LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late William M. Boyd, whose sad death occurred on Wednesday, took place yesterday afternoon from his late home, Adelaide street, to the Maple Leaf Cemetery. The K. O. T. M. conducted the funeral. About 300 Maccabees were present. Those present from a distance were Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Pulleyblank, of Detroit.

The pall-bearers were six of his brother Maccabees—Messrs. Charles Bedford, W. Courtney, L. Springer, G. Forsythe, J. Gilligan and C. Montague.

CIVIC COURTS OF REGISTRATION

Young Men of Chatham Enrolling Their Names Upon the Provincial List.

Proceedings Opened With Rush and the Registrars were Kept Busy All Morning.

At the registration proceedings at the Police Court, conducted by Judge Houston, business opened with a rush. Five voters were waiting to be registered when the court opened and within the first hour fifteen men registered. By 12 o'clock only 23 had registered. Wm. O'Mara, proprietor of the Idlewild, was the first man to have his name recorded. He also was the first one to take the special oath under section six. Mr. O'Mara was on the voters list in Dover Township but as he lived here had to register in Chatham to vote. Those who registered gave various occupations from that of preacher to a scavenger. The first preacher to register at the Police Station since manhood suffrage voting was authorized, took the oath this morning. The minister was the Rev. J. J. Ross.

Of the 40 who had registered up till noon only one knew the number of his lot and residence. Chas. John Poile was the man. All the rest had to have the exact location of their residence searched except one man, Edward Kelly, a brewer, who had a slip with him on which was recorded his name and description of the lot where he lived. He was provided with the slip by the Conservative Association. Others were provided with a similar slip but they didn't bother to bring it and their place of residence had to be located. Tom Martin, the bread merchant, was present in the Conservative interests, and Barrister George Sayer in the Liberal interests. Mr. Martin is a welder. There are some 500 persons in North Chatham to register. Mr. Martin knows them all and where they live. One man's registration was postponed because he had taken out first papers and had voted in the United States. One man wouldn't register because he was going away. Up to noon 40 had registered at the Police Station as against 60 in the morning of the first day, last time.

At the other registration centres also the work was very briskly proceeded with. In Harrison Hall Judge Bell registered 29 and Jas. Holmes 32.

ROUGH TRIP

Schooner Kolfage Experienced Some Exciting Battles With the Elements.

The Kolfage, with Capt. McDonald in charge, arrived in port last evening between eight and nine o'clock, from Johnston's Harbor, Georgian Bay, with a cargo of lumber for The Blonde Bros. Mfg. Co.

When interviewed by The Planet this morning, Capt. McDonald said—"We had a rough old trip of it both on the way up and back."

"We left here, you know, two weeks ago last Friday, the wind was very strong and going around the Peninsula up there we hung in close to the shore and let go the anchor."

"We were driven onto the bank of the shore and it cost me more to get her off there than I can make up in three trips."

"Well, we loaded up all right, and were just in time to get the benefit of that heavy wind of Thursday and Friday. Quite an amount of shingles and lumber was washed overboard, and some of the men had very narrow escapes."

"I was at the wheel for 26 straight hours with only a cup of coffee and a sandwich, so you can imagine about what kind of a time we had."

If the poor man cannot always get meat, the rich man cannot always digest it.

WILD SCENES AND DENOUEMENT CHARACTERIZE FARMERS' GATHERING

Shareholders in Binder Twine Co. Unseat Directors and Elect a New Board—Scuffle Over the Possession of the Books—New Directors Escorted to the Factory and put in Possession.

The Binder Twine Co. meeting—or, rather, the storm—resumed Saturday afternoon about 1.30 o'clock.

The motion of Messrs. McCoy and Wilson, in the morning, to have M. Wilson, K. C., speak, was lost.

J. N. McCoy spoke:—Gentlemen, I am disgusted with the way this meeting has been carried on by us as a body. We are here to further the interests of the institution. Speaking of the by-law for the issue of preference stock there is not a joint stock company in Canada that has got along without the issue of it. Mr. Rankin says it is absurd to think of such a thing as it will wipe out the interests of the common stockholders.

Mr. Rankin—No, no, I did not.

Mr. McCoy—Gentlemen, let me tell you, you want to take less stock in what these lawyers say. He (Mr. Rankin) says you must elect directors, but I know enough about law to know that under the circumstances you can't transact other business than that for which the meeting was called, and I know Mr. Rankin dare not contradict it.

Mr. Rankin—I do, most emphatically.

Mr. McCoy continued:—"As men, as farmers, take no notice of a few of these men who are looking for positions. It would be better if you gave them their $1,500 worth of stock and let them out."

"Then, again," he continued, there is no man who would go down through Essex and Kent gathering proxies, as did the late engineer, and spend his time for nothing. Gentlemen, I say there is something behind all this."

"I did not get paid," broke in Wm. Clements, for securing proxies or signatures to the requisition. They laid me off and locked me out. Now, what would you do in that case?"

M. J. Wilson—"This is all out of order."

"Yes, and you're the man that did it, too, and put another man in my place to watch the machines," cried Mr. Clements.

J. B. Rankin now made his way to the platform amid the cheers of the gathering. On his arrival at the platform Chairman M. J. Wilson arose saying Mr. Rankin was out of order. He was met with a volley of hisses and exclamations of "Sit down!" "Sit down!"

After the hubbub had subsided for a few moments, Mr. Rankin began:—"Gentlemen, I am only the loser of $50 if this business sinks; but I am going to do all I can to keep it up. If this business is put on the same basis as Mr. McCoy says, I fear you will not secure one cent."

Mr. Wilson—"Gentlemen, I call this out of order."

This provoked laughter and exclamations of "Put him out!" "Sit down!" etc.

Mr. Rankin—"I am going to speak, anyway. What Mr. McCoy said was music to your ears and, because this is not, you say it is out of order."

Mr. Wilson—"The motion before the house."

"Sit down, sit down." "Let Rankin speak." "Let's hear Rankin" from the stockholders.

"I am going to prove to you, gentlemen," continued Mr. Rankin, "by reading the first clause of the notice of the meeting that the meeting was called for the election of new directors."

Chairman Wilson—"Gentlemen, you must know this is all, all, I say, out of order."

Mr. Rankin—"You did not interrupt Mr. McCoy."

Mr. Wilson—"You are just here to kill time."

Mr. Rankin—"Then I am helping you."

Mr. Wilson—"The sheriff will be sent over to the factory in the morning."

Mr. Rankin—"That is out of order."

Laughter.

Mr. Wilson—"The motion before the house."

Audience interrupting—"Rankin, Rankin." "We want to hear Rankin, not you."

Mr. Wilson—"Won't this disorder cease?"

John Piggott, Sr.—You are the principal cause of the disorder.

D. A. Hutchison moved, and the motion was seconded, that Mr. Wilson vacate the chair.

The motion was not put, Mr. Wilson declaring it out of order.

Mr. Rankin continued—Since the last meeting these gentlemen have passed a by-law, a perfect gem, to keep themselves in office for two years.

Mr. Wilson—"That's false."

The audience—Sit down, sit down!

Mr. Rankin—Well, then produce the by-law.

Mr. Wilson—"You are just killing the time of the meeting."

Mr. Rankin—"But why don't you let us see it?"

Secretary Smith—"It's in the safe at the office. You can see it there."

Mr. Rankin—"But why didn't you bring it?"

Secretary—"Because I wasn't asked to."

Mr. Rankin concluded by saying he would stay with the concern and fight for what he sincerely believed was right until his last cent was spent, and he was met with cheers and exclamations of "We'll stay with you!" "We'll back you."

When Mr. Rankin concluded his speech Mr. Wilson started to speak, but the audience fairly rose upon the seats and cried "Election! Election!"

Mr. Wilson—"It is out of order. There is by-law and motion before the house and all else is out of order."

"Election! Election!" came from the audience.

Mr. Jones—"Will you allow Matthew Wilson to speak?"

The audience—"No! No! Too many Wilsons! Election! Election!"

Mr. J. W. Stokes then arose in his seat to address the meeting, and the hubbub subsided.

"Gentlemen," he said, "if the president won't let us elect our officers, move that we adjourn to some other building and elect our directors."

C. W. Haviland—"If this requisition is legal to call a meeting I would like to know why we can't have the meeting. If these men are going to block us from electing our officers, is it right that they should remain any longer in charge?"

"Put them out! Put them out!" came again from the audience.

"This is above all endurance," continued Mr. Haviland.

The President—Hear Matthew Wilson.

Mr. Haviland—"We did not come here to hear Mr. Wilson, we came to elect directors."

John Piggott—"I move we now proceed with the election of directors."

Mr. Wilson—"There is already a motion before the house."

Mr. Smith then read a motion in reference to one of the by-laws the directors had contemplated passing, but was again interrupted with cries of "Election! Election!" and the motion was voted down.

The following motion was then put by the President:—

Moved by McCoy and McCoy, that Directors McKay and Hutchison be asked to resign their positions.

This motion was greeted with groans and hisses and the meeting was thrown into confusion.

A voice—"What is the matter with the President resigning?"

Mr. Piggott—"I would move an amendment to that motion that all of the members of the board of directors be asked for their resignations."

Mr. Wilson—"That is out of order. Laughter and groans."

Mr. Piggott—"Why is it out of order?"

Mr. Wilson—"Because no notice has been given of it. More laughter and groans."

Mr. Rankin then demanded a poll.

Mr. Wilson—"I will then rule that the vote must be taken by the voters rising in their seats. All in favor of the motion—"

He was interrupted with cries of "Amendment first!" "Sit down!" etc.

Mr. Wilson—"It would be out of order. There is no amendment. Hisses."

Mr. Piggott—"My amendment is perfectly in order and strictly parliamentary. An amendment is made to alter or improve a resolution and it is not reasonable to suppose that a notice could be given of an amendment."

Cheers.

Mr. Wilson—"The amendment is out of order—Laughter—and I would like you to hear the solicitor, Matthew Wilson, on this question."

Mr. Piggott—"We don't care what Mr. Wilson says. The Amendment is perfectly in order."

Mr. Cousineau—"I move that we proceed right away with the election of directors. Cheers."

Mr. Wilson—"That is out of order. More laughter and cries of "Mr. Wilson, change your motto."

J. B. Rankin, K. C.—The shareholders have come here for the purpose of electing directors and they have asked me as a professional man, whether or not I think it is lawful to elect directors, and I have told them on my honor that it would be within the bounds of the law—Hear, hear, and applause.

Mr. Parrott—"Now that we have Mr. Rankin's solution, I would move that Matthew Wilson be heard."

GOOD NEWS FROM FRONT

Lord Kitchener Sends a Very Encouraging Despatch re Peace Prospects.

May 20th the Date of Official Proclamation—Account of Negotiations.

London, May 11.—There was a fresh crop of peace rumors yesterday. It was stated that a hopeful despatch had been received by the government from Lord Kitchener, but inquiries at the war office were not able to glean any information on the point.

PEACE CERTAIN.

Lisbon, May 10.—A despatch received here from Delagoa Bay, Portuguese East Africa, says that peace in South Africa is certain to result from the conference of the Boer leaders to be held at Vereeniging, Transvaal May 15. It is said, the despatch continues, that peace will be officially proclaimed May 20. Preparations are afoot for general rejoicings.

(After having met the burghers in the field, and explained to them the British terms, the Boer leaders were to meet at Vereeniging and reach a final decision on the subject of peace. A despatch from London, dated May 2, said it was officially asserted that after their conference at Vereeniging

MONDAY, MAY 12.

WHAT MR. PARDO DIDN'T SAY.

Mr. T. L. Pardo next occupied the attention of the meeting. He spoke of the pleasure it gave him to see his Pain Court friends, regretting that he could not see them more frequently. However, he had always looked after their interests well and would continue to do so. He hoped they would support him in the coming election, as in doing so they would support the Ross Government, which always had been and always would be the friend of the farmer. In the legislature he had endeavored to sever his constituents in all matters entrusted to him, and had almost invariably brought these matters to a successful issue. He had passed more bills than his predecessor in a shorter period, and in municipal matters had brought several thousand dollars to the relief of the various townships by careful attention to their rights. (Prolonged cheers, during which Mr. Pardo resumed his seat.)—Banner report: in full of Mr. Pardo's address at the Pain Court meeting.

As a matter of fact Mr. Pardo didn't say anything of the kind. He didn't even allude to his record in the House or attempt to tell the electors that "he had always looked after their interests well." He didn't mention his service to his constituents at all, or any matters he had brought to a successful issue. He didn't say anything about passing any bills, nor make any comparison with his predecessor. He didn't even hint that he "had brought several thousand dollars to the relief of the various townships by careful attention to their rights."

As everyone who was at the meeting is aware, Mr. Pardo altogether ignored the repeated requests of the public for an account of his stewardship to them. He steered completely clear of his parliamentary record—had nothing apparently to show for it. He, moreover, attempted to get away from his short-comings in this direction by a general apology to his audience and the plea to support him, "not for myself but for the Ross Government, if for nothing else."

Whether Mr. Pardo has given the Banner authority to get up speeches for him or whether the extract is just a forgery of its own, we don't know and don't care. But in either case it is an attempt to humbug the public which will not be tolerated.

If, however, Mr. Pardo has undertaken to hazard his reputation by permitting the Banner to create addresses for him, we sincerely trust, for his sake, that it will endeavor to curb the abusive vocabulary which characterizes its editorial utterances, while engaged in placing on paper the imaginary speeches of the ex-member for West Kent.

And in its manufacture of mythical platform deliverances the Banner might really make a hit by imagining Mr. Pardo making an address to the electors of West Kent on his record as their parliamentary representative, enunciating definitely and clearly all he has done for this constituency and the advantages which have accrued to the good people of this county by reason of his representation of them.

Mr. Pardo declines to do this himself, but his organ possesses an imagination which should not, surely, be daunted by a little task of this kind. As a journalistic campaigner it has not proved itself a Samson. Suppose, now, it sets its creative genius to work in the phonograph business.

GOOD CLASS OF CANDIDATES.

A glance at the list of Conservative candidates throughout the province, demonstrates the splendid class of standard-bearers by whom Mr. Whitney is surrounded.

In each riding representative men have been secured—men whose reputations are above reproach and men whose records constitute a guarantee of an honest and a business-like administration. Whitney will win, and he will have with him at Toronto a notable band of thoroughly capable and representative followers.

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.

The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J. G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Walter, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of this great medicine than can be published.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
 Promises to cure and keeps the promise. Don't put off treatment. Buy a bottle of Hood's today.

SUSTAIN THE JUDGES.

Judge after judge in Canadian courts of law has denounced in the strongest possible terms the election scandals committed by the corrupt "machine" in the interests of the Ontario Government, comments the Brockville Times. It is now left to the people of the province to back up the judiciary by awarding the Ross Government out of power. There is no other redress from the disgraceful wave of electoral corruption which has overwhelmed Ontario, and we are confident that the people will act with unmistakable decision on the 29th of May. When the very machinery of the law is so clogged by political crooks that election criminals are allowed to go unpunished then it is indeed time for a change.

THOUGHTFUL LIBERALS FAVOR A CHANGE.

Genuine Liberals declare that they do not like the machine, and will not support it.

No one need be surprised, for the thing is repugnant to the great doctrine of freedom for all which is dear in every patriotic Canadian.

True Liberalism means that the people shall rule. It was for this that Liberals of old fought.

No violation of that principle has been attempted, until within recent years.

Under George Brown, Edward Blake, Alexander Mackenzie, Oliver Mowat and Christopher Finlay Fraser, it was never alleged or suspected that such wrongs as are now perpetrated were permitted to occur.

The trouble comes from little ruling coteries, which employ an historic party designation for their own advantage.

Liberalism as a principle will not suffer by its declaration against an evil system designed by enemies of public liberty.

On the contrary, when it has shown the country that it will excuse no wrongs, when those who have usurped its name have been laid aside and the party has been reformed under men of the calibre of Blake, Mackenzie and Mowat, it will challenge public confidence and will do its part in the service of the province once more.

No party can expect to rule always. Certainly no fraction of a party dissociated from the better elements in the party can look for permanent power.

A change must come. It produced

Whitney Will Win!

Register! Register! Register!!! May 29th will be the People's Day.

Turn the Rosses out!—Hamilton Spectator.

Pardo is the parliamentarian who has done nothing.

These shareholders in the Chatham Binder Twine Company evidently thought it was time for a change.

The eastern press are already speculating as to the size of Premier Whitney's majority in the next Provincial Parliament.

In his eight years' parliamentary record Mr. Pardo has found nothing out which he can ask for a renewal of the people's confidence.

For eight years Mr. Pardo, as representative for West Kent, has filled a seat in the Legislature, drawn his indemnity therefor and—but what else?

If you are 21 and a British subject and a resident of the Province for a year and this city for three months you are entitled to a vote. See that you get it.

Wonder, now, who, who told "the publisher of the Banner" about that speech of Mr. Pardo's at Pain Court. Or does he blame that blunder of his paper upon The Planet, too?

Wonder if the Banner will have to fall back on its red headlines again to publish the retraction for its nasty insinuations against the town of Wallaceburg and its good people.

Pardo evidently doesn't think that the people of West Kent are entitled to any account for his stewardship in the Legislature. And the people will discuss the matter with him on the 29th.

John Lee, Liberal candidate for East Kent, is our authority for assuring the readers of this great home journal that Mr. Whitney commands admiration for his courageous and conscientious convictions.

This paper is not responsible to any person or persons whatever for what appears in its editorial columns.—Banner.

Pardon the suggestion, but what's the matter with eliminating from the above that little unessential phrase, "to any person or persons whatever."

The Carleton Place Canadian says: His Honor Judge Houston, of Chatham, a prohibitionist and a Reformer, is also "bold enough to be honest, and honest enough to be bold." He has come out with the declaration that the course pursued by Mr. Whitney in the temperance question is the only manly one he has heard in the campaign.

The day following Mr. Whitney's address in Chatham the local "Liberal" organ assumed an annihilating posture and announced defiantly that it intended to discuss Mr. Whitney's educational policy. But it's been as mum as a mouse ever since. Did its investigation show that silence was the wiser course for its party, or has it been too busy slandering good people and calling this great home journal bad names?

SACHEL OF THE SATELLITE

The Battered Red Rag is evidently on the jagged edge.

The Police know there was butter on the market, so went to mark it.

True and The Mail, both leading London, Eng., journals, evidently read this G. H. J.

The butter women on Saturday had to wait to see if their butter was right weight.

Each board of directors says the other board has no string on the Binder Twine factory.

A few ounces more or less made quite a difference to some women on the market last Saturday.

I move that we collect money and send it to brave James Kendall, the survivor of Hart's River fight.

No, Cousin Mmmx, I don't think that the Banner-Josh-News is an anarchist organ, although it did come out in red.

That fellow Gealer was just forming that Canadian Rifle Brigade to get dupes to shell out good Canadian money.

After the lawyers got the legal fight between the two board of directors settled, they will own the Binder Twine factory.

Messrs. Fraser & Davidson are attracting much abuse from the Grit press, which shows that both are valuable men.

The Binder Twine Co. ought to be well managed. One board of directors met inside the factory and one outside Saturday night.

I guess the Binder Twine Co. shareholders sowed good money and are harvesting a windstorm, judging by Saturday's meeting.

If the Binder Twine Co. could only work some of those scraps which they had at their meeting, up into twine, the company could pay a dividend of about 25 per cent.

I can scarcely see why the cemetery committee should worry about the condition of the trees on the lots at the cemetery. The tenants won't have a word to say.

When the Battered Red Rag called this G. H. J. a lie hatcher, didn't it mean a lie hatcher and weren't they insinuating that we were a sort of George Washington.

Anybody with ordinary intelligence would know that you don't hatch lies. You make it out of ashes. But, as we have mentioned before, who ever accused the Banner of having even ordinary intellect.

That Gealer who wrote this journal from London, England in regard to the formation of a Canadian Rifle Brigade, evidently doesn't know how to spell his name. He should spell it Stealer.

IT IS SHOCKING.

It will take more twine than the company has made to bind up the splits in the Binder Twine Co. I wonder if straw men caused the trouble.

BANNER TACTICS.

Gauthier had the impudence to stand up before an intelligent French-Canadian audience at Pain Court and say—"The Conservatives here tried to crush the language and religion of the Frenchman, but the Liberals prevented this."

DISTRICT DOINGS. TILBURY

May 12.—George Carless, of Southwold, formerly of this village, is visiting relatives in this vicinity. The funeral of the late James Cartwright, who died in London Asylum on Friday last, took place yesterday from the residence of his brother Walter, of Tilbury East, to the Burgess Cemetery.

Mrs. Sam. Smith, of Detroit, was the guest of Mrs. David Smith yesterday. Charlie Richardson, of Essex, spent Sunday at his home here. Miss Annie Sharp, of Ancaster, is the guest of her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Sharp.

DRESDEN

May 12.—Dr. R. L. Ludlaw, late of Petrolia, has arrived in town and will open dental offices above J. E. McGloshon's store. We welcome the Doctor to Dresden and wish him every success.

A new fence has been built around the agricultural grounds to replace the old one blown down by the wind recently.

The Woodmen, accompanied by the Dresden Band, marched to the Cemetery yesterday afternoon and uncovered a monument erected to the memory of their brother, Mr. Cooper.

Mrs. S. Hubbard has purchased the lot on Sydenham street owned by Mr. Chas. Tassie, better known as the Badstone property. Mrs. Hubbard will erect a residence on the lot and reside there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Packham spent Sunday in Turnersville. Councillor Hazlett has had a new fence built in front of his residence. License Inspector Boone was in town on Saturday.

If the teacher could wipe away the blotches from her skin as easily as she does the caricature with its pimply face, she would be a happy woman.

Pimples and eruptions are more than a disfigurement to a woman—they make her sensitive and unhappy. The way to cleanse the skin is to purify the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, and removes the clogging accumulations and poisons which corrupt it. When these are removed, pimples, boils, eruptions, sores, and other consequences of impure blood are entirely cured.

"For about one year and a half my face was very badly broken out," writes Miss Carrie Adams, of 12 West Main St., Batavia, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors and for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I obtained a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured. I can well recommend Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to any one similarly afflicted."

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good." The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHAT MOVED THE DOG?

A Remarkable Story of Canine Intelligence and Affection.

Among the tales told of the intelligence and affection of our canine friends by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton in her book, "Our Devoted Friend, the Dog," is the story of Dan, a deerhound owned by Mr. L. C. Menchamp of Limer, La. Mr. Menchamp was one day going on a squirrel hunt and, not wishing Dan to accompany him, tied the dog to a post by a rope. Dan whined and begged, but finding his master obdurate he at last lay down quietly before his kennel.

It was growing dusk and time for the hunter to return, when Mrs. Menchamp was suddenly disturbed by the whining and barking of the dog, who had been quiet all day up to that time. She spoke to the dog, but instead of being pacified at this attention he doubled his exertions and broke the rope which held him. Then he bounded away, over the fence and into the woods.

He was gone perhaps half an hour when he came running back, panting and almost breathless, with his master's hat in his mouth. Mrs. Menchamp became at once alarmed, and, calling her son, they set off to find the missing man. Dan all the time bounding ahead and leading the way. At length they came upon Mr. Menchamp lying helpless in the woods, where he had fallen into a little ditch and broken his leg.

The accident happened, as nearly as could be reckoned, at the moment when the dog began to show his uneasiness. That he should have had knowledge of the accident seems incredible, but his master firmly believes that he did know it and that it was because he knew it that he was so anxious to get away.

The man highest in authority is not always the most aggressive.

THE RED MEN WON.

The baseball season in Wallaceburg was opened on Wednesday, when the Wallace Island team and local aggregation tried conclusions. The home team showed weakness in several points and lack of work together, matters that will be speedily overcome. Cook, the new twirler for the locals, pitched a splendid game, but at many critical stages received weak support.

The Indians throughout played a fast, clean game, and showed much improvement over their old style. The work of Pinnance and Wright won praise from all. The latter stopped everything that came back of the bat, while the former had twists and speed to spare, and splendid control of the ball.

The score—Wallaceburg 6, Wallace Island 8, with an innings to spare.

Experience Speaks.

If brevity is the soul of wit, I do not want that sort. For now I know there's not a bit of fun in being short.

Filial Interest.

"Is old Gummidge wealthy?" "He must be. His children are dreadfully afraid he will marry again."

The Banquet.

A curious thing is digestion. 'Tis fraught with power complete. Whenever there's anything big to be done We all get together and eat.

Naturally.

Nearpass—the curfew laws were very unpopular—Bennet—Of course; made so by the elocutionists.

Another Version.

To believers in old axioms, Let it now be understood, It isn't that the good die young, But that the young die good.

He retired from active business about ten years ago, and since the death of his wife, ten years ago, he has resided in this city. The deceased gentleman was well versed in the border history and knew the country and all the noted people from Windsor to Amherstburg. Two children, Mrs. S. S. Kolfage, of this city, and Gordon S. Borrowman, of Amherstburg, survive. One brother, William Borrowman, lives in Amherstburg.

TROUT SEIZED

A large shipment of "pickeral" was made last week from Quebec to Chicago, but when the "pickeral" arrived at Windsor, it was found by the customs authorities that they had turned into brook trout. They were immediately seized, and as they would likely spoil, they were sold at the rate of 12 1/2c per lb.

"Windsor people thus had a relish," said Jno. Pigott this afternoon, "and it certainly was a relish, as I had some myself. It's not lawful, you know, to ship brook trout out of the country, but they would have sold for 50c a lb. in Chicago."

INJUNCTION THREATENED

Ex-President Wilson Assures
Manager Ross That Legal Steps will be Taken.

Old Board do not Purpose Giving up Control—New Board
Formally Organized.

At the meeting of the new board of directors of the Chatham Binder Twine Co., on Saturday evening organization duties were proceeded with, the following officers being unanimously elected:—

President—Arthur Leverton.

Vice-President—David A. Hutchison.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. J. Ross.

Considerable routine business was also transacted.

During the proceedings Messrs. Wilson, McKay, and Howard, of the alleged deposed board and their secretary, T. C. Smith, put in appearance.

Mr. Smith demanded that the new directors retire from the office, but was smilingly informed that he was "out of order."

Mr. Wilson directed his conversation to Mr. Ross and the latter referred him to Mr. Leverton, the president of the company.

Mr. Wilson asked that the Board retire and that the old and new directors get together and look into any doubts as to the legality of the recent election.

Mr. Leverton replied that although elected by a vote of the shareholders on Feb. 13, when shown that the election was voided through a legal technicality, he immediately and voluntarily gave up office. This time he was perfectly satisfied in his own mind that the new board had been legally elected and he proposed to remain in office subject to the will of the shareholders.

Alister McKay replied that the only way for the company to succeed was to come to an arrangement, and suggested that in the meantime Mr. Wilson and his colleagues be left in control. He believed the ex-directors should be allowed to return to office and call a meeting of the shareholders.

Mr. Leverton said in the interests of the company he could not consider the suggestion. He believed the new election was legal and accordingly they purposed retaining control.

Mr. Wilson then said he must threaten an injunction, which would be applied for immediately, and suggested that the ex-directors took that view and desired to cause further trouble but he would have to inform the present Board of his intentions.

This morning Messrs. Wilson and Smith visited the company's office. Mr. Smith stated that it was his office and demanded that Mr. Ross, the present Secretary, vacate.

Mr. Ross replied that he was now secretary that his duty to the shareholders demanded his retention of the duties of the office.

Mr. Wilson then spoke up, demanding the present secretary to retire.

Mr. Ross—Upon what authority do you order me to retire, please?

Mr. Wilson—I am president of this company.

Mr. Ross—I regret that I cannot recognize you as such.

Mr. Wilson—Then do you mean to say you order us out?

Mr. Ross—Oh, no. Any shareholder is welcome to the offices.

After the brief interchange, Messrs. Wilson and Smith departed.

Mr. Ross was asked for a statement from the standpoint of the new directors this morning. He replied briefly, "Only that we believe that we have been legally elected, that it is the will of the shareholders that we should serve them, and that we purpose to do so to the best of our ability."

Mr. Wilson, when interviewed, said, "I have nothing to say now, but the end of this is not reached. I am the only president of the company, and my colleagues are the only directors. We have advice as to our rights, and we will be heard from at the proper time. In the meantime I have nothing to say."

Mr. Ross was asked for a statement from the standpoint of the new directors this morning. He replied briefly, "Only that we believe that we have been legally elected, that it is the will of the shareholders that we should serve them, and that we purpose to do so to the best of our ability."

Mr. Wilson, when interviewed, said, "I have nothing to say now, but the end of this is not reached. I am the only president of the company, and my colleagues are the only directors. We have advice as to our rights, and we will be heard from at the proper time. In the meantime I have nothing to say."

The Natural Remedy.

There is an old negro in Washington who believes that the art of healing is a "gift" not to be acquired. A friend who knew his point of view recently attempted to draw him out.

"You say you're a natural doctor, Uncle Enos. Now, what would you recommend in a case of ague?"

Uncle Enos leaned on his broom in silence for a moment lost in thought, but when he spoke it was with the calm assurance of an oracle.

"De best medicine for de ague would be an efflorescent powder to puff out de skin an' lift it off de bones. When de skin is drawn tight over de bones an' de ague begins to shrink it, de bones jes' natchally painful an' acheful, sah. But de efflorescent powder it fix an' fix inside an' puff out de skin an' obliterate de difficulty in a shet time, sah."

Women and Senility.

Men are less subject to senility than women, according to an old sea captain, but when attacked by it make more fuss. They talk immediately to their berth, where they grumble and groan until they are well enough to go on deck again.

A woman fights the unpleasant malady until she can fight no longer. Then she becomes maudlin and pathetic. She retires to her room and invariably

MODERN DRUG DEALING

The elements that enter into perfect drug service are, we believe, these: Competency, quality, courteousness and a fair price. We endeavor to give all these the fullest expression.

While in some things there is legitimate need of varying quantities, in medicinal drugs there is not. We handle one grade only—the highest—yet our prices are apt to be less than inferior qualities are commonly sold for.

CLEARLY DEFINED

Progressive Principles Advocated
by Mr. Fraser—A Successful
Meeting at Fletcher.

Fletcher, May 12.—A Conservative mass meeting was held in the hall here on Saturday evening. The audience was large and enthusiastic. The issues of the campaign were ably discussed by A. B. Carswell, B. A. J. C. Stewart and John S. Fraser, the Liberal-Conservative candidate.

Mr. Carswell dwelt at length with Mr. Ross' method of developing New Ontario. He pointed to the delay on the part of the Government in beginning the development of the country and showed the great injustice done the people of the Province in the giving of large pulp wood concessions to political friends and foreign capitalists—concessions out of which the capitalists made fortunes, while the Province derived only a paltry pittance of forty cents per cord on pulp wood cut.

Mr. Stewart discussed the educational question. He showed the fallacy of making the Public school a stepping stone to the High school. He argued that as the education of nineteen out of twenty pupils began and ended in the Public school, the curriculum of studies should be so changed that pupils might devote their time exclusively to out of school work which would be of greatest practical value to them in after life. Mr. Stewart also alluded to the exorbitant price of school books and showed that a school book monopoly was in existence in which the monopolists, in certain political friends of the Government, had grown fat and wealthy by their ill-gotten gains.

Mr. Fraser made the closing speech. He discussed at length the West Elgin case and explained the perjuries and forgeries and frauds perpetrated by officers in the employ of the Government, not one of whom was punished, while some had been deliberately rewarded for their crimes.

Mr. Fraser made clear his position with regard to the railway and telephone companies. He pointed out that these companies had escaped in the past, and were escaping now their just share of taxation. He further pledged himself, if elected, to introduce legislation compelling these companies to pay their just proportion of municipal taxes and thus lighten the burden of taxation which the farmer has to bear.

When Kipling Was Raising a Baby Lion.

"He kept himself to himself more and more as he grew older, and one day—I shall never forget it—he began to see out of his eyes. Up till then they had been dull and stupid—just like a young baby's eyes. But that day—I saw them first under my couch—they were grown-up lion's eyes—soft and blazing at the same time, without a wink in them, eyes that seemed to look right through you, and out over all Africa. Though he had been born in captivity, like Alice, his mummy, and Indiana, his father, and though the only home he had ever known was on the slopes of the big mountain where Africa ended, we never once saw him look up the hill when he lay down to do his solemn serious thinking. He always faced squarely to the north, to the great open plains and the ragged, jagged mountains beyond them—looking up and into the big, sunny, dry Africa that had once belonged to his people."—Rudyard Kipling's description of his baby lion, in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

The Harp of Ireland.

The harp has only figured on the arms of Ireland since the reign of King Henry VIII. The harp was presented by the Pope with the harp of Brian Boru, and in recognition of the gift, and also by way of complimenting his Irish subjects, Henry determined to place the harp forth on the arms of Ireland, and upon all Irish coins, a representation of the relic of Erin's most celebrated native king. Previous to that the three crowns had constituted the official armorial bearings of Ireland, and they alone figured on the Irish coinage from the time of King John until the reign of King Henry VIII.

A.G. HALES' ESTIMATE

AUSTRALIAN CORRESPONDENT DESCRIBES GEN. LOUIS BOTHA.

The Personality of the Present Boer Commandant-in-Chief—An Adventurous Spirit, With a Cool, Level Head and Stout Heart—Fitted Against Buller, He Came Into Fame With the Battle of Colenso.

Louis Botha, who has cut so deep a mark in the pages of history, is only a young man yet, being about seven and thirty years of age, writes A. G. Hales, the celebrated Australian correspondent of The London Daily Mail. He is a "fine figure of a man," standing in the neighborhood of six feet in his boots. His face is handsome, intellectual and determined, his expression kindly and compassionate. The razor never touches his face, but his brown beard is always neatly trimmed, for the young commandant-general is particular in regard to his personal appearance, in a many way, though in no respect foppish. He is now and always has been an excellent athlete, a good rifle shot and a first-class horseman, not given at any time to indoor pastimes overmuch, though fond of a quiet game of whist. He was born in Natal, of Dutch parents, and married Miss Emmet, a relative of Robert Emmet, the Irish revolutionist. Young Botha was educated at Greytown, and, though a good, sound commercial scholar, he gave no evidence in his schoolboy days of what was in him. No one who knew him before he was forty years of age would have been the least bit surprised to find him the foremost soldier of his country. His folks were moderately well-off, but the adventurous spirit of the future general sent him inland from Natal when a large number of Free State Natal Boers enlisted under the flag of General Louis Meyer, who was bent upon making war upon a powerful negro tribe in the neighborhood of Vryheid. During the fighting young Botha was his general's right-hand man, displaying at that early age, a cool, level head and a stout heart. When the Boers were firmly settled upon the land, Vryheid was declared a republic, and Louis Meyer was elected first president. But the new republic lasted only about three years, and was then, by mutual consent, merged into Transvaal territory, and both Louis Meyer and Louis Botha were elected members of the Volksraad. Louis Botha retained his seat right up to the time hostilities broke out between Great Britain and the republics under Mr. Kruger and Mr. Steyn.

During the many stormy scenes which preceded the actual declaration of war Louis Botha proved that he possessed the coolest and most level head in the Volksraad. He opposed the war, and, with prophetic eye, foresaw the awful devastation of the country which would follow in the footsteps of the British army. When the time came and his country was irretrievably pledged to war, he was not the man to hang back. He was one of those who had much to lose and little to gain, for by taking up arms against us, for by honest industry he had become a wealthy farmer and stock breeder. At the first call to arms he threw aside his senatorial duties and took up his rifle, rejoining his old command at Vryheid, as commandant under General Lucas Meyer. It is said that at the battle of Dundee General Meyer, feeling convinced that the god of battles had decided against him and his forces, decided to surrender to the British, but Louis Botha fiercely combated his general's decision and point blank refused to throw down his arms or counsel his men to do so. What followed all the world knows and Botha went up very high in the estimation of the better class of fighting burghers. At the Tugela, before the first big battle took place, General Meyer was taken ill and had to retire to Pretoria, and Louis Botha was then elected assistant general, and the planning of the battle was left entirely to him.

It was a terribly responsible position to place so young a man in, for he was face to face with the then Commander-in-Chief of the British army, Sir Redvers Buller, a general of dauntless determination and undoubted ability. Experience, men, guns and all the munitions of war were in favor of the British general, and the planning of the battle was left entirely to him. It was a terribly responsible position to place so young a man in, for he was face to face with the then Commander-in-Chief of the British army, Sir Redvers Buller, a general of dauntless determination and undoubted ability. Experience, men, guns and all the munitions of war were in favor of the British general, and the planning of the battle was left entirely to him.

I have looked at the country. Sir Redvers Buller had to pass through a narrow defile, and the man who dared to make the attempt that Buller made must have had nerves of steel and a soul that would not blench if ordered to storm the very gates of Hades. The battle of Buller, and from that hour the eyes of the burghers were turned toward him as the one man to lead them. At Spion Kop, when the Boer leader, Schalkbeger, vacated the splendid position he had been ordered to take up, Louis Botha's are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most limited blood medicine there is.

Dodd's Kidney Pills

genius grasped the mighty import of the situation, and he at once realized that Schalkbeger had blundered terribly, and it was he who retook these positions with such disastrous consequences to our forces. His fame spread far and near, and his name became a thing to conjure with. When the Commandant-General of the Boer army, General Joubert, lay dying, he was asked who was the best man to fill his place. And he, the grey veteran, did not hesitate for a second, but with his dying breath gasped out the name of Louis Botha. The Boer Government has been the paramount military power in the Transvaal since that day to this. He is not the only one of his line fighting under the Transvaal flag. There have been four brothers in the field. As a soldier, Louis Botha has proved himself a foeman worthy the steel of any of our generals; as a man his worst enemy can say nothing derogatory concerning him, for in all his actions he has borne himself like a gentleman. He is generous and courteous in the hour of victory, stout-hearted and self-reliant in the time of disaster—just the type of soldier that a great nation like ours knows how to esteem, even though he is an enemy in arms against us.

A Green Turtle's Farm.

In these go-ahead days we are getting accustomed to municipal enterprise in almost every shape and form, but it is not generally known that among the various enterprises worked by the British Government is that of turtle farming, carried on at Ascension Island. The island is specially suited for the purpose, as, despite its close proximity to the equator, the temperature is low and the atmosphere healthy on account of the prevailing southeasterly trade winds. Just as you see the beginning of the turtle season, which does not, as a rule, last more than three months. All turtles caught at Ascension Island are the property of the Crown, and are only sent to England and other places for disposal as directed by the Admiralty, in whose hands the government of the whole island practically rests. The particular species which favors Ascension with its visits is the "Chelonia viridis," or green turtle. This, as may be supposed, is the turtle from whose green fat and portion of the shell, which is proverbially associated with the banquets of London's rivic dignitaries. It is wholly for its value as an edible commodity that the turtle farms are carried on, as the shell, unlike that of the tortoise, is of no commercial value.

To test the statement made about the turtles' habit of returning to the island year after year, once again, an expedition near Honolulu, with the date and location cut on the back. Three years and two months afterward this turtle was turned up at Ascension, having traveled over 15,000 miles. More recently still another was thrown overboard in the English Channel, and was caught again at Ascension within six months—Royal Magazine.

While grief is fresh, every attempt to divert one's mind from the loss of a loved one will dissipate the remains of it.

It is harder to remember a virtue than a fault.

THE TOMATO IN ENGLAND.

It Had Been an Ornament in the Kitchen Gardens for Over a Century.

Horace Townsend writes from London, May 8, to the Philadelphia Ledger:

Not so very many years ago it was almost as difficult to find a tomato in an English green grocer's shop as to discover the proverbial needle in the traditional hay stack. The tomato was not altogether unknown in England, for it had been an ornament of old-fashioned kitchen gardens in the southern counties for over a century, but as a serious article of diet it was not at all considered. It is probably due to the missionary efforts of the American people that the tomato today holds a prominent place in the cuisine of all but the most conservative English households. There are, of course, Englishmen who will argue with you that because, when they were children, they some times ate a tomato on some rare and exceptional occasion, American can lay no claim to having educated her elderly inhabitants in so trifling a matter as the consumption of tomatoes, or love apples, as the English name used to be for them. The fact remains, however, that the English have bravely got over their former antipathy to the vegetable—so much so, indeed, that one large fruit grower has started what is probably the largest establishment in the world for growing tomatoes under glass. The English climate does not allow of the ripening of the plant in the open air until late in the summer, but the English appetite demands a supply of it in the early months of spring. Hitherto the Continental tomato has been the only one in the market, but the English market gardener in question has determined not only to break the record in the size of his green-houses, but to drive the foreigner out of the English tomato market. He has expended something like $100,000 in starting his experiments. He has built ten enormous green-houses each nearly a thousand feet long and forty feet high, and when I went down to see them the other day I found that seven were already filled with tomato plants. So enormous are these houses that the work of preparing the soil is done by a three-horse plow, as though it were an open field. Already nearly fifty thousand tomato plants are all a-growing and a-blowing, and next year, I was told, ten more green-houses of the same size will be added, all to be devoted to tomatoes alone. It may be of interest to add that the only varieties planted are the "Challenger" and the "Chemin Rouge," which the grower in question considers the best and the best quality. Within a month he expects to be sending tons of tomatoes to the London market every week.

Another Cure for Balking Horses.

As told in a New York letter, a driver of a truck was in great distress in front of the Judge building, in New York, one day recently, because his horse balked crosswise of the street and caused not only a loss of his time, but also blocked traffic. All the usual devices to get the stubborn animal to move were unavailing, and a crowd had gathered of considerable size to watch the proceedings. W. J. Arkell, proprietor of Judge, was attracted to the scene, and as the Tribune relates it, he said to his brother Barlett, who sat in his office: "I will bet $100 to 10 cents that I can go out and start that horse in two minutes." Barlett immediately took the bet and the money was placed in the hands of the private secretary.

W. J. Merrill and two Arkells started up two handfuls of sand and asked the driver to hold the horse's head still. Then he packed each of the horse's nostrils full of the sand, and almost instantly the horse began to snore and start with a rush, to the great delight of the driver, amid the shouts of the by-standers. Mr. Arkell, the winner, says he doesn't read the London Lancet for nothing.

The Gypsy Moth.

Endeavors to exterminate this pest have, since 1890, cost the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture $700,000.

Professor C. H. Fernald, of the board in an interview, is reported to have said that the territory covered by the gypsy moth is about two hundred square miles. They are in about two counties in western Massachusetts and this territory has been attacked from the outside till about half the area has been cleared. The cost of extermination as estimated by Professor Fernald, would be $200,000 each year, for five years; $1,000,000 yearly for another five years, and about $15,000 yearly for the third five years. The moth eats everything that grows, except tobacco leaves. Professor Howard is to investigate the matter farther this summer for the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, and if his report is satisfactory the burden of the work may be taken up by the national government. If pursued carefully, Professor Fernald says, the war against the moth may be completed within the first decade of the twentieth century, so that nothing but future importation need be feared.

Against Foul Seeds.

Secretary Hastings, of the Florida State Horticultural Society, has forwarded us a copy of a resolution passed by that society condemning the free distribution of seeds by the government, as now conducted, and recommending that Congressmen use their efforts to have the appropriation now taken up by the national government, for the scientific work of the Department of Agriculture in investigating diseases and insect enemies of plants grown for commercial purposes throughout the United States.

Salt, Sulphur and Lime Wash.

To make this wash, which is extensively used in California as an insecticide, take ten pounds of lime, twenty pounds of sulphur and twenty gallons of water; boil until the sulphur is dissolved. Then take the remaining fifteen pounds of lime and salt, slake and add enough water to make the whole sixty gallons; strain and spray with it while milk warm. This wash has no injurious effect on the buds or on the trees.

WILD SCENES AND DENOUEMENT

But the meeting refused to allow Matthew Wilson to speak.

Mr. Rankin—I am not here to be an instrument in your hands to block this meeting. I have given my decision. I will say no more.

Mr. Wilson—Will you hear one side, and not the other?

The President again attempted to put the resolution to have Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. McKay resign. After considerable difficulty it was put and lost, no one apparently supporting it.

Mr. Ross—I now move that Mr. Wilson, Mr. Bullis, Mr. Howard, and Mr. McKay be asked to resign.

The President—Gentlemen, the business part of this meeting is now over.

Mr. Ross—I move that Mr. Wilson be asked to vacate the chair and that his position be taken by the Vice-President, Mr. Hutchinson.—Cheers.

President—That is out of order.—Laughter. I declare the meeting adjourned.

As soon as he uttered these words the meeting was thrown into an uproar of excitement.

In the confusion Mr. Smith picked up the books and seal and he and Mr. Wilson, attempted to leave through the side door. The stockholders, however, saw this and a number cried out:

"Keep those men in! Stop Smith! Get those books!" so that when they reached the door they found the way blocked by three stalwart stockholders. They tried to push their way through, but the resistance was more than they could stand and they were escorted back to the platform. They saw it was useless to offer further resistance.

"Do you refuse to further occupy your position," said Mr. Hutchinson to Mr. Smith.

"The meeting is adjourned," was the reply.

"Do you persist in refusing to act?" "I don't know," was the unsteady answer. Mr. Smith was evidently between two fires and did not know what to do.

Mr. Hutchinson—We are here to do business and will not be humbugged. Mr. Rankin—These proxies, by-law, and books belong to the Company, and the company is here.—Cheers.

Mr. Smith again ventured to speak and said "I don't wish to do anything that is wrong."

But he was interrupted by President Wilson, who approached him and said, "Don't you touch those books." This evidently decided Mr. Smith as to what course he would pursue and he and Mr. Wilson left the room.

Moved by Rankin and Stokes, that R. L. Brackin be made secretary of this meeting. Carried.

The by-law which was introduced previously by Mr. Rankin was then passed. This repeated all of the by-laws passed by the directors since the last general meeting with the exception of some clauses.

At this point Mr. Smith and Mr. Wilson, who had been outside, re-entered the room and before any one was quite aware of their presence Mr. Smith grabbed the books and seal and made a dash for the door again. The meeting was again thrown into confusion and the air was filled with cries of "Stop that man! Get those books! Hit him! Hit him!"

The move was a well devised one on the part of Mr. Smith, but he was not allowed to baffle the stockholders, who were now apparently determined to see that new directors were appointed.

Mr. Smith had not proceeded a half dozen paces when he was seized before he was seized by a stockholder. The books and seal were wrested from his hands.

While this ordeal was going on Mr. Smith cried out:

"Look—look out now! Look out! You've stolen my books!"

While the confusion was going on Mr. M. J. Wilson was standing in the back ground. He was seen by Mr. Stokes, who confronted him and said, "Do you want to steal our money?"

Mr. Wilson—No. Now, you are a sensible man, I would like to speak to you.

"I will have nothing to say to you," replied Mr. Stokes as he walked away, leaving Mr. Wilson surrounded by a crowd of angry stockholders.

While this confusion was going on there was one of the men in the audience who seemed to be enjoying it immensely. He had been sitting in the rear of the hall but when Mr. Smith made his final entry for the books and seal he pushed his way forward and joined in the excitement around the desk. At last the scene, which became so exciting, he could hardly contain himself. Turning to his neighbor he cried out in a loud voice, "Say, this beats a political meeting all hollow for excitement, don't it?" and joined enthusiastically in the yells of the audience.

After the two men, Mr. Smith and Mr. Wilson left the room the excitement calmed down noticeably and the business was concluded in harmony.

Several by-laws were amended and the following new directors were appointed—Messrs. Ross, Leverton, Cousineau, Collier and Hutchinson.

Mr. Ross expressed himself as not seeking the position, and thought that as he had seemed to be the cause of some of the differences, it might promote harmony and be to the company's interests to retire, which he was more than willing to do. He suggested the name of "Mr. Golden."

He got so further, however, being interrupted by cries of "Stay where you are, Ross." "You're all right," "We want you there."

Mr. Leverton also felt concerning himself much the same as Mr. Ross, but he was also assured of support by the stockholders.

The vote was made unanimous for these men and a ballot to that effect and did so amid applause.

Mr. Hutchinson then addressed the meeting and thanked them for their support.

"I have been asked repeatedly by the old directors to resign," said he,

"but I will resign to no one but the stockholders. I hope I may never betray the trust you have put in me. You do not know how your business has been conducted by your old board of directors. Only last Saturday night at one of their meetings I was forced to see and listen to some wild Yankee yarn when they should have been doing business. I am glad you have had your eyes opened." He concluded amid cries of "Hurrah for old Hutch!"

Mr. Ross was also appointed manager of the company under the supervision of the directors at a salary of $1,500 per year. He will also act as secretary-treasurer of the company. His duties commence at once and by-laws were passed to that effect.

Mr. Piggott—Now that the business of the meeting is concluded I would like to move a resolution expressing our confidence in the newly elected board of directors and managers.

The motion was passed unanimously amid the cheers and applause of the audience.

A number of the shareholders of the company then expressed their willingness to subscribe for more stock and handed in their names. After a standing vote of thanks had been passed to Mr. J. B. Rankin amid applause, the meeting adjourned with cheers for the new directors.

After the meeting was concluded the directors, accompanied by Policeman James Dodson, went to the factory to take possession. A large number of the stockholders accompanied them.

When they arrived at the factory they found Secretary-Treasurer Smith and Mr. Bullis waiting in front of the factory with a number of their supporters. J. J. Ross, after trying to open the door and finding it locked, approached Mr. Smith and asked, "Will you let me have the key, Mr. Smith?"

"I haven't got it," was the reply. "Do you know where it is?"

"No."

The door, however, was unlocked without much difficulty and the new directors formally took charge of the institution.

Former Engineer Clements was appointed as watchman and the directors proceeded forthwith with their duties of organization, electing officers, etc.

The Boer leaders would proceed to Pretoria and announce to Lord Kitchener their opinion in regard to the peace terms they were prepared to accept.

THE COURSE OF NEGOTIATIONS.

London, Monday, May 12.—The Times this morning relates the course of the South Africa peace negotiations as follows—On the receipt of the Dutch correspondence, intimating that Great Britain was ready to listen to proposals of Boers in the field. Acting President of the Transvaal Schalkberg and Mr. Steyn proposed to Lord Kitchener and Lord Milner that the republic should merely concede all the demands made by Great Britain regarding the franchise, etc., before the war. The British government, in reply, referred them to the Middleburg conference as the maximum of possible concessions, and refused permission to the Boers to consult their friends in Europe. They were told it was useless to return to Pretoria without being armed with full power to negotiate. Mail advices received from Pretoria, continue the Times, declare that Lord Kitchener and Lord Milner promised generous compensation for burned farms, raised no difficulty with regard to the pardon of banished leaders, and gave assurance that the question of amnesty for rebels did not present insuperable difficulties.
