NO CONFIRMATION

Department Official Declares Sarnia Gravel Will Be Route Selected.

Special to The Advertiser. Strathroy, July 25 .- A semi-official rumor reached Strathroy this morning from Toronto to the effect that the proposed provincial highway from Sarnia to London will take in Watford and Strathroy, southeast to Mount Brydges, east along the 3rd concession of Caradoc to Kilworth, Byron and Springbank Drive to London. This, it is claimed, has been practically settled by the department of highways.

Reeve Pike and citizens in general have fought hard for Strathroy to be placed on the new highway, and the news was received here with a great deal of pleasure.

No confirmation of the above report could be secured from the highway department at Toronto this morning. Mr. Coburn, a member of the staff, stated that the designation of highway had not been settled yet, and that any announcement from Strathroy was premature.

London, July 26.—Although the niners' federation has announced a strike of colliers on July 31, and only a bare week now remains for a possible cessation in coal production, the situation tonight appeared more hopeful for a bridging of the chasm of dissension between the miners and the coal owners. Mediation in the situation by W.

BUSY MONTH FOR HUMANE SOCIET

Stress Is Laid On Law Which Requires Dogs Kept Off Street.

A remarkable range of activities is evealed by the monthly report of the London Humane society, presented at a meeting of the society in the city hall last night. Though there have been no prosecutions so far this month for cruelty to animals, the number of calls Inspector Tustin has made is not diminished. High praise was given this official by M. Wilson, of Toronto, general manager of the Ontario society. He declared that the work of the local inspector equalled, and in most cases surpassed that of any other official in the province, not excepting Toronto. The local animal hospital, and hostel, which is under the direct supervision of Mr. Tustin, was far ahead of any he had seen in his visits, Mr. Wilson declared.

Attention was drawn to the recent amendment of the criminal code. dealing with cruelty and neglect of that animals. The part of the act w penalizes neglect, without spe The part of the act which cruelty, was especially stressed and will receive enforcement locally by Mr. Tustin. Special stress was laid by Mr. Tustin, on the law which requires owners to keep dogs off the streets. During the last week seven beautiful dogs have been badly maimed or killed by motor cars, on the city streets. The possession of a tag does not excuse the dog being loose. During the winter the enforcement of this law is purposely lax, but as a protection to the care of the control of the care a protection to the animals, it must e enforced at the present time.

The work of the shelter was also told. Here all stray dogs, are boarded for a period of nine days, awaiting their owners. In this connection, M was literally dying of starvation, and had to be put out of existence. If many similar cases are found prosecutions will follow

Nairn After Sixty Years

By J. B. McLACHLAN.

REVISITING the village of Nairn after an absence of over 60 years, during the reunion of the old boys and girls of East Williams on the 8th inst., I looked in vain for something that would remind me of the days of my boyhood. I visited the cemetery in the vain effort to locate the grave of my first teacher, Dr. Richmond Sands. There were others like myself from distant parts in quest of the resting-place of friends. but an inner consciousness seemed to "They are not here, they are

As I passed through that region of the dead, like Addison in Westminster Abbey, I felt the gloominess of the place. I saw the graves of many of the old pieneers of the township who settled there when Williams was a dense wilderness; hewed out homes for themselves and families among the "muckle trees" after a wearisome voyage on the Atlantic, a strenuous journey from Montreal to the banks of the Sauble, and a still more stren lous task of clearing away the forest They lived to see and act their part a mighty transformation, from the time they landed in the bush, when many of them pined for the straths, glens and bens of dear old Scotland, the free, fair homes of England, the banks of the Shannon and the lakes of the Emerald Isle, and oft wished themselves back again, but bravery fortitude and perseverance won out and fortune crowned their efforts.

Looking Back. As I passed along those conces-ions and side lines, although changed and in many cases beyond recognition, I fancied I could see those sturdy old settlers cutting down the stately oak, the graceful elm, the emblematic maple, or building the first loghouse or barn, or riving the oak tree to make clapboards to shield them from the rain and the storm. When the only guide from one settlement to another was the blazed tree, oxen and the sled was the only conveyance to the mill and to market. Long and laborious journeys were under-taken to distant parts of the province to earn a little ready money—when people got lost in the woods, and the barking of a dog, the sound of a maul on a log, or the blowing of a horn (in answer to their cries) brought them

Cash was scarce, and barter was about the only means of exchange. Many a trip I made to Adelaide village, about five miles distant, carrying a few dozen eggs and some butter to give in exchange for such things as were needed at home.

Too Keen a Bargain. When about ten years of age. I remember going to Strathroy, and, among other things, I had two sheepskins, which I exchanged for groceries, and stayed overnight with my uncle and aunt, and going past the grocer's door I heard him telling a friend that he bought two sheep-skins from some lad at about half their value. It so pained me that I was nearly sick, yet I said nothing about it, which I often regretted, but I never had any further dealings

Yet in spite of all those drawbacks, Fever and ague were about modern civilization and modern modes of living have increased wants and multiplied diseases to an alarm-

How this One-Profit Coach

is built by Studebaker on the sturdy STANDARD SIX CHASSIS

S UPERFICIALLY other coaches may resemble this Studebaker Standard Six, but the resemblance will not stand analysis.

Only two cars are made on a oneprofit basis—Ford in the lowest price field and Studebaker in the fine car field. Only in these two cases are all bodies, engines, clutches, gearsets, springs, differentials, steering gear and axles designed, engineered and manufactured by one company. Contrast this with the average car, where the extra profits of many out-ide parts and body makers must be included in the purchase price. These profits are part of the production cost of the car-the same as the steel and wood of the body. They do not buy materials nor workmanship

-they do not make any car one whit better. Studebaker has achieved one-profit manufacture through years of far-sighted management and through sacrifice on the part of stockholders. Earnings which might have been distributed have been retained in the business to build one of the largest gray iron foundries in the world, to erect stamping mills, forges, etc., to purchase the finest labor saving machinery, to construct enormous bodybuilding plants.

lion dollars are concentrated upon the production transportation for years and years, of one-profit automobiles such as this Standard Six Coach.

What does it mean to you? To you, as an automobile buyer, this means: 1. A Lower Price. 2. A Better Car.

A LOWER PRICE, because Studebaker does not need to pile its profit upon the profits of outside parts manufacturers and body builders. A BETTER CAR, because it is a thoroughly coordinated, harmonious unit. Every part designed,

They have not, of course, replaced rilk for the more formal occasions. but fit and quality are necessary to give them official sanction even at such times. Theatrical stars both here and abroad are responsible for a slight vogue for the wide fish net apatterns, which leave far more epi-dermis exposed than is concealed. It must be admitted that some exceed-ingly harmonious results are achieved by the wearing of this mesh hosiery in tobacco brown over ankles and calves, tanned a golden glow by the summer sun of the seaside sands.

Part of the penance inflicted on fashion designer is that in the midst of the hottest weather the garments for fall and winter must be evolved. Just now hosiery designers are busily engaged in stockings for vinter sports. One design in shaggy winter sports. One design in snaggy rough wool weaves simulates spiral puttees, although they are stockings and fit more smoothly than any wrapping. Another is made to imitate long gaiters with ornamental triangular flaps up each side, which button close to the calf.

One of the coats meant for skiing has a novel collar, which fits close about the neck and comes high in about the neck and comes high in the back. Over this is pulled a leather, fur-lined helmet, similar to those worn by aviators. This puts a complete quietus on the sport of putting snow down one's neck.

The latest fur originated for fall the Parisian workroom is called iak. Electric Power and Cheap Transportation Are Winning Attractions.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, July 24.—One of the most important industrial developments in the history of the dominion, certainly the most important in recent years, is the deal recently announced between James B. Duke and the Aluminum Company of America, says the Montreal Gazette. This paper continues:

"From information gathered, this leal means that the aluminum industry is going to remove its headwarters from the United States to anada. It is a known fact that the powers that be of the aluminum world had been contemplating for ome time the establishment of vast plant either in Norway or Canada. The chief factors which came into consideration in making the choice were probably availability and cheapness of hydro-electric power, labor conditions and transportation

"It is learned that the power requirements for the manufacture of aluminum in this country will amount to 600,000 horse-power within the next five or ten years. This, according to men of experience in such matters and who are in quite close touch with the situation, will mean the creation of a city of at least 50,000 population on the Saguenay.

"The construction of the plant, including the power development, will mean an investment of over $100,-000,000. The new industry will call for the plying of a line of at least 15 steamships between British Guiana, the source of raw material, and the Saguenay for the period of open navigation at that point, which is somewhat longer than at Montreal."

Grand Bend Has Everything Needed at Popular Resort for Refreshing Vacation or Holiday

Never in the history of Grand Bend have the crowds seeking rest, creation and entertainment been so large. Cottages have filled up. Campers seek the restful quietude of the wonderful camping grounds, and the hotels report capacity business. The Casino, the mecca for dancelovers, is enjoying its biggest season. The floor is in excellent condition and, coupled with this, the irresistible music furnished by the Buescher Boys Orchestra, you find an admirable combination. The patrons of the Casino are loud in their praise of the Buescher Boys and nightly you will find people dancing who have motored 75 to 80 miles to enjoy their

Every Sunday evening at 8:30 the orchestra furnishes a free musical program of classical music, and different visitors to Grand Bend are rendering vocal selections during the evening. These concerts are proving nmensely popular.

On August 12 the original sixth annual Ford picnic will be held. No effort is being spared to make this the greatest yet. A fine list of sports has been prepared and a good prize list is offered the contestants. Another feature the picnic lovers are appreciating is the free picnic hall located right on the beach. Tables and seating accommodation for 300 or more is provided. Free hot water is also furnished.

The tourist camp this year has been visited by Canadian and American tourists from every corner of Canada and the United States. The facilities provided for an indefinite stay are excellent.

Future of the Emancipated

T HIS movement must be of profound social significance. The law of propriety has always been that young ladies must sit at home until some young man deigns to come and escort them, take them out under the protection of the manly fist. From that day forward, they were always under the manly care. They married and lived safely at home, going out to dance, or to indulge in recreation with their strong protecting male. Protecting against what, the dim ages may know. Such purely feminine activities as the proprieties permitted were little clubs, socie ganized hikers. But a good many thousand ties, leagues, where women could gain only the most superficial parlor acquaintance with each other. A woman usually finds she has one or two genuine acquaintances left by the time she is forty. A man of forty calls a hundred men by their first names, and can go golfing, fishing, conventioning with any or all of them.

> What will the effect of these hiking clubs be? Let's look ten years ahead, into the domestic circle of these hikers. She is married and has two beautiful children. She and her husband have just put them to bed and are sitting reading the papers.

while you're away." "Oh, they'll be all right. August is the healthy month. It is while you are hunting in November that they are usually laid up," says

Why not?

Is it not of greater importance that a woman should escape from the routine cares of her domestic business than that a man should escape from his business, with all the diversions of down-town existence, clubs, contacts, meetings and relations it affords?

The reason why women are tied for life after marriage is that they have never been free in make many chums in the strong, free atmosphere of sport and the open. Trained in girlhood to small, conventional circles, they reach middle age with the scantiest intimate circle. Friends made in the parlor are parlor friends. Friends made in the open, tramping, camping, roving and free, with the sky to listen to their talk, and all the world to talk about, friends of the open are close to the heart.

And this is what thousands of girls all over this country are discovering to-day.

WHO DISCOVERED THIS?

WHILE married men are said to live longer than bachelors, the opposite is the rule where spinsters and wives are concerned, although the difference is very small,

The As you near Piccadilly Circus the variety of stalls, which usually run back for some 16 rows, beggars defies the imagination. Of course there cost about $3.50, and are reserved; the pit seats. from the sixteenth row to the back of the theatre, cost about $1.00, and are not reserved. The result of this division is that queues for the pit often begin early in the afternoon.

These line-ups are the beggar's idea of paradise. Here is an audience that cannot get away from him. While embryo capitalists are selling folding stools to the men and women in the line-ups, street-musicians are drifting in to the theatre district from all over London. In the present state of the London theatre the show outside is often better than that in the theatre. A friend of mine once absent-mindedly went home when the doors were opened and the queue-performers moved away. Not all these men depend on their musical talent. Some do magic stunts, some tear strange figures out of paper. One of them told me that with careful calculation he was able to "attend" nearly all the west end theatres each night. There are so many of his kind that generous-hearted theatre goers find it cheaper to sit in the stalls. But the band outside my window has ceased to play, so I must stop and throw out a penny, secretly hoping that it hits the drummer on his misshapen head. The truth is that I have just been pounding the typewriter to drown the noise

SIDELIGHTS ON PEOPLE NOW IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Hot Air on Parliament Hill-Big Doings at the Old People's Home

LD methods are sometimes best. Sir Henry Drayton, former finance minister, certainly thinks so at any rate and should there be a terrible tragedy one day on Parliament Hill when the entire membership of the House of Commons is roasted, broiled and slowly steamed alive, this is evidence that Sir Henry foresaw it, to a certain degree.

For oratorical hot air is not the only brand inflicted on the dominion's legislators. In the old building, it was the custom to draw cool air from a conduit pipe on the bank of the Ottawa river. In the new building, the air is drawn from the courtyard adjoining, so that, as Sir Henry put it: "We are doing the best we can to artificially cook ourselves."

* * * W HEN it comes to a question of sleep, Edison has sleeping sickness compared with France's premier and war minister, M. Painleve. A quarter of an hour in an arm-chair is said to be sufficient to restore his strength and energy no matter how strenuous the previous exertion.

T HERE were big doings at the home of the Sons and Daughters of Israel of New York only the other day. Proud of his new one-piece bathing suit, Chaim Weiss, age 108, went in for a plunge while 100 other less venturesome fellow boarders looked on admiringly.

When two of the "kids", Sam Rubinovitz, just reached 90, insisted on standing behind the cameraman while Chaim was having his picture taken, sucking lollypops and making faces to disconcert their little friend, Chaim picked up a toy pail and a shovel, handed them to the two bad boys and remarked: "Go and play until you grow up."

IT may be the heat or it may be due to the fact that most professors are now freed from the burden of lectures but, in any case, academicians are going into the business of prophesying in a wholesale way these warm summer days. The woman of the future is one of the favorite topics.

Newest among the ranks of the wise men is Prof. A. M. Lowe, a leading young British scientist. He asserts that a man, on rising in the morning, will soon have to be careful that he does not don his wife's clothing. He sees a world in which women will wear trousers and high heels will be as extinct as dodos.

His prophecies, he says, "are based on the study of the curve along which a relentless civilizatic. is steadily carrying the human race upon logical scientific conclusions."

He dooms the dance as a disease, stating that people will not long be content to wobble the body like savages." He dooms a lot of other things, including violent sports and discusses the future of the office-building and the motor car. In fact, he has written a whole book and will probably make a great deal of money from it, go away somewhere and live in supreme peace for the rest of his life without worrying what may happen to anyone or any-* * *

T HIS week's unique character is Mrs. Mary I Wood Mason of Mount Vernon. She has just remarried the man she divorced in 1910 on the grounds of incompatibility. "I looked around for fifteen years," says Mrs. Mason, "but I couldn't find a better man than Sylvester." * * *

SIR ROBERT PEACOCK, chief constable of London, England, blames the murder wave in U. S. A. on the fact that there is ill-feeling between the public and the police. "The English police," he declares, "have the good-will of the people, and consequently go about unarmed. On the other hand, the American police are armed, and criminals take measures accordingly."

He succeeded a doctor who had never used a stethoscope or clinical thermometer and never administered an anaesthetic. Dr. Hume's first work covered an area of a thousand square miles on which a large mining town now stands with a medical service of 12 doctors. He visited his patients on foot, on snowshoes, on horseback and in every kind of vehicle, except an aeroplane, and often went 70 miles to visit a patient. When his services were called upon to usher new lives into the world he went with a relay of horses, sometimes changing six times. For administering chloroform in such cases he encountered serious trouble in the first year of his practise. A number of old women met, condemned him as an infidel and unbeliever, declaring that he was acting in defiance of Genesis III., 16. Explained He Was Chancellor of the Exchequer-"We've Got Six Inside," Was the Reply

NE evening in the spring of 1915, Lloyd ingly went through the usual routine. In all he George, who was then chancellor of the claimed three silent dances, including the final exchequer, was returning to his home by taxi when night fell and he gave instructions to the driver to light up. As the process took some time, he got out of the car and went round to the back to see what was the matter with the rear lamp. Just a that moment the driver resumed his seat, and, concluding that his fare was still inside, started off at full speed with the intention of making up for lost time. In vain the chancellor followed breathlessly, shouting at the top of his voice. It was a windy night, and, unfortunately, the wind was in the wrong direction for his purpose. The unheeding chauffeur and the car disappeared in the dis tance and home was five miles distant.

Plodding along Lloyd George was cheered by the sight of a building fairly well lit up in front. He recognized it as the county lunatic asylum. In response to his summons at the front door, the hall porter made his appearance but he shook his head when he heard that the visitor wanted assistance to complete his journey home and tried to close the door.

"But," said the wayfarer, "I'm the chancellor of the exchequer."

"Yes, yes," said the porter gruffly. "We've got six of 'em inside! You go out to the gate, turn to the left, and you'll get home before morning.'

There being no visible appeal from his judgment, the chancellor resumed his journey, and had not gone far when he saw his taxi returning. The driver, reaching his destination and opening the door, found that he had lost his passenger, and in a state of amazed trepidation went back in search of him.

"You will wed a prince," reads the prophecy, "a fair prince whose kingdom shall be over all seas and all lands. You will wed for love and love will be your word and shield. The crown which they will set upon your head will be heavy, but very bright, and love will ease your brow of its weight."

The princess herself gained her first share of glory by literally raising the roof of her grandmother's palace. In the apartments of her grandmother was a palatial salon with a peculiar and unique ceiling and roof of stained glass. By pushing a button this ceiling divided in helf, was raised up and disappeared, leaving the whitehaired queen and her companion under the bright blue of the Rumanian skies. This trick roof charmed and intrigued the young princess, with the result that at every opportunity she would slip away alone and, if she found the salon empty, press the button and watch the ceiling disappear.

There is no doubt that the Prince of Wales has made a very great impression on the young princess of the Balkans. If nothing else shows this her own private and personal ambition does. Ileana wants to own a western ranch and she wants to live there.

When she was a small child she had a charming way of getting whatever she wanted whenever she took a fancy to it. ### HER GREAT AMBITION IS TO SWIM THE CHANNEL

Eva Morrison, Nineteen-Year-Old Nova Scotian, Passes Classic Test for Endurance and Stamina

ISS EVA MORRISON of Pictou. Nova Scotia, although only nineteen years of age, has already performed some feats as a swimmer, which show skill and endurance beyond the strength of most hardy men.

Last year she won the swimming race four miles out to sea to Pictou Light, beating the men competitors, an especially difficult swim because of the cross currents. The water is also very cold, never over forty degrees.

The icy sea forced fourteen men swimmers out of a match at Halifax, but Miss Morrison stayed in and finished the ten mile course.

A few months ago, she went down to Boston to show Americans what she could do in the ocean. When she reached Boston, several men decided to swim the race with her from Charlestown Bridge out to the Boston lighthouse, a distance of twelve miles through rough sea. But the water was very cold, only sixteen or eighteen degrees above freezing, and all the male contestants but one abandoned the swim at once. He swam out a mile and then turned back because of the cold.

But the girl went on and on until she had covered six, eight, ten miles. A half mile farther on she had to give up, though she was within a mile and a half of her goal, because the tide had turned too strongl to make it possible for any human to batt' it. A delayed start in taking off for the swi was wholly responsible, but Eva Morrison wou not let any such incident prevent her swimmin that whole twelve miles in one stretch.

So just a week later she tried it again, divin off the Charlestown Bridge at three o'clock i the morning in order to beat the tide. Thi. time she swam alone and in seven hours and a half this girl from the north swam the twelve miles to the Boston Light. The row boat that accompanied her was not easy to land on the beach there, and the girl who had been in the water seven hours and a half was still so fresh that she lent a hand in pulling the boat on to the beach.

When she had finished this swim, which is considered a classic test of any swimmer's skill and endurance, and her victory was being acclaimed, she only said, "That is just one more bit of swimming finished. Some day I want to

And she is just the sort to think it great fun to try to conquer that choppy sea, this girl who has trained her body so splendidly in northern waters which most people would consider quite too cold to even swim in.

There is a species of clam called a piddock, which bores holes in hard clay and soft rock and spends its life in the cavity so made. This explanation is all very well after the hole is started, but how about the beginning of the hole before the

For the past three and a half years Mr. Cotsworth has been touring the world as representative of the International Fixed Calendar League, visiting the capital of almost every civilized country, paving the way for the great change that is coming. Much of his time was spent in Geneva, where he acted as expert for the league of nations on the revision of the calendar, analyzing and reporting on a number of proposals to that end. His next move will be a coast to coast tour of Canada, when he will speak in all the large centres of population.

"I have the most interesting and the most useful job in the world," declares the enthusiastic reformer. "The scientific revision of the calendar will effect a great economic saving and will otherwise benefit the human race. People laughed at me in the nineties, but to-day my plan has been endorsed by almost every international scientific society in the world."

The thirteen-month year is simplicity itself compared to our present twelve months of uneven lengths. Every month will have twentyways be a Sunday, so the end will always come on a Saturday. Children born on a Wednesday will celebrate their birthdays on Wednesdays no

Astronomically speaking, the year is 3651/4 days long. Thirteen months of twenty-eight days apiece total up to only 364 days. The day left over will in future be known as "New Year's Day," but will not be included either in December or in January. It will be a "dies non," a holiday inserted between the last Saturday of one year and the first Sunday of the next. The fractional day will be disposed of in the same ingenious manner: every four years there will be & "Leap Day" belonging to no month. In no other manner may mathematical precision be

There will necessarily be a readjustment of saints' days in the Roman Catholic calendar, but this does not seem to present any serious difficulty. With a very few exceptions, saints' days have been allotted arbitrarily and there is no reason why a certain saint should be honored in June instead of July or vice versa.

Reading 14-5, Providence 8-1 declared in the South Perth U. F. O. League. The Fullarton baseball club is one of the combatants, while the executive of the league represents the other side of the dispute. The bone of contention is the trophy donated three years ago by Peter Smith, for annual competition by the teams of this league.

Fullarton has won the cup two years in succession, and where the fly's in the ointment, they claim to have won it again this year. The league executive contends that, actording to league rules, Fullarton has not yet won the championship for 1925, as it was expressly stipulated

COLTS BREAK LOSS STREAK.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener. July 24.—The Kitchener Colts came out of their losing streak here this afternoon with Earl Brown on the mound, by beating the Hamilton Clippers 5 to 4 in a 12-inning game. Twice the homesters came from behind, once to the and once to go ahead, only once to tie and once to go ahead, only to have Hamilton knot it up on the fourth. From then noit was a splend d game, with both Ryan and Brown working nicely, though the Kitchener man was the steadier of the two. Two bases on halls, a sacrifice and Knothe's single settled the conflict in the twelfth with one down. It was the Colts' third win of the second series.

RIPLEY TRUNDLERS TAKE SOUTHAMPTON HONORS

Special to The Advertiser.
Southampton, July 24.—Thirty-two rinks were entered in the annual Southampton bowling tournament which opened yesterday. Play was continued until about daybreak this morning, when the tournament was finally brought to a close. The Bow-man trophy was won by R. Jack-son's rink of Ripley, which defeated J. B. Heuther's rink of Guelph in the finals by a score of 13 to 11. Rosen borough's rink of Owen Sound nort won the special or consolation event, defeating McLean's rink of Port Elgin. Two rinks from Owen Sound ty skipped by John Thompson and David Barss, were in the finals in the association event. Play was not finished in this event, and it was decided to have these two rinks play

SERIES CHAMPIONSHIP

HOW ABOUT LIVELIER PITCHING? The young crop of pitchers may alibi themselves out on the lively ball, but some of the veterans in the major leagues seem to be getting along nicely without sending a delegation to the league presidents asking that a little bit of the zip and zoom be taken out of the spheroids now sold into the industry. A week ago today was Old Man's Day in the majors Babe Adams hero as long ago as 1909 of the world series, Duster Mails, Jack Quinn, George Dauss and Rube Benton all seized upon that day to win brilliant victories. They may have worked a scheme to have some old balls used, but it is doubtful Live pitching will help quite a bit as a counter-irritant against the SCENERY.

It would not surprise many local fans if Connie Fields, let out by the London club, would pitch winning ball with some other club. Many of those who know baseball think that Fields is a smart pitcher, though realizing that the London club had no other alternative than letting him go, as apparently he couldn't get going here. Pitchers need a change of scenery sometimes, though why nobody has ever discovered Witness what Jack Quinn is doing for Connie Mack, and he's seen more scencry than any other pitcher in the business. Carmen can pitch better ball for Wetzel apparently than another pilot, which, of course, is bringing the personal element into it, which had nothing to do with Fields leaving the London club, for Fields was one of the most popular of the local athletes, and in turn he liked the club and the city.

THE KILLER KILLED?

There are plenty of experts who pinned the label "The Killer" on Dempsey who are now wondering if he'll ever be that again. When Dempsey, clean, copper-skinned, tore Willard to pieces like a stuffed doll at Toledo, he was just about as tough a hombre as he looked that hot, blazing fourth. The world was just divided into two kinds of people for Dempsey-those who ate regularly and those who didn't, and Dempsey didn't know a great deal about the former. As champion, Dempsey met men and women of all classes and conditions and as keen and mentally alert as he was, and the contact began to polish him up. Dempsey today, who might well be chosen as valedictorian for the '25 class from the University of Life-for few graduates have had the advantages he has in the way of diverse and colorful personal contacts-is a far cry from the Dempsey of Toledo. Even rith the progress he has made in the past two years, he's some distance away from the Dempsey who was knocked out of the ring by Firpo at Boyle's Thirty Acres, climbed back in, and with quite a bit of the accumulated polish barked off his shins, returned to type long enough to tear in and flatten the Bull of the Pampas.

Surface values have, undoubtedly, changed for Dempsey. He is as bright and sharp mentally as Londoners who met him here four years ago were quick to realize. He may even be somewhat apologetic for the uncouth atmosphere which surrounds the prizefighting industry. He may have become somewhat softened by soft, not fast living, but it is very doubtful if underneath it all he is any less "The Killer" than he ever was. Dempsey's refinement and polish is merely a first and recent coat, and many, many coats of that sort of finish-the work of generations, if not centuries-has been known to dry up, crack, and fall off within the space of a few seconds.

TAMPERING.

There has been a recent tendency to tamper with sports that have been established for years. Rules are deleted and others substituted, until, if it continues, few sports will be carried on in the next ten years in anything like their original form. The California State Boxing Commission recently doubled the time from ten to twenty seconds in which a boxer knocked out of the ring could return to the affray. If other boxing commissions get the same craze, the Marquis of Queensbury rules will be found only in museums along with other historic papyri.

There has been much tampering with baseball. Some of it has been to the ultimate gain of baseball, but a good deal of it has not. Hockey has gone along for nearly a quarter of a century before they lopped a man off each team. It didn't stop there, and now there are two sets of rules in Canada, and more to come.

comebody looking for a game played by girls and young men of forty, just beginning to develop bay windows and resentful of the fact, stole indoor baseball and planted outside where the sunlight could get at it, and softball was the hardy perennial bloom that resulted.

The controversy now raging in many parts of the States and Canada over the age limit for golf will probably result in a modified form of golf, just as marathons were pared down to twelve miles. when the regular marathon distance was considered too strenuous Already in Scotland, putting has developed into a game by itself quite distinct from golf, of which it was formerly and originally, and still is for most people, a disconcerting factor of the pastime as a whole. The golf controversy has reached such a stage that in this age of legislation men over fifty may be eventually barred from the golf clubs of this continent. This will, of course, usher in synthetic and fore-point-fore golf. Holes will be cut down to 75 yards, club heads enlarged, and the present ball in use in softball will probably be substituted for the cantankerous little white pill at which golfers now shoot. The softball would be perhaps a little too soft, but it could be soaked in brine or something to give it a little more hardness. There is no telling where this tinkering will end. Between tinkering and the tinkle of coin in amateur circles, sport has to be watched very closely, or one drops behind.

CHARACTERISTICS.

Games have characteristics which are quite as distinct as they are with individuals.

Baseball's chief characteristic is umpire baiting, both by players and fans. To deride, abuse, taunt the umpire is the inalienable right of every fan, and it's as much a part of the game as the play itself. This is shown by the fact that the U. S. colleges, who preserve a fair sort of decorum at and in other games, and who take officials' decisions unquestioned, exhibit all the caucous tendencies of the gashouses gang at a ball game, and stubbornly fight the umpires' decisions. If baseball makes the headway promised in Japan, it will put to the test the innate courtesy of the people of the Flowery Kingdom. In fact, already the Japs have shown a tendency to hiss down the

Soccer develops the same mannerisms wherever played, and soccer is among the most cosmopolitan of games in recent years. Soccer is usually sporting enough on the field, but it's at the council tables that soccer shows its petty side Lacrosse was partly killed through very distinct characteristics it displayed wherever played in Canada-characteristics which good sportsmen soon tired of. They appeared both on and off the field.

There are protests in every sport, but nowhere has the habit become so fixed as it has in softball. Protest and softball are becoming synonymous, and some local fan professes to see a falling off in interest locally as a result. There are times when a protest is timely and justified, but there is a limit, and the spectators, even in the mass, are very quick to perceive when it's been reached.

Price Limits Narrow in New York—Mexican Issues Lower.

Goodrich Gen Petroleum Hupp Motor Harvester Associated Press Despatch.

New York, July 24.—Buying interest was at a low ebb in the bond market today, and prices continued to fluctuate within a narrow trading area. Apprehension over any immediate tightening of the money situation was allayed, but evidences were still present of liquidation by institutions on the belief that general firming up of rates is in store later in the season. Aside from activity in the semi-speculative rail issues, trading was unusually listless. Buying of New Haven Railroad obligations was promoted by the announcement that an increase in commutation fares had been Mex Seaboard.

Foreign obligations generally were steady, although Mexican issues drift-ed fractionally lower, on reports that a revision of the Mexican debt agreement would be demanded by the Mexican treasury. Liberty bonds also were heavy, but United States treasury issues showed improvement.

SMELTERS LEADS

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, July 24.—Consolidated Smelters dominated the trading on the Toronto stock exchange today, leading the ronto stock exchange today, leading the market in activity, and advancing to a new high of 102½, closing at 102, up 2½ on the day. Opening at 99½, which was the low of the day, the stock advanced to 100, fell back to 99¾, and although showing some fluctuations of moderate proportion, held well above the 100-mark for the rest of the day. The stock exchange was more active than it was yesterday, in sympathy with New York, was strong all day, closing figures showing advances to more than double the number of losses.

ing advances to inore than dodots in number of losses.

Atlantic Sugar common, which came second to Smelters in volume of turnover, also was strong, moving up 1 point to 33%. It is understood that an announcement may be expected shortly regarding the funding of the company's debts, while the outlook for the coming year a thought to be bright. There was considerable interest manifested in sugar today, which is possibly in anticipation of an early announcement of the company's plan. Dominion Canners common occupied a prominent place on pation of an early announcement of the company's plan. Dominion Canners common occupied a prominent place on the board, moving up 5½ points to 11½ on sales of 325 shares. The preferred was quiet, only two shares coming out during the day, and selling at 109. The closing quotation on Dominion Canners preferred, however, was 109 bid with no offers. Offerings of stock were said to be light. Shareholders of the preferred stock have only about a week in

COLLEGE VALUE SHOWN

Figures at Conference in Guelph.

Special to The Advertiser. Guelph, July 24 .- At the annual conference on rural community life and work, which is in progress here, President J. B. Reynolds, B.A., of the O. A. C. took occasion to answer the pessimistic reports regarding farming conditions in Ontario, and in doing so presented a very important and interesting array of facts and figures. He also sought to correct some of the prevailing misconceptions of the function of the Ontario Agricultural College, President Reynolds proved from statistics that the students do go back to the farms. With the exception of a small percentage of students who become agricultural representatives, approximate ly 85 per cent of those students who enter the college from the farms of Ontario go back to the farms.
From 1884 to 1917, out of 100
ex-students of the O. A. C., there are 54 farmers, 32 agriculturists other than farmers, and 14 in occupations Increase in farm wealth and farm production in Ontario from 1893 to 1922: Farm land, $600,000,000 to $881,000,000: farm buildings, $200,-000,000 to $479,000,000; implements, $57,000,000 to $164,000,000; livestock, $118,000,000 to $214,000,000 In 1893 the value of the livestock sold or slaughtered was $34,500,000: in 1922 it was $90.475,000. From 1892 to 1901 the average value of Ontario field crops was $106,000,000; in 1922 recleaned. was $226,000,000. The average valu of field crops in Ontario 1882 to 1923 was $163,000,000; in 1922, $226,000,000 The increase in yield per acre for the last eighteen years in comparison with the eighteen years previous amounts to 20 per cent for barley, 14 per cent for winter wheat and 10 per cent for oats. This extra value of $134,667,403, brought about simply by the increase in yield per acre of these three farm crops grown in Ontario in the last eighteen years over the timated amount equivalent to the sum necessary to maintain the Ontario Agricultural College, in accordance with its present expenditure, for 30
