a record a trial. His Louisville experience gave him unbounded faith in doing this. He brought out there young Jennings, who developed into a fast player in one season.

Mike Kelly, who is with "O'Dowd's Neighbors Company," says he will star next year in his own play called "The Irish Adonis. What a failure it will be if it has the poor success he has had on the diamond the past two seasons.

New York papers are already claiming the championship-the same as last year. Without doubt they have strengthened their team by singing such players as Farrell, Meekin and Van Haltern. DOWN ON CHICAGO

Is Stead, the English Editor-A Conservative Country.

London, March 15 .- The Daily News publishes to-day an interview with William T. Stead, who recently completed his studies of Chicago life. Mr. Stead made a violent and general onslaught on the corruptness of Chicago, its aldermen, law courts and other organs of authority. He said that Americans generally had more to learn from the old world than the old world had to learn from them. "In Russia one is likelier to be converted to Republicanism," he said "than in the United States. Nothing in America strikes an Englishman more forcibly than the radical distrust of the sovereign people. One simply stands aghast upon coming to the country from England. I have never been in a more conservative country since I lett Russia."

Circumscribed Tariff Legislation and a Eankruptcy law Promised.

OTTAWA, March 15 .- This day at 3 o'clock the Governor-General proceeded in state to the chamber of the Senate in the Parliament buildings and took his seat upon the throne. The members of the Senate being assembled, and the members of the House of Commons summoned to the chamber of the Senate, his Excellency was pleased to open the fourth session of the seventh Parliament of Canada with the following speech:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons: In the Queen's name I greet you for the first time since assuming the high function entrusted to me by her Majesty, and it is with feelings of liveliest satisfaction that I thus meet you assembled for the labors of another session of Parliament. This feeling of satisfaction is enhanced by the opportunities which I have already enjoyed of visiting, and in my official capacity renewing acquaintances with several of the chief centers of the enterprise and activity of this Dominion. Nor need I refrain from assuring you that I have been deeply impressed by the heartiness of the reception accorded to me as her Majesty's viceroy and representative, a reception which has diality and the public spirit of the Canadian people.

My predecessor was able to express gratification to you last year on an increase in trade and on the continued progress in observe that the expectation which was during the then current year would exceed that of any year in the history of the of stability and permanence. Dominion, we have been free from any The other reports submitted were of extensive financial disaster or widespread distress. The revenues of the year have been ample for the services which you provided for, and have met the expectations on which the appropriations of last year were based.

The peaceful conclusion, by the award of the arbitrators at Paris, of the controversy which had prevailed so long, with respect to the seal fisheries in the Pacific Ocean and the rights of British subjects in the Bering Sea, has removed the only source of contention which existed between Great Britain and the United States with regard to Canada. There is every reason to believe that her Majesty's Government will obtain redress for those Canadian subjects of her Majesty who were deprived of their property and liberty without just cause while the controversy was in progress.

At an early date a measure will be laid before you, having for its object a revision of the duties of customs with a view to meet the changes which time has effected in business operations of all kinds throughout the Dominion. While my Ministers do not propose to change the principles on which the existing enactments on this subject are based, the amendments which will be offered for your consideration are designed to simplify the operation of the tariff, and to lessen, as far as can be done consistently with those principles and with the requirements of the treasury, the imposts which are now in force.

There will also be laid before you a measure on the subject of bankruptcy and insolvency, which will, it is hoped, make more adequate provision than now exists on that subject for the increasing trade and commerce of the country, and for the greatly expanded trade between the several provinces of Canada. Measures will also be submitted to you making more effective provisions for our lines of steam communication on the Atlantic and Pacifie Oceans; for improving the law with regard to Dominion lands and with regard to the management of Indian affairs; also a bill respecting joint stock companies, another with respect to the fisheries, and several less important measures which experience has suggested with regard to various matters under your control.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: The public accounts will be submitted to you at an early date, and also the estimates of the expenditure which has been considered necessary for the ensuing year.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons: While it is hoped that the public measures which will demand your attention will not be very numerous, some of them will be of great weight and importance, and it is my earnest hope and prayer that the care and zeal which you will apply to the deliberations of the session may be aided

THE SINGLE TAX

Discussed by the Workingmen in Labor Hall.

Messrs. Ashplant. Marks, Hargreaves and Barter Opposed to Henry George's Theory-Mr. Johnston for It-The Opinions Expressed.

The single tax theory as set forth by Henry George was debated in the United Labor Hall on Dufferin avenue, last even-The large audience which listened with interest to the discussion was composed mainly of workingmen, representing every union in the city. Mr. John Stiling was chosen to act as

MR. H. B. ASHPLANT opened the debate. Mr. Ashplant attacked the single tax theory. In a nutshell it meant a tax on land values only. At the present time the Government had placed taxes on many articles. Liquor was taxed, buildings were taxed, and in the city dogs, too, were taxed. Henry George says: "We already take some rent in taxation. We have only to make some changes in our mode of taxation to take it all. What I therefore propose is the simple yet sovereign remedy which will raise wages, increase the earnings of capital, abolish poverty, lessen crime, elevate morals and intelligence, purify government, and carry civilization to yet nobler heights; and to do all this I propose to appropriate rent for taxation. Taxes may be imposed upon the value of land until all rent is taken by the State without reducing the wages one iota or without increasing the price of a single commodity." Mr. Ashplant said he could not believe it would bring the benefits claimed. It was in his opinion a huge scheme of spoliation and misappropriation. Henry George had proposed to rob Peter to pay Paul. If a man bought and paid for a lot in London and the single tax came in force shortly after the owner could not realize the price paid. The single tax would create an excitement in the land values for a time. But a temporary excitement caused by a change in the tariff would not be permanent. In New Zealand and other places it was said to have had a good effect. One should wait for the final result. The temporary excitement was not yet over. Take for granted that single tax obtained in Toronto. Some ten or twenty years ago there was a great boom in land values there, but to-day the manufacturing and trading classes were reaping the wealth, while the land owners had houses that they could not rent for a good return. He thought the Patrons of Industry would soon drop the idea of single tax if they passed without amendment. looked further into it. The great trouble of society was under-consumption-starvation on one hand and gluttony on the other. The manufacturers did not overproduce, but the cause of the trouble was the turning of the men out of work, the only true remedy for which should bring equal consumption with production. Single tax could not bring about this remedy; it would increase production, while it would not show how one is to consume what he produces. What was really needed was legislation that would benefit the brotherhood of man. (Applause.)

MR. JOHN JOHNSTON briefly stated himself to be in favor of single tax, but wanted the discussion to spread over two or three evenings in order that the subject could be given justice.

MR. JOHN HARGREAVES. Mr. Hargreaves objected to the name single tax, which was tax on land and land only. He held that it was not right in its basis. According to Henry George, the community has a right to all land. But supposing a government adopted that system, they should be allowed only to expropriate the land to the best interests of the community. Mr. Hargreaves further claimed that when the tax was shifted upon the land only, the taxes had to be paid by the land industry only. Why should the farmer in a new country be taxed for his labors, while the mechanic in the city was not taxed for his labor? The idea of Henry George had been said to abolish monopolies. It might abolish a few but more would crop up-and the opolies. Mr. Hargreaves strongly expressed himself in favor of the Government taking over all street railways, railroads, lighting of streets and coal mines.

MR. JOSEPH T. MARKS, in speaking to the question, quoted from the platform of the Industrial Brotherhood, in which they asked that land, including all the natural sources of wealth, should was wrong to say that single tax or any cutter. other tax was going to remedy the great social problem. The evil does not exist from taxes; it is created by the great system of spoliation. Mr. Marks, in speaking of money making, said that if he wanted to make money he would like to go to Ottawa and be a Cabinet Minister at $8,000 a year. (Hear, hear.) Then he could put his relations into good situations at good salaries and even send one to the old country. (Hear, hear.) He could not agree with the single tax movement.

MR. THOMAS BARTER could get along with Henry George and his theory until he came to the last conclusion of the author. That was in regard to the nationalization of land, and the Government had never given up its right to take any land back. The theory was, in his opinion, simply another little flag for the boys to float.

When Mr. Barter concluded it was nearly 11 o'clock, and several started for home, among them Mr. Cummings, who had made a statement contradictory to Mr. Ashplant. Mr. Ashplant challenged him to meet him on any platform and discuss the question. Mr. Keene said that because a person came to make a few remarks it was no reason he should be challenged. Mr. Cummings-I did not come to debate the question. I simply came to Mr. Johnston-If Mr. Ashplant wants to debate the question on a public platform I am willing to meet him.

The meeting then adjourned. David Powell, governor of the Bank of England, announces that $250,000 has been set apart to meet the losses occasioned by ex-Cashier May. The Parkhurst Municipal League, moral reformers, will put a full ticket in the field

The Williams Murder Trial at Simcoe-A Host of Witnesses.

BRAMPION, Ont., March 15 .- The second day's trial of the Williams murder case has not elicited anything of importance that has not already been published. MacWherrell appears more anxious as the trial progresses, and listens to the evidence with the closest attention, but Walker is as careless and unconcerned as ever.

The skulls of the two murdered victims were produced in court and caused a shudder to pass over the spectators. Thus far about about 25 witnesses have been examined for the crown leaving 35 still to be called. The defense will have 30 witnesses, soithat if a verdict is reached by Saturday night some fast work will have to be done or night sessions held. As the prisoners were being taken back to jail tonight they were met by a bevy of young ladies, to whom! McWherrell bowed and raised his hat. At this the crowd jeered and groaned.

BRAMPTON, March 15-(Special).-The evidence to-day in the MacWhirrell and Walker trial traces the movements of the prisoners after their return to Toronto and the efforts to dispose of the horse and cutter. A city newsboy identified a pocketbook which was first proven to have been the property of old man Williams. He had bought the purse from Walker, who cautioned him not to let anyone see it. The purse was identified by the threads of silk used in mending. Detective Slevin, who captured Walker after he had taken flight to Havelock station, C. P. Mr. Hyman's Address London's Popular Member-Elect on Public Affairs.

No Paid Cfficial of Toronto Can Repre sent London in the Legislature.

At the close of Hon. David Mills' address before the London Young Liberal Club on Monday night there were loud calls for Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P. When Mr. Hyman's voice could be heard above the cheering, he spoke substantially as follows: I have had very much pleasure with you in listening to the discourse of my friend, Hon. Mr. Mills. I don't know anyone that is harder to follow than Mr. Mills. If there is anything designed to give people a small idea of themselves or their abilities it is to attempt to speak after a gentleman of so wide and extended knowledge as my friend Mr. Mills. The address that we have just listened to is one that we must all be glad to hear. I have noticed from the papers that there seems to be some difficulty in the ranks of our opponents as to who will lead them in the next battle.

A Voice-Judge Elliot. (Laughter.) Mr. Hyman-I am speaking now of the Dominion as a whole rather than locally. The Conservative party don't seem to be satisfied with the gentleman that is at the head of them. These men have sown to the wind and now they are reaping the whirlwind. They have bound together the extrems parties in Quebec and Untario. That was all well enough when they were in possession of a man like Sir John A. Macdonald. But now they have a man at their head who may be perfectly competent, but unfortunately on account of his religion they say that he must be deposed and another man placed there. Were it a case of Liberalism, were Sir John Thompson at their head, and his removal contemplated, it would at once be said that he was removed because he was a Catholic. But if he was at the head of the Liberal party, no man could say that we care one iota what a man's religion may be or how he serves his God. (Applause.) All we ask is that he shall be an upright man. (Cheers.) THE WILSON BILL.

Mr. Hyman touched on matters affecting Canada in the tariff legislation of the United States. "Notwithstanding the wide range of the Wilson bill as reported in the Squate, it has come back from that body greatly mutilated," said he. "A great many articles which in the original bill were on the free list are now to be subject to duties of 20 and 40 percent. Had a Liberal Administration been in power at Ottawa to-day such would not have been the case. The Americans find our Government not inclined to enter into untram-meled trade with them. While our politicians may go over to Washington and pretend that they want a reciprocity treaty, we know that their employers and masters, the 'protected' magnifacturers, will not let them have workable reciprocity. It is unfortunate that our present rulers are in power, and just for that reason more than for any other reason has the United States Senate taken it has, and relegated from the free list many articles that would be welcomed as a boon to Canadians." (Ap-

SPECIFIC DUTIES.

Specific duties were roughly handled by the speaker. If the people of this country had any idea of what specific duties really were the present tariff would not remain in force three months. "Over Judge Elliot's signature in the Free Press he makes the broad statement that there is no article in the Canadian tariff subject to a duty of more than 50 per cent. The judge has taken the Canadian tariff and gone carefully over it, and found articles of 30, 40 and 50 per cent. duty, but he, with all his fairness (ironical "Hear, hear") and legal and judicial powers, is not able to that articles of every-day consumption are brought into the country at a duty of 100 per cent., and more under the head of specific duties." LORD ROSEBERY'S POLICY.

Speaking of English attairs and Lord Rosebery, Mr. Hyman said: "I am glad to know that that gentleman has been called upon to assume the highest position on the face of the earth. "I am glad that he has been pleased to show his good-will towards the whole platform that our noble imperial leader, Mr. Gladstone, left to the Liberal party. I am glad to say that peer of the realm though he may be, he is not in any sense going back on the platform, that he is taking up the same fight that they have been waging, because after all what is it? It is simply the fight of the masses against the classes. It is very much more to his credit that he has the backbone and the sturdiness to stand out for what is right and for the workers."

SHOULD OPPOSE MEREDITH. Referring to the coming local election, Mr. Hyman said: "The time has gone by when the majority of citizens of London can permit Mr. Meredith, the city solicitor of a rival city, to be returned unopposed in the city of London. With a Government like what we have in Ontario, the Liberals of London should show respect to it by giving a strong, hearty support to a man who will give it an independent support. (Cheers.) We have in our midst gentlemen who, if they can be persuaded to become candidates, could show Mr. Meredith that the city does not desire to be represented by the solicitor of the city of Toronto. It would be a lasting disgrace to this country and a shame if the Government of Sir Oliver Mowat should be defeated. (Cheers.) I have no fears that when the day of voting arrives the revered statesman now at the head of affairs will be driven from power.'

In conclusion Mr. Hyman referred to his late visit to Hamilton, and to Mr. Mills eforts on behalf of tariff reform. The Conservatives would probably make a show at reforming the tariff in the coming session, but it would be a very small tariff reformation that the country would get from the Conservatives at Ottawa. They are not at liberty to radically reform the tax list-their masters will not let them.

.-The new British Premier has consented to deliver an address at the Scottish Liberal Conference in Edinburgh, on Saturday next. dress, Mr. Hughes, as is well known, is first and always a Conservative politician, and he readily recognizes the aim of the projectors of the latest anti-Catholic organization. In London and elsewhere these leaders are working, tooth and nail, to make their association a donkey engine to the Provincial Conservative machine, with the object of securing the defeat of Sir Oliver Mowat, who is himself a Presbyterian elder and a better Protestant than they can name as being in their ranks. The animus of Mr. Hughes' address throughout is apparent. He makes it quite plain that, professed strong Protestant though he is, he is ardently desirous of securing the de feat of Sir Oliver Mowat, while he is ready to work for the continued success of Sir John Thompson. How sorry Mr. Gladstone will be to learn that Mr. Hughes rejoices over his retirement, and welcomes with honeyed words the advent of Lord Rosebery. As the new Premier has hitherto indorsed the policy of Gladstone in its entirety, and has reaffirmed his determination to stand by the programme in future, one fails to see why Britain's Grand Old Man should lie awake at nights devising means to pacify the irreconcilable Toronto

DOMINION PARLIAMENT TO-DAY. Partly by luck and partly by manipulation, Sir John Thompson meets Parliament, on its assembly for the session of 1894 this afternoon, with only two fewer followers than sat behind him last year.

Where seats were rendered vacant, as in Winnipeg, they were captured by the Liberals, solely on their unassailable tariff platform. Hence the Administration not being ready to show its hand, refrained from opening any seats that could possibly be avoided, and it so happened that only two members on the Conservative side were removed by death.

The conditions were so critical that though several of his parliamentary following were promised offices, and the public service is suffering because the offices are left vacant, Sir John Thompson has not dared to open these places How long this distrust of the constituencies will continue remains to be seen. The striking fact at present is that it exists and cannot be removed unless the tax system now in force is radically changed. We much fear that when the promised changes are brought down, as they must be soon, they will be such as not to give much hope to the populace.

EX-GOVERNOR ROYAL'S CONFES-SION.

Hon. Joseph Royal, late Lieutenan Governor of the Northwest Territories, and a leader of the Conservative party in Canada, publishes a pamphlet in which he discusses the political situation with an admixture of contention regarding the position of his co-religionists. Though not agreeing with D'Alton McCarthy, another dissentient Conservative, on this point, Mr. Royal is at one with the member for North Simcoe in conceding that the "N. P. system of trade restriction is a thorough failure. Canada, he contends, needs most of all an ample market. He maintains that the best, because the nearest and largest market for Canadian producers, is the United States; that the British market is far inferior to it in point of importance, and that in order to be able to avail themselves of the United States market on the best possible terms Canadians should be in a position to make their own trade arrangements with foreign countries, For this reason this Conservative leader advocates Canadian independence. No doubt, Canada will be a nation in due time. But if Mr. Royal and those members of the Conservative party who believe with him are in earnest regarding the disadvantages of a "protective" tariff and its corollary of trade restriction, they will not wait for the declaration of Canadian independence before they set earnestly to work for trade emancipation. We can vastly add to our trade freedom with the United States as well as with Great Britain if we put in power a government at Ottawa which honestly favors a policy that will work towards enabling us to buy and to sell as freely as is possibly consistent with the collection of the revenue necessary to economically govern the country. Hitherto, the in the pay of the combines have held sway, and have thwarted every genuine move towards obtaining near and profitable markets. We hope that Mr. Royal has not been put up by them to start a new issue so as to divert attention from the task of the immediate future. Sensible Canadians will not consent to thresh out the political destiny of this country at this time if the effect is to permit the continuance of the policy of blundering and plundering at Ottawa. Their primary duty is to get rid of the restrictionist hosses. Then the work of tearing down the trade barriers will be comparatively easy. In accomplishing this task there should be cordial co-operation among all loyal Canadians, no matter what their party affiliations may have been,

(Kingston Whig.) One-sixth of the revenue of the Province goes to education, and one-fifth to the maintenance of public institutions. THE BARNACLES MUST GO. The indorsation of Mr. Labouchere's motion to abolish the veto power of the House of Lords, which was the sensation of the British House of Commons on Tuesday night, was not a defeat of the Government. It was simply a strong manifestation of the Radical views of the British people. Every Government in that country must go forward and abolish all class privileges that operate unfairly. What is being done in the motherland must be copied in Canada, or improved upon, as the circumstances demand. One of these days the Liberals of the Dominion will be in power at Ottawa. They will be in the majority in the popular chamber, as we believe they now are in the country. Will they submit to have their measures emasculated and destroyed by a so-called upper chamber, the large majority of whom owe their position to one of two causes-(1) they were rejected by the people when they sought election to the popular chamber; or (2) they had proved them selves to be the willing agents of the men that gave them the office?

To permit a set of men so made up to thwart the passage of good Liberal legislation would be simply intolerable. The Dominion Senate, as at present constituted, is nearly as repulsive to the correct views of popular government as is the House of Lords. And if, when the Liberals come into power at the next general election, it attempts to prevent the speedy passage of progressive Liberal legislation, the demand for its mending or ending will be so great that it will be brought about with a speed that will astonish the barnacles.

THE WAR IS OVER.

No one will regret that the Brazilian war sover. There is in that country a population of between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 persons, and, as a result of the row between President Peixoto and Admiral Da Gama, a civil war has prevailed for many months, paralyzing business within the Republic and injuring trade between it and its many customers on both sides of the Atlantic. The election of a new President took place the other day, but that was not the chief reason for the capitulation of Da Gama. He was hemmed in in the harbor of Rio Janeiro by the fleet purchased by the Brazilian Government to take the place of the vessels with which he revolted. To seaward were these powerful warships and torpedo boats; on the land were the Government-manned forts. Da Gama had to fight or surrender. He chose the safest course, as the chances were strongly in favor of the sinking of his ships if he had esolved to combat the odds against him. The people of Brazil will much discredit RADWAY & CO., Montreal, Canada. republican institutious upon this continent if, when Congress meets in May, they do not at once set about making arrangements whereby parliamentary or other domestic questions may in future be settled without the costly arbitration of arms. Bloody methods of settling disputes should be left to the savages.

One good effect of the cessation of the hostilities will be a revival of British trade. When commerce is uninterrupted between the two nations they have a trade of over $50,000,000 a year with each other. It is needless to say that the war has had an injurious effect on international barter.

What will be the fate of the discomfited insurgent admiral is not known. Had he been successful the cry on the streets of Rio de Janeiro to-day would be, "Viva Da Gama!" As it is, the cry is, "Viva Peixoto!" Such is the fortune of war. If you are successful, you are to patriot; if defeated, a rebel.

MR. HYMAN, M. P. IN HAMILTON.

[Hamilton Times.] Mr. Hyman, of London, drew attention to the fact that there are two classes of manufacturers-those who depend upon Government assistance for their profits, and those who depend upon the growth and the general prosperity of the country, and are willing to take their chances with the agricultural and professional classes, upon an equal basis, in the race for a living. He announced himself as a manufacturer of the latter class, and we can assure Mr. Hyman that there are manufacturers in Hamilton who regard the tariff question just as he does, especially since they have seen how much more harm than good protection has done to Canada as a whole. Mr. Hyman's fine appearance and splendid delivery, as well as the actual value of the matter in his speech, delighted the audience. Discusses a Proposal to Do Away With the Government House.

Hon. G. W. Ross Suggests That the Electors Decide the M atter.

The Government Sustained by a Majority of Eighteen Votes-Riennial Sessions Proposed and Discussed.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

PARLIAMENT HOUSE, TORONTO, March 14 .-Hon. G. W. Ross delivered his expected speech on the Government House abolition debate this afternoon to a crowded house. He said that whether the Government House was necessary or not, the present Government was not responsible for its existence. It was built through the action and concurrence of the Sanfield Macdonald Administration. The responsibility of the present Government was therefore mostly connected with maintenance. All the provinces, with the exception of New Brunswick, had government houses; the Prime Minister of England had an official residence in Downing street, and the President of the United States was provided with a mansion. It was evidently an open question whether, with all our democratic notions, an institution which seemed to be the rule rather than the exception in be abolished. It had been said that the Government House was unnecessary. This assertion could be applied to many things. The mace upon the table, the coat of arms over the Speaker's chair and the capacious chamber in which he was speaking were unnecessary. If they were to adopt the policy of abolishing everything that was unnecessary they must adopt a system primitive simplicity that would not comport well with the advanced spirit of the age. He did not claim that the Government House was absolutely necessary to the successful transaction of public business, but he did not concur with the Opposition that Government House was entirely unnecessary. Rideau Hall, erected and maintained with the concurrence of both the Liberal and Conservative Governments, had been built in 1868, at a cost of $82,000. Since then $547,143 had been spent in repairs, alterations and maintenance, or six times the original cost. During its whole history Rideau Hall had cost the Dominion $1,001,575. In comparison with this outlay the Provincial Government House had been inexpensive. If Government House was unnecessary, what reason was there for giving it a three delay in the meeting of Corbett and Jack- years' longer lease of life? If what the honorable gentleman opposite maintained arranged in London within the next 60 in this respect was true, it should be abolished at once. No one in his (Mr. Ross') experience had ever offered any valid reasons why the Government House Buffalo Express: Inspector De Barry has should be swept from existence, and he be- but the "real stuff." The vessel is as comsent a communication to the Treasury De- lieved that there was no such agitation in modious as the workmanship displayed on partment, as he stated he would do, asking the country regarding this subject as was it is intricate and ingenious. Tall and for a ruling on the question brought up by stated by the Opposition. Anyhow, in beautifully proportioned as Miss Morris is, view of the fact that the provisions of the players, Johnson and Mulhall, to play on motion (were it carried) would not become the Buffalo team this season. The point to be decided is this, is baseball playing a the Government proposed was that the whole question should be referred to the electors. Their views could be clearly ascertained when the members went before their constituents, as they would shortly do. Mr. McCallum (East Lambton) referred to the prevalent depression throughout the Province, and said that in view of this it was reasonable to expect the Government would adopt a policy of the most stringent economy. In the absence of a better motion, he intended to support that before the House. He thought the office of Lieutenant-Governor should be abolished. He expected they would find, after the general election was over, that a considerable number of independent men such as himself would occupy seats in the chamber. Dr. Willoughby said that the Govern-ment should put themselves on record. The people, then, would either support or con-demn them. He was going to support the

Mr. Campbell (Algoma East) rose amid cries of "Question!" "Question!" He held that the Province could not afford to further maintain the Government House. Mr. Marter concluded the debate, and then the members were called in. The vote upon the amendment to the amendment stood 50 yeas and 32 nays-a majority for the Government of 18. Two members of the Administration-Messrs. Snider and Kirkwood-voted with the minority, as did Mr. McNaughton (Patron) and Mr. McCallum (P. P. A.) Four members of the Opposition and three of the Government were absent.

The first amendment and the original motion as amended were then declared carried on the same division. The management of the Agricultural Department was again made the subject of criticism. In connection with a motion for a return showing the full amount of the Government grant to the Agricultural and Arts Board during the past five years, Mr. Preston (Leeds) asserted that the grants for the purpose should be discontinued and divided among the different agricultural societies throughout the Province. He also objected to the Minister of Agriculture making so many political speeches throughout the Province. Mr. Meredith's resolution affirming that biennial sessions would sufficiently meet the requirements of the public service and at the same time effect a large reduction in the expenditure of the Province for legislation, was debated. After stating that the motion embodied a constitutional reform, Mr. Meredith attempted to show that the cost of civil government in Canada, populated by only 5,000,000 people, was excessively costly. At the time of Confederation civil government in Upper and Lower Canada cost $922,722 31, while last year, throughout the whole Confederacy, $3,800,-000 were spent on the same item. In Canada at the present time there were seven Legislatures and 67 Cabinet Ministers — altogether too many to govern such a small body of people. He thought it was unpecessary that the House most House meet more than once in every two years. There was too much tinkering with the legislation of the country. Year-ly sessions induced a continual amendment of the law. In the neighboring Union tour of the States had adopted the biennial session principle, while the Mississippi Legislature met. lature met only every four years. Mr. Meredith then went on to argue that it was within the power of the Ontario Legislature to decide on holding biennial sessions. One section of the British North America Act did indeed provide that the sessions of the Provincial Houses should be hele annually, but a subsequent section modified this provision, and affirmed the section of the provision, and affirmed the right of a province to Governor or abridge his power. He hoped that the Government would meet the issue without shirking.

length. He said that the leader of the Opposition had been struggling for a score of years by every means in his power to accede to office. He had attempted to popularize Conservatism and failed. Now he tried the Radical dodge and jeered at old institutions. He would fail, however, as signally in the latter role as in the former. Sir Oliver did not think that the proposal embodied a reform. It was against the public interest. If the Opposition won at the next general elections, which was altogether unlikely, they would find themselves pledged to biennial sessions. They would then have two years supply voted them. During that time they might indulge in every kind of iniquity and the populace would have no redress. If the people wished biennal sessions, though, it was in the interests of the Government to adopt the principle. He thought that the leader of the Opposition had exaggerated the pecuniary saving that would result. Supposing $60,000 cost were incurred, representing 2 per cent. on $2,000,000, surely it was to the advantage of the people-even if the small rate of interest mentioned was consumed through the method-that the system of audit annually supplied by a session of the House should not be discontinued. It was just as reasonable to argue that a bank should have an inspection every two years. No one, however, had ever heard of any well-regulated financial institution so conducted. Mr. Mowat was about to object to biennial sessions on the ground that it would deprive members of a valuable training, when Mr. Meredith interjected "Better come every six months."

"Oh, well," returned Mr. Mowat, "draw the line somewhere." Mr. Mowat, proceeding, said while economy was of the very greatest importance, it should be other no less democratic countries should borne in mind that saving was not always economy. It was not in this instance. He could confidently say to the country that the system of annual sessions, notwithstanding the cost, was infinitely superior to that now proposed.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) spoke. Mr. O'Connor moved an amendment that the sessional indemnities of members hereafter be $6 per day for 30 days, and if the session was prolonged over that period $300 in all. This, he thought, was the best means of saving.

Mr. Clancy went one better by moving as an additional amendment that the amendment just mentioned should be incorporated into the original motion. Mr. Guthrie moved the adjournment of the debate at 11 o'clock.

FREDDY AND LOUISE. Miss Morris Marries One of Mrs

Langtry's Former Admirers-A Unique Gitt. BALTIMORE, Md., March 14 .- Miss Louise Morris and Fred Gebhard were married at noon to-day. The wedding was a very quiet affair. NEW YORK, March 14.—The important news was flashed over the wife from Baltimore yesterday that the last present of the gallant Freddy Gebhard to Miss Louise Morris was a solid silver bathtub, not one of those common everyday German silver, she will be able to disport herself in this pink toes at one end of it or abrasing her scalp by sudden contact with the other. This little piece of boudoir furniture is beautifully embossed. The exterior resembles a perfectly laid out flower garden in miniature, while the interior is delicately chased. On the bottom of the tub are embossed Miss Morris' initials in huge letters. It weighs 200 pounds avoirdupois weight. The market price for silver at present is 83 cents per ounce. In this double-decked and triple-riveted vessel suggestive of female sybaritism there are 3,200 ounces. At 83 cents at ounce this amounts to $2,656 for the metal alone. Silver workers in New York who were allowed to feast their eyes on the beautiful vessel before it was swathed in tinted cotton and soft tissue paper, preparatory to being sent to Miss Morris, say that it could not possibly be made for less than $2,500. This brings the cost of the gift up to $5,156. The interior of the bathtub is fitted up with receptacles for soap, brushes, sponges, etc., and near the head of it is a dainty silver manicure set. There is also a comfortable head-rest, with an open space for a rubber air-pillow, should the fair user desire to take a dolce-far-niente bath. Altogether this little piece of water bric-a-brac is decidedly Gebhardesque.

Some of the odd personal names met with in this country originated in English workhouses, where it used to be a common thing, as Dickens intimates in "Oliver Twist," to name foundlings for some utensil about the asylum, or for anything else that might strike the stupid fancy of the authorities. Model tenement houses have paid well in London. Sir Sydney Waterlow made the first experiment of the kind in 1890 when he built at his own expense four blocks in Work street, Finsbury. The buildings accommodated eighty families, or 400 persons, and such was their success that in three years, in conjunction with several friends he started the Improved Industrial Dwellings Company, of which he forty-five estates in London. TAXING THE CORPSES.

Having Frin with a Busybody Would-b Political Leader.

(Hamilton Herald.) Dr. Ryerson not only wants to tax churches, but he is after the poor corpses in the cemeteries for ground rent. Just what he means to do with the bleached bones of the departed is a question that is causing some concern. flames started at the oven. The Collegiate Institute Conversaz-Prescriptions

The preparations for the conversazione to be held in the Collegiate Institute Thursday, March 22, gives promise of one of the best entertainments of the kind ever offered to the citizens of London. Few people are aware of the accommodation of the building as it is now complete. There are two large assembly rooms, one upstairs and one downstairs, each of which is capable of seating about 500 comfortably. Besides these are thirteen class rooms, a physical laboratory, a chemical daboratory, a drill hall as large as the assembly rooms and a gymnasium. The building, therefore, is capable of holding over 1,000 guests.

It will all be illuminated and handsomely decorated. The citizens on arriving will be shown to comfortable dressing rooms, and every effort will be made to conduct this in a manner satisfactory to all. In the upper assembly hall a concert will take place at 8:15 sharp, and in the assembly hall downstairs there will be a series of the finest colored views, exhibited with the electric lantern. The attractions will take place simultaneously in the two assembly halls, and when both are over the audiences will keep their seats, and the views will be exhibited upstairs, while in the lower assembly hall another concert of the same length and equally as good as the first will be rendered. The students wish it distinctly understood that everyone will be able to hear, see and enjoy the whole pro-

The talent taking part in the concerts needs no recommendation to a London audience. Mrs. Agnes Thompson, since her residence in Chicago, has won the reputation of being the best soprano in the Western States, and appeared all last season with the Theodore Thomas Orchestra. Mrs. Agnes Knox Black has returned from her trip to Scotland with freshly-won laurels as the best Canadian dramatic reciter. Mr. Wm. Moxon is already favorably known as a pianist, and the Glee Club, led by Mr. Chas. Wheeler, and the Opera House Orchestra complete the list of performers. At the close of the concerts the orchestra will play selections for a promenade concert, and the visitors will be welcome to inspect all parts of the building. In the nasium the apparatus will be shown in use, while in the physical and chemical laboratories other attractions will take place. Everyone is assured a good seat.

THE W. A. M. A.

Conclusion of the Seventh Annual Session-Missionary Service at Crenyn Hall.

WEDNESDAY MORNING. The business of the W. A. M. A. was resumed this morning at 10 o'clock. The

The question drawer was opened, the questions being read by the president and a splendid address, speaking principally March 14. swered by different members of the society.

Mrs. Young, of Athabasca, gave a very interesting description of their journey by boat and ox team to their first mission field, Vermillion, N. W. T. She also explained their methods and the work that is being accomplished among the Beaver Indians. Bishop and Mrs. Young have spent six years among the Indians of the ling. When they came in to trade the lowest rates, G. N. WEEKES, T. W. Scanspent six years among the Indians of the Northwest. At the conclusion of Mrs. Young's address she was tendered a standing vote of thanks.

The Bishop of Huron, in addressing the ladies of the W. A. M. A., congratulated them upon the good which they have accomplished through God's blessing. He explained that the work of the association is threefold, affecting the great foreign field of missions, the vast outlying dioceses of the north, and our own diocesan work. In conclusion his lordship urged the ladies to go forward in the great work of evangelizing the world, and expressed his good wishes for the success of this noble association, which he trusted had been founded and sustained by the blessing and grace of God. He then pronounced the benediction and the meeting adjourned.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON. The afternoon session opened at 2:30 o'clock. Reports from different committees were submitted, and an Indian delegate from Munceytown read a letter giving an account of the work being done there.

Mrs. Lenfestey, of Strathroy, read a paper on "Juvenile Branches," and was tendered a very hearty vote of thanks for her interesting and instructive essay.

Mrs. Baldwin read a paper on their travels last year in the east, giving a description of the scenery, people, and their peculiar and, in some cases, picturesque dress. On their trip up the Nile they were delayed sixteen hours by the worst sand storm that had occurred for years. Mrs. Baldwin said that the saddest sight witnessed while in the east was the lepers-a sight which once seen would never be forgotten. The audience was delighted with the description, and tendered Mrs. Baldwin a standing vote of thanks.

After an intermission for conversation. Mrs. Young addressed the children in a very entertaining manner, and Mrs. Chaunce sang an Indian hymn.

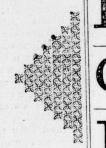

The Rev. Dean Innes introduced Bishop Young, of Athabasca, who gave an address principally to the children, and told them that although they were small they, too, might help on the mission work. His lordship repeated the Lord's Prayer in the Indian language, and the meeting was closed with the benediction. WEDNESDAY EVENING.

Bishop Baldwin presided at the missionary meeting in connection with the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Association of Huron diocese in Cronyn Hall last night. The hall was crowded. The bishop, in his opening remarks, referred to the auxiliary as one of the bright hopes for the future which the diocese contained. The work of the auxiliary brought a blessing of Near Chicago. CHICAGO, March 15 .- Detectives yesterday discovered the most elaborate wire tapping plant ever seen in this country near the Roberg race track. It was located in an unused hotel three-quarters of a mile from the track. Five men were in the place when the raid was made but all escaped. Two men, however, were recognized, Jim Turner and a sporting character named Hill. Over $1,500 worth of telegraph instruments, including duplex and qrauduplex sets and 160 cells of battery. were found. The establishment was well furnished with beds, bedding, cooking utensils, etc. The detectives found copies of every dispatch that has passed over the wires between Chicago and Robey for the past five days. Letters were also found showing that men in all parts of the country were implicated in the scheme. The plan was apparently to delay the results of the Robey races until money had been placed in the pool rooms of the country.

It was then, my thoughts turning to the lady who was now so near, and who. noble, rich, and a stranger, seemed, as I approached her, not the least formidable of the embarrassments before me—it was the that I made a discovery which sent a cold shiver through my frame, and in a moment swept all memory of my paltry 10 crowns from my head. Ten crowns! Alas! I had lost that which was worth all my crownsput together—the broken coin which the King of Navarre had entrusted to me, and which formed my sole credential, my cn'y means of persuading Mademoiselle de la Vire that I came from him. I had put it in my pouch, and of course, though the loss of it only came home to my mind now, it had disap-peared with the rest.

I drew rein and sat for some time motionless, the image of despair. The wind which stirred the naked boughs overhead, and whirled the dead leaves in volleys past my feet, and died away at last among the whispering bracken, met nowhere with wretchedness greater, I believe, than was mine at that moment.

CHAPTER IV.

My first desperate impulse on discovering the magnitude of my loss was to ride after the knaves and demand the token at the sword's point. The certainty, however, of finding them united, and the difficulty of saying which of the five possessed what I wanted, led me to reject this plan as I grew cooler; and since I did not dream, even in the dilemma, of abandoning the expedition, the only alternative seemed to be to act as if I atill had the broken coin, and essay what a frank explanation might effect when the time came.

After some wretched, very wretched, moments of debate, I resolved to adopt this course; and for the present, thinking I might gain some knowledge of the surroundings while the light lasted, I pushed cautiously forward through the trees and came in less than five minutes within sight of a corner of the chateau, which I found to be a modern building of the time of Henry II., raised, like the houses of that time, for pleasure rather than defense, and decorated with many handsome casements and tourelles. Despite this, it wore, as I saw it, a gray and desolate air, due in part to the loneliness of the situation and the lateness of the hour; and in part, I think, to the smallness of the household maintained, for no one was visible on the terrace or at the windows. The rain dripped from the trees, which on two sides pressed so closely on the louse as almost to darken the rooms, and erything I saw encouraged me to hope that mademoiselle's wishes would second my entreaties, and incline her to lend a ready ear to my story.

The appearance of the house, indeed, was a strong inducement to me to proceed, for it was impossible to believe that a young lady, a kinswoman of the gay and vivacious Tur-enne, and a ready introduced to the pleasures of the court, would elect of her own free will to spend the winter in so dreary a solitude.

Taking advantage of the last moments of daylight, I rode cautiously round the house, and, keeping in the shadows of the trees, had no difficulty in discovering at the northeast corner the balcony of which I had been told. It was semi-circular in shape, with a stone balustrade, and hung some fifteen feet above a terraced walk which ran below it, and was separated from the chase

I was surprised to observe that, notwithstanding the rain and the coldness of the evening, the window which gave upon this balcony was open. Nor was this all. Luck was in store for me at last: I had not gazed at the window for more than a minute, calculating its height and other particulars, when, to my great joy, a female figure, closely hooded, stepped out and stood lookup at the sky. I was too far off to be able to discern by that uncertain light whether this was Mademoiselle de la Vire or her woman; but the attitude was so clearly one of dejection and despondency, that I felt sure it was either one or the other, Determined not to let the opportunity slip, I dismounted hastily and, leaving the Cid loose, advanced on foot until I stood within half a dozen paces of the window.

At that point the watcher became aware of me. She started back, but did not withdraw. Still peering down at me, she called softly to some one inside the chamber, and immediately a second figure, taller and stouter, appeared. I had already doffed my cap, and I now, in a low voice. begged to know if I had the honor of speaking to Mademoiselle de la Vire. In the growing darkness it was impossible to distinguish

"Hush!" the stouter figure muttered in a tone of warning. "Speak lower. Who are you, and what do you here?"
"I am here," I answered respectfully,
"commissioned by a friend of the lady I have named, to convey her to a place of 'Mon dieu!" was the sharp answer.

"Now? It is impossible."
"No," I murmured, "not now, but to night. The moon rises at half-past two. My horses need rest and food. At three I will be below this window with the means of escape, if mademoiselle choose to use them." I felt that they were staring at me through the dusk, as though they would read my breast. "Your name, sir?" the She says it takes a bushel less of corn to shorter figure murmured at last, after a pause which was full of expense and excite-

"I do not think my name of much import at present, Mademoiselle," I answered, reluctant to proclaim myself a stranger. "Your name, your name, sir!" she repeated imperiously, and I heard her little heel rap upon the stone floor of the balcony. "Gaston de Marsac," I answered unwill-

They both started, and cried out together. "Impossible!" the last speaker exclaimed, amazement and anger in her tone. "This is a jest, sir. This-

What more she would have said I was left to guess, for at that moment her attendant-I had no doubt now which was mademoiselle and which Franchette-suddenly laid her hand on her mistress's mouth and pointed to the room behind them. A second's suspense, and with a warning gesture the two turned and disappeared through the window. I lost no time in regaining the shelter of the trees; and concluding, though I was far from satisfied with the interview, that I could do nothing more now, but might rather, by loitering in the neighborhood, awaken suspicion, I remounted and made for the highway and the village, where I found my men in noisy occupation of the inn, a poor place, with unglazed windows, and a fire in the middle of the earthen floor. My first care was to stable the Cid in a shed at the back, where I provided for its wants as far as I could with the aid of a half-naked boy, who seemed to be in hiding

This done, I returned to the front of the house, having pretty well made up my TEEMING SWARMS OF LONDON. mind how I would set about the task before me. As I passed one of the windows, which was partially closed by a rude curtain made of old sacks, I stopped to look in. Fersnoy and his four rascals were seated on blocks of wood round the hearth, talking loudly and fiercely, and ruffling it as if the fire and the room were their own. A peddler, seated on his goods in one corner, was eving them with evident fear and suspicion; in another corner two children had taken refuge under roosting-pole. The inn-keeper, a sturdy fellow, with a great club in his fist, sat moodily at the foot of a ladder which led to the loft above, while a slatternly woman, who was going to and fro getting supper, seemed in equal terror of her guests and her

Confirmed by what I saw, and assured that the villains were ripe for any mischief, and it not checked, would sneedily be beyond my control, I noisly flung the door open and entered. Fresnoy looked up with a sneer as I did so, and one of the men laughed. The others became silent; but no one moved or greeted me. Without a moment's hesitation I stepped to the nearest fellow and, with a sturdy kick, sent his log from under him. "Rise, you rascal, when I enter!" I cried, giving vent to the anger I had long felt. "And you, too!" and with a second kick I sent his neighbor's stool flying also, and administered a couple of cuts with my riding-cane across the man's shoulders. "Have you no manners, sirrah? Across with you, and leave this side to your betters."

A Man Made Happy.—Gentlemen,— For five years I have been a great sufferer with Dyspepsia; the pain in the pit of my stomach was almost unbearable and life only seemed a drag to me. When I would go to sleep I would have horrible dreams, and my life became very miserable, as there was no rest either day or night. But with the use of only two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY this unhappy state has all been changed and I am a well man. I can assure you, my case was a bad one, and I send you this that it may be the means of convincing others of the wonderful curative qualities possessed by this medicine, that are specially adapted for the cure of Dyspepsia. A lady customer of mine had the Dyspepsia very bad, she could scarcely eat anything, and was troubled with pains similar to those I suffered with; and she cured herself with two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's VEGE-TABLE DISCOVERY. I wish you success with your medicine, as I am fully convinced that it will do all you claim for it.

-"the wen" is going to be truer than it ever has been, if we can trust some remarkably interesting statistics just issued by the London County Council, says the West. minster Budget. One question discussed is whether London is or is not being checked a donkey, which some fowls had chosen as a in its rate of growth. On a first glance at the registrar's figures with regard to Lon. don itself it appeared as though it were. for before 1881-91 London's population was increasing every ten years at a rate vary. ing from 16 to 21 per cent., but in the decade ending with 1891 the rate of increase had only been 10 per cent. "Does this mean," asks the committee of which Mr. Costello is chairman, "that London has reached the turning point, and that in a few years the increase will become a decrease?" The committee finds that it does not. It appears that the true reason for the apparent diminishing rate of increase is that the building space in London is gradually being appropriated, and that the people, aided by improved railway and tramway and omnibus accommodations, are betaking themselves more to outside London residences. Even in Greater London this is noticed to a smaller extent. The rate of increase in population, while still very rapid in Greater London, is beginning to show a tendency to become slower, and it is discovered that the Londoners are moving still further out into the home counties.

Then there are speculations as to what the size of London will be 50 years hence or less upon the milder suppositions. If we do not add any more to the population than the amount per decade that had been added since 1881, it seems that we should have a population in 1941 of close upon 10,000,000. If we allow for a growth at the rate of the natural increase of births over deaths, there will be nearly 11,000,000 in London in that year. If we reckon that London will grow at the average rate of the last three decades we shall be over 14,000,000, but if inner London and outer London go on together growing at the rate they have been growing for the past three tens of years, we are to expect a London population in 1941 of a trifling 17,500,000. If we look at the matter in another way, and as to what population Greater London will contain when it has attained throughout the mean density of well-known areas, we get the following appalling calculation:

densely as Fulham is now the population would be 20,000,000

If it were peopled at the rate of St.

George's, Hanover Square, the total would rise to 30,000,000

Whitechard is a strength of the strength of Whitechapel is now three times as densely peopled as St. George's itself. The moral

-Woodstock Sentinel-Review: "It is said that a syndicate of Buffalo capitalists have in view the construction of an electric railway between London and Woodstock, to be used for the carriage of freight and passengers. The project is as yet in a somewhat indefinite shape, and from advices which have been received would seem to hinge on the granting of certain concessions by the Woodstock town council. It is said that should these be granted the project would soon take definite form, and that the work on the railway would be projected at once."

Saturday's Two Performances. An enjoyable event of the season will unquestionably be the engagement of that charming actress and beautiful woman Marie Wainwright, at the Opera House, matinee and night, Saturday, March 17. It is always a pleasure to see and hear her, and the more so because she invariable sur-Office, 422 Richmond Street | rounds herself with a capital company, and presents plays of indisputable the matinee she will offer the famous English comedy of social life, "An Unequal Match," one of the best of the Haymarket series of plays. No. 3 committee met last night, and or Market Clerk Wilson's recommendation is was decided to spread grave! where needed to raise part of the Covent Garden side walk, and to place cross-bars on the lower windows of the market. In his repor Mr. Wilson objected to Ald. Parnell saying that he (Mr. Wilson) should be made "to earn his bread and butter." With refer-ence to this Ald. Parnell said that it was high time that officials were taught tha they were not allowed to criticise the action of the committee. The clause was eliminated. An effort will be made to have the hide inspector' office vacated. It appears that the tenant is unwilling to move out. Mr. Wilson said that the committee might get into trouble if the tenant was put out, and Ald. Parnell told him that he would get into no trouble if he carried out the committee's instructions. Action will shortly be taken to enforce the payment of licenses by milkmen and others. Tenders will be called for a new shed at the rear of the fire hall. New suits will also be purchased for the firemen. The repairing of No. 1 hose wagon was left to Chief Roe and Chairman Par-nell. The committee began to discuss the specifications for electric lighting, but decided to hold a special meeting for that purpose. Chief Roe submitted his estimate for the year as will receive satisfaction.

The street watering specifications were discussed for an hour but were not changed. The estimate for the year is $4,500. Tenders were then opened. Section 1 was let to Maurice Baldwin at $387, section 2 to Josh Hartly at $391, section 3 to George Smart at $540. No tenderer was allowed more than one section and one tender was thrown out for want of a marked check. The price is $84 more than last year. The estimated market expenditure for the year is $1,600; estimate for lighting, $21,000. The relief wood contract was let to Thomas S. Walls, present contractor, at $4 per cord, all beech wood. The Beginning.

Although the cycling season has barely commenced one wheel has already met a not unusual fate. Mr. H. Mr. Drewe was thrown, but fell clear, while his bicycle was bent and twisted out of all shape.
