

MURDERER MOIR IS CAPTURED AT LAST ARTHUR POLICE SECURE DESPERATE SOLDIER

Fought His Captors Like a Wild Animal Until Subdued.

CLEVER WORK OF OFFICERS

Murderer Was Working on a Farm About Seventy Miles From London.

Pte. W. A. Moir, the brutal slayer of Color-Sergt. Lloyd at Wolsley Barracks on Good Friday night, was captured Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, near Arthur, Ont., by High Constable Farrel and County Constable Coughlin, of Arthur. There is absolutely no doubt that the prisoner is the long-sought Moir, and he will be brought to the city this evening. He was armed when captured, and made a fight.

For some time it has been thought that Moir was in the neighborhood of Guelph, and London officers have been working quietly in that district.

Farmer Gave Information.

Saturday a farmer named Charles Robb, living four miles north of Elora, came into Elora, and informed the chief of police there, Alex. Blacklock, that a man answering the description of the murderer was working for him. The description of the man wanted was compared with that given by Mr. Robb, and they tallied.

Constable Blacklock then phoned Chief Randall, of Guelph, and the latter also came to the conclusion that the hired man on the Robb farm was none other than the Wolsley Barracks soldier.

Chief Randall got an officer to go with him, and he started for the Robb homestead.

Got There First.

In the meantime Constable Farrel, of Arthur, had been notified that the hired man on the Robb farm answered the description of the London murderer. He determined to follow the clue.

Taking Constable Coughlin with him, he drove to the Robb homestead. They reached the farm shortly after 5 o'clock, and made preparations for the capture of the man.

Farrel and Coughlin went to the stable and secreted themselves there. Shortly before 6 o'clock, Moir came in from the field, where he had been working with a team, gathering stones from the land. He was accompanied by David Robb, one of the Robb family.

Posed as Horse Buyers.

Moir began to unharness the horses, and Constable Farrel asked Robb if he would sell the team, as he was looking for a couple of horses.

Robb said he would if he got his price.

Farrel and Coughlin crept closer to the unsuspecting Moir, who was still busily engaged with the harness. Farrel continued to examine the horses, all the while creeping closer and closer to Moir.

Coughlin did the same, Moir never for an instant suspecting their intentions.

Pounced on the Murderer.

Suddenly Farrel gave the signal, and with a spring both pounced on their man.

They threw him to the ground, each man holding an arm.

Moir knew that "the jig was up." He struggled as fiercely as he could. He twisted and turned and swore, but to no avail.

"Dave, Dave," he called, "can't you give a fellow a show," but Robb evi-

STORY OF THE MURDER

The story of the murder is still fresh in the minds of Advertiser readers.

On the night of Good Friday, April 17, Pte. W. A. Moir, orderly to Col. Belton, returned to Wolsley Barracks, shortly before midnight. He had been drinking, but was not drunk enough to be placed in the guard house.

He was met at the entrance by Color-Sergt. Harry Lloyd, who reprimanded Moir on his slovenly dress, and ordered him to report to the officer in charge in the morning for appearing on the streets in improper dress.

Moir argued the point for some time, but left, going to his room in the hospital. Later a shot was heard. Lieut. Morris, who was in charge of the guard, asked Color-Sergt. Lloyd who came in last. He reported that it was Pte. Moir. Lieut. Morris then ordered Color-Sergt. Lloyd to investigate and disarm Moir. Color-Sergt. Lloyd went into Moir's room, followed by Lieut. Morris.

Just as Lloyd was about to approach Moir, the latter leveled his Resse rifle and fired.

The bullet plowed its way clear through the body of Lloyd and he fell on the floor.

Moir chased Morris out into the quadrangle. He then rushed through the grounds, making his escape over the north gate.

Lloyd lived but a few minutes. Moir tramped through the country, going Friday about six miles out of London. He rested all day Saturday, taking up a tramp Saturday evening. He went as far as St. Marys, getting into Stratford Saturday night. He is said to have stayed at a hotel in Stratford Sunday night.

Monday he started northeast, passing through St. Jacobs, and reaching Elora on Tuesday. There was a spring horse show on there that day, and he mingled with the farmers. He found out that there was a man wanted at the Robb homestead. He went out there Tuesday evening remaining with the Robbs until his capture.

In his five days' journey he covered about 70 miles, across country.

The London officers this morning had to go to Streetsville on the C. P. R., change cars there, and go to Arthur on the Orangeville and Teeswater branch. They arrived there at 11:30 o'clock, leaving this evening for London at 5 o'clock. It is not known at what time they will arrive here with their man. Two routes are open to them.

They will probably come into London in the night.

The reward of $500 will probably go to Constable Farrel and his partner. They effected his capture and are entitled to the reward.

The farmer who gave the information to Constable Farrel may come in for some of it, but the bulk of the reward will go to the plucky officers. It is stated: "Moir is feeling very well," said Constable Farrel to The Advertiser. "He spent a good night. This morning we got him a new suit of clothes and fixed him up. You would hardly know him. I have not questioned him at all about the murder. He freely admits that he is Moir. I expect the London officers here at noon. I do not know when we will get to London. I will go down with him myself."

MUST HAVE BEEN BLIND DRUNK MURDERER SPEAKS OF CRIME

Wolsley Barracks Soldier Denies That He Is a Cordite Eater --Blames the Killing On Whisky--Is Penitent Now.

[By Our Own Man on the Spot.]

Arthur, May 11.—Pte. W. A. Moir, the murderer of Color-Sergt. Lloyd, on the night of April 17, at Wolsley Barracks, was interviewed in his cell today, by an Advertiser reporter, who arrived in Arthur in company with Detective Nickle, of London, at 12 noon.

While the detective was engaged in business relative to the taking back of Moir, The Advertiser man went to the police station, where he had no difficulty in securing an interview.

The station is a primitive little brick structure, with an office at the front and two cells.

In one of the latter the murderer stood, leaning against a window-frame, coolly smoking a cigar.

Looks Well.

Moir looked remarkably well. He was dressed in a brand-new suit, which he had purchased for $12, having earned the money working on the farm of Charles Robb. He was smooth-shaven and in prime physical condition—in fact, he looked more like a boy than a man.

His demeanor was anything but that of a criminal.

When the reporter was introduced to him he put out his hand cordially. When questioned he became somewhat sullen, evidently on the moment agreeing with himself that silence would be golden under the circumstances.

However, as the minutes flew past he thawed out, and finally threw off all restraint.

He told his story in a clear way, and when he did not think the details were correct he pointed out the defects.

Was Ignorant of Crime.

He stated that he knew absolutely nothing of the murder, or that he had done anything wrong. He picked up the paper in the Station House at Stratford the Monday morning after the crime. "I don't know what happened at the barracks, except what I read about it in the papers, something had happened, blind drunk, crazy, and I am awfully sorry for poor Lloyd and his relatives," he said. "God knows, I heartily sympathize with them, but I don't know that they want my sympathy. I did not know what I was doing. I remember being down town on Good Friday night, when I had a good many drinks.

At Thorndale.

"All the rest is a blank to me until I woke up in a barn near Thorndale on Saturday morning. I was feeling awful after the drunk of the night before. It was very cold and I suffered greatly.

"I had my rifle with me, and wore my khaki trousers, but I had on a dark coat.

"After some consideration I concluded that something had happened, but I never dreamed that I had killed anyone.

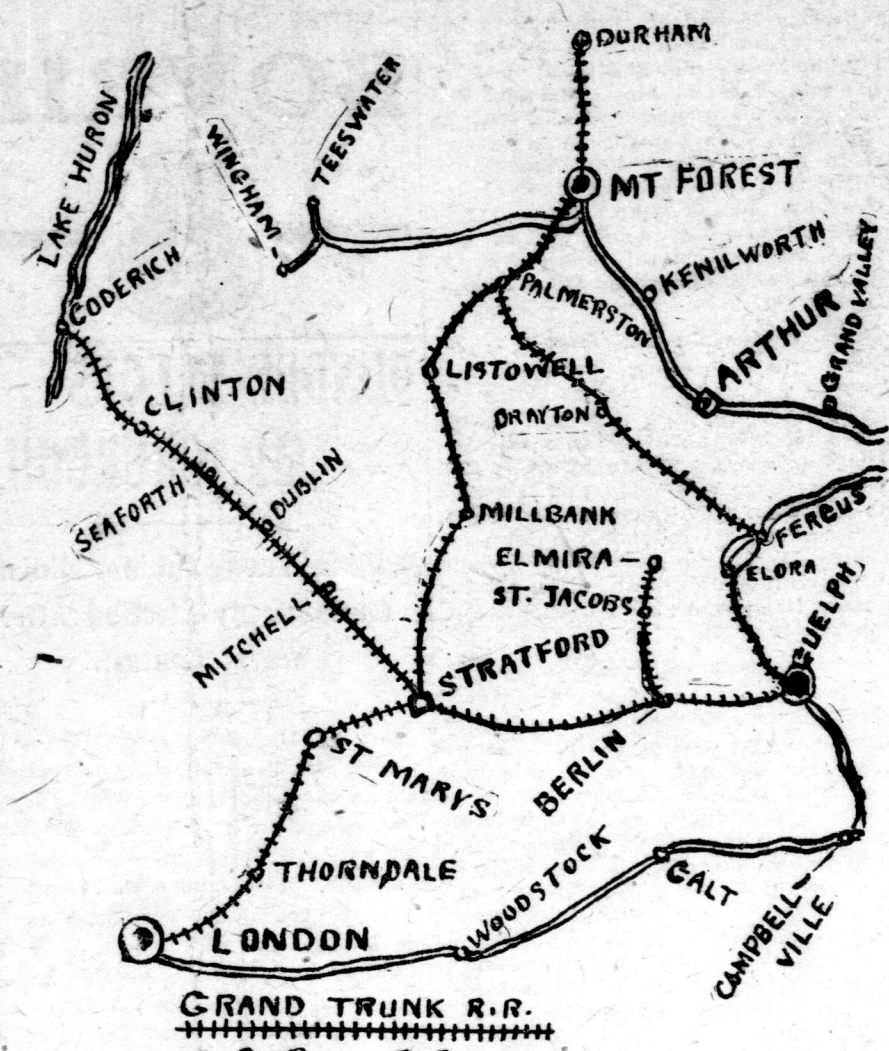

"It was then that I threw away the Ross rifle and 40 pounds of ammunition. I rummaged around the barn and found an old black raincoat hanging on a peg.

"It struck me that this would keep me warm and I put it on.

At Stratford. "I made my way to Stratford, sometimes walking, sometimes riding, with farmers. Saturday night I slept in a barn and Sunday I arrived in Stratford. I walked up to the hotel, and engaged a room. I think it was the Station House, kept by a man named Richardson. I had something to eat and went to bed.

"In the morning I picked up an old paper, one of Saturday's and there I read that I had killed Col-Sergt. Lloyd at the Barracks.

WHERE MOIR WAS CAUGHT.

The above map shows the position of Arthur, Ont., where Murderer Moir was captured. It is situated almost directly north of Elmira, where the London detectives, Nickle and Egerton, gave up the search. Moir must have walked the fifteen or twenty miles north a day or so before the police arrived at Elmira. It is quite possible that he was in the same neighborhood when the detectives pursued their unavailing search there. Arthur is about seventy miles due northeast from London. So far as can be learned, Moir has been working eighteen days for Farmer Robb, thus making the trip in five days after the murder. He took almost a direct route across country, avoiding the larger towns, except Stratford. It is certain that he was seen at Thorndale, St. Marys and St. Jacobs and other places.

Gasolene Used for Power Purposes Accidentally Ignited Razes Five Business Buildings at a Loss of Fifty Thousand Dollars--Blenheim Sends Aid.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chatham, May 11.—The village of Merlin, near here, was this morning visited by a conflagration which lasted three hours. It swept away an entire business block, at a loss estimated at $50,000. The fire started in the printing office of the Merlin Mirror, a weekly newspaper, published by C. A. Burns. Gasolene used for power purposes became ignited, and in a moment the entire premises were wrapped in a vast sheet of flames, which, sweeping both directions, carried away five buildings in its path. The buildings destroyed are those of James Robertson, station agent; E. A. Ross, grocery; office and store of the National Supply Company; Oud-fellows' Hall, and A. W. Smith's jewelry store. Mr. Smith was able to save a number of precious stones. A black barber shop caught fire, but was saved from destruction. This being the salvation of the Marquis Hotel, the biggest building in the village. Blenheim and Chatham were telephoned for assistance. The Blenheim engine arrived when the fire was under control, while the Chatham force was called off when on the way.

MOIR FEARS MOB IN LONDON ASKS POLICE PROTECTION

London Will Furnish Guard of Police for His Arrival--Whole Town of Arthur Is in Sympathy With the Wolsley Barracks Murderer.

[By Our Own Man on the Spot.]

Arthur, Ont., May 11.—Murderer Moir is mortally afraid of mob law in London.

When he heard that the Government had offered a reward of $500 for his capture dead or alive, that the police of London and of the entire province were on his trail, he at once concluded that London would be a dangerous place for him, and he put in an urgent appeal for police protection when he arrives in London. He appears to fear the men of Wolsley Barracks, feeling that they may be resentful and may mob him. Will Be Guarded. The police here have communicated with the London authorities, and a strong guard will be at the depot when he arrives. One of the rumors is that the train will be stopped at the asylum-crossing on Adelaide street, and that Moir will be hastily placed in a carriage, and taken to the county jail. The prisoner leaves here at 5 o'clock and will arrive in London at 11:30, making connection with the express from Toronto at Streetsville Junction. (Continued on Page Eight.)

GUARDS SHOOT INTO STRIKERS BLOODY CLASH AT OWEN SOUND

Special Constables Volley Into Striking Longshoremen, But Are Routed By a Fusillade of Coal--Four Men Hit and Mayor Kennedy Reads the Riot Act

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Owen Sound, May 11.—The strike of the C. P. R. freight handlers assumed serious proportions shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. The C. P. R. had about 60 special constables sworn in that they had brought up from Toronto, with Provincial Detective Rogers. The strikers hearing that an attempt was being made to begin work hurried to the wharfs. Several of the strikers were deputed to persuade the men who were going to work to quit, and the other strikers were standing in bunches on the dock. Suddenly, it is alleged, the special constables fired upon them. A rush was made for the coal pile, and the strikers used the coal so effectively that the constables returned inside the boats, but not before five of them were seriously injured and one may not recover.

Cared for by Town.

To the credit of the outsiders brought in by the C. P. R. they have stuck to the Owen Sound contingent, though the majority are destitute and are being cared for by the town. The sympathies of the citizens are with the strikers. They hold that it is preposterous to ask men to work for 12 cents per hour, more particularly when the C. P. R. is charging as high rates for freight as they did last year.

Strikers Shot.

Among the strikers two had narrow escapes from being shot, the bullets going through their clothing. One was shot in the fore arm, the other in the shoulder, and one through the calf of the leg.

Read the Riot Act.

After the shooting Mayor Kennedy read the riot act, and both parties were invited to his office for a discussion. Mr. McMurchy, solicitor, and Superintendent Nelson represented the C. P. R.; Mayor Kennedy represented the town, and a committee of three represented the strikers. The meeting resulted in a disagreement. The C. P. R. suggested that the men go to work and leave the matter to be settled by the Government arbitrator, or to accept 15 cents day and 16 cents night for the season. The men, however, refused, and are holding out for last season's figures.

Local Police Had Taken Every Precaution To Prevent Moir Getting Away Altogether And Were Certain of His Whereabouts Several Days Ago.

Chief Williams is well satisfied with the capture of Moir, and declares that it justifies the position he assumed from the beginning.

"I said in the beginning that we would get Moir, sooner or later," said Chief Williams to The Advertiser. "I do not believe in hurrying the matter at all. His capture was only a matter of time, and that has proven to be the case. As soon as the man had escaped, so much publicity was given his movements and the movements of my men that it was impossible to do much. When the first excitement was over, we were able to get in our work. Know He Was There. "Every day came letters and telegrams telling of Moir. He was seen in many places. We had to sit them out and follow all that looked good. Last week there were no less than a dozen telegrams and thirty or forty letters. Few of them were of any use to us. "However, I did know that Moir was in the neighborhood where he was captured. "Three or four days ago, a letter came to me, informing me that Moir was certainly in the neighborhood, and that his arrest would be accomplished within a few days at the outside. I did not make the information public, but I knew it all the time. "Yesterday I received a telegram from Constable Farrel saying that he had Moir. I called him up on the phone and asked him if he was certain that he had the right man. He told me that there was no doubt about it. I promised to send a man up right away. I did so, and I expect him back with the prisoner before long. Took Every Precaution. "We took every precaution to effect the capture of our man. We sent thousands of circulars with a cut of him, and an accurate description of him everywhere. "There must have been six or seven thousand of these circulars distributed in every part of the country. "With this fact in mind, there was absolutely no doubt that he would be captured as soon as he moved. "A man might keep concealed in a house in the country for many weeks, but as soon as he moved he would be captured. "I am not surprised that Moir was captured without difficulty. "If he had been come upon the night of the murder, there would have been trouble, and one or two men might have been shot. As soon as he threw away his rifle, there was no doubt that all desire for murder was gone. He would not shoot after that. "These things take time, but they came out all right in the end."

Frank Roberts, the young Englishman who came here from Windsor a few weeks ago, and improved the few days that he was here by stealing from hotel bedrooms and from the residence of Captain T. J. He gave $5 down and was to pay the rest later.

Rodgers claims that if the horse and outfit were stolen it was stolen by the man who sold it to him.

Will Be Guarded. The police here have communicated with the London authorities, and a strong guard will be at the depot when he arrives.

One of the rumors is that the train will be stopped at the asylum crossing on Adelaide street, and that Moir will be hastily placed in a carriage, and taken to the county jail.

The prisoner leaves here at 5 o'clock and will arrive in London at 11:30, making connection with the express from Toronto at Streetsville Junction.

GUARDS SHOOT INTO STRIKERS
BLOODY CLASH AT OWEN SOUND

Special Constables Volley Into Striking Longshoremen, But Are Routed By a Fusillade of Coal--Four Men Hit and Mayor Kennedy Reads the Riot Act

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Owen Sound, May 11.—The strike of the C. P. R. freight handlers assumed serious proportions shortly after 7 o'clock this morning.

The C. P. R. had about 60 special constables sworn in that they had brought up from Toronto, with Provincial Detective Rogers. The strikers hearing that an attempt was being made to begin work hurried to the wharves. Several of the strikers were deputed to persuade the men who were going to work to quit, and the other strikers were standing in bunches on the dock. Suddenly, it is alleged, the special constables fired upon them.

A rush was made for the coal pile, and the strikers used the coal so effectively that the constables returned inside the boats, but not before five of them were seriously injured and one may not recover.

Strikers Shot.

Among the strikers two had narrow escapes from being shot, the bullets going through their clothing. One was shot in the foot, one in the shoulder, and one through the calf of the leg.

Read the Riot Act.

After the shooting Mayor Kennedy read the riot act, and both parties were invited to his office for a discussion. Mr. McMurchy, solicitor, and Superintendent Nelson represented the C. P. R.; Mayor Kennedy represented the town, and a committee of three represented the strikers. The meeting resulted in a disagreement. The C. P. R. suggested that the men go to work and leave the matter to be settled by the Government arbitrator, or to accept 15 cents day and 16 cents night for the season. The men, however, refused, and are holding out for last season's figures.

Cared for by Town. To the credit of the outsiders brought in by the C. P. R. they have stuck to the Owen Sound contingent, though the majority are destitute and are being cared for by the town. The sympathies of the citizens are with the strikers. They hold that it is preposterous to ask men to work for 12 cents per hour, more particularly when the C. P. R. is charging as high rates for freight as they did last year.

Later.

The strike of the C. P. R. longshoremen has been settled, and the men returned to work at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The wage scale will be 15 cents for shed work, 16 cents for outside work, and 20 cents for coal and grain work.

Detective Rogers and three special constables have been placed under arrest in connection with the shooting.

MERELY A MATTER OF TIME
SAYS CHIEF ON MOIR CAPTURE

Local Police Had Taken Every Precaution To Prevent Moir Getting Away Altogether And Were Certain of His Whereabouts Several Days Ago.

Chief Williams is well satisfied with the capture of Moir, and declares that it justifies the position he assumed from the beginning.

"I said in the beginning that we would get Moir, sooner or later," said Chief Williams to The Advertiser. "I do not believe in hurrying the matter at all. His capture was only a matter of time, and that has proven to be the case."

As soon as the man had escaped, so much publicity was given his movements and the movements of my men that it was impossible to do much. When the first excitement was over, we were able to get in our work.

Knew He Was There.

"Every day came letters and telegrams telling of Moir. He was seen in many places. We had to sift them out and follow all that looked good. Last week there were no less than a dozen telegrams and thirty or forty letters. Few of them were of any use to us."

However, I did know that Moir was in the neighborhood where he was captured.

"Three or four days ago, a letter came to me, informing me that Moir was certainly in that neighborhood, and that his arrest would be accomplished within a few days at the outside. I did not make the information public, but I knew it all the time."

Yesterday I received a telegram from Constable Farrel saying that he had Moir. I called him up on the phone and asked him if he was certain that he had the right man. He told me that there was no doubt about it, I promised to send a man up right away. I did so, and expect him back with the prisoner before long.

Took Every Precaution.

"We took every precaution to effect the capture of our man. We sent thousands of circulars with a cut of him, and an accurate description of him everywhere."

There must have been six or seven thousand of these circulars distributed in every part of the country.

With this fact in mind, there was absolutely no doubt that he would be captured as soon as he moved.

A man might keep concealed in a house in the country for many weeks, but as soon as he moved he would be captured.

I am not surprised that Moir was captured without difficulty.

"If he had been come upon the night of the murder, there would have been trouble, and one or two men might have been shot. As soon as he threw away his rifle, there was no doubt that all desire for murder was gone. He would not shoot after that. These things take time, but they come out all right in the end."

SCOOPING UP THE CINDERS

G. T. R. Removing Them From Egerton Street Crossing.

The Grand Trunk have a gang of men working with a steam shovel removing the cinders from Egerton street crossing.

Some time ago the Grand Trunk was ordered by the city to remove the cinders.

The city officials were about to appropriate the cinders for street purposes, but they were a little too late.

FOUR DESPERADOES TAKEN PRISONERS

Exciting Chase After a Robber Gang—Detectives Used a Handcar.

Windsor, May 10.—Provincial Detectives Campeau and Mahoney are jubilant today over the capture of four desperadoes who are confidently believed to be the perpetrators of recent robberies in Kent and Essex.

The quartet who were overtaken at Stoney Point today were seen at Comber last night, having aroused suspicion by trying to dispose of some cutlery.

Detectives Mahoney and Campeau, who were notified, left here at once, but before they reached Comber the gang had escaped.

A party of farmers, well armed, followed them, and the men wanted were located at Stoney Point. Pickets were stationed around the village, forming a cordon through which it was impossible to escape.

Before daybreak the quartet emerged from a box car, and the alarm was given. Detectives Campeau and Mahoney, riding a handcar and each armed with a shotgun, started in pursuit down the railway track.

Campeau and Mahoney were successful in arresting all four of the alleged robbers, who were brought to this city. They gave their names as John Wilson, aged 24; R. Little, 29; C. Ryan, 23; J. Ryan, 38. They claimed to live in Detroit, and said they were trying to work their way to Buffalo.

DEFENDING THE GERRYMANDER

The London Free Press has the temerity to offer a defense of the most outrageous feature of Whitney's redistribution bill—the gerrymander of Middlesex. The Tory organ argues that the Government might have made matters worse for its opponents, and therefore deserves credit for its moderation.

The division of Middlesex County, for instance, might have been arranged so as to almost perfectly balance the constituencies in point of population and to have improved upon the geographical outline. The result would have been to give to the Conservatives an advantage in two of the three ridings, and because of this the Government did not make any change in East Middlesex. Has this satisfied the Liberal partisan press or speakers? Not at all. Instead they actually point to the uneven balance of population.

An advantage in two of the three ridings is precisely the effect and intention of the new arrangement. Mr. Hodgkin's seat in North Middlesex was supposed to be insecure, but by a shuffling of municipalities which outages geography, equality of population, and every principle of an honest redistribution, he gains 200 Conservative votes.

Our contemporary cites the riding of North Grey as a glaring case of political indecency and says a Liberal Government so gerrymandered the country as to give Mr. MacKay a seat. It ascribes to the present Government a virtue in refraining from "righting this wrong."

North Grey was represented by a Conservative, Mr. Boyd, from 1898 to 1902, when it was reclaimed by Mr. MacKay. It was not altered to give Mr. MacKay an advantage, as the Free Press asserts. The riding in which Mr. Boyd had 137 majority in 1898 was exactly the same as that in which Mr. MacKay had five majority in 1902, and 271 majority in 1905. Mr. MacKay won it on his merits, without the aid of a seat-stealing device like the Whitney gerrymander.

BRITAIN'S DARING EXPERIMENT.

The British Government has redeemed its promise of old-age pensions—the principal plank in its social reform platform. The bill introduced by Mr. Asquith provides for a pension of $1 25 per week for every unmarried person, widow, or widower, over seventy years of age, and $1 80 for man and wife. Paupers and persons with an income of at least $2 50 a week are not eligible. The disbursements do not give other details of the measure, but presumably beneficiaries must have lived in the country twenty-one years or more.

It is reported that the Labor party is dissatisfied with the meagreness of the pension. On the other hand a large section of the electorate which probably votes Conservative in any event, looks upon such legislation as dangerous and socialistic.

Mr. Asquith estimates that the initial cost of the scheme, which goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1909, will be $30,000,000 per annum. The Government must finance it without a departure from its free trade policy. The tariff reformers argue that to carry out a liberal programme of social reform the basis of taxation must be broadened, and that the only possible solution is the imposition of duties upon a wide range of imports. The ingenuity of the new chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Lloyd-George, who is described by the London Nation as "the most vivid and original political talent" in the Liberal party, will be put to the test. A Radical of the Radical type will probably find a method of assessing the cost of the pension scheme upon inordinate accumulations of wealth and property. Taxes upon imports fall with the heaviest weight upon the poorer classes.

Such legislation is very far removed from the extreme individualism, the doctrine of laissez-faire, which dominated British politics during a great part of the last century. Those laboratories of social experiment, New Zealand and Australia, have led the way, but the experience of the plan in an old and populous country, such as Great Britain, will furnish a more useful lesson to other nations, whether for emulation or otherwise.

THE REAL WEAKNESS.

Mr. Whitney and his friends seek to make a point out of the weakness of the Opposition in the late Legislature. They must, of course, have reference to its numerical inferiority, as man for man the little band at the back of Mr. McKay was at least equal in ability to the Government contingent.

It was the weakness that Mr. Whitney speaks of, however, which, had the Government possessed the courage to be honest, would have given it strength to carry out its pre-election promises; to resist the clamors of the spottsmen—in short, to give the province the square deal for which the Premier now hypocritically pleads. With its strength of numbers, the Government might have risen superior to a cowardly gerrymander of constituencies, or to such deals as the gift of $130,000 to a syndicate of which a relative of a Cabinet minister was a member, and the guaranteeing of the Canadian Northern Railway bonds, under false pretences. When it should have displayed real strength, as in "that last awful week," the Government was most lamentably weak.

As for the Opposition, weak in numbers though it undoubtedly was, it has performed invaluable services. While it has failed to stay the hand of the Government, its own hand will be vastly strengthened by an electorate which needed only that last awful week to complete its disillusionment.

THE POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The announcement that the Dominion Government will soon reduce the postage on drop letters to one cent will be received with satisfaction by all classes, but more particularly by the business community. It is another reminder that since they have been in office the Liberals have wrought a revolution in the postoffice service. In no department has progressive and efficient administration been more marked during the past dozen years than in that presided over at first by Sir Wm. Mulock and now by Hon. Mr. Lemieux.

When Sir Wm. Mulock assumed charge of the department in 1906 he found it a sort of political machine, and a rickety one to boot. One of his first acts was to cancel a number of imprudent mail contracts which had been given to favorites of his predecessor in office, and put them up to tender, the result being a saving on this item alone of $103,000 annually. As the contracts run for four years the total saving during that period was $412,000.

When the late Sir Adolphe Caron was postmaster-general, the proposal was made to reduce the postage from three to two cents, but he refused to consent, claiming that the reduction would mean a loss of revenue of $790,000 annually. Sir Adolphe was able to show nothing but deficits, that of his last year in office amounting to $781,000.

It was only about three years later that Sir Wm. Mulock took the very step which his predecessor had pronounced impossible. For the first two or three years there were deficits—that was unavoidable in view of the legacies which had been left by the former Government—and then the surpluses began, which have continued ever since. For the nine months of last year of which there is record the surplus amounted to $1,011,965, or, estimating the remaining three months at the same rate, $1,349,920 for the whole year. More than that, the reduction of the British postage from five cents to two cents and the Canadian postage from three cents to two cents meant a direct saving to the people of Canada of another million dollars.

Amidst all this there has been enormous expansion of the service. Postal facilities have been provided for the Yukon and for a large number of new settlements in the West at very great cost; there has been a phenomenal increase in the number of letters carried, necessitating a large increase in the staff of employees; the annual mileage has increased over twelve million miles, over two thousand new money order and postal offices and nearly three hundred new savings banks have been established, while there has been a general increase in the salaries of postmasters. At the same time the number of savings bank depositors has doubled, and the amount transmitted by money orders and postal notes has increased nearly thirty-five million dollars.

The Liberal record in the postoffice department is one to be proud of. A Liberal Government introduced free mail delivery in cities, reduced the postage from three to two cents, and now proposes to cut the rate on drop letters in two.

Our contemporary has raised the anti-lawyer cry against Mr. McEvoy. This country, unlike our contemporary, is getting too big for that sort of politics.

Winston Churchill has found a safe seat in Bonnie Dundee. Scotsmen rule England and now Scotland claims the most brilliant Englishman in British public life.

The Conservative campaign pamphlet which libels several of the most prominent and honorable citizens of Ontario, is another example of the square deal.

Although the Whitney Government struck the toboggan slide in that last awful week, it began to move toward the top of the chute when it surrendered to the spottsmen.

Mofr was captured because his discoverer had read a description of him in the newspapers. Although some of the police act on a contrary theory, the press is their greatest ally in the running down and detection of criminals.

Liberals are accused of being ungrateful to the Whitney Government, because they might have fared much worse in the gerrymander. In other words, the man who has been robbed by a footpad should be thankful that his life was spared.

What sort of citizens were the Hamilton Conservatives who turned out in honor of George W. Fowler, M. P.? He had the brazen hypocrisy to talk of Government "muck" requiring his services as a muck-raker. If it were true-Fowler would be in his native element. What hope is there for the federal Opposition when such men are among its leaders?

COLD STORAGE.

Hook-I understand he married a cool million. Cook-Yes; but he's complaining now because he hasn't been able to thaw out any of it.

A LATE MEETING.

Mrs. Van Stoo-Where were you so late last night? Mr. Van Stoo-I er-why, I was addressing a political meeting, my dear. Mrs. Van Stoo-Oh, indeed? And did you have a full house, may I ask? Mr. Van Stoo (absently)-Once, but the other fellow held fours.

ENLIGHTENED.

Politician-I don't think I'll have a bit of trouble getting re-elected. Look how easily I won last year when people hardly knew me at all. Miss Sweet-But that's the whole trouble. The people-know you now.

NEW MOTHER GOOSE.

Young Mrs. Hubbard-Plaintively blubbered. Her hat is a beautiful one, isn't it? He had a gown made, and now she's afraid. We aren't going to have any spring.

"PLATONIC" FRIENDSHIP.

There are instances when men of genius have been sustained and inspired in their work and life by the friendship of women. For 35 years the poet Cowper—a victim of fits of melancholia—was cheered and supported by the ministering friendship of Mrs. Thrale, in whose lodgings he lived after the death of his wife, until the end of his own life. For sixteen years Dr. Johnson was soothed, upheld and inspired by the friendship of Mrs. Thrale, who, says his biographer, ministered to him in body and mind, and was an "angel of comfort" that wealth could purchase or womanly ingenuity set to work by womanly compassion could devise being wanting to his sick room. Through her influence her husband had persuaded the great man to leave his comfortable and tranquil lodgings in the elegant Thrale villa, where he enjoyed as much personal independence as if living in a home of his own. He read Mrs. Thrale's friendship "by an affection as pure as the affection of a father, tinged with a gallantry which, though always veiled, was never absent from her eyes. Her affection was not a mere friendship, but a love which was not a love of the senses, but a love of the soul. She was a woman of great and enduring attachments like those which history records as having existed between men; but later on in his life he was forced to lean upon the unselfish devotion of a woman, his adopted daughter, whose soul he acknowledged would "one day be capable of that perfect and sacred friendship to which we do not read any of her sex has yet attained."

THE PROBABLE REASON.

"Mamma, is that bay rum in the bottle on your table?" "Mercy, no, dear," she replied. "That is my bay rum." "Oh!" said little Johnny; "perhaps that's why I can't get my hat off."

A SMALL WAIST CRAZE.

There is a small waist craze in Paris. By the way, isn't it strange that the devotees of fashion never include a big, charitable heart in their list of anatomical vagaries?

ACROSS GALILEE BY RAIL.

The Hamidieh-Hadjaz Railway revives the sacred memories of the Holy Land and also of the prophet Mohammed. Its real starting place is at Haifa, the Mediterranean port under the lee of convent-crowned Mount Carmel where Elijah gathered to him all Israel and the prophets of Baal, and confuted their false gods by himself bringing down fire from heaven. Here, too, is the brook Kidron, where he slew the priests of Baal. The railway route is through the plain of Esdras, past Nazareth and across Galilee, and along the coast where waters of Lake Tiberias, with the Mount of Beatitudes in the background; through the canyon of the River Hesi, and up into the cultivated plains of Hauran, the scenes are still scriptural, except that the unformed boatmen of the excursion companies and the steam launches on the Sea of Galilee have a modernizing effect which is not entirely atoned for by the fishermen fishing from their boats as in the times of St. Peter. I took this journey starting on a black winter's morning, and finding place in the third class passenger coach among the Bedouins, Arab pilgrims, Turkish officials and army engineers, Syrian traders, French train crew, dragoon and mail sables. The promise of travel had not then become sufficiently alluring to secure better accommodation. But though the car was uncomfortably crowded by the mix-up of the Arabs and Bedouins, with their guns and belts, their turbans, their striped blankets of black and white, and their tunics, they made room for the stranger with all the formal courtesy of their traditions. The railway may transform the desert; the railway coach does not destroy the desert dweller's sense of hospitality.

The mail distribution was primitive; loads of letters were piled up in the carriers beyond Lake Tiberias received their packets, recepted for them by affixing their silver seals, and exhaled gossip. There were packages, even newspaper bundles, and letters with supercriptions in Arabic, French and English.

ORNITHOLOGICAL.

[La Touche Hancock in New York Press.] There is a song I've lately heard, Which runs, "I would I were a bird, A singing thrush or cooling dove!" But disregarding things erotic, I think, don't you, it's idiotic? The thought to me has just occurred That if I were to be a bird, I fancy I would be an owl. For that's the wisest kind of fowl, With nothing in this world to do Except to hoot "Tu-whit, tu-who!" This thought has somewhat of pretense To be considered common sense. Another thought might be brought In place where they're wont to sing!

"DEAR WINSTON."

[London Standard.] At a meeting addressed by Mr. Churchill yesterday there were loud cries for "Lady Randolph" Mrs. Cornwallis-West having accompanied her son to the meeting for the first time during the contest. Mrs. Cornwallis-West responded, and she did so in a happy vein. She was epigrammatic, and for the moment captured the audience by her naivete. "I think," she said, "that one speaker from one family is sufficient. But I will just say that while I hear a great deal about dear family and dear bear, my motto is 'Vote for dear Winston.'"

SLANDERER BENNETT DRESSED DOWN.

[Hugh Guthrie, M.P.] In the custom of chivalry, when you cast down your gauntlet and asked someone to take it up, the challenge was always answered. And tonight I will cast down the gauntlet to the member for East Simcoe, and I offer him this challenge: If you can show that the master of marine and fisheries has been guilty of slander, I will just say that I will be glad to hear of it.

DRAG PONDS AND LAKES ON LAPORTE MURDER FARM

Authorities Expect To Find in Waters About Mrs. Guinness' Home Fresh Evidence of Wholesale Murder, and Will Push Investigation With Vigor.

Laporte, May 11.—Lemuel Darrow, mayor of Laporte, after a conference with prominent citizens last night, declared that the investigation into the Guinness murder mystery will be pushed with great vigor. "Up to the present time," said the mayor, "there has been only a lukewarm inquiry into the amazing case. By this time all the lakes in the vicinity of the Guinness farm should have been dragged. The pond back of the graveyard has not been investigated. It will be. Clear Lake and Fish Trap Lake, both west of the farm, will be dragged.

Rev. Mr. Carew Speaks On Evangelism

Rev. Mr. Carew, of Maitland Street Baptist Church, preached interesting sermons Sunday to large congregations. In the evening his subject was "Evangelism, the Supreme Factor in the World's Upward Progress." "Evangelism," he said, "in its spirit and power is that which keeps the world moving onward and upward. Money is the truest enemy of progress. Money cannot be the power, as the upward as well as outward demands the spiritual and eternal. Nor can education, great as it is in moving things onward intellectually, scientifically, inventively, for while this will give us magnificent things, like Plato, of whom Coleridge declared, was a plank from the wreck of paradise cast upon the shores of idolatrous Greece. Yet classic civilization could not withstand the ravages of the tooth of time or bear the tonnage of immortal destiny. Egypt, Babylon, Greece, Rome, have all disappeared beneath a Christless horizon. "Nor can an intellectual knowledge of God and man's forms of religion keep a nation from death and decay as the Israelites illustrate, for, although they had the example of the Christ, yet lacking in the spirit of the inspiration for such a service of personal work to save souls, they were restored to the image of God." "Solos were rendered most acceptably during the services by Miss Edith McBride, Miss Alma Grigg and himself into the darkness of heaven—Mr. Harry Marshall.

EDWARD'S SKILL WINS IN SWEDEN

British King's Rounds of Visits Bears Fruit in Court at Stockholm.

Stockholm, May 9.—The round of visits which King Edward is paying to the Scandinavian courts is of considerable interest, in view of the so-called settlement of the northern problem, embodied in the recently concluded Baltic-North Sea treaties. In reality little has been settled so far, and Norway has not been mentioned, as its integrity is guaranteed, and its position well understood. Denmark's position, for all practical purposes, is unchanged, or rather unchangeable, Sweden agreed with Great Britain and France to denounce the treaty whereby the two powers jointly undertook to protect her against Russia. The amiable assurances of a desire to maintain the status quo, which is the gist of the new Baltic agreement, is supposed to serve in place of such protection, and may do as well or may not. One fact stands out clearly, however, Sweden, being under the protection of no particular power or powers, is at liberty to throw whatever weight she possesses in whichever direction she sees fit.

This is the first fruit of the new king's diplomacy. He has achieved a certain amount of freedom of action, and the immensely increased risks of the situation in the Aland Islands question will now be threshed out between St. Petersburg and Stockholm. Sweden is not a signatory power to the treaty forbidding their fortification, but should she assent to its denunciation it is difficult to see on what grounds Great Britain or France could object. If they do, Sweden will have gained a point by showing goodwill toward Russia.

Askin, should the Swedish opinion be so strong against the abrogation of the treaty, neither Great Britain nor France could well afford to yield to Russian pressure, as it would throw Sweden into the arms of Germany and paralyze Norway and Denmark. It is an interesting enough game, and is just as likely to promote peace as anything else.

It is said that with the possible exceptions of the King of Italy and the Sultan, there is no cooler head than Gustav around the European board-table, and the decision of King Edward to include Stockholm in his itinerary, in the face of several points of etiquette in such matters, was a fine stroke. It is a mooted point with whom it originated and does not matter much if with King Edward. It shows that he thoroughly understood the new situation.

NO ANNULMENT FOR ANNA

Sagan Not Likely to Carry Out His Threat of Becoming a Protestant.

Rome, May 10.—The Prince de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould not only have completely failed to secure the papal annulment of Madame Gould's marriage to Count Boni de Castellane, but they have not even had an audience with the Pope. They have not seen any personage connected with the Vatican or the Congregations. Prince Rospigliosi, who married an American, Mrs. Parkhurst, similarly has failed to get her former marriage annulled, though he threatened to become a Protestant. He has not carried out the threat, and now lives in Rome. His wife entertains a great deal, though she is never invited to court balls or received back into society. The Prince de Sagan has also threatened to change his religion, but will not do so, and should he marry Mme. Gould it is believed they will live in Rome, where he and she have already become good friends of the Rospigliosis. The persons in receipt of pauper relief in London on April 4 numbered 123,779, or 26 per 1,000 of the population, as compared with 25.1 per 1,000 in the previous year.

SACRIFICED HIS PRIDE TO SAFEGUARD DUMA

St. Petersburg, May 11.—M. Khomyakoff's sacrifice of his personal pride in order to safeguard the Duma, has won unstinted praise in all quarters. Yesterday, on the demand of Premier Stolypin he withdrew the presidential strictures on the statement made a few days previously in the Duma by the Minister of Finance, M. Kokovovoff, who, during the course of a debate, exclaimed: "Thank God, we have not a parliament in Russia yet." M. Khomyakoff, from the chair, referred to the minister's remark as an unhappy expression, but later he was notified by the Premier that he must withdraw his strictures, failing which Premier Stolypin threatened to resign. In consideration of the fact that Premier Stolypin has been the Duma's truest friend, M. Khomyakoff decided to accede to his request.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT CAMPBELLTON, N. B.

Harquail's Lumber Mill and Several Residences Were Burned.

Harquail's residence, Smith's store and barn, and D. H. Sheal's residence occupied by Ernest Blair, were all destroyed. For some time the whole town was threatened, but practically every able-bodied man assisted in fighting the flames by the destruction of Harquail's factory.

The town loses one of its most important industries, and 100 men are thrown out of employment. The insurance carried amounts to $34,400.

CURE NOT PROVED.

It is not everyone who proves the ineffectiveness of insomnia cures at several years of age. The father of the lad, who was about seven years old, was a physician, and when the child found difficulty in getting to sleep was ready with advice. "I'll tell you something that will soon put you to sleep," he said. "You begin and count slowly up to 100, and then another hundred, and so on, and before you know it you'll be sleeping. Try it tonight when you go to bed." Everything remained quiet that night until the father went to retire. As he passed the boy's bed a little voice piped: "Papa!" "Yes, my boy." "What comes after trillions?" But the unheeded youngster's query was not answered; his father had vanished into his own bedroom.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

BY FRED M. WHITE

"I have been asleep," she said. She passed her hand dreamily over her face. "I have been in a dream for seven long years. It was a happy night; the very last happy night in the world to me."

to be surprised at nothing that he saw about the House of the Silent Sorrow. The name of Reginald Henson was more or less familiar to him as that of a man who stood high in public estimation. But the bitter contempt in his companion's voice suggested that there was another side to the man's character.

"I hope you are not asking me to do anything wrong," David murmured. "I am absolutely certain of it," the girl said. "It is a case of the end justifying the means; and if ever the end justified the means, it does in this case. Besides—"

Enid Henson hesitated. David's quick perception prompted him. "Besides, it is my suggestion," he said. "When I had the pleasure of seeing you before—"

"Pardon me, you have never had the pleasure of seeing me before." "Ah, you would make an excellent parliamentary orator and admit that I have never seen you before. But your voice reminds me of a voice I heard very recently under remarkable circumstances. It was my good fortune to help a lady in distress a little time back. If she had told me more I might have aided her still further. As it is, her reticence landed me into serious trouble."

Enid grasped the speaker's arm convulsively. "I am deeply sorry to hear it," she whispered. "Perhaps the lady in question was reticent for your sake, perhaps she had confided more thoroughly in good men before. And suppose those good men had disappeared?" "In other words, that they had been murdered. Who by?"

There was a snarl from one of the hounds hard by, and a deep, angry curse from Henson. Enid pointed solemnly in his direction. "The words of her would have been so thrilling and eloquent. David strode along without further questions on that head. "But there is one thing that you must tell me," he said, as they stood together in the porch. "Is the first part of my advice going to be carried out?"

"Yes. That is why you are here now. Stay here one moment whilst I get you pencil and paper. There. Now will you please write what I suggest?" Dr. Bell is with my sister. At least, I suppose he is with her, as Dr. Walker desired to have his opinion. My sister is dying—dying, you understand?"

Enid's voice had sunk into a passionate whisper. The words he laid on David's shoulder were trembling strangely. At that moment he would have done anything for her. A shaft of light filtered from the hall into the porch, and it was as if the girl thrust upon Steel. "Now write," she commanded. "Ask no questions, but write what I ask, and trust me implicitly."

David nodded. After all, he reflected, he could not possibly get himself into a worse mess than he was in already. And he felt that he could trust the girl by his side. Her beauty, her earnestness, and her obvious sincerity touched him. "Write," Enid whispered. "Say, 'See nothing and notice nothing. I implore you. Only agree with everything that Dr. Walker says, and leave the room as quickly as possible.' Now sign your name. We can go into the drawing-room and wait till Dr. Bell comes down. You are merely a friend of his. I will see that he has this paper at once."

Enid led the way into the drawing-room. She gave no reasons for the weird strangeness of the place, it was no time for explanations. As for Steel, he gazed around him in fascinated astonishment. A novelist ever on the lookout for new scenes and backgrounds, the advent of a girl rising in clouds, he saw the wilted flowers, he noted the overturned table, obviously untouched and neglected for years. He wondered. Then he heard the babbling disjointed voices overhead. What a sad house it was, and how dominant was the note of tragedy.

Meanwhile, with no suspicion of the path he was treading, Bell had gone to his study. He came and stood in the doorway of the room where the sick girl lay. There was a subdued light inside and the faint suggestion of illness that Bell caught a glimpse of a white figure lying motionless in bed. It was years now since he had acted thus in a professional capacity, but the old caution and caution came back by instinct. As he would have entered Margaret Henson came out and closed the door.

"You are not going in there," she said. "No, no. Everything of mine you touch blight and wither. If the girl is to die, let her die in peace." She would not raise her voice high, but a lightning glance from Bell quieted her. It was not exactly meek that he had to deal with, and he knew it. The woman required firm, quiet treatment. Dr. Walker stood alongside, anxious and nervous. The man with the quiet practice of the well-to-do doctor was not used to scenes of this kind. "Will you have something to conceal," Bell said, sternly. "Open the door." "Really, my dear sir," Walker said, fustily. "Really, I fancy that under the circumstances—"

"You don't understand this kind of case," Bell interrupted. "I do." Walker dropped aside with a muttered apology. Bell approached the figure in the doorway and whispered a few words rapidly in her ear. The effect was electrical. The figure seemed to wilt and shrivel up, all the power and resistance had gone. She stepped aside, moaning and wringing her hands. She babbled of strange things; the old, far-away look came into her eyes again.

Without a word of comment or sign of triumph Bell entered the sick room. Then he raised his head and sniffed the heavy atmosphere as he entered. "It would might have done. A quick, sharp question rose to his lips, only to be lastly suppressed as he noted the vacant glance of his colleagues. The white figure on the bed lay perfectly motionless. It was the figure of a young and exceedingly beautiful girl, a beauty heightened and accentuated by the dead-white pallor of her features. Still the face looked resolute and the exquisitely chiselled lips were firm.

WAR AEROPLANE'S FLIGHT GOOD

Eight Yards From Ground, the Wright Brothers Fly 1,000 Feet in Test.

Manteo, N. C., May 9.—Wright Brothers, aeronauts, now at Kill Devil Hill, near here, made a first flight in their war aeroplane yesterday. Although only a test flight, it was successful in every respect, the machine, under the perfect control of its two makers, traveling for a distance of 1,000 feet. Apparently it could have been flown a thousand times as far as easily as one. It was made to alight with ease and in perfect safety.

The flight was for the purpose of testing a new idea in steering gear, the adaptability of which was unknown. The idea was found satisfactory, but it was found that its adjustment was not altogether right. But that did not prevent a continuation of the flight. The flight was also made in a light north-east wind of fourteen miles an hour. The machine did not reach more than twenty feet above the ground.

Several preliminary tests, made in the next two or three days, an endurance test of the machine was made, and on this test an effort will probably be made to fly the machine seventy-five miles and return.

The machine was started easily from a railway about 100 feet long. It glided rapidly along this, and when it had reached a velocity of about twenty-five miles an hour, it left the track, bearing both Wilbur and Orville Wright.

The body of the machine is forty feet long and eight feet wide, giving it a total buoying surface of 640 square feet. It is said to be capable of carrying the weight of four ordinary men.

JAIL ENGLISHMAN FOR TAKING LOAN

Bankrupt Loses Honor and Rank By Buying Race Horses On Credit.

London, May 9.—English law is always very strict with regard to bankrupts, who, having failed to secure discharge of their bankruptcy from the courts, secure credit for more than $100.

This Edward William Wylie has just found to his cost. For he has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for an offense of this kind and will in all probability entail the forfeiture of his cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, which he received for his services as delegate of the British Government to the International Slave Trade Congress at Brussels in 1888.

Wylie is a man of 60 years of age, who has spent a number of years in the foreign office, from which he was obliged to retire on account of financial difficulties.

He has on several occasions been employed as secretary of legation and bears a name honored in the annals of the foreign office, where his father and he served with distinction before him, and at court, with which his name were likewise connected.

But he seems to have completely lost his head, having with an undisputed charge on credit, but even having them trained by the well known trainer, Charles Waugh, without having a penny to pay either the latter or the vendors of the horses.

Enid led the way into the drawing-room. She gave no reasons for the weird strangeness of the place, it was no time for explanations. As for Steel, he gazed around him in fascinated astonishment. A novelist ever on the lookout for new scenes and backgrounds, the advent of a girl rising in clouds, he saw the wilted flowers, he noted the overturned table, obviously untouched and neglected for years. He wondered. Then he heard the babbling disjointed voices overhead. What a sad house it was, and how dominant was the note of tragedy.

Meanwhile, with no suspicion of the path he was treading, Bell had gone to his study. He came and stood in the doorway of the room where the sick girl lay. There was a subdued light inside and the faint suggestion of illness that Bell caught a glimpse of a white figure lying motionless in bed. It was years now since he had acted thus in a professional capacity, but the old caution and caution came back by instinct. As he would have entered Margaret Henson came out and closed the door.

across the line, their prisoner may be detained in either the State of New York or Pennsylvania, making further proceedings necessary.

FORCED TO WEAR MASKS Shameful Treatment of British Subjects in Belgium Prison.

Antwerp, May 9.—The English colony in Belgium is very indignant because of the continued detention in prison at Antwerp of the young electrical engineers, Messrs. Burton, Cowan, Hogarth and Robinson. The case is a peculiarly grievous one, and the plight of the prisoners is pitiable in the extreme. Although merely awaiting examination, they are charged of stealing pencils, paper, and india rubber erasers from the Bell Telephone Company, they are treated like convicted criminals.

All of them are forced to wear hideous cotton hoods, which completely envelop their faces so that only their eyes can be seen. They are given the scanty prison diet, and undergo the same harsh regime as burglars, murderers and other felons.

No one who listened to their story could have denied that the charges against them are frivolous and vexatious in the extreme. There is not the slightest foundation for their imprisonment.

Sir Cecil Hertzel, the British Consul-General, has been unremitting in his efforts to secure their release, but this is still impossible, as only £200 of the £200 bail demanded for all four can be found. The securities must be residents of Belgium and property-owners.

New Scheme Proposed for Saving the Pulpwood Forests. New York, May 9.—A dispatch to The World from Appleton, Wis., says: Wisconsin manufacturers of print paper today put forth a proposition which, if adopted, will, it is said, revolutionize the print paper industry of the country and the newspaper industry as well. They propose that newspapers in the future be printed in white on black paper instead of in black on white paper, thus bringing about a saving of millions of dollars annually on pulpwood, assisting in the preservation of forests and reducing the price of newspaper to about one-half the present price.

Black paper can be made of old newspapers and almost any fibrous stock, while white paper requires spruce and hemlock wood. Wisconsin paper manufacturers will try to interest eastern manufacturers, and, if possible, bring about concerted action with the publishers of the country.

SILVER BY THE TON Ontario is Now a Producer of Metal in Bars.

Belleville, May 9.—The Deloro Mining and Reduction Company's works at Deloro, which have been running to capacity on silver ores from Cobalt, made a shipment of fifty-one ingots a few days ago—over three thousand pounds of silver. There are now about one hundred and fifty men employed, and extensive additions are being made to the plant. Weekly shipments are made.

The stamp mill at Deloro has been making tests of ore from the Pearce gold mine in Marmora, development work on which has been in progress for some time under the direction of Mr. Lawson, M. E. The property is a misplaced one. It is understood that the tests showed highly satisfactory results.

THE LONDONS GRAB OFF TWO ONE CLOSE THE OTHER A ROMP

In Fast Seven-Inning Exhibition Game McClary's Lose to Pros Three to Two, While Guelph International Team Is Completely Swamped.

London, 2; McClary, 2.
London, 19, Guelph, 4.
The opening exhibition games of the season at Tecumseh Park were productive of every kind of baseball on the map. There was fair ball, passable ball, and the punkest kind of ball, and despite the fact that the Londons proved victors in both games, the host of fans present left with a bad taste in their mouths.

that but seven innings would be played. Seven was plenty—in fact, seven more like them would just about give the International League a black eye from which it might never recover.
This affair brought together two local slabsiders in Walter Gibson, of the Londons and Louie Kerr of Guelph.

London Has Good Material.
As for the Londons, they showed in both games that with but few changes they have the making of a team several shades faster than the best that the London City League can put up.

Here's the Sad Tale.
Loudy got off to a bad start by giving Keenan a ride. The second ball pitched went behind the veteran's back. This started the kids in the bleachers. Then everybody took a whack at the pellet, or walked down to Dauber, with the exception of Bird who flew out. Manager Murray glanced at the scoreboard, saw five runs marked down on the London side of the ledger, and signaled for the errand one to depart for other quarters.

Gianelli Is Good.
To one Gianelli, also artist par excellence, however, most of the bulk of the credit for the victory, and had he received mid-season support there would have been nothing to it but a goose egg for the tinsmiths. Without desiring to take away any of the credit for their fine showing, it must be said that the McClarys did not earn either of their two runs. Errors on the part of Nobes, "Nig" Jeffries and Dauber were wholly responsible for the tallies, the former being particularly off color. Possibly it was nervousness, perhaps it was because he felt Manager Wreath's eagle lamps upon him, possibly it was because he was a little out of his mind, but the fact remains that Nobes apparently couldn't have stopped a barrel had it been rolled down the first base line Saturday. It looks like Rochester and the City League for his "ishy" went up.

The second spasm was practically a repeat of the first, with the exception that the Londons didn't work to hard and scored but three runs. In the fourth inning, a passed ball, errors and stolen bases gave them four more, while the visitors were added to the list in the sixth, on two passed balls, a wild pitch, an error and four hits.

Bird's Nice Catch.
Bird pulled off a good running one-hand catch of a liner off McGinnis' hand in the third, and received a hand for his effort. Keenan also got away with a little stunt in the last by pulling down a hot one from McGinnis and doubling Murray at second.

Two singles, a two-bagger and a sacrifice brought the visitors a brace of points in the fifth and they managed to scrape up two more in the last two innings.

First Steals Second.
The pros were never dangerous until the sixth. Bird took one of Clarke's port siders in the region of the bread box, and stole second. "Nig" fanned. Shortman took a ride, and Bird scored on Dauber's hit. Gates bumped the pill on the nozzle, and in a throwing feat which followed, Shortman and Douber went in Perch foul out and Gianelli was out from short to first.

Hamilton, April 11.—Hamilton and Niagara Falls of the International League broke even on their Saturday and Sunday games, Hamilton winning Saturday, 2 to 1, and the Falls on Sunday, 2 to 1. Both games were fast, and were witnessed by large crowds. The score:

THE SECOND GAME.
The second contest on the card was a nightmar, and before it was half over a large share of the spectators had departed for home. Prior to the beginning Umpire Oulligan announced

OPENING GAMES DOWN THE RIVER

St. Johns Wallop the Blues and the Iveys Defeat the Greys Saturday.

The first game of the Springbank League season at the park Saturday was of the corner-rot or garden variety.
St. John's Athletic Club team walloped the Blues through the first half of the game, scoring 12 runs without allowing their opponents to land one. The game was a walk away for St. John's until the last half, when the Blues were on their mettle. In the four inning they held the Athletics down to one run while they piled up three.

RAMBLERS AND THE SATELLITES

Big Crowd Witnesses Two Fast Games of Ball in East End League.

Old Sol behaved himself comparatively well under the circumstances Saturday, and as a result two games of ball were played in the East End League. The Ramblers won from the Oriens, in the opening contest, and the Stars won from Somervilles 12 to 9. There was a very large crowd in attendance, fully 2,000 people being in the park.

Baseball Brevities

Chicago Record-Herald: In inning No. 7 Wagner and Tinker threw the crowd into laughter. The Dutchman drove a liner at Tinker's wheel side, turning him around, knocking him down, and causing him to miff the ball. Tinker blamed it on the mud.

It being the first day of the Springbank League season, the players were not quite up to their standard. Hawthorne, the first man up for the Greys, was put out at third base. Stanton went out on a foul. Steele got away all right, but was left on third, when Clark was put out at first base.

BOURASSA BOBS UP

Montreal, May 9.—Henri Bourassa was in the city last evening, and gave out a statement that he would at once enter the provincial arena, starting his campaign this evening. Just what his plans are Mr. Bourassa would not say further than that he intended to run in some constituency and resume the campaign which he began in Bellechasse along independent Liberal lines. Although Mr. Bourassa has not yet decided in which constituency he will run, it is expected that he will contest Ste. Hyacinthe.

Fast Soccer at the Heights

Y. M. C. A. Now Leads League

In the Soccer League the Y. M. C. A. defeated the North End team in a fast game on Carling's Heights. The games were excellent and attracted very large crowds. The Y. M. C. A. and North End teams were formed for the first place. The "Y." now has the lead, having defeated the North Ends 5 to 0.

Two Neat Wins for the Tigers

Wild Bill and Big Ed. Killian Shatter the Hopes of the Browns.

The Ramblers won because of the good work of Heathfield, the little southpaw. He pitched one of the best games seen in the east end for some days, and was practically unhittable. Only three hits were gathered off his offerings, Brennan getting one and Delaney a pair. He had a snuff-out record to be proud of, striking out eight men.

NOT A PARTISAN ISSUE

Hughes Appeals to Republicans and Democrats to Abolish the Evil.
Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 9.—One of the most remarkable campaigns in the history of the state ended with a meeting here tonight at which Governor Charles E. Hughes made his final appeal to the voters of the Forty-seventh senate district to elect William C. Wallace, the Republican candidate, to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Francon. The election will take place next Tuesday, Mr. Wallace has pledged himself to vote to sustain the recommendation made by Governor Hughes for the abolition of race track gambling. The Agnew-Hart bills embodying this recommendation were defeated in the senate by a vote, 25 to 23, at the regular session of the Legislature. The special election in this district has attracted more than ordinary attention because the governor has called on extraordinary session of the Legislature to convene next Monday night, and the successful candidate of this special election may cast a vote which will decide the fate of the measures which there is no doubt Governor Hughes will again recommend.

PRICE OF HAY LIKELY TO DROP

Hay sold slow at the market today, as there were few loads offered, and the buyers are under the impression that prices will go lower, and especially if the weather becomes warmer, which will enable the farmers to place their stock on the grass, and they will have a larger quantity of hay to dispose of. Prices ranged from $10 and $10.50 for inferior, to $12 and $12.50 per ton for the choice loads.

Londoners were afforded a delightful treat on Saturday night when Mr. E. H. Sothern appeared in "Our American Cousin," a play written and made famous by his late father, who was, as the son in the world, one of the foremost actors in the world.

It is a long time since such excellent, wholesome comedy has been given to Londoners. It was not hard to understand why the play ran for 185 days in the old days, beginning with 1855. Like most other plays, it has its weaknesses, but to do justice, it must be said that its age does not hurt it in comparison with more recent productions.

The character of Lord Dundreary, which is, of course, a libel on English nobility, but a good natured one, Mr. Sothern, as did his father before him, found ample scope for those wonderful talents which have made it famous in the world of dramatic art. It is an exacting role, which might easily become unbearable in incompetent hands, but as portrayed by Mr. Sothern it was simply delightful, uproariously funny, and extraordinarily droll.

Mr. Adolphe Lestina, in the role of Mr. Trenchard, gave Mr. Sothern brilliant support, as did also Miss Virginia Hammond, Miss Gladys Hand, Miss Helena Head, and Mr. Malbrandy, as the clerk. The latter's work was very fine. The settings were elaborate.

"Strongheart." Ralph Stuart, as the college-bred Indian hero "Strongheart," in the comedy drama by William C. De Mille, for the Grand on Wednesday evening.

Mr. De Mille has laid the scenes of "Strongheart" at Columbia University and furnishes a vivid and highly amusing picture of college life.

Strongheart is an Indian, a son of a chief, who, through his prowess on the football field has become a hero to his classmates at Columbia. His love for the sister of his chum forms a motive of this play, which, although serious in its problem, is related almost exclusively of such bright, breezy comedy, that vivify photograph college life, that "Strongheart" deserves the term, comedy-drama. Mr. Stuart has revealed himself as a character actor of note, and has widely increased the popularity won by him in former productions. "Strongheart" scored the dramatic hit of last season in both Boston and New York, where it played a long and prosperous engagement.

A MODEL BUDGET SPEECH. Financial News Admires Mr. Fielding's Financial Statement.

London, May 10.—The Financial News exhaustively analyzes Mr. Fielding's budget speech, saying that the speech is a model of what such addresses should be. It is concise, to the point, without a superfluous sentence, and entirely free from ambiguous phraseology.

The Financial News says Mr. Fielding's proposed bill amending the bank act is a clear indication of the expansion of the country's business, with which the natural increase of bank capital is apparently unable to cope.

Soldier, street cleaner, cowboy and worker on odd jobs has been the career of Charles Cave-Browne-Cave, recently in youth he quarreled with his father and ran away to America. He says he will continue to live in this country after his English affairs are settled.

TIE-UP COMPLETE ON C. P. R. DOCKS

Men Brought From Toronto By the Company Quickly Induced to Strike.

Owen Sound, May 10.—The strike situation of the Canadian Pacific through freight-handlers has resulted in a complete tie-up of all the shipping facilities over the railway's docks. Today has been one of comparative quiet. As a rule the company makes Sunday one of its busiest days in unloading the cargo which arrives down on the Sunday morning steamer from Fort William. Today not a truck wheel is turning. The up-train on Friday night had attached to it two cars filled with an additional hundred men dropped off at one of the stations north of town and shunted in early yesterday morning. The strikers had not the slightest difficulty in securing the men to come over to their side, and like those of the previous contingent, they bundled baggage and all through the windows, dropping to the ground amid the cheers of the strikers. They followed the men up to the town hall, where they were given a scanty meal, and during the day they roamed about the streets many suggesting more substantial fare at the home of the citizens. The hopelessness of the situation struck about eighty of the men in the afternoon, for they walked down at 2:30, and boarding the cars of the 3:10 express refused to leave, and they were hauled to Toronto.

Over $6,300 will be expended in improvements at the park, about $2,000 of which will be for painting.

A new open stand is to be erected where the old one now stands at the south of the main covered stand. It will extend around nearly to the gate leading in the ring.

An addition will be made to the horse stable from the east to the north.

The fireworks building is to be moved to the center of the ring.

The dining hall beneath the grandstand is to be refloored.

Alterations will also be made to the dog show building.

The boilerhouse is to be repaired and a new foundation put in.

A great deal of fencing will also be done.

A very great improvement will be made to all the buildings. They will all be painted pure white, with suitable trimmings.

CHARACTER DEVELOPMENT

Sermon To Young People by the Rev. James Rollins.

The pastor of King Street Presbyterian Church, Rev. James Rollins, last night began a series of sermons to young people on "Character Development."

Mr. Rollins' first sermon was on the text, "Thinking and Its Effect Upon the Character." He said in part:

"Men have the power to control their own thoughts. They are what they think and their thinking governs their life. The only method of saving a man who cares for nothing good is by showing him that he is not living for the higher things."

Rev. Mr. Rollins said that people had never been born without love of music, but had molded themselves that way by considering it below their dignity when young. It is impossible for a man to think evil and do good. His thoughts govern his actions.

Change of life begins when a man begins to think right, hence it is necessary to think right before it is possible to live right.

Mr. Rollins preached in the morning on "Not Slaw, But Long Suffering." Second Peter, iii, 9. "Patience, ye ten believe," he said, "But God is slow in helping them, whereas he is long-suffering. He is merely waiting for the proper time to make it known. He is helping and assisting at all times."

Mr. Rollins was to continue his series next Sunday. The text will be, "The Place of Ideals in Character Development."

WATER ALL AROUND

Springbank's Aqua Pura Turned Into the Fountains.

At last action has been taken to have the water turned on in the drinking fountains on the streets of the east end in Queen's Park.

A plumber has been notified to repair the water pipes and to turn on the water.

The posts used to protect the fountains should be replaced, as they are very badly battered up.

AT ST. MARY'S

Rev. Father McKeon on "Devotion to the Virgin Mary."

Rev. Father McKeon celebrated high mass at St. Mary's Church yesterday morning.

Father Tobin occupied the pulpit, preaching on the patronage of St. Joseph, yesterday being the Feast of St. Joseph, the patron of the universal church.

Rev. Father McKeon preached at the evening vespers on "Devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary," as May is especially dedicated to devotion to the blessed virgin.

A BRIDE FOR CHRIST

Sermon by Rev. Mr. Bowen at Egerton Baptist Church.

At Egerton Street Baptist Church yesterday Rev. Mr. Bowen, the pastor, preached on "Seeking a Bride for Christ." His text was: "But thou shalt go into my country and my kindred and take a wife unto my son, Isaac," Genesis xxiv, 4. Lesson from Abraham's servants being sent to choose a wife for Isaac. The bride must be a believer and friend of God. She must be spotless, pure, clean, willing to leave everything for Christ's sake. Christ the groom, is possessed of unlimited wealth and power. He is all powerful.

WHAT IS HAPPENING OF A DAY IN THE BUSY EAST LONDON

Are Painting the Fair Buildings

The fair board will open the tenders for the painting of every building on the Queen's Park grounds this afternoon, and the contract will be awarded.

Over $6,300 will be expended in improvements at the park, about $2,000 of which will be for painting.

A new open stand is to be erected where the old one now stands at the south of the main covered stand. It will extend around nearly to the gate leading in the ring.

An addition will be made to the horse stable from the east to the north.

The fireworks building is to be moved to the center of the ring.

NEW RAILS ON MAIN LINE G. T. R. GANGS BUSY

Tracking Between Here and Sarnia To Be Renewed.

The Grand Trunk have several hundred men at work in the East End relaying new steel rails along the main line, which is to be renewed between here and Sarnia.

The gang is composed of expert steel layers from Toronto, Hamilton and other places in the district.

There are enough men working to lay seven miles of track daily.

The fifteenth district, from Stratford to St. Marys, has recently been renewed.

EARLY CHRISTIANITY

Characteristics of Christian Effort in Apostolic Days.

At Adelaide Street Church yesterday morning, Rev. T. T. Shields took up again the subject of "Apostolic Christianity," his text being Acts iii, 1-11, the story of the healing by Peter and John of the life-long cripple who laid daily at the temple gate and asked for alms. The preacher noted the fact that generally the world has little use for the church or the ministry; but when trouble comes they turn to the people of God for sympathy and help.

The majority are "outside the gate of the temple," and it is the mission of the Christian to go where the spiritual cripple is found, and take him by the hand and lift him up. The pastor's evening discourse was (like last Sunday's) addressed especially to "Seeking Souls." Text: Luke ix, 61, 62, "No man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

Three persons were baptized.

A much-appreciated feature of the musical part of the services in the evening was the singing of "The Wayside Cross" by a male quartet, which included Messrs. Charles P. Maynard, Edward Gardner, Roy Froeland and Clifford Reed. Another notable thing in connection with the choir was that the lady members left off their hats—an innovation that elicited favorable comment from many quarters.

THOSE AWFUL LIDS

Merry Widow Hats Make Trouble for the Church.

Those Merry Widow hats are causing trouble in the east end churches. Several ladies, previously devoted church people, have absolutely refused to attend services in one church unless they are given front seats.

Their own pews are toward the rear of the church, and the barrier of Merry Widow lids makes it impossible to see the preacher.

Members of the church in question will shortly call on the pastor and demand that some action be taken to have an order passed that there shall be no more Merry Widows.

They strenuously object to any more gaiety, and insist that elevated gardens are not the proper thing for church.

The ladies find it impossible to keep their minds on religion when a choice Merry Widow hat is before them.

EAST END NOTES.

The trustees of All Saints' Church are having trouble with the water at their church. The drains were connected with side-drains to the main sewer, which has not been completed. Consequently the water overflows and runs into the church basement.

The east end brethren had the second run this month on Saturday at 5:20 o'clock, when they were called to guard the Central station.

POLITICAL GOSSIP

The West Lambton Liberals will meet tomorrow afternoon at Sarnia to consider the question of nominating a candidate to oppose the Hon. W. J. Hanna. The Prohibitionists have already nominated K. C. If the Liberals Mr. John Cowart, K. C.

also nominate a man, then the election of Mr. Hanna would be almost assured, for it would split the votes of all who are opposed to the Whitney Government favors to the liquor trade.

The West Elgin Liberals will meet at Dutton on Wednesday next to select their standard-bearer against Mr. Finlay Macdonald, the present member. The Liberals in the riding are thoroughly united, and will put up a great fight, with good prospects of redeeming the constituency.

Opposes Three-Fifths Clause. Guelph, May 9.—Mr. A. W. Tyson, the Liberal candidate for South Wellington, has come out plainly before the electors on the temperance question, taking a firm stand against the Whitney three-fifths clause. "Liberal fair play when the majority rules every time," is Mr. Tyson's motto on which he goes to the polls. There has been a big awakening in South Wellington, and it is a different sight to that of four years ago, which is now in progress. Organizing work is on in earnest and a big rally is to be held on the 20th, when Hon. A. G. MacKay will be the principal speaker.

Kingston, May 9.—Frontenac Liberals met in the Whig Hall this afternoon, and after due consideration decided not to place a candidate in the field against J. S. Gallagher, M. P. P., but to support Dr. William Spankie, of Wolfe Island, who is running as an Independent. Dr. Spankie, though a Conservative, and holding the position of county school inspector, says he will remain neutral if elected. The prospects are that he will defeat Mr. Gallagher, as he will have the bulk of the Liberal vote and a good share of the Conservative.

Mr. Tremblay Retires. Windsor, May 10.—Mr. J. A. Tremblay of Tilbury, who was tendered the nomination for the Legislature by the Liberals of North Essex last Saturday, has decided that, owing to business and other reasons, it was impossible to make the race against Hon. Dr. Reame. No candidate has yet been decided upon in Mr. Tremblay's place.

JAMES ARNOTT AGAIN IN COURT

Man Who Fought P. C. Garnett Is Once More in Trouble.

James Arnett was arrested yesterday on the complaint of Joseph Allen, who charged him with assault.

Arnett is alleged to have come home drunk and kicked in the front door of his house.

Mr. Allen saw him and came out. When Arnett saw him he asked him who he was.

Allen said Arnett ought to know, because he had done it himself.

Arnett, it is said, became furious, and a brick was thrown in court with which he hit Mr. Allen in the chest.

Mr. J. M. McEvoy, who represented Arnett, asked that the case be adjourned for a week, and that bail be placed on Arnett.

Crown Attorney McKillop opposed this strenuously on the ground that Arnett is too dangerous a man to be at large after he has been drinking.

Arnett, at his own request, was placed in the hospital. His bail case was enlarged for a week, bail being allowed in the sum of $1,000, $500 personal bail, $250 by Mrs. Arnett and $250 by James Walton.

Arnett was up in court last winter and the heavily fined for assaulting P. C. Ernest Garnett, who went down to arrest him when he was in a drunken frolic at his home.

It is alleged that Arnett has a police record in Toronto.

Caven Barron, pianist, composer, teacher and principal of the London Conservatory of Music, which he founded in 1891 in London, Ont., has returned to Boston, where a number of years ago he pursued his early studies in music in the New England Conservatory of Music, and has taken studios on Huntington avenue, where he will devote much of his time during the next two or three months to composition teaching.

Mr. Barron was born in St. Marys, Ont., and after studying some time at the conservatory in this city, went to Leipzig, where he continued his study of the piano with Martin Krause, and of composition with Jadassohn.

Returning to this country, he decided to open a conservatory of music in Canada, and his work there has been especially successful. The school has several hundred pupils and has graduated many who have become successful professionals. One of the pupils who was recently graduated is Gertrude Huntley, who is now studying with Moszkowski, in Paris.

Death List From Plague Grows and Entire City is Affected.

Willemsstad, May 11.—W. W. Russell, the American minister to Venezuela, sailed from here yesterday on the steamer Caracas for the United States, where he will spend his vacation of two months.

There is a tension in the diplomatic relations between the United States and Venezuela was shown by the fact that none of the Venezuelan officers was on hand at Puerto Cabelo yesterday to bid Mr. Russell goodbye.

Thomas P. Moffatt, United States consul at La Guira, is still in that city without the means of communication because of the plague, and it is feared without the necessities of life. It is thought the United States may send a gunboat there for the purpose of transferring their appearance. There is great distress among the unemployed there, the death list is growing and the whole town seems to be infected.

Rev. Rutledge Speaks On Both Classes

In an Interesting Sermon—Many Topics Touched Upon in London Churches.

The "Biography of a Quitter" was the subject in which Rev. W. L. Rutledge preached to a large congregation at the First Methodist Church last night. Mr. Rutledge chose his text from the second book of Timothy, 10: "For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world."

"Many people," said Rev. Mr. Rutledge, "are, like Demas, filled with great enthusiasm for a short time and then cool off. Demas is not the first in the New Testament of a quitter, and there have been quitters in the church ever since. It was worldliness pure and simple that led Demas to desert the disciples, and it goes to the theater who are much better in many ways than those who go to the churches? Why is it more harmful to roll them on a green lawn? The open door of the theater does not go to the theater on the way to heaven? Dancing has led many young people astray, but there can not be much harm in young people mingling together in such an exercise as country green as they used to do many years ago. What is worldliness in one age is not in another. John, in speaking of worldliness, means what ever makes it difficult for us to love God, dot his name and honor, and to give up a quitter if he makes an earnest effort to live right."

Rev. Walter Moffatt spoke last night at Chalmers church on "An Ideal Young Man," taking as his subject the young ruler who, apparently an ideal youth, came to Christ seeking truth. When Christ revealed to him he did not like it and went away without accepting it. Mr. Moffatt showed how it was possible for many people to be apparently ideal human beings, and yet to be wanting in the requisites of a truly perfect character.

During the evening, Miss Forrester sang most acceptably. This morning, the committee, of which Mr. Moffatt is convenor, consisting of Revs. J. G. Stuart, H. F. Jolly, W. A. Henderson, and J. E. Goslin, to Canada and Ivan to try and arrange those districts more satisfactorily. Tomorrow they will go to Payne's Mills, and the results of their investigations will be contained in a report to be given at the next meeting of the presbytery.

Special anniversary services were celebrated at the Southern Congregational Church yesterday, when the church was occupied both in the morning and evening by Rev. William Spence, of Embro. Large congregations were present at both services, and the sermons were greatly appreciated. Mrs. Spence sang at both services. Rev. W. C. Clayton, pastor of the church, preached in Embro yesterday.

An inspiring service of song was held at the First Congregational Church last evening, which reflected credit upon the organist, Mr. G. E. Goslin, and his efficient choir, as well as upon the special soloists of the evening. The anthems were "Praise to the Father," "Hark, the Glad Sound," and "Hark, Hark, My Soul," and were all rendered with fine effect. The various parts were well taken and Miss Nellie Moulie's rich alto voice deserves special mention. Mr. Wilfred Blakie and Mr. Ernest Moulie each sang in splendid voice. Mr. Moulie's solo being, "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," and Mr. Blakie's "A Voice From Paradise." The pastor, Rev. D. S. Hamilton, gave a brief address on the subject of praise, and the hearty singing of the hymns by the congregation contributed to an uplifting season of worship.

Rev. Rutledge Speaks On Both Classes

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday the feast of "The Patronage of St. Joseph" was observed. At the morning service mass was sung by Father White, after which a special sermon in regard to the feast was preached by Father Ford. In the evening Father White preached on the ninth and tenth commandments.

At Matland Street Baptist Church yesterday special anniversary services were observed, and the pulpit was occupied both morning and evening by Rev. G. F. Boone, of Clinton Avenue Baptist Church, Detroit. Mr. Boone was pastor of Matland Street Baptist Church about six years ago. The church was filled at both the morning and evening services.

A very earnest and inspiring discourse was delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Vining, yesterday morning at the Tabbot Street Baptist Church from Psalm 25: 21. The speaker dwelt principally upon the two outstanding characteristics of a strong character—integrity and uprightness—without which no man can be really great. All Christians were urged to manifest these qualities in a consistent walk, and a singleness of purpose to glorify God in their everyday life, taking as their ideal the Lord Jesus Christ.

In the evening the pastor preached another most impressive discourse on the series concerning Israel's history, his subject being the "Fate of Jezebel" as described in Second Kings ix, 35. The history of these people as recorded in the Scriptures certainly contains many important lessons for this generation, and the pastor of Tabbot Street Church endeavors to give his hearers the benefit of each and every one that may be applicable.

Some of the leading facts emphasized in last evening's discourse were: The tenacity of sin; the infallibility of the law; the "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap"; the awful torture of conscience over lost opportunities.

The church is experiencing much blessing under the ministry of Mr. Vining, and numbers are steadily being added to the membership. The ordinance of baptism was administered last evening, and others are inquiring the way of salvation.
