

NO FRANCHISE, NO STREET CARS, SAYS CURRIE

OFFICIALS BELIEVE FRANCHISE CHANGE IS ONLY SOLUTION

Currie Points Out Three Possible Outcomes in Present Tangle—
New Franchise, Sale to City or Cease Operations—King Presents Figures Showing Cost in Operating and Change in Revenue.

ACTION WOULD MEAN CUT FOR EMPLOYEES

Unless the London Street Railway and the city council can get together and devise a new franchise before March 8, 1925, the road will automatically cease operation.

This is the ultimatum thrown down by Charles Currie, president, and Richard Ivey, vice-president of the London company. The road cannot possibly operate under the bill brought in and approved yesterday by the Ontario Legislature respecting decreased fares, they declare.

The revised wording of the bill passed by the legislature means that the increased fares granted the company shall end on March 8, 1925, and revert to the old schedule of seven and nine tickets for 25 cents.

Mr. Currie, over long distance telephone from Cleveland, stated to The Advertiser this morning that there were three possible outcomes to the decision of the Ontario House. They were:

1. That a new agreement as to fares must be arranged between the company and the city, involving a new franchise.
2. That the city take over the company at a reasonable figure.
3. That the company cease operation.

"We certainly cannot keep going on lower fares," Mr. Ivey said. "As I see it, the only solution is in the council and the company framing a new franchise to take effect on March 8, 1925."

There is no hope of continuing under the provision which calls for a reduction of fares, other officials of the company stated. Street car service would be demoralized if the company attempted such a thing. Besides, the wages of employees would have to be reduced by $34,779.16.

FIGURES SUBMITTED BY MANAGER

General Manager C. B. King submitted figures this morning which showed that the company's profit in 1923 was just 6 1/2 per cent on capital invested. He pointed out that operating on the 1921 basis, when fares were seven for 25 cents, the company would suffer a shortage of $78,567.

A summary of the 1923 gross costs compared with revenues for 1921, the last year of lower fares, is as follows:

COSTS IN 1923:
Operating expenses	$572,082.09
Fixed charges	37,086.62
Depreciation	37,364.58
	$646,533.29
REVENUE IN 1921 UNDER OLD RATES	567,866.26
DEFICIT	$78,667.03

Wages paid out in 1923 totaled $386,255.40, while the total of 1921 was $351,476.16. This would indicate that reverting to the 1921 scale of fares in 1925 would mean a reduction of $34,779.16 in wages to employees.

Greater Than Earnings.

Mr. King added that operating expenses last year were greater than the entire gross earnings of 1921. It was obvious, therefore, that the company would be compelled to scrap the road if no amicable arrangement can be made with the city before March 8, 1925.

"If the public expects better service the new franchise which will possibly be drawn up, must allow sufficient profit to induce investment of capital in the company. At present no one cares to invest his money in the road. The returns are not big enough," Mr. Ivey said. "No manufacturing concern would operate on a 6 1/2 per cent return of capital invested."

Just now, Mr. Ivey declared, nothing would be done to meet the situation. The company must await developments. It is supposed, of course, that the council and the company will confer on the matter shortly in the hope of formulating a new franchise which would permit the railway to continue giving good service at an equitable return.

The history of the street railway tangle dates far back as 1920, when the company asked for an inquiry by the Ontario Railway Board regarding the necessity for increasing fares from seven tickets for 25 cents to five tickets. The board submitted a report showing that owing to the general increase in materials, wages, etc., the London street railway should be allowed to raise its fares.

Appeal Granted.

With the findings of the board as evidence, the company appealed to the legislature to enact a special amendment to Bylaw 916, by which 5-cent fares would be allowed. This was granted. Although still operating under Bylaw 916, the clause dealing with the price of fares was nullified. On March 8, next year, however, the company must revert to the 1921 rate and Bylaw 916 will become operative in its entirety.

Mr. Ivey claims conditions affecting costs of doing business have not yet returned to normal. That reversion to the old rates will mean so substantial a loss that the company could not possibly function under that system.

It is probable that the whole situation will be reviewed before the council shortly when President Currie visits the city.

The revised wording of the bill respecting street railway fares under special acts was brought in by Premier Ferguson yesterday, and approved of by the House. The measure now refers specifically to the London bill of 1922, and is a declarative enactment, reading as follows: "To remove doubt, it is hereby declared that the provisions of chapter 141 of the act, passed in 1922, entitled 'An act respecting the London street railway,' shall only apply up to the 8th day of March, 1925, and from and after the said 8th day of March, 1925, the said act shall be repealed."

L. S. R. REMEDIES RIDOUT ST. BRIDGE

Road Would Share the Cost of
New Structure, Manager
King Declares.

The London Street Railway started today to construct supports on the Ridout street bridge for the purpose of making it doubly safe for passengers. After the near accident last summer when the track almost collapsed under the weight of a crowded street car, reinforcements were placed on the bridge. Additional supports, work on which commenced this morning, will insure perfect safety, C. B. King, manager, said.

Mr. King added that the company would be quite willing to shoulder their part of the expense involved in building a modern structure to replace the bridge which, despite its rather wobbly condition, is still giving service. He suggests that a modern bridge be built by the city with the street car tracks in the center, and two one-way traffic sections, one on the west and the other on the east side.

The Ridout street bridge, it will be recalled, was condemned as unsafe by ex-City Engineer Brazier two years ago.

Columbus, Ohio, April 15.—Charles Beard head jailer at the Franklin County jail in this city was positive, at a conference this morning with C. J. McNeal, chief of the Columbus detective department that he had seen "Pat" Norton during the last two years.

The jailer's duties bring him in constant touch with hundreds of men but when he scanned the circular containing the picture of "Bill" Murrell and "Pat" Norton, he pointed to the latter without the slightest hesitation.

"I've seen him here some time," he stated. "I don't know under what name of course or what he was here for, but I remember his face, however. The head jailer was equally positive that he had never seen William Murrell or heard of him. He is quite positive also that neither "Pat" Norton or Murrell are now in custody and if as he thinks Norton has ever been in his custody in the Franklin jail it has not been recently.

POSTAL MEN IN CITY AWAIT FURTHER NEWS

Today Is Pay Day at Local Office—Minimum Week's Wage Now $30.

Speaking on the question of the upward revision of postal salaries, local members of the Postal Workers' Association said today that nothing further has been heard from Ottawa or from the members of the postal workers' executive.

It was pointed out, however, that the bonus had been cut, and figures were given to show what such a cut means to many men. Today is pay day at the post office, and those who received the minimum wage received for two weeks' work approximately $30. The men state that although the minimum wage of $750 works out to $65 per month, less 5 per cent held back, known as the retiring fund, which is kept till a man leaves the service. This amounts to $32.50, leaving a balance of $62.75 for a month's work. As the extra $2.75 goes on at the end of the month, this leaves a man on the minimum rating with $60 for the next two weeks.

POLITICAL BATTLE BELIEVED COMING

Quebec Minister Sees Struggle
Equalling Reciprocity Campaign of 1911.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 15.—A political battle of the magnitude of the 1911 reciprocity campaign is impending as a result of the tariff reductions proposed by the 1924 budget, according to Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries, who addressed the Young Liberal Association here tonight.

Mr. Cardin said that the Liberal Party had often been relegated to the opposition in parliament because of its devotion to a policy that meant good for all people and not merely for special classes. That, he said, was why Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been beaten in 1911. "The Liberals today are about in the same position," he maintained. "Let us hope that if it is necessary to go before the electorate in a year or two the party will receive a verdict different from that of 1911."

WILLIAMS DECLARES "PAT" REALLY NORTON

Claims He Went to Buffalo
With Melbourne Bandit
To See Wife.

ROBBERY AT SIMCOE

Relates How He Entered Store
and Removed Clothes
From Dummy.

Police authorities have ascertained from no less a person than "Slim" Williams himself, that the famous and mysterious "Pat" who took a leading part in the Melbourne bank robbery in April, 1921, is really "Pat" Norton.

Williams, it was learned from an authentic source, was shown a picture of Norton as he sat in his cell at the Middlesex jail, and he immediately identified it as his pal in the bank robbery.

There have been stories and still more stories circulating through city and county ever since the robbery that "Pat" was not Norton at all, but the son of Mr. "So-and-So." These rumors are now definitely set at rest by Williams' statement.

Inspector Nickle of the London detective department was quite sure that the escaped man at Melbourne was Norton, judging from the description given by residents of the village. He quietly secured a picture of "Pat" and showed it to people who had glimpsed the fleeing bank bandit. These individuals told the inspector he was certainly after the right man.

If Williams' story is to be believed, he knew Norton for some time, and visited with the bandit at his home in Buffalo. Pat introduced the lady of the house as his wife, "Slim" stated.

This would tend to bear out the statement of Norton's first wife, who resides in London, that her husband had another wife in the United States.

Another automobile damage action is occupying the attention of Judge Talbot Macbeth in county court today. Robert Boyle of London is suing Oscar Mowat of Kitchener for $341.75 damages to his motor car in an accident at the intersection of William and King streets on the afternoon of Sunday, October 21 last.

Mr. Boyle claims he was driving north on William street and was just past the center of the King street intersection when his car was struck by a motor owned by Mr. Mowat. The latter declares he was not negligent as alleged by the plaintiff and in turn counterclaims $191 damages, alleging the plaintiff was to blame.

JAPANESE PROTEST PROPOSALS OF U.S. ON EXCLUSION

TOKIO ALARMED OVER U.S. PLANS FOR EXCLUSION

Foreign Minister Matsui Declares Action Is Absolutely Unnecessary.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS

Tokio, April 15.—Foreign Minister Matsui, in a statement today to newspaper correspondents, protested against exclusion of Japanese from the United States, declaring: "We have cause for grave anxiety and we appeal against any action which can only wound us to some extent and bring little satisfaction to you."

CABINET CONFERS.

Tokio, April 15.—Eyes of Japan are today anxiously turned toward Washington, and the Japanese have become an all absorbing topic. The people are following each detail of action in the United States congress as chronicled in newspaper extras. Official concern, already deep as a result of passage by the house of the Johnson immigration bill, was further intensified by news of the senate's overwhelming refusal to endorse the gentlemen's agreement. A cabinet meeting was held to discuss the problem, after which, according to vernacular newspapers, "new important instructions" would be despatched to Japanese Ambassador Hanabara at Washington. The question was considered as to a meeting of the Koseikai and Chawakai parties in the House of Peers, and leaders of both parties demand a stiffening of the foreign office attitude in the matter.

In some quarters there is a disposition to regret Ambassador Hanabara's reference to "grave consequences" if the pending measure providing for exclusion of Japanese immigrants from the United States should become law. It is felt that a milder translation of the Japanese expression would have been better and more accurate.

detective squad went on duty this morning with special instructions from Captain C. J. McNeal to "get" the missing Londoners if they are in Columbus.

The detectives have now all viewed the picture of Murrell and Norton from the joint circularly issued by the London police and The London Advertiser, and they are in possession of such details as set forth in the document. Chief McNeal directed that special attention be at first directed toward the automobile accessory plants of which there are several in Columbus. The chief and his men are not without a hint that "Pat" Norton if awake is liable to shoot first and ask questions afterwards.

"We'll get them if they are within the city limits," he stated, "but the co-operation of the Canadian authorities has not yet developed." Chief McNeal is still waiting specific details and instructions from the Toronto department. No message of any description whatever was received either yesterday or today.

Awaits Call of Name.

And, surrounded by friends, Mr. Smith stood outside, waiting to answer to his name at the bar of justice. The crowd hummed with conversation. "Order, gentlemen! order, please," Constable Gerald Brash, court guard's voice rang out. "Out of the way, gents; have you a case here?"—and one of the men was Peter Smith. The many Stratford friends who came to Mr. Smith's aid last night and went his bail came back today—and with them many more from Stratford willing to go his bond.

Peter Smith, with his bondsmen, arrived in court at 10:15, fifteen minutes late and fifteen minutes after his name had been called.

Included in the thirteen bondsmen were twelve fellow-citizens of Hon. Peter Smith. A dozen of his staunch Stratford friends lined up before Magistrate Jones in police court this morning, and each gave $1,000 bail to guarantee the appearance of the former provincial treasurer eight days hence to answer the charge of conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario.

At the request of H. H. Dewart, K.C., his counsel, Mr. Smith was remanded for eight days. No plea or election was made.

Mr. Smith was not asked to either plead or elect, and the charge was not even read to him.

McGARRY TO TESTIFY ON $4,000,000 LOAN

Liberal Member on Public Accounts Committee Wants Probe Extended.

BACK TO HEARST'S TIME

W. R. Fleming, Manager of the Home Bank Bond Department, Testifies.

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, April 15.—Liberal members of the public accounts committee of the legislature are seeking further light on rumors that the "roll-gate" system existed in the Ontario treasury department prior to the coming into power of the Drury government.

At the opening of this morning's session, W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, moved for the summoning of J. C. Whitaker, former general supervisor of the Home Bank, to give evidence regarding the loans of $4,000,000 negotiated by Hon. T. W. McGarry, the provincial treasurer.

In answer to Mr. Sinclair, Col. Price announced that subpoena had already been issued for Charles Matthews, L. S. Mason, W. E. McGarry and C. H. Sproule, for whose evidence the Liberal leader had previously asked.

It was arranged that Mr. McGarry take the stand immediately after lunch. W. R. Fleming, manager of the bond department of the Home Bank, testified concerning the missing $15,000 check and other transactions between the government and the bank.

He said that he thought the missing checks had been made over, as indicated on the stub to Hon. Peter Smith, provincial treasurer. The check was drawn on the instructions of J. C. Mason, then general manager of the bank. The witness did not know who cashed the check.

Evidence was also put in showing the list of estates in Ontario which held succession duty free bonds. It was stated that these bonds were exaggerated. The loss since 1906 because of such bonds was $800,000, he said.

W. R. Fleming, former manager of the bond department of the Home Bank, was questioned by Col. Price. "Do you recollect the four-million-dollar loan sold by the Ontario Government during Mr. McGarry's period of office as provincial treasurer?"

"Yes." "What were your instructions in regard to these bonds?" "My job was to sell them only." "What attempt did you make to sell them?"

"None at the time, because the Victory Loan campaign was pending." "Sought Sales in U. S."

"The first time I then, open was the American market, because all the Canadian houses had agreed not to negotiate issues for a certain period."

"Where did you negotiate?" "In Chicago, around Nov. 1."

"How?" "I got in touch with several Chicago bond houses, and eventually made a trip to Chicago."

"Was the deal successful?" "No." "Why?"

"They did not offer a price that was advantageous to us."

"Did you report back?" "Yes, in the form of a definite offer signed by Chicago houses, which was refused by us."

"The bank refused this offer?" "Yes, because there were several strings attached to it. It was not a clear-cut offer to purchase; it was an offer to negotiate."

"The bank didn't think it was attractive enough?" "No."

Witness stated that his instructions had been to "use every effort possible" to complete a transaction. The general manager of the bank, he explained, was particularly keen to turn the bonds into cash, even without a profit to the bank, if necessary.

"Were there any further attempts to sell this loan?" "Not in the United States. I was approached by one of the Toronto houses, and it resulted in the disposition of the entire issue."

"What Toronto house was the deal made with?" "The Dominion Securities."

TITANIC DISASTER IS COMMEMORATED

White Star Liner Sunk 12 Years Ago Today—U. S. Cutter Holds Service.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Halifax, N.S., April 15.—Twelve years ago this morning at 2 a.m. the White Star liner, Titanic, on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York sank off the grand banks of Newfoundland and took 1,654 of her passengers and crew to their deaths. Some four hours previously on the night of the 14th she had struck an iceberg.

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock a memorial service was held at or near the place of sinking by the United States ice patrol cutter, Modoc, one of the vessels which this spring patrols the North Atlantic to warn of the presence of icebergs and to prevent a recurrence of the Titanic disaster. The service was participated in by all ships and shore stations within wireless communication of the Modoc and all ships in the vicinity were asked to keep their wireless silent for five minutes.

When police court opens on Thursday morning, a small arm of boys and girls will invade the Carling street station accompanied by several Sunday school teachers who hope by means of favored eloquence to intercede for ten young youths summoned on a charge of loitering.

The case has arisen out of what the fathers of the boys in question state is due to the over zealous work of a motorcycle policeman who took the names of all the boys while they stood on the corner of Wharmcliffe road and Beaconsfield avenue. Sunday afternoon waiting for a Springfield car, the parents of the boys are up in arms over the affair, and several are said to favor taking the case before the police commissioners.

However, the fathers promise some interesting fireworks for the benefit of the audience on Thursday morning and may demand that constable in question be brought before the police commission to give a full report as to why the boys are summoned.

Several indignant fathers made inquiries as to whether any complaints had been made by residents in that vicinity, and found that such was not the case.

METEOROLOGISTS ARE MYSTIFIED OVER SHOCK

Canadian Press Despatch. Victoria, B.C., April 15.—Meteorologists are mystified by the severe earthquake registered in Victoria and elsewhere Monday morning. The series of shocks which lasted for a period of four hours were so intense that tremendous changes in the earth's crust must have taken place at the center of the disturbance, according to Superintendent Denison of the Ganges Heights station.

The first shock occurred at 8:30 a.m., the record continuing for more than four hours. The maximum swing was three inches on the seismographic chart, placing it on a par with some of the most severe quakes of the recent past.

EDUCATION BOARD SEEKS TO SAVE EXPENSE ON COAL

Hauling Could Be Done by the City Teams, Many Trustees Declare.

SLATED FOR DISCUSSION

Why should the city pay coal contractors a profit on every ton of coal they supply to the London schools is probably a question which will be raised at the next meeting of the local board of education by some of the trustees, when the question of asking for tenders for the coal supply comes to be discussed.

It is pointed out that the coal, some three thousand tons every year, is bought directly from the American mines, that it comes across Lake Erie, and over the L. and P. S.—a cheap transportation route—to the city, where the coal contractor merely packs it into wagons, delivers it to the schools.

Why the city board could not do the teaming themselves is what some members want to know. It is true that four years ago this scheme was tried, and that the next year it was dropped, but they say that it never had a fair trial or a long enough trial, and see no reason why it should not be given another run over the course this year.

The cost is ordered and delivered in the summer time, and all the contractor does is to order it, and deliver it: two things which the board could do as well.

Another point raised with some insistence by a trustee is that if the coal were ordered in this fashion it would do away with a great deal of lobbying and petty politics that surround this matter, and generally would put the oil of satisfaction on the troubled waters of accepting coal tenders. There has been some sharp criticism of the letting of this particular contract for many years, and he suggests that the board buying for the board as a happy solution of a ticklish question.

INTERESTING BOOKLET ISSUED BY COMPANY

Points Out Symptoms of Illnesses That Are Not Usually Heeded.

An interesting and exceedingly well written booklet on the prevention of illness has just been issued by the London Life Insurance Company to its policy holders. It is merely a matter of 14 pages, but it deals with such important things as the seriousness of little ailments that the average man and woman never gives heed to. The gist of the booklet is contained in the following rules printed on the cover.

"Fever means—bed."

"Fever means—Call the doctor."

"Fever with pain means—Call him quick."

"Have yourself examined once a year by your doctor."

"Get rid of goitre before you grow up."

"Keep up-to-date."

The inside pages are devoted to telling you how to follow all these rules and how to keep well. The pamphlet is illustrated with pen and ink sketches, and the make-up of the book is as much a credit to the editors as the issuing of it is to the company officials. The Institute of Public Health is authority for the facts and the health rules and regulations.

CHIEF HIGHLY AROUSED AT TWO FALSE ALARMS

Points Out Heavy Penalty For Persons Found Guilty of Charge.

Some person whose hobby consists of seeing the fire trucks in action was responsible for the two false alarms last night inside of an hour. Fire Chief Aiken stated this morning, "that every effort will be made to learn the identity of the ones responsible."

This is a practice which can not be tolerated by any fire department and if let go unchecked would probably bring disastrous results," stated the chief.

The two alarms in question were turned in from box 516 at the corner of Dame and Sackville streets and each time upon the arrival of the trucks they found no one in the vicinity.

"Perhaps people are unaware that there is a heavy fine attached to any one found guilty of tampering with fire alarm boxes," declared the chief. "However, London has been fortunate in being free from this practice and I am inclined to believe that children playing in the neighborhood were responsible."

CUT IN ESTIMATES FOR PLAYGROUNDS IS ATTACKED

VALUE OF GROUNDS TO LONDON YOUTHS FOR GAMES SHOWN

Cut in Expenditure Will Hamper Work, According to Officials.

KEEP BOYS OFF STREET

That the cut in the playgrounds' estimates of the public utilities commission must have a serious effect on the youth of the city, and that this was an estimate needed for the good of the city as a whole and of future Londoners in particular, is the opinion of all the commissioners. They back their statement on, among other things, a letter from H. S. Brancher, secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, in which he presents figures showing how great is the need for playgrounds and the opportunity which they offer in keeping boys on the straight path in a city. He says: "Of 717 arrests of boys in a month in New York City, more than one-third were for the following offences in the street: Throwing a ball, playing cat, shouting, or making a noise. In other words, for just what a boy should do as a normal youngster. The rub was that the city, failing to provide an adequate and safe opportunity for boys' games sought to solve the problem by forbidding them."

"More than $14,000,000 was spent last year by cities in the United States and Canada, on behalf of playgrounds and recreation centers. In 690 cities there are 6,291 playgrounds conducted under paid leadership and the daily attendance was 1,200,000. This is four times as many as came to the grounds in 1913."

"The reason for the steadily increasing expenditures for children's recreation at a time when municipalities are bent on economy, is that playgrounds and recreation are recognized as a great investment. Delinquency and crime costs are reduced."

"Chiefs of police, probation officers, and judges all over the country attribute a greatly decreased delinquency to the effect of the supervised playgrounds. Where playgrounds are in operation the number of street accidents to children is always reduced."

"The nation's playgrounds have increased over 175 per cent in the last ten years, and the number is increasing every day."

Mr. Brancher concludes his letter with: "The two outstanding values of the civic playground today are the opportunity afforded the routine worker for self-expression, and an outlet for the energy of the normal boy. Something dangerous and difficult to do is the first requisite in boy life, and it is for the city to see that the road that leads to the playground, not to the penitentiary, shall be left wide open."

CITY HUMANE SOCIETY'S FAME IS SPREADING

Windsor Man Sends Pure Bred Dog To Inspector Tustin's Hospital.

That the splendid work being carried on by the London Humane Society is being fully appreciated by the citizens of London and Western Ontario was clearly illustrated yesterday when a dog from Windsor was shipped by express to George Tustin's hospital for sick animals.

Earlier in the day the inspector received a telegram from a man in Windsor stating that he was forwarding his dog, a pure-bred Airedale, for treatment and would appreciate having the inspector look after the case.

Mr. Tustin met the afternoon train and found the animal bearing a tag addressed to the London Humane Society. He was taken to the hospital, and will be under the care of Mr. Tustin for several weeks, during which time he hopes to cure the canine and return him to his owner.

OPTIMISM PERVADES TELEPHONE CO. REPORT

Bell Company Issues Summary of Financial Conditions Throughout Territory.

A summary of financial conditions throughout the territory of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada is contained in a report issued by the general commercial engineer's office.

The report is most optimistic in tone. According to statements of district telephone exchange managers an improved state in general conditions over the months of February and March has been noted.

The report reads in part: "There is little unemployment reported and indications point to increased activity by plants and large firms this spring and summer. In some centers reports are contradictory, but even in these cases there is a strong undercurrent of feeling that conditions will improve."

The statement adds that Canadian banks are hopeful indications in the increase of car loadings over last year. This is good evidence as to the betterment of business generally. Imports and exports to the United States are $71,000,000 and $70,000,000, respectively, greater than last year. The C. P. R. reports that exports have increased substantially within recent months.

BANK ROBBER IS GIVEN 25 YEARS

Penitentiary Term and Twenty Lashes Imposed on Raoul Beauchamps.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, April 15.—Found guilty this morning by Justice Monet of having robbed the Cotes des Neiges branch of the Moisons Bank on February 14 of the sum of $1,765, Raoul Beauchamps was sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary and 20 lashes.

Dominic Pilco who was charged with the same offence was acquitted. The bank was held up on February 14, shortly after noon. The bandits entered the bank and pointing revolvers at the employees ordered them to throw up their hands. They then proceeded to loot the cashiers' drawers.

Beauchamps was later arrested and identified by two employees of the bank. A revolver marked the "Molson Bank 74" was discovered under the mattress in a room where the convicted man spent the night after the robbery and was identified as being the property of the bank.

Fifty Are Away From Classes Through Effects of Preventive Treatment.

Sore arms, as the result of vaccination, are keeping some fifty students away from the London South Collegiate, and there are about fifteen pupils who, lacking vaccination, are not allowed to come to school.

It is now about eight days since the vaccination order in this school went into effect and the attendance and the work of the school have been interfered with but little. By the middle of the week Principal Graham hopes to have all his scholars back again in their classes.

The Lambeth League, forty strong, visited the Young People's Society of First Methodist Church last night at the regular meeting. The program, one of a very interesting nature, was entirely provided by the Lambeth young people. Short addresses were given by two of their members, Mr. Sadler, on "The Aims of an Epworth League," and Mr. Steadman on "The Increase in Mission Work." BOARD IS ASKED TO SUSPEND RULE FOR 3 TEACHERS

Recommendation Received in Case of Those Who Have Exceeded Allowance.

COURSE IS UNUSUAL

A recommendation to the board of education that the rules and regulations of the board be suspended in the case of three teachers in the public schools who have exceeded their sickness allowance this year was made by the finance committee of the board at yesterday's meeting.

This unusual course was taken after some discussion of the case of the case after consultation with the school inspector and in view of the long years of faithful service rendered by the teachers.

The rules of the board call for a stoppage of salary whenever any teacher exceeds more than twenty-one days of absence from duty owing to sickness in any one year.

The inspector's report on the manual training in the schools, which was characterized as "most satisfactory," gave rise to some criticism of the way in which the board of education does or does not keep track of its expenditures.

This was generally agreed to by the committee, and Secretary Tamm told the members that he had always wished to keep the accounts in his office, but that he had not the staff to do so.

FIFTEEN YEARS' RECORD BROKEN BY $10 FINE

Ezra Merkley, Auto Salesman, Got His Markers Mixed—
Tells of Good Behavior.

Ezra Merkley, a local automobile salesman, has been in the business fifteen years and never once in that time has he been charged with any offence in police court. Today, however, his record was broken and he paid $10 and $4 costs to Police Court.

Clerk John Moulde, pleading guilty to a charge of driving a car with markers that had been issued for another vehicle.

"I plead guilty, but it was a mistake," stated Mr. Merkley. "The markers were put on a deal and we took a car in on a deal and we were under the impression that we would have to put our own markers on it."

"I don't see why that would be necessary," commented the court. "I did the same thing all last year," replied the defendant. "Was the night marker's fault. He put the markers on the wrong car."

"You ought to know the law," declared the magistrate.

"I've been in the business fifteen years and was never pinched. I don't want to spoil my record for a little thing like this," stated Merkley.

"It's not a little thing, it's a serious thing. I can't make the fine any less than the minimum of $10 and costs. The garage people are the worst offenders," concluded the magistrate.

ASKIN STREET W. M. S.
At the Easter meeting of the Askin Street W. M. S., held yesterday afternoon, an address of a most inspirational nature was given by Mrs. (Mrs.) D. E. McAmmond, of the Salvation Army. Mrs. McAmmond developed her address from the text in St. Luke, "Did not our hearts burn as he talked by the wayside and opened the Scriptures unto us?" At one particularly impressive point, she made this statement: "Arm yourself with the knowledge of the divinity of Christ, because there was never a day in the history of this old world when Christians needed so sorely that Divine flame which Christ alone can kindle." The Easter message was appropriately borne out in a solo by Mrs. W. H. high school. The members received an "R.O.S." letter from Mrs. Gordon Wright, head of the branch auxiliary, in which she asked the members of the Askin Street W. M. S. to add their support to those who were striving to see the present temperance measures existing in the province retained in their full strength.

Mrs. Wright asked that they should pray earnestly for the success of the thankoffering, and that the year the funds have a particularly important part to play in mission work, that of educating a number of the young people of the city. The W. M. S. are holding special services offering prayer meetings for this purpose on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons of this week. It was arranged that the next study group meeting should be held at the home of Mrs. Lawson, 270 Briscoe street, on April 25. Following the meeting, the ladies enjoyed tea together in the dining-room of the church. Mrs. James Brown, president, and Mrs. J. T. C. Morris poured tea at tables centered with red and white carnations and prettily lighted with candles. Mrs. A. Dobbyn was the general convener of this feature of the afternoon.

FIRST METHODIST W. M. S.
Eighty members were present at the Easter meeting of the W. M. S. of First Methodist Church, held yesterday afternoon in Wesley Hall. The special program, presided by Mrs. Wendall and Mrs. Pearce, was of very interesting nature. The pastor, Rev. J. B. Hunter, delivered the Easter message, taking as his theme, "Obedience to Our Heavenly Father." Solos appropriate to the occasion were sung by Mrs. Ed. Wyatt. During the usual business session, it was reported by the strangers secretary, Mrs. J. Brown, that 294 had been made during the past month. One life member was enrolled and Mrs. Will Benson's paper on "Christianship" was read by Mrs. Henderson. Mrs. Alex Harvey, Jun., and Mrs. George Boyd conducted the opening devotional exercises. The Easter offering reported was one of very generous amount.

Following the meeting, tea was served, with Mrs. Percy Young as general convener. Mrs. Young was assisted by Mrs. Alex Harvey, Jun., Miss Gail, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. H. Morrow and Mrs. Loft.

SPECIAL CEREMONIES

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, April 15.—Baseball drove politics into the background today in the United States. Thousands of people will sit in the wind-swept baseball parks to view their favorites in action or watch bulletin boards for results of the first battles of the pennant campaigns.

The 1924 race, baseball leaders say, promises to be another record season from the standpoint of attendance and close finishes in both organizations. Ban Johnson, president of the American League, forecasts a close race, with the world's champion Yankees as the local choice to capture the flag.

President Heydler of the National League predicts the Giants will have a desperate time winning their fourth league pennant, as the other contenders, even Philadelphia and Brooklyn, are much stronger than in 1923.

Reports from the major league cities early today revealed plans for the usual opening day ceremonies, band concerts, flag raisings and speeches. K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, will view the Cardinals in action against the Cubs at St. Louis, while President Johnson will attend the opener between the Yankees and Red Sox at Boston.

NAMING OF NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL SOME PROBLEM

No. 2 Committee Will Meet
This Afternoon To Talk Matter.

SUGGESTIONS MANY

No. 2 committee of the board of education this afternoon will have as one of its functions the naming of the new school in London West. Empress School has been suggested by the trustees of the board, the chairman of the committee, the most logical and sensible name. The board, however, at its last meeting felt that was too vague and though recognizing the local value of the name and wished to find the building, because the name is the same as the street it stands on, looked for some patriotic name with a wider appeal. It asked the committee to choose a suitable name that would combine local value with national sentiment.

There was a general satisfaction amongst the trustees when the Lord Roberts and the Tufalgar schools were named and they want the London West School to follow this practice or at least national hero or soldier. It was agreed that there was no Londoner after whom a school might be named and that no Londoner has done so much for education that he had the right to be remembered in this way.

Every great soldier, sailor, thinker and scientist was suggested to the board at that time, and even Nicholas Wilson, that dean of London teachers was mentioned as a fit citizen. The boy is reported in a critical condition in a hospital. The police sergeant testified that the woman, with whom William was boarding, had driven a nail in the wall and lashed the boy's thumbs to the floor. After the beating, the officer said, she left him suspended for several minutes.

COMMITTEE TO ADJOURN
Premier Tells of Irregularities in Several Other House Departments.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, April 14.—Although the developments of the day were the most sensational in the recent political history of the province, the Legislature of Ontario concluded its final business sitting of the session quietly this afternoon.

While the House was concluding its routine business, a former provincial treasurer, Hon. Peter Smith, was held under arrest in the same building. His name was never mentioned in the House proceedings during the afternoon, although there was reference in the early part of the proceedings to "my colleague" by Hon. Manning Doherty, leader of the U. F. O. group.

In a resolution, Mr. Doherty asked that the inquiry into public accounts of Ontario be proceeded with during the parliamentary intermission by a select committee of the public accounts committee. This resolution, after a few words by the prime minister, who didn't mention Mr. Smith's name, was withdrawn.

The House will be formally prorogued on Thursday. Meantime, the public accounts committee will sit all day to conclude its work, but as the premier said, it will not go searching for scandal with no obvious evidence.

Moves Amendment.

Mr. Doherty, in moving his amendment, said that his present speaker had announced in his budget speech that he had suspicions about public accounts. Mr. Doherty stated that during the sittings of the public accounts committee he had endeavored to investigate everything, and added that during the sittings there had been every opportunity for himself and the members of his group to bring what they desired before the committee.

SUCCEEDS NEW BISHOP.

Right Rev. Mgr. J. J. Blair, vicar general of Winnipeg, who has been appointed president of the Catholic Church Extension Society in succession to Bishop Thomas O'Donnell, Victoria.

"There was the greatest courtesy to myself and the members of the old government, and there was a generous disposition for fair and thorough investigation," said Mr. Doherty.

"I saw I had a duty to perform. In the first place that duty was to my colleague during four years of office. A respectable loyalty was demanded of me, and it was not hard to give. My view will be until it is proved otherwise, that he could have made a statement to the committee which would have entirely and completely vindicated him. I limited my efforts to bring out the truth and to make it easier for my colleague to come into the committee and give a statement vindicating himself. It is my duty, too, to bring out all the facts. It is the desire of all U.F.O. members to have a full and complete investigation. I was under the belief that after all the evidence had been submitted that the former provincial treasurer would come forward and give evidence. I was under that belief until this morning. He has seen fit to take a different course of action on advice of counsel. The matter is now before the courts.

Would Continue Probe.

"It has been intimated, however, that there are other departments in which there have been irregularities. In order that the government and the public may understand our attitude, I therefore desire to move:

"That the evidence before the standing committee on public accounts, having established the existence of grave irregularities in the public service of the province, the source of the House is that the inquiry now proceeding ought to be continued during the recess of the Legislature by a sub-committee of the standing committee on public accounts with full authority to investigate all matters relative to the public service or the expenditure of public moneys, and that the inquiry ought to be prosecuted with diligence and the sittings of the committee continued as far as possible from day to day until all the evidence has been heard."

"We want all the truth," said Mr. Doherty, in conclusion. "With the public mind in the shape it is there can be no other position than tearing up the roof and laying all the cold facts before the people."

Other Irregularities.

"It is true that there have been irregularities in several departments. In the lands and forests two gentlemen have departed with considerable funds. One has been brought back. In the provincial secretary's department two gentlemen have been suspended. In the highways department, there is a similar condition. This government will not condemn technical irregularities, but where there has been wilful dishonesty we will set the law in motion whether they are inside or outside the service. The committee will sit all day tomorrow and the next day if necessary. However, the committee should not be turned into a fishing expedition. I don't want to see the committee made use of," the premier said.

He was glad to see that Hon. T. McGarry had come forward and given his statement after having been suspected. He declared that the government would protect nobody. However, he felt that the motion, in view of the fact that the committee would give an opportunity to do all it liked, would serve no purpose. He knew and appreciated the viewpoint of Mr. Doherty, and thought that in view of the fact that he had made an explanation that the amendment could be dropped. Mr. Doherty raised no objection, and the amendment to the report of the public accounts committee was not pressed.

The House then proceeded to clean up the order paper on bills which had already been explained.

Wants Eight-Hour Day.

Peter Heenan's (Kenora) motion that outside farm labor and other reasonable exceptions the eight-hour day be the general principle for work hours in Ontario's industrial pursuits, was amended before passing the House so that Ontario, while agreeable to the eight-hour day, would not pass it until it was generally acceptable throughout Canada.

Mr. Heenan's resolution that a fair-wage clause in all pulpwood, timber and power contracts be inserted so that the wage paid would equal the current wages in the district was passed with the rider that there would be no interference with vested interests or contracts already existing.

Dr. Wallis (Algoma) in his motion asking more government assistance for hospitals in Northern Ontario, was told by the premier that the government would devote attention to the matter, and he withdrew his motion.

The premier also expressed his appreciation for the sympathetic cooperation the government had from the House and from all parties in the framing and passing of its legislation.

NATURE AT HER BEST.

Those who appreciate nature at her best and revel in a wealth of varied scenery, will find the route travelled by the Canadian National Railways between Toronto and Vancouver, one of never-to-be-forgotten beauty.

First through the inimitable lake region of Northern Ontario, skirting many placid, mirror-like lakes pocketed between tree-clad hills, catching a fleeting glimpse of mountains, rock-strewn little waterways dashing madly towards the quiet levels of the lakes below. From Winnipeg, the fertile Prairie Provinces greet the traveller to a type of gently undulating scenery not to be seen in any other part of Canada.

The ever-changing scenery of the Canadian Rockies never grows wearisome, no matter how often it is viewed. Jasper Park, with its protected wild game and its Mt. Edith Cavell, colossal Mt. Robson, gigantic snow-capped peaks stretching from snow-clad peaks, are only a few of nature's wonders the traveller by the Canadian National Route sees before descending to the balmy climate of Vancouver and the Pacific Coast.

There are two Canadian National trains leave Toronto daily for the West. The NATIONAL carrying standard sleeping car and compartment observation car departs at 10:45 p.m. Steel equipped, the NATIONAL is luxurious in every detail. A standard sleeping car connecting with the Continental Limited the train de luxe of the Canadian National System leaves Toronto every evening at 8:45.

Travellers to California or other points on the Pacific Coast usually take the famous scenic route through Canada because of its beauty. Excellent connections are made at Vancouver with both steamship and train.

That viscous film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is their chief enemy. Under old methods, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Then pearly teeth look cloudy.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Not one in fifty escapes such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.

Modern science has found two ways to effectively fight film. One disintegrates the film at all stages

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combant which contains harsh grit.

TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1924.

"Tear Off the Roof."

Hon. Manning Doherty asked that a committee of the public accounts committee sit right on through the Easter recess of the legislature, and keep on with the business of scooping all the dirty water from Ontario's financial well.

The premier declined to meet the request, claiming that the committee would sit for a day or two yet.

Premier Ferguson made a mistake in that attitude. It may satisfy him to think he has nailed a hide on the fence, to use his own prediction at the time his own department was being investigated.

Premier Ferguson knows there are other departments that should be cleaned out. He knows that there are certain things in connection with the treasurer's department prior to the regime of Hon. Peter Smith that have not been explained. The official report of Clarkson & Co. shows that in September of 1919 there were payments made to some person in much the same manner as those alleged to have been received later on by Hon. Peter Smith when he became the occupant of the position from which the Home Bank bought its business. There is one item on September 4, 1919, of $2,500; another on September 12, of $12,000, and on September 23, one for $25,000.

Premier Ferguson knows these things. He also knows that there are other departments where things are not right. His own intimation is as follows:

"It is true that there are indications of irregularities in several branches of the service. In the lands and forests department two gentlemen have disappeared with substantial sums of public money. One of them has been overtaken and arrested. In the provincial secretary's department two officials have been suspended; in the highways department we have a somewhat similar condition."

Knowing these things, and admitting that he knows them, how can the premier turn down the request of Mr. Doherty that a committee keep right on going?

That is exactly what the people of the province want, and that is what they are entitled to.

In the interests of the state of business at Toronto, it is imperative that this whole business be pushed to the farthest limits of the public claim. Confidence has been shattered in some of the officials of the province, and in the way in which business was carried on. The obvious thing is to go ahead and lay bare the whole performance, and punish the guilty ones. It is only by such a course that public confidence can be re-established.

Hon. Manning Doherty and his associates in the legislature took a clean course when they asked that the work be kept going. They are to be commended in not having at any time sought to hold up the work even if it did bore right into the vitals of their own previous administration. When they take that attitude, rather than one of trying to defend methods that crept into the business of the province during their time of office, it places them in a strong position when they ask that the work be gone on with, some of which reached out to the days before they came into power.

The decision of the premier to stop the work now going on because of the Easter recess was a serious error. The probing should go on and keep on going on.

It is not a piecemeal proposition in any sense of the word. It is not sufficient that the premier shall have secured his one hide; let him show equal diligence now in getting the others in the set.

A Poor Way to Start.

With its last gasp of breath the Ontario Legislature gave assent to a bill brought in by Sir Adam Beck to place the fares to be charged by the London Street Railway at seven and nine tickets for 25 cents, starting on the 8th day of March, 1925.

It is significant that the measure was changed, on instruction from the government, from one of general application to one that applied to the city of London alone. It did not apply to the city of Toronto, where they charge a higher railway fare than they formerly did; it did not apply to Guelph, Windsor, Brantford, or any other city where the same thing has taken place. But London was singled out in spite of the fact that this place, with the exception of Hamilton, is the only place in the province with a five-cent fare.

Sir Adam Beck is a man of big accomplishment; in his hydro schemes he has figured in millions, and has succeeded in playing a big part in building up a great public enterprise. It is a fact, though, that big men, as well as others, have their small days, and Sir Adam had one when he lent his energies to a measure that on the face of it is not fair, and which was brought out with the one object of starving out the street railway in London.

What London needs above all else is a definite, clear-cut policy looking toward the acquiring of the property as its own at a fair price, and in the interval securing for the citizens of the city a good service in the matter of transportation. London does not want to impose impossible working conditions on the men employed in the operation of the street railway system.

The president of the street railway company stated on a recent visit to this city that if the fares of seven and nine tickets for a quarter were put into effect the company would cease to operate. What then? The city would have to be provided with street car service. It might be possible to get along for a short time with the aid of buses and jitneys, but the public, as they have done in other places, would soon tire of this method of doing business.

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board might be called upon to come in here and operate the road, as they did on a previous occasion, but that would not be a definite accomplishment.

It would only create a rumpus, and London does not want a rumpus—it wants a street car service.

The city might even take possession of the road; grant for the moment that they have the right to do such a thing. The next question would be to arrive at a price at which they were to acquire the property.

Instead of going through all these motions, which are now possibilities on account of the measure put through the legislature, why not face the last issue now, and make a definite attempt to get a figure?

The policy of forcing fares back out of all proportion to the earnings of the road and costs of operation will prove a bad thing for the municipal ownership of the road. If we do get nine and seven tickets for a quarter, it is well known that the city cannot maintain that price if it operates the road. It might be necessary to raise the price to a six-cent fare, and that jump from a three-cent rate to six cents would not be a pleasant one.

The bill put through by the Ontario Legislature is bad business from any angle. It singled out London for a state of affairs that the legislature would never think of imposing on any other city. It is not economy, nor is it good tactics. It simply serves to further confuse an issue that is sufficiently confused already.

The company knows its position; knows that it has not a desirable franchise, and should be willing to come to some fair arrangement with the city of London to dispose of its property. It has no franchise to sell, simply its physical assets, and the fact that it can collect fares only on the basis of seven and nine tickets for a quarter does not enter into the terms of bylaw 916 at all when it comes to arriving at the price the city shall pay for the property.

It would be far more desirable for the company and the city to sit in together and bring forth a figure, and let the people see it. There is no reason why it cannot be done.

Raw Material Plus Labor.

U. S. makers of pulp and paper contend that there should be no embargo on pulp wood from Canada.

They also add that if such a step is taken the U. S. mills will not come to Canada, but will look for their supply of raw materials elsewhere.

That is their option, and of course Canada can have no reason to object if they choose to go thousands of miles farther away for supplies. Canada's chief interest is in making the most of her own natural resources. At present United States finds it more convenient to deplete Canadian forests than to cut more deeply into the fast-dwindling reserves in United States.

Canada's policy must be to use her own resources; work them and fashion them until they become the finished material for the markets of the world.

Being a producer of raw material will never satisfy our national ambitions, nor give employment to our own people.

Peter the Wise.

If Hon. Peter Smith did secure money from the Home Bank he at least exhibited good sense in depositing it in some other bank.

From Thousands to Billions.

United States may be a very wealthy nation, but it is a fact that the republic pays over $1,000,000,000 per year as its interest levy.

It is hardly more than a generation ago that congress almost blew the roof off when an attempt was made to vote that much as the expenditure for a two-year term.

United States deals in big sums. It has cut $4,000,000,000 off its national debt, but it still has an amount to work against of $26,000,000,000.

And it still has that billion a year as an interest charge in spite of its claim that it is the world's richest nation.

The same trouble has seized all governments and all peoples. We went crazy even after the war was ended.

We left the thousand class and marched into the million. The larger ones took the next step and passed to the billion accounting.

It is one sure sign of returning sanity that United States can look at a billion dollars for interest and conclude that it is too much money.

Compass for Fliers

The aeroplanes now on a 30,000-mile flight around the world, carry a new type of aeroplane compass, developed in preparation for the flight. Although all the nations of the world have been engaged on this problem, during and since the war, the new compass is the first instance of success. To date, the ordinary magnetic compass has proved all but useless.

The new compass is of the "earth inductor" type. At the start the pilot sets the needle at zero. Any deviation from the course is recorded on the dial, and he may correct it by changing his course until the indicator again reads zero. The compass obviates two hitherto insurmountable difficulties of the old magnetic compass. First, it has no "memory"—that is, it does not spin on its axis with sudden changes of direction, as the old compass did, making it impossible to take an accurate reading for considerable periods of time. Second, it is not affected by magnetic fields or forces due to the metal parts of the aeroplane. The instrument can be read with an accuracy of one-half a millimeter, which corresponds to two and one-half degrees of change of direction of the aeroplane from its predetermined course. This small deviation only slightly lowers its efficiency.

Its value in flying in fogs or clouds is obvious. It is expected that on the flight around the world this compass will contribute greatly to the success of the trip.

For years I was a king at home, when first the youngsters went to school, for I could tell 'em at a glance the rudiments of simple rule. And when their sums was simple ones 'twas then I always used to score, and figure for the youngsters then that 2 and 2 would sure make four.

At maps and things like that as well I posed as wizard clean and thin, it was a joy how I could point at London, Paris or Berlin.

But all them happy days has passed, when now the youngsters come to me, and ask how much there is to leave when A is added unto B. And then they go on further still and blawed if I can tell 'em why, there's nothin' left to blow the hills when Q is took away from Y.

And then comes Latin, then comes French, they try to tie me in a knot and coax me out from in my trench, to battle with a parlez vous and with another short amo, that Romans used to talk about some tens of thousands years ago.

Dr. Frank Crane

The Defence of Riches

THERE is no greater mistake in the world than to denounce capital as something evil in itself.

Capital is merely a tool which can be used for good or ill. It is like an automobile, which can be employed in robberies or take crippled children for an airing.

Failure to recognize this is the trouble with Russia. The Bolshevik tried to wipe out capitalism and came near wiping out civilization. They saved off the branch which supported them.

Statistics prove that there is a tendency for population to increase faster than the means of sustenance. Capital is the world's greatest invention, as it makes possible the support of an immense population which could not exist without utilizing its surplus.

It is just as easy to starve in the United States as it is in Russia or China. The reason our people are going to motion pictures and riding in automobiles, instead of starving to death, is because we have the sense to use capital instead of destroying it.

RICH men are scolded and damned because they waste so much. As a matter of record, rich men are more frugal than poor men. At most, a rich man can only eat a limited quantity of food. It is the employee who yearns for the silk shirt, while the boss' idea of real luxury is to get into a flannel shirt and an it, as in Russia, or ignoring it, as in China.

The reason that the Bolsheviks depict a rich man as squandering millions on personal indulgence is because they themselves would do so if they had the chance.

A test of intelligence is whether you can think in terms of percentages. The percentage of a millionaire's resources spent on personal indulgence is remarkably low.

The deepest instinct of the rich man is not to squander but to conserve. It is the man who spends all he earns who must always work for other people.

Capital is like steam; before it can do work it must be concentrated. Nineteen people out of twenty waste wealth. The twentieth person automatically becomes well off.

If all capitalists were stripped of their resources and the money were divided, the wage workers of the country might enjoy a week or so, but the next step would be universal poverty.

Here, at least, is food for discussion.

Let's Boost London.

West London Resident Thinks It Time To Put On Steam For A Better Community.

Sir,—May I beg leave and space in your publication to address a letter to the citizens of London and more especially to West Londoners. Within the last few months one has been struck by the increasing number of knockers and fault-finders with every civic improvement contemplated, no matter whether it costs the individual, the community or is a gift gratis.

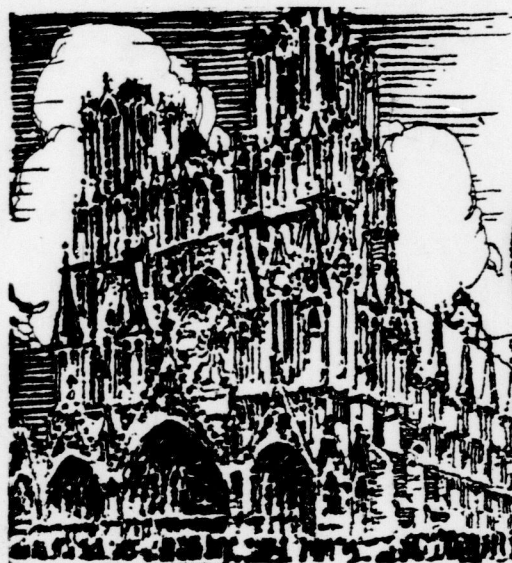

Our city representatives, the council and our school board have come in for a severe lambasting, no matter in what way they turned. The events of the past few weeks chronicled in your news have proven that. Last year several of our aldermen made it a point to say they would improve the streets and crossings. To their credit they are trying to, faithfully carry out that promise, and now we have the chronic knocker with the petition against the work. I have noted where Ald. Douglass says they must pave Wilson, Wharfedale and Oxford, but he has not done it. And if not, why not? The city engineer (and a good one) would tell anyone it would be folly to pave the streets named and leave the middle hole from Wharfedale to the bridge unpaved, when our L. S. R. boats plow through the water half way up the wheels. Is it because one or two corporations with a whole heap of money don't feel like it, or what is the real reason? This being a main artery from the river road, it seems that it would be a question of service to the many and not leave the hole from Wharfedale to the bridge unpaved, when our L. S. R. boats plow through the water half way up the wheels. Is it because one or two corporations with a whole heap of money don't feel like it, or what is the real reason? This being a main artery from the river road, it seems that it would be a question of service to the many and not leave the hole from Wharfedale to the bridge unpaved, when our L. S. MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter."

—Mrs. ELMER A. RITCHIE, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or ailment, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them.

CHARACTER TELLS THE STORY!

People throughout this country are giving more thought to hygiene and to the purity of remedies on the market, but no one doubts the purity of Doctor Pierce's vegetable medicines, for they have been so favorably known for over fifty years that everyone knows they are just what they are claimed to be. These medicines are the result of long research by a well-known physician, R. V. Pierce, M.D., who compounded them from health-giving herbs and roots long used in sickness by the Indians. Dr. Pierce's reputation as a leading and honored citizen of Buffalo, is a sufficient guarantee for the purity of that splendid tonic and blood purifier, the Golden Medical Discovery, and the equally fine nerve tonic and system builder for women's ailments, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ontario.—Advt.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous excretions which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buy a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet feel—how comfortable your shoes feel—Advt.

London Stores Prepare For Easter's Invitation To the World of Fashion

Business Streets Hum With Activity As First Spring Day Arrives.

STYLES ARE CHANGED

Latest New York and Parisian Modes Displayed in London Shops.

Local shops and the marts of Persia may compare in color, but the former triumph mightily in the matter of convenience. To be utterly convinced of this, it is only necessary to ramble about the city in the wake of the shoppers to find how beautifully the modes of spring are displayed. The every whim of fashion has been given expression, and the London woman in the way of fashion has the world at her door.

Yesterday, the unofficial opening of spring, the first really warm day, when it seemed as though April had at last made up its mind to stay, found the downtown streets humming with activity. There was a glow of spring in the air. Coupled with the warmth of the sun there seemed to emanate from the hundreds of women shoppers something of that radiant glow that a woman must feel when she starts out to buy her spring costume. The family may have felt rueful over the bank-book at night, but the day was gladdened with the joy that only the spring knows. At no other time of the year do new clothes mean so much to a woman's heart as when the tingling of spring is in the air, and the shops are aglow with color, with all those myriad of whimsicalities of fashion which to the feminine heart are altogether irresistible.

Easter has been for years the official opening of the season for new clothes. This season, however, Easter is particularly late, and many a winter coat has been already discarded for the slim, stylish spring suit. But with Easter only a week away, and the warm weather officially declaring spring clothes in season, the shops just now are experiencing their heaviest business. It is the season of the family shopping, when school girls are being frocked and hatted for their Easter vacation, when mother is freshening and refurbishing her wardrobe for her Easter entertaining, and when father is being new suited and new shod that he may be a credit to his family on the day of the Easter church parade.

It is a crotchety parent indeed who can take no joy in the Easter clothes this season, because never have they been so colorful, so utterly charming in line and design, so cleverly fashioned for every type of beauty, and so cunningly contrived to offset the lack of it. The new clothes are this year "new" in every sense of the word. There is a new silhouette, many of the materials themselves are new, and the new shades developed for the mode are altogether bewildering. One's last season clothes need the utmost camouflaging to pass muster at all as being within the magic circle of Fashion.

The shops are like a prism flashing a rainbow of color. The eye is bewildered, so many are the things which attract it. Hats, shoes, gloves, the new coats and suits, dressed and knitted frocks and sport suits—all demand an examination, and determined indeed is the feminine mind which can withstand their appeal. But most longingly of all, will the shopper view the shop department, where everything new in the way of accessories is shown. Never, never, in the entire history of fashion have they been so insistent in their appeal. The fashionable woman may clothe herself in the most severe of man-tailored suits, her hat may be with no adornment whatever except a bow or a buckle, but in the manner of the last minute touches which she adds to her costume, she is feminine to a degree. About her neck, she throws a positively alluring, and from the smart pocket of her suit she trails a gossamer handkerchief splashed with color which blazes forth its Oriental origin. And then her stockings are of the smartest. Sombreness has no place in the season's fashion, and the mode has placed its ban on the blacks and the greys. The hose must be all of the new shades which so invitingly display themselves, and the shoes themselves are strapped and buckled, that nothing of gaiety may be lost.

The street costume may be smartly man-tailored, but the afternoon frock reveals in frills and tucking and embroideries that literally spell femininity. Within the last few days, the authentic styles for summer wear have been arriving, and the shopper this week will find loveliness undreamt of in cool, fascinating frocks for the warm months. Quite as charming as any, she will find the new French handworked frocks that are the most beloved offering of Fashion, and which give such an admirable opportunity to wear the dainty undersuits which this season with their lace and embroidery are sheer beauty itself.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR MAY ALTER DATE OF NEW MEASURE

Amendment Permits Change in Time When Act Comes Into Effect.

MADE BY DAVIDSON

Canadian Press Despatch.

Edmonton, Alta., April 14.—Alberta's Church Union Bill, after being before the legislature since Feb. 14 last, passed its third reading, and the bill was assented to by the lieutenant-governor when proroguing the legislature Saturday night.

But one amendment was made to the original bill, this being an amendment by W. H. Davidson, Independent, Calgary, to an amendment offered by W. H. Shield, U. F. A. MacLeod, sponsor of the bill. Mr. Shield asked that the bill be amended to enable the lieutenant-governor-in-council to bring the bill, or any part of it, into effect at any time by proclamation, but strong objection to order-in-council legislation being made by various members, Mr. Davidson offered as the compromise amendment "that the coming into force on the day upon which the United Church shall be incorporated by act of the parliament of Canada, provided that the said date in respect of the whole of this act or any section or sections thereof, may be altered to such date or dates as shall be fixed by proclamation of the lieutenant-governor-in-council."

MOTHERS DEMAND NAMES OF GIRLS

Owen Sound Parents Want the Identity of Girls Concerned Made Known.

Special to The Advertiser.

Owen Sound, April 14.—Owen Sound parents who have daughters singing in the choir of Knox Presbyterian Church are in a furore regarding the suspicion directed against the choir following the laying of criminal charges against Frederick W. Timms, organist of the church. Timms has pleaded guilty to charges of serious offences against two young girls and may be sentenced today by Magistrate Cressor.

The anger of the Owen Sound parents rises from the fact that the names of the two girls concerned in the cases are not known. While they remain anonymous, there is public talk regarding the many innocent girls in the choir against whom there is not a breath of suspicion.

Rev. Peter Pilkey, pastor of Knox Church, refuses to make any statement concerning the case. One mother of three daughters is threatening to take legal action to compel the minister to make a public avowal that her daughters' names are entirely clear.

HOUSE DISCUSSES SPYING INCIDENT

Police Found Watching Political Meeting in Concealment Without Instructions.

London, April 14.—The incident of two police agents being caught spying on a Communist meeting here yesterday was brought up in the House of Commons at question today by George Lansbury, Labor member for Poplar, who wanted to know by whose authority the policemen were hidden under the platform at the meeting.

Arthur Henderson, home secretary, replied that two policemen were found concealed at a meeting of Communists in the course of the policemen's duty without his specific instructions or approval.

It was a brief statement, but while it was being made the home secretary was greeted with laughter and opposition cheers, followed by cries of "Oh!"

Mr. Henderson, continuing, said the Communist party was not an illegal organization, but the policy of certain Communist leaders, if carried out, would involve breaches of the law. A certain amount of vigilance on the part of the police, therefore, was necessary in the interests of the community. He would confer with the commissioner of police on this particular case, Mr. Henderson added.

Dresses Are Designed To Emphasize the Grace and Charm Belonging to the Female Figure—

Styles have a variety as large as the range of colors on a painter's palette.

The silhouette, without marked waist line, adds smartness to shortness and straightness to slenderness.

The circular silhouette is also exploited, beginning with the bell sleeve, rippling into the postillion cape, displaying the circular scarf and low flounce that develop the circular skirt. Fancy is fairly caught in meshes of lace that captivate the taste for charm. Black, with splashes of white, is always good, but black with dashes of red is gaining in popularity.

Silk, Satin, Faile, Crepes, Alpaca and Moire, beaded and embroidered, supply richness where simplicity would seek to adorn the ornament of a modest grace.

TAILORED SUITS COMPRISE SEVEN DISTINCT MODELS—

ranging from the short box coat to almost skirt length, double and single breasted, with link fastening or one, two and three buttons, are designed to give the straight line or the silhouette effect.

Black Satin Suits, softly tailored, with manish vests of white, are considered extremely chic, especially when the wrap around skirt rests low on the hips.

A fob of hammered silver or fashioned from rhinestones sets off "Milady's Spring Suit," which may be bound with ribbon or braid.

Russian Mission Meets With British Delegates, Headed by MacDonald.

MALL CHANCE OF LOAN

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 14.—The task of converting Great Britain's de jure recognition of Russia, which was accorded the Union of Soviets February 1, in fulfillment of the Labor party's campaign pledge, into a practical working arrangement, which it is hoped, will settle all past differences and re-establish normal trade and political relations between the two countries, began this morning when the Russian mission under Christian Rakovsky met with the British delegates, headed by Premier MacDonald at the foreign office.

In his welcoming address, Premier MacDonald summed up the whole purpose of the conference in the sentence: "You want political countenance and financial assistance from us, and we want neighborliness and recognition of international obligations."

The British view is that the entire fate of the meeting depends upon the amount of confidence the Soviet government representatives are able to create in the minds of the British and world public by their conduct here and their attitude towards the Russian debts and other international obligations which the British will insist that the Soviet government recognize.

Unless such recognition is forthcoming there is little possibility of Russia obtaining credits or loans in this country, for, as Mr. MacDonald pointed out, the British credit is not in government banks, but in the deposits of private individuals, and unless the mass of the people is satisfied that those who want credits are fair and honest in their dealings, none is likely to be obtained.

Although the British premier did not mention the fact this morning, it is authoritatively understood that there is not the slightest possibility of the British government making a loan to Russia, no matter how successful the present conference may be from the British point of view. All loans and credits must be privately negotiated with British bankers.

The main purpose of the British government in the negotiations regarding the Russian debts is to recover something of the heavy financial losses which British subjects have suffered in Russia as the result of the revolution. The question of the Czarist debt of £25,000,000 sterling and the war debt of £650,000,000 sterling may not even be brought up during the negotiations. The British are unwilling to consider the foregoing amounts as war debts, similar to the French and Italian, or these amounts may be offset by Russian counter-claims for damages caused by the alleged intervention in Russia.

M. Rakovsky addressed himself to a rather general exposition of the Russian standpoint on world politics rather than to specific matters confronting the conference. He pointed out that the war and its consequences had made economic co-operation between England and Russia all the more imperative. England's trade had diminished, he said, and she was suffering enormous and chronic unemployment, while Russia had been ruined to a still greater extent, but England and Russia were mutually complementary. England possessing the most important industry, finance and shipping in the world, while Russia, with a population of 130,000,000 people, possessed enormous potential riches awaiting development.

OHIO DETECTIVES START HUNT FOR MELBOURNE PAIR

Police Investigate Report That Murrell and Norton Are in Columbus.

AWAIT IDENTIFICATION

By WILLIAM SHARMAN.
Special to The Advertiser
by a Staff Reporter.

Columbus, Ohio, April 14.—Columbus detectives have already commenced a search for "Bill" Murrell and "Pat" Norton, alleged bank bandits and murderers from London, Canada, who are said to be working in this city. But the police are handicapped in their investigations in view of the fact that anticipated information from the Ontario provincial police at Toronto has not been forthcoming.

Captain McNeill of the detective department expects that full descriptions of the wanted men will have arrived by tonight or tomorrow. The arrival of a provincial officer would not be unexpected, he stated.

Information at his disposal has been very meager. Inquiries from Canadian police were received Monday night, but the local authorities were left with the impression that Murrell and Norton were in custody here already.

A survey of the prisoners in the county jail and workhouse, more than 300 in number, convinces them, however, that none are in custody resembling in any way such slight descriptions of the missing men as has been available.

While the Toronto report indicated that the two men were working in an automobile factory here, the police state that the Ford branch is the only plant to come under that classification, although there are several automobile accessory factories. In any one of these Norton may be working at his old occupation, the police admit, or for that matter, in any one of the 500 garages and automobile repair shops scattered throughout the city. All these places must receive the "once-over" before it could be definitely established that the Londoners have been identified themselves again with the auto industry, of which the police are maintaining a sharp lookout and investigating as far as possible. They extend little hope of apprehension until definite particulars arrive from Toronto, that is, providing Murrell and Norton are found in the Columbus area.

HARRY K. THAW DECLARED SANE

Dr. Charles Mills, Veteran Alienist, Gives Evidence At Trial Opening.

Associated Press Despatch.
Philadelphia, April 14.—Harry K. Thaw was declared sane and competent to manage his affairs today by Dr. Charles K. Mills, veteran alienist, in testimony at the opening of the jury trial to determine whether Thaw has regained his normal faculties.

Thaw's 82-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, who joined in the petition for the trial, was in court when Dr. Mills made his assertion.

The trial was marked by the intervention of William Russell Thaw, 13-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's divorced wife, which was permitted after Judge Monaghan had appointed one of Miss Nesbit's counsel as guardian for the boy.

Counsel for Thaw, Dr. Mills, revealed that records of the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, where Thaw has been confined since 1917, show that Thaw kept a number of pet rabbits there, which he was reported at various times to have slapped, thrown around, and even bitten until they squealed in pain.

Dr. Mills said he did not think such conduct unusual. "He treated pets as some people treat them" was the alienist's comment.

Coming Feast of Passover Will Revolutionize Life In Kitchens of City Jews

London Housewives Are Busily Washing Festival Dishes Reserved For Week.

FEAST BEGINS FRIDAY

Biblical Law Requires Four Complete Sets of Dishes in Hebrew Household.

If the Christian housewife thinks she has something to grumble about in the spring of the year, when the attic has to be turned out and bureau drawers explored for obscure particles of dust, just let her think once of her Hebrew sister and she'll never say another word. For the Jewish housewife, on top of the spring house-cleaning, has all the added duties which the celebration of the Feast of the Passover entails. And the Passover week practically involves a culinary revolution.

For some time now the women in orthodox Jewish families of this city have been busily engaged preparing for the biggest feast of the year, which commences on Friday of this week and continues for seven days. It is not only the preparing of special food for this lengthy period of feasting, which involves additional labor for the women of the house, it is the Jewish custom which requires that all the dishes and cutlery of the house used during the year be packed away, and special Passover dishes, which have never come in contact with anything leavened, be brought up from the cellar and unpacked for use during this one week.

Four Sets of Dishes.

This regulation involves dishes for both cooking and eating. And as there are always two separate sets of dishes used in a Jewish household throughout the year, one set for meat dishes and one set of dishes used to contain milk and its products, such as butter and cheese, the orthodox Jewish household must be provided in all with four sets of cooking and eating utensils. Throughout the year the Passover dishes are usually stored away in some out-of-the-way place where they are safe from contamination by anything "leavened"—that is, the customary food of the rest of the year.

A staple food of the coming week's diet in the orthodox Jewish household is the brittle unleavened bread, baked in the sun by the Israelites in their flight from Egypt. The distinguishing feature of the celebration is the service of praise and prayer offered up on the first two nights around the festive table, upon which, beside the gleaming candies, are the dishes that symbolize the Egyptian bondage and the divine redemption.

Three cakes of unleavened bread covered with a cloth, take the place of the two twisted loaves which appear on the table every Sabbath. These three cakes represent the "bread of affliction." There is also a bowl of bitter herbs, such as horseradish, which recalls the bitterness

Family Reunion

An interesting family reunion during the coming Passover Week will be that which is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rothenberg, Grey street. The most important days of the feast are Friday and Saturday when all the relatives will gather at the Grey street home.

Those who will be present for the occasion are: Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Agranove of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rothenberg and children of Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Agranove of Toronto, formerly of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rothenberg of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rothenberg of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rothenberg of Windsor, Mr. Saul Rothenberg of Windsor, and Mr. Max Wunder of Windsor.

of the oppression of Pharaoh; a pastry confection of almonds and spices, into which the bitter herbs are dipped before they are eaten, typifying the mortar wherewith the cities of Pithom and Rameses were built; the shankbone of a lamb, representing the Paschal offering of the Temple Day; and a roasted egg, which stands for the private offerings made by every Jew on his pilgrimage to Jerusalem three times a year in the romantic past.

"The Cup of Elijah."

And before each member of the family group is placed a glass of wine, which must be filled and emptied four times at fixed intervals in the service, in memory of the fourfold utterance in which the Almighty announced the redemption after bondage in Egypt. An extra cup of wine is kept ready for any possible guest, and is called "the Cup of Elijah," as the guest most desired is Elijah, the forerunner of the Messiah.

This great Feast of the Passover is made the occasion for family reunions, and already plans have been made in London Jewish homes for the reception of many guests from out of town. In some instances the reunions are to be very large.

The unleavened bread, which forms the chief article of diet during the Passover week, comes in the form of large, thin, round biscuits, and is not only a staple article of diet itself, but is the ingredient of most of the other Passover dishes. This unleavened bread is ground into meal, with which little puddings, puddings and pancakes are made.

Complicated Kitchen.

Perhaps few people, not of the Jewish faith, are aware that even during ordinary days, the arrangements in the Jewish kitchen are necessarily very complicated, because they are subject to dietary laws. All meat foods must be kept strictly separate from the milk-foods, as the contact of one with the other—such as meat with milk, butter or cheese—would render both unfit for consumption. This regulation involves the use of two sets of utensils, both for cooking and eating, the one set being reserved for meat dishes and the other for milk or butter dishes. And the crockery and cutlery of one set must be kept rigorously apart from those of the other.

This separation of things "meaty" from things "milky" is observed by the strict housewife in every conceivable direction; there are separate table cloths and napkins, separate pans for washing the dishes and separate towels for drying; and in the more elaborate kitchens there are even separate cooking ranges, tables and sinks.

A Special Utensil.

There is a special utensil for the preparation of meat, from which the blood must be drained in accordance with the Biblical command (Gen. ix. 4; Lev. iii. 17). It is a slanting board or piece of wicker-work upon which the meat, after having been soaked in water half an hour, is sprinkled with salt; after another hour, the salt is rinsed away, and the meat is ready for cooking.

The kind of food which is consumed in the Jewish household is familiar to the majority of people, who are not Jews. They know that the Jew refrains from eating the flesh of any beasts except those that are cloven-footed and that chew the cud, and that hence pork, bacon and ham are taboo in his home, and so on.

An interesting custom in the Jewish household is connected with the baking of bread, for the frugal housewife bakes her own loaves, and performs a deed of religious merit in sacrificing a handful of the dough upon the fire, a survival of the offering made to the priest in Temple times (Num. xv. 20).

No Cooking on Sabbath.

No cooking is done in the Jewish household on the Sabbath, and one of the most distinctive Jewish dishes "shaleh" is due to this restriction and the desire to have hot food on that day. It consists chiefly of meat, stewed with potatoes and fat, or with peas, beans and barley. The pot containing it is generally put into another and larger pot containing hot water and the whole is placed in the oven or upon the stove on Friday afternoon; this dish requires no further attention and is quite hot enough when served for the mid-day meal on the Sabbath.

Water may not be boiled nor tea brewed on the Sabbath, but if the tea is prepared in a samovar before the incoming of the Sabbath, and a cup drunk therefrom, the beverage may be kept hot throughout the holy day without any infringement of the law.

Because of the fact that there may be no cooking on the Sabbath the Jewish housewife is usually busy marketing, cooking and cleaning from Thursday morning until Friday night. And the Feast of the Passover, which commences Friday will bring her just that much more work. But she does it cheerfully and happily because it is part of her religion and she has been trained to it from girlhood.

How Can a Woman Keep Her Husband Happy When They Are Too Poor to Afford Shows?—Just What Is the Lure of the Widow?—Shall the Business Woman Propose If She Thinks the Man She Loves Is Holding Back on Account of Money?

Dear Miss Dix—Young girls ask how to please a man before marriage, but the real problem is how to keep a man happy after you get him. Suppose the man is of a pleasure-loving disposition, and his income is so limited that you can't afford many shows and almost no parties. What can the wife do then to keep the man contented at home?

Take our case. People with very small means and two children. In the evening after dinner we read the papers play with the children and go to bed early. That gets monotonous for both of us. In summer we can usually find some way to amuse ourselves, but in winter I often wonder what my husband thinks of when he gazes into space and doesn't talk for hours.

I know my husband is not contented. He is tired of staying at home and would like to go out more, but we can't afford it. I have thought of suggesting that he go alone, but I am too selfish. I would pity myself until I don't know what would happen when he arrived home about 2 a.m. Consequently we are sitting here getting old, and I am worried because I think he isn't happy, but it is odd, is it not, that my husband doesn't worry wondering if I am a contented and happy wife? Yet I am a second wife, and younger than he is. What can I do to cheer up things for hubby?

Answer:

You have a hard job before you, C. G., if you have one of the husbands who has to be kept amused, and you haven't the price of theatre tickets and for cabaret suppers and such like diversions. It takes money, and a lot of it, to do much stepping out in these days of the high cost of fun, and unluckily the poor woman whose husband isn't content to be a frugal companion and who can't spend a happy evening toasting his feet on the radiator and perusing the comic strips in the newspaper.

Nowhere is the pinch of poverty more cruelly felt than in the way it shuts people of small means off from the innocent and natural pleasures they crave, for it is those who lead hard lives who need amusement most. If I were a millionaire I should endow theatres and moving picture houses and nice dance houses, where hard-working men and women could go of an evening, and for the price of a very few cents forget their cares and troubles for a while, and have their minds and bodies refreshed by a little wholesome diversion.

As no philanthropist has yet seen the necessity of providing some fun for the people, the best you can do is to try to get your husband around to such concerts and lectures as you can find, and to organize a little club of a few other couples who are also wondering what to do with their evenings, to play cards or mah jong, or some other game.

But has your husband no ambition? Doesn't he want to make more money? Is he content to sit up and gaze into space wishing for things instead of trying to get them? If he would put in that time which hangs so heavily on his hands in a right course, studying whatever line of work he follows and trying to learn more about it, he would soon make enough money to be able to afford the pleasures he desires.

You are quite right not to urge him to go out and enjoy himself alone. The man who does that soon finds that a wife is a drawback to his pleasure.

But my advice is not to shake a rattle before your husband to amuse him. Prod him with a stick into doing something. People who are busy and absorbed in their work need no other amusement. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Only I think you are a "Mr." instead of a "Miss." Now, honestly, aren't you a man? Anyway, I agree with you that widows have a particular fascination for men, and as I am moving to a different part of the country I am going, to pose as one when in reality, I am merely a good-looking, educated, much-travelled spinster of about forty. Please tell me what is the lure of the widow? What is her formula for fascinating men?

VERA W.

Answer:

Certainly I am not a man. I am the womanest woman you ever saw. I always have belonged to the female sex, and I expect to remain in that condition until I die. So that's that.

As to the lure of the widow, that is her trade secret that she never divulges to anyone, but that she knows the high sign and the password to the masculine heart is not to be denied. She can out-marry any spinster of her age and class and looks and bank account, and even a flapper has to be on the job if she wants to hold her own when her widowed mamma is around.

Heaven forbid that I should discourage any sister who is starting out on a husband hunt, but I am not optimistic about any unmarried woman being able to pose successfully as a widow. I am strongly of the opinion that it cannot be done, and that she will give herself away as an impostor to every man she meets.

She will lack the technique, for of whatever other charms the widow's lure is composed, chief ingredient is expert knowledge of men, and this valuable information only the woman who has been through the mill of matrimony possesses. It is precious knowledge that she has bought with a price that may have bankrupted her of years of happiness, but it is worth all it cost her when it comes to dealing with other men.

The widow knows a thousand little methods of ingratiating herself with men, a thousand tricks of working men, a thousand ways of befooling them, and appealing to them, of which the spinster never dreamed, and which the spinster cannot imitate nor camouflage. Therefore, my dear Vera, I should counsel you to stick to your own role, and back your own game. Not every man wants to inherit another man's relic or prefers rehearsed affection and warmed-over love to the fresh article.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am very much in love with a man, but I do not know whether he loves me or not, although his actions would indicate that he does. He comes to see me two or three times a week, but he has never told me he loved me, or asked me to marry him. I believe this is because he is not in a position to get married and doesn't believe in saying things until he is.

I have saved enough money to get married on, but he doesn't know this, and I would be willing to work after we were married, but I haven't told him this either. Do you think I should, or should I wait until he tells me he loves me and asks me to marry him, which I know he won't do until he has the money. What should I do?

TILLIE.

Answer:

The business girl can approach matrimony from a more independent standpoint than can the woman who comes empty-handed to her husband and whose husband will have to support her. Therefore, the business girl can take the initiative in offering to form a matrimonial partnership with a man. So I see no reason why you shouldn't lay your cards on the table and tell the man what you are willing to contribute to the firm, and find out how he regards you. If he does not love you, and does not intend to marry you, the sooner you know it the better.

DOROTHY DIX.

GERMAN LEADER
FLAYS DAWES PLAN

Arnold Richberg Declares Railway Securities Suggestion Unsound in Principle.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, April 15.—The conclusions reached by the expert reparation committee under Brig.-Gen. Dawes are adversely criticised by Arnold Richberg, eminent German economist, in a letter to the Journal des Debats.

He considers the idea of issuing debenture stock secured on Germany's railroads as fallacious, as no purchasers could be found for debentures which might fail to pay dividends. He suggests that the French and British, or preferably the United States government, guarantee the issue of such debentures. Unless that is done, he adds, the British government might buy up all the securities, making Great Britain financially pre-eminent in any future combination of international policy involving Germany.

VICTIMS OF ASSASSINS
HONORED BY ALBANIA

Washington Is Notified Bodies of Two Americans On Way to U. S.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, April 15.—The bodies of George B. DeLong of New York, and Robert Louis Coleman of San Francisco, killed in Albania, April 8, by unknown assailants, were removed from the capital yesterday with impressive ceremonies for shipment to the United States. Commissioner Chekrez, of that country, was informed in a message from the foreign office.

A requiem mass was sung by the ecclesiastical body of the capital and then, accompanied by a great crowd, representatives of the Albanian government and a military band, the cortege proceeded to the port of Durazzo.

Yesterday In Ontario's Legislature

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 15.—Hon. Manning Doherty, U. P. O. leader, moved a resolution requesting inquiry into the public accounts of Ontario be proceeded with during the parliamentary intermission by a select committee of the public accounts committee. This was withdrawn after some remarks by Premier Ferguson.

A resolution by Peter Heenan regarding the eight-hour day was amended before passing the House, so that Ontario, while agreeing to the eight-hour day, would not pass it until generally acceptable throughout Canada. Premier Ferguson announced that the government would devote attention to the matter of more assistance for Northern Ontario hospitals. He also stated that he intended to take up with the public this summer the matter of increased remuneration for members of the legislature and the government.

SPLENDID COMEDY AND FINE MUSIC IN GRAND SHOW

"Hollywood Follies" Proves One of Best Productions in Season's Burlesque.

MARTY COLLINS STARS

"Hollywood Follies" at the Grand Theatre the first of this week should draw packed houses if the theatre-going public appreciate real merit. The production is not exclusively burlesque, many musical-comedy touches having been included. Humor, biting music, rare scenic effects, a peppy chorus and some first class novelty numbers make it excellent entertainment. Marty Collins and Jack Pillard, the comedy duo, are responsible for innumerable laughs. Collins is an expert distiller of mirth, his dry, cynical methods being something of an innovation for London. In an emergency he can also give a splendid dancing performance, and yesterday proved himself a musician of some quality. His cornet solo, relieved by facial grimaces and comic antics of various descriptions, was one of the show's best features. Juliette Belmont, the prima donna, besides singing, does some excellent violin solo work. To Miss Ward, a young accordionist and singer, go the honors of the play, however. This young woman possesses a delightful personality and the audience gave testimony to the hold she had on their musical affections by encooing her time and again.

"Hollywood Follies" played at the Columbia Theatre, New York, for several months. The quality of its songs and music reveal the reason for its success in the theatrical metropolis. The music is not so much of the burlesque brand as of that which characterizes good musical-comedy. The refrains are catchy and full of meaning unlike the monotonous hodge-podge of words which usually constitute the songs of the average burlesque. No effort was spared in arranging attractive scenes and fitting the chorus with bizarre costumes. The girls are inspired with a desire to please individually as well as collectively, and their attempts were to be applauded. Estelle Nack, one of the most versatile dancers in the company, got the interest of the audience from the start with her whirlwind steps and Russian hornpipes.

A feature of more than usual interest was the playing of the piano by the orchestra. Under the leadership of Marty Collins this nondescript collection of cornetists, violinists and saxophonists provided spectators with selections of the humorous sort. Comedy is the chief ingredient of this skit.

The final scene, a roaring farce on Hollywood motion picture-taking, was one of the original parts of the production that took the imagination. This was followed by a number of dancing and musical numbers, each one of which proved 100 per cent better than the orthodox stuff which has invaded London of late weeks.

LOEW'S PRESENT CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S SENSATIONAL FILM

"The Woman of Paris" Produced by Famous Comedian Is Something New.

"The Woman of Paris," now showing at Loew's, is still the sensation of the screen world. No picture has yet supplanted Charlie Chaplin's unique venture in the way of films, and the picture which shook critics out of their usual lethargy is here for the seeing. It is distinctly unusual. One feels that Chaplin must have been extremely impatient with all the obvious things which consume reel after reel of the average movie, and so decided to prove to the world at large that a tale could be told without hundreds of feet of dramatics and unnecessary sub-titles. Certainly this is what he has accomplished. There are few feet of film wasted in "The Woman of Paris." Everything the screen shows is something of interest, and when the picture is over not a moment is wasted. Chaplin is viewing human nature from an angle which the movies have hitherto overlooked altogether, and the result is a picture which is something as close as could be readily imagined to seeing a moving picture for the first time. By all means see "The Woman of Paris," or miss the most completely fascinating film of the season, and miss also most unusually skilled work on the part of Edna Purviance and Adolphe Menjott.

Together with Chaplin's picture, the bill carries a suggestion of his partner in greatness, Mary Pickford, whose understudy, Miss Jerrie Dean, in a clever act, is headlining the vaudeville bill. Miss Dean, who is a sister of the famous Priscilla, has achieved fame in her own name as a Sennett bathing girl, and if her act goes over everywhere as it did in London, she will acquire an equal fame on the vaudeville stage. In character studies of Miss Pickford's famous roles, her understudy wears the Pickford curls, but displays also a pleasing personality of her own which had a great deal to do with making her last number, a study of "Rags," with its song about shoes, close to being the most popular number ever presented locally.

Adele Arnold and her brother display a certain skill at bicycle stunts, and the act is carried out with a vivacious style which helped it substantially.

The Pathe film and a Ben Turpin comedy complete the program.

League Appoints Mrs. J. P. Dunn and Mrs. J. Frizell Representatives.

WILL GO TO EDMONTON

The appointment of the delegates to attend the Dominion convention of the Catholic Women's League to be held in Edmonton from July 7 to 11, was the chief business of yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Diocesan Catholic Women's League executive held in St. Peter's Hall. The meeting named the president, Mrs. J. P. Dunn of Chatham, and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Joseph A. Frizell of London, as the delegates.

NEWEST EASTER FASHIONS AT LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES

At Easter-tide a woman's fancy turns to thoughts of fashions. What is new, what is smart and what is good! Easter flowers, church bells, gay greetings through the soft spring air. Easter is the most gracious day of the year. Costumes will be chosen that are sophisticated as an orchid, as dainty as a spray of lilacs, as fashionable as a gardenia, and as new as those now being displayed at this store! And here are clothes for Easter and all spring, dictated not only by fancy but by excellent judgment, at prices dictated by strict economy.

Easter Millinery

A Different Type of Hat For Every Type of Wearer

Hats for Children—
Even in youthful millinery, the tailored mode prevails, because the simple line is becoming to most small girls. Juvenile versions of the cloche; sailor hats in black and cream, in navy blue, sand and red; brims that droop, or brims with a bewitching up-tilt. Tiny ribbon coques, ribbon bands and streamers sound the trimming note.

Hats for Unbobbed Coiffures—
For the woman with long hair, the most becoming hats are tricornes and sailors, hats with interesting angles—with wings or flanges; and feminine formal hats with soft flowers and laces. These feminine formal hats have broader brims and are trimmed with veils and lace draperies. Hats of pedaline, colored leghorn and bangkok. Hand-painted flowers, leather and angora wool, feather fancies and drooping roses.

Hats for Bobbed Hair—
The girl who has bobbed hair almost invariably chooses a small hat, fairly plain and tailored. The cloche and its numerous adaptations—the brimming cap cloche, the straight-brimmed sailor, the flaring brim of the tricorn. Black satin and bengaline come bined with flower tints of rose and yellow and orchid, and are variously trimmed with buckles, fobs, flowers and lace.

Hats for Matrons—
The hats for the mature woman may be soft in shape, with soft trimmings to becomingly frame her face. Or they may be dignified hats with height and smartness and interesting severity. Turbans and toques and upturned brims, in sand and gray, purple, black and navy. The trimmings these hats prefer are flowers and maline, culture and glycerined ostrich.

Whatever your type may be, you will find a becoming hat in our Millinery Department. And to have a new Easter Hat is almost a civic duty.

Knitted Suits For Town and Country

The tailored mode has extended its sphere of influence beyond the tailors of tweed and twill. The topcoat, the knitted suit, the new sweaters and hats owe their smart simplicity to the tailored vogue.

For sports wear, for town wear, for shopping and golfing, even for an informal luncheon engagement, nothing is smarter than the knitted suits which have just arrived from Scotland.

There is a very attractive suit in cream colored wool, knitted in a rib effect. It is banded in brushed wool of Oxford gray, at the cuff, the tuxedo collar, the bottom of the coat and the deep with brick and in gray with lavender, fitted to hips $27.50

The jacquette style of the coat is a distinctive feature of a pretty knitted suit in gray combined with orchid, sand poudre, blue or navy. The seams are cleverly tailored to prevent stretching, and shoulders are fitted $25.00

The popular cardigan style is interpreted in a smart little suit of heather, Oxford or brown $22.50

HON. PETER SMITH FREED WHEN FRIENDS IN PERTH PROVIDE $50,000 BAIL

Friends Eager To Assist As Former Treasurer Tele-phones For Help.

RUSH TO TORONTO

Hon. Peter Held Seven Hours Following Refusal To Testify.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, April 14.—Perth County friends of Hon. Peter Smith came to his rescue tonight after he had been in custody more than seven hours following his arrest this afternoon on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Ontario government when in office, and the former provincial treasurer was liberated at 9:10 o'clock. Bail in the sum of $50,000 was furnished. He will appear in police court tomorrow morning for arraignment.

Mr. Smith signed a bond for the sum of $50,000, which was accepted, and a like sum in cash was furnished by the following five Perth County men:

William Krug, manufacturer, Chesley, Ontario, $15,000; Norval F. Babb, gentleman, Stratford, Ontario, $12,000; William Groesch, manufacturer, Stratford, Ontario, $10,000; Simon Groesch, manufacturer, Stratford, Ontario, $8,000; Aaron C. Werner, merchant, Sebringville, Ontario, $5,000.

Following his release tonight he returned to a local hotel, where his wife was awaiting him.

Telephones His Friends.

After his arrest at 2 o'clock, Mr. Smith was allowed to call friends at Stratford on the long distance phone, and arrangements were set in motion to secure his temporary freedom.

The friends worked so rapidly that they were able to catch the afternoon train for Toronto, arriving here at 7:45. At 5 o'clock the former provincial treasurer had been removed from the office of the provincial police to city police headquarters, where he awaited the arrival of the Stratford bondsmen.

Magistrate Cohen administered the oath. Hartley H. Dewar, K.C., appeared for Mr. Smith. After the formalities had been disposed of and Mr. Smith turned with an air of relief towards the door, he was asked by reporters if he had anything to say regarding the day's developments. He replied tersely, "Not a word."

Late this afternoon Crown Attorney Armour, Assistant Crown Attorney McRuer and Deputy Attorney-General Barry were in consultation at the Parliament buildings. The subject of their consultation was not made known, but the report gained credence at the Parliament buildings that they were preparing warrants—possibly half a dozen of them—men connected with the treasury scandal.

Smith Arrested.

A few minutes after he had refused to give evidence before the public accounts committee of the Legislature early this afternoon, Hon. Peter Smith was arrested by the provincial police.

As far as the committee itself was concerned, there was little of the dramatic. The meeting closed like any regular session. From the remarks of Hon. W. H. Price, present provincial treasurer, it was known that an arrest was to take place, but few believed that it would be within a few minutes. Immediately following Mr. Smith's refusal to give evidence, Mr. Price had remarked that the crown officials would take cognizance of the matter.

There was a little discussion about the future sessions of the committee and people were leaving the room. Mr. Smith, with others was leaving, and in the lobby outside was met by one of the provincial police. He was escorted to the office of Inspector Williams of the provincial force. A few minutes later it was announced to the press that Mr. Smith was under arrest.

Issues Warrant.

The warrant for the arrest was made out during the morning and charges "Peter Smith conspired with one A. H. Pepall and other person or persons unknown to defraud the Ontario government by obtaining secret commissions in the purchase by the said government of certain

The Arrest of Peter Smith

Little discussion followed Hon. Peter Smith's refusal to give evidence.

People began leaving the room and Mr. Smith went with them. In the lobby outside he was met by one of the provincial police and he was escorted to the office of Inspector Williams of the provincial force.

The warrant for the arrest had been made out during the morning. It charges "Peter Smith conspired with one A. H. Pepall and other person or persons unknown to defraud the Ontario government by obtaining secret commissions in the purchase by the said government of certain succession duty-free bonds."

succession duty-free bonds." The arrest took place about 2 o'clock. The news spread rapidly, and the lobbies around the provincial police offices were crowded with members of parliament and curious spectators. Meantime, H. H. Dewar, K.C., counsel for Mr. Smith, was busy inside arranging bail for the release of the prisoner. The crowd stayed, although there was no indication of anything happening.

At five minutes past five Mr. Smith came out of the office by a circuitous route, avoiding photographers, and left for the city police headquarters, where final bail matters were to be arranged. His lunch was served to him in the provincial police office. Inspector Greer of the force was with him through the afternoon, as well as Inspector Hammond. At 5 o'clock it was said that his business partner and a friend in Stratford were to go bail for him. The bail was fixed at $50,000.

Mr. Smith was at the meeting of the committee when it started, and sat with the audience immediately behind the members of the committee. He took great interest in the proceedings. Mr. Dewar at this time sat immediately behind him, but later took a chair alongside him.

Refuses to Give Evidence.

When witnesses had concluded giving evidence concerning Mr. Smith's bank account in the Bank of Toronto, Stratford, telling of many deposits there in $1,000 and $500-bills, and also of cashing many coupons of Dominion of Canada bonds, Chairman W. Finlayson asked if Mr. Smith wanted to make a statement. Mr. Smith came forward and was handed the Bible for the oath. He waved the book aside and stated that he merely wished to announce that in view of the evidence given by the previous witnesses, and acting on the advice of his counsel, he would not give evidence before the committee. He was asked directly by the chairman if he refused to take the oath. He replied that he would give no evidence.

Hon. Mr. Price then said that the crown authorities would take cognizance of this. Mr. Smith, from his seat back in the audience, then said that he had come prepared in the morning to make a statement and give evidence, but in view of the developments and on advice of counsel he had now decided to make no sworn statement. Before he left the room several members who had been in the last House with Mr. Smith shook hands with him.

Andrew Pepall, with whom Mr. Smith is charged with having conspired to defraud the province, accepted money from the Aemilius Jarvis Company for getting a bond deal from the Ontario government, according to previous evidence. The conspiracy charge arises out of the evidence tending to show that Mr. Pepall may have split the commission with Mr. Smith. Mr. Pepall is now living in Los Angeles, California, it is reported.

CUT IMMIGRATION TO UNITED STATES

Only 13,000 Yearly Allowed To Leave Canada If Bill Goes Through.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, April 14.—Immigration to the United States from Canada will be cut to thirteen thousand a year if the proposed Willis amendment to the senate immigration bill goes through both Houses and becomes law.

Senator Willis of Ohio in the course of debate on the senate measure this evening, announced that not only would he press his amendment making his quota law applicable to all the countries of the western hemisphere, but he would make the quota for each country one per cent based on the United States 1919 census.

Senator Dill of Washington inquired with some surprise whether Senator Willis' amendment would be applicable to Canada.

Senator Willis then answered that the amendment would, of course, apply to Canada, as well as to all other countries of the Hemisphere.

Milk Bottle Used To K.O. Fighter

Fulton Takes Count At Hands of Minneapolis Woman.

Associated Press Despatch.

Minneapolis, April 14.—An empty milk bottle, expertly wielded, "willfully" and with deadly intention, was responsible for a knockout Mrs. Maud Thompson registered against Fred Fulton, Minnesota heavyweight fighter, according to the latter's answer to a damage suit filed by Mrs. Thompson.

The answer, filed today, is in the suit for $15,000 damages brought by Mrs. Thompson, who charges the fighter with assault and battery. Fulton denies any assault, and recites how the woman, who claimed a knockout in her suit, had "assaulted" him by striking him over the left eye with a milk bottle, and while his back was turned, thereby leaving an unsightly and prominent scar.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SIXTEEN MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS OFF TODAY IN PENNANT RACE

All Other Teams Intent On Humbling Giants and Yankees.

REDS' HURLERS BEST

Pittsburg, With Strong Pitching and Hitting, Looks Like Real Contender.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, April 14.—The forces of major league baseball inaugurate their 1924 pennant season campaign tomorrow.

Fandom east and west is keenly awaiting the opening shout of "play ball" that will mark the close of the long "off-season" and send the sixteen American and National League outfits off on a battle for supremacy that will not close until the last week in September.

Fair weather is promised for the inaugural games, and indications point to record outpourings of the faithful to compare pre-season ratings of their favorites with actual performances.

The chief fight in both major leagues this year is clean cut—a combined attack by seven clubs in each circuit to dislodge the mighty New York Giants and Yankees, pennant victors in their respective organizations for the past three years, who will seek to shatter National and American League precedent by capturing their fourth straight emblems of triumph.

The world's champion Yankees are overwhelming favorites to set diamond history with another American League pennant. Detroit, with improved pitching and a heavy attack, but weakness around second base, and Cleveland, a hard-hitting outfit, with only a fair defence and mound corps, loom up as the chief rivals of the Yankees, who bank upon their brilliant hurling and an offensive of swat, led by Babe Ruth, to blaze the path to another triumph.

Giants Favorites. The Giants are also generally picked to finish again in front and fulfill an ambition to win the pennant once before failed to gain after winning three straight pennants. But the National League champions, forced to rebuild their pitching staff after its collapse last fall and to reconstruct partially their infield and outfield, face a more formidable task than the Yankees.

The Cincinnati Reds, with the best hurling staff in the league, but lacking some of the McGraw attack, and the Pittsburgh Pirates, with a strong offense and good pitching prospects, stand out as contenders-in-chief.

Umpire assignments for the opening games in the National League were announced today by President John A. Heyler, as follows:

At Philadelphia—O'Day and McCormick.
At Cincinnati—Klem and Wilson.
At St. Louis—Moran, Pfirman and Powell.
At New York—Quigley, Hart and Sweeney.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD. Associated Press Despatch. Detroit, April 14.—If the weather is not wet one of the greatest crowds ever to attend a sporting event in Detroit will be jammed into Navin Field at 3 o'clock tomorrow, when the Tigers and Cleveland Indians open the 1924 American League season. This was the opinion of club officials, who announced receipt of 50,000 requests for the 17,500 reserved seats.

Temporary "circus bleachers" have been strung around the outfield to handle part of the record crowd expected. Although no definite announcement has been made, Manager Cobb's pitching choice for the opener is said to rest between Earl Whitehill, George Dauss and Bert Cole, with the odds favoring Whitehill's selection because of his better condition.

"UNCLE" WILBERT ALWAYS POPULAR

Danny McPhee's Boss Still Considered One of Biggest Assets of Game.

W. O. McGeehan has the following to say of Danny McPhee's boss: "Uncle Wilbert Robinson's artless Dodgers seem to have had a more or less calamitous trip north with the Yankees. Of course these exhibition games mean nothing at all in connection with the league race, but they seem to have caused some lugubriousness in Flatbush. Already those to whom the frankness and honesty of Uncle Wilbert Robinson have been a constant offense, are beginning to show much concern as to the future of the Dodgers. They are claiming that Robinson has a collection of real first division material, which is far from the truth."

It is true that Charles H. Ebbets, the good old squire of Flatbush, made one magnificent gesture when he offered $275,000 for Rogers Hornsby in the open sports market of Chicago. The Dodgers have a few good pitchers, but the rest of the club is just a ball club. If they land up in the first division it will be because of the genius of Wilbert Robinson in the handling of very mediocre material.

Somehow, Uncle Wilbert Robinson is the handling of the Dodgers' minds me very much of Uncle Wilbert Robinson in his flivver on the way to the ducking shore. The flivver is somewhat asthmatic and decidedly wobbly on its wheels. Embarking with Uncle Wilbert Robinson the guest would be willing to give odds that the flivver would never make the return trip. But somehow Uncle Wilbert always is able to coax it from Baltimore to the South River, rain, hail or snow.

Needs No Alibis. If he had a good car half of the excitement of the trip would be destroyed by the pitching staff. If he had an expensive ball club like the Yankees or the Giants I believe that half of the fun of the baseball season would be gone for him.

There is no disposition here to belittle the achievements of McGraw and Huggins, who kept the world's record in the field for years in a row, nor is there any notion of offering excuses or alibis for Uncle Wilbert Robinson. Robinson needs no alibis, and he never tried to offer in all of his baseball career.

The fact remains that professional baseball is a business. The Giants and the Yankees have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars where the Dodgers have been able to spend only tens of thousands. The Yankees now have perhaps the most expensive collection of athletes ever gathered together, and the cost of the Giants is not very much lower.

Squire Over-Thrifty. Charles H. Ebbets, the good old squire of Flatbush, has the reputation of being over-thrifty. Perhaps this is not exactly deserved. It stands to reason that the squire cannot spend with the same prodigality as Colonel Jacob Ripper and Charles A. Stone, who are always ready with the smoothly-running fountain pen and the check-book when there are gaps in the lineup of the Yankees or the Giants.

There are times when this sort of competition seems a bit unfair. In order to demonstrate his ability as a manager, Uncle Wilbert Robinson ought to be given something to manage. But there is never a squawk coming from the rotund manager of the Dodgers. He troubles his flivverlike team into the field every year as though to say, "Oh, well, we are going somewhere this season, and anyhow, we will be around there anyhow, and the cost of the more expensive machines."

In addition to his knowledge of the game and his genius as a baseball strategist, his sunny personality makes Uncle Wilbert Robinson not only the biggest asset of the Brooklyn Dodgers but one of the biggest assets of all organized baseball.

CHESS MASTERS TAKE DAY OFF PREPARING FOR FINAL Associated Press Despatch. New York, April 14.—Chess masters competing in the international tournament rest today in preparation for the twenty-first round tomorrow, which is expected definitely to decide the first five positions and money prizes. Wednesday will be devoted to completing adjourned games. The twenty-second and final round will be played Thursday.

Dr. Emanuel Lasker of Germany, world's champion for 25 years until dethroned by Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba in 1921, has only to win or draw his two remaining games to clinch first place, even though Capablanca wins his final brace.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Is it a good thing for a player to be constantly striving to drive long distances? (If not, what are the harmful effects of so doing?)

Answered by JOHN BLACK.

"The Carpenter of Troon" whose great gamesmanship and mastery of golf make him feared at all tournaments. Particularly competent on approach shots.

It is bad practice for a player who is trying to build up his game to strive for long distance. Long distance comes from proper timing of the swing, and if the player is trying for distance all the time he will not get the timing right. He should try to hit easily and relax until the snap that the timing is about right. Then he can hit with a little more snap. Long driving does not come from hard hitting. It comes from relaxing and getting the snap at the right place. If a player is trying to hit hard all the time he will naturally tighten the muscles and will be unable to get a long drive. OUR BOARDING HOUSE.

On the Side Lines

With C. S. G.

BACK TO THE SOURCE.

Considering the misunderstandings that arise from the use of the telegraph and telephone in athletics, and especially girls' basketball, it mightn't be a bad idea to go back to smoke signals.

HE WASN'T A PIRATE.

The public have been asked to weep alligator tears over the fate of poor fighters who get into the grasp of unscrupulous managers. No doubt there are many fight managers of that type, and the constant pounding they receive while plying their trade does not tend to sharpen the fighters' financial acumen any.

However, Jack Bulger, who died the other day following an operation, is one fight manager who doesn't seem to have flinched his charges at all. Although manager of Mickey Walker, a world's champion, even though rather an inactive one, Bulger's relatives have been unable to find any trace of holdings of any kind.

NO JUNIORS, ALL "SENIORS."

Spanish fighters are getting to be just about as common as the Spanish prisoner letters. And just about as authentic. Senior Andrew Balsa of Barcelona, Spain, is the latest arrival in New York. He looks like Tom Sharkey. If he performs like the sailor, the Spaniard will have to be taken seriously in the ring.

DOESN'T UNRAVEL!

The soccer tangle doesn't seem to unravel at all. The O. F. A. is in the position of telling the Maple Leafs that they must not play under the L. A. A. A. in the O. F. A.'s Provincial League. The O. F. A. needs all the teams it can get, so this ultimatum must have caused a real struggle.

There is little doubt but that the C. F. A., the newly-organized soccer body, will survive and eventually dominate soccer in Canada. Once soccer players who stick to the D. F. A. and O. F. A. are refused amateur cards for other sports, as they will be, now that the A. A. U. of C. has become mixed up with soccer, the real situation will be driven home.

The present situation is that the C. F. A. have placed themselves under the Dominion governing body, and have received the concession that players now resident in Canada, though known to be ex-British pros, will be whitewashed, but that all players arriving from a certain date must show amateur credentials from the Old Country.

The Dominion Football Association, on the other hand, want the same loose conditions to prevail as heretofore, which permitted pro players to be brought over here and whitewashed as they passed through the customs.

Considering the small number of real pro soccer players who might be induced to come over to Canada, the policy of the D. F. A. looks like a short-sighted one. Some of the players who perform in Canada, giving the impression they are ex-pros, would have an easier job to prove their amateur status than producing a record in professional soccer over some.

WOODSTOCK TO HAVE CITY SOCCER LEAGUE

Football Association Members Elect George Couch President For Year.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, April 14.—At an enthusiastic meeting in the G. W. V. A. rooms tonight, the Woodstock Football Association was organized, with George Couch as president. The other officers elected were: Honorary presidents, Frank Hyde and A. E. Woodroffe; executive, F. C. Harrington, J. W. Bryan, J. Payne, J. Purcell, and Tunstall; W. D. Ellis and James F. Nicol; secretary-treasurer, William Young.

It was decided to enter a team in the intermediate series of the W. F. A., and J. W. Bryan was named to represent the association at the annual meeting in Listowel Friday. The formation of a city league was authorized, and the Oxford Rifles, the G. W. V. A. and Woodstock College expressed their intention of entering a club team from the east end and also expected to enter a team in the city league.

The schedule will be drawn up, and play in the city series starts as soon as the entries are complete. Considerable new soccer material is available in the city this year, and a very successful season is anticipated.

POOK-BREBNER FIGHT IS HEADLINER TONIGHT

Quebec Heavyweight Meets Champion in Season's Final Mitt Show.

SEATS GOING FAST

Local Sportsmen Volunteer Services To Handle Testimonial Boxing Card.

Evan Shute, the inter-collegiate light-heavy champion, could not make the trip up here to meet Cy Pook on tonight's boxing bill at the armories, but the genial Cy is going to be an added starter, nevertheless, in an exhibition bout against George Brebner, a heavyweight from Quebec, who has had a lot of experience in amateur ranks, and since his arrival in the Railroad City has given Cy some of the toughest workouts. This will be Cy's last appearance before he goes to the Dominion trials on the 25th to defend his light-heavyweight title.

The card was intact last night, and should remain so until the opening gong tonight, barring railroad accidents or earthquakes. The possibility of plenty of action tonight has apparently got to the ears of the fans, judging by the interest shown in the advance seat sale.

Face Splendid Future.

The card doesn't bristle with top-notchers from the titular angle, but neither did the mystery "Q" boats bristle with guns during the late unpleasantness, but they produced plenty of action, nevertheless. The talent appearing on tonight's bill, arranged as a testimonial to Sgt. Tommy Wallace by the London Garrison A. A. Elgin Regiment of St. Thomas and the Perth Regiment of Stratford, just about embraces Western Ontario's amateur pugilistic hopes.

Pook, Gardner, Bear and several others on the card are boys who face a splendid future in the mitt game. Some others may rock out a future for themselves tonight, because there is nothing much more uncertain than a boxing bill.

Taylor to Referee.

A. T. Taylor will handle the bouts. He has donated his services, and will have as judges Tom Cook and George Wesley.

Many other sportsmen, interested in the work Wallace has been doing to develop amateur boxers in London, have volunteered as ticket sellers, odd takers and ushers. The bouts will start sharp at 8:15, but the doors will be open an hour earlier to look after the rush of fans, who have not been given a boxing show for over a month.

OTTAWA BOXER BEATEN BY STRIBLING IN PHILLY

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, April 14.—"Young" Stribling scored a technical knockout against Tex McEwan of Ottawa, Ont., in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. Referee Baily stopped the fight to save McEwan further punishment.

Stribling gave McEwan a severe beating. Taking the offensive at the opening gong, the Georgian hammered and pounded his opponent about the ring almost at will. McEwan fought gamely, but was no match for Stribling, and was saved by the bell in the fourth and fifth rounds. McEwan weighed 170 pounds and Stribling 157.

Party Whip Declares Meighen
Proved Very Poor

J. BOHAM,

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, April 14.—Debate on the budget opened in Commons today with members of all three parties contributing.

Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance in the Meighen administration, declared that the government had adopted towards the tariff a policy of attrition. "Why," he exclaimed,
"this budget shows that the government cares nothing about business or industrial stability." The government was concerned chiefly in maintaining its stability in office. Farm implement factories would be handed over to the United States at a sacrifice.

"The budget is one for the many and not for the favored few," asserted Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, in reply. The budget had not been created for the West; its fiscal departures would be accepted largely throughout the Dominion.

Then came a Progressive point of view. J. F. Johnston, chief Progressive whip, thought the announced reduction in net debt of 30 millions very encouraging; the budget proposals should bring considerable relief to the taxpayers. Western Canada was through with high tariffs, and Mr. Johnston urged that the government should press forward until the protective element was removed.

Hon. J. E. Sinclair, minister without portfolio, continues the debate tomorrow.
Sir Henry said that he was afraid that it was futile for the country to congratulate itself that there was a substantial diminution in the national debt. The surplus reported by the minister on the year's accounts was $20,000,000. Then there was a salvage of $9,600,000 obtained by settling our accounts with the British government, and there was a further sum of $1,200,000 of old credits which had been taken into the balance by Mr.
Robb. Some of these old credits were of very old standing. None of them nor the salvage under our settlement with Great Britain belonged properly to the accounts of the past year.

The feat of writing off $30,000,000 of the debt one year, after having had a deficit of $31,000,000 the previous year was "just a mere matter of bookkeeping," said Sir Henry. It simply comes about by taking that of Toronto, who saved seven lives from the sinking German steamship Hammonia on Sept. 9, 1922 when an English ship rescued 285 of the passengers and crew. Mayor Hiltz has presented him with a certificate signed by President Ebert of the German Republic, and a bronze plaque.

$50,000,000 which the government had raised for railway purposes as not affecting a debt one way or another.
Though the minister of finance has stated that there was a "substantial" amount of the $50,000,000 invested in the Canadian National Railways still left, Sir Henry believed he would be lucky if there was as much as $18, 000,000 of the sum remaining. Only one small bit of capital work was being carried on by the Canadian National just now.

Exchange Benefits.

Sir Henry discredited the government's claims for savings due to exchange. It was a matter entirely dependent upon the money market. The government had such savings as this summed upon them.

The government had adopted a policy of attrition toward the tariff.
declared Sir Henry. For the past two years it has been "nibbling" away.
He insisted that agriculture had not been helped in the slightest degree and that industry had been injured.
The policy of tariff nibbling had helped no one in Canada except those persons occupying the treasury benches. It had also helped the American manufacturer who exported goods to the Canadian market. More than half the men who should be employed in the agricultural implement industry of Canada are idle or working in the United States, Sir Henry maintained.

The tariff had nothing to do with the difficulties of the farm. Sir Henry gave as the three causes of the farmers' hard times, the practically prohibitive tariff of the United States directed, in the main, against farm products, deflation of prices applicable to grain and livestock, and the loss of purchasing power of the great consuming countries due to the war.
"This budget shows that the government cares nothing about business or industrial stability," he said. "The wisdom and experience of the former finance minister were thrown into the waste basket, the government being chiefly concerned in maintaining its stability in office."

Payrolls Count.

The opposition, said Sir Henry, had failed to find an effort to build up Canadian industry rather than that of the United States. The wealth and happiness of a country was measurable by the size of its payroll. The only constructive policy was one which would increase in length and total of the country's payroll.

Agriculture and industry were complementary. They were only made antagonistic from time to time for political purposes, by governments who choose to strengthen their political position rather than the position of the country.

Asked by C. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod) if he insinuated that the farmers wanted to drive Americans out of Canada, Sir Henry replied that he did not think a single farmer in Western Canada seriously desired such a result, but unfortunately the present policy in Canadian politics must have that result.

Sir Henry then went on to speak of the implement industry, of which
"Ontario was the home."

Factories Sacrificed.

They had been steadily growing in prosperity, these factories, and now they were to be handed over to the United States as a sacrifice.

There were factories in Quebec, too, which would suffer. If Quebec members were interested in the industrial welfare of their province they would feel compelled to vote against the budget. If members from the province of Quebec still maintained their faith in the Laurier-Flelding tariff they would feel obliged to oppose the budget.

No real betterment had been obtained for the Western farmer by any of the tariff reductions. Out of the twenty-four million which the government had to save the taxpayers, only $750,000 would be due to savings on customs. Industry did not know what charges will be made upon it in the future.

Sees Betrayal.

The great trouble, added Sir Henry, was that no one knew what the next political exigency would bring. In view of increased duties by the United States, further lowering of the Canadian tariff practically amounted to betraying of interests in this country. Just so long as prohibitive tariffs were met with cuts in the Canadian tariff, just as long would prohibitive tariffs continue.

Sir Henry insisted that the sales tax was not being collected. He insisted that the budget did nothing whatever for labor. The steel plate industry, the window glass industry and the woolen industry were left without assistance. The government was concerned with other things, so Canadian woolen workers would continue to move across to the United States.

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, in opening, said: For those who believed in a reduction of taxation the present budget went a long way in accord with their desire.
He trusted that the budget did mean the death knell of protection, though he did not wish to have the tariff abolished entirely.

Many Assisted.

Sir Henry Drayton had said that the budget did nothing for the workers, but he forgot that protection had borne very heavily upon those engaged in agriculture and the other industries to which assistance was given by the present budget, a section of the people who numbered five and a half million out of the total population.

It had been said that the ultimate hope of the agriculturists was the home market, but if that were the case, the tariff would be a great help to have to leave Canada than were leaving it at the present time.

It was not the desire of the government to interfere with any industry in Canada, and he believed that when the effect of the present changes had been felt throughout industry there would be less emigration than there had been in the past.

Mr. Stewart recalled conditions as he knew them after the national policy was adopted in 1873. Smaller industries were then merged with larger ones, and thousands of dwellings in the city of Toronto were unoccupied. The black flag was much in evidence during those years, and there were many processions of workers asking for work or bread. In 1896 there had been a change in government, and from then until 1911 had been a period of gradual growth, the time of the greatest progress in the history of Canada. In 1911 the Liberals had been accused of wishing to sell out to the Yankees, when all that they had sought was to improve conditions in Canada.

Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford) asked what reductions in the duty of agricultural implements had been made by the Liberals from 1896 to 1911.

Studied Farmers.

Mr. Stewart replied that the Liberals had done very little in that regard, but they had taken measures to enable the farmers to make this good. He went on to ask the Conservatives what protection had done
servatives what protection had done for the agricultural industry in the United States. Although that country exported only about 8 per cent of its agricultural produce yet agriculture had never been in a worse condition than in the last decade or two.
Mr. Stewart denied that the budget had been created for the west. He believed that the fiscal departures made in it would be accepted largely throughout Canada.

It would release the burden and increase the purchasing power of more than half the people of Canada through the removal of taxation on the implements of production. It was a budget for the many and not for the favored few. It did not, as the opposition had said, apply to one industry only, but generally affected the whole country for its benefit.

He quoted recent utterances of United States experts that Canada was the best field in the world today for investment. With a favorable balance of trade assured, and the burden on the agricultural producer lightened, Canada could not fail to go ahead in the coming fiscal year.

Mr. Stewart added that, with reference to the cattle industry, the government hoped to have something interesting to announce before the close of the present Parliament about the transportation of cattle to Great Britain.

Telegrams were pouring in from all parts of the country, said Mr.
Stewart, congratulating the Government on its budget. It was a popular budget, in spite of the Conservative walls.

"Canada is all right," concluded
Mr. Stewart. "Let us all get together and go ahead."

Questions Prophecy.

J. F. Johnston (Progressive, Last Mountain) said the government in office during the war had not imposed taxes as it should have done.
In those days when money was easier the taxes were not as severe as they should have been.

Mr. Johnston referred to a speech made by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in Windsor shortly before the budget was announced, in which he predicted there would be few if any reductions in tariff. In view of the announcements of last Thursday Mr. Johnston did not believe the leader of the opposition to be a very good prophet.
However, every industry to get into financial difficulties within the next few years would blame its troubles on the recent tariff cuts.

Mr. Johnston diverted for a few moments from the budget speech to urge the government to complete as promptly as possible the Hudson Bay Railway. "If for no other reason than to steady the morale of the people of the West, it should be a good investment to complete the road."

"As far as Western Canada is concerned, we are through with high tariffs. All changes must be downward," he declared.

Asks Helpful Policy.

J. L. Stansell, Conservative, East Elgin, said Canada required a fiscal policy which helped all the industries natural to the country. If there were to be tariff reductions, he thought they should be spread over all items to which the tariff now applied, instead of being applicable to a comparatively small number.

The Canadian farmer was not suffering from the high tariff, but from the world-wide economic reaction

FIRE DEPARTMENT TO ANSWER CALLS OUTSIDE OF CITY

Township Alarms Will Be Responded To At Discretion of Chief Aitken.

SPECIAL MEETING HELD

The question of fire protection for sections of the Townships of London and Westminster just beyond the city limits was discussed at a special meeting held at the city hall yesterday afternoon. Alderman Douglass, Fire Chief Aitken, Reeve Hodgins, Councillor Denigat and Miss Grant, clerk of London Township, were present.

Chief Aitken had a list of some thirty calls that the London fire department had responded to in the townships during the last five years.
Some of these had been small fires and some large, but each, the chief pointed out, represented an amount of money that had been spent for protection of property outside the city, a protection that brought no remuneration to London, although the cost of a response to a call amounted to as much as $300, when the cost of men, chemical and the wear and tear of $10,000 worth of fire-fighting apparatus was taken into consideration.

Alderman Douglass sympathized with the position of the townships, but stated that the townships should bear their portion of the cost. To this the committee from London Township agreed.

It was decided that in future calls made within one mile of the city limits would be answered at the discretion of Fire Chief Aitken. The response to calls outside the city would depend on whether there were already greater demands on the department within the city limits that would constitute an inability to go

SUBMIT HEALTH REPORT

At the monthly meeting of the board of health held at the city hall last night a considerable amount of business was gone over. It was decided that the recommendation for the sewer from Wellington to Waterloo on Cheapside go through. The members also decided on a type of bubbler for drinking fountains.

The action of the medical officer of health, Dr. W. S. Downham, was heartily commended and approved of in every way in his methods regarding smallpox and scarlet fever. The reports of Dr. Tamlin, dairy inspector, and R. H. Saunders, sanitary inspector, were also highly recommended.

The report of the tuberculosis clinic for the month of March showed two new cases for reserved diagnosis and five cases non-tuberculous. The total number of patients at the dispensary was 116. The number of deaths, 2.

The Institute of Public Health has given out to city physicians sufficient vaccine to vaccinate 8,400 persons. In addition to this some vaccine made by drug firms has been used. The medical officer of health has vaccinated 470 persons.

While there are still several cases of scarlet fever, the disease has declined from 25 to 15. There are two the number of cases in the fever ward of Victoria Hospital has declined considerably. In two weeks cases of diphtheria, a few of chicken-pox and a fairly large number of measles.
