PUNIC:- The udjectire Punleus, derived from the name of the thapnicians, was used by the Iomans iu a sense which comnonly slguified "Carthaginian." - the Carthaglntans being of Phonician crlgin. Ilence "Punic Wars," "Punle foinh," etc., the phrase " I'unie falth" being an imputation of faithlessness and treachery.

PUNIC WARS, The First. - When Pyrrlus quitted ltaly he is said to have exelaimed. " Ilow fair a bottle field are we leaving to the IRomans and Carthaginians." IIe may easily have hat sagucity to foresce the deadly struggle which liome and Carthage woull soon be engaged in, and be mlght as rasily have predicted, too, that the beginning of it would be in sicily. Roine hat just settled ber supremaey In the whole Italian peninsula; she was sure to covet next the rleh lishand that lies so near to it. In fact, there was brel qulekly $\ln$ the Roman mind such ou eagerness to cross the narrow stralt that it wated only for the slenderest exeuse. A poor pretext was found in the ycar 264 B . C. and it was so despicably poor that the proud lioman senators turned over to the populiar assembly of the Comitin the responsibllity of accepting lt. There came to lRome from Dlessene. in Sicily - or Messana. as the lhomans called the city - an appeal. It did not come from the citizens of Messene, but from a band of frecbooters who had got possession of the town. These were mercenaries from Campanla (lately made Roman territory by the Samnite conquest) who lad been in the pay of Agathocles of Syracuse. Disbanded on that tyruat's death, they had treacherously selzed Hesseise, slain most of the male iohabluants, taken to themselves the women, and settled down to a career of plracy and robbery assumiug the name of Mamertint, - chlllilren of Maners, or Mars. Of course, all Sicily, both Greek sud Carthaginian, was roused against them by the outrages they committed. Being hard pressed. the Jlamertlines Invoked, as Italians, the protection of Rome; although one party among them appears to have prefcrred an arrangement of terms with the Cartbaginlans. The Roman Sevate, belig aaciamed to extend a friendly hand to the Mamertine cutthroats, hut not having virtue enought declline an opportunlty for fresh conquests, referred the question to the people at large. The populnr rote sent no army lato Slicily, and Messene, then beslrged by Hiero of Byracuse ta one side and by a Carthaginlan nrmy on the other, was relleved of both. The Homans thereon procceded. In two aggressive campalgns, ngalost Syracusuns and Carthaglnlane allke, untll lilero bonght prace wlth thein, at a heury cost, and became thelr limif-subject ally for the remnlader of hils life. The war with the Cartbaglnhans was hat just commenced. Its first stunning hlow was struck at Agrigentum, the splendld clty of I'halarla, whleh the Cartha. glalans hand destroyed, B. C. 405 , which Tlmoleon had rebuilt, and which one of the llannlhanls ("son of Glsco") now selzell upon for his strong. bold. In a great hattle fought under the walls of Agrigentinm (B. C. 262) 1hanulhal lost the clty abd all but a smnll remmant of hls army. But the successes of the Romans on Innd were worth little to them whlle the Carthaglnians conmanded the sen. Hence they resolved to creatc a fleet, nnd are suld to have bullt a handred slips of the quinquereme order and twenty trirenues whthiu slsty days. while rowers for them were tralned by an linltatlve exercise on lnad. The flrst syuadron of thls haprorlsed navy was trapped at Llpara and lost; the remalnder was successful In lts tirst encomiter whith the enemy. But where naval warfare depended on gooll sent masshlp the lRomans were no untch for the Cartisglinims. They contrived therefore a machloe for their shlps, called the Corvus, or raven, by Wblch, running stralght on the opposlang vessel, they were albe to grasp it by the thront, so to spenk. and furce fighting at close quarters. That aceomplished. thry were tolerably sure of vletory. With their corvus they half annilhinted the Carthaginlan fleet lin a great sen-ight at Myle, B. C. 200 , and got so inneh mastery of the sea that they were able to attack thelr Punlc feres even in the lisland of Sardtala, but without much resuit. In 2si 13. C. another nival battle of doubtful lssue was fought at Tynlaris, and the following year, lu the great battle of Ecuomis, the naval power of the Carthaginlins, for the time belng, was iltterly crished. Then followed the Invasion of Curthagiuian territory by legulus, his complete successes at first, his insolent proposal of hard terms, and the tremendus de. feat which overwhedmed him at Adis a little later, when he, himself, was taken prisoner. The miserable remnnat of the liomno army which held its gronmel at Clypea on the Africin const Was rescued the next yeur (B. C. 255) by a uew fleet, but only to the diestroyed on the voyage homeward, with 260 ships, In a great atorm on tbe south coast of Sicily. Then Carthmginians reappeared la Slcily nod the war In that unlappy lshad was resumed. In 254 B. C. the Rompins took the strong fortificd city of l'anormus. In 253, having hult nut equipped nuother fleet, they werc rubbed of It aguiu by a storm at sea, and the Carthaginians galned ground and strength in Sicily. In 251 the Roman consul, Cæcllius Metellus, drove them back from the walls of Pumermus and intictel on them so dlscouraglog a dcfeat, tbat they sent Regulus, thelr prisoner, on parole, with an embassy, to solicit peace at Rome. How Regulus advieed his countrymen againat peace, and how he retumed $t 0$ Carthage to neet a cruel death - the tradltlonal story ls fanillar to all readers, but monkern criticlsm throwa dorbt upon 1 lt . In 250 B . ©. the Romnns undertook the siege of Lllyhrum, wheleh, with the nelghtoring port of 1)repana, were the ooly strongholds left to the Cirtharin. lans. The slege then commenced was onte of the niost protracted lo blatory, fur when the First Punle War ended, nloe ycars later, lilythram was stll! reslating, and the lomaus only argnilred It wltb all the rest of Slecl, ; under the ternas of the treaty of pence. Meantime the Carthaginlans won a bleody naval vletory at Drepana (13. C. :40) over the Romnn fleet, and tbe latter, in the same ycar, had a thind tleet deatroyed on the const by relentless stormis. In the Year 247 B. C. the Carthuginlan command la Siclly was given to the great llamilcar, surnmmed Barca, whow was the father of a yet greater man, the Ilannibal who afterwards brought Rome very near to de. structlon. ILanillear Barca, laring only a few mutlnous mercenary soldiers at his command, nod almost unsupported by the anthorities at (:arthage, establlshicd hlmself, first, on the meky helght of Mount Ercte, or Hercte, . ar Panor. mins, and afterwards on Monnt Ery x, and harassed the Romans for sla years. The end cume at Inst as the conscquence of a derdsire nnval vletory ncar the Egatlau Isles, which the Rominas achleved, witb a newly bullt tiert, la Mareh B. C. 241. The Carthagiolans, diveour. aged, propused peacc, and purclased it by - vacuatiog Siclly and paylug a lieary war in dennity. Thus lRome acyulred Slcily, hut the wealth and clvllizatlon of the great ishat hat theel rulned beyond recovery.-18. B. Smith, Cirthage and the Cirthagininns, ch. 4 - $\%$.

PUNIC WARS.

Almo in: W. line, hist. of lome, bk. 4, ch. 3 -Polybins, Mistorica, bk. 1.-A. J. Church. The Story of Carthage, pt. 4, ch. 1-8. -Ner, ulso, Rome: B. C. 204-241.
The Second.-Between the First $\mathrm{l}^{1}$ unic $\mathrm{W}_{\mathrm{ar}}$ and the Second there was an lnterval of twentythree ycars. Carthnge, mesntlue, had bern hronght very near to destrnction hy the Revols of the Mercenarics (see Cartimoz: B. C. 241238) and had been saved by the capable mergy of lisamilear Burca. Then the seltish fuction Whlch hated Hamllear bsel regalned power in the linulc capital, and the Barelne patriot coulid to no more than oltain command of an army which he led, on bis own responslbllity, lnto Spain. B. C. 237. The Carthaglninns bad inherited from the Pbmericlans a conslderahle commerce with Spain. bit do not seem whave organizell a contml of the conntry until IIamilicar took the task In hand. Partly by paclicic influcaces and partly by forcc, be estublistied a rule, rather personal than Carthaglnian, whlch extended over nearly all southern Spaln. Whth the wealth that he drew from Its gold and sllver nines he muintaloed hls army and bollght or bribed at Carthage the lodependence he nealed for the carrylog out of hls plans. He had aimei frona the first, no doubt, at organizlog resources wilh whlch to make war on Rome. Hamilcar was kllled in battle, B. C. 228, and hls son-ln.law, Hasdrubul, who succeded him, lired oaly serca years more. Then Hannlbal, the son of Ilamilcar, in hls twenty-slitb year, was cbosen to the command in Spain. He waited two years, for the metting of his antionity and for making all preparitions complete, and then fee threw down prelislleuge to tise lomans for the w or which he hal sworn to his father that he would make the one purpose of his life. The provocation of war was the taking of the city of Saguntum, a Greck colony on the Spaaish coast, which the homans hud formed an alllance with. It was taken by llannthal after a slege of eight nontha and after most of the inhabitants had destroyed thensplves, with their wealth. When Rume declarel war it was with the expectation, no donbt, that Spain und Africa wonld be the hattio grounds. But llanulbai did not wait for her attuck. Ile ied his Spunisi army straight to italy. In the early sumner of 13 . 0.218 , skirting the i'y renees and crossing the dips. The story of his passuge of the Aips is familiar to every realer. The diffeutti. he enconntered were so terribit and the losst sustained so great that Ifanmbal descended in s Italy with oniy $\mathbf{2 0 , 0 0 0}$ fout snd 6,000 horse, out of 50.000 of the one and 9.100 of the other whteh he had led through Gaui. ile recelvedi some ${ }^{\text {r }}$ inforcensent and co-operatiou from the Cisaipine Ganls, but thelr strengtio had ineol hroken by recent wars with kome and they were not eflicient allics. In the first enconinter of the lomans with the direai invader, on the Tieinus, they were besten, but not serionsly. In the next, on the Trehia, where Selpio, the consul, made a determined stani, they sustainof an overwhelming defeat. This euted the campalgn of B. C. 218. Ilamibal wiutered in Ciwilpine Guml and pussed the Apronnlues the followint spring into Etrurin. steuling a mareh on the lzoman ariny, under the popnlar eomsmi Flaminitus, which was watching to intercept him. The latter pursued now was emmght in anbush at Lake Trasimene, where Flaminius sul ti, oun of his men were slain, while most of the survivors of the fatai fiehl were taken prisoncrs and inade slaves. Izome then seemed open to the Carthaginian, but he knew, without doubt, that his force was uot strong enough for the lesieglng of the city, ani he made no attempt. What he ulmed at was the Isoiating of Lumat and the arraving of Italy against her, In a gre:st and powerfilly hamiled comblation of the jealousies and animosities wheh he knew to exis. ile led his iroops uorthward agaln, after the victory of lake Trusimene, aeross the mountains to the Adrlatic eoast, and rested them during the summer. When cooler westher came he moved sonthward along the coust into Apulia. The lemans meauthme had chosen a Dictator, Q. Fabius Maxinus, a cautious man, whose plan of campalgn was to whtch and harass and wear out the coemy, without risking a battle. It was a policy" which earned for him the nume of "The Cuactanor," or Lingerer. The Joman peoplc Were discontented with it, and uext yeur (B. C. 216) they elected for one of the eonsuls a certain Farro who had been one of the mouthpieces of their disconteut. In opposttion to hls colleague, Emilius I'uluhes, Farro soon forced a hattle with Hamnihal at Canure, in Apulia, and brought upon bis countrymen the most awfui disaster in war that they ever knew. Nearly $5 H$, (H) izoman eitizens were left dead on the fieid, incluling elghty senators, and half the young mositity of the state. From the spolls of the tield lianuibal was said to have sent three bushels of golden rings to Carthage, stripped from the fingers of Roman knights. Rome reeled under the blow, and yet haughtily refused to ransom the 20,000 prisoners in llannibul's hands, whlle alie met the discomfited Varro with proud thanks, because "be hai not despaired of the Repuhilic." Capua now opened its gates to Hannibal and became the headquarters of his operations. The peopie of Bonthern Itaiy deciared generaliy in his favor; hilt he had reached and passed, nevertheless, the erowning point of his success. He recelved no effective holp from Carthage: nor from his brother in Spain, who was defeated by the cider Sciplos, that same year (B. C. 216) at Ibera, just as he hal prepared to lead a fresh army into ltniy. On the other hand, the energies of the Homans had risen with every disaster. Their Lastln subjects continued falthful to them; but they $i$ set if this time an linportant aily in Sicily, by the death of the aged Hiero of Syraeuse, and th. Cartbaginians sueceeded In raising most of the istand against them. The war In Sicily now became for a time more im. portant than that in Itaiy, and the consui Marceilus, the most vigorous of the Roman generais, was sent to conduet it. Ilis chief object was the taking of Syracuse and the great city sustained another of the many dreadfui sleges which it wins her fate to endure. The siege was proionged for two years, and chiefly by the science and the military inveutions of the famous mathematielan, Arehimites. When the lomaus entered Syraense at iast (B. C. 212) it was to pllage and siay without restralnt, and Arehimides was one of the tbousands eut down by thelr sworis. Meantime, in Ituiy, Tarentum hai loen hetrared to Hannihai, but the Romans stili held the citadel of the towu. Ther had gained so much strength in the fleid that they were now able to day siege to Caphan und Hannibai was poweriess to relkeve it. Ilc attempted a cliversion by marching on izome, hut the threat proved itle and Capua was left to its fate. The eity surrendered soon after (B. C. 211) and the unerciless conyuerors only spared It for a new population. For tbree or four years after this the war in Italy was one of ininor successes and reverses on both sides, but Hannlbal iost steadily in prestige and strength. In Spain, Hannihai's brother, Masdrubai, had opportunely beuten and slain (13. C. 212) both the elder Scipios; hut another nnd greater Scipio, P. Cornelius, son of Publius, had taken the field and was sweeping the Carthaglnlans from the peninsuin. Iet, despite Selpio's eapture of New Carthage and his victories, at Bacuia, and eisewhere, IIasirubai contrived, in some unexplained way. in tbe year 208, B. C., to cross the Pyrences into Gaul and to recrnit reinforcements there for a movement on Italy. The next spring be passed the Alps and hrougit bis army safely lato Cisaipine Gaui; lut bis dispatches to IIanaibul feil into the hands of the fomans and reveaicd his plans. The swift energy of one of the consuis, C. Claudius Nero, brought about a marvelious concentration of Koman forces to meet him, and he and his army perished together in an awful hattic fought on the hanks of the Metaurus, in Cmbria. The iast hopes of Hannlhal perished with them; hut ine heid his ground In the extreme south of Italy and no Roman general dared try to dlslodge him. When Scipio returned next year (B. C. 206) and reported the complete conquest of Spain, he was chosen consul with the understanding that he would carry the war into Africa, though the menate stond haif opposed. Ile did on in the early months of the year 204 B . C. cromaing from Niclly with a comparatively smail armanient and laying siage to Utica. That year lue accomplished nothing, but during tise next winter he struck a terrihle hiow, surjorising and burning the camps of the Carthagiulans and their Nin. midian aifies and siaughtering 40,000 of their number. This anccess was son followed hy aunther, on the Great Piains, which lie 70 or 80 miles to the southwest of Cartiage. The Numildian king, Sypiax, was now driven from his thimne andl the kingdom delivered nver to an outia wed prince, Mnssiulsan, who became, thenceforth, the most usefnl and unscrupuious of ailies to the linmans. Now pusheci to despair, the Carthapinians summoned Ilannibul to their res. cue. He abandoned Italy at the cail and returned to see his own land for the tirst time since as a boy he left it with his father. But even hia genius could not save Carthage wlth the means at his command. The long war was ended in Oetober of the year 203 B. C. by the mattle which is caileri the hattie of Zama, thongh It was fought at some distance westward of that place. The Carthaginiau army was routed utterly, and Hannihal himseif persunded his conntrynien to accept a peace whieh stripped them of their ahips and their trade, their possessions in Spain and ail the laiands, and their power over the Numidian atates, besides wringing from them a war lodeminty of many miliions. On those hard terms, Carthage was suffered to exist a few years longer.-R. B. Smith, Cuthage and the Carthaginiuns.

PUNIC WARS.

PLNIC WARS.

PUNIC WARS.

Also Is: T. Arnold, Hint, of Rome, ch. 43-47. -H. G. Liddeil, Jine of Rume, ch. 31-34.-T. A. Donge. IInnuibal, ch. 11-34.- See, also, Howe: B. C. 218-211, to 211-202.

The Third. See Carthaoe: B. C. 146 ; and Rone: В. C. 151-146.

PUNJAB, OR PUNJAUB, OR PANJAB

 The.-'Everything lasa a meaning in India, and the Panjah is only another name for the Five Rivers which make the historic Indus. They rise far hack among the weatern Himainyas, bring down their waters from giseiers twenty. five miles in length, and penks 20,000 feet high, sud hurl their mighty torrent into one great cur. reot, which is thrown at last into the Aruhian Sea. It is a fertile region, not less so time the Valiey of the Ganges. This Punjab is the open door. the only one hy wisieh the Europenn of eariler days was ahie to descend upon the plains of India for compluest and a new lionse. ... Inthe Panjah every font of the iand is a romance. the Panjuh every font of the iand is a romance. No one snows how many armies have shivered in the winds of the hilis of Afghanistan, and then pounced down tirrough the Kluaihar Pass Into India, and overspread the country, until the people could rise and destroy tive sirnager within the gates. Whenevera Eurupean invader of Asia has renehed weli into the entineut, his dream hns always been India. That country has cver been, and still is, the peari of ali the Orient. Its perfect sky in winter, iss plenterns rains in summer, its immense rivers, its houndiess stores of weaith, aud its enduring industries, which know no change, have made it the dream of every great conqueror." - J, F. Hurst, Indika, eh, 75. -"In

pLiritans.

lorm, the country is a great triangle, Its hase resting on tise Ilimaiayan chain and Cashmere, and its apex difrected due south. west. $\qquad$ Ave streans wishch confer lits name, counting them from nortis to muth, are the Upper luthos, the Jhelum, the Clienah, the Ravee and the Sutiej, the Indus and sutiej constituting respectively the weatern and eastern boundary.
Tive four divisiona enciosell hy the tive conser. gent streams are ealled doaijs - landis of two waters. ikesides the territory thas dulin. eated, the Punjab of the Sikiss included Cush. mere, the Jummon territory to ? itt and Tibet, the trans. Indus frontier and th. Hlazar? high: lands in the west ; suil to the east the Juliumdiur Doab Witil Kangra and Noorpoor. Tiaseme last. with the frontier, are better kuown asthe els. and trans-Sutinj atates. "-E. Arnold, The Murquis of Dathousie's Adminineration of $\begin{gathered}\text { itinh ludia, }\end{gathered}$ ch. 2 (c. 1). - The Sikisa estalilialied their suprem. acy in the Punjah in the $18 t i$ ceut ury, and heenme a formilabie power, under the fanous Runjet Singin, in the carly part of the 19th ceatury (see Sikirs). Tise Eing lisis conquest of the Sikhs and aunexation of the Punjab to liritish Inilia took piace In 1849 . See Irdia: A. D. 1845-1849.

PUNT, Land of.-" Under the name of Punt. the oid Inisahitants of Kemil [unclent Eyspt] meant a distant land, wasised hy tise great oremn. fuli of valieys and hilis, sloundiag in ehony and other rich woods, In incense, hilam, pricious metais, and costiy stones; rich aiso in luedsts, as cnmeleopards, hunting leopurd3, pauthers, dog. headed apes, and lony-talio il monkeys Such was the Ophir of the Egyptians, without douht the present coast of the somauil hand in sight of Arabia, but separated from it by the wa. According in an oid olscure traditiou, the land of Punt was the original seat of the gomis. From Punt the hoiy ones had travelied to the $\mathrm{S}^{\prime}$ :, :ull. iey, at their head Amon, Ilorns, Mhthir. "' li . Brugscl, Hist. of Egypt under the Phuriohs, ch. 8.
PURCHASE IN THE ARMY, Abolitioa of. Dee Engtand: A. 1). 1871.

PURITANS: The movement taking form. See Evoland: A. D. 1559-1506.

First application of the Name. Sce EvoLAND: A. D. 1 . $04-1.56 .5$ (?).
In distinction from the Indeyendents or Separatists.- -'When, in 1603, James i. tecame king of England, be foumd his 1'rotestiant subjects divided into tirree classes, - cinfurainte or High Ritunists; Noneoaformists, or BruadChurch Puritans; and sepmratists, pupularly called Brownists [and subsequenty callomi intependents]. The Couformists and the Paritans both adisered to the Chureh of Englatul, and were strugging for its control.

The P'uri. tans olljeeted to some of the ceremonios of the Church, sueh as the ring in narriage, the sign of the cross In haptism, the promises of gonparents, the showy vestments, bowing in the creed, receiving evil-livers to the comaunion. repetitions, and to kneeling at commution as if still adoring the IIost, instead of assuming sa ordinary attitude as did the apostles at the last Supper. The majofity of the futver clergy amd of the middie classes are said to have fuynred Puritanism. Dr. Neal says thnt the Puritan body took form in 1584, and dissolved in

PURITANE.

104. During that term of eighty yeart the Purtans were ever ' In and of the Churcin of England': as Dr. Prince mys in his Annais (iiso), those who left the Epincopai Cluurch lost the name of Puritans ani receivel that of the Separatiats.'. . The Separatists, unilke the Partans, had no connection with the Nationai Church, and the more rigill of them eyen denied that Church to be seriptural, or its ministrations to be valid.

The Piggrim Fathers, the fonmers of our Piymouth, the pioneer colony of New Engianci, were not Puritans. They never were called by that name, elther by theuseives or their contemporaries. They were Separatlsts, silghtlugiy ealied Brownists, and in time berame Lnown ms Independent or Congregationalists. As Separatists they were oppressed and mailigned by the Puritans. They did not restrict voting or office-holding to thefr church-members. They heartily welcumed to ihelr littie State all men of other sects, or of no sects, who adhered to the essentia's of Chrlstinnity and were ready to conform to tae lowi hws and customs. . . . Thougit theit frith was positlve and strong, they laidi down no furmal creed."-J. A. Goodwin. The Higrim Republic, ch. 2 and 1.-" Tise reader of thls history must have remarked that 'Puritan' and 'separatist' were by no means convertible terins; that, in point of lact, they very often in. dicateri hostile partles, pltted against cach other ia blter controversics. And the luquiry may have arisen - How is this? Were not the sipnrstlsts ail Puritans ? . . The term 'Puri. tan' was originaliy applied to aii in the church of England who desired further reformation - 1 . greater conformity of ehurch goverminent ani wonship to primitive and apostolic nsages. But aftur awhlle the term lecanie restricted in its ap. phiation to those who retained thelr respect for the church of Engiand, nud their connection with It nutwithstanding lts ucknowiedged corrup. tions; In distinction from those who had been bromght to alundon both their resject for that chureh and their connection with it, under the conviction that it was hopelessiy corrupt, and could never be refonned. The Sepnrathsts, then, were Indeed nil Puritans, and of the most thoroagh and uncompromising kind. They wore the sery essence - the oil of Puritanism. But the Puritans were by no means ail Sepmratsts; thongh they agreed with them in doctriaal falth, beiug all thoroughiy Caivinistic in their faith." -G. Punchard, Miat. of Congregationaliam, r. 3, app., note

Also in: G. L. Eilis, The Puritan Age and Bule in the Colony of Masm. Bay, ch. 3.- Sce 1s. merendents on Separatists. - D. Compbell, Tho Puritun in IIolland, Eng., and Am., ch. 16 (r. 2).
A. D. 1604, - Hampton Court Conference with James f. See Enoland: A. D. 164.4
A. D. 1629.-Incorporation of the Governor and Company of Massachusetts Bay. See Bissachesette: A. D. 1623-1629 THE DoRemesten Company.
A. D. $1629-1630$. - The exodus to Massachuseits Bay. See Massachuaetts: A. D. 1623$1699 ; 1690-1630$; and 1630 .
A. D. $1631-1636$, - The Theocracy of Massechusetts Bey. See Mageacheaetra: A. D, 16311636 ; and 1636.
A. D. 1638-1640.-At the beginning of the Engliah Civil War. See Enawnd: A. D. 16381640.

PITHO

PURUARAN, Battie of (1814). See MEx. ICO: A. 1). 1*10-1810.
PURUMANCIANS, The. See Cimm: A, D. 1450-1724.

PUT-IN-BAY, Naval Batte at. Seo United states of Am.: A. I). $181 \mathrm{D}-1813$ Harman's Nukthweatehn Campatun.

PUTEOLI. - The Tus:Itme city of Puteoil, which oceupled the alte of the molem town of Pozzuoli, about 7 miliss from Najles, lerume tuder the emplre be cilef emporium of lfonan commerce in ltaly. The vlinlnty of l'inteoli and Its neighlor Baine was one of the favorlte resorts of the Roman nobility for vllia rusidenee. It was at Puterli that Nt. I'aui ianded on lis jour. uey to Rome.-T. Sommsen, Ilivt. of lume, bk. 4. ch 11.

PUTNAM, Israel, and the American Revolution. SCe U'xited Statra of Am. A. 1). 1775 (Aphil - May), (. Iay - Acotst); $17: 6$ (ATOEST). (SEPTEMAEH-NOVEMBED).
PYDNA, Battic of (B. C. 168). See Grexce:

B. C. $214-146$.

PYLe Casplae. Sce Carinan Gates.
PYLAE CILICIfE. See C'tititan Gates.
PYLUS, Athenian seizure of. Sec Greece: B. C. 425 .

PYRAMID. - "The name 'pyramid'- first invented by the ancients to dienote the tombs of the Egyptian kings, ani stili used in geometry to thls day - is of Greck origin. The Egy ptians themselves denoted the py ramli-both in the sense of a sepuichre nad of $n$ tigure in solld Geometry - by the word 'nlumir:" whlle, on the other hand, the word 'Ple-nim-ns' is equivalent to the 'erige of the pyramid, ummely, the four edges extending from the ajex of the lirmmid to euch eorner of the quadiningular hase." -11 . Bmigsch, IVixl. of Ejgypl, ch. T.

PYRAMIDS, Battie of the. Sec Fuanck: A. 1). 1708 (MAY-AEtiNT).

PYRENEES, Batties of the ( 1813 ), See Sratm: A. II. 181:-1814.

PYRENEES, Treaty of the. See Fuance: A. i). $1650-1661$.

PYRRHIC DANCE. - A apirited military dance. performed ín urmor, which gave much delight to the Spartans, and is sail to luwe been tainght to chilimen only tive yeurs ohl. it was thought to have been invented by the Cretans. G. Schomann, Antio. of Greece: The Ntate, pt. 8.

PYRRHUS, and his campaigns in Italy and Sicily. See ilome: 13. C. 242-275.

PYTHIAN GAMES. See DELIItI.
PYTH1AS, Knights of See Insčuance.
PYTHO, The Sanctuary of. - According to the Greck legenci, a monstrous serpent, or ilragom, Pytho, or P'ython, prodnced from the mad left by the delinge of Deucaion, ived in a greut catrern of Nount Parnassus untii siain by the gexl Apoilo. The serene of the exploit becume the priucipai seat of the worship of Apolio, the slte of his most famoua temple, the home of the oracle which le inspircd. The temple and its seat were originuily cailed Pytho; the cilvern, from whleh urose mephitic and intoxicating vapors was cailed tite Pythium; the priestess who irhaled tiose vapors and uttered the orucles which they were supposed to inspire, was the 1'ythia; Apoilo, himseif, was uftea called Pythius. Sulsequently, town, tempie nnd oracie were more commonly known by the name of Deiphl. See Dripal.

Q.

QUADI, The: Early placeand history. Sev Mabcomansi.
Campaigns of Marcus Aurellus againet. Gee Barmatiak and Mabcomanniar Wake or Marces Autueles.
A. D. 357-359. - War of Constantius. See Limioantea.
A. D. 374-375. - War of Valentinian. - A treacherous outrige of peculiar ibiackness, eom-Itted hy a worthices loman oflicer ou the fronwer, in 37t, provoked the Quall to livade the province of Pannonia. Tiney overrnn it with littic oipposition, and their nuccess encoun aged Inromis ly the neigiboring Narmatian tribes. In the following year, the Emperor Vinientiuina led a retalthtory exr dition into the country of the Quaii and revenged himseif upon it with unmerclini severity. At the apprinucio of whinter be retirncd acroms the Danule, but only to wait another spring. Winen his purpose wns to eonaplete the unulifintion of the offending Qumdi. The latter, thereupon, sent ambissaliors to humbly pray for iecace. Tiio cholerie emperor received them, hint thelr presence excited inm to such ruge that on boul-vessel was mptured in his boniy mui ile dieed on the niot. - E. Gibbon, Decline and Fill wit the Ruman Empire. ch. 25.
Probabie Modern Representatives of. See Bouemia: Its I'eorle.

QUADRILATERAL, The - A famous milIt ify pusition In northeris Itidy, formeei by the strong fortresses at P'esciviera, Verona, Mantina. and Legnano. iwars this nane. "The Quadrilut, rat fultils ill the requirements of a goond iefensive position, whith are to cover rear. ward territery, to offer ahominte sheiter to a defending aruig whenever rectuired, and to per-of ready offensive: first, by the parailei er of the Mancio and Adipe: secondiy. i,y nt resses on these rivers: thirilly, hy passages curceint fortitied points wifich iusnre the emmmand of the rivers."-Major C. Adinms, firent

QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE (A. D. 1718).
 1715-1:3:5
QUFESTIO PERPETUA. See CAlPCHNIAXL.NW.

QUAESTOR, The Imperial,-In the later Roman empire, " the Qumestur hat the care of preparing the Ininerial speeches, and was responsible fur the languge of the laws. His otice is uot unlike that of the Clianceilor of a medineval nomarch."-T. Ilorigkin, Italy ond Her Inrifilera, the. 1, ch 3 (c. 1).

QUFESTORS, Roman. - Prolailly crented as inssistants to the comsuis in the first year of the repubic. At first two; in til B C., fonr: In 241, clgit: in 81 , tweints; in t5, forty. Thrown open to plebehans in til B. C. Elveteri in the Cunitia Tributa. The quiestor's oftice lasted as iong as the consul's to whom he was attached."-ik F. Horton, lliat. of the Roman, app. A.-' We have seen how the care of the eity's trensures had been intrusted to two eity questors, soon nfter the aboitition of the monarchy In ilke manner, soon after the full of the deecmulrate, the expenditures eonneeted with mliitary affairs, whlch had hiltherto been in the hands of the consule, were put under the control of new patician officers, the milltary quientirs. Whon were to necompmny the nemy on lie march." -f. 6. Tighe, Development of the Roman cimat. eh. 6.
Aine iv: W. Inne, Rrwarches into the lliot. of the lhamin rimat. Pg. ${ }^{75-84}$.
OURESTORS
GOMF: B. C. 275. OF THE RLEET. See Home: B. C. 275.

QUAKERS: Origin of the Society of Friends.-Georye Fox and hls early Disciples. - "Tive rifiglous movement which Degas With the wandering preacier George Fius. grew into the society of Friends, or, as thity cante to be commonly eailed. The 0 . brem to be commonly eailed. 'The Q:akers.' ivivity Fox was born ln 162t, the year before Charles i. enme to the throne; and he was growing up to manhoxi ail throngh the trowhied the of tint Klng's relpn, while tive storms were gutheriug Which at last hurst forth in the eivit warr. it Was not much that he knew of ail tinis, inwever. Ile wis growing up in a little our-of.the. Way vil. lage of Leleestershire - Fenny Drayton-white his fnther was ' by professon a weaver.' -" White Fox Wias stili a elilid, the eompandons of fieorge Fox "langhed it his grave, solver ways, rett they rexpected him, ton; and when, hy and bir fe wus upprentieed to a siocemaker, hifs mastier found bin so utterly trustwortiy, and so true and unbending in his word, that tive siliaf lat gin to go alourt, 'If George says "'serily" "Ilure grieved at whithit. . . He was more mad more grieved at what seemed to him the lightness ani careiessness of men's itres. He feit ms if he were living in the midst of holiowness and hiy jorrisy.

His somi was fuli of great thuichts is something better and nobier than the cumann rellygh. Whilci seemed so peor aad worldyy He windered nbout from piace to plare - Vomit. maniton. Landion, varions parts of Warwinkshife -sireking out peopie here and there: whan he entid inur of as very religlous, and liheriy to hatp inton throngh his dittenities. Aiter two years of joncly, wholering iffe, he began to see a little iight. It came to luts sonl that alit these nut wari forins, and ceremonies, and professions that peopie were setting, up and making sis nurb ado about ns 'religion," were nothing in them. selves. that priestiy education and urilnation Was nothing - did not renily make a mana any nearer to Gol: tinat God simply whitei the ieenrts and souis of ali men to be turmal to Him, nod the worship of their own thonght and fect. lag. And with the sense of this there arose within inim a great loationg of ail the formalism, and pricsteraft, and outward obscreances of the Churehes,

Ile writes: By troubies continuctic and I was often under great temptntions: I fisted innch and waiked nbroad iu solitary piaces many diays.'. . It was a time like Cirist's temptitions in the witiderness, or Paui's three giars in Arabin, before they went forth to their great liff. mission. Fit to him, as to them, eame, at last, ligit and peace nad an open way. . . . A voice seemed to come to hims whleh said, There is one, even Chrlst Jesua, that can speal to thy condition.' 'And when I heard it.' he says. 'my heart did leap for joy.' Fixing his mini upon Christ, all things began to be clearer to him; he sinw the grand simple truth of a religion of

QUAKEIRS.

It was at Dukinfeld, nest
apirit snd llfe. Blanchester, in 10i7, thast lue began to speak openly to men of what was la lis levart. . in thuee days, when he was wanlerlig nway from those days, when he wina waniering nway from the fauhlons of the worki, he luad male himmelf a strong rough sult of lenther, and thla for many years was hla dreas. Very white and elean indred was the linen under that rongh leather sult, for he hatel all uneleanness elther of soul or boly; and very calm and clear were his eyes, tuat seemed to mearch lato men's sumls, and quallei before no danger, and sometinues lighted up with wonderful to lerness. A tall, burly num he was, too, of greas strength. . . . Everywhere he asw vanlty and Worldillnema, pretence snil injustice. It seemed laid upon hilin that he must testlfy agninst it all. Ile went (1) eourts of justice, and atool up und warned the magis. trates todo juntly; he went to falrs and markets, and lifted up hain volce against wakes, and feast, ond plays, and niso againat people's cozening and cheating.

IIe testified ngainst great thingn sal small, baile men not swear, but keep 10 - yea' and ' nay,' nd thls in eourts of justice as everywhere elve; he spoke agalust lip-honour that men should glve up uslog sitles of compllment, sul keep to plain 'thee and ' thas'; 'for surely,' he sald, 'the way men a 'sress Gixl should be enough from one to ane. er.' But all thls was merely the side-work of his Iffe, thowing from his great eentral thought of true, pure life lu the light of the Spirlt of Goxl. That was his great thonght, and that he preneherl mowt of ull; lie wanted men to give up all their forms, aud conne face to fuce with the Spirit of Goxl, and so worshlp Itim umi live to Mim. Therefore he spoke most bitterly of all aguinst all pricsteraft.

Gradually followers gathered to him: little grouns of people here anif there ureepted his tuarlings - began to look to himas theror lender. Ife dide not what to lound a sert: and as for a church-the Church was the whole body of Christ's fathiful perople everywhere; sor those who jolned him would nat take uny mane as a sut or church. They simply rallent themselves 'frimens': they used no form of womship, but met together, to watt npon the Lord with one nother : Indieving that 111 S Spirit was nlw 1 ys with them. and that, If anything was to be silid, He would put it lnto thelr hearts to say ft ." From the firm, Fox sufered perseention at the hands of the Puritans. They "kept lmprisonlag him for refoning to swenr alleglance the commonwealth; agaln and again he suffered in this way: In Xottinglam Caste, In 1648; then, two years later, at Derby, for six months, nt the end of which time they tried to force him to enter the army; hut he refused, nad so they thrust him futi) prison agaln, this time into a place ealled the Hungeon, among 80 felons, where they kept him amother half-year. Then, two yenrs later, In 1633. he was Imprisoned at Carilsic, In a foul, horible hole. ... He was agaln inpirisoned lu Lanuceston gaol, for elght long months. After this cane a quicter time for hlm; for he was takt n before Cromwell, nud Cromwell had a long cunvers l, with hlm, . . . During Cromweil's life he now persecuted no more, but wilth the resturation of Charies li. his dangers and sufferlnys legan ngaln. . . . His followers caught hls spirit, and no persecutions conld Intimidate therm. . . They made no secret of where their meetinga were to lre, and at the time there they smemblifin. Comstutilen and informers miglit be ull alnut the place, it made no difference; they weat in, sat down to thelr quiet wornhlp: If any one laded a word to may he sald It. The naggistrutes tried closing the vinces, locked the deares, put a hand of wntit: : to gnard them. The Frientis alanply gadicrod in the atreet in front, lield thelr meetlags tace ec; went on exnctly as if mothing hal linpirenel. They nilyht all be taken off to prisin, will it made no dilferemese.

QLALEACATIUSN OF SLEFRAGE:
las it womberful thit such princlples. promeched with surh moble devothon to trath and duty, raplily made way ; By the year 1005, when Fox had twell preachine for 18 yenrs, the Noxdety of Firiends mumberet 80,000 , and $\ln$ another ten years It had spreal more whicly ntlli, and lts founder lad vixited Ameriea, and travelled throngh Iholtmin and Germany, preathag lils dectrine of the in wnril light, und everyw here the dajs if prenecutinn."-13. Herforel: The Ntory of Relighon in Einglumt, ch. 25.- "At a time when pertoonal revelhtion wis generally leHiwind, it wiss a tardounble self deluslon that he by the bivin in prenth in aystem wheh could only be objecteel to ins tox pure to be praetised by man. This heilef, mai ma arient tomperament, leal him mal some of hiv fullowers latin unsensontable utteapts to convert thelr aelghbours, and unseemly intrushons lato places of worshlip for that purpose, which excted general hosillty ngainst them. und exposed them to frequent and Bevere pmishanemts. . . . Althongh they, like mont other relighons seets, had arlsen In the humhife ciasmes of surlety, they had carly heen Joneri by a few persins of superior rath nad cilnatathon. .. The most dlatinguished of their converts was William Penu, whose fither, Admiral sir Whliam Pema, lind berea a bramal frient of the king [dunes 11.], und one of his instructors la maval altairs. "-Sir J. Muckintosh, Hist. if the hevolution in Eing. in 1688, ch. 6."At one of the intervlew betwren G. Fox and Giervis bennet - one of the magistrutes who hat committel him ut Derby - the former bade the litter 'Tremble at the worl of the Lord'; wherenpon Bennet calied him a Quiker. Thas -pithet of seorn well sultel the tuster nud prejudices of the peeple, and it soon teccame the eommon "Iprlintion bestowed on Frlends."-C. Evans, Frients in the lith Century, ch. 2.

ALo in: d. Gough, llixt. if the limple alled Frienda-T. Clarkson, portruiture ej Quakerim. -imeriona chureh lixtury, r. 12.
A. D. 1656-1661 - The persecution in Massachusetts. See Marsacnutbetth: A. D. 16561061.
A. D. 1681.-Penn's acquisition of Pennsylvania. Sec Pensbilviatia: A. D. 1681.
A. D. 1682 - Proprietary purchase of New Jersey. See New Jehney: A. D. 1673-168\%.
A. D. 1688-1776. - Early growth of antislavery sentlment In the Soclety. See Slavert, Negrs: A. D. 1688-1780.

QUALIFICATION OF SUFFRAGE: Ia England. See Enoland: A. D. $1881-1885$. In Rhode Island. See Rhode Island: A. D. 1488.

QUANTRELL'S OUERRILLAS. Soe OMITED Staten of AM.: A. D. I Menceri-KAmsas).
QUAPAWE, The. See Amemicax Anomio. mes: Niovar family.
QUARTER DAYS. The "quarter daye," for pent.pailng, In Einglami. are Laly lay (March "5), Difinmmer flay (June d4), Stchael. mas (Neplemiser 20) ant Christnaas. In Ncothand they are: Cunilemas (Feloruary 2), Whitsunday (3sy 15), Iammas 1my (Auguat 1), and Martin. man (Norember 11)
QUATRE BRAS, Battle of. See France: A. lo. 1915 (J'xis).

QUEBEC, Clity: A. D. 1535.-Its Indian occupats.-Its name.- When Jaçues Cartler salierl up the No. Lawronce. In lsias, he found an Indian vilhge called Ntaincona orcupplng the site of the proment city of Quebee. The name Quebec, afterwaria given to the F'rench mettlement on the mame gromint, in sala by mone to be likewlee of Inclian origia, havlug reference to the narrowing of the piver at that point. "Wh. ers give a Normun derivation for the worl: It is and that gucliec was so-callet after Cauletece. on the Selue."-E. Warburton, The Congreat of Conalis. r. 1, ch. 2 .
A. D. 1608 . - The founding of the city by Champlain. Ner Casida: A. I). 1610 -1611.
A. D. 1629-1632.-Capture by the English, brief occupation and restoration to France. Bee Canada: A. D. If?en-1月35.
A. D. 1639. - The founding of the Uraullne Convent. See Civaba: A. B. $^{16: 37-1657 \text {. }}$
A. D. ${ }^{16 g o .}$ - Unsuccessfui attack by Sir Willam Phips and the Massachusetts ccologists. Sec Cianada: A. 1). 1689-1090.
A. D. 1711. - Threatened by Admiral Walker. Nee Canada: A. D. 1811-1713.
A. D. 1759 - Wolfe's conquest. Nee Casada: A. 1). Li:ju (june-sieptemnen).
A. D. 1760. - Attempted recovary by the French. See Canada: A. D. 1 ien.
A. D. 1775-1776. - Unsuccesaful slege by the Americans.-Death of Montgomery. See Casada: A. 1). 1:7\%-17iat.

QUEBEC, Province: A. D. 1763.-Creation of tha English province. See Canada: A. 1). 1:03-17i4.
A. D. $1774 .-$ Vast extension of the province by the Quebec Act. See Casada: A. D. litio-Irit.
A. D. 8867 . - In the Dominion of Canada. See Canada: A. D. 1867.
QUEBEC ACT, The. See Canada: A. D. 1763-1:74. QUEBEC RESOLUTIONS, The. See Casada: A. 11. 1mb7.
QUEBRADA-SECA, Battle of (1862). See

QUEEN, Origin of the word. Spe King.
QUEEN' ANNE'S BOUNTY.-The Firss Frutsa and Tenths formerly collected in England by the Popen (see Asnates) were swept $\ln t n$ the royal reasury by llenry Vill., but given to the nation, In 1704 , by Uu, en Anne, for the beneft of the poorcr flergy; forming a fund QUEEN ANNE'S WAR.-The wide-rang. ing contlict which is known in European history a the War of the Spaniah Avecosaion, appean In Amerlean bistory more commonly under the name of Queen Anne's War. Nee Nxw lixa LAND: A. D. 1702-1811.
QUEENSEERRYPLOT, The. Sce Not. цмк刀: A. D. 1818-1714.

QUEENSLAND. - . The Colony of Qurens. ham embruces all that pmort of the eastern xiflo in the Austrulian Contnent whirh lies to the mirth ward of New south Winles, linving a malumbil Which extenila from the parullei of ${ }^{2} \mathrm{~N}^{\circ} 10^{\prime}$ nurth warl to Cape York, and from that polite multh. ward and wewt warl along fully one half the shore line of the Unif of Carpentaria. . . A Achain of eоral reefs, known an a whole under the nume of the Great Jarries Heef, extemis from Torme Stmit south ward to the latitnic of $24^{\circ}$ ilh. Wh. twren this reef and the ahorr, a distaner virying from 10 milies in 160 millea, Is, a chamet nfuriling logn in the ree by whileh vemels may jow from one aille of it to the other, bitt the navigutinl la sonie whe langermis.

The northern shins In the Gulf of Carpentaria are flat smil uninter. esting, aril the Interlor swampy. The aren of Quecensla I Is not less than G70, (Wi) mpuare milles (about the size of Cirwat Iritain. France, tiermany and Lealy combined), atul it lins a eomat line of some 2,500 milem. The enfface of Yueruviant may he divided into three prortions: 1. I roant disirlct, consisting of a marrow strip of conthitry lyinit along the coast and eraverserl by mumernis rivies: 2. I hightand reglon, comprising a mang of mountains with numerons offshoots, which, under the gencral name of the (omast hange, extends from York I'eulnsiln to within a shart distance of Briabate; :3. Level, or nemrly lerel, tracts of country, which extend from the monntain region to the western bountary of the Colony.... In the southern portion of the Colony the brealth of the elevated recion, frem cinat to wrese is upwards of awo milies. The plating of the interior, whith were long thought to be sterile, Imve been fontad to be for the mont part well grissed and moxlerately watered regions, afforing gixul grazing grounida for catele."- Mr Mijealy"* Codonira (Colevil and Indian Eshitistion, $1 \times(1)$, $p .213-14 .-$, rensiand was known as the Moreton Bay Distritt of New South Wules until 18\%0. Spe ACstr:LAA: A. D. 18.09 ; alon, New sol Th Wal.ex.
QUEENSTOWN HEIGHTS, The Batte of. See Citite Srates of AM.: A. D. 1N1? (SEptember- Noveviek).
QUELCHES, The. Sec Ayericas Abortoneer: Paypan Thinzs.
QUERANDIS, The. See Americay AboRIGINES: Pampas Tulbes.
QUIBERON BAY, Naval battle of. See ExGhanh: A. D. $18: 59$ (Achest-Nowevith) .. Defeat of French Royaliats (1795). See Fraxce: A. D. 1794-1796.
QUICHES, The. See Amprican Aborgr NES: QCICHEN.
QUichuas, The. See Perv: The aboRIMINAL infabitante.
QUIDS, The.-John Randolph of Virginis "had been one of the Republican leaders while the party was in oppoaltion [daring the kemand administration of Washington and the alministration of John Adams, as Presldents of the Cuited States], hit his irritable spirit disqualifed him for heading an Admlalstration party. Ho couid attack, but could ant detead. Ife mad taken offense at the Preailent's [Jefferion's] refumal to make him Mintuter to England, and Immediately by $A$ number of his friencle, thontigh not suiticient of glve the Federnilate a majority. . . . The Randolph faction, gropularly rulfoul 'Qulde.' give fresh life to the Froleralinte in Comgrem, and made them no active and umoful opposition party." A. Johnaton, Iliot, of Am. Whatica, eh. 6. mitt 3.

Qlids.

QUIETISM. Sen Mrntictem.

QUIJO, OR NAPO, The. See Aremican amilliven: Amomplane. gUINARIUS, The. Gre As.
QUINCY RAILWAY, The. Seo Steas Limommion or liand.
QUINDECEMVIRS, The.-The guinde. ceuvira, at fome, hat the custemly of the sibgllme luwiks.- C: Merivale, Ifist, if the liomana, © A .31 .
QUINNIPIACK. See Conxecticet: A. I. IH2N.
QUIPU. - WAMPUM. - ' The Pertivfans by mathe of the gulpm. Thit wis a hame coni. the thi knexs of the finger, of ony rempirvil length, to whild were attached numerouns samall stringan of liffervit golors, leugths, natl textnres, varlously howhe "and twisted one with nother. Fan : ... •.. . pecillaritles represented a certuln most klinent qulpu reader comblell tell
 In this manner a persin neconpanted the beaner to serve us verlmi comineutator, and to prevent parmant of knowledge were placeil in weprate thirl fir hivitory, and an) forth. (On what prim. dilite of nnueduitedules the hleas were cenneretai with the kinis und colors we no botally In the dark; It lias even been donthe whe wher they hald any application treyond the art of numeraton. Eard combination had, however, a flxed idengraphic value in a certaln loranch of knowlenge, ant thes the quipu difered essentially from the (athelke rosary. the Jewlsh phylnctery, or the kniltal stringes of the nutives of Sorth Amerien and siburla. Io thl of which th has ut times been © hitureid. The wampum nsed by the tribes of the Surth Athantic comat was, In mingy respecets, analozomes to the gnlpm. In curly thenes it was comprayel chlethy of hite of wrant if efpal size, but different colors. These were hung on strings which were wuven lato belts and bands, the bues, shapes, wizes, and comblnatloas of the utring hinting thelr general ilgalacmace. Thus the If hiter shalew were Invartable harbingers of peacelul or plemant thilings, while the darter portendel war and danger. The substitutlon of bemeds of thells in place of wood, and the custom of embroidering figures in the belte were, proba. bly, intmaluced by Elumpean Influence."-D, O. Brinton. The Wyeho of the New Worhl, eA. 1.-See. aloo, Wampic.

RADAGAISLE.

QUIRINAL, The.- "The Palatine elty wa not the only one that fu ancleut times exiverd within the clrcle afterwards enclosed by the Servinn wills; opposite to It , in it Immerilato vielnity, there lay a second clty on the Quirlaal.

Liven the nume has not been loat by which the men of the Quirinal distlagulshed thembelves from thale Pbatine nelghbourn. As the l'alatine city took the name of 'the Seven Mounta,' Ita citizens ralled themelven the emount-men' ('montanl'), and the term 'mount,' while applled to the other helghts lefonging to the clty, was alove all amoclated whith the Palatiue: *o the Quirinal helght - althougit not lower, but on the comtrary momewhit higher, than the former - an well an the ailjacent Viminal, never In the atrict use of the langnage received any other nume than 'bill' ( 'collis'). . . Thus the ste of the Roman commonweulth was atll at thle prefind cercuplet hy the Momnt-Lomans of the Palathe and the Illif Romuns of the Quirinal as two weprate cominunities confronting enchother 11 . I llombtless in many rexpectin at feui.

Thut the communlty of the seven Mountis early attmined a great prepondenuce over that of the Quirimal may with certulnty le Inferred." ${ }^{-1}$ T. Minmmern, Jlint. of hame, bk: I. ch. 4.-Ster, also, QUIRITES. - In enrly liome the warfior. cithans, the fuli burgenser, were so callenl. "The kling. when he adfressed them, culted then 'lance ment' (quirites). . . We neetl not regard the name Quirites as limving lxell uriginally reservel for the burgesses ou the Quirimal.

It is indlspitably certain thut the naue Quirites denoted from the tirst, ns well as subseguently, slmply the fuli hurgess. "-T. Mommsen, Ilist. of Lhme, bk. 1, ch. 4 and 5. - The term quirites, in fact, signiffed the citizens of Rome as a body. Whether lt originally mennt " men of the spear." as derived from a sablne worl, is a question in some dispute, - II. G. Liddell. Jiot. of Jomer, bk. 1, ch. 5 .

QUITO: The ancient kingdom and the modern clif. Nee Ecuaious.

QUIVIRA. Bee ANEhican Abortomes: Peenlos.

QUORATEAN FAMILY, The. See AMErican Aboriglies: Quoratean Fayily.

R.

RAAB, Battle of. See Germant: A. D. 18HM (JAN: Blit -JCNE).
RABBLING. See Scotland: A. D. $1688-$ 1634.

RABELAIS, on Education. Seo Edtcation. liexainance.
RAB-SHAKEH.-The title of the chief minlsteruf the Asky rian kings. The Rab-shakaliof Sennacherib demanded the surrender of Jerusalem.
RACHISIUS, King of the Lombards, A. D. itt-750.

RADAGAISUS, OR RADAGAIS, OR RODOGAST; Invailon of Italy by.-י'In the year 406, Italy was suddenly overrun by a vast multitude composed of Vandals, Sueves, Burgunds, Alans, and Goths, under the command of a kiug named Ikadagala. To what natlon this king belonged ls not certain, hut it seems likely that he was an Ostrogoth from the region of the Black Sea, who hal headed a trite of his countrymen in a revolt agalnst the lluns. The invading host is alid to have conslsted of 200,000

Radagaisus.

RAMBOLILLET.

warriors, who were scompanied by their wives and familiea. These barbarians were heathens, and their manners were so fierce and cruei that the invasion exclted far more terror than did that of Aiaric. Stilicho [the ahie minister and general of the contemptihie Emperor of the West, Honorius] found it hard work to collect an army capahle of opposing this savage horde, and Radagais had got as far as Florence before any resistance was offered to hlm. But while he was besieging that city, the Roman general came upon hlm, and, hy surrounding his army with earthworks, compelled him to surrender. The harharian klng was bebeaded, and those of the captives whose lives were spared were soid into siavery." - H. Bradiey, Story of the Gothe, ch. 10.

Also in: T. Hodgkln, Ihly and Her In. muters, bk. I, ch. 6.-See, also, Hoye: A. D. 404 408.

RAETIA. See RHETIA.

RAGA, RAGHA, OR RHAGES.-"The Median city next in importance to the two Ec. batanas was Raga or IKhages, near the Caspian Gates, aimost at the extreme eastern ilmits of the territory possessed by the Medes. The great antiqulty of this piace is marked hy lts occurrence in the Zendavesta among the primitive settiements of the Arians. Its ceiebrity during the time of the Empire is indicnted by tbe posl. tion which It occupies in the romances of Tohit and Judith.

Rhages gave name to a district; and this district may be certainly identifed with the long narrow tract of fertife territory intervening bet ween the Elhurz mountaln-range and the descrt, from about Kasvln to Kbaar, or from long. $50^{\circ}$ to $52^{\circ} 30^{\prime}$. The exact site of the city of lRhages within this territory is somewhat doubtful. Aii accounts place it near tbe easteru extremity; and, as there are $\ln$ this direction ruins of a town calied Rhei or Rhey, it has been usual to assume that they positlively fix the locality. But . . . there are grounds for placing izhages very much nearer to the Caspian Gates. "-G. Rawinson, Fice Great Jomarchies: Media. ch. 1.-See, also, Caspian Gates.

RAGEE. Sue Rat.z.
RAGMAN'S ROLL. See Scotland: A. D. 1328.

RAID OF RUTHVEN, The. See ScotLaND. A. I). 158 l .

RAILROADS. See Steam locomotion on Land; and Trade, Modern.
RAISIN RIVER, Battle of Spe Cinited Statles of Am. A. D. 1810 -I813 IIarmison's Nohtirwestern Campatgn.

RAJA, ORRAJAH. - MAHARAJA. Hindu tlites, equivalent to kine and groat king. RAJPOOTS, OR RAJPUTS.-RAJPOO: TANA.-"The Rajpoots, or sous of Rajas, are the noblest and proudest race in Indla. They cialm to tee representatives of the Kishatriyas; tbe desceudants of those Aryan warriors Who eonquered the Punjah and Inndustan in times primevai. To thls day they display many of tbe eharacteristics of tbe heroes of the Maha Bharata and Ramajana. They form a milltary aristocracy of the feudal type. . . . The Raj. poots are the links between ancient and modern India. In days of old they strove with the kings of Magadha for the suzerainty of Hinduatan from the Indus to the lower Gangetic valiey. They maintained imperial thrones at Labore and Delhi, at Kanouj and Ayodhya. In iater revoiutions their seats of empire have been shifted further weat and south, but the Rajpoot kingdoms stlii remain as the relics of the old Aryan aristocracy. The dynasties of Lahore and Deihl faded away from hlstory, and perehance have reappeared in more remote quarters of Indla. Tbe Rajpoots stili retain their dominon in the west, wbilst their power and intluence have been feit in every part of luiia; and to this day a iarge Rajpoot element elaraeterizus the populations, not only of the Punjah amilliuiusstan, but of the Dekhan and Feninsula. The Rajpoot empire of a remote antiquity is represented in the present day by the three kiug. doms of Meywar, Marwar, and Jeypore. Mey. war, bear known us Chittore or Ciaipore, is tife, smailest but most lmportant of the thiree. It forms tbe garden of Rajpootana to the rast wad of the Aravulit range. West ward of th: range Is the dreary desert of Narwar. Northwarll of Meywar lies the territory of Jeypore, the futermediate kingdom between Meywar and the \ins.

suimans. . In former tlmes the sovereitns of

In former tlmes the sovereisns of Meywar were known as the Ranas of Chitture; they are now known as the Ranas of Cdaipore. Tbey heioug to the biue hioorl of Rajpuot aris. tocracy." J. T. Wheeier, IIsist of Imlim, c. 8, ch. 7.- " Everywhere [in the central region of India] Iajput septs or petty ehiefshlps may still be found existing in various degrees of ivilependence. And there are, of course, Injput Chiefs outside $\mathrm{Ha}_{\mathrm{a}}$ : utana altogether, though none of politicai luiportance. But Rajputan:i proper. the country still under the Independeut rule of the most ancient families of the purest clans, nay now be understoon generally to mean the great trnet that would be crossed by two lines, of which one shouli be drawn on the map of India from the froutier of Sind Eastward to the gates of Agris; and the other from the simethern bortier of the Puajab Government near the Sutlej Sonthward and Sonth. Enstward until it areets the broni lelt of Maratha States uuler the Guleowar, Holkar, and Scladia, whieh runs arose Iudia from Baroda to Gwalior. This tirritury is divided iuto nineteen Staters, of which sixteen are possessed by Hajput clnus, und tise Chitf of the elan or zept is the Stnte's ruter. Tu the Sesodia elan, the oldiest and purest bloodi in india, velong the States of Oodeypmor. Banswarm, Pertahgarb, and Shatipura; to the Jathore clan, tbe States of Joilhpoor and Bikanir; Juypor and Ulwar to the Kucbwala, and su on."-Sir A. C. Lyall, Asiatic Studies, ch. 8.

RALEIGH, Sir Waiter: Colonizing andertakinga in Virginia. See Amertea: A. D. 158t-1586, and 1587-1590....Guiana and El Dorado expeditions. See El Dor.in, RAMBOUILLET, The Hótei de.-The marquise de Rambouillet, who drew aronnd inerself, at I'aris, the famous coterie whieh tork its name from her hospltahle house, was the daughter of a French nobleman, Jean de Vivonne, sicur de Saint-Gohard, afterwards first marquls de Pimani, who marrlet a Koman fady of the nobie family of the Strozzl. Catherine de Vironne was born of this union in 1588 , and ln 1000 , when iess than tweive years old, became the wito of Charles d'Angenues, vidame du Nans afterwards marquis de Ranaboulilet. Her ${ }^{r}$ tid ilfe was more than half a century In duontion;
she was the mother of seven children, and she

RAMBOUILLET.

survived her husband thirteen years. During the minority of the husband the ancient residence of his family had been sold, and from 1610 to 1617 the marquis and marquise were engaged in buiding a new Hotei de Ramloutllet, which the latter is credited with having, in great part, designed. Her house being inlished, she opened it "to her friends and acquaintances, and her receptions, which continued untll the Fronde (1648), hrought together every evening the choicest society of the capital, and proluced a profound influence upon the manners and liters. ture of the day. The marquise ceased attending court some years before the death of Henry IV., her refinement and pure character finding there sn uncongenial atmosphere. The marquise was not slone a woman of society, hut was carefully educated and fond of literature. Consequently the reunions at the Hotel de Rambouillet were distinguished by a happy combination of rank and ietters. Still more impurtant was the new position assumed hy the hostess and the iadies Who frequented her house. Until the XVIIth century the crudest views prevailed as to the education and social position of woman. It was at the IIotel de Rambouillet that her position as the inteliectuai companion of man was first rec. ognized, and this position of equality, and the deferential respect which foliowed it, had a powerful influence in refining the rude manners of men of rank whose iives had been passed in camps, and of men of letters who inad previousiy enjoyed few opportunities for social poiish. The two ciasses met for the first time on a footing of equaity, and it resuited in elevating the occupation of letters, and imbuing men of rank with a foniness for intellectuai pursuits. The reunions st the liotiel de Ramboulilet began, as has been said. abont 1617, and extend until the Fronde (164s) or $n$ few years iater. This period Larroumet (' Précieuses Ridicules,' p. 14) divides into three parts: from 1617 to about 1629; from 1630 to 1 btu ; and from 1640 to the death of the marquise in 1665 . During the first period the habitués of tite liôtel de Ramboufliet were": the marquis du Vigean, the maréchal de Souvré, the duke de la Tremolile, Richelieu (then bishop of Lucon). the cardinal de la Valette, the poets Jialherbe, Racun, Gombauld, Chapelain, Jarino, the preacher Cospeau. Godeau, the grammarian Vaugelas, Voiture, Balzac. Segrais, Mile. Maulet, the princesse de Montmorency, Mile. du Vigean, and the rlaughters of the marquise de Rambouililet, "of wiom the eldest, Julie d'Angennes, until her marriage in 1645 to the marquis de Montausier, Was the soul of the reunions of titc Hôtel de Rambouiliet. The second period was that of its greatest briiliancy. To the iliustrious names just mentioned must be added ": the grest Condé, the marquis de Montausier, Saint-Evremond, La Rucikefuucaid, Sarrasin, Costar. Patru, Conrart, Gerorges de Scudéry, Mairet, Collptet, Ménage, Bebserade, Cotin, Desmarets, Rotrou, Scarron, P. Corneilie, Bossuet. Mife. de Bourbon, later duchesse de Longueville, Mille. de Coilgny, Mme. Aubry, and Mile, de Scudéry, "yet unknown as $s$ writer. After 1640 the Hôtei de Rambouiliet began to decline; but two names of importance belong to liuls period: Mme. de la Fayette, and Mime. de Sévigné. Soiture dime in 1648 , Fronite which witnessed the outbreak of the Fronile, after which the reunions at the Hotel de lambouilet virtually ceased. . . . Until the time of Roederer [' Mémoire pour servir a l'histoire de ia société polic en France'] it was genorally suppowed that the word 'Précieuse' was synonymuus with Hûtei de Rambouiflet, and that it was the marquise and her friends whom Molière intended to satirize. Roederer endeavored to show that it was not the marquise but her bnurgeois imitators, the circle of SHe. de Scudéry

RANTERS.

Victor Cousin attempts to prove that it was neither the marquise nor Nilc. de Scudery, hut the imitators of the latter.
The editor of Molière in the Grands Ecrivains de la France,' M. Despois (v. 2, p. 4) belleves that the Hotei de Rambouillct, inciuding Mile. de Scudéry, was the ohject of Moilère's satire, although he iad no intention of attacking any particuiar person among the 'Précleuses.' but confincd himself to ridicuiling the eccentricities common to them all. It is with this iast view that the editor of the present work uuhesita. tingly agrees, for reasons which he hopes some day to give in detail in an edition of the two plays of Moilère mentioned abore [' Précleuses Ridicules,' and 'Les Femmes Savantes']; From Paris the influence of the 'Precicuses' spread into the provinces, doubtiess with ali the exaggerations of an unskifful imitation."-T. F. Crane, Introd, to "La Sociétd l'rangaies au DixSeptieme Siecle."

Also in: A. G. Mason, The Women of the French Silins, ch. 2-7.

RAMBOUILLET DECREE, The, See United Stateg of Am. : A. I). 1810-1812.
RAMESES, RAAMSES, OR RAMSES, Treasure-city of. See Jews: The noute of Tite Exodus.

RAMESSIDS, The. - The nineteenth is. nasty of Egyptian kings, sprung from Kameses 1. fourteenth to twelfth centaries B. C. See Eoypt: Anout B. C. 1400-1200.

RAMILLIES, Battie of (1706). Sce NethERLANDS: A. D. 1706-1707.

RAMIRO I., King of Aragon, A. D. 10351083. ... Ramiro I., King of Leon and the Asturias, or Oviedo, 84으웅.. . . Ramiro II. King of Aragon, 1134-113\%...... Ramiro II., King of Leon and the Asturias, or Oviedo, 930-950. . . . Ramiro III., King of Leon and the Asturias, or Oviedo, $96 ;-98 \%$.

RAMNES.-RAMNIANS, The. See Rome: Beoinninos and Name.
RAMOTH-GILEAD. - The strong fortress of Ramoth-Gileadi, on the frontier of Samuria and Syria, was the object aud the scene of frequent warfare between the lsraelites and the Amameans of Damascus. It was there tinat king Ahab of Samaria, in ailiance with Judain, was kilied in battle, fightiug against Ben-hadid of Damascus. - 1 Kings, xrif.

Also Lv: Dean Staniey, Leet's on the Hiat. of the Jewiah Church, Lect. 33.'

RANAS OF UDAIPORE OR CHITTORE. See RAJPOOTR.

RANDOLPH, Edmund, and the framing and adoption of the Federal Constitution. See United STates of AM.: A. D. 1787: 17871789..... In the Cabinet of President Washington. See United States of Am.: A. D. 1789-1792.

RANJIT SINGH, OR RUNJIT SINGH, The conquests of. See Stmis.

RANTERS.-MUGGLETONIANS.-
These [the Ranteral madc it their busines.

RANTERS

Bafs Baxter, 'to set up the Light of Nature under the name of Christ in Man, and to dishonour and cry down the Church, the Scripture, and the present Ministry, and our worship and ordinances; and called men to hearken to Christ wlthln them. But withai they conjoined a cursed doctrine of Llbertinlsm, which hrought them to ail abomlnable fllthiness of life. They taught, as the Fumilists, that God regardeth not the actlons of the outwarl man, but of the heart. and that to the pure all things are pure.' . . Of no sect do we hear more In the pamphiets and newspapers between 1050 and 1655 , though there are traces of them of eariler lute. Some. tlmes confounded with the Ranters, hut really distlngulshable, were some crazed men, whoee crazes had taken n religious turn, and whose extrav. agances became contagious. - Such was n Johti Roblns, first henrd of about 1650 , when ine went about, sometimes us God Almighty, sometlmes as Adam raised from the deai. . . One ineard next, In 165\%, of two associates, cailed John Reeve and Luiovick Muggleton, who professed to be 'the two last Spirltual Wiltnesses (Rev. xl.) and alone true Prophets of the Lord Jesus Christ, God aione biessed to aif eternlty.' They belleved in n renl man-shaped God, axisting from all eternlty, who had come upon earth as Jesus Christ, leaving Moses and Elijnh to represcht him in Ileaven." Muggleton died ln 1698, 'at the age of 90 , iearlng a sect calied The Muggietonians, who sare perhaps not extinct jet."D. Masson, Life of John Milton, t. 5, pp. 17-20.

RAPALLO, Battie of (1425). See Italy: A. D. 1412-14:7..... Massscre at (1494). See Italy: A. D. 1494-1496.

RAPE OF THE SABINE WOMEN, The. See Rome: B. C. 7i3-510

RAPES OF SUSSEX. -"The singuinr division of Sussex [England] lnto six 'rapes' [each of whin!. is sublivided into hundreds] seems to have theen made for military purposes. The old Norse 'hreppr' denoted a nearly similar territorial division." - T. P. Tusweli-Langmead, Eng. Const. IFiat., el. 1, font-note.-"The'reeb ning,' or mensuration by the rope or line, supplied the technicai term of 'hrepp' to the glossary of Scandinavian iegislntion: archreologists have therefore pronounced an opiaion that the 'lRapes' of Sussex, the divisions ranging from the Chanael shore to the Suthrige borler, were, according to Norweginn fashion, thms piotted out by the Conqueror."-Sir F. Pat. grave, Ilist. of Wormandy and Eng., bk. 1, ch. 3.
RAPHIA, Battle nf (B, C. 217), See SElevCIDE: B. C. 294-187.
RAPID INDIANS. See AyEricar Abo. RIOINES: Rapid Indians.
RAPIDAN, Campaign of Meade and Lee nn the. Sec United STatea of Ay.: A. D. 1863 (JUly-November: Vtroinia).
RAPPAHANNOCK STATION, Battle of. See United States of Am. : A. D. 1863 (Jely -November: Viroinia).
RAPPAREES.-TORIES.-"Ejected proprietors [in Irelani, 1ith and 18th centuries] whose names might be traced in the nanais of the Four Ilasters, or arounc the sculptured crosses of Clonmacnoise, might be found in abject poverty hanging around the land which had lately been their own, shrinking from servile labour as from an intolerahle pollution, and stlli receivlng a secret homage from their old tenants.

RATHSMANN.

In a country where thecian spirit was intensely strong, and where the new landiords were sep. arated from their tenants hy race, by religing, and by custom, these fallen and impoverished chiets naturally found themselves at the headi of the discontented classes; and for many rests after the Commonwealth, and again alter the Revoiutlon, they and their foilowers, unier the names of tories and rapparees, waged a kind of guerriin war of depredations upon their successors. After the frst years of the 1sth century, however, thls form of crime appears to have almost ceased; and aithough we fini the names of tories and rapparees on every page of the judiclat records, the old meaulng wss no ionger attached to them, and they had hecome the designations of ordinary felocs. at large ia the country."-W. E. H. Lecky, Ifint. of Eing., 18th Century, ch. 7 (0. 2).-"The distlinetion be. tween the Irish foot soidier and tie Irish Rap. paree had never been very strongly marked. It now disnppenred [during the war In Ireland be. tween James II. and William of Orange - A. D. 1691]. Great part of the army was turned ionse to live by marauding.",-Lord Nacaular. Hist. of Eng., ch. 17 (o.4).-"The Rapparee was the fowest of the low people. . . . The Rapparee knew littic difference between friend naid foe; receiving no mercy, they gave none."-Sir J. Dnirympie. Memoirs of Git. Britain and Irelind, pt. 2, bk. 5 (c. 3).-יPolitical disaffection in lreland has been the work, on the one hand, of the representatives of the old disinherited familliesthe Kernes, and Gaiow glasses of one age, the Rip. parees of the next, tie houghers and rnvishers of a third; on the other, of the restless aspirations of the Catholic clergy."-J. A. Froude, The English in Irelannt, bk. 8, ch. 1 (r. 3).
RAPPITES, The. See Social Movements: A. D. 1805-1827.

RARITANS, The. See American Aborioinfr: At onequian Family.
RAS.-RASENNA. See Etruspans.
RASCOL.-RASKOL.-RASKOLNIKS. See Rumata: A. D. 1655-1659.
RASTA, The. See Lecoa.
RASTADT, Congress of. - Murder of French eavnys. See France: A. D. 1799 (APRIL-SEPTEMBER).

RASTADT, The Treaty of (1714). See Utrecht: A.D. 1712-17i4.
RATEE, OR RAGEE.A Romnn town in Britain-:' one of the largest and most impor. tant of the midiand clties, adorned whth rich mansions and temples, and other public builidings. Its site is now occupled by the town of Leicester. "-T. Wright, Celt, Roman and Suron, ch. 5 .
RATHANINES, Battle of (1649). Sec las. LAND: A. D. 1040-1649.
RATHS. - "Of those anclent Raths, or lill. fortresses, wilch formed the dweilings of the old Irish chiefs, nad beinnged evidently to a period when clties were not yet in exlstence, there are to be found numerous remains throughout the country. Tiis species of earthen work is distinguished from the articial mounds, or tumuli, by its belng formed upon natural elevations, snd always surrounded by a rampart."-T. Moore, IIint. of Ireland, eh. 9 .

RATHSMANN, RATHSMEISTER, etc. See Cities, Imperial and Frig, or Ozs. maxr.

RECHABITES.

RATISBON: Taken by the SwedishGerman forces (1633). See Gerxany: A. D. 1632-1034.
RATISBON, Battie of. See Gervany: A. D. 1800 (Jand ARy-JUNE).

RATISBON, Catholic League of. See Papact: A. D. $1522-1525$.
RAUCOUX, Battie of (1740). See NetherLINDS: A. D. 1746-1747.
RAUDINE PLAIN, Battie of the. See Cimbit and Tectones: B. C. 113-102.
RAURACI, The.-An ancient tribe "whose origin ls perhaps German, established on both banks of the Rhine, towards the eibow which that river forms at Baie."-Napoieon III., Hist. of Crear, bit. 3, ch. 2, foot-note.
RAVENIKA, The Parifameat of.-Henry, the second cmperor of the Latln emplre of Romanla, or empire of Constantinople, convened a general pnrllament or hlgh.court of all his vas. sals, at Ravenika, in 1209 , for the determining of the feudal relations of all the subjects of the emplre. Ravenika is in anclent Chalkldike, some fifty millea from Thessalonica.-G. Finlay, Hist. of Greece from its Conquest by the Crusaders, ch. t , sect. 4.

RAVENNA: B. C. 50.- Cesar'e advance on Rome. See Rome: B. C. 52-50.
A. D. 404.-Made the capital of the Western Empire.-"The houses of Ravenna, whose sppenrance may be compared to that of Venice, were raised on the foundation of wooden piles. The adjacent country, to the distance of many miles, was a deep aud impassable morass; and the artificial cause way which connected Ravenna with the continent might be easily guarded, or destroyed. on the approach of a hostile army. These morasses were interspersed, however, with rinryarls; and though the soll was exhausted by four or five crops, the town enjoyed a more pientiful supply of wine than of fresh water. The air, instead of receiving the sickly and slmost pestilential exhalations of low and marshy grounds, was distlngulshed, like the neighbourhoox of Alexandria, as uncommonly pure and salubrious; and thls singular advantage was ascribell to the regular tides of the Adriatie. This advantageous situation was fortided by art and labour; and, in the twentieth year of his age, the Emperor of the West [Honorlus, A. D. 395[23] anxious only for hils personal safety, retired to the perpetual continement of the wails and morasses of Ravenna. The example of Honorius was imitated by his feeble successors, the Gothle kings, and afterwards the exarchs, who occupied the throne and palace of the cmperors ; and till the middle of the elghth century IRaveuna was consilered as the seat of government and the capital of Italy."-E. Glbbon, Decline and Fall of the Ruman Einpire, ch. 30.
Also in: T. Ifoigkln, Italy and Mer Invaders, ch. 9.-See, also, Rume: A. D. 40t-408.
A. D. 490-493. - Siege and capture by Theod-oric.- Murder of Odoacer. - Capital of the Ostrogothic kingdom. Ses Rome: A. D. 488326.
A. D. 493-525. - The capital of Theodoric the Ostrogoth. -"The usual residence of Thend. oric was Ravenna, whth which city his name is linkeri as lnseparably as those of Honorius or Placldia. The letters of Cassiodorus show his zeal for the architectural enrichment of this capital. Square blocks of stone were to be brought from Faenza, marble plllars to be transported from the palace on the Pincian Hill: the most skilful artists in mosaic were invited from Rome, to execute some of those very works which we still wonder at in the basillcas and baptisteries of the city hy the Ronco. The chief memorials of his relga which Theodoric has left at Ravenna are a church, a palace, and a tomb."-T. Hodgkln, Italy and Her Inenders, bk. 4. ch. 8 (0. 3).
A. D. 540 - Surrender to Belisarius. See Rome: A. D. 535-553.
A. D. 554-800.-The Exarchate. See Rome: A. D. $534-800$.
A. D. 728-751. -Decline and fali of the Exarchate. See Papact: A. D. 728-774.
A. D. 1275.-The Papal sovereigaty confirmed bs Rodolph of Hapsburg. See GERMany: A. D. 1273-1308.
A. D. 1512 . - Taken by the French. -Battle before the city.-Defeat of the Spaniards. See Italy: A. D. 1510-1513.

RAVENSPUR.-The landing place of Henry of Lancaster, July 4, 1399, when he came back from banishment to demand the crown of England from Richard II. It is on the coast of Yorkshire.
RAYMOND, of Toulouse, The Crusade of. Sce Crcbades: A. D. 1096-1090; also, JeresaLEM: A. D. 1099; and 1090-1144.
RAYMOND, Battle of. See United States of AM.: A. D. 1863 (ApriL-JtLy: On The Miselssippi).

TEAL, Spanigh. See Spanisut Corms.
REAMS'S STATION, Battle of. See United States of Am.: A. D. 1864 (Avgest: Virainis).
REASON, The Worship of. See Frasce: A. D. 1793 (NOVEMBER).

REBECCAITES. - DAUGHTERS OF
REBECCA.-Between 1839 and 1844, a general outbreak occurred In Wales against what were thought to be the excessive tolls collected on the turnpike roads. Finding that peaceful agitatlon was of no avail the people determined to destroy the turnplke gates, and did so very extensively, the movement spreading from county to county. They applled to themselves the Bible promise given to the descendants of Isaac's wife, that they shouid possess the "gate" of their enemies, and were known as the Daughters, or Children of Rebecca, or Rebeccaites. Their proceedlags assumed at last a generaliy riotous and lawiess character, and were repressed by severe measures. At the same time Parliament removed the toll-gate grievance by an amended law.-W. N. Miolesworth, Hiet. of Eng., 1830$187^{\circ}$, r. 2. p. 131.
RECESS.-Certain decrees nf the Germanle dlet were so called. See Papact: A. D. $1530-$ 1531.

RECHABITES, The.-An ascetic religious association, or order, formed among the Ismelites, under the influence of the prophet Eiljah, or after hils death. Llke the monks of a later time, they mostly withdrew lato tue desert. "The vow of their order was so strict that they were not allowed to possess either vinegards or corts Achls or houses, and they were conscquently rigidly confined for means of subsistence to thi products of the wifdernem."-II. Ewald, Hier. of Iarael, bk. 4, sect. 1 (0. 4).

RECIPROCITY TREATY

RECIPROCITY TREATY, Cankdian See Tariff Leoislation, de. (United Btatee and Canada): A. D. 1854-1866.
RECOLLECTS, OR RECOLLETS. This name is borne by a branch of the Francls. can order of friars, to indicate that the aim of their livcs is the recollection of God and the forgetfulness of worldly thinga.

RECONSTRUCTION: President Lincoln's Louislana plan. See United States or AM. : A. D. 1808-1864 (December-JUL).

President Johasoa's plan. See same, A. D. 1885 (MAY-JULY)..... The question in Congress. See same: A. D. 1865-1868 (DecemBER - APRIL), 1868-1867 (Octoner - DIARCH), 1867 (Marcit). . . . Net also: Sot'til Carolina: A. D. 1865-1876: Tennessee: A. D. 1865-1866; Louthiana: A. D. 1865-1867.
RECULVER, Roman origin of. See RegulBry.

RED CAP OF LIBERTY, The. See Liserty Cap.

RED CROSS, The.-"A confederation of relief socleties in different countries, acting under the Geneva Convention, carries on its worls under the sign of the Red Cross. The aim of these societies is to ameliorate the condition of wounded soldiers in the armies in campaign on Iand or sea. The socleties had their rise in the conviction of certain philanthroplc men, that the otticiai sanitary service in wars is usuaily insuffieient, and thint the elinrity of the people, which at such times exhihits itself munificently, should be organized for the best possilhle utlilza: tion. An International puhlic confercuce was calied at Geneva, Switzerinnd, In 1803, which, though it had not an official character, brought together representatives from a number of Goveruments. At this conference a trenty was drawn up, afterwards remodeled and improved, which twenty-tive Governments have slgned. The creaty provides for the neutraity of ali sanitnry suppiles, ambulances, surgeons, nurses, nttendants, and slek or wounded men, and thicir safe conduct, when they bear the sign of the organlzatiou, viz: the lied Cross. Although the convention which originated tise organization wns necessariiy internatlonal, the relief societies thermsel ves are entirely national nad independent ; each one governing ltsclf and moking lts own laws according to the genius of its ationality and needs. It was necessary for recognizance and safety, and for earrying out the general provisions of the trenty, that a uniform hadge should be agrecd upon. The Red Cross was ehosen out of compliment to the Swiss Repuhlic. where the first convention was heid, and lu which the Central Commission has its leadquarters. The Swiss colors belng a whit- closs on a red ground, the hadge chosen was chese colors reversed, There are no 'members of the Red Cross,' but only nembers of societies whose sign it is. There is no 'Order of the Red Cross.' The relief socictics use, each according to its convenience, whatever methods seem lest suited to prepare in times of peace for the neees. sities of sanltary service in times of war. They gather and store gifts of money and supplles; nrrange hirspltals, ambulances, methods of trans: portation of wounded men, bureaus of information, correspondence, dc. All that the most ingenious philanthropy could derise and execute has been attempted in this direction. In the

REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE.

Franco-Prussian war this was abundentiy tested - Thls society had ite inceptlon in the mind of Monsieur Hent Dunant, a $$$ wlss gentieman, *ho was ably seconded in his views by Monsleur, Gustave Moynter and Dr. Louls Appia, of Geneva."-Hiat. of the Red Crose (Waskington, 1883).

RED FORTRESS, The. The Alhambm See Spain : A. D. 1238-1273.

RED LAND, The. See Vehmgerichta.
RED LEGS. Sce JAYEAWKERA.
RED RIVER COMPANY AND SET. TLEMENT,-RIEL'S REBELLION. Seo Canada: A. D. 1869-1873.

RED RIVER EXPEDITION. See Uxitrd States of Am : A. D. 1864 (March-Mar: Loutsiana).

RED ROBE, Connseliors of the. See Ventee: A. I. 1039-1319.

RED TERROR, The.-The later perind of the French Relgn of Terror, when the guillotine was busiest, is sometimes so called. See Francr: A. D. $1704-1795$ (Jtly-APRIL).

REDAN Assaulte on the (1855). See RessIA: A. D. 1854-1856.
REDEMPTIONERS. - " Redemptioners, or term siaves, as they were sometimcs ealled, constituted $\ln$ the carly part of tie 18 th wentury a peculiar feature of colonial society. They were recruited from among all manner of propie in the old world, and through this channei Europe emptied upon America, not only the virtuous poor and oppreseed of her populatlon, but the vagrants, felons, and the dregs of her conmuni. ties. . . There were twokinds of redemptioners: 'indented servants,' wio had bound themselves to their masters for a term of years prevlous to their leaving the old country; and 'frec willers,' who. belng without money and desirous of emi. grating. agreed with the captalns of ships to aliow themselves and their famlies to be sold on arrivai, for the captain's advantage, and thris repay costs of pussage nnd other cxpensers."A. 1). Melilck, Jr., The Story of an Ohl Firm, ch. 11.
REDEMPTORISTS, The.-The membere of the congregation of the Most Iioly Redeemer, founded by St. Alphonsus Maria de Llguori, in 1732, are commonly known as Redenptorists. The congregation is especially devoted to apos. tollc work among neglected eiasses of people.
RE DONES, The. Nee Veneti of Western Gatl.
REDSTICKS, The. See Flomida: A. D. 1816-1818.

REDUCTIONS IN PARAGUAY, The Jesuit. See Pabaguar : A. D. 1608-18ỉ3.
REDWOOD LIBRARY. See Libbariss, Modern : United states.

REEVE. See Gerefa; and Marorate.
REFERENDAPIUS. Sec Chanceion.
REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE,The Swiss.-"A popular vote under the name leferendum was known in the valleys of Graubanden and Wallis as early as the 16 th century. Here existed small federations of communities who regulated certain matters of genera! concern by means of assemblies of delegates from each village. These conventions were not allowed to decide upon any important measure finally, but must refer the matter to the various constituenclea. If a majority of these approved, the act might be passed at the next assembly. Thb primitive syatem insted till the Freneh invasion of 1798, and was again eatabiished in Grauhunden in 1815. The word Referendum Fas aiso used by the oid federai diets, in which there were iliewise no comprehensive powers of ie gisiation. If not aiready inatructec .he deiegates must vote 'ad referendum' and carry aii questions w the home goverament. The institution as now known is product of this eentury. It originI 1 in the canton of St. Gaiien In 1830, where the time the constitution was undergoing revision. As a compromise between the party Which atrove for pure democraey and that deairing representative government, it was provided that sli iaws should be submitted to popuiar vote if a respectabie number of voters so demsnded. Known at first hy the name Veto, thls aystem siowiy found its way into severai of the Germsn-speaking cantons, so that soon after the doption of the federal constituticn five were employing the optionai Referendum. Other forms of popuiar legisiation were destined to find wider acceptance, but at present [1891] in elght states, ineinding three of the Romance tongue, laws must be suhmitted on request.

REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE.

The ususi limit of time during whieh the petition must be signed is 30 days. These requests re directed to the Exeentive Council of the state, and that body is obilged, within a simiar period after receiving the same, to appoint a day for the vote. The number of signers required varies from 300 in the little eanton Zing to 6,000 in St. Gallen, or from one-tenth to one-ifth of sll the voters. Some states provide that in eonaection with the vote on the bili as a whoie, an expression may be taken on sepante points. Custom varies as to the number of votes required to veto a law. Some fix the minimim at a ma. jority of those taking part in the election, and others at a majority of ali citizens, whether voting or not. In case the vote is against the bili, the matter is referred hy the Executive Couneil to the legisiature. This body, after examining lato the eorreetness of the returns, passes a resoiution deciaring its own act to be vold. By means of the Initiative or Imperative Pctition, the orter of ieglalation just iescribedi is reversed, since the impulse to make iaw is received from below lustead of above. Tie methoi of procedure is about as foilows: Those who are inter estel in the passage of a new iaw prepare elther full draft of sueh a blii or a petition contain. ing the polnts desireti to be eovered, with the reasons for its enactment, and then bring the matter before the publi- for the purpose of oblaining signatures. Endorsement may be given either by nctualiy signing the petition or by verhal assent to it. The latter form of eonselit Is iadicated elther in the town mectings of the commuaes, or by appearing before the oftichal in clasrge of the petition and openiy asking that his vote be given for it. If, in the various town meetings of the eanton taken together, a stated number of aftirmative votea are given for the petition, the effect is the same as If the names of voters hai been signed. . . . The number of names required is about the same in proportion to the whole body of voters as for the Optlonai Referendum. The requisite number of signa. tures hsving been pmoured. the petition is carried to the leglsiature of the eanton. This body must take the matter into consideration within a apecifed time (Soiothurn, two months), and pre pare a compieted draft in accordance with the request. It may aiso at the same time present an aiternate proposition which expresses fts own ideas of the matter, so that voters may take their choice. In any case the legisiature gives an opinion on the project, as to fte desirabiiity or propriety, and the puhic has thus a report of its own seiect committee for guidance. The hiii is then suhmitted to the voters, and on receiving the assent of a majority, and having been promuigated by the executive authority, becomes a law of the land."-J. M. Vineent, State and Federal Gov't in Suitzerland, ch. 18.-"Between 1874 and 1886, the federai iegisiature passed 113 iawt and resolutions which were capabie of being suhmitted to the referendum. Of these oniy 19 were subjected to the popuiar vote, and of theme inst 13 were rejected and 6 adopted. The strong opposing views, whiel are heid in Switzerland regarding the expedlency of the referendum, indleate that this is one of the features of the goverament whicil is open to future discus sion."-B. Moses, The Federal Gov't of Sicitzer. land, p. 110.-See, aiso, Switzerland: A. D. 1848-1800. - " A piéhiscite is a mass vote of the Freneh peopie by which a Revoiutionary or Imperiai Executive obtains for its poliey, or its erimes, the apparent sanction or condonation of France. Frenclimen are asked at the moment, and ln the form most convenient to the statesmen or eonsplrators who ruie in P'aris, to say 'Aye' or 'No' whether they wili, or will not, aecept a given Constitution or a glven polley. The erowd of voters are expected to repiy in accortianee to the wishes or the orders of the Exeeu. tive, and the expectation aiways has met, and an observer may eoafidentiy prediet always wili meet, with fulfiment. The plébiscite isa revointionary, or at least abnormal. proceeding. It is not preected hy dchate. The form and natnre of the question to be submitted to the nation is chosen andi settled by the men in power. Iarely, incleed, winen a piébiscite has been taken, has the voting itseif been eiticer frec or fair. Taine has n strange taie to teii of the methods by whieh a Terrorist faction, when aii but erusheci by general odium, extorted from the country by means of the plébiscite a sham assent to the prolongrtion of revolutionary deapotism. The eredulity of partisanship ean nowadays hardiy induce even Imperiallsts to lmagine that the plébiscites whlch sanctioned tho estabiishment of the Emplre, wileh deeiared Louis Napoleon President for ife, which first re-estahlished Imperialism, and then approved more or íss Liberai reforms, fatal at bottom to the Imperiai system, were the free, deiberate, earefuliy considiered votes of tho French nation given after the peopie had heari aii that couid be sald for and against the proposed innovation.

REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE.

The essential character. istics, however, the inek of which deprives a French piéhiscite of ali morai significance, ure the undonbted propertles of the Swiss Iteferendum. When a law revising the Constitution is placed before the peopie of Switzeriand, every eltizen thronghout the land has enjoged the upportunity of learning tive merits and demerits of the proposed alteration. The subject has beer ' threshed ont,' as the expression goes, in Purlinment: the scheme, whatever its worth, hat ro. ceived the deli'verateiy given approvai of the eiected Legisiath e; it comes before the people with as much authority in ita favour as a Blii

REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE.

Whlel in Engiand has pasced through both Houses."-A. V. Dlcey, The Referendum, (Contemporary Revievo, April, 1800). -"A judg. ment of the referendum must be based on the working of the electoral machlnery, on the interest shown hy the voters, and on the popuiar dlscrimlnation between good and had measures. The process of invokling and votlng on a referendum is slmple and easlly workerl, if not used too often. Although the Assembly has, lu urgeut cases, the constlutlonal riglit to set a resolutlon la force at once, it aiways allows from three to elght months' delay so as to permit the opponents of a measure to lodge their protests against lt. Voluntury committees take charge of the movement, and, if a law is unpopular, littic difieuity ls found in gettlng together the necessary thirty thousand or fifty thousaud slg gatures. Only thriec has the eftort failed wher made. When, as lu 1882, the slgnatures run up to 180,000 , the labor is severe, for every slgas. ture is examiued by the national exccutlve to see whether It ls attested as the slgn manuai of a voter; sometlmes, in an luterested cauton, as many as 70 per cent. of the voters have slgned the demand. The system unclouhtedly leads to public discussion: newspapers criticlse; addresaes and counter aldrisses are issued; cantonal counclls publicly advlse voters; and of late the federal Assemhly sends out manifestoes agalnst pendilng Inltlatives. The federnl Exeeutive Councll distributes to the cantons enough coples of the proposed measure, so that one may be glven to each voter. The count of the rotes is made hy the Executive Counell as a returningboard. Inasmuch as the Swiss are unfamlliar with election frauds, and there has been hut one very ciose vote in the national referenda, the count is not difticult. hut there are always lrregularitles, especlally where mose than one question is presented to the roters at the same time. What ls the effeet of the popular votes, thus carried out? The following table, hased on offelal documents, shows the results for the twenty years, 1875-1894:

|  | 衰 | 它 | E |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| (a.) Cronstitutional amendments proposed by the Assembly (referendum oblikatory) | 1 | 6 | $\dagger$ |
| (b.) Constitutonal amendmenta propusteal thy popmar initialive ( $50, \mathrm{~mm}$ ) slguatures). | 2 | 1 | 4 |
| (c.) Laws passed by the Assembly (relerendum demanded by $30,(0,1)$ ). | 14 14 | $\frac{6}{18}$ | 30 |

- One measure slitt pending.

Making allowances for cases where more than one question has breu subuittell at the same time, there have becu twenty-four popuiar votes in twenty years. In adiltion, most of the cantons have their own local refereula; lo Zurich for example, in these twenty years, more than one hundred other questions have been placed before the sovereign people. These numbers are large in themselves, but surprising in proportlon to the total legislation. Out of 158 general acts passed hy the federal Ass.mbly from $18: 4$ to $1 \times 9.27$ Here suhjeeted to the rifermmon; that is, about one-sixth are reviewemi und about one. tenth are reversed. Constltutloual amendments usually get through sooner or later, but more than two-thlrds of the statutes attacked an annulled. To appiy the system on such a scale In any State of our Unlon is plalnly lmpossible thirty-alne.fortleths of the statute-book must stlll rest, as now, on the character of the leglala tors. Nevertheless it may be worth while to ez clse the other fortleth, if experience shows that the peopic are more interested and whes than their representatives, when a question is put plainiy and simply before them. I must own to dlsappolntment over the use made hy the swis of their envied opportunlty. On the twenty referenda between 1879 and 1891 the average vote In proportion to the voters was but 38.5 per cent. ; In only onc case did it reach 67 per cent. and in one case - the patent iaw of $188 \%^{\circ}$ - it fell to about 40 per cent. In the Confederation, and in 9 per cent. in Canton Schwyz. On the serious and dangerous question of recognalzing the right to employment, thls present year, only about 38 per cent. partlclpated. In Zurich there ls a compulsory roting law, of which the curious result is that on both natlonal and cantonal referends many thousands of hlank haliots are cast. The result of the smail vote ls that iaws. duiy con. oldered hy the natlonai legisiature and passed hy conshlemble majoritles, are often reversed hy a minority of the voters. The most probable rea. son for this apatiny is that there are ton many electlons-in some cantons as many as fiftern a Year. Whatever the cause, 8 wiss voters are less luterested in referenda than Swlas legislaturs in framing hills.

REFORMATION

' I am a friend of the ruferendum,' says an eminent member of the Fsecutive Council, 'hut I do not llke the Inltiatlpe.' The experienee of Switzerland seems to show frup thlngs: that the Swlss voters are not deeplrinterested in the referendum; that the refereadum Is as ilkely to klll good as bad neasures; that the lnitlative is more llkely to euggest bal meas. ures than good; that the referenilum leads $\mathrm{s}^{*}$ alght to the initiative. The referendum in the United States would therefore probably be an attempt to govern great eommunlties by per manent town meetlng."-Prof. A. B. IIart, Fos Populi in Scitzerland (Nivtion, Sept. 13, 1894).
Also is: A. L. Loweil, The Referendum in Scitzerland and America (Atlantic 1ronthly, April, 1894)-E. P. Oberholtzer, The Referen dum in America.
REFORM, Pariamentary, See England: A. D. $1830 ; 1830-1832$; ; 865-1868, and 18 $84-1885$.

REFORMATION: Bohemia. See Boneym
A. D. 140s-1415; and 1419-1434, and after.

England. See Enghavid: A. D. 15: -1534, w 155s-1588.

France. See Papacy: A. D. 1521-1535; and Frasce: A. D. 153?-1547, and after Germany. Sce Papacr: A. D. 1516-1517, 1517, $151 \%-1521,1521-1522 . \quad 1522-1525,1525$ 1529, 1530-1331, 158\%-1503; also (teamayy: A. D. 1517-1583, 1530-1539, 1533-1546, 1546 Ruine: A. D. 1518-1572.

Hungary. See Huxoany: A. D. 1526-1507.
Ireland; its failure. See Ireland: A. D. 1535-1553.

Netherlands, Ser Netreatasps: A. D. $1521-15 \% 5$, and after.

Pledmont. See Savor and Piedyont: A. D. 1550-1580.

REFORMATION.

RENAI8SANCL

Scotiand. See Scotland: A. D. 1547-1657; 1555; 1558-1500; and 1561-1508.
Sweden and Denmark. See Scandimavian Staten: A. D. 1597-1527.
Switzeriand. Ser Papacy: A. I). 1519-1524; Switzerland: A. D. 1528-1531; and Geneva: A. J. 1504-1535; and 1530-1504.

REFORMATION, The Counter. See PA. PAEY: A. D. 1594-1540: 1537-1563; 1555-1608. REFORMED CHURCH, The.-The Protestant chureh which rose in Switzeriand under Zwingil (see Papact: A. D. 1510-1524: and Stitzerland: A. D. $1528-1531$ ), and was dereioped and organized under Caivin (see GEsEVA: A. D. 1504-1535; and 1530-1504), took the name of the Beformed Chureh. Under that name its organization of Protestantism prevailed in France, in the Netheriands and the Palat. inate. The Preshyterian church in Scotiand was substantially the same. The organization and the name were hrought from Iloiland to the Datelicolony of New Netheriand.-E. T. Corwin, lliat of the Reformed Church, Dutch.
REGED. See CUYBRIA.
REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY, New York. See EDication, Modehn : Amer. ICA: A. D. 1746-1787.
REGICIDES. Sce Enoland: A D. 1600168.5; and Consecticut: A. 1). 1680-1664.

REGILLUS, Lake, Battle at. A battle witi the Lating to which the Romane ascribed thelr diellverance from the iast of the Tarquins.
REGNI, The. Sec Bhitain. Celtic Thiles.
REGULATORS OF NORTH CARO-Lina. See Nortil Caholina; A. D. 1i06-1:त1. REGULUS, and the Carthaginians. See Preic Wan, The Finst.
REichstag. See Diet. the Germanic.
REIGN OF TERROR, The. See TERRor.
REIS © ifendi. See siblime Porte.
RELI JUS LIBERTY. Se Tolera. This.
REMONSTRANTS AND COUNTERREMONSTRANTS. See Netuehlands: A. i) $161 / 3$ - 1619 .

REMOVAL OF THE DEPOSITS. Sce Enited States of AM. : A. D. 1833-1836.
RENAISSANCE, The.-" The word Renaissance has of iate years reccived a more exteniled siguiticance than that which is implied in our Foglish equivaient - the Reviral of Learning. We use it to denote the whoie transition from the Miditie Ages to the Modern Worid; and though it is possible to assign certain limits to the period during which this transition took place, we cannot ix on any dates so positively as to say - between this year and that tie movemeat was accompished. To do so would be like trying to name the days on which spring ln any particular season began and ended. Yet we speak of spring as different from winter and from sutnmer. . . By the term Renaissance, or new hirth. is indicated a naturai movement, not to be explained by this or that characteristic, but to lne acrepted us an effort of humanity for which al longth tine time had comp, and in the onward innurews of which we still participate. The histiry of the lenaissance lis not the history of arts, or ot sperners. or of liternture, or eveu of natimi. It is the history of the attainment of selfcomerims freedom by the human spirit manlfested iu the European races. It is no mere political mutation, no new fachion of art, no rentoration of classical standards of taste. The arts and the luventions, the knowledge and the books which suddeniy became vital at the time of the Renaissance, had long lain neglected on the shores of the Dead Sea which wo call the Middle Ages. It was not tieir discovery which caused tho Renaissance. But it was the lntellectual energy, the spontaneous outhurst of intelligence, which enabled mankind at tiat moment to make use of them. The foree then generated still continues, vital and expansive, in the spirit of the modern world. . The reason why Italy took the lead ln the Renaissance was, that Italy posseased a language, a favourahic climate, political freedom, and commerclal prosperity, at a time when other nations were stili semi-barharous.

It was $\qquad$ at the beginning of the 14 th century, when Italy had lost lndeed the herolc spirit which we admire ln her Communes of the 13th, but had gained Instead ease, wealth, magniffence, and that repose which springs from long prosperity, that the new age at last began.

- The great achievements of the Renalssance were the discovery of the world and the discovery of man. Under these two formula may be classl. fled ali the phenomena which properly belong to this period. The discovery of the world divides itself into two branches - the exploration of the globe, and the eystematic exploration of the universe which is In fuct what we call Science. Columbus made known America in 1402; the Portuguese munded the Cape in 1497 ; Copernicus expininel the solar system in 1507 . It is not necessary to add anything to this plain statement.

In the discovery of man.

- it is possilite to trace a twofoid process. Minn in his temporal reiations, iilustrated hy Pagan antiquity, and man in his spiritual relations, liiustrated by Bibilical antiquity: these are the two regions, at first apparentiy distinct, afterwards found to be interpenctrative, winci tine criticai and inquisitive genius of the Renaissance opened for Inves. tigation. In the former of these regions we tind t wo agencies at work, art and scholarship. Tirrough the instrumentality of art, and of ail the ideas which art introduced lnto daily life, the Renaissance wrought for the modern world a real resurrection of the body. . . . It was seholarship which revealed to men the wealth of their own minds, the dignity of human thought, the vaiue of human specuiation, the importance of human life regarded as a thing apart from religious rules and dogmas.

The Renaissance opened to the whole reading puhlic the treasure-houses of Greek and Latin iiterature. At the same time the Bible ln its original tongues was rediscovered. Mines of Oriental learning were laid hare for the students of the Jewish and Arnbic traditions. What we may call the Aryan and the Semitic revelations were for the first time subjected to something like a critical comparison. With unerring lnstinct the men of the Reuaissance named the voluminous subject-matter of seholarship 'Littere Humaniores,' the more human literature, the literature that humanises [hence the term Humanism]. . Not oniy did sehoiarship restore the classics and encourage literary critcicism; It also restored the text of the Bihle, and pacouraged theological criticism. In tite wake of theoiogical freedom followed a free philiosophy, no longer subject to the dogmas of the Church. . . . On the one side

RENAIBSANCE

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT.

Descartee and Bacon, and Spinoza, and Locke are sons of the Renalecance, champions of new. found phifosophical freedom; on the other side, Luther is $n$ son of the Repalcaance, the herald of new-found religlous freedom."-J. A. Symonds, Renaicannce in Italy: Ago of the Deapots, eh. 1."'The Renaissance, mo far as painting is concerned, may bo aaid to have culminated between the years 1470 acd 1550 . These dates, it muat be frankiy admitted, are arhitrary: nor is there anything more unproftable than the attempt to detine by strict chronology the moments of an intellectual growth so compiex, so unequally progreasive, and so varied as that of Itslian ari. All that the historian can hope to do, is to strike a mean between his reckoning of years and his of deciaive genius in of decisive genius in special men. An instance of such compromise is afforded hy Lionardo da Vinci, who belongs, as far as dstes go, to the last half of the fifteenth century, but who must on any estimate of his achievement, be classed with Michael Angelo among the final and supreme masters of the full Renaissance. To vioiate the order of time, with a view to what may here be called the morphology of Itallan art, is, in his case, a plain duty. Bearing this in mind, it atili possible to regard the eighty years above mentioned as a period no longer of promise and preparation but of fultalment and accomplishment. Furthermore, the thirty years at the close of the difteentif century may be taken as one epoch in this cilmax of the art, while the first hal of the sixteentif forms a second. Within the former fails the best work of Mantegnn, Perugino, Francia, the Bellini, Signorelli, Fra Bartolommeo. To the latter we may reckon Michael Angelo, Raphacl, Glorgione, Correggio, Titian, and Andrea del Sarto. Lionardo dá Vinci, though beionging chronologicaliy to the former epoch, ranks trst among the masters of the iatter; and to this aiso may be given Tintoretto, though his ilfe extended far beyond it to the last years of the century." The same, Renaisance in Italy: The Fine Arts, eh. 4-6."It would be difticuit to find any pet in in the history of modern Europe equal in i. with that distinguished in history under ie name of the IRenalssanee. Standing midway between the decay of the Middle Ages and the growth of molern institutions, we may ray that It was already dawaing in the days of Dante Alighieri, in wiose inmertal works we find the synthesls of a dying age and tie announcement of the birth of a new era. This new era - the Renaissance - began with Petrarch and his learned contemporaries, and ended with Martin Luther nim the Keformation, which event not only produced signal changes in the history of those nations which remainet Catholic, but transported beyond the Aips the centre of gravity of European culture."-P. Villari, Nicenos Maehin. wlli and his Times, o. 1. ch. 1. - J. Burckhardt. The Ciritization of the piring of the Renaisanane in Italy. -On thic cominunication of the novement to France, as a notuble consequence of the incasion of Itaiy by Churies VIII., see Italy: A. D. 1404-1496.-Sife, aiso, Italif: 14 te CentURY, and 15-16Tu Cextrines: Fionesce; A.I). 1469-1492; Vrnice: 16th Centror: Fnance: A. D. 1492-10゙すJ, and letu Centliy ; Enteca-

RENE (ealled The Good), Duke af Aajou and Lorralas and Count of Provence, A.D. 1484-1480; King of Naplea, A. D. $1485-1412$ Seo ANJOU: A. b. $1200-1412$.
RENSSE*.AER INSTITUTE. See Enc.
 RENSIELAERWICK, The Patroon col. 0ay and manor of. See New Yorx: A. D. 1621-1640; almo. LIvMgetos Manor.
REPARTIMIENTOS.-ENCOMIEN-DAS.- Columitua, as governor of Illapmaiola (Hayti), made an arrangement "by willeh tie caciques in their vicinity, instead of paying trihute, should furnish parties of their subjeets, free Indiuns, to asaist the colonists in the cultiration of their lands: a hind of feudal service, Which was the origin of the repartimientos, or distributions of free Indians among the colonivis, afterwarde generally adopted, and shamefuily ahused, throughout the Spanish colonies; nource of intolerable hardslifps and oppressiona to the unhappy natives, and which greatiy eea. tributed to exterminnte them from the island of Hispaniola. Columbus conaidered the island in the light of a conquered country, and arrogated to himself all the righte of a conqueror, in the name of the sovereigns for whom he fought."W. Irving. Life and Voyages of Cobumbun, bk. 13. ch. 4 ( 0.2 ), -"The words 'repartimiento' and 'cncomienda' are often used indiacriminately by Spanish authors; hut, speaking accurately, ' repartimiento' means the first apportionment of Indians, - 'encomlenda 'the apportionmeat of any spaniard's share which might become -vacant' hy his death or banishment."-Sir A Helps, Spaniuh Conquest in Am., bk. 6, ch. 2 , frot-noto (v. 1).-"' Repartimiento,' a distribution; 'repartir,' to divide; 'encomieala,' charge, a commandery; 'encomendar,' to give ir charge; 'encomendero,' he wio hoils an encomienda. In spain an encomienda, as hero understood, was a dignity in the four nilitary orders, endowed with a rental, and beid by eer. tain members of the order. It was aequired through the liberality of the crown as a reward for eervices in the wars against the Monrs. The lands taken from the Infldels were dividedi among Christian commanders; the inihhitants of those lands wcre crown tenants, and life-rights to their services were given these commanders. In the Iegisiation of the Indies, encomienda was the patronage conferreal by rogal favor over a por. tion of the natives, conpled with the obligation to teacis them the doctrines of the Church, and to defend their persons and property. . . . The system begun in tic New Woril by Columhus, Hobadilla, and Orando was continuedi by lusco Nuñez, Pedrarins, Cortes, and Pizarron, and finally became generai."-H. II. Bancroft. livt. of the Pucific States, v. 1, p. 262, fient-nute.-Ste, also, SLAVERY, ModERN: OF THE LNDIANY.
REPEAL OF THE UNION OF IRELAND WITH GREAT BRITAIN, The Agitation for. See Irelavd: A. D. 1811-18:9, 1840-1841, and 1841-1848.

REPETUND/E, See Calptrinian Law.

 REPHAIM, The. See Hohites. The. REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1884 . See ENOLAND: A. D. 1844
REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT.

 -"This [representative government] is the griaitbpe, whether kingly of republlean, and the city-commonwealths of old Greece. It is the great politicail Invention of Teutonlc Europe, the one form of political life to which nelther Thucillules, Arintotio, nor Polyhios ever anw more than the fainteat approach. In Greece it wss hardly needed, hut in Italy $\$$ reprementative syetem would have deilvered Rome from the fearfui choice which she had to make between anarehy and deapotiam."-E. A. Freeman, Mist. of Frd. enal Gior't, ch. 2.-"Examples of neariy every form of government are to be founu in the varled hlstory of Grecce: but nowhere do we fud a distinct system of political representation. There is, indeed, a passage in A-stotle which implies knowledge of the principies of representation. He speaks of 'a moderate oligarehy, in which men of a certain census elect a councll entrusted with tho deliberative power, but bound to exercise this power agreeably to entablished laws.s There can be no better definition of representution than this: bu: It appears to express hia theoretical conception of a government, rather than to describe any example withln his own experience. Such a system was Incompatible with the democratic constitutions of the city republics: but in their international councils and leagues, we may perceivo a certaln resembiance to it. There was an approach to representation in the Amplictyonle Council, and in the Achaian League; and the several clties of the Lyclan League had a number of votes in the asmembly, proportioned to the'r size - the Arst example of the kind - being a still nearer approsimation to the principles of representatlon. But it was reserved for later ages to devise the great scheme of representative government, under which large States may enjoy as much liberty as the walled cities of Greece, and individual citizens may exercise their politicai rights as fuily as the Athendans, without the disonders and perils of pure democracy."-SirT. E. ylas, Demorracy in E"urope, r. 1, ch. 3.-"The most interesting, and on the whole the most successfui, experiments in popular governnicnt, are those whieh have frankly recognised the difflcuity under which it labours. At the head of these we must place the virtuaily English discovery of government by Representation, which caused Parliamentary institutlons to be preserved in these islauds from the destruction which orertork them everywhere else, and to devolve as an inheritance upon the United States. "-AIr H. S. Mainc, Popuher Gorernment, p. 92.-"Tu find the real origin of the modern representative system we must turn to the assemblies of the second grade in the early German states. In these the freemen of the smaller loculity - the Hundred or Canton-came together in a public meeting which possessed no doulit legislatlve power over matters purely locul, hut wbose most important function seems to have been judicial - a local court, preslded over by a chief who auggested and announced the verilict. which, however, derived its validity from the declsion of the assembly, or, In later times, of a number of their body appointed to act for the whole. Those local courts, probably, as has been suggested, because of the compara. tiveig restricted character of the puwers whleh they possessed, vere destined to a long life. On the contineat they iasted untll the very end of the middle ages, when they were generaliy overthrown by the Introduction of the Roman is too highly sclentiac for thels almpio methods. In Engiand they lasted until they furolahed the model, and probably the auggetion, for a far more important institution - he Houte of Commons. How many graden of these focmi courts there were on the contlaent below the natloaal asembly is a matter of dipputo. In England there was clearly a series of three. The lowest was the township ssembly, concerned oniy with matters of very alight lmportance and aurviving atill In the Engllah ventry meeting and the New England town-meetlag. Above thls was the hundred's court formed upon a diatinctly repre. sentative principle, the asaemhly being compowed, together with certsin other men, of four representativea sent from each townchip. Then, third, the tribal assembly of the originai Httle settlement, or, the small kingdom of the early conquest, seema to have aurvived when this kingdom was swallowed up in a larger one, and to have origlnated a new grade in the blerarchy of asmemblies, the county assembly or shlre enurt. At any rate, whatever may have been lis orgin, and whatever may be the final decision of the vigorously dlaputed question, whether in the Frankish state there were any assemblies or courts for the counties distinct from the courts of the bundreda, it ls certaln that courts of this grade came into existence in England and were of the utnost lmportance there. In them, too, the representative principlo was distinctly expressed, each township of the shire being represented, as in the hundred'a court, hy four chosen representatives. These courts, also, pass essentially unchanged through tho English feudal and ahsolutist perlod, maintaining lical self-goverament and preserving more of the primitive freedom than survived elsewhere. We shall see more $\ln$ detail, at a later point, how the representative principle originating in them is transferred to the national legisiature, creating our modern ational representative aystcm."-G. B. Adams, Cicilization during the Viddle Ages, ch. 5. -Bee Parlitayent, The Enolinh.

REPRESENTATIVES AT LARGE.When, after an increase in its number of representatives, the state has falled to redistribute it districts, the additional member or members arm voted for upon a general state ticket, and are callcal "representatíves at large,"

REPRESENTATIVES, Houne of. See Conorese of the Unated States.

REPUBLICAN PARTY OF THE UNITED STATES, The earlier. See UnITED States of A.x.: A. D. 1789-1792; 1798; and 1825-1828.
The Ister. See U'sitedStates of Ay.: A. D. 1854-1855.

Liberai and Radical wings. See Unrted States of AM. : A. D. 1872.

REPUBLICANS, Independent, See UniTED STATEA OF AN.: A. D. 1884.

RESACA, Battle of. See Usited States or Ay. : A. D. 1864 (Mat: Georain). . . . . Hood'e attack on. See United States of Am. : A. D. 1864 (SEPTYMBER-October: Georita).

RESACA DE LA PALMA, Battic of. Sce Mexico: A. D. 1846-1847.

RESAINA, Battle of. - A battle, fought A.D. 241, in which Sapor I. the Persian king, was defeated by the Roman emperor Cordian, In Mee opotamia. - G. Rawlineon, Seronth Oreat Oriental Nomareay, eh. 4.

RESAINA.

RHINE LEAGUE.

RESCH-GLUTHA, The. - The " Priace of the Captivity." See Jews: A. D. $200-400$.
RESCISSORY, ACt.-See SCOTLAND: A.D 1680-1668.
RESCRIPTS, Roman Imperial. See Corfus Junia Civilis
RESEN. Bee Rotryvo Tif
RESIDENCIA. -" Meniden. . Wha the examination or account taken of the oftictal acts of an executive or juulictal otticer [Spanish] during the term of his reailence withla the province of its jurimiction, and white in the exercice of the functons of his offlec.. . While an official wat undergoing his residencia it was equivaient to his belng under arrest, as be could aelther exerclse office uor, except in certain cases specified, leave the piace."-11. 11. Bancroft, Hint. of the Preifte Stales, t 1, p. 250, foot-note.

Also IN: F. W. Blackmar, Spanioh Inetitutiona of the s,iuth west, p. 69 .
RESIDENT AT EASTERN COURTS, The Englinh. See lwpIA. A. D. 1877.
RESTITUTION, The Edict of. See Ger. Mant: A. 1. 1627-1699.
RETENNU The. See Roternv, Thz.
RETHEL, Battle of (1650). See Frasce: A. D. $1650-1651$.

RETREAT OF THE TEN THOUSAND, The. Sec Perala: 13. C. 401-400.
RETz, Cardinal De, and the Fronde. See France: A. 1). 1040, to 18.11-1 Ris.
REU1L, Peace of. Ree Fuisce: A. D. 1 M40. REUNION. Sir Miscahene 1miaxm.
REVERE, Pani, The ride of. See United States of Ame : A. 1). 1775 (Aprile).
REVIVAL OF LEARNING.
vatbeance.
REVOLUTION, The American. See
Uisted Statee of Am.: A. D. 1785, and after. The English, of 1688 . Sie Erohand: A. D. 16 88.
The French, of 1789. Spe France: A. D.
178i-1789, and after.
The French, of 1830. See France: A. D. 18:5-1830.
The French, of 1848. See Frasce: A. D. 1841-1848, and 1848 .
REVOLUTION, The Year of. See ELrope (v. 2, Pp. 1098-1098); ITALY: A. D. $1848-1849$; Germant: A. D. 1848 (Sarch), to $1848-1850$; Atsthia: A. D. 1848, to 1848-1850; Ilunoary: A. D. 1847-1849; France: A. D. 1841-1848, and 1848.

REVOLUTIONARY TRIBUNAL, The. See France: A. D. 1793 (Fenruary-April). RE'DANIYA, Battle of ( 5517 ). See TCRK8: A. D 1481-1520.
REYNOSA, Battic of. See Spare: A. D. 1808 (SEftembeh-December).
RHETIA. - Rhetiana, Vindellciana, etc. -"The Alps from tie Simpion pass to the sources of the Drave were occupied by the RI. wn. Beyond the Iun and the Lalke of Co ince, the plain which slopes gently towards the Danube was knawn by the name of Vindelicia. Styria, the Kammergut of Salzburg, and the southern half of the Austrian Archduchy, beloaged to the tribes of Norifum, while the pasess between that country and lasy were held by the Carniens." The loman mn. quent of thin Alplan repion was effected in the yeurs 16 and 15 B . C. by he two stepsons of the Emperor Auguatum, Tir erius and Drusur. In addition to the prople mentloned abore, the Camuni, the Vennones, the Brenni and the Genauni were crushed. ', The free tribes of the eastern Alps apivear thel. for the ormt time in bistory, only to disappee.r again for a thousani yearn, -C. Merivale, Llist. of tho Romans, eh. 33 . -see, aimo, Tyrol.

Settlement of the Alemanal In. See Als MANMI: A. D. 490-504.

RHAGES. see liaoa.

RHEGIUM, Sleze of (B. C. 387).-Rheglum. an important Greek city, in the exireme suluth of Itaiy, on the struit which separatce the peninsuia from sicily, lacurred the bostiity of the tyrant of Syracuse, the elder Dlonysius, by scorufuliy refusing him a bride whom he aio licited. The savage tempered deapot madir sererai attempts Without success to surprise the town, and trally laid niege to it with a prowerful armay and fleet. The inhabitanta resisted des. perateiy for cieven months, at the crd of whleb time (13. C. $888^{\circ}$ ) they were starved into surn nder. "Dionyslus, on enterlng Bheglum. found heaps of unluirled corpses, besides 6,000 eitizens tin the last stage of =maclation. Ail these captives ware sent to syracuse, where tiose who teubld provlde a mina (about $£ 3.17 \mathrm{~s}$.) were allowedi to ransom themselves, while the rest were sold at slaves. After sueb a period of suffering, the number of those who retained the nueans of ransom was proinably very smail."-G. Grote, llitt. of tireece, pt. 2, ch. 83 .

RHEIMS: Origin of the name. Sec Bele.
A. D. 1429. - The crowning of Charies Vil. See France: A. D. 1420-1431
A. D. 1884.-Capture by the Ailiea and recovery by Napoleon. Sec France: A. D. 1514 (January-March).

RHEINFELDEN, Siege and Battle of ( 16388 ), See Gerxary: A. D. $1634-1639$.
RHETRAE. See Spahta: THE Cosotitt TION.
RH: The Circle of the. Sec Genvart: A. $?$

RI; :E, The Confederation of the. See Ger nt: A. D. 1805-1806; 1806 (JangaryAlocat); 1813 (October-December); and France:A. D. 1814 (January-Mareh).
RHINE, Roman passage of the. See TASPETEA AND TENCTHERH.

RHINE LEAGUE, The. - Thc Rhine League was one of scverai Bunds, or contederations formed among the German trading towns in the middie ages. 'Ir the common protection of their commerce. it comprised the towns of southwest Germany and the Lower Phine prov. inces. Prominent among its members were Co . logne, Wessel and Munster. Cologne, already a large and flourishing city, the chitl market of the trule of the Rhine lands, was a member, iikewise, of the Hanseatic Leagur (are Has3A Towrs) - J. Yeats, Groveth and Vicisuitules of Commerce, $p$. 158. - See, also, Citiea, Imperial and Frec, of Geryany; and Fedrbal Governiciry.

RHODE ISLAND.

RHODE ISLAND.

The aboriginal inhableants. See Amertcas Anontuenes: Aloongutar Familt.
A. D. 1631-1636.-Roger Wllitams In Maso sachusatts. - His ofenses agalugt Boston Puritanism.-His beniahment.- On the Bth of February, 1681, "the shlp Lyon arrived at Nan. taket, with twenty passengera and a large store of provisiona. Iler arrival was most timely, for the [Jassachumetts] colonlate were reduced to the int exigenclet of famine. Many had alrealy died of want, and many nore were rescued from inminent peril by this providential occurrence. A publle fast had been appointed for the day sueceeiling that on which the ship reselied Bowtun. It wan ehnnged to general thanksgiving. There was another lncident connected with the arrival of this ship, which maie it an era, not only In the affair of Massarhusetts, hut in the himtury of America. She brought to the whores of Sew Eaglond the founder of a new State, the expouent of a new phlloophy, the intellect that was to harmonlze rellgious ditierenees, sad mothe the aspertlea of the Vew Wurid: a man whose ciearness of mind caabled hlm to deduce, from the mass of crude mpeculations which abounded In the 17th century, a proposition so comprehensive, that it is difficult to say whether its applles. tion has produced the mont beuettial result upon riliglon, or morals, or politles. Thls man was Huger Willlams, then about thlrty-two pears of aut. Ile was a scholar, well versed in the anchat and some of the modern toagues, an enrnewt ingulrer after truth, and an arient friend of popular llberty as well for the mlui as for the buiy. As a 'gorlly minister,' he was welcomed to the soclety of the Puritans, and mon invited by the chureh in Salem to aupply the place of the limeated IIIggluson, an asslstant to thelr paxtor Nomuri Skeitn The invitation was acerpterl, but the terma is minlstry was destlaed to be brief. The autnoritics at lloston remonstrated with those at Balem agalnst the reception of Williams. The Court at its next session alliressed a letter to Mr. Endleott to this effect: - That whereas Mr. Wlllinms had refused to join with the congregntlon at lioston, because they would not make a publle declaration of their repentance for having communlon with the churches of England, whlle thry llved there; ant, lexsldes, had declared his oplaton that the maglatrate might not punish the breach of the Sabbath, nor any other offence, as lt was a breach of the first iable; therefore they marvelled that they would choose him without advising with the councll, and wilthal desiring lilm, that they wrould forbear to proceed till they hat conferred about lt.' Thls attempt of the mngis. trates of Boston to control the election of a church olicer at Salem, met whith the rebuke it surichly inerited. The people were not lgnorant of the liostillty thelr Invitation hal exclted; jet on the very day the remonstrance was written, they selted Willams as their minister. The ostensible reasons for this hostillty are set forth in the letter above clted. That they were to a frat extent the real ones cannot be questloned. The ceelesiastlcal pollty of the Puritans sane. thoned thas interference. Thelr church platform approved lt. Posltlve atatute would seem to require is. Nevertheless, we cannot hut thlak tiat, underiying all this, there was a secret stimulus of atnbition on the part of the Boston Court to strerigtlien it suthurity over the promperove and, in mome respectn, Fival colong of Salem.

As polltical monture this interference falled of lis ohject. 'the nouple remented so great a streteh of authority, and the ehurch dlsnegarded the renonstrance. ... What could not as yet le accompllshed hy direct Interven. tlon of the Court was effected in a surer mannes: The fearlessness of Willlams in denounclig the errors of the trues, and enpecially the doctrine of the maglstrate's power in rellglon, gave rime to a system of jersecutlon whleh, lxefore the close of the sammer, ohilgeyl him to seck reiuge beyond the jurisuliction of Massachusetts in the more llweral colony of the Pligrims. At Plymouth 'he wan well acceptel as an aselstant in the ministry to Mr. IRalph Ninlth, then pastor of the church there. The princlpui meu of the eolony treated hlm with marked attenthon. . . The opportunItles there prewented fur cultivating an intlmaste actuaintance with the clilef Nachems of the nelghboring triben were well improved, and exerted an Important Intluence, not only in creatiag the State of which lie wan to lee the foumier, hut alwo in protectlng alf New Eugland amld the lurrors of mivage wnrfare. Onsamequin, of Iasmasolt, as he is usually called, was the Sachem of the Wampnnoags, called also the Pokanoket trile, inhabiting the Plymouth territory. Ills seat was at Monut Hope, in whnt ls now the town of Bristol, il. I. With this chlef, the early nul steadfast friend of the Engllsh, Willams establlshed a fricuilship whleh proved of the greatest servlee nt the time of hls exlle,"-S. G. Arnoll, Mistury of the State of Whorle Istomd and Pruciletere Plinifutions, e. 1, ch. 1. -Willams "remalmeri at Ilymouth, teuchlugy in the eliureli, tut sifpiorti: hlmeclf ly hinmisi labor, nearly two yean. Ills mialstry was popular in the main aud his persou universally llked. Finally, however, he advanced some oplulons which did not sult the steaty-golng Plymouth elders, aud therefore, departing 'something nbruptly, he returned to snlem. There he acted as asslstint to Mr. Skelton, the aged rastor of the church, and when Mr. Skelton Cled, less than a year later, became has succeswor. At Satem he wins again undur the survellaace of the rulers and ellers of the Bay, and they were swlft to make him senslble of it. He had written In Plyinouth, for the Plymoutli Governor and Councli a trentlige ou the Sassachisetts Patent, in whlch he had malntained hls doctrine that the Klng could not glve the settlers a right to take away from the natlves thelr laud withont paying them for lt. Ile was not in lawyer but an ethlcal teacher. nud it was doubtless as suelt that lie malntnlned this opinlou. In our day its ethleai correctness is not disputed. It has always been good ithoule Island doctriue. Ile alwo critleised the patent because iu it Klog James clninued to be the first Christlau prince who discovered New Eng. laud, nni because he called Europe Christendom or the Christiau World. Williams did not scruple to denounce these formal fictlons iu dowaright Saxon as Ites. He does not appear to have been. at any perlot of his life, a paragon of conven. tional propriety. A rumor of the treatise got ahrosd, though it remained unpubished. The patent happened to be a sensitive point with the anagistratee. It had been grooted In England to and Engllah trading company, and lis trinefer to Yassnchumetto was an act of quest lonablo legality. Mivenvei it was exceedingly doubeful whether the rulerg, In exercianar the extensiva civll jurisdieflun wheh they claimed under It , did mm ex cred thalr anthority. They were appretienalve of ir mevilnge to torfelt lt, and therefore were craply charined at any turning of aftentlon to It. Wits they henrl of the treatiec they eent for it, and, tavlue. E.tit, anmmoned the author to be rensurind. . las appeared in an unexpectedly plucahte int ani and not only antlated thelr minfa la regapil "ne of its obscurer pamages, but offer: .it had served Ito pirpome, to be bur. 1 The ins zatrates, propltiatel by hin complat a ate ryear +yl to hnvo acceptel the ofter as enils . . a mollue of allence, though it in lin: in: 'hin' te, tite uncompromising chamH" ""r rigin I rigits, enn over hato meant to El. "re erbe n, pear to give, much a promime.

RHODE 18LAND, 1631-1030

RHODE ISLAND, SEL-108.
 than he it to laslug the praterot they were act of vornhlp, as: "A Mot be taken by such $n$ man wimblt fowfonlion lle nasi tunght properiy the exachat from any one against hls will, noul that evela Chrivilans ought not to dese crate: It by taking It for trivial cinases.

Tine magistrates agntn Inatitutell proceecilngs againat hlun, wil Hrst suhjectligg haten to the ordeal of clericai visitation, then formaily summouing hlm to nnswer for hiniself befare the General Court. At the sane thate tive Sniem charcio was nrralgneal for cuutionpt fu ciloming hlm us pastor wifle he was under quastion. The court, however, did not pricerd to jutigineme, but aifowal them both furlhir time for rei*ntiace, It an happenel thut lie inhablunts of sulem layd a perltion before the court for some lant at lartichema Neck, willh tiney did chatienge as befonglag tio their town. The court, when the petiana came up, refused to grant it untll the sisiem chureh shomh give satisfactlon for Its contempt, thas virluaily allimathg that the petthoners hal no chatm to justlce ereth, sul iong as tiney adhered to their recusant pastor. Witiams was natumily Indignamt. He iasiuerd his churcit - 'enchantel! hls church, says Cotton Mather - to mend lettirs to the sister cinarcives, appeaing of them to nilmonisia the magistrates and dejmeties of their -heinomy sin.' Ile wrute the letters hinseif. His Maswichusetts contemporaries say ho was - "nlamblike." L'adonhtetily they heard no geatic blenting in those letters, hut mather the revertherating rome uf tise lion chafing In hls rage. The churcies repelied the appreal; and then turning to the Nalcon chiurcil, heslegerl it only the more axdlumonsi, lalxoring with it, nine with mute, to aiaminte it froms lis pastor. What couid the one church do, - With the: magistracy aguinst It, tie clergy against it, the charches and the peopic agninst it. nutterlng their vague anathemas, and shifem towts stacring anjuity on its aceomit. What couid it tie, but yleld, it ylelded virtuaily If not yet in form; and Wliliams stoxi forth alone in his opposition to the ualted power of Church and Etace. The finceful court dey came at leat. The court momiables, magterater and deputien, with the clergy to advibe them Williams appeares not to be effed but en be sen tenced unlens he will retract. Hio reafinrms in oplalons. Mr. Hooker, a fumous clencal dialect clan, is choten to diapute wlth him, and the molemn mockery of confutation begins ... Il itsp after hour, he argues unmublued, till the sun sink how and the weary court adjourme. On the mor raw [Priday, October 9,1685 ], still pernisting it his glorluns "contumacy: he is rentenced, the clergy all atave one ndrintag, to be banlainel, or, to alopt the apologetle but fellctious ouphemism, of his great adveriary. John Cotton, 'ealarget oilt of Masmenusetta. He was allowed at fint alm weeke, afterwards untli spring, to depart. But In Janunty the maghatmies laving baril that he was drawing others to ble oplnlon, zull that hle purpowe was to erect a pianation about Narraganett Bay. frome whence the $n$ infector Narragamett Bay, 'frome whence the Infection would easily apread,' comeluded to send hlm hy shifl, then rendy, to Eaglatid [see Massacur Gif7e: A. D. 16afl. The story is familiar how Willarms, advised of their intent, bammel It iny pluaging into the wildernem, where, after belng 'morely ust for one fourtren weeks, lo a bitter winter manon, not knowlng what breal or bed did mean.' he mettled with the openlui spring on the east liank of the Seekonk, and there thill nid planted." - T. Durfee, Historical Diemenrar: Tim hundred anol flieth Anniveraary of the is llement of Providence, 1886.-"The course pur nued towarde Roger Wlliams was not excep. tlonnl. What was done to him had been dune fo repeated Instances before. Within the tirst year of Its mettiement the colony had passel mentim. of excluslon from Its territory upon no less than fourteen persons. It was the ordlary nerlfaw by which a corporate boly would deal witio thew whose preseuce no longer meemed desiralitie. 'wo ceiving themerlves to be by patent the cexciunico punsessors of the 30.i9, -soll which they had purchased for the sceompllahment of thetir personal and private ends, - the colonalsts never duwited thelr competency to fix the terms on which others should be allowed to share in thelr undertaking.

While there is some dis. crepancy In the contemporary accounta of this tranaction, there Is entire agreement on one point. that the assertlon by iloger Willtans of the doctrine of 'moul-iiberty' was not the head and front of ils offendlag. Whatever was meat liy the vague charge In the final centence that he had 'hroacinct and divulget! new and dangerons oplatons, ngainst the authority of magistrutes, It did not nan that he linit mate emphutic the broad doctrine of the putirn separs. tion of church asal state. We have hils own testimony on thla paint. In severai allusichts to the andiject In has later writinga, - nurl it cha harlly be supposeri that In a mater which ber felt so soreiy his memory would have twirayel him, - he never assigns to hls opinion respecting the power of the clvil magistrate more than a secoadary plare. IIe repeatedly ${ }^{4}$ rmas thit the chlef caures of his banlahment a his extreme Fiews regarling separation, and his denouncing of the patent. Ifan lie teen hitnself tonscious of having Incurred the inostlity of the Msssachusetts colony for assert lug the great principle with whlch he was afterwarls ldentlded, he would surdy have land mirewe upon lt. if it Is. clear that ta the long controveray it hat become covered up by other lasuen, and that hin oppo. nents, at leak, did not regari it at him most dangerous bereay. Bo far as it was a mere spectsmalife opinion it was not new. To upbruld the Purtans as unreienting periecutors, or extol Ihger Wilitime as a muttyr (u) the cause of rellgtims liberty, te equally whle of the real fact. On the one hand, the controversy liad lin orighn In the panalonate and preclplente zeal of a young man whoe reiloh for diputation mailo intin never unwilling to encounter oppoultion, and on the (Ahrr, In the exigencles of a unlque comar.' 'ty, where the Inatinets of a private corpimaration hasi pot yet expminded into the more liberal polley of - lixily poiltic. If we cannot tmpute to the ©nlony any large atatemmanshlp, to nelther cun we wholiy sequilt Roger Willama of the charge of mixing greal principies with come whinusleni concrita. The years which he peesed in Mamen. chusetts were yearn of diselplise and gnowth. when he donbilese alvemaly clierished in mis aetive braln the germa of the principles which he afterwanis developed; but the fruit was des. theed to be ripened unier another sky."-J. L. Dlman, Orations and Ehaunn, pp. 114-11?.
A. D. $\mathbf{3 6 3 6}$. - The wandiarings of the exiled Roger Wiliame. - His followern.- The aettlement at Providence. The little that is known of the wanderinga of Roger Willlama after fils banlshment froms falm, unt! his wottienehe at Providence, is derivedi from - Hetter whilh he wrote more than thirty y yars afterwarita finne (2), 16iti) t, Major Mason, the hem of the Itrationt War. In tuat letter he says: "When I was an. Lladly and unchristianiy, as I belleve, driven from my house and land and wife and chlldren. in the mldint of a New Englind winter, now nhout thirty-five years past, at Salem, that ever bumirnl Governor. Mr. Winthrop, privately wrote to me to steer my course to Narragansett Buy and Indlaus, for nany high and leeavenly: and publle enis, encournging me, from the freeness of the place from uny Engilsh clalms or fratents. I took his pruilent motion as ablat and wice from Goil, and wavlug ail other thoughts and motions, I steered my course from salen (ahough In winter snow, which I feel yet) not these parts, whereln I miny say Penlel, that in have seen the face of Gul.

I tirst pltched, and began to bulld and plant at Seekonk, now dehoboth, but 1 recelved a letter from my anrimat frimbl. Mr. Winslow. then Governor of Plymouth, professing his own and others iove and respect to me, yet intingly adrising me, since 1 waw is a into the calge of thelr bounils, and they were besth t: diviplease the $\mathrm{B} \% \mathrm{v}$, to re, move hat to the other slde of the water and then he snif, I had the country free before abe. and mizht be as free as themselves, and we should be luwig nelghbors together. These wers the jolnt tumprotandings of these two emineotly wi- and Phisistian Gnvernors and others, in thei- day Sther witis their counsel and advice as the 1:eelom and racancy of this place. whith it this respect, anil many other Providene $f$ the Jlose If It and Oniy Wise, I calied I'r: nee.
 1) famaquin, upon occasion attirn me that I'rowidence was his land, nand therefare tymumth's land, and some resentir . If, the theu pradent and godly Governor, Mr bratford, end othere of his goily comncil, answered, that if, after due examination, It shoulid be found true what the barbarisn anhi, yet having to my loen of a harveat that yenr, been now (though by their geatle advice) as good an banished from Ply; mouth as from the Manmacineetth, and I hid quietly and pasiently departed from tliwem, at their motion to the place where now I was, I should bot be moiented and towed ap and dows agaln, while they had hreath in thelr boxllest; and anrely, bet ween thome, my frimila of the llay and Plymouth, I was sorely tomeni, for one fompteen weeks. in a hitter wilnter seazon, not knowlag what bread or beil flil niean, bealde the yeariy lose of no amall matce in my tradlng with Enginal and natlvers, lx:Ing delmarrel from ibowton, the chlef mart and port of New Eingland."一lettere of lavor Hrilliams; ad. oy J, IV. Rartleth, pr. 835-836.-"Acconiling to the welght of suthority, and the foregoing extract, when Whilama left Sinlem he made hls way from there by sea, conatling, protalily, from piace to place luring the 'fourteen weekn' that 'he was worely tossed, and holding intercourse with the native triben, whose ingguape he had weynlrid, as we havo before atated, during hils resiltuce at llymouth. Dr. Dexter and I'rofemer Dimau interpres thin and other roferences dificreaty, asad coneth lo thint the jonrmey must bave been ly famd. Siew bexter, p. 62 note Nar. Clab I'mb., Vol. 11. p. 87. Perhape the true finterpretation is that the journey was partiy by a+a and partly hy iand; that is, from coast tuwari-t cosef with the natives- was lyy lanti, and the rest ly sea."
 note--Mr. Hder, the well kuown critical stadent of Rhode Island hastory, has cornmented on the ainve phssage In Mr. Siraus'y werk as follows: "The distance from sulem by seat to trickink the Atlantle Ocean, Viaryard umb, Buzzarfit Ilay, the Atlantle Ucean as a/n, - -al Sarragansett Bay, - a distance acarcely kes than 500 milles, in nad out, by the line of the comat ; all of wheh had to he coverell elther in a bir hifl cance or $\ln$ a siallop; If in a cance. tion to in : velfled, fut if In a aliall: where did Willams $E^{\prime \prime}=$ it, nnd what became i $\rightarrow$ history dues not ans": if If Wll-Llay. "the if cutire of the Minat Bigh to ulleect E. steps inso the FIn ' would become a posillve a surdity unless Mont lligh meant that WhlIs the shonhl $j$ : owerboaril lle certumity ct fla linve taki osups ln a boat. But fi IV illinit was in wat, what mense could there the "i 1. saylus: was sorely tossed for one fou * weekw, a bitter (hyperlole aga!n) II is r sease, unt knowing whit breall or bed t a menn.' Ald they not have beds la beats, nor therad? As : thecxpreston in the Cotton Letter. F Wes hls soul, and het his body, which was extrosed to poverties. itc.; obserre the quotation.

When Mr. Strans In hls foot-note, spenks of Willians's journey. partly by sen and purtly by iami. that is from ilse const inward, to confer with the natires.' he is dealing soleiy with the lamalnatlon. No such conference ever tonk phate." -8. S. Rliler, Ruger Williama (Rmik Niltes, r. 11, p.
 when Roger Willimams thed from Salem, "he made has wav through the forest to the leilges of the Pokanubets, who occup!ad the couutry norti from Mount Hope as far

RIODE ISLAND, 1636 Finger Wiliams. IKHODE ISLAND, 1636-1601.

Ousemaguin, or Mlassasolt, the famous ehlcf of this tribe, had known Mr. Wliliams when he ilved in Plymouth, and had often recelved present and tokeus of kininess at his hands; and now, In the days of his friendicas exile, the aged chlef weicomed him to his cahin at Jonnt llope, and extended to him the protection and aid lie required. He granted to him a tract of land on the Seekonk River, to which, at the openlag of spring, he repaired, and where 'he plteved and began to build and piant' [near the beautifui bend in the river, now knownas 'Manton's Cove, a short distance above the upper bridge, directiy eastwand of Providence.-Foot-note]. At this piace, also, at the same time, he was jolned hy a number of his friends from Salem. scarcely had the first dweiling been ralsed When he was agnin disturbed, and obliged to move stili further from Cliristinn neighbors and the dwellings of civilized men," as related in hils letter quoted above. "Ile aecordingiy soon ahandoned the flelis which lie had planted, and the dweling he had begun to build, and em. barked in a cance upon tie Seekonk IRiver, In quest of another spot where, unmolested, lie might rear a hoine and piant a separate colony. There were five others, who, having joined him at Seekonk, bore hlm company." Coasting along the stream and "round the headlands now known as Fox Point and India Point, In the harbor, to the mouth of the Mooshausic River," lie Innded, and, "upon the beautiful slope of the hili that asceads from the river, he descried the spring around whieh he commenced the first 'piantntlons of Providence.' It was in the iatter part of June, 1636, as well as can be ascertained, that Roger Willinms und his compnaions began the settieni. :t at the month of the Mooshausic Kiver. A little north of what is now the centre of the city, the spring is still poiated out, which drew the uttention of the hmmbie voyagers from scekonk. Here, after so many wanderings, was the weary exife to find a loone, ami to lay the foundations of a city, which shouli be a perpetuul memorial of plous gratitude to the super. Intenting Providicuce which had protected him and gulded him to the spot. ... The sport at which he had lanifed... was within the territory lelonging to the Narragausetts, Canonicus, the aged ehief of the tritue, and Miantonomo, his uephew, had visited the coinonis of I'lymoutit uni Missachusetts Bay, while Wiliiams rusided there, and hal iearned to regard inlm, in virtue of his bring a minister, as one of the sachems of the English. Ile had aiso taken apectai pains to concillate thelr gool-wili and gain their eonf. dence. . . Indeed. there is reason to lelieve that, at an early jerienl after his arrival in New Englani, on thiting himwif so wldeiy at variance with his Puritun hrethren, be concelved the design of withlrawing from the colonies, and settling inong the Inill:us. thit he night labor as a missionary... . In ali his deninges with the Indians, Mr. Willame Was governed by a striet regant to the rights which, ine had always con. tended, belonged to them as the sule proprictors of the soll. . . It wis ly his Intluence, and at hls expense, that the iurchase was procured frum Canunieus and Jiautonomo, who partork largeiy of the shyness and Jealousy of the Engitsh so commen to thelr telfe. Ife aags, It Was but thousands nor tens of thousinals of money that could have bought of them an English entrance into thls bay." "-W. Gammell, Lifo of Roger Wii. linme (Library of Am, Biog., erice 2, 0. 4), ch. 6-7.

Atso IN: 8. G. Amoid, Hiet. of R. I., v. 1. ch. 1 and 4.-W. Il. Staples, Annals of Procidence. ch. I.
A. D. 1636-1601. -Sale and gift of lands by the Indians to Roger Wiiliams.-His convesance of the same to his associates.-. The first object of Mr. Williams would naturaliy lee, to olitaln from the sachems a grant of land for his new coiony. He probably visited them, and rcceived a verbal cession of the territory, which, two rears afterwards, was formaliy conveyeri to lim by a deed. This instrument may projeriy be quoted ivere. 'At Narraganset, the 24th if the first month, commoniy calied Mareh, the second year of the plantation or planting at Moglassuck, of Providence [1638]; Memoraminu, that we, Canonicus and Miantinomo, the two chief sachems of Narraganset, having two yors since soid unto Roger Whiliams the iands and nieudows upon the two fresh rivers, cuiled $\mathrm{H}_{0}$ shassuck and Wanasquatucket, do now, by these jresents, estahlish and confirm the bounils of these lunds, from the river and theids of paw. tucket, the great hill of Notaquoncanot, on the northwest, and the town of Mashapaug, on the west. We aiso in consideration of the many kincinesses and services he hath continualiy dione for us, both with our friends of Massachusitis, as also at Connecticut, and Apainm, or Plymouth, we do freely give unto him ail that jani from those rivers reaching to Pawtuxet river; as also the grass and meadows upon the sald Pawtunet river. In witness wiereof, we have hercunto wet onr hands. [The mark (a bow) of Canonicus. The mark (an arrow) of Miantonomo). Ia the presence of [The mark of Soluash. The taark of Alsomunsit].'. . . The lands thus ceriedi to Mr. Williams he conveyed to twelve men, who accombanied, or soon joined. him, reserving for himself an equsi part oniy." Twenty-three sars later, on the 20th of December, 1661, he excinted a more formai deed of conveyance to his aswoiates and their heirs of the iands which had unquestionahly been partly sold and partly giren to himself personaliy hy the Indlans. This later instrument was in the following woris. ... Be it known unt ail men hy these presents, that 1 , IRoger Wliliams, of the town of Providence, in the Narraganset llay, in New Englani, iaving, in the year one thousand six hundred thirty forir, and in tive yenr one thonsand six hundren thintr. fire had several Ireaties with Canonicus and Miantinomo, the two ehief sachems of the Narra ganset, and in the end purchased of them the hands and meadows upon the two fresh rivers called Moshassuck and Wanasquatucket. the two sichems baving, by a deed under their hands. two years after the sale thercof, estabishiml and confirmed the bounds of these hands froun the rivers and fleids of Pawtucket, the grent hill of Notaquancanot on the northwest, and the wwn of Mashapaug on the west, notwithstanding 1 hail the frequent promise of Miantinumo. my klal friend, that it shouid not be land that i shonid want about these bounds mentionedi, provided that I satlsfied the Indians there inhatiting. I having made covenant of pearesble neighlorhood with ali the suchems and natives round about us, and having, of a sense of God's merelfui Providence unto mo in my distress

RHODE ISLAND, 1638-1640.
calied the place Providcnce, I dealred it might be for a shelter for persons distressed for consience. I then considering the condition of dlvers of ny distressed countrymen, I communlcated my said purchase unto my loving friends. John Throckmorton. Wllllam Arnold, William Harris, Stukely Weatcott, John Greene, Senlor, Thomas Olner, Senior, Richard Waterman, and others, who then desired to take shelter here with me, snd In succession unto so many others as we sioulid receive Into the fellowsilip and soclety of enjoying and dispoalng of the said purchase: and besiles the tirst that were admitted, our town records declare, that afterwards we receiverl Chad Brown, Wiliam Fleld, Thomas liarris, Senlor, Wililam Wickenden, IRobert Wiillams, Gregory Dexter, and others, as our wwn book declares; and whereas, by God's mercifni assistance, I was the procurer of the purchsse, not hy monles nor payment, the natlies being so shy and jealous that monies couid not do it, hut by that language, acquaintance and favor with the natlres, and other advantages, which it pleased God to give me, and also lone the charges and venture of all the gratulties, which I gave to the great sachems and other achems and natives round about us, and lay engaged for a loving and pearesble neighborbood with them, to ny great charge and travel: It was therefore thought fit lig ame foving friends, that I should recelve some loving eousidention und gratuity, and lt was agreed be. tween us, that every person, that shouk be almitted Into the feflowship of enjoying laud and disposing of the purchase, should pay thirty whilings unto the public stock; and frct, abont thirty pounds should be paill unto myself, by lirty shlilings a person, as they were ailmittef; - his sum I recelved, and In love to my friends, and with respect to $n$ town and piace of succor for the distressed as iforesaidi. I do acknowledge the sail sum and payment as full satisfactlon; and Whereas In the year one thousand six hundred end thirty-geven, so called. I deliverel the deed subscrilied by the two aforesall chkef sach~mw, so much titereof as concerneth the aforementioned lands, from myself and from my beirs, unto the whole number of the purchusers, whth ail my pworer, right and title therein, reservlng only unto mysuif one slagleshare equal untoany of the reat of that number; I now again, In a more formal way, under my hand and seai, contirus my former resignation of that deed of the innds aforesald, and bind myself, my helrs, my executors, my alministrators and assigns, never to molest any of the said persons alreally recelved. or hereafter to be received. Into the sockity of purchasers, us aforesald: but that they, thelr heirs, executors, administrators aml assigns, shall at all thes quietly and peacorably enjoy the premises and every part thereof, and I do further by these presents hind myself, my helrs, my executors, my adninistrators and asaigns never to lay any claim, nor cause any ciaim to he laid, to any of the lands aforementloned, or untosny part or parcel therenf, more than unto my own single share, hy virtue or preteace of any former hargaln, sale or mortgage whatsoever, or folntures, thlrds or entslls made by me, the sald Roger Willlang. or of any other person. either for, by, through or under me. In wltness whereof, I have hereunto ect my hand and seai, the twentleth day of December, In the present

Fear one thousand $\boldsymbol{e}^{\prime} x$ hundred sixty-one. Roges Wlillams.'. . Fr 'ils document, It appears, that the tweive persons to whom the landis, on the Moshassuck and Wanasquatucket rivers, were convey(vl hy Mr. Willlams, dld not pay hlm any part of the thirty pounds, which he recelved; hut that the sum of thlrty shlllings was exacted of every person who was afterwaris admitted, to form a common stock. From thls stock, thlrty pounds were pald to Mr. Wlillams, for the reusons mentlonwi In the lnstrument last quoted."-J. D. Knowles, Memoir of Rager \|'illiams, ch. 8.
A. D. 1637.-The Pequot War.-" Wlllams was banished In 1686 and settled at Providence. Tise Pequot war took piace the next year foliow. lag. The Pequots were a powerful tribe of Indians, dwelling . . . In the valley of the Thames at the easterly end of Connecticut, and holding the lands west to the river of that name. The partles to this war were, the Maseachusetts, Ply. inouth, and Connectlcut colonies, asslsted by the Narragansett and Mohegan tribes of Indlans on one slde, against the Pcquots, slngle-handed, on the other. The Pequots undertook to make an alliance with the Narragansetts and the Nohegans (iluhbard's Indian Wars, 1677, p. 118), and but for Wlllams would have succeeded, (Narr. Club, v. 6, p. 269). Wliliams had obtained a jowerful Intluence over Canonlcus and Miantlnoml, the great Sachems of the Narrakwor ts, (Narr. C'inh, v. 6, p. 1\%,) and Massachusette having just banlshed him, sent at once to him to prevent if posslble thils alilance, (Narr. ('lub, v. 6, p. 260). By hls lutluence a treaty of ulliance was made with Mlantlnomi, Wlllams being employed by both sides as a friend, the treaty was deposited with him and he was made Interpreter by Massachusetts for the Iudians upon their motion, (Wlathrop's Illst. N. E., 1853, v. 1, p. 237). The Narragansetts, the Mohegans, the Nlantics, the Nipmucs, and the Cowesets, were by this treaty either nentrals or fought activelt for the Eingllsh In the war."-S. S. IRiler, Pultieal results of the Banishment of Wif litma (Brok Inten, e. 8, no. 17).-Dee New ExgLAND: A. D. 1637.
A. D. 1638-1640.- The purchase, the settloment, and the naming of the lsland.-The founding of Newport.-Early In the apring of 1038, whlie Mrs. Anne Hutchinson was undergoIng imprisonment at Boston (see Massachicsetti: A. D. 1636-1698), "Mrs. Hutchinson's husband, Coddlngton, John Clarke, educated a physlcian, and other principal persons of the IIutchinsonian party, were given to understand that, unless they removed of their own accord, proceedings would be taken to compel them to do so. They sent. therefore, to seek a place of settlement, and found one In Plymouth patent; hut, as the mag. latrates of that colony derllned to ailow them an Indcpendent organization, they presently purchased of the Narragansets, hy the recommenda. tlon of Williams, the beautiful and fertle Isiand of Aquiday [or Aquetnet, or Aquidneck]. The price was 40 fathoms of white wampum; for the aiditlonal gratulty of ten coats and twentr loses. the present inhahitants agreed to remove. The purehasers calied It the Isle of IRholes - a name presently changed hy use to IRhode Inlancl. Nineteen persons, having slgned a covenant 'to lncorporate themselves lnto a boly polltic.' and to submit to 'our Lond Jeaus Christ,' and to hls

Abstract

'most perfect and absolute laws,' began a settic. ment at its northern end, with Coddington is their judge or chlef magistrate, and three eiders to assist him. They were soon joined by others from Boston; hut those who were of the rigid aeparation, and savored Anahaptism,' removed to Providence, which now began to be well peopled."-R. Hilidreth, Hive, of the U. S., t. 1, ch. 9.- "This ilttie coiony increased rapidiy, so that in the following surlag some of thair num. ber moved to the south.west part of the isinnd and began the settiement of Newport. The northern part of the laland whieh was first occu. pled was called Portamouth. Botin towns, however, were considered, as they were in fact, as belonging to the same eolony. To this settiement, aiso, came Anne IUtchinson with her husband and family after they had been banished from Massaciusetts. There ia no record that in this atmosphere of freedom she oceasioned any trouhie or disturbance. ifere she led a quiet and I enceahie life until the dieath of her husband in 1642, when she removed to the neighborhood of New York, wihere she and ail the members of her family, sixteen in number, were murdered hy the Incians, with the exception of one daughter, who was taken into eaptlvity, In imitation of the form of government whlch existed under the judges of Israd, during the perlod of the Hehrew Commonwealth, the two settlements, Rhode Isiand and Portsmouth, ehose Coddington to be their ungistrate, with the titie of Judge, and a few months afterward they ciected three eiders to assist hlm. This form of goverament contlnued untll 1640."-O. S. Straus, Roger Williams, ch. 6.A. D. 1638-1647. - The Constitution of Providence Plantation. - The charter and the Union.-Religious liberty as understood by Roger Wiliame - "The colonists of Piymouth had formed their social compact in the cahin of the Mayflower. The colonlsts of I'rovidence formed theirs on the banks of the Mooshausiek. - IVe, whose names are hereunier, ' It reads, 'desirous to inliabit in the town of Providence, do pir inlse to subjeet ourselves in active or passive obedlence to nli such oriers or agreements as shali the made for puhlie good for the body, in an orieriy way, hy the major assent of the present inhabitants, masters of families, incorporated together lnto n town feliowship, and sueli others as they shail admit unto them only in elvil things. Never before, slnce the establishment of Christianity, has the separation of Church from State been definitriy unarked out hy this Ilmitathon of the authority of the magistrate to eivil thlags; and never, perhaps, in the whole course of history, was a funiamentai prinelple so vigorousiy observed. Massact ssetts footed upon the experlment with jeaious "d distrust, and when lgnorant or reatless men confounded the right of Intivicinai oplaion in religious mat. ters with a right of independent action in civil matters, those who had cosdemned Roger Wiiliams to bantshment, eageriy prociaimert that no will ordered government cindil exist in connee. tlon with iberty of conselence. . . Questions of jurlmiliction also urise. Massachuset ts couid not bring herself to look upon her slater witit a fremdiy eye, and Piymonth was soon to be mergel in Massachneftie. It wias casy to foresce that there would be biekerings and jealouaies, if not open contention between them. Still the Iittle Colony grew apace. The fint church wa founded in 1689 . To meet the wants of an in. creased population the government was ehanged, and ive disposers or selectmen eharged with the principal functions of administration, suhject, however, to the superior authority of monthis town meetings; so eariy and so naturaily did municipai institutions take root in Engitsh colonies. A vitsi point was yet untouched. Wib. liams, indeed, heid that the Indians, as origlnsl occupants of the soil, were the oniy legai ownern of it, and carrying his principie into ali his deaiInge with the natives, bought of them the land on which he pianted his Colony. The Pirmouth and Massachuratts coionists, aiso, bought their iand of the natives, hut in their intercourse with the whites fourded their ciaim upon royal ebarter. They even went so far as to appiy for charter covering ali the territory of the new Colong. Meanwhile two other colonies had been pianted on the shorea of the Narragansett Buy: the Colony of Aquidniek, on the Isiand of ithuie Isiand, and the coiony of Warwick. The seuse of a common danger united them, and, in 1043 , they appointed Roger Williams thelr agent to re. pair to Engiand and appig for a royal charter. It has been truasured up as a hitter memory that he was compelied to seek a converance lu New York, for Massuchusetts would not aliow hlm to pass through her territories. His negotintions were erowned with fuil success. $\qquad$ He found the Klng at open wur with the Parifument, and the niministration of the colonies entrusted to the Eari of Warwiek and a joint committee of the two Ilouses. Of the detalis of the negotia. tion ifttie is known, but on the 14th of March of the following year [i644], a 'free and absolute eharter was granted as the Incorporation of Providence Plantations in Narragansett Biy in New England.' Civil goverament nuil clvil laws were the oniy government and laws which is recognlzed; and the ahsence of nay nilusion to reilgiuns freedom in it shows how firmiy and Wisely Wlitiams avoided every form of expres sion which might seem to recognize the power to grant or to deny that inalienahle right.

Yet more than three years were allowed to pass before it went into filil force as a bond of unlon for the four towns. Then, in May, 184\%, the corporators met at I'ortsmouth in General Court of Electlon, and, accepting the eharter, proceeded to organize a government in harmony with its provisions. Warwick, aithourn uot named in the eharter, was admitted to the name privileges with her iarger and more flourishlng sisters. This new governmeut was in reality a government of the peopie. to whose fluai ducisinn in their General Asepmhiy ali questlons were submitted. 'And now.' says the preamble to the code, . .. 'it is agreed hy this present Assem. bly thus incorporate and hy this present aet de. clared, that the form of goverament eatablished in Pruvidence Piantations is Democratical.'"G. W. Greene, Short IIist. of R. I., ch. 3 ind 5. now prepared of goverument belng settled, they now prepared sueh laws as were neecesary to ch. force the due adnainistration of is; hut the jopular approbation their laws must recelve, le? fore they were vaild, made this a work of time; how. ever, they were so industrious in it, that in the monti of May, 164\%, they compieted a regilar body of laws, taken chiefy from the la ris of England, adding a very few of their own form.

Treedom Conecience.
RHODE ISLAND, 1688-1347.
lag, which the circumatances and ealgencies of their present condition required. These iawn, for securing of right, for determining controversles, for preserving order, uppressing vice, and pnnishing offenders, were, at least, equai to the lnws of any of the nelghbouring colonles; and infinitely exceoded thoec of ali other Chriatinn countries at that tlme in this partlcular, - that they left the consclence free, and did not punlsh men for worshlpplng God in the way, they were persuaded, he required. $\qquad$ It was often ohjected to Mr. Willams, that such grent liberty in religlous matters, tended to llcentiousness, and every klad of disorder: To such objectlons i will give the answer he himscif madc, in hle uwn woris [Letter to the Town of Providence, Jsnunry, 1654-8]. Loving Fricnds and Neighlomrs, It pleaseth God yet to contlnue this great llierty of our towa meetings, for which, we ought to te humbly thankful, and to improve these liberties to the pralse of the Glver, and to the pesce and welfare of the townani colony, without our own private ends. I thought it my duty, to present you with thls my inipartial testimony, snl answer to a paper sent you the other day from my brother, - "That it is biond-gulltiness, and against the rule of the gospel, to execute juigment upon transgrusoors, against the private or public weal." That ever I should speak or write a tittle that tends tu such an intinite lileerty of conscience, Is a mistake; and which I inve ever disclaimed andi abliorred. To prevent such mistakc 3 , I at present shall only propose this cas. - There goes many n ship to sea, with many a humired souls in one shlp, whose weal nud wo is common; and ls a true picture of is common. weahh, or an liuman combination, of sorlety. It hath fallen ont sometmes, that both Papists ani l'rotestants, Jews and Turks, maty be emlarked into one ship. Upon which supposal. I do aflirm, that all the ilberty of consclence that ever 1 pheaded for, turns 1 pon these two linges, that none of the Paplsts, Protestants, Jews, or Turks. be forced to come to the ship's prayers or worship; nor, secondly, compelled from their own partlcular prayers or worship, if they practise any 1 further add, that 1 uever denied that, notwithstandligg this liberty, the comman. der of th. .hip ought to cominnind the ship's conrse: re nal also to command that justlee, puace, and sobriety, be kept and practlsed, both among the seamen and all the passengers. If any summen refuse to perform their service, or passengers to pay thelr frelght; - if any refuse to help in person or purse, towarils the common charges, or defence; - If any refuse to obey the common laws aml orders of the ship, cunceralng their common pence and preservation; - If any shall mutiny and rise up agalnst thelr commauders, and ollicers; - if azy shall pruach or write, that there ought to be no comnanders, urr ifticers, becanse all are cqual In Clirist, therefore no masters, nor ollicers, no laws, nor oriets, no correctlons nor punlshnicnts -I say I never denied, but in such cases, whatever ls pretemileal. the commander or commmnoiers may judiec, resist, compel, and punish such transPrismox, according to thelr cleserts and merits. 'lha, if arciously and honcstiy minded, may, if it al please the Futher of lights, let in come lish. Iusuci us willingly sint unt their eyes. 1 thmain, studions of our common pence and literty,-izoger Wilitnma' This religious liberty was not only asserted in words, but unfformly adhered to and practised: for in the year 1656, soon nfter the Qunkers made their irat appearance In New England, and at which most of these coionles were greatly nlarmed nud offended: Those nt that time cailed the four unlted colonles, which were the Magatchnsetts, Plymouth, Connectlcut, and New Haven, wrote to this colony, to joln with them In taking effectual methods to suppress them, and prevent their pernlcious doctrines belng spread nui propagated In the country. - To this request the Assenihly of this colony gave the following worthy answer: "We shall strictly adhere to the foundation prir.clple on which thls colony was first settled; to wit, that evcry man who suhmits peaceably to the civll authorlty, may peaceahly worshlp God according to the dictates of hls own conscience, wlthout inolcstntion.' And not to the peopie of the nelghbouring governments only, was this principle owned; hut it was asserted ln thelr applicatlons to the rulling powers in the mother country; for In the senr 1659, in an address of this colony to iklcharit Cromwell, then iord protector of England, Scotland, nnil Ireland, there is this paragraph, - May it please your hlyhness to know, that thls poor colony of Providence Plantatons, inoatly consists of a hirth and breedlng of the provlilence of the Most High. - We being an outcast people, formerly from our mother nation, In the bishops' days; and since from the rest of the New English over zealous colonles: Onr frane being much like the present frame and constltutloa of our dearest inother England: beariug with the several judgments, and conaciences, cuch of other, in all the towns of vur colony. - The whlch our neighbont colonies do not: which ls the only canse of their great offence against us.' But as cvery human felicity las some atteniant misfortune, so the people's enjoyment of very great liberty, hath ever been fonme to produce some disorders, fnctions, and parties amongst them.

It must be confessed, the historinns and ministers of the telghbouring colonies, In nil thelr writlags for a long thme, represented the Inhalitants of this coiony as a compnny of people who lived without nny order, and quite regardless of all reilgion; and this, princlpally, because they nllowed an unlimited llberty of conscience, which was then interpreted to be profane licentlousness, as though rellglon could not subsist without the support of human laws, and Christlaus must ccase tw be sw, If they suffered any of diferent sentlments to live in the same country with them. Nor is it to be wondered at, If many among them that first came hlther, lelng tincturedi with the some bltter splrit, sh. Il create much disturbance; gor that others, "hen $g$. ciear of the fear of censure and punsimment should relax too much, and behave as though they were become Inillferent about religion itself. With people of both these characters, the fathers of this colony had to contend. . . . In this age it seemed to be douhted whether a ciril g.fernment crsuld be kept up nid supported Without wme partlcular mode of rellgion was estahllshed by lts faws, nud guarded by pepaltles and tests: And for determining thls cioubt, hy an actual trial, appenrs to have been the prinelpai motlve with fing Cbaries the Secoud, for granting free ilberty of conscience to the people of this colony, by his charter of 1688, - in which he makes uec of these words: That they might hold forth a lively experiment, that most flourlahing clvll state may stand, and beat be maln. talned, and that amongit our Engllsh aubjects, with a full llberty in religious concernments. And that true plety, rightly grounded on goapel princlpies, will give the best and greatest security to soverelgaty, and will iay In the hearts of men the strongest obllgations to true loy. alty.' ${ }^{\prime \prime}$-Stephen Ifopkins, Hiatorical Account of the Planting and Growoth of Proridence (Mass. Hint. ©Mr. Coll's, 2 d ser., r. 9).

The FYrae Baptine CAureh

RHODE ISLAND, 161-1447.
Also is: S. G. Arnoid, Jint. of R. I. e c. 1, ch. 4. PRecorils of the timbing of R. T. and Protidence Plantatione, r. 1.
A. D. 1639.-The first Baptiat Church."There can ve littie doubt, as to what were the refiglous tencts of the tirst sertlers of Providence. At the thane of thelr removal here, they were members of IPymouth and Massachusett churches. Those churches, as It reapects government, were Indeivendent or Congregational, In doctrine, moderateiy Calvinistic and with regard to cercmouies, Pedobsptists. The settiers of Providence, ifil not cease to be members of those churches, by their removal, nor did the faet of thelr being members, constitute them a church, after it. They could not form themseives lato a chureh of tite faith and ofier of the Pismouth and Massachusetts churches, untll dismlssed from them: and after suej dismissai, some covenant or agreument among themsilres was necessary In oriler to effect ft. That they met for pubffe worsilip ts beyond n doubt; hut such meetings, though froupent and reguiar, would not make them a ehurch. Among the first thirteen, were two urdainerl nimlaters, Roger Wifiams and Thomas James. That they preached to the settlers is guite frolabic. but there is uo evlicace of any intent to firm a church, previous to Marcis 16:39. Wher they did attempt it, they had ceamed to be I'efolaptists, for Ezeklel Hoiy. msn, a inyman, haci baptizerl IGoger Whifiams, by immersion. and Mr. Wiiliams afterwards had baptizel Mr. Ilolyman and severnl others of the compsny, in the samc manner. By thls act they disowned the ehurches of whlch they had been members, and for this, they were son excommunleated, by thoae churches. After being tinus baptlzed, they formed a church and cailed Mr. Willians to be thefr pastor. Tinis was the first choreh gathered In Providence. It has continued to the present day, and is now known as The Flrst Baptist Church. . Mr. Wiliiamshell the pas. toral otflce about four years, and then resigned the saule. Mr. Iloiyman was his colfesguc. A ietter of liehnri Scott, appended to A Xcw Eggland Fire- Brand Queneftedi.' and pubilshed sbout 1673, states that Mr. Wlifiams left the Baptists and turned Sectrer, a few months after he was baptized. Mr. Scott was a mefouber of the Baptist ehurch for none time, but at the date of this fetter, had united with tie Friends. Ar. cording to Mr. Wiilhms new views as a seeker, there was no rogulariy constituted cisurch on earth, nor any premon authorized to adininfister any churcil ordinanee, uor cruald there be, untif new apostles shonidi be swnt by the Great Ilead of the cinnch, for whos coming he was seeking.
 day helfered tistet tive minisiry and orilnauces of the christian cinurch were irrctrievably fost, dur. ing the papal usirpatlon. It has been supposed, by come, that Mr. Willams held thewe opinlons while In Maseachusetts, and thst this was the reason he denied the church of England to be a true church, and withdrew from ble connexlos With the Salem church. Aside from the state. ment of Mr. Scott, sbove quoted, that Mr. Williams turned Beelier, after he joined the Baptist and walked with them some months, the suppoltion is shown to be groundleas, by his admisistering baptism In Providence, as before stated. and jolning with the first Baptist church there. These acts he could not have performed, had be then been a Seeker."-W. R. Staples, Annu of
A. D. $1641-1647$. -Samuel Gorton and the Warwlek Platation.-" Among the supporters of Mirs. Hutchineon, after her arrival at Aquedneck, was a slncere and courageous, but incoherent and crotchetty man named Samuel Gortos. In the denunclatory language of that dsy he was called a proud and pestllent seducer, or, as the modern newspaper would may, a crank. It la welf to make dine allowances for the preju. dice so conspicuous in the accounts given hy his enemles, who felt obifged to justify their harsh treatment of hlm. But we have afoo his ows writings from which to form an oplnion as to hls character and views. $\qquad$ Himseif a Los. don clothler, and thanking God that he hal not been brought up In ' the schools of human irarn. ing,' he set up as a preacher without ordinatios, and styfed himself 'professor of the niysteries of Christ.' IIe seems to have cherished that iloctrine of private inspiration which the Puritasi egpecialis ahhorred.

Gorton's temperament was such as to keep him always In an atmosphere of strife. Other heresfarchs suffered persecutios In Massachusetts, but Gorton was In hot water every winere. His arrival in any conmunity was the signaf for an immedlate disturbance of the peace. IIfs troubles began in Piymouth, where the wife of the pastor preferred hls teachings to tiose of her imsband. In 1638 he ited to Aquedneck, where his first achievement was s scilsm among Mrs. Hutchinson's foilowers, whlcin cndevi in some staylng to found the tows of Portsmouth while others went away to fonad Newport. Preseutly Portsmouth found hion intoierable, flogged and banlshed him, and after his depart re wis able to make up Its quarrel with Newport. He next made hls way with a few fofiowers to Pawtuxct, within the jurisuliction of Provideace, and now it is the bromiminded and gentie Koger Wililams who compiains of his bewliching and madding $\mathrm{j}^{\mu}$ (ir Proviflence.

Wliliams disapproved of (inrton, but was true to his princlples of toieration and would not takc part in any attempt to sifence him. But in 1641 we find thirteen leading citl. zeus of Providence, headed by Willlam Armoh, suinding a memoriai to Boston, asking for assistance and counsel in regant to this disturber of the peace. How was Masaschusetts to trest such sn appeal ? She could not presume to meddie wlth the affair uniess she could have permanent jurisiliction over Pawtuxet; nther. wise slie was a mere intruder.

Whaterer might ive the abstract merits of Gorton's opluins, his conduct wss poifticaily dangerous; aml accorilngiy the jurisifetion over Pawturet was formally concerled to Massachusetts. Therropman that colony, assuming furisdiction, summoned Gorton and hls men to Buston, to prove their tile to the lands they ocoupied. They of course regarded the summons as a fiagrant usurpation of authority, and lastead of obeying it they withdrew to shawomet [Warwick], on the weatem shore of Narragancett bay, where they bought a tract of iand from the principal sachem of the Narragansette, Mlantonomo."-J. Fiake, The Beginnings of Net England, pp. 163-168."Soon afterward, hy the surrender to Massachusetts of a subordinate Indian chief, who ciaimed the territory $\qquad$ purchased hy Gorton of Miantonomi [or Miantonomo], that Government made a iemnnd of jurisdiction there also; and as Gor. ton refused their summons to rapear at Boston, Massachusette sent soldiers. . 1 captured the int.abitante in their homes, took them to Boston, tried them, and sentenced the greater part of them to imprisonment for hiasphemous innguage to the Naseachusetts authorities. They were finsify liberated, ami hanished; and as Warwick was fucinded in the forhidden territory, they went to Rhode Isiand. Gorton and two of his friends soon afterward went to Engiand." Subsequentiy, when. in 1647 , the government of Providence Piantations was organized under the charter which loger Wiliams had procured in England in 164. "Warwick, whither Gorton sad his foliowers had now returned, though not named in the charter, was admitted to its privi.
 Critical Iliatory of Americt, c. 8, ch. 0).
A. D. 1651-1652.-Coddington'a usurpation. -Second mission of Roger Wiiliams to Eng-land.-Restoration of the Charter.-First enactment against Siavery.-In 1651. Wiliam Coldington, who had been chosen President snme time before, but who had gonc to Engiand without legaliy entering the office, succeecied hy sume means in ohtaining from the Conncil of State a commission which appohited him governor of Rhole Isiand and Connecticut for ile, with s council of six to assist him in the government. This apparentiy annulied the charter of the colnay. Again the coiony appeaied to Roger Witliams to plead its cause in Engiand and again be crussed the ocean, "obtaining a hard-wrung leave to embark at Boston.

In the bamc ship went John Ciarke, as agent for the Isiand towns, tu usk for the revocation of Coddington's commission. On the success of their appilcation hung the fute of the Colony. Meanwhile the island tuwns suhmitted silentiy to Coxdington's usurpation, and the main-iand towns continued to govern themscives hy their ohi laws, and meet and deliberate as they had done before in their Generai Assembiy. It was in the milist of these dangers and dissensions that on the 19th of Nay, in the session of 1652 , it wrs 'enacte $!$ ard ordered that uo hiack mankind or white being forced hy covenant, bond or otherwise shail be held to service ionger than ten years,' and that 'that man that wiil not iet them go free, or shail sell then any cise where to that end that they mar le ensiaved to others for a longer time, hee or they shali forfelt to the Cobonie forty pounds. This was the tirst legisiation concerning siavery on this continent. If forty pounds shouid secm a smalf pennity, iet us rememiner that the price of s siave was hut twenty. If it should be objocied that the act was imperfectiy enforced, Bet us remember how homorahle a thing it is to have been the first to solemniy recogaize a great prin. cipie. Soul liberty had borne her inst fruits.

Welcome tldings came in September, and still more weicome in October. Wiliams and Clarke. .. had obtained, frat, permitaion for the colony to act under the chirter until the Inai deciaion of the controversy, and s fow weeks iater the revocation of Coddington's commisalon. The charter was fuily restored."-G. W. Greene, Short Hiot. of Rhade Juland, eh. 6.
A. D. 1656,-Refusal to join in the persecution of Quakers. See Massachurctis: A. D. 1650-1681.
A. D. $1660-1663$. - The Charter from Chariea II., and the bonndary conalicts with Connecti-cnt.-"At its fint meeting after the King [Charies II.] came to enjoy his own again, the government of Rhode Island caused him to be prociaimed, and commisioned Ciarke fagent of the colony in Engiand] to prosecute its intereste at court, which he accordingiy proceeded to do.

He was intrusted with his suit about a year before Winthrop's arrivai in Enginnd; but Win. throp [the younger, who went to Engiand on behaif of Connecticut] Lad been there several months, sttending to his business, before he heard anything of the designs of Clarke. His charter of Connecticut had passed through the preliminary forms, and was awaiting the great seai, when it was arrested in consequence of repre. sentations made hy the agent from Rhode Isiand.

Winthrop, in his new charter, had used the words ' bounded on the east hy the Narrogancett River, commoniy calied Narrogancett Bay, where the said river falieth into the sea.: To this fientity hetween Narragansett River and Narragansett Bay Ciarke ohjected, as wili be presentiy espiained. A third party was interested in the settiement of the eastern boundary of Connecti. cut. This was the Atherton Company, so cailed from Hampirey Atherton of Dorchester, one of the partners. They had bought of the natives a tract of land on the western side of Narragansett biay; and when they heard that Connecticut was soilciting a charter, they naturaliy desired that their property shonid be piaced under the government of that coiony, rather than under the unstahie government of Rhode island. Winthrop, who was himseif one of the associates, wrote from London that the arrangement he had made accorded with their wish. Rhorle Isiand, however, maintained that the lands of the Ather. ton purchase beionged to her juriadiction.
When Winthrop thought that he had secured for Connecticut a territory extending eastward to Narragansett Bay, Ciarke had ohtained for Khode Island the promise of a charter which pushed its boundary westward to the Paucatuck River, so as to include in the in" "colony a tract 25 milics wide, and extending agth from the southern border of Massachus is to the sea. The interference of the charter with each other endangered both. The agents enteral into a negotiation which issued, after several months, in a composition effected by the award of four arhiters. Two articics of lt were material. One Was that Paucatuck IRiver shouid 'be the certain bounds betwecn the two colonies, which said river should, for the future, be aiso calied, alias, Narrogunsett, or Narrogansett River.' The other aliowet the Atherton Company to choose ' to Whleh of those coionies they would bekug." The undesirahie consequences of a dispute were thus averted; though to any that 'Paucatuck iliver' meant Narragansett Bay was much the same 4 to give to the Thames the name of the British Chunnei; and if the agrement between the agents should stand, Connecticut would be sadly curtailed of her domaln." On the 8th of July, 1663, "Clarke'e clarter, whlch the King probe: bly dld not know that he had been contradictlng, passed the seals. It created 'a body corporate and poitic, In fact and name, by the name of the Governor and Company of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantatlons In New England In America.' Slmilar to the charter of Connecticut in grants marked by a iiberality hitherto unezampled, it added to them the extraordinary provision that no permon whthin the sald colony, at any time thereafter, should be angwise molested, punlshed, disquleted, or called ln question, for any difference of opinion In matters of religlon which did not actually disturl the civil pure of the sald colony.'

Natters were now all ripe for a confict of jurisdictiou between Ithode Island and Connecticut. Usiug the privilcge of choice secared by the compact between the agents, the Atherton Company elected to place their lauds, ineluding a settlement known ly the name of Wick ford, under the goverament of the latter colouy. Hhinle Island enactel that ali persons presuming to settle there without her leave should be' taken and lmprisoned for such their contempt.' . . This proved to be the beglnning of a serien of provocatlons and reprisals letween the inharmonious neighiors."-J. (I. ['alfrey, Compendious Ilint. of J. Eng., bk. 2, ch. 12 (v. 2).

Also IN: S. S. Iklder, Buok Notes. v. $10, \mathrm{pp}$. $109-110$ - S. G. Arnold, Hist, of $\dot{H}$. I., ch. 8 (e. 1).
A. D. 1674-1678.-King Phillp's War. See New Enolasid: A. D. 16i4-1675; 16\%5: 16761678.
A. D. 1683 .-Death of Roger Wililams.Estimates of his character.-Hoger Wiiliams, having glven all to his colony, seems to have died without property, dependent upon his chlldren. IIfs son, Daniel, in a letter written In 1710. says: "Ile never gave me but about three seris of land, and but a little afore he deceased. It looked hanl, that out of so inuch at hls disposiug, that I should have so little, and he so little. . . If a covetous man had that opportunity as he had, most of this town would have been his tenants." "Of the immediate cause und exnct tlme of Mr. Williams' death we are not informed. It is certain, however, that he died at some time between January 16, 1689-3, and May 10, 1683.

IIc was in the 8tth rear of his uge. -J. D. Knowles, Memoir of Ruger Williams, pp. 111 and $35-$ - "We call those great who have devoted their lives to some noble cause, and have thereby intlucneed for the better the course of events. Jeasured by that standard, foger Williams deserves a lifgh nlche in the temple of fame, alongside of the greatest reformers who mark epochs in the worli's hlstory. IIe was not the tirst to discover the principles of rellgious liberty, hut he was the first to proclaim them in all their plenitude, and to found and build up a political community whth those principles as the basis of Its organizatiou. The influence and effect of his 'fively cxperiment' of rolirious ilberty aml semorratic goverament upon the polltical system of our country, nnd throughout the civilizel worid, are admlrably atated by Profescor Gervinus in his 'Introduc. tion to the History of the Nineteenth Centurs.' He says: - Roger Wlilisms founded in 1036 . smail new aoclety In Rhode Island, upon the principles of entlre llberty of consclence, Bnd the uncontrolled fower of the majority in secular affairs. The theories of freedom In Church and State, taught in the schools of phllosoply in Europe, were here hrought into practlce In the government of a amall communlty. It was prophesled that the democratic attempts to obtaln unlverasi auffrage, a general elective fran. chise, annual parliaments, entlre rellgious freedom, and the Miltonian right of chlsm wouli be of short duratlon. But these Institutlons hare not only malntalued themselves here, but have spread over the whole union. They have super. geded the aristocratlc commencements of Carollas and of New York, the hlgh-chureh party in Vlrglaia, the theocracy In Nassachusetts, and the monarchy throughout America; thej bave glven laws to one quarter of the globe, and, dreaded for thelr moral influence, they stand in the back-ground of every democratic struggle in Europe.' -' IRoger VIIlllams, as all know, was the prophet of complete rellgious toleration in America.
That as a man he was 'consclentiously conter. tious' I should naturally be among the fast to deny; most men who contribute materiall towards hringlng about great changcs, religinus or morai, are conseientlously contentlous. Were they not so they would not accomplish the work they are here to do."-C. F. Adams. Mumuehu. selts: its Ifistorians and its Hisfory, p. 25"The world, havlng at last nearly caught up with hlm, seems ready to vote - thougi with: peculiariy respectable minority ln oppowitionthat Roger Williams was after all a groat man, one of the true hemes, seers, worii-murans, of these latter ages. Perhaps one explanation of the pleasure which we take In now looking upon him, as he looms upamong his contemporaries In New England, may loe that the eye of the ohserver, rather fatigued by the monotony of so vast a throng of sages and salnts, all quite im. maculate, all equally prim ani stiff in thels Purltan stareh and uniform, all equally auto. matic and freezing, fiuds a relief in the easy swing of thls man's galt, the limberuess of his personal movement, his cscape from the pasteboard proprieties, his spontanelty. his impetuos. ity, his indiseretlons, his frank acknow ledgments that he really had a few things yet to leara. Somehow, too, though he sorely vexed the souls of the judicious in his time, and evoked from them words of dreadful reprehension, the best of them loved hlm; for Indeed this healstrong, measureless man, with his tlashes of Welsh tire was In the grain of him a nobie feliow: 'a man, as Edward WInslow sald, 'lovily in his cas riage. From his cariy manhood even down to his late old age, Roger Williams stands in New England a mighty and beuiguant form, always pleading for some magnanimous liea, some tender charity, the rectification of some wrong. the cxercise of some sort of forbearsice toward men's bodies or souls. It was one of his vexatious peculiaritles, that he could do nothligg by halves - even ln logic. Ifaving established his major and hls milnor preuines. he uiterly Iscked the accommodatlig judgment which would have enabled hlm to stop there and go no further whenever lt seemed that the concluding member of his syllogiam was likely to annoy the brethren. To this frality ln his organization is due the fact that he often seemed to his contempcrarles an impracticable person. presumptuous, turbulent, even sedltious."-M. C. Tyler, Hiet. of Ameriean Literature, eh. D. eect. 4.
A. D. 1686. - The consolidation of New Engiand under Govermor-general Andros. See Sew Enoland: A. I). 1686.
A. D. 1689-1701. - The charter government reinstated and confirmed. See Connecticet: A. 1). 1680-1701
A. D. 16oo. - King William's War. - The frst Colonial Congress. See Canada: A. D. 1690-1090; and United States of Ax. : A. D. 1690.
A. D. 1747.-The founding of the Redwood Library. See Libramies, Jloders: United Etates of Am.
A. D. 1754.- The Colonial Congresa at Abany, and Franklin's Plan of Union. See Csite: States of Ax.: A. D. 1754.
A. D. $1760-1766$. - The question of tescation by Parliament.-The Sugar Act. - The Stamp Act and its repeai.-The Deciaratory Act.The Stamp Act Congress. See Usitted Staten of AM.: A. D. 1760-1775; 1768-1764; 1765; and 1:66.
A. D. 1764.-The founding of Brown Uni-versity.-Hrown C'nlversity was founded in 1764, especialiy Iu the interest of the Baptist Church, and with ald from that denomination in otber parts of the conntry. It was placed first at farren, but soon removed to I'rovidence, where it was hamed in honor of it chlef beuefactor, John lkrown.
A. D. 1766-1768.-The Townshend Duties. -The Circuiar Letter of Massachusetts. See linten States of Am. : A. D. 1766-1767; and 1:6i-1i6s.
A. D. 1768 - 777 , -The quartering of troops in Boston. - The "Massacre" and the removal of the troops. See Bostos: A. D. 176s; and 170.
A. D. 1770-1773.-Repeal of the Townshend duties, except on Tea.-Committees of Correspondence instituted.-The Tea Ships and the Boston Tea-party. See United States of AM.: A. 1). 1770, and 1772-1773; and Boston: A. D. $1: 83$.
A. D. 1772, - The destruction of the Gaspe. -The first overt act of the Revolution. See Einitkd Statee of Am.: A. D. 1772.
A. D. 1774.- The Boston Port Bili, the Massachusetts Act, and the Quebec Act. The First Continental Congress. See United States uF Im.: A. D. 1774.
A. D. 1774.- The further Introduction of Slaves prohibited. See Slaveny, Neono: A. 1). $1 \% 4$.
A. D. 1775.-The beginning of the War of the American Revolutlon, - Lexington.-Concord. -The country in arms and Boston beleaguered. - Ticonderoga. - Bunker Hill. - The Second Continental Congress. See United States of AM. : A. D. 1775.
A. D. $\mathbf{1 7 7 5}$, - Early naval enterprises in the ซar. See (Nited States of As.: A. D. 1775 -li:6 Beoinning of the Am. Navy.
A. D. $177^{6}$. - Allegiance to the ting renounced. - State independence declared.-The British occupation.-"The iast Colouial Assetulily of Rhode Island met on the 1st of May.

On ths 4th, two months before the Congreasional Declaration of Independence, It coiemnly renounced lte allegiance to the British crown, no longer closing It memsion wlth God save the K!ng, but taking In it atead as exprestive of their new relations, 'Cod save the Lnited Colonies.". The Deciaration of Independence by Congreas was received with general satisfaction, and proclalmed wlih a natlonal salute and military display. At Provldence the Klng's arms were burned, and the Legislature assumed l:s legal title, "The State of Rhode Island and Providence Piantations.'. . From the 4th of May. 1786, the Declaration of Independence of Khode Isiand, to the hattle of Tiverton IIelghte, on the 20th of August, 1778, she llved with the enemy nt her dowr, constantly subject to invasion by iand and by water, and seldom givieg her watch. w orn iohabitants the luxury of a quiet pillow. . .. In November.... Britlsh fleet took possession of her waters, a British army of her principai islsnul. The seat of goveronient was reniovel to Provhience."- G. W. Greene, Short Hiut. of $\boldsymbol{R}$. I., ch. 24-25.-See E'sited States of Am. : A. D. 1776-1779.
A. D. $17^{6-1783}$ - The War of Independence to the end.-Peace with Great Britain. dee Lisitred Stater of Am.: A. D. 1776, to 1783 .
A. D. $177^{8 .}$ - Failure of attempts to drive the British from Newport. Bee Cisited States OF AM. : A. D. 1788 (JULY-NOVEMBER).
A. D. $1783-1790$. - After the War of Inde-pendence.-Paper-mones.-Opposition to the Federal Constitution. - Tardy entrance into the Union.-Rhome Island emerged from the war of independence bankrupt. "The first question was how to replenish the exhaustcd treasury. The first answer was that money should be created by the fiat of Rhomic Island authorities. Intercourse with others was not much thought of. Fiat money would be gool at home. So the paper was lissued by order of the Legislature which bad heen chosen for that purpose. A respectable minority opposed the insane messure, but thst did not serve to moderate the insanity. When the credit of tbe paper began to fall, and traders would not receive it, laws were passed to enforce its receptlon at par. Flnes and punishments were euncted for fallure to receive the worthless promises. Starvation stared many in the face. Kow it was the agricultural class against the commercial class; and the former party had a large majority in the state and Generai Assembly. When dealers arranged to secure trade outside the state, that they might not le compelled to handle the locai paper currency, it was probibited hy act. When three judges decided that the law compelling men to receive this 'money' was unconstitu. tlonal, they were hrought before that august General Assemhly, and tried and censured for presuming to say that constitutional authority was ingher than legislative authority. At last, howerer, that lesson was learned. and the law was repealed. Before this excitement had subsided the movement for a new nationai Constitution began. But what did Rhode Isinad want of a closer bond of union with other states ?
She feared the 'bondage' of a centralized government. She lud fuught for the respretive liberties of the other colonies, as an assistant in the struggle. She had fought for her own special, individual liberty as a matter of her owu

Preleral Cometitution.
REODE ISLAND, $1788-1790$.

Interent. Further her needs were comparntively mmali as to governmental machisery, and tixa. ton muat be amail in proportion; and ahe did not wion to be taxed to support a general goverament.

So when the call was made for each tatac io hold a conventlon to elect dele gatem to a Constltutlonal Convention, Rhode Illand paid not the slightent attention to It. All the other states ment delegates, hut Rhode Ibland eent, none; and the work of that convention, grapd and glorlous as it was, was not ahared hy her. The same party that favored inflation, os paper money, opponed the Conatitution; and that party was in the majority and in power. The General Assemhiy had been elected wlth this very thing in view. Meanwhlle the loyal party, which was found mosily in the citlen and commercial ceatres, did alitin lts power to induce the General Assemhity to cali a conventlon; hut that body persiatently refused. Once it sug. gested a vote of the people in thelr own precincts; but that method whas a falfure. As state after state came finto the Unlon, the Union party, by bontire, parade, and loud demonatration, celebrated the event."-G. L. Harney, How Rhods Idand received the Constitution (Xevo England Mag., Hry, 1800). -" The country party was ti power, aud we have meen that elsewhere an wefi as in Rhode Island, it was the rurat population that hated change. The action of the other states had been closety watched and theif ohjeetions noted. One thing atrikes a thode Isiander Fery peculiarly in regard to the adoption of the federat constitution. The people were not to vote directly upon it, hut only second-hand through delegates to a state convention. No amendment to our state constitution, even at this day, can be ailopted without a majority of three. tifthe of alf the rotes cast, the voting being directly on the proposition, and a hundred yeara ago no state was more democratic in ita notions than Rhode Isiand. Although the Phlladeiphia Couvention had provided that the feleral conatitution should be ratided la the different states by courentions of delegates elected hy the penple for that purpose, upon the call of the Gencral Assembly yet this did not accord with the Rhode Isiand idea, no in February, 1788, the Generat Assembly voted to suhmit tie question whether the conatitution of the C'nited Statea should be adopted, to the volce of the people to be expressed at the polls nu the fourth Monday in March. The fedcralists fearing they would be out-voted, fargely nbstained from roting, so the vote stool two hunired and thirty-seven for the constitution, and two thousand severa hundred and eight agalnst it, there being alwout four thousand voters in the state at that time. Ouvernor Colifns, in a fetter to the president of Congress written a few day: after the vote was taken, glves the feeling then existing in Rhode Isiand, in this wise:-'Althouph this atate has been singular from her sister stanes in the mode of colfecting the sentiments of the people upon the constitution, it was not done with the feast deaign to give any officuce to the respectable body who composed the conventlon, or a disregard to the recommendation of Congrees, hut upon pure republican principien, founded upon that hasis of alf governments originally derived fown the body of the people at large. And atthough, sir, the majority has been so great agalnat adopting the Conatitution, yot the people, in gevera, concelve that it may contalo some necemary articles whlch could well be aulided and adapted to the present confederatlon. They are eenilile that the prement powers invested Wlth Congreas are incompetent for the great natlonal government of the U'nion, and would heartify acquiesce In granting aufticlent authorly to that body to make, exerche and enforce lants throughout the states, whlch would tead to reg ulate commerce and impone dutiea and excise, whereby Congrean might eatahlish funds for dis. charging the pubfie deht.' A majorty of the voters of the country was undouhtediy agalust the conatitution, hut convention after conventive wat carried hy the superior addrens and manage ment of the friends. Hoole Insiand tacked great men, Who favored the conatitution, to fead ber.

The requisite number of states having rat. Ded the consttution, a government was formed under it Aprit 36, 1789. Our General Assembly, at Its September sesalon In that year, sent a lung ietter to Congreme explanatory of the situation lo Rhode Island, and its importance warrunts my quoting a part of lt . The people of this stata from Its tirst settlement.' ian the fetter, "bars been accuatomed and atrongly athached to a democraticat form of government. They hare viewed la the new constitution an approach, though perhaps hut amall, toward that form of government from which we have lately disolved our connection at so much hazard and rxjense of life and treasure, - they have seen with pleasure the administration thereof from the mist im. portant trusts downwand, committed to mea who have highly merted and in whoun the people of the Unlted states place unbounded conf. dence. Iet, even on this circumstance. In itself so fortunate, they have apprehended dauger by way of precedent. Can ft be thought strange then, that with these impresslons, thcy should Wait to see the proposed ayatem orgauizel and in operation, to see what further clurelss and scruritles woutd be agrued to and established lir way of amendments, before they would adopt ft as a consittution of goverument for the uselfet and their posterity?

Rhode Istund nerer supposed she could stand atone. Iu the worde of her General Assemhly in the fetter just referred to:- They know theruselves to be a fandful, comparail vely viewed.' This fetter, as well as a former one I have quoted from, showed that she, ilke New Hanipghire, Massuchusett, New York, Virginia, and Vorth Carcilina, linped to see the const tiution amended. Idise tle latter sate she belfeved ta getting the amenduruts le. fore ratification, and so serong was the prassure for amendments that at the very tirst sexsion of Congress a series of amendments was fintroiuced and passed for ratiftcation hy the states, sad Ihode Istand, though the last to adopt tie conattution, was the nlath state to rutfy the tist ten amendments to that instrument now in fone; ratifying both constitution and amendineurs ai practically the same time. One can hardly wot der at the pressure for amendments to the orig. inal constit:- When the amendmets have to be resortev, r provisions that Congress shall make no ls wo .aspecting na eatahtishment of retiginn, or prombting the free use theref, or abrlditing the ir adom of speech, or of the jereta, or the rght of the pcople peaceahiy to assemble and to petlition the government for a redress of grievances; that excessive ball ahould uot be required, nor ascenaive Inew imposed, nor cruel and uaumal punishments infleted; for right of trai by jury In civil cases; and for other bighly Important providions."-H. Hogers, Rhade Is. land's Adoption of the Faberal Cometitution ( $R$. I. Ifot. Soc., 1890), The convention whlch inally sccepted for Rhode Islend and ratified the fed. eral constitutior met at Bouth Kingrion, In Misch, 1700, thes adjourned to meet at Jow. port in May, and there completed its work. See Exited BTates of AM.: L. D. 1787, and 1787 $-1 \% 60$.
A. D. 1814,-The Hartiord Comvention. See C'یited &tates of Ax. : A. D. 1814 (DEcemzen) The Ilartfond Convention.
A. D. IS4I-1843.-The Dorr Rebellion.The oid Charter replecad by s State Copatitution. - The ofd colonial charter of Ihode Island semained unchanged untli 1848 . Its property qualideation of the right of sufirage, and the Inequality of representation In the leglalature which became more flagrant as the state and Its ctiles increased is population, became causes of great popular discontent. The legislature turaed a deal enr to all demands for democretle basis of government, and in 1841 serious attempt was mado by a reniuto party to Initiate and carry through a revision of the constltution indepeadeutly of legisistive action. A convention was heli in October of that year which framed a constitution and submitted it to the vote of the people. It was adopted by majority of the votes cast, and, In sccordanco with its provlsions, an ciection was held the foilowing April. Thomas Wilson Dort was chosen Governor, ar on the 8 d of May, 1848 , the new governmen was formaliy insugurated by ite supporters at Prorideuce, where they were in the majority. - If Sir. Dorr and his officers, supported by the armed men then at their command, had taken possesslon of the State Ilouse, Arsenal, and other state property, and acted as if they hud coutidence in themselves and their cause, the resuit migit have been diferent. This was the course desired and advocated by Mr. Dorr, but be was overruied by more timld men, who dared (o) just lar enough to commit themseives, disturb the porace of the state, and provoke the Law and Onitr government, but not far enough to give themseives a chance of auccess. While the People's government was being organized In Providence, the reguiariy ciected General Assembly met on the same day at Newport, Innugurated the ollicers as usual, and pasoed resolutions declaring that an ingurrection existed in the state sui calilag on the Presklent for aid, which was decfiaed with good advlce as to amnesty ani coucession, which was not beeded. On the following day a member of the Peopie's icgitlature was arrested under the Algerinc iaw, and this arreat was foilowed by others, which in turn proiuced a plentiful crop of resignations from that body. . At the request of his legislature. Mr. Dorr now went to Washington and unsuccessfuily t'fed to secure the aid and coun. teuance of President Tyier. . . . During Mr. Dorr's absence, bolh parties were pushing on military preparatious. . . . The excitement at this time was naturaily great, though many were still inclined to ralleule the popular feara, and the widest rumors flied the air." On the 18th, the Dorr party made an attempt to galn posses. Liut of the state artanal, but it falled rather Ifnominlously, and Dorr himeelf Hed to Conaec. ticut. One more abortive nalort was made, by others less aggaclous than himself, to reily the aupportern of the Conatitution, In an armed camp. formed at Chepachet; but the party in power confronted it with a much stronger force, and It diaperned without firing agun. This was the end of the "rebeilion." "In June, 1842, while the excliement was stili at Its height, the General Amembly had calied atili another convention, Which met In Beptember and.... Iramed the present constltution, making an extension of tic puifrage nearly equivalent os that demanded by the suanrge party previous to 1841. In Novem. ber tifa conititution was adopted, and In May, 1848, went into effect with a eet of officern chowen from the lemlers of the Landholders party, the game men who had alway rulerl the state.

Early In Auguat, Governor Ihorr, who had remalned beyond the reach of the authorities, against his own wiil and in deference to the Wishes of his friends who stili hoped, Iseued an address explalning and justifylug bis couree and announcing that he shouill soon return to Thode Island. Accordingly, on October 31, he returned to Providence, without concealment, and regtstered himself at the princlpal hotel. Suon after. wards, he was arrested and committed to fail. without ball, to await trial for treason. . . The spirit In which this trial was conducted does no credit to the fairness of magnanimity of the court or of the Law and Orier party. Under an unusuai provision of the act, aithough ali 1horr's acts had been done in Providence County, he wns ifted In Newport, the most unfriendiy county in ce state. ... Every point wns ruled ugninst Mr. Dorr, and the charge to the Jury, while sound in law, piainly showed the opinion nmi wishes of the conrt. It was promptiy followed by a venlict of guilty, and on this verilet Mr. Dorr, on June 25, just two yeurs from his joiaing the camp at Chcpachet. Was sentenced to imprisonment for life. . . Declining an ofter of ilberstion If he would take the oath to support the new constitution, Mr. Dorr went to prison and remalued in ciose confnement until June, 1845. when an act of auncesty was passed, and be was released. A great concourse greeted him with cheers at the prison gates, and escorted him with music nad banuers to his father's house, which he had not entered since he began his cous. test for the eatablishment of the People's constitutlon. The newspapers all over tive coutry, which favored his cause, congratuinted himami spoke of the event as an act of tardy justice to a martyr in the cause of freedom and popuiar rights. . . But Mr. Dorr's active life was over. He had left the prison broken In heaith and visibiy decllning to his end. The ciose conanement, dampness, and bal air had shattered his coustitutlon, and fixed upon him a disease from which ise never recovered. Ife iived nine years longer but In feehic heaith and much suftering. -C. H. Payne, The Great Dorr War (New Eing. land Mag., June, 1890).

Also in: D. King, Lifo and Times of Thomas Wilson Dorr.
A. D. 1888.-Conatitntional Amendment.The quallication of the Suffrege.-"The adoption of the Amendment to the Coustitution of Fhode Isiand, at the recent eiection, reiating to the electlve franchlse, brings to a ciose a politicai struggie which began in earnest in 1819. Hence

RHODE ISLAND, 1888.

Cumetrimfionat Amendmons.
RIIODE ISLAND, 1808.
It has been In progrean about 80 years. It makee, or تlli ultimately make, greai politioul changes bere.

It may aot be inopportuae upon the consununation of en great a politioni change, to note briefly mome of the stepm liy which the change came to pasa. . The quall. acations of eiectors wan mol diefinid by the char. ter. That power whs given to the deneral intraniaced tato the inws iu 1603, and has ever siace lwen and mow is in part retuinemi, It was not at first speritied to be innd, but men of come petent estates, withont regaril th the species of property, 'may le admitted to be freenen.' Even on accurate $n$ wholohar an the late Juige Potter, has errenl in inis atutement of the case. He maya that by the nict of Minello. 1003-4, ail penons, were rubilrell to le of 'eronpetent eatate.' Tinis is but correct. The propwaition was made two yeara andine yurent to the extalilishment of the charter, ami ana manie by the king of England, and went by hitn liy conndowioacrs acterl by the (ienurmi Anecolily. .This pualideathou wres mande tu dejend oniy on inmin, by the ant of the Generai Aswembiy of Felirnary 1723-4, and was a purely Rhoule Island morasure (Digeat. of IK. I., 1330, p. 110). Frome that time watil the present, covering a perion of wourly t6.5 gears, this yualifention lins in mome measure renialncel. The vmiue was then (In 1;e3) fixed at L100, and practicaliy, it was never ciongend, it Whas mised or fow erid from the tis time to meet tive thetuation of paper moncy. Sometinces it was in 'old tenor' and motmetimen in 'lanfini moacy;' buth of which were la paper, had reck. oned usuaily in pommis, whlling sumf pence. In 1;60, the amount wis exo lawful numey. In 1763 'lawfui nooncy' was defluedi to be gold or siiver. After the derelnai syatem came into nas. the mole of reckoulng was rlanged futh dollars Thus In tio are sion shillinge, whed at slx shilitings to the dollur, whleh was then Niew Eughond currency, is equalito ol 133.33 : by in faw of 1788 the sum was mudie fich, aut so it has always siace remalnoil, nail monder the recent anorniment it remalus as $n$ gualitication of an eitector, who ran vole on a yuestion of expeatiture, or the levying of a tax. .. There was practically tin chanue in the qualiticatons reyuinel of man to inccurne an Hector from the curlicest thers down to twis. In 1819 a merious attempe was namle to obtala a comstluthon. A convention was calleqi anti a constitution was frumed uad sulmitted to the people, that is, to the Frecmen, for minpton: hat the General iso sembly enactol that a majority of thirue-thelha shoula lee regulreal for its ailopithon. This was the ongin of the three-tifth restrictlon in the present constitution. It dhi not cularge the sulf. frage: a propusithon tu that end recejed only 3 votes agalast 61 , wr was it of any generni beneHe, nind it was ns well that it failich. Tlue polithclasaes, to will. The werm conturil wo two clasacs, to Wit: The secomi som, nuif other younger sons of frowmen, ani those uther native Amerrean clelze nus of ofher states who hat moveel into Therede Islami, whid Herein acquired a reai. dence. To therse iwu classes, withough pesseresed of abundant personal property, and upon whict the sta:- iericri nad culiectril 1uxer, and from Whom the state exacterl military service, the right to vote was dealed, because among thelr prowewlons there was no land. It was taxatica Without reprempatation, the very princlple cipwo which the Revolutlon had been fought. In 1 wos more than one half the caxea pald fa Provilience were paill by men who could mot rute upannay quention. In 1830, In North Provilence, there were 200 freemen and 879 native nien, over iwenty one years, who were dhfranchiamil.
 hoil fought the battles for lihrile Isiand thimgh the llevoiution, but who, penwewing ao innil, had aever been ahle to rote upon any gucation.
In another respect a great wrong was done. It was in the representathon of the towns in the General Asemibiy. Jameatown bal a reprewn tative for every elghteen freemen. Provhience one to every 2is. Smithtlelf, one In every 20, Fifty doliars In taxes, In Burrington, hail the sume puwer in the reprementation that 8i.5) hal In Irovilience. The minurlty of legni volers aretualiy controlled the malorlty. . . . Nuris then was the polltical condition of men th Hinede Inlanil in 1830 . Thero were about 8 , (inio Frivemen anf alxut 13,000 unenfranchised Amertians with comparatively no naturniized foreigners allurur them. The agitation of the question dill not cense. In $18: 9$ it wan so vioient that the Gencrai Anemhly referral the question to a cummit. teve, of whicil benjamin Ihazanl was the had. nui which commilttee made a report, aiwnya alnce knewa as Ilazanj's Report, which it was suppamed would qulet forever the agitation. But it ithl not; for tive yeurs later a couventlon was callided and a portion of a coastitution frommat. The question of foreigners was Arat serfouly raisedf by Mr. Hazaril in tinls report. By tha term. Mr. Iluzaril imtenied aot oaly citlzens of couatrles cuitsille of the United States, but he intenied Amirricun citizena of other Anurican States. Ile wouid deny poititical rights tu a man Inirn in Mameschusetts, who came to dweli la Mhinde Iniand, In the same way that he wiulid deny them to a Spaniard. A Massachusetts nas nulat ilve here one year, the 8paniani three, but inith must own inad. These deas were formulated in the constitution of 1884 as far as it went.

Fortunately it feil tirough and hy the moot disgraceful of actions: and its history when written wili form one of the darkest chapters la Rhode Island bistory. This discrimlation agalnat furclgn born cltizens, that is, men lerro In countries ontside of the Liaited States, Dercame nure pointeri in the propoed Laadholiers conNiltotion of November 1841, A nalive of tho United Statea could vote on a innd quasilficatlon, or If be paidi taxes upoa other apecies of prop--rty. A forelgner must owa iand and he could nut vote otherwise. This Constitution was diefeatedi. Then cume the Peopie's Coastitutloa (etherwise known as the Dorr Constitution). It made no restrictions upon foreigaers; it ulmitted ali eltizens of the Cialted States upon an cyuai footlag; negros were excluded in both ducuinents. This Constitution never went into effect. Then rame the present Constitution, adopited in september, 1842, by which ail the dilsahlititle emmpinined of were swept a way with :lace exceptioa of the dlserinination in the case of forelgners. By it acgroes were admitted, but forelgners were mighred to hoht iands, as all the varturs propoaltioas had provided with the siagle exception of the People's Constitution. Now comet the amendment recently adopted, and parallel whit It I have reproducell the section relating to the same matter from the People's Constltu. tlon:
Qua? Vifation of $ "rotora vilir Arm, iment (Ruurn) to Cimastitution. Whepted . Ipril, 154.

Nection 1. Every male cltizen of the luiterl stater of the age of !l yewre, whice lins had his rembience and bume in titls state fur two yenfe, atal In the (u)w or city in whlels be nayy uffer to vote in $x$ mumtis uxt preceding the time of bis veting. and whome name whall be regintered In the town or clity where lis reshice on or before the last day of lhene, lu the year next proverling to the there of his voltag. slotl have a right to vole in the evectlens of sll Iril utlesern and on all quesilons In all legally organzed townor liave augiected or of Anit Momr, has a place alike notalice in the bistory of anclent and incelieval theme: harily less of a place, too, Iu preblstorie logendo anil myths. It has leren famed ln every age for a dimate almost without defect. Among the ancienta its lorle people [se Aha Minur: Tue Grase (inoosten) were distIngilsheyl for thelr enterprise la coumerce, thelr nure prublty, their rourtice, their retinement, thelr wealth, thelr libaraity to litefuture and the arts. In the mhlitie ages alf this hat disuppentent, lut the Inland and the city lial trecome the gent of the power it the Kulghts of sit. Jolin - the last ontpont of Europern civilizaton in the rast, held Btoutly against the Turks until 1ise. The unnurersafil slege of Ithenlew, 13. C 305 or 344, hy In metrius, the son of Antlgonns, was une of the Ereat erents of auclent military history. It " showal mot oniy the power hat the vlrtues of this merchant aristocracy. They rehuilt their shattored clty wlth great magniticence. They usal the metal of lenetrins: s a onalomed coglness for the famona Colomens [see lxelow], a lironze figure of the sun shout 100 feet hifis, which, however, was threwn down and broken liy the earthpuake of B. © 2:27, and lay for centuriea nam the rhays, the womer of all visitors. Is sulid that the sumaceas solli the remnants of this stutne for old metal when they captured Rhules. . . It was doubtless during the same jurioul that lhumes perferted that system of marine mercentie law which was accepted not only hy all llellenistic states, but acknowledged by the llomans down to the daye of the empire.

RHODES. -The lainnel of 1thrales, with ita pirturempre crapital rity lifutlonl in nume, iyfig

We do not know what the detall of their mercaulle system was, except that it was worked by menns of an active police squadron, which put dowu plracy, or confined it to shipping out.

RIIODES.

Fand meetioge: Pro-fuced to pey any taz videct, that no permon aseersed upon hra in sha'l at asy tlme be any cown or cfty or disallowed to rote in the trict, for one rear preelection of the Clty ceding the 0 meetios Council of way efty. of at which he shall ofter upon any propraition to to vote, chall be et. impose a tax, or for the titled to vote on any expenditure of money quentlon of taxatlon, or In any town or clty, un. the expendititre of any lese lie slanll whitn the public moneys * jear next precellng Bec. 7 . There shall hinve palil a tax amacsued be atrict regtatration upon hls property of all quallaed votern therein, valuerf at least . and no person at one hunired and shall lo permitted to thirty-four dollar. vote whowe name has not been entered upon the list of voters before the polls are opened.
It thus appeare that the peopie of Rhode Inland liave at last adopted an mendment to the Constitutlon, more liberal in its quallifcations of clectorn, than the terms asked by Mr. Dorr, in 1842. All that whe maked hy Mr Dorr, and even by thome of hla party, more radical than himself. las been graniel, ardi even more. And yet ther were denonnced with every apecies of vlle eplitut as Free Sufrago Men, "-8, S. Ilfler, The Eivel of a great IVlitical Etruggle in Rhode Ioland (Lhook Jivies, v. 5. pp. 63-57).
she their confederacy, and also that thelr persintent nentrailty was only sbandoned when thelr commerchai loteresta were illrectly attacked. In cuery war they appuar as medlatorn and pence-makers. There is an aliuslon in the ' y 0 p . cator of Piantis to 50 ang men being sent to learn business therc, as they are now sent to llamburg or Gequa. The wenlth and culture of the people, together with the atately plan of their city, gave mish lncltement and scope to artists in brouze and marhle, as well as to palnters, and the names of a large number of Rhodlan artista lave survived on the perleatals of statues long slace destroged. But two famous worik whether origlnals or coples seems uncertaln still attest the genlus of the school, the 'lao coon. now In the Vatlean, and the "Toro Far. nese. "-J, IP. Mahafly, Story of Alerander's Eimpire, ch, 20, with foot-note.
B. C. 412, - Revolt from Athens, See Gnesce: B. C. $418-412$.
B. C. $37^{8-357 .-I n ~ t h e ~ a e v ~ A t h e n i a n ~ C o n s ~}$ federacy.- Revolt and mecesslon. - The Social War. Sec ATness: B, C. 378-357.
B. C. 305-304--Siege by Demetriun Pollorcetes. - One of the memorable sleges of an. tlqulty was that in whlch the hrave, free clitizens of lhiseles held thelr splene!d town (B, C, 805) for one whole year agalnst the utmout elforts of Inemetrins, culled Polioncetes, or "the Besleger," son of Antigonus, the would-be muccessor of Alexander (see Macrdomia: B. C. 810-301). Demetrius was a remarkable engineer, for his age. and constructed machinery for the siege which was the wonder of the Greclan world. IIIs masterpiece was the Helepoils, or "clty taker, "- a wonden tower. 100 foet hlgh. shesthed with Irun, travelling on wheela and inoved hy the united strength of 8.400 men. He also assalled the walls of Rhodes with battering reme 150 feet long, each driven by 1,000 men But all his Ingrabous appliancen foltod and be wis futcol In the emi to recognlise the imlependence of the valiant dehmatiane.-C. Torr, ikherles in An. cient Timen, Pp. 12-14, 44.

RIODES.

RENZI'S REVOLLTION.

Also in: C. Thrl wall, Mrat of Breev, eA. 69.
B. C. 101, - Allinnee with Rome. - War with Aatiochus the Grock.-Acqulaition of gerritery In Carla and lycia. Bee Brevicida: H. (.. $2=4+187$.
B. C. 83.-Bealeged by Mithridates-At the lveginning of him thmi war with the Romana, B. C. sa, Mithrdales mule a deaperate attempt io re. duce the eity of Rholen, which was lime falthful ally of liome. But the Jhoultans repetied all his asaulta, hy mea and by land, and he wai forced to abmadon the slege.- O. Long, Dhecline of the Iomun Republic, r. 2, ed. 20.
A. D. 1310. - Caaqueat and accupation by the Kinthte Hospltallers of $\mathrm{St}_{\text {t. Joha }}$ See iluapitalinemay ar. Jons: A. D. 1 git.
A. D. 1480.-Repulse of the Turke See Temas (The Ottomane): A. 1). $1431-1+81$.
A. D. syas.-Siege and conquent by the Tarks.-Surrender and withdrawal of the Kaighte of St. Johm See Hospitalless a AT. Jonn; A. D. (3)

RHODES, The Colossan of. - 'In the c mentary works for the Instruetlon of yon peopte, widnd frequent mantion of the Colue sus of Hhodes. The statue is always represented with gigantic limbe, each leg reatligg on the enornous rocks which face the eatrunce to the prinelpal port c: the Island of lhodet ; and slipe in full sail puseed easlly, it is mald, between Its legs; for, accordlag to Pliny the anelent, Its height was 70 cubles. This Culc sus was reck. oned among the seven wonders of the workd, the six others being, as la well known, the hangling garleus of llabyion, devised by Nitucris. wife of Nebueliadnczzar; the pyrnmile of Eigypt; the statue of Jupler Olympus; the Buushleuni of IIalicarnassus; the temple of Diana at Ephe. sus; and tho Pharon of Alexandria, completely deatroyerl by an carthquake $\ln 130{ }^{3}$. Nowhere has any authorlty been found for the assertion that the Colomsus of Rhodes spanned the entrance to the harbour of the island and almitted the passage of vessels in full sail between its widestretehed limbs. . . . The following is the real truth coueerning the Colosaus." After the ahandoument of the siege of 1hhodes, In 303, by Demetrius Poliorcetes, "the Rhodiana, laspired by a sentlmeut of piety, and excled by fervent gratitude for so signal a proof of the divine favour, cominanded Chares to ereet a statue to the honour of thelr delty [the sun-god Hellow]. An Insertpition explained that the expenses of its construetion were defrayed out of the sale of the materials of war lefi by Demetrius on his retreat from the island of thodes. Thla statue was erected on an open space of ground near the great harbour, and near the spot where the pacha's seraglio now stands; and its fragments, for many years after lits destructlon, were seen and admirel by travellers."-0. Deleplerre, lliatorical Diftreltien, ch. 1.

RHODES, Kaighte of.-During thelr aceu. patlon of the lyinm, the Knights llospitallers of St. John of Jeruathom wrore mommonly ealled Knigits of Khodes, as they were afterwands called Knights of Malta. See Hoapitalleas or Bt. Joun.

RI, The.-" The RI or klag, who whe at the head of the tribe (the 'susth,' or tribe, In manlion Irelauil], held that position not maerely ly cire. thon, hut as the reprementalive in the monlip libe of the common ancentor, and had a bervilitary elalm to thelr obedience. As the supronim nif thority and juige of the tribe he whil the lifup klag. This was hla primary functlon. the learler In war he was the 'Tolsveh' of ins taln. "一W. F. skene, Celfic Stothand, e. 3. p. If - Are, almo, Ttath, The RIALTO: Made the seat of Venetian government. Hee Vemick: A. 1). 097 -mil.

RIBBON SOCIETIES.-RIBEONISM. Herincland: A. D. 1H20-1286.

RIBCHESTER, Origin of, Aee Cocriex.
RICH MOUNTAIN Battle of. see tisited graten or Am. : A. D. 1 Hol (Jewh-Jthr: Wemt Vibormia).

RICHARD (of Corawrall), Klag of Germagy,
1). 1250-1971..... Richard 1. (called Cour

Lemis King of England, $1180.1141 .$.
Kir art 11. Kling of Eagland, 1877-1:3rs Fi. ard 111. Klas of Encland, 1483-148.

ShBOROUGH, England, Roman oricia teo litrepie.
CHELIEU, The Minatry of. She havce: A. D. $1610-1610$, 30 1042-(04s.

RICHMOND, Va. : Powhatan's residence. See Amemican Aboheiner: Powhatas (ios. rederact.
A. D. 1781 ,-Lafayette's defonee of the city.
 ahy-May).
A. D. $1861 .-$ Made the capital of the Southenn Confederacy. See Viruima: A. 1 ). 1 abl (Jthy).
A. D. 1862.-MCClellan's Pealnsular Cat. paign agalnat the Confederate capltal. :-
 May: Vimama): (Jis: Virginla); (Jexp Vir-Avacer: Viroisha).
A. D. 1869 (March):-Kilpatrick's and Dahgrea's Raid. See Úvitid Statem of iM.: ג. 1). 1804 Fembeary- Mancti: Virginlat.
A. D. 1864 (May)-Sheridan's Raid to the eley lines. See Cnited states on Am.: A. D. 1864 (May: Vitmonta) Sheridas's main.
A. D. 1865 (Aprll),-Abadonmeat by the Confederate army and goverament.-Deatructive confagration. - President Lincola in the cliy. Siee Cnited Statem of A.v. : A. II. 1865 (April: Vimanla).

RICIMER, Count, and hle Roman Imperial pappets. Hee Rome: A. 1). 423-4ib.

RICOS HOMBRES, of Aragon. See Contea, The eakly Spanish.

RIDGEWAY, Battle of. See Canada: A.D. 1866-1871.
RIDINGS OF YORXSHIRE.-The mame Rldinge is a corruptlon of the worl Trithinss. or 'Thirds.' whieh was applied th the large di. Flslons of Yorkshlre and Lincolnshlre (Eugind) In the tlme of the Angles. - T. P. Taswell-Lang: mead. Linglish Cunat. lliat., ch. 1, note.

RIEL'S REBELLION. SUTAFADA: AD. 1889-1873.

RIENZI'S REVOLUIIION. See lom: A. D. 1347-1354.

RIQA.

RICA: A. D idar,-siege ad captare by Guitarns Adelphes of Swriem. Set Ais Arm

A. D. 2700 - Unancteesfal siege by the xiar of folad. Bee BCax yavian stati a (5พ& & (x): A. D. 1097-1700.
"RIOHT," "LEFT," AND "CENTER, The.-In prance, and wevers other contibentil Pinr pean countrles, polltical parties to the legislative lixlice are named sccording to the poattione" "bentin which they oceupy to thent? reppecto - , ambers. The extreme conerrvativen gather at the right of the chalr of the premial!... othicer, mal are known, accordingly, to Ti. Bight" The extreme radeait slmilferly eoliect. ed on the oppooite olde of the chamber, are called "The Left." Unally, tbere fa m moderate whag of earity of thene partive which partially detuchet ltwelf and for deal rated, in one cave. "The Might Center," and in the other. "The Left Center"; while, midway letween ail theer diviolons, there in a party of independentes who take live mame of "the Center."
RIGHT OF SEARCH, The, See ExitkD

RIGHTS, Declaratlom and Blif of, See Emoland: A. D. 1 gey (Jandahy-Febreary), and (Octosen).
RIGSDAG, The.- The teglalative amembiy no henmark gal Nwaten. sce chandinamian

conetitutuen ur ishridis

 then asd conguente or the hurss.

RIMINI, Orisin of the city see हomp. B. ( ${ }^{2}$ 203-191.

The Malatecta family. set Malatesen FAMLY.
A. D. 3275.- Soverelgnty of the Pope confrmed by Rodolph of Hapshurg. Nee Gesmasy: A. D. 1272-1308.

RIMMON.-"The name of R1mmon. which means 'pomegranate, occura frequently in the topography of I'aicatine, and was protiably derived from the culture of this beautifui tree."J. Kenrick, Phonicia, eh. 2

RIMNIK, Battic of (1770): See Tukns: A. D. 1;86-1793.

RINGGOLD, Battle of. See U'itited States of AM. A. D. 1863 (Octoses-November: Tensemese.
RINGS OF THE AVARS. See Avars. Rivge of the.

RIOTS, Draf. See New York: A. D. 186in RIPON, Lord. The Indian admlaintration of See Imjia: A. D. $1880-1899$.
R1PON, Treaty of see England: A. D. 1640.

RIPUARIAN FRANKS, The. See Franifa.

RIPUARIANS, Law of the.-"On the death of Clovis, hla son, Theoderic, was king of the eastern Franks; that in to say, of the Ripuarian Franks: be resided st Metz. To him is generslly Et: th: Accorving to this tradition, then, thes low of the Rlpuarians abould be placeri betwern "te years the pretenaloo of amcending wo tic sight-hand

MCHELLE.

bank of the ithine, and to anclent Clermany.
I am tuellues lis bellere that it was onis unier Ingrobert 1., twitwefl the yeary haid and 6iss, that rearlued un "-F Guizor, fliot. of Clitibition, 2 (fhance, e. it wet. to.
RIVOLI, Battie of (1797). See Phanck

KOAD OF THE S WANS, The. Be Non. MAKB: NAMK AND I'RTUIN.

ROANOKE : A. D. 1585-2590-The Arat attempla at Eachint entiloment is America $\cdots$ lont celony. seo Amentca; A. I). 10=t1504; and 153 -150\%.
A. D. 882. - Captere by Burnside'e Ex. poditen. Untikn sratke ow Am.: A. D. Izot (Jastrant-Apalf: Nohtil (hollina).

POBE, La Nobieme de la. See Pahla. wext in l'ank.

ROBERT, Latia Emperer at Comatantioo pie (Romania), A. 11. $\{: 21-1294 . .$. . Robert, Klng of Naples, 1319-1343. . .Robert I., Klag of France, 4 H-923. . . . Robert 1. (Bruce), King of Scotland, 13'2-1820..... Robert 11., King of France, wh-1031.... Robert 11. (firat of the Stuarts), King of Scotland, 1881)-1890. Pobert III. Kins of Scotiad, 1390-140

ROBERTSON, James, and the cariy set. eiement of Tennespec. See Texricseze: A. It

ROBESPIERRE, and the Freach Revolution. Fhe Fhaner: A. D. live (atoget-1)tioBL. H) 10 tive (ficly).
ROZINSON, John, and hil Congregation. See fatapandexts: A. 1). 1604-1010: ; and Ma* ROBOGDII, The. See 1melann, THAEE or earliy (elithe linabitante

ROCCA SECCA, Bsttie of (1482), Nut Italy (huttheby: A. 1) 13:3f-1 $1 / 4$.

ROCHAMBEAU, Count $d e$, and the Wat of the American Revolution. Net ísited

ROCHDALE SOCIETY (Cooperative) see suctai. Movemests. A. 1). 1 &18-1604;

ROCHELLE EARII Im: $\because \cdots$ slon of the Englich,-Gra: $\therefore$ al he inof the first commercial places of france: If way well known to the Eugilith under the ual te of the White Town, as they caile 1 it , from it. appearance when the aun shone and was ic flected from tis rocky coasta. It wan aisn much frequentel by the Netherianders. . . The fown hail . . . enjoyet extrantínary munctipsifranclaises ever since the perion of the Euglisit warn [see Frasce: A. 14. 1338-1380, and 1360-13\%0]. It had by Ita own analded power revolted from the English domlnion [13:2], for which Chartes V., in his customary maner, conferren apon the townsfolk vainahle privifeges.- mong others. that of independent jurisilition In the town and its likertle's. The design ot Ilenry 11. to erect a citadel within their walls they had been enabled fretusately to preyent thpough the favour of the Cit fllons and the Jinatmoreacies. Rochelle exhibiten l'rotestant aympathlet at an early perlunl.' - L von IRanke, Cicil Wara ind Momarehy in trance, in the $16 t h$ and 17 th Cenlurics, $c h$. 14 .

ROCHELLE

ROMAN CITY FESTIVAL

Atso wx: II. M. Balul, Fist. of the Rixe of the Iuguenole of France, $0.2, \mathrm{pp} .270-873$.
A. D. 1568. - Becomes the headqnarters of the Huguenote.-Arrival of the Oneen of Na-verre. Bee France: A. D. 1506 -15io.
A. D. 1573.-Slege and snccessfal defense. Llee Franct: A: D. 15:2-1573.
A. D. ${ }^{1620-1632}$.-Huguenot revolt in support of Navarre and Bearn. - The nnfavorahle Peace of Mont peller. See France: A. D. 16:0 -16!?
A. D. 1025-8626.-Renewed revolt.- Second treaty of Montpelier. set Fraver: A. 1. 1624 -1626.
A. D. 1627-8626. - Revolt in alliance with England.- Slege and surrender.- Richelieu's dyke. - The decay of the city. See Francz: A. D. $162 \mathrm{i}-16 \%$.

ROCHESTER, England: Origin.-One of two lamana uwas In Britalu emiiml Dhimomivie is Identiderl In slte whith the monleri cily of the ioester. It derived lis saxon name-uriginuily " Ifrofescester"-" nereording to berle, from one if His rariy fuldre or proferts namerl limf."-T.

ROCIESTER UNIVERSITY. No.. Einu.
carlow. Moprens: Anemba: A. 1 lima ket. ROCKINGHAM MINISTRIES. The. N

ROCROI: A. D. 1643.-Siese and Battle.

A. D. 1653.-Siege and capt ure hy Conde in the Spanish service. Ner F'linse : A. D. 10:i:31Hins.
A. D. 1659.-Recovered hy $r$ :ance. Siee Funve: A. 1). nitu-luml.
RODNEY'S NAVAL VICTORY. See

RODRIGUES, The ialand of. See Mas-

ROESKILDE, Treaty of ( 1658 ). See Kran.

ROGATION. - With reference to the hekiviathon of the lemmess. "the worl kagation iv fre:

 cance a lers: but in prartice Rougnto and lacs were laseni us emuve :ible termax, just as lbill alul of Rement infig. Ah. t.
ROGER 1., Count of Sicily, A. 13. 108:1101..... Roger II., Count of Sicily, 1108-1120; King of Naples and Sicily, $11: 4-11$ is.
ROGUE RIVER INBIANS, The AMriticis Amblinsea: Motkew, de:
ROHAN, Cardinal-Prince de, and the Diamond Necklace. Fer Finsme: I. 1). 1ist178.

ROHILLA WAR, The Nive Ismi: I. D. 1773-17*5.
ROIS FAINEANS. tre F'hanke:
D.

811-752.
ROLAND, Madame, and the Girondiats.
 ROLAND, The great Beil. Nee Cillest : A II 1:0 mo - $1: 41$
ROLAND IMAGES. Aer Ilana Tinwa.
ROLICA, Battle of (I808), Sec Sruls: A. i).

ROLLO, Dake, The congreat of Non mardy by. See Nonvara: A. D. 876 gili; and Noryandr: A. D. $011-1000$.
ROLLS OF THE PIPE, - ROLLS OF THE CHANCERY. See ExCMEqUR

ROMA QUADRATA. See Palative IItl.
ROMAGNA. - The old exarchate of liaveuna "as having been the chipf seat of the later Im. perial prower in Italy. gut the name of Romailia. humanollola, or thimigna."-E. A. Froemad, Hist. Jown. of Eurupp, ip. 2st and 238.
ROMAGNANO, Battle of (1524). Se Phaver. i. D. 15:93-1525.

ROMAN AUGURS. Se Atomra
ROMAN CALENDAR.-ROMAN YEAR. See lialienpar. lulatix ROMAN CAMPAGNA, OR CAMPANIA. See Canpanisa.
ROMAN CATACOMBS, The. Se Cita. сомm
RUMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH. SN Pipary, and Catholaca

ROMAN CITIZENSHIP, under the Repuhlic. See Civen lunani; Alan, (erimitrs.
Under the Empire. - "Whilic Bomprius, Cresir, Augustus and othern extenleyl the Lavin rights to many proviactal comunultios, they were rarcful til give the fuil Roman qualifica. tion [the 'pirivileges of Quirltary proprhtiondip. Which gave not mereis tine empty title of the suffrage, that the precliona immonity from tritme or land tax I to permans only. Of withl pro. mons, Indped. Inrge mumkers wire mimiluar in citizenshlp hy the empern:s. Tive fuli righivo of lumae wire confersul on the Trumsnlpine tivils by ('inurilus, noll the Intln risifs min the sam iarils by Vespaslan; but it was wifh much ro. serve that ary purtions of territiry luvevond lasir were enfranchisel, and remberes. lanic or Quirt tary mil, and thus condowed with a sperdial immunly.

The carlior emperurs limif. indirel. exesciserl a jeaious rewrye la pophiarifluiz the Ihaman privileges: lat from Clanlius Jown. waris they meem to linve vell with ome numbers In the faclity witio willol they confernal the in as a luman, ur lopposel them as a burion. The practice of purchaslag ("vitas was hus main. ealiy comman under Clandlus.

Neitheriiadrian, na hasifiy ntbrimed by st. Chirywiotom, nor bis nest sult eresur, we has beren luferreif frima confusion of umares, was the authir of the in cree by wisich tive lemnan frunchliwe was thally
 Whatever the pregress of enfruile hivedernt way have treen, this fomeons consummanion was the chected till tify yeara after our prewilt inate. hes
 - C Merivinic. lliof. of the temans, ch. No, nith fint mote.

ROMAN CITY FESTIVAL.-The "im. man , hatef festival or festival of the rity lhati masimi, (lumani). . WEa all extrinfilmary Chpituline Jupitur and the gents twothige alows With him, crilinarily la pursuance of a buw male ly the generai lefore battle, athl tharefore nsuaily obmervert on the return inome of the burcredel towanl the Circus staked off lyfwern the Pulatine and Aventlue. ... In eario «wrined of coutent tivere was but ono compettiou, and that between not more that two competitorn."T. Mommsets, Hise, of Rome, bk. 1. ch. 15.

ROMAN CITY FESTIVAL

ROMAN EMPIRE, THE HOLY.

ROMAN COINAGE AND MONEY. Soe Moxer amd Baxising: IRome.
ROMAN COMITIA. Bee Comitia Centr. miata, and Comitia Cernata.
ROMAN CONSULS. Sec CuNst.t.
ROMAN CONTIONES. See (ONNTIUNKA
ROMAN DECEMVIRS. Se IEEEMviAa.
ROMAN EDUCATION. See EDtcation. Romax.

KOMAN EMPIRE: R. C. 38.-Its beginaing, and after. See Iumi: B. C. 81, and after. A. D. 476.-Interruption of the line of Emperors in the Weat. See IRome: A. I). 45.5-476.
A. D. 800. - Charlemagne's restoration of the Weatera Empire. See Geryanr: A. II. thu)
A. D. 843-958.-Dissolution of the Carolingian fabric. Ste Itair: A. D. 843-051.

ROMANEMPIRE, HE HOLY: A. D. 963. -Foanded by Otto the Great.-Later Origin of the Name.-"The Iloly Ituman Empire, taklag the numic in the seave whiels it commonly loore ln later centurien, as denoting the ooveidignty of (irrmany nal Italy rested in a Gerinamic prince, Is the ereation of Otto the Grual. Substantially, it ly true, as well as terlinically, it was a proion. gation of the Empire of Cliarles [Cloarlemagne]: and it rested (as will be shewn la the sequil) unno lifas casemtlaily the same as thome which lirunglit about the coronation of A. I. 800.
This rextured Filmpire, which profesmed itseif a cuntinaution of the Curoliagian, was In many if we rockon mirietly, only Germany proper and twothirds of Italy: or connting in sinbject lout merrate kingoloms, IJurgundy, Ikhemia, : Io ravia, Iolanel, Demmark, perlonss IItingary. Its indicil the spiritizal potentates of his realm, and wis ciarnest in spreading Christlanlty among the lualluys: he was master of the l'upe sind the. fromber of the IIoly Jtoman C'isurih. But religion la his a liss inuportant place in his mind and bles whinivinutian.

It was also lese lRuman.
timber lim the Germans lucume not only n nuifed uathos, bitt were at once miserl on a pinnatle anomg Enropean peoples as the Imperial race the possartwors of tomus an Thome's anthurity: Wible the pulitical commection with fituly stirred thelr spirit. It brought whith it a hasuleage and cultire hitherto unknown." It way wit until the rilgn of Fredertick Barlmarosea titia the epithet " lloly" was pretsend to the title of the revived IWoman Empire. "Of lts earlit.r origin, nuter Conral II (the Salic), which some hatren suppowed, there is no docunentary irace, thumblithree is alar no proof to the contrary. A. fict as is known lt oceurs first ln the famous I'rivilege of Anmifia, granted by Freverick in Hue fourth year of his rign, the secourd of his cmatire. . 'vell occaslonally lyy llenry VI and Frolerick II, it is inore frequent nader their -ucrewors, Wil"am. IRichari, liudolf, till ster ( Larlen IV's time it hecomen lisbitual, for the lao fiow cepturies indiequensable. IRegurding the orgin of mongular a title many theortea have lnull adsenced. . . . We need not, however, be inta.ly great divibt as to Ith true itieanlag and [urport.

Ever sluce IIIdelorand had clalmed
for the priesthond exclusive sanactity and suproms jurimictlon, the japai pariy had not ceesed to speak of the civll piwer as being, comparen with that of thelr own chlef, merely secular, earthly, profane. It may be conjectured that, to meet this reproach, no less Injurious than Insulting. Frederick or has mivinery legan to use in public documeuts the expression 'Iloly Emplre': thereby whang to asmert tine divine Institution and rellglons duties of the oflice lie held. . . . It is almuat sujperthous to oborre that the beginning of the title 'Iloly ' loms mothing to do with the beginning of the Einpirc itmelf. Emo-utlally aud substantlally, the Iloly Ifomua Enupire was, as lias been shewn alrealy, the creation of Charles the Great. Lanking at lt more techniwally, as the monarchr, uot of the whole Weat, like that of Clarles, but of Germany aud Italy, with a clalm, whleh wha never more then a claim, to unlverual morereiguty, its beginning ls fixed by most of the German writers, whowe proctice has been followerl in the text, at the coronation of Otto the Great. Ilit the title was at lrast one, anl probably two centuries fater." -J. Bryce, The IISly Roman Eimpire, ch. 6, 9 aul 12, vith frowt-note. -Otto, or Oilin, the Grint, the siccond of the siaxon line of Germanic kings, cromet the Alpe and made himself master of the thatracted kingilont of Italy in Dist. on the Invltation of Joha XII. who desiren] lifassistance agninst the reignIng king of Italy, Jerengir II, aui who olfered him the linperlal coromation (there land been no mokuowledfed rompuror for forty years) as hia rewuri. Ile enmily rulikerl Iberelsgur to vasentace, and, after reiviving the lmperial erown from Pojus Juhns. ho dill mot mertule to deprexe that licentious und turbilent puinifif, liy the voice of a ayual which lue convolied los sif. Deler's, mbil to seat another fis lois place. Thrie rewolts in the elty of ilome, which were atirisil up by the deposicl [rije, the comperor supprissend with a henvy hand, and lie tewik away from the city all Its firms of republlann likerty, entrosting the Eovernusent to the juive as his viceroy.-The anme, ch. 9.- "This (hermanic cinplru . . . waa plre but ly wimen mita form. On the conirury, throngh rimatmat struggles new eonstitutional forma had de velopal themselres of which the ohd Worlid lund as yet ho conaerption. . . . In a worl or two at least, we must clinacterize thia tranaformation. Its essence is that an attompt was nume to aijust the curiception of obedience num militury wrvice to the ueds of the life of the imlivitiul. All the urrangements of life -hangei their chnructer so son as it berane the dustonin to grant Imad to loval arcrloris who, in thru. provilidi with possessions nccording to thelr own weveral grades, conld only be sure of of the lani. It was through und through a liviog organizntion, which f:x) in the entire muemberitl whole: for the comuts amd diukew for their own part entered intu a similar relationslif with their on in subetenants. Therewith the pmes. mosion uf lund entered intoran indissolnblicmmec. fion with the therry of the enipire, a connectian Which extembed nlas tothose boriler nations whith were In contact whith and suborilinate to the monnrehy Tint un easpire so constituted could not rickon on such uuconditional oledience had been paid to the old Roman emplre is clear as day. Neverthelens the whole order of thlogs in the world depender on the syatem of adjusted relationshipe, the keyatone or rather command. ing central point of which was formed hy thit mans empire. It ronlil acarcely claim any longer to be universal, hut it did neiertheless hold the chief place in the general state-syatem of Europe, and it proved a powerful upholder of the inde. peudence of the secular power. It was just this Idea of universal power, and altogether of ascen dnucy over the Christian world, that was indeli. hly impiantel in the German empire. But could this idea be actuaily realized, was Germany strong enongh to carry it through: Otto the Great originated it. hit hy no means carried it to its completion. He puesid his life amid constont internal and externul struigies ; no laating form of constitution was he nble to leave behinul." L. von lanke, IIfeltgewhichte (trane. from the through an artificiai state.system, not through a great army of ofticials did into rule Western Europe, hut more than all through the wealth of military resunrevs which his rietories haul placed in his hand. Throngh the great nrmy of his Oerman vhsasis who were welf verwed in war he overthrew the slavonians, kept the banm in check, eompelied the Ilungarians to reilimquish their nomalic life of plunder and to seek m-ttied dwelliag piaces in the phins of the bmanke: so that now the gates of the East throngh which up tili then masses of peoples threatening ivery. thing with destruetion had alwnys anew hrokem in upon the West were clowefl forever. The fame of wis victories and his feudal supremacy. exiending itself firther and further, made him aisu protector of the Burgumilian and French kingroms, and finaliy ford of Loubarily ami of the Citry of Rome. With the military remurress of Germany he lardis in sulijection the surroume. ing pooples; hat through the power thus won on the other hand, be himsif gains a promil ascembary ofer the multitude of his own vas. satis. Only for the renson tiant he wins for him. velf a truly moyn position in Germany is he enabied to gain the imperial erown: but this acain it is whicil tirst reatiy wecuren and comfrms his own and his famife's ruie hathe Giermas ianfis, On tibis rests clietty his prerminent position, that he is tiee first and mightiest lond of firstern ("ibristemlems, that as sucls he is alie at any monent to bring toget her a numacrous mifitary furre with which no people, no prince can any finger cope. But not on this alone. For the Cuthinie ciergy aiso, spreading far and wher over the whole West, serves hims as it were like a oere crowti of vassuls in stole and cassick. 11e nominates the arehbishops and hishops in his (ierman and Italian kingeloms as weif as in the newiy convertal lamis of the Sorth and Eant grese even in the. Wimern lanis wisere he doees unt himeseif instail lise dignitaries of tiow ehordit. Difrorent as ti:is Garman empire wis from tise Fombkish, fantity as wis ify organization, its re-hami of a compertont raier to maintain $n$ far. reaching mul effertuai ruic in the Weat ; the nase so am it wr. uplucill ly pubile opinion and were only sufficient in the hands of a so powerful and active prince as Otto. From the Eibe marabes he hastened to the Abruzziar Mouatains: from the banks of the Rhine now to the shores of the Adriatic, now to the mad-dunes nf the Baltic. Ceaselemaly is he in motlon, continu. ally under arme-firat againat the Wenls and Ilungarians, then agninst the Greeks and lombards. No county In his wide realm, wo lis.hipric in Catholic Christendiom hut whit he fixit bis ege upon and vigilunely vateliecl. And wherever he may tarry nod whatever be may undertake, his every set is fuli of fre, foree snd vigor and always lits the coark. With sucia a representative the empire is not only the lighiest power in the Western world hut one which in sil Its affaira han a deep and active influrmer-a power he much venerated as it was dreadievi." W. von Giesehrecht, Deutache Kaimerzeit (trima now permanentiy unitel the Roman empirc to the German nation and this powerful and inteliit gent people undertook the illustrious but thank fres task of beling the Atias of unlversal history. And mon enough did the ronnection of Germain with Italy result in the reform of the churehani the reviral of the various scienees, while in laiy itself it was easentially the Germanic cirment which hrought into being the giorlons aivle re puhlics. Through a historicai ueresaity, tioubt less. Germany and Italy, the pureat represints. tirea of the anticjue and the Tentonic tyives and the fairest provinces in the kingdom of human thougbt, wcre hrought into this long insting ein nection. From this point of view pusterity hats no riglat to complain that the Roman (mpirire was Inind like a risitation of Fite on our Fatheriama nnid compelled it for renturies to pour out its life.bionil in Italy in onder to coustrint thine foundntions of general European culture for Which molern humanity has essentiaity (iermany to thank."-Gregorovins, (ieachishte ter stadt Rom (tran, from the German), r. 3. p. 3:3.

ROMAN EMPIRE, THE HOLY.

ROMAN LAW.

Aswa in: II. Hallam, The Niddile Agra, eht 3. pr. 1.-Sce, aloo, ITALT: A. D. N4is-0.in) Ger vany: A. D. 936-9is; and Romank: King of the.
1ath Century, - Rise and constitution of the College of Electors. See Geryasy: A. II. 112.i-1272.

13th Century. - Decradation of the Holy Roman Emplr' after the fall of the Hohed-staufen.-The Great Interregnum.-Election of Rudolf of Hapshuric. See Cimbany : A. l). 1250-1273.

15th Century.-Its character. See Ger. vass: A. D. 1347-1403.
A. D. 1806.-Ite end. See Grbmany: A. D. 1805-1806.

ROMAN EQUESTRIAN ORDER. Se Eqtemtrinn Ordeh ROMAN FAMILY AND PERSONAL NAMES. See (ikns.

ROMAN FETIales. See Fetialem. ROMAN INDICTION. See lsmetmes. ROMAN LAW, and its lasting infuence. $\vec{r}^{-}$'loman law as tanght in the writings of the Roman juriste is a selence, a science of great per. fection, a mience so perfect as to aimost spproach the harmonions finiali of art. Ilnt loman Law in not only a mar vellons gystem of tive legal customs and concepts of the Romans; its vilue

ROMAN LAW.

In mot restricted to mitudente of Roman Lav ; it has an wholute value for studente of any law whstever. In other word the Romans outtripped all other natlone, both ancient and modern, in the scientific conntruction of legal problems. They alone ofter that curious ex ample of one aniton's totally cellpalng the scienHicc achlevemente of all other mathon. By law. however, we here understand not all hranches of law, as conetitutlonal, criminal, pontifical, and private law, together with jurisprudence. By foman Law we mean exclusively loman Private Law. The writings of lioman jurists on constl tutional and criminal law have been aupersedel and surpwased hy the writinge of more modern jurists. Their writiggs on equestions of Private Law, on the other hand, occipy a unlifue place: they are, to the present day, conmidered as the inexhanstible fountain- head, and the ininitable pattern of the science of I'rivate Law Romas lawger, and even a molern Prench or German lawter - French and German Private Law belog ementally lioman law - were, unt are, never oblligil to rananck whole llbrarles of precefents to thel the law covering a given case. They appromell a case in the manner of a phual. cisn: cnrefuliy informing thamselves of the facts ualeriying the case, and tion ellelting the legal spark ly means of close meilitatiou on the glven data acconilag to the general principles of alselr aleace. The Corpun juria civilis is one stollt rolume. This one volume lias sufficed to cover bllifoas of casem during more than thirteen conturies. The prinelples lakidown in this volume will affoni reacly heip in almost every case of Private law, because they emanate from I'rivate Law alone, and have no tincture of mon-legul elwments. "一E: Deich, (iruern-Roman /natitutione, pp. ib-13. - $\because$ The Responsa prudentum, or answern of the lenrned for the law, conslistem of explanations of anthoritative written documents. It was nssimel that the writern law was hindfige. hut the responsea gractluily lisuliflet nud erin overruled lt. A great variety of rules wins thus supprosel to be elluced fruis the Twelve Tables see loove: II. (C. 45i 448], whish were not in fact to be foumil there They conalif the annonncyul by any jurlsconsult whose aphitons malat, If he ware dintinguishet, bave a biating furce nearly eyunl to enactments of the logis. lature. The rewpunes were not publinherl by thelr author, but were recorited and editerl by his pinila, and to this fact the worlid Is indebterl for the edncational truatisem, conledid lnstitutes or Commentaries, which are among the most remarkable fentures of the lomman syntem. The distinction lne: ween the 'respouses' 'illit the "cnse baw of England shatulal be noticerl. The one consiute of expositions by the lmo, nini the other by the broch. It might have luen expected that with a myatem wobld lave popularizerl the lak. This was not the fact. Welght was only stardial to the responses of conspleubns men Who wremantery of the prineiples as well an fe. tail; of jurisprinionce. The great development of hesal prindples at leme wiss dine tio this uncthen of proklocing faw. Linder the Finglish anachan erntmoweryy arimesto whleh the rule can be upplied: under the llommen theory. there was mo limit to the prestlon ti which a reaponse might be given, excopt theskill and ingennity of the questioner. Every puadble phase of a legal ## goman law.

principh could thus be oramined, and the remalt would ahow the $x$ mmetrical product of a alaglo master mind. Fhin inethod of devoloplas law nearly ceaced at the fall of the republic. The Reapoases were sytteraatized and reduced into compeudis. The right to mate respenmes was Ilmited by Augustus to a few jurliconsuits. The edict of the Pruetor became a source of law, anil a great achool of juriats, containing such men as UIfisn, Paulus, Caive, and Paplalan, arnee, who were authore of trwatises rather than of re-sponees."-T. W. Dwight, Iatrod, to Maine "Ancient Law." - "A jart from the more general polltical conditions on which jurisprudence also, and Indecd Juileprudence enpribily depends, the caumes of the oxcellence of the I Koman civil law lie mainiy in two featurea: first, that the plaintiff and defondant were speclally obilged to explain atal embody In due anil blnulng form the grounds of the demand and of the objecton to comply with it: and secomily, that the Romans appointed a permanerit machinery for the edictal development of their law, anl asenciated It immellatels with practice. By the former the lhmans precluded the petifogging practices of alvocates, by the latter they olviated Incapa. be liw-making, so far as such things can be preventei at all: mil by meaus of both lu conJunction they satiatied, as far as is possible, the two conflicting requirements, that law shall constantly be fixed, and that it shall constantly be In accorlance with the splitit of the age.
This state [liome], which made the highest demanis on its burgesses and carrich the hilea of submilnating the imilivitidal to the interest of the whole further thon any state before or siace lass done, only did and onfy coukd da su by itneif removing the barriers to Intereourse and un. shackling likerty quite as much as it subjecterl It to restrletlou. In permission or in pmbibition the law wns always nhmolute. . . . A contrict did not orlinarly furnish ground of action. bint where the right of the crelitor was acknowlelgell, It was so ail-powerfill that there was no deliverance for the puor dehtor, and no humane of equitable conslifention was shown towards limn. If seemel as if the law found a pleasure In presenting on all siden its sharpest spikes, in tirawing tho most exireme consequences, In forcibly obtruiling on the bluntest unierntanding the tyrannic nature of the liea of Hght. The pretical form and the genial symbolism, which on pleasingly prevali in the Cermanle legal ordinances, were forelgn to the loman: In his law all was clenr and preclac; no syminl wat era. ployerd, no Institution was supertluous. It was not cruel: everything neccesary was performed without tedlous ceremony, even the punlahment of teath: that a free man conld not be tortured was a primitlve maxim of Roman law, to ohialn which otber peoples have had to struggie for thousamis of rears. Yet this law was frightiul In its inexorable severity, which we cannot sup. pooe to liave been very greatly miligated by homanity in practice, for lt was really the law of the poople: inore terrible than Venetian plomhl anil chambers of torture was that series of living entombments whicin the pror man saw yawning lvefore him in the debtors towen of the Heh But the grestness of Rome was involved in, unil was basel upon, the fact that the lkoman people ordained for itself and endured a system of law. in which the eternal principles of freedom and

ROMAN LAW.

ROMAN LAW.

of aubordiaation, of property and of legal re. dress, relgned and still at the present day relgn unaduiterated and unmodlfed."-T. Mommen. History of Rome, bt. 1, ch. 8 and 11 (e. 1). Though hand to realise, and especialiy so for Englishmen, it is true that modern Europe owes to the Homans its ancient iniserfted sense of the sacreduems of a free man's person and property. and its knowietge of the dimpiest and most ras. tlonal methods by whicla person and property may be secured wlth least Inconvenleace to the whole comuunalty. The uations to come after Ilome were raved the tronhle of finding oust all thla for themselves; and it may be donited whether any uf them hal the requisite genlin. We in Eng. land, for exampie, owe the pecullar cumbrous. ness of our iegal system to the absence rif those direct Itoman intluences, which, on the contlonent. have al mplltiod and iliuminated the ative iegai material. "-W. W. Fowler. The City-Stute of the Greides and fomans, p. 200-"In ali the lands whel hall olseyed fume, nall were fincindien in the nominai supremacy of the revived Weatern Fimplre, It [lioman Law] acyulred a prevalence and jower not derived frum the saction of uny disthet human authority. Nos such authority Wis fur the time belag striag earrught to connprite In men's esteem and reverence with tho shadow of majesty that atill clung to the reiless of Ifomau dominione. Thus the Eoman law wav not inerely takea ma (what for many purpones andi in manr states it really was) a common ground. work of instlutlons, ifleas, and methoi, standlus towartas sactuai rules of given commuaity somew ind in the same relation as in the IRomun dovitrine fas gentiom to ius clrile: but it was concelved as hiving, by its Intrinsle reasobahlenims, a kladi of sipreme and emineut virtue. anti an cluimiag the unl rermal allegiance uf civiliwed nunklam. if I may use a (berman turm for whichi caunut thai a gorib Engllah englvalent. its priuciples were acexpted unt as oridalned hy C'resar, bat as In themmelves hindlag on the Ifechishewusstseln of Cloristemeiom. Ther were part of the illspensation "f Iboman authority to whleh the ehampions of the Empire in thelt secular contruversy whth the Papacy liai not hes. Itate to attrihate an crigin uo loss allvine than that of the Charch Itseif. Evoris In England (thoush not in kingllsh jractlec, for nuythiag $i$ kauwi thls ferelling left lis mark. in the mildle of the themeenth century, just when our legal and juliedal system was mettliog louto lis typleal fognese sleswator Azu. On the Continent, where thore was no centrallsed and conatervailligg foral authority, the Romnun law if warfovi everything elve. Viut the inw of the Corpuns Juris and the ghomatiry was not the exlsting prositlve lave of this or that place: the Kounan law was salif to be the comanmin law of the Emple: lut ita effert was always taken as monilfieni by the enstom of the coaniry or elty. - NLultrectit hrleht Land. recht, lanilrecht hiriche gemein Recht.' Thas the main oliject of study was nut a myetem of actually enforimi rules, but a type masismeri hy actual syatems us their exemplar without corresponding in dietall to any of them Cmber sur Is condiltons it wirs lnevitalie that prositive anthority shonld be dejereciateri. and the prothond of rosenalng. aven fur practlcal purjurem, froma an inomal fitaess of thingw, should be exalued, so Hat the diutiaction between lews sctually ad. ministered and rules elabornted hy the learned a In accorlance with their anmumed principles wa aimont lost sight of. "-Nir F. Poilock, Orfion Lecturee. pp. 80-82 - "In wome of the nathon of moxiern Continentai Europe (as, for example, lo France), the actuaj system of law ls mainly of foman descent; and In others of the name as. tions (as, for exampie in tise States of (birmany) the actuaj agstern of law, though not dowremfed from the Roman, has beed clisely asaimithited to the lioman by iarge importations from It. Acthental Europe, much of the sisbstanicy of the actual syatem. and much of the tecinulial hav glage in which lt is ciothed, is clerived frum the Roman law, and without some knowleilge of the IRoman lanw, the tecionicai ianguage is muinte]. ilgible; whilst the orier or arrangement com-moniy given $\omega$ the system, imltates thes moniy given $\omega$ ) the syatem, imltates thes es. cmpiar of a cientitic arrangement whilh is presented hy the Instltutes of Juntlinian. Even En our own conntry, a large portlon of the Eccleglastical and Eijulty, ani gome (thoush Emaller) portion of the Coinmou. Law, Is ferived immedateiy from the Roman Law, or from the IHman thringh the Caacm. Nur bins the latuence of the Goman Law beorn llmiteni to the positive law of the Moxiern Enfopenn mathona For the technloal language of thly ull reaching system ims derply tiatiareal the ianguige of the intermathual law or morailty which thowe na theas affect tos observe. . Dlarlh lais beet talked of the phllowiphy of the ikoman instituthand writers. Of famllarity wlth (irvitan phllownhy there are few traces in their writfinge, und the llttle that they inave learro warl frum that wince is the verlest forilisliness: for es. numple, their accuant of Jus nathrinio. In which they ernfonmi law whth molanal lastiarto, law whitall those wath and noressliles uf namklod which are conusers of its finsltation. Nor is the Roman law to lee resorted th has mamidiue of legixlative wisulom. The great Roman liaw yers ure, in truth, expositors of a jowlitue or tichuical mastery of that systom; in thelr command of ite priwiples: in the remdiness with which they re call, and the facilly and cerealaty with whillither apply them. In supprort of lily own oprinion of these great writers I shall youte the momority of two of the mest emineut Jurlstes of inculern times. "The permanent value of the ciofous Juris of the Emjnerors, fut in the remalns of duriatical Ilterature whildh have tovelt jorewervent in the Pandects. Nor ls it mench the multer of the e firistleal writhys, as the sclentitie molloml emjloyed by the authors in expllcating thee furtinas and maxima whin whelt they have to deal, that las remiered them momiols thinll succeraling agea, and preeminently fttemi them to promluce and to dievelojue those gisalitles of the minal which are

 - It has been shown above, that. In cur nंforie. ail restilt depend on the ponsersalon of liziling princlples: and It la exactly ihls peoserwsion upun whlch the grumaess of the lhoman juriwls nosis The antions ami maxime of thelr scleuce dio ans appear to them to lwe the creaturem of thilr own wifi; they arv wetuai loeinge, whit whome esis. tence and kenemlogy they have become familiar from long and lutimate intercoure. Heace their

HOMAN LAW.

 ROMAN ROADS IN BRITAIN.whole method of proceeding hat a certainty which is found now here else except in mathemat. las, and it may be sald without exaggeration that they caiculate with their idenas. If they have a case to declde, they begin by accuiring the moat virid and diatinct perception of lt , and we see before our eyes the rise and progrew of the whole affals, and sll the changea it under. goes. It is as if this particular case were the germ whence the whole aclence was to be developed. Iience, with them, theory and practice ale not in fact distinct; their theory is so thoroughiy worked out as to be fit for immediate application, and their practice is uniformiy ennobiel ty scien. tille treatment. In every princlple they see a case to which it may be appliel; in every case, the rule by which it is determined; and in the facility with which they pass from the generni to the particuiar and the particuiar to the genersl, their mastery is indlaputabile.' In conse. quence of this mantery of princlpies, of their perfect conaistency (' olegantia') and of the clearnew of the method in which they are arranged, there is no positive system of law which it is no enay to meize as a whole. The smalinens of ite volume tends to the same end."-J. Auntin, See. tures on Jurisprudence, e. 3, pp. $858-861 .-$ " A glance at the history of thow countries in Europe that did net miopt Roman Law wili prove and illustrate the politicai orighn of the 'reception' of this iaw in Germany and France stili more furcibly. The Kingdom of liungary never aluptei the thenry or pructice of Iluman Law. This mems ali the more strange aince ilungary used iatin as the oflicial ianguage of her legis. lature, laws, and law courts down to the tirst quarter of thls century. A country so intensely jubbued with the idiom of Rome would meem to be quite likely to adopt also the iaw of lome. This, however, the ifungarians never dhi. Their law is easentiaily sinilar to the common law of Fingland, in that it is derived mainiy froma precedents and usage. The unwitimgness of the liungariaus to adopt fioman Law was baved on a puliticul consideration. Itoman Law, they notieel, requires a profeasional and privilegerl class of jurists who miminister law to the exclusion of all wher classes. In German territorles the pribliped class of civilians were in the service of the rakers. But it so happencl that ever aince $1 . i$ es the ruiter, or at least the nominal head of liungary, was a foreigner: the ischduke of Auvera, or Empuror of Germany. Hence to Intrinlice loman Law in Ilungary would huve bein tantamount to surrenderiug the law of the country to the administration of foreigners, of of profesors, who had a vitai interest to work in the interrest of their foreiga cmployer, the Arch. duke of Austria. Consequently the iluagarians prulembly almained from the establisimecot of uumermas Universities, and persistently refused (1) ainpt loman Law, the acientitic excellence of which they otherwise fuily acknowlediged. For, the Illungarians aiways were, and to the present tintuent still are, the only nation on the contiIt it who unintained an amount of political litserty ani self governmeut quite unknown to the reit of continentai Europe, purticularly in the hat two centuries. The ame reacon ajplies w Fajpan! Engianal uever alopued Loman Law. because it was againat the interests of Engish likeny w condde the making and interpretation of law to the hands of a privileged clase of Juriats. As sald before, Roman Law cannot be adoptel uniem you adopt a privileged chaw of protemonai jurfate lato the bargaln. The hatred po the Engilah was not so much a hatred of clri of the Engilth was, not so much a hatred of civil lav, but of the cevilians. These jurists develop lav on the strength of theoretical priaclpien, and actual cames are not declded according to former judgments given in similar cases, bui by priacipies obtained through theoretico-pructleal specuIation. Hence there is no diviaion of yuestions of law and fact in civil cases; nor is there, in a system of Roman Private Law, any roum for juries, and thus lav is taken completely out of the hands of the people. This, however, the Engilish would not endure, and thus ther naturully feil to contiding their law to their Judgea. English common iaw is judge-made law."-E. Reich, Greeco-Roman Inatifitions, pp. 62-63.See, aleo, Corptes Jemis Civilie; anl Edecation, Medlatal: Itait.

roman legion. See leoion, Roman.

ROMAN LIBRARIES. See Libmarlex,

Anciest: Rone

ROMAN MEDICAL SCIENCE. See Medical Actence: 1et Centery, and 2d Cextery.

ROMAN PEACE.-"The bencfts conferred upon the worid by the universal domilion of fome were of quite lnestimatie value. First of these beaefts. was the prolonged peace that was enforced througbout large jortione of the worid where chronle warfare liai bitherto prevalied. The ' paz romana' has perhaps been sonetimes depicted in exaggerntex collurara ; but as compared with all that limi precedieni, and with ali that followed, down to the keginning of the niueteenth centary, It deserved the encomiunas it riered from the Standpuint of C'nireral Hintury, lect. 2.

ROMAN PONTIFICES. Se Atut'Hs.
ROMAN PRFETORS. See (UNMI'I.
ROMAN PROCONSUL AND PROPRETOR. sie Proconsich.
ROMAN QUESTION, The, See Italr: A. 1). 1802-1866.

ROMAN ROADS IN BRITAIN.-" Four principal ilnes of rad have beeu popularly known as 'the four limman ways.' In the time of Edward the Confeasor, and probality much earlier, there were four roads in Engiand proteeted by the king's peace. These were callen Watinge-strete, Firsse, IIickenide-strete, and Ernina-wtrete, Watling-strect runs from Landon to Wroseter. The Fusse frum the sea conast near Seaton in Deronshire to Lincoln. The Ikemihi street from liclinglam near Bury St. Edmumes in Sufolk, to Wantage iu Berkuhire, and on ti) Cirencester and Gloucester. The Ermingatreet ran through the Fenny distriet of the east of Eugland. Thesestrets seen to have reprenented as cumbination of those portions of the iheman roads which in iater times were alupted aud kept lu repair for the salie of traftic. . . . The name of 'Watling street' becume attacled to other roads, ay the lioman road beyomi the Northumbrian wall, which crossel the Tyue at Corlaridge and rau to the Frith of Furth at Cramond. twars that name; and the fuman rosd beyond L'riconium (Wroxeter) to ibrivinium (Leintwarten) Salop, is also callel Watlingstreet. The street in Canterhary through which the ruad from London to Dover pusces is known

ROMAN ROADS IN BRITALN.

at Wathng-atreet, and a otreet In London aleo bears that name. . . Two ifnee of med also beas the name of the Icknield etreet, or Hikenildeetreet; but there is some reacon to belleve that the leknield-atreet was ouly a Bitish trackway and never became a true Roman road. "- H. M. Scarth. Roman Britain, oh. 18. "In the Gfih fear after the Conquent. inquidition was made throughout the kingiom into the anclent lums and customs of England. . . . From this cource wo learn, that there were at that time in England four great mads protected by the Klog's Peace, of which two run lengthwaye through the iniand, and two cromed it, and that the names of the four were respectively. Wat-Hinge-strete, Fome, Hikenilide-ntrete and Ermingetrete. Thees are the mouls which are popularly but incorrectiy known as 'the four Roman waya'

The King's Peace was a high priviloge. Any offence committed on theme highways was tried, not in the local court, where focal intuence might interfere with the adninistration of jus. tice, hut before the king's own officers."- E Quent, Origine Celtieno, e. 2: The Four Roman Fayo. - Bee, almo, Watcina Striet.
ROMAN ROADS IN ITALY. Seo EMIunam Way: Afpian Way: Actichan Road: Catizar Road; Poercymar hoan; and lome: B. C. 295-191.

ROMAN SENATE, See BExate, Romar.
ROMAN VESTALS. See VEGTAL VItmins. ROMAN WALLS IN BRITAIN.-There were two great fortined wails constructed hy the Romans in Britain, but the name is most often applied to the arst one, which was huilt under the orders of the Emperor Hadrian, from the Bolway to the Tyne, 70 miles fong and from 18 to 19 feet high, of solld masonry, with towers at Intervals anit with ditches throughout. In the reign of Antoninus Plus a second fortited inne. fariher to the north, extending from the Forth to the Clyde, was constructed. This intter was rampart of earth connecting numprous forta. Hadrian's wali was strengthened at a inter time hy Severus and is sometimes calied hy hls name. Popuiariy it is calied "Graham's Dike." Both writis were for the protection of Roman Britain from the wifd trlues of Caledonia. - E. Guest. Origines Celticae, e. 2, pp. $88-94$.
Also ix: C. Merivale, Hist. of the Romans, eh. 60-6\%.

ROMANCE LANGUAGE, Earliedt Monnment of See Strasburg: A. D. 842.
ROMANIA, The Empire of.- The new teudai empire, constituted by the Crumadere and the Venetianm, after their conquent of Constantinople, and having the great and venerable but helf ruined capital of the Brzantines for its meat, received the name of the Empire of Romania, The relgn of its trat emperor, the excelient Buids. Win of Manders, was brought to a tragicai end In littie more than a year from his coronation. Summoned to queli a revolt at Adrianopie, he was attacked by the ling of Buigaria, defeated, taken prisoner and muriered within a jear by his savage captor. Ile was succeeded on the throne by his brother flenry, a capable, energetic and valiant prince; but all the ability and aif the vigor of Ilenry mulif not give cohesion and atrength to an empise which was false in its conatitution and predeatined to decay. On Henry's death, without chlidren (A. D. 1210), his siater

ROMANUA.

baron, was elected emperor; but that unfortunate prince, on attempilng to reach Comatantiooplo by a forced march through the hootlle Greek her. phory $r$ i Epirua, was talen captire and peristiod in an epirot priteon. His eldeet mon, philip of Namur, wheely refused the Imperial dignity ; younger son, Robert, accepted it. and milgied feehly untll 1288 , when ho died. Then the reaernhle John de Brienne, ex-king of Jeruatem, wu elected emperor-regent for life, the crown to pmam on hte death to Buid win of Courtenay, a young hrother of Robert. "John de Brlenne died In $135^{\circ}$, after living to witmen his empire contined to : narrow cifcuif round the walls of Conatantionpib. Baldwin II. prolonged the oxistence of the em. pire hy begging cenlatance from the Pope and the king of France; and he collected the mone? necemary for maintaining his household mand en. joying his precarious pootion, hy seilling the hoiy relles premerved by the waitern Chureh [such, for example, as the crown of thorns, the bonds, the eponge and the cup of the crucitiviou, the rod of Mosee, etc.]. He was fortunate in inding a fibersl purchaser in St. Louis. length, In the year 1261, a divicion of the Greet amy [of the emplre of Nicean] surprisel Conatantinople, expelied Beldwin, and put an end to the Latin power fee Gmiex Expine of Sic in: A. D. 1204-12d1], without the change apluwilag to be a revolution of much importance beyood the wails of the city,"-G. Finlay, list. of Greece from its Conquest by the Cruaderr, eh. 1 In the last days of the sham emplre. Baidela 11. maintained his court "hy tearing the copper from the domes of the public huilding erected hy the Dyzantine emperors, which he coined into money, and hy borrowing golit from $\mathrm{V}_{6}$. netian bankers, in whoee hanis he placeri his eideat son Philip as a pledge."-G. Finlar. Hist. of the Bycantine and Grefk Empires, from 716 to 1458, bk. 4, ch. 1, seet. 8 (c. 2).
Also m: E. Gibbon, Deeline and Fall of the Roman Empire, eh. 61. - Bee, alas, for an ac. count of the creation of the Emplre of Homania, BTzantise Eypire: A. D. 1204-1205.

ROMANOFPS, Origin of the dynasty of the. See Reesta: A. I). 1583-1689.
ROMANS, Kine of the- Henry 11., -St. Henry by canonization - the last of the Oer. man emperors of the House of saxony (A. D. 1003-1004), abstained from styling himself "Em. perme," for some yeara, until be had gone to Rome and recelved the imperial crown from the hands of the flope. Meantime he invented and ascumed the tilie of King of the Romans. Ilis exampie was followed by his successom. The King of the Homans In later listory whe Em. peror of the Holy Roman Empire in emilryo 5. A. Dunham, Hied. of the Germanie fimpire. 8. 1. eh. 2 (e. 1). -"It was not tili the relka of Maximilian that the actual coronation at Reme was dispensed with, and the titie of Emperor taken immediately after the eiection. "- II. Hal. lam. The Viddle Ages, eh. 3. pt. 1.
ROMANUS, Pope, A. D. 897-80N ....Romanus 1, (colleague of Constmatine Vil.). Emperor in the East (Byzantine, or Greet), 918 944.... Romanns II., Emperor in the Eat (Byzanties, or Greek), 950-003..... Romanus III., Emperor fa the East (Byakatize, or Greekh $1020-1034$..... Romamus IV., Emperor In the East (Byamatiae, or Croek), A. D. Luer$10: 1$.
A Logical Outline of Roman History
ISFlithires are Distinguished by Colors. 1'hystcial or matcorlai. Intcilcevinal, mastal zemi seffagiosus.

(G)

nOME.

ROME.

The Leglaaias of the City-State and the oriti of lie name. - The threc eribee of origtand Romeat who formed the Patrician order.The Plobe and their inforior clisisenthip.--About fourteen miles up from the mouth of the river Tiber, bllin of modernte elevation rice on both banks of tho stream, hlgher on the Hight, Inwer oo the left bank. With the Latter group thore bas been clouely amoclaterl for at leat two thousand ave bubdred gears the name of the Romana. We are unable, of courme, to tell how of when that same amme; thin much only is certaln, that in the ofleat form of it known to ue the inhabitante of the rnaton are called not Komans, hut (hy shifting of aruad that frequently occurn in the carlier period of a maguage, but fell very eariy in abreyanee in Latin) liammiane (Ramnes) a fact whleh conastitutes an expremalve tealimony to the Immemorial antiquity of the name. It derivation caunot be glven wlth certalaty: pomalbly Ramave may incan 'foreaters,' or 'huahmen.' But they were nut the only dweilen on the bilis by the bank of the Titier. In the earieat diviaton of the hurgrswes of Rome a trace has been preserved of fise fact that that body arose out of the amr . Igamation of three canlons once probubly Independent, the Ramnians, Tliten, and Luceres, into a aingle commonweatith-In other woris. out of nucla a 'yyolkismon' as that from which Athens snme in Attlen. The great antlquity of this threefotl division of the commuaity te perhap hest evincel hy the fact that the Romans, in mantery eapeciatly of coasthtutional taw, regularly userl the forms tribuere ('to divide into three ') and triture ('a thint') in the general sease of 'to divide' and 'a part,' and the latter ex. prowilon (tribus) like our 'quarter,' eariy lowt its irikinal ulgnification of number. . . . That the Rumninns were a Lailn stuck cannot be doubted, for they gave their name to the new Roman commonwealth, and therefore must liaver suhatamtialy determined the antionality of the unitenl community. Heupecting the origin of the laceres nothing can be afflimed, except that the re is no difficulty in the way of our assigning them. like the linmainas, to the Latin stock. The wrond of there communities, on the other hand, is with one consent derived from Sabina. Adod, sa in the ofider and more creclible traditions. whithat exreption. the Tities take precedence of the famadnas, it is probabie that the intruiling Tities complied the oider flamalans to accept the 'synollitismos.' $\qquad$ Long. in all prohnlitity, before an urhan setilement arove on the Tilker, thewe lamnians, Tities, and Laceres, at trat we. arite, afterwarls united, hail their stronghold on the ltoman hills, and tilien their fielie frum the surrounding viliages. The 'woif festival' (1.upercalia), which the gens of the Quinctil celelirateri on the Palatine hill, was probably a tratition from these primitive ages - a feutiral if husbanimen and shepherds. which nore than any other preserved the bomely pastimes of pritiarchal simplictty, anil, slagularly enough. maintalned itself longer than ali the other hen. then festivalis in Christian Rome. From thene -Hhments the later Thome arone."-T. MommWn. Hise. of Rome, bk. 1, ch. 4.-" Rome dild not 2rem to be a angle city; it appeared like a cons. federation of several citles, each oas of whlch was attacherd by lis origin to another confeders thon. It wat the centre where the Iating, Etrumcana, Rnhelleme, aml Oreeka met. Its arat kina was a Latia; the meoni, Nebine; the afth wan, Feare told, the sue of a Greek; the alsth was an Etruacta. Its language was cromponed of the most diverse elementa. The Latin predominatel. but Sabeilian roots were numerosas and more Greek radicals were found in it than in any other of the dialecte of Ceatral ltaly. As to its name, no one knew to What language that belongeti. Accorilng to some, llome was a Trofan word: acconding to others, Oreek wond. There are reatons for tellieving it to be Latio. but mone of the anclente thought it to iso Etrusean. The names of lioman familites simo attent a great diveraity of origin. . .. The effect of thls mixing of the most illvene antons was, that from the beginning Rome was reintell to all the peoples that it knew. It could call ftelel Latia with the Latlas, sabine with the Rabines, Etruscan with the Etruscans, and Oreek with the Greeks. Its national wrothip was aiso an asmemblage of several quite dififerent wornhlpe, each one of which atiactied it to one of thete nations. "Fuatel de Coulangen, The Ancient City, bu. 5, eh. 2. -" The whole history of the world has been determined hy the geologleal fact that at a point a iftie below the junction of the Tiber and the Anio the lsoiated hills stand nemerer to one another than moat of the other fillin of Latinm. On a site marked out above all other aites for dominhon, the ceatre of Italy, the centre of Europe, an Eurape then was, is site at the junction of three of the great antlons of Italy, abd which lad the great river as lis highway to fandis beyond the bounde of Italy, stoxil two low hilla, the hill which bore the name of Latin Naturn, and the hill at the meaning of whe name of Palatine scholara will prohape gneas for ever. These two hills, occupied by men of two of the nations of Italy, stond so neap to one another that a strait cholee Indeed was lald on those who dweiled on them. They must elther join together on terms closer than thove which commoniy unitell litilan ieagues, of they muat ilvo a life of boorler warfare inore cemselem, more bittef, than the ordinary warfare of lialian enemies. Legend, with all likeifibood, telle us that warfare was iried; history, with all certainty, ells us that the anal cholee wat union. The two hills were fenced with a single wall; the men who dwelled on them changed from wholiy separate communittes into tribes of a single cfty. Changen of the mame kind took place on not a few spots of Greece and ltaly; not a few of the most famous cities of both lands grew on this wise out of the union of earifer iletached meltlements. But no other union of the kimi, not even that which cailed Sparta into being out of Ave villages of an oliler day. could compare in lis effects on all iater tinie with the union of thoee two mall hili. Fortrenses into a aingle clty. For that efty was Rense; the hili of Saturn became the site of Rome's rapitul. the acene of her triumpha, the home of her patron gods. The hili on the other alde of the awampy dale became the dweiling-place of Rome is Cesars, and handed on lis name of Palatlum ts the name for the homes of all the kings of the earth. Around those hilis an a centre.

ROME.

The Patres.

ROME.

Latium, Itais, Mediterranean Europe, were gathered in, till the world was Roman, or rather thli the world was Rome. . . . Three tribes, settlers on three hills, were the eiements of which the original commonwealth was made. Whether there was anything like a nohllity within the tribes themselves, whether ecrtain louses had any precedence, any preferences in the disposal of offlecs, we have no means of juaging. That eertaln honses are far more prominent in legend and history than others may suggest such a thought, hut does not prove it . But one thing is certain; these three trihes, these older settlers, were the original lloman people, which for a whlle numbered no members hut themselves. They were the patres, the fathers, a name which in its origin meant no more thnn such plain names as goodman, housefather, aud the like. In the Roman pollty the father only could be looked on as a citlzen in the highest sense; his ehildren, his grand-children, were in hls power, from whleh, just like slaves, they couid be reieased only hy his own speelal aet. Such was the origin of the name fathers, patres, pntriclans, a name round whleh sueh proud assoclations gathered, as the three tribes who had once been the whole Roman people shrank up into a specinl nohle elass in the midst of a new Roman people whleh grew up around them, but which they did not admit to the same rights as themselves. The incorporation of a third tribe marks the end of the first period of Romnu history. These were the Luceres of the Colian, admitted perhaps at first with rights not quite on a level with those of the two earller tribes, the Ramnes of the Palatine, the oldest Romans of all, and the Tlties of the Capitoline or hill of Saturn. The oldest Roman people was now formed. No fourth tribe was ever admitted; the later tribes of Rome, it must be remembered, are a separate division which have nothing to do with these old patriclan tiibes. And it must have been a most rare favour for either individuals or whole houses to be reeel ved lnto any of the three original tribes.

Now, if the privlleged body of eitizens is small, and if circumstauces tend to make the settlement of non-privileged residents large, here is one of the means hy which a privileged order in the narrower sellse, a nobllity in the midst of a natlon or people may arise. An order which takes in few or no new menhers tends to exthetion; If it does not die out, it will at least sensibly lessen. But there is no llmit to the growth of the non $\cdot \mathrm{f}$, vlleged class outside. Thus the number of the old hurghers will be daily getting smaller, the number of the new residents will be dally getting larger, thll those who onee formed the whole people put on step hy step the charaeter of an excluslve nobility in the midst of the extended nation which bas grown up around them. By this the they have aequired all the attributes of nohllity, smallness of numbers, antiquity, privilege. And their possesslon of the common land-a possession shared coustantly by a smaller number-ls fikely to give them a fourth attribute which, Fulgarly at least, goes to swell the conecption of nobility, the attrihute of wealth.

Thus arour . the original people of Rome, the populus, thr atres, the three anclent tribes, the settlers on the three earliest hills of Rome, arose a second people, the plehs. The whole bistory of Rome is a history of incorporaHun. The ast union hetreer the Capitolline and Palatine hills was the first atage of the process whleh at last made Romins of all the nations round the Mediterranean sea. But the equal in. eorporation of which that union was the type had now ceased, not to begln again for ages Whatever amount of belief we give to the legenis of Roman wars and conquests under the klngs, we can harily doulht that the territory of several nelghhouring towns was incorporitud with the ifoman state, and that their people, whether they removed to Rome or went on ocrupying their own lands elsewhere, became ho. nians, but not as yet full Romans. They were Romans in so far as they ceased to be memlers of any other state, in so far as they obegel the laws of Rome, and served In the Roman armies. But they were not Romans in the sense of leing adinitted into the original Roman hody; they hnd no votes in the origlual Roman assemilly; they had no share in Its publle land; they were not admissibie to the high offices of the state. They had an organization of their own; they had their own assemblies, their own msgistrutes, their own sacred rights, different in many things from those of the older Roman People. And we must remember that, throughout the liomnn history, when any town or district was admitted to any stage, perfect or imperfeet, of Roman eltizenship, its people were admltted without regard to any distinctions which had exlsted among them in their elder homes. The patrieians of a Latin town admitted to the iroman franchise became plebelans at Rome. Thus from the beginning, the Roman plebs containd families which, if the word 'nohle' has myy real meaning, were fuliy as noble as any honse of the three eller tribes. Not a few too of the plibelans were rich; rich and poor, they were the more part land-owners; no mistake can be greater than that which looks on the lioman plebs as the low multtude of a town. As we first see them, the truest aspeet of them is that of a seeond nation withln the Romau state, an nferior, a subject, uatlon, shut out from nill political power, sulbject in many thlngs to prictlcal oppression, but which, by lts very organizathon as a subject nation, was the more stlreed up to seek, and the better enabled to obtain, full equality with the elder nation to which it stood side hy side as a subjeet nclghbour."-E. A. Freeman, The Practical Bearing: of Europtan Mistory (Letur to American Audiences), mp, isis 279, and 285-292.-See, also, Itans, ANciext; Latick; Alba; and Sabines.
Early character and civilization of the Ro-mans-- Opposing theories. - "That the cevtral positlon of Rome, it the long and narrow peninsula of Italy, was litghiy favourable to her Italian donimion, and that the sltuation of laly was favouralle to her dominion over the countries surrounding the Mediterraucan, has been often pointed out. But we have yet to ask what launched Rome in her eareer of conquest, und. still more, what rendered that eareer so different from those of ordinary conquerors ? . . . About the only answer that we get to these questions is race. The Romans, we are told, were by unture a pecullarly warllke race. 'They were the wolves of Italy,' shys Mr. Merivaic, who may be taked to represent fairly the state of opinton on thls suhject. . . . But the further we inquire, the more reason there appears to be for believing that pecullarities of race are thematives uifjo nsily formed by the influence of external circumstances on the primitlve tribe; that, however marked and ingrained they may be, they are not congenital and perhaps not indelibie.

Thus, by sscribing the acbievements of the Romans to the speciai quaitites of their race, we should not be solving the problem, but oniy stating it again in otber terms. . Wbat if the very opposite theory to tbat of the sbe-woif and her fosterchllifen sbould be true? Wbat if the Romans shonid have owed their pecuilar and unpsralieient success to tbeir having been at first not more warlike, but less warlike tban tbeir neighbours? It nay seem a paradox, but we suspect that in their imperial ascendency is seen one of the earlicst and not least important steps in tbat gradual triumplı oi inteilect over force, even in war, which bas been an essential part of the progress of civillzation. The happy day may come when Science in the form of a benign old gentieman Fith a baid head and spectacles on nose, holding gome beneflicent compound in his hand, wiil confrunt a standing army, and the standing army will cease to exist. That will be tbe finalvictory of intellect. But in the meantime, our acknowl. edsenents are due to the primitive in ventors of military organization and military discipline. They shiverel Goliath's spear. A mass of comparitively uuwariike burghers, unorganized andi uadisciplined, thougb they may be the hope of cirilization from their mental and industriai qualitics, iave as ittie of coliective as they have of individual strength in war; they oniy get in each other's way, and fali singly victims to the prowess of a gigantic barbarian. He who first thought of combining their force by organization, so as to make their numbers teli, and who taught them to obey officers, to form reguiariy for iction, and to execute anited movements at the wond of command, was, perhaps, as great a leanfactor of the species as he who grew tbe first corn, or buit tbe tirst canne. What is the speciai claracter of the lioman iegends, so far as they mhate to war? $T^{\text {le }}$ eir special character is that they are legends not of personal prowess but of discipline. $l$ lome has no Achilles. The great natioaal heroes, Camilius, Cincinnatus, Papirius Cursor, Fabins Maximus, Manilus, nre not prodigies of personai strength and vitour, but commadiers and discipinnrians. The most striking incilents are incidents of discipline. The most strikiay incident of ail is the execution by a commader of his own son for having gained a victory against orders. 'Discipiinam militarem,' Malius is made to say, "qua stetit ad hanc diem Romana res.' Discipline was the great secret of Roman ascendency in war. . . . But hurr came military discipiline to be so specially culthrited by the Romans ? Dismissing the aninn of occult qualities of race, we trok for a rational explanation iu the circuinstances of the plain which was the cradie of the Ruman Empire It is evident that in the period designited ss that of the kings, when liome commenced her career of conquest, she was, for that time and culuatry: a great and wealtby city. This is proved by the works of tbe kings, the Capiteline Temple, the excavation for the Circus Maxi. M14, the Servian Wail, aud above all the Cionca Silvius. llistorians have indeed undertaken to vive us a very disparagiug picture of the ancient Rome. . But the Clonca Maxima is in itself evtectesire evidence of a large population, of weaith, and of a not inconsiderable degree of civilization. Taking our stand upon this monu. ment, and clearing our vision entirely of Romuius and his asylum, we seem dimly to perceive the existence of a deep prebistoric baekground, richer tban is commoniy supposed in the germs of civilization, - a remark wbich may in all iikelibood be extended to the background of history in generai. Nothing sureiy can be more grotesque tban the idea of a set of woires, like tbe Norse pirates before their conversion to Christianity, constructing in their den tie Cioaca Maxima. That Rome was comparativeiy great and weaithy is certain. We can hardly doubt tbat she was a seat of industry and commerce. and tbat the thecry which represents ber industry and commerce as baving been developed subsequentiy to ber conquests is the reverse of tbe fact. Whence, but from industry and commerce, could the population and the weaith bave come? Peasant farmers do not live in cities, and plunderers do not accumuiate. Rome bad around ber what was then a rich and peopled piain; sie stood at a meeting-piace of nationalities; sbe was on a navigable river, yet out of the reach of pirstes; tbe sea near ber was fuil of commerce, Etruscsn, Greek, and Carthaginian. . . . Her patricians were flanaciers and monry-ienders.

Even more decisive is the procif afforded by the eariy political bistory of Rome. . . . . The institutions wbicb we find existing in historic times must have been evo' ca by some sucb struggle between the orders of patricians and piebelans as that whicb Livy presents to us. And these politics, with their parties and sections of parties, their shades of politicai character, the sustained Interest whicb tbey imply in politicai objects, tbeir various derices and compromises, are not the poitics of a community of peasaut farmers, living apart each on his own farm and tbinking of his own crops; they are the poilitics of the quick-witted and gregarious population of an industrialand commerciai city.
Of course when lRome bad once been drawn into the career of conquest, the ascendency of the mliftary spirit would be complete; war, and the organization of territories acquired in war, would tben becone the great occupation of her, ieading citizens: industry and commerce would fsii into disesteem, and be deemed unworthy of the members of the inperial race. . . . Even wben tbe Roman nobles had become a caste of conquerors and pro-consulis, tbey retained certain mercantile habits; unlike the French aristocracy. and aristocracies generaily, they were careful keepers of their accounts, and tbey showed a mercantile taient for business, as weli as a more than mercantile hariness, in their financial ex pioitation of the conquered worid. Brutus and his contemporaries were usurers like the patricians of the eariy times. No one, we venture to thiuk, who bas been accustomed to study nationni character, wlii believe that the Roman claracter was formed by war aione: it was manifestly formed by war combined with business. "-Goll. win Smith, The Greatnens of the Rumana (Con. temp. Ree., May, 1878), - A distinctly contrury theory of the primary character and early social state of the Romans is presented in the follow. ing: "The Itailans were much more back ward than the Greeks, for their land is turned to the west, to Spain. to Gaui. to Africa, whleh conil teach them nothing, while Greece is turned to the east, to the coast alon which the civiliss tions of the Nile and the Tigris spread through so many channeis. Besides, the country itself is far less stimuiating to its inhabitants: compared to Greece, Italy is a contlnental country whose inhabitants communicate more easily by land than by sea, excep. in the two extreme southern peninsulas, which charactcristicaliy were occupied hy Greek colonies wiose earlier development was more briliant than that of the mother country. . . The equable fertility of the fand was itseif a hindrance. As fir back as we can form any conjecture, the bulk of the peopie were shepherds or husbandmen; we cannot trace a time like that reficeted in the Homeric poems, when high-born men of spirit went roving in their yonth by iand and sca, and settled dowin in their prime with a large stock of cattle and a fair stuif of horses, to act as rcferees in peace and ieaders iu war to the cottars around. . . . Other differences less intcligithle to us were not less weighty: the volcanic character of the western plain of central Italy, the want of a fall to the coast (which caused some of the waterconrses to form marshes, and made the Tiber a terror to the Romans for its tloods), told in ways as yet untraced on the character of the inhabltants. For oue thing the ancient worship of Fehris and Mefitis indicates a constant ilability to fever; then the air of Greece is ilghter than the air of Itaiy, and this may be the reason that it was more inspiring.

Itailan indigenous literature was of the very scantiest ; its oldest element was to be found in hymns, barely metricul, and so full of repetitions as to dispense vith metre. The hymns were more iike spells than psaims. the singers had an object to gain rather than feelings to cxpress. The puhlic hymns were prayers for blessing: there were private chants to charm crops ont of a neighbour's field, and bring other mischief to pass against him. Such 'evil songs' were a capital offence, though therc was itttle, perhaps, in their form to suggest a distinction whether the Fictim was being bewitched or satirised. The deliberate articuiate expression of spite seemed a guilt and power of itself. Besides these there were dirges at funerals, ranging bet ween commemoration of the deceased and his ancestors, propitiation of the departed spirit, and simple inmentatlon. There were sougs at banquets in praise of ancient worthies.

We find no trace of any poet who composed what free-born youths recited at feasts; projebly they extemporised without training and attained no mastery. If a nation has strong military instincts, we find iegendary or historicai heroes in its very oldest traditions; if a nation has strong poeticai lnstincts, we find the names of historical or iegendaiy poets. In Itaiy we only incet with nanciess fauns and prophets. whose inspired verses were perhsps on the level of Mother Shipton."-G. A. Simcox, A History of Latin Literature, e. 1, introd.

Struggie with the Etruscans. See ETrisCANM.
B. C. 753.-Era of the fonndation of the city. -"Great doubts have been entertained, as well by ancient historians as by modern chronologists. respecting this era. Polyhius fixes it to the year 13. C. 751; Cato, who has been followed by Dionysius of Hailcariassus, Solinus, and Eusebius, to B. C. 352; Fabius Pictor, to B. C. 747 ; Archbishop E'sher, to E. C. 74s; and シicwton, to B. C. 627: Terentius Varro, however, refers it to B. C. 753; which computation was adopteil by the Roman emperors, and by Piutarch, Tacitus, Dion, Aulus Gellius, Censorinus, Onuphrins, Ba roius, bishop Beveridge, Stranchius, Dr. Play. fair, and by most modern chronologists: Llvy, Cicero, Piiny, and Veileius Patercuius occuslon. ally adopted both the Varronian and Catonian computations. Dr. Haies has, however determined, from history and astronomy, that the Varronian computation is correct, viz. B. C. 758."-Sir H. Nicolas, Chronology of IIistory, p.
B. C. 753-510. - The legendary period of the kings.- Credibliity of the Roman annals. -Probable Etruscan domination.-"It msy be stated, as the resuit of this inquiry, that the narrative of Roman affairs, from the fonnila. tion of the city to the expuision of tice Tarynins, is formed out of traditionary nuaterials. At What time the oral traditions were reduced into writing, and how much of the existing uarrative was the arbitrary suppiement of the historisos who first framed the account which has descended to us, it is now imposslhie to ascertaln.

The recoris of them, which were made before the burning of Rome, 390 B. C., were douhtiess rare anc meagre in the extrone; and such as there were at this time chiefly perished in the conflagration and ruin oi the rity. It was probabiy not tili after this period - that is to say, about 120 years after the expulsion of the kings - and above 350 yeara after the era assigned for the fonndation of the city, that thesp oral reports - these inearsay stories of many generations - began to be entered in the regis. ters of the pontifices. . . . The history of the entire regal period, as respects both its external attestation and its Internai probability, is tuler. abiy uniform in its character. $\qquad$ Niebuhr, in. deed, has drawn a broad linc hetvicen the reigns of Romulus and Numa on the one hand. and those of the five last kings on the other. The former be considers to he pureiy fabulons and poetical; the latter lie regards as belonging to the mythico-historical period, when there is a narrative resting on a historical basis, and most of the persons mentioned are reai. But it is impossibie to discover any ground, cither it the contents of the narrative, or in its external evi. dence, to support this listinction. Romulus, Indeed, from the form of his nsme, appears to be a mere personification of the city of Rome, and to have no better clain to a reai existence than IIellen, Danaus, Egyptus, Trrrhenus, or Itaius. But Numa Pompilins stands on the same gronnd as the remaining kings, except that he is more ancient; and the narrative of all the reigns, from the first to the last, seems to be constructed on the same principles. That the names of the kiugs after Romnlus are rala, is highly probable; during the latter reigns. much of the history seems to be in the form of legend. ary explanatious of proper nanes. . . . Even with respect to the Tarquinian family, it may be donbted whether the similarity of their name to that of the city of Tarquinii was not the origin of the story of Demaratus and the Etrusean ofigin. The circumstance that the two king Tarquins were both named Lucius, and that it was necessary to distinguish them hy the eplthets of Priscus and Superbus, raises a presum! lent that the names were real. Malier indeed regarts the names of the two Tarquins as merely represent-Ing the influence exercised hy the Etruscan city of Tarquinii In Rome at the periods known as their reigns. . . The leading feature of the goverument during this period is that its chief was a king, who ohtained his office hy the election of the people, and the confirmation of the Senste, in the same manner In which consuls aud other high magistrates were appointed after the aboiltion o! royalty; hut that, when once fully elected, he retained his power for life. In the mode of succession, the Roman differed from the early Greek kings, whose office was hereditary. The Ilban kings, likewise, to whom the Roman kings traced their origln, are described as succeeding by inheritance and not hy election. predominant belief of the Romans e-jcerning their regai government was, that the power of the kings was imited hy constitutional checks; that the chief Institutions of the Repuhlic, namely, the Senate and the Popular Assemhiy, existed in combination with the royalty, and were only suspended hy the lawiess despotism of the second Tarquin. Occasionaily, however, we meet with the ifea that the kings were absolute." Sir G. C. Lewls. Inquiry into the Credibility of Eirly Roman Iistory, ch. 11, sect. 39-40 (v. 1)."Of the kings of Rome we have no direct con. temporary evidence; we know them only from tradition, and from the traces they left behind them ln the Repuhlican eonstitution whlch foilowed. But the 'method of survivals' has here been appiied hy a master-hand [Mommsen]; and we csn the fairly sure, not oniy of the fact that monarchy actualiy existed at Rome, but even of some at least of its leading characteristics. Here we have kingshlp no longer denoting, as in Homer, a soclai position of chieftaincy whicis bears with It certain vaguely-conceived prerogatives, hut a eicnrly defined magistracy within the ful'y realised State. The rights and duties n! the $1: \geq$ are ladeed defined by no documents, sn, 'the snirit of the age stili seems to be obedicace and irisat; hut we also find the marks of a formai eustomary procedure, which is aiready hardeuing into constitutional practice, and wili in time further harden Into constitutional law. The monarchy has ceased to be hereditary, if it crer was so; and the method of appointment, though we are uncertain as to its exact nature, is beyond doubt regulated with precision, and expressed in technical terms."-W. W. Fowler, The City-State of the Greeks and Romans, $p p$. 7475. - "The analogy of other states. no less than the subsequent constitution of Rome, which always retained the marks of its first monarchical compiexion, leaves us in no douht that kings once reigntei in Rome, and that hy a determined uprising of the peopie they were expeiled, lenving in the Roman mind an ineradicahle hatred of the very name. We have to be content with these lard facts, extracted from those thriliing stories with which Livy adorna the rcign and the expuision of Tarquinius Superhus."-R. F. Horinn, Ifist. of the fomane, ch. 2.- Tie names of the kings, with the dates assigned to them, are as foliows: Romulus, B. C. 753-717; Numa B'mpilius, B. C. 715-673: Tullus Hostilius, i3. C. 673-642; Ancus Martus, B. C. 641-617; i.ucins Tarquinius Priscus, B. C. 616-579; Servins Tullius. B. C. 578-535; Tarquinius Superlins. B. C. $534-510$. - According to the legend of arly llome, Romuius attracted iniahitants to the edy he had founded hy catahlisining within

It walls a asnctuary or refuge, for eacaped slaves, outlaws and the like. But he could not in a fair way procure wircs for these rough settiers, because marriage with them was disdained by the reputahle peopie of neighboring cities. Therefore he arranged for an imposlng celebration of games at Rome, in honor of the god Consus, and invlted his neighbors, the Sabincs, to witness thein. Tinese came unsuspectingly with their wives and daughters, and, when they were ahsorbed in the show, the Romans, at a given signal, rushed on them and carried off such women as they chose to make captive. A long and obstinate war ensued, which was ended hy the interposition of the women coneerned, who had become reconciied to their Roman hushands and satisfied to remain with them.-Livy, History, ch. 9.-"We cannot . . . ngree with Nishuhr, who thlaks he can discover some historical faets through this lcgendary nist. As he supposes, the inhahitants of the Pa ntine had uot the right of intermarriage ('connu'ilunn') with thelr Sahine neighbours on the Capltoline and the Quirinal. This inferiority of the Paiatine Romans to the Sabines of the Capltoline and Quirinai hilis caused discontent and war. The right of Intermarriage was ohtained hy force of arms, and this historical fact iies at the bottom of the taie of the rape of the Snbines. Such a method of changing legends into history is of very douhtful utility. It seems more naturul to explaln the iegend from the customs at the Roman marriage ceremonies" - In which the pretence of forcible abduction was enacted. - W. Ihne, Hiat. of Rome, bk. 1, ch. 2.-"Witin the reign of the ffth king. Tarquiuius Priscus, a marked change takcs place. The traditional aecounts of the last three kings not only wear a more historical air than those of the first four, but they lescribe something iike a trausformntion of the Roman city and state. Ender the rule of these latter kings the separate set tlements were for the first time enelosed with a rampart of coiossal size and extent. The low grounds were drained, and n forum and circus eiaborately laid out; on the Capitoine Mount a tempic was erected, the masslve foundations of which were an ohject of wonder even to Pling.

The klngs lncrease in power and surround themselves with new splendour. Abroad, Rome suddeniy appears as a powerful state ruling far and wide over southern Etruria and Latium. These atarting changes are, moreover, nscribed to kings of aiien descent, who one nnd ail ascend the throne ln the teeth of establisined constitutional forms. Finally, with the expuision of the iast of them-the younger Tarquin - comes a sudden shrinkage of power. At the commencement of the republic home is once more a comparstively small state, with hostile and independent neighbours at har very doors. It is difficult to avoid the conviction that the true expianation of this phenomenon is to be found in the supposition that Rome during this period passed under the rule of powerfui Etruscan lords. Who the people were whom the Romans knew as Etruscans and the Greeks as Tyrrhenians is a questiou, which, after centuries of discussion, still remains unanswered: nor In all probability will the answer be found untll the lost key to their language has been discovered. That they were regarded hy the Italic tribes, hy Emhrians, Sabeliians, nnd Latins, as Intruders is certain. Entering Italy, 蹋 they probably did from the north or north-east, they seem to have irat of all made themselves masters of the rich vailey of the Po and of the Umbrians who dweit there. Then crossing the Apennines, they overran Etruria proper as far south as tie banks of the Tlber, here too reducing to suhjec. tion the Umbrian owners of the soil. In Etruria they inade themselves dreaded, like the North. men of a lnter time, by sea as well as by land.

We find the Etrusenn power encircling Rome on all sldes, and in Rome itself a tradition of the rule of princes of Eiruacin origin. The Tarquinil come from South Etruria; their name can harclly be anything else than the Latin equivaient of the Etruscan Tarchon, and is therefore possibly a titie (-'lord' or 'prince') rather than a proper name. . . . That Etruria had, uniler the swny of Etruscan lords, forged aheal of the eouniry sonth of the Tliser in wealth and civilisation is a fact which the evideace of remains has placed leyond doubt. It Is therefore significant that the ruie of the Tarquins in Rome is marked by an outwarl splendour which stands in strong contrast to the primithe simplicity of the native klngs. $\qquad$ These Etrusenn princes are represented, aot oniy as hav. ing raised Rome for the time to a commanding position in Latlum, and lavished upon the city itself the resourees of Etrusean civilisation, but aiso the authors of important internal changes. They are represented as favouring new men at the expense of the oid patrician families, and as reorganising the Roman army on a new footing, a polies naturai enough in military princes of alien birth."-II. F. Peiham, Outlines of Roman Hist., bk. 1, ch. 3.

Also IN: F. W. Newman, Regal *me.-T. H. Drer, Hist. of the Kings of Rome.
B. C. 510. - Expulsion of Tarquin the Proud. - The story from Livy. - Luchus Tar. quinins Superbus, or Tarquin the Proul, son of Tarquinius Priscus and sou-in-law of Servins Tuilus, brought mont the ussassiuntinn of the latter, and mounted the throne. "Lucius Tarqulu, having thus seized the kiugdom (for he had not the consent cither of the Senators or of the Commons to his decil). bare himself vers haughtlly, so that men cailed him Tarquin the Proud. First, lest some other, taking eanmple hy him, should deal with hlm as he had deait with Tultius, he had about hin a company of armed men fo guards. And lecause he knew that none loved him, he would have them fear hlm. To this end ine caused men to be aecused before him. And when they were so aceused, be judged them by himself, none sitting with him to sre that right was done. Some he slew unjustly, and wome he bnnished, and some he spoiled of their goxsla. And when the number of the Senators wis grently diminished hy these menns (for he lad his plots mostly again the Senators, as ludig rich men and the chief of the Stnte), he wonll not choose any into their piace, thanking that the people wonli! lightly esteem them if there were lint a few of them. Nor did he cail them together to ask thelr connsel, hut ruled accordir. y to his own pleasure, making peace and war, and binting treatles or unbinding, With none to gaiusay him. Nevortheless, for a while he increased greatly in power and giory. IIe matie aillance whth wriarius Mamilius, prince of Tusculum, giving him his danghter in mar. rage; nor was there auy man greater than $\mathbf{M a}$. milius in all the cities of the Latins; and Suens Pometis, that was a city of the Voiscl, he took hy force, and finding that the apoli was very rieh (for there were in it forty talents of goid and sllver), he huilt with the money a temple to Jupiter on the Capitol, very great and splendid. and worthy not oniy of his present kingilom but also of that great Empire that should be there. after. Also he took the city nf Gabli by aud. i, By such means did Klag Tarquin ineresse in's power. Now there was at Rome in the dsys of Tarquin a noble youth, by name Luclus Junius, whn was akin to the howse if Tarquin, secing that his mother was sister to the King, This man, secing how the King sought to destroy ali the chief men in the State (and, indeed, the brother of Lucins had been so slain), Jndged it well so oo hear himself that there should ive nothin, in him which the King should elther covet on desire. Wherefore he felgned foolishness, suffering all that he had to be made a prey; for which reason men gave him the nanic of Brutus, or tive Foolish. Then he hided his time. waiting till the occasion should come when he, might win freedom for the people." In a little time "there came to Brutus an oceasion ó showing what manner of man he was. Sextus, the King's son, did so grievous wrong to Lueretia, that was the wife of Coliatinus, that the woman coukl not eadure to live, but slew herself with her own hand. But before she dled she called to her her husband and her father and Brutus, and hade them avenge her upon the evll house of Tarquin. And when her father and her hushand sat slient for grief and fear, Brutus drew the knife wherewith she slew herself from the wound, and held is before him dripplag with boon, and cried alnud, 'By thls blood I swear, ealing the Gods to witucss, that I will pursue with fire and sword and with all other menus of destruetion Tarquin the Proud, with fils secursed wife and ail his race; and that I will suffer no man hereafter to t. king in this city of lome.' And when he had ended he bate the others swear after the same form of wortis. This they did and, forgetting their grief, thonght ouly how they might best avenge thils great wrong that had been done. First they carried the lodir of Lueretia, ali covered with blond, intn the marketplace of Coliatia (for these things happened st Colintia), and roused all the people that suw a thing so shameful and pitlful, till all that were of an age for war assembled themselves rarruing arms. Some of them stayed behind to kreqp the gates of Colintia, that no one shoula carry tidlngs of tise matter th the Kligg, anl the rest Brutus took with him with all the spord that he might tu Rome. There aiso was stirred up a like commotion, Brutus calling the people together and teling them what a shameful wrong the young Tarquin had doue. Also he spatic to them of the labours with whleh the ling wore them out ln the buidiling of temples aud palaecs and the like, so that they who had been in time past the conquerors of ail the nations round about were now come to be but as hewres of wood and lraners of water. Aiso he sel lefore them in what shamefui sort King Tultims had been slain, and how his daughter had driven her chariot over the dead borly of her fatior. With suchlike words he stirred up the peopl' to prat wrath, so that they pussed a decree tunt thrre should be no more kings in Rome, as.' that Luclus Tarquin with his wlfe and his children should be banlshed. After thle Brutus made baste to the camp and stlrred up the army sgalnst the Klng. And In the meanwhlle Queen Talla fed from her palace, all that saw ber cursing ber as sbe went. As for King Tarquin, when he came to the elty he found the gates shut sgalnst blm; thereupon he returned and Iwelt st Care tbat is ln the land of Etruria, and two of bis sons with hlm: but sextins golng to Gabil, as to a clty whlch be had made bls own. was slain by the jnhabltants. The Ki,gg and hls bouse belng thus driven out, Brutus was made consul wlth one Collatlnus for bls eolleague."Stories from Liey; by A. J. Church, ch. $\delta$.

Aloo IN: B. G. Nlebuhr, Leet's on the Hist, of Rume, lect. 8-9 (v. 1).-T. H. Dyer, Ifist. of the Kings of Rome, ch. 10.
B. C. 509.- The establishment of the Repub-lic.-The Valerlan Laws.-"IIowevermuch the blstory of the expulsion of the last Tarquinlus, 'the proud,' may have been Interwoven with anecdotes snd spun out lnto a romance, It is not In its leading outllnes to be called In question.

The royal power wns by no mesas abollsbed, gs is sbown by the fact that, when a vacnncy occarred, a 'temporary klng' (lnterrex) was nomlnated as before. The one llfe klng was slmply replaced by two year-klngs, who called thenselves genemals (pretores), or judges (Jullces), or merely collengues (consules) consules are those who 'leap or dance together. Foot-note]. The colleglate prlaclple, irom which thls last - and suberquently most current - name of the aunual klags was derived, assumed ln their case nn sltogether pecullar form. The suprente power was uot entrusted to the two magistrates conjointly, but euch consul possessed and exercised it for himsclf ns fully and wholly ns it had been possersed and exerclsed by the king: nnd. althongh a purtltion of fuuctions doubtless took place from the first - the one consul for lnstunce uadertaking the command of the army, and the other the alminlstration of justice - that partltion was by no means binding, and each of the collesgues wus legally at liberty 10 interfere at aay time in the province of the other [see CosscL, Romas].
. Thls peculinrly Latin, If not pecaliarly Roman, Institutlon of co-ordinate sulprease authorities... inanlfestly sprnng out of the cadeavour to retnin the regal power in legally uadinulnished fulness. ... A slinilar coarse wis followed ln reference to the terminntion of their tenure of office. . . . They ceased to be msgistrates, not upon tbe expiry of the set term, but only upon tbeir publicly and solemnly deraitting their oflice: so that, in the evenc of their daring to dlsregard the term nad to contiave their maglstrucy beyond the year, their oftheial acts were nevertheless valid, and in the eurlier times they scircely even incurred any other than a moral responslbillty."-T. Monnusen, Hist. of Rume, $b k$.: $:$ ch. $1 .-$ No revolution can le undertakea and completed with success if the mass of the pcople is not led on by some superior In. tellect. At the dissolution of an exlsting legal authority the only authority remaining is personal and de facto. Which in proportion to the dlager of 'he position is more or less mllltary and dictatcriaj. The Romans especlally acknowi. euged the necesslty, when clrcumstances required It, of submlttlng to tbe unllmited power of a dictator. Gucb a cblet they found, at the time of the revolutlon, In Brutus. Coliatinus also may, during a certaln tlme, have stood In a slmllar msnuer at the hemi of the state, probably from less pure motlve thnn Brutus, in consequence nf whleh be succumbed to the movement whlch he In part may have croked. After Brutus, Valerius Publlcola was the recognlsed supreme head and the arblter of even's ln lame wlth dletatorial power, uatll bls leg -latlon made an end of the lnterregnem, nnd wilth all legal forms founded the true and gennlne republle witb two nnnual consuls. The alketatorship is found ln the Latlu cltles as a state of transliton between monurchy and the yearly pritorshlp; and we may conjecture that also $\ln$ luomo the slmallar change $\ln$ the co stlitutlon wss effected In a slmilar way. In lmpoitant hlstorical erises the llomans always arailed themselves of the absolute power of a dlctator. as In Grecee, wlth sinllnr objects, Aesyinnetne were chosen.
How long the dletatorlal constltutlon Insted must remaln undeclded; for we must renoince the hea of a chronsiogy of that tlme. It appears to me not lmporille that the periol letween the expulslon of the kings nad the Vilerlan laws, which $\ln$ our authoritles is represented as a year, muy bare embraced ten yeurs, or much more."W. lhne, Revarches into the Ifiatory of the Roman Conatitution, $p$. 61.-"The republle secms to have been firot regularly estnblished by the Valerian laws, of which, uafortunately, we can discover llttle more than half obliterited traces in the oldeat tradltlons of the Romaus. Aceording to the story, P. Valcrius $\because a s$ choscu ns consul nfter the banishuneut of Tarquinlus Collathus, and remained ulone in ofllce after the deruth of hls colleague, Brutus, wlthout assombling the people for the election of $n$ secoud consul. This proceeding excited in suspicion in the minds of the people, that he lnteni to take sole possession of the stute, and to $r$ a tablish roval power. But these fears preved grounc: iss. Vilerius remalued In ottlee with the sole acsign of lutroducligg a numier of laws inteuled to establish the republic on $n$ legal foundation, whthout the danger of any literterence on the part of a colleague. The tirst of these Valerian liws threntened with the curse of the gols nuy one who, withont tho consent of the people, shoukl dare to nssume a highest magistracy.

The second law of Valerias . prescribe that ln criminal trinls, where the life of a citizen was at stake, the sentence of the consul should be subject to an appeal to the gencral assembly of the people. Th. is Valerian $a w$ of appeal was the Roman Habeas Corpits Act."-W. Ihne, Mit\%, of Iome, bk. 2, ch. 1 ( 1.1 ).-Sce, aiso, Conscl, ILoman: Comitia Cuniata; Comitil Centcriata; Cenfohs;

B. C. 494-492. - The first secession of the Plebs.-Origin of the Tribunes of the Plebs, and the AEdiles.-Original and acquired power of the Tribunes.- The two Roman peoples and their antagonism. - "The struggle [of plebeians against patriclans In early Ronit; opens with the debt questlon. We must realize all along how the laternal blstory is uffered iny the wa:s without. The debtors fall iuto thrir difficsitles througb aerving in the field during the summer; for of course the army is a citizen army and the cltizens are agriculturists. Two patriclan famllles taike the side of the poor, the Foratll and the Valerif. Jumius Valcrius Pubifcoia, created dictator, promises the distresser? farmers that, if they will follow hlm in hle can: palgu against the Eahincs, he wlil procure th. relaxation of thelr burdens. Thes go and ri turn vletorious. But Applus Ciaudlus (whose famlly had hut recentiy migrated to Rone, a proud and overbearing Sahlie stock) oppomed the redicmption of the dictator's promise. The victorfons hoat, forming a seventh of tisc arm-bearing population, instantly marched out of the gute of the clty, croased the river Anlo, and took up a stntlon on the Bacred Mount [Mons Sacer]. They did not mean to go back again; they were weary of thelr haughty maters. - At last a peace ls made--a formal peace concluded by the fetlales: they will come hack If ther may have magistrates of thelr own. This is the origin of the trihunes of the picbs [B. C. 482] ...T The piebs who marched back that day from the Sucred Mount had done deed which was to have a wonderful issue in the hlatory of the world; they had dropped a seed lnto the soil which would one day spring up lnto the 1 m . perlal government of the Casars. The 'tribunlcla potertas,' wlth which they were clothlng thelr new magistrates, was to become a more Impor. tant element ln the clalms of the emperors than the purple robe of the consuls."- IR. F. Horton, IFist. of the Romans, ch. 8.-"The tribunes of the people were so essentlally dificrent from all the other magistrates that, strictly speaking, they could hardly be called magistrates at all.' They were originally nothing hut the ufficlal counsel of the plebs - but counsei who possessed a veto on tise executlon of any command or any sentence of the patricinn authoritles. The tribune of the people had no milltary force at his disposal with which to inforce his veto.

There is no morc striking proof of the high respect for law willch was intie, ant In the Romnn people, than that it was possihle for such a magistracy to exerclse functions speclally directed agalnst the governing ciass. ...To strengthen an official authorlty whlch was $\&$ much wanting ln physlcal strength, the Romans avaiicd themselves of the terrons of reilgion. .... The tribunes were accordingly placed under the specinl protection of the Deity. Thcy were deciared to he zonse. crated and lnvlolahle ('sacrosancti'; and wliocver attacked them, or hindered them $\ln$ the ex. crise of their functions, fell $n$ vletim to the avenging Delty, and might be killed by anyone without fear of punishment."-W. Ihne, Mist. of Rome, bk. 2, ch. 2, and bk. 6, ch. 8.-', The tribunc had no political authority. Jot being a magistrnte, he could not convoke the curies or the centuries [see Comitia Ccriata and Comitha Centeriata]. He could make no proposition ln the senate; It was not supposed, in the beginning, that he could appear there. He had nothlng in common with the real clty - that is to say, wlth the patriclan clty, where men did not recognizc any authority of hls. He was not the tribune of the people; he was the tribune of the plebs. There were then, as prevlously, two societies In Rome - the city and the plebs; the one strongly organlzed, having laws, magistrates, and a senate; the other a multitude, which remained witbout rights and laws, hut whlch found in lis invloiable tribunes protectors and judges. In succeeding years we can see how the tribunes took courage, and what unexpected powers they agaumed. They had no authority to convoke the people, but they convoked them. Nothing called them to the senste; they wat it first at the door of the chamber; later they sat ithln. They had no power to judge the jatri. clans; they juilged them and condemned thrm. Thls was the resalt of the lnviolahllity nttaciurd to them as ancrosanctl. Every other power gave Way before them. The patriclans were dinarmed the day they had pronounced, wlth solenin rites, that whover touched a tribune should bre lmpure. The law sald, 'Nothing shall the done agalnat a tribune.' If, then, thlo tribune convoked the plehs, the plebs assemhied, and no one could dlssolve this assembly, which the presene of the tribune placed beyond the power of the pntriclans and the laws. If the trlhune entered the senate, no one could compel hlm to retire. If he selzed a consul, no one could take the consui from his hand. Nothlng could resint the boidness of a trihune. Agalnst a tribune no one had any power, except another tribune. As coon as the plehs thus had thelr chlefs, they illa not wait long before they had dellberative assem. hlles. These dld not in any manner rewemble those of the patriclans. The plebu, in their comitla, were distributed Into tribes; the dompcilc, not rellglon or wealth. reguiated the place of each one. The assemhir did not conmmence wlth a sacrifice; rellglon did not appear there. They knew nothing of presages, and the vilice of an augur, or a pontiff, could not conpe: men to eeparate. It was realiy the comltha of tiee plebs, and they had nothing of the old rules, or of the religlon of the patricians. True, tiese assemblies did not at trist occupy themselves with the general interests of tive city; they namei no magistrates, and passed no laws. They deliberatcd only on the interests of thelr owa uriur, named the piebeian chiefs, and carrisd plebiscita. There was at Home, for a long tinic, s double series of decrees - senatusconsilta for the patriclans, pleblscita for the plehs. The plebs did not obey the seuntusconsulta, nor the patricisns the pieblsclta. There werc two peophins at Rome. These two peoples, always in prow ofe of each other, and liveng within the sanu- walls, still had almost nothing ln common. A pheleisa could not be consul of the city, nor a putricisn tribune of tie piehs. The plebelan dia not cuter the assembly hy curles, nor the patrician the assembly of the tribes. They were two peoples that did not even understand cnci other, not having - so tospeak - common ideas. . . . The patricinns porslsted ln kceping the piehs without the boaly polltic, and the plebs estnhished instl. tutions of ticir own. The duailty of the lionsen population became from day to day more nanifcst. And yet there was something which formed a tie between these two peopics: this was war. The patricians were careful not to deprive themselves of soldiers. They had left to the plebeians the tltle of cltlzens, if oniy to lncorporate them lnto the legions. They had taken care, too, that the invioiahillty of the trihunes should not extend outside of Rotic, and for thls purpose had declded that a trihune should never go out of the city. In the army, therefore, the plebs were under contrul; there was no longer a double power: In presence of the enemy Home became one."-N. D. Fustel de Coulanges, The Ancient City, bk. 4, ch. 7.- It is supposed that the trihunes were originally two is zumber; lut later there werc five, and, finalls, ten The law whlch created their office was "depooited ln a temple, under the charge of two plebelan msgiatrites specially appointed for the purpose and cailed Aediles or 'housemasters.' Thee aediles were attached to the trhunes as asalstants, asal their juriadletlon chletly concernel anch minor casen as were settled by ines."-T. Mommsen, Hist. of the Roman Repuiblic (abridged by Bryant and Itendy), ch. 7. -"Beskles the tribunes, whostood over agalnst the consuls, two plebeian edtles were appointed, who might bulance the patrician quastors. Their name seems borrowed from the temple (Edes Cereris) which is now huilt on the cattle market between the Palatine and the fiver to form a rellgious centre for the plebeian interest, as the ancient tensple of Saturn was alrealy a centre for the patrician Interest. The goddess of hread ls to preside over the growth of the democracy. The diuty of pullies is, in the firat lnstance, to keep the puhlic huildings in repalr; hut they acquire a position not unlike that of police-ofticers."-IR. F. Horton, Hist. of the Romane, ch. 8. - The offlee of the curule adiles (two In number, who were elected in "comitla trihuta") was ingtituted In 366 B. C. These were patricians at flat; hut in 304 B. C. the office was thrown open ln alternate years to the plebelans, and in 91 B . C. all restrictions were remored. The curule wdiles had certain judicial functions, and formed with the plebeian wedlles a board of pollce and market administra. thon, having oversight also of the religious games. - The same, App. 4.

Also in: Slr G. C. Lewis, Credibility of Early Roman Ilistory, ch. 12, pt. 1.-B. G. Niebuhr, Lect's on the History of Rome, lect. 16. - T. Mommsen, Hist. of Pome, bk. 2, ch. 2 ( $c, 1$ ).
B. C. 493.-Learue with the Latlng. See below: B. C. $330-338$
B. C. $489-45 n$, Vnlacian Wars.- The wars of the Romans with the neighboring Voiscians stretehed nver a pertod of some forty years (13. C. 489-450) and ended In the disapjenrance of the latter from history. The legend of Corolanus (Caius Marcius, on whom the adied name was rostowed because of his valinat capture of the Vulscian town of Cortoli) is connected with these wars; hut raodern critics have stripped it of n" hletor'c credit and left it only a heautiful V Ahne, Wiat. of Rome, bk. 2, ch. 4
J. Church, Stories from Liry, ch. 7. 4i R.-- The Publilian Law nf Vonn ef Patricians frnm the Comi--"Vol:co Publillus was chosen one 1 hunes
[B. C. 472]; and be stralght way prop da law hy which it was provided that the Tribunes and Ediles of the plebs should be elected hy the plebeians themsclves at the Assembly of the Tribes In the Forum, not at the Assembly of the Centuries in the Field of Mars. This is usuaily cailed the Puhiliian Law of Volero. For a whole year the patricians succeeded In putting of the law. But the plebelans were cittermined to have It."- H. G. Liddell, Hist. of Rome', bk. 2, ch. 8 (0. 1). -" The Immediate consequence of the trihuveship of the people was the orianlsation of the assembly of tribes, the comitis tributa,' wherehy they lost their former char. acter as fantlonal or party meetings and were raised to the dignity and functons of assemblies of the Roman people. . . . The circumatances which, in 471 B. C., led to the passing of the Puhllian law o indicate that erea at that change the oupt was made by the patriciags 10 change the original charaeter of the tribuneship of the people, and to open It to the patrician class. The patrelans intruded themselves in the arseinbly of the plebelans, surely not for the farpose of making a disturhance as lt is repreented, hut to enforce a contestell right, hy which they clalmed to take part in the comitin of trllees.

This questlon was decided by tise J'uhlilian law, whleli excluded the patricinns from the conitia trihuta and speclited the privileges of these comitis, now admitted to be purely plebe. ian.

These were the Hght of meeting together unmolested In separate pureiy plebetan comitin, the rygt of freely and iudependently eleeting their representatlves, the rght of discussing and settling their ownaffalrs, and in certain matters of passing resolutions [plehiscita] wheh affected the whole community. These resolutions were, of course, not binding on the state, they had more the character of petitlons than enaetments, hut stili they were the formal expression of the will of a grent mnjority of the lloman people, and as sueh they eould not easlly be set aside or ignored by the patrician governineut."- W. Ihne, Jist. of Rome, bk. 2, ch. 8, and bk. 6, ch. 1.
Also Is: B. G. Niehuhr, Lect's on Hist. of Rame, lect. 20.
B. C. 466-463.-The Plague. - In the war of the llomans with the Volscians, the fornier were so hard pressed that " it became necessary to recelve men and cattle within the walls of Rome, just ns at Atheus in the Peloponnesian war; and thls erowdlug together of men and beasts prodnced a plague [B. C. 460-463]. . . . It is probable that the great pestilence which, thirty years later, broke out ln Greece and Carthage, liegan in litaly us eariy as that the. The rate of nor. tallty was fearfil; it wasa renl pestllence, and not a mere fever. . . . Both cousuls fell vietinas to the cisease, two of the four augurs, the curlo maximus, the fonrth part of the senators, and an anmense number of eitzens of all ciasses." 13. G. Niehulhr, Lect's on the Wist. of Rome, lec 21.

Also in: T. Araold, Hist. of Rome, ch. 11.
B. C. 458. - Cnnquest of the Equl. "Alternating with the ralds [of the LRomans? ugainst the Voisci are the alnost yearly camjaigus with the Equi, who would pour down their vaileys and occupy Hount Algidus, threatening Tuscuinm and the Latin Way which led to Rome. It was on one of these occasions, when the repuhlie ton was engaged with Sahines to the north, and Volschans to the south, that the Consul Minucius [B. C. 458] found himseif femmed in on the mountaln-sfde by the Equi. Very henutiful and very characteristic is the legend which veils the issue of the dauger. $L$. Quinctius Cincinnatus, ruined hy a fine imposed upon bls son, is tilling inis little farm across the Tiber, when the messengers of the Senate come to announce that he is made dictator. With great simpiicity he leaves his plough, conquers the Equl, and returns to his furrows aguin."IR. F. Ilorton, Eist. of the Romans, ch. 4.
Alao 1s: A. J. Church, Stories from Livy, ch. 8.
B. C. 456.-The Icillan Lav.-The early process nflegialatinn illustrated, -Pereuasivemess of Plebelan Petitinns. -"The process of boglelation mo eariy times had been preverved in us la a slagio Inotance in which Donyslus has sollowed the necount derived by hlm from an enelent document. The case is that of the Lex Ielile de $A$ ventino publlcando (B. C, 458), an in. :-rpude in the long struggle over the Terentlinn law [see below: B. C. 45i-449]. This Lex Icllia was preserved, as Dlonyalus telle us, on a brazen column in the temple of Diana util the Aventine. It seems unlikely that the origlual tablet in much a sltuntion should have survived the burning of the clty by the Gaula. Yet a recoril to lmpor. tant to the plebs would doubtless be nt once restored, and the restoratlon would show it linast the bellef prevalent at thla very early 1 erlow (13. C. 884) as to the proper procellure $\ln$ case of sucha low. 'Icllhus,' מays Dlonrslus (X. 31), 'approarined the consuls then In othce and the senate, and requented them to pass the prellminary decree for the law that he proposed, and to bring it before the people.' By threatenlag to arrest the consuls he compelled them to assemble the senate, und Icllus addresseel the senate on behalf of bils bill. Flaaily the menate consentend (Dlonys. X. 32). Then, after ausplees and sacrifices, the law was pnssed by the comithi centuriatn, whilch were convenell by the consuls.

Now here we hnve an orier of proveceding under which the plebs have a practimil hiltintive In legislation, and in winleh, nevertheless, cach of the powers of the state acts in a perfectly natural and constltutlonni manner. . . . The formal legislative power lies solcly wioh the popuius Romanus. The vote of the col moration of the plebs is not then in early times atrictly a legislative proccss at all. It is merely a strong and formal pettion, an appeal to the soverelgn assembly to grant thelr request. But thils soverelgn assembly ean only be eonvened und the questlon put to it by a consul. If the ennsuls are unfavourable to the blll, they can refuse to put it to the vote at all. In any cose, unless, llke Sp. Casslus, they ware themsel ves revolutlonlasts, they would not think "f dolng so save on the recommendatlon of thelr muthorised advlsers.

The sennte is assembled und freely dis. cusses the law. An adverse vote justlites the consuls in their resistance. Then follow tedlous mancuaves. The senate treut with members of the college' of tribunes to procure thelr vete; they urge the necessity of a milltary expedition. or, as a last resource, alvise the appointment of a lictator. Such is the gencral pleture we get from Livy's story. If by these memus thry cun tide over the tribune's yenr of oftice, the whole process has to be gone through again. The seuate have the chance of a lucky accldent la getting oue of the new tribunes subservlent to them; or sometimes (us in the case of the proposal to re. move to (cil) they may persuade the plebs ltself to throw out the tribunlelan rogatlo when agaln introducel (Lisy, v. 30). On the other hand the tribunes maty bring to bear thelr reservell power of impeding all public business; and the ulthna ratio lies with the plebeing, who have the power of secesston in their hands. In practlce, however, the senate is nearly always wisc enough to yleld before the pletis ls driven to play tifls lis last card. Their yledling is expressed by thelr backing the petition of the plebs and recommending the consuls to put the questlon of lits acceptance to the populus. With this recom. mendation on the part of the seaste the struggle

Is generally at an end. It is atill in the atrict right of the consuls to refune to put the question to the comitia. Liry (ili. 10) glves us one in. atance in the matter of the Terentillan law, when the senate is dispmed to sleld, and the cumanl - non in plebe corercenda quam senatu cantignulo vehementlor fult.' But a consul vo inslatlagk on hals aght woukl lucur eanrmons personal rexpmo. slbillty, and expose himeelf, unsheltered by puibile oplalon, to the rengeance of the jlwlis when he went out of ofice. When the censmil too has ylelded, and the question is actumbly put to the vote of the sovereign (generally in lis corritta centuriata), the controverny ham lifera long ago thoroughly threshod out. Though it is only at this stage that legislation in the xerict sente of the word commencen ret no lnstume is recorided of a refusad on the part of the moverecign prople to assent to the pettion of the phelis bucked iy the recommendatlon of the senate. "J. L. Strachan finvldison, Plebeian Privilige at Rome (Einglinh Mistorical Reo. April, 1884). - 19 the bearings of this proceeding on the wuhse. quently adopted Valerio. Horation, $\mathbf{P}_{n}$ bilihan, and Hortenslan laws, see below: B. C. 2 w
B. C. 451 -44y. The Terentilian Law.-Ths Decemvirs and the Twelve Tables.- Niot ling after the establishment of the tribuneshilp. "the pleivelans felt the necessity of putting un end to the excluslve posessalon of the laws whilch the patriclans enjoyed, ant to make thent the cum. mon property of the whole nation. Thls conlid only be done by writing them down and making them public. A proposal was nccordingly mas ice In the "t anbly of ti: tribes by the irlbune C. Tereuthlus Arsa ( $\ddagger 82$ B. C.) to uppohtat a rommisslou for the purpose of comnitting to writhg the wiole of the laws. . . . It is not wonderful thut the patriclans opposed wh i all their strength a measure which woull wrest a most puwerful weapon out of thelr hands. The context fir the passlug of the blll of Terentlllus hasted, according to traditlon, not less than ten yeurs, and all meuns of open and secret oppositlon and of purthal concession were made use of to clude the clams of the popular purty. .. After an ten yeurs struggle lt [the motion for a comntissien] was passed lato law. It proposed that a cominisslon of ten men, belng partly patricians and partly plelelans, should be appolated. for it parpose of arranglng the calsting law Into. cerle. At the same time the consular constitu. tion was to be suspended, and the ten marn to le lintrusted with the governaicnt and numbinimathon of the commonwcalth during the thme that they acted as leglslators. By the same law the plebeinn mngistracy of the tribunes of the pirple crasenl likewlse, and the ten men became a buhly of maglstrutes intrusted with unlhmed author. lty. . . The patriclans dld not act centirely in goonl fnlth. . . They carrled the election of tea patriclang. . . Having, however, obtalned this advantagc over the credulity of their opponents, the patriclans made no attempt to use it insolently ns a party victory. The decemsirs proceeded with wisdom and moderation. Their ndministratlon, as weli as thelr legislation, nuet with unlversal approval. They publlished on ten tables the greater part of the Ruman law, and after these laws had met with the approba. thon of the people, they were declared by a deciston of the people to be hindling. Thin the first year of the decemvirate passed, and so far the traditional story it almple and Intelli gible." The part of the tradition which foliowis largely refected by modern eritlcal hlatoriman. It relaten that wher decemvirs were choen for snother yent, to complete thelr work, Applus ('laudius bronght about the election, with hinaself, of men whom he couid control, and then established a reign of terror whieb surpased the worst tyrsny of the kings, resuring to almlimate when the year explred. The tragle atory of Virginia connects itwelf with thls terribie oppresson, and wlth the iegend of its downfali. In the enti, the Roman peopie deilvered themselves, thin mecrared the jeermanent authority of the coxle of laws, which had been eniarged from ten iwrive Talles. - W. Ihne, Hiot. of Home, GA g, , b. D and 10.-"The Tweive Tables were cons!atred as the foundation of ail Ia $w$, and Clcero alway: mentlons them with the utmost reverence. But only fagment remain. "- II. G. Lhdieli, Hiat of Rome, bk. 2, ch. 11.-"The most celebrated bystem of jurlaprudence known to the worid begins, an it ends, with a coie. From the commence ment to the elose of ito history, the expositurs of Roman Law eonslatentiy employed language Wheh Impiled that the body of their syatem rested on the Tweive Decemvirai Tabien, and therefore on on basle of written law. Exeept in one pritlcuirr, no institutlons nuterior to the Twelve Tabies were recogulsed at llome. The theoretlcai descent of lloman jurisprudenee froms a cole, the theoretleai ascription of Engilsh faw to immenorigi unwritteu truditlon, were the chief reasons why the deveiopnient of thelr system differed from the developnent of ours. seither theory corresponded exactiy with the facts, hut each produced consequences of the utmust lmportacce.

The ancient Iloman cole infinge to a ciass of winleh aimost every eivil. isal hatlou in the world ean show a sample, and which, so far as the Itomun mad lielienic Worlds were concerned, were iargeiy aiffused over them at epochs not widel; distant from one another. They nppeared under exceedingiy slmilar clrcumataices, alu were produced, to our knowledge, hy very simiar causes. ... In , on the Hellenlsed sca-board of asia, these roties ali maie their appear ance at perlod. 'i the same everywhere, not, Imean, at peric entical in polnt of time, but shmilar in point e relatlve progress of each communlty. E, where, in the countries I have named, laws engraven on tublets and published to the people take the place of usages de. pesited with the recollection of a privileged oligarchy. . . The unclent codes were douhtess orlgitally suggested hy the discovery and difissiun of the art of writing. It is true that the aristorracles seem to have abused their nonopoiy uf legal knowledige; and at all cventh their exclusive possession of the law was a formidahie impediment to the success of those popular muvements whleh began to be universal in the wistern world. But, though demwerntle sentlment may have aded to their popuiarity, the ciuis were certainly In the main a direet resuit of the inventlon of writing. Tnscribed tahlets were seen to be a better deposl $>$ of law, and a letter security for its accurate prese; vation, than the nemory of a number of persons however streagtioned by habitual exercise.

A long the chief aivantagea which the Tweive ables and similar codea conferred on the sucieties
 they affomied sgningt the fruuds of the privl. leged bilgarely and aieo agalant the ipontaneous depravatlon and debanement of the na tonal instlutions. The Roman Code was merely an enunclation in words of the exintlng cuntomn of the lloman people. Ifelativcly to the progreas of the Ifomans in eivillzation, ft was a remark ahly eariy eorle, and it wan published at a thene When lloman soclety had torely emerged from that Intellectuai coniltion in whiteh elvil oblliga. tion and rellglous duty are Inevitally cou. founded."-II. S. Maltue, inmival l, itif, oh. 1.
B. C. 449,-The Valerio-Horatian Lawn.On the overtlinuw of the tyranny of the Incem. Virs, at Iume, II. C. 440, 1. Valeri.s I'otitus and AI. Horatlus Barbatus, belng electerl consuis, brougit about tise passage of certaln havis, known as tie Vairrio-IIoritian Lawn. These rencwelian oid law (the Vialerlan Law) willels gave tevevery Loman citizen an appeal fron the mupreme mag. istrate to the prelpie, aud they alow made the pleblectia, or resolutlons of the assembly of the tribes, authoritatlive laws, hinding on the whoie bordy poiltic.- II. G. Lidieli, Mint. of Jume, bk. 2, ch. 10.--See a discussion of the inportance of the last mentioned of these iaws, in its relatlons to the subsequent Puhlitau and Ilortenalan laws, below: B. C. 386.
B. C. 445-400. - The Canuleian Law,Creation of the Conaniar Tribunea.-Progrean of the Piebs toward Poiitlcal Equaiity.-. The year 449 inmi not taken from ile patriclana all thelr prlvileges. Rome has silli two eiasses, hut oniy one people, and the chlefs of the piebs, sitting in the senate, are meditatlog, after the struggle to obtain elvil equallty, to eomenence amother to galn pollticai equality. . . . Two things malutained the insultiug difinturtoo between the two orders: the prohlbition of inarriage between patrlelans and plebelans, and the tenure of all the maglsterlai ofticers by those who formed sluce the orlglu of I Ronie the sovereign people of the 'patres.' In 445 B. C. the tribune Cunuleins demanded the alolition of the prohlhi. tlon reintive to marriages, and hils coliengues. a sdare lu the consulate. Thls was n demand for polltical cquailty." The Canuieian faw legallzlog marriages between patricians and plebelans was conculed, but not untll a thlrd "secesslou" of the plebeians inad taken place. The plehelau deuand for a share in the cousulate was pactied for the thue by a constitutionai change which formed out of the consulare three otHces: "the quastorshlp, the censorshlp and the consular tribunate. The two former are cxciusively patrlelah The military [or consuiar] trihunch, in reality proconsuis confined, with one execptlon, to the command of the le rions, could now be ehosen without distlnctlon, from the two orders. But the iaw, in utt requing that every year a fixed number of them be plehelans, nllowed them to be ali patricians; nnd they remained s' for ncarly iffr years. In splte of sucli skilfui precautions, the senate did not glve up the consulate. It heid lit reserve aud jure from ali taint the patrielan magistracy, hoping for better days. The constitution of 44 B. C. autiorized the nomlnation of plebeians to the consular tribinate; down to 400 B . C. none obtained it; and during the seventy eigit jears that this ollice continued, the senate tweutyfour timee nominated consuls, that is to say, it attempted, and succeerled, one year in three, in peestablahing the aneient form of goverament. These perpetini occiliathons ebcournged the am. bithus hopes of a rich knight, Bjuifus Malius (439 II. (.). IIe thouplit that the Romans would willngly reagn into film bandm their unyulet jiberiy, anif durfac a funine lie guve very flimenliy (o) the foxir. The sonate beeame alarmed at this alnis riving whlch was not at all in mecroninnce with the niminery of that tlme, allid maneti to the dletatormhip ('luclonatus, who, on taklag oftlee. proyerl the gemis not to grunt that in uid age chould prove a canme of burt of dianage tu thes sipublle. Numumonei lx fore the trlbunal of the diletutar, Wellus refox:al to appertr, ani maght protertlon agulnat the lletors amonget the erowid whilels fllodithe Frurum. But the mueter of tive lume. Nerv. Llala, manged to mach him, arif ran lim throngli with his swomi. In sjulte of the bullgmaton of the people, ('luelnoutum mane: tonedithe act of ble llentenant, chused the boume uf the traltor to ike demullated, and the ' profere. tus annoure, Mlnuclus dagurinus, mold, for an 'an 'per 'umollas,' the com manased by Mrellus. sucdi ls the mory of the parthann of the bothlew [l.lvy]: lut at that epmela to liave diriont of fi. eatablinhug royulty would have been a fordivh drenta In which spirinseatd not have fululged.
 lar fuvour, the millinry tribunate, and in oriler to Intimhlete the plelielan enadilatos, the putricimas overthruw hlm by infutheg tas him the arcuswtion wh. I Livy complacentls detalla by the moutls o. clnnatug, of havfig ainsed nit poyalty. The crowd always can be cajoled ly woris, mil the senate hal the art of concentratIng on thls word ' royalty ' all the plases of popus. lar hatred. The move surceceled; luring the cleven years followlag the people nlo tines allowed consuls to te nominnted. Tbere was, however, in 433 I]. (\% a plelelan dictator, Manercus .tinllins, who reduced the tenure of censur. whlp to 18 inoutlo. These nime eonsulships gave such contidence to the nobles that the senute Ifself had to suffer from the promi want of dls. cipllue nhown ly the consuls of the yea- tie8 II. C. Though contuereal by the Eifulans, they refusel to noblunte a dletator, To overcome thelr reslatance the senate had recourse to the tribmines of the perople, who threatened to drag the cousuls to primon. To ace the tribunltan authorlty protecting the mujesty - 1 the senate was gulte a wew phenomenom. From this day the repntulinn of the tribmate equalled lts power. and few years passed withont the plebelans obtaluiag whul mew wivantage. Three years eapller tire trilunics, jenlous of secelng the votes always slven to the nohles, hat proscrlbed the whlte rolnes, which marked ont front a dlstance, to all ewe. the patrielian einaildate: Thls wus the tirst law ngaliot mulue canvasslog. In 430 a law pot un edd to arbitrary valuatlous of petualtes payable In kini. In tis the tibur. by upposing the levies, ohllged the sena wry to the comalia centurlat:i the que ion or we war agalust Veil. In 423 they ruvlved the agrarian law, aud dennniled that the thtic should be more punctunlly puld in the future hy the occupiers of clomaln land, and applled to the pay of the trops They iniscarried thls thme; but in 421 It meene" necesasty ta ralse the number of funestors fronit wo th four; the prople consented to it unly on the condliton that the quastorshlp be accealble to the piebelams. Three years later 3,050 seres of the landa of Lahieum wero distributed to biteea hundred plebeian families. It wat very ittio: to the people iaif cinim in 414 w tise diviaton of the fanda of Rnia, taken from the . Equians. A military trihune, Poptumius, bolng Violentiy oppoeel to it, wa slain in an onf. break of the soidiery. This crime, unhewrd of It ' $\varphi$ histury of Roman armles, dld harmi to the popular eause; there was no distribution of hauls, and for five zears the menate was sble to numinate the consuls. The patrician reactlon firmluced another againat if wileh eaded In the thorough execution of the cunstitution of the year 44. An Icilius in 412, a Menlus in 410 13. C. took up agaln the agrarlan iaw, anil op. pomed the tevy. The year following tirce of the leillan innilly were named at tribunes. it was a menace to the other order. The patriclans understood It, and In 450 three plelelans ohs. tained the quentorahip. In 405 pay was enab. Ilelied for the trospe, and the rich uniertumk to phy the iagger portion of it. Finally, In fin), fonir military tritunes at of aix were plelelam, The chlefs of the people thus ohtained the pustle offices and even placen in the senate, and the poor ohtained an Indemnity whlch auppurted ibeir familles while they served with the culomes. All amblitions, all deslren, are at present antixtionl. Calin and union returned to Home: we can wee It In tle vlgour of tbe attackis on external fine.
-V. Juruy, Ilintory of Rome, o. 1, pp. 231-0:29.
B. C. $406 \mathrm{3g6}$. - The Veiantioe wars.-Pro posed removal to Vell.-"Veil lay about ten mlles from flome, between two small stresms which mect a little below the city and run liown into the Tiber, falling into it neariy opposite to Castel Glublleo, the ancient Fidence. Inslguti rant in polnt of size, these fittio streanis, how ever, itke those of the Campagna generally, are elgeri hy jrecipitous rocky clifis, and this are capable of aftorifing a naturai defence to a town huilt on the tahle-land above and between them. The space encloned hy the walls of Vell was equal to the extent of Rome Itself, so long ss the walls of Servius Tulilus were tbe boundary of tbe elty.

In the magnificence of its piblic and private huilding Vell is sald to have been preferred by the Roman commons to Rome: and we know enough of the great works of the Etruscans to render this not linpossible."-T. Arnold, Hiat. of Rome, eh. 12 (0. 1), " "Rome and Veli, equals in strength and size, had engared in periodical conflicts from tlme immenorial.

Sut the tlme had come for the final struggle with Veil.

How the siege lasterl for ten years [13. C. 406-808]; how, at the blddlug of a capturei Tuscan meer, the Alban Lake wha dralned (and is not the tunnel which dralned it vislble to-day ${ }^{\text {f }}$; how Camillus, the dlctator, by a tunnel underground took the clty, and fure. stailed the sucritice; bow Juno came from Vill, and took up her abode upon the Aventine; how Camillus triumphed; and how the neuresls fell upon hlm. and he was banlshed - all tlis and more is told by Livy In hls matchless way. It is an eple, and a beautifui epic. "- R F. Ilorton, Hiat. of the Rnmans, eh. 4.-At the thine of the conquest of Vell, tbere was a proposal that half the fahabitants of Home sbould remove to the empty clty, and found a new state. It was defeat: whin diffeulty. A little later, wher itio Gauls had destroyed Rome, its citizens, having found Vell a stroag and countortable place of refuge, were meariy prem. ded to remaln there and not rehulid their fo. cer home. Thus marrowiy was the "Eternal (ity" anvedi to history. - il. G. Liddeli, Jios. of Rome, bk, 2, eA. 13 and 18.

1, C. 390-347-I Iavalone by the Gauis.Destruction of the cliy.-"Befire the time we are now speaking of, there had bren a greme movencat in theee (ceitle nations (of Gael anai ('ymri). Two great swarms went out from Ginui. Of thene, one crossed the Aipe into Itaiy: the other, moving east wani, in the course of time penetpated into drvece. . . . It is supposed that the (iael who dweit in the eastern partis of Ganil. being oppresaed by Cymrie tribee of tho weat and north, went forth to meek new homes in diatnnt lands. . . At ail eventa, it is rertain that large bunife of Celts puxsuri over the Aips before and aflif this time, and having once tuated the wines mill enten the fruits of Italy, were in no hurry to refuen froms that fair land into their own iese linwitaliferegions. We read of one swarm after unuther presing Into the iand of promise: parties of isingones, whose fatiers ilved about Langrea in Chainpagne ; Bulana, whose name is traced in Frenel ikourton and Ituilan iologna; senones, whow oll country wan alout sens, and who have left :ecord of themondies in the name of Senignglia (Sena Galilea) on ias coast of the Aidintife. . . They oversan the rich piains of Northern lealy, and so occupied the territory which lles between the Aips, the Apennines anil the Airiatic [except Liguria] tiat the Romans calied this erritory Gallia Cisalpina, or tither Gaui. The northern Etruscans gave way inefore these firree barimarians, and their nome in lienrif of non nate in those parts. Thence the (halis croserel the Apennlnes Into sonthern Etrupia, and Whilie they were ravaging that country they tirst came in cuntact with the sons of flome. The eommon date for this event is 300 B . C.
The tribe which took this course were of the Senones, na all authors aay, and therefore we may suppose they were Gaelie; but it has been thangit they were mixell with Cymri, sinee the name of their king of chief wins Brennus, and Broblitn is Cymirie for a k.og." The lumana met thr 'uvaders on the hanks of the Alia, a litio strean : um the Sabine tillis which flows into the Tiber, nud were terribiy defeated there. The Gauls entered Rome and fount, as the ancient atory is, oniy a few renembie senators, sitting in theif chain and robces of state, whom they siew. incance one of the senators resented the stroking of hils heard by un insolent harbarian. The $\mathbf{r}$. anaining inhahitants had witharawn into th: Capitol, or taken refuge at Vell and Cere. Afte. pillaging and burning the elty, the Ganis fula sterge to the Capitoi, and strove desperately for seren months to overcome its defenders by arms or famine. In the end they retreated, withont gurcess, but whether bribed, or driven, or weak. eneil by siekness. is matter of uncertainty. The lomans cherished many legends conneeted with the slege of the Capitol,- like that, for exampie, of the sentinel and the sacred geese. "Thirty years after the first irruption ( $981 \mathrm{~B} . \mathrm{C}$.), we hear thitt another host of Senonian Gauls hurst into Latium from the north, and, in aliliance with the people of Tibur, ravaged the iands of Home, Lat:!m and Campania. Fur four yetry tiey contiuued their ravages, and then we hear of them no more. A third Impuption followed, ma years inter [B. C. 347, of still mone formulahlo chameter. At that fime, the Onuli formend a statlonary camp on the Alban Hills and kept Rome in perjetual tepror. . . . After mome montha they poured southwardin, and dlanapesar from hivtory. "-H. G. Liddeli, Ifiet, of Rome, st 2. ch. ' ( $\mathrm{n}, 1$ 1).

Aleo is: T. Mommen, Miof. of Rome, bis: 2, eA. 4.-A. J. Church, Nories Srom Liry, eh. 18-14.
B. C. $370-367$. The Licinlas Lewe.-"C Lecinius stolo anil La sextius . . . belog Tri. minee of the Pletw together in the year 878 B. $\mathbf{C}$. promingated the three litis which have over since borne the namie of the Licinian Rugatona. Thene were: 1. That of ail debta on which in terent liani been naki. the sum of the interest pald should $x$ ed lucted from the prineipai, and the reniainder IUR in three suecemive years. II. That no i. en should hold more than 800 jugera (neariy voscren) of the Pubile Iandi, nor shouid feelr hend of larg cattle and son of smailer, under penaity of a heavy ane. III. That henceforth Consula, not Consuiar Tribunes, shouid uiways be eiected, and that one of the two Consuis must be Plebelan." The patriclans made a Ieaperate reslatance to the adoption of these proposed enactments for ten years, during most of which ing perind the operntions of government were nearis paralyzed by the ubatliate tribunes, who intlexibly employen their formidabie power of veto to compel subminslon to the popular demand. In the end they prevalied, and the Lieinian rogations become Laws.- H. G. Lhid. deli, Hiat. of Rome, bk \$, ch, 15 (e. 1).-' Licinlus evidentiy dealgned reuniting the divided members of the plebelan boily. Not one of them, whether rieh or pror, hut seems calienf mack by these blifs to stand whith his own order from that time on. If tits supponition was true, then Licinius was tive greatest leader whom the piebelans ever had up to the time of Ceesar. But from the tirst he was disappointed. The picbeians who most wanted relie? cared so littie for having the consulsisip opened to the richer men of their eatate that th would readily have di 'and the bili conc - ing ${ }^{14}$, lest a demand shou.te :ndanger their temper the more em. fesires. In the same men of the o:Jer. themscives nonong the leors of the poor and the tenants 0 : the dombin, would hare quashed the proceilings $n$ : the trihunes respecting the discharge of cebt and the distribution of land. so that thi - anried the thind bill only, whieh would make ti:e $\eta$ cossuis without disturbing : 'ieir posscasino*. While the plebeians continued a vered from ouc another, the patricians drew together in rezistance to the bilis. Lieinius stond forth demandiug, at once. all that it had cost his predecessors thelr utmost energy to demani. singiy and at long intervals, from the patricians.

The very comprehensiveness of his mens. ures proved the safeguard of Licinlus. Had he preferred but one of these demands, he would hare been u.heaitatingiy opposed hy the grant majority of the patricians. On the other hand he would have had comparativeiy doubtful sup. port from the piebs." In the end, after a strug. gie of ten years duration, Licinius and Sextius carried their three bills, together with a fourth, brou-tht furward iater, which opened to the piebeians the offles of the duumrirs, who consulted the Sibyline books. "It takes all the subequent history of Rome to measure the conse. quences of the Revolution achleved by Lleinlus and Sextlus; but the Immedlate working of their laws could have been nothing but a disappolntment to their originators and upholiers.
For some ten years the law regarding the consulslip was ohserved, after which it was oceaslonally rlolated, but can still be called a suecess. Tlie laws of relief, as may be supposed of all such sumptuary enactments, were vholated from the first. No general recovery of the publle land from those occupyiug more than tive hundred jugera ever took place. Consequently there was no general division of laud among the lackland class. Conflictling claims and jealousy on the part of the poor mist have done much to enharrass and prevent the execution of the law. Nio system of land snrvey to disthuguish between 'ager publicus’ and 'uger prlwatus existed. Lelnlus Stolo himself was afterwarls convicted of rlolating his own law. The liaw respeeting debts met whin mueh the saue obstacles. The causes of embarrassment and poverty being much the same und undist urbed, soon reproduced the effects whleh no reduction of interest or $\ln$ stallment of prinelpal could effectually remove.

These larrs, then, had ilttle or no effect upon the domain question or the re-distribution of land. They dill not fultil the evident expectatioa of their author ir unithg the plebelians Into one politieal body. Thls was inipossible. What they did do was to break $n \mathrm{p}$ and practically abolish the patrieiate. Henceforth were the Roman people dirided into rieh and poor only."- A. Stephenson, public Lands and Agrariun Lare of the Roman Republic (Johns Hopkine Crine. Studice, 9 th mer., nus. $\boldsymbol{i}-\mathrm{s}$ ).
Also In: T. Monmsen, Hist. of Rome, bk. 2, ch. $\mathbf{3}$ (c. 1).-S. Eliot, The Iiberty of Rome, bk. 2, ch. 7 (r. 1).
B. C. 366.-Institution of the Pratorship. "By the establishment of the preturship) (300 B. C.) the ottice of eliif judye was scparated as a distinet magistracy from the consulshlp.
The prator was always looked upon as the colleague of the consuls. He was eleeted ln the same manner as the cousuls by centuriate comltia, aad, moreover, under the same auspices. He was furnished with the imperiun, had lietors and fasces. He represeuted the consuls in town by assembling the seluate, condueting its proceedinus, executing its deerces. . . . Ep to the time of the first Punic war one pretor only was anaually eleeted. Theu a sceond was added to coninct the jurisdietion between eitizens aud foreigaers. A distintion was now made between the eity pritor (pretor urbanus), who was always lowked upon is laving a higher dignity, and the foreign pretor (prietor puregrinus). On the final establishmut of the two provlaces of Sicily and Sardinia, prohably se2 is. C., two new prators were appointed to superintend the regular government of those provinces, and still later ou two more were added for the two provinces of Spain. The number of annnal pretors now momated to six, atid so it remained mutil the luerislation of sulla." - W. lline, Ifist. of Rome, ki. 6, ch. 5.-Ser, also, Cosscla, lRomas.
B. C. 343-290.-The Samnite Wars.-When the liomans had made themselves dominant in mildle Italy. and the Samiters [ser Samities] in southern Italy, the question which of the two peoples should be masters of the peninsula at large was sure to demand settlement. Aboat the middle of the fourth century, B. C., It began to urge the two rivals into collision, and the next two generatlons of Romans were busled chiefly with Samnite Wars, of which they fought three, with brief latervals to dlvide them, nind at the end of which the Samalte name had leea practically erased from history. The first hos. illtiles grew out of a quarrel between the Simpaltes of the mountains and their degenerate countrymen of Capua and Campanla. The latter sought help from the Romuns, and, accoriliag to the Romans, surrendered their clty to themila order to secure it; but this is obviously untrue. The First Samnite War, which followed this (B. C. 343-341), had no detinlte result, and seems to have been brought to an end rather abruptly by a muthy in the luoman army and by troulle between Rome and her Latin alles. Aceorling to the Roman annals there were three great hattles fought in this war, one on Mount Gaurus, and two elsewhere; but Hommsen and other historians entirely distrust the historic detuils as handed down. The Second or Great Sumaite War occurred after an lnterval of tifteen yairs. during which time the Romans had concuureed all Latinn, reducing their Latin kinsmen from confederates to subjects. That accomplishell, the lkomans were quite ready to measure's words again with their more lmportant rivals in the soutl. The long, desperate and doubtful war which ensued was of twenty-t wo years duration (B. C. $\mathbf{3 2 0 - 3 0 4 ) \text { . In the first gears of thin war }}$ vietory was with the Romans and the Simmites sued for peace; hut the terms offered were tin) hard for them and they fought on. Thert Firs tune smiled on them and gave them an opportunity $w$ Intiet on their haughty euemy un of the greatest humiliations that Rome in all history ever sutuered. The entire Roman army, commanded hy the two consuls of the year, was caught in a mountain detile (B. C. 321), at a place called the Caudine Forks, and conpelled to surrender to the Samnite general, C. Poutius. The consuls and other officers of the Romans signed a treaty of peace with Pontius, and nll were thea set free, after giving up their armor and their cloaks and pnssing "uniler the yoke." But the Rowan senate refused to ratify the treaty, and gave up those who had signed it to thr sumnites. The latter refused to recelve the offered prisoaers and vainly demanded a fultilment of the treaty. Thelr great vietory had been throwa away, and, although they won another important suceess at Lautule, the tinal result of the war which they were foreed to resume watis dis. astrous to them. After twenty-two yeary of obs. stinate fighting they aceepted terus (13. C. 304) which stripped then of all their territory on the sea-const, and required them to acknowledtre the supremacy of Rome. The peace so purclased lasted less than slx years. The samuites were tempted (B. C. 298) while the Romans hati a war with Etruscans and Gauls on their hands, wattempt the aveuging of thelr humiliatlons. Their fate was decided at the battle of sentinum (B. C. 205), won be the old consul, $Q$ Fithins Maximus, against the allied Sauuites and Gauls, through the heroic self-sicritice of his collement. P. Deeius Mas [lmitating his father, of the sine name - see beluw: H. C. צ39-398]. The Sinn nites struggled hopelessly on some five years longer and aubmitted finally $\ln 200 \mathrm{~B}$. C. Their grest leader, Pontlus, was put to death in the dungenss of the state prison under the Caplto-line.-J. Michelet, Hiat. of the Roman Republic, sk. 2, ch. 1.
ALso in: H. G. Liddell, Hist. of Rome, bl. 2. ch. 19, and 21-24. - T. Mommsen, Hist. of Rome, 4k. 2, ch. 6 .
B. C. 340. - The Publilian Laws.-"In the seevad year of the Latln war ( 340 B. C.) the Plebelsn Consul, Q. Puhillius Phllo, belng named Dictator hy his Patriclan colleague for some purpose now unknown, proposed and carried three haws stlll further ahridglng the few remalning privlleges of the Patrielan Lords. The first Publillan law enacted that one of the Censors, as oae of the Consuls, must be a Plebelan. The second gave fuller sanetion to the princlple already establlshed, that the Resolutlons of the Plebelan Assemhly should have the force of law. The third provided that all laws passed at the Comlta of the Centuries or of the Tribes should recelve beforehand the sanctlon of the Curies."H. G. Liddell, IIist. of Rome, bk. 8, eh. $20(b .1)$. - See a dlacusslon of these laws in thelr relation to the precedlng Valerio-Horatlan law, and the subsequent Hortensian laws, below: B. C. 286.
B. C. 339-338.- Suhjugation of the Latins. -Grant of pseudo-citizenshlp. - The real concession of the next century and its effectm. - A lesgue hetween the Romans and thelr klnsmen and nelghbors, the Latlns, of Thur, Preneste, Lanuvlum, Ariela. Velltre, and other towns, as well as with the liernlcans, exlsted during a century and a half, from the treaty of Sp. Casslus, B. C. 493, accordlug to the Roman annals. At first. the memhers of the league stood together on fsiriy equal terms ighting suecessful wars with the Folscians, the Equlans and the Etruseans. But sll the tlme the Romans eontrived to be the greater galners hy the alllance, and as thelr power grew thelr arrogance inereased, untll the Latin allies were denled almost all share in the eonquests and the spolls whileh they helped to win. The dlseontent which this caused fermented to an outhreak after the first of the Bamnlte wars. The Latins demanded to be admilted to Roman citlzenshlp and to a share in the government of the state. Thelr demand was haughtlly and even Insultingly refused, and a fierce, deadly war hetween the kindred peoples ensued (B. C. $339-338)$. The decisive battle of the war was fought under Mount Yesuvlus, and the Romans were said to have owed thelr victory to the selfNarrifice of the plebeian consul, $\mathbf{P}$. Deelus Mus. who, hy a solemn ceremony, devoted hlmself and the srmy of the enemy to the Infernal gods. and then threw himself finto the thlek of the fight, to he slaln. The Latln towns were all reduced to dependence upon Rome, -some with a certsin autonomy left to them, some with none. "Thus, lsolated, polltically powerless, soclally dependent on Rome, the old towns of the Latins. once so proud and so free, became gradually provinelal towns of the Roman territory.
The old Latlum diss ppeared and a new Latlum tauk lts place. whleh, by means of Latlo colonies, carrled the Roman Instltutlons, in the course of two centurles, over the whole penlnsula." IV. Hlue. Ilist. of Rone, bk. 3, ch. (v. 1).-"The listins, being conquered, surrendered,-that is tusily, they gare up to the Romans their cities, their worships, their laws, and thelr lands.

Thelr positton was cruel. A consul sald in the senate that, if they did not wish Rome to be surrounded hy a vast desert, the fate of the Latina should be settled with some regard to clemency. Livy does not elearly explaln what was done. If we are to trust him, the Latlns ohtalned the right of Roman citizenshlp without lneludling in the polltical privileges the riglit of suffrage, or in the clvll the right of marriage. We may also note, that these new eltlzens were not counted In the census. It ls elear that the senate decelved the Latins in glving them the name of Roman cltizens. This title disgulsed a real subjeetion, slince the men who bore it had the ohllgations of citlzens without the rights. So true is thls, that several Latin cliles revolted, in order that thls pretended eltlzenshlp might be withdrawn. A eentury passed, and, wlthout Llvy's notlee of the faet, we mlght easlly dlseover that Rome had ehanged her polley. The condltion of the Latins having the rights of eitizens, without suffrage and without eonnuhlum, no longer existed. Rome had withdrawn from them the title of eitizens, or, rather, had done awsy with this falsehood, and had decided to restore to the different eltles thelr munlelpal governments, their laws, and their magistraeies. But hy a skilful devlee Rome opened a door whleh, narrow as It was, permitted suhjeets to enter the Roman elty. It granted to every Latln who had heen a magistrate ln his natlve elty the right to become a Roman eltizen at the explratlou of his term of ofthee. This thme the gift of thls right was complete and without reserve; suffrage, ms gistracles, ceusus. marrlage, private law, all were ineluded.

By belng a citizen of Rome, a naan gained honor, wealth, and seeurits. The Latlns, therefore, became eager to obtain thls title, and used all sorts of means to aequlre it. Oue day, when Rome wished to appear a little severe, slie found that 12,000 of them had ohtained it through fraud. Ordinarily, llome shut her eyes, knowligg that hy this means her population lnereased, and thist the losses of war were thus repalred. But the Latln elles suffered; their rlehest inhahltants hecame Roman citlzens, and Latium was impoverished. The taxes, from whleh the riehest were exempt as Roman eitizens, beeame more and nore burlensome, and the contingent of soldlers that had to be furnlshed to Rome was every year more ditficult to till up."-N. D. Fustel de Coulanges, The Ancient City, bk. 5, ch. 2.
B. C. 326-304 P-Aholition of personal slavery for deht. See Debt, Roman Law concernino.
B. C. 312.-The censorship of Appius Clau-dius.-His admission of the freedmen to the Trihes.-The huilding of the Appian Way."Applus Claudlus, . . . afterwsrds known as Appins the Bllnd, .. was elected Censor [B. C. 312]. . . and, as was usual, entered, with his eolleague, Plautius Declanus, upon the elarge of tilling the racancles whleh had oceurred within the Senate slnce the last nominatlons to that body by the preeeding Censors. The new eleetlons were always made, it appears, from certaln lists of citizens who had either borne great offices or possessed high rank; but Applus, determlned from the beginning to secure hils authority, elther for hlls own sake or for that of his faetlon, through any support he could command, now tamed several of the lowcst men in Rome as Senstors, amongst whom be even admitted

ROME, B. C. 812. $\begin{gathered}\text { Cenoorship of } \\ \text { Appiwe Clandius. ROME, B. C. 205-101. }\end{gathered}$

some sons of ireedmen, who, an such, were scarcely to be consldered to be absolutely free, much less to be worthy of any polltical advance. ment. The nomination, hacked hy a powerful party, ont of rather than in the Senate, and valnly, If not feehly, opposed hy Plautlus Decianus, who resigned his office in disgust st his colleague, was carried, hut was set aside in the following year by the Consuls, who could call such Senators as they pleased, and those onls, as it seems, to thelr sessions. Appius, stlll keepIng his phaee, was soon after assailed hy some of the Tribunes, now the representatives, as must be remembered, of the moderate party, rather than of the Plebeian estate. At this the Censor admitted all the freedmen In Rome to the Tribes, amongst whieh he distributed them in sueh a manner as promised him the most effeetual support. Appius, however, was not wholly absorbed $\ln$ mere political intrigues. A large portlon of his energy and his ambition was speut upon the Way [Appian Way] and the Aqueduet whleh lave borne his name to our day, and which, in his own time, were undertakings so vast as to ohtain for lim the name of 'the Hun-dred-handed.' He was an author, a jurist, a philosopher, and a poet, besides. . . Caeius Flavlus, the soa of a freedman, one, therefore. of the partisans on whom the Censor and his faction were wiliing to larish pretended favor in retura for unstinted support, was employed by Applus near his person, in the eapacity of private secretary. Appius, who, as alrealy mentioned, was a jurist and an author, appears to have compiled a sort of manual eonecruing the husiness-days of the Culealar and the forms of instituting or eomiuetiag a suit before the eourts; both these subjects being kept in profound concealment from the mass of the people, who were therefore obliged, in ense of any legal procerd. ing, to resort first to the Pontifi to learn on what day, and uext to the Patricina jurist to inquire in what form, they eould lawfully manage their affairs before the judielal tribunils. This manual was very likely given to Flavius to copy; hut it could searcely have heen with the knowledge, mach less with the desire, of his emplover, that it was puhlished. . . . But Flavius stool in a position which tempted him, whether he were generous or designing, to divulge the secrets of the mantal be lud obtained; and it may very well have been from a desire to conciliate the real party of the Pleleians, whieh ranked abore hin, as a freedman, that be published his discoreries. ile did not go unrewarded, hut was raised to various ofthees, amongst them to the tribuneship of the Plebeians, and finuliy to the curule rdileship, in whieh his disclosures are sometimes represented as haviag been maie.

The predominance of the popular party is plainly attested in the same sear hy the eensorship of Fabius Rullianus and Deeius Mus, the two great generals, who, succeeding to Appius Claudius, removed the freedmen he had earolled amongst all the Tribes into four Tribes hy thea-selves."-S. Ellot, The Liberly of Rome: Rome, bk. 2, ch. 8 (r. 2).
B. C. 300. - The Ogulnian Lew,-In the year 300 B. C., "Quintus and Cnelus Oguinlus appear in the tribuneship, as zeaious championq of the popular party agalnst the combination of the highest and the lowest classeg. Insteal, bowever, of making any wild attack upon thelr adversarles, the Tribunes seem to have exerted themselves in the wiser view of detaching the populace from its Patrician leaders, in order to unite the severed forces of the Plebelans upon a common ground.

A hill to inerease the number of the Pontiffs hy four, and that of the Augurs hy five new incumbents, who should then, and, as was prohably added, theaceforward, be ehosen from the Plebelans, was proposed hy the Trihunes.

Though sume strenuous opposition was made to lts passage, it became a law. The highest places of the prlesthood, as well as of the clvil magistraeies, were opened to the Plebelans, whose name wili no longer serve us as lt has done, so entlreiy lave the old distinetlons of their estate from that of the Patrieinns been obliterated. The Ogatril did not follow up the success they had gainel, and the alliance between the lower Plebelasas ad the higher Patrieians was rather cemented thas loosened hy a law professedly devised to the alvantage of the upper classes of the Plebeians." S. Elint, Liberty of Rome : Rome, bl. 2, ch. $\boldsymbol{D}$ (c. 2).
B. C. 295-191, Conquest of the Cisalpiae Gauls.-Early in the $3 d$ century B. C. the Gauls on the southern side of the Alps, being relnforced from Transalpine Gaul, again eutered Roma territory, eneouraged and assisted by the suanites, who were then just eagaging ln their third war with Rome. A Roman legioa whleh first eneountered them In Etruria, under scipio Barhutas, was aanihilated, B. C. 205. But the vengeance of Rome overtook them before that Fear closed, at Sentinum, where the consuls Fabius and Decius ended the war at oae blow. The Gauls were quiet after this for tea years: but in 285 B . C. the Senonian tribes iavaled Etruria agaln and intlicted an alarmiag defeat oa the ILomans at Arretiunı. They also put to dieath some Roman ambassadors who were seat to vegotinte an exchange of prisoners; after which the war of Rome against them was pashed to extermination. The whole raee was destrored or reduced to slavery and Roman colonies were established on its latads. The Boian Gauls, between the Apeunlnes and the Po. now resinted this intrusion on Gallle territory, hut were terribly defeated at the Vadimonin'Lake ani sued for peace. This peace was maintained for narly sixty years, during which time the Romaus were streagthening themseires beyond the Ajcunines. With a strong colony at Ariminum (nusieru IRmini) oa the Adriatie Sea, with thich settlements in the Semonian couatry, and with a great rond-the Vla Flaninia-in process of comstruetion from Itome northwards acruss the Apennines, through Umbria and along the . driatie eonst to Arininum. The Boinns saw that the roke was leeing prepared for thom, and ia 29.5 B . C. they made a great effort to brak it. In the tirst encounter with them the komans were heatea. as in previous wars, but at the great battle of Telamon, fought smin afterwaris, the Gallic hosts were almost to: lly destroyeal The aext year the Boians were c-mpletely subjugated, and in 223 and 222 B . C. the Insuibrians were likewise eonquered, their capital Dlelinlanum (Milaa) oeeupied, and ali north Italy to the Alpa brought under Roman rule, except as the Ligurians in the mountaias were still unable dued and the Cenonsanians asd the Fracti retaiaed a nominal indepeadence as alliee of lonate. But Hannihal's invasion of Italy, occurriag swa after, interrupted the settlement and pacification of the Gallic country and made a reconquest necessary after the war with the Carthaginlans had been ended. The new Roman fortified coiony of Placentia was taken by the Gauis and mont of the inhabitants slain. The slster coiony of Cremnra was besieged, but resisted until re. lieved. Among the battles fought, that of Comum, B. C. 196 , sppears to have been the most limportant. The war was prolonged until 191 B. C., after which th. re appears to have been no more resistance to Roman rule among the Cisalplne Gauls. - W. Ihne, Hist. of Rome, bk. 8, ch. $12-13$; bk. 4. ch. 5 ; bk. 5 , ch. 7.

ROME, B. C. 286.

B. C. 286. - The last Secession of the Piebs.-The Hortensian Laws.-"About the Tear $\mathbf{2 8 6}$ B. C. the mass of the poorer cltizens lof Rome], consisting (as may be guessed) chletly of those who had lately been enfranchised by Appius, ieft the city and encamped in an oakApood upon the Ja. :ulum. To appease thls last Secession, Q. Hortenslus was named Dictator, sad be succeeded In bringing back the people hy sllowing them to enaet several laws upon the spot. One of these Hortenslan laws was probshly an extension of the Agrarian law of Curius, granting not seven hut fourteen jugera (about $\theta$ acres) to each of the poorer citizens. Another provided for the reduetion of debt. But that wheh is best known as the Hortenslan faw was one cnactlng that all Resolutlons of the Tribes should be law for the whoie Roman people. This was nearly in the same terms as the law passed by Falerlus and Horatius at the elosc of the Decemvirate, and that passed by Publilius Philo the Dictator, after the conquest of Latium. Hortcnsius dled in his Dictatorship, - an unparnlleled event, which was considered ominous. Yet with his death ended the last Sccession of the People."-HI. G. Liddeil, Hist. of Rome, bl. 3 , ch. $35(r .1)$ - "It is impossible to suppose that the assembly of the plcbs advanced at a single step from the meetlig of a private corporation to he the delegated alter ego of the soverelgn popu. lus lomanus. We may be sure that the right of the plebs to legislate for the nation was accorded under checks and qualifications, fong before they were invested with this absolute authoritr. We find, in fact, two occasions prior to the Hortensian law, on which the legislative competency of the plcbs is sald to have been reeognised. The first of these is the Valerlo-Horatiau Law of B. C. 449 [see above: B. C. 449], the year after the decemvirate, the second the law of the dletator Publillis Phllo, B. C. 339 [see above: B. C. 340]. [nfortunately the historians describe these laws in words which mercly repcat the contents of the llortensian law. . . . Some motlern writers lave been disposed to get over the diftieulty hy the conjecture that the laws of Publilius Philo and Ilortensius were only re-enactments of that of Valerius and Horatius, and that the full powcrs of the plebs date baek to the ycar B. C. 49. Mommsen's arguments against this vlew appear to me concluslve. Why should the jurlsts universally refer the powers exercised by the plebs to a mere re-enactment, rather than to the original source of their authority ? . Niehuhr belleves that the law of Valerius and Horathus gave the plebs leglslative authority, subjeet to the consent of a sort of upper house, the general assembly of the patrician body; he identi. tes this assembly with the 'comitia curiata.'

Mommsen's method of dealing with the question" is to strike out the Valerio-Horatian faw and that of Publilius Philo from the seriea of enactments relating to the plebs. "He believes that both these laws regulated the pryceedings of the 'comitia populi tributa, and are transferred by a mere blunder of our authorities to the 'concllnm piebis tributum.'. . But the supposition of a possible biunder is too small a foundation on whieh to establlsh sueh an explanation. . . I believe that, for the purpose of showing how the ieglslative power of the plebs may gradually have establlshed itself, the known powers of the soverelgn 'populus," of the magistrates of the Roman people, and of the senate, will supply us with sufficlent material; and that the assumpticns of the German hlstorians are therefore unnecessary. . . . I imagine. ., that the law of Valerius and Hora. this slmply recognised de jure the power which Icllius [see above: B. C. 45b] had exerclsed de faeto: that is to say, it ordered the consul to hring any petlition of tho plchs at once to the notice of the senate, and empowered the tribune to plead hls cause before the senate; perhaps it went further and deprived the consul of his right of arbitrarily refuslag to aceede to the recommendation of the senate, If sueh were given, and directed that he should in sueh ease convene the comitia and submit the proposal to lts vote. If thls restriction of the power of the consui removed the tirst ohstacle in the way of tribualcian bills supported by the vote of the plebs, another faellity still remalned to be given. The consul might be deprived of the opportunity of sheltering himself behind the moral responsluility of the senate. Does it not suggest itself as a plausible eonjecture that the law of Publlius Philo struck out the Interveniug scmatoriai deliberation and compclled the eousui to bring the petlion of the plebs immediately before the 'comltia populi Romanl'? If such were the tenor of the Puhilian law, it would be only a very sllght lnaccuracy to describe it as eonfer. ring legisintive power on the plebs. . . . The Hortenslan law whieh formally transferred the sovereign power to the plebs would thus be a change greater de jure than de facto.... This power, if the thcory put forward in these pages be eorreet, was placed wlthln the reach of the plebeians by the law of Valerius and Horatius, and was fully secured to them hy the law of Publilius Pllllo."-J. L. Straehan-Davldson, The Grouth of Plebetan Pricilege at Rome (English IIistorical Rev. April, 1886).- "With the passing of the Lex Hortcnsia the long struggle between the orders came to an cnd. The ancient patrieian gentes remained, but the exclusive privileges of the patrieiate as a ruling order were gone. For the great othices of state and for seats in the senate the plcbelans were by law equally eligible with patricians. The assemhlies, whether of people or plehs, ware independent of patrician eontroi. In private ilfe lnter-marriages betwecn patricions and plcbelans were recognised as lawful, and entailed no disablities on the ehildren. Finally, great as continued to be the prestige attaehing to patrician birth, and prominent as was the part played In the subsequent history by Individual patrieians and by some of the patrician houses, the piebs were now in numbers and even in wealth the preponderant sectlon of the people. Whatever struggles might arise in by a tilc which a woman flung down upon hi liead. In due time all Magna Gracia succumbed to the dominion of Rome, and the commerce and wealth of Turentum passed over under Roman auspices to the new port of Brundisium, on the Adriatic side of the same promontory. -T . Ar nold, IILt. of Rome, ch. 80-37 (r. 2).

Also iv: W. Ihne, Ifiel. of Rome, $8 k .3$, ch. 14-17.
B. C. 275. - Unlon of Italy under the sow ereignty of the republic. - Difering relations of the subject communities to the sovereige state. - Roman citizenship as variously quali fied. - "For the first time Italy was united into one state under the sovereignty of the liomas community. What political privileges the Roman community on this occasion witidrew from the various other Italian communities and took into its own sole keeping, or in other words, what conception of political power is to be assoclated with this sovereignty of Roue, we are nowhere expreasly informed.

The oniy privileges that demonstrably belonged to it were the right of making war, of concluding trea:. s, and of coining money. No Italian community could declare war against any foreign state, or even negotiate with it, or coin money for circula tion. On the other hand, every war and every state treaty resolved upon by the Ifunan people were hinding in law ou ali the other ltalian com. munities, and the silver money of lionse was legaily current throughout ail Italy. It is probable that formerl; $;$ the general rights of the lealing community extended no further. But to these rights there wus necessurly attached a prerogative of sovereignty that practicully went far beyond them. The relations, which the Italians sustained to the leading conmunity, exhibited in detall great inequalities. Ia this point of view, in aldition to the full hurgesses of lRome, there were three different clisses of aubjects to be distingulshed. The full franchise itself, in the first place, was extentied us far as was possible, without wholly ahandoning the litea of an urban commonwealth in the case of the Roman commune. Not only was the olf burgens-domain extended hy individual assignatiou far into Etruria on the oue land and luto Campunia on the other, but, after the cxample was tirst set in the case of Tusculum, a great number of communi. tics more or less remote werc gradially incorporated with the Roman stutc and morged in it completely. $\qquad$ Accordiugly the IRoman bur-gess-boris prohahly exteuded northwaril as far as the neighhourhood of Caere, castwari to the Apcninines, and southward as far as, or beyoai, Formiac. Iu its case, however, we canuot use the terin 'boundaries' in a strict sense. Isolated communities within this region, such as Tibur, Praeueste, Signia, and Norba, had not the Roman franchise; others beyond its bounds, such as Sena, possessed it; and it is probubte that families of loman farmers were alrmaty dispersed throughout all Italy, either altogether iso lated or associated in villages. Among the subfect communitiea the most privileged and most important class was that of the Latiu towns, which now enbraced hut few of the original participants in the Allun festival (and these, With the exception of Tihur and I'raemeste, aitogether insigntdeant communitios), hat on the other hand olitained accessions equally numer ous and important in the autonomous communi-

Hes founded by Rome in and even beyond Italy - the Latin colonies, as they were calied - and was siway increasing in consequence of aew settlemeate of the same nature. These new urban communities of Roman origin, but with Latin fobts, became more and more the real buttresses of the Roman ruie. These Latlns, however, were by no means those with whom the battles of the lake Regilius and Trifanum had been fonght. . . The Latlas of the later times of the republic, on the contrary, eonslsted aimost exclusively of communltles, which from the beglaning hith honoured Rome as their capital and parent city; which, settled amidst peoples of alien language and of alien hahlts, were attached to Rome hy community of langurge, of law, and of manners; whlch, as the petty tyrants of the surrounding districts, were obliged doubtiess to lear on lRome for thelr very exlstence, ilke advaaced posts leaning upon the maln army. The main advantage enjoyed by them, as compared with other subjects, conslsted in their equalizuthon wlth burgesses of the Whinan community so far as regarded privatc rights - those of trafic and bartrr as weli as those of inheritaace. The Roman franclise was in futire conferred only on such clitizens of these tow hadips as lad tilled a publle masistracy $\ln$ them: $\ln$ that case. lowerer, it was, apparently from the first, couferred withont nny linitation of rights.

The two other ciasses of Roman subjects, the subject Roman burgesses and the non-Latln allied communitles, were In a fur inferior posltion. The comnunities having the Roman franchise without the privilege of electlng or belag electell (civitas sine suffraglo), approached nearer in furm to the full Roman burgesses than the Latin communitics that were legaily autononous. Their members were, ws Roman burgesces. liable to all the burdens of citlzenshlp, especially to the levy and tayation, and were subject to the Roman censi:s; whereas, as their sery designatlon indicates, they had no claim to its hoanrary rlglits. They iived under Roman laws. and had justlce administered by Romnn judges: but the hardshlp was lessened by the fact that their former common law was, after undergoing revision by Rome, restored to them as Roma local iaw, and n 'deputy' (prnefeetus) anaually nominated by the Roman praetor was seat to them to conduct its adininistratioa. In other respects thesc communlties retained their own aiministration, and chose for that purpose their own chief magatrates. . . Lastly, the relations of the non-Latin alled communities were suljpect, as a matter of cours . to very rarious rucs, just as each particular treaty of alliauce bat defined them. Maay of these perpetuai treaties of alliance, such as that with the IIerni. can cummunlties and those with Neapolis, Noia, and iferaclea, granted rights comparatively comprehensive, while others, such as the Tarentine and suanite treatles, probably approximated to dempotsm. . . . The ceatral adninlstration at Rome shlied the difficult probien of preserving its supervision and control over the mass of the Italian communities jiabie to furnlsh coatingents, partly by means of the four Italian quaestors, partlyby the extension of the Roman censorship over the whole of the dependent communities. The ynatstors of the fleet, aloug with their more imberlinte duty, had to raise the reveaues from the uewly acoulred domains und to control the contingenta $u$ the new allies; they were the firnt Roman funct!onarie to whom a residence and district out of Rome were sengned by lew, and they formed the necescary Intermedinto suthority between the Roman cenate and the Italian communities. . . Lastly, with this military administrative union of the whole peoples dwelilog to the wouth of the Apennines, as far as ine Iapygian promontory and the atralts of Theclum, was connected the rise of a new name common to them ail - that of 'the men of the loga' (togati), which was thelr oldest deslgnatic $n$ in Roman state law, or that of the 'Italians,' which vese the appeilation originaily in use among the licelas and thence became unlversaily current.

As the Galife territory down to a late period stood contrasted in liw with the Itallan, so the 'men of the toga' wure thus named in con. trast to the Ceitic 'men of the hose' (braccati); and it is probable that the repelifiag of the Celtio invasions played an important diplcmatic part as a reason or pretext for centrsiziug the military resources of Italy in the hands of the Romans.

The aame Italia, which origlnally and even in the Greek authors of the 5th century - in Aristotie for instance - pertained only to the modern Calabria, was transferred to the whole land of these wearers of the toga. The enrllest boundaries of 1 ! great armed coafedency led by Rome, or of tl cw Italy, reached on the western coast as far , the district of Leghorn south of the Arnus, on the enst as far as the Aesls 1. In of Ancona. . . . The new Italy had thus become a political unity; it was also ln the eourve of becoming a natlonai unlty."- I. Mommsen, IIist. of Ilome, bk. 2, ch. 7 (v. 1).
B. C. 264-248. The first Punic War.-Conquest of Sicily:-"The tea years preeeding the First Punic War were probably a time of the greatest physlcal prosperity which the muss of the Roman peopie ever knew. Wlthin twenty years two agrarian iaws had been passed on a most extensive scale, and the poorer citizens had received besides what may be ealled a large dividend in money out of the iands which the state had conquered. In addition to thls, the farming of the state domalns, or of their produce, furnished those who had money with abundant opporturities of profitable adventure.

م wonder, then, that war was at this time popular.

But our 'pleasaat vices' are ever made instruments to scourge us; and the First Punio War, into which the Roman people forced the senate to enter, not oaly la its long course bote most heavily upon the poorer citizens, but, trom the feelings of enmity which it excited in the breast of Hamllear, led most surely to that fearfui visitation of Hannlbal's sixteen years' inva. sion of Italy which destroyed for ever, not Indeed the pride of the Roman dominion, but the well-belag of the Romen neople."-'I, Arnold, II. i. of Rume, pp. $538-540^{\circ}$. "The occasion of ade First Punic War was dis ionourable to Rome. Certaln mercenary soldiers had seized Messaan in Sicily, destroyed the cltizeus, and held poossesslon against the Syracusans, 284 B . C. They were beatea in the field, and biockader is Messuna by Hlero, king of Syrncues, and thed. driven to extremity, sent a deputation to Rome, praying that 'the Romans, the soverelgns of Italy, would nut sulfer an Itallan pcople to be destroyed by Greeks and Carthaginians,' 264 B. C. It was singu'ar that such a request should be made to tho Romans, who only six years befor: had chastised the military nevoit of their hrets.ren Mamertine: if. Rhegium, taking the city hy torm, acourging and beheading the defenders, and then restoring the old inhahitants (2*UB. C.). The senate was opposed to the request of the Mesana deputation; hut the consuls and the peopie of Rome, aiready jeaious of Certhaginian infuence in Slcily and the Medlterranean, resolved to protect the Mamertine huccaneers and to receive them as their iriends and ailles. Thus dishonestiy and disgracefuily $d$ the Romal. depart 1 rm their pureiy ltallan and continentai policy, which had so weli succueded, to enter upon another system, the results of which no ode then couid foresee. Some excuse may be found in the fact that the Carthaginlans had been placed hy their partisans in Messana in possession of the citadei, and this great rival power of Carthage was thus hrought unpleasantly near to the recent conquered territory oi Rome. The fear of Carthaginian influeuce overcame the natural reluctance to an ailiance with tialors fillse to their military oath, the murderats and piunderers of a city which they were bound to protect. Thus began the First Punic War, Whlch lasted, without intermission, 22 years, a longer space of time than the whoie period occu. pted hy the wars of the "'rench levoiution." In this war Duiiius won the first navai hattie near Iyiae (Meiarro). Regulus in vaded Africa proper, the territory of Carthage, with great success, until beaten and taken prisoner at Zama. 250255 B. C. The war was carried on in Sicily and on the sea until 241 B. C., when peace was made on conditions that the Carthaginians should evacuate Slily and make no war upon Hiero. king of Sicily (the ally of the Romans), that they should pay 3,200 Euboic talents (about $£ 110,000)$ within ten years, 41 B . C. The fffects of an exiausting war were soon ovelcome hy anclent nations, so that both Rome and Carthage rupidly recovered, 'because wars in those days were not malntaincd at the expense of posterity.' Kome liad to check the Hlyrian pirates and to complete the conquest of Cisa!pinc Gaul and the Ligurians 238-221 B. C. Meanwhlle the Carthaginians, hampered by a three years relellion of its mercenary troops, quletiy permitted the Romans to take possession of Corsica and Sardinla, and agreed to pay 1,200 talents as coinpensation to Roman merchants. On the other hand, measures were in process to re-establish the Carthaginian power; the patriotic party, the Barcine family, under Hamilcar, commenced the carrying out of the extensions and consolidatlons of the territories in Spain. "-IV. B. Boyce, Introd. to the Study of Ifist., period 4, sect. 4.

Also in: Polyblus, fistoria, bk. 1.-R. B. Smith, Carthage, ch. 4-- A. J. Church, The Slory of Cirthage, pt. 4, c.4. 1-3.-See, also, Punic War, The Finst.
B. C. 218-211,-The Second Punic War; Hannibal in ltaly,-Canna.-"Twenty-three Frers passed between the end of the first Punle War and the beginning of the second. But in the meanwhile the Romans got possession, rather unfairly, of the islands of Sardlnia and Corsica, which Carthage had kept by the peace. On the other hand a Carthaginian dominion was growing up in Spain under IIamilcar Barkas, one of the greatest men that Carthage ever reared, his son-in-law Ifasdrubal, and his mon Hannibai, the greateat man of all, and probably the greateat generai that the world ever sab Another quar. ril arose between Carthage and llome, whea Hannibal took the Spanish town of Niguntum, which the Romans clamed as an aity. Wiar began in 218 , and Hannibal carrieri it on hy invariing Italy hy land. This was one of the nust famous cnterprises in all his ory. Never was Rome so near destruction as in the war with Hannlbal. He crossed the Alps and defeated the Romans in four battles, the greatest of whlch was that of Cannae in B. C. 210."-E. A. Frie. man, Outlines of Mist. (or Gen'l sketeh of i. ropean Iliot., ch. 3.-"The first , attie was fought (218) on the siver Ticinus, whleh runs into the Padus from the north. The Romas were driven hack, and Hannihai passed the Padus. Mearswile another Roman army had come up, and its generai, the consul, Tiberius Sempronius Longus, wanted to tight at once. The little rieer of the Trehbia iay between the two armies, and on a coid morning the lioman ginerai marched bis soidiers through the water agalnst Hannilaal. The Romans were entlrely lieaten, aud driven out of Gaul. All northera ltaly had thus passed under Ilannibal's power, and its people were his frieads; so next year, 217, Ilannibal went into Etruria, and marched south towards Home itseif, plundering as be went. The Rnman consul, Calus Flaminhas Nepos, went '" meet him, and a battle was fought on the shores of the Lahe Trushinenus. It was a misty day, and the Romans, who were marching after Hannibal, were surrounded by him and taken by surprise: they were outirely beaten, and the consui was kille: in hattle. Then the lomans were in grpac distress, and elected a dictator, Quintus Fabius Diavimess. He saw that it was no use to fight hattles with Hannibal, so he followed him about, and wateled him. and did ittle things against hin when he could: so he was calledi 'Cunctator,' or 'the Deiayer. But, although this plan of waiting was very useful, the Romans did not iike it, for Hannibal was ieft to plunder as he thought fit, and there was aiways danger that the other ltalians wouli join lim against Rome. So nest year, 216, the lfomans made a great attempt to get rid of him. They sent both the consuls with an army twae as iarge as Haunibuls, but again they were defcated at Cannie. They lost 70,060 men, while IIanaibal only lost 6,(HO: wll thelr best soldiers were killed, and it sermed as though they had no hope left. But nations are not conquered only by the los of battles. Han. nibul hoped, after the battle of Canuw that the Italians would ail come to his side, and leave Rome. Some did so, hut all the Latin cities, and ail the Roman colonies held by Rome. So long as this was the case, Rome was not yet conquered. llannlbal couid win battles very quickiy, but it would take hlm a loug time to beslege ali the cities that stlil heid to liome, and for that he must lave a larger army. 13nt he could not get more soidiers, - the Komas hsd sent an army into Spain, and Harnilmi's brother, Hasdrubal, was husy fighting the liomans there, and couid not send any troops to laly. The Carthaginians aiso would not send any, for they were becoming afraid of Hannihal, and they did not know anything about lialy. So they an. swered his letters, asking for more men, by saying, that if he hud won such great battles, he ought not to want any more troops. At Cannw, then, Hannlbal had strick hls greatent hiow : he couid do no more. The Romans had learned to wilt, and be careful: so they fought no more gieat battles, but every year they grew stronger and Hannibal grew weaker. The chief town that Lud gone over to Hannlbai's alde was Capua, but in 211 the Romans took it agaln, and Hannibal wai not strong enough to prevent them. The chlef men of Capua were so afraid of falling into the hands of the Romans that they ail poisoned themseives. After this ail the Itallan cities that ball joined Ifanibal began to leave himagaln." -11. Creighton, Hist. of Rome, ch. 3.

Also in: T. A. Dolge, Hannibal, ch. 11-39. T. Arnoid, Hist. of Rome, ch. 43-47.-Sce, also, Penic War, The Second.
B. C. $314-14^{6 .}$ - The Macedonian Wirs.Conquest of Greece. See Ghelce: B. C. 214146; also 280-146.
B. C. 211.-The Second Punic Viar: Hannibal at the gates.-In the eightly year of the Secuud Punle War (B. C. 2l1), when fortune had begun to desert the arms of Ilannibai - when Capua, his aliy and mainstay in Italy was under slege by the Romans and he was powerless to relieve the doomed enators and citlzens - the Carthaginian commander made a sudden march upon flome. He moved hls army to the gates of his great enemy, "not with any hope of taking the city, but with the hope that the Romans, panie-stricken at the realization of a fear they had felt for tive jears past, wouid summon the consuls from the wails of Capua. But the coul heat of Fahius, who was in Rome, guesseti the meaning of that mancuvre, and would only per. mit one of the consuls, Flaceus, to be reealied. Thus the leaguer of the rebolelty was not hroken. llamibai failed in hls pupose, but he left an lndelible lmpression of his tertihie presence upon tbe Roman mind. Looning through a mist of rumantle fable, uncorquer is pitiless, he vis wetually seen touching tine walls of Fr me, lua . int with his own hand a spear into the sacred fomorrium. He had marched aiong the Vla fatina, driving erowds of fugltlves before him, who souglt refuge $\ln$ the ity. . . . Ile had tixed his camp on the Anlo, within three mlles of the Esquiline. To realize the state of feeling in leme during those days of panlc would be to get at the very heart of the Ilannihalie war. The scaate left the Curia and sat in the Fornm, to reassure, by thelr calm composure, the exclted crowds. Fabius notlced from the battlements that the ravagers spared his property. It wha a cunning attempt on the part cf Ilannihal to bring suspicion on hlm; but he forthwith offered the property for sale; and such was the effect of his tiuiet confidence that the market price ereid if the land on whlch the camp of the enemy was Irww never fell an 'as.' . . . Hanulbal marched away lnto the Sablne country, and made his way hack to Tarentum. Rome unsacked, Capun un-relieved."-12. F. Horton, IIist. of the Romans, ch. 12.

Also ns: T. Armold, Hist. of Rome, ch. 44.T. A. Dodge, Ilannibnl, ch 34.
B. C. 215-202.-The Second Punic War: Defeat of Hasdrubal at the Metaurus. - The war in Africa.- The end at Zama.-Acquisition of Spain-"The conquest of Capua was the turning point in the war. Hannibal lost his stronghold in Cam is and was ohliged to retire to the southern part of Italy. Rome was galning everywhere. The Itailant who had jolned Ila_nioal began to tows confidence. Salapia and many towns in Samnlum Fere betrayed to the Romans. Hut when Fuirlus, the proconsul who commanded ln Apuila, appeared before Herdonen, whlch he hoped to galn poemession of hy troachery, Haunihai marched from Bruttlun, attacked the Roman army, and galned a briiliant victory. In the foilowing year the Komans recovered several piaces ln Lucanis and Bruttlum, and Fabius Maximus crowned his long military career wlth the recapture of Tarentum (I. C. 200). The lnhnbltants were soid as slaves; the town was plundered and the works of art were sut to flome. The nex: year Dharcelius, for the fifth the eiceted to the consulship, w: ; surprised aear Venusla ard killed.

Thr, war had lasted ten years, yet lis favorahie conclusion seenced far off. There were increusing symptoms of discontent among the ailles, while the news from Spaln ieft llttie douht that the long prepared expedition of Hasdrubai over .he Alps to foin lils brother in Itaiy was at fast 10 be realized. IRome strained every nerve to miet the impending danger. The nuniber of legi, is was increased fiom twenty-one to twentythree. The preparatlons were lncomplete, when the news came that Ilasdrubal was crossing the Aips by the same ronte whlch hls brother had taken eleven years before. The consuls for the new year were M. Llvlus Salinator and G. Ciaudius Sero. Hannibal, at the beglanlng of spring, after reorganlzhg his force in Bruttlum, ad. vanced northward, eneountered the eonsui Nero at f:unentum, whence, after a hoody hut lndecisive battle, he continued his march to Canusinm. Here he waited for news from hls brother. The expected despatch was intercepted by Nero, who formed the bold resolutlon of joining hls coileague in the north, nad wlth their united arnles crushing Ilasirubal whilc Ilannibal was waiting for the exper -d despatch. Hasdrubal had appointed a rend zoous with his brother iu Umbria, whence with their united arnules they were both to advance on Narnla and Rome. Nern, selecting from hls army 7,000 of the hest soldiers and 1,000 cavairy, left his ceinp so quietly that Hanuihai knew nothlng of ills departure. Near Sena he found bis colirague Livius, and in the nigbt entered his eamp that his nrrival mlght not be known to the Cal:haginians. Hasdruhal, when he heard the trum; et sound twice from the Konan camp and saw the inereased nuinbers, was no longer ignorant that both eonsuls were ln front of him. Thinklng that hls hrother had been lefcated, he resolved to retire across the Metaurus and wait for accurate Information. Missing hls way, wanderlng up and down the river to find a ford, pursued and attacked by the Romans, he was compelled to accept hattic. Aithough in an unfavorable posltlon, a deep river in his rear, his troops cxhausted by marching ali nlght, still the vletory long hung in sispense. Hastrubal displayed all the qualities of g great general, and when he saw that all was lost, he plunged Into the thickest of the battle and was siain. The consul returned to A pulia with the same rapidity with whlch he had come. He announced to Hannlbal the defeat and death of his brother by casting Hasdrubal's head within the out posts nnd hy sending two Carthaginlan captives to give him an sceount of the diseatrous battle. I foresee the doom of Carthage,' asald Hannibal andly, when he recognized the bloody head of hit brother. This battle decided the war In Italy. Hannlbal wlthdrew his garricons from the town In southern Italy, retired to the penlamula of Bruttium, where for four long years, In that Flld and mountalnoun country, with unsbated courage and astounding tenacity, the dying lion clung to the land that had been so long the theatre of hls glory. . . The time had come to carry Into execution that expedition to Africa which Sempronius had attempted in the beginning of the war. Publius Sciplo, on his return from Spain, offered himelf for the consulshlp and was unanlmously elected. His design was to carry the war into Africa and ln thle way compel Carthage to recall Hannibal. . . . Tho ecnate inally consented that he stiould crose from his provlare & Siclly to Africa, but they roted no sdequate means for such an expedition. Scipio called for volunteers. The whole of the year B. C. 205 passed away before he compieted his preparations. Meanwhile the Carthaginians made one last effort to help Hannibal. Mago, Hannlbal's youngest brother, was sent to Liguris with 14,000 men to rouse the Ligurians and Gauls to renew the war on Rome; but having met a Roman army under Quintllius Varus, and being wounded in the engagement which followed, his movements were so crippled that nothing of importsince was accomplished. In the spring of B. C. 204 Scipio had completed his preparatlons. He embarked his army from Lily berum, and after three days landed at the Fair Promontory near Utica. After laying siege to Utica all summer, he was compelled to fall back snd entrench himself on the promontory. Maslnlsss had joined him lmmedlately on his ar. rival. By his advlee Scipio plonned a night at tack on Hasdrubal, the son of Gisgo, and Syphsx, who were encamped near Utica. This enterprise was completely successful. A short time afterwards Hasiruhal and Syphax were again defeated. Syphar fled to Numldis, where he was followed by Leelius and Masinlssa and compeiled to surreader. These successes convinced the Csrthaginians that with the existing forces the Roman lnvasion could not long be resisted. Therefore they opened negotistions for peace with Scipio, in order probably to gain time to recall their generals from Italy. The desire of Sclpio to bring the war to a concluslon lnduced him to agree upon preliminarles of pesce, subject to the approval of the Roman senate and people. . . . Mesnwhlie the arrival of Hannibal at Hudrumetum had so cncouraged the Carthsginians that the armistice had been broken before the return of the ambassadors from Rome. All hopes of peaee by negotiation vanished, and Scipio prepared to renew the war, which, since the arrival of Hannibal, had assumed a nore serlous character. The detalls of the operations which ended in the battle of Zsma are but 1 m perfectly knowu. The decisive battle was fought on the river Bagradas, near Zama, on the 19th of October, B. C. 202. Hannibal managed the battle with his usual skill. IIis veterans fought like the men who had so often conquered in Italy, but his army was annihilated. The elephants were rendered unaralling by sciplues skillful management. Instead of the three lines of battle, with the usual Intervals, Scipio ar.

ROME, B. C. 184-149.

ringed his companies behind each other like the rounds of a ladder. Through thewo openliggs the elephants could paes without breaking the line. Thls battle terminated the long, atruggle. Hannibal himeelf advleed peace."-R. F. Leigh ton, Hiof. of Rome, ex. 25-24. - 'Sciplo preperel as though ho would besiege the $\cdot v$, huthis heart aleo laclined to peace. The terms whlch he offered were severe en onered were severe enough, and had the Carths. ginians only reallsed what they involved, they would surely have asked to be alloweri to mr their fate at once. They were to retain indeed thelr own la we and thelr home domain in Africa; but they were to give up all the deserters and prisoners of war, all thelr elephants, and ail their ships of the line but ten. They were not to wage war, either in Africa or outside of it, without the anction of the Ioman senate. They Wers to recognalse Masslnisaa as the king of Numldis, ari, with it. the prescriptive right wilich he woull enfoy of plundering anil angoy. Ing them at his pleasure, whlle they looked on With their hands tied, not daring to make reprisals. Finaliy, they were to give up all ciaim to the rich islands of the Mediterranean andi to the Spanish kingdom, the creation of the Barcides, of which the fortune of war had already robbed them; and thus shorn of the sources of their weslth, they were to pay within a given term of seven jears a crushing war contributioni IIenceforward, in fact, they would $\epsilon$ =lst on sufferance oniy, and ihat the sufferance of the Romans.
The conclision of the peace was celebrated at Carthage by a cruel sight, the most cruel which the citizens could have beheld, except th. destruction of the city itself - the destruction of thelr fleet. Flvo hundred vessels, the pride and glory of the Phoulcian race, the symbol and the veal of the commerce, the colonisation, and the conquests of chls most imperial of Phericiaa cities, were towed out of the harbour and were dellberatcly burned in the sight of the citizens." -R. B. Smith, Rome and Corthage: the ${ }^{\text {unnio}}$ Wars, ch. 17.
Azso IN: H. G. Liddell, Hist. of Nome, ch. 31-34.-See, also, Penic War: The Secona.
B. C. 2d Centars.-Greek infuences. Sce IIELLENic ornits and influence.
B. C. 191,-War with Antiochus the Great of Syria.- Firat conquests in Asia Minor heatowed on the king of Pergamum and the K: public of Rhodes. See Selevcide: B, C. $20 t$ 187.
B. C. 189-139.-Warn with the Luaitanians. See Portoal. Earliy history; snd Lesitania.
B. C. 184-149.-The Spoils of Conquest and the Corruption they wrought. -"The victories of the last insif-ccatury seemed to promlsc ease and wealth to IRome. She was to live on the spoils and revenue from the conquered countrics. Not only did they pay a tixed tax to her exchequer, but the rich lands of Capus, the royal domaia lands of the kings of Syracuse and of Maccdonia, became public property, and produced a large snnual rent. It was found posslble ia 167 to relleve cltlzens from the property tax or tributum, which was not collected again until the yesr after the death of Iullus Caesar. But the sudden influx of wealth had the usual effect of raislng the standard of expense; and new tastea and desircs required increased means for their gratification. All manner of luxuries were indIng their way into the clty from the East. Splendid furalture, contly ornaments, wanton dancen and musle for thelr banqueta, became the fachlon mong the Roman nohles; and the younger men went to lengthe of dobauchery and extravarance hltherto unknown. The renult to many was finsuclal omberracment, from whlch rellot was sought In malvernation and extortlon. The old stanilard of honour in regard to public money was distlactly lowered, and cases of mlaconduce and oppreselon were becoming more common and less reprobated.

The fashlonahle taste for Greul works of art, In the adormment of privato houses, was snother Incentlve to plunder, and in 149 it was for the firt tlme found necessary to estahlish a permanent court of 'quaestlo' for cases of msiversation In the provinces. Attempls were indeed mado to restraln the extravagance whlch was at the root of the evll. In 184 Cato, as censor, hal lmposed a tax on the sale of slaves under twenty above a certaln price, and on per. conal ornaments sbove a certaln value; and though the 'lex Oppla.' llmiting the amount of women's jewelry, had been repealed In aplte of hlm $\ln 195$, other sumptuary lawe were passed. $A$ 'lex Orchla' In 189 Ilmited the number of guesta, a 'lex Fannia' $\ln 161$ the amount to be spent on linquets; whlle s 'lex Didla' In 143 extended the operation of the law to sll Italy. And though such laws, even If enforced, could not really remedy the cvll, they perhaps had a certain effect $\ln$ prorluclng a sentlment; for long afterwurds we tind overcrowded dinnera regarded as Indecorous and vulgar. Another cause, belleved hy some to bo unfavourahly affecting Roman eharacter, was the growing lnfluence of Greek culture and Greek teachers. For many yesrs the educatlon of the young. once regsarled as the speelal husiness of the parents, had heen passing lnto the hands of Greek slaves or freedmen. . . . On the superlority of Greek culture there was a dlvislon of opinlon. The Sclplos sud their party patronlsed Greek phllosophy a d literature. Thls tendency, whlch went fur beyond a mere questlon of llterary taste, was opposed hy a party of whieh M. Porclus Cato was the most strlking member. In Cato's vlew the riform needed was a return to the old ways, before Rome was Infected hy Greece."-E. S. Shuckhurgh. Hist. of Rome to the Battle of Actium, ch. 32.
B. C. 159-133.-Decline of the Republlc.Social and economlc causes. - The growlnk yytern of Slavery and lts effects.-Monopoly of land by capitalista.-Entinction of small cultivators.-Rapid decrease of citizens.-" In the luone of this epoch the two evils of a degenerate ollgarchy and a democrscy not jet developed but already cankered In the bud were Interworea in a manner pregasint wlth fatal results. According to thelr party names, whleli were tirst heard during thls period, the 'Optlmatcs ' wlshed to glve effect to the will of the best, the Populares' to that of the communlty; hut $\ln$ fact there was in the Rome of that day nelther a true aristocracy nor a truly self-determining community. Both partles contearled allke for shadows. ... Both were equally sffected hy political corruptlon, snc both were ln fact equally worthless. . . The commonwealth was politicilly and morally more and more unhinged, gnd was verglng towards lts total dissolution, The crisls wlith which the Roman revolutlon was opened arose not out of this paltry political con-

Ilct, but out of the economic and social relationa whlch the lloman governament allowed, Hze everythlag else, simply to "Ike their cource": and which had brought sbout " the depreciation of the Italian farme; the supplantins of the petty husbandry, first In a part of the provinces and then in Italy, by the farming of large en. tates; the prevailing tendeacy to devote the latter in Itily to the rearing of cattle and the culture of the ollve and vine; inally, the replac. ing of the free labourers in the provinces in In Italy by alarcs. . Before we attempt to dcscribe the course of thls second great conflct between labour and capleal, it is necenary to give bere some ladlcatlon of the nature and exteat o? the system of slavery. We have not now to do wlth the old, in come meanure lnnocent, rural alavery, under whlch the farmer elther thled the field along with hle slave, or, if he possessed more land than be could manage. placed the save $\qquad$ over a detnched farm.
What wo now refer to is the syatem of slavery on a great scale, whlcli In the Homan tate, as formerly In the Carthaglnlan, grew out of the ascendancy of capltal. Whlle the captlven taken in war and the hereditary transmisslon of slavery sufficed to keep up the stock of slares during the earller period, thls system of slarery was. Just Ilke that of Ameriea, based on the methodlcally prosecuted huntlig of man.

No country where thls specles of game could be buuted remalned exempt from vialtathon; even ln Ituly it was a thlng by no means unlieard of, that the poor free man was placed by hls cmployer among the slaves. But the Negroland of that perion was westem Asla, where the Cretan and Clllclan corsalrs, the real professlonal slave-hunters and slave-dealers, robbed the coasts of Ayrla and the Greek lslands; and where, emulating thelr feats, the Roman revenue-farmers instlituterl human hinta In the cllent states and Incorponited those whom they captured among thelr slaves. . . . At the great slave market in Delos, where the slave-dealera of Asla Illnor dlaposed of thelr wa. ss to Itallan speculators, on one day as many as 10,000 alaves are said to have been dlsembarked ln the morning and to have been all sold before evening.
In whatever directlon speculation applled itself, Its Instrunent was invariahly man reduced ln the eye of the law to $a$ brutc. Trades were In great part earrled on hy slaves, so that the proceeds belonged to the master. The levylng of the publlc revenues in the lower departments was regularly condueted by the slaves of the assocla. tlons that leased them. Servlle hands performed the operstlons of minling, making plteh, and others of a similar klnd; it became early the custom to send herds of slaves to the Spanlsh mines.

The tendling of cattle was inlversally performed by slaves. .. But far worse ln every respect was the plantatlon system proper - the cultlvation of the fields by a hand of slaves not unfrequently branded with lron, who with shackles on thelr legs performed the labours of the feld under overseers during the day, and were locked up together by nlght ln th. conmon, irequently subterrsnean, labourers' prison. Thls plantatlon system had mlgrated from the East to Carthage, $\qquad$ and seems to hare been brought by the Carthaginians to Slclly.

The ahyas of misery and woe whlch opens before our eyes in this most misersble of all proletariates, we leave $t$ ) be fathomed by thowe who venture to gaze into such deptha if is very poastble that, compared with the unferings of the Roman claves, the sum of all Negro suffering is but a drop. Nere we are not so much cacerned with the ulotrens of the olaves themselves as wlth the perlls whlch It hrought upon the Rioman atate mee Slaye Ware in Sicily and Italy] The capltallsts continued to buy out the small lanibolders, or Inileeil. If they remained ohstinute, to ecize thelr fleldn without itle of pur. chare. . . The lanilords continued malnly to employ slaves Insteme of free labourers, because the former could nit like the latter be called away to military eervlee; and thus reduced the free proletariate to the same level of minery with the slaves. They continued to supersede fiallan fraln In the market of the capital, and to lesenn its valne over the whole pernlnsula, hy eelling Slclilan slave-corn at a mere nomiual price. After 005 [13. C. 150], . . . When the census ylelded 328,000 cltizens capahle of learing arms. there appears a rigular falling off, for the list in 600 (B. C. 154] sicril at 824,000, that In 607 [B. C. 147] at 892,000, that $\ln 628$ [B. C. 181] at 819,000 burgewes ft for arvice - an alarming result for a perionl of profound peace at home and abroad. If matters were to go on at thls rate, the burgess-body would resolve itself Into planters and slaves; and the Roman state unight nt length, as was the case with the Parthlans, purchase lts soldiers in the slave-market. Such was the external and lnternal conditlon of Rome, when the state entered on the 7th century of lts existence. Wherever the cye turned, it encountered ahuses and decay; the question could not but force itself on every sagacious and well dlsposed man, whether this state of thlngs were not capable of reniedy or amendnent. "-T. Momm. sen, Hint. of Rume.bl. 4, ch. 2 (c. 8).

Alwo in: T. Arnold, Ifint. of the Iman Commontrealth, ch. 2.-G. Long, Decline of the Noman Republic, r. 1, eh. 10-12.-W. IR. Jrownlow, Sanery and Serfilom in Eiurope, lect. I-q.
B. C. 151-146. - The Third Puaic War: Destructlon of Carthage.-"Carthage, bound hand and foot by the treaty of 301 B. C., was placed under the jealous watch of the loynl priace of Numidla, who himself willingly acknowledged the suzerainty of liome. But it was fint ossible for thls arrangement to be per. manent. Livery symptom of reviving prosperity at Carthage was regarled at lRome with feverish nnxlety, and nelther the cxpulsion of Hannibal In 185 B. C. nor hls death in 183 B. C. dha much to check the growing conviction that llome would never le secure whlle her rival cxisted. It was therefore with grim satlsfactlon that many in the lioman senate watchel the lacreaslag Irritation of the Carthaglnians under the harassing raids and cncroachments of thelr favoured nelghbour, Yasinlssa, and walted for the momert when Curthage should, by some hreach of the conditions Imposed upon her, supply Rome with a pretext for interference. At last in 151 B. C. came the news that Carthage, In defance of treaty obligatlons, was actually at war with Maslnissa. The anti-Carthaglnian party ln the senate, headel hy M. Porclus Cato, cagerly selzed the opportunlty; in splte of the protesta of Sclpio Nasica and others, War wis declared, and nothlng short of the desiruction of their city itaelf was demanded from the ue'palr.

Ing Cartherlaiang. This deriond, sa the mante no doubt, loreasw, was refusexl, and $\ln 149 \mathrm{ll}$. C the slege of Carthage began. During the neat two yeare llttle progreas was minde, but In 118 ${ }^{2}$. Cornelius selplo Emillanus, son of L . Eiml. Ilue Paulus, conqueror of Macedonln, and granil. mon by aloptlon of the conqueror of Ilamilhal. was, at the age of 87, and though only a emmili. dite for the aedlleship, elected consul and glvan the cummanal In Africa. In the next year (1+6 18. C.) Cartliage was taken and razed to the ground. Ite territory becante the Ihman prov. ince of Afrlen, whlle Nunitlia, now ruled by the three sons of Sasinlasa, remalued an an allietl state under Roman suzerainty, anil acrved tio pretect the new province agalnat the rallin of the desert tribes. Whthln little more than a eintury from the commencement of the firit Punli, war, the whole of the former domlalons of ('arthase had been brought uniler the direct rule of lioman maglatmates, anal were regularly organiwed as Roman provlnces."-II. E. Pelham, Zutlinia of Roman Miat., bk. 8, eh. 1.-See, alm, Cartunak: B. C. 146 .
B. C. 346,-Supremacy of the Senate." At the close of a century tirst of dwaily atruggle and then of rapld and dazzilng suc. ccos. llome found herself the suprem: ${ }^{\text {wower }}$ lu the clvillsed world. .. We have auw to consider how this perloul of conflict and conquest had affected the victorious state. Out rardly the constltution underwent hut little change. It continued to be in form a moder: ite slemocracy. The soverelgnty of the people flnally estahliwhend hy the llortensian law renained untoncinel in theory. It was by the pcople lu assumbly that the maglstrates of the year were electid, and that lawis were passed: only by order of the people could capltal punlshment be Indicterl upou a Roman cltizen. For election to a magis. tracy, or for a seat In the senate, patrleitm und plebelan were equally ellgihle. But lyitwea the theory aad the practlce of the constitution there was a wide Ilffereace. Thromyhout this perion the actually soverelgn authority in lume was that of the seuate, and behlal the semate: stool an order of nobles (noblles), who clamed and enjoyed privlleges as wide as those which Immemorial custom had formerly conceded to the patriclate. The ascendeacy of the senate, which thus arrested the march of democracy in Romic, was not, to any uppreciahle exteat, the zesult of leglalathon. It was the illrect witome of the practleal necessities of the timu, unl when these no longer exlsted, It was at once and successfully challenged in the name and on tix behalf of the constitutlonal rlgbts of the priple. Nevertheless, from the commencement of the Punlc wars down to the moment when with the destructlon of Carthage $\ln 146 \mathrm{~B}$. C. IRome's onify rival disappeared, this ascendency was romulnte and nimost uaquestloned. It was within the walls of the senate-house, and hy slecrees of the seaate, that the forelgn and the domestle pollcy of the state were alike determinet. . . . Thongh the asceadeacy of the senate was malnly due to the fact that without it the goverament of the state could scarccly have been carried oa, it wan strengtheaed and confirmed by the close and intlmate connection which existed betweeu the senate aad the nobility. This 'nubility' was la lts nature and origin wldely different from the old patriclate. Though every patrician was of courn 'noble,' the majorlty of the familles which in this period styled themselves noble were not patricias but plebelan, and the typical $n$ " les of the time of the eider Cato, of the Gracch or of Cleero, the Mutelll, Livli, or Liclall were plehe. lans. The sitle nobil th was apparently conceder br custom to those plebelan famllies one or more of whose members had, after the openlag of the magiatracles, been ciected to a curuie oftice, and sheh in consequence were entitied to place in thelr hails, end to display at thair funeral processluns the 'imagines' of these diatinguished an. ceators. The man who, by his electlon to a curule office thus ennobied his descendants, was midel to be the 'founder of his famlly,' though himmelf oniy a new man. . . . Ottice brought weaith and prestige, and both wealth and prestlge were frociy employed to exciude 'new men' and to mecure for the 'nobie famllies' monopoly of office. The ennobled plebelans not oniy united with the patricians to lorm adintlnct order, but outdild them in pride and arrogance. . The entablishment of senatorial ascendency was not the oniy resuit of this period of growth mul ex. pansion. During the came time the foundatlons were lald of the pruvinclai syetern, and with thls of the new and dangerous powers of the procon-suls."-H. F. Pelham, Outlines of Joman IIiat., bk. 8, ch. 8. -"The great atruggle against Ilannibal left the Senate the all but undiaputed gavernment of Rome. Originaily a mere consulting buaril, assessors of the king or consui, the Senate had become the supreme executive bxly. That the government solely by the comitha and the maglstrates shouid hy experience le found Funting was as inevituble at Ronic as at Ithens. Rome was more fortunate than Athens in that she could develop a new organlam to meet the neel. The growth of the power of the Seaste Was all the more natural and legitlmate the less It possessed strict legal standing.ground. But the fatai duallsm thus introduced into the constl. tution-the Assembly governlag de jure, and the senate governing de facto-made all gov. e. ament after a tlme impossible. The positlou of the senate being, strictly speaking, an unconstitutioual one, it was open to any deanagogue to bring matters of forelgn poilcy or aininistra. tion before an dssembly whleh was without continulty, without special knowiedge, and in which there was no debate. Now, if the Senate governed badiy, the Assembiy 'couid not govern at all: ' and there could be, in the fong run, but one end to the constant struggle between the two sources of authority. "-W. T. Arnold, The Romat Syatern of Procincial Administration, ch. 2. -See, blso, Senate, Romax.
B. C. - i-121. - The attempted reforms of the Gracchi. - "The first systematic attack upon the senatorini government is conncetcil with the names of Tirnrius and Gaius Gracchus, and Its immedlate occasion was an attempt to deal with no less a danger than the threatened disappearance of the class to which of all others IKome had owed most in the past. For, whlle Ilome had been extending her sway west ward und east ward, and whlle her nobles and merchants werc amassIng colossai fortunea abroad, the amail iandholders throughout the greater part of Italy were sinik. Ing deeper into ruin under the presaure of accu. mulnted difficuities. The Hannibailc war had lald wsste their feids and thinned their numbers, nor when peace returned to Italy did it bring with it any revival of froaportiy. The hosy burden of willitary wervice still premed rutoously upon them, and in addltion they were called upot to compete with the torelgn corn Imported from beyond the sea, and witil the foreign slapeinsour purchamed by the capital of the wealthler men. The small holuers went of to follow the eagles of swell the proletariate of the cliles, and their holdings were left to run wante of mergel in the vineyarda, ollveyanis, and above ali in the great cattle-farms of the rich, while their own place was taken hy slaves. The evil was not equally serlous in ali parta of Italy. It was least leit in the centrai lighiands, in Campania, sud in the newly mettled fertle valley of the Po. It was wornt In Eircuria and in mutbern Italy; int everywhere it was serious enough to deniand the earnest attenton of lloman states. men. Of lis exlatence tho governinent hail re. celved plenty of warning in the decllning numbers of biebodled males returned at the censun, in the lncreasing diftheultics of recruiting for the legions, In mervile out-breaks in Etriria and Apuila." - H. F. Pelham, Outlines of Roman Ifist, \&k. 4, ch. 1.-The earller agrarian lawe which the icoman plebelans lad wrung from the patr. cians (tue Liclalan Law fil simllar ones--see above: B. C. g7g-367; also dokahian L.A Fis) had not svailed to prevent the abourjition, by one meana and another, of the public domaln $\rightarrow$ the "ager pubificus," the conquered land which the state had neither sold nor given awhy - luto tho posesesion of great famillis and capltailsts, who held it in vast biucks, to be cultirnted by slaves. Time land aimost sunctioned thls conilition of thlngs, when Tilerius Sempronlus Gracelins, ©ller of the two tamons hmothers culled "The Grac. chl," unifertook íu $133 \mathbf{1 3}$. C. a reformation of lt. As one of the tribunes of the poople that yenr, he brought forward a law wh h was intended to entoree the provisions of the Jildinm Law of 36\% B. C., hy tnking away from the holders of pubitc inin: what they heli in excess of 500 jugera (aboat 820 acres) cach. Three commlssioners, caifed Triumvlri, were to be appolnted to superintend the exccution of the law and to redistributc the land recovered, ainong needy cltizena. Niaturally the proposal of this act aroused a ticree uppositton in the wealthy ciass whose ill-gotten eitntea were threatened by it. One of the feflow-tribunes of Tlberius was gained over by the opposition anil used the power of his veto to prevent the taking of a vote upon the bili. Then Gracrhus, to overcome the obstacle, had recourse to an unconstitutional measure. The obstinate tribune was dcposed from his office by a vote of the fcoplc, and the law was then enactci For the carrying out of hia measure, and for his own protection, no less, Tiberlus sougbt a rc-ciection to the tribunate, which was contrary to usage, if not against positive law. Ils enemies raised a tumult against blm on the day of election and he was siain, with three hundred of his party, and their corpses were flung into the Tiber. Nine years later, his younger brother, Calus Gracchus, obtained efection to the tribune's offlee and took up the wort of democratic poilticai reform which Tiberius had sacri. fleed his ilfe in attemptlag. His measures were radical, attanking the power and privileges of the ruiling orders. But mixed with them were schemes of demagoguery which did intinite mis. chlef to the Roman peopie and state. He carried the Ant frumentarian law (lex frumevtaria) us it Wha callel, by which cora was bought with pubHe money, ami atoped, inf cale to lloman eltizena at a nomianl pife. After three yearm of power. through the favor of the people, he, too, In 181 B. C. as deeerted by them and the party of the patricians was permittol to put him to death, Whth armal number of his unpporters. - 0 . Long. artine of the Khemon RepuNie, r. 1, eh. 10-18, 18-19. - "Calus, It Is entil, wis the firit Hommen ataterman who appolntell'a regular diatribution of corm among the poorer clizens, re. yuiring the state to huy up large conalgnments of graln from the provinces, anil to well it again at a inxell mute below the natuml price. The nobles thermelyea merm to hare acqulescel whith. nut alarm in this measure, hy whlh they hoped to welure the cliy from medilioun movementil $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{c}}$ time of arnicity; but they fallenl to forewee the disconargement It would give to Indumtry, the crowds of life and dissipatel citizens It would entice into the forime the appetite it would cre. ate foi aows, entertainments and largcowes, and the power It woula thin tifrow lato the hanils of ungrinelpled demagoguem. Culus next establlsherl custo.as dutles upon rarious articles of luxury lmported Into the clty for the use of the rich: he decreed the gmitutons supply of cloth Ing to the soldiers, who bail hithertis been re. quired to provide themselves out of thelr pay he faunded colonica for the Immerllate gratitica. tlon of the poorer cluzens, whn were walting in vain for the prombed disirlbutlon of lands: the cansell the construction of public granaries, bridiges ninl rouils, to furnish ohjects of useful labour to thowe who were not unwilling to work. Calus hhuself, it is satid, dlrecterl the course snd superintended the making of the roads, some of which we mny still tmice tmverslug Italy in stakght lines from joint to polat, filling up depressions and holiowing excruscences in the faco of the country, and bulit upon luge substruc. thons of soild masonry. Those who most feared and hatel him confessel thel. amnzement at tha magnitfence of bla projects nad the energy of hils proceedings: the people, In whose Interests he follet, were tilled with almirathon and deilght. whell they satw him attended fmomorning to u' sht by crowils of contractors, artiticers, ambasdors, macistraten, soldters, and men of learning. $\ldots$ ull of whons he was casy of access, adaptlng hits behaviour to the comilition of each in turn: thus proving. ns they declured, the fulsebonl of those who presumed to call him vlolent and tyran nlcal. . . By these Innovatlons Cniua lald a wlde basls of popuilarity. Thereupon he commenced Wify meditateil nttack upon the privileged classes. We prossess nt trast one obsciare intimation of a change he effected or proposed In the mnnner of voting by centurles. which struck at the Induence of the wenthler clisses. He confrrien and extended the Porclan law, for the protectlon of eliIzens ngainst the aggrcassion of the maglatrates Whthout a formal appeal to the perple. Even the powers of the detatorship, to which the sennte had bern wout to resore for the coerelon of its refractory opponeats, were crippled hy theso provivions; nat we shall see ihat no recourse was ngaln had to this extraordinary and odlous appolutment till the ollgarchy had gained for a thme a complet-: victory oser thelr aiversaries. Another change, even more Inpportant, was that by which the krlghts were admilted to the greater chars. If not, somen mpose, to the Whote, of the Judletal appolatemata... A Vong at the mandors wers the Judgen, ibe proviacial joveraoss, who wero themedives senators. wore weure from the concequesce of Impench. ment. If the talghte wore to wll the mmpencire, It might be expected that the publicanl, the farmern of the rovenues abroad, would be not lem masured of lmpunlty, whatevor were the onormity of their exactlona. ... It wat vain. Indeed, to orpect greater purity from the reennd caler of cleizeas than from the arsh. If the man. ators openly denied juatice to complalinantr, the Enlghts almate so openly cold 18 . This wias la Iteeff a grievous degradatlors of the tnae of pub. Ile morality; but thle was not all the evll of the tribune's reform. It arrajed the two privilicgell clames of clizems in direct hontlitity to no snother. 'Calus made the repubile doubleheadel, ${ }^{\prime}$ was the profound remark of antlquity. He sowed the meeds of a war of an hundred yearm. Tlbertus had attempted to role up clase of small proprietors, who, by the simplicty of their manaera and moderation of their taster migit form, as he hopel, a strong conaervatire bartier betweea the tyranny of the noblea said the envy of the people; hut Calus, on the faliur of thls attempt, wai content to elerate a clasa to power, who thould touch upoa both extremes of the enclal acale. - the rich by thelp wealth, and the poor by thelr origla. Unfertunately this wan to create not a new class, but a nery party.

One dlrect adrantage, at all ceven a, Calun expected to derive, bealiles the humilitilon of hls hrother's murierers, from this alevation of the knlgitas: he boped to secure tielr "enteful co.operatlon towards the important object he next had In vlew: thls was an lema thon the fuii admianton of the Latins and Itallans to the right of suffruge."-C. Merivale. The Mall , the los.
man Repubic, en. man Republic, en. 1.

Aleo in: Platarch, Tiberius Gracen. : Cinus Gracehue-T. Mommien, Hise of Romu, bk. $t_{1}$ ch. 2-8 (e. 3) - S. Eliot, Liberty of Rome: Rume, bk. 3, en. 1.-See, aleo, Aaer Pualicte.
B. C. 125-121. -Conquest of the Salyon and Allohroges in Gaul.- Trenty of friendship with the Redui. See Salyz: Allobrores; and EDCI.
B. C. ${ }^{118}$-99.-Increaslog corruptlon of gor-erament.- The Jugurthine War. - Invanion and defeat of the Cimhri and Teutones. - Tha power of Marlus.-"After the death of Calus Gracchus, the nohles did what they pleased to Rome. They pald no more attentior. to the Agrarian Law, and the state of Italy grew worse and worse. ... The nobles cared nothing for Rome's honour, but only for thelr own pockets. They governed bndiy, and tonk hribes from forelgn kings, who were allowed to do what they Ilked If they could pay enough. This wis especlally seen in a war that took place in Afrim. After Carthage bad been destroved, the greatest state In Africa was Numblia. The ling of Numidia was a friend of the Roman people, and had fougit whith ticm agalnst Carthage. so Rome had a good deal to do with Numidla, and the Numldlans often belped llome In her wary. In 118 a klag nf Numidta died, and left the khing dom to ble twn sons and an adopted sod named Jugurtha. Jugurtha determined to have the kingdom all to hlmself, so he murderel one of the sons and madt war upon the other, who appled to Rome for bolp (eee Noxipla; A. C. 116 Tdi]. The Bomate way bribed by Jugurtha, and did all is could to plecee hima ai lahk, however, Jugurthe bealeged his hrother in Cirta, and when bo took the elty put him aod sll his army to dee'h (112). After thla tho finmans thought they must Interfers, but the Benme for more money were wllling to let Jugurthe of very catily, Ho came to Rome to excuse hlmell be: fore the people, and whllet he was there he had a Numblian prince, of whom he was afrahd, murdered in Ilome liself. But hls bribes were stronger than the linwa.... The Romans decisred war apalast Jugurtha, hut he lirlbed the generale, and for three yeari very littie was done ofalast him. At lnat, in 108, a ecod zenefal, who would not take bribes, Quintus Netellis, went againat him and deferted him. Hetellua would have falahed the war, but $\ln 100$ the command was taken from hlm hy Calus Marlus tha coseul. This Calus shertuas was a man of low birth, hut a good coldler. Hie had risen in war by hit hrarery, and had held magiatracies in lome. He was an offeer in the army of Jletellus, and was very much llked hy the common moldiers, for he wan a rough man ilke themelven. and talked with them, and liven as they did.

Marlua left Africa and went to Hone to try oni be made consul in 10s. Ile furnal fault whith Metelius before the people, and mald that he could carry on the war better hlmueif. So the people made him consul, and more than that, the s mald that the should be general in Africa laatead of Metellus.

Marius tiblshed the war in Africa, and brought Jugurtha in trlumph to taly ln 104. ... When lt wasoves, Marlus was the most powerful man $\ln$ llome. He was the iemler of the popular party, and also the general of the army. The army had greatly changed alnce the tlme of Hannithal. The Iloman colders were co longer cltizens who fought when thelr country wanted them, and then went back to their work. But as wan were now constantly going on, and golag on too la distant countries, this muid no longer be the cate, and the army was full of men who took to a coldier's llfe as a trade. Msrius was the favourte of these soldiers: ho was a soldler hy trade blmself, aud lisd risea $t_{4}$ consequence to power in the state. Notice, then, that when Marlus was nuade con. sul, it was a slgn that the government for the future was to be carried on hy the army, as weil as hy the people and the nohles. Yarlus was man wanted to carry on another war. Two gruut tribes of herbarians from the nerth had entered Gaul west of the Alps, and threatened to drive out the Romans, and even attack italy. Ciney came with thelr wives and chlldren, llike a wandering people looklog for a home. ... At first these cimhri defeated the Roman getar nis in southern Gaul, where the Romans had conquered the country along the Rhonc, and made it a province, whlet la stili called the province. if Provence. The Romans, sfter this defeat, we", afraid of another hurning of their city hy barbarlans, to Martus was made coceul agaln, ani for the next Are years he was elected agaln ani again. . . . In the year 102 the Teutonesand the Cimbri marched to attack Italy, hut Martua difunted them In two great batiles [sec Cisment And Tectones: B. C. 119-102]. Aiterwarda when he went hack to Rome in trlumph he was *) powerful that he could have done what he choes In the atale. The people were very grivful to Him, the soldie.s were rery fond of him and the nobles wrote very much shrold of hin. But Marlue did not thial' much of the good of the state: he thought much more of abo owe grentrens, asd how he might become atill greater man. So, Arut, he jolned the party of the people, and one of the trhunce, Lucius Appulelua Sturalaus, hrought forward come liswe fike thow of Calus Gracchus, and Hislua helped him. But there wery rots ln consequence, and the Senate begred Martus to help themi lo putting down the rots. For a time Marius doulited what to do, hut at latt he armed the peopie, and Baturnlous was kilied (00). But now nelther she liked Marlua, for lie was true to nelther, and dill only what he thought would make himnelf mint powerful. so for the future Mariun was not likely to be of much use in the trouhles of the floman state."-MI. Crelghton, Dife. of llmme (Priwer), eh. 7.

Aleo it: : II. G. Lhdell, Thite of Roms, eh. 64 - 38 (e. 2)-V. Duruy, llies. of Romo, eh. 80-41 (E. 2).-Mutarch, Mariua.
B. C. go-88. - Demande of the Itallan Soell for Roman cltisenshlp. - The Marsica of Social War.-Rlee of Sulla.-" It ls most erroneous thuugh widely prevalent oplalon that the whole of ftaly was conquered hy the forco of Roman amis, and jolned to the emplre [of the IRepublic] againat lts wili. Roman valour and the admirable organization of the leglons, it is truc, contributed to extend the domlalon of Itcme, but they were not neariy so effective as the political wislom of the Romian senate. The subjects of Rome were called by the honourabio name of alilea (Socll). But the manner In whilh ther had become ailies was not alwaya the sume. It difered wildely according to clrcumvances. Sume hid joined Rome on an equal footlug by a free alliance ('fadus aquum'), WL.ch lminlind uotilng llke suhjection. Others soupat the alilance of Rome as a protec. tlon from presslag euemles or trouthlesome nelghbrours.

On tire whole, the condition of the ailes, Latin colonies as well as confederated Itallans, seems to lizve been sutiafactory, at least lu the enrilier pericnl. . But even the right of seif-goverameat wlich Rome had left to the Italiau communtties roved an liluslon in all cases where the lu: sts of the ruling town seemed to require I. A law passed in Rome, nay, a simplu senutortal decree, of a maghtertal order, could at pleazure be applled to the whole of Italy. Koman law gradually toote the place of local lews, though the Italians had no part in the leglsiation of the Iloman people, or any influence on the decrees of the Roman senate and magistrites.

- All puhlle works in Italy, such as roails, nqueducts, and temples, were carrled out soicir for the beneft of Rome. . . . Not in peace onfy, but also in the tlme of was, the alllea were gradualiy nuade to feel how heavily the thand of IRome weighed upon them. . . . In proportlou as with the increase of thelr power the Romans felt more and more sccure and independeat of the allles, they showed them less consideration and tenderness, and made them feel that they had gradually sunk from thelr former pastinn of itheads to be mo more than subjects." There was focreasing discontent among the Italian alles. or Socll, with this atate of thinge, eapecially atier the time of the Gracchi, whea:
tribute and plunder from provinces and aubject states. Rome had famliarized fteelf with mob Flolence, and the oid respect for authority and for law was dead. The soldter with an army at his back need not stand any ionger in awe of the fasces of a trihune or a consul. It was a natural consequence of that state of things that the two foremost soldiers of the time, Calus Mariue and L. Cornelius Sulla (or Syila, as often written,) should become the recognized chlefs of the two opposing factlons of the day. Marius was oid, his milltary glo: - was waning, he had enjoyed six consulshlps and coveted a seventh; Sulla was in the prime of life, just falrly beginning to show his surpassing capablities aad entering on hls reai career. Marius was a plibe. ian of plebelans and rude $\ln$ ail hls tastes; Salla came from the great Cornellan gens, and refined a little the dissoluteness of hls life by studles of Greek letters and phllosophy. Marius was sul. leniy jealous; Sulla was resolutely ambltious. A new war, whlch promised great prizes to ambitlon and cupidity, allke, was breaklng ont In the east, - the war with Milhridates. Both Marius and Sulla aspired to the command in it; hut Sulla had been elected one of the consuls for the yenr 88 B. C. and, by custom and law, would have the conduct of the war assigned to him. Narius, however, intrigued with the demagogues and leaders of the mob, and brought about 8 turbulent demonstration and popular vote, by which he could claim to be appolnted to lead the forees of the state against Mithridates. Sulla fled to his army, in camp at Nola, ani lail his case before the otticers and men. The former, for the most part, shrank from opposing them. selves to Rome; the latter had no scruples aad demanded to be led against the Roman mob. Sulla took them at thelr word, and marched them straight to the clty. For the first tiuk iu its history (by no means the last) the great capital was forclbly entered by one of lta own armirs. There was some resistance, but not much. Salla paralyzed his opponents hy his evergy, and by a threat to hurn the city If It dill not summit. Marius and hls chief partisans fled. Sulla coa. tented himself with outlawing tweive, some of whom were taken and put to death. Marius, himself, escaped to Africa, after many strange alventures, in the story of which there is romance unquestlonably mixed. Sulia (with his colleague In harmony whth film) fulthled the year of his consulate at Pome and then departed for Greece to conduct the war against Mithridates. In doing so, he certalnly knew that he was glving up the government to his enemies; but he tristed his future in a remarkable wsy and the necessity, for Rome, of confronting Mithrldates was imperatíve. The departure of Sulla was the signal for fresh disorders at lrome. Cinna, one of the new consuls, was driven from the eity, and became the head of a movement which appealed to the "new cltlzens," as they were called, or the "Itailan party"- the allies who had been enfranchlsed as the reault of the Social War. Narius came back froni exile to join it. Sertoriua and Carbo were other leaders who played important parts. Presently there were fuar armies beleaguering Rome, and after some unsuccessful reslatance the gates were opened to them, bs order of the Roman senate. Cinna, the consul, was nominally restored to authorlty, but Jarius was really supreme, and Marius was sulla.
Fompreive Magnue.
ROME, B. C. 78-68.
impiscable In his sullen rage. Rome was treated ilke a conquered eity. The puhlic and private enemies of Marius and of all who chose to cail themelves Marinns, were hunted down and siain. To stop the massacte, at lnst, Sertorius the best of the new masters of Rome - was forced to turn his soldiers agalnst the hands of the assasslns and to slaughter severai thousands of them. Then some degree of order was restored snd there was the quiet in Rome of a city of the dead. The next year Marius reallzed his amhitlon for a seventh consuiship, but dled before the end of the first month of it. Meantime, Sulla devoted himself steadiiy to the war against Mithridates [see Mithridatic Wars], watching from afar the sinlster course of events at Rome, nni making no slga. It was not until the spring of 83 B . C. four years after hls departure from Italy and three years after the death of Marius, that he was ready to return and settie accounts whth his enemies. On ianding with his army in Italy he was joined speciiiy by Pomper, Ciras. sus, and other importnut chiefs. Cinna had been kllled hy mutinous soliiers; Carbo and young Marius were the leaders of the "Italian party." There was a fleree liattle at Sacriportus, near Pruneste, with young Marius, nad a second with Carbo at Ciusium. Later, there was another furlons fight with the Samnites, uuder the walls of Rome, at the Colline Gate, where 50.000 of the combatants fell. Then Sulla was muster of Rome. Every one of bis suspected friends in the senate had been butchered by the last oriers of roung Marius. IIls retaliatlon was not slow ; but he pursued it with a horrinle dellberation. He made lists, to be posted in pulble, of men tho were inarked for death and whom anyboly mipht slis. There are differing aecounts of the number doomed hy this proseription; aceording to one anualist the denth-roil was sweiled to 4. 8 (M) before the relgn of terror ceased. Sulla rulal as a conqueror untii it pleased him to tuke an ofticial title, when lee commanded the people to elect hin Dictator, for such term as lie nilght judge to be tit. They obeyed. As Dictutor. he proweded bo remmad the Roman constituion ly a arim of luws which were adopteri at his commani. Sne of these laws chframehiaed took aray from the tribunes a great part of their puwers; allowed none but members of the senate to be candldates for the office, and no persha once a tribune to hoid a eurule oftice. Uthers recomstructeri the senate, adiding 300 new members to its depleted rauks, and restored to it the judicial function which C. Gracchus hai transferred to the knights: they aiso restored to it the initiative in legislation. ilaving remorleled the Roniatugovernment to his llking, sulfa astouncied his friends and enemies by suddenly layiug down his dictitorial powers andi retirling to pri. sate life at his villa, near Puteoll, on the Bay of Niples. There he wrote his memoirs, which have been lost, and gave himseif up to the iife of pleasure which was even dearer to him than the life of power. But he enjoyed it scarceiy a year, when he died, B. C. 78. His body, taken to lime. was burned with pomp.-G. Long. Decline of the Roman Republic, c. 2, ch. 17-29.
Alw is: W. Ihnc, Hist. if Rome, 34, 7, ch 15-23.-Plutarch, Marius aud Sulla.-T. Mommsin. Hint. of Rome, bk. 4, ch. 9-10.-C. Merivale, The Fall of the Roman Republic, ch. 4-5.
B. C. 80.-The throne of Egpt bequeathed to the Republic by Ptolemy Alezander. Sie EATPT: B. C. 80-48.
B. C. 78-68. - Danger from the legionaries. -Rising power of Pompelus. - Attempt of Lepldus - Pompeius against Sertorius in Spain. - Insurrection of Spartacus and the Gladiators. - The second Mithridatic War, and war in Armenia.-" The Roman legionary, drawn from the dregs of the populace. and quartered through the best years of his life in Greece and Asia, in Spaln and Gaul, lived solely upon his pay, enhanced by extortion or plunder. His thirst of raplne grew npon inm. He required his chlefs to Induige him with the spoil of cities and provinces; and when a forcign enemy was not at hand, he was tempted to turn against the suhjects of tbe state, or, if need be, against the state itself. . . . Marius and Suiia, Cinna and Carlo had ied the forees of Rome against llome herself.

The probien whleh thus presented itself to the minds of patriots - how, namely, to avert the impending ilssoiutlon of thelr pollty under the hlows of their own defenciers - was iuleed nn anxions and might well appear a hopeiess one. It was to the ieglons only that they conld trust, and the legions were notoriousiy devoted to their chlefs. .. . The triumph of Suila had been secured by the accession to his side of Pompeius Stribo, the coinmander of a large force quirtered iu Italy. These troops had transferred thelr obedience to a younger Pompeius, the son of their inte leader. Linder his anspiees they had goined many victories; they hati put down the Marian factlon, headed by Corho. In Siclly, and ind tinally se. cured the ascenilency of the senate on the shores of Africa. Sulla had evinced some jealousy of their captain, who was young in venrs, and as yet had not risen abore the rank of Eques; hut when Pompeins ied bis victorious legions back to Italy, the people rose in the greatest enthusiasni to welcome him, and the dictator, yielding to their impetunsity, had grunted him a trimmph and hailed hlin with the title of 'Magnus.' Young as je was, ise became at ouec, on the ahdicatlon of Sulla, the greatest power in the commonwealth. This he soon eaused to he knowu and felt. The lead of the senatoriai party had now falien to Q. Lutatins Catulus and M. Emilius Lepidins, the hadis of two of tbe ondest and noblest families of Rome. The election of these chicfs to the consulship for the rear 676 of the city (13. (. 78 ) secmed to secure for the time the asceulency of the nohies, and the maintenanec of Sultas oligarchical constitution hequeathed to their care. . . . But there were divisions witbin the party itself whleh seemed to seize the opportunity for breaking forth. Lepidus was iuflamed with ambition to create a fuction of his own, and imitate the career of the usurpers before him.

But he inad miscalculntel his strength. Pompeius disavowed him, and lent the weight of lils popularity and power to the support of Catulus; and the senate hoped to avert an outbreak by engaging both the consuls hy an oath to abstain from assailing each other. During the remainder of his term of oflice Lepidus refralned from action: but as soon as he Fached his province, the Nartmonensis in Gaul. he developed his plans, summoned to his stat dard the Marians, who had taken refuge in grent numbers in that region, and Invoked the aid of the Itallans, with tho promise of reatoring to them the lands of which they had been dispossessed hy Bulla's veterans. With the ald of M Junlus Brutus, who commanded In the Clasi. plne, he made an inroad lnto Etruria, and called upon the remnant of its people, who had been declmated hy Sulla, to rise agalngt the factlon of thelr oppressors. The senate, now thorougily alarmed, charged Catulus wlth its defenee; the veterans, restless and dlesatisfed with thelr tields and farms, crowded to the standard of Pompelus. Two Roman armles met near the Milvian bridge, a few mlles to the north of the clty, and Lepldus received a check, whlch was again and again repeated, tlll he was drlven to tlee lnto Bardlala, and there perished shortly afterwards of fever. Pompelus pursued Brutus into the Clsalplne. . . . The remanat of [Lepldus'] troops was carried over to Spaln hy Perperna, and there swelled the lorces of an abler leader of the same party, Q. Sertorius." Sertorius had estahilshed hlmseif strongly in Spaln, and asplred to the foundling of an independent state; hut after a prolonged struggle he was overcome hy Pom. pelus and assassinated hy traitors in his own ranks (see Spain: B. C. 83-72), -"Pompelu. 48," thus recovered a great province for the republic at the moment when lt seemed on the point of belng lost through the lnefficiency of one of the senatorial chlefs. Another leader of the dominant party was about to ylcld hlm auother vlc. tory. A war was raglag ln the heart of Italy. A body of gladlators had hroken away from thelr conflnement at Capua under the lead of Spartacus, a Thracian captlve, had seized a large quantlity of arms, and had made themselves a retreat or place of defence ln the crater of Mouut Vesuvius [see Spartaces, The Rising of] The consuls were dlreeted to lead the legions against them, hut were 1 gnomlnlously defeated [B. C. 72]. In the absurnce of Pompeius lu Spain and of Lucuilus in the East, M. Crassus was the most promlnent among the chlefs of the party ln power. Tuls lllustrious noble was a man of great infuence, acquired more by his wealth, for whleh he ohtained the surname of Dives, than for any marked ahlity in the field or in the forum; hut he had a large followlug of cllents and dependents, who ... now swelied the cry for plaeing a powerful foree under his orders, and entrustlng to his hands the deliver. ance of Italy. The brigands themselves were becoming demorallzed by lack of disclpline. Crassus drove them before hlm to the extremity of the peuinsula. . . Spartacns eouid oniy save a remnant of them by furiously breaking through the lines of his assailants. This hrave giadlator was still formldahle, and it was feared that Rome Itseif might be exposed to his desperate attaek. The senate sent Importunate messages to recall both Pompelus and Luenllus to its defenee. . . . Spartacus had now become an easy prey, and the laurels were quickly won with whieh Pompelus was Lonoured hy his partial countrymen. Crassus was deeply mortlicd, and the senate ltself might feel some alarm at the redouhled triumphs of a champlon of whose loyalty it was not secure. But the senatorial party had yet another leader, and a man of more ahliity than Crassus, at the head of another army. The authority of Pompelus in the weatern prop: inces was halanced ln the East hy that of L. Licinius Lucullus, who commanded the forces of the repuhlle in the struggie whlch she was sill malntalnlng agalnst Mithridates. The milif tary successes of Luculius fuliy justified the cholce of the government." He expelled Mithry. dates from all the domlalons whleh he claimed and drove hlm to take refuge wlth the king of Armenla. "The klagdom of Armenia under Tlgranes III. was at the helght of lts power when Clodlus, the hrotherin-law of Lurullas, then serving under hlm, was despatched to the royal resldence at Tlgranocerta to demand the surrender of Mithridates. The erapital of Armenia was well defended hy lts prosition among the mountalns and the length ani severity of lts wlater season. It was necessury to strike once for all [B. C. 69]. Lucuilins bid a small but well-tralned and well-nppointel army of veterans. Tlgranes surround d and rarmis. bered hlmself with a vast cloud of undisciplineri harharians, the flower of whom, eonsisting of 17,000 malled cavalry, however formiduble ita appearance, made but a feehle resistance to the dint of the Roman spear and hroadsword. When thelr ranks were broken they feli buek ninu the inert masses behlnd them, and threw them into hopeless confuslon. Tlgraues muie his escape wlth dastardly preclpltation. A hloody masse. cre ensued.

ROME, B. C. 78-68.

In the foliowing year Luculus advanced hls posts stlli further east warl.
But a splrit of discontent or lassitude hadi crept over hls own soldlers.

He was constrimed to withdraw from the siege of Artanat:a, the furtitest stronghold of Tigraues, on the $\mathrm{h}_{\mathrm{a}} \mathrm{a}: \mathrm{h}$ o of the A mixes, and after crownlng hls victorio with a suecessful assauit upon Nislbis, he gave the signal for retreat, leavlng the destruction of Mitiridates still uuacconiplished. Mewanhile the hrave proconsul's enemles were making intad against him at IRome."-C. Merivale, The Romm Zitumrirates, ch. 1. -Luculius "wished to consummate the ruin of Tlgranes, and afterwards to earry his arms to Parthia. He hat not this perllous giory. Ilitherto, bls principal mentus of suecess lad been to conclllate the people, by restraining the avidity botil of his soldiers and of the Italian pubileans. The tirst refused to pursue a war whleh only coriched the general; the seeond wrote to Rome, where the party of knights was every day regaining its ancleat ascendancy. They aecused of rapacity him who liad repressed theirs. Alf were lncilnei to believe, In short, that Lueullus had driwn enormous sums from the towns whleh ine proserved from the soldiers and publicans. They obtained the appolntment of a suecessor, anil by this change the fruit of this eonquest was in a great measure lost. Even before Lucuilus had quitted Asla, Dlithridates re-entered Pontus, invaled Cappadoeia, and leagued himseif more closely whth the pirates."-J. Mlehelet, Hist, of the Roman Republic, p. 308.-" It was imagined at lome that Mithridates was as good us conyuered, and that a new proviuce of IBithynin and Pontus was awalting organisation. . . . Ten commissioners as usual had been despatched to assist.

Lucullus had hoped before their arrival to strike some hlow to recover his iosses: but Jurclus Rex had refused hls appeai for heip from Cllicla, and his own troops had deelined to march when they learnt that the command Fas about to pass from Lucullus to Giatrie."E. 8. Shuckhurgh, Hiat. of Nome to the Battle of Actium, p. 677 .

ROME, B. C. 69-63.

Also In: Plutarcis, Pompeiue Magnus.-G. Long, Declint of the Roman Republic, e. 2, ch. 30-33, and o. 8, ch. 1-5.-G. Rawlinson, Sizth Great Oriental ifonarchy, ch. 10.
B. C. 69-63.- The drift towards revoiution. - Pompelus in the East. - His extraordinary commisaion. - His enlargement of the Roman dominions.-His power.-Ambitions and projects of Cesar. - Consulship of Cicero.- 'To a superficiai observer, at the ciose of the year 70 a. L., it might possibly lave seemed that the Bepuhlic had been given a new lease of life.

And, indeed, for two or three years this promising condition of things continued. The years 69 and 68 B. C. must have heen tolerabiy qulet ones, for our authorities lave very little to tell us of them. $\qquad$ - Had a slngle reai statesman appeared on the scene at this moment, or even if the average senator or citizen had been possessed of some honesty and insight, it was not impossible that the government might have been carried on falrly weil even under repuhiican forms. But there was no learing statesman of a character suited to raise the whoie tone of polltics; and there was no generai disposition on the part of cither Senate or peopie to make the best of the iull in the storm, to repair damages, or to set the shlp on her only true course. So the next few years show luer fast drifting lu the di ction of revoiution; and the current that iurs her was not a local one, or vlsihle to the ere of the ordinary Roman, but one of woridwide force, whose origin and direction could only be perceived hy the highest political intelllgence. It was during these years that Caesar was quietly learning the business of government, buth at home and in the proviaces.... Cusir was elected questor in 69 B . C., and served the office in the following year. It fell to inim to begia his acquaintance with government in the province of Further Spain, and thus began his lifelong connection with the peoples of the Wist. . . On hls return to Rome, which must lave tuken place about the beginning of $67 \mathrm{~B} . \mathrm{C}$. , Cisar was drawn at once into closer connecthon whth the man who, during the next twenty years, was to be his friend, his rival, and his eneny, Pompelus was by this time tired of a quiet life.

Both to him and his friends, it scumed impossilhie to be idie any longer. There was real and abundant reason for the euploy. nuent of the ablest soldier of the day. The andacitr of the pirates was greater than ever [see Cinicia, Pirates of]. Lucullus, too, in Asia had hegun to meet with disnsters, and W.a 10 mble, with his troops in a mintinous temper, to cope with the combined forces of the kings of Armenia and Pontus. .. In this year, 6: 13. C., a bill was proposed hy a tribune, Gabinius, in the assembly of the plehs. in spite of upposition in the Senate, glving Pompeius exuctly that extensive power against the pirates which he himseif desired, and which was really uecessary if the work was to be doue swiftly and completely. He was to have excluslve command for three years over the whole Mecliterranean, and over the resources of the provinces and dependent states. For fifty miles iniand in very province bordering on thesc seas - $i$. e., in the whole Empire - he was to exercise an muthority equal to that of the existing provincill governor. He was to have almost unlimited weans of raising both fleets and armies, and was to nominate his own staff of twenty-ive ' iegati' (lieutenant-generals), who were all to have the rank of pretor. Nor was this ail; for it was quite understood that this was oniy part of a plen which was to place him at the head of the armies in Asia Minor, auperseding the able hut now discredited Lucuilus. In fact, by another inw of Gahlaius, Lincullus was recalied, and his command given to one of the consuls of the year, neither of whom, as was weil known, was ilkeiy to wield it with the requislte ahillity. Whichever consul it might be, he would only be recognised as keeping the place warm for Lompeius. $\qquad$ Pompeius left Rome in the spring of $67 \mathrm{~B} . \mathbf{C}$. rapinly cleared the seas of piracy, and in the following year superseded Luculius In the command of the war against Mithridates [with the jowers given lilm ly the Gabinian Law prolonged and extended by another, known as the Manilian law]. He did not retura till the beginning of 61 B. C. At first sight it nilght sceni as though hls absence should lave cienred the air, and left the poitical leaders at Rome a freer hand. But the power and the resources voted him, and the unpreceriented surcess with winich he used them, maue him in reality as formidable to tite parties at home as he was to the peoples of the East. He put an end at last to the power of Mithridates, received the submisslon of Tigranes of Armenia, and adiled to the Roman dominlon the greater part of the possessions of hoth these kings. The sphere of Rommn intinence now for the tirst time renched the river Euphrates, and the Emipire was brought into contact with the great larthian kingdom berond it . Asia Dlinor hecmue wholly Rovan. with the exception of some part of the iaterior, which obedient kinglets were allowed to retain. Sy ria was made a lioman province. Pompeius tork Jermsalem, and added Judea to Syria [see Jtwn: 13. C. 166-40]. . . . The man to whom all this was due became at once the leading tignre in the worli. It became clear that whea his career of conquest was over yet nuother task would devolve on lim, if he chose to accept it - the re-orgauisation of the central government at lome. ... His gathered power overhang the state like an avalauche reudy to fall, and in the possible path of an avalanche it is waste of time and labour to hulli nay solld work. So these years, for Ciasar .a for the rest, are years of piotting and intristit in one side, and of haifhearted governmehi on the other. . . . Ife was elected to the curnle xdileship - the next above the quastorship in the series of magistracies and entered on his oflice on January 1,65 13. C.

Cesar's political connection with Crassus at this time is by no means clear. The two wore sailing the same course, and wate *og Pompelus with the same anxicty , but there could not have been much in common hetween them, and they were in fact rapldly getting in each other's way. The great money-lender, however, must have heen in the muin responsihie for the enormous expenditure winich Casar risked in this urlileship, and the next thrce years. . . . At the close of the year $64 \mathrm{~B} . \mathrm{C}$., on the accession to office of a new board of tribunes, . . . an agrarian blll on a vast seale was promulgated by the tribuut Servilius Rullus. The two most startling features of thls were: tirst, the creation of a board of ten to carry out its provisions, each memher of which was to be invested with military aud fodicial powers like those of the consuls and pretors; and secondly, the clauses which entrusted thia board with enormous inancial resources, to be raised hy the public sale of all the territories and property acquired since the jear 88 B. C., together with the hooty and rev. enues now in the hande of Pompeius. The hill inciuded, ao its immediate ohject, a huge scieme of colonisation for Italy, on the lines of the Gracchan agrarian bills. $\qquad$ But it was really an attack on the weak fortresa of senatorial government, in orier th turn out its garrison, and occupy and fortify it in the name of the democratic or Marian party, against the return of the new Sulla, which was now thouglit to be Imminent. The bill may also have had another and secondary ohfect - aamcly, to force the hand of the ahle and ainbitious consill [Cicero] who would come into otfice on January 1, 3 ; at any rate it succeeded in doing this though it succeeded in nothing else. Cicero's great taleuta, and tie courage and skill with which he had so far for the most part used them, hadi nade him alrealy a considcrasle power in Rome; but no one knew for certain to which party he wonld finaily attach himself. . . . On the very frst day of his oftlee he attacked the biil in the Sennte and exposed ita real intention, and showed plainly that his policy was to convert Pompelus into a pillar of the constitution, and to counteract all democratic plots directed against him.
Whether it was hie cloquence, or the people'a mdifference, that caused the bill to be dropped, can only be matter of conjecture; but it was withdrawn at once by its proposer, and the whole scheme fell throngh. This was Ciccro's arst and only real victory over Ceesar. . . . It was about tiits time, in the spring of $63 \mathrm{~B} . \mathrm{C}$., that the office of Pontifex Maximus became vacant hy the death of old Metellus Piua, and Casar at once took steps to secure it for himself. The chances in his favour were small, but the prize was a tempting one. Success would place him at the head of the whole Roman religious system. . . He was eiligible, for he had already been for teveral yeara one of the college of pontifices, hut as the law of election stood, a man so young and so democratic would have no chance against candidates like the venerable conserva. tive leader Catulue, and Caser's own old commander in the East, Serviiius Isauricus, botit of Whom were standing. Sulia'a law, which piaced the elcetion in the hands of ae college itself - a law framed expressly to exclude persons of Casar's stamp-must be-repealed, and the choice rested once more in the people. The useful tribune Labienus was again set to work, the law was passed, and on March 6tio Casar was elected by a large majority. . . . The latter part of thls memorab:" year was occupied with a last and desperate attempt of the deinocratic party to possess themselvel of the state power While there was yet tine to forestall Pompeius. This is the famus conspiracy of Catilina; it was an attack of the left wing on the senatorial poaition, and the real leaders of the democracy took no open or actire part in it."-W. W. Fowler, Julius Casar, ch. $4-5$.
Also in J. A. Froude, Ciezar, ch. 10.-Suetonius, Lives of the Trelte Cisars: Julius, sect. 7-18.-C. Miduleton, Life of Ćiveru, dect. z.
B. C. 63.- The conapiracy of Catiline.The conepiracy organized against the senatorial government of Rome hy L. Bergius Catiiina, B. C. 64, owes much of its prominence in Koums history to the preservation of the great speechea in which Clicero exposed it, and hy which he rallied the Roman people to support him in put. ting it down. Cicero wes consul that year, and the official responsibility of the government was on his ahoulders. The central couspiratore were a desperate, disreputable clique of men, who had everything to gain and nothing to lose hy revolution. Behind them were all the discoa. tents and malignant tempers of demoralized and disorganized lione; and still behind these were suspected to be, darkly hidden, the secret la. trigues of men like Cæsar and Crassus, who watched and waited for the explifing breath of the dying republic. Cicero, hiving msde timely discovery of the piot, managed the dis closure of it with great adroitnest and won the support of the people to his proceet nga agsinat the conspirators Catiline made his escape from Roine and placed limself at the head of a small army which his supportera had raised in Etruria; hut he and it were both destroyed in the single battle fought. Five of his fellow. conspiratora were hastily put to death without trial, by bcing etrangled in the Tullianum W. Forayth, Life of Cicero, ch. 8.

Also in A. Trollope, Lifo of Cicero, en 9.A. J. Church, Romaro Life in the Days of Cicero, ch. 7.-Cicero, Orutions (tr. by C. D. Funge), c. 2.
B. C. 63-58.-Increasing disorders in the cap-ital.- The wasted opportunitiea of Pomp: F Hialliance with Ctesar and Crasous.-: in First Triumvirate. - Cesar's consulahip. - Ehis appointmeat to the command in Cisalping Gani.-Exiie of Cicero.-"Recent events had fully demonstrated the impotence of both the Seaate and the democratic party; neither wasstroag enough to defeat the other or to govern the Statc. There was no third party - no class remaining out of which a government might be erected; the only alternative was monarchythe rule of a single person. Who the monarch would be was gtill uncertaln ; though, at the present moment, Pompeius we: clearly the only man in whose power it lay t take up the crown that offcred itself. ... For the moment the question which agitated ali minds was whether Pompeius would accept the gift offered him bs fortune, or would retire and leave the throne racant. - In the autumn of 68 B. C. Quiatus Metellue Nepos arrived in the capital from the camp of Pompeiue, and got himself eiected trihune with the avowed purpose of procuring for Pompeius the command against Catiinas by special decree, and after warde the consulship for 61 B. C. .. The aristocracy at once showed tieeir hostility to the proposals of Metellus, snd Cato had himself elected tribune expressiy for the purpose of thwarting him. But the demo. crats were more pliant, and it waa somn evileat that they had come to a cordial understaading with the general's emissary. Metelius and his master both adoptel the democratic view of the iliegal exceutions [of the Catilinarians]; aad the frat act of Casar's pratorship was to cali Catulus to account for the noness alieged to have been embezzled by him in rebuilding the Capitoline temple and to tranafre the s:iprrintendence of the works to Pompeins. . . . On the day of roting, Cato and another of tie trihunts put their reto upon the proposais of Metellua,

ROME, B. C. 68-58,

The Firnt Tinmcirate.
Cusar is dusul.
HUME: B. C. 5i-52,
Asiatic *A.es. Cresar van eanliy ciected who disregarded it. There were eonflets of the armel banis of both sides, which terminuted in favour of the government. Thic senate followed up the victory by suapending Meteilus and Casar from their offices. Metellus lramediateiy dejarted for the camp of Pompelus; and when Cresar dlsregarded the decree of sumpension agalast hlmself, the Senate hud uitlmately to revole it. Nothing could have been more farourable to the interests of Pompelus than these iate ereats. After the lifegal cxecutions of the Cutiiinarians, and the aets of violence agulnst Detellus, he couid appear at once as the defender of the two pailadla of Roman liberty'- the rlght of appesi, and the invioiability of the tribuaate. and as the champion of the party of order gavalnat the Catilinarian band, But his courage was unequai to the emergeney; he lingered in Asla during the winter of 63-62 B. C., and thus gare the Senatc tine to erush the lnsurrec. tioa in Itair, and deprived himself of a valid pretert for keeping lis iegions together. In the autumn of 62 B. C. He landed at Brundisium, and, dlsbsnding his ariny. proceeded to Rome witb a suali escort. On his arrival in the city ia 61 B . C. he found himself in a position of com. piete isoiation; he was feared by the democrats, hated by the aristocracy, and distrusted by the weaithy ciass. He at once demanded for himself a second consulship, the confirmation of ail his aets In the East, and the fuifiment of the promise he bad made to his soldiers to furnish them with lands. But each of these demands was met with the most determined opposition. . . . His promise of lands to his soldiers was indeed ratitied, but not executed, and no steps were taken to provile the necessary funds and iands. . . . From this disagreeabie position, Pompeius was rescued by the sagacity and address of Casar, who inw la the necessitles of Pompeius the opportu. uity of the democratic party. Ever since the return of Pompelus, Casar had grown rapidiy In intluence and weight. He had been pretor In 82 13. C., aad, in 61, governor in Farther Spain, Where he utillzed his position to free himself frum hls debts, and to lay the foundation of the military position he desired for hlmseif. Returning ia 60 B . C., he readily relinquished his claim to a triumph, In order to enter the elty in time to staad for the consuiahip.

It was quite possible that the aristocracy might be strong enough to defeat the candidature of Cersar, as it had defeated that of Catillna; and again, the consuiahip was not enough; an extraorlinary command, secured to him for several years, was necessary for the fuifiment of his purpose. Without alles such a command couid aot be hoped for: and ailies were found where they had been found ten years before, in Pompeius and Crassus, and in the rich equestrian ciass. Such a treaty was suicide on the napt of P'ompeius; . . . but he had drifted into a sitia tion so awkward that he was giad to be reieased from it on any terms.

The basgain was struck in the summer of $60^{\circ} \mathbf{B}$. C. [forming what hecame known in Roman history as the First Triumtirate]. Cæesar was promised tbe consulslip ind a governorship afterwards; Pompcius, the ratification of hls arrangements in the Esst. and land for his soldiers; Crassus received andefinite equivalent, but the capitaliats were promiscif a remisalon of part of the money they had undertaken to pay for the lease of the consul fir 50 R. C. Ali that the exertions of tie senate ccuid do was to give him an aristocratic colleague in Murcus Bibuius. Casar st once procerded to fultil his obligations to Pompelua by proposlng an agrarian law. All remainlng ltaifan domain innd, which neant practicaliy the territory of Capua, was to tee given up to ailotinents, and other estates in Italy were to be purchased out of the revenuen of the new Ens"ern jurovinces. The soldiers were siaply rece ninendel to the commisaion, and thus the princt. phe of girlng rewards of iund formilitary service was not asserted. The execution of the bill was to be entrusted to 3 commission of $t w e n^{*} \bar{z}$. At length ali these proposais were passed uy the assembly [after rejection by the genate], and the comnission of twenty, with Pompelus and Crassus at their head, began the execution of the agrarian faw. Now that the first victory was won, the coaiition was able to carry out the rest of its programme without much difficuity. It was determined by the confederates that Cesar should he lnvested hy decree of the people witin a special command resembling that lately hedl hy Pompeius. Accordingiy the tribure Vatinius submitted to the tribes a proposal which was at once adopted. By lt Cæsar obtained the goverzorship of Ctaslpine Gaul, and the supreme command of the three legions atationed there, for five jears, with the rank of propretor for hls adjutants. His jurisdiction extended southwards as far as the Rubicon, and Included Luca and Ravenna. Subsequentiy the province of Naibo was added by the Senate, on the motion of Pompelus. . . Cresar had hardly laid down hls consuiship when it was proposed, in the Senate, to annui the Julian iaws [See Julian Laws].

The regente determined to make examples of some of the most determlned of their opponenta." Cicero was acco:-ilngly sent into exile, by a resclution of the tribes, and Cato was appointed to an odious public misslon, which carried him out of the way, to CypruzT. Mommsen, Hist. of tho Roman Ropn hlio (abridged by Bryans and Hendy), ch. 88.

Also IN G. Long, Dectine of the Roman Ro public, c. 3, ch. 17-30.- C Middleton, Lifo of Cicero, sect. 4.-Napoieon III. Hiok of Julive Civert, ch. 3-4.
B. C. 58-51.-Cienar' conquent of GandSee Gavl: B. C. 38-51.
B. C. 57-52.- Effect of Casar's Galle vi-nries.-Return of Clicero from exlloarrangements of the Triumvirs-- Proconculahlp extended. - The Tre-- Law. - Dissster and death of Crassun a. srrhe.- Increasing anerct.g in ithe city."iu Rome the enemies of idasar . . . Were awed into sillence [by his victorious career in Gaui]. and the Senate granted 'he unprecedeated honour of fifteen deys" "al pplicatio" to the gods for the brilliwnt succe ; in Gaul. Among the supporters of this notion was, as Cæsar learnt ln the winter from the msgistrates and senators who came to pay col.rt to him at Ravenna, M. Tullius Cicero. From tiue day of his exile the efforte to eecure hls return had begun. but it wat not until the th of August that the Senate, led hy the congul, P. Leatuius Spinther, carried the motion for his return, in spite of the vloience of the armed gang of Clodius, sud aum-monsd sll the enuntry tribes to crowd the comitia on Campus Martius, and ratify the senstus consuitum. The return of the great orator to the couniry which he hat saved lu the terrihle daya of 63 B . C. Was nore like a triumph than the entranee of a pardonet criminal.
But he had come back on sufferance: the great Three muat be conclifiated. . . . Cicero, like many other optlmates la liome, was looking for the beglanings of a breach between Pompeius, Crassus and Cxsar, and was auxious to nourish any germs of opposltion to the triple-headed moaarchy. He pleaded agalnst Cusar's friend Vatinius, and he gave notlce of a motlon for checking the actlon of the agrarian law in Campania. But these signs of an independent opposition were suduenly terminated by a humlliating recantatlon; for before onteriag upon his third campaign Cessar crossed the Apennines, and appeared at the Roman colony of Lueca. . . . Two hundred senators crowded to the rendezvous, but arrangements were madie hy the Three very independently of Senate hin IRome or Senate In Lucca. It was agreed that Pompelus and Crassus should hold a jolnt consulship again next year, and before the expiration of Cesar's flve years they were to secure his reappolntment for another five.

Unfortunate Cicero was awed, and la bls other speeehes of this year tried to wiu the faror of the great men by supportiag their proposed proviacial arrangemeats, and pleadiag in defenee of Cessar': friead and protége, L. Baibus." In the year 55 B. C. the Treboalan Law was passed, "which gave to Crassus aad Ponnpelus, as proconsular proviaces. Syria aad Spain, for the extraordinary tern of Sve years. In this repented creation of extra. ordinary powers in favor of the el ilition of dyaasts, Cato rightiy saw an end of republicnu institutions. $\qquad$ Crassus $\qquad$ started la 54 B . C., at the head of seven legions, In face of the combiaed opposition of tribunes and augurs, to secure the eastera frontier of Ronian domiuion by ranqulshiag the Parthian power, which, reared oa tho ruins of the kingitoni of the Seleucids, was now supreme iu Ctesiphon and Seleueia. Led iato the desert by the Arab Sheikh Abgarus, acting as a truitor, the Romaa army was surrounded by the fleet Parthian horsemea, who could attack and retreat, shootlng their showers of missiles all the time. In the blinding saad and sun of the desert near Carrhat [oa the river Beiik, one of the branches of the Euphrates, the supposed site of the Haraa of libibicai history], Crassus experieneed a defent whicis took its rank with Cantue and the Arausio. A few days afterwards (June 9th. 83 B. C.) he was murdered ia a eonferenee to whieh the eommanier of the Parthiaa forces invited him. .. The shuck of this event weut through the Romaa world, and though Cassius, the lieutenant of Crassus, retrieved the honour of the Roman arms against tie Purthians in the foliowing year, that agile people remaiaed to the last uncoaquered, and the koman bouadary was never to advaace further to the east. Crassus, thea, was deadi, and Ponpeius, though he lent Cessar a legion at the begi..ning of the year, was more ready to assume the aatural antagoaism to Ciesar, siuce the death of his wife h:ilia in September, 54 B . C., had brokea a strong tie With his father-ia-law. Further, the conditlon of the capital seemed reaehiag a point of anarchy at which Pompeius, as the only strong man on the spot, would 're to be appoiated absolute dictator. In 55 . C. no consuis covid, In the violence and tur. , il of the comitis, bo elected uatil July, and the jear cloned without any elactlons having taben place for 52 B . C. T. Annius Milo, who was a candidate for the consuishlp. and P. Clodlus, who was seekiag the pratorship, turned every street of Rome lato ${ }^{\text {a }}$ gladiatorlal arena." In January Clodius wa kililed. "Pompeius was waltiug ln his ner gardens near the Porta Carmentalis, until: despairing government should Invest him with dictatorinl puwer; he was altogether con timld and too const thenal to seize It. But with Cato In Rome no ulic ciared mention the word dictator. Pompelus, disappolnted, wat named mole coasul on the 4th of Fehruary [B. C. 62], and by July he had got as hls colleagne his new father-inlaw, Metellus."-R. F. Horton, Iliat. of the Romane, ch. 29.

Also in W. Forsyth, Life of Cicero, ch. 18-16 (c. 1-2).-C. Dterivale, The Roman Triumti. rutes, ch. 8.-G. Ilawlinson, The Sixth Great Oriental Monarchy, ch. 11.
B. C. 55-54.-Cesar's invasions of Britain. - See Britain: B. C. $55-54$.
B.C. 52-50.-Rivalry of Pompelin and Czaar. - Approach of the crisis.-Cesar'a legions ia motion towards the capital. - "Cusar had loag ago resolved upon the overthrow of Pom. pey, as had Pompey, for that matter, upmn his. For Crassus, the fear of whom had hitherto kept them in peace, having now been kiiied la Parthia, If the oae of them wished to make himseif the greatest man in Rome, he had only to orerthrow the other; and li he agaln wlisiell to prerent his own fali, he had nothiag for it hut to be be forehand wlth limm whom he feared. Pumpes hatl not been long vader any sueh apprcifea. sions, haring till lately despisel Cassar, as thinklng it no diftheult matter to put dowa hin whom he inimself had adranced. But Ceesar had futertaiaed this design from the begini.ing against lis rivals, and had retired, like an expert wrestler, to prepare himself apart for the combat. Making the Gallic wars his exerclec-ground, he had at oncc lmproved the streagth of his soldiery, aud had helghteaed his own glory by his creat aetions, so that he was looked on as one who might ehalleage comparison with Pompey. Nur did he let $\mathrm{g}^{0}$ any of those advantages which were now givea him, both by Pompey hiuself and the times, and the 111 governmeat of home, where all who were candidates for office publicly gave money, and without any shame bribed the people, who, having recelved their pay, did uot coatend for their benefactors with ihcir bare suffrages, but with bows, swords aad slinys So that after haring many times staluel the place of eiection with the blood of meu kiiied upua the spot, they left the city at last without a government at all, to be carried about like $s$ ship without a piot to steer her; while ali who had any wisdom could only be thankful if s course of such wlid aud stormy disorder and madness might end ao worse that in a munareby. Some were so bold as to declare openly that the govermment was Incurable but by a mumarchy, and that they ought to take that remedy from the hauds of the geatlest physician, meaniag Pompey, who, though in words he pretended to

ROME, B. C. 52-50.

Corsen the Rubleon.
ROME, B. C. $50-49$.
decline it, yet in reality made his utmost eftorts to he declared dictator. Cato, perceiving his dealgn, prevailed with the Senate to make Gim mole consul [B. C. 82], that with the offer of a more legni sort of monarchy he might be withheil from demanding the dictatorship. They over 3 ml ubove voted him the continuance of his provincery, for he had two, Spain and all Aifiea, which he governed by his lieutenants, and main. tained arinies under him, at the yearly charge of $s$ thonsand talents out of the public trensury. Cpoa this Cresar aiso sent and petitioned for the consulshlp, and the continuance of his provinces. Pomper at first did not stir in it, but Mnrceihis sul Lentuins opposed it, who had always hated Crusr, and now did everything, whether fit or untit, whleh might dilsgraee and nifront him. For they took away the prisllege of IRoman citizens from the people of New Comum, who were a colony that ciesar had lately pianted In Gaul; and Jarcelius, who was then consul, ordered one of the senators of that town, then at Rome, to he Whipped [B. C. 51], and told him he laid that mark upon him to signify he was no citizen of Rome, bldding him, when he weit back agnin, to show it to Cresar. After Marcelins's consulohip. Crear began to lavish gifts upon all the publie men out of the riches he had taken from the Gauis; discharged Curio, the trihune, from his great dehts ; gave Pauius, then consul, 1,500 taleats, with which he huilt the nobie court of justice adjoinlng the forum, to supply the place of tiui cailed the Fulclan. Pompey, alarmed at these preparatlons, now openly twok steps, both by hiuself and his friends, to have a successor sppoiated in Ciesar's room, and sent to tiemand back the somilers whom he hadi lent him to carry oa the wars in Gaul. Cresar returned them, anil made ench soldler a present of 250 drachmas. The ollicer who brouglit them home to Punpes. sproul amongst the people no very fair or favorsie report of Ciesar, and flattered Pompey him. gelf with false suggestions that he was wished for he Cesar's army; and though his atfairs hero were in some embarrassment through the envy of some, and the ili state of the government, yet there the army was nt his command, and if they once crossed into Italy, would presentiy deciure for him; so weary were they of Cusar's endless expeditions, and so suspicious of hls deslgns for a monarchr. Upon this Pompey grew presump. tuous, and ncgiected ail wurlike preparatlons, as fearing bo dauger.
let the demands which Cissar made hai the fairest colors of equity imagiathe. For he proposed to lay down hits arma, aul that Ponpey should do the same, und buth together shoulif become private men, and each expecta rewarl of his services from the pubiic. Fur that those who proposeri to disarm hin, soll at the same time to contirm Pompey in ail the power he helli, Were simpiy establishing the one ia the tyranng which they accused the other of aimiar nt . When Curio mide these proposals to thi perpule in Cresar's name, he was foudle ap. platuled, and some threw garlands towards him, sal diminsid him as they din successful wrest. lers, crow red with flowers. Autons, being tribune, prodnced a fetter sent from Cesar on this oceision, nad remi it, thongh the eomsuls did Whal they cotid to opmase it. But Scipur, I'ourpers' father-la-law, jromesed in the s-mate, that if Ciesar thi not lay cown his arms within such a time, he should be voted an enemy; and the conmuls putting it in the queation, whether Pompey should dismlss his woiderp, and again, whether viesar shouid dishand his, very fow masented to the first, hut almost ail to the latter. lut Antong proposing again, that both shouid luy down their commisalons, all hut a verw fer agreed to lt . Sciplo wan upon this very violedt. nnd Lentulins the consul cried sioud, that tney had need of arms, and not of suffrages, against a robber: so that the senators for the present adjourned, and appeared in mourning as a mark of their grief for the dissenslon. Afterwards there came other letters from Cosar, which seemed yet more moderate, for he proposed to quit everything eise, and only to retain Gaul within the Aips, Hlyricum, and two iegions, tili he shouid stanil a second tlme for consui. Cicero, the orator, wha was lately returned from Cilleln, endeavored to reconcile differences, and softened Pompey, who was willing to comply in other things, hut not to allow him the soliciers. At last Cicero used his persuaslons with Caesar's friends to accept of the provinces and 6.000 soldlers only, and so to make up the quarrel. And Pompey was incliner to give way to this, but Lentuhus, the eonsui, would not hcarken to it, bit drove Antong and Curio out of the sen. ate-house with insuits, hy which he afforded Cresar [then at Ravenna] the most plausible pretence that could be, and one whleh he could rendily use to inflane the soldiers, hy showing them two persons of auch repute and authority, who were forced to escape in a hired carriage in the dress of sinves. For so they were glad to disguise themselves, when they thed out of Rome. There were not about him at thnt time [Jovem. her, 13. C. 50] ahove 800 horse, and 5,000 foot: for the rest of his army. Which was ieft behind the Mips, was to be brotight after him ly othecers Who hai received orders for that purpose. But ite thought the tirst motion towards the design which he had on foot did not requlre large forces at present, and that mhat was wanted was to make thls first step sudienly, anil so as to astound hls enemies with the boldness of it. ... Therefore, he commnnded his captains and other ofteers to go only whit their swords in their hands, without any other arms, and make themselves masters of Ariminum, a large city of Gaul, with ns iittie disturbance nntl blomlshed as possible. Ile conmitted the eare of these forces to Hortensius, and himseif spent the day in public as a stander-lig nad spectator of the gladiators, who exercised before him. A littie before night he attended to hlsjuerson, and then went into the hali, and eonversed for sume time with those he hati invited to supper, till it began to grow dusk, when he rose from table, and made bis excuses to the company, begging thein to stay tili he came back, having alrealy given private diractions to a few immediate friends, that they should follow hin, not ail the same way, but some one way, some nother. He himself got into one of the hired carriages, and drove at first nnother way, buk presently turned towards Arimiaum." - Piutarch, Cipmer (Clough's Dryden's trans.)

Alsus in Ciesur, Commentaries on the Ciril llier. bl: 1, ch. 1-8-T. Arnohi. Hist. of the Later lio man (imиm"mucalth. ch. 8 ( $c, 1$ ).
B. C. 50-49.-Ciesar's passage of the Rubi-con.-Fiight of Pompeius and the Consuis from Italy.-Casar it the capital.-' Ahint ten miles frum Ariminum, ani twice that disance over to Dyrrhachlum in Illyris with a part of his ariny, and foliown with the remalnder as soon as Ciesur is at his heels. Camar make an elfopt t" intercept hlun and his fleet, hut In thas te fatis. Thus Hompey deserts Rome and ltair.and never again sees the imperial city or the fair land. Cetar explains to us why lue done aot fullow his eucmy and endeavour at once tar at an end to the struggle. Pompey is provilin with sinppligg and he is not; and he ls aware that the force of Rome lies lu her provinces. Morcover, lome may be starved hy Pompey, unless he, Cimar, can take care that the corn-gruwing eountries, which are tise granaries of liome, are left freo for the use of the city."-A. Troilope, The Commentaries of Cirarar, ch. 9. -Turalng back from Brindisium, Casar procecded to Rume to tnke possession of the seat of government which his enemies lud abandoned to him. He wa scrupilous of legal forms, and, being a proroa. sui, holdilng military command, did not enter the elts in person. But he calied together, outside of the walis, auch of the senutors as ware in Rome and sucb as could be persuaded to riturn to the clty, and obtalned their formal sunctlon to various acts. Among the measurcs so anthorized wins the appropriation of the sacred treasure stored up in the vaulta of the temple of Saturn. It was a consecrated reserve, to he used fur no purpose except the repelifng of a Gailic invasfon - whicis had been, for many generntions, the ereatest dread of Rome. Cuesar clamed it, because he had put an end to that fenr, by conquering the Gauls. Hls stay nt lume oa tilis occasion (Aprli, B. C. 49) was brief, for he needed to make haste to encounter the Poupplaa legions In Spain, and to secure the submission of ali the west before lie followed Pompelus tato the Eastern Forld.-G. Long, Dheline of the Roman Republic, v. 8, ch. 1-4.

Also in J. A. Froude, Craur, ch. 21

B. C. 49.-Ceaar's firat campaign agaiast the Pompeians in Spain.-His conquest of Massilia. -Iu Spain, ali tbe atrong forces of the country were commanded hy partlsmis of Pom. peius and the Optimate party. ('assar had airendy scnt forward C. Fahius from Southera Gaui with three legions, to take possession of the passes of the lyrenees and the principal Spanish roads. Foliowing quickiy ln person, he fouad that his orders had been vigorousty obered. Fablus was confronting the Pompeian gencrais, Afranius and Petreius at Ilerda (modern Lerida in Catalonia), on the rirer Slcoris (modern Segre), where they made thel stund. They had five legions of weli-trained veterans, besides natire nuxiliaries to a eonsiderabie number. Casar's army, with the reinforcements that he had added to it, was about the same. The Pompeians had every advantage of position, commanding the passage of the river by a permanent bridge of stone and drawiug supplies from both banks. Ciesar, on the other hand, bsd grest dithculty la maintaining his communications, and was placed in mortal perii bs a sudden flood wbicb destroyed his hridges. Iet, without ang general hastle by pure strategic skill and by resistiess energy, he forced the hostile army out of its advar tageous position. intercepted its retreat and come pelled an unconditional surrender. This spaniah campaign, whieh occupled hut forty days, and which was decisive of the contest for all Bpain, was one of the tinest of Caessr's military schievements. The Greek city of Massilis (modern Marseliles), atill nomlanaliy lodependent and the silf of Rome, although surrounded by the Jroman conquests $\ln$ Gsul, had seen at to range itself on the slde of Pompeius and the Optlmates, and to close lte gates in the face of Capar, when be net out for his campaign in Spsin. Ite had not hesitated to leave three legions of has moderate army before the city, while he ordered a fieet to he hullt at Areiates (Arien), for cooperation In the sirge. Decimis Brutus commanded the fleet and Trehonlus was the general of the land force. The siege was made notabie by remarkable en. giacering operations on both sides, but the courare of the Masniliots was of no long enduranee. When Cusar returned from his Spanish campaiga he found them ready to surrender. Notwithstanding they had been gullty of a great act of treachery during the siege, by breaking an armastice, lie apared their city, on account, he agili, of its name and antiquity. His anldiers, who had expected rich bontr, were offended. and a diangerous muting, which occurred som afterwarils at Placentia. had this for its main provication.-Cesar, The Ciril liar, bk. 1, ch. $3 b \rightarrow i$, thl bk. 2, ch. 1-22.
Ation is $G$. Long, Jerline of the Roman Repuh. lif. r. 5. ch. 5 and 8.-C. Merivale, Jiat. of the Rominna, ct. 15-18.
B. C. 48.-The war in Eplrus and Thessaiy. - Cresar's decisive victory at Pharsalia. -ilirlag estahished his authority In Italy, Gnui and Spaiu, and having iegailzed ft by procuring fram the assembiy of the Roman eftizens his formal clection to the coasulship, for the year A. C. FOn (B. C. 48). Casar prepared to follow Punpeius and the Senatorial party acrosa the Airiatic. As the calendar then atomi, it was in January that he arrived at Brundisium to take ship: but the seasnn correaponded with Noventber ia the calendar an Cresar, himself, correcteri it sonn afterwaris. Tbe vessels at his command were so few that he could transport onlv 15,500 of his tropps on the first expedition, and it was with that number that he landed at Paisste on the coast of Eplrus. The sea was pwarming with the fieets of bis pncmies, and, slthouzh he escaped them In going. his smali squadion was eaught on the return voyage and many if its shipa destroyed. Moreuper, the Pomipelan erulsers became so vigilant that the arcond det chment of his army, left behind at Brundisilu... under Marcus Antonius, found no npportuaity to follow him until the winter had nearly passed. Meantime, with his small force, Cesar proceeded boldly into Macelonla to confront Pompelus, reducing fortresses and oceupplug towns as be marched. Althougb his great antagonist had been gathering troops in Macedonia for montbs, and now numbered an army of some 90.000 or 100,000 men, ' $t$ was Cresar. not Pompeins, who pressed for a battle, even luffre Mark Antony had joined hing. As somn as the junction had occurred he pushed the enemy with all possible vlgor. But Pompelus had no conticience in bis untrained bost. He drew hia Whole army into a strongly fortifled. Immense (amp, oa the sen coast near Dyrrhachium, at a mint cnilcy Petra, and there be defied Casar to :UnIze hitm. The latter undertook to wall him in on the land side of his camp, by a line of ramparts ani towers serenteen miles in length. It was an uadiertaking ton great for his foren.

Pompeius made a suldin flank novement which disconcerted ail his pisnm, anil so defented and demorallzed his men that he was placed in extreme perli fur a tlme. Ilsd the Senatorlal chief shown haif of Cemar's energy at that critical moment, the cause of Casar would prohably have been lost. ijut Pompeius and his party tonk time to rejoice over their victory, whilo Cresar framed pians to repair his defeat. IIo promptly alandened his lines lwfore the enems's camp snd feli back into the interior of the country, to form a junctlou witit certaia troopn which he bad previousiy ent castwarl to meet recnforcements then coning to Pompeius. He calculated that Pompelus would follow him, and Pompeluas didmo. The resuit was to give Casar, at last, the opportunity he had heen speking for months, to confront with his tried leginna the motler levies of his antagouist on an open field. The deeislve and ever mennorahle hattle was fought in Thessaly, on the pinia of Pharsalia. through whieh thows the river Enipeua, and overlooking whici, froin a moutigunus height, stoox ancientiy the city of Pharsmlus It was fought on the 8th of August, In the gear 48 before Christ. It was a battle quiekly ended. The font-soidiers of Pumpelus nut-numbered those of Casar at least as two to one; but they could not stand tbe eharge which the intter made upon them. ifis eavalry was iargely eomposed of the young nobility of Rome, and Ciesar had few horsemen with which to meet them; but he set egainst them a strong reserve of his athily ruterans on foit, and they broke the horsemen's ranks. Tie defeat was speedily a rout; there was un ralling. Pompcins flon with a fere atteuclants nol made his way to Aicxandria, where his trapient fate overtoxik hia. Rome of the other leaders escaped in difereat direetions. Some, like Brutus, suthmitted to Cresar, who was praetically the master, from that hour, of the Roman realm, although Thapsus had atli to be fougbt.-Cilsar, The Ciril Hi॥r, H. 3.
Also in W. W. Fowler, Julius Cirair, ch. 16G. Long. Decline of the Roman Repmblic, c. 5, ch. 10-17.-T. A. Doige, Cisar, ch. 31-35.
B. C. $\mathbf{4}^{8-47}$ - Pursuit of Pompeiua to Egypt.-Hia assassination.- Casar at Alezandria, with Cleopatra. - Tbe riaing agaiant him.-Hia perii.-His deliverance.
See Alexandria: B. C. 48-47.
B. C. 47-46.-Cesar's overthrow of Pharnaces at Zeia. - His return to Rome. - The last atand of bia opponenta in Africa.- Their defeat at Thapsua. - At the time when Cersar was in a difficult position at Alexandria, and the suhjects of Rome were generaliy uncertain as to Whether their roke would be broken or not by the pending ciril war, Pharnaces, son of the ranquished Pontic king, Mithridates, made an effort to recover the lost kingdom of bis fatber. He bimself had been a traitor to bis fatber, and bad been rewariled for his treason by Pompeius, who gave him the small kingdom of Bosporus, ln the Crimea. Ife now thought the moment favorable for regaining Pontus, Cappadocia and Lesser Armenia. Casar's licutenant in Asia Minor, Domitius Calrinus, marched against him Fith a small force, and was badly defeated at Nicopolis (B, C. 48), in Armenia Minor. As a consequence, Cessar, on being extricated from Alexandria, could not return to Rome, although Ala affalre there sorely needed him, untll he had rectorel the lioman authority in Asla Minor. As zoon as he could rrach Pharnaces, although hla army wha mail In numlers, he atruck and shattered the thany throne at a ingle blow. The hattle was fought (B. C. 4\%) at Zela, in Pontun, where Mithridaten had once galned a Fletory over the llomana. It was of this battle that Cimar Is sald to have written his famous ' H ni, rifli, rici.' " Plutarch says that this ex. presslon was used in a letter to one Anuintins; the name is probalits a mintake. Suctorling asserts that the threce words were lnecribed oi a banner and carrled in ('imar's trlumpli, Appian and Dion refer to them as notorlous. "- C. Neri. vale, Hist. of the Romums, ch. 18. - After vefentlog Pharnaces at Zela, destroylng his army, "Crear passed on through Galatha and Bithernia to the province of Asla pruper, settling affulrs In every centre; and learlng the fulthful NithFilate [of Perganum - Nee Alemixnmia: IB. C. $48-4$ i] with the title of Klog of the Bos. phorus, au a gurantee for the securlty of these provinces, he salled fir Italy, and arrivell at Tarentum before any one was aware of his ap. proach. If he had realify wasted time or loat energy in Egypt, he was making up for It now. On the way irom Tarentum to Brundisium he met Clecro, who had been waiting for hitm here for nearly a gear. IIe ailghtel, enliraced hls old frlend, and walked with hlm anme distance. The result of their tilk was shown by Clecrios conduct for the rest of Ciesar's llfetime; he retired to hls villus, and sought rellef in literary work, encouraged donbtless by Casar's ardent pralse. The magleal effect of Ciesar's presence was felt throughout Italy; all sellition ceased. and lome. which had been the scene of rot and blowlshed under the uncertaln rule of Antonius, was quiet In an lnstant. The master spent three monthe in the clty, workling hard. IIe had been a second time appointed dictator while he was In Egypt, and probably without any llmit of tlme, space or power: and he acted now whthout scruple as an nhsolute monarch. Eversthing thnt had to be done he saw to himelf. Money was ralsed, bllls were passed. the Nenate recrulted, maglatrates and provinclal governors appointed. But there wal no time for nny attempt at permanent organlsatlon; he must wrest Africa from hls enemies. . . Me guelleda most gerious minting, In whlch even hls fnithful tenth legion was concerned, with all hls wonderfuI sklll and knowletge of human nature; sent on all avallable forces to Silcily, and arrlved hlinself at lillybeum ln the midile of Decomber."-W. W. Fiwler, Julius Ciparar, ch. 17.-The last stand of Cessir's opponents as a party - the senatu, rial party. or the republicant, as they are sontethmes called - was male in Africa, on the old Cirthaglnlan territory, with the city of titar for their hendquarturs, and with Juba, the Numidian king, for thelr active ally. Varus, who hand hedd his ground there, dufe:itiag and slaytur Ciesaris friend Curin, wis juinef tirst by sipplo, afterwarls by Cato, lahinnas and other lealers, Cato having let a wonderful marelt through the desert from the Liner. sertis. In the courso of the frar of respite frim pirmit which ciesur's occupathons ofsewhere allawert theme ther gatheretl and organized a formuldable arms. It was near the end of the yemp tif B. $\mathrm{C}^{\circ}$. that Ciesar nsesembled his forces at Lilyhreum, In Sicily, and ealled with the firat detachmeat for Africa is happened so often to him is his bokl nathary adventures, the tropps which should follow were delayed hy storms, and he was expowed to Imminent peril thefore they arrived. But he unc. cceded ' n fortifying and malntalcing a ponition on the enast, near Ruppina, until they came. As moon as thicy reached him he oflered battle tis hls adverasics, and found presently an opportunlty to force the fighling upon theia st Thapsus, a coast town In their possesalon, which lie attacked. The battle was decleded hr the trat charge of Cwar's leglouarles, which inept everything - foot-moldicie, ca ralry and el phonat - before ft. The victors In their ferorlty gave $n 0$ quarter and slanghtered 10,000 of the enemy. While losing from thelr own ranks hut fifty niea. The declalve battle of Thapsus was fouglit na the 6th of Aprll, B. C. 46, uncorrected calendinr, or Feb. 6th, as corrected later. Sclpio, the cum. mander, fled to Npain, was intercepted on the rogage, and ended hls own life. The hlgh. minded, stolcal Cato commltted suiclde at titia, rather than surrender his freedom to Ciesar. Juha, the Numblian klng, likewlse deatroyed himself In clespair; his klagdom was extingulshed and Niv:nulia became a Rumaa prorlnce. A few scattered leaders of revolt ath illoputed Casar's supremacy, hut hla power was firmly tixed. - A. Illitius, the Africin Wiar.

Alan in G. Long, Deeline of the Roman Ripus. lic, v. 5, ch. 2t-27.
B. C. 45-Cesar's last campalgnagainat the Pompelana In Spaia, - Hia victory at Munda. - Aiter Thapsus, Casar had on more dendly and desperate hattle to fight for his sovercignty over the dominlons of Rome. Cnieus Pompelus, son of Pompclus Magnus, whth Labienus and Varns, of the survirors of the African fleth, had found dlsaffection In SpaIn, out of whlech thry drew an army, with Pompelus $\ln$ commaal. Cesar marched In person agalnst thle new revolt, crossing the Alps and the Pyrenees with his customary celerity. After a number of mlaor engagements had been fought, the declalve bsttlo occurred at Munda, In the valley of tise Gu. lab. quiver (modern Mlonia, between Ronda and Malnga), on the 17 th of March, 13. C. 45. $\because$ Never, It ls sald. was the great conqueror brought so near to defeat and destructlon;" hut he win the day in the end. and only sextus Pompelus survived among the leaders of his cnemles. The dend on the field were 30,000 .Commentary on the Spanizh War.
A1.so in C. Merivale, Mitt. of the Bmume, ch. 19. - (t. Long, Difline of the Roman Repultic, r . $5, \mathrm{ch} .30$.
B. C. 45-44.-The Soverelgnty of Cesar and hia titles.-His permanent Imperatorship.Hia unfulgiled projects. - "At llume. eflicisl enthusiasm hurst forth anew at the thinges if these successes [in Spaln]. The senate derernd fifty dnys of supplicutlons, and reregnituod (iesar's right to extend the ponnrlum, shace he had extended the limits of the Empire.
After Thapsis he was more than a demi godi: after Munda he was a gorl altogether. A statue was ralsed to him In the temple of Quirinus with the Inserlitiou: ' To the invincible Gonl, and a college of priests the Jolian, was consecrated to him. .. On the 13 th scutember the dicts. tor appenred at the gates of Imme. but he thid not trlumph till the beginning ni October. Thle tine there was no barbarian klig of chleftain t. :ell the vletories won over citizens. Hut Creme thoutht he had no longer need to keep up onch conolderntlon; slnew he was now the sinte, his enemles, whatever aame they bore, must bo armles of the Stato. . . It was expected that Ciesar, having auftered oo many outragea, woull now punish neverely, and t'cero, who had alwaye doubted his elemeney, lreliered that tyraany would break out as oon as tho tyrant was abore fear. IBrit jealousles. recolleetlons of party atrifes, illil not reach to he helght of f'rear.

BOME, A. C. 4-4
estored the statuen of Syiln; he replas of Pompey on the rontra.
ple jationed Cassius, who had tried to masassin: ste him, the consuluris Marcellis who had stirred up war against him, and Quintua Ligariua who had betrayed him in Africu. As a temporary precauthon, howerer, lie ferbade to the I'ompelsas, by alex Ilirtin,' aduinuleu to the magiatracy. For his anthorlty, Crear somght no new forins. -. Senate, eomitin, magiat rueles exinterl as hefore: but he ecutred pubile wetion ia himself alone by eombining in hia own hands all the repibilcan offices. The inst rument whieh Capar used in order to gi, e to hls power legal aactlon was the Senate. In former tlmes. the general, after the triutnph, faid amile hla title of imperator a wi lmperhun, which inchule 1 aboulute authority over the apmy, the Julicial department atit the aln. 'olstrative power; Cirnar, by a decree ef the senate, retalned both during llfe, whth the right of druwing freely from the trensury. Ills dictatorship and his othee of prafectua morum were declared perpetual; the consulshlp was offered hin for ten gears, hut he would not accept it; the Senate whed to Join executive to electural authorlty by offerlag him the right of appointurnt in ail eurule and plebeian offlees; lie risurscol for himaelf mercly the privilege of aomanating half the maglatricy. The Senate hal eajoinel the members chosen to swear, before ehtoring on oftlee, that they would under. take authing eontrary to the dletitor's metr, these hariag the furce of law. Further, they gave to his persull the legal inviolabillty of the tribunes, sait ia oriler to ensure 1t, knights and senators offenil to serve as guaris. While the whole Seate towk an oath to watch over hils safety. To the ratity of joswer were added the ont ward ligns. In the Senate, at the thentre. in the circus, on his tribunal, he sat, dressed In the royal ruls. oa a throne of gold, and hls efligy was atamped on the eolns, where the Roman maglstrates hail not yet rentured to engrare more thim thoir uames. They eren went as far as talkind of strecession, as In a regular monarchy. Ilis title of lmperator and the soverelgn pontificate Were transmissible to hls legitimate or molopted chililren.

> Ciear was not decrived by the socret jerfily whleh prompted such servilitios, and he valided then as they deserved. But his eneanies found lit them fresh romsons for hating the great man who had saved them.

The Scuate bat . . sunk from fis ehar. actur of supreme councll of the Republie Into that of a comnitter of consultation, which the mabter nften forge to consmitt. The Civil war lad decimated it; Cessar appointed to it brave soldiers even sons of freedmen who hal serred him well, and a eonslderable number of provin. cials, Spaniards, Gauls of Gallia Narbonensis,

Who had long been Romans. IIe had so many eervices to reward that ha Beaste resched the number of $\mathbf{$ 0} 0$ inembers. One thay the Ben. ate weat in a borly the temple of Venus Cleaetrix to present to Crear eertala decrees drawn up In his honor. The demi.gol waslil and dared nut lesve his coush. Thls was Imprudent, for the report spread that he hail not ilnigned to rlse.

The higher nubles remaineil spart, not from honours, but from power; hut they forgot neither I'harmalla not Thapmis. They would have eonsentel to obey on condltlon of having the appearance of commaniling. Thls tleguined ohedlence is for an able government more convenient than enitwaril nervility. A few eonces. elons maile to vanity olutain trancuil possesslon of power. Thla was to pulles of Alugustus, but it in not that of great amblilons or of a true statesman. These pretenees leave everything doubtful; nothing is settletl and Ciessar wisheif to lay the foundatione of a govermment which shonk lring a new oriter of things out of a eloung of ruins. Cinleas we are paying too nuch atteution to mere ancelotea, he dewlred the royal diniern.

It is dillicult not to bellere that Crisar consliterei the constituting of a monarchical power as the rational wellevement of the revolition whleh he was earrylng out. In this wis we could explain the prosistence of hls frlends In offerlng him a iltle otlous to the lumuna, who were quite ready tr, accept a numarch, but not monarchy. . . . In order to attain to this royal title . . Se must nount still highor, anil this new greatness he would serk in the Fast. . . . It was meet that he shenhld whe out the secomi nultary hmmbliaten of Rume after effaclng the first: that he should avenge Crassus. "-V. Durus, Minf. "f lieme, ch. 58. Sct. 2-3 (r. 3). - Ciesar was burn to du great things, and hum a passion after honor. . It Was In fact a sort of cmulous struggle with himself, as it hat heen with another, how lie ulght outdo hils past actions by hls future. In pursitt of those thonghts he resilved to inake war mpon the Parthinas, and when he had sululued them, to pass through Ilyranla: thence to mareh along by the Cisplan Sea to Donnt Cutucasus, and so on about Pontus, tili he eame futo sies. this: then to overrun all the eountries boriering upon Germany, and Germany Itself; and so to return through Ganl into ltaly, after eompleting the whole cirele of his Intemided empire, and hounding lt on evers side br the ocean. Wblle prepirations werc making for this expeditlon, he pruposed to dig through the Istbmua on which Curinth stanils; an! appointed Anienus tosmper. Intend the work. Jle hind alvo a deslgn of divertIng the Tilmer, and carrylng lt by a deep ehannel dircetly from linme to Circeit, and so Into the son near Tarracla, that there might be a safe anif casy pasage for all merchants who traded tul Rame. Besides thls, be intended to draln all the marslies hy Pomentium and Setla, and gadn ground enough from the water to emplor many thousinds of men in tlilsge. He proposed further to make great mounds on the shore nearest lRome, to hinder the sea from breaklng In upon the land, to elear the eoast at Ostia of all the bldden rocksand shoals that made It unanfo for shipping, and to form ports and harbors fit:o reecire the large number of vessels that wonld] frequent them. These things were designed without being carried Into effect; but his reformation of the calendar [see Cazexpan. Julian], In order to rectily the irrigularity of time, wan not only projectenl with yreat melentite lagenuity. but was brought eo fit completion, and pruved of refy great uce."-Plutarch, Cimar (Cloughis Dryden's itane.).

ROME, B. C. 45-4.

Alion in T. Mommeen, Hiat, of Romo, bk. B, eh. 11, with note.
B. C. 44.-The Asmasilation of Cesar,"The queation of the $k \operatorname{lng}$ uhip wan over; but a rague alarm had been ereated, which annwerenl the purpues of the Optimater. Ceear was at their meres any day. They hal eworn tomaintainall his acta. They had sworn, nfter Clecris npeceh, Indivddualls and collectively to defend his life. Creanr, whether he befleved them *) ncere of not, had taken them at thelr worll, und came dalls to the Renate unarmed and with.

- a guart.
. . .

There were an trowipa in
Hy. Lepidus, Carar's manter uf the horse, $w$ - had been appointed governor of Onul, was outside the gates with a few eohorta; but Lephlus was a perain of feeble charueter. nnd they trusted to we able to deal with him. Sixty meastors, In all, were partles to the Immeilintic conspiraer. Of theme, nine tentis were members of the old faction whom Ciearar had pardomelt, and who, of aft hls aets, remented most that he had been able to pardon them. They were the men who had staged at home, like Cicero, from the fields of Thapaus and Munda, nnd had pretended pentence and suhmiosiou that they inght take an ceasier read to ral themsilves of their enemir. Their motlves were the aniblition of their order and permunl hatred of Cassar; lamt they persuaded themselves that they were andnatied hy patrlotlsm, and as, in thelf hands, the H.phblle had been a mockery of Hiberty, mo they ained at restoring it he a moxk egranniclde. One man only ther wire nble to atract inte cooperation wion hat a reputation for houesty, and could be conceived, without alsurilty, to be aulmated hy $n$ disinterested purpose. Marcus Brutus was the son of Cato sister Servilla, the friend, and a scantal alil the miatress, of Creshr. That he was Ciesaris son was not too ahsurd for the credulity of Roman drawligg-rooms. Brutus hinself could not have belleved in the existence of such a Pelatlous, for he was deeply nttached to his mother; and although, under the litiuence of hls uncle Cato, he had inken the Senate's shde In the war, be had acceptell after wards not pardon only from Cessar, but farors of many kinds, for Whatch he hal professel, and prohably felt, some real gratitule. . . Brutus was perhaps the anl: nuember of the aenatorial party in whom selt genulne contldence. flin known and Casar's acknowledged regard for his accesslon to the conspiracy an rtieular importance. . .. Brutua, upon, became with Casslus the min a the cause which nssumed the aapect to nim of a saerell duty. Behind them were the erowd of senators of the familiar factlon, and others worse than they, who had not even the exeuse of having been partlsans of the beaten cause ; men who had fought at Cuesar's slile till the war was over, and belleved, llke Lablenus, that in them Cexsar ored his fortune, and that he alone ought not to reap the harvest.

The Ides of Jarch drew near. Cresar was to set out In a few days for Parthia. Deel.
mus Brutue wan golng, wa governop, th the morih of laly, lepplinn to thaul, Mareus Ifrutus to Macedunis, and Treboulua to Anla MInos. Antong. Cirmar's culleague in the consulwhip, was to remais in Italy. Dolabella, ('Irerois wina ino faw, wain to lo consul with him an muill as ('remar ahomild have left for the Fiast. The fipelan appuintmentes were all made for tice gearn, and ia another wrek the party would be mallifetl. The time for action had come, If acthou tharo was to be. $\qquad$ An important necellag if the seunte hail beeri callind fore the ldes (the lith) of the month. Tbe Pontitices. It wan whiperil, Intended to hring on again the gleathen of the Kingahip brforec'nnar'mie parture. The cercuver wontd he appropinate. The senate bouse ifeif was a cous rentent acene of operations. The cina. apiratury net at supper the evenlug befire at Canelusin home. Clcero, to his regret, wis ant insitiol. The plan was almple, and was raplaly arranged. Catar woull atteud unarmme. The Gimatury not in the secret woild be muarmand alm. The party who intended to act were to provide themselves whth pminards, which reubt be canily concenied In thelr paper boses. Sin far all wan sluple: but a question rome whither Cusar only was to to killed, or whether Autony and Lepldue were to be dispatchetl aloukg with hin. They dectied that Chesar's deatly would be sumbleat.

Alitony and Idildus wero not to be touched. For the rest the aswashe had murely to be in their places In the sivats In gean time. Wheu Casar cutered. Tretnmlus was to detaln Antony In conversation at the dours. The others were to gather alout Cnmmr's chalr on pretence uf presenting a pethlum, and so coull make an end. A gang of gladliturs wero to be secreteyl in the ailjoining thraltr to bo ready should any nuforeseen diflleulty fresent Itself.

Atrange ntorles were tuld luafter gears of the uncusy laturs of the cioments that ulght. . . Cailpurnin dreaut her husbaad was murdered, anil that she saw hitu ase ending Into beuven. and recelved by the haud of thod. In the morning (Mareh (5th) the sacriticts were agalu unfavorable. Cipsar was reatlese. siome natural droblet a, zcted his apitits, aul his aplites were reatilay ou hls bexly. (ionirary w hls usual hubit, he gave way to deprossinu. Il e declded, at his wife's entreaty, that be would not attend the Senate thit day. The house wha full. The conspirators were in their places with their daggers ready. Atterndanta came in to remove Casar's chalr. It was nanounced that he was not coming. Delay might be futal. They conjectured that he already suspected somethiug. A day's resplte, and all mpht be discovered. His famlliar friend whom he trusted -the colneldence is striking was emplored to betray hlm. Decinus Brutus, Thom li was lmposssble for him to distrust, went to entreat hls attendance.

Casar showk of hil uneaslness, and ruse to go. As he crossel the hall his statue fell nid shlvered on the stones. Some servant, perhaps, had heard whlspers, snd wished to warn hlm. As he melll passull (in, a stranger thrust a acroll Into his hand, and berged hlm to read it on the spot. It coutalned a list of the conspirators, with a clear account of the plot. Il suppused it to he a petition and fiaced It earelessly among hls other papers. The iate of the Emplre hung upon a thread, but ths thread was not hroken.

Casar entered
sed took his seat. Ills preseace awed men, in upite of themelves, and the coaspirnton had determined to art at once, leet they should lone courare to aet at all. Ho was famillar and cany of aceen. They gathered round hlm. . . . One had a story to tell himp another some favor to ak. Tullus Cimber, whom the had just mate governor of Bithynia, then came clowe to $\mathrm{h} / \mathrm{m}$, wlth mome requent which be wan unwliilgg to grant. Cimber caught hle gown, if if entreaty, and dragged it from his shouiders. Campes, who whatanding behind, atahbed him In the throat. He starteil up with a ery and cuught Camiun's arm. Another pontard enterend bis lireant, giving a mortal wound. Ily fookeld round, and neelng pot one freadiy face, hut oniy aring of daggors pointlig at hif, lie drew hls gown over his head, gathered the folds about him that he might fall decently, and mank down wltiout uttering another word. The thenate rowe with slarieks and confuslon, and rushed into the Forum. The crowd outalde eaught the wonds that Cremar was dead, and scattered to tirls houses. Antony, guemoing that thome whit had killed Ciesar would nut spare himeell hurrient of into enncealinent. The murderer heeding mane of them from wounda whel the. I glven ode another in thelr eagernem, folloi cryling that the tyrant was dead, and thnt soune wras frue, and the body of the great Cowar was left ghne lu the house where a few weeks before Ciecro told bim that he was so necessary to his country that every senator would die before harm shouill reach him." - J. A, Froude. Cowar, ch. 26.
B. C. 44.- The genlua and character of Cesar.-His rank among great men.-"Was (insur, upon the whoic, the greatest of men? Ir. Benttie onee observed, that if that question were left to be eoilectel from the suffrages airealy expressed in books, and acattered throughout the literature of all antlons, the seale wouid be found to have turned prodigiously' In Ciesar's fayor, as agalnat any single conipetitor: and there in an doubt whatsoever, that even amongat his own countrymen, and his own contemporaries. the same verdict would have been returned, had it br. It colltected upon the famous principie of Themistocles, that he shouid be reputed the first. whom the greatest number of rival volces had pronouneed the second."-T. De Quinery, The lipmirs, ch. 1.-"The founder of the Iloman Enspire was a very great man. With sueh gnalus athe sueh fortune it is not surprising that he shonitl the made an Idol. in Inteliectual stature he was at least an lneh higher than hls feilows, which is in Itself enough to confound ali our notions of right and wrong. He had the advantage of belng a statesman before he was a soldier, whereas Napoleon was a coldler before he was a statesman. His ambltion colnelded with the necessity of the world, which required to be heid together by force; and, therefore, his Emplre ondurell for four hundred, or, If we lnelude Its Eastern offsel. for fourteen hundred years, whlle that of Napoleon crumhled to pleces In four. But unscrupulous ambleton was the root of hls charaeter. It was necensary, in fact, to enabie him to tramplo down the reapect for legallty Which atill hamperel other men. To connect him with any princlple eeems to me imposallile. lie came forward, It in true, as the leader of what is stried the democratic party, and in that rense the empire Which be founded may be called demereritc. But to the ramblers who broughs their fortunes to that rast hazarl tahle, the democritic and artatucratic partles were merely rouge and moir. The moctal and political rejulty, the reign of witeh we ilesire to nee, was, in truth, unknown to the men of Crearrs time. It in im. pomailite to levilieve chat there was an enwential diference uf prinelple between one mecuin. s of the triumvirate anl another. The great alventurer hall begun ly getting deeply lato debt, and had thum in fact bumbi himerif to overtirow the republic. He fomented anarichy to prepare the way for lin dictatorshlif. Ile shrank from an aecomplice however tainteni, rut even from Catiline: from min) act lowerer frollgate or even cruel

The noblest feature in Cewar's charactes was hin chemertey. Hut we are reminded thut it wan anclent, not nomern ciemency, winen wo find numbered amoug the signai listnucea of it his havingelt the thrusts of tive plrates before lie langed them, and lifs liaving jut to death withont torture (ampilici morte pundivit) a miave suspected of consplring agninat his life. Some liave gone so fur an to ajocak of fiin an tioc lucaruntinu of humanity. Bhet in the wiohere ininury of Itoman eonguest will yon find a more rathlese conqueror? A mililou of Gauis we are cold per. lsinet by the sword. Duhtitudes were mold lint slavery. The extermination of the Ebmroues went io the verpe eveu of andent licence. The gailint Verclugetorls, who had failen into Cinsar's hancis under eircumstanees whieh wouid have toucheri noy. but a deipmevi heart, was kept hy him a captive for six years, null butcherell in colif binel on the day of the trintoph. The sebtiment of hamanity was then undereioporl. He th so, but then we muat wot cail cieanr the incaruation of humanity. Vast piens are ascrlheri tu (rexar at the time of hls death, aud it seems to be thought that a world of hopes for bumanity perished when he feil. But if he had livel and acted for auther century, what eould he linve done with thane uoral and polltieal minterlais but found, wint he did found, a mill. tary and wensuaiist empire. A nultitude of projcets are attrituted to him hy writers, who, we must remember, are late, aul who make him rhe a fuiry charger witii feet llke the hands of a man. Some of these projects are really great, such as the coliticatiou of the law, and incasuren for the cncoumigement of Intelicet aud selence; others are questiouahie, such as the restoration of commerchal clties from wileh eomnerce had depurted; others, great works to be accompiished by an uulimitenl command of men and moucy, are the common dreams of crery Nehuehadnez. zar. . . . Stiil Casar was a very great man, and he played a dazzling part, as all men do who come just at the fali of an old system, when society is as clay in the hands of the potter, and found ancw system In lts place; while the less dazzilng task of making the new system work, by probity and Industry, and of restoring the shattercl alleg'arce of a people to Its Institutions, descends ur'in : nlaurelied heads. But that the men of hls it w were bound to recognise in hlm a Measuh, tu u te the phrase of the Emperor of the Freaer arid that those who opposed hlm were Je , ucifying their Mesaiah is an hapression whleh I veuture to think will In time sulslde. "- Gold win Smlth. The Last Republioane of Rome (Mucmillan's Mag., Spril, 1888).

Armo Tn. T. Armold, Fist. of the Iater Reman Commonweenth, eh. $\theta$ (0. 2).-A. Trollope, Life of

 Cicern, 0. 2, ch. 8.B. C. 44.-After Cresar's death. - Flight of "the Liberators."-Mart Antong In power.Arrival and wise conduct of Cesar's heir, the young Octavius.-The assasslas of Cersar were not long in discovering that lome gave no applanse to their bochly deed. Its first effect was 14 simply stupefylig consternation. The Benators thed, - the forum and the streets were nearly emptied. When Brutus nttempted nn harangue his henrers were few and sllent. In gloomy nlarm, he mide haste, with his assocelates, to take refuge on the heights of the capitol. Daring the alght whleh followed, $n$ few senators, who approved the nssisslnation - Cicero anong the number - cllmbed the hill nod held comencil wlth them In thelr place of retreat. The result wns a second attempt male, on the following day, to rouse public feeling in thelr favor ly opeeches in the forum. The demonstration was again $n$ failure, aud the "liberators," as they wished to be dermet, returned with disappointment to the capitol, Menntime, the surviving consul, who had been Cuesar's colleagne for the year, M. Antonlus - known more conmonly as Mark Antony - had neted with vigor to secure power in hls own lands. He had taken possesalon of the great trensure which Cassir left, and had nequired his pupers. He had come to a secure mulerstanding, moreover, with Lepilns, Casar's Master of Horse, who controlled a legion quartered near by, and who really commanded the situntlon, if his everey und his nbilities had neen equal to it. Lepidus marched his legion nto the city, and lts presence preserved order. Yet. with all the nilvantage in their favor, neither Antony nor Lepidus took any lohld attitule agnlnst Cesar's murderen. On the contrary. Antony llstened to propositions from them and consented, as consul. to call a meeting of the Senate for dellberation on their act. At that meeting he even advocated what might be called a decree of ollivion, so far as concerned the striking down of C'resnr, nad a contirmntion of all the acts exeented and unexecuted, of the late Imperator. These hat included the recent appointment of Brutus, Cassius and other leaders bmong the assasslns to high proconsular com. mands in the provinces. Of course the proposed measure was aeceptable to them and their friends, while Antony, having Cemsar's papers in his possession expected to gain everything from It. Under corer of the blank contrmatlon of Cresar's uits, he found in Cesar's papers on ground of autharity for whatever he willed to do, and was aceused of forging withont llmit where the genulae documents failed him. At the same the, taking nivantage of the opportunity that was giveu to hlm bya public funernl deereed to Cersar, he teliveral an artful oraton, which Infuriated the people and drove the bloodstained "liberators" in terror from the city. But In munf ways Antonins weakened the strong postton which hils skilful comhinations hed won for him. In his nudisguised selfishness he secured no friends of his own: he alienated the friends of Clessar hy his calm inlliference to the erinue of the nssassins of Cresar, whlle he harvested for hlmself the fruits of $1 t$; athove all, he offended and Insulted the people by hls inpudent appropriation of Cesar's vast hoard of wenlth. The will of the slaln Imperator had been read, and it was known that he haid bequenthed three hundred sesterces - nearly 43 sterling, or $$ 15$ - to every cltizen of Kome. The helr named to the greater part of the estate was Cerar's favorite grand nephew (graudson of Lis younger slster, Julm) Calus Oetnvins, who be eame, ly the terms of the will, hls adopted son, and who was henceforth to bear the name (allus Julius Ciesar Oetavlanus. The soung helr, then but elghteen yenrs of age, was at A pollonia, in Illyrin, at the quarters of n constiderable furce whlch cusar had assembled there. With wonderful coolness and prudence for hls ate, he deelined proposals to lead the army to Kome. for the assertion of his rights, hut went quietly thither with of few friends, feeling the puthlie pulse as he journeyed. At Rome he demandel from Antony the moneys whlch Cesar hanl lfft, but the proffignte and reekless consul had sprut them and would give no account. By great excrtions Octavhs rulsed suthelent menus on his own account to pay Cresar's legacy to the Ruman citizens. nnd thereby he consolldated $n$ popular feellng In his own favor, against Antons, which placed him, nt once, in important rivalry with the latter. It enabled him presently to share the possesslon of power with Antony and Lepidus, In the Second Trinmvirate, and, flally, to selze the whole sovereignty which Ciesar intended to bequeath to him.-C. Merivale, Mist. of the Romans, ch. 2:3-24.
Also in: G. Long, Deeline of the Roman he prilic. v. 5. ch. 34.

B. C. 44-42.-Destruction of the Liberators.

 -Combination of Antony, Octavius and Lepi-dus.-The Second Triumvirate. - Mark Intony's arrangement of pence with the muricters of Casar, on the basis of a coutirmation in the Senate of all Cesar's acta, gave to Marcus Brutus the government of Maredonla, to Decimus Brutus that of Cisalplne Gint, and to Cassims that of Syria, slace Casar had ulready namel them to those several commands hefore they siers him. But Antony sueceeded ere long in prieuring decrees from the Senate, transferring Diaredonia to his hrother, and Syria to Dolahella. A little later he obtnined n vote of the people givIng Clsalplne Gual to himself, and cancellime the commisslon of Decimus Brutus. His consular term was now nenr lts expiration and he hal mo intention to surrender the power he had enjovid. An army in northern Italy would afforl the support which hls plans requirel. But. lefore those plans were ripe, hls position hal grown exceedlagly precarions. The senate atnl the people were alike unfriendly to him, and aliko disposed to advanee Oetavlus In opposition. The latter, without office or commisitun, hid already. In the lawless manner of the time, by virtue of the encouragement given to him, col. lected an army of several legions under his pursonal hanner. Declmus Britus refused to surrender the government of Gaul, und was supported by the lest wishes of the Senate in defying intony to wrest it from him. The later now faced the sltuation holdly, and, althongh two legions hrought from Eplris went over to Ottavius, he eollected a strong force at Ariminum. marched into Clsalpine Ganl and hlockaded Deelmus Brntus in Mutina (motern Monena). Meantime, new consuls, Hirtlus and Pansa, had tuken oflice at Rome, and the Senate, led by
ROME, B. C. 44-42. The Second Trimmirate. ROME, B. C. 31-A. D. 14

Clcero, had deciared its hostility to Antony. Octavius was calied upon to joln the new consuls with hls army, in proceedling agalnst the iate consul-bow treated as a puble cnemy, though not so pronounced. He did so, and two battles were fought, on the 15th of April, B. C. $4^{\prime \prime}$ ut Forum Galiorum, and on the 27th of the same munth under the walls of Mutina, which foreed Antony to retreat, but which cost Rome the llves of both her consuls. Antony retired across the Aips and jolned his oid friend Leplius in Transslphae Gaul. Octavius der $\cdots$ to follow. Instead of dolng so, he sut n cilitat deputatlon to ilome to demand ste consuionly, and if ickly followed it with his i cony when the themat?! ad beca refused. The ienovepration provel persuaslve, and he was ecte. consul, with lult halfbrother for colieague. ii s next linkincss was to come to terms with - 16.1 uni Lephdis, as agalnst the Liberators and their trieutiv A eonference was arranged, and the three new masters of Rome met in October, B. C. 43 , on an island dear Bononia (modern Bologna), coustltuting themscives a commission of three - a triumvirate - to settle the affairs of the commonweaith. They framed a formal contract of tive ycars duration; divided the powers of governincat between themselves; named officlals for the subordinate places; and - most serious proceeding of all - prepared a proscription list, as Sulla had doae, of enemles to le put out of the way. It was sa appalling list of 300 senators (the lmmortal Cicero at thelr head) and 2,000 linights. When the work of niassacre in Rome and lialy had heen done, and when the territied Senate hai legalized the self-assumed title and authority of the triumvirs, these turned their attention to the Enst, where M. Brutus and Cassius had established nul maintained themselves in power. Decimus Brutus was already slain, after descrtion by hls army ad capture in attempted tlight. In the suminer of the year 42 B. C., Aatony ied a dlvisiua of the jolnt army of the triumviratc across the sea and through Macedonia, followed soon after by Octavlus with additional forces. They were met at Philippi, and there, in two great battles, fought with an interval of isenty days betweca, the republic of llome was tinally done to death. "The battle of Philippi, in the estlmation of the lioman writers, was the most memorable conflict in their milltary annais. The uumbers engaged on either slde far exceci all formuer cxperlence. EIghty thousand iegionaries aloue were eounted on the onc slde, and perhaps 120,000 on the other - at least three tlmes as many us fought at Tharsalla." Both Cussius aud Brutus died by their own hands. There was no inore opposition to the triumvirs, except from Sextus Pompeius, last survivor of the family of the great Pompeius, who had created for himself at sea a little half-piratical reuim, and who forced the three to recognizc him for a time as a fourth power in the IRoman world. But he, too, perished. B. C. 35. For seven years, froin B. C. 42 to B. C. 96. Antony rulcd the East, Octavinsthe West, and Lepidus reigned in Africa. -C. Merivaie, Mist. of the Romans, ch. 2t-28.

Also in : The same, The Fall of the Roman Republic, ch. 15.
B. C. 31. - The victory of Octavius at Actium. - The rise of the Empire. - The battles of Philippi, which delivered the whole Roman world to Antony, Octavius and Lepidus
(the Triumplrs), were fonght In the stimmer of 42 B C. The battle of Actium, which made Octavlus - scron to be named Augusths - the single naster of a now fully founded Emplre, was fought on the Did of sept., B. C. 31. In the interval of cleven years, Uctavins, guverning Iome. Italy, and the provinces of the West, had steadily consollhated and increased his power, galning the eontidence, the favor and the fear of his subjeet people. Antony, oppressing the East, had consumed his cnergics and his time in dailiance with Cleopatra, ani had made hlmself the object of hatred and contempt. Lepldus, who had Afrlea for hils domialon to begin wlth, had meusurei sworls whth Getavius and had been summarily deposed, in the year 36 B . C. It was slmply a question of time as to when Antony, in hls turn, should make room for the eoming monarch. Already, In the year after Phillppi, the two sorereign-partners had been at the verge of war. Antony's brother and his wife, Fulvia, had raised a revolt in Italy against Octavius, and it had been crushed at Perusia, before Antony could rouse hinnself to make a movement in support of it. He ild make a formaldabe demonstration at last; but the soldiers of the two rivals eompelled them on that oceasion to pateh up a new peace, whleh was accompilshed by a treaty negotiated at i3ruudisium and seated by the nurriage of Antony to Octavia, slster of Octavius. This beace was malntained for ten years, while the jeulousies and animosities of the two potentates grew steadily more bitter. It came to an end when Uetavius felt strong enough to defy the superior resources, in money, men and ships. which Antong heldat hls command. The preparations then mate on both sitles for the great struggle were stupembous and comstmulal a year. it wis by the determination of Antony that the war assumed chictly a naval chanteter; but Octavins, not Antony, furced the sea-tight wheu it came. His smaller syatrons sought and attateked the swarming theets of Eyypt and Asia, In the Ambracian gulf, where they had becu assembled. The great battle was fought at the iulet of the gnlf, off the point, or "ucte," of a tongue of land, projecting from the shores of Aenrnania, on which stood a temple to Apollo, called the Actium. licuce the bame of the battle. The cowardly tlight of Cleopatra, followed hy Antony, caleni the contict quickly, and the Autonlin thect was entlrely destrosed. The desertedarmy, on shore, which hal idly watched the sea-dight, threw down its arms, when the thight of Antonlus was known. Before Octavius pursued his enemy into Egypt and to a despairlng death, he had other work to do, which occupied him for nearly a year. But he was already sure of the sole sovereignty that he elalmed. The date of the battle of Actium " has been formally recorded by historians as signalizing the termination of the republic and the com. mencement of the Roman monarchy." - C. Merivale, Hixt. of the Romans, ch. 28.
B. C. 3I-A. D. 14.- The settiement of the Empire by the second Casar, Octavius called Augustus.-His organization of goverament. -"Power and repute had pussed awity from the old forms of the Rppublic. The whole world lay at the feet of the master of many leglons; it remained oniy to ciefine the constitutlonai forms in which the new forces were to work. But to do this was no ensy task. The perplexitles of hls positlon, the tears and hopes that erossed has mind, are thrown into drumatle form by the hlstorian lion Cassius, who hrings a scene before our fancy in whleh Octavianus llstens to the confleting counsels of his two great advlsers, Agrippa and Macenas.
There is llttle douht that schemes of risignation were at some tlme discussed hy the Emperor nnd hy his circle of advisers. It is even possible, as the same writer tells ins, that he lald before the Senators at thls tlme some proposal to leave the helm of state and let them gulte it as of old.

The scene, if cver really acted, was hut an idle comedy. ... It is more probable that lie was content with some falnt show of reslstance when the Senate heaped thelr houours on his head, as afterwards when, more than once, ufter a ten years' interval, they soleminly renewed the tenure of his power. But we cannot douht his sincerity In one respect - in hils whsh to avold the kingly title and all the mllous assoclatlons of the saine.

He shrank also from another title, truly Roman In lts character, but olious since the days of Snlla; and tbough the populace of Rome, when panle-struck by pestilence and famlne, clamoured to have him made dictator, yet nothing would induce him to hear the hateful name. But the name of Casar he liad taken long ago, after hils llinstrlous uncle's death, and this became the title first of the dynasty and then of the imperial oftice [see Cfisar, The Title]. Besides thls he allowed himiself to be styled Augustus, a name whleh roused no jealonsy and outraged no Roman sen. thment, yet vaguely implied some dignity and reverence from lts long association with the objects of religlon [see Acocbtce, The Title].

With this exception he assumed no new symbol of monarchic power, but was satisnied with the old ofticial titles. Which, thoogh elarged with memories of the Republic. yet singly correspondel to some side or frignient of absolute authority. The first of these was Imperator, which served to connect him with the urmy.

The title of the tribuniclan power connected the monarch with the luterests of the lower orders. . . The Emperor did not, Indced, assume the trihunate, hut was vested with the tribunlcian power which overshadowed the annual holders of the office. It made his person sacresl. . . The 'princeps senatus' in old days lisd been the formost senator of hls tlme. . . No one but the Emperor eonld fill this positlon safely, and he assumed the name henceforth to connect him with the Senate, as other titles seemed to hlnd him to the army and the pcople. For the post of Supreme Pontifi, Augustus was content to walt awhlle, untll it passed hy death from the feehle hands of Lepldus. Ile then claimed the exclusive tenure of the offlce, and after this time Pontlfex Maximus was always added to the long list of Imperial titles.

Besldes these thtles to which he assumed an exclusive rlght he also flled occasionally and for short perlods most of the republican oftices of higher rank, both in the capital and in the country towns. He took from time to time the consular power, wilth its august traditions and imposing ceremonlal. The authority of ceasor lay ready to hls hands when a moral reform was to be set on foot, when the Benste was to be purged of unworthy members nud the order of equites or knights to be reviewed and lis dignity consulted. Beyond the capltal the pro-consular power was vestivl in hlm without local limitations.

The oftices of state at Rome, meantime, lasted on from the Republle to the Emplre, unchanged in name. and with little seeming change of functions. Consuls, Pretors, Qurestors, Trihunes, ani] Ellles rose from the same classes as before, and moved for the most part in the same round of work, though they had lost for ever their power of Initlative aud real control. . . . Thery Were now malnly the nominees of Casar, thmarh the forms of popular election were still fur a tlme observed.

The consulshlp was entirely reserved for his nominees, but passed rapilli. from hand to hand, since In order to gratify : larger number It was granted at varying interruls for a few months only. . . It was pirt of the poller of Augustus to disturh as little as pussible the old names and forms of the IRepublic.
But besldes these he set up a number of new oltices, often of more real power, though of lower rank. . . The name prefectus, the 'préfet ' of modern France, stood lu earlicr days for the deputy of any officer of state charged specially to execute some definlte work. The prefects of Casar were hls serfants, namell by him and responslble to him, set to diveharge dutles which the old constitution had commmoly ignored. The prafect of the city had apperareil In shadowy form under the Repuhlic to repre. sent the consul in h/s ahsence. Augistas felt the need, when called away from Rome, to lave some one there whom he conld trast to wath the jealous nohles and control the tickle moly. Hls irustlest confidants, Naecenas and Agripp:a, filled the post, and It became a standing oftice. with a growing sphere of competence, overtopping the magistracles of earlier date. The reve fects of the pratorian coborts tirst apperred When the Senate formally assigned a harly luand to Augustus later In hls relgn [see Ple.jitomias Prefects] $\qquad$ Next to these in power and im. portance came the prefects of the watch-the new police force organlsed hy Augastus an a protection agalnst the dangers of the night, and of the corn supplies of Rome, which were alwars an object of espeeial care on the part of the im. perial government. . . . The title 'procurator,' which has come down to us in the form of 'proctor,' was at first mainly a term of clvil haw, and wis used for a finanelal agent or attomey. The officers so called were regarded at the tirst as stewards of the Emperor's property or nianagers of hls private business. . . . The ugents of the Emperor's privy purse throug' wit the provinces were called by the same tithe. but were commonly of higher rank and more repute. Such in lts hare outline was the executlve of the imperial government. We have next to are what was the positlon of the Senate. . It was one of the first cares of Augustus to restore Its credit. At the risk of odlum and personal danger he more than once revised the list, and purged it of unworthy members, summoning eminent provincials in thelr place. .... The functlons also of the Benate were in theory tnlarged.

But the substance of power and independence had passed away from it for ever. Hatters of great moment were debated first, not In the Senate House, but in a sort of Privy Council formed by the trusted sdviser of the Emperor. . . If we now turn our thonghts from the centre to the prosinces we shali find that the imperial system brought with it more sweeping changes and more real improvement.

Augustus left to the scnate the nominal control of the more peaceful provlnces, which needed lltt miiitary force.

The remainlng conatries, c:illedi lmperial provlnces, were ruled by generais, called 'iegati, or in some few cases by proctory oniy. They heid offlee during the gonsl pleasure of their master. . . . There are signs that the imperiai provinces were better ruled, and that the transference of $n$ country to this class from the other was iooked upon as a real boa, and not as an empty honour. Such in its chicof features was the system of Augustus.

This was his constructive policy, and on the value of this creative work his clnlms to greataess must be bused."-W. W. C'apes, Roman Hint.: The Lirrly Empire, ch. 1.-"The arrangemeat uadoubtedly satistled the requirements oit the moment. It saved, at ienst in appearance, the iategrity of the republie, while nt the samc time it recognlsed and iegalised the authority of the amn, who was already by common consent 'master of aii things'; and thls it effected without any formai alteration of the constitution, without the ereatlon of any new office, and by meaas of the oid constitutionai machinery of senate and assembiy. But it was an arrangement avowediy of an exceptionai and temporary chamater. The powers voted to Allgustus were, like those voted to Pompey in 67 B . C., voted ouly to hlm, and, with the exception of the tribiaician power, voted oniy for a iimited time. So provision was made for the continuance of the arrangement, after his death, in fnrour of say other person. And though in fact the pow. ers tirst granted to Augustus were granted in turn to each of the iong ilne of IRoman Crestrs, the temporary and provisionai character impressed upon the 'principate' at lts blrth ciung to it throughout. When the princeps for the time beiag died or was deposed, it was aiways ia theory an open question whether any other citizen should br sied with the powers he had held. Whe -shouid be, or how he should be chres.. "Estions whieh lt was left to clrcumst. aswer, and even the powers to be assigı , aim were, strictly speaking, cletermined suriy by the diseretion of the seate and people in each case. It is true that aecessity requlred that somc one must aiways be s+lecterl to fill the position first given to $\mathrm{A} u$. gustus: that accidents, such as Elnshlp by biood or axioption to the iast emperor, military ability, popularity with the soldlers or the senate, determiaed the selection; nad that usage decided that the powers conferred upon the selected person should be in the maln those conferred upon Augustus. But to the iast the Roman emperor was legaiiy merely a citlzen whom the senate aad peopie had fresly lnvested with an excep. tional authority for apecial reasons. Unilke the ordinary sovereign, he dld not inherit a great office by an established faw of successlon; and In direct contrast to the modern maxim that 'the king never dies,' It has been well said that the Homan 'principate,' died with the princeps. Of the many attempts made to get rid of this irregitar, intermlttent character, nonc werc completeiy successful, and the inconvenlences and dangers resulting from it are apparent through. out the history of the empire."-II. F. Peiham, Outlines of Mrman Hist, bk 5, ch. 3.

Also in: W. T. Arnoid, The Roman System of Prosincial Administration, ch. 3.-C. Merivale. Hiat of the Romane under the Empire, ch. 30-34 (c. 3-4).
B. C. $\mathbf{1 0 - 1}^{\mathbf{1 5} \text { - Conquest of Rhatla. See }}$ Ruetia.
B. C. 12-9.-Campaigns of Drusus In Germany, See Germany. B C. 12-0.
B, C. 8-A. D. 11.-Campaigns of Tiberius in Germany. See Germany: B. C. 8-A. D. 11.
A. D. 14-16.-Campaigns of Germanicus in Germany. See Germany: A D. 14-18.
A. D. 14-37. - Reign of Tiberius,-Increasing vices and cruelties of his rule.-Campaigns of Germanicus in Germany.-His death,-The Delatores and their victims. - Malignant ascendancy of Sejanus. - The Pratorians quartered at Rome.-Augustus had one child only, a daughter, Julla, who was brought to him by his second wife Scribonia; but on his iast marriage, with Livia, dlvorced wife of Tiberlus Claudius Nero (dlvorced by his command), he had adopted her two sons. Tiberius and Drusus. He gnve his daughter Julla in marriage, first, to his nephew, Marceilus, the son of his sister Octavia, by her first husband. C. Marcelius. But Marcellus soon died, without offspring, and Julla became the spouse of the emperor's friend and counsellor, Agrippa, to whom shic bore three sons, Caius, Lucius, and Agrippa Posthumus (ail of whom died before the end of the iife of Augustus), and two daughters. Thins the emperor was left with no mule heir in his own familly, and the Imperiai succession fell to his adopted son Tiberius - the eldest son of his wife Livla and of her first husband, Tiherius Claudius Nero. Thcre were suspicions that Livia had some agency in bringing about the severai deaths whieh cleared her son's way to the throne. When Augustus dicd. Tiberius was " in his 56th yenr, or at lenst at the close of the 55th. . He had by this time acquired a perfect mastery ln dissem. bling his iusts, and his mistrust. . . . He was anxious to appear as a morai man, whiie in seeret he abnadoned himseif to lusts nud debaucheries of every kind.

In accorlance with thls character, Tiberius now piayed the farce which is so admirabiy but puinfuily described by Tacltus; he deciined accepting the Imperium, and made the senate beg aad lntreat hlm to accept it for the sake of the public good. In the end Tiberius ylelded, Inasmuch as he compilled the senate to obiige hlm to undertak ine government. This painfui scenc forms the beginning of Tacltus' Annals. The eariy part of his reign is marked by insurrectlons among the troops in Pannonla and on the Rhlne. . . . Drusus [the son of Tiberius] queiled the insurrectlon $\ln$ IIIyricum, and Cermanicus [the emperor's nephew, son of his brother Drusus, who had dled In Germany, B. C. 9], that on the Rhine; but, notwithstanding this, it was in reailty the government that was obliged to yieid.

The relgn of Tiberius, which lasted for 28 years, that is till A. D. 37, is by no means rich in events; the eariy period of It oniy is celebrated for the wars of Germanicus in Germany. The war of Germanicus was carried Into Germany as far as the river Weser [see Geriant: A. D. 14-16], and it to surprisling to see that the Romans thought it necessary to employ such numerous armics agaiont tribes which had no fortified towns. . . . The history of hls reign after the German wars becomes more and more confined to the laterior and to his famlly. Ile had an oaly son, Drusus, hy his first wife Agrippina; and Gerinanicus, the son of his brother Drusus, was adopted hy him. Drusus must have been a youag naa deservirg of praise; bit Germaaicus was the adored darling of the Roman prople, and with justice: lie was the Worthy sos of u worthy father, the hero of the German wars.

Germanicus had decliacd the soverelgoty, which his legions had offered to him after the death of Augustus, and he remalned faithinl to hls adopted father, although be certainly could not love him. Tlberius, however, had no faith in virtue, because he himself was destitute of it; he therefore mistrusted Germanl. cus, aad removed hilm from hls victorious legions." Ile sent him "to superintend the eastera fron. tiers and provinces. On his arrival there he was recelved with the same enthuslasm as at "ome: but he died very soon afterwards, whether hy a atural death or by poisoa is a questlon upoa Which the ancients themselves are not agreed.

In the reiga of Augustus, aay offence against the persoa of the imperator had, hy some law whth which we are not further ace quainted, been made a 'crimen majestatls,' as though it had bcen committed against the republic itsclf. This 'crimea' ia its underined character was a fearful thing; for hundreds of offences might be made to come within the reach of the law coacerning lt. All these deplorahle cases wore tried by the senate, which formed a sort of condemalng machiae set la motlon hy the tyrant, Just like the national convention under Robespicrre. . . . In the early part of Tiherius' reign, thes prosecutioas occurred very rarely; but there gradually arosc a numerous class of den cers ('delatores'), who made it their busiu, io bring to trial any one whom the emperor dislikel" (see Delation.-Delators). This was after the death of the cmperor's mother, Liria, whom he feared, and who restrained his worst propensities. After her lutlueuce wus removed, "his durk aad tyranaical nature got the upper hand: the hateful sidc of hls character became daily nore developed, and his ouly enjoymeat was the iadulgeace of hls detestable lust. . . His oaly friend was Aelius Sejaaus, a maa of equestriau mak.

His character br o the greatest resemhlance to that of his sovercign, who rased him to the office of praefectus practorio.

Scjanus Increased the number of the practorian cohorts, and persuaded Tiberius to cuncentrate them ia the neighinourhood of Rome, in the 'castrum praetorinaum,' which formed as it were the citadel outside the wall of Servius Tullius, but lo the midst of the present city. The cousequences of this measure render It one of the most important events in Roman history; for the prastoriuas now became the real sovereigns, und occnpled a positioa simllar to that whlch the Janissaries ubtained in Algeria: they determined the fate of the empire unt!l the reign of Diocletian [sec Pretoman Guaros]

The intluence of Sejs as over Tiberius la. crcased cvery day, und he contrived to inspire his imperlal friend with sufficicat coafidence to go to the island of Cupreme. Whlle Tiberius was there ladulging in his lusts, Sejanus remained at Rume and governed as his vicegerent. . . . Prosecutions werc now linstituted against all perans of any cansequence at Rome; the tlme whea Tlberius left the capltal is the beglaning of the fearfui annals of his reign." The tyranaical stoceedings of Sejanus "continued for a number of years, until at length he hilmself incurred the suspicion of Tiberius," and was put out of the way. "But a man worse even thun he succeeded; this was Maero, who had none of the great qualitles of Sejanus, but only analagous vices. . . . The butchery at rome even Increased. . . . Caius Caesar, the sun of Germanieus, commonly known by the name of Callgula, formed with Macro a conaexion of the basest kind, and promised him the high post of ;raefectus pructorio' if he would assist him in getting rid of the aged moaarch. Tllerlus was at the time sevcrely ill at a villa near cape lise num. Ife fell lato a state of letharyy, and everybody believed him to be dead. He came to life agala however; on which he was suffecated, or at least his death was accelemted in mone way, for our accounts difer on this int. Thus Tiberius died in the Q3d year of his . eign, A. D 35, at the age of 78."-B. G. Nlebuhr, Lect's on the list. of Rome, lect. 111-1 12 ( $t$. 3).

Also in: Tacitns, Anmah, bk. 1-6.-C. sheri rale, Ifist. of the Lemans under the Empire, of 4:-46 (c. 5).
A. D. 37-41.-Reign of Caligula, the first of the imperial madmen. - Cuius Cusir. son of Germunlcus, owed his nick ame, Caligula, to the soldiers of his father's commaad, amoug whom he was a great favorite in his childhworl. The name was derlved from "Callga," a kind of fint covering worn be the common soldiers, and is sometimes translaited "Llttle Boots." "llaring secured the imperial power, he fultilled br his clevation the wish of the Roman people i may venture to say. of ull muakind; for he had long been the object of expectation and desire to the greater part of the provinciuls and soldiars. who had knowu him when a child; and to the whole people of Rome, from their affection for the memory of Germanicus, his father, und compussioa for the family almost entirely destroved.

Imnediutely ou his entering the city; by the joint acciumntloas of the senate, and peo. ple, who hroke into the senutchouse, Tiherius's wlll was set aside, It having left his other grimd son, then a miuor, coheir with him; the whole governmeat and atministration of alfairy was placed iu hifs hauds; so much to the joy and satisfaction of the pnblic that, in less than three months after, atove 160.000 vetetims are sild to have beea offered in sacritice. . . . Tis this e traordiuary love entertai"ed for him ly his couatrymea was added uu uncommon requad by foreiga ..ations. . . Caligula himandl inthamed this devotioa by practisiug all the arts of popilarity.
lie published acounts of the proceedings of the goverument - a prartice which had breen latroduced by Augnstus, but discoatiaued by Tiberius. He granted the mag. istrates a fuil and free jurlsdictioa, without any appeal to hiusself. Ile made a very striet and exact review of the Homau knights, hat conducted it with moderation; publicly depriving of his horse every kalght who lay under the stigma of any thlng base and dishonouruble. He attempted likewlse to restore to the people their aacieat right of votlog in the cholice of magistrates. . . He twlec distribuied to the peoplc a bounty of 300 sesterces a man, and as often gave a splendld feast to the senate and the equestrian order, with thelr wives and chlidren. ... He frequently entertalned the peopie with stage-playnof various klnds, and ln several parts of the clity, and sometlmes by night, when he cansed the whole clty to be liglited. . . . Me likewise exhlblted a great number of clrcensinn games from morning untll nlght; Intermixed with the hunting of wlid beasts from $\Delta$ frica.

Caligula

Thus far we have spoken of him as a prince. What remains to be said of hlm bespeaks hlm rather a monster tha 1 a man. . . . He was strongly lnellned to assume the dladem, nnd change the form of gevernment from Imperiul to regal; hut helag told that he far exceeded the grindenr of kings and princes, he began to arrogate to hlmself a dlvine majesty. He orderrd all the lnages of the gods whlch were famons etther for their beauty or the veneration paid them, among which was that of Juplter Olympius, to be brought from Greece, that he might take the heads off, nad put on hls own. Having coatinued part of the Pulathm as far as the Firmm, and the temple of Castor nnd Pollux belug converted lnto a klad of vestlbule to hils house, he often stationed hlmself between the twiu brothers, and so presented himself to be worshipped by all votaries; some of whom saluted him by the name of Jupler Latlails. ile alsolnstituted a temple and priests, with cholerst rietims, in honour of his own dlyluity. . . . The most opulent persons la the city oifered themselves is candlidutes for the honour of being hils priests, and purchased it successively at an immense price. $\qquad$ In the day-tlme he talked in private to Juplter Capitolinus; one whlle whispiring to hiln, and another turning his ear to him. .. He was unwilling to be thought or called the granilson of Agrippa, because of the obscurity of his hirth. . .. He said that his mother was the fruit of nn incestuons commerce maiutulned by Angustus whith his danghter Julia.

He lived ln the hahit of lacest with oll his sisters. . . Whether ln the marriage of his wives, In repncliating them, or retaining them, he arctel with greater infamy, it ls difticult to sar." sume senators, "who had horne the high.... otfiecs iu the goverament, he suffered to run by his litter in their togas for several miles together, and to attend lim at supper, sometimes at the heat of his couch, sonetimes at hls feet. with mapkins. Others of them, after he had privately : th them to death, he nevertheless continued to sind for, as if they were still allive, nul after a few days pretended that they had lald violent hamls upon themselves.

When tlesh was oalr to the had at a high price for feeding lits with beasts reserved for the spectacles, he orlered that criminals should be given them to be devoured; and upon lnspecting them lu a rus. while he stood in the middle of the portico, withuut troubling hlmseif to examlne their cases be ontered them to be dragged a way, from 'baldmate to balld-pate' ' a proverblal expresslon, meaning, without distinctlon. - Translator's foot-note].

After disfiguring many persons of honourshle rank, hy hranding them lo the face with hot irnis, be condemned them to the mines, to worin in remiring the high-ways or to fight with whld hemens; or tying then by the neek and heels, In ith manuer of beasts carried to slanghter, would wut them up in cages, or saw them asunder. He conjpelled parents to be present at the executlon of their sons. He generally prolonged the sufferings of his rlctims by causing them to be lntlicted by slight and frequently repeated strokes; this belag hls well-known and constant onder: strike so that he may feel himself dle.' . . . Belug lncensed at the people's applauding a party at the Clrcenslan gaines ln oppostton to him, he exclalmenl, 'I wish the Roman people hud bit one neck.' . . He used also to complain ulond of the state of the tlmes, because It was not rendered remarkable by any public calanltics. . . He wishell for ;one terrlale slnaghter of hils trowns, a fimine, $n$ pestllence, contagrations, or nn earthyuake Even In the midst of hls dlverslons, whille gaming or feastlag. this savage fernclty, both In his language and act: 1s, never forshok him. Persons were often put to the torture $\ln$ hls presence, whilst he wis dlang or carousing. A solller, who was an adept in the art of beheading, used nt such times to take off the heads of prisouers, who were brought in for that purpose. . . . He never had the lenst regard clther to the clastity of hils own persou, or that of others. ... Besides hls lncest wilh hls slster: . . . there was hardly any lady of distinction with whon he did not make free.

Only nuce in hls life did he take an active part ln military affairs. resolved upou an expeditlon lato Germany. 'There being no hustilities, he ordered a few Germans of hin, guard to be: carried over and placed In concentmant on the other side of the Rhine, and wonl to be brought hina after dlaner thut an enemy was alvancing with great lmpethensty. Thls being aceordingly done, he lumedintely threw himself, with his frimuls, and a party of the pretorim kulghts, into the aljoinlug wood, where. lopping branches from the trees, and forming trophies of them, lef returned by torch-light, upbrating these who did not follow him with timoruusness mul cowardice. . . . At last, as if lesolved to make war in eurnest, he drew up hls urmy upon the strure of the ocean, wlth his balistae and other engines of wat and while un one coull imarine what he intenderi to do, on n sudden emmanded them to gather up the sea shellas, and till the ir helmets and the folds of their dress with thers, calling then 'the spolls of the ocean due to the Capitiol and the Palatiun.' As a monumeut of lis success he raised a lofty tower. . . . He was cruzy both in boty and mind, being sulject, when a boy, to the fulling sickness. . . What mast of all disoriered him was want of sleep, for he seldom liall more than three or four hours' rest iu a night; mel even then hls sleep was not sound."-Suetouius, Lires of the Trelte Cisarrs: (inligula (er. by A. Thomann). Also in: C. Merlvate, Hist. of the Rumans umer the Ewpire. ch $4 i-48$ (r. 5).-S. Baring. Gould. The Trapety of the Cipsirs, r. 2.
A. D. 41.-The mirder of Caligula.-Elevation of Clandius to the throne by the Prator-ians.- Beginning of the domination of the soidiery.-" It we may believe our accounts, the tyraut's uverthrow was due not to abhorrence of liis crimes or Indignation at lils assaults on the Roman libertics, so much as to resentment at a prlvate uffront. Among the Indiscretions which seem to lndicate the partlal madness of the wreteleed Calus, was the enprice wilth which he turned from his known foes against his personal frlends and famlliars.

No one felt himself secure, nelther the freedmen who attended on > $4-3+i$
his person, net the guarde who watched over his safety. Among these last was Casolus Cherea, trihune of a pratorian couert. whose shrill woman's voice provoked the merriment of his master, and suhjected him to injurlous Insinuations. Even when he demanded the watchword for the alght the emperor wuuld insuit him with words and gestures. Cherea resolved to wipe out the affront in hiood. He sought Caillstus and others and organizeri with them and some of the most daring of the nobles a plot against the einperor's life. $\qquad$ The festivai of the I'alatine games was ifed on for carrying the project lnto effect. Four days did Calus preslde in the theatre, surrounded by the friends and guards who were sworn to slay hlm, hut still iacked the courage. On the fifth and inst, the 24th of January 704, [A. I). 41], feeling indisposed from the evening's debauch, he hesitated at irst to rise. Ills attendants, however, prevalied on him to return once more to the shows; and as be was passing through the vaulted passage which led from the paiace to the Clrcus, he inspected a cholr of noble youths from Asha, who were engaged to perform upon the stage. . . Calus was stlif engaged in eonversation with them when Charea ani nnother trlbunc, Sablnus, made their way to him: the one struck hm on the throat froni behind whth his swort, while the other was in the act of demanding the watch. word. A second hlow cleft the tyrant's jaw. He fell, and drawhy hls limbs together to save his body, still screamed, 'I llve! I ilve!' while the conspirators thronging over hilm, and crying, 'agaln! again!' hacked him with thirty wounds. The harers of his itter rushed to his asslistunce with thelr poles. while hls body. guard of Germans struck whliy at the assassins, and amongst the crowd which sarrounded them, killed, it was said, more that one senator who had taken no part in the aftuir. . . When each of the conspirators had thrust his weapon into the mangied burly, and the last shrieks of tos agony had been silcined, they escaped with all speed from the corrdior in which it hay; but they had made no dispositions fir what was to follow, ant were content to feave it to the consuls and senate, anazed and unprepared, to dechle on the finture destiny of the reptblic. . . . some cohorts of the ctiy gards acepted the orders of the consuls. and oceupled the public places untler their direction. At the same time the consuls, Sentins Eaturniuns and D'omponhes Eccundins, the hatter of whon had hern substituted for cains himself only a few days thefore, convened the senate.

The first act of the sitting was to issue an edict in whlch the tyranny of Cains was dicnomncel, and a remission of the mast obnoxions of his taxes proclamed, together wit h the promise of a donative to the sondiers. The fathers next proceeded to delithrate on the form under which the goveriment should be henceforth alminlstered. On this point no settled principles prevailed. Some were realy to wote that the memory of the Cessars shoitd be abolisheri, their temples overthrown, and the free state of the Scipios and Catos restorell: others contended for the conthunace of monarchy in another family, and among the ehlefs of nobility more than nine candidate sprang up presentiy to clalm it. The debate lasted late intn the night; and la defant of any other specific arrangement, the consuls continued to act as the leaders of the commonwealth. . But while the senate deliberated, the pretorian guards had remolved. ... In the confusion which ensued on the first news of the event, several of their body had flung themsilits furiousily into the paince, and begun to pllumter Its glittering chamivers. None dared to affer them any opposition; the slaves and freetinen fled or conceaied themselves. One of the ln mates, half hidden behind a curtain in an ob. scure corber, was dragged forth with brutal violence; and great was the Int: uders sur. prise when they recognised him a. Clauthius, the long despised and neglected incle of the murdered emperor. Ile sank at thelr fert almist senseless with terror: hut the soldiers in their wildest mood still respected the hlowl of the Cresars, and instead of slaying or maltrcating the suppliant, the hrother of Germanicus, they halled him, more in jest perhaps than carnsest, with the titte of Imperator, and carried him off to thelr camp. In the morning. when it was found that the senate had come to no conclusion, and that the people crowilng about lis place of meeting were urging it with loud (ries to appoint a single chief, and were actually naming him as the object of their cholec. (lat dus found courage to suffer the pretorians to swear allegiance to him, and at the same the promised them a donative of 15,000 sesterces uplece. . . The senators assembled onee agaln in the temple of Jupiter; hit now their utunlurs were reduced io not more than a hundred. and even these met rather to support the pretensions of certain of their members, who aspired to the empire $\qquad$ than to maintain the canse of the ancient repubile. But the formidable arriy of the pretorians, who had issued from their cimp luto the city, and the demonstrations of the pupp. ular will, daunted all partes in the assombly.

I'resently the Crban cohorts passed ovrr. With their otilcers and colours, to the oppmite alde. All was lost: the pretorians, thus reinforced, hed their hero to the palace, and there he conmanded the senate to attemi upmen him. Nothing remained but to obey mod pass the de cree, which had now become a formal :oft of in vestlare, by whleh the name and homours of Imperator ware bestowed upon the new chicf if the commonwealth. Such was the tirst creation of an emperor by the military power of the preetorians. . . Surronnded by drawn swords Chudins had found courage to face hia nephers s murderers, and to vindicate his anthority to the citizeus, by a strong measure of retribintion. in sending Charea and Lapus, with a fow otbers of the bhume embrued, to immediate cexecutime Clandius wis satistied with this act of vigurr. and proceceled, with a monderation hin. little expected, to publish an amnes.y for all the worls and acts of the late Interregnum. Nevertheless for thirty days he did not venture to come himself into the Curia. . . The persomal fears, in deed. of the new emperor contributed. with a kindiy and placalle disposstion, to make him anxions to gah hls subjects' good will by the gentleness and urbanity of his deportment.
Ilis proclamation of ainnesty was followerl by the pardon of numerons exiles and criminals. especially such as were suffering under sentence for the erime of majestas.

The popularity of the new prince, though manifestet, thanis tio his own discretion, by no such grotesque and impious flatteries as attended on the upring

Mesalina and Agrippina.

ROME, A. D. 47-54.
promise of Caius, was certainly not less deeply felt. .. The confdence lndeed of the upper classes, after the bltter disappointment they had so lutely aufered, wan not to be so lightly won. The senate and knights might view thelr new ruler with indulgence, and hope for the best: but they had been too long accustomed to regard him as proscribed from power hy constitutionai unfitness, as imbeclle in mind, and which was perhaps in their estimation even a worse defect, as misshapen and half.developed ln physical form, to antlclpate from him a wlse or vigorous administration. $\qquad$ In another rank he would have been exposed perhaps In lnfancy; as the son of Drusus and Antonla he was permitted to llve: hut he became from the firat an object of disgust to hls par tg, who put hlm geaerully out of their slght, and left him to grow up iu tue hands of hirelings without jnidg. ment or feeilng. $\qquad$ That the judgment of one from whom the practical knowledge of men and thlags had been withineli was not equui to hls learalng, and that the lnftrmitles of his bouly sffectell hls powers of decislon, hls presence of mlad, and steadfastness of purpose, may enslly be imagined: nevertbeless, It may be ailowed that in a private station, and anywhere but at Rome, Claudlus would have passed muster as a respectable, and not, perhaps, an useless mem. ber of soclety. The opinlon wbich is here glven of this prince's character may posslbly be intin. caced $\ln$ some degree by the study of hils counteannce in the numerons busts still exlstlng, which represeat it as one of the most lnterestiug of the whole imperinl series. If his figure, as we are told, was tall and when sltting appcared not ungraceful. his face, at least in repose, was eniveaty hundsome. But it is impossible not to reruark ia it un expression of pain and anxlety which forcibly arrests our sympathy. It ls the ficy of ath honest and well-meaning man, who ferls hiuself unequal to the task imposed upon him. ... There is the expression of fatlgue luth of miad and boxly, which speaks of mhlenight watehes over books, varied with midnight eirnusts at the imperinl table, and the fieree curcsess of rivai mistresses. There is the glance of four, wot of open enemics, but of pretenited fricols; the reminiscence of waatom blows, and the alaticipation of the deadly pution. Above all. there is the anxious glance of dependeuce, which rems to cast about for a morlel to lmbate, for ministers to shape a policy, mul for sitellites to execute it. The model Claudius found wios the policy of the vencrated Augustus; but his ministers were the most protigate of women, ard the most selfish of emancipited slaves.
The commencement of the new reign was marked by the renewed actirlty of the armies on the frontiers."-C. Merivale, Mist. of the Romans unter the Eimpire ch. 48-49 (o. 5).
diso IN : W. W. Capes, The Eierly Empirc, ch. $3-4$.
A. D. 42-67.-St. Peter and the Roman Church: The question. See Papacy: St. Peteh and the Churchat Rome.
A. D. 43-53.-Conquests of Cladius in Britain. Sue Bhitain: A. D. 43-53.
A. D. 47-54.-The wives of Claudius, Messalina and Agrippina. Their infamous and terrihle ascendancy. -Murder of the emperor. - Advent of Nero.-The wlfe of Claudius was "Valeria Messalina, the daughter of his cousin

Barbatus Messala, a woman whose name has become proverblul for lnfamy. His most distin. guished freedmen were the eunuch Poaldus; Fellx, whom he made governor of Judea, and who had the fortune to be the hushand of three queens; and Callistus, who retalned the power which he had acqulrel unier Caius. But far superior in point of influence to these were the three secretaries (as we may term them), Polyblus, Varclssus, and Pallas. ... The two last were in strict ieague with Messalina; she only sought to gratify her lusts; they longed for honours, power, and wealth. . . . Thelr plan, when they would have any one put to deatb, was to terrify Claudlus ... ly tales of plots against his life. Slaves and freedmen were admitted as wltnesses pgalnst thelr masters; and, though Claudlus hal sworn, at his aecesslon, that no freeman sbould be put to the torture, knights and senators, citizens and strangers, were tortured allke. . . . Messallna now set no bonnds to her viclous courses. Not content with being Infamons lierseif, she would have others so; and she actuaily used to compe! ladles to prostlute themselves even in the palace, und before the eyes of thelr husbands, whom sue rewarded wlth honours and conmunds, whlie she contrived to lestroy those who would not acquiesce in their wives dishonour." At lengtl (A. D. 48) she carried her audaelty so far as tugo publicly throngh meeremony of inarrlage wlth one of her lovers. This nerved eveu the weak Clandius to resolution, uud she was put to death. The emperor then married his niece, Julia Agrippina, the danghter of Germanleus. "The wonan who had now obtalned the government of Claudias and the loman empire was of a very different character from the abaudimed Dessalina. The later had nothing noble about her; slue was the mere bometslave of last, aml crnel and nvariclous only for its gratification: but lgriplina was a woman of stperior mind, though utterly devoli of principle. In her, Inst was subservient to ambition; it was the desire of power, or the fear of death, and not wnitonness, that made her sulbmit to the Incestuous embruces of her brutal brother Cilins, and to be prostituted to the companions of his vices. It was ambition and parental lowe that made her now furm an incestuous anion with her uncle. . . . The great object of Agrippin: was to exclude Britannicus [the son of Claudius by Messalina], and obtain the suecession for her own son, Nero Domitius, now a boy of twelve yeurs of uge. She therefore cansed Octavia [daughter of Clandius] to be betrothed to bim, and whe had the philowopher Seneca recalled from Corslen, whither he hind been exlled by the arts of Messalina, and committed to lim the educ:tion of her son, that lie might be fitted for emplre. In the following year ( 51 ) Claudius, yielding to her intinence, adopted him." But, nlthough Britannieus was tbrust Into the lack: groutud and treated with neglect, his ferble father begno after a time to sbow signs of affec. tion for him, and Agrippina, wemry of wating and fearful of discomiture, caused poisou to le administered to the old emperor ln his fond (A. D. 54). "The death of Claudlus was concenled tlll ali the preparatons for the succession of Fiero should be made, and the fortunate hour marked by the astrologers be arrived. He then (Oct, 13) issued from the palace, . . . anal, being cheered by the cohort whicb was on guard, he mounted a iltter and proceeded to the camp. Ile adiressed the molders, promislug them a donntive, nad was saluted emperor. The senate and provinces acquiesced without $n$ murmur in the will of the guamis. Ciautilis was in his 64th year when he was poisoned,"-T. Kelglatley, Diat. of the Roman E'mpire, pt. 1, ch. 6.

Alao in: C. Merivale, Jifint, "f the Romana under the Empire, ch. 50) (t. 5). -Tacitus, Annals, bi: 11-12.
A. D. 54-64.-The atrocitles of Nero.-The murder of his mother. - The burning of the city.-" Nero... wns but a variety of the snme specles [as Cnilguin]. He aiso was an amatenr, aud an enthuslastic amateur, of niur. der. But as this taste, in the most ingenlous bands, is limited and monotonoms in its moles of manifestation, it woull be tedlons to run through the long Suetualan roli-cail of his peccadilioes in this way. Onc only we shall clte, to illustrate the amorous delight with whled he pursued any murler which happened to be seasoncd hghly to his taste ly enormons atroclef, and by almost unconquerable dilticuity. For certain rea. sons of state, as Nero attempteri to persuade himsilf, bnt in reallty becanse uo other erime had the sunc attractions of unnatural horrur about it, he resolved to murder his mother Ag. rippina. This belag settled, the next thing was to nrrange the mode and the tools. Naturally enough, according to the enstom then prevalent In lume, he first attempted the thing by poison. The polson falled: fur Agrlppina, antleipating tricks of this kImi, had nrimed her constitntion agaiast them, iike Siltirliates; anti daily took poitent antldotes and propliylactles. Or else (which is more probahle) the emperor's agent in such parposes, feuring hls sudileu repentauce anul remorse, . . . lind composed n polsinn of inferior strenigth. This had certninly oecnrred in the case of Britannicus, who had thrown off with e:ase the tirst dase alministered to him by Nero," hut who was killed by a seeond more powerful potlon. "On Agripplna, however, no clanges in the polson, whether of kini or strength, hat any effect: so that, nfter various trials, this mode of inurder was ahandoued, and the emperor and. dressil himself to other plnns. The tirst of these was sone curious inechnnical deviec, by which n false ceiliog was to have been suspencied hy bolts above leer lead; mod in the middle of the night, the bolt being sualilenly drawn, a vost weiglit wouli inve descended with a rulnuns destrnction to all below, Thls scheme, however, tiaking air from the imliscretion of some amongst the neconuplices, reached the enrs of Agrippiaa. . . Next, he conceivet the iden of an artitlelal silp, which, at the tunch of a few springs, night fall to pieees in deep water. Such a ship was prepared, aud stationed at a sultahle point. I3at the maln dithcolty remained, which was to persmate the old lady to go on board." By complicated stratagems this wets brought ahout. "The emperor aecompanled har to the place of cmbarkation, took a most tender lcave of her, and saw her set eail. It was nccessary that the ressei should get fato deep water before the experiment conld be made; and with the utmost agitatlon this pious son awalted news of the result. Sudidenly a mes. srager rachert briathless into his prestuce, ath horrified him by the josful information that his august mother had met with an aiarming accldent; but, by the bleaslag of Heaven, had escaped safe ani sound, and was now on her road to mingle con gratulathus with iner affectionate son. Theshlp. if seems, had done its office; the nuechanimm lisid plaged admirahly; hut who can provhio for everythlng? The old faly, it turned out, could swinn ilke a duck; and the whole result had heen to refresh her witha little sen-hathilng. Ilere was worshipfui intelllgence. Coull uny man's temper be expected to stand sullicon. thued slages ? . . Of a man ilke Nero It cmuld not be expected that he shouin uny lor tr liat semble his dlegust, or put up with such! peated affronts. Ife rushed upon his shmple er agtitu. iating friend, swore that he ind conue to nurdes him, andi as noboly could have sulmonoul him but Igripplaa, he ordered her oft to lastant exe. cutlon. Aud, unquestionably, if pereple $\because$ " not ine murdered quictly and in a civil way, wey must expect that sueh forbenrance is not io ron. time fur ever; and olovionsly linve themertwe onily tu biame for auy harsliness or vholuce which they may liave rendered necessary, it is slagular, ami shockiug at the mame thue, to men. tion, that, for this atroclty, Nero diel ulwilutely receive solemn congratulations from all urilers of nuen. With such evilences of bisw: mrsility in the puhice mind, and of the utter formpthon whele they lind sustalued in their clementary feellugs, it is the iess astoalshlag that he shonhid have male other experiments upon the pulide patlence, which seem expressiy desphed to tre how nancli it would support. Whether he were really the anthor of the desolathe tire which consimmel Rone fur slx days antl wevel nifhts [A. D. 64], and drove the mass of the pople into the tomhs und sepulchres for shelter, is yit an matter of some duabt. But one great prema!tion ugalast It, founded on its desperate impradewe, ns attncking the people in their primary comforts, is couslderably weakened hy the enormous servllity of the lonamus lin the case jut mated: they who could volunterer congratulation to a so for hutchering his mother (nomitter on what pre. teaded suspicions), might reasonathly ln' matpuad age, even in n case of selfedefence on tit jut re renge.

The great loss on this memirahle oceaslon was ln the herallic and nneestral hwomes of the eity. Ifistoric Ibome thetu wort (1) wreck for ceer. Then peristhed the 'dumbtatrine rum dacum hostllibus ad-lane spoliis ablornatie': the 'rostrnl 'palace; the mansion of tha Pbunpess: the Blenheims and the Strathtieldsiyes of the Scipios, the Mnreelll, the Panlli, dall Dhe ('icats; then perished the aged trophies from (arthaige and from Ganl; and, in short, ns the liswarian sums up the lamentable desolation, 'quidyaid visendum ntque memorabile ex mingatate daraverat.' And this of itself might le:al one to suspect the emperor's hand as the uriginal agent: fur by no oue net wus it pussihle so entirely and so suidenly to weau the people from their wh repuhllean recollectons.

In any other s-tue. whether for lualth or for the convenienes of polished life, or for archlectural maguitirenes. there never was a douht that the Ilominn petple gained Intinitely hy thls contlagratlou. Fur, like London, it arose from its ashes with it splendour proportioned to its vast expansion of wealth and poprilation; an'l marbic took the place of rood. For the moment, however, this event must have been feit by the people as an overwhiduing calamity. Xad lt serves to illustrate the pajive endurance and tlmaldity of the popular temper, and to what extent it might be provaked with impunity, that in this state of general irritation and eflervescence Nem absoiuteig forbade them to meddile with the ruins of their own dwellings - taklog that charge upon himself, with n view to the vast wenth which he anticipatet from sifting the rubbibh." - T. De Quincey, The Cruma, ch. 3.

ROME, A. D. 64-68.

Also is: Suetonius, Lires of the Tiectre Cieata: Sime-Tacitus, Anmala, be: 13-16.-5. Baring. innuli. The Tragedy of the Chemere, r. 2.
A. D. 6r, -Campaigns of Suetonius Paullqus in Britain. See Bamtain: A. D. 61.
A. D. 64-68. - The firat persecution of Christians,-The fitting end of Nero.-'" Nero was so secure In inis ahsuintism, he lumi intherto found it so impossibie to shock the fectings of the preple or to expaast the terrifleci atiulation of the sepate, that ine was usunlly imbitferent to tive paspuinaics vhich wire constautiy iluhilng up his name to c.acra:on anki contempt. But now [after the buralng of Rome] he felt that he inni Gune too far, and tinat his power wouid be serlumsly imperilled if he cild not succecd in diverting ties suspletons of the populace. Ile was perfectly nware that when the ireople in the streets cursel thase who set tire to the city, they meint to curse him. If he dili nut tike some inmediate step ine felt that he might perisis, as Gaius [cailigula], had perished before him, ly the danger of the assassin. It is at thils point of his carcer that Nero becomes a promiurnt tigure in the history of the Cinurch. It was thls phare of crucity whicin seemed to throw a bioovirell high over his wiofe chnracter, andi leti men (1) linik on him as the very incarration of tite worlid puwer in its most demoniac aspect - nes wirse tham the Antiochus Epiphanes of Daniel's Alunealyper-as the Jian of sin whom (in hag naige figurative, iudecd, yet awfulty truc) the lari shouli slay witi the breath of i!is muth and destroy with the brightaess of ilis cuning. For Nero endeavoured to dis the odious crinte of having destroyed ithe capitai of the worli upun the most inuecent and faitlifui of his subjects - upon the oniy subjects who offered heartfelt priyers on hils behaif - the ibomau Chrintime. . Why ine should have tiought of singlin's out the Claristians, has always been a curimio probiem, for at this poiut st. Luke endis the Acts of the Aposties, perlaps purpuseiy droppiug the crmain, because it would have beell prrihus amil uscless to norrate the horrors ia which the hitherto neutrmi or friendly loman Guverumerat began to piay so disgraceful a part. inclener Tacitus, nor Snetonnes, nor the Apocalywe, help us to soive this partieuiar problem. The Christhans ladi flleci no large space in the exe of the world. Cutii the days of Domitian we do nut hear of a single nolvie or distiuguisheni person who had joined their ranks. . . . The slaves and artisans, Jewisi) and Gentiie, whas formed the Christlan commanity at Lome, hati uncer in any way come into collision with the ituman (fivernment. . . . That the Christians wre entireis innocent of tive crime charged ayailut thein was weii known hoth at the time sul afterwardis. But how was it that Nero onylh pupuiarity and partiy arerteci the deep mive whicli was rankling in many henrts against humself, ly torturiny men and women, on whose agunics lie thought that the populace wouid gaze not only with a stoild lndiference, but even with fierce satiffaction ? Giihbon has conjectured that the Christians were confounded with the Jewn, and that the deteatation univeraily feit for the iatter fell with double force upon the former. Christians sufferei even more chan he Jews be. cause of the caiumnle so sevrduously clrculated agalnst them, and from ornat appeared to the anclents to be the revolting alsaurilly of their pecullar tenets. 'Nero,' says Tacitus, 'exposed to accusation, and tortured with the most exquisite penalthes, a set of men detcateci for their enorintties, whom tie common peopie culied Christinns. Christus, the founder of tinls sect, was executed diaring the relgn of Therius by the l'rocimator Pontius Pilate, and the deally supenstitlon, suppressed for a time, began to burst out once more. uot oniy throughout Juiaen, where the evil hal its ront, but even in the Clty, whither from every yuarter nll things horribie or shamefui nre (Irifted, andi find their votarics." The iordly disdhin whicin preventeci Tncitus from making ang incpulry into the reai viewamai character of tie Ciliristians, is shown iny the fact that he catches up the most bascless ailegations agalnst them.

The masses. he says, callewl them ' C'iristhans:" and while ine almost apologises for stuining his page with so ruigar un appeilation, he merely mentions in passing, that, though lunocent of the charge of being turbuient incondlaries. on which they were torturai to death, they were yet a set of gnilty and lnfamous sectaries, to be classed with the lowest dregs of loman crlminals. But the haughty historian throws hu iight ou one iltilculty namely, the circumstinces which led to the Christians being tinus siugled out. The Jews wers in nu way iuvolved in Ne. ruis persecution.

The Jews were ly firr the deadlicest euemies of the Cluristinns: and two per. sons of Jewish proclivitles were at this time iu close proximity to the person of the Enpperor. Oue was the puntomimist . 1 liturus, the other was Poppaea, the hariot Einpress.

If, as seems certain, the Jews had it in their power during the reign of Nero more or less to sinape the whisper of the tirrone, does not inistorical latinction drive us to conclude with some couddence that the suggestiou of the Christinns as scapegoats and vietims came from them ? Tacitus teiis us that 'those who confessed were frst seized, and then on their evidence a huge multitude were convicted, not so much on the charge of incenciinrism as for their hatred to mankind.' Compressed and obscure as the sentence is, Tacitus clearly menns to impiy hy the confession " to which he nliudes the confession of Christianity; nad though he is not sutticlently generous to acquit the Christians absolutely of ali compiicity in the great crime, he distinctly says that they were made the scapegonts of a geuerai indignation. The phrase - 'a huge multitude' - is one of the few existing indicatious of the number of martgrs in the first persecution, and of the number of Christians in the Roman Church. When the historinn says that they were convicted on the charge of 'hatred against manl ind he shows how completely he confounds them with the Jews, against whom he eisewhere hringa the arcusation of "hostile feelIngs towaris ali except themseives." Then the historian ndds one casual hut frightfui senteuce - a sentence which tlags a dreadfui iight on the crueity of Nero and the Roman mob. He adds,

Abstract

- And vartous forms of mockery were added to enhance their dying agonies. Covered with the shins of wild beasts, they were doomed to die hy the ma diing of doga, or by belng nalied to croses; or to be set on fre and burnt after twlligitt liy way of aightly Iliumination. Nero otered his own garlens for this show, and gave a chartot race, mingilng with the moh in the dress of a charloteer, of actually driving about among them. Hence, gulity as the victims were, and deservin; of the worst puajwhments, a feel ing of compasaion towards them began to rise, as men teit that they were being immoiated not for any advantage to the conmonweaith, hut to glut the savagery of a singie man.' Imagine that awifui scene, once witurased by the silent obelisk In tise square before st. Peter's at Rome

Iletribution did not ilnger, and the veugeance feli at once on the guity Emperor and the gulity city. The alr was full of prodlgles.

 There were terrilite storms; tise piague wrought fearful ravages. Iumours aprend from lip to lip. Men spoke of monstrous hirths; of deatis by lightning under strange clrcumstances; of a brazeu statue of Nero meited by the tlash; of places strick hy the hrand of heaven in fourteen reglons of the clty; of sudden darkeniugs of the sun. A Lurricane devastated Campania; com ate hiazed in tic heavems; earthyuakes shook the ground. On ali sides were the traces of deep uueusiness and superstitlons terror. To all thest portents, wh. I were accepted an true by C'iris. tians as weli as by Paguns, the Christians would give a speciaily terribie signiticance.In apite of the siooking eervility with which ailke the Selinte and the people had weicomed him back to the cily with shouts of triumph, Nero feit that the air of Rome was heavy with curses against his rame. He wlthdrew to Naples, and was at suf *here on March 19, A. D. 68, the amivervary $($ is motider'y murder, when ie heard lant : , first note of revoit hati been whinderi by the brave C. Juins Vindex. Prefert of further Gaul. He was so far from being dis. turbed liy the uews, that he showed a secret joy at the thongist that he coudd aow order Gaal to be phandered. For eigint ciays ise took no mothee of the matter.

It hast, wisen he heard that Virginias dufus inil also rebelled in Germany. and Gatha in spain, ife lneame wware of the cies. porate uatare of bis josition. On recelving this utedifence be fainted awny, and remainedi for ome time unconseions. Ile eontiaued, fudeedi, his grossness aud frivolity, but the willegt amd thercest schemes chased euch other throligin his meloxirimatic brain. . . . Menawhile lae fonad that the patace find luen dese. tedily his guards. and that his ateminmes had robbed his chamber aven of the guhien box in whien he hat stored his poison. Rnahiag out, as thougis to drown himself in the Tibrer, ife chamged his mind, and begged for some yuiet hiding piace in which to collect his thasghts. The frecoman Phown offered him a fowly villa about foar miles froa the city. Barefooted, and witis a faled coat thrown over his tasie, he hid his isead aud face in a kercblef, aui role away with ouly four at. tendants. . . . There is no need to dweif on the miserable spectacle of his end, perhaps the neanest and most pusihanimons whirh has ever been reeorded. The poor wretch who, without a pang, had caused 80 many bruve Romans and so many innocent Chrigtians to be murdered, could not aummon up resolution to die. . . . Meag. while a courler arrived for Thaon, Nern anstcied his despatches out of his hand, and read that the Genate had deckied that he chould be punished In the ancentrai fashion as pubilc enemy. Aaking what the ancentral fashion was, he was informed that be would be atripped nakni sond scourged to death with rois, with his lunad thrust into a fork. Ilorrited at this, he milzed two daggers, and after theatrlcally trying thelr edges, sheathed them again, with the exchse that the Iatal moment bsd not yet arriveil Then Le bade sporus begin to sing his funeral song. and begged some one to show him how to die

The mound of horses' hoof then liroke on his earm, and, venting one more Greek guotation he held the dagger to his throat. It was irivet home hy Epapliroditus, one of hil Iiterary siaves

So died the last of the Ciesars! Anl as Ilobeaplerre was lamented iby ifs fandlaly, to even Nero was tenderiy huried by (wo) harset who had known him in the exquisite beanty of Ins engaging childhood, and by Acte, wioo had inspired his youth with a genuine iove, "-F. W. Farrar, The burly Daye of Christianity, bk. I ch. 4
Also IM: T. W. Allies, The Firmation of Chriatendom, ch. 10 ( $r$. 2).
A. D. 68-g6.-End of the Juilian Hine, -The "Twelve Cesars" and their successors, $-A$ logical ciassification. -"Iu the wixtlı Coesar [Nero] terninated the Julian line. The three neat princes in the suecession were persomuily uniater. estiug; and, with a sight reserve in favor of otho were even brital lu the tenor of their livet and monatrons: beshles that the extreme lirevity of tiselr severni reigna (all three, taken conjuuctiy, having heid the supreme power for no nure that twelve montis and tweuty days) dismissers them from all effectual station or right to a separate uotlee in the iine of Cacsars. Cuning to the teuth in the saccession, Vespasian, and his two sous, Titas and Domitian, who make up the list of the twedre Caesars, as they are usuably callowh. we tind matter for deeper joifiteni meititation and subjects of enrious research. But these etuperors would be more properly einssed with the tive wion saceed thent-Nerva, Trajan, ibai. riau, and the two Antonines; ffer whom conns the soung rullian, Commuxins, munther Caligula or icro, from whese short and infimons refiga Giblon takes up his tale of the dereline of the empire. Aud this chassitication would probably hase prevaied, fad not the very curions work if Shetonins, whose own dife and perime of ubervation determined the series and eyche of hia subjects, led toa different distribution. i3at ian it is evident that, In the succession of the tirm twelve Cassars, the six latter have uo conacetion what ever hy descent, collaterally, or otherwis. with the six first, it would be a inore logical diviritmtion to combine them aecording the fortumes of the state itself, aud tire saccession of its pros. perity through tine several stages of splemhanp, declension, revivai, nd finai decay: l"nter this arrangement, the dirst seventeen would belong to the first stage; Commolus woud opra the second; Aurelian down to Constantine or Jullan would fill the third; aad Jovian to Au. gustalus would uring up the melancholy saz." -T. De Quincey, The Cteara, ch. 3.
A. D. 69.-Revoit of the Bataviane nader Civiiis. Sce Batavlans: A. D, 60

Voppradar.

ROME, A. D. 80-98.
A. D. Cg- Oalba, Otho Vitellius-Veepa' sian.- The Vitelitan condict. - On the overthrow and death of Nero, June, A. D. 68, the veteran moldier Galba, proclaimed lmperntor hy hie iegions in Spala, and accepred by the Roman senate, mounted the imperial throne. IHs brief relge was terminated in January of the followlog yeur by a sudden revoit of the pratorian guard, instigated hy Saivius Otho, one of the profligate favorites of Nero, who had betrayed bls former pe. tron and was dlappolnted in the resules. Galbe was siain and Otho made emperor, to relgn, in hls turn. for a brief term of thre iontho. likevol: sgalnat Otho was quick to show itself in the provinces, enst and went. The ieglons on the Ghine set up a rivai emperor, in the perwon of their commander, Auius Vitelliun, whose ningle talent was in giutiony, and who had earaed hy hte rices the favor of four beautly ruiers, from Tiberlus to Nero, In succemslon. Gaui having do clared in him favor, Vitellius sent forwand two armles hy different routes into lialy. Otho met them, with anch forces ne he could gather, at Beltriacum, between Veroun and Cremona, and euffered there a defeat wheh be accepted as declalve. Ile slew himself, and Vitellin made his way to Rome without further opprisilid, permitiling lils soldiers to plunder the or .ntry as they ndvanced. But the armles of twe east were not dispused to necept an emperor by the election of the armies of the west, and they, toon, put forward it candidate for the purple. Thelr cholce was better guided, for it fell on the sturdy soldler. Tltus Flavlus Vespasianus, then commanding in Judea. The advance corps "f thr forces supporting Vespaslan (calied " Flmvians, " or "' Fiavlantes") entered Clsalphe Gaul fromi llyyrimm In the autumn of 00 , unl cill countred the Vitellasus at Bedrlacum, on the sathe teld where the latter had defented the ott slans in few wrek lefore. The Vitellinus wre defeated. Cremoma. a ficurishing fomma colony, whleh capitulitect to the connuerors, was pertidiously glven np to a merciless sold hery rand tufally destroyed, - one temple, alone, escaping. V'itellus, In despalr, showed an cageruess "uresign the throne, ant negothated hls resigumtime with a brother of Vespuslan. restilug in Rume. But the mob of fughtive Vitellan woldiers which had collected lin the caplan finterpread violently to prevent this alinilcatom. Fla. vins Sibinus - the brother of Vespasian-took rufuce, with his supporters, in the Car,itollum, ir temple of Juplter, on the Cupltoline IIII. But the sacred prechicts were stormed by the litellian mob, the Capltol - the august sanctuary of lome - was hurnell and Sabluus was shin. The army whelh lad won the vletory for Sespasian at Bedriacum, commanded by Antonins Primus, semn appenred at the gates ol the clty. to ayenge this outrage. The unorganlzed furce which attempted opposition was dilven hefure it In worse disorder. Victors and vanquinhel poured lato Rome together, slaughterlug and being shaghtered in the streets. The malhe of the clty ? "ned In the hioody hunt, and in the plunderii. at went with It. "ikome haid seell the cosithets of $5 \cdots$... At men in the stretes under Sulla mal Choma, but never befure Sinch a hideous mixture of levity nad ferocity." Vitellius was among the slain, his brier reign pming on the ?1st of Decenbr-. A. D, 69, Veapusian was still in the east, and did not enter

Rome until the summer of the foilowing year

 -Tacitus, History, bk, 1-3.Aloo in: C. Merivale, llist of the Ilomans, eh. 86-67.
A. D. 7o,-Siege and deatruc ion of Jeruealem by Ittue. Nre Jkww: A. i) 心才, \%i.
A. b. $70-96$. The Flavlan fara.: -Veepaaian, Titua, and Domitian. - "Crifortunately Tacitus falls us $\qquad$ at thim johit. and thin time completely. Nothlng haw been mavel of him 'Histortes' from the midide of the year \%0, and We tad ourselves reluced to the mere hiographies of suetonlus, to the fragmunts of Mon, to the ubridgneate of Aurellus Vletor and Eutroplus. The majeate neremin fron whith we have Ifawn and which Howell with lirlmming banks is now only a mengre threall of water. Of all the emperora Vespuslan is the one who lowes the mont by thita, for he was, mays S. Aupustine, a very goni prince and very worthy of lowlag be. loved. Ilecame luto power at an age when one la no longer given to change. at ©is yearm. IIe had never leeen fond of gntilug or debuachery, and he manulumet his ba:dith by a frugat det, even paislng one hay" ry monath without eatIng. Ilis lffe was an te anill dalsirions. lie had no hilgher alm than to catabilxh ortior in the state and in the inances; but he mecompilshed thls, and If his prlacipme, liki wht the others, made no nreparathons for the future. It did much for the peesent. it was a restorative relgn, the effects of whith were felt for several generations; this survice is ns valuable as the most brillant yletortes. Followhy the example of the secoud Juilus, the first of the Flivilimy resolved to seek lit che selnate the support of hils government. Thls assembly, delmasod by mo many years of tymuy, nevidel us much hy ic dld a century before to lee suhmitted to a were revishu. Vexpaviau actel with resolution. invested with the title of eenarr in Fill, whis his son Tlus for colleague, he struck from the roils of the two orders the membere thernad moworthy, replated them by the most satinguislect persous of the Emplre, anl, ly virthe of his powers as sovercign pontilf, ralsed sweral of them to the patriclate. A thomand fallam or provinclal fanilles eane to 1 le nitled to the $2(6)$ arstocratle families whith had survived, and constluted with these the higher foman swelety, from which tbe candilates for all eivil, uilitary: unil relighous functons were takern. . . This arlstocracy, borrowed by Viospasian from the provluchat ettes, where it hal leeen trained to public affalrs, where it had arculred a tante for economy, slmpllefty, and order, brought into Rome pure morals. . . it will furnishs the great emperors of the second century, the stilled llautenants who will second them, und selathon who will bereafter conspire only at long intervals.

To the senate. thus renewed and lerome the true representation of the Empire, Vespasian submltted all importunt matters. . . . Suetonius renders him this testimony, that it would te ditlicult to clte a single hmi ividual uujustly pme1shed in his relgn, at lenst unless it were in his ajs:nce or whthout his hnow ledige. He luved to dllspense justice himself la the Foruna. . . The leglons, who had male and umanke tive emperors in two ycars, were un longernattentive to the anclent disclpline. He bromght them back to it. . . . The morals of the time's ware bad; be did more than the laws to reform them-he set

ROME. A. D. TO-\%.

nOME, A. D. 70-06.
cool examples.
Augustis hal ralayl two altara to Prace. Vempanalnn luitt a temple to iore. In which be if ponalted the mont prectonsepelis of Jerumiem: nai the ohl weneral cioment, fore the sixth tlme, the cloum uf the tringle of Jaius. Ile luilt a furum a! rroumierl liy colonnmales, in alditlor to thom airealy exlating, nuit coms. mencerl, In the midnt of the clty, the vant amphl. theutro, s mountulit of atone, of whicil therec. fourtios reminin atatellue to ding. . . . A colomand statue ruised mear by for Nero, but whlole Ves. paslan comectaterl to the Sun, gnve it lis name, the Colisentr.

We huve no knowledre of the wary of Fiepasian, exerplt that tirce times In the yeur il he amanmed the thte of 'lomperator.' and titree thmes ngitn the foliow Iny year. But when we we hiog maklag (onppaliolin an luperial procemandar province witle numerous gntrlwime to check the Incurxions w ledeli demontanlit; nod, to-the burbarlume evirn lwyond the IGoryetienes: when we reul in Turio ay that Villeva, the proph. etess of the llructori, wns at thint tine brought a cuptre to lumer that Cerialls viny uished the Iirigante mad Frontinus the silures, we must belleve that Vespuminn male $n$ vigurcuse elfort afong tite whole liue of his ontponts to imprese upult forelgit untions respect fior the lfinman nasse. . . . Here is the mecret of that wevere economy whled nipenral to the promilgal nini light minded a siathefinl ethgluess. . . Pem. pushon . . . was bis yrarm ohi, und was at his littie horse in the territory of lamate when he feit

 In ulvinse ut inls apotheosis. . . . 'An emproror." fre whil. 'ought twitie staniling.' Ile uttrmpterl to rise and expirvit in this eftort, on the sidel of hinturing. but a frew words of his biogragher sullice for lils renown: 'roul pulbienm stabilivit et ormavit.' 'ly him the stitte was strengthened and giorlted. ". Veapmiantiong demi. Titus assumeri the titie of dhenstux. .. Itis father hat ireparei film for this hy tiding limm ns associate in the Empire; be hidi given to him the titite of (iowar, the censombip, the trlbusithan power, the jrefecture of the pritortum, cond seven consulater. Cobling into powernt the uge of maturit. ricli lu expreriente mad satheted with plemsures fig his very excesmes, he hal buefeforth hitt one pasion, that of the phbile welfare. At the outiset he dismisseri his bown companions: In hils futher's iffathe the hiad alrondy stacrlficed to Ifonina prejudies lios tender mentinemts for the Jewish ifueren lerenice, wion he bul sent back to the Euns. In taking possension of the supreme pontitiente hu deviarid that be would keep his hands pure from hland, and he kept hils word: no ome under his rilign perished tiy lise orders, " It wits dinring the whort relign of Títus that Her. culanesm anilitumpeli wire overwhelmen by an eruption of Vesurins (August *3, A. D). ©9), while other culanities ntlieted Italy. "I'estilevere earricid of thonsabis of people even in condagration, which rageil tiree days consomed once more the Cupitol, the lijirary of Dugnstus, and I'ompey's theatre, To Campunia Titus sent men of consular rank with harae sums of menfy. and be devoted to the relief of the survivors the property that had fallen to the treasury through the death of those who had perished in the disagtep wlithout leaving heire. At Rome he that upon bimarif the work of repairing everything. aul to rovicle the rejuisle finm he mill time furniture of the Imperial palace.

Thly riva Inetmi ouly 86 months, from the silni of Jume A. I). 70, th the 18th of Elepuminer, d II. N1, As Titne was about to vielt hie puterunt extato in the sablac territory he was meizell loy of vitunt fever, which ason left no hope of his rewotery. There lo a report that lie portly opencel the cus. tnins of hile litter mal gazell at the sky with cye full of tewrs und repromehes. Why: fie ex. cinimed, 'must I dle mommo In sull li!y lifo i linve, however, but one tidag to repent." Il hast was thle ? So one knows." Tltus wan muctremed liy has brother Iomitian, then thirty years whel "The yomtiof Ilomitidan load beren wurthy of the times of Nero, and he liad weraried hise futher amal lirother by his Intriguce. Neverthelems lic was osine, to the extent of toklng lint ther may n clay, nul he hal $n$ tante fur milleary (exinime for study and pretry, rewnevinly since the ulieva thon of hie famfly. Fenpasinn fual grunted him lomonrs, init no nower, snif, nt the deall n? Titus, he hud onfy he titles of Cinewr amil irinue of the loutic. In his hurry to melze: it Inat Jhat Finpire mbong eoveted, he nbmatomed his dilita bruther to rusif to lhme, to the campuit tie jrt torinus.

On the chey of their cormation there ure few hal princes. Alunost nil in gin well, hat, In clewintie nonarchies, the ennjority end haily, purtheilarly when the relcose are of loing durntion.

Itwifthun reigned is yoare, une year limiter tian Jíra, ant his reign rejromiucul the aane eess. Inppliy the excessem dili nut romat tili late. Fully as vain as the son af lurinina Ihomition hempul every titie nown live tiwa heme and decrecd dediliathon to himestit iis edictantated: 'Ont lorit mul our geal vifiluins.

The new gat dihi not eovet vilgar homolis.
lle was consul 17 timen, stul es tinues did ise have filnoself prociaimed 'inpuratur' fur victorles that had not always ivecn galucid. lie re. calied Niro too by life fonduess fur miows and for buililing. . There were eat rni wars under Inmitinn, ali lefenslve excep! ; the experiltion agulnst the contll [see Cuatti], whilh wat oniy n greut clvil mensure to drive a way the lans. tile mnrauders from the fronticr. If I'iny the lomager and Tacitus are to be betievedi, inas wurs were like those which Caliguia waged: Ihmithon's vletories were defoats; his capitives, purelobed siaves; his triumplos, nuiactous false. bersit. Suctonius is not so severe. . . . Dimi. tian's crnclty appenred espechaily, and ju-rtapg we should sily only, after the revilit of n penom of high rank, Intonlus Suturainus, who pretended to be 1 descendint of the triunwir. le was in commame of two legions in Geranny whom he incitevi to revoit, and he called the Germbns to his aid. An uncexpected thaw stopped this tribe on the right bunk of the lthine, while Applus Norhams Maximus governor of Iyultanla, crushed Antonius on the opposite share.

This revolt must belong to the year 03 , which, me I'liny says, is that in whild Dimitian's grent crueitlea began.

Domitian lived in n state of constant alarm; every sound terrifed inm, efery mut scemed to him mo assassin, ererj occurrence was an omen of evil." Ite endured this life of gloomy terror for three years, whea his drend forebodinge were realized, and he was muriteryl hy bis awn nttemlauta, Nuptember 18. A. II Mit-V. Heruy, Iliaf. of lasue, ch. if-iN (f. 4

Aben in: Anetonlum, lirws of the Tret Cm Ciemora: Iengmaina, Tíus, Ihmifísn,-C: Mprivaie, Iliar. of the lummone water the Simpire, eA, si-a ( $5,6-7$ )
A. D. 7 -4,-Cempaigns of Atricola In Britain. Ne llmitain: A. 11. Ty-84.
A.D. 96-138. - Brlef relea of Nerva.Adoption and meession of Trajan.-His persecutson of Christlane.-His congusste beyond the Danubs and in the sat.- Iadrlan' reliequichment of them.-"On the mame thy on whicit thonithan wan amanaluaterl, M. Cocciling Nerva was proclalineil Fimperor by the 1'rie. tortans, anl couttrimet by the people. Ife owed has clovations principaily to I'rtroninm, I'refeet of the I'rapturians, nail l'arthenifos, chanherinia to the late Fimproror. Ile wasof C'rotan origin, nul a nat! ve of Sarni la C'ubrlit, ami rumerguently the Arat Eintueror whos wirs mat of Italian dewant

Ila whe prudient, uprigit, generous, nul of a gente tomprer: but a feeble frame and wank coustlintion, whided to tie burden of 04 yours. remalerol bim tion reserved, thoini, anif Irremolute

The thit rant and refortulngainiuistration of the brathed te" - tor the bioniy tyming under which :- i: men trunghel tin the duat. The -veres edes. The treachorons matue what hevi den meri live master was put fo death. Exiter returneti to thelr native cities, mil ngain troninal tor miminiater the goverument for the his : Iffolion to the questhan of thance, mul th the bandensmme taxathor wisheh wias the frait uf the extrivagance of ind promictewars.
lie ciminished the comornoms sums which Were livished upon showe aud prectacles, nhei rewiumi. ns fur as was powsibie. his jeremal anmi homalhaif expenses. . . . It waw not probable That an Einjuror of an wenk and yibllint a characler, hotwithstaming inls gome cqualition as a prime nui a shatesmath, womlit be uecoptable to: licentions and domilant soldifery. But n fow monthe had cinpare! when a conspiracy wis
 It wis. however, discoverent ; unif the ringiemier, having comfessed his crime. experinenced the Eim, perur uatai generosity, trolng only pumished by tanidinent to liarcotum. .. Meanwisite the Preturians, ide on ly Eilanins Carperius, who hat: treell thelr P'refoct unter Ihomltian, Ineslerged Nerva in hifs puiace, with ertes of vongennee uphithe assussins of his predecessor, murilered Promonins ant Particaius, and comprided the timhi Eimperor publiciy to express his upprobs. tion of the deeri, and to tentify his obigation to them for wreaking vengeance on the gailty.

Serva was iu decllaing years, and, taught by circumstances that he was vaciluai to curb or cope with the insoicnce of tic soldiery. aioptel Trajan as his son and successor [A. D. $\mathrm{y}_{i}$ ]. Soon after, he eonferred upon him in the Senate the rink of Cesar, and the name of Germanirus, and ahleal the tribunestip and the title of Emperor. This act caimed the tumuit, and was weicomed with the unanlmous consent of the Senate and the people. . . Soon after the adoption of Trajan he died of a fit of asuo which brought on fever, at the ganlens of Nailinst, after a relign of alxteen muntim, in the alxty-wixth ypar of his nge (A. (1). ©n).

The choise whilelt Nerva lial mate proved ín fortunate one. M. Cipios Cerva Tpisunu* way a Epanianl, a mative uf Itnilcu, near deviile.

Ile way of an nucierit and dintingulabed fomily. nul fils fathere hail Allen tive oftco of ermsul. Althongh a foreigner, lee was a lkeman in halits, 天ytujutilem, unil Innguage: fir the wouth of Ninlis hal inecome mit connpietoly Roman tiat the luhabitanta geternily apoke latin. Winen a young man he lind dilv. tingulsited lifmwif in a war agaiunt the Inrthians.

As the llume of hils adopiton by Jer:' lic was in cemmanal of a powerful arny in Lower (hermany, lis bemi-tunrters bolng nt Coingne, Ile was in the prime of ilfe, peramessed and in majestic countemance. Ilo was n prefect sulifer by tunte nmí edicaton, and was eminwed Withall tibe cmiltien of a gencral.

Ile was a strict dincjpilsintius, but he knew nil his vet. ©rmas, apoke 11 them hy their names, and never fet n gallant neton pass hurewarded.

The muw of Nerva's louth was emveyed in blim at Cubsene by fis consin liairlan, where fe lmane. alintely rocelved the lumprial jwwer. buring the ll rat your of his roign fie rebuabmi with the nrmy in Cierountuy, engagedi in entahishing the diaripha. of the tringis und in finspirtag them wlitin love of thoir tinty.

Tine emaning year lav mule lifa entry intio leame on font, tugether with his compress. P'ompela l'fatinas, whowe amin. lility ani catmable eharmeter contribute fillo It tu the popularity of her lushumi. II tugethor with that of his miater, Marcinthe, ener.
 vinte. They were the tirat laniles uf the inuperial cumet who by thelr example elaokeof the alame. lews ifcentionsmess whleft h:ul tomg previlial ammigst women of the fifficer classes, . . . The fanters and hasilts of his former iffe ieni to a ctienge: in the pracefol poifey which hati so bong prevalieni. The tirst war lit whleh he was enfeaged was with the incinns, who inhatiteef tho which Trajan emiured whis patient refuctance; and unny great putbite workn undertaken during the laterval show inis genlus for civil as weli ns for military aiministration

Illit inls pres. ence was son requiredi in the Enst, and he joyfuils malfenf the opmortunity thus offered him for gaining fresh lamrels. The reai object of this exproifton was ambition - the pretext, that Exc. darifs, or Exodires, king of Armeula, had re. ceived the crowis from the king of Parthia, lin. stean of from the Emperor of Rome, as TIriciates indifron the hamis of Nero. For this lnsuit he demantedi satisfuction. Chosroes, thic king of lurthia, at tirst trented his message witir contempt: but afterwards, seeing tiat war was innmineut. lic sent ambassadors witi, preseuts to mect Trajan at Ithens, and to anuoumce fo blm tite depusition of Excdarius, and to entreat him to couftr titc crowu of Armenia upon Parthumit. siris, or Parthamaspes. Trajan recelvedi the ambasathes cthilly, tolll them that hes wian on his march to Byrin, anil would there act as he thought fit. Aceordingly he crossed into Asia, and marched by way of Citteln, Syrin, anil Seleucla to Antloch. The condemnation of the

ROME, A. D. 80-188.

martyr bishop Sl. Ignatius marked his stay in thit city [A. D. 115 ]. It seems strange that the prrsecution of the Christians shouid have met Wlth countenance and support from an emperor could not ; hut the fact is, the Roman mind The religious disthe Christian from the Jew. The religious distinction was beneath their notice; they contemplated the former merely as a sect of the latter. The Roman party in Asia were persuaded that the Jews were meditating and preparing for insurrection; and the rebel. lions of this and the ensuing reign proved that Heir apprehensions were not unreawonahie. Hence, at Antioch, the imperial influence was on the side of persecution; and hence when Pliny, the gentie governor of Pontus and Blthynia, Wrote to Trajan for instructions respecting the Christians in his province, his 'rescript' spoke of Christinnity as a dangerous superstition, and enfoined the punishment of its professors if dis. covered, although be would not have them sought for. Having recelved the voluntary submission of Ahgarus, prince of Osrhoene in Mesopotamia, he marched against Armenia. Par. thamasiris, who had assumed the royai state, laid his diadem at his feet, In the hopes that he would return it to hilm as Nero had to Thridates. Trajan claimed hls kingdom as a province of the Roman people, and the unfortunate monarch lost his life in a useless struggle for his crown. This was the commencement of his triumphs: he recelved the voluntary submission of the kings of Iberia, Sarmatia, the Bosphorus, Colchis, Al. hania; and he assigned kings to most of the harharous tribes that inhahited the coast of the Euxiue. Stili he proceeded on his career of conquest. He chastised the klug of Adlabene, who had behaved to him with treachery, and took possession of his dominions, subjugated the rest of Mesopotimia, construched a bridge of boats over the Tigris, and commenced a canal to anite the two great rivers of Assyria. Ilis course of conquest was resistless: he captured Seleucia, the capital of of Parthiens hy taking Ctesiphon tribute on Mesopotania [A. D. 116], imposed a the condition of a Romana provine - Assyria to to winter at Antioch, which wes ine returned winter ulmost destrovel which was in the same Trajer ulmost destroyed by an carthquake. persomal injury. . . . The river Tigris withont victorious Eup. aror f The river Tigris hore the Merorious Limperor from the scene of his conArast down to the Persian Gulf; he subjugated meditatine aud ma, like n seeond Alexander, was invision of and even making preparations for an invinsion of India hy sen; hut hls anbithous designs were frustrated by troubles nenerer at hannl. garrisons were chuered uutlons revolted, and his sword. Ile sent his generals to or put to the one of them. Maximus, was concrush the rebels; the other, Lusiuy Onietus conquered and staln: ndvantages and was Quietus, guined considerahic ndrantages and was made goveruor of Palestine, Which had hegion to be in a state of insurrection punish the revolted if He inimself marched to punish the revolted llagareni (Saracens), whose eity was called Atra, in Mesopotamia. the siege with great loss, but was ohliged to raise seizedl with llmess. loss. Soon after this he was foize to with carc of Hadrian Leaving his army therefore to the carc of Hadrian, whom he had maie earnest sollcitation of embarhed for Rome at the earnest sollcitation of the Senate. On arriving at Selinus in Clifia (afterwards named Trajen opolis), he was seized with diarrhoea, and expired In the twentleth year of his reign [August. A. D 117]

He died childiess, and it is said had not intended to nominate a successor, followlag in this the example of Alexander. Hadrian owed his adoptlon to Plotina. 1 . Dio posit deatin for some dat she concealed her husband deatin for some days, and that the ietter inform. ing the Benate of his last intentions was sigued the despatches declaring han. Hadrian recelved of August, and declaring his adoption on the sth of August, and those announcing Trajan's death procitimed Enards. $\qquad$ As soon as be was apoliagetic Emperor at Antioch, he sent aa apologetic Arseatch to the Benate requesting their assent to his election; the army, he sald had chosen him without waiting for their suuc. prince. The llepulific should remain without prince. The confirmation which he askedi for was immediately granted. The state of lon. man affairs was at thls monent a very critical one, and did not permit the new Emperor to Trave the East. Emboldened hy the news of volted and achleved some great sucreessess: re. matia on the north, Mauritania, Egypt, and Syris on the south, were already in a state of ind surrection. The far-sighted prodence of H h. drian led him to fear that the empire was not un. iikely to fall to pleces hy its own weight, and that the Euphrates was its best boundary. It was douhtless + b.eat sacrifice to surrender all the rich and populous provinces beyond that river which bad been gained by the arms of his enve of Tratan was no coward fear or meas enry; of Trajan whleh prompted Hadrian, but he wiseiy felt that it was worth any price to pur ehase peace and security. Accordingly he with and Mesopotuman armies from Armenla. Assyria an independent kingdom, surrendered thr two latter to the Parthians, and restored thelr wo posed king Chosroes to his throne. . . . Aftur taking these measures for establishing jemere in the Enst, he left Catilius Severus goverum of Syria, and returned by way of Illyria to loma. where he arrived the following year. restless curiosity, which was one of the priacipis to remain ingetlec ater, would not permit him to remain innetlve at Rome; be determineyl to mate a personal survey of every province thronghont his vast dominions, and for this reat son he ls so frequently represeuted on madala as the ioman IIereules. lie commenced his cravels with Gaul, thence he proceeded to Germans: where he estahlished ordur and dimeptivine amongst the Ioman forces, and then croasentwier to Britain.

It would be uninterestine to glve a mere eatalogue of the conntries whith he Instex during the ensuing ten years of hiv rivin. In the fifteenth winter of it he arrived in Eiryp, and rehuilt the tonh of Pompey the Grait at Pelnsinm. Thence he proceeded to Ale valmatria which was at that perios the unlrersity of the World. .... Ile had scarcely passedit thrming arus for three years [seve JEws: A. D. 130-134]. ine grudrian spent the winter at Athens, where the temple of archlteetural taste hy completing the cemple of Juplter Oltmplus. - Cunsrons ing years, be adopted L . Aurelius Verus, a mau of pieanure and of weak and delicate iealth totally unft for his new pooltion. . . . Ags and disease had now so nitered his [Hidir'an's] character that he became luxurious, veif-indulgent, ausplcious, and even cruel. Ves us did not live two years, and the Emperor then adopted Titus Antoninus, on condition that he should in hls turn adopt M. Annius Verus, afterwards cailed M1. Aurelis - and the son of Aurellus Verus." Hsdrian's maiady "now became insupportahly painful, his temper marage even to madness, and many Ilves of senators and others were sacrificed to his fury. His sufferings were so excruciatlig that he was always begging his attendants to put hlm to death. At last he went to Bala, Where, setting at deflance the preacriptions of his physiclans, he ate and drank what he pleased. Desth, therefore, $500 n$ put a period to his sufferiags, In the sixty-third year of his age and the tweaty-first of his reatless relgn [A. D. 138]. Aatonlnus was present at hls death, his corpse was hurnt at Puteoll (Pozzuoii), and his ashes deposited In the mausoleum (moles Hadrianl) whlch he had hlmself hulit, and which is now the Castie of St. Angelo."-R. W. Browne, Hiot. of Rome from A. D. 98, ch. 1-2.

Also IN: C. Merivale, Hitt. of the Romans under the Empire, ch. $63-66$ ( $c .7$ ).-T. Arnold and others, Hist. of the Roman Empire (Encyclop. Metropolitana), ch. 4-6.
A. D. 138-280.-The Antoninen.-Antoninus Pius.- Marcus Aurelina.-"On the death of Hadrian in A. D. 188, Antonlnus Pius succeeded to the throne, and, in accordance with the late Emperor's conditlons, adopted Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Commodus. Marcus had been betrothed at the age of 15 to the sister of Luclus Commodus, but the new Emperor hroke off the engagement, and betrothed him lastead to his daughter Faustina. The marriage, however, Was aot celebrated tlll seven yeara afterwards, A. D. 146. The long reign of Antoninus Pius is one of those happy periods that have no history. An simost unbroken peace reigned at home and abroad. Taxes were lightened, calamlties relieved, Informers discouraged; confiscutions werc rure, plots and executions were aimost ingknown. Throughout the whoie extent of his vast domain the peopie loved and valued their Emperor, and the Emperor's one alm was to further the Lappi. ness of his people. He, too, like Aurelins, had learnt thut what was good for the bee was gowl for the hive. $\qquad$ He disiiked war, did not value the military title of lmperstor, ar ? never deigned to aceept a triumph. With thls wise and emineut prince, who was as amialile in hls private relations as he was admirahle in the disciarge of his pubilc dutles, Marcus Aurefins spent the nest 23 years of his life. . . There was not a shaie of jealousy between them; encil was the friend and adviser of the other, and, so far from regarding his destined helr with susplaton, the Empreror gave him the desl gation 'Casar,' and heapert upon him all the honours of the Romnn commonwcalth. It was in vain that the whisper of malignant tongues atteinpted to shake this mutual contidence. In the year 161, when Marcus was now 40 years old, Antoninus Pius, whohad reached the age of 75 . causit a fever at Lirlum. Feeling that hls cnd was near, he summoned his friends and the chicf men of liome to his leelside, and there (without saylng a word bout his other adopted son, who is generally known by the name of Lucius Verus) solemaly rocommeaded Marcus to them as his aucceator; and then, sfiog to the captalo of the guand the watchword of 'Equanimity;' as though his sarth!y task was over he ordered to be transferred to the bedroom of Marcus the little golden statue of Fortune, which was kept in the private chamber of the Emperors as an omen of public prosperity. The very irst act of the new Emperur was one of splendid generosity, namely, the admisslon of hls adoptive hrother Luclus Verus into the fullest partlclpation of imperial honours. . The adminslon of Luclus Verus to a slare of the Emplre was due to the innato modesty of Marcus. As he was a devoted student, and cared less for manly exercises, in whlch Verus excelled, he thought that his adoptlve hrother would be a better and more useful general than hmself, and that he could beat serve the State by retainlng the civil administra. tion, and entrusting to his hrother the mansgeneut of war. Verus, however, as soon as he got a way from the imniediate Influence and ennohilng soclety of Marcus, hroke loose from aii decency, and showed hinself to be a wcak and worthless personsge. $\qquad$ Two thlngs oniy can be sald in his favour; the one, that, though depraved, he was wholly free from cruelty; and the other, that he had the good sense to submit himself entirely to hls hrother. $\qquad$ Marcus had a iarge fimily by Faustina, and in the tirst year of his reign his wlfe bore twins, of whon the one who survived became the wicked and detested Emperor Commodus. As though the hirth of sucis a chlid were ln Itself an omen of ruin, a storm of caiamity began at once to hurst over the long tranquil State. An lnundation of the Tiber...caused a distress which emiell in wide-spread famlne. Dlen's mlnds were terrifted hy earthquakes, hy the burniug of clties, and hy pligues of noxious insects. To tiese miseries, Which the Emperors did their best to alieviate, was added the horror of wars and rumours of wars. The Parthlans, under their king Fologeses, defeated and ali but destroyed a lomnn army, and dcrastated with lmpunity the lionian province of Syria. The wild tribes of the Catti burst over Germany with fire and sword; and the news from Britain was full of Insurrection and thmult. Such were the elements of trouble and diseorl whlch overshadowed the reign of Marcus Aurelius from lts very beginning down to lts weary close. As tho l'arthlan war was the most important of the three. Verus was sent to queil lt , and hut for the ahility of his generais - the greatest of whom was Avidius Cassius - would have ruined Irretrievalify the fortuncs of the Fiupire. These generals, however, vindieated the uajesty of the Roman name [A. D. 165-166 - see Partura], and Verus returned in triuuph, bringing buck with him from the East the seeds of a terrihie pestilence whlch devastated the whole Emplre [see Plagee: A. D. $78-200$ ] :and by which, on the onthreak of fresh wars. Ferns himself was carried off at Aquilcia. . . . Mareus was now the uudlsputed lord of the Roman world. . . But this Imperial elcvation kiniled no glow of pride or self satisfaction in his meek anil chastened nature. He regarded himmolf us belng ln fact the servan of ail. .... Ife was onc of those who held tha. nothing slould bo done hastily, and that few crimes were worse than the wate of time. It is to such vlews and such hahits that we owe the composition of his works. His 'Meditations' were written amid the painful self-denial and distracting anxieties of hls wars with the Qumdi and the Jarcomanni [A. D). 16M-180, - bee Nabmatian and MabcoManstan Warm of Marect Aurehics], and he was the author of other works which mhapplly have perished. Pcrhaps of ail the font treasures ot antlyuity there are few which we should feel a greater wish to reenver than the inst autobing. rapliy of this wisest of Emperors and hollest of Prgan nien. $\qquad$ Tlie Court was to Mareus a burd'n; he telis us himself that Phllosopliy was his nuther, Empire only hls stepmother; it was oniy hils repose in the one that reniered even tulerable to him tise burdens of the other.

The most celefirated erent of the war [witi the Quail] took place in a great vietory . . . Whlch he won in A. I), 1it, and wileli was attributed hy the Christians to what ls known as the 'Mirucie of the 'Thundering Leglon' [see Thispeman Leoion]. . . . To the gentie ineart of Mareus all wur, even when accompunied with victories, was eminently distasteful; and in such painfal and tugenial occujuthors un sinuli part of lis Ilfe was prissenl. $\qquad$ It was inls muhappy destiny not to have troxilen out the embers of this [the Surmatian] war before he wis buriened witls another far nome palaful and formikiabie. Thls was the revolt of Avidins Cassius, a generai of the olf bhuit lioman type, whom, in spite of soave ominous wnrnings. Dlarcus loth foved and trusterl. The ingratitude dispiayed by such a man cunsed Marcus the dieepest unguish; but he Was sarved froas all diangerous eonsequences by the wide-spread nffectiou which he hud insplred liy his virthous roigut. The very mhliers of the reledious general fell aw:ay from him, and, after he land been a monimal Eimperor for only three months and six dines, he wos assassimated by some of his own ofticers. ... Mareus traveiled throngh the proviuces which hand favouren the canse of Ividina C'usslus, and treated them ali whil the most complete and judulgent forbearance. Iuring this journey of pneification, be fuat hls wife Faustlas, who died suddenty in one of the valleys of Nomat Tanrus. History has assigned to Funstiun a charicter of the diarkest infimy, und it hats even bern made a charge against Aurchins that he overlooked or condoned har oftereses. $\qquad$ . No duubt Faustha W:as tuworthy of her limsinnt; but surely it is the glory anit mot the shame of a noble nature to be avirac from jealonsy and suspicion. - Marcus . Iurclins cruclly perseented the Christhans. Lat us lirietty consiler this charge. Marois in his 'Meditations ailudes to the Christianvonere ouly, unl then it is to make n pussing complaiat uf the indituroroce to denth, whieh nppeared to him, as it appenrent to Epictetus, to arise. Bot fromt iny moble prinelples, but from mere obatinater anl perversity. That he slared the profount ilialike with whieh C'hristhans were regariond is vary probable. That he was a cold. blimaled and virulint persecutor is utteriy unllke his whole clamraturs. . . . The true state of the ease serent to lave been this: The deep calamities in which during the whole relen of Marcus the Eunpire was involvet, raused whie-spre:ad diatress, und romseof inte putuliar fury the fectjuga of the provincials gabinct uren whose atheism (fur such they conishlered it tole) had kindled che anger of the guds. . . Mareus, when ap-pealod to, aimpiy let the exitutog latw take its courne. The martyrdome toos place in Gsul and Asis Minor, not in Rome. The persceu. tion of the churches in Lyons and Vlenne hsppened in A. D. 177. Bhortiy after this perlod fresh wars recalled the Emperor to the North. . . . He was worn out with the tolle, triais aad travels of his long and weary llfe. IIe auak under mental anxicties and bodily fatigues, aal after a hrief lliness died in Pannonia, elther at Vienna or at Slrmium, on Marel 17, A. D. 180, In the 30th year of his age and the 20th of his reign."-F. W. Farrar, Sekert after Goal: Mitr. cus Aurelius. - "One moment, thanks to him, the worid was governed by the best and greatest, min of his age. Frightful decalenees folloved; lunt the little easket whieh contaluel the 'Thoughts' on the banks of the Granicus wss saved. From it eame forth that iucomparabie book in whleh Epictetus was surpassed, that Evangel of those who beileve not lin the super. naturai, whieh has not been eomprelecaledi untli our day. Veritabie, eternal Evangel, the book of 'Thoughts,' which will never grow ohl, be. eause it asserts no dogma."-E. Renan, English Conferences: Marcus Aurelina.
Also in: W. W. Capes, The Age of the Anto-nines.-C. Merivale, Hist. of the Romana under the Empire, ch. 67-68 (v. 7).-P. B. Watson, Mar. cus durelius dntoninus.-G. Long. 7humphes of the Emperor M. Aurelius Antoninus, intrant.
A. D. $180-192$. - The reigu of Commodus."If a man were cailed to tix the perionl la the history of the world during whlech the emulition of the human race was most happy and prosper. ous, he would, without hesitatlon, muae that which elapsed from the death of Donitian to the accession of Commodus. The vast extent of the IRoman empire was governed by nbsolute pown. under the guidance of virtue and wistion. The armles were restrained hy the firm but geatle hand of four suecessiv z emperors whose characters and autiority commanded involuntary respect.
It has been objected to Marcus, that he sicrificed the happlness of milllons to a fond partiality fur a worthless boy; and that lie ehose a successor in his own family rather than in the republic. Nothlog, however, was negiected by the anxious futher, and by the men of virtue and learning whom he summoned to his assistance, to expand the narrow mind of young Commolus, to correct hils growing vices, and to render him worthy of the thronc for which he was deslgned. : . The beloved son of Marcus sueeeeded to his father, amidst the neciamations of the senate and armies; and when he ascended the throne, the happs youtlisaw round hlm neither enmpetitor to remove, nor enemies to punish. In this cala ele. rated station it was sureiy naturai that he should prefer the iove of mankind to thelr detestation, the mild glories of ins five predecessors to the frawninious fatc of Nero and Domitian. Fít Coramoxius was not, as he has been represemterl. a tiger born whith an insathate thlrst of hmman boxnl. and eapable, from lis Infaney, of the most infurman actlons. Natore had formed him of a weak, rather than a wieked dispositiua. lis simplleity and timidity rendered him the slave of his attendants, who gradualiy corrupienl his mind. Ilis crueity, which at first oivered the dictntes of others, degenerated into habit, nnd at length became tise ruling passion of his soul. During the three first ycars of luls reign, the forms, and even the spirit, of the old administration were malntalned by those falthful counsel. lors to whom Marcus had recommended his son, and for whose wisdom and integrity Commodus athl entertained s reluctant esleem. The young prince and his profigate fuvorites revelled in all the lleense of soverelgn power; but hils hands were yet unstalned with blool; and he had even dispiayed a generosity of seutiment, which might perhaps have ripened into solld virtue. A fatal acilent decided his thuctuatling character. One evenlag, as the emperor was returning to tho palace through a dark and narrow portico in tho amphltheatre, an assassin, who walted his passage. rushed upon him with a drawn sword, loudly exclalmling, 'The senate sends you this.' Tic inenace prevented the deed; the assassin was selzed hy the guards, and immedlntely revcaied the authors of the conspiracy. It had been formed, not in the State, but within the wails of the paiace.

But the words of the assassin sunk deep Into the mind of Commodus, and left an indeilble Impression of fear and hatred against the whole body of the senate. Those whom ite had dreaded as tmportunate mlniaters he now suspected as secret enemles. The Delators, a race of men discouraged, and aimost extlnguished, under the former reigns, again became formlda. ble as soon as they discovered that the emperor was desirous of finding disaffection and treason in the senate. $\qquad$ Suspicion was equivalent to proof; trial to condemnation. The execution of a considersble senator wns attended with the death of all whi mlght lament or revenge his fate; and when Commodns had once tasted lumata blood, he became Incapabie of pity or remarse. Pestilence and famine contributed to till up the measure of the calamitles of Rome. lifs crucity proved at last fatai to himself. Ile hall aled with im: 'nity the noblest blood of loune: lee perished ; oon as be was dreaded by his owu donestlca. Marcia, hls favorite con. culine. Eclectus, his chamberlain, and Latus. hls Pretorian prefect, alarmed by the fate of their companlons and predecessors, resolved to prevent the destruction which every hour hung owre thelr heals, either from the mad caprice of the trraut, or the sudden indignation of the people. Marcha selzed the occasion of preseuting n driught of wle to her lover, after he had fatifued himself with hunting sonte wifid bo tats. Commoius retlred to sleep; but whilst he was iaboring with the effects of poison and drunkennes, a robust youth, by profession a wrestler, eutered his chamber, and strangled him without resistance" (December 31, A. D. 192).-E. Gibbon, Decline and Fall of the Romun Empire, ch $3-1$
Alen in: J. B. L. Crevier, Hist. of the Roman Eimperors, bh: 21 (c. 7).
A. D. 192-284.-From Commodus to Diocletian. - Twenty-three Emperors in the Century. - Thirteen murdered by their own soldiers or servants. - Successful wars of Severus, Aurelian, and Probus.- On tho murder of Commadus, "ilelvlus Pertinax, the prefect of the city, a man of virtue, was placed on the throne hy the couspiratirs, who would fain justlify thelr dieri to the eyes of the world, and their choice \#ns conirmed by the eenale. But the Protorlans hasd not forgotten their own po wer on a similiar occaslon; sud they llked not the virtue and regularty of the new monarch. Pertinax was, therefore, speedily deprived of throne and ilfe. Pretorian fusolence now attained lts helght. Reganiless of the dignity and honour of the em(1)re, they set it $u_{i}$ ) to auction. The highest bllder was a senator, named Didius Julianus [Marci, 103]. . . The leglons disdained to receivenn emperor from the life-guarda. Those of Britain proclained their general Clodins Aibinus; thosc of Asia, Pescennius Niger: the Pannonian legions, Septinius severus. This lust was a man of bravery and conduet: ly valaur and stratagem he successively vanquished his rivala [defenting Albinus la an olstinate battle at Lyons, A. D. 10i, and fluivhing the aubjugation of his rivals in the enst by refucing Byzautium after a siege of three years]. He maintained the superiority of the ironnnaruss agaiust the Parthlnos and Caiedonlans [see Britain: A. D. 208211]. His raign was vigorous and ad antageous to the stute; but he wanted elther the courage or the power to fuliy repress the lleense and insubordination of the soidiery. Severus left the empire [A. D. 211] to his two sons. Caracalia, the elder, a prince of vilont and untamable pas. slons, disdained to siare complre with any. He murdered his brother and colleague, the more gentle Geta, and put to death all who ventured to disapprove of the deed. A restlesa feroclty distlaguished the character of Caracaila: he was ever at war, now on the banks of the Rhine, now on those of the Euplirates. His marthi impetunsity daunted his enemles; bls reckiess cruelty territid his aubjects. . . . During a Parthan war Caracalia gave offence to Macrinus, the commauder of his berly-gnard, who nurdered him [1. D. 217]. Marrinns selzed the empire, hut had not power to hoid it. He nud lils son Dindnmenianas [after defeat $\ln$ battle at Imme, uear Antioch] were put to death by the army, who procialined a supposed son [and actually $n$ second cossin] of their beloved Caracalia. This youth was named Elagalulus, nad wns priest of the sin in the tempie of Emessa, iu Syria. Every vice staincl the characterof this iicontious effeninate youth, whose name is become proverblal for seusial lndulgence: he possessed uo redeeming qualty, had no friend, and was pat to denth ly his own guarls, who, riclous ns ther were themselves, detested vice $\ln$ him. Alexamder Severus. consin to Elagabalus, but of a totally opposite character, sutceeded that vicious prince [1. D. 23? ]. All extimable qualities were united in the noble and accomplished Alexauter. . . Thi bove of learnlug and virtue did not $\ln$ him smother military akill and valour: he checked the martial hordes of Germany, nad led the Roman eaghes to vletory agninst the Sassanides, who had displaced the Arsacles ln the dominlon over Persia, and revlsed the clains of the liunse of Cyrus over Auterior Asla. Ales. nnder, vletorious in wnr, beiored by his subjects, deemed he might veuture on lntroducing more reguiar cliscipiline into the army. The attempt Was fatai, and the amiable monarch lost his life in the mutiay thmt resulted [A. D. 235]. Maxlnin, a soldler, originally a Thracinn sliepherd, distlaguiahed by his prodigious aize, strength and appetite, a stranger to all civic virtues and all clvic rules, rude, brital, cruel, and ferocious. scated hluself on the throne of the noble and virtuous prince, ln whose murder he had been the chlef agent. At Rome, the senate conferred the vacant dlgalty on Gordlan, a noble, wealthy and virtuous menstor, and on his son of the same name, a valiat and apirited youth. Butscarcely Were they recognleed when the son fell in an en. gegement, and the father siew himeelf [A. D. 237]. Masimin was now rapidly marching toward Rome, fuil of rage and fury. Despair gare cournge to the senate: they nomlanted Balhinus and Puplenus [Maximus Pupienus], one to direct the internal, the other the exter. nal affairs. Maximin hal advanced as far as Aquilein [which he besleged without success], when hia horrible crueltien caused an insurrec. tlon against him, and he and his onn, an amiabic Jouth, were murdered [A. D. 288], The army was not, however, wiiling to acqulesce in the ciaim of the senate to appoint an emperse. Civii war was on the point of breaking out [and Baibinus and Pupienui were massacred hy the Prutoriana], when the conflicting partiea agreed $\ln$ the person of the thirt Gordian, a boy of but thirtsen years of age [A. D. 238], Gnriian III, was,., chiefy gulded by his father-in-law, Misitheus, who inducell hifm to engage in war against the Persiana. In the war. Gordian dispiayed a conrage worthy of any of his predecessors; hut le shared what was now become the usuai fate of a Homan emperor. He was murdered hy Philip, the captain of his guard [A. D. 24t]. Phiiip, an Arabian hy birth, origiualiy a captain of freebooters, seized on the purpie of his murdered sovereign. Two rivais arose and contended with him for the prize, hut accomplished nothing. A third competitor, De. clus, tite commander of the army of the Danube, defeated and siew him near Verona [A. D. 249]. During the reign of Philip. liome attained her thousanith year."-T. Keightiey, Outlinen of Mist. (Latriner's Cabinet (yclop.). pt. 1, ch. D. " Decins is memornbie as the tirst emperor who attempted to extirpute the Christian religion by a generai persecntion of its professors. His cilets are host; but the reconis of the time cx. hibit a departure from the system which had been usuaily observed by enemies of the church since the days of Trajan. The authorities now sought out Christians: the legai orier as to accusutions was negiected; aceusers ran no risk: und popuiar cinnour was admitted instesil of formai information The iong enjoyment of pence hai toid unfavourabiy on the church.
When, as Origen iad foretoid. a new scason of trini came, the effeets of the genern reiaxation werc sudiy dispinged. On being summoned, in obrifeuee to the emperor's exlict, to appear and offer sucritice, maltiades of Christhan in every eity rushed to the forum. . . . It seemedi, says St. Cyprian, as if they hal long been eager to tud au upportunity for disowning their faith. Tite persecution was especiaily direeted against the biblopis aud ciergy. Among its rictims were Fabian of ilonme, Babyias of Autioch, and Aiexancier of derusulem: white in the ines of other emiuent men (as ('yirian, Origen, Gregory Thaumaturgus, und Dinnssias of Alexuairia) the perowi is markeni hy exile or other sufferings. The chief object, however, was not to istlict death on the Christians, but to force them to recantation, With this view they were subjected to tortures, Imprisoninent and want of foori: aad under such trisis the constaney of mady gave way. 3lacy Withdrew into vuluutary banishment; among these was Paui, a young man of Alexamiria, who took up his abode ln the desert of the Thebaid, and is celehrated as the irut Chriation hermit." Chureh, dk, 1, eh, $6(0,1),-" T h i s$ pernecution (of Decius) wat interrupted bo an invasion of the Goths, who, for the Irit 1 me, crosed the Isa. ube in conslderabie numbers, and devastated Mopsia [see Gotns: A. D. 24-251], Irectus marched agalnot them, and galned tome inupor. tant advantages; but In hls last battie, cliarring Into the midat of the enemy to avenge the diath of his son, he was overpowered and alain (d. il. 251). A great number of the Romans, thus deprived of their leader, fell victims to the barb. rians; the survivors, grateful for the prolectioa anforded them by the legions of Galius, who commanded in the nelghbourhood, procinimed that general emperor. Gailus concludieri a vils. honourahle peace wlth the Goths, and renewed the persecutlons of the Christians. His dastariily conduct provoked general resentment; the provlncial armies revoited, but the mont liangeruus Inaurrection wat that headed hy Emilianus, who was prociaimed emperor in Masia. Iic lei ifis forcea intu Italy, and the hostiie armies met at Internmna (Terni); hut just as an engagemeat was about to commence, Galius was miriered ly his own soidiers (A. D. 253), and Emillanus prociaimed einperor. In three months Fimili. anus himseif met a aimltar fate, the army insing ehosen Valerian, the governor of Ganl, to the sivereignty. Vaierian, though now sixty years of age, poasessed powers that might have revived tive sinking fortunes of the empire, $n$ hitch was now invaded on ail sides. The Goths, who had formed a powerful monarchy on tive fuws Dutuube and the northern coasts of the Biack tra, ex. tended their territoriea to the Borysthelles (i)nciper) and Tanais (Don): they ravaged Mirai, Thrace and Macelon; while their fleets astatell tite coasts both of the European and Asiatic provinces [see Goris: A. I). Liv-2hi]. The-grent confederation of the Franks Jecame formidinbie on the lower Rhine [sec Fuanss: A. D. 253], and not less langerous wis tiut of -lie Aliemanni on the upper part of that river. :pians and Sarmatians laid Mashi wiste; whti the Persians piundered Syria, c'uppulovia, and Cilicia. Gailienns, the emperor's sin, whom Faierian had chosen for his colieague, nui Aureinn, destined to succeed him in the empire, gained several victories over the Gemanic tribes: wille Vaierian marcheal in persou igsinst the scythians and Persians, wio had invided Asia. Iie guined n victory over the formur ia Anatoia, but, inprudentiy passing tike Fuphri. tes, he was surronncieni by Sapar's army wear Ealessa . . and was forced to surreunder ut dis. eretion (A. D. 259) [sce- Persia: A. i). 22ti-027]. I)nring nine jears Vaierian languishal in hupeiess eaptivity, the ohjeet of scorn and insuit to his brutai conqueror, white no effort was mado for his iiberation hy his unnatural son. Ginlieuns succeeted to the throne. $\qquad$ At the noment of his accession, the barharians, cneouragei ly the captivity of Vaierian, invaded the emibire on all sides. Itaiy itseif was invaded by the (irmsua [see Alemakni: A. D. 259], who adrsuced to Ravenna, but they were forced to retire by the emperor. Gailienua, after this exertion, suak into compicte inactirity; his indoience roused a host of competitors for the empire in the different provincea, commonly calied the thirty ty. ranta,' though the number of pretenders did not exced 19. . . Far the mort remartable of thems was Odenstus, who asumed the purple it Palmyrn, gnined severs! great victories over the Perdans, and besieged Bepor in Cteviphon.

RONE, A. D. 204-800.

But this great man was murdered hy some of his own family; he wes succeeded hy his wife, the calebrated Zenolla, who took the titie of Queen of the East. Gailienus dld not iong survive him: be was mumered while besieging Aureolus, one of his rivals, in Mediolanum (Mllan); but before his leath he tranamitied his rights to Ciaunius, g geaeral of great reputatlon (A. D. 268). Most of the other tyrants had previousiy fallen in hattie or hy assassinatlon. Marc'a Aurelins Claudhs, having conquered his onay rivai, Aureolus, marched against the Germans and Coths, Fhom he muted with great siaughter [see Gorsts: A. D. 268-2\%0]. Ile then prepared to mareh against Zenolra, who had conquered Egypt: but a pestilence hroke out in lils army, and the emperor himself was one of Its victlme (A. I). 2\%0). . . . Its brother was elected emperor by arclamation; hut In 17 days he so displeased the army, by attempting to revive the anclent discipllie, that he was deposed and mumlered. Aurelian, a native of Slrmlum in Pannonla, was chosen emperor by tho army: and the senate, Well sequalated with hls merits, joyfuliy confrmed the electlon. He made pence with the Gutls, and led hls army agulnst the Germuns, who had once nore Invaled italy [see Ane. masil: A. D. 270]. Aurellin was at fir defeated; but he soon retrieverl hls lows, and cut the whole of the harharian army to pleces. Hls aext vitory was ohtalned over the Vandais, a new lorte that hat passed the Dunule; and having thns recured the tranquility of Euroge, he marched th rescue the castern provinces from Zambint, "whom he vanyulished and hrought captive to lome (ace PaimyRa). This accompllshed. the vigoruus emperor proceeded to the suppressioa of a formldable revolt in Euppt, aud then to the recovery of Gaul, Spaln, and lritala. " whlch hal now for thlrtern years leen the prey of differchet tyrimts. A slngle campalgn restored thewe priviners to the emplre; and Anrellun, re. tarning to lonue, was honoured whth the most makniticent triumph that the city had ever beheh. . .. But he aloandoned the province of Ihan in the barharians, whhdrawing all the loman parrisons that had been stationed beyond the U.taithe. Anrelimis virtues were suified hy the steponess nad severity that naturaily belongs to : prasint nuif a sollier. If is ottlecers dreaded his intleslbility," and he was murilered, A. D. 985 , ly wour of them who hat been detected in peculitions and who drealed his wruth. The Nate clectal as hls successor Marcus C'inudlus Tacitus, whodied after a reign of seven months. Florian, a brother of Tacltus, was then chosen by the cenate; hut the Syrian arny put forward a compretitor in the person of its commander. Marcus durelius I'robus, and Florian was presently alain by his owu trowps. "Probus, now undispuled master of the Empire, fed his troops from dsia to Gaul, which was nguln devastated by the (icrman trilies; he not only defented the burbaria's. hat pursited them luto thelr own country. Where he gsined greater alcantages than any of his predecessors [see Gacl: A. D. 9:i shil Germany: A. D. evit]. Thence he passell into Thrace, where he humbled the Goths: and, returning to Asia, he completely subdued the lasurgent Inuriane, Whow lands he divided his own terms from the liar of Perita. But - ven the power with which Probus wlelded his army could not protect him from its flcentlousness, and tn a sudden muting (1. D, 282) he was stain. Carus, captain of the pratorisa guarls, was then rised to the throne hy the army, the sens te amenting. He repelied the Sarmatiana and defeated the Perians, who had renewed hostilities; hut he died, A. D. 288, whlle besieging Cteslphon. His mon Numerianus was chomen hif succemsor; "hut after a few months' reiga, he was amamalnated hy Aper, hle father.ln-law and eaptaln of hls guards. The crime, however, was dlscovered, anit the murderer put to death hy the army. Dlocleslan, aid to have been originaliy a siave, was unanimousiy saluted Emperor hy the arme. He was proclalmed at Clalcedon, on the 17th of December, A. D. 284 ; an epoch that deserves to be remembered, as it marks the begfaning of a new era, called 'the Era of Diocieslan.' or 'the Ers of Martyrs," which long prevalied In the chureh, and is still used hy the Copts, the Ahymblalans, and other Alrican nations." - W. C. Taylor, Student's Manual of Aneient Hist., ch. 17, deet. 6-7.
Alaso in: E. Glhhon, Dectine and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 5-12 (0. 1).
A. D, 213.-First collision with the Aiemanni. See Alemansi: A. D. 213 .
A. D, $23^{8}$.-Siege of Aquiteia by Mazimin. See abore: A. D. 142-284.
A. D. 258-267. -Naval incuraions and ravages of the Goths in Greece and Asia Minor. See Goriss: A. I). 258-267.
A. D. 284-305,-Reconstitution of the Empire by Diocietian,-Its division and suhdivision hetween two Augusti and two Cesara. Abdication of Diocietian.-"The uccesslon of liocletian to power marks a new epoch In the history of the Roman amplre. From this time the ofil names of the repullic, the consuls, the trihuaes, and the Senate liself, cense, even if stlll existlng, to linve any political slgnlticunce. The government becomes avowerlly a monarchIchi autocracy, and the oflicers by whom it Is uiministered are slmplr the numinees of the des. pot on the throne. The emplre of Ilome is henceforth an Oriental soverelgnty. Aurellan Ind alread fintroduced the use of the Oriental dhadem. The nohllity of the emplre derive thelr positlons from the faror of the sovereign: the commons of the emplre, who have fong lost their pilltical power, cease to enjoy even the name of citizens. The provlnces are still admiulstered under the imperiai prefects hy the magistrates and the assemhlles of an earlier date, hut the functlons of both the one and the other are continel more strictly thnn ever to matters of pollce and tinance. Iltherto, indeed, the Senate, however intrinslcally weak, had found opportuultie's for futting forih its claims to authority.
The chosen of the legions had been for some time past the commander of an army, rather thnn the soverelgn of the state. He had selfom quitteri the cainp, rarely or never presented hlmself $\ln$ the capital.

The whole realm mlght split asunder at any momeat futo as many kingdums as there were armies, uniess the chiefs of the feglons felt themseives contmiled hy the strength or genlus of one more eminent than the rest.
The danger of disruption, thus far averted malnty by the awe which the name of Rome inoplred, wes becoming yearly more Imminent, when Hocletian aroee to reetabllah the organic eon. nection of the parts, and breathe a new Ilfe lato the jeart of the boily polific. The jcaloul edlet of Galifenus Ind forlhliden the menatons to take servke in the nrmy, or to quit the iimits of laly. The degralation of that oace Iliustrlous orler, which wan thus rendered incapable of fur* nixhing a cundidate for the dhulem, w. conpleted by Its Indoient acquiemence In thin dis. puallying ordinance. The noiles of lonse rolingulsted ail interest ln nfluts which they comlil no longer sapire to conduct. The em. pervirs, on their part, ceased to regard them as a substantlve puwer in the state; mall in construct. Ing his new imperfal constitution Diocietian whoily overlooked titelr exlatence ... Whlit he diaregarded the pusallility of oppositlon at - (ome, be contrived a new check upon the rivalry of his distant lleutenants, hy nswoclating with himseif three other chiefs, welifel together by strlct alliance Into one Imperial family, each of wion should take up his residence la in separate quarter of the cmplre, and combine with all the others In maintaining their common interest. Ilis first step was to choose a single colleague in the perion of a brave soldier of obscure orlgin. nn lify rimu peasat, iy name Jinximianus, whom he Inveated with the titie of Augustus In the ycar 2sf. The associated ruiers assumed at the same time the fancifui epithets of Jovlus and Hercu. lius, auspicious names, which made them perInaje popular In the camps, where the commandIus genius of the ene und the iaborious fortitude of the other were fully recoguized. Maximianus was deputerl to controi the legions in Gaui, to make inend agingt domentic scilition, as well as ngainst the revoit of Carausius [ree Buttain: A. II. 288-297], a preteuler to the purple in Britain, whlle Diorletian encountered the ene. mies or rivnis who were now rising up in varions quarters in the Eust. IIs daugers stili muiti. piled, and ngain the powers of the state were minilivided to meet them. In the year 282 Din. clethan erented two Casars; the one. Gnlerins, to net sulwordinately to himself in the East; the other, Constantlus Chlorns, to dlvide the govermment of the western provinces wltin Maximitan. The Cipsars were bound more clusely to the Augustl by receiving thelr dangiters In tuar. riage: but though they acknowledged cach a suferior in his own laif of the empire, and ndmit. ted a certuin supremacy of Diocletian over aii, yet encin cujoyed kingly rule in his own terri. tories, ami cach established a court and capleal, as weil us au army and a camp. Diocletian retained the weulthest and most tranquil portion of the reaim, nal reigned In Nicomedin [see Nicomedis] ver Asia Ninor, Syrm, und Egypt; while he intrusted th the Cgesar Gaicrius, estah. ilsined at Siruinm. the more exposed provlnces on the Danube. Maximian oceupied fialy, the adjacent isianis, and Africa, stathoning hinself, however, not in Ifome, but nt Milan. Constantins was required todefend the Khenish frontier: and the mertial provinces of Gaul, Spain, and Britain p glven him to furnish the forces Decessary - maintaining that Important trust. The capital of the Hestera Citsar was fxed at Treves. Insplred with a common Interest, and contrciled by the ascendency of Dlocietlan him. self, all the emperons acted with vigor in thelr eevernl provinces. Dloctetian mecorered Alexan. dria and quieted the revolt of Egypt (me di.ms aNDRIA: A. D. 2ux]. Mnximina folltal the us. ruly honkes of Matrentla, aud overthrew pretender to sovereignty In that d'stant quartr. Constantlus diacomfited an Inviding fiome of Alemanal, kept In cherk Ca:wnitis, who for moment had selzed uion Iritula, and agaln wrested that province from dilee un, who hal murdered and succeeded to him, finlerius lirought the legtons of llyyta to the defance of dyrla against the Persinns, and though owe defeated on the plalus of Carriue, at hast rmburvi 687]. Thus vietorlous In every quarter, Dhele. tian celebrated the commencement of his twen. tleth year of power with a trimmiliat the ancluat capitai, and again taking leave of the impriad efty, returned to hls customary remflencent Sleomedia. The Illness with whleit he waw attneked on his journey suggesterl or fixed his remplitha to relleve hlnmif from his cores, nui on May 1 . In the year 305, belng then Hfiy ulne yratm of age, fie performed the whemn net of alitioatua at Morgus, In Mawha, the sjout where fue had timt ansumed the purple at the blabluguf his whitlems Strange to myy, lie did not renounce the olject of hls ambition nione. On the saume diay a similar scene was enacted by his coilengue Maxhman at Milan ; but the aldieation of Maximian was not, It ls sulh, n spontaneous sacritice, lout iumosed upon him hy the Inturnce or anthortty of his efler aud grenter colleague. Hoklethm hai es. tablisivet the prinelple of suceession by whech the surreme power was to dewecul. IIaviag seen the completlon of all his urraugements, and congratuinted himseif on the wleferes, thes far. of his great poitical experiuseuts, iu crownmi his career of moderation and self-restraiut by strictiy confinlug himseif duriug the remander of his ilfe to the tranquil eujoyment of a private station. Hetiring to the reaidence lue hind jrepared for inlmsed ut Sialom, he found werupstlon and bunsement In the cultranion of his garden."-C. Merdvale, cieneral Jine. fof lume, ch. 7 !!

Aleo is: E. Ghbon, Decline amd Fitt of the Romath Einpire, eh. I3- II. T. Armoli, The Ro man Syntem of l'meinctill Allminintrutim, ch. 4. -Sec, also, In , ittas.

A, D. 287.- Iis urrection of the Bagauds it Gaul. Ser !... ims; aiso. IEDititits.
A. D. 303 $\because$ The pernecution of Chritians undet i,ocletian.-"Dremms comeralgg the overthro, of the Empire hat long Inenceast Into the forms of prophecies anongsi the christians. . . . There were sonate to rejeat the predictlons and to count the proofs of overthrow Impendlag upon the Empire. IBut there were more, far more, to desire its preservation. Many even Iaboured for it. The number of thase holding oflices of distinction at the courts and ia the nrmies Iniplles the act. Ity of a stili larser number In Inferfor stations. . . Nivier, on the other Land, inad the generailty of Cirlstians beea the objects of deeper or more iltter suspicions.

By the lower orders, they would be hated as conspiring agalnst the customs of their province or the giories of their ruce. Hy nen of position and of cducation, they wuad le de spised as opposing every interest of ienrning, of property, and of rank. 1harker stIfi were the sentiment of the eovereigns. By them the Chrlotians were soorsed as unruly subjects. balldiog templee without authority, appolinting prienta without license, whilio they fired sod died for praciplee the mont adrerse to the laws and to the rulers of the Fmplre. . . . Every. where they were adranclag. Every where they met with revirlag foes. At the head of theme atoud the Cusar, afterwarde the Emperor Galerius. Ho who had been a herdmman of Dacia wan of the stamp to become a wanton ruler. Ife showell his temper in has treatment of the Ilesthen. He showed It still more clenrly in his hostlity towards the Chriatlans. . . . He turned to Divcletian. The elder Emperor was In the moxil to hear hls vindictive son. In-law. Already bad Dlacletion fulminated hls edlets agalast the Christians. Oace it was because his prienta declared them to be denounced in an oracle from Apolio, as opposing the worshlp of that delty. At snothef tirne, It was because his tootheayern complained of tue presence of hle Christian attevisats as Interferfing with the omens on which the Ileathen depenited. Dlocletlan was auperattlons. But he yletded lems to his superation us man than to bls Imperiousness as a coverelgn, when he ordered that all employed in the tmperial service should take part in the publle sccritices under paln of scourging and dismimasl.

At this crish he was acconted by Galerius. Iniperions as he was, Dlocletlan was athl clrcum. spret. . . Galerius urged Instant suppremalon. -The woril,' repiled his father-In law :wlll be thrown Into confuslon, if we attack the Chris. tians.' But Galerius Insisted. Not all the cau. tiun of the eller Emperor was proof agalnas the passions thus exclted by has enn-ln-law. The wives of Diorletisn and Galerlus, both tald to have bren c'iristians, iuterceded In valn. With. out consulting the otiher sovereigus, It was deterninell ixetween Diocletian a. Galerius to annd the alarum of peraecri'. .. throughout their realms. Never had pe. iution begun mure fesrfaily. Without a note of warnlag, the Christians of Nicomedia wero startied, one nurnlag. by the anck sad demolltlou of thelr church.

Sot until the uext day, however, was there say furmal declaration of hostilities. Au ellct then spipeared commanding lautant and terri. be proceedings agalnat the Christians. Thelr churehes were to be razel. Thelr Scriptures were to he diestroyed. They themselves were to ie depriverl of tielr estates and offices. . . . Some dars or weeks, crowded wleh resistance as weli satfering, weut by. Suddenly a fire broke out in the palace at Nicomedia. It was of course laid at the charge of the Cinristians. . . . Somo movemunts occurring in the eastern proviuces were shon ascribed to Christlan machhations.

Tine Enopreases, anspected of sharing the faith of tike suffereru, were compelled to offer pulific ancritice. Flercep assauits ensued. A sternin eulict from the palace ordered the arrest of the Christlan priesta. A chird commanded that the prisoners should be forced to sacritice sccording to the Heathen ritual under paln of tortare. When the dungeons were filed, and the racke wlthin them were busy with thelr horrid work. a fourth ediat, more searchlog and more pitiless than auy, was publlshed. By this the proper ofticers vere direcued to arreat every Christian whom they could discover, and bring hial w, ue of che Heathen temples . . . Letter were despatcied wo demind the co-operation of 48 the Emperor Maxlmian and the Cieanr Constaatlus. The latter, It is mald, refused; yet there were no limlta that could be ect to the pernecu. tlon by any one of the soverelgns. None sulfered more than the Christhne In Brltaln. The Intensly of the persecutoo was $\ln$ no de. gree diminished by the exteat over which it pread. . . Bome were throwa laso dungenes to renounce thelf falth nf to dle amldat the agoules of whirh they hat' no fear. Lang tralas of thow who survived Imprisumment were seni scrose the country or heyond the wea to labour Ilke brutes in the public minea. In inany clites the atreeta muat have been literully blocked up whth the stakes and weartolds where death was dealt allke ta men and wonen and little children. It mattered nothlag of what rank the vietlms were. The poorent alo va and the drat offecer of the lmperial treasury were gnassacredl with equal sa ragenela.

The memory of man embruces no such strife, if that can lie called a atrife in which there was luit one alde armed, but one alde staln."-8. Ellot, Ilistory of tha Eiarly C'hriotians, bk. 8, eh. 10 (e. 1).
Almo is: A. Carr, The Chureh and tho Roman Empire, eh. 2.-G. Uhlhorn, The Conlliet of Chriotianity reith IIfentheniom, bl: 3, eh. 1.
A. D. 305-323. - The wars of Constantlae and ble rivals. -Hie triumph.-Hle reunion of the Emplre.- On the aixilication of Diocletian and MaxImlan, Constantus and Gaierlus, who han previously held the suiorlinate rank of Cissafs, succeciled to the sujperiur throne, as Anguatl. A nephew of Galerius, nmmel Naxlmin, and one deverus, who was his favorite, were then appoluted Cresurs, to the exclushon of Constantine, son of Constantius, nal Masentius. mon of Maxhainn, who migitt have naturaily ex: pected the elevation. fitule more han a year afterwnils, Constanthes dievi. In Britain, and Constantine was prociain Cugustus and F.m. peror. In ials piace. by the as: :ales of the West. Galerius inal not courage to oppose tials military election, except so far ns to withiold from Constantine the stipreme rank of Augustus, which he conferfell on hls creature, Severus. Constantine acqulesced, for the rooment, and contented blmseif with the name of Casur, while eventa and his own prudence were preparing for hima far gruater elevation. In October, 306, there was a successful rislng at Ilome against Severus, Maxentius was raised to the tirrone by the voice of the fecble menate and tho people, anil hils father, Maximinn, the abullcated monarci, csme out of his retlrement to resume the purpie, In association at first, but afterwaris In rivalry with his son. Severus was besleged at Raveana and, having surrcuderel. Was condemned to deati. Galerius underuok to avenge his death ly lavading Italy, hut retreated Ignominlousiy. Thersupon he lavested hls friend Liclalus witi the cuiblems and the rank of t!le deceaned severus. The Roman world had then six enspemore - each claiming the great title of "Augustus": Galerius, Licinlus, and Maxinin ln the East (Inciuding Africa), making conmmon cause agalast Maxluian, Maxentlus and Constantine In the Weat. The first. In tilese combiuations. to fall out. were the father and sins. Mashmian and Maxentlus, both clalmlag authority in Itaiy. The old emperor appealed to hils former arnily and It declared againat hlm. He ded, taking whelter, tirat, with his evemy Gulerius, but soon repaiting to the contr of Constantine, who hal marrtedil. la laughter E'ansta. A little Inter, tho difanatisthed a.a? reatimas olif man conmplred to dethrone hle win in-law and wan pit to deaih. The next year (Mav. A. I). 81I) Ghieriun died at Nicomerdin adi his domialona were divideri thetwern Liclalli aud Maximin. Tite comblinntiona enteralime an uilangee agninat Maxentius atai Waximin. Gime noll Italy hal wearled by thls timar of Mawertid who was both viriotes and tyranuichi, ani moteri Constantine to deliver them. He remi: $\quad$ ! by a ivili! invasion of ituly, with a smis ! liut $\$ 1,(\mathrm{NH})$ meng defentei! the prenter "ring vi Maxpitiom at Turin; one.

ROME, A. D.

 aftera e'

 perisheyl If. Lit $t^{\prime}$ i, f. om this derivlve thelit and Conatautibe i. ... I bla dounlnious. In the emperon ithe yat is. . u. (d. (1). 318) was owhitw it in if it durind littie funger tlechared war Tbe tise "bile was fought uenr Cilmils, in I monin the woinul on the pinin of Mardia, In Throwe, aud cintantithe wisa the vie. tor In both. Lelednius sitest for pence and obstaitual it (Decenber, A. I). 31.5) hy tire rewhion of ail his dominion in Europe, except Tlirmere. Fur cigit yeara, Constantine was contenteyl with the grent euspire he then powsessed. In 32 th tetermiued to grasp tive entire Roman worid. Licinius opposed fim with a vigor unexpected and the war was prepareri lor on a mighty meale. It was practirally dechiteri by the firat great battle, at IIairianopie, on tive on of July, ys9. Liciuius, defeaterl, took refuge in Byzantium, wlich Constantinc besleged. Escaping from Byzantium into Asin. Liciaius fought once more at Círysopoilin and titen yleided to its fnte. He died soon after. The liman emplre was again untted and Constantine was its single lori.- E. Gihbon, Deciine und Fhll of the RHman Eimpire, ch. 14

AI.m Iv: E. L. Cutts, Cunstantine the Great, ch. $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{Ll}$.
A. D. 306.-Constantiac's defest of the Franks. the Franks: A. I). 306.
A. D. 313. - Constantine's Edlct of Milan.Declared toleration of Christianity, $\rightarrow$ Alter the extenshon of the govercignty of Constantine over the Italian provinres ns well as Gaul anil ibe West, he went, in Jnnuary, \&. I), 313, to Milan. and there belid a cunfer-ince with Licinius, his castern coileague in the empire. One of the re. sults of that conference was the frmous Edict of Miann, which recognized Christianity and admit. ted It to a footing of equal toleration witi the paganisms of the empire - in terma as foilows: - Wherefurc, as i. Constantine Augustus, anil I. Licinius Augustus, came under fnvourahic nus. juces to Mian, and look under consideration ail weifare, these thlags among the rest appeared to ns to be most advantageous and proftable to ali. We have rewived mong the irst things to or - daln, thow matter by whleh reverence and wor whip to the Deity sit hat be exhibited. Tbat fo buw we may crant litewise to the Chrintians, and to ali, the free choice to foilow that munle of worship which they may wish. That whatm ever divinity and celeatial power many estal may be proplelous ta us, and to ail that Hve umierout govermment. Therefore, we have diccrivs the following ordinance, ase sur wiil, with a mboary and moat correct Intention, thint no frochutary ail shail be refused to Chrintlana, tu fillow in to keep their otwer rancee or wordbip. Ilut that to cach nue gower te granted to ilverite him nitui to that Wurnhip which to may think minptedi to himacif. That the I hlut to us IIf accustomerl favour and klaineak

Ami this we further decree, with fexpmit to the Chriatians, that the placen in which they were formerly accustationd to ammble, evonvin. Ing whichalwn we formerly wrede to your thlellity, In it different forin, that il any frepwon bowe pur cluanal these, either from nur treasurre, or from nny other otue, themo shail ruwtore them to the Cliristians, witwout money and without diomani. ing any price.

They who as we have wid remore them withou valuation mill frice bay expret thelr lisilimuley from our munitheeneresai Ilberailty."- Eusebias, Eeckeniatical /fiet., Uk. 10, ch. 8 .

Aloo IN: P. Schafl, Pragrean of Religioun Fmedown, th. 2.
A. D. 358-3ag. The Arian Controveray and the Conacil of Nican. Bee Ahmanimi: and Nic.ent A. I), 885.
A. D. 323.-The conversion of Constantine -His Christianity.-His character,-"The alleged supernatural convertion of Cimstantioe has aftorded a subject of douht and debat. froun that age to the present. Up wis thate of his war againat Maxentius, the Emperor Indinvel, like his factier, in one god, whom le rephemited to himseif, not with the sttrihutes of dupleer. best and greatest, fsther of gods and men, but under the form of A pulio, whith the atribute of the glorifled youth of manhood, the goi of light and life.

His conversion to Cliristianity took place at the period of the war with May. catius. The chief contemporary authorites on the subject are Lactantius ani Euseblus. Lactantius, an African by hirth, was on rictoriclan (or, as we shoull call him, profeswor) at Niermedia, of such eminence that Constantine cotrused to him the education of hls eldest son. Crispus. Writing before the death of Licinitia, 1. e. brefore the jear 8it A. D. or within tw. or st moss three, years of the event, Lactantl is says, Cornstantine was admonishurl in his sicep tomark the ceiestial sign of Gad on the shields, abi an ti) engage In the battle. He did as ha was cumunmid and markent the name of Christ on the shichls by the letter X drawn across them, with the lop circumftexed. Armed with this siyus its triops procepd, etc. Eusehlus, Bishop of Cesakna, the historian of the eariy Church, the most learmed Christian of his timie, wss, after Constantines conquest of the East, much about the court, in the conflileace of the Emperor, and nt his chlef advisers In ecclealastical mattcio. in his Life of Constantine, published iwenty-six years afiter the Emperoris deati, tue given un in intir. eating account of the moral process of the Emperor's converuion. Reflecting on the approaching contest with Maxentiu, and heariag of the estmontianary ritee by which he was endenvour. log to win the favour of the gonls, 'belng crint. vincel that he beceled mane more powerful aid than his military forces cuntid nitiond bim, on acconnt of tie wicked and mankeul enchantumentu whem were an diligently pructiwal by the typant. he be zan on weekfor flylue amintance. . . . And While be was thus proying with fervent entreaty. s most marvellous slyu appearend to hite from heaven, the secount of whath it might lave leren difticult to ncelve with creslit, had it been pe. lated hy noy other perem. But eince the vieto. fonsemperor hilmself tongufterwarin decharpel it to the wefter of that blatory, when he whe honourrif with his urqualutace and meriety, and coudfmedi bls statement ly ad oath, whi could bedeare to credit the relation, espredatiy since the testimone of after time has establlbhed Itw Iruth? lle said linat at midy day, when the sun was lee. ginning to flecline, be saw, wh his owa eyes. the trophy of $n$ crom of light in tise horavens, alowe this sun, anil bearing the Inseription. "(conquer by thla." At thls slgit he himeeif was wituck with anazement, and hal wiole army alw, witch happened to be following him no suhi, moreover, that he doubtet withiu himeeif What the lomport of this apparition conld be. fait wille be contlmucd to purder and reason on its meluing, night linperceptibly drew on; suid Iu ais wieep the Clirist of Gind appenred to hims wits the asme sign which he had os $u$ in the hewens, and commanded hims to procure a stnudard made in the likeness of that alga, wad to use it as as sufeguard in all engagements with his en.

The staudarid whild ts eald to hnve bud this rigin was the famous Labarum-E. L. (1) to. Timatintine the Great, el. 11.-"11c [ConNtat ind was not lacking in susceptibility to cer'xis shons impresions: he acknowledged the ,-whit providence of God in the manner in whin th ie lond been delliverel from dangers, made vietorions over all his pagan adrersaries, audi finall: reniered master of the Ruman world. It flattered lis vanlty to be considered the favourtite of Ginh. und his destineel instrumbent to destroy the cmpire of the evil spirits (the heathen deities). The 'liriatians belongligg to court were cer. calals net wanting on thelr part to contrm hilm in this reepsuasion. . . Constanine must latieed bave Inen conscous that be was striving not so muth for the cause of God as for the gratitication of has own ambition and love of power; and that suehacts of perthly, mean revenge. or despotic jealinssy, as occurred in hila priltical course, dial sot wifi leftit an instrunent sum wervant of God, such as ite claime to be cuevidered. Eren Euvelilus, one of the befic anaong the hish ops at bis court. Is so diazzied by what the ent peror hal achieved for the outward extensiou and splendour of the church, as to be capable of tracing to the purent motives of a servant of $G=1$ aif the uets which a love of power that woulid not brusiz a rival had. at the expense of truth and bumazity, put lite the heart of the emperor in the war against Lleiblus.

Blshops in im. mediate attendauce on the emperor so far $f$ - i indeed to what master they belonged, th the melt- thri of tive =inird decenuluit selga (the tricenvalia), one of them congrat wis him as constituted by God the ruler over ail the present wortd, and destined to relgn w the som of hod is the world to come. The f Hitue of Constantine limaclf were ahocked at such a imraliel."-A. Neasuler, (ieneral lliwe is' the "hriaflion Meligion unt Churri, periul 2. wet. 1. 1.-"As lee appronctied tite Bast, he [Cunstantine] miluptesl oriental manners: he offected the gergenta parple of the munarehe of l'ersia: fic decornted ha heal with falae halr of different coblurs, and with a diadem covered with jenrls and geina. He sulmtituted flowing silken polner. embroidered whith thwers, for the austere garli of llome, or the unadorned purple of the Arat Ifoman emperors. Ile thied hla paince witio cainnnies: he became the luttrument of tiofir buse Intriguem. their cuplifity, and their jualouny. Ile unultipiter pies, and sulyjected tive palnce nnd tioe empre, allke, to a muspichous prillce. Ile lavished tile wealth of thome on the aterific pomp of stately buldilings. . He phured out tho best and nabiest blind in torrents, nore expect. ahly of thowe meariy connected whit hlumerif. The most lllustrinms victhu of his typanay was Crispus, hlas son by his orit wifr, whom he bad made the partner o. his empire, and the commander of his armlea.

In a palace wilech he bad made a desert. the murderer of bis futia.p. Inlaw, his brothers. In law, his sister, bila wife, his son, and him nephew, must lare feht the eting of remorse. If hyp rritloa! prients and courticr bishops hat not lu, eed his conscience to remt. The stil poasess the panegyric in which the 5 represent him as of fal rife of lleaven, a suic: worthy of our highest wererutlont; we is.d aiso veveral laws by which Constantine ntoneri tor all he crimes, In the eyes of tive pricesta, hy haping 3n-indless favours on the clourch. The rifts lie Ix-mowed on It, the mmunities he gratied to permina and to propertr connecteti wt: tt , won directed andit ous entifely to ecciesiasti al dignities. The mern who had so hutely lr candi. diates for the housurw of martyrdum. $n$ found themselves inpositaries of tife greatest wealth aud the highest power. flow was it possible that their characters shouiti not undergo 't total chaug-"-J. C. L. Ite Simoudi. Ilint. It the till of the Rumain apire, ch $+(0.1)$. - Sice also, Curimtinitit: 1 310-337.
A. D, 330.- Transference of the cap: af - te Emprete to By antium (Conatantinopie). Nec Cos-intinorle. A 11330 .
A. D. 337-365. - Redir in of the Empire. Civil wirs between the na of Constantine and their successora.- zation of Juhian to the throme-15 fore the ath of Coustantine. $\because h / s$ threven Cunsta ie, Constantlus, and Constans, is 1 ready zo successively ralsed to the rank Lesar iboun the tenth, twentleth. nad thim hyeurs f his reign. The roynl famlly hasined ais. two otber young princes. sons i 1 atmatius, une of the hnif-brothers of Consta tilue. the elder of these nephews of the Empr - was called Dalmatius, after his father, barn - nov the Emplre, but - Constantine Imperial on amoug his three sons. The eldent, Conantac, was to hold the Arat rank mong the three Auguatl, and to take the western Guilic prerinces under his especial adminhatration; Conmausius was to take the east, viz., Asia, Tha, Endi Egypt: Constans wa to take the central portion of the Emplre, Italy, Africa, and Westeri Iilyricum."-E. L. Cutts, Cantantino ph. Great, ch. 33.-The father of these thres princes was no sconer dead (A. D. 897 ) than they made haste to rid themselves of all the poselhle Hivals in a family which seemed too numerous for peace. Two uncles and seven counlas-lncluding Dalmatlus and Hannlbalianus - with other connections by marriage and otherwise. were qulckly put out of the way under one and another pretence and with more or less mockery of legal forms. The three brothera then divideal the provinces between them on much the same plan as before; hut Constantine, the ellest, now relgned lu the new capltal of his father, whieh bore hils uame. There was peace between them for three years. It was hroken by Constantine, Who demanded the aurrender to him of a part of the domilulons of Constans. War ensuel and Constantine was killed la one of the earlest engagenents of it. Constans took possession of his dominlons, refusing auy share of them to Constantlus, and relgued ten years longer, when he was destroved, A. D. 330 , by a conspiracy $\ln$ Gaul, whleh raised to hils throne one Magnentlus, a moldier of barbarian extractlon. Magneathis was acknowledged In Gaul and Italy; hut the trowps in llyricum invested thelr own general, Vetranlo, with the purple. Constantlus. In the East, now roumed hlaself to oppose these rebelllons, and dal so with success. Yetranlo, an aged man, was lutimldated hy artful measures and driven to surrender his unfamlliar crown. Magnentius advanced loldly to meet an enemy whom he despised, and was defented $\ln$ a great battle fought september 21, A. D. 351, at Murm (Essek, in molern Hungary, on the Irave). Ietreating to Italy, and from Italy to Gaul, he malntalned the war for another year, but slew hlmse!? tinaliy in despalr and the emplre had a singie ruler, once more. The sole emperor. Constantlus, now found his burden of power tiongreat, and sought to share lt. Two young uephews had been permilted to Ilve, when the massacre of the house of Constauthe orcurret, and he turned to these. He ralsed the elder, Gallus, to the rank of Cresar, and gave Hhat the guvernment of the prefecture of the East. But Gallus condueted himself like a Nero and was illsgracell and exceuted in ilttle more than three years. The younger nephew, Julian, escaped his brother's fate he great prudence of lubhavior and liv the friendahip of the Enipress Eusebla. In 35s, he, In turn. was made Casar and went luto Gaul. Distingulshing LImself thare in several campalgna agninst the Gerumns (sere listi.: A. I). $355-361$ ), he provoked the jendousy of Constantlus and of the eunuehs who ru!eel the Imperlal court. To strip him of trops, four Gallic: legione were ordered to the East, for the P'ersian war. They ruse in revolt, at J'aris, proclalmeal Julian emperor and foreed hian to assume the dangerons title. He promptly sent an enthassy to constantlus asking the recognlthon and confirmation of this procedure ; hut his overtures were rejected with disdaln. He then declarel war, and condueted an extrourdinary experlltion Into Hyyricum, through the Black Forest and down the Danube, occuyying sirmlum and seizing the Balian pases before be wa known to have left Gaul. But the civll war so vigorously opened was suddenly arrested at thls stage by the death of Constantlus (A. D. 301), aud Julimn became sole emperor without more dispute. He renouneed Chrlatianity and b known in history an Julian the Apostate. -
E. Glibbon, Deeline and Fall of the Roman Em. pire, eh. 18-22.
A. D. 338-359. - Wurs of Constantius with the Peralama. See Peroia: A. D. 220-627.
A. D. 350-368.-Extenslie abandonment of Gaul to the Germans.-lite recovery by Julian. See Gacl: A. D. 855-361.
A. D. $368-363$.-Jullan and the Pagan revival. -"Ifeathenism still possessed a latent power greater than those supposed who per. suaded the Emperors that now if could be enslly extlrpated. The atate of affalrs in the Wext dif. fered from that in the East. In the Weat It was princlpally the Roman aristocracy, who with few exceptlons still adhered to thelr anclent religion, and whth them the great mass of the people. In the East, on the contrary, Christianity had made much more progress aming the manses, and real aristocracy could acareely be said to exist. In its stead there was an aristicracy of lenrnligg, whose hostllity was far more dangerous to Chris. tlandty than the aversion of the Roman tuchility. The youth stlli throngel to. the anelent and Illustrious schools of Mlletus, Ephesus, Nlomedla, Antloch, and above all Athens, and the teacirers in these schools were almost without exception heathen., . . There the anclent heathen splirlt was Imblbed, and with it a contempt for barbarian Christlantty. The doctrinal strife in the Christlan C'hureh was held up to ridlecule, and, alas! With too mueh reason. For, accorillag to the Emperor's favor and caprice, oue dectriue stond for orthodozy to-day aud another tumor. row. To-day it was decreed that Christ was of the same essence with the Father, sull all who refused to acknowledge this were d'punatl sad exled. To-morrow the court theulogy hal swung round, It was decreed that Christ was a created belng, and now lt was the turu of the other party to go Into banishment. The educa. ted heathen thought themselves elevated far above all th's in thelr elassle culture. With what sceret anger they beheld the way in which the temples were lahd waste, the works of art hroken to pleces, the memorials of an nge of greatness destroyed, and all In faror of s las: harlan rellgion ilestitute of eulture. The old rude forms of Heathenlsm, indeed, they themselres did not dealre, hut the reflied llemithenlsm of the Seoplatimle, an asil seemeal th them nut merely the equal but the superior of Christianity.

These were the sumrces of the re-artion agalnst Christianty. Thelr splrit was emlundied In Jullan. In him it ascender for thr last time the ingerial throne, and male the final attompt to stop the triumphal progress of chrisianty. But it sueceeded oniy in glving to the worlid Ire. slatible evileuce that the sceptre of the split of Antiquity was forever liroken. .. . What to. thenced Jullan was chlefly enthuslasm for Greek culture. Eiven In a rellglous aspeet Polytheism seemed to hilnt superior to Monotheism. Ferause more phllosophlc. Neoplatonism tilled the whole soul of the young enthuslast, aud setmed to him to compreliend all the culture of the anclent world lu a unitied system. But of mune his vanity had a great share in the matter. for be naturally recelved the moat devoted honage among the Helleniats, and bis rbetorical frieads dld not atint their flattery. . Ile made hith entry. . . [Into Constantinopie] as a declared heathen. Although at the beglinning of bis cams. palgn he had secretly sacrificed to imilloum, yes he had attended the church in Vlenne. But on the march he put an end to all amhigulty, and puhllely offered sacrifices to the anclent gods. The Roman Emplre once more had a heathen Emperor. At frst all was joy; for as unlversally as Constantius we hated, Jullan was welcomed as a dellverer. Even the Christians jolned in thls refolclag. They too had lound the arbltrary government of the last few years hard enough to bear. And If some who lonked deeper begin to feel anxlety, they consoled themselves by the reflection that even a heathen Emperor could not Injure the Church so much as a Chris. tian Emperor who used hls power in promotlng whatever seemed to hlm at the time to be orthodosy in the dogmatle controversles of the age. Amil Jullan proclalmed, not the anppresslon of Christianlty, but only complete rellglous llberty. He limself intended to be a heathen, but no Christlan should be disturbedln hls falth. Jullan was certalnly thoroughly in carnest in this. To be a persecutor of the Church, was the last thing he woull have thought of. Besldes, he was much too fully persuaded of the untruth of Christlanlty and the truth of Heathenlsm to per. secute. Jullan was an enthusiast, He all the rhetoricinns and phllosophers who surrounded hlm. Ile regarded hlmself as called hy a divine roice to the great work of restoring Heathenlsm. and this was from the begloning avowelly hils ohject. Ind he was no less firmly convinced that ihls restoration would work ltself out with. out any use of force; as som as free scope was giren to lleathenlsm it would, by lts own powers, overcome Christianlty. . . The Emperor hlm. welf was evllertly $\ln$ all respects a heathen from sincere convi tion. In this regari at lenat he Was honest and no bypocrite. The flagrant voluptuonsness, whleh had corrupterl the court. was thonisherl, and a large number of useless oficilals illsmlased. The life of the court was to be simple, austere, and purc. Nen had never before seen an Emperor who eondueted hlmself with surh simplletty, whose table was so eco. nomically supplled, and who kuew no other emphements than hard work, and devoted worship of ibe guls. A temple was hullt in the palace, snil thre Jullan offered a dally aucrlfice. Often he might le seen servlag at the sacrilce hilmself, carrylug the wood and plunging the knlfe into the victim with hle own hand. Ife rencimbered every festlval whlch should he celebrated, nul knew how to olserve the whole half-forgotten ritual most punctllously. Ile was equally zeal. nus In performlag the dutles of his ottice as Ponnitr Muximus. Everywhere he revlived the anclent worshlp which had fallen Into neplect. llere a clomerl temple was re-opened, there a rulacil shrine restored, Images of the gols were eet up again, and festivals which had ceasel to be celebrated, were restored. . . Smon eonversions became plentlful; governors, ofthelals. soldlery made themaclies prodelent in the ancient Whom Julian had prevlously learned to know, as asecret friend of the gois, when he hall heen the Emperor's gukle to the classlc sltes of Troy. chsnger hls rellglon, and from a Christlan bishop became a heathen hlgh-priest. . . The dream of a reatoration of Heathrnlsm nevertheless son began to prove Itself a dream. Though now surrounded by heathen only. Juilan could not belp feellog that he was really isolated in their midst. Fe hlmself was $n$, milly a myatic, and llved In hls ldeals. His Hembentam was one purifed hy poetle feellng. But there was Hitle or nothlng of thls to be found actually existligg. IIls heathen friends were courtlers, who agreed with hlm wlthout Inward conviction. . . . Ie was far too surious and severely moral for thelr thstes. They preferred the theatre to the temple, they llked amusement best, and found the dilly attendance at worghlp and the monotonous ceremonles and sacritices very duh. A ancasurubly tolerant Christlan Emperor would douhtless lave sulted them better than thls enthislastlenlly plous heathen. Bllnded as Jullan was hy his ldeal vlews, he soon could not escape the knowledge that things were not golng well. If Hea. thenlsm was to revive, It must reculve new ilfe withln. The restoration mist be also a reformatlon. Strangely enough Jullan felt compelled to borrow from Christlanity the ways and means for such a reformatlon. The heathen priests, like the Christian, were to Instruct the people, and exhort them to holy Ilving. The heathen, Hke the Christlans, were to care for the poor.
Whlle new streagth was thus to be infused into Heathculsm, other measures were alopted to weaken Christianlty. An Imperial edlct, June 1\%. A. D. 362, forbade the Christlans to act as teachers of the Dational Hterature, the anclent classlcs. It was, the Emperor explalued, n con. tradletlon for Christians to expoubl Homer, Thucydldes, or Demosthenes, when they regardeal them as goalless men and allens. Ile would not compel them to rhange their convic. tlong, hut also he conld not permilt the anclent writers to te exponnded by those whotonk them to task for lmpiety. $\qquad$ This, of connse, was nut a persecution, Il the use of fore alone makes b peraceutlon. Jet It was a perserintlon, pnd lin a sense a worse one than any whleh weut before. Jullan tried to deprive the Christlans of that which should be common to all men, - educatlon.

Nevertheless be had to confess to himself that the restoration of Heathenlsm was maklng no progress worth speakling of. . . Ife spent hls whole strength, lie sncrifieed hlmself, to Ilved only for the Emplre over whlch Providence lum male him lord, and yet found himself alone In hls endeavor. Even hls henthen fricmils, the phllosophers and rhetoriclans, kept at a dlatance.

IIth suel thoughts as these, Jullan fournesed to Antlixh, In Syria, in order to make preparations there for the great campuign lo purposal to make aralnst the Perslaus. There Dew dlsappolutinents awalted hlm. IIe found the shrines of hls gols forsaken and desolnte.

The temple of Apollo was restored with the greatest splendor. Jullun went there to offer a sacrifice to the goxl. He expected to find a miltitule of worshilppers, but no one even bronght oll for a lamp or incense to hurn In honor of the delty. Only an old mon approached tu aneritice a goowe. Shortly afterwards. the nfwly restored temple burned down In the night. Finw the Emperor's wrsth knew no hounds. Ilc aacribed the gul:: to the Christlans; and nltlinngh the temple, as is prohahle, caught tire through the fanlt of a heathen philesopher, who carrled a dedlcatory lamp about in It wlthont due pre. cautions, many Ciristlaus Were arrested aul tortured. The Chureh had lts martyrs once more: and Jullan, discontented with himself and the whele world besides, advanced to new measuros. The cathedral of Antioch was clowed snd its property confiscated. Julian recried that the Chriatiuns, whose God had forlviden them to kill, should not be intrusted with auy oftlee with which judlelal functlons were connected.

Jullan finuself became more and more restless. IIe hurrien from temple to temple, brought sacritice nfter sucritice: he knelt for hours hefore his gents and covereal their statues with kisses. Then at night he sat In thrsilouce at his writhgetable, ani gave vent to his hifterness and disgust with every thing. Then he wrote his works full of brillinut wit, thouglit ont und expressell with Grevk refinement, bit full of bitwerest hutred especially agiflust the Galileans nnd thelr C'arpenter's Son. . . . Finally, his Inumense preparations for the campaign agalust the Perstans were tinisheri. Juiian started, pfter finally settiug over the Intion-lians a wreth as governor, with the remark that the man dial not dieserve to he a govermor, lut they descreal a le governeal by such a one."-i?. Chilsorn, The Comftiet of Chisintimuity arith Mistthenism, bk. 3, ch. 3.
AI.MO IX: G. II. Rendall. Juliun the Emperorr. -13. L. Gilderslee ve, The Einperor Julion (Eimaty and Stulies, pp. 350 - 100 ), -Gregory Nazinrzen. Innertimes ugainat Juían, nod Líbuilus. rivueril Orition wion Julion; Prans by C: W. King.
A. D. 363.-The Persian expedition of Ju-lian.- His death.-Jovian made Empernr by the retreating army. See Prania: A. II. 20. 62\%.
A. D. 363-379.- Christianity reascendant. - Secret hnstfity of Paganism. - Reiga of Valentinlan and Valens.-Approach of the Huns.-The struggle with the Gotha. - Elevatinn of Theodnaius to the throne. - IV hen Ju. lian's successor, Jovian. "who did not ritign long enough to lead back to Constantinojle the army whith he had mareised from the lanks of the Tigris, mate public profewion of Christianity, he, nt the sume time, displaced n great numin'r of linave oflleers and able functionarles, whom Julian hai proniotedi in proportion to their zeni for pugnnis:'s. From tiat periol, up to the fall of the empire, a hustlie setet, which regarimi itself as unjustly'stripjed of its ancient fonours, invoked the vengeance of the govis on the heals of the government, exulted la the pubitic caiamities, and probably hastened then by lis jutrigues, thongh inextrically involved In the common ruin. The pagan faith, which was not attachevi tio n lnxiy of dectrine; nor supportel hy a crorjas. rat liu of priests, nor heigitened hy the fervour of nuwelty, serarcely ever displayed itself in opres revolt, or darid the perils of martyrdom: lut pagans still corcupied the formost muk in lift. ters:- the orators, the philosophers (or, as they were otherwise calient, sophists), the histe 'wols, leciongeif, almost without an exception, to the ancient religion. It still kept possersaion of the mowt illustrious scliools, expectally those of Athens and Alexandria; the ninfority of the Foman senate wore still attached to ft: and in the brensis of the common people, particularly the rural population, it malntainel itn [mwer for everal centuries, hranded, however, w|l|: the name of msgic. . . . Lees than eight months after his elevstion to the throne, on the 17th of February, 884, Jovian altal In a small tawn of Galatia. After the expiration of tet days, the army which he was leading home from Pernia, nt $n$ miemn assembly hedd at Nice, In Bithrnia, chove as his successor the son of a captuin from a littie village of Pannonia, the count Vilobinian, whom his valour nad bodlly prowess has rnised to one of the highest posts of ther aruy:

Spite of fis savage rudeuess, nui the firrlous vinleace of his teruper, the Itontan empipe found In him an able chiof at the momeot of its grentest need. Unhapplly, the extuint of the empire nepuired, nt lenst, two rulers. Thu army filt this, and demanded a second. . . Vulen. tiulun .. close his brother. Vnirus. with whom he shared his jower, fad the weth, timid, and cruel clunracter which ordinurily divin. pulshes cowuris. Va!sentinian. burn in the West., - reserved thac governmesut uf it in hinusdf. Ife eveleal to lis brother a part of 11 . lyricum on the lonube, tht: the whope of the Last. Ile established univerand toleration lis law, and took too purt la the sertariau contris versies which dividend Christembum. Vialens nilopted the Arian faith, and persecutinl the orthoxlox party. The thances of the compire demaudial is reform. Wisich neither of the comperors wis in a condition to undertake. Tluy wimtor money, and they were ignorant whore to suk the ling exhansted morres of pishlic wealth.

Vinst provinces In the Interior were lemertai: enilatmenta daily becaue more scunty nod difit. cult; the magistrates of the "eurle "ir mun'cipalities, who were resjonsible lnoth fur the contributions and the levess of their rowictire towns, souglat ly a thousind subterfoge tors. enpe the perilous lonour of the magistrature [we Clima, Nesicipal, of the Later llowin Ex. rame]. .. Ihuring the twelve years that Vialentinian righel ower the West (A. I). 344-inti, he rellenem his cruelties hy several brilliant vic-

Falentinian haul undertaken the deforow of (anil in permon, nui generaily resideal it Trises, then the capital of that vast prefertur-; but at the time lue was thus occupied, invanions mot less formidable lind devastated the other pirninees of the West [see Hartain. A. [D. B0i-3in].
At thas perrex Valens reigned over the firetis, whose langenge la* didi not uuderstaul i.f. D, : Mit-378). Ilis eastern frontier was menaceqi br the Perslans. his morthern ly the Gothw Armenia and lixria Incaue subject to lenis; but as the jrople of inoth these comotriow were Christinn. they retininel faithfui tot the interests of Rome, though eonmueroll by lur entmy
The dominion of the (roths extemlat ahong the shores of the Danule and the Hark ic:a, and thirty y eurs had elapsed since they had taiale any iucursion into the Roman territory. Ibut during that juriond they hadigone on Increasing in preatnems amal In power. $\qquad$ Spite of the furnicishle meighenartional of the Gotis and the l'anians spite of the cownalice and the incaparity of Valens - the Fast had renininesl at juact. protecteri hy the mere name of Valenthian, whoce military taients, promptitude, aml m.verily were known to all the barianian trilneq. But the career of this remarkahle man, so ilrealed ly his enemies and by his subjrcts, had now rached ita term." Ile died in s fit of rage. from the bursting of siood vessel In his chest. Nioventert 17. A. D. 375. "Ifie two sons, -Gratian, who still chlli,-shared the Weat lotwern them.

Never, however, wa the empire in greater need of an able and vigorous head. The entlre pation of the Huns, abandonlng to the Slenpl Its ancieat pastures bordering on Chlna, had traversell the whole north of Asla hy a march of 1.300 leagues," The Goths, overwhelmed and tylay lefore them, begged permission to cruss the Danube and take refuge in Mresla and Thace. They were permitted to do so; but such extorthans and outrages were practlced ou thein, at the same time, that they were exasperatell to a passlonate hatred. Thiss bore frult in a graenal rising in 377. Two years of war ensued, mirked by two great battles, that of Ad Siltees, or The Whllows, wheh netther slde could fully clalm. and that of Allrianople, Angust 0. 378. In which Vilens perished, and more thno 60.000 of his solllers fell (see (iotus: A. D. 3i6. nuil 3is). "The forces of the East were nearly nnnlhilated at the terrible hattle of Alrianople. . . The Goths. advanced, ravaglng all around them. to the foot of the walls o! Constanthople; and, af. ur some unlmportant sklrmlshes, returned westwsrl through Macedonla, Eplrus, and Dalmatin. From the Danube to the Adriatle, thelr passuge was marked by eonflagration and hlool.
No getueral In the East attempted to take advan. tage of the anarchy In favour of hila own ambifion: no army offered the purple to lts chlef; all drealenl the responslbility of command at so trementults a crisis. All eyes were tunued on the court of Treves, the only polnt whence letp was huppelf for. But Gratian, ellest son of Valenthn. ias, atal emperor of the West. was ouly 19 . He marinetl upon Illyrieum whith his army, whin he learned the event of the battle of Adri. anupho and the death of Valens, who hand been so calger to secure the undryded honours of vletury, that he would not walt for his arrival. In capable of confrontling such a tempest, he retreated to Sirmlum. The news of an invaston of the . Alemans lnto Gaul recalled hitm to the difeare of hls own territory. Dangirstarted up on curry hand at once. The emplre sumal lu need of a new chlef, and one of approven val. our. Ginthn hud the stngular generosity to cinume from nnoong hils enenles, and from a sens- of inerit atone. Theoloslus, the Spanlaril. his father's genersi, who bad successively vauquishel the Serots and rwards the Hoors, and who had heeo mijustly condenned to the scuffoht at the keglonlog of Grathuis relgn, lad left a sin its yemrs of age, who bore hls name. The voruser Theortoslus hail dlstingulshed himself in the command he held in Jlasia. but wne liv. Ing in retlremeut and disgrace on hiss eatates ln spain. when. woth the contidence of a moble minhl. (irathan chose hlm out, presentel hlm to the army on the 19th of Jauuary, 3i9, and decharey! liim hls colleague, and cmiperor of the East."-J. C. L. de Slamondl, The Fill of the Buman Empire, ch. 5 (e. 1).
Alano in: T. Hodgkln, flaly and Her Invudera. introl and ok. 1, en. 1.
A. D. $37^{8 .}$. Gratian's overthrow of the Alemannilio Gan!. See Alemaximi: A. I. 3Fis. A. D. 379-395.-Theodoalus and the Guthe. -His Trinitarian Edict. - Rerolt of Maximus. - Death of Gratian, - Overthrow of Maximus by Theodosius, - Usirpatloo of Eufenlus, aod his fall.- Death ol Theodosins. -"The first fint thit Thecodoslus had wonderiake was to restore the self confdence and truat ln victory of the lloman army, terribly ahakeo as these quald.
tles had been by the dlsastrous rout of Fiadrian. ople. This be aceompllshedl by waglog a successful gheerilh wnr with the Gothle marauders. Vnleus hal played lato the hands of the harharlans hy risking everythlug on onc great pleched hattle. Theodoslus ndopted the very opposite polley. He outmancensred the Isolated and straggllng hands of the Goths, defeated them in one sklrinlsh after another thit dhd not desserve the name of a bittle, nat thins restored the comrage and contilence of the lmperial troops. By the end of 379 he seems to lave succereder In clearing the torritory south of the balkan range of the harmsslog swarms of the barkarians. In February, isel), tee fell slek nt Thessaloulea (whleh was his chicf biths of operations infoughont thats perioul), nut thls slekness. from which he (llil not fully recover for sorne monthe, was promluctlve of two important results, (1) his baptlism as a Trintarian Chrlstlan, (2) a remewal of the war ngulust fresh swarms of barbarians. (1) Theodoshis apperars up to this polint of his carece not to hure definttvely ranged himiself ou either slde of the great Arlan coutroversy, thugh he had a hereflitary Incllantlon towaris the Creryl of Nlcaea. Llke his father, however, he hal postponel bnptism in accordance with the prevalent usage of hils day: but mww upin $n$ thell of slekness wheh seened likely to le one of death, he delayed no lompre, but reedved the rite at the hands of Aschotins, the tatholic Bishop of Thessalonica. Br.fore he was able to resume his post ut the head of the lewhons, he publishell hats celebrated Edict: 'Tis the periplo of Constintl-nople.- We desire that all the nations wha are poverned by the rule of onr Chemeacy shath prac. tise thut religion which the Apostle Peter himself deliveref to the lummens, and which it is manifest that the pmontif lamasiss, and Peter, Bishop of Alexamilia, "1 man of Apostolic sauctity, do now follow: that aceording to the dlscipline of the Apastles mul the teithing of the Evangelists they Indieve la the one Gellhead of Father, sion. und Iloly splrit. In erjual Majesty. and in the haly Trinity. We orter all who follow this haw to assmaie the mane of Catholle Chirstlans, decrecing that all others, lx:lng mad aml foollsh persons, shall hear the lafumy of thelr heretlenl dognas, and that thelr Conventhles shall mat revelve the name of Churches: to be pmalshell tirst by llivine vengeance, and afterwarils by that exerthon of our power to chastlise whllit we have romeived from the decree of heaven." Thus theu at lenyth the Caesar of the East was rangel on the chde of Trintarian orthorloxy. Constantine In the latter part of his relgn, Constantlus, Vinlens, had all been Arians or seml-Arians, some of them blter in thelr heteroloxy. Julian hat been a worshlpper of the gols of Olympus. Thus for nearly two geueratlons the Inthence of the Court of Constanthople had heen thrown lato the seale agalnst the teachlng of Athanaslus, whlch was generally acceptell throughout the Western reahu. Now by the accession of Theodoslun to the Trinltarian side, rellgious unlty was reatored to the Eniplre; but at the name tlme a chasm. an Impassable chasm, was openell between the Emplre ltself and lts new Teutonle guests, nearly all of whom held faat to the Arian teaching of their great A postle Uinlag. (2) The other consequence of the slekness of Theoromlus was, al I have ald, a fresh lacursion of barburian hordoe, swarming acrose the Danube and cllmblng all the high pasees of the Balkans. The wort of clearing the country of these maraulers liad to bo sll done over agaiu. . . . At length, in the closing months of 8\%0, the provinces south of the Beikans (Macedonis and Thrace) were once more clearel of their barbarian Intruders. Peace, in which Gratian concurrel, was concluded with the Guths who stiil doubtiens abounded in Moesin [see Goths: A. D. 879-3sit]....The insarrection at Antioci! [A. D. $34^{7}$ ] dispiared the eharncter of Theolosius in a favourahle lfght, as strong but mercifui and magnanimous ruier of men. Very different was the effect on his fame of the insurrection whieh broke out three years Inter (300) In the Macerloulan efty of Thessabumea [see Thematanica: A. I). 300]. In the year 383 a milliary revolt broke out in Britait against the young Emperor (iratian. . . . The army revolteif and prociaimed Jagnus Ciemens Maximus, Emperor. IIe was, like Theoxlosius, a native of Spain, and though harsh and periaps rapaelous, a man of abiity and experience, not unworthy of the purple if he inad eome to it by fawful nirans. Gratian on his side nad evilently glven sone real cause for dissatisfartion to his suljects.

IIence it was that when Maximus with the army of ISritain iandel in Gaui. he shook down the fabric of his power withuat diffieuity. Gratian, thaling hitmself deserted by his troops, eacaperl from the batte-flehl, but was overtaken and kilied at Lyons. For more thrn four vears, Maximus, sotisfied with ruiing over tire three great Western provincess wiled had falien to the siare of Oratian, muintninet at any rate the appespance of furinony with lits two coliengues. . . At length, in the autumn of int: Naxhums deemed that tive time had come for grasping the whoie Empire of the West. LAilims to sieep tite suspicious of Valentininn aud his mother by embassies and protestations of friendship, he crowsed the Aips with an army athl marchel towards Aquileia, witere the young Einjeror was tiren dweliing in orler to lve us urar as possible to tite dominions of his frieniliy coi ntue and protector. Valeutinian dill not a walt the approaci of his rival, but golng down to the port of firmbo, took ship and saifial for Thesationion, itis unother and sistera aceompanyfug inim. The Emprororal the senate of Constantinuple nuet the Imprerial fugitives at Theasalonien, and discusserl the present position of affairs. . . What the cutreatles of the bother nright have failerl to effert, the tears of the dangiter [Ginila] necomplivised. Thembosites, Whose wife Fiacolila had died two yours Irefore (38\%), torok Galla for his seroul wife, mul voweal to avenge bor wrougs and repluce her brother on the throne. Ife was some tinte in proparing for the cumpaign, but. when it was ofreuerl. he conducterl it with vigour and decision. Ilis trongs pressed up tite Sive vailey, defeated thom? of Saximus in two engagements, entered Domoma (Laylach) in :riuniph. and som stixul before the Walfs of Aquilidi [fitiv, 344], Irehimi whici Maximus was slecitering himecif. ... A mutiny among the tronps of Daxinus did away with the necessity for a siege." and the usurper. thetrayed and depivered th Theroleshits, whs sperelliy fise in drath Tharaloitio "liativelel byer is Vaientinian II. the whole of the Weatern Einplre, both hle own espectal share and that winieh had formerly been held by his brother Gratian.

The young Empern was now 17 jears of age; his mother, Justlas, had dled apparently on the eve of Theodomelus's victory, and he governel. or tried to govern alone," But one of hls Frankish generals, named Arbogast, gathered ali the power of the government lato his hanils, reducel Paientluian to heipless insignifieance, and flually. In May, 302, caused him to te strangled. "The Frankish generni, who durst not shock the prejuflices of the lkoman world hy himself assuming the purple, fung that dishonoured robe upon the shoulders of a rhetorician, a confilant. and si. incst a depeudent of his own, named Eugenius. This man, like mont of the scionars and riteorielans of the day, had not ahjural the ofil faith of IIelias. As Arbogant also was a heathou. thougit worshipplag Teutonic rather than Olym. pian gols, thls liust revoiution looked like a re currence to the days of Jnlian, and tirreatened the harilly.won supremacy of Christhmity." Again Tireodosius was summonerl to the rescire of the West, and, after two vears of carifui preparation, marched againat Eugenlus by the sante route that he had taken before. The two armies met at a piace "half-way letween Aemona and Ayulicha, where the Juian Aipw are enomevl, aml where in littie stream callini fine Frisilus (buw tire Wipluafi) burst sudileniy from a llmestone litil." The buttle was wou by Ther. dosius after a terrible struggle, lusting two days (September \%-6, A. 1). 894). Eugenius was taki-n prisoner and put to deatir: Arlagast frii by hit, own hand. "Theordosius, whon was stili in the" prime of fife, hand now fuletel the rule of tho worli,' witiout a rivil or a coliongue except hiv own boyish mons.

Ilml tris iife lever pro longed, as it weil migitt have luen for tweitr ur thirty years longer, many things misht li:u.. gone differentiy in the fistory of the worlit Bat, fitite more timen four months ufter the sho tory of tire Frigidus, Theokiomitas dieri flatumars 1\%. A. D. 305] of tiropsy, at Milan."-'. Ifinf kin, The Iy yneaty of Theirlomiux, ch. 4.

Aleo in: F. W. Farmar, ficem of the firfore ch. 15: Ambrome and Theombina (r. \%), -is. Thuruton, .V. Amsimer. ch. 6-14.
A. D. 388-F Formal estabiishment of Chris-tianity.-l'mtil tive Year 384, "pacauinhl wis still the constituthonai reigion of the [ibunath] sunte. The inall or temple in whteh they as sembind wasmiorneal by the statue and altar of Vietary. . . . The semitors were eworu int the altar of the gomiless to olowerye the law of tha cimperor und of the compire; and a sole um chltre. lug of whe and incense was the oniturs: probluc. of their public dediberations. The robios at if this ancient monument whe the only fujury which Constanting had offeral to the superstitiou of the formus. Titealtar of Viletory wasagain restured ty Jutian, toieruted hy Valentininn, ami mere Gimitian. But the emperor yet aparivi the stalu-4 of the gols whinf ware expoed to the pullic vencration: four humiryl and twenty four lompies or chapels stiil retualneal to sativfy the fers thon of the prapie and in every phartir of inmue the defiency of the Ciristians wis offomind liy tive fumes of illolatmons sucrifice. Ifut the Chitsthans formed the fenst numerous purty in tho sxaste of fome." The sonate adifessot servat petitions to Gratian, to the voung Valeothian. and in Theodosius for the restoration if the atar of Vletory. They were suppurted by the r.w.
anence of the orntor Bymmachus, and opposed by the energy of Arahrowe, the powerful Arch. blehop of Mifan. The question is sall to have been, in the ead, suhmitted to the renate, itself, by the Emperor Theodoaius (A. D. 38\%) - he be. Ing preseat in person - "' Whether the worship of Jupter or that of Christ should be the rellgion of the lkomans ? The liberty of suttrages, which he sffected to allow, was destroyed hy the hopes and fears that his presence insplred.
Aplter w reguiar division of the senate, Juplter was condemped and degraded by the sense of a very large majority. "-E. Gibbon, Deelin and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 28.
A. D. 391-395.-Suppression of PL, adam, -" The religious llberty of the Pagana, though considerahiy abridged by Gratian, was yet greater than had been sifowed by the laws of Constantlae and hls Immerliate muccesaors. The priests and vestals were cicprieed of their Immusities; the revenues of the temples were conflecated for the service of the State: but the beathen rites of thelr forefathers were still allowed to those who were consclentlously attached to them, provided they abatalned from nocturnal sacritice and mngical lucantations. But when Theodolus, In the earig part of his reign, prohlbited the linmoistlon of Vletims, their superstition was attacked fu lts most vital part. and, in the course of a few years, tive success of his nuensures agalnst heresy, and hls triumph over Maxlmus, emboldeued him to proceed to steps of a still more declsive $k \ln 1$, and to attenipt the entire subversion of the alrendy tot tering faliric of paganlsm. A comnilsion was ismemi to the prafect of the East. diricting him to chase ail heathen temples within hls jurisilction: and whilie the limperial officers were engageil in this task, asalsted hy the clergy. and eapercially hy the monks, with a vigour not al. ways strictly legal. The Txiosius gralualiy lacreasal the rigour of his icglsintive pruhilitions. A law was passed in the year 301, declaring that to enter a heathen temple, with a rilighous pur. puse, was an offence ilahie to a the of fifteen pumbly of golld and In the foliowing year, not only all pubile, but even all private and domestic, exercise of hemthen rites was Interilicted un. der the meverest penalties. In some few instances. the intomperate and tumuitous proceerliugs of the monks in destrowing the termples, exclterl the opprisition of the fanatleal heathen peasantry. mai at Alesandria a surrious commotlon, fatal to many ('liristians, was occaslonet) by the injuillcinis messures of the patriarch Theophilus. But, generaliy speaking, the pagans showed little dlspasition to Incur the rigonous penslties of ticc laws, witii less to become martyrs for a rellgun ${ }^{2}$ little calcuiated to Insplre real falth or fortl. tuile. sonse show of zeal in the cause of paganism was made at Rome, where the votaries of the anclent superstition astill had a strong party, bith shong the senate and populace. But the elipient exertions of Symmachus, the champion of lueatheulsm, were easily bafiled by Ambroee, Who cimounterell him with egual ahlity, better argunent, and a contident rellance on the suppirt of his acverelgn; and not long after, a more impirtant vlctory was gaived. In sn enactment The the senate, carried, through the lntluence of Theolcalus, hy an overwhelming majority, that Ciristianity should for the future te the sole reHgion of the Roman State. Thls decialve memure sealed the ruin of paganism In Rome and its dependencies. The ceariors and nohles hastoned to conform, nominally at least, to the dominant rellgion; the Inferior citizens foslowed their ex. ampie, and 8t. Jerome was in a ilttle while shle to boast that every heathen altar in Rome was forakiten, and every temple had become a place of desolation."-J. B. S. Carwlthen and A. Lyall, IViet. of the Chrivtian Church, pp. 63-65.

Aliso IN: P. Schaff, Wiot. of the Christian Chureh, period 8, ch. 1, wet. 7 (v. 2).-E. Glbbon, Declins and Fill of the Roman Ezmpire, eh. 24.
A. D. 394-395-Final diviaion of the Emplre between the sons of Theodosius, -Arcadlas In the East, Honorius in the Weat.-Minlatries of Rnfinns and StIlIcho.-Advent of Alaric tho Vislgoth. -"The divislon of the Emplre between East and Weat on the accession of the sons of Theouloslus [A. D. 395]. though It was poesihly meant to be less complete than some precedlog partitlons, proved to be the final one. It is worth whlle to Indicate the llne of divislon, Which is sufficlently accurately truced for us in the Notlila. In Africa lt was the weil-known frontler marked hy 'the Aitars of the Phllaenl,' which separated Llhya (or Cyrenalca) on the East from Africa Tiripolitana on the Weat. Modern geographers draw exactly the same line (about $1 y^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. of Greenwleh) as the loundary of Barca nnd Tripoli. On the Vorthern shore of the Mediterranean the matter ls a little more complicated. Norleum, Pannonla, Savia, and IAlmatla belonged to the Weat, and Ihucla - not the original hut the later proviace of Inacia - to the East. This glves us for the frontler of the Western Empire the Danube as far as Belyrade. and on the Alriatic the moncra town of lissa. The inland fronticr ls traced by geographers some to uiles up the Sinve from Belgrade, then southwaris by the Drina w lts source, and so scross the mountalns to Llasn. Thus Sclar vonia, C'ruatla, and Dalmatla lo the Austrian Emplre, and Crontia, most of Bosnla. Herzegovina, and Montencgrolo the state which was fately caiied Turkey In Europe, beionged to tive Western Eainpire. The inter province of Dacia, which feil to the Eastern share, Included Servia (Old and New). the soutia-east comer of bosnin, the north of Albania, and the west of Buigaria. By thls partlion the l'refecture of Illyricum, as constl. tuted by Dlocietian, was dlvided lato two nearly equal parts. What makes the aubject sume what perpiexing to the student is the tendency to confuse liiy ricunt the 'provlace' and Illyricum the 'prefecture," the latter of whlch emhrueri, in molern geographical terms, S, rria, Westeru Buigaria, Jlacedon, Eplrus and i ce. -T. Ilougkín, liuly and Iler Invulers.
i, th. 4, note C: and eh. 3 (e. 1).-"Thls is ree for a partition, puhlished by Theodosius shortiy before hils denth, appears to have been generaily expected and approved. The incapaclty of Ar. callus nnd Ilonorius, of whom the former had only attained his 18th and the latter his 11 th year, had not then been discoverel. Thew princes showed more and more clearly, as time went on, that they laberited no share of their father's ahilities, thelr weakness belng such as to render thelr soverelgaty litter mate than nomlnal. It was nover loteaded that the two jurisdictions should be Indeprendent of each other, hut rather that the Emperors should be collengues and comdjutors, the defenders of one commouwealth. . . At the time of the ilecree, bellef in the unity and immortaility of the 'Sancta llespuhilica flomana' wus ualveral. Einactments were invariahly made la the nomes of both Emperors ; and, so often as a vicanry of elther thrme nccurred, the titie of the Ciusar elect remained luconoplete untll his cievation had been approved and exontirnami by the excupatit of the uther Therxlosius left the lioman worid in peace, and providerl with a diselplined army suffleient, If rigitiy directed, for lis defence: but bis choice of the men to whom he contiderl the guidance of his mons was unfortunate. Rutinns, te whom the ghardiunship of Arcmilus was entrusted, hy hirthin Guscon, owed his al vancenment to his eliquuence as an mil vocute, and his piausible duplleity hal min fimpered on the conthling muture of Tiecribsius as to ob). tain for hlm the prefecture of the East. Stlicolu, the guarlina of fonorlus, was hy lescent a Vanlal, amilis atylend by St. Jerome n semi- bariuarian.

ROME, A. D. 806-898.

Ifis military abilities, combined with a prepossessing exterior, Induced Theolosins to confer upon hin the chiff commaul of the imperial furces, and the hand of bia nince, sereua." 11. II. W'rightson, The Saneta Reppublies Rommima, ch. 1.- ". Stilicho. . . was popular witit the arme., and for the present the great hulk of the forces of the Empire was at his dispossi; for the regiments unitul to suppress Eugenins had not yet been seat back to thelr various stations. Thus a struggle was Immiucut betwien the am. bitions minister who had the eur of Arcallus. aul the strong general who helhl the commani und enjoyed the favonr of the army. was the cherished project of Rutinns to unite Arcadius with his oniy danghter. ...But he innpruileutiy mude a jonrney to Antiorh, In orider to exerute vengeance personaily on the connt of the East, who hal offended him: and during his aboence from l3zzantium an alvenary stole a march on him. Thls alversary was the enuuch Eutropius, the lonl chamberlala. Ihetermiuing that the future Empress should be Ixuall to himself and not to liutinus, he chose Eniloxia, a girl of singular beauty, the danghter of a distinguished Frank, hut herself of Luman education.

Eutropius showed a picture of the Frank matilen to the Emperor, anu engager his alfertions for her; the auptiais were arranged hy the time 1 Ruflaus returnerl to Constantinople, and were sperlify celebraterl (2ith April 305). This was a blow to Rutinns, but he was stili the most powrerfil man in the East. The event which at length braught him into contact with Stllicho was the rising of the Visigoths, who had been sectienl by Theodosius in Moesin and Thrace.

Limier the leadershlp of Alaric they ralseti the ensign of revoit, and spread demolation In the fields and homesteais of Macedonia, Mopsia, and Thruce, even mivancing close to the walls if Constantinople [sec Gotiss: A. I). 395]

It was impossible to take the fiell against the Goths, because there were no forees availiable, as the eastern armies were still with Stlicho la the West. Arcadlus therefore was ohliged to summon Stlicho to send or hring them back immediately, to protect his throne. This summous gave that general the dealred opportunity to la. terfere in the politica of Congtanelnople: and having, with energetle celerity, arranged mat. ters on the Gallic froaticr, he marched overland through Illyricum, and coufrutited Alaric it

Thessuly, whither the Goth had trared his devantatigg path from the Propontis. seems that before stilicho arriverl. Alaric hai experieuced a slefeat at the hands of garriwil all. diers in Thessaly; at ulf everits lo Sint himolf up la a fortiterl camp und diselined (1) 'tovage witly the lenman gemprai. In the momatime orier to Stilicho to slespateli the ensifru trimps to Coustantinople und slepart himself wholue be had emme; the Emberor resenteal, or jritomicel to resebt, the presenere of his consin as an inticlous Interferemere. Stilicho ylinhial mer rathy that his willinghess seems alunsat visplicinus.

IIe consigutal the enstern m川lion tin the comnanil of a Gothic captain, Galuas. nul limu self departel to Nalota, allowitug Mlaride to jro. cred on his wasting why lito thr laminof Iloblas." When Gulnas and bis army arrivetl ut the pates of Constantinopid, the Emproror vame out to hort them, with liutinus by his sille. The trinfs suddeniy closeal round the laterer bmi murileral ilm. "We cinn harily suppose that the lynib. Ing of Rutiaus wins the fatai lampirathin of s moment, hat whether it was propereil or uph proved of by stilieho, or was a phan hatehed among the soldiers on their way to (inmatiations. ple, is uncertain."-J. B. Bury, lliat. if the Later homan Émpirc, bk. 2, ch. 1 (r. I).
A. D. 396-398,-Commission of Alaric urder the Eastern Empire, - Suppression of the revolt of Gildo in Africa.-Commanding position of Stllicho. -" Fur the next tive or sis yritr the chlef power over the ferble sumi of Irvilius was illvidell bet wer'n three persmens, his fuir Frinkish Empress Eibloxin. Eiltropins, the Laguaril vhi enauch who bal planeal her inn the throme, amil Gainas the Goth, commonder of che Elistern nrmy. Again, in the yan 396, allif Stilich: unw commanding baly the Whistern forecs. volumter to deitver Greere from the Visigotlas. The mutset of the rampaign was succeswfil. The greater part of l'eloponnesus was cioared of the invaler, who was shat up in thr rugavi monnthin comatry ou tite centions of Elis athi . Ircadia.
 him foreer by famine to an Ignominious sur. render, when they iliscovered that he luai pirered the lines of circumvaliutlon at an uuruarien point, and marelual with ali bis piunder nurth. waris to Epiriss. W'hat was the ratise of this unlookerl-for issne of the struggte:. The most probable explanation ... Is that Fiblian antlon co operaterl with the last|net of the (inndottiere agajust pushing lifs fore tow hard. Threre was always langer for llome in ifriving Ataric to desperition: there was danger privately for stilicho if the dean Alaric shonil remier him no longer ludispenswable. Whatevar might be the cause, by the emi of 890 Alaric was back again In his lifyrian eyrie, and thenceforwaril whatever threats might lre alirected towaris the Eiat the actual weight of his arms was feit only by the West. Partly, at least, this is to be acricinteri for by the almost sublime cowardice of the ministers of Arcadlus, who rewandevl his Grucian raids hy clothing him with the sacrel character of an officer of the Emplre in their portion of lilyricum [see Goths: A. D. 395]. The predse title umer whirh he exerclsed juristiction is not stated.

During an laterval of quiescence, Which lastel appareatly about four years, tho Vislgothic King was using the forms of Koman law, the machinery af Roman tayation, the al. most unboundel authority of a lloman provlucial governor, to prepare the weapon which was one day to plerce the heart of Twme herself. The Impertal Clty, during the inst portion of thls ln. u-rval, was suftering the pangs of famine. Siuce the foundation of Constanthople Eigrpt hal ceased to nourish the chler Home. Ilome was thus reduced to an almost exclusive depenilence on the harvests of Africa proper (that province of which Cartnage was the capltal), of Numlila, and of Mauretania. $\qquad$ But thls supply. . . In the yeur 397 was entirely stopped hy the orders of Glldo, who hal made hlmself virtual master of these three provinces." The elder Theotoslus had suppressed In $37 t$ a revolt $\ln$ Mauretanla headed by one Flrmus. "The son of a great sheep-farmer, Nabul, he [Firmus] had left behtad him several hrothers, onc of whom. Gilto, had in the year $3 \Delta 6$ gathered up again sume portlon of his hrother'a hroken power. Wit foul him, seven years later (lo 393), hohlling the rauk of Count of Africa in the IWman ofticlal hirrarchy. . . . Ife turned to his own accuint the rerennlal jealouny exlsting between the mininters of the Eastern and Western Courts, renouncel his alleglance to lh me, and preferred to transfer It to Constantinople. What hrought matters to a crisls was hls refusal to allow the grian crops of 397 to be convejeal to kome.
Thu Ihnan seunte declared war la the early wintor months of 888 against Gllics. Stllicho, who, of course, undertook the fittlag out of the expe. ditum, found a aultahle Instrument for Rome's chastisement in one who had had cruel wrongs of hiv own to avenge upon Gihlo. Thls was yet snother son of Pabal, Mascezel." Mascezel, at the heul of nearly 40,000 men, accomplisherl the arerthrow of his hrother, who alew hluself, or Wa4 slaln, when he fell Into Roman hands. "Thus the provinces of difica were for the tlnie wimback again for the Einplre of the West, cull Rume han her corn again. . . . The glory and power of Stillcho were now nearly at their highest polnt. Shortly before the experlition sgainst Glhlo he had given his daughter Maria In marriage to Honorius, and the futher.la law of the Emperor might rightly be deemed to hohl power with a sweurer grasp than hls mure chief minister,"-T. Ilougkin, lialy and LIer Incudere. bi. I. th. $4(\mathrm{r}, 1)$.
A. D. $400-403$ - First Gathic Invasinn af Italy under Alaric.--Stilichn's repulse nf the lavaders. See Gotha (Viaooths): A. D. 400 403.
A. D. $400-538 .-$ The Eastern Empire.-Expulsinn nf Cothic soldiery frnm Cnnstantimuple. - Conflet of Jnhn Chrysnstom and the Empress Eudnzla, -Relgus of Theodnslus II. Palcheria, Marcianus, Lea I., Zeno, and Anastasius. - Peraistent vitality of the Byzantine givernment. - Whlle Alaric's ejes were turaed on Italy, hut before he had actually come into conflet with Stllicho, the Court of Constantioople had been the seat of grave trouhles. Galnas, the Gothle 'Magister milltum' of the Fiss, and hls creature, the eunuch Eutroplus, lusil fallen out, and the man of war had no difis. calty Ia disposing of the wretched harem-hred Trand Chamberlain.

The Magister militum anw brought his army nver to Constentlnople, and quartered it there to nverave the emperor. It apprared quite likely that ere long the Oer-mans woull sack the city; hut the fate that betell lhume ten yeurs later was not destlaed for Constantluciple. A mere chance hrawl put the domination of Gahus to a sudden enil [July, A. 1). $4(\mathrm{H})$ ] . . . The whole population turned out whth extemporized urms and attucken the German molllery. Isolated bodies of the Germans were cut of one hy one, and at last thelr harrucks wert surrouniled aud set on fire. The rloters had the upper haul! 7.000 sobllers fell, and the romnunt thonght themselven lincky to escape. Gulnas at onee derlareal open war on the einplre, lut . . . The was leateu th the thelid and torced to tly neross the Inanule. where he was caught antl Irhealel by C゙hles, klag of the lluns. The departure of Alaric and the death of Galuas freed the Einstern lumans from the double danger that [hanl] Imperideal over them. .. The weak Areadins was enahled to spent the renalulag seven years of hls life in comparutive peace and qulet. Ills court was only tronhled by an open war betwoen hls spouse, the Eupress Elia Eudoxha, and Johu ('hrysostom, the Patriareh of Coustautinople. John was a man of saintly life and apostulic fervour, but rash anil lnconsiderute allke la speceli and actloa.

The patrlarch's coucmles were secretly sup. ported by the empress, who had taken olfence at the outspoken way lu which Johm hablablly denounced the lux ury nul lasolence of her court. She favouret the intriguses of Thenphilns. Patriarih of Alexamirla, agulist his brother prelate, Inalked the Asiatic clergy in thelr complaints ahout John's oppression of then, and at last inlumed the Fimproror to allow the salutly patriarch to In depaseil by a histily-sammonall eomanitil the 'Sybul of the Oak, held ontside the city: The popalace rose ut onec to defend their pantor: riots broke oun, Thamosius was chasefl back to Elypt, and the Eimperor, turrified by an earth. ghake which seemual to manlfest the wrath of heaven, restored John to his place. Next rear, however, the war betwern the emprexs and the patrlareh broke out ngain. . . The Emperor, at hls wlfe's demaud, suinmoned another coun cll, which comlemued Cirysoston, and ou Easte: lay, A. D. filt. selecel the patriareh ln hlt cathedral hy armerl force, and banlsheal hilm to Asla. That night n tire. probahly kladked hy the angry alherents of Chrysostom, broke out In St. Sophin, which was burat to the ground. Frons thasee it spresal to the nelghbouring hulld lugs, aud thally to the seniate-liouse, which was consumed with all the treasurea of anclent Greek art of which Coustantinc had made lt the reposltory. Meanwhlle the cxiled John was haulshed to a lreary mountain fastness ln Cappadocla, and afterwards coudemned to a stlll more remote prlson at Plyus on the Euxlne. He dled on hls way thlther. $\qquad$ The feehle and lnert Areallus dleil lu A. D. 409 , at the early age of thlrty-one: hils imperious consort had preceded hlm to the grave, and the emplre of the East was left to Theodoslus II., a chllel of seven years, thelr only son. . The llttle emperor was duly crowned, and the admlalstration of the East undertaken In hls name hy the ahle Anthemlus, who held the office of Praetorian Praefect. Ilistory relates nothlng but good of this minlster; he male a Wise commercial treaty with the klag of Persis; he repellenl with ease a IUnnlsh invasion af Moesia; he bullt a flotllia on the Danube, where Roman war-shlps hal not been meen alnce the death of Falens, forty years before: he reorgan. leed the come auppiy of Constimatinopie; and did much to got back fato onder and cultivation the desolated north-wentera lands of the Balkan Pealanuia

ROM. A. D. 400-818. The Eatern Empora

ROME, A. D. 404-100.

The empire was atifi more indebted on him for hringing up the young Theodosius as an honest and god. leariag man. The palace under Anthemiur rule was the school of the virtues: the lives of the emperor and his three siatera, Pulcheria, Arcadia, and Marinn, Were the model and the marvel of their subjects. Theodosiue inherted the plety mad honesty of hls grandfather and namesake, but was a youth of elender capacity, though be took some intereat in literature, and was renownel for his heautifui peamanahip. His eldeat alstef, Pui. cheria, wai the ruling spirt of the famliy, and possessed unlimiterl fofluence over him, though she was but two years his senior. When Antlic. miue dled in A. D. 414, she took the titie of Augista, and nesumed the regency of the East. Pulcheria was an extraorilinary woman: on gathering up the reias of power she took a vow of chastity, and lived as a crowneif aun for thirty-yix yeara; her fear had been that, if alie married, ber busband might ebertsh ambitlous achemes against ber brother's crown; the therefore kept singie herself and persuaded her sisters to make a similiar vow. Austere, indefatiguhle. and unseftish. she proved cqual to ruliag the realms of the Enst with success, though no woman had ever made the attempt before. When Theodosius came of age he refused to remove his sister from power, and treated ber as his rol. league and equal. By ber advice be married in A. 1). 421, the jenr that be came of age, the beautifui and accomplished Athenars, daughter of the philosophar Leontlise . . . Thendosins: long reign passed by in comparative quiet. Its only erfous trouhles wcre a short war with the Persians, and a ionger one with Attlar, the great King of the Huns, whose empire now strecched over all the lands north of the Black Sea and Danube, where the Coths had once dwelt. In this atriggle the Roman armies were almost invariably unfortunate. The Iinna ravaged the country us far as Adrianople and Philip iopolis, and hail to be bonght ofl hy the annusi paymeat of i(t) lbs of gold [ $£ 31,(0)$ )]. . The reconstruction of the Roman mlitiary forces was reserved for the succeasore of Thereniomilus II. Iie himes.lf was killed by a fall from his borse in tin A i), leaving an only daugliter, who was marricel t, her cousin Valentinian III., Emperor of the West. Theodosius, with great wisiom, haid designated as his successor, not hls young bondindaw, a cruel and protlgate prince, but his slster Pulcheria, who at the salue time ended lier row of celibacy and married Marclanus, a veteran soldier and a prominent member of the sea. ate. The marriage was but furmal, for inoth were now well allysureef in years: as a poriajial expedlent it was all that could be desired. The emplife liad peace and prosperity under their rule, and freed itself from the ignominious tribute to the IIns. Before Attiln died in 45s, he haid met and been checked hy the succours Which Marclaniss ment to the distresseti IKmans of the West. When Mareianus and Pulcherfa passed away, the empire came into the hamis nf a weries of whe men of nbllity. They were all hred as high civif officials, not as generais; all mecended the throne at a ripe age; not one of thom wou his crown by arma, all were peaceabiy designated either by their predecomort, of by the Benate and army. These prlaces were 1 eo I. (458-474), Zeao (474-401), Aamatanius ( 4151 . 518). Their chief merit was that they guliiei the Roman Empios in the East mafely thruigh the stormy times which mwits extinction in the Wett. Whlic, beyond the Adriatic, province after province was being topped of and formed into a new Germanic $k$ inglom, the emperom who relgnei at Constantinople kept a tight grip on the Baikan Peninsula and on Asia, and aucrituled in maintaining their realm abolittely intart. Both Eant and Weat were equaliy ex poweil to the barimarian in the fifth century. sond the ilifercure of their fate came from the character of thidr ruiera, not from the diveraity of their pulitital conditiona."-C. W. C. Oman, Slory of the llyzan. time Eimpire, eh. $4-\mathrm{\delta}$. - In aplte of the dixnimllarity of their persoanal conduct, the gelviral policy of their government [i e. of the six em. perors between Arcalius and Juatinian] is char. acterimed by atrong features of resemlinance.
The Wentern Empire crumbied into ruina, while the Fastern was waved, in consequellice of these 1 imperors having organised the syatem of aimin. istration which bas been moat unjuntify cnlum. niated, under the name of Byznntine. The higheat officers, and the proudieat milltary cummanders, were rendered completejy deprendent nu iniaisterial departments and were no longar able to consplire or rebel with impunity. The mov. ereign was no longer exposed to permonal danger, nor the treasiry to open pecuiation. But, nu fortunately, the central execntive inwer could not protect the people from fraud with the same ease as it glarded tho treasury; and the minperors never perceised the necessity of lutriating the people with the power of defending theng. seives from the fluanclai oppreesion of the sulaitern aiministration." -G. Finiag, Groene umier tho Romana, ch. 2, exet. 11.
A. D. 404-408. - The Weatern Empire: The last giadiatorial shaw. - Retreat of Honorius and the imperial conrt tn Ravenna, - invasion of Radegisun.-Aliance with Alaric the Goth.-Fall and death of Stifichn.-"Mhrr the retreat of tho barbarians, Honorlus was di. rected to accept the dutiful invitation of the senate, and to celebrate in the imperial city the ausplelous em of the Gothic victury and of his sixth consulship. The suburbs and the are ets. from the Mllvian brlige to the Palatine untime. were alled hy the Roman peopie, who, in the apmce of a h indred years, had oniy thricu lieen honoured with the presence of their suverimens [whose residence had been at Constantinuple at Treves, or at Milan]. . . The emperir risadell several montlos in the capital.

The peuph were repentediy gratifed by the attention and courtesy of IIonortus in the publle games.
In these games of IImorius, the Iniunan minbate of gladiators polluted for the last tilua tha amphitheatre of Rume.

The recent danger to witiel the person of the emperor had hwen exposed in the defencel, nalace of Milan urged him to seek a retreai , ime jarccesalble firtress of Italy, where $h$. White the open country wis covered by a deluge of bartmrlans: . . and its the 20th ycas of his age the Emperor of the Weat, anxious only for his personai safety. retired to the perpetual con. finement of the waik and morames of lavennm

ROYE. A. D. 604-408. The Trutonte humation. ROME, A. D. 400-800.

The example of Honorlus was lmitated by his feeble auccomors, the Gothle Hirces, and afterwands the exarchs, who occupled the throne and palace of the emperors; and till the middje of the 8 th century Rivenna was conaldered as the seat of covernment and the capltal of Italy. The fearm of Honorlus were not whout founda. thon, nor were his precautions without effect. Whitie Italy rejoiced in ber dellverance from the Gothe, furious tempest was excited among the astlons of Germany, who ylelded to the Irreals. thle impulee that appess to have been gradually communicated from the eastern extremity of the continent of Asis thy the lavasion of the Iluns, which Gibbon conalders to have been the linpelling cause of the great a valanche of barbariana from the north that awept down upon Itaiy under liadagaisus in 400 - see Radaoaisue]. Many cities of Italy were piliaged or deatroyed; and the alege of Florence hy Radagaisua is one of the earlleat events In the bistory of that cele. bratel repuhilic, whowe tirmness checked and delayed the unakilful fury of the barbarians." Bullicho came to the relief of the distremed city, "and the famished hoat of Redagaisus was in Its ture besleged." The barbariang, surrounded by well guarded entrenchments, were furced to mirreader, after many had purished from want of food. The chlef was bebended; his surviving followers were sold as slavea. Meantime, AlarIc, the Gothic king, had been taken lato the pay of tbe Empire. "Renouncing the mervice of the Emperor of the East, Aiaric concludexl with the Court of Ravena a treaty of peace and alliance, hy which he wal declared master general of the homan armales throughout the prafecture of Illyricum; as it wan claimed. accorling to the true and anclent limits, hy the minister of IIonorius." This arrangement with Alartc caused great disatisfaction in the army and among the people, and was a potent cause of the fall and death of Stllicho, which oecurred A. D. to3. Ile was arreshed and summarly ex. ecuterl, at Ravenna, on the mandate of his ungrateful and worthlem young master, whose trembling throne he had upheld for thisteen years-E. Gihbon, Decline and Fall of the RJ. man Empire. ch. 30 (o. 3).
A. D. 406-500.-The breaking of the Rhine tarrier.-The great Teutonic lavasion and occnpation of the Weatera Empire.-" Up to the gear 408 the Rhine was maintained as the frutler of the foman Empire agalast the numer. ous barbarian races and tribee that awarmed unesuity in central Europe. From the Flavian Eruperora untll the time of Prohus (282), the great mllitary line from Coblenz to Kehlhelm on ite: Danube bad been really defended, though often overntepped and always a strain on the R-vians, and thus a tract of territory (lacluding Ahten and Wortemberg) on the east ahore of the Cpper Hhine, the titheland as it was called, beinged to the Emplre. But In tho fourth cen. tury lt was as much as covid be done to keep off the Alemannl and Frankt who were threatening the provinces of Gaul. The victorles of Julisn sad Yalentintan produced only temporary effecta. Un the last day of December 100 a vast company of Vandals, Auevtans, and Alans crosect the Thlue. The frontler was not really defended; a haniful of Franks who profemed to guard it for the Romans were eaplly swept aside, and the invaders demolated Gaul at plemure for the three following years. 8uch is the bare fect whlek the chronlelers tell us, hut this migration seema to have been preceled by conalderahle movemente on a larye sesle along the whole fibine frontier, and these movements may have agitated the Inhahltants of Brtain anll excted apprehenslons there of appromeling danger. Three tyrants had leepn recently electeri hy the legiona In rapld succession; the frat two, Marrus and Gratian, were slain, hut the thind Auguntus, who loure the auaplelous name of Constantine, was dentined to play a considernhie part for a year or two on the stase of the wentern world [see BuItars: A. 1). 407]. It wems aimust certaln that these two movements, the paange of the Germans across the lthine and the rise of the ty ranta In Britain, were not without caunal comnection; and it alen meems certain that lxith events were connected with the general stilicho. The tyranta were elevated in the coume of the yuar 406, and It was at the end of the same year that the Vandals cruseel the Rhine. Now the revolt of the legions in Britain was evidently almed againat Stilicho. . . There le difect contemporary evidence . . . that it was by stilicho's invitation that the barberians incoded Gaul; he thought that when they had done the work for which he deaigned them he wouid find an difticuity in crushing them or otherwise dispowing of them. We can hardly arold supposing that the work Which he wishell them to perform was to oppose the tyrant of Britain - Constantine, or Gratisu, or Marcus, whover was tyrant then; for it is quite certain thas, tike Slaximus, he would pase into Gaul, where gumerons Gallo-Iboman adherents would toek to lifs standiaris. Stllecho diled before Constantine was crumbed, and tho barbarisns whom be fiad on Hightly summoned were atlll In the land, harrying Gail, destined sono to harry and occupy spiln and selze Africa. From a loman polnt of vlew stilicho hud nuch to answer for In the dismemberment of the Empire; from a Teutonle polut of vlew, he contrbuted largely to preparing the way for the foundatinn of the German kingdoms."-J. B. Bury, A History of the Iater Koman Eimpire, bk. 2. ch. B (e. 1).-" If mexiern history must have a ded. nite beginning, the must convenient beginning for it is the grest Teutonle invasion of Gaul in the year 407 . Fet the nations of modern Eurupe do uot spring from the uations whlch then crossed the lihne, or from any latermaxture between them and the Romans lnto whose land they made thelr way. The nations which then crussent the lhine were the Vandals, Sueviana, and diuns.

None of these nations made any real settlements in Ganl: Gaul was to them slmply the high road to spain. There they dhi sette, though the Vandals won forsook thelr settiement, and the Aians were mon routed out of theirs. The Suevian kept his ground for a far longer thme: we nay, il we please, look on him as the Teutonle forefather of Lem, whlle we look on the Goth as the Teutonic forefuther of Cautlle. Hlere we have touched one of the great natlonal names of bistory; the Goth. lite the Frank, plays quite snother part in Western Europe frum the Alan, the Suevian. and the Fiandal. Now both Frasks nad Gotits had passed into the Emplre long before the Invasion of 407. One branch of the Franks. . was actually settled on Roman lands, and, as Roman subjects, did their beat to wlustand the groes

Invadon. What then makes thet invacion on marked an eporh? .. . The answer is that the Invasion of 407 not only hrought in new ele. ments, hut put the exlstigg phoment Into new relations to one another. Franks and Coths put on a now chameter and luging new llfe. The Burgundiane pase into Gaul, nnt as a mail tu Npuln, but as a land In which to flad many homes. They preas down to the sonth eastern corner of the land, while the Frank ao longer kerpes hinnerlf in his north-eastern corner, while in the anith. West the Goth is mettend as for a while the liegemian of C'resar, and in the north-West a eontinental isitain springs Into lxilng. Ilere In truth are minue of the chlefent elements of the movern worht, and though none of them are anong the nathons that crosmed the Rhine In to7, yet the new praltion taken hy all of them is the Alrect conseyuance of that crossing. In this Why. In Gunf anil Epalo at least, the folnt Van dai. Alan, and Snevlan Invalon is the beginning of the firmation of the motern antions, though the Invalling uations themedves form no elemeat In the later life of Gaut and only a seconilary clemint lu the later life of Epaln. The later IIf of these lande, sad that of Itnly also, has aprung of the erttlement of Teutonic natlons in a foman land, and of the mutual tafluences which Roman and Teuton have hait on one another. Ronnan and Truton lived sile hy shle, and out of thelr llving side hy side has gralually sprung up a thini thing differeat from elther, thing which we cunnot call elther Roman or Teutonle, or more truly a thlog which we may call floman and Teutonic and wome other things as weil, accondIng to the sule of it whleh we look at. This third thing is the llomance element in modern Europe, the Ilomance aatloas and their Romance tongues." - E. A. Freeman, The Chief Arioda af Europerin flistory, Ip. 87-90. - "The true Ger. manle poople xho oceupled Gaul were the Burgundians, the Visiguths, and the Franks. Many other people; miny other alngle bands of Van. dals, Atanl, Suevi. Saxons, dec., wandered over Its territory; hut of these, some only passed over It, and the others were rapldly abmorbed by it: these are partial lacuralons which are without the Vistorieal Importance. The Burgundians, the Visigotha, and the Franks, alone deserve to ine eounted among our ancestors. The Burgundians ilctinitlvely establixhed themselves in Gaut In'twren the jears to8 and 413 ; they occupled the comatry lettwen the Jura, the Saone, and the 1hurance: Lyous was the crintre of their domidun. The fislguths, betweren the gears 412 and tin. sprend themselves over the provinces boundred liy the lhoone, and even over the left hank of the Rhone to the south of the Durance, the Lolre. and the Pyrenees: thelr king reslited at Toulouse. The Franks, between the Jears 481 and 500 . advancell in the north of Qaul, and estahlished themselves intween the Rhinc, the Scheldt, and the Lolre, without lacluding Brit. tany and the western portions of Normandy; Clovis lad solssons and Paris for his capilals. Thus, at the end of the fifth ceatury. whe accom. plished the dennitive occupation of the territnry of Gaul hy the three great German tribes. The condition of Gaul was not exactly the same $\ln$ it ghrinus parte. aint undicr the dominlun of these three nationa. There were remarkahle difter. ences between them. The Fronks were far more forelgn, German, and harbarous, than the Bur.
gubulians axd the Cotina. Before thelr entrance Into (inul, thew last had hat ancleat relutions with the IJomans; they had Ired In the enstern empire, In Italy; they were familiar with the Iloman mannern and popusiation. We mey say almont as much for the Burgundiana. Mopr. over, the two nation had long been Chriatlana. The Franks, on the eontrary, arrived from figp. many In the condition of pagans aad earmirs. Thove portlons of Gaul which they occupind lne. came deeply senslble $n$ f this diferwere, which is deacribed with truth and rivacity in the seveaih of the " Lertures upon the Hetory of Pmene, of M. Augustin Thlerry. I am Inclineyl. howrver, to belleve that it was les important than ina been commonly suppreed. If I do not irf, the Roman provinces difterel more among thotegelvew than did the nations which had concpurted them. You have ulready seen how murli nore clvilized wa southern than nurthern Gaul. how much more thickiy covered with populition, towns, monumeats, and road. IIad the $V$ id. gotha arrived in at barbanous a condition as that of the Franks, their barbarism wonld yet lave been far less vislhle and less powerful in (inllis Narbonensla and In Aquitania; Homan élvillisa thon would much sooner have aboorleel and altered them. This, I belleve, is what happenmed; and the different effects which accompanietl the three conqueate resulted rather from the difftr. encea of the conguered thnn from tha. of the conquerors. "-P. Guizot, Riat, of Cirilizulion. P 2. ket. 8. -"The invaston of the barbarians was not llke the torreat which overwhelnms, but rather like a slow, peristeat forre whieh under. mines, dialntegrates, and crumbles. The Girsmans were not atrangers to the Roman Einpirt When they began their conquests. . . It is well known that many of the IRoman Empurors were barburians who had been succemaful militers In thie Imperial army: that military cohnies wero estahlished on the frontlers compmand if men of varlous races under the crutril of Koman discipline; that the Goths, befure they revolted against the authority of the Empurif. were hla chosen troope; that the great Alaric wit a Roman general: that the shores of the Ianube and the Khine, which marked the limlts of the Emplre, were llned with citles which were at the same time Roman colonles and perplefl Fith men of the Teutonle rsces. When the harbarians did actually occupy the lerritory their movement seems at frat to have been clingaeter. lzed by astrsige mixture of force with a suntl. In Itaty and and revercace for the Roman name. In Italy and In Gaul they appropriated to themselves two-thinis of the lends, but they suught to govern their ennquests by means of the IRoman faw and administratlon, a machlow which proved In their hands, by the wsy, a mather clumsy means of government. They nulived the provincials of all the movahie pruperty they possessed, but the sutiering they Intileted is anit not w have been as great as that caused by the exactions of the Roman targatherer. The number of armed Invaders has douhtless been exsg. gernted. The whole force of the Burgunaliaa tribe, whome territory. In the moutheast of noudern France, extended to the Rhone at Avignon. did not, It is ald, exceed sixty thousand in all. While the armed bands of Clovis. who changed the deatinies not only of Gaui hut of Europe, were not greater than one-tenth of that aumber.

The preat change in their $11 f 0$ was, as 1 have and, thet they cration to lo wanderern; they lecame, In a meanite at least, fred to the sull: soul in crontmat with "i, llomanom, they preferrest to sive in the cruntry il ant In the uowns. In this they followed the is Tentonic liables. Ifter sumwing what mighty clange this new olla. tribution of jupulation was to cause in the enclal cundition of Eirrux. They ritained, ton, thelr oli noliftary wrganization, and, after attempta more or iras surcomaful to ume the lonsan alminlutrallin for the omilinary purpowes of givern. nu'nt, they almadoawil it, abil ruleal the mountries they rompuered hy winple millicary force, under their llukee and ('onuts, the llunans gearrally lwiog allowel In thelr private relathone wigov. em themwires by the forms of the Iloman law.' -('. J. Silllé, Nulliow in Merlimenl //ialory, eh. 8. "The coulng In of the Germans brought face th face the fuup chlef clomente of onf civilization: the Griek witis lis art moll molbere, misch of it for the time forgotten; tive Roman whil lis politleal lastitutions and legal fleas, sad furbiming the empire as the cominon ground upod whtith sll atixil; the Chrivilas with lis rellatome and moral hilas: anl the Gemuan with other pulltical and lrgal filens. and with a minforcement of fresli blaml and life. By the end of the sixth ceatury Ituow ail exlsted sile by slde In the cominal Ros man rinjule. It was the wort of the remalaing siasle organle whole - the grommilwort of most. ers clvilization. Ilut the Introxluction of the last chement, the Germans, was a conquest - a compurst rembered powslible thy the inabillty of the oht civilization any longer to defend liself agaiust thelr attack. It la one of the nimacles oi hintury that such a conquest shoulfi have necurrivl. the vlolent excupation of the emplre by the Invasion of an Inferlor race, with an litite de. atruction of clvillzition, with so complete an sbwipition. in the enil, of the magneror by the conquenal. It must be prossitile to polnt out ame reasins why the conquext of the anctent wor-I by the Germans was so little whut was to lue expected. In a aingle wort, the reamon it to be fontal In the Impression which the world ticy hall conquered male upon the Germans. They compuerell It. and they treated it as a conquereit wirli. They destroyed and pluaderel what they pleaseri, and is was not a litle. They took promesalon of the land ant: they set up their own tribul governneents in place of the foman. And yet tiey reeognized, in a way, even the wornt of them, their inferlority to the people they bad ovircome. They found upous every slde of them crlitences of a command over natitre such as they had never acquired: clites, hallilnise mouls, brilgre, and shlps: wealth and art, skill In merdanics and skill in goverament, the like of Which they had never knewn: Ideas firmily held that the foman system of things was divinely orialaed and eternal: church strongly organ. ized and with an Impoolng ceremonial, ofticered by venerable and salatly men, and speaklag with an overpowering positivences and an awful suthority that dla not yleld before the atroageat barinarian klog. The Impreasion which these things made upon the mind of the Bermsen must lave been profound. In no other way can the result be mecounted for. Thelr conquest whes physical conquest, and as a phyalcal conquest it wa complete, but it scarcely went farther. In govermment anl law there was Iltte chane for the lhoman; In rellghonand language, nome at sll. Other thingn, melools and commercial ar. rangemeate for Instunce, the Germans wrulit hare been plait to manintaln at the Romana level If they hat kDown linw. Half uncoasclously they adiopted the lollef in the ilvinely founded and eternal empire, and in a vague way reeognizent Ita contlauance aftur tirey hail orerthrown 11 ."G. B. Admms, Cirilization During the Nibetle 5-yth Cextirike, and b-1bris Centichea.
A. D. $400-410$. - The three siegas and the eacking of the Imperlal ctty by Alaric. - Death of the Gothic ehlentia.-1 laving ril limself of the great minister and geurfal whome braln and arm were the only hope of the dlasolving empire. Ilunoriss prowemted to purge hls army anil the atate of burimarians and heretics. He "removed all who profereed rellgions opinlons different from tha own. from every pulite office:
and. to complete the puritication of his army, ouleredi a general mamacre of all the women anil children of the barbmrians, whom the soldlera in bls service hud dellvered up as howtages. In ons day and hour these Innocent victims were given up to slaughter and thelf propertz to pllage. These Lumages hat been Iflt In all the Itullan cithon hy the barlmarinin confelcrates, as a guarabtee for their filcelity of linme; when they kearned that the whole had perished. In the milist of peace, in contempt of all ouths, one fir rinus and territic cry of vengeance arowe, and $$ 0,000$ soldiern, who haid been the falthful mervants of the empire, at once passeld over to the camp of Alaric [then In Illyria), and urged him to leald thena on to fome. Alarte. In language the moleratho of wilich Ilonorins and his ministers aseribet to foar, denanded reparatlon for the insults ofloreel bim. and strict obmervance of the treaties coucluidend with tim. The only answer he obtained way couched in terma of fresh Insuit, and contalnel an onter to evacuate all the proviaces of the empire." On this provocation. Alarle crossed the Alpw, In Ontolver, A. B. tis, meelling no reslstance till he reached Ravenan. He threatened that cht, at Irst, hut the contemptible Emperor of the Weat was safe in hila fen-fustineas, and the Goth marched on to Rome. He "arrived before flome [in the ausamn of A. D. 408] 619 yeara affer that clit had buen threatened by Ilannillal. During that long Interval ber clitzens had never luoked down from her walla upoo the banner of an enemy [a lurelgn lavader] waving ln thelr plalne. Alaric dhl not attempt to cake Rome by asanilt: he blockaled the gates, stopped the narigation of the Tiber, and coon famine thot possesslon of a city which was elghteen millei in circumference and contulined aboive a million of Inhabltante.

At leagth, the Romans hall recourse to the clemency of Alarte; and, by means of a ransom of tive thousand pounis of gold and - great quantly of precfoua effecta, the army was Induced to retire lato Tuscany." The standard of Alaric was now jolned by 40,000 barbarian slaves, who escaped from thelr Italian mastera, and by a large reinforcement of Goths from the Danube, led by the brother-In-law of Alaric. Ataulphue, or Athauliphua (Afraiph:ze, in Ite modern form) by name. The Visigothle king ofiered peace to the emplro if It would relingulah to hlm a klogdom in Norfcum, Dulmatia and Venetia, with a yearly payment of gold; in the ond ble demmade fell uatll thes eztomed to Noficum, onfy. But the fatwoul court at Re. venne refusenl aill lerma, atad Alarte marched back to llome. Once mope, however, he apared the venerable capultai, and mought to attain hia enis by reyuiring the cemate to renounce alleghance to Illonoriun ami, to choowe a new emperor Ife was oleged and Irticuan Altalus, the preffert of the rity, was formaliy invemed with the sutr. pile. This new Augumbia made Alaric and Ataulphise hife clitef nilltary oflicers. and there way jwiwe for a littie time. Bit Attaiua, unhap. pliy, sixak ble elavation with eerlousnem and dill not recogulze the commanis that were bididea in the mivite whith the got from hats Gutile jusma. Alarte fomad hlin to le a faxt and setipinedi his purpie rollo from hites shouliters withia low than a ycur. Then. falling unce more to megothate kerma of prese with the worthiean emperor shat up in Iarenna, he lalif slege to lheme for the thint there - mind the inas. "On the 2th of Aprfl. 410. the yrar 116 from the founitation of the anguat cliy, the Nalurlan gate wam ofewed to him in the might, ami the captal of the worlid. the quera of nathons, was ahationel wo the fury of the cioclas. liet thlu fury was ant withones ame tlage of pity; Alarle granted a preullar protec. thon to the churphrs, which were presarveel from all iun ilf. Cogether with thelr macred trmasuren. and all thime whio had moght refuge withln thelr Wallu. Whillo he alandomed the pror stty of the Ihmans to dilinge, he towis their lives unifer bls protertion; and it is affirmet that only a single meuator jeermbiet har the swond of the lairlmarians. The number of phelylans who were sactifirel ap prame not on linve been thoughe a mater of sump. elemt lingortance even to be meationed. it the eniraniee of the chithe, a anall part of the eliy Was given up to the flames; but Alario emon fons precanctons fur the preservation of the reat of the etlifices. Alwove all, he hal the genemally tu whitifaw his army fron lume on she slath day. an! to mareli !s hito Ciampania, lumied, howerer, with an Immerwe lanity. Eleren eencuries later, the army of the Constablo de Bumplam ahowed less venerathon" Alaric survivel the auck of Thune but a few monatha, dying andifenily in the moldat of preparatione that lie made for Invailiag Alelly. He was burietl ta the beed of the lltle river Bloendum, whith thows past the tuwa of Cozenza, the atream leing diverted for the pur. thase and then turnetl luck to lis course.-J. C. L. de Siamomill, Fith of the Rimmen Empire. et. 6.

Al.mp in: E. (abluan, Docline ami Fisll of the ILman Empire, ch. 31.-T. Ilodgkla, lialy and Ller Inasiero, bi. I, en. 7
A. D. 400 -414.- Invaslor of Spaln by the Vandais, Suevea and Alams. See Spaim: 1.1 $404-114$
A. D. 120 - Ahandonment of Britain. See Britaln: A. 1). 410
A. D. $410-419$. - Treaty with the Viairotha. - Their aettement in Aquitaine.-Foundiag of their kiagdom of Touloase. See (horns (Vistuetus): A. 1). 410-419.
A. D. $410-420$. - The barharian attack on Gaul joined hy the Franka. See Fanks: A. I). $410-150$.
A. D. 4:2-453.-Mixed Roman and barbarian adminiatration in Gaul. see GatL: A. I) 412-5i3.
A. D. 423-450.-Death of Hoaoriun.-Reiga of Valentinian III, and hia mother Piacidian -

Legal separation of the Enctors aced Weetom

 Emplres. The dtmetrous nefge of Ifororiua emperor of the Were, was enied by bla death fif 42. The newrest helr to the throne was bla is. Pant nephew. Valentinian, dos of hia slotep Plachla. The Iatere, after being a captive la the hands of the Gotha and after aharlag the Visigothle zlifuee for mome montha, as wifr if klag Atanlidus, had heea rentored to her lorothep on ber Corthle hualmadia death. Ilonorlua forremp ber, then, to marry lita favorte, the surcrestuil Feneral, Constantlus, wham be rained to the runt of Augustue snd asmoclated whth himaeif on the throne of the Weat. Ibit Comatantlue soon ilimi, leaving his whow with iwo chlidrea - a daugh. ter and a mon. Preceutiy, on wome quarrel with Ilomorlus. Dlicidia withiliew from Ravenna and thak refuge at Conatantimogle, where her nepliow Theoxlowlun occupled the Eaatem throne. She and her clulliren were there when IIamurlus al hed. and thefr aherace the Wentern thmine mas Now ly a rehel named Joha, or Jomaliee the No $0^{\prime}$, ho rigned mearly two years. Wi: (enl ad beheaderl and the chllif Viven. fivessed with tho Inprerlal purpit.
For the succeedhy tweaty.five years .uer, Placldia, relgued ln bis name: An asation to the conrt at Comstantlupyit fire anamerial alit recelvel from ti, the relif finir. Ince of Dalmatia and the ternubled provlieree io Pannumband Noplcum, were now sererni fruma She Weat and ceded to the kiaplre of the biant As the tame time, the culty uf the llonimn koverament was formally nind finally diswilved "13y a powitive deciaration, the velibity of sil future law a was ilmated to the domanions of that pecullar author; unless he should think pron wist to communleate thesn, subscribed with his own luanif, for the approbstion of his laitepwailenr collengue. "- E. (Hhlran, Decline and fluid of the Roman Empire, ©A. 33.
Aleo in: J. B3. Ilury. Hise of the Jater is man Empire, ch. 6-8.
A. D. 420-439.-Cosqueste of the Vandals In Spaia and Africa. dee Vaspala: A. I. 48; antl 429-490.
A. D. 44-446.-Destractive Invasior, of the Eastern Empire by the Huns.-Cession of territory and payment of tribute to Attila. Hews: A. 1). $41-448$.
A. D. 446.-The last appeal from Britaia. See Britain: A. II. 44 .
A. D. $45^{8}$.-Great iavasion of Ganal by the Hana, -Their defeat at Chaloan. Ere lless: Hana. 11.451.
A. D. 452.-Attila'a iavation of Italy. - The Prightful devastation of his hordes.-Origin of Venice. Bee lliva: A. D. 452; and Vevicz. A. 1). 458.
A. D. $5 $ 5$ - Pillage of the city by the Vad-dals.-. The sufferlige and the Ig aominy o! the Homan empire were lncreasel by a new calamity Which happened in the year of Valentinlans deach [murdered hy an usurper. Petronins Maximus A. D. 455]. Eudoxla. the wldow of that emperor, who had afterwards becime fthroush compulaton] the wife of Maximus, avonget the murier of her frat huaband by plottios agnimat her second: secklew how far jhe late i, ct ter country In the ruia. She invited to linne (iensefle, king of the Vandala, who, not cumtent with haviag conquered and devantated atrica.
made every efiont to fire new direct on the rapacify of has subjectis, by acentmanim theni 4) maritime wartare, or, moro properly s maklas. pircy Its armed bacola, who, fimetsog from the fanimen of the galtic, had marcluet over the hail of Eurupe, conquering whereves iney weat, eminarkell In veceela which they procured at Curthege, ami apread ileculation over the conenta of Ilklly and Itily. On the 12th of Jxame, 433 , ther lindert at Ontim. Maxlmus wes hliced la meditious tumult excited hy his wlio. itheoce wa lmpoesilile: and. from the 1 the to the zoth of June, the Mesent caplal of the world was pllegerd by u. 1 swials with a degree of rapecity and eruelty to which Alaric and the corth bs? made no apprision. The shipe of the pirates were monnel along the quays of the Tliwes, and wore hovied wlen booty whleh it would have been lmpualbls for the coldlem of carry of by lund "-J. C. L. de slamnadl. Nist of the Raman Empirr. eh. 8(t. 11.-" On the whole. It is clear from the secounte of all the chroululem that Ginserte's [of Genoerte's] plliage of thmes, though towititug ami lmpoverinhing to the ast degree, was to moense dentructive to the Queen of citles. Whatever he may have done lit Africa. In itume he waged no war on architeotare, belnz far wow well employed In storlu; away gold and silver ond prectus stonem, sud bll manner of coutly merchandine lu those inantinble linika Whinh were ridlng at ancian hy (inita. There the plurlinas. Palatine, blatise If yourlias ibe ios trogith, the Byzanatne, the Juatinct. a 4.sp a* the Siorman, und the Roman barom of I : wa Mhlif it Ag's, for the heart-hrealing ruin tiost woul we tbere, but lrave the Vandal uncrusura! fir. now withstaming the stigma conveyom it the not! 'vablaisin,' be is mot gullty lit n " -1 ' Howdiln, Ihaly and ller Inewiern, bi: 3, eh. is (r. B

A. D. $455-476$.-Barbarian masters and insperial puppets. From Count Ricimer to Odoacer. - The ending of the liae of Roman Emperors is the West, called commonly the Fall of the Westerm Emplre, - "Atter the deatio of Valentlaipn III. the unworthy granden uf thre great Theododus [March 16, A. D. 45i]. the first thouglit of the burbmian chlefs wu. ant to destroy or usurp the Imperial namie, biti to meure to thenselves the aomination of the empror. Avltus, chosen In Gaul under the In fluen, of the Weat Gotsic K'log of Touloume. Theskloric 11., was sccepled fur time at the Festern emperor, by tho thoman Senate and by lie ('unst of Constantinople. But another bar. barian. Melmer the Sueve, ar:blthous, siccessfui. sad pupular, hat succeeded to the commaul of the 'feis-fated' forelgn laixis whleh formed the strength of the Imperial army in Italy. Itclmer would not be alng, but te mopted as a setthed policy the expedilent, of the insulting jest, of Marice. Ite depoeed A vitus, and iprububly mondered lim. Under his direction, the Senate chose Majorian. Majortan wes live hie, too inhliic.apiflet, perhape too ladependent. fos the iarharian I'atrician; Siajorian, at a moment of il fortuu! was deposed and got rid of." A fler Wrerus a Grrek. Anthemius (A. D $16 \mathrm{~B}_{-172}$ ), nominated at Constandioople, wore the purole nit the etmmmand of Count ficimer. Wizen, nitat

Arv y-are of enverctionty. Anthonalus quarreind *itio lus burbarian manter, the filter chrima aed omperof - the mankop Oly brless - and conducted bin with an army to the silew of ilome, in which the tmpurial cont hat one nowe setileal i' l. Anitumins, Bupported liy the mafority (4. he monit mid people, reslatiol, and Home sux alaed a wirter of thret nymath. It was talien by giorm, on the 11 th of Juily, A. D. 4i2, and sufferel every vutrage af tim hanite of the mercylese Fletors. Aistimembis was slaln and his enemy, Riclmar dlewt few weeks later. Olybrius followent the lutuer to t'm, 2 ruve in October. Hiair "c place was flleal ly lols nephew, a Fif a a Lurgundian klog, fobilolaul, who chome Jon eangeror an anfortunate ofticer of the Im. perial suarl. named Olycerius. Olyerrius allowed himmelf to to deprosel the next rear by Jullus Nepos aml acreptoviz inshoprle lo folace of the throne; hut later circumatances gave the emperor hishop an opportubity to smeserinat hia mipplanter and hed dit not haitate to do so. By the tlmue. the real porwer lual jwisecl to maother barburian "putrichas" aui gemerni, (Irettes, former secrutary of Attila, and iprates proclalment his own ma cmperur. To thin an "by atrazage cloance, an If in mockery of has fortune. had iweng giveu the nathem of the frut ting and the tret emperor of lhonc. Jomulus Augustua, soon turtsod in derialon luto the dlminutive ' Aisgustulus ISut oferaum fatled to play the part of ificintoi A younger and nore darinz birbsHinn wlventurer, "hower the liepule, or thuglas, thi histuer for tive alleglance of the army. Iras. ton whas tin. aml the young emperor wis left to Has buercy of ohnacer. In slagular and maznits"Int. "hitmst tro the common usuge whom prewhi uanle walnileate In legal form: sad the ide man thate, at the dif tathon of omace $r$, oflicelally significh to tha bitatirn enjpertr, Zobto, thelr resoluton that the s-pmonie Wewlern Linpire sbould cerme, and thelr recogultion of the oue emperar M? Constamethople, who sionill lo supreme ove. If rest and Eist. Amhll the riln of tle a inplre and the state, the rethmont emperer pamed bis diays, In mieh luxurions case as the thuewnlluw eefo, at the Vllla of latetlus at Misembun: wal ohto. cep, taklng the Tentonic title of klog. so.." emperor at Coratastinuple the Ina, r.r. and rube whlels were to be wimi n. Rome or ILavenua fur more thans this. yar. Thus in the yeur 4 :8 ended ibe ltomasn emple, or ratber, the line of ltmman emprors, In the West."-1K W. Church, ikginning of ihe Mistle Ages, ch. 1. - When, at Mlauce ' bliAlog. Remulus Augustulus, the boy whom os whhn of fate has chusen to be the last natire Casar of thome, has formally announcell lila rea. Ignathon th the senate, a lheputatlon from that buiy procerded to the Pastern court to lay the insignia of myalty at the feet of the Eastera Emperar Zeno, The Weat, they declared, 70 longer reyulred an Emperor of lis own; one monarch sitiliead for the world: Odoacer was qualltied by bls wislom and courag. tis ine the protector of their state, and upon lim Zeurs was entreated to coufer the title of patriclan and the administralfon of the Italling proveluces. The simperor granter what he could not refuse, and (hloacre, taklng tae title of $\mathrm{K} \operatorname{lng}_{\mathrm{g}}$ [' wut klng of italy, as is often mill - foot-mote], continued tho cumblar office, reopected the civil and eccleadnet-al inedtution of mis mubjecta, and ruled for fourteen years as the nominal vicar of the Easters. Emperor. There was thua legaily no extincthon of the Weatern Emplre at ali, but only a reunion of Bast and West. In form, and to come extent also in the bellef of men. thinge now reverted th thoir state during the iret two centuries of the Empire, asve that Byrantium Inctead of Rome wis the centre of the civil government. The folnt tenancy which had been conceived by Docletian. carred further by Conntantine, renewed umiler Vatentinian 1. and ugain at the death of Theodoclus, had come to an end; once more did a single Emperor sway the sceptre of the worid, and herad an undivided Catholic Church." - J. Bryce, The IFWy Roman Empire, ch. 8.

As.eo IN: T. Hodgkin. Ihaly ami Her In maders, bk. 3, ch. 4-8.-J. Bi. Hiney. Mint. of the later Roman Eimpirt, prof. anf bl. 8, eh. 5 (r. I).
A. D. 476.-Causee of the decay of the Empire and the slcaificance of its fali in the Weat. - Tlus in the year 476 ended the loman empire, or rather, the line of loman empercters, in the Went. Thus it had become clear tiast the foumiations of haman lifendi seclety, which inal cemedi unier th:s first empeora eternal, hal given way. The itoman empire was not the "last word ' in tie fineory of tive world: but either the Wurfi ', as in chaiger of falling Into chane, or efse new r.irms af ilfe were yet to appear, new fileas of goverument and nathenal existence wore to stringie with the olif for the mastery. The worif was not falling iutuchaos. Filrope, witheit momed to have finst its guldance anit its inupe of civilization in lowing the emilire, was on the thershodid of a instory far gramier timn than of lemer, and was ulxilit turart la a career of ciritizaton to with hat of thome was ruie ami unprogresalve. In the great break-up of the empire In the Went, mone parts of la aystem lasteri, othern dinappeareti What lasteri $x$ an the lifas of mundepal government, the Chriatian Church, the olostinate civil of siaviry. What disappeared was the central power, the impurini nad univer. nal thman citizenshlp, the extioslve rule of the fomann law, the ohi lwoman pugadsm, the leomnn minuinintratiou, tive leman whouly of ilterature.
 umicer Cimarem the (irent, and otto his great nuc. erssirf: the aprrechaton of law, though mot ex.
 Amb unitre there condithon the new mations (n)me of mixtal rare\%, as in France, Spain, and mais. England, and the Semmelnavinn wontmala - lwigh thelr apprentleewhip of civilizathoia "It. W. ("hareh, The theginaing of the Midille ilyea. ch. 1 -"The sluple farts of the fall of the Fim. pire arv these. The Imanerai aystom thal lurn extablinhoul. . to protert the frontler. This lt Ilid for two eraturle: witit sbincent success. itut in the reign of Mareun Anrellus. . . there an curret an invalon of the Marcomanni. whlelt was not repulsed whibout great difienity, and which exelted a derp slarm and forefuxllog throughont the Empine. In the thini ientury the hostlle prexers on every frontier legan to np. pear more furmalable. The German irlinem, in whose discord Tacitus an the aferty of the Em pire, present themselves now no fonger in w'p. rite feebienew, but in powerfui confederations. We hear no more the fosiguiticunt mame of Chatti and Chauci; the history of the thiri century is full of Alemanni, Frakk, and Goth. On the eastern frontier, the long decayed power of the Parthlans now gives place to a revived and vigorous Pentan Emplre. Tho forces of the Empire are more and more taxed to defend it from these powerful enemice.

It le evident that the Roman worid would not have stewdily receded through centuries before the barburic, had it not been decidediy inferior in force. To explain, then, the fall of the Empire, it in necye. aary to explain the Inferiority in force of the Romans to the bariv...sang. This inferiority of the Romans, it is co be remembered, was new thing. At an en riler time they had been manl. festly superior. When the region of inarbarism was mesch targer; *hen it inclumed warilke and aggresalvo nations now loat to it , such us the Gauls; and when, on the other hand, the ilumans direw their armies from much smailer arma, and organized .hem much less elaborately, the balance had inclined decidediy the other way. In thowe times the lhoman world, in spite of oc. eadonal reversem, had on the whoie stealily en crracheal on the barbaric.

Elther, therefore a vast increase of jower must have taken place In the barbarie worid, or a vast internai deruy in the lioman. Now the barbaric wurld itul nitually received two conaliderabie accessions of furce. it had gained coasiderahily, through what hintu. ences we can only conjecture, in the purirs sod hablt of co-operation. As 1 have sald befure, in the third century wo meet with large confellirs. thins of Germans, whereas before we rewl wily of isointed tribes. Together with thls caparity of cunfeteration we can easliy tedieve that the (iermans hal acuuired new intelligence, clvlliasthon, andi millitary akili. Morevver, It ls jracal caliy tu be conshleredi sa a great incroume of ag gressive force, that in the mhille of the fourth century they wore tireatenevi la thelr orusinal cettiencentis hy the liuns. The impulae of denjet athan which drove them againat the forman froutier wis feit by tho lhmans as a new furce acyuinal by the enemy. But we whall mull we that other und inore cespsidiorable monuenta bant have inron reyulreil to turn the scali..... We are forved $\qquad$ to the erenelnaion that the las man Eimpirc, in the mlint of lis greatness and civilizathom, numt lave lewein a stathonary amd noprogrewive. If nut a dicestlag ivmdithon Sow what con lasve lereas the coname of this unprixlue loy inxury and excossive gami furtume. Tu sup furt thif it la fisy to quote the satlrian and cynica of the infurinl time, and to rafer lio such miquants as . immanars gives of the luibolet effeminacy and brutality of the ariatoremey of the eqpital in the fourth rensury. Ihat the hiviry of the wars In't weon fonte auit the larlarie world dices not slow tos the pronts we might esput iff this deeay of gilfit. We do not thei the lemans ing to show themselves inferior in valar tuthir ewomles. The laxury of the capital could int aftert the army. . . . Nu, can it lne enhel that lis. ury corrupterd the generals, and thrumph thrim the army. Ha the coutrary, the bimplre jrimumal a remarkable series uf capable generala Whatever the remote and ultimate cause mar tave Inen, the limmerliate canve to wholithe fall of the Empire cau be truced is a phymical, nus a

Cowee of
nelthe ded Fnu
ROME, A. D. 476
morsh, decay. In valor, discipline, and acience, the Roman armies rematned what they had ai: Wiys been, and the peamant emperors of Iliy ricum were worthy succemon of Cincinnatus and Calus Marlua. But the problem was how to repleniah thowe armies. Men were wantlog; the Empire perishet for want of men. The proof of this is In the fact that the conteat with barbariom was carried on hy the help of barberlan coldiers. It muat have been because the Emplre could not furnah coldiers for ite own defence, that it was driven to the atrange expedieat of turning ita enemiet and plunderers linto ite defeadera.
Nor wasit oaly in the army that the Empire was compelied to borrow men from barbarism. To cultivate the geids whoie trilee were borrowed From the time of Marcur Aurelius, It was a prac. tice to grant iande within the Empire, cometime to prisoners of war, sometimes to tribes applylng for almission.

The want of any principia of lacrease in the Roman popuiation is attented at a much cariler time. In the second century before Christ. Poighlus bears wit: zan to It; aail the returns of the ceasun from the second Punic War to the tlme of Augustus show no steady in crease in the aumber of cttizens that cannot be eccurnteri for by the extension of eitizenatip to new clanses. . . . Precisely as we thluk of mar riage. the fluman of Imperiai times thoutht of celfbacy, -that is, as the moat comfortable but the numt expmative condition of iife. Marrlage with us is a pleasure for which a man must be coatent to pay: with the Romans it was an ex eellent pecuaiary inventment, hut an intolerably disaknelle one. Here lay, at least in the juig. ment of dugurtus, the root of the evil. Tin lin. quire Into the causes of this aversion to marriage la this place would leaif me tow far. We mast be content to asoume that, owing partly to thls cause ami partly to the prudeaifal cineck of in. fantichle, the lenman population seenas to hare beta in orilnary times aimost stationary. The mme phenumenon hail showa itself In Grevece before its conquest by the fiomans. There the population hail even greatly declinet; null the chrewif folvhlus explains that it was not owlug to war or plague, but mainiy to a general repug. aance to marriage, and relictance to rear large familiec, causeri by an extravagantly high atan. daril of comfort. . . Perhaps enough bas now been sill to explain that great enlgna, whel so mulh bewhilers the reader of Gibion: nam the sharp contrast between the age of the an: loaines and the age whteld followed it. A century uf unparalicielel tranquillity and virtuous goverument Is f: Ilowed Immediately by a perioni of hopheless ris: and dilaselution. A cent ory of rest to fullowed, not by renewedi vigor, that by lacurable exhanstion. Some prinelple of decay vulst clearly have beea at work, hut what prind fil" We anater: It was a perioxi of sterilty ot strennesa in human beings: the human liar revt was hati. Amil anong the canses of thly bartomessas we find, ir the more barharous na thons, the enfeehiement proviucet by the tro. abrupt introluctlon of civilizatlon, and univerally the absence of indur*rial hablts, and the daposition to fistlesanem which belongy to the military character."-J. R. Seeley. Jommon fm. perialion, pp. 47-6i.-"At no periol within the sphere of hintoric reconds was the commonweath of ihme anythlag hut an oligarchy of warriors and olave owners, who tademnilied themacelves for the reatraint imposed on them by their equals In the forum hy apgreation abroad and tyranny in their households. The causen of lte deciloe neem to have little connexion with the form of goveroment established in the arat and secoad conturies. They were in fuil operation before the fail of the Repuhlic, though their baneful eftecta were diaguised and perhaps retanded hy outwarl succeases, hy extended conqueste, and lncremaing suppiles of trihute or piunder. The general decine of population throughout the ancient worid may be dated even from the second century before our cra. Tie last age of the Re. puhilc was perhaps the period of the mont rapid exhauation of the human race; hut ita dissolution was arrented under Augustun, when the popu. lation recovered for a time in come quarters of the emplre, and remained at least stationary in others. The curse of sla very coull aot but make itteif felt again, and demanded the destinel catastrophe. Whatever evil we necribe to the despotiam of the Caesars, we must remark that It was slavery that renderel poifitical freedom and conatitutional governmeat impositile. Siar. ery fosterel in trome, as previounily at Athens, the spirit of seidshness and sensuality, of in wiess uess and lasolence, which canaot consiat with political equaity. whll poiltical juntice, with poiltical moderation. The tyranny of the empernes was oniy the tyrany of every nohle exteniled and intensifed. The emplre became no more than an ergaatulum or barracoon on a vast scale. comanensurate with the dominions of the greatewt of Romau siavchoiders.

We have noticed aiready the pestllence which befel Itaiy nom! many of the provinces in the reign of Aurellus. There is reason to belleve that thls solurge was no common tilsorier, thint it wus of a ty re new at feaxt in the West, and that, ha a new morhific agent, its ravages were more last. luy, ns well as mure severe. than those of an , milinary slekness. . . . At another time, wlw'n the stainina of aaclent life were henatialer ani stronger, auch a visitatlou might pueslbiy have come nuil gone, andi, however fatal at the ino. ment, have left no fasting traces; hut periode neem to occur in natlonal existence when there is uo coustitutionai power of mallyiug under casual disoriers. The slekness which in the youth of the commonwealth woold hare dispelied its nor. bhl humonra and foritieri lis system, may have provedi fatai to lis advanclng rears, and preclpituted a haie olfi agge luto praisied decrepituile. The vitui powers of the empire posesessell no elnatlecty: : 'very blow uow toll upon it with in. creasing force; the hows it alowly or impatiently reidrami wern given by the lannile of hired bar barlanas, not ly the miringta of lis own right arin. Not sickueses aluue, but famlnes, eurthuqukes madi contiagrations, fell In rapid suceresolon upom the caplal aio: the provinces. Snch casuantes may have occurrell at other periouls not less frequently ur disustronaly ; hut these werecimerved While the others pased unnoticed, bermese the courage of the natun was now broken no lres thau lis pliysleai vlgour, and, distressed and ter rifievl, I: lwhelif la every natural disorler the stroke of fate. the when of Its deatineri diswla. tlon. Sor linfeel wan the afarm unfommitei. Theme tranalent falmilaga and sicknessers were too truly the symptoma of appriaching collapme. The fong ling of northern froutler. froin olessus. to the island of the Batavl, was skirted hy a fringe of fre, and through the latrid glare inmed the writhful fare of myrluls. Germans, Scyth. lans, and tarmatians, all armed for the onslaught In sympathy or cuncert."- C. Mertrale, Ilim. of the Homans under tho Bhmpire. eA. 18 (e. 7)." Inder the bumane pretext of gratifylng the worid with a flattering tilie, an Autoninus, in one of his edlets, called hy the name of lloman cltizens the tributaries of the lkman emplre. thoer then whom a proconsul inlght legally torture, llog with mols, or crush with labour and tax's. Thus the power of that formerly Invio. lubie tlite, before which the mont shmmelest tyranny stopperl short, was conermilleted; thus perisherl that anclent afety-cry whlel made the executionern fall luek: I am iluman cltizea. From that periol lime no longer existed; thern was a court and provinces: wedlonot understand by that wonl what ti now signifien in the vulgar languages, but what it slgalifed primitively in the Roman language, a country conquered by arma; we mran to say, that the primitive dis. tinction between conquering Rome and those it hal minduered, then lecame establlahed between the men In the paisce and thome out of the paiace; that fome itwelf Ilvel only for one family. and a haniful of courtiers, as formeriy the na. thona it lad conquered had only llved by It. It was then that the mame of aubjugated, subjectl. which our language has corruptel into that of nuhjects, was transported from the conquered Inhableats of the Eiast or Gaul, to the victorious Inhabitants of Itaiy, attached in future to the yoke of a minall numitser of men, these had been athacherl to thit yoke: the property of those mon, as well as the others, had been thelr jroperty, worthy, In a woml, of the degrallog title of aubjects, anbjecti, whleh muat be taken liter. ally. Such was the onler of things which had Inen gralually forming aince tive time of Augus. tus, ench enperor slorievl in hastening the mo. nurnt of lis perfection: (onstautine gave It the thishing struke. He effacel the name of liome from the Ikman stamparis, and put In lis piace the syminol of the refighon whirh the empire had Just pinbraceal. He degracell the revired name of the civil magintrature Inelow the clanestic of theen of his hollse. An laspector of the wardrobe tinok pricerlence of the consulas. The aspect of lonne luprortuned him: he thought be anw the isnage of liberty atill engravell on lts ofil walls: foar ifove him thence: lte llet to the comsts of Byenntia, anil there buit Conatantloople, placing the spas as a harrier lnetwren the new city of the (inmart and the anclent clip of the Brutus. If *tantinnple was the home of siavery : frum thonce |xaner| the dognase of pasalve olixalience of the ('hurchablifruar; there was hut one right that of the empire: lut one dity - that of biee. dience. The gencral nanue of cifian. which was equivalent, in inngunge, toman living under the aume law, waw rephaced by eplthete gruluatial acrording to the erealt of the powerfui ar the (o)wamile of the wenk. The quallications of Himinence, lloyal llighnem, and Reverunce, weru |rentowel on what wan lowest and morat deopl. cablo It the woritl. The emplese, like a private doumaln, was tranamittevl to chllifren, wives, and mus.la.jaw; It wan given. Inequeathed, subat|. tuterl; the universe was exhanating Itself for the cutahishment of the family; tazes lncreawed Im. muderntely; Constantinuple slote we exempted ; that privilege of Roman llberty wat the price of Its Infaing. The neat of the cities and natioas were treated like beats of hurien, which afe usel Whthout acrupie, Angged when thry afe reative, and kilied whea there la cause to par them. Witnees the population of Antiocil, con. demnerl to death by the plous Theodosius; und that of Themaionlew, entlrely manacrell by him for athe refuserl, and an unfortunate creature secured from the Justlee of hls pmvosts Mean while savage and free matlons armeal sgainet the ensiared world, as If to chastlse It ? ir its luase netas. Italy, oppressed by the empinc, w*o found pltliest revengers in its heart. linne was inenaced by the Goths. The peopie, wenrs of the Imperial yoke, did not defenil thermwires. The men of the country, atlif 1 mbu wl with the ohl Roman manners ani religlon, thone $m+n$, the only oues whowe arms were stlif rohome and souls capahle of pride, refolcal to wee anoung them free men and goxle remembiling the anchent gexie of Jtaly. Stil' 2 , the generil to whous the (mpine entrusted lis defeace, appearenl at the fint of the Alps; he called to arma, and no one aronc. be promalsed liberty to the slares. he lavivion the treasures of the fisc; and out of the fiominwe es tont of the empire, he only aseembled ( $11,1 \mathrm{k} / \mathrm{k}$ men, the ffth part of the warriors that Ilanuibal had encounteral at the ghtes of tree lume"-1 Thlerry. Varmatires if the Weroeingiun Eirn and Minforical bawga, casuy 13.-"It was not the division Intu two emplres, nor mereiy the juin ef of external enemies, that destroyed the ifuniation of thone. Itepubllean lenne lial enderi in monarchy by the decadence of lu.r Institutions and custonis, by the very etfect of her viotorimanal conquesti, hy the necessity of slving to this im inense slominlon a dominus. But after aliv lawi Ingun to submit to the reallty of a mamarilys, ahe retnined the worship of repulivean formi The Eimpire wan for a ling time a piet of hy. poneriny; for It dide not clare to give to itw rulen the firat conalitlon of stability, a law of ateres shou. The death of every empuror was fillownd by troubles, and the choler of a maviof of the workl was often left to chance. At lenisth the monarchy hal to Ire orgatizeti. Jut thencefont It was alsolinte, whout reviruint or chpmation Its projumal ains was to explont the wirdi, an sim which in practlee was carriwi to sut cateme Hence it exhausterl the orhis romanos "- $\mathbb{E}$ la visue, (Benerul l'icere "f he Asitical Mistory of हiunvue. oh 1
A. D. 486.-The lat Roman sovereigety fo

A. D. 488.- Theodoric the king of the Or trogoths authorlzed and commissioned by the Emperor Zeno to conquer a kingdomin finiy.

A. D. 488-526, - The Ostrogothic Engdom of Theodoric.-1t was In the sutumu of the : eat Fimpurfor, Zenus. to wrest lialy from (hlander fur (ohfovapar). lirike up his cainp or wetple-bent on moverl tuwafis the wext. The moweltert wa a nutioual migrathon - of wive andi chidrenas weli sa of warriors - and the tutal nituming is es. timaterl at mot ies than e(0, 隹) Following the crourse of the Janube, the Githio luat inet with no opparitlon until it caure to Singlidunum. near the Junctlon of the Sare There. on the limaki of a stream called the U'lca, they fought a grwal

Tineadoric
the Ovireguth.

ROME, A. D. 488-520.
batte with the Choidee, who hell posmestion of Panoonla, and who disputed thelr advance. Vleinrous in this encounter, Theoxlorle pushed on, along the course of the gave; but the move. ment of his cumbrous traln was so slow sad the harimblpe of the march mo great, that nearly a rear pased before he had surmounted the pasees of the Julian Alps and entered Italy. Ife found inloacer waleing to give him latele on the Ironzo: but the foress of the latter were not courageous pough or not falthful enough for their duty, and the Invallag Gothe forceif the pussage of the tram on the 2sth of Angust, 489 . Oinacer retreated to Verona. followed hy Theodoric, and there, on the sinh of September, agreat and tur. rible battlo was foughe, from which not many of the Ifuglan and Iferilina troops of Olusacer escapmi. (hloarer, bluself, with mome follawers. got clear of the rotit and made thelr way to the afo atronghold of Ihavenna. For atme, Ohlua. cer's calle memed abmoloned hy all who hand suppurted him; hut it wisa trewcherons show of submisglon to the vletor Theculoric, ere long, found ractions at woris which recrulted the forces of his opponent and illminixhed his own. lle was Iriven to retreat to Tlelnuin (Pavia) for the winter. But laving mollcited and received all from the Viaigotise of eouthern Gaul, he regaluet, In the summer of for) (August it) in a inattle the the Alfor, not far frum Mllan, all the knonal that he lowl liowt, and more. Oflonacer nas now driven agaln Into IRverna, and dute up within it walls by a blexkmle whicls was en. dured untl Fehruary in the thlril year after. wals ( 108 ), when fatuine compellerl a murrender. Thusulorie promised life to hiferival and resperi whis royal digulty: tut he no somer bal the uh wifferowned kligg Ohoacer In hla jower than lyo slew hlm with his owis haml. Siotwithstand. ing the kavagery lu the loaugurathen of it, the petin of the thitrogothic king in Italy appears to have laeto, on the whole, wise and just, with mure approxination to the chlvalre half clviliza. tion of hater medireval thenew than appears In the zovernmeat of any of hly Gisthe or German arighinrs. "Although Tlivenderic dill nut care to run ther risk of oftending losth his diothes and the Court of (ionstantloople by calling linnself Caesar or Fimpretur, yet thome titlew woult have exactly expressenl the character of his rule - - on far at lesut as hix lhuman subjects wire crmeerned. When the Eiuquemer Amataslus In 497 acknowielgat bim as ruler of Italy, he sut hilm the purple chagk and the dladem of the Weatern emperory; and the act whowerl that Anastaslus gulte undersiond the diference between Therole. reen euvernment and that of thovacar. In fact. though not lis nause, the Western empire haid bera prexiored with much the anme Institutions it hal hal under the buat of the finman." The relan of Theowloric, dutiog lt, as he dhi, from he tim vletory on Itallan moll, was thirty-seven Sram in duration. When he dled, Allgust 80 , A 11 sta, be left to hls gramion. Athalaric, a ting lum which cxteniled, beyoul Italy, over Nhatia. Norlcum, I'annonta abil Illyricum the muslorn Austrian emplre south and west of the Imantw.) together with I'rovence in wouthern Gail ami a district north of It embracing much of ininlapn Jhuphine. His governmeat exteaded. likewler, over the Vislgothic klagdom, as gusml. lan if it young klag, bis grandton. But this shast hingilum of the heroic Untrogoth we not deatined to endure. One who Ifred the common measure of life might have ceen the beginning of It and the end. It ranlabed In one quarter of a century after he who founded it was laid away In his grea: tomh at harenna, leaving nothlng to later lilatory whleh can be counted as a survival of 1 t , - not even a known rembant of the Ostroguthic race. - II. Bralley, Nory of the Giothe, ch. 16-20. -' Thermborin profesued a great reverence for the Roman civilizntlon. He hail asked for and obtalned from the Emperor Inastastits the imperial luaignin that Ulovakar had dialainftilly sent back to Constantinople, ant he gave up the drees of the bartarings for the I:oman purple. Although he livel nt lhareana he was accustonied to crnaule the lkoman senate, to whom le wrote: We deslre, coumerlpt fathers, that the genlus of llberty mny look with favor upon your assemhly." Ife eatabilshed consul ol the West, three pratorian prifects, and cliree dluceses, - that of northern Italy, that of Rome, and that of Gaul. Ile retainetl the munlelpal government, but appointel the decuriona hifnell. IIe reduced the severity of the taxes, and If palace was always open the thome who wished to complain of the lalquities of the juilgom Thus a burlwirian gave back to Italy the pros. perity whiels she had lose under the emperors. The publle bulldhigs, queducts, theatren, and baths were repalrei, and pulaces and churches were buile. The uncultivated lands wire cleared aind conipankes were furmend to druls the Iont las manslues and the marsikes of Spoleto. The fron mines of Dalmatia abil a golid mine in Bruttli were worked. The coants were protecterl from plrates hy numerous dotillas. The populathon fiereaned greatly. Thembortc, though lie alla not know how to wric, gatherml aronnd him the Inest ilterary merit of the time, - Berethlus, thos Dishop Ennomllus, and Cusviolorus. The lattor. whom lie niale him minister, bit left us twelve lanole of leiters. Thernturic seetns in many waye llke a tirat akcich of Charlemagne. Though hlamelf an Arian, le respected the rights of th. Catholle from the frist.

When, bowever, the Emperor Juatin I. provecuterl the Arians in the Eant, he threatemerl to retaliate, and as a great commotlon was olsmervel among bla Italian suljecta, he believeri that consplracy was being formed agalnat blmself. ... Tlie prefect Sy m machus and hitesni-In-law, Beethlus, were lanplleatel. Therkloric confined them to the tower if I'avia, and It was there chat Beethlas wrote hls grest work. The (conarlations of Plalloseplay. They were lath executed In 525. Theoxloric, how ever, finally rirogoizel thelr lnoocence, atil felt such great regret that his reason is sall! to have leren unbalanecyl und that remorse hastened hls coul."-V. Iluruy, Mine. of the Midille Ages, ok. 1, ch. 3.-" The personal greatnese of Theodoric overslaulowed Emperor and Emplre: frum lifn palace at tinvenna, by one tille or another. by drect dominlon, angurilian, to elder kins. man, as repreeventative of the Rotman porwer. as bead by aatural selectlon of the whole Teutonic world, he ruled over all the western lands save one; alul even to the colaquering Frank lic coull say. Thus far shale thou come and no furtiser. In irue majeaty such a position wan more than Imperial: nurenver there wa nothing in thu rule of Theodorle which touched the lioman life of Italy. ... As far as we can see. It wan the very greathess of Theodurle which kept his power Irom being lanting. Like so many others of the very greateat of men, he set on foot a ayatem which to himself could work, but which none but himself could work. Ile wought to set up a klogion of Goths and Romana, under which the twil natlons should live side by side, distinct but friendly, each keeplag lis own law and dotag Its own work. Anil for one life time the thing whe done. Theodoric coukd keep the whole fah. ric of lioman Hfe untoucherl, with the Goth atanding liy a an armed protector. Ile could, as be suld, leave to the lamna consul the honours of gorernment and take for the Gothle klog only the tails. Smalier men nelther could nor would do thim . It was the necevmary renult of his prostion that he gaveltaly one generation of peace and prowperty ancla as has no fellow for ages on elther side of It, lime that, when he was gone, a fabite which had mo forndation but his personal quallies hroke down with a crush."E. A. Freeman, Chiof Itriculs of Efuropean Iliar., lect. 3.

Atmi tx: The same, The Gothe uf Rurenna (lliat. Eimiyo, r. 3, ch. 4)--T. Jloulgkin, luuly and Iler Inrule ra, b4. 4. ch. 6-13 (e. 3)-Cinalodorus. Lelters: truns. and el. by T. Hutgdin.-11. F. Btewart, $\quad$ inft $\quad$ 'u, ch. 2.
A. D. 527-565, - The relga of Juatiaian. "In the year after the great Theockerte dled (528), the nuxt farnous in the thme of Eastern emperora, sluce Cuastanthe, brgan hls hong and erentul relgn ( 58 ì-508). Juatinian was born a Slavonlan permant, mear what was then Surillea. and is now Suhia; hie original slare name, Up. rawila, was latinizel totu Juatilan, when lie became an omere lo the imperial guarl. Nince the death of the mecond Theymloelus (450), the Eantern emperios liad bern, as they were contluually to be, men mut of llman or Greek, but of barligitian or haff bartharian orgin, whous the imjertal clty and wervlce attractel, maturalized, and clothed with civilizel names and loman eluracter. Justinlanis rolgn. angreat aml mo unhapy, way markell by macniticent works, the adminisirative organlation of the cuppre, the great huldalige at Constantnople, the last and gramest cealtion. them of Roman law [we Coher.s Jines Civilets). But it wax alat markell by domestle shame. by tife lovisi]. by all the viros and crimes of a rapactoms and nagrateful dexpritham. Viet It mermed for a whlle llke the revlvai of the priwer and forture of thome. Justinlan rome the the hagluent inteas of fmperial ambititun; auil lie wins nervell by two great manters of war, furdgners in orlghin like himelf, Bellsarius the Thamelan, aud Xirsey the Amumlan, who were abie to turn the empire, fis fumouse refhes, ita techaideal and mechanical sklil. Its supplies of treops. fte milltary tralithona. Ita command of the sea. Afries was wrestey from the Vinulain [we Vasbala A. 1) $833-504$ ]; ilaly from the muccemmers of Thenderle [see lefow]; nurh of Nomin from the West Guths "一 IL W. Church, The /hyianing of the Miblle Ages, ent 6.- In spite of the brililant events whleh have given the relgo of Justluian a promitarnt place in the annala of mankiad. It is prewnted to us in a werica of livolated and laron gruous facts. Its chlef Interest is derived fron the hlographical memorials of isellsarlus. Theero dorn, and Juatinlan, awil the most lantructive beoon has been drawa frum the intlueace whict

Its legitation has exercised on forelgn nationa The unerring instinct of mankind has, however, axed on this perfod an one of the greateat eras in macis annals. The actorn may have been mea of ordinary merit, hut the eventa of whleh they were the agente effected the mightlest revolu. tlons in soclety. The frame of the anclent world was bruken to plecen, and men tong tomkel hact wlth wonder and mitmirstion at the fragraenta whet remalnel, to prove the exiatence of nohler rue than thelr own. The Eastern Em: plre, though two powerful to tear any exteran enemy, was wlehering away from the raplility Whth which the State devoured the resmurces of the people.

The itfe of Bellacilun, elther in Its really or lis romantle form, has typlfied bis age. In ble enrly youth, the world wan popu. lous and wealthy, the emplre rich and powerful. He conquered extensive realma and mighty na. tlons and led kinga captive to the footstinil of Juatinhan, the lawgiver of el vilinatlon. Oill age arrived; Belisarius sank into the grave aumpried and imporerished hy his feehle and ungrateful master; and the worth, from the banks of the Euplarates to those of the Tagus, prosentel the awful spectacle of famine and plagne [wo Plaocz: A. D. B4-504]. of rulaed cfles, and of natlona on the larink of exterminaton. The impreallion on the bearts of men was proftumi." - 6. Finlay, Qrceee under the Domans, ef. B, evet. 1.
Aloo in: Lond Mahon, Live of Beliarriuf.
A. D. 5at-556. - The Peralan Wars and the Lasic War of Juatiaian. See Pehsia: A. 1 . 22b-sit alan. Lazica.
A. D. 535-353. - Fall of the Gothic king dom of Theodoric. - Recovery of ltaly by the Emperor Juntinian. - The long Gothic siege of Rome. - The siege, captere and pillage by Totila-The forty daya of lifelena desolation In the great city. - On the denth of the smat Theymloric. the Gstrogothle erown pamserl, tut to ble duagliter. Amulanmena, hat to her sum, Athal. arle, is chlifl of elght ur ten gears. The buy blag Illed at the age of sixteen, and Amalambitio as? smmel the regal power and thle, calling une of here cousins, namerl Therxintua, or Therelatand. to the thrme, th share It with ber. She hatl juwer fol euemben th the Giothle court and the ungrate Atualasuatha and her gartlinas. were werembe and the unhaply quen, after a whert inmorisun suent on a lltte lasland In the lake of liflewa, was put to death. These disencishins the the Gothle klagilam gave encoliragen:ent to the Fiastern enjreror, the ambillous Justinian. of undertake the reconqueat of taly Iling great general. Bellantlot, had jost vaimulubell the atoren Carthaghan Mrica to the imperial domala. Witho far smalfer forever than that achle verment demanded. Ifllisarius was now sent agalast the Goths. He landent, Arst, in siefly (A. I) sisi), and the whele folatai was wir readeret to ham, almost wiblant a blow. The following spilug (having crosmel to C'apthace repantime and quelled a fonmilatiee pewith. ho poenel the atraits from Measina and latiell ble small army in Italy. Jarching northwarita, be encountered bla arse oppositlon at Xiapulteasulem Naples - where be was detalned for iwenty days by the stout reablanet of the clis. It wa surprtied, at length, by a storuitag party whech crept through one of the aqueducte of the town, and it suffered feariully from the berlia. rians of the Homan army before Belisarfus could meover conifol of his earage troops. Pausing for a few monthe to organize his easy con. quest of southern Italy, he recelved, belore lie murched to Thme, the pracilcal surrender of the capital. On the oth of December, 688, be enierel the cliy and the Gothic garrison marched out. The Coths, meanilme, had depoeed the cowarily Theolatus and rilsed to the throve their mot truaty warrior, Willgis. They ensployed the wlater of 597 Io gathering all thelr srailable forces at Raveans, and In the spring they returned to Rome, 150,000 atrong, to expel the Byzantine lavaler. Bellasius hall busliy Improved the Intervenlag months, and the long. argiected fortlicatlons of the cliy were wonder. full: restored and Improvel. At the beginaing of Harch. the Goths were thumlering at the gates of Rome: and then began the long slege. which emiurel for yemr and nlne daje, aud which caled ln the illacomtiture of the hnge army of the levelegers. Their retreat was a filight and preat unmbers were sialn by the pursuing flomass. "The nunilveris and prowees of the Grithe were readered uselena hy the utter lncmparity of their commanuler. Ignors it how to mavalif, Igaorant how to biockade, he allowed even the sworl of llunger to be wreated from him and used sgalnat his army by Bellearius. Ile suftercul the Hower of the thothic nation to perish, but me nuch ly the wrupons of the lomans an hy the deally dives of the Campagas." After the retreat of the fionits from fome, the couqueat of Italy wnini have been yulekly completed, wo doubt if the jeatousy of Justlulan hal nut hamperal Indisurfus. by senling the equich Narmes - who provell to lue a remarkabie soliliar. In the end to divide the command with him. Is it was, the surreader to Iteiliwarius of the cinthie copital. ibsenta, by the Gothle klng, Witigis, In the warriors then bell lust wo lmportant citlos límonami l'avia. Mifanthey liad retakenafter losime it, nal had practicaliy destroyed, numan. cring ife Inhalilanta (mee Mitas: d. D. Bil0). But now thry chose a new king. lidibad, who mignai promiaingly for yent aml was slaln; then unobser, who wore the crown but itre muntis; and. lassly, they found a true rosai chifif in the kalghtly young warrior Badulia, or Tonta, ly whose energy and vaior the Gentic cause was reviverl. Beflsarius liml been reralled by his jocious manter, anel ilee gunrreis of eieven senemis who dividerl his authority gave every "pinertunity to the youtifisi kiug. Ihefenting the ímona armies In iwolbatiles, at Faenza ani In the valley of Mugelio, near Fiorence, he criswal the djenalnes, passerl by Ifone, besteged milsum Naples and Cume anil overran ali the suilirpu provinces of Italy, In 542 and 343 , tiad. ing vorywhere moth friendiane anomg the peyplo, whorn the tax-gatherers of Justinima had aliountel loy their inerclless rapacity. In $54 t$, Hi liwarius, remtored to favor and conimand only invause of the desperate need of lils services, canne hack to ltaiy to recover what his alueces. whas host; but le came aluost slone. Wlth. out aileguate troope, he coulil only watch, froin Kivenna, nil rirrimacribe IItile, the sisccemest of his cisturprisiug madegoniat. The latter, bev.

Ing strengthened his postilon well, is central an Well ne In mouthera Italy, applled hlmaelf to the capture of lome. In May, 846, the Gothle lines were Ifawn around the city and a hlockale catalillahed whill soon proluced famine aad dejumir. An attempt by Ibelisarius to hreak the lengiler canse to nauglit, aull lome was betrayed to Totlla on the lith of Incember followlug. He staged the sworls of his followers when they luggan to slay. but pave them full lleenme in plumier. When the great clty hall been stripped and most of It Inhabitanta liad therl, he remoival to dewtruy It utterly; but he was elinemaked from that most barbaruus afeslgn by a letter of remonstrance from Ikelisnrius. Contenting himoelf, then, with thriwlug down a gruat part of the walls, be whithlrew bis whole ariuy - haviag no troops tu spare for an arlequate jarrison - ani: took with him every magie surviving luhableast (so the hlstorlans of the time dieciane), mo that lome, for the space of six wecks of miore (January and February, 8i), whe a botaliy deserted and slieat cliy. At the emil of that ilme. Bell. tarius threw hls arning Inside of the broken walla, and repalred them with surli celerity that Totios was enfiled when he hastencd lancls to ex|x|l the Intruifers. Three times the thothe attacked and were repulawl; the best of their warrlors were slaln; the prostige of thelr learler was lios. But, thee unore, jeralusilew and enmilies at Coustuntl.
 ground. In 80 they again Investerl Ihbme and It was inetrayeyl to theni, as Incfore, ly a purt of tive garrison. Totim now aule the grent dityarint eveu la its ruins - his (mpitai, und exerted) hinumelf to restore lis former gloriong. Ilis arms for a time were everywhere suceowfui. Sicily was invimind und stripped of its prorable werith.
 of Circete were thrintemed. Bot in sion the tille of fortane was thmed once more in favor of Jana tiulan. - thla lime by lise seerund great generni, the eunuch Narmes. In whe derlaive battle foupht that year, Iu Juig. at a print on the Flaminian Way where It eromen's ilue Apenainer, the arnag of the Gotlin was broken and thelt king wus slaln. The reumant whiell surviver crownet another king. Trias; lut, lie. tor, gerInluenl. the foifowing Jarils. In a matile fougist at the fonit of Jount Fersuvius, and the ostro. gothle kingitom was ut an ent. Kome wan airumly recoveral - tike tifth clange of nasters It hal uulergoue tharing the war - and one by onc. ali the strong piacery lu the lanids of the Goths ware given uj. The restoration of Italy to the Eimpire was complete, -T. IInlekin, Ility umel Iter Innulers, bk. t, eh. 16; bk. 5. ch. t-24.-"it ali agets in himenty the slatin is the one in whicls the foctrine that the lioman Eimpin crame (o) an end at soase tine la the fifthonats mont grotersque. Again the Ifonaus armien harch to victory, to more than vichiry. (1) confluat to conquests more prechous than the: contpents of (insuar or of Trajan, to coblifuests Whlib gave latek lome lierself to hor uwn Iu. gustos. We may agnin be met with the arisument that we have ourmeiven ased en oftell. that the Einpipirs lat to whack its lonst provineers dong indeed prove that it lad dint them: but no one seeks to prove that the provinces hat not beven fost: what the worid is loth to understand Is that there was atiii life ebomgh lin the lhonan power to win them beck agaia. I nay the Roman power: What if I mald the Roman commonweathit It may startic mome to bear that in the dixth century, may in the seventh, the mont comzmon name for the Empire of Rome is atill'ree. publica. No epithet in needed; there fin no need to may that the 'respuhifice a spoken of is 'reepuhlica Romana. It the Repubile which wint back Italy, Africa, sad Eouthern Spain from their Teutonic mantern $\qquad$ The polnt of the emptorment of the wond lire in thle, that it marke the unbroken being of the Roman atate: In the eges of the men of the sixth century the power whileh won hack the Alrican province in their own day was the same power which hal arat won It wefl.nigh seven humirel years before. The conaul Defisarius was the true sucrescor nit the conat Ascipio."-E. A. Frreman, The Chiof Priade of Liv ropeon History. leet. 4.
Also IX: E. Othbon, Dreline and Fill of the Roman Eimpire, eh. 41 and 48.-J. B. Bury, Ilial. of the Sater Roman Empire, Bk, 4, ch. 5-7' (e. 1) - R. II. Wrighteon, The Nioneta Reopublim Ro mama, eh. $5-7 .-$ Lord Mahon, Lifo of Belimerine.
A. D. 541.-Extiaction of the ofuce of Conant. Ne Consul, fowar.
A. D. 554-800.-Tha Exarchata of Ravanaa. -On the thai overthriw aud annilifation of the Gothie numareliy to Itaig by the deriaive vic. torien of the eunuch Narses, ith throne at tha. venna was orcupiet hy a fine of vice-moyal ruiers, named exarcha, who representud ithe Fastern Roman emperor. being appointed by him and exerciaing authority in his name. "Thelr jurisifiction was worin reduced to the fimits of a narrow province: hut Narmes himseif. the frat and moat powerfut of the exarcis. ad: minixteryi above fifteen yeara the entire king. doms of Itaiy. A duke wan mationed for the defence and mlitiary commanil of ench of the principai citles; and the eye of Names pervaded tive ample prompect from Calahria to the Alpa The rovalins of tive Gontisic nation evacuated the country or mingied witls the peoplc. ... The civif atate of faly, aftur the agitation of a long tempest. was tixel hy a pragmatic sanctiong which the emperor pronuigatef at the rejucat of the jope. Justinan intruiuced his own jurisprutence into the whondis and tribuadis of the Wext. . . Evifer the exardis of thavenan, thome was degrated to the servond rank. liet tixe menatom were gratifiedi hy the prornission of visiting their extates in Italy, and of appromaclalog whout obatarle the throne of Constantinopif: the reguiation of weights and measurvas was integated to the jwpe and menate: and thu cainflem of lawyers andi pliysicians, of oratora andigrammarinis, wirce dretinefi to preserve or rekimble the light of aclenere in the anclent capitat. thuring a perlisi of tho years Itaily was unequally livhlifif lietween the kilngdiom of the Lonhmeis aud the exarchate of liavenna. Eighteen nurressive exurcis were invested, in the decllow of the cmpire. with the full remaina of efvil, of millitary and even of mrieniantical power. Thile humerlate jurisdiction, which was afterwaris cunmersteci as thee patrimony of AL Peler, extende? over the moxern thomagna, the marshes or valleys of Ferrara and Commachio, ive marilime citios from Kiminí to Ancona, and a second inland Pentapolis, between the Adriatle canat and the hilis of the Apeanine. Three subordinate provinces- of Home, of Ven. her, and of Naples - which were divided by hootile lande from the palece of Ravenna, scknowiedged, both to peace and war, the supremacy of tha oxarch. The duchy of liume appears to hava lacluded the Tuscan, sallowe. and Latin conquenta of the frat 400 yearm of the ctty, and the limita may be dintinctiy traced along the conat. from Clitia Vecchia to Tirm. clina, and with the courne of the Tiber from Ameria and Narni to the port of Oatia. The numerous islands from Grado $\omega$ Chlozza rym. posed the infant dominion of venler: hut the more sccemalhe towns on the continent nere overthrown by the Lombende, who beheili with Impotent fury a new capital riaing from the waves. The power of the dukes of Naples was clrcumacribed by the bay and the adjarent istes, by the hnotife territory of Capua, and by thr lion. man coiony of Amalphi.

The three inhande of Bandinia, Coraicm, and Bicily still milherivl to the empire. . Rome was oppresed by the iron meptre of the exarchs, and a Greel, prirlupa a eunurh. insulted with impunity the rulna of the Capitol. But Naples soon acquireil tho privilege of electing her own dukes: the inde. pendence of Amaiphit was the fruit of conumerce: and the voluntary attachmeat of Venice was finaliy ennobled by an equal alifance with the Fastern empire."-E. Giiibon, Devine and thall of the fiman himpire. en. 48 amd 45.
A. D. 565-6as.-Decline of the Eastern Ewpire. - Thickaning calamitins. - Raigns of Joo tinna Il., Tiberiua Constantiaus, Maurice. and Phocas.- Brief brightening of eventi by Haracling, - Hia campaigns againat the Persiang-"The thirty years which folliwwed the death of Juatinlan are covered iy thre reigan, thome of Justinus II. (565-5is). Tiln-tius
 These three emperors were men of mullh the asme character an the predecemors of Justlulan: each of them was an experienced offrial of na ture age, who was selected hy the reigning tmperor at his most worthy succranor.
let uncier them the emplre was steadily ging down hill: the exhausting effecte if the relign of Jus. tinian were making themseives feit nore nind more, and at the enid of the reiga of Maurive a time of chaos and dikaster was impeading, wheb cume to a beut uniler his succemor.

The minfortunes of the Aratle and slavonic war the Avaral weri the caume if the falf of the fam. peror Maurice. . . Maurice meralerl his tite when, in cus, he isaved orders for the diswo tenter army of the thanube to w inter north of the river, in the waste marshes of the sines. The troops refuset th obey the order, unisl rhasef away thelr geaerala. Then electing as their cap. tain an obscure centurion, named Plocian, bey marchert on Constantinopie. Maurice ariomel the clty factions, the "Hues' and 'Greens.' and strove to defend himmeif. But when lie saw that no one woulid figlut for him, he flef acruss the Bompiorias with his wife and chififiren, to set refuge in the Anatic provinces, where to was lese unpoimiar than in Elurope. Noon be was pursued is orlers of Phocas, whom the amy had now mulutell as emperor, and caught at (hal. cedon. The cruel usurper had him executed, siong with aif hin five sons, the youngeat a chlld of only three years of age.

For the firm time since Constantisople hail become the seat of empire the throse had been won by armed rebeltion and the murder of the legitimate ruler.

Pbicat was a mere brital molifer - eruel ignireat, suapicioum, and reiklrea, amil in his in capable hanits the empire begna $t o$ fall $\omega$ os plecee with alarmiag rapislity. fle openell his relen with a mertes of eruel execullons of his predeces. mo's fremia, and from thent mument has deeds of bhoulshell never ermeal.

The moment that Phews hal mountel the thrines. Chourofer of Perain derlaned war on blma, uning the thypoentimal pretext that he whanel in revenge Maurlev, for whom be profucell a warm persomal frimidohip. This war wha far ilftereat from the indecisive contesta in the reigno of Justinlan and Justin II. In two surcemolve yearn the Itrmiana hurat Into North Sydia aut revageel it mo for an the mea; but in the thind they turned north mal ewept over the hitiverto untoncliedl provinces of Anda Minor, In owe their main army jpenetrited crime t: ippelocis and Galatia right up to the anter of Chalceston. The infinbitante of Cionatan. tinople couill we the blazing villagea arrme the -ater on the A siatice shore. $\qquad$ Plot aflur plot was furmeif in the capltal againat Ploncma, inut he ourceved in putting them all down, ami atew the conapiratore with fearful bortures. Fior elgint yene his rolgat continuent. $\qquad$ Afrlea wis the anly purtion of the fiman Empire whileh in the miky of llucas wat sultering nctilwer from civll atrife aor fureign invasiom. It was well gov. ernet by the aged exarch Heraclius, who was mo well iliked in the province that time emperor hald and dared to depme him. L'rgeal by deapwrite emtreaties from all parties in Comstantibople to arike a blow agwiunt the ty rant, and deliver the empire from the yoke of a munster, Iferaclus at that consenteyl." He ment his man-who lore the mane name. Heracilus - wifli a flevt, to c'onstan. tiaople. Phocas was at ouce alwnitenel by hla thapg and wat givea up $\mathbf{w}$ llerncliun, wione milh roslew hith. "Next day the putrlarcil and the senate hailed Ilerachius (the youinger) an eme. perur, suil he was duly crowaet in St. skophia en (brentres 5. A II. 610. Save Africa ami Eisype and the dimitet imneillately around tive capilai, all the provhaces were overtun by the Persian, the Avar ami the Nlav. The treasury was empty, and the army had alminat disappeared. owing to repeated murd hitexcly defeata in Asla Mimer. Heracliua wenis at time to liave almont requatired.

For the fint twelve yeam of hla reign fe remalnell at Constantluople, eaden rourfog to frorganize the emples, and to didenel at sny fute the frintien of Thrace and Aaln Minor. The mure diatant pruvfaces be handiy medis to have buivel to are, and the chrontcie of his early years is Hileel with the catalogue of the homes of the rinpire.

In $61+$ the Persian army appenend lefore the hoily cliy of Jerusatem, took it witer a short resintance and arcupletl it with a garriwin. But the populace rowe and slaughtered diee I'rinian troope, when shalirimerz liald de ${ }_{i}$ wretel with hiv maid srmy. This brought hitu lunck in Wrutt: lie storned the elty and put 80,000 ( $b$ bris. timns t, the awori, only apming the Jewlsh in. hahtuats. Zuclarias, Datriarch of Jerusalem. Whe chriel into captivity, and with him went whet sif Chrlatisns then regarderd as the most pricious thing in tie worki-the woxil of the True C'rise ' pee Jencealem: A. D. 615).
The hurror and mge roused by the loee of the 'True Crims' and the blasphemies of King Chournes brougbe about the arat real oulburat it antional feeling that wo meet in the history of the Eastern Empire. . . . Hertellus made no ken than six raminisne (A. D. e92-897) is his gullant and sucermftil attempt to mene the half. rulmed emplro. He won rout mod well-dewerred fame, anil his name woull be peckoned manas the foreminat of the wewhlie wartior kiags if fit hail not beon for the misfortunves which after. warde fell os hitm in his ohl age. Itis frut campalgn clearel Asim Mimor of the Prraian hunte. not by a direct atteck, but by skilful stratery.

In his sest eampaigns fleracline endeav. oured to liberte the root of the Iuman Empire by a olmilar plan: he remolvel to asaill Chmeriet at howne, and force him wercall the armies be kept ta Nyrim and Egypt to defend his own Persian provinces In $828-4$ the Emperor alvanced acroen the Armenian memantalim and threw himacli Into Metia. . . Clicurven Pought iwa deupernte bitiles to cover Citewiphon. Ilis meserals were defentell $\ln$ both, hut the Ih. man army suffervil everely. Winter wat at band, and llerwellus fell buck on Armenia. In his aest campaign he recenvered limman Ilemupotamla.

But 680 wat the decisive year of the war. Tie obstinate Choandey determined on one final eflort to eruinh liferacitus, hy ewneerting a Jolnt plan of opernilons with the Cliggan of the Avars. White the maln Peralan arniy watcherl the empenir in Armenla, a great benis under Shatirlmrz silpipet sutith of him Into Asla Mhuor and marrheyl on the thmploorun. At the samum moment the Chagan of the Avars. with the winute firre of his trite and of his Shavanic depondents, herrat over the Batkine and bumet ('onotentinople on the Europeau side. The two Marlarisin homet cuntid meach other acrom the water, suif even contricell to exclauge mesuges, hitt the thoman tiet, millige incemantly upand down tite stritit. kept them from joining fircues.

In the ent of July mo, (ex) Avan and Sinve, witi all morte of suntis atoug the land fromt of the elty, but they were heaten bark with grat siangliter." They suffered even more on trylng to enemunter the Khman gnileys witi rafta. "Tiwen the Chagan gare up the siege in diaguat and redifed scrums the Ihnule." Deantime Ileraclius was wanting Mordin nad Mcwomamla, sul next year be ended the war by a decislve vletory near Nim-veli, at tike remolt of which he took the palace of lias. tagery. "allid dividerl anoug his trmeps aucha plunder as had never treu zeen since Alexinder the Grent captured Susa. . . In March. 688, a giorhus preace chidet the 26 yearn of the Promian war. Hernelius returneif to Comatantiouple In tite summer of the nume year with lifempulls, his victorinus army, and his great tropisy, the 'Ifoly Wond.

The quate for which ine yearued wasto be denied him, and the endl of his relgn Wha to be almomt as dinastrus an the commence ment. The great saraced invaston was at hand, and It was at the very moment of Heracilua triumpin that Mahomet sent out hls famous clr. cular letter to the kinge of the earth. Inviting them to embrace Idian. "-C, W. C. Oman, The Story of the Ryaratine Emppire, eh. 210 .
Almo is: J. B. Bity, Hiat. of the later Roman Empirr. bk. 4, pt. 2, and bk. B, cA. 1-8 (r. 2), Sve, almo, Penbis: A. D. 220-027.
A. D. 564-573-Invalon of the Lombarde. -Thelr conqueat of northera lialy.-Their kingdom. See Lommande: A. D. 564-578; and 578-754.

A. D. 590-640.- Increaning influence and imports nce of the Bishop of Rome.-Circumstances under which hls temporal autnority grew.-"The fall of the shadowy Empire of the West, and the union of the Imperial power in the person of the ruler of Constantinopie, brought a fresh accesslon of dignity and importance to the Blshop of Rome. The distant Emperor could exercise no real power over the West. The Ostrogothic hingdom in Italy scareely lusted beroad the llfetline of its great founder Theodoric. The wars of Justinlan only served to sitow how scanty were the beacits of the Imperial rille. The invaslon of the Lombards united all dweilers In Italy in an endenvour to escape the lot of serritude and save thelr land from barbarism. In thls crisls it was found that the Inperial system had crumbled away, and that the Church alone possessed a stroug organisation. In the decay of the old municipal aristocracy the people of the towns gathened round their hishops, whose sacred character insplred some respect ln the barharians, and whose active charity lightened the calamitles of their flocks. In such a state of things Pope Gregory the Great ralsed the Papacy [A. D. 580] to a position of decisive eminence, and markel out the course of its future pollere, The piety of emperors and nobles had conferred lands on the IRoman Church, not only ln Italy, but In Siciiy, Corslca, Ganl, and cven in Asia and Africa, untli the Blshop of Rome had become the largest landholder in Italy. To defend his Italian lands agalnst the lncursions of the Lombards was a course suggested to Gregory by self-lnterest; to use the resourees which came to him from abroad as a means of relieving the distress of the suffering people :is Rome and Southern Italy wus a naturai promptling of hils charity. In contrast to this, the distant Emperor was too fechle to semul any effective help against the Lombarils, while the fiscal oppression of hls representatlves added to the miseries of the starving people. The practical wisdom, administrative capaclty, and Christian zeal of Gregory I. led the people of 1 ome and the nelghbouring regions to look upon the Pope as their head in temporal as well as in spiritnal matters. The Papacy became a national centre to the Itallans, and the attitude of the Popes towards the Emperor showed a spirit of independence which rapidly passed Into antagonism and revolt. Gregory 1 . was not danuted hy the diffeulties nor alisorbed by the cares of his position a. aome. When he sint Christianity threatened in Italy by the beathen Lombaris, he boidly pursued a systent of religious colonisation. While dangers were rife at Rome, a band of Roman missionaries carried Christlanity to the dlstant English, and In England first was founded a Church which owed its existence to the zeal of the Roman bishop. Success beyoad ail that he could have hoped for attended Gregory's plous enterprisc. The Eng. lish Church spread and fiourished, a dutifui daughter of her mother church of Rome. Eng. land sent forth mlsslonaries in her turn, and before the preaching of Willbrod and Whiffred heathenism dled away in Friesland, Franconla, and Thuringia. Under the new name of Bonl. face, given him by Pope Gregory II., Winifred, as Archbishop of Mainz, organlsed a German Church, subject to the successor of $S$. Peter. The course of events in the East aiso tended to increase the importance of the See of Fome.

The Mohammedan conqueats destroyed the Patriarchates of Antloch and Jerusalem, which alone could boast of an apostolical foundatlon. Constantinople alone remained as a rival to Rome; but under the shadow of the Imprrial despotlsm it was impossible for the Patrlarch of Constantinople to lay clains to spiritual lndepen. dence. The settlement of Isiam $\ln$ its eastern provinces involved the Emplre in a desperate struggle for lis existence. Ilenceforth its object no longer was to reassert its supremacy over the West, but to hold its ground agalnst watehful foes ln the East. Italy could hope for no heip from the Emperor, and the Pope saw that a breach whth the Einplre would give greater la. dependence to his own position; and enable him to seek new allics elsewhere."-M. Creighton. Mist. of the Mupacy during the Period of the Ref. ormation, introl., ch. 1 (e. 1).
Also in: T. W. Allies, The Holy See aml the Wandering of the Nations, ch. 5 .-See, also, Curistianity: A. D. $553-800$; and Papact: A. D. 461-604, and after.
A. D. $632-709$. The Eastern Empire.-Its firsi conficts with Islam.-Loss of Syria, Egypt, and Africa. See Mahonetan ConQUEST: A. D. 632-639, to 647-706.
A. D. ${ }^{41}$-717.-The Eaatern Empire.-The period bet ween the death of IIeracllus and the advent of Leo III. (the Isaurlan) is covered, in the Eastern Emplre, by the followiug reigos: Constantlne III. and Heracleonas (641): Constans II. ( $641-668$ ); Constantlne IV. ( $689-685$ ): Jus. tinian II. ( $685-$-il1); Leontius and Absinulrus (usurpers, who interrupted the relgn of Justibian II. from 695 to 608 and from 698 to 704 ); Philip. plcus (711-713); Anastasius II. (713-716); Theodosius III. (716-717).
A. D. $7^{17-800 \text {. - The Eastern Roman Em- }}$ pire : should it take the name of the Byzantine Empire ?-and when ? - "The precise date at which the castern Roman empire ceasell to exist has been variously fixed. Gihbon remarks, - that Tiberius [A. D. 5:8-582] by the Arahs, and Manrice [A. D. 582-602] hy the Italians, are distingulshed as the first of the Grech (eesars, as the founders of a new dynasty und empire.: But if manners, language, and religion are to declde concernlng the commencement of the By. zantine cinpire, the precedlag pages have shown that its origin must be carried hack to aa parlier period; while, if the administrative peculiarities in the form of government be taken as the ground of decision, the finmau empire may be considered as lndefintely prolonged with the exIstence of the title of Roman emperor, which the sovergigns of Constantinople continuel to retain as iong as Constantinople was ruled by chrintiaa priaces. . . The period . . at which the Roman empire of the East terminated is declded hy the crents which confined the authority of the Imperial government to those provinces where the Greeks formed the majority of the pepulation; and it is marked by the adoption of Greek as the language of the government, by the preralence of Greek civilisation, and by the identit. cation of the nationallty of the people, and the policy of the emperors with the Greek church. For, when the Saracen conquests had severed from the emplre all those previnces which possessed a native population distlnct from the Greeks, by language, literature, and religion, the central goverament of Constantinople wo stad.

ROME, A. D. 717-800. The Byzantine ROME, A. D. 846-849.

uslly compelled to fail back on the interesta and passions of the remaining inhahitants, who were chiefy Greeks. Yet, as it was by no means identfied with the interests and feelings of the native inhabitants of Hellas, it ought correctly to be termed Byzantine, and the empire is, consequently, justly cailed the Byzantine empire.

Even the tnai loss of Egypt, Syria, and Africa only reveals the transformation of the Roman ampire, when the consequences of the change lagin to produce visible effects on the internal government. The Roman empire seems, therefore, really to have terminated with the anarchy which followed the murder of Justinian 11. [A. D. 711], the last sovereign of the family of Heraclius; and Leo III, or the Isaurian [A. D. 717-741], who identitied the imperial administration with ecclesiastical forms and questions, must be ranked as the first of the Byzantine monarchs, though neither the emperor, the clergy, nor the people perceived at the time the moral change in their position, which makes the establishment of this new era historically correct. Under the sway of the Heraclian family [A. D. 610-711], the extent of the empire was circumscribed nearly within the bounds which it continued to oceupy during many subsequent centuries. . . . The geographical extent of the empire at the time of its transition from the Roman to the Byzautine empire affords evidence of the influence which the territorial changes produced by the Saracen conquests exercised in conferring politicai importance on the Greck race. The frontier towards the Saracens of Syria commenced at Mopsuestia in Cilicia, the last fortress of the Arab power. It ran along the chans of Mounts Amanus and Taurns to the mountalnous district to the north of Edessa and Nisibis, called, after the time of Justinian, the Fourth Armenia, of which Martyropolis was the capital. It then foilowed ncarly the ancient limits of the empire until it reached the Black Sea, a short distance to the east of Trehizond. in Europe, Nount Hamus [thc Balkans] formed the barrier against the Bulgarians, while the motntainous ranges which bound Macedonia to the north-west, and encircle the territory of Dyrrachium, were regarded as the limits of the free Sclavonian states. . . . Istria, Venico, and the cities on the Dalmatian coast, still acknowledged the supremacy of the empire In the centre of Italy, the exarchate of Ravenna still behl liome in subjection, but the pcople of Italy were cntirely alienated.

The eities of Gaeta. Napies, Amnlf, and Sorento, the district of Otranto, and the peninsula to the south of the sncient Sybaris, now called Calabria, werc the only parts [of southern Italy] which remained under the Byzantine government. Sicily, though it had begun to siffer from the incursions of the Saracens, was still populous and wealthy."-G. Finlay, Greece under the Romans, eh. 5, sect. 1 and $\%$.- Dissenting from the view presented abose, Professor Freeman says: "There is no kind of visible break, such as is suggested by the change of name, between the Empire before Leo and the Empire after him. The Emperor of the Romans reigned over the land of Romania after him as well as before him. . . . Down to the fsll of Constantinople in the East, down to the shidication of Francis II. in the West, there Fiss no change of title; the Emperor of the Romans remained Emperor of the Romans, however shifting might be the extent of his domin ions. But frous 800 to 1453 there were commonly two, sometimes more, claimants of the titie. The two Empires must be distinguished in some way; and, from 800 to 1204 , 'Eastern' and 'Western' seem the simplest forms of distinction. But for 'Z.ostern' it is just as easy, and sometimes more expressive, to say 'Byzantine'; only it is well not to legin the use of efther name as long as the Empire kecps even its nomlnai unity. With the coronation of Charies the Great [800] that nominal unity comes to an end. The Old Rome passes away from even the nominal dominion of the prince who reigns in the New."-E. A. Freeman, Historical Esanys, acries 8, $p .244$. - See Byzantine Empire.
A. D. 728-733.-Beginning: of Papal Sovereignty. - The Iconoclastic controversy.Rupture with the Byzantine Emperor.-Prac. tical independence assumed by the Pope. See Papact: A. D. 728-7i4; and Iconoclastic ConTROVERSY
A. D. 752.-Fali of the Exarchate of Ravenna. See Papact: A. D. 728-774.
A. D. 754:774.-Struggie of the Popes against the Lombards.-Their deliverance by Pippin and Chariemagne.-Fail of the Lombard kingdom. See Lomnards: A. D. 754-774; also, Papact: A. D. 728-774, and 755-774.
A. D. 800.-Coronation of Charlemagne.The Empire revived. See Franks: A. D. 768814 ; and Germany: A. D. 800.
A. D. 843-95I. -The breaking up of Chariemagne's Empire and founding of the Hely Roman Empire. Sue Italy: A. D. 843-951; Franks: A. D. 814-902; and Germany: A. D. 814-843, to 936-973.
A. D. 846-849.-Attack by the Saracens."A fleet of Saracens from the African coust presumed to enter the mouth of the Tiber, and to approach a city which even yet, in her fallen state, was revered as the metropolis of the Christian world. The gates and ramparts were guarded by a trembling pcople; but the tombs and temples of St. Peter and St. Paul were left exposed in the suburbs of the Vatican and of the Ostian Way. Their invisible sanetity had protected them against the Goths, the Vandais, and the Lombards; but the Arabs disdained both the Gospel and the legend; and their rapacious spirit was approved and animated by the precepts of the Koran. The Chiristian idols were stripped of their costly offerings. . . . In their course along the Appian Way, tbey pillaged Fundi and besieged Gatta." The diversion pro duced by the siege of Gaeta gave Rome a fortunate respite. In the interval, a vacancr occurred on the papal throne, and Pope Leo IV. by unanimous eleetion, was raised to the place. Ilis energy as a temporal prince saved the great citr. He repaired its wails, constructed new towers and barred the Tiber by an iron chain. IIc formed an alliance with the cities of Gaeta, Naples, and Amalf, still vassals of the Greek empire, and brought their galieys to his aid. When, the refore, in 849, the Saracens from Africa returned to the attack, they met with a terrible repulse. An opportune storm assisted the Christians in the destruction of their fleet, and most of the small number who escaped death remained captives in the hands of the Romans and their allies.-E. Gibbon, Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 52.
A. D. $903-964$ - The reign of the conrteasans and their brood.-Interfereace of Otho the Great.-H1s revival of the Empire.-'During these changes [in the breaking up of the empire of Chariemagnc]. Rome became a sort of theocratic democracy, governed hy women and priests; a state of things which, In the harharism of the middie ages, was only possihie at Izome. Theodora, a woman of patricinn descent, equaily cclehrated for her benuty and her daring, ohtained great power In Rome, which she profonged hy the eharms of her two dnughters. The city of Saint Peter was ruled hy this trio of courtesans. The mother, Theodora, by her famlifiar commerce with several of the Roman harons, had oltaiaed possession of the castie of Saint Angeio, at the entrance of Rome, on onc of the prinelpai bridges over the Tiber; and she had made it an abode of picasure and a fortress, whence she corrupted and oppressed the Chureh. Her daughters, Marozia and Theodora, disposed of the pontificate hy thelr own arts, or through their lovers, and occasionaliy bestowed it on the lovers themselves. Sergius III., after a contested eiection and seven years' exile, was recalled to the see of Rome hy the lnterest of Marozia, hu whom he had had a son, who afterwards ber me Pope. The younger Theodora was no less annbitiousand influential than her sister. She inved a young cierk of the Roman Church, for whom she hnd first ohtained the hishopric of Boiogna, and then the archbishopric of Ravenna. Finding it lrksome to be separated from him hy a distance of 200 milies, she procured his nominntion to the papaey, in order to have him near her; and he was slected Pope in 912. under the title of John X. . . . After a pontitiente of fourteen years, John was displacet by the same means to which he owed his elevation." Marozia, who had married Guy, Duke of Tuscany, conspired with her husband against the Pone and he was put out of the way. That accompilshed, "Marozia allowed the efection of two Popes successively, whose pontificate was olscure and short; and then she ralsed to the papal see a natural son of hers, it is sald, hy Pope Sergius III., her former lover. This young man took the name of John XL., and Marozia, his mother, having soon after lost her husband, Guy, was sought in marriage hy Hugh, King of Itaiy, and his hrother by the mother's side. But it would appear that the perple of Rome were growing weary of the tyranny of this shameless and cruel woman." King llugh was driven from Rome by a revolt, in which another son of Marozin, named Aiberic, took the lend. "Aiberic, the leader of this popular rising, was prociaimed consul by the Romans, who still clung to the traditions of the repullic; he threw his mother. Marozia, lnto prison, and set a guari over his brother, Pope John; and thus, invested with the popular power, he prepared to defend the indepentence of Rome against the pretenslons of Hugh and the forees of Lomhardy. Aiberic, master of Rome under the titie of patrice and senator, excreised, during twenty-three years, ali the rights of sovereignty. The money was coincd with ins image, with two sceptres across; he made war and peace, appointed magiatrates and disposed of the election and of the power of the Popes, who, in that interval, fllled the See of Rome, John XI., Leo VII., Stephen IX., Martin III., and Agapetus II. The name of this subject and imprisonef papacy was none the ipss revered beyond the fimits of Rome Alberlc died ford of Rome, and had bequeathed his power to hls son Octarian, who, two years afterwarls, on the death of Agapetus II., caused himself, young as he was, to be named Pope hy those who already acknowledged hlm as patrice."-A. F. Viliemaln, lifo of Gregory VII., introil., period 6.-" He [Octavian] was elected Pope on the 23 d of Mareh, A. D. 9:56. IIls promotion was a disgraceful calamity. Ile hrought to the chalr of St. Peter only the vices and dissoiute morais of a young debauchee; and though Luitprand must have exaggerated the disorders of this Pope, yet there remains enongh of truth in the account to have brought down the scandal of the pontificate throug! succeedling ages, like a fond blasphemy, which makes angels weep and hell exult. Octavian assumiet the name of John XII. Thls first example of a chnnge of name on ascending the pontlicai chair has since passed into a custom with all the Sovereign Pontiffs." - Ahbe J, E. Darras, Fen. eral IIist. of the Catholic Chureh, period 4, ch. 7. - Finding it hard to defend his indeperdence against the king of Italy, Pope John XII. made the mistake, fatal to himself, of sollcitling help from the German king Otho the Great. Otho came, made limself master of Italy, revived the emnire of Chariemngnc, was crowned with the linjerial crown of Rome, hy the Pope [sce Roman Empire, The Holy; and Germany: A. D. 036-973], and then purged the Roman see by causing the bestial young pope who crowne: him to be deposed. John was suliseqnentiy reinstuted hy the Romans, hut died soon after,-A. i). 964 . H. H. Milman, Hist, of Latin Christianit!, hk. 5, ch. 12. - The state of things at Rome describerl in the above has been fitly styied by some writers "a pornocracy."
A. D. 962-1057,-Futile attempts of the German Emperors to reform the Papaiy. Chronic disorganization of the citp. -" $15.1,0: 1$ not been within the power of the Emperor Ott I. to establish a permanent re ormation in lione.

The prevlous scandalous seenes were re newed, and a slight amelioration of things under the Popes Gregory V. and Slivester II., whom Otto III. placed on the papai throne [A. D. $99^{7-}$ 1003], wns hut transitory. . . . For the third time it became necessary for an cmperor, in thls Instance Henry III., to constitute limself the preserver and purfier of the papacy, first at Sutri and afterwards at Rome. At that perimi the papai chair was occupied within twelve years liy five German popes [Clemeut II. to Victor II.-A. D. 1046-1057], since amongst the Roman clergy no itting caudidate could be found. These popes, with one exception, lied $a^{\text {a }}$ - ost 1 mm ediately, poisoned hy the unhealthy atmospherc of Rome; one only, Leo IX. under IIldehrand's guldance, feft any lasting trece of his pontificate, and faid the foundation of that Gregorian system which resulted in pnpai suprem. acy. $\qquad$ Rorne was assuming more and more the character of a sacerdotal city; the old wealthy patrician farnilics had either disappeared or migrated to Constautinopie; and as the se'at of government was either at Constantlnople or Ravenns, there was no ciass of state officials ia Rome. But the cicrgy had become rich upoa the revennes of the vast possessions of St. Peter.

Wi ithout manufactures, trade, or industry of their own, the people of Rome were induced to rely upon exactions levied upon the foreigner, and upon proits derived from ecclesiastlcal lnatitutions... Hence the unvarying sameness in the political history of Rome from the 5 th to the 10 th century."-J. I. von Dolilinger, Studies in European Mistory, ch. 8.-See Papact: A. D. 88i-1048.
A. D. 1077-1 $202 .-$ Dondtion of the Countess Matide to the Holy See. See Papacy: A. D. 1077-1102.
A. D. 108r-2084.-Surrender to Heary IV.Terrible Norman visltatlon, - Four years after his humilation of himself before the pope at Caaossa (see Canossa), Henry IV. ("King of the Romans" and claiming the imperial coronation, which the pope refused him), entered Itaiy with sa aimy to enforce his demands. Ife had recovered his authority ln Germany; the rival set up against him was slaln; northern Itaiy was strong in his support. For three successive rears IIenry marched his army to the wails of Rome and made attempts to enter, hy force, or iatrigue, or hy stress of blockade, and every rear, when the heats of summer came, he found himseif compelied to withdraw. At last, the Romans, who had stood firm by Gregory VII., tired of the slege, or the gold whlch purchased their delity (some say) gave out, and they opened their gates. Pope Gregory took refuge in hls impregaahie Castie of At. Angelo, and lienry, bringing with him the antl-pope whom hls partlsans had set up, was crowned by the fatter in the Church of St. Peter. But the coveted imperial crown was littie more thsn settied upon his head when news came of the rapid approach of Robert Guiscard, the Norman conqueror of southern Italy, with a large army, to defend the legitimste pope. Henry withdrew from Rome in haste and three days afterwards Robert Guiscard's army was under its walis. The Romans ferred to admit these terrible champlons of their pupe: but the vlgilance and vaior of tie Nor. maas surprised a gate, and the great city was ln their power. They made haste to conduct Greg. ory to his Lateran Palace and to recelve his biessing; then they "spread through the city, treatlug it with ali the cruelty of a captured town, pillaging, violating, murdering, wherever they net with opposition. The Romans had been surprisel. not subdued. For two days and aights they brooded over their vengeance; on the thlrid day they broke out ln generai insurrection. . . . The lomans fought at advantage, from thelr possession of the honses and their kaowledge of the ground. They were gsining the superiority; the Normans saw their perii. The remorseless Guiscard gave the word to tire the houses. . . . The distracted inhabitants dnshed widiy lato the streets, no ionger endeavouring to defend themseives, hut to save their families. They were hewn down by hundreds.

Nuns were deflied, matrons forced, the rings cut from their living fingers. Gregory ex. erted himself, not wlthout success, in saving the priacipai churches. It is probahie, however, that ueither Goth nor Vandal, neither Greek nor Gerinan, brought such desolation on the city as this capture by the Normans. From this period dites the desertion of the older part of the city, aal its gradual extenslon over the slte of the nodern city, the Campus Martius. . . . Many thousand Romans were sold publicly as slaves; many carried into the remotast parts of Calsbria ${ }^{23}$

When Guiscard witidrew his destroying army from the ruins of Rome, Gregory went with hlm and never returnel. He died not long after et Salerno.-H. H. Miiman, Hist. of Latin Christianity, bk. 7, ch. 8.

Arso ms: A. F. Villemain, Life of Siegory VII., bk. 9.-See, also, Germant: A. D. 9781122, and Papacy: A. D. 1056-1122.
A. D. I122-1250.-Conflict of the Popes with the Hohenstaufen Emperors. See PAPacy: A. D. 1122-1250; snd Germairy: A. D. 1138-1268.
A. D. $1145-\mathbf{1} 55$. - The Republic of Armold of Brescia.-Arnold of Brescia - Bo-csiled from his nstive city in Lomhardy - was a disclpie of Abelard, and not so much a religious as a politlcal reformer. "On ali the hlgh mysterions doctrines of the Church, the orthodoxy of Arnoid was unimpeachabie; his personai iffe was that of the sternest monk; hc had the most earnest sympathy wlth the popuiar rellgion. ... He would reduce the ciergy to their primitlve and apostolic poverty; contiscate ali their wealth. escheat ali thelr temporai power. . . . His Uto pla was a great Christian repubilic, exactly the reverse of that of Gregory VII." In 1145, Arnold was at Rome, where his doctrines had gone before him, and where the citizens had aiready risen in rebelilon against the rule of the popc. "Hls eioquence hrought over the larger part of the nobles to the popular side; even some of the clergy were infected hy his doctrines. The republic, under his influence, affected to resume the constitution of elder IRome.

The Capitol was rebulit and fortified; even the chureh of St. Peter was sacrilegiously turncd Into a castie. The Pstrician took possession of the Vatican, imposed taxes, and cxacted trihute by violence from the pligrims. IRome began again to speak of her soverelgnty of the worid." The repubilc nuaintaiucd itself until 1155, when a bolder pope - the Englisiman, Adirian or Hadrian IV. - had mounted th? chalr of St. Peter, and confronted Arnoid with untlinching hostility. The death of one of his Cardlnais, kilied in a street tumuit, gave the pope an opportunity to piace the whoie city unier an interdict. "Religion triumpled over liberty. The ciergy and the peo ple compelied the senate to yleid. Hadrian wouid admit of no iower terms than the ahrogation of the republican institutions; the banishment of Arnoid and his adierents. The repuhilc was at an end, Arnold an cxile: the Pope again master in Romc." A few months later, Arnoid of Brescis, a prisoner in the hands of Frederick Barbarossa, then coming to Rome for the imperial crown, was given up to the Pope and was executed in some summary way, the particuiars of which are in consicierabie dispute.-II. H. Milman, Hist. of Latin Christianity, bk. 8, ch. 8-7.

Also IN: J. Miley, Hist. of the Papal States, bk. 6.
A. D. 1155 .-Tumult at the coronation of Frederick Barbaroasa See Italy: A. D. 1154 1162.
A. D. I 67. - The taking of the city by Frederick Barbaroasa. See Italy: A. D. 1166-1167.
A. D. II98-1216. - The establishing of Papal Sovereignty in the States of the Church. See Papact: A. D. 1108-1216.
A. D. 1215.-The beginning In Italy of the strife of the Guelphs and Ghibellines. See Itali: A. D. 1210.

13-14th Centuries. - The turbuleace of the Romas nobles. - The atrife of the Colona and the Ursini.-"In the beginning of the 11th century Italy was exposed to the feudal tyranny, alite oppressive to the sovereign and the people. The rights of human nature were vindieated by her aumerous repuhlics, who soon extended their liberty and dominion from the city to the adjacent country. The sword of the nobles was broken; their slaves were enfranehised; their easties were demciished; they assumed the habits of society and oisedience. . But the feehle and disorleriy government of Rome was unequal to the task of curhing her rebelifons sons, who scorned the authority of the magistrate within and without the walls. It was no longer a civil eontention between the nobles and plebeians for the government of the siatc. The barons aseerted in arms their persu, independence: their paiaces and cast les were iortified against a siege; and their private quarreis were minintained by the numbers of their vassals and retainers. In origin and affection they wero aliens to their country; and a genuine Ifoman, conid such have been produced, might liave renounced these hanghty strangers, who disdained the appeliation of citizens, and prondiy styled themacives the princes of Rome. After a dark series of revoiutions, all records of pedigree were inst; the distinetion of surnames wus abolished; the blood of the nations was mingied in a thousand channeis; and the Goths and Lomhards, the Greeks and Franks, the Germans and Normans. had obtained the fairest possessions by royal bounty or the prerogative of vaiour.
. It is net my design io enumerate the Fivman families T ih have failed at different periods, or those which are continned in different degrees of spiendour to the present time. The old consular line of the "rangipani discover their name in the generons net of lreaking or dividing bread in a time of famine; and such benevoience is more truiy giorions than to have enclose, with their allies the Corsi, a spacious quarter of the city in the chains of their fortilications. The Savelil, as it shouid seem a Sahine race, have maintainerl their original dignity; the obsolete surname of the Capizucchi is inscribed on the eoins of the first senators; the Conti preserve the honour, without the estate, of the connts of Signis; and the Anuibuidi must have been very ignorant, or rery morlest, if they had not descended from the Carthaginian hero. But among, periaps above. the peers and princes of the city, I distinguish the rival honses of Colonna and Crsini [or Orsini]. . About the end of the thirteenth century the most powerful branel [of the Colonua] was composed of an unele and six hroticers, ail conspieuous in arms or in the honours of the ('hureh. Of these Peter was eieeted senutc of lome, inirolnced to the Capitol in a triumphunt car, and hiled in some vain acciamations with the title of Cæsar; while John and Stephen were deciared Marquis of Aneona and Count of Romagna by Nicholas IV., a patron so partiai to their family that he has been delineated In satirical portraits, imprisoned, as it were, in a hoilow piliar. After his decease their haughty behaviour provoked the displeasure of the most impiacahie of mankind. The two cardinals, the uncle and the nephew, denied the election of Boniface VIII. ; and the Coionna were oppressed for a moment by his temporal and spiritual arms,

He proclalmed a crusade against hin personal enemies; their estates were conflecated; their fortresses on either side of the Tiber were besieged by the troops of St. Peter and tiose of the rival nobles: and after the ruin of Paiestriaa, or Praeneste, their priacipal ceat, the grouad was marked with a ploughshere, the emhlem of perpetual detolation [see Papact: A. D. 1204 1848]. . Some estlmato may be formed of their wealth hy their losses, of their losses by the damages of 100,000 gold floring which were granterl them against the accomplices and heirs of the deceased pope. All the spiritual censures and disqualifications were abolished by his prudent successors; and the fortune of the house was more firmiy estahilshed by this transient fimrticane. $\qquad$ But the first of the family in fame and merit was the elder Stephen, whom Petrarch ioved and esteemed as a hero superior to his own times and not unworthy of ancient Rome. . . Tili the ruin of his declining age, the ancestors, the character, and the cillidiren of Stephen Colonna exaited his dignity in the lioman repuhlie and at the Court of Avignon. The Ursini migrated from Spoieto; the sons of Ursus, as they are styied In the twelfth century, from some emineat person who is cinly known as the fatior of their race. But they were soon distingnished among the nohies of Rome hy the number and hravery of their hinmen, the strength of their towers, the honours of the senate sad saered coliege, and the elevation of two jopes, Ceiestin III. and Nieholas III., of their Damu and lineage. The Colonna emhraced the name of Ghibellines and the party of the emplre; the U'rsini espoused the title of Guelpins and the cause of the Chureh. The eagie and the kers were dispiayed in their adverse hanners; and the two factions of Iraiy most furionsly ragred whea the origin and naturo of the dispute were ing since forgoten. After the retreat of tie popes to Avignon they disputed in arms the vacant repuhile; and the mischiefs 0 : diseonl were perpetinated by the wretehed compromise of electing each year two rival senators. By their private hostilitics the eity and eountry were desolated." -E. Gibbon, Decline and Fali of the Roman Empire, ch. 69.-" Had thinge been ieft to take their natural course, one of thes families, the Colonna, for instance, or the Orsini, would prolubly bave ended hy overeoming its tivals, and have establisined, as was the case in the republics of liomagna and Tuscany, a signoria,' or locai tyranny, like those whieh had once prevailed ia the cities of Greece. But the presence of we sacerdotal power, as it had hindered the growth of feudaism, so aiso it stood in the way of sucb a deveiopment as this, and in so far aggravated the confusion of the city."-J. Bryce, The Holy Roman Einpire, ch. 16.
A. D. 1300. - The Jubilee. Sec Parscy: A. I). $1294-1348$.
A. D. $1305-1377$. Withdrawal of the Papal court from Rome and settiement at Avignon, The "Babyionish Captivity." See Papacy: A. D. 1294-1348, to 1352-1878.
A. D. 13 r2.-Resistance to the entry and coronation of Henry VII. See Italy: A. D. 1810-1813.
A. D. 1328.-Imperial coronation of Louis IV of Savaria. Sct Italt: A. D. 1313-133).

A D. 1347-1354.- The revolution of Rienzi, the last Tribunc. - "The Iloly City had no sos.
ernment. She was no longer the Imperlal Rome, nor the Pontifical Rome. The Teutonic Ceeari had abandoned her. Tho Popes had aiso fied from the sacred hill nf the Vatican to the slimy Gailic city, Avignon.

The real mastery of the city were the princes or barons, who dweit in thelr fortifed cantles in the cnvirons, or their trong paiacew within. The principal among them were masters of different parts of the city. The ceiebrated old family of the Colonuas relgard, it may be sald, over the north of the city, tuwards the Quirinal. . . . The new family of the Orsini extended their sway along the Tiber from the Campo-dl-FYore, to the Church of St. Peter, comprising the castle of St. Angeio. The Saveili, less powerful, possessed a part if the Aventine, with the theatre of Marcelius, and the Conti, the huge tower which bears their asme, on Casar's Forum. Other member o: the nobility, in tioo country, were possessors of umil fortitied cities, or castles.

Home, sut jected to such a domlnation, had become almost deserted. The population of thes seven-hilled city had come down to abor: 80,000 souis. When the barons were at peacs with each other, which, however, was a rare occurrence, they combined to exerelse thelr tyranny over the citizens and the serfs, to rob and plunder the farmers, traveliers, and pilgrims. Petrarch wrote to the Pope at this perlod, that Rome had become the aboile of demons, the receptacle, of ail crimes, a heil for the livlng. . . . Iienzi was then 28 years old. . . . His function of notary (assessure) to the Roman trlbunais, would secul to infer that he was consldered a peacefni, rational citizen. It appears, however, that he brought in the exerelse of his offlelal duties, the excited imagination and generoslty of henrt which characterized hls nature. He gloried in beir * surnamed the Consul of orphans, of wido' and of the poor. His iove for the humblo mo. became blended with no intense hatrect for the great: one of his brothers was kilied aceldentnily by a iloman bnron, without lis being able to obtain any satisfaction. . . . Rieczi had aiways betn noted for hls literary and poetical taste; he was considered ns deeply versed in the knowledge of nntiquity, and as the most skilful In deciphering nad explainlng the ninmerous inscriptiums with which Rome nbounded. The lenst remalns of antiquity becnme for him in theme of declamntory addresses to the people, on the presunt state of home, on the inlquities thant surroundel him. Foilowed by groups that augmented daily, ind whlel istened to him with breathless irterest, he led them from ruin to ruin, to the Forum, to the tombs of the Christian martyrs, thus nssociating ever alory, and made the hearts of the people throb by his mystical elopucuce. . . No reanedy being brought to the popular grievances, an Insurrection broke out. The senator was expelled; thirteen good men (buonl nomini) were lnstailed in the Capitoi and invested with dictatorial powers. It was a Guelfic movement; Hienzi was mixed with it; hut wifhout any preenilent partlclpation. Thls new government resolved to send an embassy to the i'ope, at Arlgneri, and Rienzl furmed part of it. Such was the first real puhlic act in the life of Cola di Rienzi. The embassy was joined by Petrarch.

The Pope would not hear of leaving his new splendit palace, and the gentle population of Avignos, for the heap of ruins and the human turbulence of Rome." But "Cardinal Aymeric was named to reprement the Pope at Rome, as Legate, and a Colonna and an Oryinl lnvented with the renatorial dignity, in order to restore order in the Eternal City, in the name of the Pontif. Renzi indulged in the most extravagant exuitation. He wrote a hlg' Jenthuslastic address to the Roman peopie. But his iliusion was not of long duration. The new Legate only attended to the flling of the Papal Treasury. The nobility, protected by the new senators, contlaued their course of tyranny. Rlenzl protested warmly against such a course of Iniquities, in the councll. One day he spoke with a stiil grenter vehemenco of indlgnntlon, when one of the members of the council struck hlm in the face, others hissed out au jim sneeringly, calling him the Consui of orphans and wlows. From that day he never appeared at any of its meetings; his hatred had swolien, and must expiode. . . . He went stralght to the peopie (popolo minuto), and prepared a revolution. To render his exhortations to the pcople mone impressive, he made use of inrge aliegorical pictures, hastily drawn, and whlch form a curious testimony of hls mystlcal imagination, as weli as of his forensic eloquence. - FInally, he convoked the peopie at tho Capitol for the 20 th of May, 1847, the day of Pentecost, namely, under the invocatlon of the Holy Ghost. Klenzi had heard, with fervour, thirty minses during the preceding night. On that day he came out at 12 oclock armed, with his head uncovered, followed by 25 partisans; three unfuried standards were carried before aim, benring ailegorical pictures. This time his address was very brief merely stnting, thit from hls love for the Pope and the saivation of the people, he was ready to eneounter an. danger. He then read the lnws Whlch were ic insure tire happiness of Rome. They were, properly speaking, $n$ summary of reforms, destlned to relicve the peoplo from their sufferings, and intended to realize, whint he proclaimed, must become the good state [or Good Estate], Il buono stato.

By thls outline of a new coustitution, the people were invested with the property and government of the clty as weli as of $\mathcal{J}$ environs; the Pontifical See, bereft of the 1 . wer it had exercised during sev. eral centuries; and the nobility deprived of whnt they considered as their property, $\omega$ asslst the public poverty. The revoiutlon could not be more complete; and it is neediecs to add, that Rienzi was clamorousiy nplle uded, and lmmedinteiy invested with fuii po iers to reallze and organize the buono stato, of whlch he had given the programme. He decline I the title of Recto: and nreferrec the more popular nnme of Tribune. Nouhing was fixed as to the duration of this ex. traordinnry popular magistracy. The ncw government was installed at the Capitol, the Senators expelied, and the whoio revolution executed with such rapidity, that the new Tribune mlght weif be strengtroned In his belief that he was acting unuer the protection of the IIoly Ghost. He was cnreful. nevertheless, not to estrange the Pontifical authority, and requested that the apostolicai flcar should be offered to be adjoined to him, which the prelate accepted, however uncertaln and periloua the honour appcarad to be. During the popular enthusiasm, oid Stephen Colonna, with the wore iormidabic of the barons, who had been away, returned to Plome in haste;
he expressed publicly his scorn, and when the order car ${ }^{+\cdots-}$ from Rienai for him to quit the city. he repile hat he would soon come and throw that mas' " nut of one of the windows of the Capitol. sonnzl ordered the belis to be rung, the peopie instantiy assembied in arms, and that proudent of the barons was obilged to fly to Paiestrina. Tbe next day it was prociaimed that ali the nohie were to come, to swear feaity to the Roman people, and afterward witidraw to their castles, and protect the puhif roads. John, the son of oid Colonna, was the first who presented himseif at the Capitoi, but it was with the intention of braving and insuiting the Trib. une. When he beleid the popular masses in close array, he feit awcd, and took the oath to protect the people - protect the roads - succour the widows and orphans, and obey the summons of the Trihune. The Orsini, Saveili, Gaetani, and many others, came after him and foilowed his example. Rienzi, now sole master, without oppoacnts, gave a free course to the aifurements of authority. . . . The toils, taxes, and imposta which pressed upon the peopie were abclished hy Rienzi, in the first instance, and afterwards, the taxcs on the bridges, wine, and liread; lint he endeavoured to compensate suchan enomous defcit by augmenting the Lax on salt, which was not yet unpopuiar, besides an imposi on funded propert 7. He was thus making hasty, serious, even dangerous engagements with the peopic, which it might not be in his power to keep. For the present, caimness and security Ficre relgning in the city. ... The Tribune received the congratuiations of ail the ambassadors; the changes he had effected appenred miracuious.

He beiicved implicitiy that he was the founder of a new era. The homage profuseiy lavished upon him by ail the Itailan IRepuhiies, and even hy despotic sovereigus confrmed him in bis conviction. . . . Oue uobieman alone, the Prefect of Vico, secretly supportsilhy the agent of the Poutitical patrimony, refused to sulimit and to surreuder the tirce or four little cities in bis jurisdiction. Rienzi led rapidiy against hin an army of 8,000 men, and attacked the rebellious Prefect so suddeniy and skilf ulif, that the iatter surrendered unconditionaliy. This suecess inflamed the head and imagination of Ricnzi, and with it commenced the mystical cxtravaganees and follies whicb could not fail to cause his ruin." -Prof. Dc Vericour, Rienzi, the Last of the Trib. unes (Dublin C̈nio. Mag., 1860.-Eclectic Mag., Sept., 1800).-" Rienzi's head was turned hy his success. He assumed the pomp of a sovereigu. Ile distributed titles, surrounded himself with ccremonies, and multiplied feasts and processions.

He desired to be ennobled, and to have the titie of Knigint, as weli as Trihune. To cclelirate his iustaliation as Knight, a sples. did series of eeremonies was arranged," at the end of which he " made an address, in which he cited the Pope, and Lewis of Bavaria, and Charies of Bohemia, to give reasons for any claims they had on Rome; and pointing his sword to three points of the compass, he exciaimed, "This is mine, and this is mine, and this is mine.' . . . Foily had quite got the better of bim now, and bis vanity was leading him swiftly to ruin. . . Shortly afterwards he issued a prociamation that he had discovered a conspiracy against the people and himself, and declared that he would cut oil the hesde of all thos: concerned in it. The conapirators were aeized and hrought forward, and among them were meen the elifef of the princely families of Rome. Soiemn irners. ations were made for their execution, wher Licnzi, sudideniy and without reason, not wily parioned them ail, but conferred upin them eome of the most finportant charges and utlices of the state. No monar were these nohies sad princes free out of Rome than they lrogua seriousiy to conspire to overthrow Kivazi and his goverament. They asaemhied their matuless, and, ufter devastating the country, threuterapi to mareh upon Rome ltself. The Tribune, who was no soldicer, attempted to intimidute ints ene. mies by threats; hut finding that the petple grew ciamorous for action, he at last tork up arms, and made a show of advancing aguinst them. But after a few diays, during wificil le eliif noth. ing exeept to destroy stili more of the Cunipagna, he returned to lionie, clothed hinseif in the im. perini robes, and received a legate frum the Pope., . . Hlis power soon began tu (ramble a way under him; and when, shortly afterwards, he endeavoured to prevail upon the juraple to rise and drive ont the Connt of Minorblio, who had aet his a uthority at cirtlance, he fonad that his day was past.... He tiren orifered the trumpets of silver to sound, nni, ciotineti in ail his pomp, he marched throngit itume, accompanied by his smali band of soldiers, nuif on the 15th October, 1847, intrenclued himse if in the Castie St. Angelo. Stuif the influence of his usme and his power was so great, that it was hut till three days after that the nohles vemured turetarn to Rome, and then they founi thut ('olis's puwer had vanished. It faded away like a cirniral pagennt, as that gay procession entered the Cistle St. Angeio. There feremained natil the leginniug of March, and then theif, ant found his way to Civita Vecchin, where he stayed with a nephew of his for a sloupt thene. But his ncphew haring been arrested, he again returved to Rome secretiy, and was concenled in castie St. Augeio hy one of the Orsini who was friemify to himand his party.

Coln somn after thed to Napies, fearing lest he shouid be betrayed into the hanis of the Cariinais. Iho. .c now fell into a state of anarchy and confusfou cyen worse than when he assumed the reins of power. Revolutions occurred. Brigaudarm srill ed.

In 1353 Rienai returneti v. 4 bornos, the legate of the Pope. with enthusiasm, and again in. $^{-1}$ But he was emburrassed in all Cardinai, who sought only to whilc he inimseif exereised all titie of Senator of Rome was eo.. and the people forgave lina. . . . But liknai had iost the secret of his power in losing his enthusiasm. $\qquad$ At last. iu Octoher 13ij3, a sedition broke out, and the moh rusued to the Capitol with eries of 'Dcath to the traitor Rienzi!'. . He appeared on the butcouy clothed In bis armour as Knight, and. with the standard of the people in his land. demanded to be heard. But the populace refused to listen to him. At iast he deeided to fly. Tearing ofl his robes, he put on the miserabie dress of the porter, rusied down the flaming stairs and through the burning chambers, . . and at last reached the third floor. . . At this very monent his arm was seized, and a voice said, 'Where are you golig t' He sam that all was lost. But, at bay, n did nothing mean. Agala the heroic course, not unworthy of He threw oil hif diagulee, and disdalning all subterfuges, ali, 'I am the Tribunel' IIe was then led out through the donr. . . to the bave of the busait Hous, where he had marie his first great cail upon the people. Btapdiig there, undaunted by lts tumultuous crics, he stood for an hour with folded arms, and looked around upon the raging crowd. At last, pronting by a lull of allence, he lifted his volce to address them, when suddeniy an artisan st his side, fearing perhaps the result of hls eloquence, and perhaps prompted by revenge, plunged his pife in his breast, and he fell. The wild molv rushed upon his corpse." W. W. Story, Caoth St. dngelo, en. 4.

Also Ix: H. H. Milman, Hiot. of Latin Christianity, bk. 12, eh. 10-11 (v, 5).一E. Gibbon, Declind and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 70.
A. D. 1367-1369.-Temporary return of Urban V. from XVignon. See Papacy: A. D. 1332-1378.
A. D. 1377-1379, - Return of the Papal court.-Election of Urban VI. and the Great Schimm.-Battles in the clty.-Siege and par. tial destruction of Castle St. Angelo. See Papact: A. D. 1877-1417.
A. D. 1405-2484.-Rlalng in the city and fight of Pope Imanocent VII,-Sacklag of the Vatican. Surrender of the clty to Ladislas, ting of Naples.-Expulaion of the Neapoli:tans and their return. See Italy (Southers): A. D. 1386-1414.
A. D. 8447-1455. -The pontificate of Nicolas V.-Building of the Vatican Palace and founding of the Vatlcan Lihrary.-The Porcaro revolt. See ITaly: A. D. 1447-1480.
A. D. 1492-1503.-Under the Borgias. See Papact: A. D. 1471-1518.
A. D. 1494.-Charlea VIII. and the French army in the city. See Italy: A. D. $149+1496$.
A. D. 1526. - The city taken and the Vatican plundered hy the Colonnas and the Spaniards. See Italy: A. D. 1523-1527.
A. D. 1527. -The $c$ ? pture and the sacking of the city hy the army of Constable Bourbon. -Captivity of the Pope. See Italy: A. D. 1543-1527; 1527; and 1527-1520.
A. D. 1537-1563.-Inclinations towarda the Reformation, -Catholic reaction. See Pıpact: A. D. 1537-1563.
A. D. 1600-1656, - The great families and the Roman population.-'A numerous, powerful, and weaithy aristocracy surrounded the papal throne; the familics already establlshed imposed restraints on those that were but newly rising; from the seif-reliance and authoritative boldness of monarchy, the ecclesiastical sovereignty was pussing to the deliberation, sobriety, ani measured calmness of aristocratic govern. ment. . . There still flourished those old and long renowned Roman races, the Saveili, Conti, Orsini, Colonna, and Gaetani. . . . The Colonna and Orsinl made it their boast, that for centuries nu) prace had been conciuded between the princes of Christendom, In which they had not been inciuded by name. But however powerful these houses may have been in earlier times, they certainly owed their lmportance in those now before us to thelr connection with the Curia and the popes. ... Under Innocent $\mathbf{X}$., there existed forn considerahle time, as it were, two greal isctions, or associations of families. The Orainl, Cearini, Borgheal, Alduhrandini, Ludovish, and Glustiniani were with the Pamnill: while opposed to them, wan the house of Colonns and the larberini. ... In the middle of the weventeenth century there were computed to be Ifty noble families in Rome of three hundred years atanding, thlrty-five of two liundred, and sixteen of onc hundred ypars. None were per. mitted to claim a more ancicnt descent, or were generaily traced to an ohscure, or even a low origln. . . But by the alde of the old famillea there rose up various new ones. All the cardinala and prelates of the Curia procecled according to the pope's ramplc, and each in proportlon to hls meaus employed the surplis of his eccirsiastlcal revenue for the aggrandizenent of hls kindred, the foundation of a new famif. There were others which had attained to eminence by judlciai appolntments, and miany were indebted for their elevation to being enıployed as bankers in the aftairs of the Dataria. Fifteen families of Fiorence, eleven from Genon, aine Portuguese, and four French, are enumeruted as having risen to more or less consideration by these meaus, according to their good fortune or taients; some of them, whose reputation no ionger depended on the atrairs of the day, became nionarchs of gold; as for example, the Guicciardind and Doni, who connected themselves, under Erban VIII, with the Glustinani, Primi, and Pallavicini. But even, Without affairs of thls kind, families of consideratlon were constantly repairing to Rome, not oniy from Úrbino, Rieti, aui Bologna, but also from Parma and Florence. . . . Iteturns of the Roman population are stifi extant, and by a comparison of the different years, we find a most remurkahte result exhibited, as regards the manner in whleh that population was forined. Not that lts lacrease was upon the whole partleu. larly rapid, this we are nut anthorized to assert. In the year 1600 the Inhahitants were about 110.000; fifty-six years nfterwaris they were somewhat above 120,000 , an ad vance by no means extraordinary; but another circumstance here presents itself whirh deserves attention. At an cariler period, spuiation of IRome had heen constantly tluctua g. Under Panl IV. it had decrensed from 80 , 0 to 50,000 ; in a score or two of years it had gain alvanced to nore than 100,000 . And this resulted from the fact that the court was theu formed principaliy of unmarried men, who lud no permanent abode there. But, at the tlme we are consiliering, the popuiation became fixed into settlei familics. This began to be the case towards the end of the sixtecnth century, but took place more particulariy during the tirst half of the seventeenth.

After the return of the popes from Avignon, and on the close of the schism, the city, which hai seemed on the polnt of sinking Into a mere viliage, extended itself around the Curia. But it was not untll the papal families had risen to power and riches - until neither interual discor is nor externai encmies were nny longer to be feared, and the incomes drawn from the revenues of the chnirch or state secured a life of enjoyment without the neccssity for labour, that a numerous permanent popuiation nrose in the city."-L. Ranke, Hist. of the Popes, $\delta k$. 8, sect. 7 (c. i)
A. D. 1797-8798.-French intrigues and occnpation of the city.-Formation of the Roman Republic.- Expnlsion of the Pope. Sce France: A. D. 1797-1798 (Decemaer-Mat)

ROME, 178.

A. D. 1790 (November), -Brief expulalon of the Freach by the Neapolitans, See Fhance: A. D. $1708-1759$ (Acoumt-Aphil).
A. D. 2799. - Overtbrow of the Roman Re-public.- Axpulaion of the French, Bee France: A. D. 1709 (Avocht-DECEMHER).
A. D. ${ }^{100}$ - The Papal sovernmeat re-eptablished by Napoleon. see Frasce: A. I). 1sho-1801 (Jixic-Februart).
A. D. 1805-1809. - Napoleon's quarrel witb the Pope, - Captivlty of Plus Vil. - French occupation. - Declared to be a free and imperial city. See Papact: A. D. 1800-1814.
A. D. 1830.- The title of King of Rome given to Napuieoa's zon. See Papacr: A. D. 181) $4-1814$.
A. D. 1833. - Papal Concordat with Napoleon. See Papacr: A. D. $1808-1814$.
A. D. 8834 . - Occupation by Murat for the Allies.-Return of the Pope. Nee Italy: A. D. 1814: and Papact: A. D. 1808-1814.
A. D. 1885. - Restoratlon of the worke of art taken br Napoleon. See Fraxck: A. D. 1815 (JULr-Novem arr).

ROMERS-WAALE, Naval battle of (8574). See Netirithands: A. b). 15i2-15: i. ROMMANY. See Gypiris.
ROMULUS, Legeadary fouader of Rome. See Rome: B. C. 75s-510..... Romulus Aagustnlus, the last Roman Emperor of tbe old line, in the Weat, A. D. 475-476.
RONCAGLIA, The Diete ef, See Italy: A. D. $981-1039$.

RONCESVALLES, The ambuacade of. Bee Spain: A. D. Tiv.
ROOD, Holy (or Black Rood) of Scotiand. See Ilour Romd of scotland.
ROOF OF THE WORLD.-The Pamir high pinteau, which is a continuation of the Bolor range, is called by the natives "Bami. dunira." of the Roof of the Worid.-T. F. Gordon. The Koof of the World, eh. 9. See Paxir.
ROOSEBECK OR ROSEBECQUE, Battie of (8382). See Flanders: A. D. 1883.
ROOT AND BRANCH BILL, The. See Ekoland: A. D. 1641 (March-Mat).
RORKE'S DRIFT, Defense of (8879). See Socte Africa: A. D. 1877-1879.

ROSAS, OR ROSES: A. D. 1645-1652.Siege and capture by the Freach. - Recovery by the Spaniards. See Spain: A. D. $1644-$ 1646 : and 1648-1652.
A. D. 3808. - Slege and capture by the Freach. See Spain: A. D. 1808-1809 (Decex-ber-March).

ROSBACH, OR ROSSBACH, Battle of, See Germant: A. D. 1757 (Jťy - December). ROSECRANS, General W. S.: Command in Weat Virginia. See United Stateg or Am. A. D. 1861 (J̌Ly - November); and 1861 (Av-gebt-December: West Viroinia).....Command of the Army of the Mississippi. See United States of Ax.: A. D. 1862 (JeneOctober: Tennebser - Kentucky)......Battle of Stome River. See United States of Am.: A. D. 1862-1869 (December-Jancart: TenMesemin).... The Tullahoma campaiga. See Unitid States of Am.: A. D. 1863 (JuneJult: Trenegrer).

Chlekamauga-Cbattarooga campaiga.-Dispiacement. See Uni-

ROSICRUCIANS.

A. D. 183z-8832.-Repolt of the Pspal States, suppresced by Austrian troogs. Te Italit: A. II. 1430-1848.
A. D. 146-1849. - Liberal reforms of Pope Plus 1x.-Hie breach with tbe extromiats.Revolution, and aight of the Pope.--atervention of Prance, - Garibaldi's defease of the elty. Its capture and oceupation by the French.- Overthrow of the Roman Rapoilic. Ben Italt: A. D. 1848-1840.
A. D. $1859^{-1858 .-~ F i r s t ~ c o n s e q u e a c e s ~ o f ~}$ the Austro-ltallan war. - Absorption of ths Papal States in the new kingdom of Italy. Bee Italy: A. D. 1850-1861.
A. D. 1867 -1870. - Garlbaldl's attempt.His defeat at Meatana. I Itallan troops in the city. - The kelag of Italy takes posiession of hla capital. See Italy: A. D. 188 -1Ni!
A. D. 1869-1870. -The © camenical Council of the Vatican, Nee I'apact: A. 1). 1 1419-1Nio.
A. D. 1870-1371.-End of Papal Sovereigo17. - Occupatlon of the city as tbe capital of the kingdom of Italy. See Italy: A. D. 1*6:1870; and Papact: A. D. 1870.
ted Statee of Ay. : A. D. 1868 (Alncet-and (October - Noveyber: Texnegsee) Command in Miesovif. See Usited sratie OF AM.: A. D. 1864 (MARCH - October: AR. kansas-Miseotri).

ROSES, Wars of the. Bee Exoland: A. D. 1455-1471.

ROSETTA STONE.-"The Rosetta Stone Is a iragmeat of a stela discovered in the year 1799 by M. Boussard, a Freach artillery officer, while digging entrenchments round the town of that asme. It contains a copy of a decree made by the prieats of Egypt, asseinbled at Memphls. in honour of Ptolemy Epiphanes. This decree is engraved on the atone in three languages, or rather in three different writing. The flrst is the hieroglyphic, the graad old writing of the monumests; the second is the demotle character as used by the people: and the third is the Greek. But the text in Greek character is the translation of the two former. Up to this time, Lieroglyphs had remained an impenetrabie nisstery even for sclence. But a corner of the vell was about to bo lifted: in proceeding from tr know the unknown, the sense at all evr was at . th to be arrived at of that mysterion writing wileh had so long defled all the effo: of aclence. Many erudite schoiars tried to soive the mystery, and Young, among others, very nearly brought his researches to a satisfactory isaue. But it was Champoillun's happy lot to succeed in eatirely tearing away the veil. Such is the Rosetta Stone, whieh thus became the instrumeat of one of the greatest dincoveries which do honour to the nineteenth century."-A. Mari-ette-Bey, Monumento of Upper Egwpt (Itinéraire) p. 29.-See, also, Hieroglitpiics.

ROSICRUCIANS. - ILLUMINATI."About the year 1610, there pppeared anonymously a little book, which excited great senastion throughout Germany. It was entitled. The Discovery of the Brotherhood of the Honourable Orier of the Rosy Croas, and dedicated to all the scholars und magaates of Europe. It com. menced with an imaginary dialogue between the Seven Sages of Greece, and other worthles of antiquity, on the best method of accompiting t

ROSICRUCTANS.

ROTHIERE.

renesni reform in those evil tlmen. The sug. geation of senecn is aiopted, as most feablhle namily a mecret confederaey of wiwe philanthropista, who shall labour everywisere in unioon or this diesirahie end. The lxxik then announces the: setual existence of such an associntion. One Chrisilan Rowen Kreuz, whose travela in the East hall enriched him with the higheat treasuris of oceult iore, is sald to have communicatel his wishom, under a vow of secresy, to cigat diselplew, fur whom he erected a mysterious dw' Hing. place called The Temple of the Holy Ohost. It Ia atated further, that this iong hididen edifice had heela at iast discoveral, and within it the boxty of Rosen Kreuz, untouched by corruption, though, ce his death, 130 years hal passed away. The rviv: : discipies of the instlute call on the learnoll and devout, who desife to co-operate in theif projects of reform, to adivartise their names. They themselves Indilente nether name nor place of rendiczvous. They describe themseives ns true Protestants. They expressly assert that they contemplate no poltical movement in hostillity to the reigning powers. Their sole nim is the difminution of the fenrfill sum of human suffering, the spread of education, the advancement of learaing, science, univerani enilgititenment, and love. Traditions and manusertpts in their posscasion have given them the power of gold-making, with other potent scerets; hut by their wealth they met Hitte sture. They have secaus, in compartion with which the secret of the nichemist is n trifte. But all in subordinate, with them, to their one high purpose of beneftlog. their feliows both in body and woul. I could give you conclusive reasons, if it would not ilie you to hear them, for the beilef that this far famed book was written hy a joung Lutheran dirlne namidl Vaientine Andreal. IIe was one of the very few who understond the age, and had the heart to try and mend it. ... This An. dres writes the Liscovery of the Hosicruclian Browerhood, n jeu-d'esprlt with n serlous purpose, just as an experiment to see whether something cannot he done hy comhined eflort to remerly the defect and abuses - sociai, educatlonai, and religlous, so lamented hy all good men. He thougit there were many Andreas scattered throughout Europe - how powerful would be their united systematic action 1 Many a laugh, jou may be sure, he enjoyed in his parsonnge with his few Priends who were in the secret. when they found thelr fahle every. where swallowed greedily as unquestionahle fact. On ail sides they heard of search instituted to discover the Tempie of the IIoly Ghost. Printed ietters nppenred continualiy, addressed to the imaginary hrotherhood, giving generaily the intilisls of the candidate, where the invisinles might hear of him, stating his motives and qunil gcatons for entrance into their number, and sometimes furaishing samples of his cahhailstic acquirements. Stili, no answer. Not a trace of the Temple. Profound darkness and silence, sfter the brilitant flash which had nwakened so many hopes. Soon the mirth grew serious. Andres saw with concern thiat shrewd heads of the wrong soit began to scent his artilice, while quacks renped a rogua's harvest from lt. warm of impoators pretended to belong to the Fraternity, and found a readier rale than ever for the'- nostrunem Andrea dared not reveal himsel All he could do was to write book after book to expme the foliy of thome whom his lundiwork had so befooled, and atill to labour on, by penami speech, in earneat aidi of that reform Whels his unlappy stratagem had less helped than hindered. . . Confederncien of pretenders appenr to have leenn organized in various places: but Descurtes aays he wought in vain for a IRoaicruclan loige in Germany. The name lasticru. cinn became by degreen a generic teran, embrac. ing cvery species of occuit pretension, - arcana, eifxirs, the philosopher's stone, theurgic rituai, symboin, initlations. In qeneral uage the term is asmelated of or especialiy witis that branch of the secret art whach has to do with the ereatures of the elementa. And from this deposit of eurrent mystical tradition aprang, in great measure, the Freemasonry anul Romicrueianimm of the 1sth eentury, - that goliden age of secret socleties. Then fourished asmoclations of every Im nglahio kind, suited to every taste. . . . Some luiges beionged to Prutestant socleties, others were the implements of the Jesuits. Somewero aristocratic, like the Strict Observance; others democrutic, sceking in vain to escape an Argusered police. Some - iike the Illuminati under Weishaupt Knigge, and Von Zwackh, uumber. Ing (among many knaves) not a few names of rant, probity, and learnlag - were the profensed enemies of myuticism nad superstition. Others existed onls for the proftable juggle of incantations nad fort une-teiling.

The best perished nt the hands of the Jesuits, the worat at the hands of the police."-R. A. Vnughna, Hours weith the Myatice, bk. 8, ch. $\theta$ (c. 2).

Also in: F. C. Schionser, frist. of the 18 th Cen. tury, e. 4, pp. 183-504.-T. Frost, The Seeret $b. cieties of the Eurapean Reviution, v. 1, eh. 1.& P. Marram, Secret Fraternities of the Midello Ages, eh. 8.

POSSBACH, OR ROSBACH, Battie of. See Germanf: A. D. 1757 (JULT-DECEYBER). ROSSBRUNN, Battle of. See Grrmant: A. D. 1 het.

ROSTOCK.-A Baltic seaport of co.siderable inportance in the sliddie Iges; one the Hansa Towns.

ROSY CROSS, The Honorable Order of the. See Regicauchase.

ROTATION IN OFFICE. See CIvil

 Service Reform is the U. S.ROTENNU, RUTENNU, OR RE TENNU,The.-"The Syrian populations, who, to the north of the Cnnaanites [17th cer ry B. C.], occupied the provinces calied it the Bible by the general name of Aram, as far is the river Euphrates, belonged to the conferluration of the Rotennu, or Retennu, extending beyond the river and er .oracing ail Mesopotamia (Nuhs. raina).

The Rotennu had no weil-defined territory, nor even a decided unity of race. They aiready possessed powerful cittes, nuch as Nineveh and Babylon, but there were atill mant nomadic tribes within the illi-defined limits of the confederacy. Their name was taken from the city of Resen, apparentiy the most ancient, and orlginally the most important, city of Acsyria. The germ of the Rotennu confederntion was Pormed by the Semitic Asayro-Chaldænn people, who were not yet weided into a compact mon. archy."-F. Lenormant, Ma.iual of the Ancient Biet. of tho East, bk. 8, ch. 8.
ROTHIERE, Battle of La. See Farte: A. D. 1814 (Jasuary-IMECI).

BOTOMAOUS.

ROTOMAGUS. - Modern Houen. Bee Belo.

ROTTELN: Capture by Duke Berahard (163). Sep Grmantr: A. D. 1034-1039.

ROTTEN BOROUGHS. Re Emaland: A. D. 1890 ; and $1890-1832$.

ROTTWEIL: Slege and captare by the Freach (1643). See Gxmmant: A. D. 1040-1Get.
ROUEN: O? . icf the eliy and mame. See Belo.n.
A. D. 841 .- Firat destructive vialt of the Northmen. See Normans: A. D. 841.
A. D. 84s-Second capture by the North-mea. Bere PABrs: A. D. 845.
A. D. 870-911, - Rollo's settiemens. See Nommam: A. D. 876-011.
A. D. 141 -1isig. - Siege and capture by Heary V. of Eagiand. see Fhance: A. D. 1417-1422.
A. D. 1431, - The burning of the Mald of Orieans. Sce Fhaxce: A. D. 1429-1481.
A. D. 1449.-Recovery frome the Eagiah. See Francer: A. 1). 1431-1453.
A. D. $1502 .-$ Occupied by the Fiufuenote and retaken by the Catholics. Set France: A. D. 1 ( 1 (1)-1.563.
A. D. 1598-1592. - Siege by Heary IV., raised by the Duke of Parma. See Francr: A. D. 1501-1503.
A. D. 1870. - Taken by the Germans. See France: A. D. 1870-1871.

ROUK. Rec Cabuhive Ialasida.
ROUM, The Sultans of. Nec Tures (The ROUMANI, OR ROMUNI, The. See Dicla: 1. 1). 109-106.

roumania. Nee balkar and Daxumian Staten: 1-18til Centurig.

ROUMELIA, Eastera. Bee Terks: A. D. 1878 , Treatien of Sax Stepano and Madrid; and Bal.kay and Dancblay States: A. D. 18i8, to 1858-1886
ROUND TABLE, Kaights of the. See Ar. Thith. Kino.
ROUND TOWERS OF IRELAND.-''At variuus perionls between the sixth and twelfth centuries (some of them stlll later, hut the greater number, perhaps, In the ninth and tenth cen. turles), were erected those slnguiar huildings, the round towers, which have been so enveloped in mystery hy the arguments and conjectures of molern antiquaries. . . . The real uses of the Irish round towers, both as beifrles and as ecelcsiastical keeps or castles, have been satisfactorily estabifished by Dr. Petrie. In hls iniportant and erudite work on the ceclesinsticai architecture of Ireiand. . . These bulidings were well contrived to supply the clergy with a place of safety for themselves, the sacred vessels, and other objects of value, during the incursions of the Danes, and other foes; and the upper tort. in which there were four wladows, were iv well adapted for the ringing of the lars at bells then used in Ireland."-3. Haverty, IIIt, of Ireland, p. 115.

Also in: S. Bryant, Cellic Ireland, ch. 7.
ROUNDHEADS. - The Parliamentary or popular party in the great English civil war were called Roundheads because they generaliy wore thelr hair cut short, whlle the Cavaliern of the king's party behd $w$ the fachion of flowing locks.

nUDOLPH.

Acconding to the Parlinmentary clerk Ruph worth, the firat refion who applied the mame was ene Darld Ifyde, who thryatened a moh of eltizeas which surrounded the llousen of Parilament on the 87 ti of December, IC4I, erying "No Blub. ops," that be would "cut the throuts of tivme round headied doge."-D. Macoon, Jife of Jown Miltom, t. 2, bk. B, eh. 6 .

A Leo ix. Mrs. Ifutchineon, Memoiro of and Ilutchinaon (164\%),-Sec, also, Emoland: A. D. 1641 (Octohers).
ROUSSEAU, and educational reform. See Enucation, Modenn: Reforma, de.: A. D. 1769.

ROUSSILLON: A. D. 1639.-Situation of the county, Invacion by the French. See Bpaim: A. D. 1837-1t 40.
A. D. 1642, French conquest. See Spam: A. D. $1640-1642$.
A. D. 1659 - Ceded to France. See Francz: A. D. $1650-1681$.

ROUTIERS, The. See Whitr Hoons of France.
ROXOLANI, The.-A peopie, counted among the Sarmatians, who occupled anclently the region between the Don and the Daleper, -afterwards encronching on Dacian terrtory. They were among the barbarlans who troubied the fioman frontler eariest, and were promineat in the wars which diseurbed the reign of Marcus Aurellus Later, they disa ppearedi in the toond of Gothic and Ifunnish invasion. purtiy by ab. morption, and partiy by extermination.

ROYAL ARCANUM. Nee lislrance.
ROYAL ROAD OF ANCIENT PERSIA, The.- $\cdot$ Herodotus describes the great round of the Perslan period from Epheses by the Cififian Gates to Busa. It was called the 'Royal Rond,' because the service of the Oreat King passed along it; and It was, therefore, the direct path of communicatlon for ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ government business.

It la an accepted fact that in meveral other casen roads of the P'ersian Emplre were use I by the Asayrian kiaga long before the Persian time, and. in particular, that the eastern part of the - Royal Rond.' from Cilicia to Suss, is much older than the beginning of the Persian power. IIeroclotus represents it as known to Arist aras, and therefore, existing during the bith c"ntur: B. C., and the 'erslans had lind no time to organ'ise a great road like this betore 500; they ouif used the previnusiy existing road. Moreover, the Lydian kings seem to have pald some atte 1 tion to thels roads, and perhaps even to have mensured them, as we may gather from llerod. otus's account of the roads in the Lycus valiey, and of the boundary pitiar erected by Crosus at Kydrars."-W. M. Ramsay, Hist. Geog. of Avia Minor pt. 1, eh. 2.
ROYAL TOUCH, The. See Medical Science: 12-17Th Cestchies.
RUBICON, Cesar's panagge of the. See Roxe: B. C. 50-49.
RUCANAS, The. See Plert: The aborioinal inhabitants.

RUDOLPH, King of France, A. D. 023-036.
Rudoiph L., King of Germany - calied Emperof (the firat of the House of Hapaburg), 1273-1291..... Rudoiph II., Archduke of Aus tria and King of Hungery, 1576-1808: King of Bohemia and Germanic Emperor, 1570-101\%

BUGBY 8CRuOL

RUGEY 8CHOOL, See EDUCATION, Mod bpti Eunopan Countmika; Exmhand.
AUGII, The.-A coast tribe in anclent Ger. many who meem to have occupied the extreme sorth of Pomernaia and who probwhis gave thelr name to the Imle of Ilugen. - Chureh and Brod. ribb, firog. Siofes to the Giermany of Tirritus. - in the afth centurs, after ${ }^{\prime \prime}$ a breaking up of the emplre of Attlia, the Ilun. a people raflieal the Rughl, and supposed to be the same, were occuping a region embraced In motern Austria. There were many lRugians ammug the liarbarian suxliliarles in the Roman army, and mome of the snaailath place among the number Cilonecr, who gare the exthguiahing hiow to the empire. -T. Ilongkin, flaly and Iler Invoders, bk, 8, ch. 8.
RUK. Hee Camoline lalands.

RUESIA.

RULE OF ST. BENEDICT. Bec BEANDICTINE ORLERA

RUMP, The. Bee Enaland: A. D. 1648

RUNES.-The anclent Scandinavian aiphabet, belleved io have hern of Greek origin.

RUNJIT SINGH, OR RANJIT SINCH, The cong ests of. Aee Nikits.

RUNNYMEDE. Hee Einnland: A. D. 1215.
RUPERT'S LAND. Nee CAnAdA: 1. 1869-1878.
RUSCINO.-The ancient name of mode.a Roumelifion.
RUSSELL, Lord John, Ministrles of. Fce ENalAND: A. D. 140: 18.81-1852: 1685-18:
RUSSELL, Lord Wililam, Execution of, Bee Enaland: A. I). 16m1-18mis.

RUSSIA.

A. D. 862. - Scandiaavian Brin of the amme and the National Organization.-․ In the year Br9,' mays Neator (the ollest Rumalan chronkler, a monk of Klev, who wrote early in the 12th century] 'enme the Varangians from beyomil the sea and demanded tribute from the Chull and from the Mlavonlans, the Meria, tioo and tie Krivichi; but the Khazars unk prute of the Polians, the Severians and of tive biatichi.' Then he continues: 'In the year 863 they drove the Varagglans over the sea, and pall them no trihute, and they began to govern themseires, and there was no justice among them, aml clan rise agalnst clan, and there wns internal athfe between them, and tikey began to make war upon rach other. And they said to eaeh other: Let us seek for a prince who can reign over us and judge whint is right. And tifey went over the sea to the Vuranglans, to Izus, for to were these Varanglans calied: they wror calied lius as others are calied svie (Swedes). others Nurmane (Northmen, Norwegians), othery Anglianc (:inglish, or Argles of Aleswiek \%), others Gote (probahly the lnhahitants of the is. lavil of Gotihlandi). The Chand, the Slavonir ns, the Krivicl:! and the ald to lius: land is iarge and rich, hut - re is no order come ge and rule and relgn over us. And t brothers were chosen with thelr whole elan, they wok with them all the Rup, anither cmine. and the eldest. Rurik, settle 1 in Novger od, anil the seconil, Sineus, near lilelc, ro. nnd the third, Truvor, In Izborsk. Ac: © the Runslan gians; they nre $t$ veurodla:as or Varangian dencent; prevlous is. Novgorocilans were siavonians. But after cue lapse of two years Sineus sid his hruther Truvor ded and Rurik assumed the government and divlded the towns among his men, to one Polotsk, to another frostov, to suother Bielo-ozero.' Such Is Nestor's nalve deacription of the foundatlon of the Russian stnte. If it be read without prejudlce or sophlstical comment, It cannot be doubted that tbe wor' Varangians is used bere as a common term for the inhabitants of Scandlnavla, and that Ilus wras mesnt to be the name of a partlcular Scandlina. Fran tribe; this tribe, headed by Rurik and bls brochers, is sald to have crossed the sea and foysided a state whose cupital, for a time, was Norgorod, and this state was the nucleus of the present Rushlun em. that in the nime gu. were not of hin tan ted themselves fro.. go to Constantlinop...

Next, Nustor telis us Rurk's men, 'who 1 soll and Dr, separawith the intention to They went down the Dnleper; but when targ urrived at Klev, the capital of the Polians, who at tbat tine were tributary to the Khnzinra, they preferred to may there, and founded In that towh an Independent principallty. Twenty years after, in 882, tilis principilty was lacorporateil hy liurlk's sucees. mor, Oleg: hy a stratagem he made himself master of tie town and kliled Askold and Dir, and from tills thine Klev, 'the motier of all lius. sinn towne,' an it was called, remainell the eapl. tal of the Russlan state and tise centre of ibo Russlan name. From the time iusturicai ertics first beeame neguainted with Nestor's ncrount, that is to say from the beginning of the last century, untif ahout fffcen or twenty years ago [writen in 18:i], scareely any one ventured to doubt tio aceuracy of his statemeut. Plenty of evidence was even gradually produeed from other sources to corrolorate in the most striking manaicr the traditlon of the "usshan ehronieles."-V Thomsen, Relations bettreen Ancient Rusain and Smandinavia, leet. 1.

A1,no 19: E. Glbbon, Deeline and Full of the Romum Eimpire, ch. 5s.-18. G. Lathnm. The Ger. many if Tucitun: Epileqomema, sect. 18.
A. D. 865 . Firat atiack of the Zussians on Constantinople. See Constantinople: A. D. 865.
A. D. $865-900$, Early relations with the Byrantine Empire.-"The first Russian naval expedition agaiust Constantlnople in 865 woukd probubly have been followed hy a series of piundering excurslons, llke those carried on by the Dances null Normans on the coasts of Engiani and France, had not the Turklas tribe called the Patzinuks rendered themselves musters of the lower course of the Daleper, and become instruments in the hanils of the emperors to arrest the actlvity of the boid Varangtans. The northern rulers of Klef were the same rude warrlors tiat Infested England and France, hut the Russian people was then in a more advanced state of society than the mass of tic population in Britaln and Ganl. The majorty of the Russiuns were freemen; the majorty of the lnhahitants of Britaln and Gaul were serfs, The commerce of the Russians was already so extenslve as to influence the conduct of thelr government, and to modlfy the milltary ardour of thelr Varanglan masters. . . . After the defeat $\ln 865$, the Rus. slans lnduced thelr rulers to send envors to Constaut lnople to renew commerclal lutercourse, and Invite Chrlstlan misslonarles to vislt their country ; und no Inconslderable portlon of the people emhrnecel Christlanlty, though the Chiristlan rellglon continued long after hetter known to the Russian merchants thm to the Varanglan warriors. The commerclal relatlons of the liusslans whth Cherson aud Constantiuople were now cari.ed on dlrectly, and numbers of Rnsslan traders took up thelr resldence in these citics. The first commercial trenty between the luassians of Klef and the Byzantlic empire wis concluded la the retgu of Basll 1. The interconrse luerensed from that time. ${ }^{\text {- }}$ - Flulay, Ilint. of the Byzantine Empire, jrom ti0 to 10.) 10 . 2, ch. 2, sect. 1.
A. D. 907-1043. - Wars, commerce and church connection with the Byzantines. See CONFTANTINOPLE: A. D. ©0;-1043.

10th Century, - The introduction of Christimity. Sie Cinustianity: 10til Centeky.
A. D. 980-1054.-Family divisions and their consequence.-- Uniler Wharlmir 1. ( $980-1015$ ), and mider Jaroslaf 1. (1019-1054), the power of the grand-duchy of Kiew was respectable. But Juroslaf having divliced It het ween his sons condnced to cnfeeble it. In the 12 th century, the supremacy pussed from the grand-duchy of Kiew to the grand-duchy of WTadimir, withont extricailng Rassla from divislon and impotence. The law of primogeniture not exinting la lassla, where it was not introluced lnto the Czareau family until the 14 th century, the princlpalitles were Incessnatly divlded. "-S. Menzles, Mist. of E"urmpe, ch. 30.
A. D. 988.- Acquisition of Cherson. Sec Cherrus: A. D. 988.
A. D. 1054-1237.-The early Russian territory and its divisions.-" It must not be forgotten that the oldest Russia was formed mainly of lames which afterwards passed under the rule of l'oland and Lithaana. . . . The Duleper, from which lussin was afterwards cut otf, was the great central river of the eller linssia; of the Don und the Volga she held only the upper conrec. The northern frontier harely passed the greit lake's of ladoga and Onega, and the Gulf of Finland ltself. It seems uot to have reached what was to be the Gnlf of liga, hut some of the Russian princes held a certnin supremacy over the Fhmish and lettish tribes of that region. In the course of the 11th ceatury, the Russian state, llke that of Polund, was divided among princes of the relgnling family, acekuowledging the superiority of the great prince of Kief. In the next century the chlef power passed from Kief to the northern Vladmir on the Klasma. Thus the former Finnish land of Susial on the upper tributnries of the Volga became the cradle of the second lusslan power. Novgorod the Great, mear while, under elective prlnces, claimed, like lts nelghbour 1'skof to rank among commonwealths. Its dominion was spread far over the Flnnlsh tribes to the north and east; the Whlte sea, and, far more precious, the Finnlsh Gulf, had now a Rus. sian seaboard. It was out of Vladimlr and Novgorod that the lussia of the future was to grow, Meanwhlle a crowd of prinelpallties, Polotsk. Sinolensk, the Severian Novgorod, Tchernlgof, and others, arose on the Duna and Dnleper. Far to the east arose the common. wealth of Vlatka, and on the frontlers of loland and llungary arnse the princlpallty of llalicz or Gallcla, which afterwaris grew for a while lato a powerful klngdom. Deanwhlle in the lavis on the Enxlue the old enemles, Patzlums and Chazars, gave wuy to the Cumans, knowa la Russlan history as Polovial and Parthi. They spread themselves from the E'ral river to the borders of Servla and Danublan Bulgratia, cuttlag off Russla from the Casplan. In the next century Russlans and Cumans - mumatary alles - fell lefore the advance of the lonigols, commonly known in European history as Tartars. Known only as ravagers In the limils more to the west, over Russlu they become overlords for 250 years. All that escaped ahsorption hry the Inthmanim became tributary to the Mingol. Sill the relation was only a tributary one: lase sla was never Incorporated lin the Xompol domilnion, as Servla aud Bulgarla were ineorporated In the Ottoman dominion. But Kief was overtlırown; Vhadimir became depeudent: Nov. gorol remalned tine true representative of free Russia In the Battic lands."-E. A. Freeman, Hint. Geog. of Eurmpe, ch. 11, sict. 2.

A. D. 1235.-Formation of the grand-duchy of Lithuania, emhracing a large area of Russian territory. See Litiniania: A. 11. 193.
A. D. 1237-1239, - Mongol conquest. see Mongols: A. 1). 1220-1204.
A. D. 1237-1480.-Prosperity and greatness of Novgorod as a commercial republic.-Two centuries of Tartar domination.-Growing power of Lithuania and Poland.-Rise of the Duchy of Moscow, the nucleus of the future Russian Empire. - " Alone among the cition the aucient Novgorod has hoasted its eacmption from plumder [at the lands of the Tarnatr]. The great city, though fallen since the date of lurik from being the capital of au Empire, hal riwn to the dlgnity of a Republic. It had fond wealth in trale: and at successive epmelis had Introluced the riches of Constantinople to the North, the merehandise of the great Ilamse Som as to the south. It had protited by the example, and had emmated the prosperity of the rict citles of Germany. It had striven also thatain their freedon: Bud, though still continuing to acknowledge a vague allegiance to the lhasian l'rinces, it lam beroll able, by lis wealth :mat its remotenoss from control, to win or to asame privileges, mutil it had resembled liromen or Lubeck ln the soverclguty of its assemblices, aut had surpassed those citites by the uswamplan of a style decelaratory of lis indepembers It hoasted further of a prince, St. Alesamates dier. sky, to whoun a glorlous victory wer the - wedes had alrealy given a name, and whow vitues Were lureafter to enrol him among the sants: aud lt had a defence iu the marshes and forests which surrounded it and whleh had alrendy once deterred the lnvalers. But even the grent cits could not continue to defy the Tartar borie, and Its suhmission is at once the last and most concluslve proof of the supremincy of their power. Thenceforth the nation felt the bitterness of servlinte. The Tartars dhe not orculy the country they had conctuered; they retired to estublist their settlements upon the Volga, where ther became knowu as the Goldeu Horde: but thej exacted the tribute and the homage of the Russian Priuces. .. . Five centuries have been unahio to obliterate the traces whlch this period has imprinted upon the national eharacter. The Tarturs oppressed and extorted trihute from the Russian princes; the princes in their turn became the oppressors and extortioners of their people. Deceit and lying, the refuge of the weak, became habltuai. Increasing crime and increaslng punishments comhined to hrutailse the people. The rice of drunkenness was universal. Trade indeed was not extlnguished; and religion prospered so abundantiy that of ali the many monasteries of Russia there are but few that do not owe their origin to this time. Meanwhite the prorinces of the West were failing into the hands of other enemles. The Tartar wave had swept ss far as Poinnd, but it had then recolled, and had left the countrics westward of tine Dnieper to their fste. Ail links of tife connection that had bound these reglons to the Princes of Vladimlr, were now hroken. Vltepsk, Polotsk, Smoleask, and even provinees stili nearer Moscow, were graduaily absorhed hy the growing porver of Litinunnia, which, starting from narrow linits letween tine Dwina and the Nlemen, was destineri to overshadow Russia [see Litheavia: A. D. 1235]. The provinces of the South for a time maintalned a certain unity and lnclependeace under the name of the Duehy of Haliez or Klef; but these aiso, through ciaims of inieritance or feudal rlglit, beeame eventuaily merged ia the dominlons of their neighbours. Polani obtained Blaek Russia, whlch has never sluce returned to its carlier masters. Llthuanla acouired Volhyuia and Red Russia, and thus extemed lier whe empire from the Baltic as far as the Refi Seal. Then came the union of these powers by the acceptance $\ln 1383$ of the Grand Duke Jagellon as King of Polaud; ami ali hopes for the liussian prinees of recovering their possessions setmed lost. The aneient empire of liaros. iaf was thus ended; and its history is parteri from that of medirevai Russia by tie dark eur. tain of two eenturics in whleh the Russian peopie were a race but not a natlon. The obscure descembints of ikurik stili oceupied hls tirone, and rulel with some appearance of heredltary succession. They even chose this period of their reakaess to solace tiecir vanlty by the adoptlon of the style of Sovereigas of . Ii the Russlas. But they were the mere vassals of the Golien Horife. . . It was not untli the reign of Dimitry il., that any sign was shown of reviviug iudepenidue. Time, hy weakening the Tarturs, had then brouglit frcedom nearer to tive Russians. Thu Ilorde, whieh had been united unler Bati, Fheu it had tirst preeipitated itself upon Europe, had heenme divided by the ambltion of rebelifous Khans, who inad aspired to establisin their indepralent power: and the Russians had ut iength a prince who was ahie to proflt hy the weakness of his rnemles. Dimitry, who reigned from 1362 tu 1349 . Is eciehrated as having cheekei the divlsinus which civll strife and appanages ind infletcii upon his country, and as having also giorinusly repulsed the Llthuanians from the walls of Moscow, now rising to be his capital. Sut his greatest deed, and that by which he lives in the rensembrane of every Russian, is lais victury upon the Don, which gave to him thencefurth the name of Donskoi. The Tartars, indig. 1aut at his prominence, had united with the Lithuanlans. For the first time the Russians turned agalnst ticl tyrants, and found upon the fled of Khoullkof [1383] that their freedom was still possihie. They did not achieve indeed for many gears what they now began to hope. Their strength was crippled hy renewed attacks of Tartars from the south and of Lithuanians from the west; and they eonill not dare to brave the revengeful enmity of tite IIorde. For a hundred years they still paid tributc, nud the successors of Dinitiry stiii renewed their homage at the camp upon the Voiga. But progress gradu-1 aify was made. The Grand Priuee Vassili Dimitrieviteh [1380-1425] was ahie to extend hls rule over a territory that oceupiel the spaee of six or seveu of the modern governmeuts round Moscow; and though the country, under Vassili Vassilievitch [1425-1462], became enfeebled by a renewai of civii strife, the increasiug weakness of the Tartar power continued to prepare the way for the tinai lndependenee that was aceonpiished by the ciose of the 15th century. The rcign of Ivan III. became tite opeuiug of a new epoch in IRussian history: He restored his peopie, long sunk out of tie gaze of Europe, to a place among its nations, and recallexi them in sone degree from the barbarism of the East to the Intereourse and elviiization of the West. The Ilussia of old time was now no more; but the Grami Irince, or Duke of Moscow, as he was ealied, was still the heir of lZurik and of Yaroslaf, and in tie growth of his Duchy their Empire reappeared. . . . Without the fame of a warrior, but with tis wislom of a statesman, witin a strong hand aud ly the help of a ioug reigu, he built up ont of thic frigments that surrounied him an Empire that execeded vastiy that of his hmmediate jredeeessor. . . The full of the repubiic of Novgorol [ $14 i 8$ ] and the tinal extinetiou of the Goiden IIorile, urt the eventa whiei are most prominent. Riches had been the bane of the great city. They ham fostered insolenee, but they hat given is listaste for war. The eitizens had often releciledi they hat accepted the protection of Lithmain, and had inter meditated, und eren for a time aceompiished, a union with Poiand. But they hai inad no streagtin to defoui the iilerty to which they had aspired.

When Ivau advanced, deternined, as ine said, to reign at lovgorod as ine relgnell at Soscow, they were unalie to repei or to endure a slege, and they surreniered themselves into hla hand. Unce he hai pardoned them; now their iudependence was taken from theus. Their assembly was dissolvei; their great beil, the emeblem of their freedon, was carried to Moscow. The extinction of the Goluen Horde was due to time and policy, rather than to any deeds whieh have brought glory to the Russiun peopie [seo Mosgots: A. D. 1238-1391]. . . . Reieased in this mauner from the nost diangerous both of domestic und of foreign foes tife porer of Ivan ruplely advanced. The hroad provlnce of Perm, that liad begun to boast a haif accomplisined in. depenilence, fiad beeu early forced to acknowledge her sulbjection. Tie Khan of Kazan was now made tributary; and the rule of Ivau was extended front tie Ourai to the Neva. ProvInces, as important, thougi less extensive, were acquired in the south. The lusshan priaces and cities that had preserved their indepeudeuce were ali, with the one exception of Riazan, compelled to acknowledge the sovereignty of Moscow. ...

RUS8IA, 1287-1480.

Tartar domination. Iven the Terribla.

RUSSIA, 1539-1682.

The Aulatic tyranny of which they were the dele
At the same time the Lithuanians were thrust back. Thel greatnets had gone by; and the serritories of Tula, Kalouga, and Orel. now ceasing to own allegiance to a declining power, were lncorporated with the rising Empire. That Em. plre had already reached the Doleper, and was already scheming to recover the anclent capital of its princes."-C. F. Johnstone, Historical Ab. stracts, ch. 6.
Also in: A. Rambaud, Hiet, of Ruasia, ch. 8-14 (e. 1).
isth Century. - Effects of the Tartar domination. - Sources of autocracy.- "The in rasion of the Mongols, in the beginning of the 13th century, snapped the thread of IRussia's destinies. . Nature, after preparing the invasion, herwelf marked its bonnds. The Tatars, now masters of the steppes in the southeast, which felt to them very much iike home. grew ill at case as soon as they began to lose themselves in the forests of the north. They did not settle there. These regions were to European to suit their half-nomadic habits, and they cared more for tribute-payers than for subjects. So the - Iniazes' received their principalities back from the hands of the Mongols - as fiefs. They had to submit to the presence near their person of a sort of Tutar 'residents,'-the 'baskaks,' whose duty it was to take the censis and to coileet the taxes. They were compelied to take the long, long journey to the 'Horde,' often eneamped in the heart of Asia, in order to receive their investiture from thie suecessors of Djinghiz, and ended by becoming the vassals of a vassai of the 'Great-Khan.' At this price IRussia retained her rellgion, her dynasties, and - thanks to her clergy and her princes-her nationality. Never yet was nation put through such a school of pa. tience and abject snbmission. . . . Under this humiliating and impoverishing domination the germs of culture laid in the oid principalities withered up. . . . The Tatar domination developel in the Russians fanits nnd facuities of which their intercourse with Brzance had already brought them the germs, and which, tempered by time, have since contributed to develop their diplonatic gifta. $\qquad$ The oppression by man, added to the oppression by the climate, deepened certain traits ulready sketched in by muture in the Great-Russian's soul. Nature inclined him to suhnission, to enilurance, to resignation; history contirnel these liclinations. Hardened by nature, he was steeled by history. One of the clief effeets of the Tatar domination and ali that makes up linssian history, is the importance given to the nationai worship. . . . The domination of an enemy who was a stranger to Christianity fortifed thie sufferers' attaelimeut to their worship. Leeligion and native iand were merged into one faith, tomk the place of nationality and kept it alive. It was then that the coneeption sprang up which still links the quaity of Inussian to the profession of Greet orthodoxy, and makes of the latter the chief pledige of patriotism. Upon Kussia's political sovereignty the Tatar domination had two parallel effeets: it hastened national unity and it atrengthened autocracy. The country which, under the appanage system, was faliing to pieces, was bound together by foreign oppression as by a chain of iron. Hav. Ing constituted himself suzerain of the 'GrandKniazce,' whom he appointed and dethroned at will, the Khan conferred on them his authority.
gates empowered them to govern tyrannically Their deapotism over the Rumans was derived from their servitude under the Tatars.
Every germ of free goverament, whether sristo. cratic or democratic, was stified. Nothing remained but one power, the 'Velikl-K niaz, the autocrat, - and such now, a.ter more 1 .ad 500 years, still is the basis of the state."-A. LetorBeaulieu, The Empire of the Toars and the Rus. siana, pt. 1, bk. 4, ch. 8.
A. D. $1533-1682 .-$ From Ivan the Terrible to Peter the Great. - The Poies at Moscow.Origin of the dynasty of the Romanoffs."A part from the striking and appaliing elaracter of Ivan himself, whom Mickiewicz, the Polish poet, calls, in his lectures on the Slavonias, 'the noost fnished tyrant known in inistory frivolous and debauched like Nero, stupid sad ferocious like Caliguia, fuli of dissimulation like Tiberius or Louls XI.,' the reign of Ivsa the Terribie is interesting as marking the beginaing of the intercourse between Russia and Western Europe, and especialiy between Russia and Engiand. The natural approach to Russia from the west was, of course, through Poland; but the Poles impeded systematically, and for political reasons, the lntroduction of arts and artificers into Russia, and Sigismund wrote a ietter to Eilizabeth, waroing her against the Muscorite power as a danger to civilization, oniy not formidabie for the moment because it was still semibarharous. Ivan the Terrible was the third of the independent Tsars; and already uuler Ivan sometimes called the 'Great'- to whom induti belongs the honour of having finally lilerated Russia from the Tartar yoke-endeavours had been made to enter into relations with various European nations. Foreigners, too, were eacouraged to visit Russia and settie there. The movement of foreigners townrds IRussia increased with each succeeling reign; and begiuning with the first Tsar of Muscovy it became munh more marked under the third, that Iran the Terrille, under whose reign the mariners in the service of the English company of 'merchant adventurers' entered the Winte Sea, and, in their own langhage, 'discovered' Russia. Russia was. iadeed, until that time, so far as Western Eumpe was concerned, an unknown iand, eut off frum Western civilization for poitical and warliko reasons by the Poles, and for religious reasons by the Cntholic Church. On the 1sth of March, 1584, Ivan wns sitting half dressel, after his bath, "solacing himself and making merir with pleasant songs, as he used to doe.' lle cuilecl for his chess-board, had placed the men, and was jnst setting up the king. when he fell back in $s$ swoon and died., . The death of Iram was followed by strong disilike against the English at Moscow ; and the English diplomatist ami natchmaker, sir Jerome Bowes, after being irmically informed that 'the English king was dead.' found himself seized and thrown into prison. ile was liberated through the representations of another envoy, who pointed out that it woule le inprudent to excite Elizabeth's wrath; and though for a time intercourse between Lussia and Wistern Europe was threatened, through the national hatred of foreigners as manifested by the councilinrs of the Tsar, yet when the wrak minded Feodor fell beneath the influence of his brother-in-law Boris Godounoff, the previous poliey, soon to become traditlonal, of cultivating relatlons with Western Europe, was renumed. . . Nineteen yesrs have yet to pass before the election of the orst of the Romanofls to the throne; for strange as it may seem, the first member of the dynasty of the Romanofis was chosen and appolnted to the Imperial rule hy an assemhly representing the various estates. Meanwhile the onier of succesaion had been broken. Several pretenders to the throne had appeared, one of whom, Demetrius, distinctiveiy known as the 'Imposter,' attained for a time supreme power. Demetrius, married to a Polish lady, Marina Mniszek, was alded hy her powerfui family to mslatain his positlon in Moscow; for the Mniszels assemhied and sent to the Russian capitai a body of 4,000 men. Then Ladislas [son of the king] of Poiand lnterfered, and after a time [1810] Soscow fell beneath the power of the Poles [see Poland: A. D. 1590-1648]. Soon, however, the natlonal feeling of Russia was aroused A butcher, or cattie deaier of Nijni Novgorod, named Minin, whose patriotism has made him one of the most popular tigures ln Russian history, got together the nucieus of a national army, and called upon the patriotic noblemsn, Prince Pojarskl, to place himself at its head. Pojarski and Minin marehed together to Moscow, and their success in ciearing the capital of the foreign invaders [1612] is commemorated by a group of statuary which stands in the principsl square of Moscow. . . Among the tomhs of the metropolitans huried in ... [the cathedral of the Assumption at Moscow] are those of Philaret and IIermogenes, who were thrown into prison hy the Poles for refusing to consent to the accession of Ladisias, the Polish prince, to the Bussinn throne. Hermogenes died soon after his arrest. Philaret, at the expulsion of the Poies, was carried away captive by them in their retreat from Moscow (1612), and was kept nine yesrs $n$ prisouer in Poiand. On his return to Russia, he found his son, Michael Feodorovitch, elected to the throne. The bellef, then, of the Russhan peopie in Michaei's patriotism, seems to have been founded on a knowierige of the patriotism of his father. The surname of the metropolitan who had defied the Polish power and had suffered uine years' imprisonment in Poiand was Romanoff; Philaret was the name he had adopted on becoming a monk. His haptismal name was Feodor, and hence the patronymic Feodorovitch stached to the name of Miehnel, the first of the Romanoffs. There ls ittle to say about the reign of Michael Feodorovitch, the eircumstances having once been set forth under which he was elected to the vacant throne; and hls son and auccessor, Alexis Michailovitch, is chietly remembered as father of Peter the Great." -H. $. Edwaris, The Romanoffs, ch. 1-2.
AL.w: is: W K. Keily, Ifist, of Russia, ch. 1319 (c. 1)-P. Mérimée, Demetrius the Impoator.
A. D. 1547.-Assumption of the titie, Czar, or Tzar, by the Grand Prince of Moscow.-' In January 1547, Ivan [IV., known as Ivan the Terrible] ordered the Metropolitan Macarfus to proceed with his coronation. He assumed at the ceremony not only the titie of Grand Prince, but that of Tzar. The first tltic no longer answered to the new power of the sovereign of Hoscow, who cuunted among his domestics, princes and even Grand Princes. The name of Tzar is that which the books in the Slavonic language, ordinarily read by Ivan, give to the kinga of Judea, Asyria, Egypt, Babylon, and to the emperors of Rome sud Constantinople. Now, was not Ivan ln some sort the helr of the Tzar Nebuchadnezzar, the Tzar Pharnoh, the Tzar Ahasuerus, and the Tzar David, since Russia was the slxth empire spoken of in the Apocaiypse ? Through his grandmother Sophia Paleologus, he was connected wlth the family of the Tzars of Byzantlum; through his ancestor Vlisifmir Monomachus, he belonged to the Porphyro. geniti; and through Constantinc the Great, to Casar. . We may imagine what prestige was added to the dignity of the lRussian soverefgn by this dazziling titie, borrowed from Bihiical antiquity, from Roman majesty, from the orthodox sovereigns of Byzantium. "- A. Rambaud. Hiot. of Russia, v. 1, ch. 15.-" This title [Czar] is not a corruptlon of the word 'Cresar,' as many have supposed [see Casar. The title], but is an old Oriental word which the Russians acquired through the Slavonic transiation of the Bihie, and which they bestowed at first on the Greek emperors, and afterwards on the Tartar Khans. In Persia it signifles throne, supreme anthority; and we fad it ln the termination of the nnmes of the kings of Assyria and Bahylon, such as Phalassar, Nabonasser, Sxc. - Karamsin." -W. K. Keily, IIist. of Russia, v. 1, p. 125, fontnote. -"Von Irammer, in his inst note to hia 31st book, says, 'The title Czar or Tzar is nn anclent title of Asiatic sovereigns. We find an instance of it in the titie 'The Schar, ' of the sov. ereign of Gurdistan; and in that of Tzarina of the Scythians.'"-Sir E. S. Creasy, Hist. of the Ottomin Turks, p. 213, foot-note.
A. D. $1569-1571,-$ First coilision with the Turks. - Their repulse from Astrakhan. Moscow stormed and sacked hy the Crim Tartars.-Peace with the Porte.- At the time (1566) of the aeecssion of Selini II. to the Ottoman throne, the Russians "hati been involved in fierce and frcquent wars with the Sultan's vassais, the Crim Tartars; hut the Porte had taken no part in these contests. But the bold genius of the Vizier Sokolli now attempted the reaisation of a project, which, if suecessful, would have harred the southern progress of Russia, hy tirmly planting the Ottoman power on the hanks of the Don and the Volga, aud nlong the shores of the Caspian Sea. . . Sokoll proposed to unite the rivers Don and Volga hy a canal, and then send a Turkish armament up the sea of Azoph and the Don, thence across hy the iutended ehannel to the Volga, and then down the latter river into the Caspian; from the southern shores of which sea the Ottomans mlght strike at Tahriz and the heart of the Persian power.

Azoph nlready beionged to the Turks, hut in order to realise the great project entertained it was necessary to occupy Astrakhan aiso. Accordingiy, 3,000 Janissaries and 20,000 horse were sent [1569] to besiege Astrakhsn, and a cooperative force of 80,000 Tartars was ordered to join them, and to aid in making the canal. 5,000 Janissaries and 8,000 pioneers were at the same time sent to Azoph to commence and stcure the grent work at its western extremity. But the generais of Ivan the Terrihle did their duty to thelr atern mater ahiy in this emergenc:. The Kussian garrison of Astrakhan sailied on lts besiegers, and repuised them with considerahle loss. And a Rusaian army, 15,000 strong, under Prince Bereblnofl, came auddenly on the workmen and Janissaries near Azoph, and put them to head. long fight. It was upon this occasion that the firat trophies won from the Turks came into Russian hands. An army of Tartars, which marchel to succour the Turki, was also entirely defeated by Ivan's forces; and the Ottomans, dispirited by their losees and reverses, withdrew altogether from the enterprise.

Russia was yet far too weak to enter on a war of retailation with the Turks. She had subdued the Tartar Khanates of Kasan and Astrakhan; but their kinsmen of the Crimea were still formidabie enemies to the Russians, even without Turkish aid. It was oniy two years after the Ottoman expedition to the Don and Volga that the Khan of the Crimea made a victorious inroad into Russia, took Moscow by storm, and sacked the city ( 1571 ). The Czar Ivan had, in 1570, sent an ambassador, named Nossoiltof, to Constantinople, to complain of the Turkish attack on Astrakhan, and to propose that there should be peace, friendship, and alilance between the two empires.

The Russian ambassador was favourably received at the Sublime Porte, and no further hostilities between the Turks and Russians took place for nearly a century."-Sir E. S. Creasy, Hist. of the Ottoman Turks, ch. 11.
A. D. 1577-1580.-Conquest: by the Poies. See Poland: A. D. $1574-1590$.
A. D. ${ }^{1578-1579 .-Y e r m a c ' s ~ c o n q u e s t ~ o f ~ S i-~}$ beria. See Siberia.
A. D. 1613 -1617. - War with Sweden. Cession of territory, including' the site of St. Petersburg. See Scandinavian States (SWEDEN): A. D. 161i-i 629 .
A. D. $1052 .-$ Allegiance of the Cossacks of the Ukraine transferred from the King of Poiand to the Czar. See Poland: A. D. 1648 1654
A. D. 1655-1659.-The great schism, known as the Rascoi.- '. In the reign of Aiexis took pince the great revision of the Blule, corried out by the energy of Nicon, the Patriarch. who, findlug that the church-books were fuli of ridicuious blunders caused by ignorant copyists, procured a quantity of the best Greek manuscripts from Mount Athos, and other piaces. In 1655, and the following year, he summoned two councilis of the church, at which the newly transiated service-books were promulgated and the old ones calied in In consequence of this change, a great schism took place in the Russion Church, a number of people attaching a superstitious veneration to the old books, errors and all. Thus Was formed the iarge sect of the Staro-obriadtsi or izaskolniks, stiil existing in Russia, who have suffered great persecutions at many periods of her history."-W. R. Morfil, The Story of Russia, eh. 6.-"The most important innovation, which afterwards became the symbol and the war-cry of the religious rebelition, referred to the position of the fingers in making the sign of the cross. The Russians of Nicon's time when they crossed themseives heid two Angers together, while the Oriental churches and the Greeks enjoined their adherents to cross themselves with three ingers united into one point. The twofingered cross of the Muscovites was used in the Orlent only for giving the priestiy benediction.

Patriarch Nicon was anxious to return to an. cient traditions. Reserving the two Angered cross for priently benedictions only, he re-entablished
the three.fingered Greek cross, or, as his oppor nents called lt, 'the pinch-of snuff cross,' for the private act of devotion. Then, too, in curtaia cases, for instance in stamping the round wafers. he introduced the use of the equilateral. fuarsided cross. The Russians celebrated the mass on seven wafers, while the Greeks anif Oricutals used only five. In the processions of the Cluurch the Russians were in the hablt of first turuing their steps westward-going with tile smin; tife Greeks marched eastward - against the sun. In all these points Patriarch Nicon conformed to the traditions of the Greek motirer-church. la conformity with this rule, moreover, he directed that the halielujahs should be 'trebled,' "r suag thrice, as with the Greeks, the Russlans having up till then oniy 'doubled' it-singiug, iaxtead of the third hallelujah, its Russian equivulent. 'God be praised.' Finaily, or we should rather say abore all, Nicon introduced a fresh spelling of the name of Jesus. The fact is that, prolnably in consequence of the Russian habit of nhbreviating some of the commonest scripturai names, the second letter in the name Jesus hiall beea droppeu altogether; it was simpiy spelt Isus, without any sign of abineviation. Patriardi Nicon corrected this orthographicni etror, repiacing the missing letter. Was this all? Yes, this was ail. As far as doctrinal matters were concerned, nothing nore serious was at stake in the great religious schism of the 17 th century, known by the name of the Rascol. And yet it was for these tritles-a letter less in a name, a Anger more in a cross, the doubling instrad of the trebiling of a word-that thousanis of pespie, both men and women, encounterei denth on the scaffoid or at the stake. It was fur these things that other scores of thonsands unierweat the horribie tortures of tlie knout, the strappalo. the rack, or had tieir bodies mutilated. their tongues, cut, their hands chopped off."- strpniak, The Russian Peasantry (Am. ed.). Ip. $\because 3$ i239.
A. D. 1686-1606.-War of the Hoiy League against the Turks.- Capture of Azov.- First foothoid on the Biack Sea acquired. Siee Teres: A. 1). $1684-1096$
A. D. 1689.-Accession of Peter the Great.
A. D. $16 \mathrm{~g},-04 .-$ Peter the Great: his travels in pursuit of knowiedge; his apprenticeship to the useful arts ; his civiiizing work in Mascovy. -" Many princes before [Peter the Girat] had renonnced crowns, wearict out with the intolerabic load of public affinirs; but mo man lad ever divested himsedf of the roval claranter, in orifer to learn the art of govering hetter: this yas a stretch of heroism which was reatreil for Peter the Great alone. He left Russia iu [16:5], having relened as yet but [a few] years, and went to 1 loliand disguisel untirt a crimmon bame: as if he had been a meetial servialt of that vime Lefort. Whom he sent in quality of an: trinculorextruordinary to the states-General. A, man as he arrived at Amsterian, he eur Aled his name among the shipwrights of the a!miralty of the Indies, and wrought in the yard iike the other mecianics. At his leisure hours he learned such parts of the mathematics as are usefui to a prince, - fortification, nuvigation, and the art of drawing plans. He went into the workmen's shops. and examitued ail thelr manutactures. nothing could escape his observation. From thence he passed over into England, where har-

Ing perfected himseli in the art of ehip-bullding, he returned to Hoilnnd, carefuily observing every thing that might turn to the advantage of hls couatry. At last, after two years of travel and labor, to which no man but himself would have wilingly submitted, he again made hls appearsace In Rassla, with all the arts of Europe in his train. Artists of every kind toliowed him in abundance. Then were seen, for the first time, large Ruscian shlps in the Baitic, and on the Biack Sea und the ocean. Stately buiidlags, of a regular arehitecture, were raised among the Russlan huts. He founded colleges, academles, printing-honses, and ilbraries. The clties were brought under : reguiar police. The dreis and customs of the peopie were graduaily changed, though not without some difticulty: and the Muscovites iearned by degrees the triue nature of a soclal state. Even their superstitious rites were abolished; the Algnity of the patriarch Fas suppressed ; aud the czar dechreil himeelî the head of the Church. This last enterprlse, which would have cost a prince less absolnte than Peter botih his throne and his life, succeeded gimost without opposition, and lnsured to hlm the surcess of ali hls other innovations. After havi. humbied an ignorant and a barbarous clergy, he ventured to make a trial of lnstructlag them, though, by that men"s, he ran the risk of renhering them formlda?

The czar aot oniy subjeeted the Church , the State, after the example of the Turkish empeross, but, what was a more ms rly stroke of policy, he dissoired a mititia of much the same nature with that of the janizarfes: and what the suituns had attempted iu valn, he aecomplished in a short tiae: he dishanded the Russlan janizaries, who were called Strelitz, and who kept the czars iu subjectlou. These troops, more fornidable to their masters than to their nelghburs, consisted of aboat 30,000 foot, one half of whleh remained at Moscow, whlle the other was stationed upon the fronticrs. The pay of a Strelitz was no more than four roubies a year; but this detielency was anply compensated by privileges and ex. tortions. Peter at first formed a compnay of lureigners, among whom he enrolled his own name, nnd did not think it below hlm to begin the service iu the character of a drummer, and to perform the duties of tiat mean ollice; so much tlid the nation stand in need of exampies! By degrees he becamc an officer. He gradually raised new reginents; and, at iast, finding hincelt master of a well-disclplined army, he broke the Strulizz, who durst not disobey. The eavalry were uearly the same with that of Poland, or France, when this last kingdom was no more than an assembiage of fefs. The Russlan gentlemeu were motinted at thelr own expense, and fouzt wlthout discipline, and sometimes with. ont uny other arms than a sabre or a bow, iheapable of obeying. find consequently of con, uerins. Peter the fi, eat tanght them to obey, both by the exanipl, ine set them and by the puaish. ments he iuficted; for he served lin the quality of a soilier and subaltern otheer, and as czur he surerely punished the Boyaris, that is, the genthoun, who preteuded that it was the privilege of their onder not to serve tut by thelr rwa cons. ut. lle estabilshed a reguiar boiy to serve the artiticry, and towk 500 bells from the churehes (1) found cannon.

He was hlmself a good thgineer; but his chief excelience lay to his

Knowledge of naral affalru: he nos an able mea captain, a skilfui pliot, a good calior, an expert shlpwright, and hls knowledge oí these arts was the more meritorious, as he was born with a great dread of the water. In his youth he could not pass over a bridge without trembling. . . . He caused a beautiful harbor to be bulit at the mouih ref the Don, near Azof, in which he proposed co keep a number of gaileys; and some time f.fter, thinking that these vessels, so long, ilght, and flat, wouid probably sueceed in the Buitic. he had upwards of 300 of them buit at his favorite city of petersburg. He showed his subjecis the methorl of buliding ships wlth ir only, and tageht them the art of navigation. He had even leurned surgery, and, in a case of necesslty, has been known to tap a dropslcal person. He was weil versed ln mechanics, and Instructed the artlsts. . He was aiways truvelllng up and down his dominions, as much as his wars would allow hlin; but he travelled like a legislator and natural phifosopher, examining nature everywhere, endeavorling to correct or perfect her; sounding with lils own hands the depths of seas cind rivers, repulring slulees, visltlag docks, cuusiug mines to be searched frr, assating metals, orieriug useurate plans to ve drawn, lu the expeutlou of whieh he limself assistea. Ife luift, upon a wlld and uncultlvated snot, the lnıperini city of Petersbure . . . He buift the harbor of Cronstarlt, on the ieva, and Salnte.Croix, on the frontiers of Persia: ereeted forts iu the L' $k$ 'ne aud Siberia; established ottices of admiratty at irehangei, Petersburg. Astrahinan, and Xzof: founded arsenals, and built aud endiwed hospitals. Ali hls own houses were manim, nnd execated ha bai taste; hut he spared no expeuses lu readerlug the inb: iic buidines grand and maguiticeut. The celen-es, which In other countries have bren the slow product of so muly ages. were, by his care aud industry, imported into Russiu in full per. feetion. He established an ueademy on the plan of the famous socleties -a Puris and London.

Thus it wns that a singie man changed the face of the greatest empire in the universe. It Is however shocking reflection that thls reforner of mankind should lave bu-a deficlent ln that first of "ll virtues, the virtue $\mathrm{c}^{f}$ lumanlty. Brutality iu his pleasurcs, ferocity in hls manners, nud cruelty in his punishments, suliled the lustre of so muny vlr'ies. Ife eivilized hls sub. jeets, aud yet reinaiued himself a barbarian. He wonld sonictimes with his own hands execute sentences of deith upon the unhappy criminals; and, ln the nide of a revel, would show his desterity in cutting of heads. "-Voltaire, Hist. of Charits $\boldsymbol{\Gamma} I I_{1}$, King of Sucelen, bk. 1.

Also ix: J. L. Motley, Peter the Great.-E. Schuyler, Peter the Great, t. 1. - A. Leroy-Beaulit:1, The Empire of the Tars. pt. 1, bk. 4, ch. 4.
A. D. 1699. - The Pance of Carlowitz with the Sultan.-Posse. $\cdots$ of Azor confirmed. See It:noary A. L 1689.
A. D. 1700 .-Agg ie league with Po iand and Denmark ainst Charies Xil. of Sweden. - Defeat at Narva. See Scandina. - in States (Sweden): A. D. 169\%-1\%00.
A. D. 1701-1706.- War with Charles XII. of Sweden in Poland and Livonia. See Scasdinavian staten (Sweden): A. D. 1701-170\%.
A. D. 1703-1718. - The founding oi St. Petersburg.-"Immediately after the capture of

RUBSIA, 1725-1789.

Treatkans [170s], councll of Far was con$\checkmark$ red to conalder the queation of defendizg and utilityg the mouth of the Neva, and whetner it would be better to strengthen the littin fort which had just been taken, or to seek a it pice for a commercial town nearer the sea. The lat. ter course was decided upon. Near itg riouth the Neva takes a sharp turn and divide, into three or four hrancics, which by subsequ nt rediviaion form a number of islands, large and small. These marsby islands, overgrown with forests and thiekets, and liable to be covered with water during the westelly winds, were inhabited hy a few Finnith fishermen, who were aceustumed to abandon their mud huts at the approach of high water, and seek a refuge on the bigher ground beyond. It was on tbe first of tbese islands, cailed hy tbe Finns Yianni-Shari, or Hare Island, where the, river was still broad and deep, that Peter laid the foundation of a fortress and a elty, nar.ed St. Petersburg, after his patron suint. . . Fer this work many carpenters and tuasons were sent from the distriet of Novgorod, who were aided by the soldiers. Wheelbarrow, were unknown (they are still little used in Russia), and in default of better imple. ments the men scraped up the earth ivith their hands, and carried it to tbe ramparts on picces of matting or in their shirts. Peter wrote to Ramodanutsky, asking bim to send the next summer at least 2,000 tbiev and criminais destined for Siberia, to do th. - jeavy work uni' $r$ tbe direction of the Novgorod carpenters. At the same time with the construction of tbe bastions, a church was buift in the fortress and dedieated to St. Peter and St. Panl. . . Just outside of the fortress Peter built for bimself a smail hut, wbieh he caifed his palace. It was about fifty.five feet long hy twenty wide, built of logs roofed witb shingles, and contained oniy tbree rooms, ligbted by little windows set in leaden frumes. In respect for tbis, his earliest residence in St. Petersburg, Peter subsequentiy had another builling erccted outside of it to pro. serve it from the weather, and in this state it still remains, an object of pilgrimage to tho curious and devout. ... In spite of disease and mortality among the men, in spite of the floods, whieb even in the first year covered neariy the whole place and drowned some who were too ill to move, tbe work went on. But in its infancy St. Petcrsburg was constantiy in danger from the Swedes, both by sea and iand. .-St. I'etersburg, was the apple of Peter's eye. It was his 'paradise, as be often calls it in bis letters. It was aiways an obstacle, nad sometimes the sole olstacle, to tbe conciusion of peace. Peter Was wiling "? give up ail he had conquercd in Livonia and Esthonia, and even Narva, but he Would not yield the mouth of the Neva. Nevertheless, unthithe war witb Sweden had been praetically decided by the battle of Poltava, and the position of St . Pctersburg had been thus secured, aithough it had a certain importance as a commercial port, and as the fortress wbich commanied the mouth of tbe Neva, it remained but a vilugc. The walis of the fortress were floally laid witb stone, but tbe bouses were huilt of log.s at the best, and for many years, in spite of the marsby soil, the streets remalned unpaved. If fate bad compelicd the surrender of the city, there wouid nut have been mucb to regret.
capital. In 1714 the Senata was transported thither from Moacow, but wars and foreign uls. terprises occupied the Tar's atlention, and it Was not until 1718 that the colleges or miniatriea were fuily iastalled there, and 8 St . Peteraburg became in fact the capital of the Empire. "-f., Schuyler, Peter the Greaf, of. © $6(0.2)$.
A. D. $3707-2718$. Invasion by Cherles XII. of Sweden,-His ruinous defeat at Pultowa. $\rightarrow$ His intrigues with the Turks.-Unluckyexpedition of the Casriato Moldavia-Ruasian Sonquests in the north. See Scandinaviax STA P8 (SWEDEN): A. D. 1707-1718.
A. D. 1721, - The Peace of Nyatad with Sweden, - Livonia and other conquerts of Peter the Great secured.-Finland given up. See Scandinaviay Statres (Sweden): A. D.
1719-1721.
A. D. 1735-8739. - The reigas oi Catherine I., Peter II., and Aase Ivanovan-Fruitless War चith Turkey, - Depredationa in the Crimen.-"The reath of Peter found the lhe tian Court divir at into two powerful factions, Tbe reactionary party, filled with Russisns of the old sehool, who had looked upon the refornis of Peter with no favourable eje, sucb as the Goiftains and the Dolgorukis, were anxious to raise to the throne Peter, the son of Alcxis [Peter the Great's son, whom he had caused to be put to death], a mere boy; whereas the party of prog. ress, led by Menshikov, wisbed that Catherne, the Tsar's widow, sbould sueceed. . . The party of reform finally triumphed. Catberine was elected the successor of herhusband, and the cbief authority fell into the hands of Alexander Mensbikov.

The brief relga of Catherine is distinguisbed oniy by two events which added any glory to Russia. The Academy of Sciences was fuunded in 1726, and Behring, a Dane, wss sent on an exploring expedition to Kamchatks. He bas left his name indelihiy written on the geograpiny of tbe world. ... The Empress died on the 17tb of May, 1727, a little more than two years after ber accession to the throne, aged about 89 sears. A ukase of Peter permitted Catberinc to eboose her successor. Sbe accordingly nominated Peter, the son of the unfortunste Aiexis, and, in default of Peter and his issue, Eiizabetb and Anne, ber daughters. Anne died in 1728, the year after her motber; sbe bad msr. ried Karl Friedrich, tbe Duke of Holstein, and was tbe motber of tbe unfortunate Peter III. Mensbikov was appointed the guardian of the Ioung Tsar till he had reacted the age of 17.1 In four months Menshikov was in diggracc and the young Tsar bad signed a ukase which eon. demned bim to Siberian banishment. Hc diwdin 1729, and was followed to the grave a year later by the boy autocrat whose fiat had been inis ruin. On the death of Peter II., the will of Catherine, in favor of her daugbters, was set aside, and the Cuuncil of tbe Empire conferred the erown on Anne [Anne Ivanovna], tbe widowed Duchess of Courland, Who was a daugbter of Ivan, elder brotber of Peter the Great. An attempt was made to impose on ber a constitution, soniewhat resembling tbe Pacta Conventa of the Poles, but sbe evaded it. "The Empress threw herself entirely into the bands of German favourites, especially a Courlander of low extraetion, named Biren, said to have been the son of a groom.
The Empress was a woman of vulgar mind, and the Court was given up to unrefined orgies.

Her rulga was not an Important one for Rucela elther aif regards internal or forel a altaim. Tho ifght of primogeniture which had been introduced : : the Iuculan law of real property by Poter the Great, was abollahed; it was alrogecher aien to the opirit of Bla voalc inatitutiona a four yeari' war with Turiey led to no important resulte."-W. R. Mortil, The shory of ficueds, ch. 8.-"The liumans could have no difilevity is dading a prutence for the war [with Turtey], because the khan of the Turklah alifes and de. pendeats, the Tatart on the const of the Black Ben and the Ses of Asof, and in the Crimen, couid never wholly rentrain his wandering horden from committing depredations and making incunions iato the nef hbouring pasture lands of Russia.

- In 1785 a Ruman corps marched into the Crimes, ravaged a part of the country. and billed a great number of Tatars; hut having veatured too far without sumelent stoch of proviaions, they were ohliged to retreat, and mutained so great lom in men that what had bees sccomplished tore no proportion to thls misfortune. The ainsot totsif faflure of this dret attempt. which had cont the Rustans 10,000 men, by no means deterred them from pursuiag their dengne of conquist. Count Mur in marched with a large army from the Ukrmine into the Crimen (1780). The Tatan sutfered the Rusian troops to advance unmolested, thiaking themselves tafe behind their entrench. ments. But entrenchments of that hind were unsbie to resist the impetuosity of the Russian troops. They were surmounted; the Tatarn repuised; and a great part of the Crimea iny at the merry of the conquerors. In the month of June thing pntered the Crimean fortress of Perekop. The Russian troops now retaijated the devantations committed by the Tatars in the Empire: but they found it Impossible to remain long.
Whatever the amny was in want of had to be fetched with extreme diticuity from the Ukraine; to that Munich at leggth fount himseif, toward sutumn, under the neceasity of withdrawing With his troops by the shortest way to the Ckraine.

Whlie Munich was in the Crimea, endeavouring to chastise the Tatars for their depredations, Lascy had proceeded with another army agaiast Asof. The attack proved auccessfuif and on the 1at of Juiy the fort of Asof had siready submitted to his arms.

The Otto. mens pubiished a manifesto againit Russia, hut they were neither abie afterwards to protect the Crimea nor Moidavia, for they were soon threatened with an attack from Austria also. By the treaty with Rusela, the emperor was bound to furnish 30,000 auxiliaries in case of a war with tive Turks; but a party in the Austrian cahinet perusaded the emperor that it wouid be more ad. vantageous to make war himseif.

In the year 1787 a new expedition was undertaken from the Ukraine at an immense cost. .. A nef treaty had been conciuded with Austris before this campaign, in which the two empires agreed to carry on the war in common, according to a atipuiated plan. In order to gain a pretence for the war, Austria had previously acted as if she Wished to force her mediation upon the Turks. The first year's campaign was 50 unfortunate that the Austrians were obilged to give up ail hes of prosecuting their operations, and to think of the protection sad derence of their own frontiem." But "the Rumians were every where Victorlous, and male the names of thetr armien a cerrot both in the east and the wout. Lasey undertook new raid into the Cirimes. Munich Arst threatened Bender, then reduced Otcinizo? without much dititulty, and left a fow troops bohind him when the withdrew ... Who were there bealeced by a large combined army of Turice and Tatarn, supported by a fleet. The Rusilan not only maintalned the fortrems, which Was, properly speaking, unterahio, but they forced the Turks to retire with s low of 10,000 men. The Ruaslan campaign is 1788 was as frultless, and cost quite ns many men, an the Auterian. hut it was at least the nemns of bringing them tome military reaown." In 1799, tie Rueslans, under Munich, avanced in the direction of Mol: davia, violating Polioh terricury. "The Turkiab and Tatar army which was opposed to the Russians was beaten and routed [at Stavoutchani] on the irrt attack.

Immediateiy afterward the whole garrison, struck with a paaic, formook the fortrees of Khotzim, which had never been once attacked, and it wis taken pontestion of hy the Rusainn, who were astonished at the ease of the conquest. Jangy was aiso taken. and Munich even wished to attuck Bender, when the news of the peace of Beigrade $\qquad$ niade him infuriate. because he eaw clearly enough that Ruspla alone was not equai to carry on the war.

By the pesce of Beigrade, Austria not onif suffered shame and disgrace, but iont alf the possessions which had been gained hy Eugene In tie inst war, her best military frontier, and her most considerabie fortresses. . . . By virtue of this treaty, Austria restored to Turkey Beigraie, Shahacz, the whoie of Servia, thut portion of Boanin winch had been acquired in tite iast war, and Austrian Vailachia. Kussia was aiso obilged to evacuate Khotzim and Otciak of : tise fortifica ions of the Intter were, howcver, hown up; as weli as thoe of Perekop; IUussin retainedi Asof, and a bound. ary liue was determined, which offered the Russians the most favourahie opportunitios for extending their vast empire southward, at the cost of the Tatars and Turks."-W. K. Kclly. IInt. of Ruasia, ch, 33 ( $\mathrm{c}, 1$ ).
A. D. 1736-1740. - The question of the Austrisn Succession,-Guarantee of the Pragmutic Sanction. See Aurrma: A. D. 1718. 1738: and 1740.
A. D. 1732-1733.- Interference In the eiection of ring of Poiand. See Pouasd: A. D. 173!-1733.
A. D. ${ }^{1740-1762}$ - Two regencies and two revolutions. - The reign of Empress Eiizabeth. - The Empress Aane dicd in 1740. Her dcconsed sister, Catherine, had jeft 4 Saughter, Anna, married to Anthony Uirich, Prince of Brunswick, and this daughter had an infant son, Irsn. Hy the wiii of the Empress the chilid Ivan was named as her auccessor, and Biren was appointed Regent. He enjoyed the regency but a short time, when he was overcome by a paiace conspiracy and sent in banishment to Síberia. The mother of the infant Czar was now made Regent; hut her ruie was briel. Another revojution, in the iatter part of 1741, consigned her with her son and husband, to a prison, and raised the Princess Eiizabeth, second daughter of Peter the Great, to the Russlan throne. "The Empress Anna might have ruied without controi, and probahiy have transmitted the throne to her son Ivan, had Elizabeth been left to the quiet eajoy.
ment of her sensual propensitlet. Ellisabeth in. dulged withous concralinent of restmint in amoure with subalterns, and evea privates of the guaril whome barmike lay aear her raldence: alre was whllerev, Itke them, to strong drink, and had enetrely gainmi thelf favour by ber gimil humour and jovially. Ifer Indolence made iver utterly atione to bnmitnen, and she would nevar bave thougit of eacumberlng lieraelf with the cares of government lind she not ineen restricterl In her amusemedis, reproved for her mobnviour, and, what was wornt of all, threatened with a cimputsory marriage with the ugly and dlan. preenble Inthony C'Irich, of Bruniwick Ikevern, broth's of the IEugent's humhabi. It the Instl. gaton, and with the money, of the Frubcis ambasamior, las Chétarile, a revidution wis ellectel.

Ellanleti, In the maulfest which sive puth. Hsheil on the digy of lier arevomaton, dectared that the throne betonged to bur by rlgit of birth, in fuce of the culehratel ukne Inamed hy ber father In 1732, which emprowered the relgalng moverulgn to name fils successor.

On communlcatigg her Hecewslon to the Swedish Government [which hal lately dectared war and Invaded Finland with wo success], she expremed hep dealre for peace, and her wish to reatore nataters to the footing on which they bod ineen placed by the Treaty of Nystadt. The Sweles, who took credile for having ansisted the revolusion which ralaed her to the throne, demanded from the gratitude of the Empress the restlitition of all Flunland, with the town of Wiborg and part of Carelis: hut Ellzabeth, with whom It was a polnt of honour to cede none of the conquests of ber father, woult conwent to arothing further than the re-entahltehnent of the Peace of Nystadt. On the renewal of the war the swedes were again unsuccessfui in every rencounter, as they had freen before."- T. II. Hyer, IIiot. of fifotern Eviople, bk. 6, ch. 3 (e. B).-"Thls war had no risult excepi to show the weaknews of the Sweden of Charke XII. against regenerate Rusela. The Acanilnavian armles proved themselves very un. worthy of their lormer reputation. Elizabeth's generbis, Lascy aud Kelti, subdued all the forts in Flniand. At Ileislagfors 17,000 Swedes tadd down thelr arms before a hardly more numerous Kusilan force. By the treaty of Abo [August 17. 1it3], the Empress acquited South Finland as far as the fiver Klumen, and caused Adolphus Frederic, Adninalstrator of the Duchy of Hoi. striu, und one of her alfes, to be elected Prince Royal of sweden, in place of the Prince Royal of Denmark. . . In her internai poltey Elizabeth continued the tradliona of the great Emperor. She developed the material prosperity of the country, reformed the legisiation, and created new centres of population; she gave an energetic impuise to sclence and the national literature; she prepared the way for the alliance of France and Russia, emanclpated from the German yoke; while In foreign aftairs she put a stop to the threatening adrance of Pruesin." Ellzabeth illed in January, 1762.- A. Rambaud, Hiat. of Rusaia, r. 2, eh. 6 .
A. D. 8743 .-Aequiaition of part of Fialand from Sweden. see Scandimavian States (SWEDEN): A. D. 1720-1792.
A. D. 1755 . - Intrigue with Auctia and Saxony againat Fredericiz the Great.-Causes of the Seven Years War. Gee Oermasy: A. D. 1750-1750.
A. D. 1758-Invaden of Pruesia.-Defert at Zorndorf-Retreat. Bee CbmMast: A. D 173 y,
A. D. 8759 - Remewed Iavasien of Pruscia - Vleter at Kunersederf. dee Germaiv: A. I). 1786 (Jult-NuYEMmen).
A. D. 1761-376s. Brid relcr of Peter !11. - His peace with Frederichs the Crent.-Hi depoeltion on death.-HIe eueen, Catherise II., on the throae. - "Charlee Peter l'Irk, duke of IHolatela Cottorp, whom Elizalueth tuni nom Innted her succeswor, who had eminfucw! the (irwek rellglon, ant who, at his buptim, had revelved the name of Peter Felorovitch, hud arrived at St. Petersisurg Immedtately aftor hit acceadon: he was then on hls fourtecuth yar The education of this unfortunate frimio was anglected. . . Military exercluen were the unly occupation for which he had any molinh, und in them he was tndulged. ... Ilin juinthit which were frequent and long, were turnupuged by his compantous; and, In a few yenfm, he be. crme a complete bacchnnallan." In litt tie Joung paince was married to "Sophia Auguma daughter of the prince of Anbilt Zerbat, who on her converalon to the Greek falti, - a nefm. eary prellminary to her marriage, - had nertired the taptismat name of Catherine. This unon was entitied to the more attentlon, as in its consequences to powerfully sflecterl, not ouly the whole of Itussis, but the whole of Humpe. Shorty before its completion, Peter wa miend with the small-pox, which teft hideous tricet on bls countenance. The igite of lifm farif'so far to bave aflected Catherine that she fainted nway. But though she was only In her wixteenth yene, ambltion bad already over her nure intlu. ence than the teader phaton, and she smothereil lep repugr

Unfortunateiy, the premal qualities of tue buaband were not of a kilud to ove the III Imprestion: If be bore her say $\therefore$ ctlon, which appears douthful, fils manners - - rude, even vulgar.. . What was still Wu. se, she soon learned to desplece his understand. Ing; and it required ilttie penetration to foresee that, whatever might be his site after Elizabeth's death, the power inust rest witil Cutheribe. Hence the courtiers In general were inore nsdilu. ous In their attentions to ber than in himi,-s circumstance which did not much dispose him for the better. Finding no charms in his sew domestic circle, be nuturaily turned to his boos companans; his orgits became frequeut: and Cintlierine was completely aegiected. Ileace her Indifference was exchanged Into absolute disilie.

Without moral princlples; little deterred hy the fear of worldy censure, in a court winte the empress herself was any thing 'int a monlelof chastity; nd burning whith hatred towaris her hushand, - she soon dishosuured his bed." Elizabeth died on the 20th of December, 1:61, and Peter III. succeeded to the throne without op pocition. The plotting agalast him on behaif r ? his wife, had long been active, hut no plans were ripe for execution. He was suftered to relgn for a year and a half; but the power whach he re celved at the beginning silpped quickiy sway from him. He was humane in disposition, and adopted some excelleut measures. He suppressed the secret chancery - an inquisitoris! court sald to be as abominatile as the Spanish Inquisition. He emanclpated the nobles from the servilly to the crown which Peter the Grest had imposed on them. Ile Inpmred the tlind. pllne of the army, aul enve encouraperbent to trale. flut the goml will whin'lt thame memarie mifht have won for hlus wim nure than can. rellod by ble undleguleed controupt for liusila and the lionainas, null eapaclally fur thelr rell. alon, snil ly hle escresive alnifratious for Fred. erick the tirmat, of IPusula, wlih whou hie prete. remor had bren at war [but whil whonn he enterol lito allance, - See (1emmany: A. D. 1861-1ital. The clerisy ami the army were lxotis slfonatel frons him, and were caslly pernumled (i) suppert the revolution whloh Cintherfae and her favoriten plannerl for hle uverthrow. Their scheme wan carried out on the numing of the oth if July, 1i6?, when Penter wie lu the mhlist of one of he orgles at trunleuhaum, muse mile from the capltal. Catherlae went th the bar. macke of the troope, and rigiment after reglament derlarey for her. " I recuapunied by about 2,000 whllers, whith ive thmes that muminer of cltizens. who louily proclalmed her sverilga of llussla, the went to the churcli of $\frac{1}{}$ ur Lairly of Kasan. Here every thlog was preparell for her reception: the archllahop of Novogorexl, whlt a lunst of eccleslantles. awalted her at the altur; mote swore to obmerve the lawe anil rellgion of the aniplre; the crown was solembiy placel on her heal: she was proclalmed sole monarch of Ituswla, antl the gnud-luke Paul her succesarr." The dethroned czar, when the new of these events reached him, doubterl and hesitated unill lie list even the opportunlty to take to tight. On the rlay following Catherine's eoronation lie slignal ausact of ablleathon. Withln a week he was dead. Ac. corlling to accounts commonly credited, he was polmoded, and then atrangled, because the polson dhilte dewily work tmoslowly. "Whether Cath. erine comnanded thle deed of boxkl, has leven much dlapusted. There enn be llitle doubt that she dhl. None of the consplators would have rentureal to such an extrenilty unless distlnctly suthorised by her." iwn yo. Inter Catherine adiled another murder to her crimes hy directlng the amassinaton of Ivan, who land been dethroned no an Infant by Ellzabeth In litt, and who hal growu to manhood in hopeless Impris. onment. - Jint. of Russia (Lamin-r' Cisoinet (yelup.), r. 2, ch. 10.
Al.6o in : IVist. of the Rign of Peter ITI. und Cutherine II., ©, 1.-A. Rabbe and J. Hincan, Hixt. of Ru*sia, v, 1, pp 203-221.
A. D. 1762-17g6.-Characte- and reisn of Catherine II.-Partilon of Poland. Wars with the Turks.-Acqualtion of the Crimea and part of the Caucasus - -xtenslon of boundarles to the Daleper.-"Thus was Inaug. urated the reign of Catherine II., $n$ woman whose caparltles were early felt to be great, but were grat for evll as well is for good. . . She Was withere acruple In the grailitieation of her passlons, and without dellcacy In thelr concent. meist; and a suecession of tovers. Installed osten. tatiously is her palace, proclalmed to the world the ahamolegsness of thelr mistress. Yet she was great undoubtedly as a averelsn. Whth a clear and cultrated intellect, with higli aims anl breadth of riews, and fcarless becruse desplsing the oplnlons of others, she could plan sod she could achieve her country's greatneas: and in the extended dominlons and improved clvilzation whlch she bequeathed to her succes. or la fruand a true claim to the gratitude of her subjecte. The forelgn tranamctions of the relgn urgin will the hletory of l'oland. With Frele. rick of I'rusala, Cathertne may be alit to linve shared buth the selhe of partition and the spelle that followed (see Pob,AnD: A. II. IFaif 177s]. If It is doubifut whith origlented the tranmacton, there la at leaut nu dioubt but that liusalan pollcy had preparill the way for such a measure.

The war whth Turkey [wee Tthex: A. D. $1769-1 i i t]$ was closed wlit eypun! protit and ret greater glory to the ilusalan Fimpire: The lumalan armlen hall fought and conyuereri upon the soll of Sholiavia, and hal Invaled aul occupled the Crimew At the sanse tlme the Kusilan ficets, no lor eominiug themselves to the Baltle or Black oras, hat malled reumil Eu. mpe, and hai appearel In the Archipelago. An Insurrection of the Grecks hatl abind their dealgn; and for a time the thomporun anil foustan. tlnople had been threatenell. The great Ens prens of the North hal dazzherl Europe hy the vauinems of her power and deslgns; and Turkuy, exliaunt. el and unequal to further contest, was conatralned to purchase peace. The piossession of Azof, Kertch, lienlkale, and KInburn, the Iree navigation of the Fuxlne and the Mediterrinean, were the lmmediate galne of Ifuswla. A stlpula. tlor. fur the better treatment of the Prinelpalitles, an- I for the righte of remonstrance, botis in thelr belalf, and in that of the Greek churels at Con. stantluople, gave the opening for future alvautakes. Another clause assured the Indepenlence of the Khan of the Crlmea, and of the Tartars Inlabiling the northern shores of the Black Sea. Unler the naine of lliverty, these tribes were now, llke Poland, deprived of every atrength exeept thelr own: and the way was prepiret for thelr annexatlon by Rusala. The Peace of Kill. narljl, as thls setilement was called, was slgned In tivis. Wlitin ten years dlasenslons had arisen Whthln the Crlmea, and both Turks and Ifusslans liad appeared upon the scene. The forcea of Catherfne passed the lsthmus as allies of the relgulng Khan; but they remalned to recelve lils abulication, and to become the manters of hle eountry [we TyREs: A. D. 1776-1782]. Ai the same tlme the Kuban was entered and sublued by souvarof, and thus already the Caucasus was reachod. Catherlne was now at the helght of her power. In a rfumphant progress she visited her new domlnlons, and gave tic august name of Sehastopol to a new clty which was alrendy destlaed to be the acourge of the Turklsh Em. plre. She belleved heraelf to be upon the road to Constantinople; and, In the Intervlews whlch the held witis the Emperur Joseph II., she began to scheme for the partition of Turkey, as she had done for that of Poland.

The Eimpress now found herself assulled in two distlnct quar. ters. Gustavus 111. of Sweden, allylng with the Sultan, Invaded Flnland; and in her palace at St. Petershurg the Empress heand the Swedlsh guns (see Scandinatian States (Sweden): A. D. 1;20-1792]. She was relleved, however, on the north by the dissension In the Swedlibh army, whlel conspelled the Klng to an Inglortous re. treat; and she became able to glve an undivided attentlin to the affalre of the south. While an Austrian army, which supported her, was tbreatening thee norts. west of Jurtey, her ow forces conquered In the north-east. C'nder Sourarof the town of Oczakof was taken, and the hattlo of Rleralk was won. Ismall, that gave the key of the Danube, next fell, and in the horrors of Its fall drew forti a ery from Europe. The triumph of Catherine was assured; hut already the elouds of revolution had risen in the west; Aus. tria, too busy with the affalrs of the Netherlands, hai withdrawn from the tight; and the Empress lurscif, dlsquieted, and satistied for the tlme with her suecesses, eoneinded the Pence of Jassy, whleh extended ler frontlers to the Dnlester, and give luer the const on whic! so soon nrose the rich elty of Olessa. The aequisitlons of Catherlise upon the south were eompleted. Those upon the west had stlll to recelve lmpor: at additlons. Poland, already once partitloned was again to yiclal new provinces to Russla [see Poland: A. D. 1701-1792, and 1793-1790]. The Internal govern. nent of the Empire was meant undouhteally to rival these foreign successes, but unlappily feil short of them.

The long medlated seculari. zation of the estates of the elorgy was at last aceompllshet; the freedom of the serfs was now first urged; and, as n unliue experlment in Ifas. slan history, the eonvoklng of a kind of States Generai wis luate to discuss the project. But both project and parllament eame to nothing.

There was mueli that was unreai in everything, and Europe, as well as the great Empress herself, was decelved. And so it came to pass that at the close of the reign thare was the spec. tacle of much that had been begun but little tullshed. Before the thath of Catherine [1796]. in faet, her groutuess nuy be suid to have passed away."-C. F. Johustone. IIntorical ibstracta, ch. 6. -" The actlvity of Catherine was prodiglous, and her alltucratic lnstincts extremely atrong, and these limpulses, affected by the French dectrlnes, which we nust not forget set up despotlent, if enlighteued, as the perfectlon of wishlom. minde her govermment attempt to accomplish all thiugs and to mednle In every department of the national life. She tried to force (ivilisation lute) premature growths; cstablished moxlern Institutions of many kinds in a backwaril nud half.burburic emplre; arranged industrial and reouomic projects und works it the ininutest details; anel righlly prescrlbed even comrt dress nnd fashions. Sigur thus deseribes this onnitprescnt aul ubipuitous Interference:-'It is songlit to create at the sance time a thiry estinte, to intract furcign commerce, to establish all kinds of manafactures, to extend agriculture, to incrane paner money, to raise the exchanges, to rethee the interest of mones, to found clites, to perple deserts, to cover the lilack swo with a new uavy. lo conyure one neighbour and eircumvent aunther, anl tinally to extend Russian intluence all over lanrupe.' These liberal reforms and grand aspirations canle, however, for the nost part to nothing: and Catherine's Internal governmeut grew ly decrees into a grlevous, erncl and pryiug despotism.

The antlitiess of the liberalism in worils and of the tyranny $\ln$ deeds In Catherine's reign nay be attrihuted to fonr malu caluses. She graiually found out that reform and jorugriss were loposslble lit the Ranslan Emplre - lanlf Asiatic, barkward and corrapt and she swung bark to the old tyranny of the past. The great risiug of the serfis under I'uga. chelf, ton - a servi:e outhreak of the worst kind - elanged to a grent extent the type of her government, and gave It a harsh and cruel complex. inn:-The damestic poticy of Catheriue Lere. uutil the eud, the traces of those terrible years, and showed, as it were, the bloody cleatrices of the hlows given and recelved in a death struggle.

The foreign polley of Catherine was more successful than her government and admlnistratlon at hrme, and the reasons are sullelently plaln. She found grand opportunitles to extari her power in the long quarreis between Fraare and England, in the alilance she mnintalued w lth Frenlerlck the Great - an alllauce she clump to, though she felt the burden-In the fistahility and weakness of the Austrian counclls, in the eonfuslon and strife of the French Revolntion, above all in the decay of Islam; nad liussia justiy halied her as a great conqueror.

The Muscovite race would not see her mlaleeds in the march of couquest slie opened for it; and her reputation has steadily inereased in its eyes. - The spirit of the people passes, In lis fulness, into lier. It was this that enabled her to uake a complete conquest of her eniplre, anl by this we do not mean the pover which she wrested from the weakness, the cowardice, mud thu folly of Peter III.; but the positlon which this Gef. man woman nttained at the elose of her life, and espuelally after her leath, in the history, aul the natlonal life, and development of a forcign and lostlle race. For it may be said that it is since her death, above all, that she has betome what she aplears now - the sublime flgure, colnsial alike and splendid, majestic nud attractive, he. fore whlch incline, with an equal impulae of grititule, the lumblale Moujik aul the uatn of letters, who slankes the dust of reminimernem nal legends already a eentury o!d.' In whe particular, Catheriue gave proof of belng fir in indvance of the ideas of her day, and of extrumdiatry crift and adiroituess. She anticlpaterl the srow. ing power of opinion in Europe, aud shilfally. turued it to her side by the patronage of the philosophers of Frimce. In Napoleous phrisc. she did not spike the buttery, she scizenl it and directed its tire; sle land Voltaire, 1 hillerot, and D'Alembert, alninging mouthpicces, to apmatis* for, uay to extol, her guverument. This grast force had prodigions inthence lit thrusing a glamour ovire the evil deeds of lier reign, amj in deceiving the work as to parts of her comaluit: -' Alt this forms part of al system-a s.atem due to the woulerfinl intation of a woman, burn In a petty (acrman eomirt, and placed on the mat despotic throne of Europe; duc, $(\mathrm{m})$ - and क्ष lutter - to her clear apprelicnsion of 1ha. great In, we do not hesitate to levllese null ntlirm, lue. canse Chatherime diseovered this furie, and re. solved to make use of $1 t$, that sule wis ahbe to play the part she played in hastory. Ilalf of ber repatation in Enrope was callsed by the almiration of Voltaire, solichted, wom, matuged by let with intinite art, nay padil for wheld uecomiry.' - The Empress Citherine II. (Eilluluryh hir., July, 1893). -' In 1781 ('atheriwe latal alrealy sent to Grimm the following resmmé of the history of her relgn, set forth liy her new mecrefirs and firetotum, 13 esborolko, in the fantintir furm of an luventory : - Governments institutad are eording to the new form, 29; Towns luilt. 14t: Treatles mule, 30 : Victories wou, is: Notithe edlets, decrecing laws, 88: Edicts on boland of the people, 123; Total. 492. Four limalren and alnety-two actlve measures! This antuminaing piece of brok-keepiug, which betrays su tailveiy all that there was of romantle, extravagant chilidish, sud very feminine, In the extraordinary genias that swayed Russia, and ln some sort Europe, during thirty-four years, wlll no doubt make the reader smile. It corresponds however, truiy enough, to a sum-total of great thlugs ac. complshed under her direet lnspiration.

RUSSIA, 1801.
the management of men . . she ls simply marvelious. She employs ail the resources of a tralned dipiomatist, of a sultile psyehologlst, and of a woman who knows tile art of faseinatlon; she employs them tngether or apart, she hundies them with unequalied 'maestrin.' If it is true that she sometimes takes her lovers for generals and statesmen. it is no less true that she treats ou oceasion her generais and statesmen as iovers. Whin the sovereign ean do nothing, the Circe intervencs. If lt avalls nothing to command, to threaten, or to panish, she becomes conalng and wheedling. Townris the soldiers that she sends to denth, bidding tiem oniy win for her victory, she lins delicate attentions, flattering foret honglit, adorable littie ways. Shonid fortmae smile upon the efforts she has this provoked and stimuiatei, she is profusely grateful: hononrs, penstuns, gifts of money, of persuats, of land, rain upan the artisans of her giory. But site does not sbamion those who have ind the mlsfortune to be unlucky. . . Cutheriue's art of ruing was not. ibwever, whout lts shortconings, sone of which were dine to the mere fact of her sex, whose depenilenees mai wenknesses site was powerless to overome. 'Ali!' sibe cried one day, 'If hemen had oniy grantedi me brecehea lustend of petticoats, l conld do anything. It is whth eyes and arms that oae rules, and a woman has ouly cars. The peiticoats were not solely respouslbic for her difliculties. We have airemby referred to a defect which bore hewily upon the conduct of affairs during her reign: this great leader of men, who knew al weil fory to mike use of them, diti not know low to choose them. . . . It seems that her vision of men in general was disturbed, in this respert. by the breath of pussion wileh inthemed all her life. The generni, the statesman, of whom she lind need, she sermed to see ouly throngh the male whom she iiked or disiikel. . . . These mistikes of juigment wore frequent. But Contherine did niore than this, and worse. With the obstinacy whicit characterisui lurr, and the infatantion that iner shecessers gare her, she cante ittle by little to transhate this copitail dofect lnto a 'pirti pris,' to formulate it as a systetu; one man was worth another, in her (ey es, s) hang as he wis dociie and promit to obey: . . And iner ifien that one man is worth is muchas another enuses buer, for n mere nuthing. for a word that offentis her, for a enst of ronntionnec that she tinds nuplensing. or even nithout motive, for the pleasure of change and the delight of haviag to do wlit some one new, ns she avows nulvely in a letter to Grimun, to set asile, alixymated or mereig cashiered. one or another of her most devoted servants." IR. Wialiszuwski, homatuce of an Empress, v. 2, bk. 2, ch. 1.
Alwo in: W. Tooke, Life of Catherine II.Menurirs of Citherine II. by heraelf. - Princoss 1machkaw, Memairs.- S. Menzies, Rugal farour. iten-F. C. Schiosser, Wist. of the $18 t h$ Century,
A. D. 1786.- Establishment of the Jewish Pale. S世 IEи& A I? 17:
A. D. 1791-1793.-Joined In the Coalitions against Revoiutionary France. See France:
A. D. 1790-1791: 1791 (JULY-SEPTEMBER); 1793 (MaRCH-Sertembeh).

A. D. 1796.-Accession of Paul.

A. D. 1798-1799. - The wer of the Second Coalition against Revolutionary France. See France: A. D. $1798-1799$ (A tot'st-April).
A. D. 1799 . - Suwarrow's victorious campaign in Italy and failure in Switzeriand. -Anglo-Russian invasion of Hoiland. Its disastrous ending. See Fuance: A. I). 1709 (AphiL - SHIPTEMHEH): (AHGLRT - IFECEMDER); and (Septemren-O(toukik).
A. D. 1800 .- Desertion of the Coalition by the Crar.-His alliance with Napoleon. See Fuance: A. 1). 18(0)-1N01 (Juse-Fgintian).
A. D. 1800-1801. - War with England. The Northern Maritime League and its sudden overthrow at Copenhagen by the British fleet.-Peace with Engiand. Sue Fuance: A. I). 1801-1802.
A. D. 1801.-Paul's despotism and assassina-tion.-Accession of Alexander I.-The Eimperor l'unt's "choice of his Nlinisters was aiways dlrected by one dominant lifea - that of smrroundlng himself with survints on winom he could entirely rely; for from the moment of his uccesslon he foresaw and dreadedi a laine revolution.
lle erred in the selection, nui wocialiy in the extent, of the mems whici he empioyed to save his 11 fe bul his power: they only precipitated his deplornble end. Among the men whont he snspecteri, he persechtci some with intplacable rigour, while ite retained others at their posts and endeavonred to secure their thelity hy giresents: this, however, only maie them ungrateful. Never was there a sowervign more terrible in fins severity, or more liberal when be was in a genercus mookl. But there wis no rertainty in his favour. A singie wurd nttered intentionaily or by arcident in a conversation, the shadinw of a sispicion, gutheri to huake him presercute those whon he itad protected. Tike grenteat favinarites of to-diay femren to be drivea from the Court on the morrow, mai banisined to a distant province. let the Empror wisheif to be just. . . . All who belonged to the Court or came before the Emperor were thas in astate of continual fear." This fear, and the hat red which it inspired, produced in due time a conspirney, hemded by Counts Punin and I'ahlen, of the Emperors Conneil. Purporting to liave for its object oniy the eleposition of the Czar, the conspiraty wns known mind nequiesereti in by tibe leeir to the throh, the (irmodinke Alexamler, who had been persinutedi to lowk npon it as a ueecessary mesisure fur rescuing liussia from a demented ruler. " $\mathrm{J}_{\text {anl }}$ was precipitating his conntry huto heal oulable disasters, and into a complete disorgnoisatiua and deterioration of the Govermment mutinime. Athougit everyborly sympnthised with the conspiracy, nothing was done until Alexanuler hat given his consent to his father's deposition." Then it was hurried to its accompishnuent. The tonspirntors, lncindiag a large number of military and eivil oftheials, shjped together, ou tire eveuing of Jnrch 3. 1N01. At mininigit, most of them being then intoxieated, they went in a bony to the puhme, made their why to the Emperor's bed-chamler - resisted by oniy one yonng valet -and found him, in hif night-clothes, hiding iu the fulds of a curtain. "They dragged hin out in hia shirt, more dead than alive; the terror he had inspired was now repaid to him with usury.
He was placed on a chair before a denk. The long, thin, pale, and angular form of General Bennlgsen [a Hanoverian officer, Just admitted to the consplracy, but who had taken the lead when othern showed slgns of faltering], with hls hat on hls head and a drawn sword In hls hand, must have neemed to hlm a terrible spectre. 'sire,' sald the General, 'you are my prisoner and have ceased to relgn; you will now at once write and slgn a deed of abdleatlon In favour of the Grand-Duke Alexander.' Paul was stlli unahle to speak, and a pen was put ln lils hund. Tremhlling and almost unconsclous, he wha abont to obey, when more cries were heard. General Bennlgsen then left the room, as he has often assured me, to ascertaln what these erles meant, and to take steps for securing the safety of the palace and of the Imperial famlly. IIe had only just gone out When a terrible scene began. The unfortunate Paul remalned alone whith men who were maddened hy a furious hatred of hlm. . . . One of the conspirators took of hls offcial searf and tled it round the Emperor's throat. Paul strug. gled.

Put the consplrators selzed the lanin with which he was striving to prolong his life, and furiously tugged at both ends of the scarf. The unlappy emperor had already loreatbed hils la:- and yet they tlghtened the knot and drag. gra ulong the dead body, strlking It with their hands and feet." When Alexander learned that an nssassination Instead of a forced athlication had vacated the throue for hlm, he " was prostrited with grief aud despalr. . . The ldea of having caused the death of his father thed him with horror, and he felt that his reputation hant recelved a staiu which could never be effaced.
buring the first jears of hls reign, Alexander's position with regard to his futher's murderers wis un extremely difficult and painful one. For a few mouths he believed himself to be at thecir mercy. but it was chiefly his conscience and a feeling of matural eyuity which prevented him from giving nup to justice the most guily of the conspirators... The nssussins all perished miserably."- Prince Allam Czartoryski, Mem. virs, n, i, ch. 9 aml 11 .
A. D. 1805.-The Third Coalition against France. Sce Funce: A. D. 180. (JancalisArplat.
A. D. 1805.-The crushing of the Coalition 2t Austerlitz. See Fhave: A. D. INM. (Mancil - Mer Fmimiti.
A. D. 1806-1807.-War with Napoleon in aid of Prussia.-Battle of Eylau.- Treaty of Bartenstein with Prussia.-Decisive defeat at

 AlIV- hise)
A. D. 1807.-Ineffective operations of England $2 s$ an ally against Turkey. - Treaty of Tilsit.-Secret understandings of Napoleon with the Czar, sere Truks: A. I. Nout-1ali:

A. D. 1807-1810. - Northern fruits of the Peace of Tilsit.-English seizure of the Danish fleet.-War with England and Sweden.Conquest of Finland. - Peculiar annexation of the Grand Duchy to the Empire. Sec Scasm.

A. D. 1808.-Imperial conference and Treaty of Erfurt, See Fhaice: A. D. 1 suy (Septem-BER-OCTOBER).
A. D. ${ }^{1809}$ - Cession of Eestern Galicia by the Emperor of Austria. See Grrmant: A. I. 1809 (JULY-SEPTEMBER).
A. D. 1800-1812. - Was with Turkey. Treaty of Eucharest-A Acquisition of Bessarabia. See Turks: A. D. 1789-1812.
A. D. 1810 - Grievances agalnst France. Desertion of the Continental Syatem.-Resumptlon of commerce wlth Great Britain.Rupture with Napoleon. See France: A. D. 1810-1812.
A. D. 1812 (June-September),-Napoleon's Invasion.- Battles of Smolensk 2nd Borodino. invasion,- French advance to Moscow. -"With the milltary resources of France, which then counted 130 departments, wlth the contlagents of her Itallan kingdoms, of the Confederation of the Mhlne, of the Grand Duchy of Warsaw, and with the auxillary forces of Prussia and Austria, Napoleon could hring a formaldahle army lnto the fleld. On the first of June the Grand Army ainounted to 878.000 men, 356,000 of whom were French, and 322,000 forelguers. It lachuded not only Belglans, Dutchmen, Hanoverinus, Hanscais, Pledmontese, and Romans, then coafounded under the name of Frenchmen, but also the Italian army, the Neapolitan army, the Spanish regluents, natives of Germunt:Bestles Napoleon's marshals, It hul at its head Eugènc, Viceroy of Italy; Mur , King of Naples: Jerome, Kling of West piashia; the princes royal and heirs of nearly all the louses in Eurple. The I'des alone In thils war, which recallem to them that of 1612 , mustered 60,000 men huler their standards. Other Slavs from the lly rian provinces, Carinthians, Dalmatians, and ('rims, were led to assault the great Shav empire: it was hulced the 'army of twents nations, as it is still called by the Ruwsian people Sipmlenn ransportel all these races from the West to the Eist hy a morement similar to that of the great insa. sions, and swept them like a human asolamede against Russia. When the Gramb Army prepmed to cross the Slemen. it was arrmen this- -To the left, before Tilsit, Macdomatil with lot 0 (1) Frenchand 20,000 Prussians under Gemeral Liork of Wartenhure: before Koruo, Xapoleom with the corps of Dasoust, Gudinot. Xey, the rimerd commanded hy bessieres, the immence rearse cavalry umber Murat-in all a total uf matme men; likefore lifony. Envene with summ lald. Lams and havarims: before (irodhe. Jerome boma in Gullicita at mithly against the t. . an the Victur entirded the Vistule mul the oher with Without reckoming the divisions of Mathent. Shlwartacubere, V'hetor, and Angerem, it wat men mind threaten the centre of lusia. Alicimcommandel by Batration; on the lbus athatary to the Vistula, bot 160 mece, commamed liw Barclay te Tolly; thase were what were callid the Nurthern army and the army of the somith. Un campaisn: on the extreme left. tonerupy the lustriau Schwartzenbery in harmalessly as prosithe, Tormasoof was placed with 40,000 . Later thit Intter army, reinforced hy 00,000 men from the Daaube, became formidahle, and wan destined, uader Admiral Tchltchagof, seriously to embarrase the retreat of the French. In the rear of all these forces was a reserve of 80,000 men - Cossacks and militia. . . . In reality, to the 290,000 men Sispoleon had mustered under his hand, the Emperor of Russis could only oppose the 150,000 of Bagratloa and Barclay de Tolly. At the opening of the campalgn the heal-quarters of Alexsnder were at Wina. . . They deliberated and argued much. To attack Napoleon was to furnish hlm with the opportunity he wlshed; to retire iato the interior, as Barclay had advised ia 1807, seemed hard and humiliating. A mid die conrse was sought by adopting the scheme of Pfahl-to establish an inirenched camp at Drissa, oa the Dwina, and to make it a Russian Torres Vedras. The events in the Peninsula filled all minds. Pfuhl desired to act like Wel. lington at Torres Vedras." But his intrenched camp was badly placed; it was easlly turned, and was speetily abandoned when Napoleon ad. ranced beyond the Niemen, which he did on the 2th of June. The Russian armles fell back. "Sapsleon male his cetry into Wilua, the ancient capital of the I, ithuanian Gedimin. He lad said la his second proclamation, 'The second Polish war lias begun 1' The Diet of Warsaw bad pronounecd the re-establlshment of the king. dom of Poland, aad sent a deputation to Wilna to demand the adheslon of Lithuanla, and to obtain the protection of the Emperor. . . . Napoleon, whether to please Austria, whether to proserve the possibility of pence with Russia, or whether he was afruid to make Polaad too strong, only towk half measures. He gave Lithuanla an alministration distinet from that of Polsnd.

A hat attempt to negotiate a peace had failed.
Supoleon had proposed two nameerptable conlitions- the abandoument of Lithumia, and the dectaratiou of war agalnst Great Britaln. If Sapoleon, instead of plunging into Rassia, had contented himself with organising and defend. ing the :ucient principality of Lithuanla, no puser on earth could have prevented the re t.taldihharent of the Polish-Lithmaian State withia its furmer limits. The destinies of Frace aud Europe would have been chansoul.
 be wobl have liked to gain some bilfont suc ros uit far from the Lithuanian frontier, mul seize onf of the two Russian armies. The vast spaces, the hat romis, the misunderstambints the growing disorganisation of the army. calumed all his movements to fail. Barclay de Tolls. after laving given battle at Ostrovmo and V'i, tepk. felt brack on Smolensk; Bagration fought at Mrhilef atml Oreha, :nd lin order to rejoin Bardiy retreatem to sinolensk. There the two Rusian generals held coutcil. Their tromps were exasperated lis this eontlutal retreat, and Barday, a gmal tact elan, with a clear and method iat miul. Hil not agree with Bagrathon, impetu nus. like a true pupil of Sourorof. The one bell timly for a retreat, in which the laussian army winind become stronger and stronger, and the Fronch army weaker and weaker, as they alvancel into the interior: the other wishenl in Et ura the oftensive, full of risk as it was. The arme was on the side of Bagration, and Barelay. - Gitman of the Baltic provlaces, was suspected and all hut lnsulted. He consented to take the Initiative against Murat, who had arrived at Krasnoé, and a bloody battle was fought (Aug. ust 14). On the 16th, 17 th, and 18 th of Auguag, another desperate fight took place at Smolensk, Which was burnt, and 20,000 men perished Barclay still retlred, drawing wlth him Bagratlon. In his retreat Bagration fought Ney at Valoutina; it was a lesser EyIau: 15,000 men of both armies remained on the field of battle. Napoleon felt that he was being enticed Into the interior of Russia. The Russians still retreated laying waste all behind them.

The Grand Army melted before thelr very eyes. From the Niemen to Wilna, without ever having seen the enemy, it had lost 50,000 men from sickness, de. sertion snd marauding; from Wllns to Mohilef nearly $100,000$.

In the Russlan army, the discontent grew with the retreating movement - they began to murmur ss much against Bagration as against Barclay. It was then that Alexander united the two armles under the supreme command of Koutouzof. . . . Koutouzof halted at Borodino. He had then 72,000 Infantry, 18,000 regular caralry, 7,000 Cossacks, 10.000 opoltehćnié or militlamen, and 640 guns served by 14,000 artllierymen or pioneers; in all, $121,000 \mathrm{men}$. Napoleon had only been able to concentrate 86,000 Infantry, 28,000 cavalry, and 587 guns, served by 16,000 pioneers or artillerymen. . Ou the 5th of September the Freach took the redonbt of Chevardino; the fth was the day of the great battle: this was known as the battle of Borodino among the Russians, as that of the Hoskowa in the bulletins of Napoleon. though the lloskowa Hows at some distance from the teld of carnage.

The battle began by a frightful cannonade of 1,200 guns, which was heard 30 leagues ronal. Theu the French, with an irresistible charge, tork Borodino on one side and the redoubts on the other; Ney and Durat crossed the ravine of Semenerskofe, and cut the Russian army neurly in two. At ten ocloek the battle seemeal won, but Sapoleon refusel to carry out his first suecess by cmploying the reserve, and the Inusisian generals had thate to liring up new troops in line. They reeaptured the great redoubt, and Platof, the Cossack, made an incursion on the rear of the Italian army; an obstinate tight twik place at the outworks. At last N:aphom made lis reserve troops adrance; araiu Murat's caralry swent the ravine; Cau. lancourt's cuirusiers issautted the great retonbt from belinal. and thong themselves on it like a tempest. whlle Eureme of Italy scaled the ramparts. Again the liusitus had lost their outworks. Thea Kimanozof gave the sismal ti rotreat. . . The French had lost 30, OH men, the Russians fu, 010 .. Koutouzof retired in erand order, anmouncing to Alexander that they hal made a steady revistance, but were retreat ing tu protect Mascow." But after a eouncil of War. be decided to leave Moscew to its fate, and the retreating IRussinn army passed throngh nal heyond the city. and the Freach entered it at the ir heels.-A. Rambanl, Hixt. of Renswia, c.:2. ch. 1:2- The facts prove berond doubt that Nupuleon did mot foresee the dancer of an and vance uphn Doseow, and that Alexander 1 and draw him into the heart of the conntry. Si. poleon was led on, not by any plan, -a pian lad never been thought of, - but by the :utrigues, quarrels, and ambition of men who unconsciously played a part ln thls terrible war and never foreEaw that the result would lee the safety of lius. sia. . . Amld these quarrels and Intrigues, we are tryIng to meet the French, although lgnorant of thelr whereabouts. The French encounter Neverovall's divislon, and approneh the walls of Smolensk. It ls Impossthie not to glve battle at Smoleask. We must malntaln our communlea. thons. The battle takes place, and thousands of men ou both sldes are killed. Contrary to the wishes of the tsar and the pcople, our generals nbamion Smolensk. The Inlabitants of Smolensk, betrayed by their governor, set fire to the clty, and, with thils example to other liussinn towns, they take refnge in Moscow, deploring their losses and sowing on every shle the seeds of linte aguhst the enemy. Napoleon alvances and we retreat, and the result is that we take cxactly the measures necessary to conquer the French."-Count L. Tolstoi, The Plysiology of War: Nipweon and the Ruanian Cimpaign, ch. 1.
Also iv: C. Joyncville, Life and Times of Alexander I., c. 2, ch. 4-Baron Jomlul, Life of Na. poleon, ch. 18 (c, 3).-Connt P. le Segur, Ilist, of the Eifpedition to Rusait, bk. 1-8 (r. 1-2).
A. D. 1812 (September) -The French in Moscow. - The burning of the city. - "With rapld steps the French army advanced towards the helghts whence they hoped to percelve at length the great city of Moscow; and, If the Russians were fillod with the utmost sadness, the hearts of the Fronch were cqually Inspled with feelings of joy and trinmpla, and the most brillant illnsions. IReduced from 420,000 (which wis lts number at the passuge of the Numen) to 10f, ofo0, and utterly exhansted, our army forgot nll its troubles ou lts appromels to the brilliant eaplail of Museovy.
linugluation
was strongly excited within them at the hea of enterlug Muscow, after having entered all the other capitals of Europe with the exception of London, protecteal by the sen. Whilst 1'rimere Eugrue advanced on the left of the army, and Prince Poniatowski on its riglit, the bulk of the army, with Nurnt at its heind, Dasout aud Ney in tie centre, and the Guard in the rear, followe. the grat smolensk roatl. Nippoleon was in the midst of his troopss, who, as they gazed upon him and draw near to Moseow, forgot the dars of iliscontent, sum intered lond shonte fin honour of his glory i'ul their own. The proposil submitted by Vitoradoviteli was readily acerpterl, for the French had uo desire to deatroy Mosionw and it was agreed that not a shot shoilh be flred cluring the evacuation, on coulition that the lussian army should continue to detile across the city without a moment's halt.

The Russian rear-guard detled rapidly to yield the groumb to our mlvanced ghard, and the King of Naples, followed by his staff amd a detachment of cavalry, phanged hato the streets of Moscow. and. traversing by turns the humblest fitarters and the wealthlest, percelved everywhore the most profound solitude, and seemed to have entered a city of the dead.

The Information which was now obtained - that the whole popa. lation of the clty had Hed - saddened the exulta. tion of the commanders of our advanced guard, who had fiattered themselves that they would have had the pleasure of surprislng the lnhahl. tants by thelr klndness.

On the morning of the 15th September, Napoleun entered Moscow, at the head of his invinelble leglons, but passed through a deserted elty, and hls soldlers were now, for the first tlme on entering a caplat, the sole witnesses of their own glory. Thelr feetlngs on the cccasion were sadi nnes. As song at Napoleon had reached the Kremlln, he bastened to ascend the lofty tower of the great Ivan, and to survey from lis elevation the magnitirent elty he had conquered.

A sullen sllence, broked only by the tramp of the cuvalry, hat replared that populous life which during the very preal. ous evening had rendered the clty onf of the most anlmated In the world. The army was ris. trlbuted through the various quarters of Manem Prince Eingene occupying the northwest quarter. Marshal invout the southwest, and l'rinee Pon. iatowskl the sonthenst. Marslul liey, who had traversed Moscow from west to cast, establhhed bis tromps in the distrlet compl riser! betwen the silnzan and Whadmer ronds; and the Giand was naturally posted at the Kremblu nul in ita en. vlrons. The houses were full of prowisinis of every kind, and the first necessities of the troppo were readily satlsfied. The superior ofleers were recelved at the gates of palaros by umer ons scrvants in llvery, eager in offoring a bril liant hospltality; for the owners of these palaces, perfectly unaware that Moscow wus alous to prosis, had taken great pulns, although they folly shared the natlonal hatred ngainst the Freneh, to procur: protectors for their rieb dwellhgs by receiviag luto them French atheres

F , their spladid longings, the ofticers of the $i i^{\text {a ch }}$ army wandered with mual delight throngh the mhlast of the city, which rearnhled a Tarta camp sown with Italian palaces. They coutemplated with wonder the unmerons towns of which the cupitul is composed, and whish are placed In concentric clrcles, the whr within the other. . . A few duys lafore. Dowew hat contained a population of $3(\mathrm{~K}), \mathrm{KM}$ sonls, of whom searcely a slxth part now remainel, nul uf thase the greater number were comerathal its their honses or prostrated at the foot of the altars. The strepts were deserts, und only erhowl with the fiotstrpes of our soldicers.

1311 although the solitule of the city was a somrer of grat vexution to them, they had no shepiedin of noy mpprotching catastrophe, for the Rusian army, which nlone had 1 lerto devastated that conntry, had departed, oud there appeared to be no ferr of tire. The F'rouch army humod, dherefort, to enjoy comfort In Moscow, to ohtain. prolathls, perice by menns of its possension, and bt hast gool winter-cantonments la conse the war should be prolouged. But, ou the afternoma they hat entered, columins of thame arose froms and buibling containin!r ... quantiales of spirits, and just as onr soldiers had nhmost sumeredtal in mastering the tire lit this spot, a violent combgration sudedenly lomst forth in a collection of buildings called the Bizatir, sithaterl to the northeast of the Kremina, and containing the rlchest mugnzines, mbounding in stores of the esquisite tissiles of ludia and P'ersia, the raritics of Europe, colonlal probluce, and precions wines. The troops of the Guard lmmediately hatotened up and attenipted to subrluc tha thimes; but their energetle efforts were unfortunitely gusuccessful, and the lmmense riches of the establishment fell in prey to the fire, with the eaception of some portlons wbich our men werr able to snatch from the devouring element. This fresh sceident was again attribiatd to natural causes, and consldered as easliy e:iphcahic in the iumult of sn evacuation. During the night of the 15 th of Sepumber, however, a sudden change came ove: the scene; for then as though every species of misfortune were to fali at the same moment oa the ancient Muscovite capital, the rquinoctial gales suddeuly arose with the extreme voleace usual to the season aad in conntries where widespread plains offer no resistance to the storm. Thls wha, hlowing first from the east, carited the tire to the west linto the strects comprised between the Iwer and Smolensk ronteg, which were the most beutlfui nad the richest In all Moscow. Withia romo hours the fire, spretuing with frightful raplifity, nud throwing out long arrows of tianc, spread to the other westward guarters. And som mockets were obscrved In the ulr, and wretches wore selzed in the aet of spreading the contlagration. Interrogated under threat of ln stant leath, they revealed the frlghtfal secret, the order fiven by Count lonstopsehin fur the burning of the city of Moscow as though it had beea a simple village on the Moscow route. This informathon filled the whole army with consterna. tha. Nipoleon onlered that milltary coumis. sions should be formed ln euch quarter of the city for the purpose of judglng, shooting, and hanghg incentlarles tuk'uln the act, and that all the avillable tronps should be employed in extinguishing the flames. Iumedinte recourse Was had to the pumps, but it wus found they had been removed, and this iatter clrcumstance woukt have proved, if indeed uny doubt on the matter had remained, the terrible determination with which Moscow had been given to the flames. In the mean time, the winl, lncrensing in vinlence cuery moment, rendered the efforts of the whole army incffecturl, and, suddenly changing, with the abruptaces peculine to equif noctial caics, from the eust to the northwest. it carried the torrent of tlame into quarters which the hands of the incendinries had not $\mathrm{yet}^{\mathrm{t}}$ been ahle t:) tirc. After having blown during some hours from the northwest, the whod onec more changel its direction, aud blew from the south. West, as though it had a crucl pleasure in spreadfog ruln and death over the unhappy eity, or, rather, over our army. By thls change of the wind to the southwest the Kremiln was placeral in extreme peril. More than 400 : antunltion wagons werc in the court of the Fremlln, and the arsenal contalued some 400,000 ponnds of powder. There was imminent danger, thercforc, that Napoloon with 1 . fararl, and the palace of the Czats, might lo unp into the air.

RUSSIA, 1812.
Napoleon, theref.
lieutemants, desce quay of the Noskor werl hy some of his Hu the Kromolin to the derc he found his horses ready for hhu, and h:s, much dlticulty in threading the strects, whlch, towarts the northwest (in which direction he proccaled), were nireaily In flames. The turrificl nrmy set out from Mos. cow The dlvisions of I'rince Eugene and Marshat Ney fell hack upon the Zwerigarod aud St. Peterhiirg roads, those of Marshal Davout fcil bark turen the Snoolcnsk route, and. with the exception of the Guard, which was left around the Firemlin to dlispute lts possession with the flanies, nite trense dery back in leurror from before the Ara, which, after fiaming up to heviven, clarted has towards them as though it wlshed to devour them. The few inhahitants who had remained

In Moscow, and had hltherto lain concealed In their dweilings, now fled, carrying away such of their possessions as they valued most highiy, uttering lamentahle crlea of distress, and, in many lnstances, fallieg victims to the brigands whom Iostopochln had let foose, and who now exulted in the midst of tho conflagration, as the genius of evll in the midst of chaos. Napoieon cook ' s p his quarter's at the Chatean of Petrows. kolé, a iearue's districe from Moscow on the St. Petershurg ronte, in the centre of the cantonments of the iroops unler Prince Eugene, awaitlng there the subshicuce of tle contlagrathon, which hat now reached such a helght that it was leyousc human power cither to increase or extinguish it. As a final misfortune the wind chauged on the following day from southwest to direct west, and then the torrents of flame were carried towards the castern yuarters of the city, tho streets Messnltskaia aud Hassmanaia, and the summer palace. As the conflagration reached lis terrible height, frightful crushes were heard evcry moment,-roofs crushing inward, and stately fuçades crumbilng headiong lnto tho streets as thelr supports becnme consumed in ho fiames. The sty was scarcely visible through the thlek cioud of sinoke which owershatowed it, und the sun wis only apparent as a blood-red globe. For threc successive days - the 19 h, the 17 th, and the 18 th of September-this territic scene continued, and In uuahated intensity. At length, ufter having devoured four-bifths of the city, the flre ccased, gradually quenched by the rain, which, as is usually the case, suecceded the violence of the equinoctial gates. As the fiames suhshled, outy the spectre, as it werc, of what had once bcen a magnlicent city was visible. and. Indecd, the areinlin, and about a fifth part of the city, were alone saved, - their preservation being chiefly due to the cxertions of tius Impcrial Guurd. As the hilhablauts of Noscow themselves entered the ruins, secking whnt pruperty still remained in them undestroyed, It was scareciy posible to prevent our soldicrs from acting i:l th. same manner. . . . Of thls horrihie scene the chlefest horror of ail remains to be told: the Russlans had left 15,000 wounded in Moscow, and, incapable of escaplng, they had perished, vletims of IRostopschin's barbarous patrlotlsm."-A. Thiers, Hist. of the Consulate and the Empire, bh. 44 ( $c, 4$ ).

Also Is: Gen. Colnt M. Dumss, Memoirn, ch 15 (r. 2).-J. Phllippart, Forthern Campaigns, 1812-1813, r. 1, pp. 81-115
A. D. 1812 (October-December), - The retreat from Moscow,-Its horrors.- "Napoieon waited in vain for propositions from the Czar; his own were scornfuliy rejected. Mcanwhile the R assians were reorganiziug their armies, and wintes set in. On the 13th of October, the first frost gave waruing that it was time to think of the :etreat, which the enemy, already on the Frrsch flank, was threatenlng to cut off. Leavus; Forticr with 10,000 men in the Kremiln, the arny quitted Moscow on the 19th of October, thity ine days after it had entered the city. It still numbered 80,000 fighting men and 600 cannous, but was encumbered with camp-followers and vehicies. At Malo-Jaroslaretz is violent siruggle unk place on the 24th. The town was captured and recaptured seven times. It was flaally left in the hands of the Freach. Here, howevet, the route changed. The road became bereangis dimeult, the cold grew intence, the ground wes covered with anow, and the con"udon in the quartermaster's department wi -r rhio. When the army reached Bmolensk, ere were ouly 80,000 men in the rankn (November 9). Napoleon had taken minite precautions to proFide supplien and reinforcements all along hle lline of retreat; but the heedlemness of his sub alterms, and the difficulty of being obeyed a! such distances and in auch a country, rendered his foresight useless. At Smolensk, where he hoped to ind provisions and supplice, everything had been squandered. Deanwhile thero was not a moment to lose; Wittgenstein, with the army of the North, was coming up on Freneh right. Tchitchagof was occupying Ii ash behind the Berpsina, with che army which had just come from the banks of the Danube. Kutusof was near at hand. The three Russian armies proposed to unite and bar the Beresina, which the Frenci were obliged to cruss. The Frencis began their march, but the cold became suddenly intense all verdure liad disappeared, and there leing no food for che horses, they died hy the thousnnd. The cavalry was forced to dismount; it became necessary to destroy or abandou a lu:ge portion of the cannon and ammunition. The enemy sarrounded the French columns with a eloud of Cassacks, who captured ail stragglers. On the following days the temperature moderated. Then arose another obstaele, - the mud, which preventod the advanec; and the famine was constant. Moreover, the retreat was one coutinuous battle. Ney. 'the bravest of the hrave,' accomplished prodigles of valor. At Krasnol the Em. peror himself was ohilged to eharge at the lead of his guard. When the Beresiua was reached, the $a^{* m y}$ was reduced to 40,000 fighting men, of whum one-third were Poles. The Russians had burued the hridge of Borisof, and Tchitchagof, on the other shore, lurred the passage. Fortunately a ford wns found. The river was flled with enormous blocks of ice; General Eblé and his pontoniers, pluuged ln the water up to their shoulders, built and rehuilt brilges aeross it. Amost all the pontoniers perished of eold or were drowned. Then, while on the right of the river Ney and Oudinot held back the army of Tcuitchagof, and Victor on the left thut of Witt. genstein, tho guard, with Napoleon, passed over. Vietor, after having killed or wouuded 10,000 of Wittgenstein's Russinns, pissed over during the night. When, in the morning, the rearguard legan to cross the bridges, a crowd of fugitives rushed upun them. They were soon flled with n eomfised masi of eavalry, infantry, caissons, and fugitives. The Thssians cnme up and poured it shower of shells upon the heipless crowd. This frightful seene hns ever since been famons as the phasage of the Beresinn. The gov. eruor of Minsk had 24,000 deal boulies picked up and hurnel. Napmenon comlucted the retreat towards Wilna, where the Freneh had large magiozlues. At sumorgoni he left the army, to repair in ali haste to Paris, in order to prevent the disastrons colfects of the last events, nod to form another army. Tike nrmy which he had left struggled on under diurat. The cold grew still more intense, nml 20,0 (\%) men perished in three dinys. Ney held the ememy a long time in check with desperate ridor, he was the last to recross the Niemen (1)ecember 20). There the retreat cuded, and with it this fatal earupnign.

Beyond that Fiver the Freach left 800,000 e01. dlem, elther dead or in captirlty." - Victor Duruy, Bief. of Prames, ah. 60. -"Thousands of horses acon lay groanligg on the route, Flth greas pleces of Beah cut off their necka and mont deahy parts by the pacaing aoldlery for food; whllit thounands of naked wretches wero wandering lise apectren, who seemed to have no night or sense, and who only kept reeling on till frone, famine, of the Cosesck lance put an end to thelr power of motion. In that wretched state no nourishment could have saved them. Then were continual instances, even amongst the lus sians, of their lylag down, dozing, and dying within a quarter of an hour after a llttie bread had been supplied. All prisoners, however, were lmmediately and invariahly atripperl stark naked and marched in columns in that state, or turned adrift to be the sport and the victims of the peasantry, who would not aiways let them, as they sought to do, point and holi the muzzles of the guns against their own heads or hearts to terminate their suffering ln the most certain and expecitious manner; for the peasantry thought that this mitigation of torture 'wonld ire an offence against the avenging God of Ruasla, and deprive them of His further protection.' A re markahle lastance of this cruel spirit of retaila. tinn was exililited on the pursuit to Whazma. Milaradowitch, Beningsen, Korf, and the Eug. lish General, with various others, were proceed iug on the high-road, about a nilic from the town, where they iound a crowd of peasant-women, with stieks in their hands, hopping roumla fetled pine-tree, on each side of whilh lay alout sixty maked prisoners, prostrate, but with thelr heals oal the tree, which those furies were striking in accompaniment to a nationsl alr or song which they were yelling in coneert; while several hundred armed peasants were quietly lonking nu as guardians of the direful orgfes, When the cavalcade approached, tite sufferers uttered piercing shrieks, and kept lnecessautly crving 'La mort, la mort, la mort!' Near Dirugohouche a young and handsome Freuch woman lay nated, writhing in the suow, which was ensinguined all around her. On hearing the sonnd of voices she raised her head, from which estremely long biack, shining hair flowed over the whole person. Tossing her arms ubout with wildest expression of agony, she kept frantically erving, - licadez noi mon enfuut - Restore me my habe. When soothed sufficiently to explinin her story, she related, 'That on sliking from weakuss, a child uewly born had heeu snatched away from her; that she had beeu stripped hy her assoccates, and then stabled to preveut her falling alive into the hinnds of their pursuers.

The slaughter of the prisoners with every imaginable previous mode of torture by the peasantry still contiauIng, the English General sent off a despatch to the Emperor Alexander 'to represent the horrurs of these outrages and proposes $n$ chuck.' The Emperor by an express courier lustimily trus mitted an order 'to prohilhit the parties ubiler the severest memares of his displequare and punishment;' nt the sme tine he directed -a ducat In gold to be pnid for any prisoner delivered up by peasant or soldier to nny eivil authurity for safe custoly.' The order was beneficial as willas creditable, but still the condacturs were alfetid a higher price for their eharce, and fretquently were prevailed ou to surrender their trust, for they doubted the juatitiabie validity of the order. Faralne alto ruthlemily decimated the enemy's raks. Groupe were frequently overtaken, gath. ered round the burning or burnt enibers of bulid. ings which had afforded cover for some wounded or frozen; many in these groupa were employed In peeling of with their fingeri and making a repatt of the charred flesh of thelr comrades' remaina. The English Genersi having asked a greaadler of most nartial expremalon, so occu. pled, 'If tble food was not ioatbsome to him ${ }^{\prime}$ 'Yes,' he said, 'It was; but he did not eat it to prisarve life - that he bad sougbt in valn to lose -only to lull gnawing agonles.' On giving the grenadler a plece of lood, wblch happened to be at command, be selzed it with voractty, as It be would devour it whole; but suddeniy checking bimself, he appeared suffocatligg with emotlon looklng at tbe bread, then at tbe cionor, tears rolled down his cheeks; endeavouring to rise, and making an effort as if he would catch at the band which adminlstered to bls want, he fell hack and had expired before he could be reached. Innumerable dogs crouched on the bodles of their former masters, looklng in thelr fuces, and howling their hunger and their loss; Whilst others were tearing the still living flesh from the feet, hands, and limbs of moaning wretches who could not defend themselves, and whose torment was stlli greater, as in many cases their consclousness and senses remalned unimpaired. The cllaging of the dogs to their masters' corpses was most remarkahte and lnterestlag. At the commencement of the retreat, at a village near Selino, a detachment of fifty of the eneny had been surprised The peasants resolvel to hury them allve lu a plt: a drummer bor hravely led the devoted party and sprang into the grave. A dog belonging to one of the vietims conlid not be secured; every day, however, the dog went to the neighhourtug camp, and cane hack with a bit of food in hits month to sit snit moun over the newly-turned earth. It was a fortuight hefore he coull be killed by the peasants afraid of disoovery. The peasants showeot the English Geveral the spot and related the oc currence with exultathou, as if tbey bad performed a meritorlons deed. The shots of the peasintry at stragglers or prisouers rang continuousty through the woods; and attugether it was a comptication of misery, of crnetty, of desola. tioa, atul of disorder, that can never have been exceded in the bistory of manktud. Mauy incidents and crimes are ladeed tow horrible ir dis. gusting for relation."-General sir IR. Wilson, Virratire of Eremte during the Ineusion of Rususia, 19. 20E-235. - When Sapoleon abaudoned the army. at Sinorghonl, ou the 6 th of December, the Kiur of Saples was left lu command. ." They mareled with so much disorler and precipitation that it was only wben they arrived at Wilna that the soldiers were $\ln$ formed of a departure as discouraging as it was unexpected. 'What!' said ther among themselres, is it thus thit he abanWhas those of whom be calls himself the father ? Where theu ls that genius, who, in the hetpher of proxperity, exhorted us to bear our sufferings paticutly: He wbo lavlshed our hlowl, is he afraid of die witb us ? Wiil he treat us like the army of Egypt, to whou, after having served him faitbfuily, he became Indifferent, when, by a shameful dight, he found himself :ree frow danger :' Such was the conversation of the oldfers, which they accompanaled by the most vioient execratlons. Never was indlgnation more just, for never were a class of men so worthy of plty. Tbe premence of tbe emperor had kept the chlefs to thelr duty, but when they heard of hils depar:ure, the greater part of them followed hls exaraple, and shamefully abandoned tbe remalns of the regiments with which they had been intrusted. . . The road which we followed pre-

The road which we followed presented, at every step, brave officers, covered witb rags, supported hy branches of pine, their hair and beards stiffened by the lce. Tbese warriors, who, a short timn before, were tbe terror of our enemles, and the conquerore of Europe, having now lost thelr fine appearance. crawled slowly along, and could scarcely obtain a look of plty from the soldlers whon they had formerly commanded. Tbeir situation became stlll more dreadful, because all who had not atrength to march were abandoned, and every one wbo was abandoned by his comrades, in an hour afterwards lnevitably perinhed. Tbe next day every blvouac presented the ltage of a teld of battle.

The soldlens hurnt whole houses to avold belng frozen. We saw round the fres the half-consumed bodles of many unfortunate inen, who, having advanced too near, in order to warm themselves, and belng too weak to recede, lad become a prey to the than-s. Some miserable belngs, blackened with smoke, alll the. sineared with the blood of the horses whith they had devoured, wandered like ghosts round the burning louses. They gazel on the dead horlin-s of their compantons, and. too feuble to support thenselves, fell down, and tleal like them.
The route was coverell with soldiers who no longer retalned the humn form, aul whom the enemy disdalaed to make prisoners. Every day these mberable men made us withesses of sechins tion drealful to relate. Some hat lest thelr hemrIng, others thitr speech, and many, hy excessive cold aul hanger. were reduced to a state of frantic stupility, in which they roasted the dead boties of their comrates for foul, or even gnawed their own hauds and arnos. Some were so weak that, unable to lift a plece of wood, or rolt a stone towards the tires which they had kladled, they sut upon the demd berlies of their comrades. nnil. with a haggard countenance, stealfastly gazed upon the brruing conls. No sooner was the fire extiuguished, thau these living spectres, unable to rise, fell by the side of those on whom they hall sat. We saw inany who were absolutely insame. To warin their frozen fert, they plunged the maked lnto the mildle of the fire. some, with a couvulsive lugh, threw themselves into the thanses, aud perished In the most horrid convulsions, and uttering the most piot ing cries; While others, equally lisane, imule hately followed them, and experieuced the same fate."Campabion in Ruseramatantial Sorrative of the Camputign in Russia. pt. 2, uk. 5
Also in: Count P. de Segur, Ilixt, of the Erprdition to Russia, bh. 2-12 (r. 2) -C. Jorneville, Eije and Times of Alexander I., r. 2. ch. 5.Earl Stanhope, The French Retreat from Mbume (IIist. Exany:3; and. alsn. Q'tart. Ric., Uet. 1807 -a. 123)-Baron de Marbot, Memuirs, $r$. 2, ch 28-32
A. D. 1812-1813. -Treaty of Kalisch witb Prussia.-Tbe War of Liberation in Germany. -Alliance of Austria.-The driving of the Frearh beyond the Rhine. See Grnmant: A. D. $1812-1813$, to 1814.

A. D. 1814 ( January-April). - The Ailies in France and in poscsesion of Paria.-Fall of Napolson See Fhance: A. D. 1814 (January - MAhCh) sid (March-Aphit).
A. D. 1884 (May).-The Treaty of Paris.Evacuation of France. See France: A. D. 1814 (APRAL-JUNE).
A. D. 1814 4-8885, -The Congreas of Vianam. - Aequisitions in Poland.-Surrender of Eastern Galicia. Sec Vienna. Tue Congnebs of. A. D. ${ }^{1815}$. - Napolson's return from Elha. -The Quadruple Alliancs. - Ths Watarloo campaiga and lte rasuits. Sec France: A. D. 181t-1815. to 1815 (Juve-Atiovat).
A. D. 8815 . - The Alise again in France. Sacond Trasty of Paria. See France: A. D. 1815 (Jtiry-Novemiser).
A. D. $\mathbf{1 8 2 5}$. - The Holy Alliance. See Moly Alliance.
A. D. 1827.- Expulaion of Jesuits. See Jesuits: A. D. 1769-1871.
A. D. $1820-1822$. The Congrasses of Troppau, Layhach and Varona. Sec Verona, The Conorens of.
A. D. 1825.-Acesssion of Nicholas.
A. D. 1827-1829.-Interventlon on behalf of Graics.-Battle of Navarino. See Greece: A. D. $18: 1-1820$.
A. D. 1830-1832. - Polish revolt and ite supprasion. - Barharous traatment of the insurgents. See Poland: A. I). 1830-18:12.
A. D. 1831-1846. - Joint occupation of Cra-cow.-Extinction of the republic.-1tsannexation to Austria. See Austria: A. D. $1815-$ 1846.
A. D. 1833-1840. - The Turko-Egyptian question and its esttiament. See Tcras: A. 1). 1831-1840.
A. D 1839-1859.-Suhjugation of the Caucagua. See Catcases.
A. D. 1849.-Aid randersd to Austria against tha Hungarian patriots. Sec Austrai: A. D. 1448-1841.
A. D. 1853-1854.- Causes of the Crimean War with Turkey, England and Franca, "The Immediate caluse of the war which broke out in 1833 was a dispute which had arlsen be. tween France and Hussia upon the custody of the Iloly Places in Jerussicm. The real canse was the intention of liussla to hasten the dlsmemberment of the Turklsh Emplre. Nichoiss. in a menarable conversation, actually suggested to the Britishambassalor at St. Petersburg that England should receive Egypt and Crete as her own portion of the spoil. This cunversation, which twok plare In Jauuary 1853, was at once reported to the Britshh Government. It undoubtedly prepares the way for future trouble.

It had the effect of renduring the Britlsh Ministry suspicious of hls intentlons, at a mnment when a gowi understanding whth thls country was of the first huportance to the Czar of Russla. There can, theu, be very little doubt that Nicholas comnuted a grave error in sug. gesting a parthion, which may have seemed reasonable enough to Coutinental statesmen, but Which was regarded with horror by England. Almost at the same moment he affronted France by declining to rall Napolcon 'Monsleur mon Iriere.'. Nlcholas had the singular indiscre. tion to render British miniatry suspicious of him, and a Freach amperor angry with him, in the amme month. Napoleon could easly avenge the sfront. ... The Greek and Latin Churches both claimel the right of protecting the Iloly Places of Palestine. Both appealed to a Mahometan srrangement in support of their cisim: each decllnell to admit the pretenslons of the other. The Latin Church in Pslentine was under the protection of France; the Greek Clureb wrs under the protection of Kussia; and Frince and Rusula land constantly supported, one againat the other, these rival claims. In the lheglaniag of 1853 France renewed the controversy. Nhe even threatenel to settle the question by firce. The man whom Nicholas woild not calt 'mon frere' was stiring a controveray thlek with trouble for the Czar of Russh. It happrened, morenver, that the controversy was one wheh, from Its very nature, was certain to spread. Nvarly elghty years before, by the Treaty of Kalnarijll, the Porte had undertaken to aflord a constant protection to Its Cbriatian subjects, and to place a new Greek Church at Constantinople, which it undertork to erect, 'and the manliters Who officlated at it under the specific prutection of the Iusslan Empire.' The exact meaniug of this famous artlcle had alwnys been dlsputed. In Western Europe it had been usually helid bat It applled only to the new Greek Church at C'onstantinople, and the ministers who ofticiated at it. But Russinn statesmen had always contendel that its meaning was much whlfer; and Britlsh statesmen of repute had supported the contentlon. The general undertaking which the Porte had given to Russia to afford a constant protection to its Christian subjects gave llussla - so they argued - the right to interfere when such protection was not afforled. In such a country as Turkey, where chronte mlsgovernment prevalied, opportunlty was never wanting for complaining that the Cliristians were inalcquately protected. The dlappute alout the iloly Places was soon superseded by a general demand of Russia for the adequate protection of the Christlan subjects of the Porte. In the sum. mer of 1853 the demand took the shape of an ultimatum; and, when the Turkish ministers declined to comply with the Kusslan demand. a Russlan army crossed the Pruth und oceupled the Princlpalitles. In six months a miserable quarrel about the cuatody of the Holy llaces had assumed dimensions which werc clearly threatening war. At the advice o? England he Porte abstalned from treat.ag the occupation of the Principalities as an act of war; and diplomacy consequently secured an interval for arranglng peace. The Austrian Government framed a note, which is known as the Vienna Note, as a basis of a settlement. Elugland and the neutral powers assented to the note: llussia accepted it; and It was then presented to the Porte. But Turkey, with the obstlnacy which has always characterised its statesmen, Ileclined to accept it. War might even then have been prevented if the British Government had boldly Insisted on Its acceptance, and had told Turkey that if slae moilferi the conditions she need not count on Engiand's asslatance. One of the lead. Ing members of Lord Aberdeen's Minlatry wished to do thls, and declared to the last hour of hls llfe that this course should lave been taken. But the course was not taken. Turkey was permitted, or, sccording to Baron Stockmar, encouraged to modily the Vienn Note: the modiflations wore rejected hy lunaia; and the Porte, oo the 26th of September, delivered an uitima. tum. and on the th of October 1883 declared war. These events excited a very widespread indignstion In this country. Tho peopie, Jndeed, were oniy Imperfectly scyuainted with the cause winch had produced the qusrrel; many of them were unaware that the complication had been orginaliy introducyl by the act of France; others of them failed to reffect tinat the refusal of the Porte to aecept a nute which the four Great Powers - of wisich Enginni was one had agreed upon was the Inmmediate canse of hostilites. Those who were better informed thougit that the mote was a mistake, and tisat the Turk had exereised a wise discretion in re. jecting lt; while the whole nation instinetively feft that Russia, throughout the negotiations, had setel witti unnecessary harwhness. Ia Oc tober 1838, therefore, the country was almost unaninoonsiy in favour of supporting the Turk The events of the next few weeks thrned this feeling into enthisiasin. The Turkisin army, under Oniar Pasia, proved lts mettle by wiming one or two vietories over the Riassian troops. The Turklsh fleet at Sinope was sudiconiy at tacked snd destroyed. Its destruction was, undouhtedly, an act of war: it whs distorted into an aet of treachery; a rupture between Euglaud and ilussia lecame thenceforwardi inevitahle: and in Narch 14.54 Englund and France dieciared war."-8. Waipoie, tbrign Kelation*, ch. З.
A.so Is: A. W, Kinglake. The Inrision of the Crimed, e. 1.-J. Morley, Life of Lichard Cob. den, n. 2, ch. 6.
A. D. 1854 (September).- The Crimean War: Landing of the Alies.-Battle of the Aima-Sufferings of the invading army, "England, then, and Franee entered the war as alles. Lord liagian, formeriy Lord Fitzroy Somerset, an oid pupii of the Great Duke in the Peninsular War, and who had lost his rigit arm serving under Weliington at Waterioo, was appointed to command the Engiisio forees. Marsibal St. Arnaul, a beid, briiliant soldier of fortunc, Was intrusted by the Emperor of the French With the leadership of the soldiers of Francc. The allied forees went out to the East and as. semhled at Varna, on the Black Sen shore, from which they were to make their descent on the Crimea. The war, meantime, hal gone hndiy for the Emperor of Russia in his sttempt to crush the Turks. The Turks bad founil in Umar Pusha a commander of remarkable ahility and evergy; and they had in one or two instances received the unexpected add and connsei of clever ani successfui Englisinnen. . . . Tine invasion of the Danuhian provinces was aircaily, to ali fitents, a failure. Mr. Kingiake and other wnters have argued that hut for the ambition of the Emperor of tise French and the excited temper of the Engilsh peopie the war might weil hsve ended tisen and there. Tise Emperor of Rusia had found, it is contended, that he could not maintain nn invasion of European Turkey; his tleet was contined to its ports in the Black Sea, and there was nothing for him but to make peace. But we confess we do not see with what propriety or wisdom the ailies, having entered on the enterprise at ail, could have shandoned it at such a moment, snd ailowed the Czar to escape thus merely scotched.
alllea went on. They salled from Farna for the Crimes. . . There fis much discuasion as to the origlas author of the project for the Invalon of the Crimea. The Emperor Napoleon has had It ascribed to him; so has iond Palmernton; so has the Duke of Newcatt., 60 , sccording to Mr. Klnglake, has the 'Times' newapaper. It doe: not much concern us to know In whom the ldea originated, hut It is of some Importance to know that it was eqsentialiy a civilian's and not a sol. dier's Idea, It took possemsion alinost simulta. neonsiy, as far as we can observe, of the minds of several statesmen, and it had a sudden fascination for the pubilc. Tho Emperor Nicholas had raised and sheltered his Hiack Eeas fleet at Sehastopol. That fleet hai salifed forth from Sebastopoi to commit what was calied the mas. sacre of sinope. Sebastopol was the great arsenal of iluasia. It was the point from whief Turkey was threatened; Irom which, It was univeraally believed, the emboiled ambition of Rusala was one day to make ita most formiduble effort of agerission. Within tho fenee of its vast seaforls the fleet of the Biack Sea lay screened. From the moment when the vessels of Engiand and France entered tise Euxine the Russian fleet had withulrawn behind the curtain of these delences, and was seen upon the open waves no more. If, therefore, Sebastopol could be taken or destroyed, it woulid seem as if the whole materiai faliric, put together at such eost and intoor for tise execution of the schemes of Russia, would te shattered at a how. . . . The inva: sion of the Crimea, however, was not a soidier's project. It was not weicomed by the English or the French commander. It was undertaken hy Lond Ragian out of deference to the recommendations of the Government; and by Marshai St. Arnand out of deference to the Em. peror of the French, and because Lord Ragian, too, did not see his way to decine the respon. sihility of it. The alifed forces were, there fore, conveged to the sonth-western shore of the Crimea, and effected a landing in Kalamita Bay, 8 short distanee north of the point at which the river Aima runs into the sea. Sehastopol Itself iies about 30 milies to the south; and then, more soutisward stiii, divided by the buik of a jutting promontory from Sehastopil, Is the harbor of Baiakiava. The disemburkation began on the morning of September 14th, 1854. It was com pleted on the tiftil day; and there were then some 27,000 Engilisi, 50,000 French, and 7,000 Turks ianded on the shores of Catherine the Great's Crimes. The landing was effected without any opposition from the Russians. On September 10 th, the ailies marched out of their encampments and moved southward in the direction of Sebastopoi. They had a skirmish or two wlth a reconnoitring force of Russian cavairy and Cossacks; but they had no husiness of genuine war until they reached the nearer bank of the Aima. The Russians, in great strength, had taken up a spiendid position on the heights that fringed the other side of the river. The aliied forces reached the Aima about noon on September 20th. They found that they had to cross the river in the face of tise Russian hatteries armed with heavy guns on the higheat point of the hilils or bluffs, of scattered artiliery, and of dense masses of infantry whlch covered the hilis. The liussians were under the command of Prince Mentschikofi. It is certain that Prince Ments-chlkot belleved hif poaltion unamallable, and was convlaced that his enemies were delivered Into his hands when he saw the allies approsch and attempt to effect the croasing of the river.

The attack wan made with despern.e nour. age on the part of the nllles, but whthout any great aklll of leaderehip o: tenaclty of dleciplline. It was rather a pell-mell ont of tght, in which the heallong cournge and the indomitable obatl. nacy of the English and French troom carriel all before 'hem at lant. A atuly of the battle la of Itttle pooft to the ordinary reader. It was an heroic scnmble. There was little coherunce of acthon betrreen the allled forces. But the: was happlly an rimost total absence of generalahip on the part of the Russlans. The soldiers of the Czar fought stoutly and stubbornly, ns they have always done; hut they eonhl not stand up agalust the blended vehemence and obstinacy of the Engllsh and French. The Iver was eroswed, the opposite helghts were mounted, Prince Mentschlkof's great redouht was earried, the Russlans were driven from the theld, the allles occupled thelr ground; the Fletory was to the Western Powers. . . The Rusalans ought to have been pursued. They themalves fully ex. pected a pursuit. They rctrented in something like utter confuslon. . . . But there was no pursult. Lord Raglan was eager to follow up the vletory; but the French had as yet hardly any caralry, and Marshal St. Arnaud would not agree to any further enterprise that day. Lard Raglan belleved that he ought not to persist; and nothlng was done. ... Except for the hravery of those who fought, the hattle was not nuch to hoast of. . . . At this dlstance of tlme It is almost touching to rend soune of the heroic contemporaneous deacriptlons of the great scramble of the Alma. . . . Very soon, however, a different note came to be sommed. The campaign had been opened unter conditions differling from those of most campuigns that weut before It. Sclence had added many new discoverlen to the nrt of war. Llterature had alded one remarkable contributlon of her own to the condl. tions annidst which campalgns were to lee carried on. She had alded the 'special corresponient.'

When the expedition was leaving England It wasacompanled by a special correspondeut from each of the grent daily papers of lamilon. The 'Tlmes' sent ont a representative whose name almost imniediately became celebratel Nr. Willian Howard Hussell, the 'prenx cheralicr of war correspondents in that dar, as Mr. Arehibahl Forbes of the 'Inaily News' is in this,

Dr. Russell soon suw that there was confo. siou; and he had the somalness of judymat to kuow that the comfusion was that of a breaking. down system. Therefore, while the fervor of delight in the courage and success of our army was still fresh In the minds of the public at home. whil every music-hall was rlnging wlth the cheap rewards of valor, In the shape of pepular ghorificutions of our conmunalers and our sol. diers, the readers of the ' Times' hegan to learn that things were faring bally indeed with the rompering army of the Alma. The ranks were thinued by the ravages of cholera. The men were pursiled hy choleral the very hattle tiehl. loned laglan himself saitl.

- The hompitals were in at wretehediy disorgamzed comblion. stures of medleines and strengtheming form were thenying in places where to ode wated them or could woll cot at them, while mew Fere dying to hundrect among our tents In the Crimes for lact of them. The ayntem of clothing of triasport, of feeding, of nuralag - everythte had brokeo Jown. Ample provitions had been got togethry and pald tor; and when they came to be needed no one knew where to get at them. The spectal correnpondent of the 'IImes' and other correspondents contlnued to din these thlngs Into the cars of the publle at home. Exultetion hrgan to glve way to a feellog of dismay. The path. otic anger agalnat the Rusalans was changril for a mood of deep ladignation agalnst our own sil. thoritles and cur own war adminlstrminn. It sonn became apparent to every one t' bole campalgn had been planned on thr -.....jutinn that It was to bo llike the career of the heres whom Byron laments, 'hrief, brave, and glorioun.' (hit millitary authoritlen here at home - We do not apenk of the commanders in the thehd - Inul made up thelr minda that Sebantopol was to full, Hke another Jericho, at the sound of the war-tmunuts blant. Our commar iti In the theld were, on the contrary, rather ; sed to overrate than to underrate the strer hof the Rumslans. . . . It lt very Hkely that If a suditen dawh haillorin mude at Selnatopol by land and sen, It might have been takeu almoat at the very opening of the war. But the delay gave the :usolans full warnlag, and they did not neglect It. On the thini day after the battle of the Alina the linowians sank seven vessels of thelr Black sea thert ur the entrance of the harbor of Selbastopol. This nas done full in the alght of the allied therts, what tirst, mlaunderstandling the movemunts golng on among the enemy, thought the Ifaswian muat ron were about to come out from thilir shiltef nad try concluslons with the Western wips, But the real purpose of the IRussians lnewinu soon nppareut. Lnder the eyes of the nllios the seven vessels slowly settled down anl walk in the water, untll at last only the tops of their masts were to be seen; and the entrance of the harbor was barred as hy sunken rocks a zulact any approach of an enemy's ship. There was an end to every drean of a sulden capure of Sebasto ol."-J. McCarthy, Hiat, if tur Vifo Timez, ch. 97 (r. 2).

Atmin: Gin. Sir E. Hunley, The Wirin the Crimear, ch. 2-3.-W. 11. Russell, The Britioh Expulition to the Crimea, bk: 1-2.
A. D. 1854 (September-Octoher).-Opening of the siege of Sehastopol. - Four diarsufterthe battle of the Alma the allien rouched the Bellock, so close to Sebastopol that "It lucame a mutter If necessity to decide upon their uext strp. It appears to have been the wish of the Englinh at once to take ndyantage of thelr victory mal assanle the north side. It is now known that such n step wouhl almost certainly have Incen successful. . . . Hut ngaln St. Armand offeret iljections." It was then determined "to undertake a flank march round the head of the harturer, and to take possession of thr helghts on the south. It was a dillecult operat in. for the cona try was unknown and rough, r al while in the act of marching the armies were open to any as kault upon thelr left tlank. It was however carrled out unmolested. . . . Ou the 2dith the Eng. lish arrived nt the llttle landlocked barlour of Balaclava, at the foot of the steep hili, forming the eastern elge of the phatean. The tleet, duly warned of the operatlou, had already arrired

RUSALA, 8054.

OVmeen War
nUS81A, 1804.

Io Bt. Aranud. . . . bad now succeeded the dy. wich hed arieen on the 4 th que eneln tow Should Sebestopol be attecked at nnce or not 9 Agila it would appear that Lord Ragian, Sir Eimusd Lyons, and others, were desirous of im. medlate mult. Agala the Fresch, more inatructed in the tachnical rules of war, and supported hy the oplnlon nf Bir John Burgoyne, who commanded the Engish Engfneere, declined the more vigorous sugseation, and it was determined at leat to wilt till the wege guns from the theet were landed, and the artillery tre nf the enemy weakened, In preparation for the sasault. In the light of subequent knowledge, and perhaps even with the knowledge then obtainahle if Mghtiy used, It appearn that in all the three inatiodee meationed the bolder leas regular coume would have been the true Fisdom. For Menschitont had adopted a comewhat atrange meagure of de. feace. He had given up all hopen of using hia feet to adrantage. He had caused some of his reamels to be sunk at the entrance of the harbour, which was thus cloned; and having drawn the crews, some 18,000 in number, from the ships, he had intrusted to them the defence of the towa, and had marehed away with hif whole stasy. The garrison did not now number more i. n 25,000, and they were quite unft - leing silurs- for operations in the feld. The defeaces were not those of a regular fortress, bint rather of an entrenched position

There were in Sebastopol two mee who, worklug together, made an extraordinary use of their opportuaitics. Kornilots, the Admitrai, forcing himseif to the front by aheer nobieness of character and enthuslasm, found In Colonel von Todleben, at that time on a voluntary mission in the fowa, an assistant of more than common genius.

The decision of the allies to await the lauding of their slege traln was more far reaching thea the generals at the tine concelved, although some few men appear to have understond its nectssary fesult. It in fact changed what was intended to be a rapid coup de maiu into a regular sloge - and a reguiar siege of an limperfect and inethelent character, becanse the allied torees Were ant strong eaough to invest the town.
Preparatiou tad not been male to meet thé change of circumstances. The work thrown apon the alministratou was beyond its powers: the terrible suffering of the aring during the eu. suing winter was the 'nevitable result. ...T The bounbardment of the suburb, includiag the Mahnkofl uad the Redan, fell to the Englisit: the Fronch andertook to carry it out against the cliy itself, directing their fre princijully inginst the Flagstiff bittery. . . Slowly the siege tmius were landed and brought into position in the hat. teries narked out by the engineers. ... It was aut till the 16 th of October that these proparations were completed. . The cuergy of Korni. tof and the skill of Todieben had hy this time roused the temper of the garrison, aud had rendered the defences far more formidable; and in the begianiag of Octuber meaus had been taken 10 persaade Menschikof to allow considerable bodies of troops to return to the town. the 1 ith the great bombardment berau. The Engiath batterles guiued the mastery wrer those opposed to them, but the efforts of the Freach, auch reduced by the fire of the besleged, were brought to a speedy conclusion by a great ex plosion within their lines. Cenrobert ment word to Lonl lagian that he ahould be unshle to re. sume the fre for two dinga. Tho attack hy the fleet had been til little purpone. ... Every day till the 8sth of Octolmef the fre of the alles was continued. But umder cover of this fre (alwaya encounterml hy the censelese energy of Todleben) the change hail begun, and the French were at tackiog the Flagstati bastion by means of regu. lar approaches. On that lay the slege was comewhat rudely Interrupterl. The presence of the llumian army outshle the wall and the defect in the pooltion of the allies berame evident." 251-259. Bright. Hist. of Eng., 183\%-1890, pp. 251-250.

Also ix; A. W. Kinglake, The Inenvion of the Crimea, t. 8-4.
A. D. 1854 (October-November). The Crimean War: Balaclave and Inkermann, "The Russian general mon showed that he was deternined not to alluw the allies to carry on their operations azalnst the town unilaturbed. Large partles of Ifussian soldiers had for some time been reconnoitring in the direction of Balaelava, showiug that an attack in that quarter was meditated. At length, on the 2sth of October. an army of 80,000 Ifuasiaus alvanced against the English poattion, hoping to get puswession of the harbours and to cut the alles of from their supplles, or at any rate to destroy the stores which had already been landed. The fart of the works on whleh the IRussian tronps first cane was oecupled by redouhts, defended by a bunly of Turkiwh recruits, te ently urrived from Tunls, Who, after offering a very feeble resistance, tiod in confusion. Hut when the IRnssians, fushoul with this first mitecesa, attempted to phirsue the adrantagethey lad galued, ther man encountered a very alifferent fie in the Ifighamiers, contmanded by sir Colin Campheil, what here the Irunt of the leussinn attark with grout tirmoess. The British eavalry purticularly distiugulshed themselves in this action, routing a far sinperior force of kussinn cavalry. It wiss lit the consse of this engagement thut the unfortunate biumber eccurredi, in consequeace of which 00 inen [the - Light Irrigute ' Inmortalized by Teuuysou] gatloped forth ngulust un army, anil ouly 188 cante back, the rest laving beel kilied, wounded, or made prisoners. I long, unatisfactory controversy was carriod on sthe time ufter, hiving for Its object to decide who was to blame for throw. lug uwity, in this fowlish manacr, the lives of so many gillant men. It secems that the orders were not very elearly expressed, and that the gederal-i,aril Latan - by whom they were re. ceivel, misetpprehemded them more comphetely than a man in his position ought to have dome. In the elul, the Ifisimins were forced to retire, whthout haviug effected their object, Lut as they retained some portion of the ground that had ben orenpied by the allies at the commencement of the hatile, they too chamed the victory, and Te. Deums were sung all over liusslia in honour of thls frigmentary success. However, the lius. sian commater did not abmadon the hope of being able to obtain possesslou of Batatelvar. Ou the very diy following the affair which hion fust been related, the Russians within the thwa ande a sortle with a force of about 6,000 men: but near the vilage of Inkermann they encountered so strong a resistauce from a far inferior force, that they were ohliged to retreat. The Russian

RL'AB1A, IS54-1856.

army at Balaclava hat heen prepared to entiper. ate with them: but the prompthtude sul vigour Wlth wblch the allies repelienl the wortle prevented the Rlimans from entretrehing themarives at Inkprmann, nal thins frustrated the plan of a comililued attack on the alleal poolion which hat probubly twen formel. The village of Inker. mamn, whlib whe the ecene of this skirntah, afortly after wltaramed a more deadly and dect. sive contert. It was on the morning uf Sunday, Sureniluer Sth, that the appromith of the liamslan arniy was heroml, whlle It wassill concouled from vlew liy the mists whils overlonim the liritiah pomition. TInt army fand inern areatly licreawel Hy the arplval of large minforemuentw, and every eftort had lwen nade to exalt the conrage of tle oddlers: they land Ixen stimulated by rellghus servleres and exlourtntions. an well as ly an ulanndatis supply of ardont apirits; and they came un In the fill conflemere shat they wonlit be able to awirn the comparatively simail Dritimli firce from the fromition It crenpled. That powition wis the centre uf a grund attack made ly the whente line. alnt uriur. The obmenty preventes the gener. ala of thic alles from dlecovering what was golng on, of from clanfly dimerrniog, among a seriea of sttucha on allle reit purta of their positlon, while were monl, and wheh wire mere felnte. Timere was agenif denl of confumbon ln both armles: bnt the ulsentity, on the whole. favonfrel the lius. mans, who had rucelved thelr listructions before they wet oist, and were moving together in lurge musines. It was, In fnct, a liattle fought pell. nellt, man ngulatit nun, and regiment agalmist reglmunt, witir very little gildance or directon from the eommanding ofticers, and consequently onc In whlelt the auperlor skill of the llefitish gave them little minantage. The prineipal puint of nttuck thromshinit nis the platenu of liker. namin, ixouplad by the Ginarda and a few Ibritsh reghinetis, who maintitined $n$ long and uncqual atruggie agalnat the maln bedy of the linssian ariay. It wha, in fact, $n$ hami-to-liund contest betwreusuperlor clvillzation on the one fund aud whiperlop fitmbers on the other, in whicit it Is probithle that the ammll lirithal f.apew winhl guat, the nhlest of the Frunch generals, with a solditer is lavilnct at once divined, annd all the olsorurlty, turnomil, and conformou, that Ite BrltIxlt puation was the renl pulat of attack; and therefore. leaving a purthon of his force to defend hise ow 11 poutilom. he marched oll to Inkermann, and ueser haited till hils troops churgeel tive lins alans $u$ lth sucit firy that they drive them down the lill, and ilecided the fate of the Intile In favour of the allics. . .. Deanwlille Mr. Stelney llephert, the minister nt war, liad suceceeted In faducing Niss Florence Nightingale, well know. In lamdun for laer sklifint and self.denyIng lec. nevilente, tu go out mat take charge of the military lospitais fir whili the wommed midlers were recelved. Evirythag conuected wilh the thomplin is there wis in in state of the most chaote confuslom. The niedient ant uther storea which hasi Inern seut out were rotting in the Ifolds of vessels, of in placres where they were not wanted. I'rovislons had buen despatched In abondsace. and yet nothlag conld be found to support neen who were slamly dying from exhaustlon. The syatem of check and counter-check. which bad heen devised to prevent waste and extravagance in the time of pesce, proved to be the very cause of the moet prollgious wate, extravaganre, mad Inefteleacy in the grout war Is whleh kingisal whe now embarked. The mart of dletaturlisi su thority whleh had been conferrell on Miwe Sight. Ingale, supported by her ows admirsble or ganin. Ink nid adminintritive mhliliy, enablewl lier to anbotitute orier for confudon, wal jricure fir the multitinlen of wounded men who e'tue under her care the comforts as well mat the mulleal titendance they neerled. She arrived at Heutan with her nurses on the very day of the Imitile of Inkermann. Winter was artilng In in the crimen wh unusual rgour and arverity."- W. . Moles worth, fliat. of Eng., 18:3n) 18it, f. il, ih. i.

Atmo in: E. II. Solan, Illuatrufal llint. of the Hire. Hiot, of the linainn Il'ar, ch. i-N.
A. D. z854-185s.-Slege and capture of Kars.-" Every where uasucreasful in E'upupe. tive İusalane were more firtunate In Asia. Townerls the clewe of 18.4 , the Turkinh army it Kinrs was in a wretelied and domorailsud cratl. thin. Its unantiafactory atak, and the revormelt hal experienced, resultiog. It wha well known, from the miseonduet of the Turkish otliclais, In. duced tie IBritinh government to ejpjolnt colonel Willuus as a commlabloner to exunilar Into the causes of prevlonis fallures, and indioviour to prevent a repettion at them.

Colonei Wis. llame, attended only liy mnjor Teemhore and Ir. Sandwith, arrived at Karn at the lattir ent of September, 1854, where he was recilverl with the bunour due tu hla positlon. Kars, lit past tmen conddered the key of Asia Mluor, Is ' $n$ irne Asl.
 a fortress partly $\ln$ rulas, bint onew cembibiricl most formudable. On insperethig the Turkish army there, colunel Willama found the invol in rage; their pay fifteen and even elghtion uuntha In arrear; the lonsea half starverl; dlaclpline so relaxed that it condd ie enrecely madd to ralat and the officers addleted to the liowent vices and niont disorderly hables.

Thought treater with an unparionable apprelliousnexs and aeg. lect by lond Stratford de Redeliffe, the brithoh amhassadur at Constantinople, colund Whillams micecedell in promutlag a proper dlacinilne, and In serebring the men froin being plututerd by thele officers. In the Junungy of tsin, the Turkish gavernmeut granted culond Wifliams the rank of terik, of general in the Ottonan army. tugether with the tite of WHilame l'ushm. The Inaetivity of the IKusslan army al Gumirl excited much surprise; but notwlthsi ullng the condl. thon of the Turks, they permlt ajping to pass array, and aummer to arrlve, before artlve hostilities were resmuned. . . . During this periud, the Turke at Kars bad heen employed, under the alrectlon of colonel Lake, In throwing up fort:cations around tite town, which gradually as. sumed the appearance of a formbiably intrencherd camp. Early in June the liusslans left Gunart, and encamperl wilthin five leagues of Kurs. They were entimated at 40,000 nren: while the Tarkish troops amounted to about 15,000 nien, who had been famlinarised with defeat, and scourged by fever and the scurvy. In addition to this, their provisiona were inaufleleat to cabbie them to austaln a slege of any conslderable duration, and tlieir atcik of ammunition wis rery low The IRusslans made a partlai attack on the town oa the 16 th of June, but they met with a repulse.

The road to Erzeroum was in tbeir pusset

RUSBIA, $1004-1880$

don, and the euppliew Intended for the Turkefell into thetr handa. In effert, they harl blocknded Kar by itreming cordon of troap around it A perlox of drwary Inaction followed slite move. ment of the Rumalana, broken oniy by triviai skirminher at the outpmati. Want was aiready felt within the tuwn, and the jproperet of murrender or startition was itmuinelat. ... Omar 1'rala, and a large luxiy of Turkinh eronjon from hu- Crimea, hat isniled at butotm, muif it wae esfected that they woill soon arrive to palse the slege of Karm. This circumstance, exiurring hortly after the arrival of the new of the fofl of sefnumopol, indurevi many of the offleere of the bexlegend army to Irileve that the Itusilana wert about to retire. Thin maphime was strength. ened by the fact, tiat, for mevernl dinyn, farge ponvoge af heavily fuien wiggomm were oitmerved leaviag the liasminn camp. Generai Vilitamas. buwever, was not deceiverd loy chls artithe, and correctly regurded it as the predude so an ixten. slve attack "poun Kits. An hour before dawn on the seth of septumiker, the tramp of troxpix and the rumble al artilery wheels was heard In thr destance, and the rurkish gurrionon made burrl, preparations to reielve the foe. Sown the: ureuliglt reveajed a tark inoving mans In th. lley. It was an alvanclup column of the co, . 5 , who hat louped to take the Turks by emrprise. In thts they were develvedi for nul manter were they whilit mange, than a eritahing shawer of grape Juformed the that the Moslefing were on the alert. The inttle conmenced almomat Imuedhately. The nowndants rushed up the hill with a shout, nud ndvanced In ciose voluman un the freastworks and redoulits. From these works a inurderous tire of musketry and rithes was poured forth, alded by showers of grape from the great guns. This tuld whith terrible clievt upon the dense inasses of the fox. who fetl In herps. Mhblied with shot, the 1tinsafaus Wrere complelply iroken, and setit hemdlonf down the GIII. lenving limudreds of dead behtud them.

Hal not the Turklah eavalry twern lestroyed by starvathon - a clrcuustance whheh rendered pirsult luppssible - the Humslan army might have bern almost analhilnted. The Turks lind obte innen in unequivocul vletory, after a battle of marlyg meven hosits durstion. Their foss did mell crreed 463 killed, of whom 101 were townsperyphe, und isist wounded. That of the Rusishus way enormones: 6,300 of thetit were left letod upen the tield, and it is sain that they corried 7 (1)n .inn wommed of the ground. Though the Rusians had suffored a severe revirse, they wore not drlven from the position they belid prior to the buttle. and were enabled to rewime the blockade of the elty with as much atrictnest as before. The sufferinigs of the unhappy garrison mind inhabitunts of Kars form one of the inost terrible pletures inchleutnt to this war. Choldra und famine raged within the town: und thase who were enferhed by the last frequintly fell victims to the firat. The linspitaid were ermwded with the slek but the nortrishment they riefuirit. "ild bot be whisited. The flesh of starve? ' wis had becomur a hixury, and the ritions of the solders cunvisted only of a small supply of cuame bread. soll a kind of broth madre.. ly of hour atsd Whatr. . . Chlidren dropt and dled in the strets: and every morning skejeton-like corpses were fuud in various parts of the camp. The moldlers demerted in larce numbers, sad dised. pitne wat almumet an ead. ... As all hope of rellef from thelim i'asha or Oriar Pabs had ex. plrei, senerni Wilitume remolired to put an end to thewe raimerlen lyy lifrentering the cown th the fow, Articlee of murrearier werw algnerl on the 2sth of November. The fall of Kara was a dhgrace mad a meandei to ali who mighit bave cuntributed to prevent It."-T. Gampey, Iliot, If Eny i, Uro. Jlf.-I'impriss, eh. 56 ( 0.8 ).
Alme ts: T, il. Ward. Ilumphrey Sinderith, ch. D.-A. Lane Peole, Life of Mruefurd Cisnning. ch. 81 (c. 2).
A. D. 1854-1856-Unirultful pesce negotiatimne at Vienaa.-Renewed bombardment if Sebaetopni. - Battle of the Tchernaja. - Repulse af the Engich from the Redan. -Taking if the Malakhnf by the French, -The concreee at Parle--Peace.-In Xiveinlur. 18.54 , hin Minister at Vlobun, to algnity to the Westera lowern his willuguesi to concluile prace on the Inasls of "the fonir pointa" whiteh the lutter has ink lown in the previous apring. These " four phata" were an follown: "(1) The protuetorate which fuswla hud hitherto exerelmed over the I'rlarlpalleles was to lre rephared by a coblective gharuntere ; (2) the navisuthon of the mouths of the Danule. Wus to he fresel fromallmperlimentw; (3) the trenty of $[\mathrm{N} \|]$ was to le revised fin the Inturests of the Finropern equilitiriam; and (\$) tussia was to rehounce all ofllelal protectorate over the sultan's subjucts, of whatever rallglon they thight be.

The ('zar's new move wam bot entircly successfiti. It illd wot prevent Anstria from conchating a chase armagement with the Viontert I'ower, and It Induced her, fu concert with Fornace and Englami, to detine more atrictly the preetse mematng attuched to the four polints. Wlh wotue disapjohatmeat, Jiussla was dormed to flad that crery sucuessive explanathon of these juhats involved some fresh sultritiee on her own jurt. The freedom of the lower Dan. ulre, she wus now told. conld not be secured unless she surreulcred the terrlory betwern that rlver and the IPruth whele she himd acquired at the treaty of Alrianophe: the revision of the trenty of istl, she was nssiared, must put an end to leer preponderauce in the Black Eeta. These new exnethons. howevor, thit ur deter the Czar from his desire to treat. 13y no other means was It posslble to prevent Austria from taklug part ngulust him: amd a comference, even if it ulthmately provini abortlee. Would la the interim conthe her to nerntrility. L゙ater these circumstances, Neholas robserited to negothate.
The conference which it was declded to hold in i)ecember did not assemble till the foltowing Harch. The negothation which had been agreed to by Nberdecu, was carried out under Pabmerston: and, with the double object of temporarily rhlling himself of an incouvenlent collengue. and of assuring the presence of a statesuman of adequate rink at the conference, Palmerston entrusted its conduct to Jussell. Whlle linssel: was on his way to Viennu, an event occurrel of momentous lmportance. Sure troubled at the events of the war, alarmed at the growing strength of hls enemles, the Emperor of Jussia had ncither hoart aor strengfl tustruggle agaius a sllght Hiness. Ills sudfeu death [March 2 , 1855] naturally made a profound Impression on the mind of Europe.

Alexander, his successor,
a monarch whone relgn commenced with dis. aster and ended with outrage, at once announced his adherence to the pollcy of his father. His accession, therefore, dld not interrupt the proceedings of the Conference; and, In the first Instance, the i!plomatlsts who assembled at Vlenna succeeded in arriving at a welcome agreement. On the first two of the four polnts all the Powers adm'ted to the Conference were substantlally $\ln$ accerd. On the third point no such agreement whs posslhie. The Western Powers were determined that an effectual hmi. tatlon shonld be placed on the naval strength of Russla In the Black Sera; and they detined thls llmit by a stlpulation that she should not adrl to the slx ships of war which ther had ascertinned she had stlll athoat. Inussia, on the contrary, reganded any such condition as injurious to her dignity and her rights, and refused to assent to it. Russia, however, illd not veuture on absolitely rejecting the proposal of tite allies. Instead of dolag so, she offered elther to consent to the opeuing of the Dardunclles and the Bosphorus to the shlps of war of all nations, or to nllow the Sultan a diseretion in determining whether he would open them to the ressels either of the Western Powers or of Rnssia. The Western Powers, however, were tirm ln their lleterminathon to prevent the theets of Russin from masing Into the Dediterranem, nud rifused the whernative. With its rejertlon the Conference practically terminnted. After its meruluens sepmated. bowever, Bnol, the Austrim . Hnister, endeav. oured to erolve from the Rassim offer a possible compromise.

The rejection of the Anstrian blternative necessitated the continummer of the war. Bat the strusple was resimmed unter conditions very differeut from those on which it hand previonsly been coublucted. Attstria. indecel, considered that the rejection of her proposal reheased her from the necessity of actively joining the Western Powers, und, instemal of tiking part ju the war, reduewl her armatments. Chat the Western l'owers obtained other aid. Tle litte Stite of Sardiuia sent a eontingront to the (rimea; later on in the yemr sweden jeiturd the allinnce. Fresh contingents of tronps ripidly mamented the strength of the Fremel aud Enghish armies, and fiucr wemther as well as better mangement hanished diverse from the (amp). ["uler these circunstances the bumb:ard]. ment was remewed in April. In Hiyy ancerss. finl attack on Verteh amd Venikate, it the extriole exit of the Crimen, proved the mams of luterrepteng commanication betwern subatopul atul the (intersian provinces, atul of doxtrosius viat uthre intermed for the sustrabuce of the girriwth. lat , hate the French, to whose come minul loliwier, a Narshal of more robnst tibre

 currently seiacol iunther vantige gromm. Dlenat
 faneied that the were withowing the berginuine of the cuth lit the enll wist not tuenme insmediately. I great ise:tult, deliveremb on the 1sth of June, hy the French on the Milukhuff. ly the English on the Redin, failerl: aud its fall ure, amonss wher emonernences, broke the heirt of the ohl moldiar [Lard laghan] what for nine noouths hald conmunhlel the English army llis. crapacity it it ketured din's mut sniter from any comparison with that of his successor, Gell.
eral Bimpson. That ofllcer had been sent out to the Crimea ln the preceding vinter; he had served under Raglan as chlef of the staff; and he was now selected for the command. He had, at least, the credit which attachen to any military man who holds a responsible post in the crisis of an operation. For the crisis of the campslga had now come. On both sides supreme efforts were made to terminate the struggle. On the 16 th of August the Russian army ln force crossed the Tehernaya, attacked the French Haes, but experienced a sharp repulse. On the sih of September the assault of June was repeated; and though the Britlsh were agaln driven hack from the Redan, the French succeeded ln carrylag the Malakhoff. The Russlans, recognlsing the slg. nltdcance of the defeat, set Sebastopol and their remaining ships on tire, and retreated to the northera bank of the harbour. After operathons, whlch had lasted for nearly a year, the allies were masters of the south glde of the clts. It ls, perhaps, unnecessary to prolong any firther the narrative of operations which liad litile iutlu. ence on history. The story of the defence of Kars and of the bomhardment of Sweaborg have an Interest of thelr own. Bnt they had no cffect on the erents which followed or on the palae which easued. Soon after, the Vienna (oufer. ence was dissolved, indeed, It became evidut that the war was approachlng its close. The cost and the sacrifices which it involvid were making the French people weary of the struggle, and the accidental circumstances, which gare them in Alngust and September the chief share in the glory, disposed them to make perter. The roisons which made the French, however, caper for peace, did not apply to the English. Ther, on the contrary, were mortitied at their finitrres Their expectatlous had heen raised by the valour of their army at Alma, at Balaklava, aud at Inkermm. But, since the duy of lukerman, their own share in the contest himl ndded no new page of splendour to the English story, The English tronps had taken no part in the bittle of the Tehernaya; their assanlting columms had heen driven lack oa the 1sth of Jnne; thoy had leen repulsed in the tinal attack on the lifdan; nud the heroie conduct of their own comatrymen nt hars had not prevented the fill of that fortrics. Hen at home, anxions to accomut for the firilure of their expectations, were heginning to mily that Eugland is like the runuer, never rully ripe for the strugble till he has gained his memml wind. They were relnetant that she slomh re tire from the contest at the moment when, har. ing repaired her defecthe almhistrition and reinforeve her shattered army, she was in al busition to eommand a victory. Whatever whes, however, individual Englishmen might entertain, responsible statesmen, as the autumn wore en, conld not concenl from themselves the beressity of theling some honomrable memas for terminatin the wing. In Getober the lBritish Cabinet lemand with dismay that the Freneh Emperor had deeided on withlrawhig 100,010 men from the (rimoin. About the same time the members of the Government learned with equal alarm that, if war were to be enntinued at all, the French public were themanding that France should secure some advanture in Poland, in Italy, and on the left bank of the Rhinc. In November the French miaistry took a mueh more extreme course, and coacerfed with Anstrin terms of peace without the knowledge of Engiand. . . . It was impossibie say ionger to depend on the co-operation of Frasce, and... It was foliy to contlnue the arruggie without her assistance. The protocol which Austrla had drawn up, and to whlch Frace had - ssented, was, with some modifica. tloas, adopte. hy Britain and presented, as an uttlmatum, to Russia by Austria, In the mlddle of Janiary, 1856, the ultimatum was accepted by lussla; a Congress at which Clarendon, as Forrign Minister, personally represented his mutry, was assembled at Paris. The picnipofrat....ing, meetling on the 25th of February, at ont tered on a suspenslon of hostllities. Uñirereslly dim,n ed towards peace, they found no difficinit in sceommodating differences which Lad prived. itreconcllable in the prevlous year, at. 1 ria th 30 th of March, 1856, peace was $\therefore$ ichel. Tne peace whieh was thus concluded aumaic? be right of the Porte to partielpate in the advantages of the pubilc lnw of Europe; it pledged all the contraeting partles, In the case of any fresh mlsunderstanding with the Turk, to resort to mediatlon before using force. It required the Suitan to issue and to communleate to the Powers a firman amellorating the condltioa of hls Cloristlan subjects; it deciared that the communieation of the firman gave the Powers no right, either collectlvely or separatils, to Interfere between the Sultan and his subjects; it nucutrallsetl the Black Sea, opening its waters to the mercuntile marine of every nation, hut, with the exceptlon of a few ressels of llght draught neeessary for the serviee of the const, closing them to every vessel of war; it forbade the establishment or maiutenance of arsetuals on the cluress of the Enxine; it cestithlished the free naviration of the banube; It sot batek the frontier if lassia from the Iammb: it gemarantead the privileges and immunitios of the Principalities of Wallachia and Mohdavia: it similarly guarminel the privileges of Servia, thongh it gate the sultim the rirht of arrison in that prosiner: :mul it umbertook that. Russia and Turker alouhirestore the conguests which they tand mithe in lvia [K:irs, ete.] mes from anmerer during the war. Such were the terms on which the war was terminatell. 13 bfore the phenipotentiarios viparalled they were invited by Wotewskl. the Furbern Minister and tirst representative uf Frinere, tu diachsa the comdition of Freece, of the Rumam Miftes, und of the two sideities: to erm. dean the licenee to whicha free press was leming itself in belgium: and to concert measires for the mitigrition of some of the worst evils of matimue war "-(sce jeciatation of l'alis). -s. Walpole, IIist. wt Einf. from 181\%, ch. Ot. Atsis is: E. Ilertslet. The Ming of Eurome by Trully. с. 2. din's 263-2:9.

RUBSIA, 1854-1856.

Congreata in Contral Acia.
A. D. 1855-Accession of Aiexander II.
A. D. 1859. - Improved treatment of the Jews. Are lews: A. I). 1:9i-18NO.
A. D. 1859-1876. - Conquests in Central Asia-Subjugation of Bokhara, Khiva and Khokand. - "The origimal eimme of liussin's appearmee $\ln$ Ciontral Asia or Turkestau may be consillered either the turbulence of the Kirghiz eribes, or the ambltious nad ciearly defined policy of Peter the Great. . . AI. thongh the "Cairina Anne recolved in 1734 the formai surrender of all the Klrghiz hordes, It was not until the present century had far edvanced that the Russian Government could so much as flatter itseif that it had effectually coerced them. .. When the Klrghiz were subjugated Russia found no dificulty in rearhing the iower course of the Jaxartes, on which [ln 1849]. she estahilshed her advanced post at Kazsia, or Fort No. 1. Wlith her nitlmate task thus simpllifed, nothing but the Crimean War prevented Russia's lmmedlate advance up the Jaxartes Into Turkcstan.

The conquest of the Khanate of Turkestan began with thc siege and capture of the forts Chulak Kurgan and Yani Kurgan in 1859; its successful progress Was shown hy the fall of the fortlited towns of Turkestan and Aullata in 1804; and it was brought to a conclusion with the storming of Tashkent $\ln 1865$. The conquest of this Khanate, which lnd been united early In the century with that of Khokand, was thus speedily hehleved, and this rapid and remarkable triumph is ldentl. fied with the name of Generai Tehernaicff. "-
D. C. Boulger, Central Amien Owestions, ch. 1. -
" Khudnyar K'lan, the ruler of Khokand, a noted coward even ln Central Asia, had soon lost hls spirits, and linplored Muzaffar-ell-din-Khan for assistanee. IBokliar:i reputed at that tlme the very stronghold of momi and materlal strength in Central Asia, was soon at hand with an army outnumbering the lhusslan adventurers ten or fifteell times; an army in name only, hut conslsting chiefly of a rabble, ill-armed, and devoid of any military yualities. I $y$ dint of preponderating numbers, the Bokhariots succeederl so far as to inflict $n$ loss upon the daring Rassian generai at Irdjar, who, eonstrained to retrcitt puen Tashkend, was at once dubesed by his superiors In St. Peturshu:"世, and, instequl of pritses hointir bestowed upon him far the eapture of Tanakemis he had to fael the werght of lunssian ingratitulu: Ilis successor, feneral ikmmomosky, played the part of a consolidator and a prepatrer. and as sum ns this duty wias fultillel he likewise was sup.r sulet by (hencral Kimlifann, a (iorman from the Battic fussiau provinces, mitiner tle cutalities of his predecessors in one persom, imbl hingr accorelingly the work entrinstel to him with pluek amd luck in it eomparatively short time. In was the lavartes valle $y$, turether with samarkand, the former capinal of 'limur, fell into the hamds of laswi:a, and Gemeral Kinufmann would have pro.
 cul-alin-lihim. . . lanl not volnutarily submittoi and luergen for peare. At the treaty of Serpul. the Emir was granticl the free possession of the commer whicht was left tu hin, heginuing be yenul hermineh, as far as Tchareljui in the sonth.
"If courae the Emir hand to pledere himself to be a true and fathful ally of Russia. He had to pay the lumy war indeminty he hind to place his suns under the tutorship of the (ezirr in arder to be bromght up at St. Pctersburg nntl nhimitcly lie had to evde three points on his sonthern frontier - manely. Djam, kerki, and Tehardjul. : . Scircely five years had clapmal when Rinscia cast her eyes beyonl thi Oxus upon the Klian of Khiva. A pleat fur n 'casus helli' was soon unearthed. . The Russian preparations of war had been realy for a long time, provisions were previously secural on iliffervit points, and General Kaimmann, notorinu!ely fand of theatrlal pacamtios, marched through the most perilous route across bottouless sands from the banks of the Yaxartes to the Oxus [1873].

Without tightiug a
slagle batale, the whole country on the Lower Oxus was conquered. Russla agaln showed herself magnauimous hy replacing the young Khan upon the paternal throne, after having taken away from bln the whole country on the right bank of the Oxus, and lmposed upon his neck the burden of a war indemnity whleh whll weigh him down as long as he lives, and cripple even his successors, if any such are to come after him. Three more years passed, when Russla again began to extentl the limits of her possessions in the laxartes Valley to warls the East. In July. 1876, one of the famons lussian emhassles of amity was casually (?) present at the Court of Khudayar Khan at Khokand, when suddenly a rebelion broke out, endangering not oniy the lives of the Russian embassy lut also of the allied ruler. No wonder, therefore, that Russla had to take care of the frlend in dlstress. An army was despatched to Khokame, the rebellion was quelled, and, as a naturni consequence, the whole Khanate incorporated Into the dominlons of the Czar. The Khokandians, especially one portion of them callad the Kiptchaks, did not surreuder so easily as their brethren In Bokhara and Khiva. The struggle lwt ween the conquerer and the native poople was a bloody and protracted one; and the butchery at Namaugan, au engagement In which the afterwards famous General skobeleff won his spurs, surpasses all the accounts hitherto given of Inussian cruelty. Similar scenes occurred in Endidjan and other places, untll the power of the Kiptchaks, noted for thelr bravery all over C'intral Asia, was broken, and 'peace, a pendant to the fimous tahlean of Vereshtchagin. Heace at shipka, prevaidel throughout the valleys of Firghama, enabling the Russtan cagle to spread his wings undisturle lly over the whole of Central Asia, beginning from the Caspian Sua iu the west to the lssyk Kul in the east, and from siberia to the Turkoman samis in the south."-A. Vambery. The Coming sirugyle for Indin, ch. 2. lew is: $\mathbf{F}$. von Heltwali, The Ruseians in Central dsit, ch. - $-11,-\mathrm{J}$. IIutton, Central Axiat. ch. 12 and 18.
A. D. 1860-1880. - The rise, spread and character of Nihilism. Sie Nillinsm.
A. D. 1861. - Emancipation of serfs. See Slavgiry, Mritheval. and Modelp: Ifessian

A. D. 1864:-Organization of Public Instruction. Sie Edccation, Noders: Eeruleas Con'sthen-Ressia.
A. D. $1867 .-$ Sale of Alaska to the United States. Ser Alanka: A. [). 1867.
A. D. 1869.1881. - Advance in Central Asia from the Caspian.-Capture of Geok Tepe.Subjugation of the Turkomans.-Occupation of Merv. - - 1) own to 1 Ni9 the Russian menance into Central Asia was condicted from Orenburg and the varlous military posts of Western Sitheria. Year by year tho fruntler was pushed to the couthward, und the mapof the Asiatic possessions of Russia required frequent revislon. The ing chain of the Altai Mountains passed Into the control of the Czar; the Arat Sea became a Russian lake; and vast territories with a sparse population were brought under Russian rule. is far man country extends westward as far as the Casplian sea. To put a stop to the organized thleving of the Tureomans, and more especlally to increase the extent of territory uuder their control, and open the land routc to India, the Russlans occupled the eastern shore of the ( ${ }^{\text {is }}$. plan ln 1860. A milltary expeditlon was landed at Krasnovodsk, where it built a fort, and twik permanent possession of the comntry la the: name of the Czar. Polnts on the castern euast of the Caspian had been occupled daring the. tis of Peter the Great, imd ngaln during ther rei. nf Nehoias I., but the vecipation of the repiont nits only temporary. The force which matulialied Itself at Krasnovolsk conslsted of a few companies of Infantry, two sotnias of Cossictics, and half a diozen pleces of arthlery. Three men who aftel wards obtained conshlerible promineuce la the affalrs of Central Asia, aus] one of whom galned a world-wide reputatlon as a sollicer. were attached to this expedition. The last was sikoheleff, the hero of Plevia and the [Russo-Turkish campaign of 1877-78. The others were stolietod and Grinlekoff.

The Lomut Turcomans ia the Caspian region male no resistamec; they are far less warlike than the Takie Turcomans farther to the rast, who afterwarils becoune the defenters of Geok Tcpe.

From $1 \times 1!!+101 \times 3$ there were gumerons skirmlshes nul reconnoitrings, during whlch the steppes were protty neli explored as faras Klzil-Arrat. General mbletnill was in command intii $188^{\circ} 2$, when he was succeeded by Colonel Markusoff, who pinshal his explorations to the wells of Irdy. then hending to the southwest, lie pissed Kizil. Irvint on his return to Krasmovixalsk. Tlucre apuraral to be no obstnele to a Russian alvauce into the heart of the conntry. IBut when (ianeril lamakia was ordered there during the :wirs A twoed 1873 and 79 , le fonud that bevoul kiail. Irvat were the Tekke Turcomans, who sicturis itetermined to make a decited opposition to the Dnscovite designs. . . He adrancorl $¥$ ith 4 , tho men 1 del reached Geok Tepe without resistance. hut to sooner was lie in front of it than the Turcomans fell upon hims. Ife was sevarely defeated and made a hasty ritroat to li rasmovedsk whth the remnant of his army. Gemeral Tergnkasoff was next appointed to the commanul, but when he saw the difticulties coufromting him he resigued. IIe was sucreeded by Geberal Pet. rnssweltch under the chief command of skoleke I . Thus from Stolietoff to Skobeleff there uere no fewer than seven geucrals who latel iricy to cegaquer the Tekke Turcomans. Nkobrloit, sering the vast dithenaltes of the sitmation, matured a skilful nod selentitic plan of operations, tur with leo ohtalneal the lmperal sanetion. . . . shubed elf's first work [ 1880 ] was to serure a wife trins. port, "stabllsh is regular line of steamerabers if (asplan, to hinith suitabho dirks, secure 2u, 000 camels, and hmid a railwiay from Hichatovsk to Kiail.Arvat. Michaclorisk is a small bay near Krasnovixlsk and bettur suited as a harbor than the latter place. Shohk-latr's first reconnoltring convinced him that Geok Tepo conld only be taken by a regular sige.
Geok Tepe, sometimes called Goch Tipe' ('The Grcen Ilills'), is situated on the Ihhul masis, la the Tureoman steppes, $38^{7}$ versts (e.i) miles), cast of the Caspian Sea. The chmin of hills calied the Kopet-Dag, lies south and suthweat of Geok Tepe, unci on the other slde If wuched the sandy desert of Kura Kum, with the hill of Gcok on the east. The Turcomans, or rather the Tekke Turcomans, who held It are the most numerous of the nomad tribes lu that rugion

They are reported to count sbout $100,000 \mathrm{klb}$. itkas, or tents; reckoning 5 persons to a kihitka, thls would give them s strength of half a mililion. Their great strength in numhers and their fighting ahilitles enahied them to choose their position and settle on the most fertile oases slong the northern border of Persla for centuries. These oases have been renowned for their productiveness, and in consequence of the abundance of food, the Tekkes were a powerfui race of men, and were feared throughout ali that part of Asia. . . . The fortress of Geol Tepe at the time of the Russlan advance conslsted of walls of mud 12 or 15 feet high towards the north and west, and 6 or 8 feet thick. In front of these walls was a ditch, 6 feet deep, supplied by a running stream, and behind the walls was a raised piat form for the defenders. The space between the first and second interior wail was from 50 to 60 feet wide, and occupied hy the klbltkas of the Tekke Turcomans and thelr families. The second wall was exactly like the onter one." The Russian sicge was opened at the beginning of the year 1881. "The irst paraliel, withln 800 yards of the walls, was successfuliy cut by Jannary 4th. From that date lt was a regular siege. interrupted occasionally by sallies of the Tekkes within the fort or attacks hy those outslde. In one of these fights General Petrussovltch was killed. Tite besleglng army was abont 10,000 strong, while the besieged were from 30 , (M) 1 , to 40.000. . . . Throughout the siege the Tircomans made frequent saliies and there was almost continaous fighting. Sometimes the Turconians drove the Russians from the outposts, and If they had heen as well armed as their besiegers it is highly probable that Skobeleff would hive eared no better than did Lomakin in his disas. trons campaign. . . . The storming columas were ordered to he ready for work on January 2th. . At 7 o'clock ln the norning of the Eth, Gididaroff advanced to attack the first fartifcation on the south front, supported by 36 gans. The wail hal alrealy been half crumbled down by an explosion of powier and completely briken by the tiring of a dynanlte nine. At 11.30 the assault took place, aud during the action the mine on the east front was exploded. It wis lail with 125 cwt. of gnupowder, and h its explosion completely buried handreds of Tetkes. . . . About 1. 30 P. M. GaidaroII carried the southrestern part of the wails, and a battle rased in the interlor. Haif an hour later the fiussians were in possession of Denghli-Tepe, the hill redoubt commanding the fortress of Geok Tepre. The Tekkes then seemed to be panicstricken, and took to dight leaving their fumilies anil alf their goods behlnd. . . . The ditches to Geok Tipe were filied with corpses, and there were 4.000 dead in the Interior of the fortress. The loss of the enemy was enormone. In the pursuit the liusslans are said to fiate cut down no less than 8,000 fugitlves. The total loss of the Tekines during the siege, capture, and pursuit was estiunated at 40,000 . ... Skobelefi pushed on in pursuit as far as Askabad, the capitsl of the Akhal Tekkes, 27 mlles east of Geok Tepe, und from Askahad he sent Kuropatkin with a reconnoltring column half.way across the desert to Merv. Scobelefi wanted to capture Hers, but he did not feel strong enough to make the attempt. Kuropatkln was recalled to Askabid, which remained the frontler post of the Russians for several months, untll ciramstances favored the advance upon Sarakt and the Tejend, and the subsequent swoop upon Merv, with lts blooliess capture. [February, 1884]. Tic siege and capture if Geok Tepe was the most important victory ever achleved by the Russians In Central Asia. It opened the way for the Russlan advance to the frontier of India, and carried the boundaries of the empire southward to those of Persia. In the interest of humanity, It was of the greatest importance, as it hroke up the system of man-stealin: and lts attendant crueitles, which the Turcomans had practised for centuries. The people of Northern Persla no longer live ln constant terror of Turcoman raids; the slave narkets of Central Asia are closed, and douhtless forever."-T. W. Knox, Decisive Battles since Wiaterho, ch. 22. - "There ls a vast tract of country $\ln$ Central Asia that offers great possibilitles for settlement. Eastern Afghan, and Western Turkestan, wlth an area of $1,500,000$ square miles, have a popniatlon Whlch certainly does not exceed $15,000,000$. or ten to the square mile. Were they peopled as the Baltic provinces of Russia are - no very extreme supposition - they would support $90,000,000$. It $\$ 9,000,000$. It ls concel vabie that something like this may be realized at no very distant date when railroads are carried across C'hina, and when water - the great want of Tuckestan-is provided for by a system of canadisation and artesian welis. Meanwhile lt is important to observe that whatever benefit is derived from an increase of population iu tbese regions will mastiy fall to China. Tiat empire possesses the hetter two-thirds of Turkestan, and can pour in the surplus of a popnlation of 400.1060 .1000 . Rissia can only contribute the surpius of a population of about 100, (нн), 000); aml thought the kussian is a fearless and geral colonist, there ure 80 muny spaces In Russia in Enrope to be tilled np, so many growing towns that need work. men, so many connter-attractions in the gold bearing districts of Siberia, that the work of peopling the ontlying dependencies of the empire is likeiy to he very gradual. Indeed it is reported thit Russia is enconragiug Clinese colonists to settle in the parts about Merv."C. II. Pearson, Vational Lifc and Character, pp. 43-44.
$4-31$

Alno In: Gen. Skobeloli, siege and dsault of Denghit. Tipe (Geok-Teje): Official Rept.-C. Jarvin, The Rusiths at the Gates of Herat, ch. 1-2
A. D. 1877-1878.-Successful war with Tur-key,-Siege and reduction of Plevna,-Threatening advance towsids Constantinopie.Treaty of San Stefano.-Congress and Treaty of Berlin. sce Tunks: A. D. 1861-18i\%; 18it1878 ; and 1878.
A. D. 1878-1880.-Movements in Afghanistan. See Afghantstav: A. D. 1869-1881.
A. D. $1879-188 \mathrm{I},-$ Nihilist attempts against the life of the Czar Alexander 11.-His assassinatlon. - In November, 18i9, "the Czar paid his annual vislt to the menorial church at Sevas. topol, when a requiem was celehrated, and itc left the Crimea on November 30. The following evenlng, as his train was enteriug Moscow, followed by another curting hls hidegize, an ex. plosion took place under the baggare trin from a mlue of dynamite below the rails, which destroyed one carriage, and threw seven more ofi the line. He was informed of the cause of the nolse he had just heard, as ine stepped on to the piatform at Joseow, and it proved to he another Nilhilist outrage [see Ninmbish j, deslgned chicfly hy an ex.Jew, wibo escaped to France, aud by Sophia lerorsky, who was afterwards concerued In the Emperor's death. A simiar mine. of winch the wlre was accidentally cut by a passing cart lnefore the train arrived, liad been lald further sumth at Alexanirovsk; aud another nonerer to Oiessa was diseovered in the by the oftleiais, who reversed the usuni justion of the 1 mirerini trains, thereby probubly saving the C'zar's llfe. He telegraphed the same night to the Empress ut Cannes that b. a a arrived sufcly at M oscow. but did not mention his escape, which she iearned from the newspapers, and from her attentiants. In her weak, uervous state, it is not surprising that the effeet was most injurious.

Another piot was diseovered to hlow up the iandiag stage at Uiessa when the Emperor embarked for lilta on his way from Warsaw ln September; but the arrest of the consjirators frustrated a scheme by which huadreds as weli as the sorereign might have jerishedi.

The Revolutionary Comaittee jut forth a circhlar acknowledging their part in the explosion, and calling on the peojle to aid thea ugaiast the Czar. . . A formal seatence of death was forWarded to him at Llvalin by the ikevolutionmry Commiltee la the autumn of isi9; and Decenaber 1 was evidently selected for the Hoscow attemit, being the anniversary of the death of Alexander I. : therefore a fatal day for monarchs in the eyes of the Nihllists. The Empress continued very ill, and her desire to return to IRussia incrensed. At last it was decided to gratify her, ns her case was pronounced hopeless.

The Emperor jolned lier in the trin threc statlons wefore she arrived at St. I'ctecsburg, and drove alone whth her in the cinsed rarriage, ln which she was reaoved from the station to the Winter Paiace. Only a fortnlght iater [February 17, 1880], a diatwical attempt was made to destroy the whole laperial family. The lours when they assembled in the dining-room were well known. . . The Empress was contlned to her room, oniy kept alive by an artificial atmosphere helng preserved in her apartment, which was next to the diaing.room. Her oniy surviving hrother, Prince Alexander of Hesse-Darmstait, had arrived the same eveuing on a visit, and his letter to his wife on the occasion describes the result of the plot: . . We were procceding through a iarge corridor to IHls Jlajesty's rooms. when suddenly a fearfui thunderiug was h"ani. The thooring was malsed as if by an earthquake, the gas lamps were extiaguls ad, and we were left in total darkness. At the sume tiane a horrihie dust and the smeil of gunpowder or dynamite tllied the corridor. Some one shouted to us that the chandelier had fallea down in the safoon where the table was iaid for the dinner of the Imperiai family. I hastened thither with the Czarovitz and the Grand-Duke Viadimir, while Count Adicrberg, in doubt as to what might happen next, heid back the Emperor. We found ail the windows hroken, and the wails in ruins. A mine had expioded uader the room. The dinner was delayed for hali an hour by my arrivai, and it was owing to this that the Imperial family had not yet assemhled in the dining. Lall.' One of the Princes remarked that it was a gas expiosion: hut the Emperor, who fuily re. tained his composure, said. 'O no, I know what it is ;' and it was suhser seatiy stated that for several week past he had found a scuied haw'k. loriered letter on his table every morning. niways contalning the same threat, that lite should not survive the 2nd of March, the twat! tifth anniversary of hls accession. Ilis trat care whs to see that his diaughter was sufe, and he then aske i her to go to the Empress, and jrevent her from belng narmed, while he permuntiy iaspected tite seren of the catastrophe. Ginerid Tulleben was of opinion that 144 lbs , of dinit. mite must lave been used; and one of the cinks - a foreigacr - ani another othelal disapposirel: but none of those concerned in the plot was arrested at that time. Suhsequent information showed that the explosion was lutended for the 2ad of March, but hastened on account of the arrest of some one acquainted with the plot. it was caused by machinery piaced in the the, and - for 6 P. M. It kilied und wounded two serv. $\omega$ and thirty-three brave soldiers of the Fin. nish Guard, who were assembied in the hail mader the dining. room and above the the where the dynamite was laid.

The Rassian and forelgn newspapers teemed with advice to the Emperor to grant a constitutlon, or abilicute la order to save his iife; and it is reported that la a Council of his Dinisters and relations be offered to isand over the sceptre at once to his eldest son, if they agreed that it woald be best fur their own safety, and for Russin; but that he was earnestly requested to continue in power. However this might be, he took an extraordi. nary and declsive stcp. He appointed ua Armenlan, Generai Slelikof, a man of 56 years of age, distinguished in the war with Turkey, and suhsequentiy us Governor of Charkof, to be the temporary dictator of the Empire. With almust ahsolute powers, and over the six Governors. Generai who in 1879 were established through. out IRussia. The Commission was for six months.

The explosion in the Winter Paiace caused the greatest panic in St. P'tersburg, and peopie wouid no loager take tichets for the opera, tili they ascertained that the Eaperor was not likely to be tiere.

The sad condition of the Empress, who lingervi, barily conscious, between life and death, the incerssat Nihliist circulars which day after day were found among his ciothes, or on his writiag table, with the reai attempts made to puiman him in letters and other ways, and of assassins to penetrate fot the Paiace uuder the guise of swceps, petitioners, fire-iighters, and gaanis, the danger to which his nearest relations were ex. posed, and the precautions which he looked upon as a inamiliation that were taken to cusure his sarcty, added to the cares of Empire, mast have readered hls [the Emperor's] exlstence lardly tolerable. It is not surprising that at last he desired to he left to take his chnnce. . . . ile was agaln seen driving in the streets in sn opea droschky, with oniy ints coachman and one Cog. sack. . . In May the Court usually repnired to Gateschina for the summer mancuvres of the troops. .. The Empress, having somewhat railied, desired to go as usuai to Gateschina But eariy in the morning of June 3, she pasoed quietly away in her sleep.
it has been sinct. ascertained that the sihlilists had planned to hlow up the bridge over which the

RCSSIA, 1870-1881.

Asearination of Alexander II.
RUSSIA, 1881-1894.
funeral procession must pass, so as to destroy ail the mourners, including the forelgn priuers, the Imperinl hearse, and the numerous guards and attendants; but a tremendous storm of rain and wind on the previous night and mornlag, which raised the Neva to a level with its banks, and threntened to postpone the ceremony, prerented the last measures being taken to seeuro the success of the plot. On March 2, the Emperor, as usuai, attended the Requlem Jass for his father, and the serviee to eelehrate his own accesslon to the throue. During the last werk of his life, he lived in eomparative retirearent, as it was Lent, and he wis preparing for the IIoly Communion, whleh he received with lis sons on the moruing of Saturing, Mareh 12. It 12 that day, Mellkof eame to tell him of the capture of one of the Nihilists eoncerned ln the explosion in tho Winter Palace. Thls mun re. fused to answer any questions, execpt that hls capture wouid not prevent the Emperor's certain asansination, and that his Majesty would never see another Easter. Both Mcijkof and the Czaroritz begged the Emperor in vain not to attenci the parade the next day. . . After the Purade [Sunday, March 13. 138.1] the Emr,eror drove with his brother Mielnel to the Mi,luael Palace, the aloole of their cousln, the winowed GrandDuchess Catherlne; and, leaving his hrother there, he set off about two o'elock by the shortest way to the Winter Pulaee, along the side of the Catherine Canal. There, in the pnrt where the road runs between the Summer Garden and the Canal, a bombsheli was hurled under the Inperial carriage, and exploded in a shower of saow, throwing down two of the horses of the escort, tearing of the baek of the earriage, and breaking the glass, upsetting two lamp-posts, ani woundling one of the Cossacks, and a baker's boy who was passin:s with a lasket on his heal. As sunn as lie stiw the two victims lylag on the pavement. the Emperor ealled to the coachman to stop, hut the last only drove on faster, having received privnte orders from the Emperor's family to walve all cereniony, and to prevent his r-nter from going into dangerous situations, or among crowds. However, the Emperor pulied the cord round the eoachman's arm till he stopped; and then, In spite of the man's request to let hlmself be driven stralght home, got out to speak to the sufferers, and to give orders for their prompt removai to the hospital, as the thermometer was below zero. The Emperor gave his direetlons, and seeing the man who had thrown the bomb in the grasp of two soidlers, though still struggling to point a revolver at his soverfigr, he asked his name, on which the aid-de-camp replied: ' IIe ealis himseif Griaznof, and says he is a workman.' The Emperor made one or two more remarks, and then tumed to go back to his earriage. It Was ohserved he was deadly pale, and walked very slowly; and as splashes of blood were found in the earriage, It was afterwards supposed that he had already receivel slight wounds. Several men had been placed at dif. ferent points of the road with explosive bombs, and hearing the first exploslon, two of these hurried up to see the effect. One of them flung 3 bombat the Emperur's fect when he had goue a few paces towands his carriage, and lt exploded, hlowing of one leg, and shattering the other to the top of the thigh, beshles mortally wounding the assassin himself, who feli with a shriek to the ground, and injuring twenty foot passen. gers. The other aceompilee, aecording to his own evidence, put down his bonib, and instinetlvely ran forward to heip the Emperor, who did not utter a sound, though hls ilps moved as if in prayer. He was supportlng limseif with his baek agulnst a buttress by graaplng the rails on the eanal. His helmet was blown of, his elothes torn to rags, and his orders seattered nhout on the snow. while the windows of houses 150 yards distunt were hroken hy the explosion, whieh ralsed a coimmof smoke and snow, and was heard even nt the Anitehkof Paiace.
Besides lais shattered limbs, the Emperor had a frightful gash in the ahdomen, his left eye-lid was burnt, and his sight gone, his right hand was erushed, and the rings broken. Emperor expired from loss of bloni at five The twenty minutes to form. . . More than twenty persons were killed and injured by the two bombs."- C. Joyneville, Life of slevander II., ch. 13.

ALso ix: Annual Reqiater. 1879-1881.
A. D. 1881 .-Accession of Alexander III.
A. D. 1882-1894.-Character and reign of Alexander III.-Persecution of Jews and unorthodox Christians.- Hostility to western civilization. - "Aceording to an upparentl" authentic report in the Cracow paper 'C'zas, eonfirmed hy later publleations, the Emperor Alexnnder II. had signed the very morning of the duy on which he was murdered a Lkase addressed to the Senate, hy whieh a committee was to he appointed for realising Count Loris Mellkow's project of a general representative assemhly composert of delegates from the provinelal assemblies. On March 20th Alexander III. eonvoked a grand eouncil of the principal dignita. ries, asking their oplnion on Lorls Melikow's propostl. A llvely discussiou took place, of Which the 'Cans' gives a detalled account. The Emperor, thanking the members, suid that the majority hal deelared for the convenlng of an assembly elected by the nation for diseussing the affalrs of the State, adding, 'I share this opinion of the majorlty, and wish that the reform Ukase shall be published as under the patronage of my father, to whom the initiative of this re. form ls due.' The Ckase, however, was not published, Podobenoszew and Ignatiew havlng sueceeded in discredlting it in the eyes of the Czar, asserting that lt wonld only create excitement and increase the cristlng fermentation. On May 13th a manifesto appeared, in whlch the Czar declared his will 'to keep firmly the reing In cbedienee to the voiee of God, and, In the belief in the force and truth of autocratic power. to fortify that power and to guard It agalnst all encroachments.' A few days later Count Igna. tiew, the head of the Slavophll party, was appointed Minlster of the Interior, and by and-by the other more iiberal Ministers of Alexander If. disappeared. By far the most important personage under the present government is Podobenoszew, High Procurator of the Holy Synod, an office equlvalent to a Minister of Puhlic Worship for the State Church. Laborlous and of unblemished integrity thls man is a fanatie hy convietion. Under Xlerander II., who was too mineh of a European to llse him, he had but a secondary position, but under his pupil, the present Emperor, he has become all-powerful,

RUSSIA, 1881-1894.

RUTENNO.

the more so because his orthodoxy wears the national garb, and he insists that the break-down of the Nicolas I. system was only caused through governing with Ministers of German origin. He is seconded by Count Toistoi, the Minister of Intemal Affair (who repiaced the more liberal Saburow), to whom belong the questions concerning the foreign, 1. e., bon-orthodox, confessions. These two, supported by the Minister of Justice, Manamsefn, have enacted persecutions against Cathoilcs, Uniates, Protestants, and Jews [see Jews: 19 TH Cevtiny], which seem incredibie in our age, but which are well attested. Thousands of persons who have committed no wrong other than that of being faithful to their inherited cremi have been iriven from their bomes, and exiled to Siberia, or to distant regions without any meens of livelihood. As regards Catholics, these measures are principally directed against the ciergy; but the Uniates, i. e., the Catholics who have the Siav iturgy, are unsparingly deported if they refuse to have their children baptised by au ortholox Pope, and this is done with men, women, and chilifen, peasants and merchants. Twenty thousand Uniates alone beve been removed iron the westeru provinces to Szaratow. Those who remain at home have Cossacks quartered upon them, anil all sorts of compuisory means are used to stamp out this sect.

It is pretty certain tiat Alexander 111. is ignorant of the atrocities committed in his name, for he is not a man to sanction deliberate injustice or to tolerate persons of manifest impurity in important offices. Though the Czar insists upon having personaliy honest Ninistars, mere honesty is not sufficient for governing a great empire. Truth does not penctrate to the ear of the antocrat; the Russian Press does not refiect public opinion with its currents, but is simply the apeaking-tube of the reiguing enteric, which has auppressed all papers opposed to it, while the foreign Press is only aliowed to enter mutiis. ted by the censorahlp. Bome peopie have, indeed, the privilege to read forelgn papers in their original shape, but the Autocrat of Ail the lkissias does not belong to them.

The Emperor is peaceful and will not hear of war: he has, ia fact, submitted to many humiliations arising Ir in Russla's conduct towards Bulgaria.
If ith ail tilis, however, he is surrouncied by Faa. sil.vists and ailows them to carry on an under. ground warfare against the Balkan States.
He is strongly opposed to all Western illens of civilisation, very lrritabie, and unflinching in his personal dislikes, as he has shown in the case of Prince Alexancier of Battenberg; and, with his narrow views, he is unabie to calcuiste the brap. ing of his words and actions, which often amount to direct provocation against his neighimurs. If, nevertheless, tolerabie relations with England, Austria, and Germany have been maintaincl. the is for the most part the merit of M. de Glens, the Forcign Secretary, an unpretenciing, cautious, and persorn'ly reliable man of business, whose influence whih the Czar lies in the cleverness with which he appears not to exercise aay. "Prof. Geffcken, Rusuia under Alexander III. (Jien Rerien, Xpt., 1891).

Also in: H. von Samson-Himmelstierna, Rut. sia under Alexander III.
A. D. 1894 ,-Death of Alexander 111.-Accession of Nichoias II. - The Czar Alivander 111. diedi on the 1st of Novemher, 1894, at Lisa. dia, and the accession of his thiest som, who ascends the throne as Nicholas II., was officially prociaimed at St. Petersburg on the following day. The new autocrat was born in ING. ile is to wed the Princess Alix of Hesse larmistudt.
pression altogether, since when it has lost a!! its politicai signitucance, while preserving its ethieal value. The term 'White' is generally supposed to refer to the coluur of their diress in contradistinction to the 'Bhack linssians,' between the Pripet and Niemen, who form the ethnical transition from the Little to the White Russians.

The terms Littic llussia MaloRussia, Lesser Russia), L'krania, Huthenia, have never bad any definite limits, constantly shifting with the vicissitudes of history, and bren with the administrative divisions. . . . The mane lts.lf of Little llussia appears icr the first time ln the Byzantine chronicies of the 13th century in sasocia. thon with Gaiicia and Vothynla, after which it was extended to the Middle Dniener, or Kirovia. In the same way Ckrania - that is 'Frouiter' was tirst applied to Pololia to distinguidh it from Galicia, ani afterwaris to the southern provinces of the Lithuanian state. between the Bug snd Dnieper,"-E. Reclus, The Eirth and its Inhabi. tants: Europe, e. 5. pp. 282-990.

RUSSIAN AMERICA. Ser Alaska.
RUSTCHUK, Battle of (15941. Ser Baleay and Dancbian States: 14-18tif Cextcries (locmania, etc.).

RUTENI, The. -The Rutenl were a Gallic tribe, who bordered on the Romau Gallia Provincia, . . occupying the district of france Long, Derline of the Romun Republie, r t, the 1\%.

RUTGERS COLLEGE. See Education,
Modern: Amertca: A. D. 1770.

ROTLI

RUTLI, OR GRUTLI The Meadow of. Bee Switzerlund: The Tlaree Foriet Cas. fons.

RUTULIANS, The. Bee Laticy.

RUTUP1R.-The principal Kentioh seaport of Roman Britain; row Rechborough. It was celehrated for its oybterm-T. Wright, Celt, Ro. man and Seron, eA. $\delta$.
Also IN: C. Roach Smith, Antiq. of Richborough - Sre Enoland: ‥ D. 40-4is.
RUWARD OF BRABBANT.-‘T Thls office was one of great historicai dignity, but eomewhat anomslous in its functions.

4 Ruward was

ВАСЕНя

not exactly dictator, sithough his authority was universal. He wam not exactly protector, nor governor, nor staihoider. His lunctions. were commoniy conferred on the natural heir to the sovereignty - thereforo more lofty than those of ordinary mtadhoiders."- J. L. Motley, The Rise of the Duteh Republic, pt. 5, eh. 4.
RYE-HOUSE PLOT, The, Bee Eroland: A. D. 1681-1683.

RYOTS OF BENGAL, The. See IndIA: A. D. 1785-1793.

RYSWICK, The Peace of. See Frurce: A. D. 1695-160才; and 1697 .

S.

-SAARBRƯCK, OR SAARBRUCREN : United to France (1680). See Frascri: A. D. 16:9-164i SAARBRUCK, OR SAARBRUCKEN, Battle of. See France: A. D. 1870 (JeryAtifert.
Sabeans, The. See Arabia: Ancirnt arcresmon and pcion of races.
SABANA DE LA CRUZ, Battie of (1859). See YFinkztela : A. D. 1829-1886.
SABBATHAISTS.-A Jewish sect, helievers ia the Missslanic pretensions of one Sahbathai Seri, of Suyrna, who made an extraordinary commutimin the Jewish world about the midile of the lith centurr, and who finally embraced Mahometanism.-H. H. Miiman, List. of the Jetes.
SABELLIANS, The. See Samines; also, Ithir Inciest.
SABELLIANS, The sect of the. Sec SoEtlisy SABINE CROSS ROADS, OR MANS. FIELD, Battle of. Sce tiviten States of An. A. 1). 1 NGH (March-Mat: Locinana).
SABINE WARS, The.-The Roman historians - lionysins, Putarch, Livy, and others gave credit ti) traditions of $n$ long, and danzerous war. "r serics of wars, with the sabines, follow. tigg the expulsion of the Tarquins from fome and the founting of the Repulilic. But modern Ukeptical eriticisin has ieft little ground for any part of the story of these wars. It seems to have betulerised from the chronicles of on ancient family, the Yal rinn family, and, as a recent Writer has said, it is suspicious that "a Valerins neter holds a magistracy but there is a Snluine Far." ihnc conjectures that some annalist of the Valerian family used the term Sabine in relating the wars of the Romans with the Latins, and with the Tarquins, struggling to regain their lost throne, nui that this gave n start to the Whole fictitlons narrative of suline wars. - W. Thue. Hirt, if Rume. bi: 1, ch. 12.
SABINE WOMEN, The Rape of the. See Roye: 13. C. $\mathbf{7 5 3 - 5 1 0}$.
SABINES, OR SABELLIANS, The."The greatest of the Italian natlons was the Sabellin. Lnder this name we inciude the Sabines, who are said by tradition to have been the progeniturs of the whole race, the Samnites, the Picenians, Vestinians, Marsians, Marrucinhans, Pelignlans, and Frentanians. This race ceems to have been naturaliy given to a pastorai he, and therefore fired their eariy settiements in the upland valleys of the Apennines. Pushing gradually along this central range, they penetrated downwards towards the Qulf of Tarentum: and as their population became too dense to tind support in their native hills, bands of warrior Youths issued forth to settle in the richer plains below. Thus they mingied with the Opicnn and Pelasgian races of the south, and formedi new tribes known by the names of Apulians, Lucanians, and Campanians. These more recent tribes, in turn, threatened the Greck coionles on the coast. . . It is certain that the nation we cail Roman was more than half Sabelllan. Traditionai history $\qquad$ attrihutes the conquest of lome to $n$ Sahine tribe. Some of herkings were Sabine; the name borne by her citizens was Sabine; her refigion was Sahne, most of her institutions in war and peace were Sabine: and therefore it may be concluded that the language of the Roman people differed from that of Latium Proper by its Sabine elcments, thongh this difference died oat again as the Lathongh. munities were gradually ahsorbedinto the territory of Rome."-H. G. Liddell, Hist. of Limue. introd, nect. 2.-See, also, Italy, ANcient; uid SABINIAN, Pope, A. D. 604-606.
SABRINA. - The ancient name of the Severn river.
SAC AND SOC.-A term used in early English antl Norman times to signify grants of juris. diction to incilvidual land.owners. The manorial courtleets were the products of these grants. - W. Stuhbs, Coust. Hist. of Eing., ch. 7, sect. 73. -Sce, nlso. Miavors.

SAC, OR SAUK, INDIANS, The. See Anemicas A bahigries: Algonquian Famity, nnil Sacs. Foxes, etc

SACAE, The.- "The Sace were neighbours of the Hyrcanians, the Parthians, and the Bactrians in the steppes of the Oxus. Herodotus tells ns that the sace were n nation of the tribe of the seyths, and that their proper nnme wns Amyrglans; the Persians called all the Scythlans Sace. "- M. Dunckcr, LIist. of Antiquity, bk. 8. ch. 2 (r. 5)- Sue, also, Scythiavs.

SACERDOTES. - These were the public priests of the ancient Romans, who performed the 'sacra pablica' or religious rites for the people, at puhlic expense.-E. Guinl and W. Souer. Life if the Greeks and Romans, sect. 103. SACHEM.-SAGAMORE.-" Earh totem of the Lecnape [or Delaware Indians of North Amerimal recognized a chicftaln, called stetiem, ' sakima, a word found in mosi Algonkin dia; lects, With siight variations (Chip., 'ogima,' Cree, 'okimaw, Pequot, 'sachimna', and derived from a root olvi,' sigulfying above in apace, and, by a transfer frequent in all languages, abore in power. It appears from Mr. Morgan's ingulries, that at present and of later yenrs, 'the office of sachem is heredt. tary in the gens, but elective amoug lts memhers.' Loskifel, however, writhing on the ex. cellent authority of Zeloberger, ataten expillelt. Iy that the chlef of each totem was selectell and inaugumted ly those of the remalnlug two. By common and ancient conseut, the elifef selectell from the Turte totem was liead chlef of the whole henape uation. The ehleftalns were the 'peice chlefs.' They could uelther go to war themwedves, mor semel nor recelve the war belt the ouinoos strlug of dark wampun, which indleated that the fempest of strife was to be let lonse. . . War was dechared by the people at the instlgation of the 'war cuptains, valorous brares of any birth or fanully who band ilisthguishet themselves by persomil prowess."-D. G. Brinton, The Lemape and their Legenda, ch. 3." At the institution of the Lengue fof the lroquals] fifty permanent sachemshlps were erentel. with mpropriate names; and in the suchems who hell these titles were vested the supreme powers of the confeleracy. . . . The anchems themselves wire cofual in rank and muthirity, aud ln. stead of holdlug scparate territorina jurisdletions, their powers were juint, and cosextensive with the Lengue. As a safeguard against coutention and fraud, each sachem was 'raised up' and linvested with his thele br a cuuncll of nil the sachems, with suitable forms and ceremonkes.

SACEM

The sachemships were distributed unequally between the five nations, but without therely giviug to elther a preponderince of polltical power. Stue of thom were assigned to the Mobawk nation, nine to the Onelda, four. teen to the Onondara. ten to the Cayuga and eight to the Sencea The sachems united formed the Conncil of the League, the ruliug boly, in which resided the executire, legishtive nud judielal authority."一L. II. Morgan. The Latque of the Jroquaix, bk. 1. ch. 3.-" The Sew-Englaud Iudinns had functlonarles: $\qquad$ the hilgher class known as sachems, the subordluate, or those of inferlor note or smaller jurisiletion, as sagamores.

This is the distlaction commonly made (II utchinson, Mass., I. 410). But Willinmson (Maine, I. 494) reverses It; Dudler (Let .er to the Comutess of Lincoln) says. 'Sagmmore, so are the thugs with us called. as they are sachems somthwarl ' (that is, Plymouth); and Gookin (Mass. Hist. Coll., 1. 154) spenks of the two titles of otliece as cyuivalent." "- J. G. Palfrey, Hist. of Seto Eag., r. 1, ch. 1, and fuot-note.
SACHEVERELL, Henry: Impeachment of. Sire Evolini A. 1) 1:10-1712.
SACHSENSPIEGEL. See Germais A 1). 110;-1:2.2.
SACKETT'S HARBOR.
Sef Vimted siatrid UF AM.: A. I). 1812 (SEPT -Nov.). SACKINGEN: Capture by Duke Bernhard (1637). See Germany: A. D. 1634-1039. SACRAMENTARIANS. See SwitzerLAND: A. D. 1528-1531.
SACRED BAND OF CARTHAGE. See Carthage, The Dominion of.

SACRED BAND OF THEBES.

Thebles, Greeck: I. C. 3 is.
SACRED MONTH OF THE CHART. ISTS, The. See England: A. D. 1838-1842.

SADDUCEES.

SACRED MOUNT AT ROME, The. Se

 Rome: 13. C. 494-402.SACRED PROMONTORY, The. - The mothwemtern extremily of spiain - cinn st. Vlneent - was anclently called the Sacred I'rom ontory, and aupposed by early gengraphers to he the extreme weatern point of the knowu wirli. -E. H. Bunhmry, Mint. of Ancient Cieng., ch. \$ pt. 1 ( $\mathrm{s}, \mathrm{g}$ ).

SACRED ROADS IN GREECE.-" If fr the chariot maces came into pogue [at the sucped festlvi : aud games] these ellunlly neresituted gexal i irrlage cuats, whileh it was hot viar to make in a rocky locallty llke D Hhi athus arose the sacred rourls, iloug whith the empls themaclves were sald to have tirst passell, as Delpht. Henee the art of roml-making and of building bridges. whlel deprlved the will mountala streams of eleclr hangers. toxik its tixt origin from the natlomal sauctonries, "andially from those of Apollos. Whale the fixit puthal: across the mountaln ridges, the carriagernans followel the malnes which the water hat formed. The rocky surface was levelm, abl ruts hollowed out which, carefally sumoithenf. served as tracks in which the wherls rullel on withont obstruction. This style of ronhts mate It necessary, in onder to a more extembulal intercourse, to establish an equal gathec, since otherwlse the festive as well as the ricing charlots would have been preventell from visitlug ibe various sauetuaries. And sinur as a rister of fact, us far as the intucucto of lhiphit cxtended lu the Peloponnesus num bratral Greece, the same gange of 5 ft . 4 ln . l mamerably prevailed. not merely the extendim, bat also the eypunlization, of the net-work of lirevk ronds took its origin from Delplla." -E. Curtill, Mivt. "ff Crrect Mk. 2, ch. 4.
SACRED TRUCE, The Se (1,rMPIC Games.

SACRED WAR, The First. Set Athes: B. C. 610-586, and Despm.

The Second. - The Phocians, I3 (: 449, countiug on the support of Athens, whome allies they were, undertook to acyuire pmonessiun of the sacred und wealthy city of Delphi. The Spartans sent an army to the defense of the satc. tuary and expelled them; whereupon the thenlans sent another and restored throll.-G. Grote, Hist. of Greece, pt. 2, ch. 4.5.
The Ten Years. See Greece: B. C. 357338.

SACRED WAY AT ATHENS. - The road which led from the great gate of Athens called Dipylum stralght to Eleusis. alour which the festice processlons moved, was called the Sacred Way. W. N. Leake, Timexprophy of Athena, aret 2.
SACRED WAY AT RCME, The. See Via sacka.
SACRIPORTUS, Battle of (B. C. 83). See Rome: B. C. 88-78.
SADDUCEES, The.-"There is nt dition that the name of Sadducee was derived from Zadols, a disciple of Antigonus of Socko. But the statement is not earlier than the sevinih century after the Christian Era, and the person seems too obscure to have orighated so widespread a litte. It has been also lugeniously con-

sADDUCEES.

jectured that the name, as belonging to the whole jprestly clans, is derived from the famous high prlest of the the of Solomon. But of this there is no traee in hilatory or iradition. It is more probable that, as the Planrisees derived thelr pance from the virtue of Isolution (phardsah) from the Centlle world on whleh they most prabul themselves, so the Ahdineere ileri"ed theirs from thelr owu speelal virtue of Itightoms. nows (zodikuls). that is, the fulthiment of the Law, with which, as lts gunrdinns and rejprewentantives of the luw, they were apechally coneerned. The suldueees - whitever lee the derfatlon of the wonl - weru less of n seet than a elass,"What stanley, Wect's on I' Mint. of the Jeriah Chareh, leef. 49.-"At the the when we trst meet witlo them [the Sadducees] In history, that is to sidy, under Jomilon the Asmonean [13. C. 150-14-spe dews: 13. C. 166-40], they were, thongh In a moxiltied form, the lecirs and succersons of the Hellenlsts [sיe JEWw: II. C. 332-16\%]. Hellenkm wus coniquered umder the Asmoneans, nad leaten out of the tlehl, and a new gush of Jewhis matrotisua and zend for the low had taken lis phase. The sudducees, whon from the first appentr ns a seliowal sulted for the thmes. Inehreding the rich nod edichted statesmon, adopted the provalling tone among ?le jerople. They took part la the servlees and sacrifices of the timple. protised aremmedsion, observed the Subbath, und (s) profesand to le read Jews nud followers of the Liw, hut the law rightly minderstomen, and reo stored to lis shaple text and liternl sense. They repmilatma, they sild, the anthority of the new teathers of the law (now the I'larisees), nud of the benly of tradition with whieh they had encircled the law. In this tradithon they of course lacluded all that was burdensome to themselves.

The peullur doctrlines of the sudincees obvimaty arose from the workliges of the Epicurcan philusophy, which land fonhal apercial aecoptane ln syria. They ndnitted ludeced the creathon, its it seems, but denienl all enntinuous oprevation of Gerd In the world. . . . The siaddu. ces proved they were real followers of Epl. curis, bedenying the life of the soni nfter deatl. The sonl, they suil, pusses nway with the londy.

The mass of the people stond aloof from the sarducees, whom they regarded with mistrist aud uversion."-J. J. I. Jöllinger, The (irutile und the Jer in the Courts of the Temple of (Virist. c. 4. pp. 302-303.
Aıso is: E. Schurer, Hiat. of the Jerish People in the Time uf Chrint, aect. 26 (idir. 2. r. 9).
SADOWA, OR KONIGGRATTZ, Battle of. See Genmany: A. I). 1806 .
SAFFARY DYNASTY, The. See SAMA.iom.

SAGAMORE. See Sachem.
SAGAMOSO, Battle of (1819). See Colom.
ban states: A. D. 1810-1819
SAGARTIANS, The. - A nomadic people. fescribed by Ierodotus, who wandered on the Wistern borlers of the great Iranian desert the desert region of modern Persia.
SAGAS. See Normans. - Northmen: A. D. $8010-1100$.
SAGGENASH, The. See IA ikee.
SAGUENAY. See CaNada: Names.
SAGUNTUM, Capture of, by Hannibal.
&ul linie Wiar. Thes Becond.
SAHAPTINS, The. See Americat Aboholnes: Nez Pracia

SAINT CHRISTORHER

SAHAY, Battle of. See Aurtria: A. D. 1742 (JCNE-DVACMAER)
SAILOR'S CREEK, Battie of. See linited statem or Am.: N. D. 1865 (Apmil: vimisia).
SAIM. See Timain.
SAINT ALBANS (Lngland) Origin of. See 「emilanay
A. D. 1455-1461.-Battles of York and Lancaster. - The town of St. Alhnns, In Englan! wis the seene of two biatles in the lamentalse Wirs of the Rosso. The tirst collishon of the Jong contliet between Lamenter nid Jork oc. eurred In Its streets on the 23d of May. 145.5, when King Ineury VI. Was taken primoner by the Duke of Pork ind S. (Кн) to s.ink) of lis sup. porters were slain. Six years liter, on the 1:th of Pelorinry, ItBi, the eontewillag forees met agnin In the streety of st. Allans with a differ. ent result. The linklats were put to theght by the Lanenstrinus bulder Queen Margaret. Sec

SAINT ALBANS CONFEDERATE RAID. Fire livitho Stater of AM.: A. D. 1864 (1)
SAINT ALBANS FENIAN RAID. Sec Canada: A. D. 196ib-1vil.

SAINT ANDREV', The Russian order of. - All order of kinighthood Insiltuted $\ln 1$ ber by Ither the tireat.

The Scottish order of. - "To keyp pnce with other sovercigas, wher affected forming orders of knighthood, in whilh they themselves slould comagne umong his paliallis. Jimes [ 15 . of seothad. A. I). 1ts*-151:3] estibibishem the order of Sume Dulrew. nssmuing the lialye of the thistle, which stace that time has heen the nathount emblem of scotland. "-sir W. Scott, Mixt. of Scotluntl, ch. 21.

SAINT ANDREWS, Siege of the Castle of. Sire Scotlani: A. i) $1: 540$
SAINT ANGELO. Castle. See Castle St. AnteLo.
SAINT AUGUSTINE, Canoas of. See Aestin Canons.

SAINT AUGUSTINE, Florida: A. D. 1565. - Founded by the Spaniards. See Flohida: A. 1). 106B.
A. D. 170I.-Attack from South Carolina. See Soctu Canolisa: A. I). 1701-1706.
A. D. rifio - Unsuccessful attack by the Eaglish of Georgia and Carolida. See Geohola: A. D. $1738-1 i 43$.
A. D. 1862. - Temporary occupation by Union forces. See Lifited States of Ax: A. 1). 1862 (Febrcary-April: GeorglaFlomida).

SAINT BARTHOLOMEW'S DA: The Masaacre of. See France: A. D. $15: 2$ (Auatest.
SAINT BRICE'S DAY, The Messacre of. See Evalasd: A. D. 979-1016.

SAINT CHRISTOPHER, The Island: Ceded to England (1713). See Utrecht: A. D.

saint lazarus.

SAINT CLAIR, Gemeral Arthur. Bee Nontimeat Txhnitony: A. 11. 17\%1-170s. SAINT CLOUD DECREE, The. See Fance: A. D. 1800-1810.
SAINT CROIX. See Weat Impira.
SAINT DENIS (France), Hattle of (2367).
See Fruycr: A. 1). 1503-15i0.
SAINT DENIS (Belglum), Battle of ( 1678 ).
See Netherm.and (Ilon.1.anil): A. 1). 167t-1678. SAINT DIDIER, Battle of se Fraxcz:
A. D. 1814 (Janisaly- hareh).

SAINT DOMINGO, OR HAYTI, The Ialand. See llaytr.
SAINT DOMINGO, The Republic. See Harti: A. D. 1 M14-1880.
SAINT GEORGE, Benk of. See Money and Banking: Gkmoa: bigo Grnoa: A. D. 1407-1448. SAINT GEORGE, The order of.-Founded by Catiecrine II. of Rusela $\ln 1269$.
SAINT GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, Peace of (1570). Nee France: A. D. 1563-1570.

SAINT GERMAINS, The Freach conrt.

 See France: A. 1). 1647-1648.The Jacoblte court. - When James Il., driven from Eugiaud ly the Kevolutlon of 1688, took refuge in France, lie was recelved with great hospitality by Louls XIV., who asslgnell to the exiledi kiog the palace of snint. Germalns for his resldence, whath a penslon or aliowance whici enabled him to maintain a regal court of tumposing $s_{\text {gilendor. "There was scarcely in all Europe a }}$ residevee more enviably situated than that which the generons Lew is hat assignen! to his suppll. uats. The wonis were magniticent, the air ciear and salabrions, the prospects cxtensive and cheer. fai. No clarm of rural life was wanting; anil tite towers of the greatest clty of the Coutinent were visible in the distance. The royal apart. inents Were richly miorned with tapestry and barylletry, vases of sifver, and nimpors $\ln$ gided frumes. I pension of unare than 40, (00) pouncis sterimg was annuaify paid to Jantes from the Fronch trelsury Ife itai a gurrl of bonour compeseti of sime of tite fluest soidiers in EII. roque. . . Bat overtite mansion and the domain brionied a constant glomu, the effeet. partly of bitter regrets as..j of cleferred iopes, but cinfetiy of the alject sugperstitiun whicit had tuken com. plete posserssion of his awn mind, ated which was Mffectend hy uil those wion aspired to his favour. Il is palace wore the aspect of a monastery. Thirty ur forts ceclesiastics were indged in the buiding: and thedr apartments were eyed with envy ly ublethen and genticmen who had followed the furtenes of their soverelgu, and who thought it harl that, wien there was so mach room under fis runf, they shomiti tee forced to sleep in the grarrets of the belghlouring town. Alit tire saints of the royal bouseinold were praying for cach other and bick biting each other from morning to night. "-Lorl Macaulay, Hist. of E'ug., ch. 20 (e. 4).

SAINT GOTHARD, Battle of (1664). See Hesarry: A. 11. 16RM-18b4.
SAINT GREGORY, Order of.-Inatituted in 1831 liv Pope Grcgory XVI.
SAINT HELENA, Napoleon'a captivity at. Nee France: A. i) 1815 (June-Avaust). SAINT ILDEFONSO, Treaty of. See Aroentive Repcalic: A. D. 1580-1777; and Loulsians: A. D. 1798-1803.

SAINT ILDEFONSO, University of. See Edecation, Medieval: Spaim and lompe. all.
SAINT JAGO, Kaighte of the order of. Hee Caliatrava.

SAINT JAMES, The Palece and Court of. -"Of the Brteleh Monarehy the omiciai and diplomatle erat is St. James', a dingy and wiathy ple of brick, which by its meannem, eomparsid whth the Tulleries and Verailles, aptly aymbollzes the relatlon of the power which buile it to that of the Monarchy of Loula XIV.

At 3t. James' are stlll held the Levece. Init tho rooms having been found too amali furs the proilgioualy increasing erowds of laties, foreiga and colonlal, who pant, by paming umler the eye of Royalty, to obtain the baptlam of fasiinn, the Drawing Tlooms are now helit In Burking. ham Palace. . . The modern town realdence if Royalty, Buckingham Palace, Is large witinut being magniticent, and devold of Intereat of any Kind, historical or arehlteetural."- (boldwla Smith, A Trip to Eingland, p. 34.
SAINT JAMES OF COMPOSTELLA, Knighta of. See Calatrava.
SAINT JEAN D'ACRE. Sec Achr.
SAINT JOHN, Knlghts of; or Hoapitailera. Nee Ifonfitalleke.
SAINT JOHN OF THE LATERAN, Or. des of. - An order of knighthood institutef in 1560 by Pope Plus IV.
SAINT JUST, and the French Revolutlonary Committee of Public Safety. fiea Franee: A. D. $1: 93$ (June- Octoarr), to 1704 (J'L.Y).
SAINT LAWRENCE: Discovery and namlug of the River by Jacques Cartier. See Amentea: A. D. 154-1533.
SAINT LAZARUS, Knighta of.-"some bistorians of the orier of sit. Lalzarus have tracyid its origin to a supposed associntion of Ciristians in the first ecotury against tite persw . thinn of thelr Jewish and Pagan enemies. This neromit Is fabulous. It appears certain, however, that In very early times Christian charity funded! establishments for the sick. I.azaras be. came tivelr tutelary saint and the buildiges were styied Lazarettos. One of those hospitals was in exlstenee at Jernsulem at the time of the first ernsule. It was a reilgions order, as well as a charitabie institutlon. und foliowerl the rule of St. Augustin. For purpuses of defenter arailust the Musciman tyrints, the memiers of the si. clety became soldlers, and insensibiy they furmand themseives Into distinct boxiles of thasi win attended the sick, and those who mingled "ith the worid. The curn of lepers was their tirst object. and they not oniy received lepers into their order, for the benefit of charity, but their arand master wis aiways to be a man who was amicted with tive disorder, the removai whereof furmed the purpose of thelr Institution. The civaliers who were not lepers, and were in a combiliun to bear arms, were the alles of the Chintiau kings of Paicstine.

Tire halits of those knichts Is not known; It only appears that the croseses on their breasts were aiways green, In oppusitina to those of the kalghts of St. Jolin. whicla were white, and the red crosses of the Templars. But nelther the names nor the explisits of the talghts of St. Lazarus oftell uppear in tir his tory of the Crusades."-C. Mills, Hist. of the Orusades, eh. 8, with foot.notes.

SAINT LEOER'S EXPEDITION.

SAINT PETER'S CIIURCII AT ROME

SAINT LEGER'S EXPEDITION. See Unitad Statel of Am. : A. D. 1777 (JVEY-Oc. romen).

SAINT LOUIS, Misconit: A. D. 3764 Tha fonndiar of the clty.-' St. Louls had arben out of the transfer of the cast bank of the Minsiesippl to Great Britain [we Seven Yizake War: tife Treatiza]. Rather than live an allens, under Engilah Isws, many French settlent Went with Plerre Lacienle, acrose the Minslaslppl, to a place alrealy aleknamed by them Paln Court, where, In February, 1764, they founded , new town with the name of St. Loula, in bonor of Lauls XV. These people were montly French Canaillane."- A. A. Drake. The Making of the Ureut Weat, p. 170.-Eee, sioo, Illevots: A. D. 1785.
A. D. 1861. - Events at the outbreak of the rebellion. - The captnre of Camp Jackson. Sfe Miseocri: A. D. 1801 (Femeiahy-Jtey).
A. D. 1864. - General Prlee's attempt agsinal. See United Ntates of Av.: A.b. 15\% (March - October: Arkanas - Missorri).

SAINT LOUIS, The Order of.-Ah aler $0 \%$ kolghthowi l-sttuted in 1603 by Iauls NiIV. of Prance. 're Fuance: A. I). 1693 (Jtley).
SAINT MAHE, Battle of.-A flerce naval oght, April 24, 1203, oft St. Mahe, or the const of Brittany, between Enghlsh and Frenilh fieets, beth of whleh were pus attost withont open authority from thelr respectlve governments. The French were beaten with a loss of 8, (H) men and Lsi shlps - C. II. Pearsun, Hiat. "f Eng. during the Early ind Midelle Ages, r. 2, ch. 13.
SAINT MALO: Abortive Eaglish expeditions againat, Sce ExGland: A. 1). $1: 58$ (Jtwe-Avacst).
SAINT MARK, The wlaged lion of. See Lon urst Ma...i, and Venice: A. 11, 8:0. SAINT MARKS Jackson'a capture of. See Flomida: A. D. isto-1EIS.

SAINT MICHAEL, Knighte of the Order et, in France - "• Louls' Xl. [of France] determined on insituting an order of clivalry hilm. whe. If wis to le select in its membershlp. linitell in its namber, generons in its professions, and he fondly hopell the Garter and flecec would som whak into insigniticance compinted to the Onler of suint Michael. The first brethren were namel from thic lighest fanilles in Frauce : the remaining great feudatorics, who hal preserved ome relics of their hereditary independence, werc tixed upon to wear this marts of the suz rain's fricnuship. But when thay came to real the oaths of admission, they found that the Onder of St. 3lchael was in reality a bond of stronger obllgntion than the feulal laws had ever enjoincd. It was a solemn assoclation for the prevention of dlasobedience to the sovereign.

The brotherhool of nohle knights sank, in the degming treathent of lis founder. lnto a conferleratlon of spies. "- J . White, Fiat. of France, ch 7 .
In Portugal. See Po.rrooal: A. D. $1095-$ SAINT MICHAEL AND SAINT GEORGE, The Order of.-A British Order of Knighthood, fnunded in 1818, "for the purpose of bestowing marke of Royal favour on the mont meritorious of the lonians (then under the protection of Great Britaln] and Maltese, an weil as on Britlah auhjects who may have cerved with dist'nction $\ln$ the Ionlan Jales or the Mediter.

SAINT OMER: A. D. 163t. - Unancceas-

 ful siege by the French. See NetmencandsA. D. ${ }^{1677}$ - Tisen by Louls XIV. See Netmerlandm (IIolland): A. D. 1674-1678.

A. D. 1679 -Ceded to France. See Nimmoden. The peace of.

SAINT PATRICK, The order of. - An order of knighthoorl Instituted in 1783 by George III. of Eunglani.

SAINT PAUL, Republic of. Sce Brazil: A. D. 1531-1641.

SAINT PAUL'S SCHOOL, See EdLca. TION. RENAIPANCE: ENOLAND.

SAINT PETER'S CHURCH AT ROME.
-"The first church whleh exlstell on or ncar the site of the presemt bullding was the oratory foundel in A. I. (t), by Anacletus, bishop of Rome, who ts sald to have been ordalnedl by St. Peter himself, and who thus markel the spot where minly Christlan martyrs had aunfered in the clrens of Nirn, and where St. Peter was buried after hits cructitxion. In 300 Constantine the Great ylehlud to the requeat of Pope Ayives. ter, and legan tho erectlon of a basllien oin this ${ }^{3}$ pot, falnouring with hils own thands at the work.

Of the old basilica, the crypt is now the only remmant. Its destruction wha first phanurd br Nichulas V. (14:0), hut was not car. risel out thll the time of Julius II., who hit $1: 508$ becran the new st. Peter's from cleslgns of liramante. . The next Prape, Leo X., ontaiued a design for a church in the furm of a Lath cross from Raplamet, which was changed, after hits death (on account of expense) to a Greek cross, by be "dissare l'eruzzl, who only llved to complete the tritume. Paul III. (1534) employed Antonhodt saugallo as un architect. who returued to the design of a Latin cross, but dfell before he coulf carry out nay of his intenthus. Glullo IRomano sticceeded him and died alas. Then the pope 'Heing inspirel by Gral. says Vasarl, sent for Mlitad Angelo, then in his seventy-second sear, who continued the work under Julius III., returalng to the plan of a Greel cross, enlarging the trihuue aud transepts, and beginaing the done on a new pian. Whlch he sald would 'ralse the Phutheon In the air.' . . . The present dome is clue to Giacomo delly Porta, who brought the great work to a coneluston $\ln 1590$, under Sixtua ViII. ' November 18 was dec leated hy Urhan ded ty Nover 18ia, 1626: : i.e colonnade all. I'ius VI., in $1: 80$. The bullding of the present St. Pcter's extended altogether of the present St. Pcter's extended allogether over 176 vears. and its expenses were so great that Jullus II. and Leo $\mathbf{X}$. were olliged to meet them hy the sale of indulgences, which led to the Reformatlon. The expense of the maln hullding alone has been estimated at $£ 10,000,000$. The annual expense of ## saladis.

ALeo IN: H. Orimm, Lifo of Michad Angelo,

SAINT PETERABURRO.

SAINT PETERSBURG: The foundinc

SAINT PHILIP, Fi RT, Selsure of, Nee

SAINT PRIVAT, Batte of. HevFuancti
A. 11 (mil) foltiv-itioners.

SAINT QUENTIN: Orleln. Nre limi.n.e
SAINT QUENTIN, Battie and viere of (1:57). Sucu Furver. A. II 1Hi-liniu.....Bat.

SAINT SEBASTIAN, Slege and capture

SAINT SIMON, and Saint Simonlom, Nee

SAINT STEPHEN, The order of.- The Ilimigarinu untional unlor of kitlyghlewni, foumblat

SAINT STEPHEN, The Crown of.-The 1111

SAINT STEPHEN'S CHAPEL. Nee WY-TUIN二TEK DAIME:

SAINT THOMAS. Nee NFist Inmtin
SAINT THOMASOFACRE, The Knighte of, -"Thlm was a llttle" wiy of :3an oriler ont the momble of the llompitullers. In the thinl ('rusille, one W'llium, uh Eingllsh prlest, elmplata to Italpit de Dieven, Dean of is Pabl's. lumb levoted lifmaself to the work of burving the deand at Aere, an the Llompitallers haidglen themselves at first to the work of temilug the wick Ifo hud bultt fimmelf a little chapel there, wind lunght grommi fur a renutery: llke a
 It after S. Thomun the Martyr: aml, monehow rir uf the martyr seem to lave approvial of it: the fonmeress and lrenefnetors, and a llospital of ta Thomas the Martyr of Comterhmry, of Acre, was fuitt In dandont liwelf an the site of the lonse where the martyr was farti. . . They [the huiphts] had thelr propor dress and cross: we. corilage to Fovin their huthit wis whitu, athe the crons 16 fitil red croses clargenl witl a white scallop: but the exlsting cartiolary of the uriler de soribes the hablt simply as a mantie with a cross of red and white: The Chronielc of the Teutonic knighta, in relntlng the cupture of Acre Ihucre the knights of s . Thomas at the lumd of sut tal Ialestive, unil llerman Corner, who bus: ever wrote n rentury inter, mentions thent amongat the ilefeulers of Acre. We kitow from their cartulary that they had lands In lorkshiri. Midellesex, Surrey, and Ireland. "- $\mathrm{N}^{\text {. Stables. }}$ Erentern lecturis un the itudy of Meliectel and Minitry IInewry lert. 8.
SAINT VALERY. - The port, at the mouth of the somun, from whleh the tleet of William the Congueror sailed for England. September 27. A. 11. 1046 .

SAINT VINCENT, Naval battle of. See Enchand: A. JI $170^{\circ}$
SAINTONGE, Origin of the name of. See Phtosen.

SAIONES:-"The Salones were apparently a class of men pecullar to the Ostrogothle monarchy [of Theodoric, In Italy]. Dfore honoured than the Koman llctor (who was hut a menlal servant of the magistrate), but hardiy perhaps rising to the digality of a sheriff or a marahal, they were, on in ajeak, the arma liy whilh lkyy. alty executent lie will. If the (hovilus hat to fo.
 red round the milrinter call tonrme. If a l'an to rinu I'refect why abinfug hiv gowier tio toberasay th remind hlm that timher Themborin ant 1 保h grown the late.

Tiar sabsues merm tu law utexal In a epectal reletlon to the lilug Jiner brive sithinew, and the ollidiel virtise alow fo alwnys crellted to them (like the' mulimisy

 Was fropicutly entrastal th the salio is: the 'tultu of mothe wealthy abl networthe la min

 for protertlon

The: chlef vialhe stst if the King's protertlon, uml the unset athitho

 Incurdion, he 1. ch. i(r. 3).

SAjO, Battle of the (1241), Ni. HI No sury A. II. |l|l-1:30|

SAKKARAH, Necropolis of. - Tlw wion
 Egypt. - A. Darlette. Moonumitio Eyynt, fo N6

SAKKARAH, Tablet of. - It hinman of Fixyjthan klirw. follon! by 3 Mant bk. I, rh. I (r I)

SALADIN: The Emplre of - Allon- the the empire of the Silljuk Turke wian is that brought nbout the rise to fancre in suis ant had to content. The dymasty of sultime which they fonnded was one of those called dtatwas. or Atabegs, stgnlfying "govermifs of the pence" to Interfere In the uthites of EiEvp, what the Fatinite culjulas wore stit mominallt toiming Noureddin mellt thlther olle of lik nime truatit ohlecers, Shirueouh, or Shirkin, a kimisi, and Silmmoub's nepitew, Salinliu,-theu a yougg man, mand adofieted to elogat sumbely atm the life of plensuri, at Dmmotus. Vhimantile es tablished his master's ruthority In Firy: - still leaving the puppet caliph of ilic Fitinutes on hifs throne - anil he was succeeded ly subimlin. us the representative of the sultan Sinurddin. and grand vizicr of the callph. IBit la lliI, the intter, being on his temth-bel, wns mairty deposed sad the soverelgnty of the Ahbishife caliph of Bagdad was proclnimed "This groat ' cous d'état, whlelt wou Egypt over to the Orthodis Noliammedau sect, and ultimately emabled Saladin to grasp the ludepentiont suvcretgaty of the country, was effected, as an Arab historian qualnily ohserves, so quitety, that not a brace of guats butted over it.". Saisdin had now

SALAIMN.

developetl great talents as a molep, and grat am. hithon, at well. On the denth of Noniraldin, In llit, be wan juephred to melze the sultan's throme, and succeedent, after it mhopt pertion of drll war, In maklog lilmanlf master of the whito Atnkeg demalnou. From that he went on to the rmaturst of Jeranalom, and the expulathen of the Chinstiam from all labentine, exerpt Tyro and a mall strlp of conat. By hila chifo ume of shat conquest agalast the crnanglemof the Thlof C'rumble. and by the declded majuerlority of clanturter which he evineed, compured whih has Christion untagumbte, Ilthard Cimis de Lhom and the rest, Hhe ithel at Immancis. In March, 11vil, In his fifty wewnth year. The ds maty whel he folumed was cilled the Ayouthto (or Alynhte.) dsasty, frem the name of sinhellin's father Arabl (Jub) a nutive Kimerl of theln- $-\mathbb{W}$.

 "Salalla qase noulirections respereting the order of suec reslon. mal ly thls want of forfolight pro. garve the rain of hife cmppres One of has somse, Alazl, who commanked in Egypt, cimmed hlat. self to le proclalmed sultan of ('nlro: nnother tewk pasesslon of the surerelghty of Akrpos, nal a thind of the frinclpality of dimeth. Mulek:
 ley which later name. lit the ceirrupted firmi suphavin, le was known rimmanly to the ermkallers), the hrother of salio in, isobitued the thrume of Mewespotmenta and the chuntrles in the uephbminhoml of the Enphrates. The primelpal emire, neth nill the princer of the rave of the and grovinces of whleh they helh the commont.
 "ow prexhamed sultan of lhanasens. Dister of - sita, ani of the empital of a wate cmplri, mover. fin of itrusnlem aud Palestlos, he aptmral to finther: but all fell into disern of the power of his father; bat all fell Into dlemriler and confusion." Iftur whan yerarv of ilseriler and of war tet weron the Lruthers, Malek Alel, or Sapleslin, the more c"pable macle of the young prinece, gathereis the relns of juwer Into his hamis and remited mant of the provinces of Saladin's enplpe: On hiviluath, in 1P18, the Ilvisions and the disordir pelywarel. The Ayouble Jynasty, however. beth the throne nt Calro (to the domlnana of whidh latestine belonged) untll 1250. when the lat of the Hne was killed by hls Mamelukes. The leare prines of the diviletl cmple were "rpt atay sosu after by the Mongol in rasion.
 SALADIN Alwo, Jenusalem; A. If 1149-1187, SALADIN, The Tithe of - 'In Euglanil and in Frunce, In order to acfray experages [of the Thlry Crusade] a tax called the Tithe of Nalalin. consisting of a tenth part of all thelr gowfu, was hevled on every person who dhli not take the Cross. In cvery parish the Tlthe of matadin was ralsed in the presence of a priest. a Temphar, a Hospitaller, a kreg's nam, a baron's man and clerk, and a hishop's clerk."-W. Besuat and E. II. Palmer, Jerumitem, eh. 15.
SALADO, OR GUADACELITO, Battle of ( 1340 ). Sire Spatn: A. D. 1273-1460.
SALAMANCA, Battle of. Sec SFAIs: A. D. 1812 (ITNE-AtgUET).
SALAMANCA, Univeraity of. See Edvca. tion, Miedlaval: Sfan axd Yoitronl.

H.ALIC LAW

SALAM1S, Cyprus, Battle of (B. C. (44).

SALAMIS, Greece: B. C. 010-600.-War of Athens and Megara for posseaslon of the

B. C. 480 . - Great battle between Greeks and

SALANKAMENT, Battle of $(16, \sigma)$, se

SALCES, OR SALSAS; A. D. ${ }^{1630-1640 .}$
-Slege and capture by the French.-Recovery by the Spaniards. Nive ipian. A. II. llibi-

SALEM, Masa.: A. D. 1628.-The first

A. D. 1632-1636. - Ministry and banishntent of Roger Williame. Sin Masom nt metre: A. I. 113:13
A. D. 1692. - The Witchcraft madness. Sive

SALERNO, Principality of. Fíe Itabr (SHTHERN: A. II M(M)-1日!

SALERNO, School of Medicine. Sit Mero-

SALIAN FRANKS, The. se" Flnsкм: OHHIN, ETH

SALIC LAW, The.-"A graity exngger.

 phitifle fe hong. mill durlaz the strumbe of (arther the prewent the sureresshan of women, und liw, as a law ulways In vigur, u* the fumpume tal law of nomarrly. Thuse who hate been the mone free from this ithasiats, us, fur exnmple. Monluthotwe, am! haw -luk on of the salle linw with a respect whide it It aswiredly ilfticult to feed towaris it whe ne we attribute to it ouly the plate that it really huldes in cur history.

I pray yon tu recalif that which 1 hase afready told yous inueling the doulle origian and the incolicrence of the marlarmis hals: they were, at once, an terior am! !nsterior to the invaslon; at once, German und Germann-lluman: they belonged to two dilferent combitions of society. Thas character has lothenered all the controversles of which the sille law has then the olject; It has glveu rise to two hypotheses: accorling to one, this law Was compile, in Germanys, upon the right bunk of the hhine, long before the conquest, and la the langliage of the Franks. Accordhg to the other hy puthesis, the Nalle law was, on the contrary, compiled after the conquest, upon the left hank of the Ithlne, In Belglum or In Gaul, perhaps In the seventh contury, and in 1,atia.

1 believe, however, that the truditlons whel, throngh so many coutradletions and falles, uppear in the prefaces and epllogues annexed to the law. . .. indlcate that, from the elghth century, It was a geneml bellef, a popular traditlou, that the customs of the Salian

SALIC LAW.

SALONA.

Franks were anciently collected. . . . We are not obliged to believe that the Salic law, such as we have it, is of a very remote date, nor that it was complied as recounted, nor even that it was ever written in the German ianguage; but that it was connected with customs collected and transmitted from generation to generation, when the Franks lived about the mouth of the Rhine, and moditied, extended, explained, reduced into law, at various tlmes, from that epoch down to the end of the eighth century - this, 1 think, ia the reasonable result to which thia discussion should icad. . . . At the first aspect it is impos. sible not to be struck with the apparent utter chaos of the law. It treats of all thlngs-of political iaw, of civil faw, of erimlnal law of civil procedure, of crimlaai prucelure, ot surai juris. dletlon, all mixed up together without any dls. tinctlon or ciassification.

When we examine this iaw more closely, we perceive that it ls essentially a penai reguiatlon. . . . I say nothing of the fragments of poltical law, civll law, or civil procedure, which are fonnd dispersed through it, nor cven of that famous article which ordera that 'Salle land shall not fall to woman; and that the inheritance shall devolve exclusively on the maies.' No person ls now lgnorant of lts true meaning. . . When, in the fourteenth century, they lavoked the Sultic faw, in orler to regulate the succession to the crown, it had certalnly been a long ilme since it hat been spoken of, ex. cept in rememhrance, and upon some great occaslon."-F. Gulzot, Hist. of Cirili:- $t$ 1, v. 2 (France, r. 1), leet. 8.

Also tw: W. C. Perts. The Franke, ch. 10.E. F. Henderson, Select Iist. Duc's of the Midillo Agen, hk. 2, no. 1.

Applied to the regal suicession in France. -Lonis X. surnamed Hutin, king of France. ded $\ln 1316$, leaving a daughter, Jeanne, and hls gueen with child. The late king's brother, Philip the Long, became regent; hut when the queen bore a son and the child dled, thls Philip $\because$ hastened to lihelms, filled the Catheiral with his own followers, and compelleci the arehblshop to consecrate hlm Kligg [Philip V ]. Theuce he rethrned to Puris, assembled the citizeas, and, in the presence of a great concourse of barons and notables of the realm, delared that no femule could sueceed to the crown of France. Thus bequn the so ealleyl salle Law of France, through the determined violence of an unserinpulous man. The lawyers ronnd the throne srekligg to glve to the net of might the sauction of right. hethumght them of that passage $\ln$ the law of the Salian Franks which dechares 'That no part or heritaze of filic land con fall to a woman'; and It is from this that the law obtained the name of "the sulic Law." -G. W. Khehin, Hint. of Fromer, r. 1, bik. 3, ch. 11, mett. 1-2. -"In thils coniest [after the death of Lomis X., as menthond above], every way memorable, but espe. clally on arcount of that whle sprung out of it, the exclusion of females from the throne of France was first puhliely dliscussect. . . . It may be fairly inferred that the walle law, as it Was calleri, was not so fixed a princlpie at that tlme as has been contendedi. But however thls may be. It recelved at the accession of Phllp the Loug a sanctlon whleh subsequent events more thoroughly confirmel. Phllp himself leaving only three daughters, hls brother Charles [IV.] mounted the throne; and upon hia death the ruie was so unquestionably established, that his ouly daughter was excluded by the count of Valols, grandson of Philip the Bold. This prince first took the regency, the queen-dowager being preg. nant, and, upon her giving birth to a daughter, was crowned king [Philip of Valoin]. No competicor or opponent appeared In France; hut one more formidable than any whom France could have proxliced was awalting the nccaslon to prosecute hls imagined right with ail the resources of valour and genins, and to carry desolation over that great kingdom with as little scrupie as if be was preferring a sult before a clvil tribunal." This was King Edward 111. of Engiand, whose mother Isabel was the slster of the last three French kings, and who clalmed through ber a right to the Frencb erown. - IH. Hallam, The Middle Ages, ch. 1, pt. 1. -See, also, France: A. D. 1398-1330.

SALICE, Battie of. See Germait: A. D. 1809 (JANCARY-JUNE).
SALICES, Ad, Battic of. See Gorna (VistGOTH8): A. D. 378.

SALINE.-A Roman town in Britaln, celebrated for its sait-works and sait-baths. Its ste Is necupled by molern Droitwich.-T. Wright, Celt. Riman and Skuron. ch. 5.
SALINAN FAMILY, The. See American Ahortornes: Salinan Family.

SALISBURY, Gemot of.-WHiam the Conqueror, whlle estahllshing feudallsm In England, "hroke into its 'most essentlal attrinute, the exclusive dependence of a vassal upon his loni,' by requiring $\ln$ nccordance with the old Engilsh practice, that ali landowners, mesne tensnts as well as tenants-in-chief, should take the oath of fenity to the King. Thls was formally decreed at the celebrated Gemot held on Salishiry Plaia, on the 1st of August, 1086, at which the Whan and all the landowners of aubstance in Eayland whose rassals suever they were, attendel, to the number, it la reported, of 80,000 . The statute, as soon as passell, was carried into lnumediate effect."- T. P. Taswell-Langmeal, Eing. ('unut. Ifint. $p$. sis.
SALISBURY MINISTRIES, The. See Evaland: A. D. 1885; 1885-1886; and 19931803.

SALISHAN FAMILY, The, See Anerican Ahminoner: Flatheade.
SALLUVIANS. Hee Balyes.
SALON, Origin of the French. Sre Raxnocili.et llothil de.

SALONA, Ancient.-"Amldst the decay of the emplre $\ln$ the thind century 1 Dalmatha suffered comparatlvely little; ludeed, Salomae prohably only reached at that time lts greatest prosperity. This, It is true, was occasloned partly by the fact that the regenerator of the Roman state, the emperor Diocletlan, was by hirth a Daluation, nid allowed his efforts, almed at the decapitulislag of liome, to relound chlefly to the bearfit of the caplai of his native land; he bult alongside of it the huge palace from whleh the molera capital of the provinee takes the name Spilato, withlu whilch it has for the most part fisuads place, anil the temples of which now serve thas catherlral and as baptistery. Dlocletlan, however, dld not make Sainnae a great city for the first time, but. bre use lt was such. choen it for l:is private resld....e; commerce, navigatinn, sad trade must at that time $\ln$ these witera bave been concentrated chiefly at Aquileí and at Sa loase, and the city must have been one of the most populous and opulent towns of the west." -T. Mrommsen, Hist. of Rome, bk. 8, ch. 6.

BALONA.

SALVATION ARMY.

Aluo IN: E. A. Freeman, Subject and Neighbor Lande of Vonice.-T. G. Jackson, Dalmatia, the Quarnero and Iatria, ch. 1-2 and 10-12 (b. 1-2.
SALONICA.-The modern name of anclent Thessaionica. See Thessalonica.
SALONIKI, The kingdom of.-The klng. dom ohtained hy Bonlface, Marquis of Montferrat, in the partlion of the Byzantine Emplre sfter its conquest by the Crusaders, A. D. $1: 04$, comprised the province of Macedonla, with Thessalonica for lis capltal, and was called the kingdom of Salonlkl. Its duratlon was brief. In 1222 the nelghboring Greek despot of Epirus took Thessalonlcs and conquered the whole klngdom. He then assumed the title of emperor of Thessaionlca, in rivalry wlth the Greet emperors of Nlease and Trebizond. The title of king of Saloniki was cherished hy the family of Montferrat for some generations; but those who clalmed lt never made good thelr title by possession of the klingdom. - G. Finlay, Hist. of Grecce from the Conquest by tho Crusaders, ch. S--See, also, Byzantive Expine: A. D. 12041205.

SALOPIAN WARE.-Pottery manufactured hy the liomaus $\ln$ Britain from the clay of the Severn valley. Two sorts are found In con. siderabic ahundance - one white, the other a light red color.-L. Jewltt, Grare.Mounds, p. jß4.
SALSBACH, Death of Turenne at ( 1675 ). See Jietherlands (Holland): A. D. $1674-160$ SALT, French tax on. See Taille and Gabelle
SALT LAKE CITY: The founding of (1847) See Mormuninm : A. D. i $446-1848$.

SAlvador. Nee Central Amemica.
SALVATION ARMY, The. - "sime people of today seem to have the idea that the Rev Filliam Booth was Jove, and that the Salvation Army sprang from bis hrain full-grown nul fully armed. Far from lt; a loy trained in the Charcil of Engiand is converted among Wes. iegan Methulists, and, believing thoroughly in what be professes, is constrained to feel interestel in the saivation of others. Ile is mueh movel by some revival services that he hears conducted bị the Rev. James Caughey, an American evangilist, and tile effect of the straighthirward. conrersatlonnl style of preaching makes an impression apon him that is never forgotten. Througt all the years that foliow, among aii the scenes of his labors as a Metlowlist minister. he never forgets that simple, open-air prenciting. thast pushing bome of the truth, with its Wonderful resuits, and jear nfter year only ins. creases the convictlon that the misses can oniy be reachell hy going to thent, and never, never sared br wniting untii they come to us. Yeurs passed away before William Beotio nul his wife came to the point wisere they could suep out. shake of traditional metirois and means, and bexia to carry out evangelistic work on lines forbididen by the claurches.. . . Nothing silcceeds like success,' and wheu the first resuits were brewrentiree and four thuusum sonls in furr little towns of Cornwail, there was $n$ dreverl leaning toward them, overpowered, though, at a meetling of the Wesleyan Confer: ence, whlch promulgated the strange formula that 'evangelistic movements are unfarorable to Church order.' Ilowever, the work was carried on ateadily, untll that memorable Sunday [July 5th, 1865] ou Miie End Waste, East Lon. don. from which Wiiliam Booth consecrated hlmself to tite salvation of the ignorant, and from which he dates nll statistics referring to bis work as an independent movenent in the religious worli. From this time forwnati, without lnterrupting in the least the opela-air work, one sheiter after another was securedi and appropriated for mission work, buere a tent or all oid stahie, where $n$ carpenter's shop, untii the novement was strong enough to warrut the if nise of - The Eastera Star.' a nutorious heer-house, which was used as loovestore, haii, imil ciassroom. From this place, witit its nalue of good hope, hundreds of souls went fortl to make the wilderness biossom ilke the rose, so far as their humble homes were concerucd. Sliefig, lofts, alieys, tumbic-down theatres, weil known pinces of resort or of refuge were preferred as heing familiar to the class of men who were to be remebed. Such was the Sulvation Army in Its eariy years, merely a ' mission,' with no nore idea of development into nat 'army.' whlt military rule and nomenciature, thmn we at the present time have of what may come to us in the next twenty years."-11. 13. Bontil, la weth Tien Flags, ch. 2.--"In $18: 3$ Mre Beoti, overeomiag her own intense relıctance, begaa to preacii. In 18it and the two following years tile work spreal to Portsmouth, Chathm, Fiviliugborough, liammersmitio, Ilackney, Leris, lecicester, Stakkion, Mlddiesborougia, Cardiff, Iiartlepeobl, abal otiker towns, where recent converts of thic humblest rank-tiukers, railway guncls, hav vies-took charge of new statious. In 18:3, shaking itseif nore and more free from the tranamile of cinstom and rontine, the Army delibrately utilizerd the serviecs of women. lu $1 \times i ;$ it sireal stifi further. lu 19.8 it 'attnckerf no iess than fifty towns, and - more by witat we siouid cali 'ace. cifient' than by design-assumed the title of the simation Army it aiss alopied, for good or for evil, the wionic vocabulury of mlifitary organization, which has cansed it to be covered witit ridicuic, but which maly undowhedly have aideel its diseipriue and helped its progress. In 1879 adranee was markel by tite imprisonment of three salvatlonists - who refuserl, us aiways. to pay the alternative fine - for the offenee of praying in a comutry roul near a pablic fowse. which was reparded as obstructlag the thoronglifure.' In this yeur began also the estabiishment of trainiag homers for tive instruetion and equipment of the young offileers; the printing of the 'War Cry': the use of uniforms ad hadges: and the extension of the work to l'iniadidphia and the Culted states lo INMO the United Kingdom was mapped into divisions. lu iss1 the work was extended to Australianai the colonies, and so stupenious lad lecrande tive religions energy of the soidiers that they hegan to dramm of the Feligions rescue of Europe as weli as of Great Britain and lts empirecolouies. Since tiat year its spread, in splte of all opponition. has been stealy and contimous. until. in 1 N (H), it excited the attention of the eivilizel world by that immense scheme of social amolionation into whicis we shall not here enter particularly. At tife present moment [1801] the Anny has no less sALVATION ARMY.
than 9,340 regular officers, 18.000 voluntary ofticers, 30 training homes, with 400 cadets, ned 2, wht corps sentered over $2 different countries. In England alone It has 1,377 corps, and has held some 180,0 , $n$ openalr meetlogs. This represents a part of lis reltglons work. Besldes this it has in socinl work 30 rescue homes, 5 slefters, 3 foxd ele inots, and many other ngencics for gowl."-F. W. Farrnr. 7 he inlention Army alresses, deliveref darlng his ravit to the United States, In Febrinary, inis, Geveral Booth sald:
" We hnve, with Gol's help, been able to carry our hanner and lolist onr flag in 45 different combtries and culonies, and we nre reaching ont day hy day. We hnse been nble to create nodi bring into harmonions nction, with self-supporting anl self.gutling ofticers, something llke 4 , (MM) separnte societies. Vie lave heen able to gather together mathing like $11,(M)$ men and women, semarated froa their carthy affiliations, who have gome forth as temers of this lonst." In the same adilress, (ienerail liooth gave the number of the Army newspapers as $\mathbf{2 F}_{2}^{2}$. with a circulation of inti(KHO, (OMO, - presumably meaning the total issues of a yeur. Commissioner Railton, of the Salvation Army, writing In 1893, had giren more precisely the numher 10,645, ns that of the menand women offleers, - " the men und women," he sall, " who ghally hear contempt, abuse, poverty, and sutfering of erery kind, that they may spend the part of life which still remains to them In proctalminge their surlour." fle gave the nuntber of "llomes, Refures, Farm Colonles, Shetters and human Elevators" malutained by the Army as 21 N . and stated that its journals were being pubtishitel in $\mathrm{t} t$ languages. Mrs. Catherine Broth. who diewl in 1890 , had exercised agreat and inspiring influence in its work, and lier loss was profomilly felt.
SALYES, OR SALLUVIANS. - The Salyes or Saluvii or Sallurtans, named Salvll Yalli in Liry's Epitome, "were Llgurians or a mlxed race of Celts and Ligurians. They perhaps occupied part of the coast enst of Massllia: they certainly extended inland behind that town to the limone on the west and to the north as far as the river Druentla (Durance). They occupied the whle plain which you may see from the hlghest polat of the great amplithentre of A relate (Arles) tretchlng east from Tarnscon and the Rhone as far as the eye can reach." The Salyes were dangeroms to Massilia nod in 125 B . C. the latter appealed to the Romans, as ailles. The latter responded promptly nai sent Fiaccus, one of the consuls, to deal with the salyes. Ile defeated them; but lu two or three years the; were again In nrms, and consul C. Scxifus Calvinitis was sent against them. "The Salyos were agniu defeated and their chief city taken, but it is uncertaln whether this capital was Arelate (Arics) or the place afterwaris numed Aquae Sextlae (Alx).

The loman generil found in thls arid country a pleasant walley well supplled with water from the surrountligy hills, and here he establisher the colony namel A quae Sextiae." The chicfs of the conquered salyes tonk refuge with the Allobroges, and that leil to the subjugatlon of the latter (see AriLobinocies). - G. Long, Decline of ths Raman lifithlic: e. 1, ch. 17 and 21.
SALZEURG Origin of.- 'The foundiation of a colony [by Hadrian] at Juvavium, or Salz. burg, which received the name of Forum $\mathrm{Ha}_{\mathrm{a}}$ - drianl, attests the vlgifance which directed his Flew from the Ithine to the Salza, and the taste. I would wlllingly add, whlch selected for a towa to bear hls name the most enchanting slet in central Europe."-C. Merivale, Hist. of the Romans, ch. 66 .

SAMARCAND

SALzBuRGERS, The. See Georgla. A. D. 1234 .

SALZWEDEL. See Brandenbero.

SAM ADAMS REGIMENTS, The. See Bogton: A. D. 1770.

SAMANA, The proposed cession of. see Hayti: A. D. $1804-1880$.

SAMANIDES OR SAMANIANS, The. -"As the vigour of the Khallfate begat to pass away, and effeminate luxury crept iaperceptibly Into the palaces of Baghdad, the distant lieutenants graduatly asplred to lidepcalence. At length, in 868 A. D., one Ya' kub-bia Lais, the son of a brasier in Sistan, rose in rebellion, subdued Balkh, Kabul, and Fars, hut died oa his march to Baghdad. In former days he would hnve been treated as an audacinus rethel against the anthority of the Vlcar of God; anw the degenerate Khallfah appointed his brother 'Ainr hls lieutenant on the dcath of Ya' kub [A. D. 878], and allowed hlm to govern Fars, as the founder of the Suffary, or Brasier, dymatr. Ever fearful of the power of 'Amr, the K'lalifah at length instigated a Tatar Iord, named limail Samany, to raise an army against the Naffaris. In Khurasan. 'Amr marched against him, and crossed the Oxus, but he was entirely defentecl; and laughed heartly at a dog, who man away with the little pot that was prepariag the humble meal of the fallen king. That momlng it had taken thirty camels to carry his kitchen retlnue. Amr was sent to laughal, and put to death $\ln 901$ A. D. Isaiail, who traced hls desceat from a Persian noble who had rebelled agalnst Klunsru Parviz, now founded the Samany [or Samanide] dyuasty, which ruled over Khurassan and the north of Persin, with thelr capital at Bukhara. The Dailany [or Dilemlte or Boulde] dynasty ruied in Fary and the south of Persia during the same periul. To the Samanlans Persla owes the restoration of itg natlonality, which had been oppressed aad trod. den under foot by the Arahian concuerors." The Samanlde dynasty was overthrowa in 998 by the founder of the Gaznevide Eappire, which succeeded.-C. R. Markham, Generul Sheteh of the Hist. of Persia, ch. 6.

Aleo in: SIr J. Malcolm, Ifist. of Perria, e. 1, ch. 6.-See, also, Traks: A. D. $999-1183$.

SAMARAH, Battle of.-Thls was the battle in whiclt the Roman emperor Juliau was killod (June 26, A. D. 363), during the retreat from tis IIl-starred expedition beyond the Tigris, againat the Persians.-G. Ifawllnson, Serenth Girat Ori. ental Monarchy, ch. 10.

SAMARCAND. - Anclent Maracaada, the capital city of Sogdlana. See Soomana; and Borbara.
6th Century. -Taken from the White Huns by the Turks. See Turks: 6th Ceatury.
A. D. 1209-1220.-Capital of the Khuaresmian empire. See Khuarezm.
A. D. 1221. - Conquest and destruction by Jligis Khan.- When Jingis Khan, the Moagol conqueror and devastator of Centrai Asls, in. vaded the Khahrezmian Empire, Bamarkand wa

SAMARCAND.

ite capital and its most important city. "The fuglive Khabrezmian prince had left behind him for the defeace 110,000 men - i. e., 60,000 Turks and 50,000 Tadjiks - with twenty eieplants." But the Turkish mercenaries deserted in a boxiy and the town was surreadered after a siege of three days. "The flourishiag city of Samarkand and the fortress were laifi cven with the ground: and the iahahitants, stripped of ali they possessed, shared the fute of their hrethren of Bokliara. Those who hull coutrived to escape were fured back by faise promises; ail capable of bearing arms were compulsorily enmolled ia the Moagolian army; the artistle gardeners of the place were sent off to the far East, where they wrre wated to adorn the future Mongolo-Chiaese eapitai with pleasuregrounds, after the fashion of those of Samarsand, and the celehrated artisans, especiaily the silk and cotton weavers, were cither distrihuted as clever and useful slaves amongst the wives and relatioas of Djengliz, or else carried with him to Khorasan. A few were seat as glaves to his sons Tchagatai aad Oktai, who were then marehing on Khahrezm. This was the end, in the year 618 (1221), of Samarkand, which Arahian geographers have described us the most brilifiant and most flomrishing spot on the face of the earth."-1. Vámbéry, Ifist. of Bhikhara, ch. 8.- Samarkand was not onfy the capitai of Trans. Oxima, but also one of the greatest eatrepots of commerce in the worid. Three miles in eircum. ference, it was surrounded with a wali having castles at intervals, and pierced by tweive iroa gates."-H. H. Howorth, Hi. if the Mongole, pt. 1. $p$. 79 .
A. D. 1371-1405,-The capitai of Timour. See Tivorr, THE conquests of.
A. D. 1868.-Seizure by the Russians. See Rr8si: A. D. 1859-18i6.

SAMARIA.-SAMARITANS: Eariy hie-tory.-The Kingdom of Israel:-Overthrow by the Assyrians. See Jews: Kivadoms of lerael and Jtidar.
Repopuiation of the city and district by the Assyrian congueror.- After the capture of the city of Samaria (B. C. 722) aad the deportatioa of a large part of its iahahitants hy the Assyrian conqueror (see as above), "these districts remained for many years ia a coadition of such desolation that they were overrun with wild beasts. Ia the meantime King Asarhaddon, whom we suppose to be Asarhaddon II., Laviag reduced afresh severai refrsctory towns about twenty years after the death of Senaacherib, aad wishing to inflict oa their inhahitaats the favourite punishment of his predecessors, trasported large boxilies of their heathea populations into these deserted regions., .. A great number of the settlers in Samaria, , the former capitai, appear to have come from the Babylonian city of Cuthah, from which arose the aame of Cutheans, often applied fa derision to the Samaritans by the later Jews. Other settiers were seat from Babylon itself," and "from the cities oa the west of the Euphrates, Hamath, Ivah, and Sephar-vaim."-H. Ewaid, Hiot. of Irrael, r. 4, pp. 215-
216 .
After the Exile.- In the secoad aad third generatioas after the return of the Judaans from exlle, there began to be connections formed hy marriage with the neighboring people.. These peoples. " particuiarly the Samaritans, had given up idolatry, and were longing earnestly and truly to take part in the divine service at Jerusatem. They were, in fact, proseiytes to the reiigion of Judea; and were they aiways to be sternly repulsed! The principal Judran famifies determiacel to admit the foreigners into the community, aud the high priest of that time. etther Jehoiakim or his son Eliashih. Was ready to carry these wishes lato effect. Marriages were therefore contrscted with the Samaritaas Aad other neighbouring people." Buta when Ezra and his party came from Babylon (B. C. 459-458) bringing an access of retigious zeai and narrower faterpretations of the iaw, these marriages were coademaed, and those who had contracted them were foreed to repudiate their foreign wlves and the chiddren borae hy such. This eruelly fanatical action changed the friendiy feeliag of the Samaritans to hatred. Their leader, Sanhailat, was a man of power, and he began against the restored Judreaas a war which drove them from Jerusalem. It was aot wanti Nehemiah came from Susa, with the authority of King Artaxerzes to rebuild the wails, that they recovered the city. "The strict observance of the Law enjoiaed by Ezra was followed out by Nehemiah; be strengtheaet the wail of separatioa between Judæans and Gentiles so securely that it was almost impossible to hreak through it." Sanbaliat, whose son-in-law, a pricst, hat been exiled oa acconnt of his Samaritan marriage, now "cuaaingly conceived the plan of undermining the Judæna community, by the heip of its owa members. How would it be were he to raise a temple to the God of Israei, in rivalry to the one which held sway in Jerusaiem ?" He executed his pian and the Samaritan tempie was raised on Mount Gerizim. Thus "the Samaritaas had their temple, around which they gathered; they had priests from the house of Aaroa; they compared Mount Gerizim Mouat Morina; they drew the infereace from the Book of the Law that God had designed Mount Gerizim as a site for a sunctuary, aad thcy prouily cailed themseives Israelites. Sanhailat and his followers being intent upon attractlag a great maay Judreans to thelr communlty. tempted them with the offer of houses and fand, and in every way helped to support them. Those who had been guilty of crime and who feared puaishment, were received with open arms hy the Samaritaas. Out of such elements a new semi-Judxan community or sect was formed. Their home was in the somewhat iim . ited district of Samaria, the centre of which was either the city that gave its name to the proviace or the town of Sbechem. The members of the new community became an active, vigorous, in telifgent feople, as if Saaballat, the founder, had hreathed hls spirit in to them.

They actuaily tried to argue away the right of the Judæans t. exist as a commualty. They deciared that ther aloae were the deaceadants of Israel, and they deaied the saactity of Jerusaiem and its Temple; affirming that -verything achieved by the Ju. dasan peopie was a debasement of the olid Israelite character. Upon the Judsaa side. the hatred against their Eamaritan neighbours was equally great. The eamity between Jerusalem and Samaria that existed in the time of the two kingdoms hiazed out anew; it no longer bore a political character, but one of a

samaria

sAMO.

religious tendency. "-II. Graetz, Fistory of the Jers, eh. 18-20 (8. 1). -"Whlle the Hebrew writers unanimousiy represent the Samaritans as the descendants of the Cuthean colonists introduced by Esarhadidon, a forelgn and Idolatrous race, thelr own traditlous derive thelr regular lheage from Ephralm and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph. The remarkable fact, that this people have preserved the book of the Mosaic law in the ruder and more anelent character, whlle the Jews, after the return from Babylonla, unlversaily adopted the more clegant Chaldean form of letters, strongly confirms the opinlon that, al. though by no means pure nad unmingled, the Ifehrew blood stlll predominated in thelr race. In many other respects, regard for the Sabbath and even for the sahbatic yenr, and the parment of ththes to their priests, the Snmaritans did not fall beiow their Jewish rivals in attachment to the Mosale polity. The later events in the his. tory of the kings of Jerusalem show that the expatriation of the ten tribes was by no means complete and permanent: Is it then an unreasonahle suppositlon, that the forelgn colonists were lost in the remnant of the Israelitlsh people, and. though perhaps slowly and imperfectiy weaned from thelr natlve superstitions, fell hy degrees into the hablts and bellefs of thelr adopted country ? . . Whether or not lt wns the perpetuatlon of the ancleat feud between the two rivnl kingdoms, from thls period [of the return from the captivity In Bahylonia] the hostlity of the Jews nol Samaritans assuned lts character of fierce nud implacable animosity. No two nations ever hated each other with more unmitggated bitter. ness. "- II. II. JIIman, llist. of the Jeurs, bk. 9.
Change of population by Alexander the Great.-After the sulmission of Palestine to Alexander the Great (B. C. 332), Sumaria "rebetleti nod murdered the Macelonlan governor, Anifomachns. Alexander expelled the lnhabltants, and planted a Macedonlan colony in thelr room-another heathen element In the motley population of Samaria."-P. Smlth, Hiat, of the Horli: Ancient, c. 3, ch. 34 .

Rebuilding of the city by Herod.-One of the measures of King Ilerod, for strengthening hilmself outstle of Jerusalem, was "the rehnild. lug of Sanaria, wheh he did (B. C. 25) on a scale of great magnificence and strength, and peopled it partly with hils soldiers, partly with the descendants of the old Sumaritnns, who hoped to see their temple 1lkewise restored." Ife changel the name of Samaria, however, to Bebaste - the August.-1I. II. Milman, Hist. of the Jever, ik. 11 .

Justinian's War.-The Christlan zenl of the Emperor Jisthian [A. D. 527-565] Indneed hhm to un' rtake the forcible conversion of all unbelievers In his empire. Among others, the Samaritans of Palestine were offered "the alternative of haptism or rebeillou. They chose the latter: under the standaril of a desperate lender they rose in arms, and retallated thelr wrongs on the lives, the property, and the temples of a defeneeless people. The Samaritnns were finally suhdued hy the regular forees of the East; $\mathbf{2 0 , 0 0 0}$ were slann, 20,000 were sold by the Arahs to the Intideis of Persia and Indin, and the remains of that unhappy nation ntoned for the crime of treason hy the sin of hypocrlsy. It has been computed that 100,000 Roman suhjects were extirpated in the Samaritan war, whlch converted the once fruitfui province into a desolate and smoking wilderneas."-E. Gibbon, Declina and Full of the Roman Empire, ch. 47.

SAMARKAND. See Saxarcand.

SAMBUCA, The.-A great milliary engine, in ancient sleges, was a specles of huge covered iadder, supported hy two ships lashed together and lloated up agalnst the sea wail of the besieged town. The Greeke calied it a Samhuca. Sith. ridates brought one lnto use witen lieslegtig Rhodes, B. C. 88, but with disaatrons fuilure.G. Long, Decline of the Roman Republic, v. 2, ch. 20.

SAMIAN WARE.-An elegant speries of Roman pottery, rel in color, which was in great repute anomy the anelents.

SAMMARINESI, The.-The citizens of Sas Marino. See San Marino. The Replblic or.
SAMNITE WARS, The. See Rome: B. C 343-290.
SAMNITES, The.-"The Samuite nation [see Italy: Ancient], whlch, at the time of the expulslon of the Tarquins from IRome, had doubtless already been for a conslderable perimal In possesslon of the hlll-country which rises be. tween the Apullan and Campanian plalns and commands them both, had hltherto found its further advance impeded on the one side by the Duunians, . . on the other by the Grech's and Etruscans. But the fall of tha Etrnseman juwer towards the end of the thlni, aid the deeline of the Greek colonies In the course of the fourth century [B. C.], made room for them tuwards the west aud south; and now one Sambite host after another marehed down to, and evell moved aeross, the sonth Italian seas. They first made the-Ir appearance $\ln$ the pialn adjoining the hay, with whith the name of the Campunims has been assoclatel from the begluning of the fourh century; the Etruscans there were suppressent, and the Greeks were contined within marrower bounds; Capia was wrested from the furmer [B. C. 424] Cume from the latter [13. C. 400]. About the same time, perhaps even carlicr, the Lucanlans appeared In Sagna Graecia. . . . Tuwarls the end of the fourth century mention first occurs of the separate confederary of the Brutth, who had detached themselves from the Lucunhas-not, like the other Subelliau stocks. as a coiong, but through a quarrel-nad had hecome mixed up with inany foreign elements. The Greeks of Lower ltaly tried to resist the pressure of the barharlans.

But wn the union of Magna Graceia uo ionger availef: fur the ruler of Syracise, Dionysliss the Finier, made common cause with the Italiaus agahnt his countryinen.

In an lncredihly slart time the circle of flourlshing citles was destroyed or liid desolate. Only n few Greek settlements, such as Nenpolls, sueceeded with diffeulty, and more by means of treaties than hy forec of arms, in preserving their exlstence and their matimality. Tarentnm nlone remalned thoroughly independent and powerful.

Abont the periokl whea Vell and the Pomptine plain came lnto the lands of Rome. the Samite hordes were alrondy lo possesslon of all Lower Italy, with the exception of a few unconnected Greek colmules, sud of the Apulo. Messapian coast."-T. Mommeen. Hist. of IRome, ble. 2, ch. 5.

SAMO, The Kingdom of. See Avars: ith Centurt.

SAMOA.

SAMOA- Samoa Is the native name of the group uf twelve voicsnic laiands in central Polyareea fo. merly known as the Navigator lsiands. Their piace on the ehart is between the paraliels of $13^{\circ}$ and $15^{\circ}$ couth latitude, and $168^{\circ}$ and $173^{\circ}$ west iongitude. The total area of the islands is about 1,700 square miles. The population consista of about 86,000 natives and a few huadred forcigners, Engilsh, American and Germnu. The tslands are said to have been first visited by the Dutch navigator, Roggewein, in 1722. A Chris. tisn milssion was first estabilisiced upon them in 1830, by the London Missiouary Society. After some years the trade of the islands became insportant. and German traders aequired an intluence which they scem to have used to bring about a state of civil war between rival kings. The Cuited Stater, Great Britain and Germany, at length, in $18 \% 9$, hy joint action, interrened, and, after ten years more of disturbed and unsatisfactory goverument, the affairs of Samon were tinally gettied at a conferenee of the threr Powers held in Berlin in 1889 . A treaty was signed liy which they jointis guarantee the nelttrality of the isiands, with equai rigits of residence, trade and personal proteetion to the eitienss of the tiree siguatory $\mathrm{I}^{\circ}$ owers. They recognize the independence of the Samoan Goveroment, and the free right of the nutives to eleet their chief or ling and choose the forui of their government. The treaty created a supreme court, with jurisdiction uver ali questions arising under it. It stopped the alienation of ianis br the untives, excepting town lots in A pia, the capital town; and it organized a municipai gov. ernment for Apia, with an ciected council muler the presidency of a magistrate appointed hy the three l'owers. Other articies inipose customs duties on forelgn importations, and nrohihit the sale of intoxicating ifquors to the natives. $-A p$ zNeton's innual Cyrlopedia, 1888 and 1889.

Alao In: The Statesman's Year.Rok, 1804.R. L. Stevenson, A Foot-note to History,-G. I1. Biates, Lome Ampecto of the stamoan Question (The (intury, April and Lay, 1889 ). See, aiso, PolyNEsis.

SAMOS. - SAMIANS. - The isiand now callei Samo, lying elose to the coast of Asia Minor, in the part of the Egean Sea which was anciently known as the Icarian Sea. It is of considurable size, being about eiginty miles in circumference. The narrow strait which separutes it from the mainiand is oniy about three-fourths of a mile wide. The ancient Samians were eurly ani iuportant members of the Ionian confederacy [se Asla Mnor: The Greek Colonien] and acqulred an eariy prominence among Greck coni. munities in navigation, commerce, coiouizing enterprise and adrancement in the arts. Shortly before the Persian wars, in the last haif of the sixth century $\mathbf{B}$. C. the isiand became suhject to a profoundiy able and amhitious usurper, Poiycrites, the most famous of ali the Greek "tyr. ants " of the age, and under whom Samos rose to great power and great splendor of deveiopment. Lanos was at that time the briliant centre of all lonia, as far as the latter was yet untouched by the bartarians. For such a position she was preeminently fitted: for nombere had the nationai life of the loulans attained to so many-sider and encrgetic a deveiopnent as on this partic. iar isliui.. ... An unwearying impulse for inven-

SAN DOMINGO.

tions was Implanted in thase Islanders, and at the same time a maniy and adventumus spirit of dis covery, stimuinted hy the dangens of unknown seas.

Unier Yolycrates, Samos had become a perfectiy organized piraticai state; and no ship conid quietiy pursue its royages without having frst purchased a safe conduct from Samos.
But Poiycrates intenied to he snmetining more than a freebooter. Aftrr he had anuihinted sil uttempts at resistance, and made his theet the sole naval power of the drehipriago, he 'egan to take steps for eresting a new nuil lasting estabilaiment. The defcnceless places on the coast had to huy security hy the regniar puyment of trinute; under his protection they uniteri into $n$ lonaly, the Interests and affairs of whieh cnute more and more to flud their centre in samos, which from a piratieni state beconic the ferleral capitai of an extensive nod hrilliant empire of coasts and isiands."-E. Curthns, Hint. of Grecce, bk. 2. ch. 5 ( .2 ). - Two of the grent works of Polyerates in Samos, the aquediuet, for whileh a mountain was tunneilet, aud the harlor breakwater, were among the wouders of autiquity. The llerrum, or temple of liere, was a thiri marvel. After the death of Polycrates, treacheronsiy murdered by the Persinus, sunios lecame snbject to I'ersia. At a later time it cante nnder the sover elgnty of Athens, and its suhsequent history was fili of vicissituies. It retained considerahle importanec cern to loman times.
B. C. 440 .-Revolt from Athens.-Siege and suhjugation. Sce Atiens: B. C. $440-487$.
B. C. 413.-Overthrow of the oligarchy.Concession of freedom and aliance hy Athens. Sce Guezee: B. C. 413-412.
B. C. 33-32.-Antony and Cieopatra.-The wiuter of 13. C. $33-32$, before the hattie of Ac tium, was passed hy Jiark Antony at Saros, in "ompany with Cleopatra, the Queve of Egypt. "The delicious littic island was crowded witi. musicians, daneers and stage players; fts shores resounded with the wanton sitralus of the tlute and tahret."-C. Merivalc, Mist. of the Homane,
A. D. 1824.- Defeat of the Turics by the Greeks. Nec Greece: A. 1). 18:21-1899.

SAMOSATA. Sec Commagene.

SAMOTHRACE,-A mountainous isiand in the northern part of the Egean sea, so elevated that its highest point is over 5,000 feet above the sea level. In ancient times it derived its ehief importance from the mysterics of the littie understood worship of the Cabiri, of which it seems to have been the ehief seat.-G. S. Faber, Myateries of the Cibiri. - "The tempie and mysteries of Samothrice formed a polnt of union for many meu from all countries: for a great portion of the world at that time, the great porSamothrace was like the Caabs of Mecca, the tomb of the prophet at Medina, or the Holy Sepuichre at Jerusulem. Samothrace and Dodoua were to the Pelasgian nations what perhaps Deiphi aud Delos were to the Heilenic worid. "- B. G. Niebuirr, Lect's on the Hist. of Rome, ket. 1.

SAN. See Zoan.
SAN ANTONIO, Battie of. See Merico: A. D. $18+\%$ ( $\mathrm{M}_{\text {ahell }}$ - SnPTEMEER).

SAN CARLOS, Battle of. Sec Venezumla:
SAN DOMINGO, OR HAYTI. See Harti

SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO: A. D. 1579-Supposed vialt by Drake: See Califormia: A. D. 1543-1781; aud AxErica: A. D. 1572-1880.
A. D. $177^{2-8776, ~ F i r s t ~ e x p i o r a t i o n ~ a n d ~}$ aaming of the Bay.-Founding of the Mission. Bee California: A. D. 1548-1781.
A. D. 1846. - Possession taken by the Americang. See Caltonnia: A. D. 1846-1847.
A. D. 1846. - The naming of the Goiden Gate. The great Bay. See Goldex Gatk.
A. D. $1848 .-$ On the eve of the Goid diacoveriea. See California: A. D. 1848-1849.
A. D. 1856,-The Vigilance Committee. See Caltrormia: A. D. 1850.
A. D. 1877-1880,- Kearney and the Sand Lot Party. See Califormia: A. D. 187\%-1880.

SAN FRANCISCO, Battie of (8879). See Chile: A. D. $1833-1844$.

SAN JACINTO, Battle of (1836). See TEXAs: A. D. $182+1836$.
SAN JUAN OR NORTHWESTERN WATER-BOUNDARY QUESTION.-The treaty of 1846 which settied the Oregon boundary question left stlll in dispute the wuter-boundary between the territory of the Colted States and Vancouver's island. Provision for submitting the determination of this San Juan waterboundary question, as it was called, to the Emperor of Germany was nade in the Treaty of Washington (sce Alabama Claims: A, D. 18it). "The Emperor, it appears, referred the arguments on both sides to three experts, Dr. Grimm, Dr. Kiepert, and Dr. Goldscimaldt, personages among the most emlnent of his subjects $\ln$ jurisprudence asd ln science, upon whose report he decided, on the 21st of Octoler, 185. in the terms of the reference, that the claim of the Cultel States to have the tine drawn throngh the Canal de flaro ls most ln accordance with the trie inturpretation of the treaty concludied on the 15th of June, 1846, hetween Great Britain and the l'nitcd states. 'Thls I ward.' says the Preshleut's Message of December 2, 18 is, confirms the caited states ln their clalm to the lm portant archlpelago of islands lying between the continent and lancouvers island, which for more than :28 years . . . Great Britain had contested, and fenves us, for the first time in the history of the United States as a natlon, whthont aquestion of disputed boundary bet ween onr territory and the possesssions of Great Britaln on this couthent." ${ }^{-C}$. Cinshlag. The Treaty of Wimhingt m, p. 2ae - The Haro Archlpelago, which formed the subject of dispute, is a group of many lslands, mostly suuli, but contalning one of considerable lmportance, namely the island of san Juan. The comblned area of the Islands is about $1 \% 0$ square milles. The archipelago is bommed on the north by the Canal de Haro and the Gulf of Georgia, on the enst by hosario Strait, on the west by the conal de Harn, on the sminh by the Stralts of Fuca. The antrance to the strait caficel the Canal de Haro is :ommanded by the 1stand of San Juan, whith has, therefore, been called "the C'rnnstadt of the Pacitic." Its position is such that a few batteries, skilfully phaced, would render it almost impregnabie." Hence the lmportance attached to the possesslon of this island, and especially on the part of Grat Britain. lonking to the future of British Columbia. is the decislon of the Emperor of Germany the eutire Arclipelago became part of the recogaized territory of the United States. - Viscount Milton, Hist of the ith Junn Water Boundary Qucation [ts 1869].
SAN MARINO, The Republic of.-"The Republic of San Marino is a survivai unique in the political world of Europe.

The sover. elgn independence of San Marino is due to a series of happy sceldenta which were crystalised into a sentiment. The origin of the state is ascribed to a Daimatian alint who fleif from the early persecutions at Rome and dwelt in a hermitage on Mount Titanus. But it is impossible to belitve that there was no earller popuintion. The mountain is a detached block standing free of the Apennines, -a short twelve milles from the sea coast, easliy defensible and commandlag a fertlle uddulating district. The hlifi-rillages must have existed before the towns of the consth As old as lliyrian pirates were the highland townships of Verrucelio, san Leo, Vrblao, Osimo, Loretto, and above all Ran Marino. Yet, but for the saint and his nobie bencfactress Fell. clta, San Marino would have shnret the fate of other highinnd communes. This fady was a Countess Matilda on a smail scalc. She gave to the young congregatlon the proprietorshlip of the mountaln, and the lower table land was acquired hy subsequent purchase and br the generosity of Pope Eneas Sylvlus. But Feilicitá coulli not give sovcrelgnty, - she could give no more than slee possessed. The sovercignty had restel with thic Rommn Repubilic - the Emplrc - the Githe - the Greeks - the Germnns. The Papace itself had as much clalm to San Marino as to byything which it possessed. It was includied at allevents In the donation of Pepin. In the fontiticate of John XXII. the Bishop of Feltro, who claimed the ownershlp of the town, proposed to sell it, partly because he needed noney to restore his church, partly because the Summarlenen were rebeilions subjects, - not recogulsthe supuriors here on carth, and perchance not lefieving upoa a superior in heaven.' Yet the Papary appars In the 13 th century to have acceptend a judictal decislon th to the sovereign Indeper leme of the Repmbic, and 1Pius 1I. considerably incrovisel its terrltory $\ln 1463$ at the expense of sigismuma Malatesta. The sovereignty of San Marino is therefore almost as completeat puzzle as that of the mysterious Rovnume d' Yetor.

Tlue Mish testas, originally lords of the neighbiring upland fortress of Vermechio would willingly have male the whole ridge the backbone of the ir tate of Rimini. But thes very fact secourel for the Siammarinesi the constant frlendship of the lueds of t'rbino. $\qquad$ Neither power conh allaw the other to appropriate so in valuable a strateric po. sition. . . . The existing constitution in a living lessen on meillevai history.

Thersetically. suvercignty in the hast resort lelongs th the peot ple, mind of old this was practically exercisel hy the Arengo, which thus has sonve correnmondence in neaning and functlons to the Floreutine barlamento. The sammarinesl, however, wite wiser than the Florentines. When the inerase of populatlon and territory rendered a puthering of the whole people an incompetent engime of legislation, the Arengo whs not allowed to retlain as a mischlevous survival with ilh-detincin anthrity nt the mercy of the governnuental wirepialers. The prerogatives wheh were rasted to the Arengo were smail but dethite. was after the accession of territory yramtel ly

Pius II. In 1485 that the constitution of the State was fundamentally altered. . . The people now delegated its zoverelgaty to the Councli, which wis ralsed to 60 memhera. ... In 1600 an order of Patriciane was eutabilished, to whicb was given one-tbind of tbe representatlon, and tbe Coimeli now consifte of 20 ' nobilh,' 20 'artisti,' artigans and thopkeepers, and 20 'contadini,' agriculturista. The bsimony of the Repubile is undisturbed by general elections, for the Council is recrulted by co-optation. . . At the head of the Execative stand the two Captalas Regent. To them the statutes assign the covereign authority and the power of the sword.

Tbey draw a small salary, and during their six months of oftlee sre free from all State burdens."-E. Armstroag, A Political Surrival (Macmillan's, Magazine, Jun., 1891). -"Between thls minlature coantry and its institutions there is a dellclous disproportion. The Hitie aren of thin soll has for centuries msintained s conupllcated govern. ment. . . . Tbere is a natlonal post-oftice; tbere is aa army of nlne hundred and fifty men and elght officers; there are diplomatic agents in Paris and Montevldeo, and consuls in various European clties. Services rendered to the State or to sclence may be rewarded by knighthool, sol so late as 1876 San Marino expressed lis gratitade to an Englisb lady for her gift of a statue of liberty, by making her Duchess of Ac quariva. Titles are by no means tbe most undemocratle part of the republlc. On examination lt is seen to be in fact an oligarchy.
Yet an oligarehy among yeoman furmers is a verg different thing from an oligarchy among merchant priaces. San Marino may be compareel with colonlal Massachusetts. The few woters have always renlly represented the mass of the people. It has heen a singularly united, courageous, honorable, publle-splrited, uud prudent people. Calon was possible beenuse it was and is a poor communlty, in which there were no powerful frmilles to ight and expel each other,隼exiles to come back with an enemy's army. The courage of the people is shown by their hospitality to Garimbldi when he was flecing after bis defeat of 1840. An excellent moral filire whs manifested when, In 1868 , the Republie refused to receive the gambling establishments which had beeu made illegal in other countries. The new town-hall is $n$ inomument to the enlightened public spirit oi the San Marinese, as well as to their tavte. That the State is prudent is shown br its distinction, almost unlque ia Europe, of having no public debt. Other little stutes in Europe have hud shallar goon! qualities, yet have logg siuce leen destroyed. Why has San Marino outivet them ull 9 . The perpet untlon of the giveroment ls due in the first phace to a singulate rredom from any desire to extend its burilers. The outlying villages have bern added by gift or be their own free will; and when, in $159 \%$, Gen. Bonaparte Invlted the San Murluese tomake Gen. Bonaparte Invlted the San Marluese tomake their wivhes known. if any part of the aljacent thritory is absolutely necessary to you.' the hard-hracirl leaders decllned $n$ nn enliugement *hlch nurlit in time compromise thelr lizerts on the other hand, the poor town had nothling worth plunduring, aad annexation was so ditflcult a task that Braedict XIF. said of Carthal Alteronl's attempt in 1739: 'San Marlno is a tough bread.crust ; the man who tries to blte it gets his teetb broken.' Nevertbeicss, even peace.
ful and inoffensive communities were not safe during tbe last tweive centuries, without power. fui protectors. The determiniag reason for the freedom of San Marino since 1300 has been the friendsbip of potentates, tirnt of the nelgbboring Dukes of Urbino, then of the Popes, then of Napoleon, then of Italy. . . . Wben the king. dom of Italy was fomned in 1860, no one cared to erase from the map a state whicb even the Pope had spared, and in which Europe was interested. Hence tbe San Marinete retalned a slitustion comparahle with that of the native states In India. A 'consolato' of the Italian Govern. ment resides in the town; the schools sre sssimiIated to the Italian system; appeals may be had from the courts to the Itallan upper courts, and precautlons are taken to prevent the harboring of refugee criminals. Yet of the old soverelgnty four important incldents are retained. San Marino bas a poat-offlce, a kind of national play. thing; hut the rare and beautiful stamps are much prized by collectors, and doubtless the sale belps the coffers of the state. The San Marinese manage, and well manage, their own local affairs, wlt hout any annoying interference from an Ital. lan prefect. Thes owe no nilltary service to Italy, and thelr own millta is no burden. Above all, they pay no inxes to Italy. If I were na Itallau. I should llke to be a San Marinese." A. B. IIart, The Ancient Commumtreath of Nan Murino (The Nation, Feb. 1, 1894).
SAN MARTIN, General José de, and the liberation of Chile and Peru. See Cume: A. D. 1810-1818; and P'Enc: A. I). 18:0-18:26.
SAN MARTINO, Battie of (1859). See Italy: A. D. 18.06-18.50.
SAN SALVADOR, Babamas. - The name plven by Columbus to the lltte island in the Buhnma group whel he first dlscovered, aud the lidentity of whel is in dispute. See AmenICA: A. D. 1492
SAN SALVADOR, Central America: A.D. 1821-1871. - Independence of Spain. - Brief annexation to Mexico.-Attempted Federations and their faiure. Sec Ceviral AMerHA: A. D. 1821-1Ni.
SAN STEFANO, Treaty of. See Turs: A. 1) $18 i \pi-18 i^{8}$, und 18 is.

SANCHO I., King of Aragon, A. D. $1003-$ 1094: IV. of Navarre, I. D. $1078-1004$
Sancho I., King of Leon and the Asturias, or Oviedo, 0 is- $186_{1}^{2}$. Sancho I., King of Na varre, W0.i-923.... Suncho 1., King of Portugal, 118j-1:11.....Sancho II., King of Castile, lobis 10ie....Sancho II. (called The Great), King of Navarre, 170-1035; and I, of Castile, 1020-1035..... Sancho II., King of Portugal, 12:23-1:44......Sancho III., King of Castile, 115i-11.58.....Sancho III., King of Navarre, 10it-10i6....Sancho IV., King of Leon and Castile, $128+1205 . .$. . Sancho $V$., King of Navarre, $1151011194 . . .$. Sancho VI., King of Na- $^{\text {varre, }} 1104-1238$. varre, 110t-1238
SAND LOT PARTY, The. See CALIFORNIA: A. 1). 18\%;-1880
SANDEMANIANS.- Robert Saudeman Wi Whs a Seotchman who held peculinr religions vews: such as - thint an intellecturl belicf Fould ensure salvation, without falth: ame that this intellectual lellef was certalu to laduce Christian virtues. IIe held these so stoudly tian virtures. Ile held these so strongly nad urgently that he made a small sect; and lu 1 iat he came to Connecticut, and founded churches at Danbury and at some ollure places, where his followers were called ' Sandemanians,' and where come traces of them exist still.

The followers of Robert Sandeman were nenrly ail Loyalists [at the time of the Amerir a Revolu. tion ], and many of them emigrated from Connec. ticut to New Brunswlck,"-C. W, Elifott, The Nee Eing. Ilial., F. 2, p. 370.

SANDJAKS, OR SANJAKS. Bee BEx; aiso Timah.
SANDJAR, Seljuz Turkish Sultan, A. D. 1116-1157.
SANDWICH ISLANDS, The. See 11. wailak Istands.

SANGALA.- An anclent city in the Punjah, Inda, which was the easternnust of all the conquests of Alexander the Grent. He took the town by storm (B. C. 826), slaying 17,010 of the Inhahitants and taking FU,000 captives. - $G$. Grote, Jlial. of Greece, pi, 2, ch. 94.

SANHEDRIM, The. -"Beside the priesthoonl [of the Jewish church], ever since the time of Ezza, there had been insensibly growing a body of schoiars, wh.t by the time of Ilerod had risen to a distinct function of the Stats. Already under John IIyrcanus there was a judicial body known as the IIouse of Judguent (Beth-Din). To this was given the Macedoninn title of Synedrion [or Synhedrion], transformed into tive barbarous Hehrew word Sanhedrim, or Sanheviria." Dean Stanley, Lectures on the Iliat. of the Jevioh Church, leet. 50.-"The Sanhedrin was the great court of judicature; it judged of all capital offences against the law; fit hat the power of inficting punishment hy scourging and hy death.

The Great Sanhedrin was a court of uppeal from the inferior Saninedrins of tweuty-three judgesestabllshed in the other towns. The Sunle. drin was probably contined to its judiclal duties - It was a plenary cou.t of justice, aud no nore -during the rugns of the later Asmonean prlnces, and during those of Herod the Great and his an Archelaus.

When Judxu becane a IRoman province, the Sanhedrin either, as is more likely, "umed for the tirst time, or recovered lits stati, rind of senate or representatlve boxly of the wation. . . At all events, they secin to have been the channel of intercourse be. ween the Ihoman rulers and the body of the people. It is the Sanhedrin, under the name of the chief priests, scribes, and eiders of the people, who take the lead in all the transuctions recorded in the Gospels. Jesus Christ was led before the Sanhedrin, and hy them denonnced before the tribunal of Pilate."-H. H. Milman, Hist. of the Jewes, bl. 12.

SANHIKANS, The. See AxEmCAN Aboriones: Aloonqetian Family.

SANITARY COMMISSION, and Christian Commission, The United States.-" Sown after Mr. Lincoln issued his prociamation [April 15, 1861, at the outbreak of the American Civii Wnr]
cailing for 75,000 soidjers, many good men and women instituted what they termed 'Soldlers' Aid societies.' At first the government did not look upon these with approvai, under an apprehension that they might interfere with the discipline and efficiency of the armies. Certain physicians and clergymen who hat? interested themacives in theas charitable undertakings percelved how much good could be accomplished by more extensive and thorough organization. Seeking no remunerstion, they applied to the government to give them recogntion and maral support, and, after mentir ditticuity, this being secured, they orgunizill themselves and were recognized as "the Linind States Sanitary Commiasion.' The liev. Ilenry W. Beliows, D. D., was its president. Thifr Intention was to ald by their proferslonal nivise the medical department of the goverament mp vice; hut mon, the tield opening ont lefint them, their operations were greatly inlarget, From being shuply an advisury, they lecame more and more an executive lnaly. . . . The Sanitary Comminalon now enterem on ait cxtraur. dinary carcer of usefulness. It runced ficils In athliatlon with the government medleal huratu. It gathered supporters from ali classew if tife peos jie. . . . Soon the conimission laminn lnilequepdeat irningortation of jts own. It had hospithl trasports, wagons, anhuinnees, miliond anhulames. cars. Ingenlous nuen devlsed for it inventions of better fitters, better stretchers, lu+tir ambulances. It secured crosfortuble transportation for the wanded sollier from the bintle thed to the itoeplai. On the raliroad it want latil fu hoepital cars, with kitchen, dispensary, and a surgeon's car in the mlist. As its worl in. creased, so did its energles and the singular eftieiency of its organization. It alivhled its m.rvices into several departments of dinty. (l) Its preventlve screice, or sanitary inspuction departaneut, had a corpa of needicul lumpectoras who examined thorugghly troops in the fedd, aud rejorted their condition and needs to itsura othicers and to the governntent. It lad alm: corps of special hospital luspe ctorx, whus vivitd the general hospitals of the ariny, mearly boo ha number, thelr reports being cinthiential. and seut to the surgeon generui of the army. (3) its department of genern reilef. Thls c'masistel of twelve hranches of the general commisoinn, hav. ing dépôts In the iarge tawns, each briuch havigg fronn 150 to 1,200 nuxiliaries engaged in obtainiug supplies. These were sent to the mais dépot, and there assorted, repuckerl, and dlepatched. One of these branclues, the * Woman's Central Associntion,' collected stores to the value of over a milifon of dolines; another. the Northwestern. at Chicago, furnishatl hume than a quarter of a million. Care was tuketh to lave so waste in the distribution. Soldiors of all the states were equally supplled; and evon wound enemies left on the fielif, ar sick and almabmed In the hospitais, were tenderly caroll for, (3) Its departnent of spectal reilef. This tion under its charge soldlens not yet under. or just out of the care of the government; men on sick lenve, or found in the streets, or lift ly their reginents. For such it furnlshed fomes. Alxat 7,500 men were, on an arerage, thus daily or nightly accommodated. It ulw had - lulges' wherein a slek soldier might stay wille nwaiting hls pay from the paymuster general or, if unable to reach a hospital, milylit stop fir a time. Still more, it had Homes for the Wives, Mothers, and Children of Shllinrs,' where those visiting the wounded or slek man to minister to his necessities might ind protertion, de. fense, food, shelter. It had its Fireding sta. tlons,' where a tired and hungry sullier passing by conlil have a gratuitous meai. (In the grat military llnes these stations were permaberif estabilshed. On the chief rivers the 3 ississippi, the Cumberland, the Potomac, it had 'saniury reamers' for tmasmitting auppliea and transporting the aick and wounded. It estabilwhed Pagencles ${ }^{\circ}$ to see that no injustlee was done to any soldicer: tiat the molder, bla wilow, ints orijhan, obtained pensions, back pay, bountlew, or whatever money was dine; that any crrors in their pujers were properiy corrected, nul expechally that no sharper toxik advantegge of them. it finstitated hompital directories by whelel tho frimests of a soldler cruid obtalu information withuut cort as to his place and complitlon, if wiflius a year lie lead been an innate of any fosplat. It linal such a reconi of not less than givo,000 pames. Whenever permitteni to do ws, it sent sup$\mathrm{pr}^{\mathrm{F}}$ to the Culted States prisoners of war in conbinement at Andersonvlite, Sailshury, IBelmond.
(4.) Its department of field relief. The (luty of thls was to minister to the wonnded on the teld of buttle; to furnish handiages, cordials, nourlsh. medt; to glve asmlstance to the surgeons, and to mpply any deficieneles it could detect in the fled booppials. It had a chitef inspector for the nrmics of the East; another for the Mliltary Departneent of the Misyissippi, with a competent statif for each. (5.) Its auxiliary rellef corps. This supplied deticienclea In persenal attendance and work in the hospitals, or among the wounded on the tell. Between May, 1864, wisen it was first organizel, and January, 180.5, it guve lts services to more than 75.000 patlents. It walted on the sick and wounded; wrote letters for them, gave them stutionery, postsge stamps, newspapers, and $n^{1}$ il away the leavy hours of suffering by reating magazines and books to them. To the Sunltary Commisalon the government gave a most caruest support; the people gave it their hearts. They furnished it with more than three millinas of didlars $\ln$ muney, of which one million came frout the Pacitic States: they sont it nine militinos' worth of suppiles. From falrs le-hi In its interest very large sums were derived. One ln Siew York yledded a million and a quarter of doilars; one In Phitadelphla more than a mililion. in towns comparatively smali, there were often collected at such fairs more than twenty thousund dollurs.

The Cliristlan Commission emulated the nobie conduct of the C'nlted States Sanilary Commiasion. It, too, recelved the recognition anil eountenance of the government. its ohject was to promote the physlcal and spiritual wedisre of soldiers and sallors. Its central oflice was $\ln$ Phlladelphia, but it had agencles in all the large towns. It shled the surgeon, belped the chaplain. followed the armies In their marches. went into the treuclies and along the picket-line. Wherever there was a siek, a wounded, a dying man, an agent of the Christimu Commission was near hy. It gave Christian burial whenever possible; it marked the grases of the dead. It had its reilgious services, lte little extemporized chapels, its prayer-meetlings. The American Bihle Soclety gase it Bibles and Testaments; the Tract Socicty fos publications. The government furnished its sgents and supplies free transportatlon; it hal the use of the telegraph for its purposes. Steanibost and rallroad companies furthered its objects witls all their ablity. It distrifhuted nearly five millions of dollars in money and suppiles." IW. Draper, Hist. of the Americut Citio War, ch. $8:$ (c. 3).
Aleo is: L. P. Brockett, Woman's Work in the Cinil War. -Min. M. A. Livermore, My Story of the Wir. - K. P. Wormeley, Tho Other side if the lifre. - The simitury Cumminion; its Worka ami Purpewn-J. S. Newherry. The U. S. Samitiry Cimm in the Vimnianipipi Valley.-L. Moss, Annuln of the li, N. 'hrintion Com.

SANITARY SCIENCE AND LEGISLATION. Ne MeDical ncience: 1gtu ('entiry. SANJAKS, OR SANDJAKS. See Ber; uiso Timar.

SANQUHAR DECLARATION, The. The lecluration nithxed by the Cinmeronians til the market cross of Nuncquhar, in 16so, renouncing alleglunce to King Charles II. See Scothand: A. D. 1081-18N0.

SANS ARCS, The. See American abohignen: NHEAN FAMHIV.

SANSCULOTTES. See France: A. D. 1791 (1)(Тиики).
SANSCULOTTIDES, of the French Republican Calendar, The, see Faasce: A. II. Pig3 (0ctober) The new heptbitican cal. enpar.

SANSKRIT.-"The name Ssnskrit as npplied to the nncient language of the Hindus is an artiticlal deslgnation for a higlily vinborated form of the hagnuge origianly brongltt liy tho Indian brancla of tire great Aryan race Into Inclia. This originai tongue soon becarne moxlithed by contact with the dlalects of the aloriginal races who preceded the Aryans, and in this way convieteil huto the pecullar langunge ('blasha') of the Aryan immigrants who settled in the dighhourhood of the seven rivers of the Psnjalic and its outlying dilstricts ('Sapta. Sindliavas' - In Zand ' llapta [lendn'). The most suitable name for the original limgunge thus mouldeel linto the speech of the Illurdus is Hindu-l ( - Slnthin-i), its principal iater development belag calicd Ilimill. just us the Low German dlatect of the Saximis wheu monllfed in Engiand was called AngloSaxon. Bat very soon that hapmened in India willch has cone to pass in all civillzed conntries. The spoken language, when onee its general form and character hadi been settleti, separated iato two lines, the one eluborated hy the lcarned, the other popularized and varlously provin. clailzed by the unlesrned. In India, however.
this separation became more marked, more diversitied, and progressively Intensitild. Hence, the very graminar which with other nations was regarifed only fa a means to an end, came to be treated by ludian Pandits as the end itself, aud was sobtillzenl into an intricate science, feneed aronnd by a bristing barrier of technicalities. The language, too, elaborated 'pmri passu: with the grammar, rejected the natural name of llindu-I, or "the speech of the Hindiss," and adopted an artificial dealgnatlon, viz. Sanskrita, 'the perfectly constructed speech.' to denoic its complete severance from vuigar purposes, and its exclusive dedication to reilgion and literature; while the name Prakrita - which may mean 'the orlglnai' as weil as 'the derived", speech - was assigned to the common dlalect." - M. Wiillams, Indian Wiedom, introd., $p$. xxtiii.

SANTA ANNA, The career of. See MexICO: A. D. 1820-1826, to 1848-1861, and TEXAs: A. D. 18941886 .

SANTA HERMANDAD. Ge Holy Brotherbood.

SANTA INES, Battle of (1859), See Vexp eztela: A. D. 1829-1886.

sasta LUCL

SANTA LUCIA, Battle of (stysh Beo

 ITALT: A. D. 1848-1849.SANTALS, The. Bee Ixdu: The amo motmal, inhamtranta.
SANTAREM, Battle of ( $\mathbf{3} \mathrm{z} 4 \mathrm{4}$ ). Bee PonttaAL: A D) 10051825.
SANTEES, The. See Axratcam Amominsen: Biocax Family.
SANTIAGO, The founding of the elty (85A8) jee CuILE: A. 1). 1450-1724.
SANTIAGO, OR ST. JACO, Kaisithte of the Ordar of. Bee Calutmava.
EANTONES, The. Bee Pictonea.
SAPAUDIA. - The carly nsme of Esvog. Bee Bemuendians: A. D. 443-451.
SAPEIRES, Ths. Nee Imerians, Eantian.
SAPIENZA, OR PORTOLONGO, Battle of (1354), See Conetantinople: A. D. $1848-$ 1855 saracenic empire, See Mamoytan Cosqceat aim Expire.
saracenic schools. Mee Fiducation, Medleval: and Medical sutence.
SARACENS, The nams.-"From Mecca to the Euphrates, the Arablan tribes ware confounded by the Greeks and Lat!as under the general appelistion of Saracena. $\qquad$ The name which, used by Prolemy and Pliny In a more confined, by Ammlanus and Procoplus In a larger, gense, has been derived, rillculously, from Garah, the wife of Abraham, obscurely from the village of Saraka, . . more plauslbly srom the Arabic worls which signify a thlevinh character, or Orlental situation.

Yet the last and most popular of these etymologles is refuted by Prolemy (Arabla, p. 2. 18. In IIudson, tom. Iv.), who expressly remarks the western anil southern postlon of the Saracens, then an obscure tribe on the horiders of Egypt. The appellatlon eannot, therefore, allude to any national character: and, slnce It was Imposed hy atrangers, it must be foumb, not In the Arable, but in a forelgu lan-guage."-E. Glhbmen. Decline and Finll of the Khman Empire, ch. 50, and note.-•Dr. C'arke (Truvels, v. II., p, 391) after expressing contemp. tuous pity for Giblen's ignurance, derives the worl from Zama Zanara, Bara, the Desert, whence Saratenl, the chilhiren of the begert De Marles allopes the derlvathon from Sartik, a robler.
 N. rkloun, or Sharknin, Fise vi vol. xl., p. 8i.) - 11. Xiltenan, wete th fiihe is abote.-The Kadumentes "are nudoubted hat their mame expresses, Orlentuls, Saract stherwlae 'B'ue Kedem.' or Soas of the Eais. a name rixtricted In practice to the east conilguous to Palrathe, anil comprishug only the Arublun nations dweolling Ixtwern l'alestine and the Euplrates. . . The name Surace nl was la use among the Romans loug trefore lolam, apparenty from the the of Trajan's aul Ilatriau's wars."- II. Ewall, IInt. of lariel, int reml., et 4, with fiwet-note (r. 1).-Iu the Mhblie leses the term saracen became vommon In its applicution to the Arabs, and. In fact. to the Hahometnu raves pretty generally. Sice ROME: A. D. 16-138

SARAGOSSA:  Origin.

 GINTAA. D. 543. - Siege by the Franks. Sef Gotin (Vinigotisa): A. In 5ni-ill.
A. D. 713.- Siege and conquest by the Arab-Moors. See Spais: A. D. 711-713.

SARDINIA.

A. D. 77t.-8iege by Charlemegne. An grain: A. D. 778.
A. D. soss $13 \mathrm{y}_{6}$ - The ceat of a Moerint hingdon. Bee EPArm: A. D. 1001-10Un.
A. D. 8710. - Defeat of the Spaalards by the Alles. She APaIN: A. D. 1707-1710.
A. D. 8 sos.- Frultiene wiege by tha Freach. see Spain: A. D. 1 hot (Mat-septemher).
A. D. 8 sob-siog. - siege and capturs by the French. - Entrnordianty defence of the city. Hee Apaik: A. D. 1800-1800 (DeceraberManch).
A. D. 1800 - Slege by the French. See Brain: A. I. 1810 (fuDReARY-JULY).
A. D. z800.- Battle and Spanish defost. See Spain : A. D. 1800 (Fromcart-Jtine).

SARANGIANS.-The name given hy Iferol. otus to a warlike people who dwelt ancluntly on the shores of the flamun and in the Villey of the IIHmend-anuthwestern Afghanistan. Ily the later Greeks they were called Zaranghas and Drangians: by the Persians Zaraka.

SARATOGA, Burgoyne's surrender at.
 Octubita).

SARATOGA, The propessd State of. See Northwent TEhritory : A. I). lieh

SARAWAK. Dre lumeso.
SARCEES (TINNEH). sime Aymbicas Abohbiven: Blackyeet ; anil Athatancas.
SARDANAPALUS. Hee Nrmitea: ANr. ian Einpine.

SARDINIA (The Island): Nams and early history. - "The name of the lmiand 'sarin' fo derivell with probability from the Plarenkinh, and descriles its resemblance to the humau fontest.p.

Dlodorus reckuns thls lsland among the after they had enrichet themselves by the silver of Spaln. . . . What the primitive prpulation of the Island was, wheh the Phoriditinas furnd there when they toncheil at lts southertu ports an thelr way to Spuln, whether It hail come from the reast of Italy, er Africa. we can onle cun. jerture. In hlstorical thmes it appents tif have been ilerived from three prinelpal somres,-immb. grations from Africa, represented by the trali thons of Sitrius and Aristacus; from Cireere. repremented by folaus, and from the sumth and wouth-vast of Epaln, represented hy Noras.
The name Norax has evtlently a referelter to thave singalar remalne of anclent archiferture: the Xuraghl of surdinia, - stome towre in the formo of a trmentel cone, wha a spisal staircave In the thickness of the wall. whath to the num-in the sumtlorn and wewtron parts. Xubing any uther part of the worll: but they nemble most the Athunyas [or Tulajns] of Minara, whose populathon wis partly leerian. part! Libyan.

The Carthaginiaus, at the tinte whin thelr naval power was at his beigha, in the alxth ant fifth centuries 13. ( $C$, sulninet ull the level eonatry, the former Inhathitant, tah manners receded towarda harmarisun." -J. Kide rick, Phentirit, rhe 4 wirl, 3.
A. D. 1017 .- Conquast from the Sarsecas by the Pisanis and Ganoess, sce l'ms: Uricis of the city.
A. D. 87es - Taken by the Allles. Bev Bram: A. D. 1707-1710.
A. D. 1713-Ceded to the Eloctor of Bave. ria with the tlthe of King. Bee Uturckt : A.D. 17id-184
A. D. 1714.- Excharged with the emperer for the Upper Palatinate. See Úturcirt: A. D. 1712-1714.
A. D. 1717-Retakea by Spala. See Spaik: A. 1). 1716 1725.
A. D. 1719 - Glven up by Sphin asd acgulrod by the Duke of Eavoy in exchaage for Sicliy, fiving Ite name to his kingdom. Bee Brain! A. 1). 1718-1725; aloo Italy: A. D. 1718-1783.

SARDINIA (The Kingdom) : A. D. 1743.Ths king joins Anstria Ia the War of the Abstrian Snccebsion. Dee Italy: A. D. 1741$1 i 43$.
A. D. 1743- Treaty of Worme, with Aastris and England. Eee ITALY: A. D. 17 th.
A. D. 1743 - The Bourbon Family Compect egainst the king. gee Francr: X. D. 1748 (UCTORER).
A. D. ${ }^{1244-T h e ~ W a r ~ o f ~ t h e ~ A u s t r i a n ~ S n c-~}$ cession: Freach and Spanleh iavaolon of Piedmont. See Italy: A. D. 1744.
A. D. 1745. - The War of the Anstrian Succesaion: Overwhelming reversee. Sec Italy: A. I. 1745 .
A. D. 1746-174\%, - The War of the Austrian Sucessslon: The French and Spaniards drivea out. Nee ITALY: A. D. 1748-17if.
A. D. 1748.-Termination and results of the War of the Anstrian Succession. See Aix-LA. Chifelle: The Comarkm.
A. D. 17gz. - Anmexation of Savoy and Nice to the Freach Repubilc. The France: A. 11 .

A. D. 3793.- Joined in the Coailtion against Revolutionary France. Ste Frasce. A. I). 1iul (Marcit-Septembeh).
A. D. 1794.- Passes of the Aips secur- ${ }^{5}$ the French. See Fravce: A. ID. 1i0t-179) (th Tump.is-May).
A. D. 1795-F rench victory at Loane. Sev Frisif: A. i). 1745 (fiNe-Decemuen).
A. D. 1796. - Submission to the French under Bonaparte. - Treaty of peacs.-Cession of Savoy to the Republic. See Fuance: A. I). live (..1'H1L-()ctoner).
A. D. 1798. - Piedmont taken by the French. -its sovereignty relinqnished by the king.

A. D. 3799. - French evacuation of Piedmont. Sie France: A. D. 17 (APhil-Nelтвмеғи).
A. D. 1800 - Recovery of Piedmont by the French. fie Fuasce: i. D. 1s(hlin)l (NayFiniti ins).
A. D. 1802.-Annexation of part of Piedmoat to France. See Fuasce: A. i). 18u: (Auitst-XEPTEunER).
A. D. 1814 - 1815 - - The king rscovers his kingdom.-Annexation of Genoa.-Cession of part of Savoy to France. Sere Virxis. Tue (imgrese of: ais) France: i. D. int (Aphil - daes.
A. D. 1815.- Accession to the Hoiy Alliance. Ret liniy Alliavce.
A. J. 1820-1821,-Abortive revointionary rising and war with Austrin.-The defeat at Novara. See Italy: A. D. 1820-1801.
A. D. 1831.-Death of Charlen Felix.: ho ension of Charlee Albert. Sle Italr:
ll. 1830-1483.
A. D. 1s4t-1849.-Allance with lasurgeat Lombardy add Vemetlu. - War with Austris. -Defoat,-Abdicatien of Cherlos Albert,-Acseaplon of Victor Emamanuel 11. See Italy: A. 1). $184 \mathrm{~L}-1840$.
A. D. 1855 - In the Alliance of the Crimean Waragalmet Rasnia. Sie Itemnta : A. D. 1834 1856.
A. D. 1850-1870.-T he rrset work of Count Cavour and Kite Vletor Emmanusi. - Liberatlon of the whol. Psninsuia and crsation of the kingdom of Italy. Nee Italy: A. 1). 13.361850, to 1887-1870. $\qquad$ SARDIS. - When Cyrus the Great founded the Persimn empire by the overthrow of that of the Meles, B. C. 85 s , his nirst enterprise of con. quest, outalde of the Mefian dominion, was directed againat the klnglom of Lydia. then. under $\operatorname{Itn}$ fanous $k i n g$ C'rowsus, dominant in Asia Minos and raphily Increasing In wolth and power. After an indecinive bntil. "rupain re. treyl to his cupitai city. Nardls, wis an then the mont spiencifi cliy of Asia Mlaor, and wan fallowed ly Cyrub, who capturefi and pinmieredi the fown, at the enif of a slege of only fourtern flays. The fali of Nurills was the fall of the Lyilian klugiom, witce was abmorbeif into the givet euplre of Provio - O. Rawlinmon, fire venrs inter (aloutut SM) II. (.) ut the bregining of the Jonian ihevoit, whol she Grivk ilthes of Asta Minor attenptesl in throw off thr. lirevian yoke. Snrifs was agnin plundered nai buruad by nit Thiriwall, Jline if irrece, che 1t- Nere, aiso, Iramma: it C. $321-493$.

SARGASSO SEA, The. sie Amfuca: A. 1). $14 \begin{array}{r}2 \\ \hline\end{array}$

SARISSA, The. Nem Pualninx.
SARK, Battle of ( 1448 ), 一This wha n aevero

 hinat. ch. 14
SARMATIA. - SARMATIANS. - "The Scythians of the time of dierentotus were sproratiol whly by the river Tanais [maniorn Dhan] from the Eariantians, who cerepleni the terrltory for several duy journer morth.enme of the Pahis Matos: on the somith, ther were divided hy thes Dambe from the section of Thrachas cinilod Gu'tar. Bath these wations were monadic, mat. ogente fo the Sicythians in linbits. militury efth-itipoiverates, ilatinctiy intimate that the Narmathans were mothitur but in brach of sievthimes.
 from their neligithours on the other shite if the Tanais chitetly by this pecullarits, - that the wometh amoug them were warriory harily heos during mad expert than the men."一it ifint: llist. of rirece, pt. 2. ch. 17.- Tin sarmatians ultimatily gave their nime to the while regitu of uorthenstern Eurupe, aud some writurs hawe considered them to be, not Sy yethic or Monsolie: in mace, but progentors of the mabirn shathat fantily. "By Sarmata [Tacitios] merolis to lmase understood what is now Solda vin and Wulimelita, ## sarmatia.

and pertups mart of the aputh of Rumala."Chureh and Brulltbb, (iemy, Niffeato The liermuny

SARMATIAN AND MARCOMANNIAN WARS OF MARCUS AURELIUS.-It was
 thnt the Inrovela of the hartmerians along the Imandion fromter inf the Imman Bimpire Iregni to be merloutaly frepuent and hatid. "It In reppre.

 who may loe ranget under the thre unthoni illulaiona of Germane, Srythinna, and Nurmathana: though we may furmiton the fact of an actund fengue among irlles an many, mo varions, and an Ilstant." The Dlatromanni nal the Guadf olt the liwerp, were the promithent lutridere, and the emmpaleny whid Alurillus conducted azabay the Marmanamanorthe Ahpmathan Ware. [mur. inge these thiptiell senrs, the maliat of afi umenarchs sureenilired n-pentedily the philownithle raim which lee loverl mo well, Bull gave himurlf atefaf buninesa of fromitir war, valaly $-\sigma^{8} \quad$ to nerest li lta beginalag the impeniling the winblance of a peace with the lumelontlag fix. ami as repenteily it way broken. Hir Hied In his willitern lameses, nt VInelotioua (Vicuma), and happily dlld not ifve to witaess the peace which fintie. in the enil, stomperl to buy from the fors whe had no more atrengit to overcume.C. Merivale, Iliaf. of the lomanat, eh. AN.

Alag in: P. 13. Watmon, Mirrena dureliua ing.

SARN HELEN, The.- 1 ILomun rimal punnimg through Windes, rallell by the Wrolsh the sharn Itiven, or mond if Illew, from in notion that the Emprese Helcna can*ed it so be made. -T. Wright, Celt, Romin enid Nimon, ch. 5.

SARPI, Fra Paolo, and the contest of VenIce with the Papacy. See Venice: A. D. 10113 1007.

SARRE-LOUIS: A. D. 1680 .-The foursit ing of the city. Nre France: A. D. $1670-1831$.

SARUS, Battle of the. - Ouc of the victorisa of the Emperor Ileraclines, A. 1). 625, in hise war with the Ierslans. - O. Itaw liluwn, iventh Great Oriential Mumirehy, rh. 24.

SASKATCHEWAN, The district of. See Nohthefat Tehumtoriea of Casada.

SASSANIAN DYNASTY.-Artaxerxes I. who resurrected the l'ersinn empise, or cafled a new Persian empire Into existence, A. D. 226, by the overtimes of the Darthlan monarihy and the subjection of lis dominhous, founded a nymasty which turik the natue of the samanalan, is the famlly of the sasuanlife, from one Sasaln, who, accorilige forme accomete wan the father, ac cording tin others a remoter progenitor of Artaxerxes. Thls second Perslan mumarchy is. itself, ofen called the sasuanian, to distlaguist it from the carller Achitmenlan P'rsian empire.- $\mathbf{G}$. Rawlinson. derenth (iruzt Iriental Monzemhy. See, also, Peusta: 13. C. $150-$ A. D. 230

SASTEAN FAMILY, The. Sice Amemcan Amohturnen: Santein Fimily.

SATOLLI, Apostolic Delegate In America. Nee Papact: A. D. 1892.
 tanpis "has been well called the true foumder of the Perian atate.' He found the Empire

sat'CIIE BURN.

erible and hetemgenomis mane of lli-meorted ole. menta, fanging limeily tegetbep ty the alughe the of atibjection to ammon head: he left it compais and soerslarly organized boxly, maltend ou a mingle wellonitered syatem, permanuntly ristabilaherl everywhere. . . . It was the nimi. and probalily the hewt, Inatance of that form in? gavernment which, taking its name from the Peminn wual fir provinctal ruler, is known gra. erally anther ayatem of 'matraplal ' miminalatration. Itin mialn priailples were, th the firat plaw, the nulurtion of the whole kinple to a gnawl. unlformity by the sulmatrition of one montio if lien of variable aml tucertaln calls: nad thidilr. the establimimunt of $n$ variety of cherka and cumnterpolsem among the ofticinla to whon it wan metrinary that the crown aloutlel dellegate its puwers. . . Tise mithorlty lumftutent liy larhas wis that of hlu matmon. He diviflest the white a number which must have variel at diftervat times, bit whelt serems never to lave fallen shore of twenty. Over each govepument be placed in mamp, or supreme clvil gevemure ifongeed with the collectlon and imamianang of the revenue, the miminasernilon if justlec, the maintrannee if order, and the grarmal mupervilion of the territory. Thesesatrapis wern nominatel hy the king at his plemsure from ant rlims of his suthjects, and huld outice for no dethith term, but almply uatil recallow, being liable to ileprivation of leath at any moment, without other furmalfity than the presentation if the roual 'firman.' Whlic, however, thry remained la office they were Ifespotic - they repromented the Greas King, and were clothell with $n$ portion if his max jesty.

 anaessell the tribute on the acreral cowns anil vilinges within thelr jurisdletion at therf pleakure, and appointed deputles - called nome anta, Zike themenven, sat raps -over clifes on diatricts whit in their province, whose office was regariet as one of great lignity.

Nothlag restrained their tymanay but such sense of right as they might happen tu ponsess, anil the fenr of remoral or execution if the roler of complalat makthed the monarch."- 6 . Ratw! inson, Fire firats Kon. nrehies: Perain, eh.

SATTAGYDAE, The sec Genimetus
SATURNALIA, The Roman.-- The Nalurnalia, tirst celebrated in Rome at the dedlention [of the temple of Naturn, on the sonthern slope of the Capltoline IIIil] . . . exteaded origiailly over three, but finaily over seven days, during Walch all encial distinctions were ignored; slaves wree almitted to equnlity with iheir masters: and the chains which the emancipated from mavery meel to lang, as thanksgiving, on or below the stat tue of the gol, were taken fown to inthuate that perfiet freatiom had been enjoyed br all alike under the thrice-lappy Saturnian miga Varro mentlons the practice of memling was tapers as presents during this fentiva!, and when we remember the other usage of suspending was maske. during the Saturnalla, In a chay : weside the - $n$ ple of the bepeffeent Deity, the munhgles betwee these equalizing feres and the mumera Carnlval become more npparent. " - C. I. Hemana, SAUCHIE BURN, Battle of (245s) See SCNTLAND: A. D. $1482-1488$.

saucy castle. Se ciniteav oail Lam.
SAUK, OR BAC, Indiang Seo Amrbtcar Amarkange: Alfiongetan Famil. and Nace.
SAULCOURT, Gattie of (A, D, 8ti).-A antalle thefent intlicterl upon the Invading Nortimen br lames in 8 at by the frenell king lauis III., one of the lant of the Cintilingian ilne. The matie la comenemomedi in a ming which is one of the curliest aprorturna of Trutonic verwe - הitr P. Dulzrive, lliatory if Nirmatuly anid Einglisnd. A. 1. ch. $f$ (r. i).

SAULT STE. MARIE, The Jesuit mialonat. Nre Cavalo: A. 1). Mat latis, SAULTEUP The. Se Inerican Amo

SAUMUR; Stormed by the Vendeana.

SAUROMATEE, The. SW in'rtMas.
SAVAGE STATION, Battie of. Seo Cniteo Atates of Am.: A. 1). 18ft (JemrJtur: Vithenles).

SAVANNAH: A. D. 1732.-The founding of the city. Fry imorin: R. I). 1iste-1:
A. D. 1775-1776.-Activity of the Liberty

A. D. $177^{8}$ - Taken and occupied by the

A. D. 1779. - Unsuccessful attack ty the French and Amertcans. Nei. l*sitrin 4 lites A. J. 1801.-Threatened by the "lmon lorces In occupation of the friands at the mouta of the fiver. Siee Ľvited states of Caron ixa-Gbontur
A. D. 1862. - Reduction of Fort Pulaski by the nstional forces, and sealing up of the port. See lisited Stitem of AM.: I f). 1863 (fee-staki-Aphal: GEOMAA-Fiohida).
A. D. 1864. - Confederate evacuation, Sheman in possesaion. Nee United statfa of AX.: A. D. ISH (November-Decevber: Georgia).

SAVANNAHS, The. Npe Ampi in Ano-

SAVENAY, Battle of. To efund I. D.

SAVERNE: Taken b Duke Bernhard (1636). Ne Genmaxy: A. I 1833-1839.

SAVERY, Thoman, and the Steam gine Sine Strav Evoine
SAVONA, The Pope at. -e P atcy: d 18.5-1×14.

SAVONAROLA, in Floresce, see $F_{l}$. vet. A. D. 14m-140s.

SAVOY AND PIEDN ONT: The founding of the Burgundian $k$ ingdom in Savoy. Nee Brritsmans-1. 44: -it ith Centary. - The $f$ ders of the Hoase अSavay siee Br wex A. A. $103{ }^{3}$.
H-15th Centurie s. - Rise and growth of the dominions of the $S_{i}$ roy ad princes, in Italy and the Burgund an territory. - Creation of the duchy.-A ption of the titie of Princes of Piedmon: the craile of the Savoyard power iay in the Burgundlan fauds tamedntely bonder. ing aphe italy zand retching on both sides of the $\Delta$ pe. it $\bar{W}$ is tu thelr geographical position.
as holiing meveral gerat mountain paseen, thet the Nisriynni princes owed their Aral fomportance, succerilitig thereln in anme mensure to the Bur: gumiliun klings themselves. The cariy otagus of the growth of the hnume sre very ohecure: and its power down not mem to have firmed Itself till after the unlon of Burgundy with the Empire. But it ecems platu that, at the end nf the IIth century, the Counts of Maurienae, whicit wan their carlieut thte, helf righte of soverelgnty fin the Murgundian ilistricts of Maurienue. Shvoy arrictly on callefi, Tarantalee, and Aome.
The curly Ravogaril pomenations rrached to the $^{\circ}$ lake of Creseva, and sprewi ons thotii shides of the Inland mouth of the ithone. The power of the Sivoyarl princean th this region was inrgely due to the ir ercieslastifal powithon as aivocaten of the abley of Nalnt Maurice. Thus their pomenesions hat in muet Irregular outllim. nearly murroundilag the hands of Genevols and fiuuclgay. A mate of thls shnee. ilke l'russla in a later nige aud on a grater siate, wha, as is were, predestined to make furiber mivaneen. But fir wone centuries those alvancya were made mueli more largely in Burgundy than in Italy. The origlaal Italian pawawhons of the House Lorderen on their Burgueatha countlo of Maurienne and Anwth, taking In susi and Turin. Thls Bmall marchiand gave Its princes the poubiang titie of Marquesses in Italy.

In the 12th and 13th ceaturies, the uribice of tinvog were stili hemmed in, in thell ow a corner of linly, by princes of equal or greater power. at Munifurrut. at Saluzzo, a' erea, and at Binuif te. And it must be rementuered that their pow is us priuces at once Burgundian nati iluliun hay nut pecuilar to thwn. . . The Itaina doninlons of the famlly remained Por a Italium domintons of the famliy remained for a long whit qulte secondiry to it Burgundlan polley this region was necessuray the acguisllimiley this region was necessarity the acgulal.
tion of hi inds of Fauclgny and the Genevole Hat th fual ineorporation of those lands did not the place lill they were still more comptetely hemaneri In by the Snvoyami londalons through the extenston of the savoyard potwer to the north of : Lakc. This began early in the 18th Cutury [ 1 ] hy a royil grant of Moudon to Count The mas of Savoy. Romont was bext won, and ame the ceatre of the savoyand power nul a the lake. Soon after, throtigh the ronquests of Peter of Saroy [1203-1:8], who was known as the littio Charlemagne and who plays a part in Enplish as well as in Burgundian history, these puas slons grew into a Iarge dominion, stretching alung a sreat part of the shores of the Lake of Neufchatel and remching as far north as Murten of Morat. . . . Thls new dominlon north of the Lake was, after Petcr's relgn, held for a short time by a separato branch of the Savoyard princes as Barons of Vauri; but in the middle of the 14 th century, their hatrony came into the direct possession of the eller branch of the house. The iands of Fat. clgay and the Genevols were thus aitogether sur. rounded hy the Bavoyard territory. Faucigny had passed to the Dauphins of the Viennols, who Were the constant rivals of the : voyard counts, duwn to the time of the practical transfer of their dauphiny to France. Soon after that annex-some other districts beyond the Rhone, In ex. change for some mail Savoyard pomemons w!ifla the dauphing. The long struggio for the ## savoy and piedmont.

SAVOY AND PIEDMONT

Generois, the county of Geneva, was ended by Its purchase in tile beginning of the 15 th century [1401). This left the eity of Genevs aitogether surrounded by Savoyard territory, a poition which before long altogether changed the relations between the Savoyard counts and the city. nither:o, in the endiess struggics between the Grinerese counts, bishops, and citizens, the Ninvoyard counts.. . hail often been iooked on by the eitizens as friends and protectors. Now thint they had become imanedlate neighbours of thir eity, they began before iong to be its most dangernus encmies. The acquisition of the Genevois tonk place in the reign of the famous Amuleus the Eighth, the first Duke of Savoy, who recelved that rank hy grant of King Nieg. mund [1415]. and who was afterwaris the Antipope Feils [see Papacy: A. D. 1431-1448]. his reign the donimions of Savoy, as a power ruiing on buth sides of the Alps, reached their grentest extent. But the Savoyard power was stlli preeminently Burgundian, and Chambery was its capitai. The contlnuous Burgundlan dominion of the honse now rcached from the Alps to the Saine, surronnding the iake of Genera and spreading on both sldes of the iake of Neufchatei. Besides thls continuous Burgundlan dominion, the llouse of Savoy had already become possessed [ 1388 ] of Nizza, liy which their doninions rcaebed to the sea. . After the 15th century, the Burgundinn history of that hunse consists of the steps spread over more than 300 years by which this great dominion was hist. The real importance of the house of Savoy In Italy dates from much the same time as the great extension of lts power in Burgnady. fluring the 1 til century, among many straggies with the Marquesses of Montferrat and Saiuzzo, the Angevin comnts of Provence, and the ioris of Milan, the Savogard power in Italy generally in reasel. $\qquad$ Before the rad of the reign of Amalens [the Eighth-1391-1451], the dominboun of saving stretcherl na faras the Sesla, taking in lbiella, Sinthanani Vercelli. Connting Nizza and Aosta us italian, wheli they now practleally were, the Italian ilominions of the Ilouse rearhed from the Alpo of Wallis to the sea. But they were nearly cut in two by the dominions of the Maryneses of Montferrit, from whom how (-ver the ibnkes of saver nuw clamet. homage,

Amale is, the first Dube of Siavor, tionk the of 1 'rince. 1 lis prasenshoms were buw fairly established as a milate state, Italian suml Burgundian, in nearly edual propurthons. "-E. A. Free mian. Jinfurichl li, oxt, if Elurape, rh. 8, met. Z.
 ch. 6-4, r. a, ch. 1-6.
A. D. $1452-1454$.-Alliance with Venice and Naples. - Wer with Milan and Florence. Siec Mans: A. 1) 141 i-14it.
A. D. 1504-1535.--Struggies with the independent burghers of Geneva. - Loss of the

A. D. $153^{6-1} 544$ - Conquest hy the French and restoration to the Duke by the Treaty of Crespy. Sur Finte: A. il. 1.jise-15ti.
A. D. $1559-1580$. End of the French occupation. - Recovery of his dominions hy Emanuel Philihert. - His reconstruction of the state. -Treaties with the Swiss. - War with the Waldences. - Tolerant Treaty of Cavour. Settlement of goverament at Turin.-" The history of Piedmont begins where the history of Itaiy terminates. At the Peace of ChiteanCombresis [see Fbasce: A. D. 1:4i-15i.2], in 1550, Piedmont was born again. Undir Ama. deus VIII. Savoy bade fair to becone a sitate of the very first order. In the course of a century it had sunk to a third-rate power. . . . Pied. mont, utterly prostrated hy five-and tweaty years of forelgn accupation, laid waste by the trampiling of all the armies of Europe, regulred now the work of a constructive genlis, amd Emanuei Philibert was providentially tittel for the task. No man could better afforl to be pacific than the conqueror of St. Qulatlo [see France: as above]. After the buttle of sit. Quintin, Emannel Philibert had France at his discretion. Had his counseis been instantly fol lowed, the Spanish arny would have dictated its own terms before or withln the walls of l'aris.

The recouciliation of France with the hero who had aiarmed and humhled her seemed, nerertheless, to be sincere." Under the temns "f the trenty, the Duke of Saroy's doninlons, wroupied by the French, were to be restored to him, except that Turin, Chieri, Chivass, Placrolo, nal Villanova d' Asti, with purt of thele territuries. "were to be occupied for three yars, or matil the settiement of the differences between the two Conrts, chiefly with regani to the diowry of Loulsa of Savoy, mother of Francis i., the original cause of dispute. ... Solong as France insisteti on kerplag the five ahovementioned places, Spain was also empowcred to retain Asti and Xerceill." Philip 11., however, gase up Viercelli aud "contented himself with the seevpation of Asti und Sentia." The dilferviners with France proved hard of settloment: anil it was not until 15:4 that "Emamuel lylitmet fonnd limeself in possesslon of all has swainine dominions. Xio worls candescrithe the mestuness and arrogance by wheh the French aservivateld thls prolonged usirgintion of their meishlumis's territories. . . Had Enummel Illilithrt pum him self at the hend of one of [the factions which fonght $\ln$ Frasce at this thue] . . . he mith have patif back $\qquad$ the indignities he has hal to culure: but his mission was the restaration of his cown state, uot the suligngatlon of his wish luar's.

The same moklerat ion and lingram. it: whecla enabled Enamuel Phllibert to avoid a collislon with France, berime lur dermon it no reasonable, equally distinguishell him in his te hations with his nelchbenirs of haly. There was now, alas! no talle; the eometry had fallen a prey to the spumish brame of the llabe of Anstria, and the very existence of Mantua, Darman, Tuseany, rec, was it the merre ut Philip II. . . . Thls nowt able atil mone hameat of all the princes of has line whs fully aware of the importaner of his pusition and the - liulwath of Italy. 'und fela that on hiseaistene hong the fate of sich states in the Pendnsula as still :apired th independence. '1 know full well,' her silil in a monent of cordinl expunston. 'that these forcign ers are all bent on the utter distraction of lats.
 fall can be fulliferent to mo Itali:an stile, and least of all to Vender.' Finll of thase thomsthe he was unwentiol in his conlemsours tomentre the fricndslaij, of that republe. $\qquad$ The sume in. stlactive aremi of the crabling ascemblata 5 of Spain nud F'rance. Which matle Emantil lhili. bert ciing to the V'eactian alliauce, "quil', dreed

SAVOY AND PIEDMONT.

SAVOY AND PLEDMONT.

him tu settle, no matter at what cont, the dif. ferences with the other old silles of his house the Swisa. The Payt de Vaud, Gex, Chahinis, and Lower Valais were atlii in the power of the confederates [nee Swrtzerband: A. D. 15311648]; and it was not without a murmur that the Duke nf Savor could part with so fnir a portion of hls forefathern' inheritance; hut it was not loag ere he learnt to resign ail hope of ite recovery. A new generation had sprung up in those provinces, amongst whom all loynity to Savoy had dled off. The Bernese had Iniroduced the lieformation into the conquered lands.
Political freedom went hnod in hand with re. ilglous Innovation. . . . Geneva was the very head-quarters of reform; It was proud of the appellation of the 'Rome of Caivinism.
Emanuel Phillbert, Ill-supported by Spain nad thwnited hy France, inld anlde all Ideas of nn nppeal to force, nad trusted his cause to negotintion. There was happily division in the enemy's camp; religious diference had set the oid forest cantons into opposition with Berve nad her Protestant sasoclates. The Duke of Savoy made n treaty nt Lucerne (November 11, 1560) with Schwytz, Cri, linterwald, Zug, Lucerne, Soleure, nnd even Zurich; and these promlsed thelr good offices wh their Protestant hrethren In behalf of Savoy. Lengthy sud somewhnt stormp conferences en sued, the result of which was the treaty of Latrsaane (Oetober 30, 1564); hy the terms of whielt Berne retalned Vaud, nad Frihurg Homont, and baroy mily recovered Gex and Cbablals. It a later perlod (March 4th, 1500 ) Valals aiso canie to kerms at Thonon; it gave up lis own slunre of (bablals, hut remained in possesslon of Lower Valals. By the recovery of Gex anit Chabluls Saros now eneompassed Geneva on all slides, and caused that town lacessant uneasiness; but the Duke. . . was . . earneatly bent on peace, and he reassured the Genevese by new treatles, signeal it Berne (Jay 5th. 1570), by which he engaged in glve no molestatlon to Girneva. These sime treatles bound siavoy to allow freetom of conscicace and worahiy to those of her subjeets who had enhraced Protestantlsm during the Swiss ocupation; aud we hear. In fret, of no persecutious la the provinces round the Lemun In Emauuel lhatibert's ilfetime; but it is important to lnquire how that Prinee dealt In these natters witt, hls subjects in general. . . . We hear from s.veral authoritles that the Piedmontese were more than half Protestants.' The Waldenalan miluisters reckoned thelr sectaries at the foot of the Alpse at 800,000.

The Waderas's eonsideral the provalence of the new tenets as their owa trismph. From 1526 to 1530 they cutered lato comanaleation with the Ieformers, and nombitien their uwn ereed and worshlp in necordance with the new ldens, lilentifying themselves esperially with the disclples of Calvin.
Their walleys beeame a refuge for all prosecuted *ecturies, amongst whom there were turbulent spirits, who stirred up those simple and loynd mountaineers to muthy and revolt. Although thery thise enlley down upon the aselves the en. mity of all the foes to Protestantlsm, these vnileys contlnued nevertheless to le lowket upon as a privilegen distrlet. and their breibrin of ather froviuces found there a safe haven from the torms whleh drove them from thelr lomes." In 1550 , the Duke issued his ediet of Nlee, "lutended not so much to supprese heresy ns to renress it." The Waidenses "assumed a mutinous sttltude," nnd "applied for auccour to the Huguenot ehlefs of the French provinces." Then the Duke sent 4,000 font and 200 horse Into the valleys, under the Count de la Trinita, and a flerce and sanguinary war ensued. "Its horrors were aggravated hy forrign combntants, as the ranks of La Trinita were swelled by both French and Bpanish marnuders; nud the Huguenots of France, and even some I'rotestant volunteers from Ge rmany, fought with the Waldenmes.

But It was not for the interest of the Duke of Savoy that his subjeets should thus tear euch other to pleces. After repeated ehecks La Trinita met whit, . . . $n$ covenaut was slaned nt Cavour on the 5 th of June, 1561. The Waldenses were allowed full nmnesty and the frue exerise of thelr worshlp withln thelr own territory.

Withln those same boundariesthey cunsented to the erec tion of Catholle eliurches, and lound themselves to a reclprocal toleratlon of Ihoman rites.
The Treaty of Cavour sallstied nelther party. It exposed the Duke to the loud reprimands of Lome, France and Spiln, no less than to the hlt ter invectlves of all lus elergy. . . ; and, on the other Land the Wnidenses ... again and agaln placed themselves in oppositiou to the autboritles deputed to rule over them. hls lenlency towards the sectaries of the valley Fmanined Phlliber. - aet uutid ly other mo tiver besples the jromptings of a naturally generous smil.

Hls grent schemes for the regeneration of the country could only tind their development in a few yeirs of profonud peice.

Whatever muy be thought of the disconteut to whilh his henvy tuxes give rise among th people, or his stern manners mang the nobles, It is is heantiful consoling fact that the establish. munt of despotism $\ln ^{\circ}$ Piedmont dial mot eost a slagle drop of blowd. that the prince subdued aut disciplinct hls people by wo other atomes than the firmmess of hls irme will.

The proat work for whleh Pledinont will be eternally dmbebted to the memory of this great prince was the mationulization of the State. He establlshool the sent of goverument at Tarin, revalleol for that city the senate Which had heru tirst convoked at Cirigunno, and the university whleh lial been provishomily Ofenerl ut Mondovi. Turln, whose blshop hat beיon raised to metropullt:an honoury in $1: 1.5$, had enjoyenl comparative serourity under the French, who never lost jossission of it from 1530 to 1.5 $3:$. It dates lis real grentuess and importance from Emanmel Ihlliberts reign, wheu the populaton rose to li, (m) sonly. . . It was unt whthont great blterness that the transalplat prov inces of Siwoy subulte to the change, und saw the dignity nind inerndancy of a sorerclgn state "lepart from them," Einimuel Ihillbert dhed ha lijul, anis Was sttecieded hy hly sun. Charles Em-muncl.- 1. Gullemga, Mint. of Pielmont. r. B. ch. 1.
A. D. 1580-1713.-Vicisaitudes nf a century and a quarter. -Prnfitahle infidelities in war. - The Duke wins Sicily and the title of King. -Emannel l'hllibert, by lis " well thmel juliey of peare. . Was enabled to leare his dachy imnerustly strenethermi on his whe Clatles kimanuel (1:50-163i0). Th: new duke was murh more netlve in hls polley. Ilis murriage whlth a dangliter of Phillp. II. hounil hlin to the side of Spain and he supported the cause of the League

In France. With the heip of the Catholic party he selzed tie vacant mariulsate of saluzzo, and thus involved hlmseif lua long guarrei with Henry IV. In 1601 the pence of Lyous con. firmed the duke in the possesslon of Saiuzzo, in exchange for which he cetlei Bresse on the 1 Klume frontier to Henry. All attempts made to recover Geneva for Savoy proved unsuccessfui. Before his death the restless Charles Enamuel brought forwari auother clalm to the marguisate of Montferrat. Thls had been held since 1533 by the dukes of Mantun, whose male line became extiuct in 1627. The duke dild not live to sec the settiement of the Mantuan succession, but his sou. Victor Amadeus I., oltalned great pal: of Montferrat by the treaty of Cherasco (163i). Hichelleu had now arquired Plecolo and Camale for Frauce and thls eflected a complete change in the pollicy of savoy. Victur Amadeus was married to C'hristine, a danghter of lleary IV., and he and his successor remainel thii nerriy the ead of the century as faithful to Framee as hls predecessors had been to Spala. Charles Emanuei II., who succeelled as a minor on the early death of his father, was at first under the guard. lanship of his mother and when he came of age remained in the closest alliance with domis XIV. His grent object was to secure the Itaian position which Savoy had assumed, by the acquisition of Genoa. But the maritme rep:biic male a successfinl resistance both to opeu attack and to trearherous pints. Vietur Amalleus 11., who becanae duke $\ln 1675$, was marriel to a daughter of Philip of Orieans. But Louls XIV, had heguu to treat Savoy less as an aily than as a dependency, and the diuke, weary of Frenci dominatlon, broke of the ohd comnexion, and in 1690 jolnell the League of Augsburg agalnst Louls. IIfs defection was well-timed and successful, for the treaty of Ryswick (1097) gave him the great fortresses of linernio aud Casale, which had so loug diominated ilis duchy. In the war of the Spanish surcesslon he first supported Louls and afterwarls turned agalast him. Ilis fultheessiness was rewaried in the pcace of Utrecht [1713] with the Island o! Slclly and the titie of king. Within a few rears, hewever, he was compeiled Lu exchange siclly for sariluia."-IR. Lonlg?, Hist. of Modern Europe, ch. 12, sect. 9.-See Italy: A. D. 1701-1713, amd C'ireciet: A. D. 171:-1714
A. D. 1592.-French invasion of the Vaudois. Ser France: A. D. 159i-1503.
A. D. 1597-1598.-Invasion by the French. -Peace with France. Sie Fbasce: A. 1). 1593-1508.
A. D. $1600,-$ French Invasion.-Cession of territory ${ }^{\circ}$ : France. See France: A. D. ${ }^{1590}$ 1610.
A. D. 1-02-1603. - Abortive attempt upon Geneva. - Treaty of St. Julien with that city. See Geneva: A. D. 1612-1803.
A. D. 1620-1626.-The Valteiline War.-Alliance with France. - Unsuccessful attempt againat Genon. See France: A. II. 1624-1636.
A. D. 1627-1631. - War over the succession so the duchy of Mantua.- Freach lavesloa.Extenalon of territory. See ITALy: A. D. 1027-1631.
A. D. 1635.-Alliance with France against Spaig. See Germany: A. D. 1634-1630
A. D. 1635-1659. - Alliance with France againgt Splin.-Civil war and foraige war.-

Sieges of Turin. - Territory restored. See Italt: A. D. 1635-1630.
A.D. ${ }^{1655}$ - Second persecution of the Waldenses. Hee Waldexses: A. D. 165\%.
A. D. ${ }^{1690}$. - Jolns the Grand Alliance against France. See France: A. D. 16s91640.
A. D. $1690-1691$. - Overrun by the armies of France. See France: A. D. 1689-1691
A. D. 1691 . - Toleratlon granted to the Vardois. See Waldennes: A. 1. 1691.
A. D. 1693.- French victory at Maraghia. see Fhance: A. D. 1603 (Octoleet).
A. D. 1695-1696.-Desertion of the Grand Allance by the Dake.- Treaty with France. See Fbance: A. D. 1695-1896.
A. D. 1783.- Acquisitiof of Sicily from Spaid. See Ütrecht: A. D. 1712-1714
A. D. ${ }^{1}$ 17-1719.-Sicily exthanged by the Duke for Sardinla, with the title of King. See Spain: A. D. 1713-1725; also, Italy: A. D. 171:-1735.
A. D. 1792.-Saroy annexed to the Freach Republic. See France: A. D. 1792 (Septex-UEL- Decemreh).
A. D. 1796.-Savoy ceded by Sardinia to France. See France: A. D. 1796 (AprilOctoner).
A. D. 1798.-Piedmont taken by the French. -Its sovereigaty reiinquished by the King of Sardinia. See Fbance: A. D. 1708-1799 (Ae-gest-Apail.).
A. D. 1815.-Cession of a part of Savoy to France. See Viensa, The Conorens orf.
A. D. 1860. - Final cession of Savoy to France. See Italy: A. 1). 1850-1881.

SAVOY CONFERENCE, The. see Eng-

 LAND: A D. 1661 (APRLL-JCIT).SAWAD, THE.-"The name Sawill is given by the Arab writers to the whole furtile tract between the Euphrates ani the lesert, from Hit to the Persian Gulf." - $\mathbf{G}$. Iawlinson, wrenth Great Orientul Monarchy, ch. 20, fime-nate.

- See Mahometan Cono"est: A. D. 633-651

SAXA RUBRA, Battle of (A. D. 312). See llomic: A. D. $305-323$.
SAXE - COBURG, SAXE-GOTHA, SAXE-WEIMAR, ete. See Baxosy: A. D.
$1180-1553$; and Weimar.
SAXON HEPTARCHY. See Exilasd: ith Century.
SAXON SHORE, Count of the (Comes Littoris Saxonlcl). - The title of the luman officer who hal inilitary commani of the const of Britaln, between the Wash and the iste ui Whgit, which was most exposed to the rasages of the Saxons. See Britain: A. I). 343 - $\mathbf{3} 3 \mathrm{i}$.

SAXONS, The.-"In the relgn of Caracalls [A. D. 212-2i7] Rome first heard of the Goths and Atemanni; a ilttie more than half a century later the Franks appear; and about the same time the Saxons, who had heen named sinl placed geographically by Ptoiemy [A. D. 136 160], make thelr frot inark in listory. They are found empioyed in naval and piraticai expelltions on the coasts of Gaul la A. D. 28:. What ever degree of sntlqulty we may le lacilined to ascribe to the aatres of these nitions, and there is no need to put a preclse iimit tu It, It can scarcely be supposed that they sprang frum in. slgalacance and ubscurity to atrength and powet

BAXONB.

sAXONS.

in a moment. It is far more prohable that under the names of a rank and Saxon in the fourth cen. tury had been sunk the many better known earlier names of tribes who occupled the same seats.

The Cheruscl, the Marsl, the Dulgibini and the Chaucl may have been comprehended under the name of saxons.

Whllst the nations on the Lower IThine were all becoming Franks, those between the Rhine and the Oder were becoming Saxona; the name lmpilenl as yet no enmmon orgnisation, at the most only an occasional combinntion for attack or defence." -W. Stubbs, Conat. Hist. of Eng., ch. 3 (r. 1)."The hypothesis respecting the Saxons la as follows: The name Saxon was to the Kelta of Brit. $\sin$ whit German was to those of Gaul. Or, if not, what Suevl was - a name somewhat more specifie. It probably applled to the Germans of the sea.coast, and the water-systems of the Lower Rhlne, Weser, Lower Elhe, and Eyder: to Low Germana on the Rhine, to Frislans and Ssxons on the Elbe, and to North Irisians on the Eyder. All the Angles were Saxous, but all the Saxons were not Angles. The reasoning in fsvour of thla view is as foliows:- That Saxon was a Britannle term ia undenleel. The Welsh and Gaels call us Saxona at the present moment. The Romans would take thelr name fur certaln Germans as they found It with the Britons. Tlis Britons and Romans using the same name would be as two to one In favour of the Keitlc name taking ground. It would be Roman and Kelte agslost a German name aingie handed. The only question is whether the name Suxon was exchiiaively Britannle (Keltc), i. c., not German also.

I think, upon the whole, that Saxon was a wordike 'Greek,' l. c., a term which, In the language of the IIellenes, was so very speelai, parthal. sul unlinportant, as to have lueen practically a foreign term, or, at least, anything but a native natue; whllst in that of the Romans It was one of general and widely extended import. Ilence, mutatis mutandls, it la the Insignifleant Saxones of the neck of the Cimbric Chersonese, and the three Snxon lsinnds, first mentloned by Ptolemy, who are the analogues of the equally unimpor. tant Gracl of Eplrus; and these It was whose name eventualiy comprised populations ns dif. fereat as the Aingles, and the Sazons of Saxony. even as the name Greecus in the mouth of in Ruman comprised Dorians, Elolians, Macedo. nians, Athenians, Rhodiana, sc. In this way the name was German; hut its extended Import was Keitic and Roman."- IR. G. Latham, The Fier. many if Tacitus: Epilegomena, Ect, 43.-Siee. sla, Geavant: The Nationai Nayes; nod anglen and Jutia.
The sea-rovers of the 5 th century.-"At the end of a long letter, written by Sidonlus [Apolinaris, Bishop, at Clermont, in Auvergre, A $11.471-488$ ] to his fricad Nammatlus [an effirer of the Chnnnel feet of the Romans, then chiefly occupled in wntching and warding off the Saxni pirates], after dull compliments and duller banter. we sudijenly find flashed upon ua thls life like pieture, by a contemporary hand, of the brothres snd cousins of the men, If not of the very men themselves who had fought nt aylesford under Hengeat and Horsa, or who were dowiy winning the kingdom of the south Baxons: 'Rehold, when I was on the polnt of cuncluding this eplatle in whlch 1 have slready chattered on too long, a menenger has suddenly arrived from Salntonge with whom I have spent some hours In conversing about you and your dolngs, a ad who constantly aftrms that you have just sounited your trumpet on board the tleet, and that with the dutics of a sallor and a soldler comblned you are rouming along the wladling shorea of the Ucean, loxiking out for the curved pinnacea of the Saxons. When you see the nowers of that nation you may at onee make up your mind that every one of them is an arch-pirate, Whth sueh wonderful unanlmity do all at once command, ohey, teaeh, and learn their one chosen husiness of hrigandage. For this reason I ought to warn you to be more than ever on your guard in thís wnrfare. Your enemy ia the most trueuient of all enemics. E'nexpectedly he attacks, when experted he escapes, he desplses those who seek to biock his path, he overthrows those who are of thelr guard, he always auc ceeds in cutting off the enenyy whom he follows, while he never fails when he desires to effect his own escape. Moreover, to these men a shlp. wreek is capltal praetice rather than an object of terror. The dangers of the deep are to tham, not easual acquaintances, hut intimate frienda. For since a tempest throws the Invaled off their guart, and prevents the invaders from belng descried from nfar, they hail with joy the crash of waves on the rocks, whieh gives them their best chauee of escoping from other enemies than the elements. Then aguin. Iefore they ralse the deep-bithng anchor from the hostile soll, and set sall from the Continent for their own mountry, their custom is to collect the erowd of their prisoners togcther, hy a mockery of equity to make themcast lots which of them shall undergo the iniquitous sentence of death, and theu at the mument of departure to slay every tenth man so selected by cructifilon, a praetlee which is the more lamentable lecause it nrises from n superstltions uotion that they will thus ensure for themselves a sufe return. Purifying themseives as they constider by such sncrifices, poltuting themselves as we deem hy such deeds of sacri. lege, they think the fout murders they thua eommit are acts of worship to their gods, and they glory in extorting cries of agony instead of ransoms from these dowmed victians." -T. Hodg. kin. Itnly and Her Inmudera. bi. 3, ch, $\overline{8}$.
A. D. 451.-At the Batlle of Chalons. - In the allied nriny of Romaus and harbarians whlch couut iethus brought together to encounter the Ilun, Attiln, on the great and terrible battiefied of Chalons,. Juls, 4.51, there is mention of the "Saxones," "How came our fathers thither; they, Whose homes were iu the long sandy levels of liolsteln? As has been already polnted out, the national migration of the Angles and Sax. ons to our own island us, aiready commenced, rerhaps in imrt determined hy the impulse north. ward of Attlin's own sulijects. Powsibly, like the Northmen, their successors, the Aaxons may Lave Invaded hoth aldes of the English Channel at once, and may on this occaalon have been standing $\ln$ arms to defend againat their old foe ${ }^{\text {somene newly-won possessions in Normandy or }}$ Mcardy."-T. Hodgkln, Italy and Her Intadera, bk. 2, ch. 8.
A. D. 477-527.-Cosquests in Eritain. See Enoland: A. D. 477-827.
A. D. 53太-729. - Strucelen againet the Frank dominion, before Charlenianae. See GErXANy: A. D. $481-768$.
A. D. 77 -804-Conquest by Charlemague. - In the time of Charlemague, the possessiona of this great league [the Saxuns] were very extensive, stretchling, at one polnt, from the banks of the Rhlne nearly to the Oder, and on the other hand, from the North Sea to the contines of Hesse and Thuringla. Wartlke in their hahita. vigorous in body, active and impatient in minil, their geographlcal altuation, operatlog tugether with their state of barbarism, rendered them plates, extending the predntory excurstons, common to all the northern iribes, to the sen as well as to the land. . . They heli, froman early perfod, greater part of the islands scattered pound the mouthy of the German rivers: andl. uon beginalag to extend thalr domalan, they captured, at diferent times, all thosc on the const of France an! In the British sea. Not eontented. however, with this pecullar and mnre appropri. ate mode of warfare. the suxums who remained on land, whlle thelr fellow-countrymen weresweep. lag the ncean, constantly turnel thelrarms against the adjacent contlneutal comntries, especially after the conquest of Britain huld, In a manner, E parated their people, sull satlstied to the utmost thelr maritme eupldity In that direction. Surpassing all nathons, except the early Hins, in fiercencess, llolaters of the most blooily rites. insatlable of plunder, and persevering in the purpose of riplne to a degree which no other patlon ever knew, they were thr pest and scourge of the :torth. Ilappity for Europe their govern. ment consisted of a mintitule of chlefs, nad their soclety of a multitude of Independent tribes, llaked together by sulue bond that we to not at present know, but whel was mot strung enough on produec unlty ami contmalty of destgn. Thus they had procected from age to age, accomplishing great thongs by cotsultory and inilt. vhland eflorts; but up to the tinse if charlemague, nu) vast and comprelensive malul. like that of Cutha, had arisen amongst them, to come blac all the tribes unter fle swisy of ne momar th. and to direct all their ewergles to one great obs. ject. It was for nelghluniting klugs, huwever, to remember that such a chitef mixht every day appear. . .. Snch was the state of the sixons at the reuniou of the French [or Frank] monarchy under Charlemagne; ant it would spem that the first step he proposed to himwlf, as an opening to all bis great designs, was completely to sulfulue a people whluch every day maget hils frintiur provinces, and continually thriutered the very extatence of the nations aromul. "- generationd lefore Charlemange-from the perimpl. in fact, of the swns if Clovis, carly la the slxth wontry - the Framk kings hail chaned suprem:ary over the siaxons und combted then amme thi tributarles of thelr . Anstmatian or (fire man munarehy. Itepeatedly. too, the saxins hasl luecon furced to sahmit themselves nand neknowhenge the yoke in terms, white they repudhated it In fact. When tharle nagne tow in haul the complest of this stabborm nat marbarous perple, he seems to tave found the task ns arilnons as though mothiug hal treen done in thefore lilm. Ills first expeetition iato thelr conntry was undertaken in ise, when lie alvaneed whil tire and sworl from flar latine at Maywe to the Diemel in the Hesslan comntry. It was on thas occaslon that he destroyed, near the head waters of the Llppe, the famous natlonal ldol and faue of the Baxnnacalled the Irminsul or Ferminanule $\rightarrow$ suppoeed to be connected with the memory of Hermann. the Cheruscan patriot chlef who destroyed the Roman legiona of Varus. The campalgn resulted in the auhmiacton of the Saxons, whth a aurrender of hostages to guarantee it. But in 774 they were again in arms. and the next summer Charlemagne awept their country to beyond the Weser with the besom uf destructhon. Once more they yielded and gave homages, who were taken to Frank monasteries and male Christians of. But the peace did nut last a iwelvemnoth, and there was another great campalgn in 776, whleh so territied the turhulent heathen that they accepted baptism in large numbers, and a wholesale conversion took plare at Paderborn in May, 777. But a chlef laad risea at last among the suxons who could unlte them. and who would not kneel to Clarlemugue nor bow his head to the waters of bapitsus. This was Whtekind, a Weatphullan, brotter In law of the klng of the Thnes and friend of the Frislan klag. Iathowi. Whlle Charlemagnc was it s : pinin, In 7\%8, Whitekind roused his countrymen to a rislng which eleared their land if crossus, churches, prlests and Frank castles at one steep. From that tme untll i85 there were campuigns every year, with terrible carnage and destrmethon In the Saxnn country and hudustrious lapitising of the submissive. At Badentichl, at Burklouk, near Zutphen, not at Detmold, there were tierce hattles in whith the Saxons suffered most: but at sonncthal, on the Weser (the 1)achtelfithi), in ise, the Franks were fearfilly beaten and slaighterell. Charlemagne tonk a barbarmus vengeance for this reverse by beluading no les than 4.510 ) Saxon prisoners at Verten, on the Nler. Three years Inter, the conlutry of the Suxons having been mate, for the numit part a fanine smitten desert, ther gave up the strusule. Even Wittekint accepted Christianity, Income a monk-a mlasionary - a cannuizeid suintand disappeared otherwise from livinty: A.
 Saxons hat "clanged the very culor of the eiti. and the brown clay of the suxen perime gave way to the red earth of West phatia." For wicm vears the saxons were sulbmisslue and fonght in Charlemagne's armles agalust other find. Then there was a last despalting attempt to lorak the conpucrur's yoke, and atorlacr long war of twelve years durathon. It eniled la the pratical maibllation of the Saxons ns a divilint peevple In Germany. Dany thomsands of therm wre transplanted to other reglons in Ganl ond the. where; others escapetl to thenmark and were absorbed luto the grent rishig naval and military power of the Northume. The survivirs in their own sull were stripped of their pinas jonds. "The Sinxon war whe couluctell with ahmost unparalleled ferocliy."-J. 1. Monilx.rt, Nlist, of Charlea the Grest? dl. 2, ch. 3.-4.
Alm) in: P. Guxlwin, llise. of Fronce: An cien! fraul, ch. 16-1t.

SAXONS OF BAYEUX.-" The district of Bayeux, occupled hy a tiaxon colons In the latest days of the oll Roman Emplre, occupienl agsin hy a scanillnavian colony as the result of lis raaquest hy luilf [nr Rollo, the Northman], has retalnetl to this day a character wheld distingaisied It from every other loomance-speaking portion of the Contluent. The Saxons of Hayeus preserved

BAXONS OF BAYEUZ.

SAXONY.

thetr name and their diatinct exfatence under the Frankinh dominlon; we can hardly doubt that the Scandlaavian settlert found rome pats at leat of the district atlll Teutonle, and that nearness of blood and speech exercised over them the mome laftuence which the same causes exerclsed over the Scandinavian met'lers in England. Danes and Saxons coalewced lnto one Teutonlc peopie, and they retained their Teutonic language and character long after Konen had become, in speech at least, no less Frunch than Paris. With their old Teutonlc speech, the second body of settlers seem to have largely retuinel their old Teutonle religlon, and we shall prowati! od Bayeux the centre of a heathen and Dunua party in the I ueliy, In oppostion to Rouen, the centre of the new speech and the new creed. The hicod of the lnhabitants of the Bessin must be composed of nearly the same eiements, mlagled in nearly the sume proportions, as the blowd of the Inhabitants of the Danlsh dis: triets of England."-E. A. Freeman, /Iist. of the Jorman Conquest of England, ch, 4.

SAXONY: The old Duchy.-"The great duchy of Saxony fas it existed under the Carolingina emplre and after the separation of Germany from France] consisted of three main di. rishons, Westfaila, Engern or Angria, and Eastfalia. Thuringia to the gontherent, and the frimian lands to the north-west, may be looked on as in some sort appenduges to the suxon duchy. The duchy was also capable of any amount of exteashan towarls the east, nod the lamels gradn. ails woa from the Wends on thls side were all looked on as adiditons made to the saxion territory. But the great Saxon duchy was broken up at the fall of IIenry the Lion [1. 1), 1191]. The archiepiscopai Electors of Kön received the title of Dukes of Westfalia und Engern. But th the greater part of those districts the grant rowained mercly nomilanl, thonght the ducal titie, with a smali actual Wiest falian duchy, re malnel to the electorate till the eut. From these lanis the saxon amme may be lonkenl on as hav. Ing altugether passed away. The name of sax any. ay a geographical expresslon, clave to the Eaiffalian remanat of the old duchy, and to Thuriagia aud the slavoute roaquests to the east. Ia the later dlylsion of Gemany these lands fumbed the two circles of Cpperand Lower sam my; and it was within their linaits that the rarinas states arose which have kept on the savian ame to our own tlme. From the descendants of ilenry the Lion himself, nuil from the silmial lanfos which they kept, the suxom name maseri a way, except so far as they lnecame purt "t the Lower Sa con circle. They helif their pine as priaces of the Eupire, no longer as Dakes of axiany, but as Dekes of Bruuswick, a hume which gave lome one Emperor and Eugland a dyasty of kings. After some of the hanal divisions, two Brunswlek prinelpalities finaily took thelr place on the map, those of Laveburg and Wolfenbattei, the latter havlog the townof Brunswick for lis capltal. The Lonelourg duchy grew. Late $\ln$ the severiteenth century it was rased to the eiectoral rank, and early in the atett ceatury it was tinaliy enlarged hy the ac. quatinn of the hishoprics of bremen sull Ver. den. Thus was formed the Electorate, and afterwards Kinglom, of Hannover, wille the dmple ducal tifle remalned with the Brunamlek princes of the other lline."-E. A. Freemsan, Fist Geog. of Eurepe, eh. 8, sect. 1.- See, also, Grr. MANT: A. D. 848-962
A. D. 988-8024.-The Imperial Howse, See Germary: A. D. ©11-836; 936-978; and $473-1122$ A. D. 1073-8075. - Revolt againat Heary IV. - The saxions were stlii unreconclied to the tranafer of the lmperial dignlty from thelr own ducal family to the House of Franconla, when the thirl of the Franconian emperors, Henry IV. came to the throne while stlif a boy. Fils long mlnority encouraged them to a habit of lodependent feellng, while tis rasin and injudicious measures when he grew to manhoral provoked their raging enmity. They were stlil a turhulent, wlld peopie, and he undertook to force the yoke of the emplee on thelr necks, by means of garrisoned fortresses and castles, distri., uted through their land. The garrlmons were inserlent, the people were not meek, and in 1073 a furious revolt hroke out. "'All Saxony, Aays a chronicler, 'revolted, an one man, from the $k$ ing. ${ }^{\prime}$ and marched, 80,000 atrong, to the liartzburg, a stately citadel near Goslar, which the kling had huili for a reshlence upon a command. ing helght. Aftcr useless negotiations, Henry made a narrow escape hy flight. When he then summoned his priaces around him, no one canse; and here and there it began to he sand that he must be entirely abundoned and another monarch chosen. In this extrenity, the cithes aione remalneil faithfil to the emperor, who for some the lay sick almost to death in his loya clty of Wormse" llenry's energy, and the great abiiltles which he possessed, eanbled hm to recover hls command of resources and to hriag a strong ariny Into the fich agalast the Saxcms, in the early smmmer of 10 is . They offered submixation and he might have restored pence to hls comatry in an honorabie wuy; hut his hendstrong passions donmaded revenge. "After a mareh of extransdinary rapidte, he fell suldenly upon the Saxons and their ailles, the Thurlaginas, on the meadows of the linstritt, at Langensalza, near llohenhurg. Ilis army drawn np in an orter resemhling that whleh (Ott) the Great had formed on the lech [ugalnst the llungurians], obtuined. after a tieree hadi-to- hami fight of nine hours, a Homily vietory. When the sanons finally ylelded nul theri, the battle trecame a massucre. .. . It Is asmerted that of the font-soldiers, who comjosed the mass of the Sason army of 60,000 , harilte nay escajed; though of thit mohemen whos had swift horses, few were slain. But it was it butle of Germans with Germans, and on the very eveni-cy of the struggle, the lameatations overs any sian liy kindred hands could liet for shlu ed lin the emperor's own camp. liet fur the e the splrit of Saxon Independeace was crushen ilenry was reully master of all Cermuny, unit suemed to have estahilshed the imperial throne again." But little more than a year afterwards, Heory, under the han of the great lope Gregory lil., with whom he had quarrelfet, was agaln deserted by hls sulijects. Again he recovered his footing and malntalned a civil war untll his own son deposed $\mathrm{h} / \mathrm{m}$, in 1105. The next year he died.-C. T. Lewis, Hist. of Germany. bk. 2, ch. 7, sect, 18-20.
Also in: W. Menzel, Hist. if Germuny, ch. 142.-See, also, Germant: A. D. 973-11:2.
A. D. $8825-1152$. The origin of the electo-A. D. $8825-1152$. The origin of the rate. See Grmany ; A. D. $1125-127^{2}$

SAXONY．

SAXONY．

A．D． 1878 －1183．The discolutlos of the old duchy．－In an account given elsewhere of the origln of the Guelf and Ghlbelline partles and their names（see Guelps and Gmbellines）， the elrcumstances under which llenry the Preud， in 1138，was stripped of the duehy of Naxony， and the duchy of Bavaria，have been brietly re－ lated．This Duke llenry the Proud dled moon after that event，leaving a son who acquired the name of Ileary the Llou．The Emperor Conrad， whose hosullty to the father had been the cause of his ruln，now restored to the son，lleary the Llon．hle duehy of Saxony，but required hifm to renounce the Bavarian duehy．But Conrad， dylng In 1159，was succeeded on the Imperial tbrune by his nephew，Fiederick Barbarossa， who entertalned a friendly feelling for the young Duke of Saxony，nod who restored to him，in 1150，the whole of hils father＇s forfelted posses． slons，Bnvaris laeluiled．By hly own warllke energles，Heary the Llon extenderl his domlulons stlll further，maklige a eonquest of the Ototrites， one of the tribes of heathen Slnves or Weuls who occupied the Meeklenburg reglon on the laille．Ile was now，the most powerful of the princes of the Germanie empire，and one of the most powerful In Europe．But he used his power haughtlly and arbitrarily and raised up pany enemies agalnst hluself．At length there arose a quarrel between the Empernr and Duke llenry，whleh the Intter embittered hy aliruptly pulting the emperor＇s army，in laly，with all hils trowps，at a tme when（A．D．117デ5）the latter wis nlmost rulued hy the desertion．From that moment llenry the Llon was marked，as hls father had been，for ruln．Accusations were brought agalnst hlm In the dlet；he was repeat－ edly summoned to appear and meet them，and he obstinately refused to olsey the summons．At leagth，A．D．1178，he was formally declared to be a rebel to the state，and the＂Imperial ban＂was be＇emaly pronounced agalnst hlan．＂This sen－ tence placed Henry without the pale of the laws， and his person and hls states were at the mercy of every one who had the power of lnjuring then．The archblshop of Cologne，his anclent enemy，had the ban promulgated throughout Sarony，and at hls command Godfrey，Duke of Brabant：Phlllp，Count of Flanders；Otho， Count of Guelders；Thlerry，Lord of Clevea； Willam of Jullers，with the Loris of Bonn Seuef，Berg，and many others，levkel forces，and johning the archhlshop，entered Westphalla， whleh they ovetran aud lald waste，before he was aware of tbelr lutentions．＂Thls was the beglnning of a long struggle，In which lleary made a gallant reslstanee；hut the odils were too heavlly agalnat him．Ills frienils and supporters gradually fell away，hls domlulons were lost， one by one，and $\ln 1183$ he took refuge in Eng． lanl，at the court of llenry 11．，whowe daughter Mintlida he had married．After an exlle of three years be was purmilted to return to Germany and his alowial cstates In Saxnay were restored to him．The imperial tiefs were divided．The arehbishop of Cologne recelved the greater part of Westphalla，and Angria．Beraard，Count of Anhalt，got the remuinder of the old saxon duehy，with lis ducal title．When llenry the Llon died，In 1195，the alorlial posscssions that he had recovered were dliviled between hls three conm－Bir A．Llalliday，Annale of the liouse of Llanweer，ok．$\&$（0．1），－Fifty years alterwards these were converted into imperial teff and bo came the two duchles of the house of Brunswick， －Lanehurg and Wolfenbottel，afterwarls lhas． over and Brunswlek－the princes of whleh rep－ resented the old house of Saxony and Inheried the name of Guelf．

Also is：Il．Ilallam，The Viddle igna，eh．5．－ See，also．Saxony：The Old Deciry liemmary： A．D． $118 *-1268$ ；Italr：A．D．11it－11队3．
A．D． $1180-8553$－The later Duchy and Electorate，－The House of Wettin．－Its Er－ nestlue and Albertine llees，and their many branches．－＂Wheu lleury the Lon was de－ prived of the Ducby of Saxony $\ln 11^{101}$ ，it（ rr ducerl to a small distriet around Lauculnig］was glven to Bernhard，the youngest sun of libert the Bear，Elector of Brandenhurg．nul it montin－ netl with hls descendants In the mair hine till 1429，when It was sold by the Elunn－nir Siuis－ noml to Frederlek，surnamed the Warike，Mar grive of Misnin，descended In the folmali fine from the Landgraves of Thuringen．＂－sir 1 Hulliday，Anumla of the House of Hiturere，e．1． p． 426 ．－Thls line has been known as the llouse of Wettln，taking thant name from Ihetlo．count of Wetth，who was the first margrave of Mis－ nla，or Melssen；leing lnvested whith the dignity In 1048．＂The Wettln the of siaxon pribes． the same that Jet endures［185．5］．known by sight to every Engllsh creature（for the high in－ dividunl，Prince Albert．Is of lt），had lext lucky enough to combine In Itself，by luheritance，by good management，ehletly hy luirrituuce and mere force of survival，all the Three separate portions and dlvided digntless of that countr． the Thtaringen Landgravlate，the Meiswn Mart－ gravlute，and the anclent Duchy aud Ellerturate of Saxony；and to become very greut umoug the Princes of the German Empire．．．．Thruugh the enrller porthon of the 15 th century，this Saxon Ilouse might fulrly reckon lis－if the great－ est In Germany，till Austrla，till Bramleuburg gradually rose to overshadow it．Law of primo－ genlture could never be accepted in that coun iry；nothling hut dlvislons，redivisions，coalesc－ ligs，splttlings，and never－endlug readjustments and collslons were previlent in conserfuence； to which cause，first of all，the lose of the rue hy Saxony may be ascribed．＂In 1464，Fred－ erick 11．Was succeeded by hls two suns，Ernest and Albert．These princes governcl their coun－ try conjolntly for upwaris of 20 yeark，but then made a partitlon from whleh began the separa－ tlon of the Ernestline and Alberine lines that continued ever afterwards lu the llonse of Sar－ ony．＂Ernest，the elder of those two．．．brys became Kurforst（Eleetor）；and got for Inberi－ tance，bexhlies the＇Inalleuable properties＇which lle round Wittenberg，．．．the better or Thu－ rhelian side of the Saxon country－that ls，the Welmar，Gotha，Altenhurg，\＆c．Prinelpalithes： －white the other youth，Albert，ham to take the －Osterland（Easternland），witb part of Meissen．＇ what we may la general inagine to lie（for do German Dryasdust will do you the kindnese to say preeisely）the eastera region of what is sas． ony In our day．These Albertlnes，with an in－ ferior territory，had as thelr main towns，Delp－ zlg and Dresilen，a Resldeuz－Schloss（or sublime enungh Ducal Pulace）In eath rify，Iulprig at yet the grander and more common onc．There． it Lelpzlg chletiy，I say，lived the sugust younger or Albertine Line．．．．As for Entin

SAXONY.

SAXONY.

 rris lianhich repInheriudthe elder, be aad his lived chiefy at Witteaberg a I perceive; there or In the nelghbourhood The their high schlow; dintiguished smons palaces. But they had Welmar, they had A. teahurg, Joths, Cohurs, - above all, they had the Wartburg, one of the mut dintinguiahed gerong Ilouse say Duke could live in, if he were of frugal and herole turn. . . . Ernst's son was Frederick the Wise, succenor in the Kur (Electornhip) and paternal lande; which, as Frederiek did not marry and there was onis one other brother, were not further divided on this occaslon. Frederiels the Wise, born in 1443, was that ever-memorahie Kurfarst who as ved Luther from the Diet of Worms In 1521 (see Papact: A. D. 1521-1522]

Ile died in 1595 , and was succeeded hy his hrother, John the Stead. fast. ... He also was a wise and eminently Protestant man. He niruggled very faithfuily for the good Cause, during his term of sover. elgaty; died In 1582 ( 14 years before Luther), having hed the Electorate oniy sevea years.
His min was Johann Friedrich, the Magnanlmous by eplthet (der Grossmathige), under whom the Line underwent sad destinies; fost the Elector. ship. lost mueh; snd apilt itself after him into innumerable branches, who are all of a small type ever since." In the Albertine Line, Aibert's clidest son, "successor in the eastern properties and readences, was Duke George of Sax-ony,-callexl 'of Saxony,' as all those Dukes, big snd ilttie, were and still are,-Herzog Georg von Stacheen: of whom, to make hlm meinorable, it is enongh to say that he was Tuther's Duke George: les, this is he with whom Luther fad auch wrangllag and janglag.
lle was trong for the oid religion, while his cousing went so vallantly ahead for the new. (feurge's bonther, Ilenry, sueceeded; tived only for two years; in whleh thme all went to Protes. tatism in the eastern parts of Saxony, as in the western. This Ilenry's eldest son, and first aucceswor, was Moritz, the 'Maurice' known in Eng lish Protestant books; who, in the Schmalkaidie Lague und War, played such a questionable game with hls Protestant cousin, of the elder or Ernestine IIne, - quite ousting sald cousin, hy superior jockeyship, and reducing his LIne aud tim to the second rank ever slace [se Germany: A. 1). 1546-1502]. This cousin was Johann Frielirich the Slagnanlmous . . . whom we left alure waitlng for that catastrophe. . . . Duke Moritz got the Electorshlp transferred io hlm. welf: Electorship, with Wittenberg and the 'in. alitnahbe hanis and digaties.'. . Moritz kept lis E.lertorship, and, hy eunnlng jockeying, his routestantism too; got his Aibertine or juntor Line pushed into the place of the Erruestine or first in whleh dishonourahy acquireyl fositton it contimes to thls day [18\%解]: performing ever siure the chief part in Saxony, as Elertor, and now $力$ s Kings of Saxony. ... The Ernestine, or lomonrable f'rotestant line is ever since in a momdiary, diminislied, and as it were, disinte. gratell state, a Line hroken small; nothlng now but a meries of small llukes, Willuar, Gotha Coburg, and the Hke, in the Thuringian reglon, Who. on mere genenfogical groumis, fut sachasen to their name: Nachsen-Colnirg, Suchsoll. Welnisp. ise fandleixed, saxe fombig, etc.]."-T. ('arlyle, The Irinzenraub (Einorys, r. 8).
Al.mo in: F. Sholverl, IIstorical Accuunt of the Unum of Sicsony
A. D. 2500-2523,- Formation of the Circlee of Shreas and Upper Sareas. See Grumurr: A. D. 1498-1819.
A. D. 1526-1546, The Reformation Seo Papact: $A$. D. 1516-1517, to 1517-1821, 10211522, 1522-1525, 1525-1529, 1580-1531; also. Germany: A. D. 1530-1598, and after.
A. D. 1535.-The Latheran dectrince and syetem formaliy entahilshed la the electorate. See Papact: A. D. 1522-1525.
A. D. $2539,-$ Snceseslon of a Protectant prince. See GEnyaxT: A. D. 1833-1546.
A. D. 1546-1547. - Treachery of Maurice of Sarony,-Transter of the eiectorate to him Bee Germant: A. D. 1540-1552.
A. D. $2629 .-$ Adheelon of the Eiector to the Emperor Ferdinand, againnt Frederick of Bohemia and the Evangelical Union. Bee GrR. MANT: A. D. $161 \mathrm{M}-16=10$.
A. D. 1632,- Ignohie trepldatlons of the Elector.- Hie final allimes with Gusterue Adolphus. -The battie of Breiteafeld. See Germant: A. D. 1631.
A. D. 1632-1632.-The Elector and hisarmy In Bohemia. See Germarr: A. D. 1831-1632.
A. D. 1633.-Standing aloof from the Union of Hellhronn. See Genyanr: A. D. 16321634.
A. D. 2634- - Desertion of the Protestent cause. -The Eiector's aliance with the Emperor. See Germasiy: A. D. 1634-1639.
A. D. 1645.-Forced to atrenty of neutrality with the Swedee and Freach. See Geryany: A. D. 1640-1645.
A. D. 1648.-The Peace of Weatphalis. See Germany: A. D. 1648 .
A. D. 1680, -The League of Augshurg. See Germant: A. D. 1686 cured hy the Elector. See Poland: A. D 1696-1098.
A. D. 1706.-Invasion hy Charies 811. of Sweden.-Renunciation of the Polish crown hy the Eiector Augustug. See Scasidinavian States (Sweden): A. B. 1701-1707.
A. D. 1733.-Election of Augustus III. to the Polfah throse, enforced hy Russia and Austria See Polasd: A. I. 173:-1733.
A. D. 1740. - The War of the Austrian Succesion: Claims of the Eiector upon Austrian territory. See Aťthia: A. I. 1740 (OC TOBER).
A. D. 174t.- The War of the Austrian Suc cession: Alliance againgt Austria. &ee At'sthiA: A. D). 1741 (AtGist - Novemben).
A. D. 1745.-The War of the Austrian Succension: Alliance with Austria. Sahjugation hy Prussit, The Peace of Dresden. See Al'athia: A. D. 1744-1745.
A. D. 2755-Intrigues with Austria and Russia againat Prussia-Causes of the Seven Years War. See Germany: A. D. 1 \%hjolion, A. D. 1756,-Swif subjugation hy Frederick of Prussia. Sce Gemmany: A. 1) 1 fith.
A. D. 1759-1760,-Occupled hy the Aus-trians.-Mostiy recovered by Frederick. Sie GERSANY: A. D. 1739 (JCLT-Novesubeh) ; um! 1780.
A. D. 1763.-The end and results of the Seven Years War. - The electorate restored. She Senen Ieara War: The Thentien.
A. D. 1806.-The Elector, deserting Prussin, becomee the eabject-ally of Napoleon, and ## 8AXONY.

sCANDNAVIAN ETATES.

It made a king. Seo Germant: A. D. 1800

A. D. iton.-Acquisition by the kiag of the grand dachy of Warsaw. Bee Gramart: 2. D. 1807 (Juse-Jtiv).
A. D. scog.-Ridinge againat the Freach. Bee Germant: A. D. 1800 (A PRIL-July).
A. D. 1 Its. -Occupled by the Allies.-Ro cained by the Freach.-Hnmiliating submio dion of the lying to Napoleon- French victory at Dregden and dofeat at Leipaic.- Desertion from Napoleon's army by the Saxons.- The rim a prisoner in the hands of the Allien.French sarreados of Dreeden. See Germant: A. D. 1812-1818, to 1818 (UCTOBER-DECESMER).
A. D. sisi-siss - The Saron question in the Congrens of Vienam-The king restored, With half of bis dominions lost. she Viensa, The Comarene of.
A. D. $188 \%$-Accassion to the Holy Alliance. See Holy Allinnct.
A. D. ${ }^{1848}$ (March).-Revointiomary out-breat-Concessions to the people. See GerMaxt: A. D. 1848 (Marctl).
A. D. 1849.- Inaurrection suppressed by Prusaitin troops. See Germaxy: A. I). 18461850.
A. D. s866.-The Seven Weeks War.-Indemilit to Prussla-Union with the North German Confoderation. See Gerxany: A. I. 1860.
A. D. 8870-1871.-Embraced th the nev German Emplire. Spe GEnMANy: A. 1). 1800 (NETEMBER-DECRMBER): $18 \% 1$ (JANUART): and 1471 (APRIL).

SAXONY. The English titniar Dukedom of. Siee Waisg Prince of.

SCALDIS, The.- The anclent name of the river schelitt.

SCALDS, OR SKALDS, The.-"Before the Introluction or general didusion of writing, It is evldent thet eclass of men whowe sole occupation was to commlt to memory and prewerve the laws, usages, precectents, and detalls of ali thoee civil affalrs and rights, ead $\omega$ whome thielity in relating former transactions implicit contidence could be given. must of necemalty have cxitited in eoclety - must have been in every locality.
This clem [among the scanll. actian peoples of the North of Europe] were the scaids - the men who were the liviag bumk, to be referred to in evory case of haw or property in Which the paat had to bo epplited to the presens Before the Introduction of Christianity, and whth Chriatianity the une of written documents, and the dirualon, hy the cchurch eexahilehmeat, of writing in every tocallity, the scald must hare been among the pagan lendowners wint the parish priest end his written recond werr in the older Christianised countrles of Europe.
The scalds is these Christlanimed countries were merely a clam of wandering troubadours, proves story-tellers minnesingert. . . The scalis of the north disappenred at ouce when Chrising priests were entahilished through the couotry. They were superseded in their utility by neen of education, who knew the ert of wriling: nnd tbe country had no feudal barons is maintaln sucb a clases for amusement only. We hear little of the wealde after the firat hais of the $1 \geqslant \mathrm{th}$ ces. tury."-S. Lalng, The Medmakringla: Proliminary Disertation, eh. 1. - "At the dawn of bir torical times we dind the gkalds practising their筑 everywhere in the North. . . The oldent Norwegian skalle, like 'gtarkad' and 'Brage the Off.' ere enveloped in mythic darknews, but the song-emiths of the Scandinavinn North ajr pear as thoroughiy historical permonagem. In lcelend the art of poetry was held in high honor, and it was cuitiveted not oniy hy the profemional skalds, but eleo hy others when the oceastion presented itself. . . When ise Icelander had ar rived at the age of maturity, he longed to travel in foreign landa. As a skald he would theo risit foreign kings and other noblemen. where be would recelve e moat hearty weiconce.
These Icelandic skalds became a very nigoilicast fuctor in the Itterary development of the Sinh during the greater part of the mldilic ages " -F . W. Horn. Diot. of the Litorature of the standi. nation North, pe. 1. ch. I.
SCALIGERI, The, or Della Scala Family. See Vrroxa: A. D. 1260-1388; also, Jluas: A. D. 1277-1447.

SCAMANDER, The. See Trona.
SCANDERBEG'S WAR WITH THE TURKS, Seo ALmarlurs: 1. D. 1449-146i.

SCANDINAVIAN STATES.

Early history.-" Those who tean impilicitly on the chlef prope suppiled hy the Old Norse literalure for the early history and genealogy of the North lean on very unsafe supporta. The fact is. we muat treat these genealogites and these continuens hastories as compllations made up Prois imilated and deteched traditions-eples in whith some indivilual or some battle was described, and in whll the links and the monnectoons between the piecess have been suppiled according to the ingenuity of the compiters: in which the arrangentent and chron : $\because y$ are to a large extent arblimary; and $\operatorname{In}$ wi $:$ has been a great temptation to trausfer the sh. dis of one hero to another of the same nume. i wler these circimatances what is a modern histur in to do? In the first place he must take the contemporary chronicles- Frank, Euglish, and Triah-as his supreme guldes, and not sllow ther statementa to be pervertud by the false or delusive testlmony of the sagas, nad where the tro are ni lssue, Eacridice the latter without acruple, while in those cases where wit tave no convem. porsiry and independent evidence then to con. strict as best we cal our story from the glim mers of llght that have rearhed ua, "-H. H. Howorth, Fistl; Ilist. of Streden (Rnyal Hiot She. Trunmactiona, e. 9).
Their relatiouships in ianguage and biood -" scandlas via is not a very cunvinient and Norway and Sweden it cults; because. in Norway and Sweden, the geograplical boundaries colncide with the phenomene of lancuage and blond. But Denmerts is not only dividut frum them by water, hut is to actual contact with thern by Water, hut if in actual contact with Germany. More than this, it is connected with

gCANDINAVLAN STATES.

the Empire: Holotein belng German and Imperlal, Blenwick partiy Germinn though not Imperal. . Generically, a scandinavian if a Ger. man. Of the great Germinn stock there are two divisons - the Scaadinarian or Norne, and the Teutonic or German Pruper. Of the Germana Proper, the neareat congenern to the Scandina. rlans are the Prisians; and, after them, the saxoma.

At present the ianguages of Swe den ami Denmark, though mutualiy lateiligible, are treated as distinct: the reai diferencera beigg exagyerated by differences of orthography, anil by the use on the part of the swedes of the oril. gary Itallan aiphabet, whilist the Danes prefer the old German black letter. The literary Norwegian is Daninh rather tian Sweciish. JleanWhile, the of lmaguage, the mother-tongue, is the common property of ail, anil on is the oid Hiterature with its Eidia and Sagas; though the Norwcgians are tie chief hernes of fi. The haguage in which it is embodien is prewerveri with but iftle aiteration in leeland; an that it may firly be calied Iccilandic, though the Sorweghas denominate it Oid Norme [see Nonmass -Sortheex: A. D. 900-1100].... The histores of the three countries are alike in their gen. eral chameter though diferent in dietaii. Den. mark, when we have got awsy from the heroic age foto the dnwn of the true indstorical perioni, is dednitely separated from Germany in the para atout the Eycier - perhaps by the river fotel?. It is Pagan and Auti-ineperiai; the Danes being, in the cycs of the Cariovinglans, litte better than the hated Saxons. Nor is is ever an integral part of the Emplre; though Innish and German alilances are common. Tivey end to lionsteln being Danish, and in lis eneronching on Sleswick and largely intluencing the kingdom In geteral. As being most in contact with the efrilization of the siouth, Ibenmark encroaches on Swithen, and, for a fong time, inotids skanae and nither Swedish distrieta. Indeeti, it is aiways a check ujnm the amblition of its northern neighbour. Before, then, that &weden beconacs one and lodivisilde, the Janes have to le ejerteri from tis southern provinces. Norway. (ux) whea dynastic nilinnces begin and when king: doms become consolidateri, is uniteri with Ien. mark. . . In the way of language thet scundl. narians are Germana - the term being taken in itt wheter and more general sense. Whether the blood colncitie with the ianguage is another question: nor is it an easy one. The one point upon which most cthnoiogists agree, is the doctrine that, in Norway und Sweden (at ieast), or to the parts north of the Baitic, the Germans are by mo means ntoriginai; the reai alurigines having leen eongeners of elther the Lapps or the Fios; who, at a time antericer to the German im. migrationa, covered the nhole laud from the Xorth Cape to the Naze in Norway, and frorn Tornea to 1 stadt in Swedea. Towaris these aborigines the newer occupanta comported themelves much as the Angies of Engtand comported bemselves towaria the Britons. At the same twe, In both Britain and Scandinavia the extent to wich the iwo populations intermarried or kept uparate is doubtfui. It may be alded thnt. in both couatrifs, there are extreme opintona on Heh stite of the questivis."-R. G. Latiman, The Jationalifies of Esurope, e. 2, ch. 87,-Ses, alizo, Gotis Ortoen of the Lleo m: L. Lefevre, Race and Language, p. 236.

QCANDINAYIAN STATES.

2-oth Centuries, - Exploratioas, ravages and conqueate of the Viriagn. See Nommara - Nohtines.

E-s sth Ceaturies. - Formation of the Three Klagdoms. - "At the end of the eth century Within the twos scandinarlan peninsulas, the tirce Scandinavian pations were tast forming A number of kibuired triben were eettilig down luto the kingiome of thenmark, Norway and Swerlen, which, sonetimew separate, sometimes uniterl, have existed ever since. Of thewe three Denmark, the oniy one witich ind a frontier toWarda the Empire, was naturaily the frat tu play a part In generai European hintory. In tive courne of the loth century, under the half. mythical Gorm, and his succenmors lleroid and Sven, the Dunisin klugiom itself, as diatloguinhed from otiner lanis heid in aftertimes by its kinga, reacherl neariy lit fuli histerical extent in the two prenlnsulis and tive hiandis iretween them. lialinad and skaue or scania, it must always be rememberel, are from tive ireginuing at least at Danisit as Zeainal and Jutiand. The Eider remainet the frontier towards the Eimpire, sure during part of the loth and 11 th centurles, when the Ihnish fmatier withirew to the lhanew erk. and the land bet ween the two boundiaries formed the Inanish March of the Empire. C'nier Conut the oid frontler was retored. The name of Sorthmen, whieh tife Franks used in a inxer way for the Scandinaviau nutlons genervily, was contlneri to the peopie of Norwis. These, were furmed into a singie klagdiom unier liarohi Ilarfragn inte in tike 9 th century. The Norwe. gian realm of that diay stretcieri fur beyond the lounds of the iater Norway, inaving an fndetherte. extension over tributary Finnish tribes as fur as the White sea. The centrai juart of the eastern aide of the northern penhisula, between ilea. mark to the sumth and tie Finnish mations to tice aurth, was heifi by two Scandlnavian settiements which grew into the sweriluh kingiom. Tiuese were those of the Swerles atrictly so caited, and of the deatas or Gauts. Tiif lust name has naturaily been confounded with that of the Goths, and has giren the titie of King of the Gothe to the firlaces of Sweiten. Gothiansi, eant nad west, hay on each alde of Inke Wettero. Swithiod or Sveaiand, Sweden proper, iay on both sides of the great arm of the sea whose en. tranec is guariet by the moxiern capitai. The union of Srealand and Gotisiand made up the kingoiom of Sweden. Its early boundariea towartis iwth Denmark and Norway were fluctuat ing. Wermeiand. Immedintely to the north of Lake Wenern, and Jamteland Parther to the norti, were iong a debatahie land. At the be ginning of the 12th century Wermeland passed tualiy to Sweden, and Jamteinad for several ages to Norway', Bleking again, at the somth. enst corner of the Peninsula, was a debatalile land between Sweden and Denmark which passed to IDenmark. For a innd thus houndiel the natural course of extension by land iay to the north, aiong the west coast of the Guif of Botinin. In the course of the 11 th century at the iatent, Sweden began to apread Itself in ihat direction over Helsingland. Sweden had thus a better opportunity than Denmark and Nortizy for extension of her own borders by land. Mean. white Denmark and Norway, looking to the went, had their great time of Oceanic conquess and colonization in the oth and 10 th centurles"
-E. A. Preeman, Alicoorinal Gong. of Esrope, ell. 11, wel. 1. -" Til shout the Jear of Orace 90 there were no kinge in Norway, notling but numerous jarla, - ecsentially kingletw, - ench prenditis over a kied of repuhlicen or parils. mentary litle territory; gemerally atriving each to bo oa some terma of human nelghbourhund with those about him, but, in spite of • Fylke Thin ge' (Folk Thinge)- Iltie parish parliaments - and small comblinatoma of thew, which hal gradually formed themeires, often reduced to the unhappy state of quarrel with them. Harnid Hurfagr was the frat to put an end to this state of thlags, and become memorahle and profitahle to hla country hy uniting it under one head ant making a kingdom of It; which it han continued to be ever alnce. Ilis father, IIalfdan the Black. had aiready begun thin rough hut alutary procesa, . . . but it wan Ilarald the Fairhalred, his son, who conspleuoualy carried it on and completed ti. Ilarald's bith-yeur, death-yeap, and chronology in general, are known only ly inference and computation; but, by the lateat reckonlug. P - dled about the jear 983 of nur ern, a man of 88 . The husinees of conquest fasted llarali alxut twejve jears (A. D. 800-872 7), in which he subduel also the Vikings of the out-falands, Orkneys, Shetlands, Hehrides, and Man. Slety more years were given him to consolldate and requlate what he had conquered, which he did with great juigment, indusiry, and succens. Hin relgn altogether is counted to have been of over $\% 0$ yeari. . . Theme were the times of Norse colinizatou; proud Norsemen tylug tato other tands, to freer acenes, - to Iceland, to the Furde lalands, which were litherto quite vacant (tenantell onir hy mome mournent hermit, Irlah ('liriation fakir, or mo): atlli more coploualy to the Orkney and shretand Inles, the Itrordies and other countriss where Niorse mquaters and artthers already were. Stutlement of Icrland, we say, settlement of the Farde Islanila, buid, wy fur the notahlest of all, efttement of Normandy by Hulf the Ganger (A. 1). M85 ?)."一 T. Carlyle, The Eistly Kïngs of Sioruray, ch. 1.
9th Century. -Introduction of Cbristiantey.

A. D. 1018-1397.-The empire of Canute and ita diamolution. - Dlaturbed atate of the Three Kingdoma.-The Folkungas In Sweden. -Rise of Denmark. - The reign of Queen Margaret and the Union of Calmar. - . I Kirthern Enoplre . . for a thene sermerd poselhe whul Canute the Grent arowe. King by inlereftame of England [are Enolasd: A. D. Vid1016, and 1016-1042) and of I Nenmark, he was able by sulecesenfit war to add almost the whole of Norway to his domblons. The deftinte lucorporation if sleswig ander treaty whethe Empreror Conrad. and the submbsturi of the Wemilsis trites, appeared to ofen for him a way on to the continent. . . Had men with llak rapmelty surceeded to hiss throme, the worlit might linve ineheld an Emplece of the North as well as of the Eant and Weat. Ihut the klingloms of the great Danlsh mouarch frlt aoturier on lits deuth and hils auccesmry sink ugnin lato Insigniticance. Aunther century inswex before a hright page lilumines thelr ohecrare anuals. The names of Whitenuar the Grent [1150-1182], of Caule VI. [1192-1202] and Waldemar the Vletorious [ $1202-1241$ ] hat sons, are theu found attructing the attentlon of Europe. Again their kingdom seemed about to ralse lexelf to be a contin-nad power. They cillied forth from their pealnaula, they agala conquered the Wemis; the monthern sheres of the Batic, even ew far as Courland and Eathonia, were made wo tremble at the lanald arme.

But the greatnen was agalu hut him. porary. Waldemar the Vletorious, antimull and made a primoner in Ormany, brhell hila fas. plre returaing to lts fragmenta. Itrgaluing bio Itherty he tried to ragain his power, hut a ilias tmous battie at Bominuredi in 1207 gave a death. bow to his ambilton. An allisacie of the jerty princes who feared bis greetnete preva iovi niruinat hitm, and Denmark relapmed agaln Intu derline. Many cluees aow contrfbuted to the diwnfall of the kilngiom. By the fatal policy of Waltemap It was dividet among hle mona. . . While as. archy fucremed wlthla the country, new carmlen arome around it. The Norweglaus in a war that lasted for fong gears harmed it. The ner rwitien of Christopher obliged him to pledge Namia, Ilailand, and Blekling to Aweden. A firmikishle foe too war mow apperaing in the Ilanweatic League [ree \|lamea Tow wa]. Whowe rlach hat forlowed upon the fall of Wialiemar's power. The rich ctiles of Luleeck and Ilamblurg had erizel the opportunity to amert their frwilon.
llaraved by forelgn ememies and by mitrif with Its own nobles, Christopher [the Neremit, who came to the throne in 1810] at last whs driven from lidakinglom. A count of thasteli, hinown an the Llack Geert, became for fomrtiven yeari the virtual moverelgn. and luapmail ujnin the country hls nephew. Waidemnr III., the holr of the rebellions house of Nlewwig. as a ittulat King. Dlamembered and In anarchy, the crund try hal sunk fow, and is was nut untll he asweluntion of Black Geert. In 1340, that any lupe nppeared of lis recovery." In Swerlen ithe na thonal hitstory had lis real beginnlug. ${ }^{\text {Herlapman }}$ In the days of St. Eric, who relgand from 11 hit th 1160. "In this mign the apremi if (hinstimulty brecame the spreal of power. Eric. . . 'aramil hils titie from his detilite emalillahmem of the llne can hardig ise suld to have comtrilnatel mat is towards the ailvancement of thelr coontry, and It was remerved for a dow dymaly to chrry of the work of the earliber hinge. A inowerful fans Hy lial risen near the throue, ant. retatulus tbe whil trikill rank of Jaris, had tillew almuat the pmolthon of inayors of the palace. The death of Erle Ericson without children remaverl the lavt obstache to thelr ambilion. The infan and of Blrger Jarl whs elected to the vactut thrine, and the transfer of the royal tithe to the famity [hnown ar the Fulkungas] that hat lang hetil roval jower seremen as uatural to the shedro as It had llone carler to the Fraiks. A4 perent fir hise chilht, Blager upheld and aldoul to the Erat. ness of hils conmery ; lie became the cunplinulas figure of the 13 th century In the North: lie is the founder of stockholm, the courpursir of the Flums, the protector of the exlled prium of hus. ain. the meellator la diferences totwon Sornay and Denmark. Ils meptred demedidats Low ever did mot equal thelr unseepeted sir: The conquest of Plalatal was laderel conplidetel by Torkel Knuteon at the clome of the tibli century. sumt shat somue lustre ulndt the rigu of hit Blrger, hut the quarrels of auceralians prinets among themselven diggraced and diatractoll the country." In Norway, " the conquests of Harold

SCANDINAVIAN TV.ATES, 1018-189\%.

Fiarfoger had mocured the crown to a lowe Hoe or his descendater; but the etrife of thees demendants amoig themsel res, and the contants which were provozed by the attempes of suceeredre moverisins, with Imprudent zenl, to enforce the durctriaes of Chrtatianity upon uaviliting subJocth, distracted aad weakened tho k/n gdom. A prey to sumphy, It fell stoo a prey to les nelghboums. in the Ioth century it belonged for a time to liknmart: Bweden jolned later in dismemalering It: and Canute the Oreat wat able to call bimoelf Ita King. These were thmes Indeed fa whleh conçuests and annexations were offen mure rophl than latlog, and a King of Norway ave minnell in his tum over lenmart yet there las no douht thast the Norwegtans surfered sonpe than they infleted, and were from the ant the wrukeat of the thrre nations.

Wars foreien and domentic, that have now mi interent, rabuited the country; the plague of 1348 de. privel it of at lemat one half lts poppulation. lio decilne hal been marked, upon the estinction of tis mysi dynanty in 1819, hy the election of Ewrilinh princes to fill its thrme ${ }^{\text {and }}$ after the reignif two stranger Kings it mank fir ever from the lint of inclepremilent kingiloma. lirifting thoughinanarchy ami dimeril the thrce kingdoms hayl mink hiw. Ikenmark was arat to milue her. welf from thr abmement. nod the relign of a fmurli Wallemar not oniy reatored ber atrength but gave her a preeminence which she retalned until flie day n of Gustavis Alolphus. The new aveforign, as runger mon of Christopher II., was milatit to the throne in 1340, and bucompettor, now that thack Gigert wins deend, nppenrelf to dis. pate it whith han." lialiemne gave up, on the ane band, his claims to scanla. IInlland, and Blekiag ixhlelt he atierwaris reclalued snd re. paverati). ns well na the dletant posewsalons in Exthenla, whille lie laninghe lack Jutland und the Wist on the other. ." This isle of Gothland, nud Wishy lia rich copital, the centre of the Italuw. atle trale withln the Italtic, were phandered and anat wed [a: ind. giving the tithe the uceforward af King of the fioths in the thatlalh memarehs. This sucreat inderd was pald for hy the blther emulty of the llawon, und hy n war in whlele the prife of thembark was huiuliefl to the dast Ixenentit the priwio of the comblined celtes. (ipmonhagen by a traty [13m.3] whilh contirumal ulf former pivile tes in the conturerors, wheld surve them for ifteron rears possemandon of the lether part of saaia nomilfo receoures, and which hambly promisel that the clectlon of atl sowerrigus of lanamark slumbld thenceforth the sulbmithel for thir appraval. Yet Whldemar hateleft leblind biat the repuration of a proulent mad sisecesoful prince. and his jwilcy prepared the way fur the Enatures of his surcemeros. At hive ileath in 13Sis twa dangheres, of behaif of the ir chlletren, lerame claimanis fur his throne. The youngest, Margaret. had marriel Hako. King of Norway: the win of " lejumetl Klog of sweden ;the hinst of the Folkingas, or Folkungers]: snd the attrastive prosuret of a union thetween the two klasilung, supportet by her own prudent and cunciiatory measires, secured the election of her sua Ohf ds regent for her chillt. who awnen by tac wealio of lis fnther became fing of Norwny of well as of Denmark, she showerl the wisdom of a ruler, and won the affectona of ber sub. fects; and when the death of Olaf himself oc.

SCANDLNAVIAN BTATEB, 1207-1507.

currod In 1887 she was rewarded In both kiteg. doms by the formal pmeremito of the ceeptres. Whleh ahe had alreary shown hervelf woll able to hold. Miotrem in fenmart and In Norway. the preparell to add 8 wellen to her domin'rne. Slace the baniabment of the Folkusgan Albert Duke of Mecklenburg had relgaed at Klog:" But gweden preferred Margaret, and the easliy expelied Albert from the throne, defeating hlm and making him a prisoner, in 18No. A few years later, "her nephew. Eiric, long sluce acrepted in llemmaric and in Norway ss her sucres. cor, and tteularly Kilng. was now [1897] at a mol. emn meetiof of the states at Calmar erowned Soverelgn of the Three Klogdoma. At a Inter mectlng the Unton, slace known at that of cal. mar, was formaliy roted, anil the great work of ber llife was achleverl."-C. F. Johnatone, lifo. corical Abotmets, fhil.
Aloo in: E. G. Geljer, Hior. of the suredes, o. 1. eh. 8-s.
 the Hanseatle League. Nhe Ilaksa Tuwsa.
A. D. $1397-2597$ - - Under the Union of CalChar nntil lis dlacelntion. The brutality of Chantian II. and his overthrow.-Guatavus Vasa and hil elevation to the throne of SweTen. The Introduction of the Reformation, The mow noteworthy articles of the Cinlon of Calmar, by which Norwny, Nwellen and Denmark wefe unlted logether, in 1307, under the Danish queen Mingaret, were the foflowling: "Thnt the nght of elering $n$ moverolgn shonlif be exer. clsed lut cominon by the three kingioms; that a mon of the rolgning klog. If there were any. whold be preferred; thnt cach khagdom should the governed by lts own laws; and that ail should Poubine for the comamon defence. But theta con. feleracy, which seemed culculated to promato the prower and tranafullty of scandlamyla, proved of several himaly wars. Murgnret was sule. ceevienl on bure denth in 1412 by Erice of Pomer. Hnil, the smin of luer niect. Erle's relgn wns minlinlent. In $14: 8$ the Dhnes, num in the follow.
 nend Eirice thed to the lishand of (iothtand, where he exirelosel placy this lis death. The Thunes deeted in Eirles stemd christopher of Buraria.

but nftur Claris. tupher's death in 1tts the minin was dissolveat. The baues nuw clected for thrir king Comnt Chrivelian of thatolurg: whihe the swedes chowe Charles Kumbin. But in the followhig prar Charles Wus compedend to realga Norway to bon-an hisurrection levi he the Irchushop of tp place nund cruwned at l'pman. Jone 10th; annl in the foilowing year all thr comnellars of the three kinglomss, assembled ut skura, recognlsed (Cliristiauis min Juhn as hls suceessor. Christlaul. whe and I lolsteln from hls uncle. He hal. law. ever. to coutend for a long perrion with (harlow Kinutson for the throne of SWmben, und after Charless diouth in thio, with sten sture, if a noble funily in ibalecarla, to whenit charles the miministratow of like klogdom. In Oetober 14 il a battle was fought on the 13 romkelxerg. a hejght now enclused th the city of Stochlulmi, In which the Danish Klog was difeated, lhongh he rontintial to holl the eouthern privince of Hweden. ("hrtotian olled is 1481 mad wan suc. exwlenl hy bis ena John. The Nwerles in 14*9 nelanorlidy the supremary of lhenmark liy remewing the Union of Calmar: yet,., Juhn coulh mever firmir mablish himeelf in that cmul:try.

BCANDINAVIAN STATES, 1397-1897

King diahn of Ithmatk divel in 1818.
It was alurigg the relga of Cinriatian It. [his ann and wicreamer] that ]menourk trit he. can to have way exteanive crancetions with the reit of Funuse. In the yoar of his accemina, the alliex himanif with the Weadiah, or mirthenatern tow ha of the llansentle lengue, whove metropoils was Laberk: mad he sulymquently forment allisnees wlih Ilumala, France, England, and ikeotiand. with the rlew of oltaining thels aid In lis cxintenuplatevi revivetion of Mwevior.

In 151\% T mile [Ambhishop of I'mala] hard levkel ofen wor agalat the mimisiatratur, Aton Mturr, In whers Chriatlan supported him what his theet; but sten Sture: eedrd in rapturiag Truite. ., in the nes ar ( 1514 ) tharistian agala appenrwi near Nt ase $n$ with tiert ant army, fil which wer $\therefore 1$ ind French wint by
 In a lattle near lirs. of I'pmala having 1 piain of Sten Sture, $t$ in eccteslastlcal trit ministrator and his under sa inverilict. unf an inerilet. This proceeding, huweve wrril to pave the way lor the acreptance lu Swerien of the lutheran reformation; though It afforded chiritluu 11. a preteare for geving up a mort of crusade against that country. Finriv in 1520 ),. Niture wat defeated and woumierl in a Intile fought on the lee of Lake Ambulen, near Ikyennul lu Weat Gothlamil. Sten Sture, in spite of his wound, hastenet to the defence of Stockionim, but expired on the way in hls stedge on Malar lake, Frbruary Int 1520. The Nwenles were defeaterl in a meond Inttle near l"psaia, after which a trenty wss conctuded to the effert that christian whond relga in Swerlen, agrorably to the l"uion of Cial. mar, lut on ranifition of prantlug an entire anmesty. Chrimslan buw prowerierl to Atank Iodim, and in thetober wan wimitued into that city by Nture'a whosw, wholofil the comumat. Chela. than at tirat In linveil In the mont frifuilty manmer set he hat bus sonerp percherd the eruwn than the tixit the mont inhuman vengeance on his contiling subjects. . . The city wam aluandonerd (1) Ine phumdercil by the soldiers like a place taken
 (i) proced in a simitar manmer: while the King's prigresy through the southern provine was everyw here marked liy the erectho of gailowsen. There cructiles ixcasionedl fisurrections In Gustavis Erloson, ., a young nuatl reinarka. ble allke by his origin. conaectluns, talent and courage; whose tanility, for what reason is unknowu, nfterwartis minumed the name of Vasm, whleh wat lorne nether by himself nor by his forefuthers." Gustavus, who had lween a bostage in Christinn's handa, had escapel from hls enptivity, in 1519, lakling refuge at l. Oleck. In Mas, 1520, be merrily cutered Sweden, rebialn. ing iu concealnuent. A few months later his father perished, anong the victins of the DanIsh tyrant, and Gustavus tled to Dalecartia, "n district aoted for its tove of freedom and hatred of the Damen llere be wrifert in : Mamata rlothes, for dafly wacre, in bourly ilangip trom bls purnuem, from whom be had many uartiv marapea. The newa of C'briwttun's Inlamats Ity promuril ( Bustavise Vom many fulliwerp. la was efocted at their lo ater by a grtat aswemblt of the penple at Morm, wind found hitanwif a: tha colilers, although they were wretrlicills memal
"In June, I5el, he inveated Stochluimi, JuI the slege, for want of proper artillery amil indoma Ing shill, wha protrwetow twa yeam, Initigi
 a. liertendac. of mamenhty of the methen a.

Walatenn, Xugust 2 th 1591 ; the inimo Wix proffered tis lifm, which lise decilimet, bus ar cepterl the offlee of tlegent. The thatw wef now by degrees almont entirely espullat frm Sweden; and Chriatian if, wis far fromi lang abie so relleve Atockboin, fouml himem: fin das ger of halag the Danioh comwn." whith lim thi, In fact. in $\mathbf{1 0 9 8}$. through a revolhition tim phaned on the throne ifis uncle. Wuke 'raterinh of Ifd stoin. "The lulut of Calmar was mow rotindy dismotved. The Nopwrifatim claithel bo comerte the right of electloms llke the Inant. ami aho

 thw replled that it was their lotention for dine: Gustavus Ericwon for their king: uhleh $w$ as ac coriliggly duate at the Di.t of Strenculs, Jut 7th 1523. Three weeias after Sto khoum auren dered to Qustavus." The defhroneal | 's. .s II. emaped to the Nopteriamis. Whore he al manas focoplp an expertition with which bre in valimi Surway, In tishi. It feft hims jremert In thm banion with Hanea, whem limel him isp in the eamble of soble rhurg until his diath, whin did uns oceur until 1580. ." Manm hife, in "at den, Gintavis was comadibiating his phow $r$. partly by monteritom and inilduran firtly lif exaniples of nec pasary severity. Ite [-wt hitise if at the hemi of the fitequmathon, as fremerink | also did in Ih umazer

Luther'm dewtribr: had been firet introntocel intes surils in in 1512

 Witcubert. The Pretris mon attrateyl the at tention of Cuatavus. Ho gave them hia jefote.
 wlls Latliner

As in ultart purte of Kilump.
 from the promeret of sharing the suils of the church, and in a great Dlet ar Wustri $\ln 1980$ the fleformition was int roducet. "-1" 1i. IVte. Miat. of Mevern Furuge, bi, 4. ch. fi. ㄹ.

Alsan is: 1'. 13. Watmon, The vieriles's lis ody (ion umber fiuatiares t'ues.-A. Allere - t, usti. cus liame and hin Sifirring Timen.
(Denmark and Norvay): A. D. 1523-Accession of Fredericle 1.
(Sweden); A. D. 1523-1604.-The rescas of Guatarua Vase and his mons.-Wars with Rusala and Denmark. - The Ealtic question, Prince Sigismnnd elected king of Polend a:1 his consequent loss of the Swedish crown Reanltiar hontilitles. - 'Ut-atyus Vam, the fontuler of his dynasty. Wa. ius a sury relichuss mas. He had deteruinev whitit invelea lrecalise be wanhud the las. = of the Churth, both In order to enrich the crone atid alan tel uthact the aohies to his cause; secondty, britusce, as be that io the all whad to maintaln the haton of batken, mat they wer therefore, Irreceurdialily briallo $\mathrm{E}_{\mathrm{i}}$ bilu dynasty Three ather great surrlen w whmered to wemlen by Guitavis I (1) mt flam [het of Weater in 1844 , the herevituary cborncter onf the momus $y$ y was impultely de. clared. "tha was a igrat victory orer the contion. Wina in mearly all the Nupthern anat Eantern Kingitame of Einrope - and in swodeu Itwelf at a hime litus-sucreeded in eworting an Ilforily, whach uppormand the frasain and "frpileml the activity of the State. (2) Agwin.

 llusvis. Froutc, und the Netherlabela. lie lecame the fimmiter of inwerilah commerre, anditealt a erl. oum hifuw at be Bultle mipremacy of the tinnmentic der uf that palley of territorial agervatem (toward the whelf and weat), wi Ich, however we may jtilnou of its to rally in taia age of pracr. Wh: "tainity lenked "twon then an the prluse dus of sll liloga, aud wl h ln the extom of Sh, hit ans the direct pati, lowarit the ervit part is is whe wal drathised to jolay In the lith monvilutit state, airendy imorlitho, on the hals.

 sel 100 She Whilfore on the 2torth thonia, whe tipurars to lase prevloudy fluth liusela thim what the first of the mo cotheyl lial ui fhoviarte of swedem; henwitht berat the tare wita Rusila the pumesulon of Llvonla. Io. 1 'undir the last of the grent Jagledion lines. wav retrecty dilaplaving the faral iemliney is avarily w lith at last devonteyl ter.

In. latid tionall for layly in the $\mathrm{K} \operatorname{lng}$ of lheumarts, In wanas Erte, with heen lasight, remognixat the the A. rath loggan to awnme thelr natioral relat lon to rat is chlier The Baltle questlosn mplally ine. cane an Eiropwan one. Engllah ayupnthes Enipror as naturally took the other nhle. and ci. Man Eluart: to counteraci whlel Klog Eric indulged in an edaimrate flirtailon wlit Eiliza-Ia the was (1.:65), but the war his.if promluced but litto rosint. The oble Eric displaymi symp. lum* of insanlty and was extnencily unpojular with the Nucilish nobles, and Theamark wow a yet tim juwerful an enemy for Swedett to overibrow In $150^{\circ}$ Frie wai inpmed by revoly. lum. the trutt of which was reaped by hle litulur Jolin thing the great Gustav. I. was

HCASUINAVJAN ETATES, 1:20-1604.

Then his hath! fatime asil le dropgent instic dead If wax leat, I lorere maill, parileularly ritgions 1ann. bet he uarkiol out the true futh for swe may of the conlam. What hat fill the goke inf (Buntarue heavy minl of Firie laravior, merused way. Julin worre apenty weht uver to Cathol. klim, litt lie cant of alf Jor fabio remism thet Ife daresl to coat off. Ita maule. jexce whill thenmark and war whit lisain; therrily he allowet the former sentuity io develuip hor immle and Ioreign redutionan rinomatalyly and moplily, and miantie the tank of hilw surcerganes dowhty haml. Ainv*e all be ofleluatorl, by film narrlage whes Catherlim Jaghailhu, tha illatat fous cintuexton Whal Inlame. That uluwipy conulisy. 'the fatal bywomi for al! years to rman' no geloult "an-

 The" Lant of the Jinghellon Kloge dis in toiz nai the elocteri Kitig Nitepleti Builhorl than ia iSNA. Ivan the Trertile 美agit the conwu of Polaml. Juhn uf Sualets. on the other hand. saw an oprotug for the flotion of Vana Ilis won digisonuny waw. Ir lint of briles amt lutrlyue. chected Klug of IPhuml. Hut be hat iof ix, with Poland. Whith winhli movemarily follow. If throne. " ha lo almest expmblity a Cutholle union. . Arobien th as still a frion conatry, ln Wuy with the manavit of the fulir - slatem, Sublen, (llags. Clizella, und Ibeanta. Whatevar the an! woulil liave low Catholle klug. Fiven the matul ix-ruming King of Phinml whtout forfelt ing hila rlag to guccted th swolent, hy the grant of "xiravagant pi'ficges, praveleally wo great, luml they berti obworsid, un wemancoliate the the soungume. I Hex wo.d of Guatavits I., Ilved leatif lis "alu all to le leard that ho the lietry "lurwe martars lucruasal, when la 156id aftor whothog tiome years, Stglsmumi came funme th isisi his kingilom, wi'h a present of S1, Wht crownid fron the fope in nis picket, 'to difray the eust of the ristoration of Cathollelsm lis iwenlen. ' tuke e harle's hod alreaty prepared! lis pluns when the Klag arrived; there ems litile doubt that he was playtug a game, and fur the crown. We are not comerned whth his mos. tives. It is suthicient to know that they corre. gpomied whit the Intareste of hls country. In i:ub, Jum inefore sigisumulal had fubled!. (ilarles liad heen chesen Itegeut and I'resldent of the Connell of State.

When Slglstumat weut back to foland at the cal of the year $i s, y$, he दm:
 affer thet sabsequently contrmex the power of the Hegent The prasante of Dalecarla, the sreat fro"lace of the centre, whlch hat tiryt

SCANDINAVIAN STATES, 1523-1604.

come forward to the support of Gustarus I. in 1520, sent up a petition to the ellfect that there ought to be only one king $\ln 8$ weden, and that Bigiamund had forfetted the crown. Charles hlmaelf had been unwilling to lead a revolution, until it became apparent that Sigtamund was macilig troope and ralaling money in Poinnd for an attack upon his native land. In 1507 the civil war may be mald to hare begun; in the following year Blglemund landed (with only 5,000 Poithh tmops) and was utterly defented near LinKoping (on September 25, 1598). On the next day $a$ ireaty was conciuded by whicb ${ }^{2} . g^{13}$ minad was acknowledgei as King, bu: promisel to wend a way hls foreign troops aud maintaln Protentantlicm. It was ohvlously a mere eflors to galn tlone, andi in the fillowing yes: on falling to keep the condlition, which be never had the remotest inteation of keeptng, he was formaliy iffinsed (July, 1500). The contest, however, was by no memas over, and it ted tu that perpetual hoalitity between sweden and l'olam which played nuch an important part in the history of Sorthern Enrope in the 1 th century in 1604 Charies was solemnly crowneif King; that wns tise second birthiay of the Vasa monarchy: the crown was entalled upon his efilest mou, Gustavus Adolphus, and hie tescendants, being Protestants, unt the demcendante of sigismuni were furever excinded. Every priuce who ahouid deviate from the Corfemsion of Augsburg shomili 1 pur fucto lose the crown. Anyone who shomiti attenpt to efiect any change of rellgton siontid le deelaroi an enemy ani a traltor. swefen shonth never le nulted whls amother Klnstiom mater one crown; the King mase live phum. infrowl.
Alimi is: E. G. Gelljer, Hine. of the Sireeles, r. 1, ch. 0-14.
(Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1534. -Accession of Christian III:
(Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1559.-Accession of Frederick 11.
(Denmark and Norway) ; A. D. 8588.-Acceasion of Christian IV.
(Swerten): A. D. 16is-Accession of Gustavus Adolphus.
(Sweden): A. D. 1618-8629.-The Danish, Russian and Polish wars of Gustavus Adolphus. - On the dicath of Charius in lith his moll.

 miver.ign for two munthe: for, werorifing tu the E"phew (i)nhe dillul. "tits six cmuctilurs of state. wire to rule tiii the wisher of the people comifite mate kurwill the enstomary minure.

 opm of siginumi, King of forami, bai lw•el as lav cime whare juse clatim to the throlue. Thu the youme kine in the jersence of the reprem.ontatives of tibe catatem of sureicel, remervert the fint montit of his 1 tith yerir. Lie thak ebarese of the klagdom when it wis in a critical comelition. Stace the denth uf lilitavis Fanm, his krinihal nut enjoyedi a slugie year of preace. In tiat lons spece of time, there had been constant dis censlons and vlolence.

Bweden was much constrained and embarramed by her boundarite, and hy the jealousies and houtle foeifing of ber nelghbour on the north and the couth. Den. mark and Norway were united in a kind of clual government under the momeking and boti alike were oppoeed to the gmwth of Swedish power. and were in continualdiapute with her in respect to territory, as well as to the naral and crmmer. cial uses of the adfacent sees. Those provinive in the enuth which are now the moet primbuctive and valuable of Aweden, then belonged to [h-amark, or were in dispute between the two coustrles. On the eant, Runale and Poland rombarramed and threntened her." During the firt year of bis relgn Guatavus devoted his cmergies to the war with Denmark. He fought at a lis. advantage. His rewources were unequal to thowe of the Danes. His capltal, Btockhoim. was once sttacked by a Daniah fleet and In ecrions peril. But he serured an sdrantageous peace in the apring of 1618 . "Sweden renounced sume of Its cropquests and proteastions, and the iname gave up to Aweden the city of Calniar on the Bultic, and at the end of dix years were to aus. reviler to Sweden lis clty of Eifiborg on the North Seat the latter agreeing to pay to the Ianes $1.000,000$ thalers for the surreniler.
At the death of Charles 1X., and the amensing of Gustavue to the throne, Sweden was in astate of war whth liussia, and was so to collinue for several y cars; though hotlitties were not ulit the thime prisectuted with vigor, and were whe of the thue practically suependeri. . . . Thu tiweng lichif jumanastion of a large area of whit is now Kumblan tersitory, as wrif as inportant tow ns and fortrosmes. The extenstive conlutry of Finhanl. which makes todiay an luywrtant of privime of tinsala, had been indted with Sweriell harly floe ceaturics, as it comtinued to Ine hearly two finmirel rears longer. But townentifer ritury, nlan a long allance whlin the litusi if the finswim pupulation, ware thon luthe posir of the swastinh forceat The trombles ami dio.

 pirty to weok it swedish primere fur ila mever.

 IX. F'incitig that the yonmg linstavia, baid ac cemerl in the crown of his father. thiv litavian draw what adiuntage be comble from the acan anif mernrity uf the internent of towning in laity

 Finaily, thrugig the nerlintion or Finclos mavel

 lurevelf ont from tike thatic: the itand wher sh

SCANDINAVIAN STATES, 1611-1029.

Petersburg now atands beenming 8 wediah terrltory. . . The next important wort In hand wes to denl Tith Poland. . At the death of Charles IX. an armiatice had been slgned, which wes to continue until July, 1012. This was thrice extended, the last thee to January, 1016. The latter date had not been reached when the Polich partionns began to Intrigue actlvely in Bweden, and those Awedes who ntill adhered to the reilgion and the dy natic rigtis of 81gismund could not be otherwise than secretly or openily dirred. Sigiamund was not only supported hy the power of Poland, and by his atrong show of legal titie to the Swedsh crown, but there were atrung laduences on his she in European high political nad rellghous quarters. He was united to the house of Hapshurg by the bonds of rela. tionship ss well as of theology. PhIltp III. of Spain, and he who afterwards became Ferllinand II. of Austria, were hls brothers. n - Jaw .

Sighomund came then to the resolution to make war for the poasestion of Sweden. Ile whe mmmisuls enrolment of irexps In Germany, the Epaniarls had engagell to arin a teet in hls sup port, and the eatates of l'uland were to furnish thrir quinta.

Efforts were made to ath up revolt ngalnst Go-stavus in his own Elagdom," anil he prumptiv deciared war. "Iburing the sear $161 \%$ hostlifiles were prosecutivs on both aides whth much vigor, and lose of llfe. Tow us andi strung posithons wire taken, anil Invaslons and sudilen attacks were uade on both show; the ulsantages lwing generally with the Swedres, though not decisise. During the winter uf 1618 the Poles invadial LLvomala and Eisthoula, carrylag pillige and fire in thelr marelh, aus them mtiring." Ginstavis woudi not allow his gen.
 war againat the pensunt. whom we hod rather proter than ruin.". In llls there was au armits.
 the war herun miew. I:A A agust, I6:1, linstavus laik siver to higa wi: h a string flect and army. and mat with an olmatiuate nesistanere: lint the phare was surrembered to hime nt the end of acarly

 Saedioth listorians ta have lever the only one la Whicis hinstavas Adolphos was ahie to dic rote nil of his conatry. In the foliawing year the war Wha remellal. Tlue third campalgn of the swiel-comple tion of the craturest of Lisoudat and the ablewt of his spectial care." The dievivis. lattic.
 ary : 16ith The king of swedion then "reolseng windopurt the themere of war from the binks of the lhma to those of the Vistaia, to attark

 Which is a alled nle the war of Proseda ... He [Gustarmen reatizeni the ured of a purt bondher in law, whe investeri with that durhy umice the ancerrainty of Polhul. Gustaviss diif me allow these considfretions to arrevt his cuinne. . ., June ats the king arrival befure Pillan, rmi possesseld hluself of that chty whith.
 Mramiskorg vaphtulated June 30. July 1 . Fiancalarg surrendered, and Efbiag on the 6th.

SCANDINAVIAN STATES, 1644-1007.
Which was followed by Marienberg on the 8th: the hast a well.fortilied clity. Many towni of lese importance wero Ilkewise soon captured. Guataris rapldyy puahed adde all reditance, and eoon reached the frontlers of Pomernala." In the engagements of the campaign of 1027 the kiag was twice wounded - once $\mathrm{J} y$ a muakel: bail in the grola, and the second time hy a ball that entered near the neck and lodged at the upper corner of the right shoulder. bluife. In June, 1629. "there was a heated engagenent at Stum, In which Gustavus ran greal danger, hle force belng luferior to the enemy." Io septem. ber of thint year "an armistice was concluded for six gears between the belligerent kingdoms. Five clites which had been ennqueved by 8 wed. fsh arms were given up to Poland, and three others dellvernd to the elector of Brandruhurg. to be held duriug the armistlice. Guatavus was to conthaue to occupy Piliau and three other towns of some Importance. Liberty of conaclence was to be accorled to Protestants and Catholloz, and commerce was dechared tree between the two nathous."-J. L. Stevens, Hish. of (iuaturua Addotphus, eh. 3 and ?
Alao in: B. Chapman. Hiot. of Guataene Athophum, rh. 2-4.--bee, aiso, Poland: A. D. 1500-1048.
(Denmark): A. D. 1635-1630.-The Protestant Alliance. - Eogagemeot of King Christhan IV. io the Thirty Years War.- The Treaty of Lubeck. sue Geryany: A. D. $162+$ 1626: mul 16:\%-1629.
(Denmark): A. D. 1627.-The country overrun by Walienstein. we Germany: A. I). 16:7-11\%2.
(Sweden): A. D. 1628.-Gustavaa Adolphus' frat interference in the war in Germany. - The relief of Stralsund. See (iemany: A. 1). i6:\%$16: 2$.
(Sweden): A. D. 1630-1632.-The campaigos of Gustavia Adolphus 10 Germaoy.- His death ser Genvany: A. 1). 1680-1633, to 1131-1tire (Sweden): A. D. 1631.-Treaty of Burwalde with France. Nu (ienvany: .I. 1). 1631 (Jan(...ич).
(Sweden): A. D. 1632.-Fuil powers giveo to Oxenatiera in Germun… No Genmany: A. 1) litil- 1 lis. 4 .
(Sweden): A. D. 1638-1640. - The planting of a colony in America, on the Delaware. Firg (Sweden): A. D. 1640-1645.-Campaigas of Baner and Torstenson in Germany. Sip Ger. Miny: A. 1). 165(1)-14:

A. D. 1643-1645. - War betweeo Sweden and Denmark. - Toratensoo's conquent of Holatein and Schleawig. - The Peace of Bromsehro. Fer (ie:nmasy: A. 1). 1640-164\%.
(Sweden): A. D. 1644-1697.-Reigo and abdication of Queen Christina- Wars of Charlea X. and Charles XI, with Polard and Denmark and in jermany, - Establisament of absolu-tism.-"' lhristime, the nuly chlld ands suctresm of Gumarus Adiulphus, had leceu lirnught up in hor numt. Kinterina, the Priucese Palatine, natil the death of the latere on 1839, and in the yene 184t. "how whe racherd the nge of righterna, the hur rww wame. She hads Inhertenf much of her fatiner's talemt, and was perhaps the mowt harued and accomplished woun.u of her time. She hats received the education of man.
She had great tate ior the tine arts and for the pursuita of science; but while she encouraged celentifc men at her court, she also spent money too recklesaly in rewarding artistic merit of all kinds. As dangerous drawback to her many splendid quallties, she had ail the waywamineas, caprice, restiesanems of mind, trkieness and love of display for which her beautifui mother, Maria Eleanors of Brandenburg, had been noted. She lavisiner enown lands and the money of the state upon favourties. .. . In the meanwhite the asthonai Batates had been split up into partles, the aristuerat being led hy Axel Oxensiferna, and the democrats, with whom the queen slded, hy Johan skytte. The clergy struggied to maintaln their independence under the oppreaslve patronage of the nohles, and the peasantagitated to recover some of the power which the grent Gustarus Vasa had granted them, but which his succeseors had by degrees taken from them. The kingdom was in a ferment, and a civil war eremed to be unaroidabie. The council urged upon the queen to marry, and ber cousin. Kart Gustaf of the I'alatinate, entreated her to fuiflt the promise which she had given him in earifer years of choosing him for her husband. At iength she proposed him for her succemor. ... After much oppoaitlon, Kari Guataf was declared successor to the throne in the event of the queen having no children of her own. The few years of Christins's relgn after her solemn coronatlon were disquieted by continued dissensions In the diet, attempte at revoits, and hy a generai distresw, which was greatiy increased hy her profuse wastefuiness and her reckless squandering of the property of the erown. As early as the year 1048 she had concelved the ldea of abill. cating, but. belng hindered hy her ohi friends and counciliors, she deferred carrying out her wishes till 1654." In that year the abilication was formally accomplished, and she ieft the country at once, travelilng through Enrope. In 1655 she renunnced Irotestantiom and entered the foman Cathoile Church. "At the death [1660] of her cousin and succesanr, Karl X. Gus. taf, as he was ealled by the Swedes, and who is known to us as Charles $X$., she returned to Swerten and cialmed the crown for herself; hut urither then, nor in 1667, when she renewed her protensions, wonld the cound encourage her hopes, and, after a final attempt to gain the Vacunt throne of Poland in 180 s , she gave tp all whemes of ever reigning again, and retired to Ifome, where she died in 1800 at the age of sixty. three. . . . The short reign of Charies X. from 185\% to 180 , whs a time of great ilisorior ami thinulet in Siwerfon. . He regolved tu enguge the $\mathrm{p}^{2+1} \mathrm{p}$ ie in active war. mand of the l'ollah king, Johan Kasimir, to he prociainal the true leit to Christina's throne, drew the finstatark upon Polani. Chartes X. Was born to be a moldier and a conqueror, and the suceces and rapulity with which he overran ali Holand. and erushed the Polish army in a thrue disys engagement at Warsaw In 18:58, siowed that be was a worthy pupil and nucces. sor of hif uncle, the great Gusturus Adoiphus. But it was eatir for him to male conquests than to Keep them, and when the Kuxaians. in their Joulousy of the increasing power of Sweden, twok part in the wap, amd legan wattack Livonia and Eithonis, white an imperiai army adranced into Poiand to asalet the Poles, who, infurinter! st the excesses of the Bwedich soldiers, had riwn on masse agalast them, Charles maw the expribioncy of retreating: acd, leaving only a few actach. ments of troope to watch his enemies, be turued upon Denmark. This war, which was ciovet ly the peace slgned at Roesinihie In 165 A , enriched Aweden at the expense of Denmark, and gave to the tormer the old provinces of dkannia, Ihallani and Biekiug, by wisch the Swedish mouarchy olitained naturai and weli-defned Iкиmiaries. The succese of this first Danish war, in which Deminark for atime lay erushed andor the priwer of the Swediah king, embold ned hini to reapw his attacks, and between 1058 and 1060 (liarles X. male war five times on the Dunish munarch; more than once iaid siege to Copenlagen; and. under hls abie captain, Wrangei, nemriy deatmyed the Danish fleet. At the chome of 1aity, when it seemed as if Ienmark must be wholiy subjagated by Swerlen, the Engish anl 1)utch, alarmed at the amhttion of the Swelish hing, sent an ailied foet into the Cattegat tu "prome with the 1)anes." Chartes, checked in his oper atlons, was preparing to carry the war lut., for. way, when he died suddeniy, in the wiuter of 1060, and peace was made by the truaty of oliva. "By the early death of Charles X. Sweden was again hrought under the ruie of a regunt, for his eon and successor, Charles XI., Wus suly four years old when lie became king.

Escry ilepartment of the government was irft to suffer from mismunagement, the army ani naty were ncglectert, the defences of the frontlars tell into decay, and the public servanta were whable to procure their pay. To relieve the creat $w$ ant of mouey, the regency acrepted sulwificos, or paynuents of money from foreign states to uaintain peace towaris them, and hired ont trinps to serve in other countris. In this state of things the yong king grew up whthout rewivins any very carefui elucation.

Cluarles wise de. clared of age in his 1Nth ycar. He was bat left tong in the enjoyment of nuere cencriven of
 In couformity with the treaty which the- restuts had concluded with him, called unow the binag Swedisit kiug to help him in the war whidh he was carrying on ayainst the Grpmun priursa fae Netmekiande: A. 1). $18 \%$ t-18\% $]$. ('hurlem mopt an army fato (termany, which advancoml without opposition Into the lieart of Bramdeuburs, but before these forme could form a junction with the Firench troops then encamped in the lhiur. landa, the Elector came woult thero buanares at Fehrbetlin [June 15, 18\%3] ant defeated them. The losses of the Sweries on this chrasions were not great, but the rewult of their defeat was to give enconragement to the old rivals of sweden: and enrly iu 16 is lwth Ifoland and themath ilecíareal war mainst the siwediah king. who, tindfoge that lue had luren left by the regernoy ulenat without army, navy, or money, rewolvell fur the contírely into his own lands." Wholl lu" "regan the war by a sea engagement whh the anemy of teland, fie found that his shtpe of war land suf. fered as inuch as the land-defences frum the long continued neglect of his regents. Ti:e $\|_{\text {anes, }}$ under their great simirai. Nieis Juri, und supported by a Dutch mpaairon, beat the swedith fleet, many of whose ships were lurut of sunk This defeat was atuned for by a victory ea inad, galsed by Charles himself in 16\%6, over the Danes on the snow-corered blls around the town of Lund. Success was not Von wlthout heary cost, for after a moat sangulnary fight, continued from daybreat Uli aight, KIng Charien, although master of the field, found that more than half bif men hud been kllied. The Danes, who had suffered fully as much, were forced to retreat, leav. lng Lund In the hands of the Swedes: and si. though they several thnes repeated the attempt, ther filled in recovering the province of Skaania, which was tbo great object of thelr ambition. In Germany the ?ortune of war dilf uot favor the Ewrdes, altbough they fougbt gallanils under thelr general, Otto Konlgemaris; [Stettin was surrendered after a long aiege In 167\%, and Siral. sund in 1678] and Cbarlea X. wan glad to euter Intonegotiations for tasing part in the general peace wblcb France was urgling upon all tbe leuling powers of Europe, and whleb was algated at the palace of St. Germalas, In 1679 , by the reprementatives of the respective princes. Sweden recovend the whole of Pomeranla, which had heen occupled during the war hy Austria and Brandenburg, and sif Swedisb and Danlsh conquests were mutually renounced. At the close of this war Charlei XI. began in good ear. nest to put bls kingdom in onder." By steraly reclaiming crown-lands which had been wantonly aliensted by former rulern, and by compeiling other restliutions, Charles broke the power of the mobles, and so bumbled the National Eatates that they "proclaimed him, In a diet held In 1698, to le an absolute soverelgn king. 'Who had the power sad right to rule bls klagdom as he plenswl."" Ile attained an absolutisn, in fuct, which was practically unilmited. Ile dieil in 169\%: lenving three chifdren, tbe eldest of whom, Who surveeded bim. was the extraordinary Charios XII.-E. C. Otte, Acandinarian Mintory, ch. $: 1$.

8CANDINAVIAN BTATES, 1644-1697.

Also in: II. Tuttle, Hitt. of Pruesin to $17+0$, ch. s.-T. II. Dyer, Hiat. of Melern Europua, bi. $5_{\text {, ch }}^{2}$ und 4 (c. 3).- G. B. Malleson, Mittle. Fiflle of liermany, eA. 8. -See, also, Branden. вгRi; : A. 1). 1640-1688.
(Sweden): A. D. 1646-1648.- Lat campaigns of the Thirty Years War In Germany. Ste (ifrmasy: A. D. 1046-1648.

Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1648. Accession of Fredericl III.
(Sweden) : A. D. 1648.-The Peace of Weatphalis. - Acgulsition of part of Pomeranis and other German territory. See Geifצavy: A. J). 1648.
(Sweden): A. D. $1655 .-$ Conquest of the Deiware colony by tbe Dutch. Wee Dela. WaHE: A. J). $1040-1656$.
(Sweden): A. D. I668. - Triple Alliance with Holiand and England against Louls XIV. Se Netherlands (IIoliand): A. D.
(Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1670.-Accesaion of Christian $\mathbf{V}$.
(Denmart): A. D, 1674-1679.-In the cosition to resiat Louls XIV. See Nether. livin (llottand): A. D. 1672-1674, and 167416iv; alw, Nitmeoefen, Peace of.
(Sweden): A. D. I686.-The League of Aursburg against Louis XIV. See Germast: A. 11 184
(Sweden): A. D. 1697, - Accestion of

SCA: DINAVIAN STATES, 169\%-1700.

A. D. 1697.-The Peice of Ryewict. See Frasce: A. D. $169 \%$.
(Sveden): A. D. 1697-1700. - The conspiracy of three sovereigas againgt Charlas XII. and how be met ft.-First campaigas of the younc kiag, In Denmarty and Russia. "Charles XII, at his accemsion to the throne found blmaelf the absolute and undisturbed master, not only of Sweden and Flaland, but also of Livonia. Candia, Ingria, Wimar, Viborg, the Ialanils of Kugeu and Uesel, aud the finest part of Pomerania, logrether with the duchy of Bremen and Verden, - all of them the couquests of his ancestors. . . . The beginaing of the klag's reign gave no very favorable ldea of hle character. It was Imagined that he had been more smbltious of obtalning the supreme power than wortby of possenslug It. True it Is, he had no dangerous paswlun; hut his conduct liscovered Dothing hut the mallios of youth and the freaks of olstinacy. Ile memerl to le equally proud aud lazy. The ambasaulors wins realded at his court loik him even for a person of neau ca. I acity, and representey] him as such to thelr respective uasters. The Swerles eutertalned the sume opinlon of him: nolouly knew his real character: he did not cren know it himeelf, until tbe storm that sudilenty arose in the Jorth gave him an opportunity of cilsjluying bls grent talenta, which had hitherto laln conceated. Three pow erfui princes, taking the advantage of his youtb, conspired hls ruin almost at the same time. The frst was his own cousin. Frederick IV, king of Deumink: the secoud. Alfgustus, elector of Saxony and King of Poland: Peter tbe Gront. czar of Juscovy, was the third, nad most dan-was ainbltious of leing a conqueror. sides, he wanted n port on the cast side of the Balte. to fucilitate the execution of all his schemes. Ife uanted the province of Ingria, which lies to the uortheast of Livoula. The Swedes were in joserssion of It, and from them lue resolred to take it ly force. Ills pretecessors Lat lind claims upon Ingria. Estlonin, and Livonia; nad tae present seemed n favorable opportunlty for reviving these clalms. whleh bod Inin hurred for a hunimel years, and liad been cancelled ly the sunction of treatles. IIe there. fore nude a league with the Kiug of Poland, to wrest from youmy Charios XII all the tertitorles that are boinuledi by the Gulf of Fialand, the Haltic Sen, Poland, aud Muscovy. The newis of tiese preparations atruck the swedes with consterantion, and alarmel the councll." But the cffect on thu yommg King was lastantly and strangely solnering. IIe assumed the responsiblifties of the situation on once, and work into his own hnvels the preparatons for war. From that noment " he eaternil on a new course of life, from which he uever afterwaria deviatemiln one singiu iustance. Full of the ldea of Alex. ander and Cidsar, he proposen! to Imitate those two conyurrors in every thing but their vicen. No longer did he Indnlge himself ln magalti. ceuce, sionts, aud recreations: he reluced If tahle to the nowst rigid frugally. IIe fand formerly been fond of gaycty and dress; lut from that time he was never clad otherwise than as a common soldier. He was supposed to have eatertalacd a passion for a lady of ils court: Wbether there was any foundation for tbis auppoiltion does not sppear; certain it is, he ever after renounced all commerce with women, not only for fear of belng governed by them, but Hkewlee to eet an example of contrience to his coldiert.

BCANDINAVIAN BTATES, 1697-1700.

He likewiso determined to sbetain from wlie during the rest of hil life. . . He began by anuring the Duke of Ilolatein, his brother-ln-liw, of a opeedy seclatance. Etght thourand men were Immediateiy sent Into Pomer. ania, a provlace bordering upon Ilolstein, in onder to enabie the duke to make head againat the Danes. The duke Indeed had need of them. IIf dominions were already lald waste, the castie of Gottorp taken, and the city of Tonningen preased by an obstinate slege, to whleh the KIng of Denmart hai come in perwon. . . Thli spark began to throw the empire into a fiame. In the one shle, the saxon troxpy of the King of Poland, thome of Brunitenlurg Woifenbuttei, and Ileser Chusel, mivancerl to joln the Inames. On the other, the King of swetten's 8,000 nuen, the trowps of Hanover and $\mathbb{Z e l l}$, and three Dutch reglitents, came to the aslstance of the sluke. While the little country of Iolsteln was this the theatre of wis, two syuadrons, the one from England and the other from Holland, appeared In the tiatile.

They jolned the yound King of swerlen, who seemel to be in lianger of being crusherl.

Charles set out for hlis first campaign on the 8th clay of May, new style, In the yenr 1700 , and left Storkholis. Whither lie never rellurued. . . . His fleet conmistenl of three-andfirty veswels. .. . ite jolaerl the equadrons of the *allies," and mivle is descent upon Copen. hagen. The cliy surrenileral the escape lam. harituent, umi in' lew that was wits Charles lawi extorted from the thansh Kitug as Ircity of peace, negotlated at Tracoulatit, witels Inilem of the war atit dellvered hltu fram "riprewshon. For hlunsilf, ('harles noked nothing -Gkaetly at the sante ther. the Klug of P'dant thvesteil Klyw, the capital of lifontia, and the czar was mivanelog on the camt at the heme of nemriy whil imil iciermituthon, and Jugustus was easily peramberl for nistilon the siage on the remma atmace of the Ditilh, whit limi inticht merchati. tise in the town. . The ovly thine that charkes

 - whan armed with arrown, wal nothers with chilia Fow of them hai ghans; tonte of themt h.ul wereva a regular siege, whll there was nut one sianl ratnomerar it the whote army Xiarsin wite almost whlbut fortificuthons: Baron of Xersentere, when the rear learnerl that the King of *wedten hat remsed the men with ?(m) atronge" Hint the caiar was tut eanthlent He:

 Ife reinherl Narsa on the tuhh of Nivember, after a foreorl march, with a vangument of only Z.(nn) tuen, atal mi onew, withous walting for the reunatuler of his army to conte up, he stormed

BCANDINAVIAN BTATEB, $1701-1707$.
the Rusian Intreachmenth "The Sweries advanced with fixed bayonets, having furious shower of snow on their backs, which drove full in the face of the enemy." The vlctory wa complete. "The Ewedes had not lost above 600 men. Eight thoumad Muscovltes had heen killed in their lntreachmentr; many were lrown. ed; many had cromed the Iiver," and $80,0 \mathrm{M}$ who heid a part of the camp at nightiall, sursenilend nest morning. When czar Peter, who was premaing the march of his $\mathbf{4 0 , 0 0 0}$ men, recelved news of the disaster at Niarva, he turneyl home. wand, and eet hlmeelf serfously to the work of dritilag and discipilitng his troopa. "The Swedes," he ald phlegmatically, "will teach us to beat them."-Voltilre, Hiot. of Charks IV/I, King of Nreden, bk. 1-2.
(Denmart and Norwey) : A. D. 16g9.-Accession of Fredericl: IV.
(Sveden): A. D. 1701-8707.- Invasion and anbjuration of Poland and Sasony by Charles KII.-Deposition of Anguatns from the Polish throne. -Charies at the enmanit of his carcer. -"Whilst Peter, abandoning all the privincts he had inveleri, retreated to his own doninions, and empiored himeelf in training his undis: cipilneal seris, Charies prepared to thke the flebl against his only remalning advereary, the Klog of Holanl. Leaving Narva, where be paseed the winter, he entered Livonla, and appoured in the nelghbourhool of Riga, the very place which the foles and Baxons had Iu viln Inofeged. ITrouilng the storm that now appromelied, Augustus hai entered Into a clemer alliance with the czar; ami at an intervlew whieh lixik piwe Ht Birwen, a smali town in Lihbunla, it was agreed that eneh should furnish the uthor with s lmaly of (N), (WX) merrenarles, to he puld ty linsais

The Saxan army, having faiked th theirattempt on iflga, endeavoureil to prewent the Sweters frum cromitug the I)wins: lhit the pawe age win efferted under cover of a thick rimif of suoke from the buruing of wet striw, and lif menos of harge luats wilth high womhen parap is alonig the whites, to protect the soldilets from the tire of the enemy, who were driverl frems theit to Nitatr, the caplat of Conrlanit, the arriman of whinh, with ail the cether tow ne mat finta in the duchy, wirrembered it dimeretion. He vest pasmell lito I, ifbumita, conguering wherever le

 Hirsan. it gave hima tuo litle sutisfactioni, ay be limiself criffewerl, to enter ln triumph the vepy and itie coar Ind phated tils deatructione. It was bere that be furntell the daring projont of de Ibrouting the Kiug of Polatel by mans at bis awosuhjerts. Whose notious of lilx rty conitl mit

The fate of Itigustus, niready thap rite, Was here conatmmaterl by the trewhery of the primate Ladziewiskl, who consell it to tw imme cliately notitied to atl the patatines, that lis alies. nellve remalneal but tos sumit to the with of the cumberor. The demerted monarch rowisent tu defond his erowill ly forre of arms: the two klige met nour (liksuit (Jity 1:1, 17(te), where uftet a himaly latilo fortume again declarim firs the Siwides. ('harlen liatient not a monert on the thell of vetury, but marched repldily to Cracom ta pursult of his abtagonist. That clty wae haten without frios shot, and tared with a contribution of $100,000 \mathrm{rix}$-dollars. The fugtare prince ohtalned an unezpected resplte of ofa weeks his indefatigahle firal having had his thigh-bone fractured hy an sceidental fali from his horse. The interval was apeat in hootlio preparntons, but the recovery of Charies overturned alf the schemes of his caemlen, and the de. cluive battle of Pultusk (May 1, 1709) compieted the humiliation of the unfortunate Aigguatus. At the instigation of the faithlem cardinai, the diet st Wis raw deciared (February 14, 1704) that the Elector of Bazony was incapabie of wearing the cruwn, which was soon after bestowed on Standalas Leczinkt, the young palatine of Pomania. Count Piper atrongly urged his royat mater to asoume the tovereifnty himself. But the spientours of a diadem had few charms Ib the eyes of a conqueror who confered that be felt much more plemeture in bestowing thrones upon othen than in winning them for himseif. Having thus succeeded in his favourite profect. Charlew rewumed him march to complete the entire conquest of the kingdom. Every where had fortune crowned the boid oxperiltions of thia sdrenturou priace. Whilat bis generais and armies were pursuing their career from province to province, he had himaell opened a paxage for his victorious troops into saxony adi the imperiai dominlens. His shipa, now masters of the Hal. tic, were employed in tramsporting to Sweden the prisoners taken in the wars. Denmark, boumi up by the treaty of Travendhal, was prerebtell from offering any active interference: the Rumsiana were keptin check towarls the eat by s detarlinsent of 30,000 Sweties: ms that the whule rugion was kept in awc by the sworl of the comyueror, from the Gernan Geran aimowt to the mouth of the Borysthenem, and even to the gates of Moscow. The Czar leter in the mean thme, having earrievi Narva by assumit, and captured several towns and fortrosin's in Livonin, held a cenference with Augustus at Grinino, Where the two sovereigns concerteni thelr pians furattarking the scandinavian iuvadens iu tindr new couyuekts, withs combined army of ( $0,0,0(1)$ men, umder I'rince Menzikof and Generni Schul. Emberg. Ilatise ?ate of the contest drivempled on numerical sugerfority alone, Charles must hare benn crinsised lefore the overwheimiug puror of his cueniles; hut his coumage ani gomil fituate prevalied over every disulvantage. The wattrirl honies of Mumery were overtirown bith so great celerity, that oue detachnebt after atether was souted lnofore thes learmed the do. ftat of thodr companiona. Seliblieminerg, with all fiv cijurfonere and reputation, was nit more kucionsul, having leen completily Inaten by fermehilti, the Parmenio of the uirtheran Ilex. atder, in a sanguinary actou (Fel). 12, lims), at the naall tunn of Truvenstait, bur fiuntz, a flace urempe fatal to the cause of dughsths.

The rexiuction of shaxouy, which Clarlo's peri Itwateni, whifget Augisthes bo Implure jeace 4n ans firms. The comilitions exacteri by the victur wire that he should renounce for ever the emmn of l'oland; neknowienige Stuuisians us lawful hing; unil diseolve hls irvaty of alitauce with iluwha. The intlexihie teinjw'r of charies 5ss oot likoiy to mitigate the everity of these demands, but their rigour was fuereaseri in cou. ayutace of the defent of General Meyerteld, near Kaliech, by Prince Menaikoft - the Irst adran. tage which thn Muncovites had gained over the Swedes in a pitclied battle.

The numerous Victories of Charies, and the arbitrary manner in which he had deposed the King of Poland, tited ail Europe with astonishment. Some ataten entertained apprehensions of his power, while others prepared to oolicit his frieudohlp. Prance, har. aned hy exprodve wark in 8pain, Italy, amd the Netherlands, courted Lis alliance Filin an aniour proportioned to the distressing sinte of her aftairs. Uttended at the deciaration Lsened againat him by the ellet of Hatisbon. and resent. ing an indigntty offered to Barun de Straiheim, his envoy at Venna, he magnified theae trivial afronts into an occusion of quarreliing witil the emperor, who was obligevi to auccumh, and amang other mortifying conceasions, to grant his Lutheran subjects in Silesia the free exercise of their religlous inberties us secured by the treaties of Weatphalls. . . The ambitious prince was now in the zenith of his giory; he had ezperienced no reverse, por met with any interruption to his victorien. The momantic extravagance of his views incruased चiti, fis success. One year, he thought, wili suffice for tie conquent of Hus: sia. The court of liome was nert to feel his vengeance, as the pope layd dared to oppose the comsesalon of religlous ilberty to the Silestan Protestants. Noenterprise at that time appeared impomsible to him."-A. Crichton, Deandinescia, Amient and Mintern, e. 2, ch. 3.

Alen is: B. A. Dunham, Hief, of Puand. pp. 210-231. - T. If. Dyer, Mist. of Ifulern EJurope, bd. 5, ch. 5 ( $c, 3$ )

Sweden): A. D. 1707-8718.-Charies X11. In Ruseia.-Hia ruinous defest at Pultowa. His refuge among the Turizs. -His fruitlena int rigues.-His return to Sweden.-H:i death. -"Fronn saxouy, Cliarles marcheoi buck lito lounud [September, 170i], w here Deter was nank. ing some ineffectual efforts to revive the party of Augustus. Peter retirevi lefore his rival, who hud, lowever, the satisfaction of defeathig au army of 20 , (n) 18 uswlans [at Golowstschin, iu the cateri by success, he rejected the czar's offers of inace deriaring that he would treat at Muscow ; und without forming amy symemutic plan of "ux'rutious. he croserod the frontlers, remiveni on the diestruction of that anefout city, Peter prevented the alrunce of the swedes, on the cirrect line. by dextroying the romis and demoting the comutry: (linfies, after haviug culu, evi great privatbus, inrued oft towards the Ckraine. Whither fee had lwew invited by Mazeppa, the chief of the (iosoincks, who, disgusteri by the condact of the azar, hati resolvert to throw off his alloginuce. fuspite of alf the ohstacles that matare nui the durany conhil torow in his way, ( harkes renchedi the place of remdezrous: but lie fani the onortitlewtion to thoi Mazeppa appear in fivecumbly as a fugitive rather thau an aliy, for thr- coar liad discovered hls treason, aud dimoon Cortell hls sefuemes by the punlaituent of his a-so clates. A stil greater misfortune to the Swedes was the foss of the eon roy aui the ruin of the rojuforcensent they isad exinected fronn i.fonuia. Genemal tewrobaifit, to whose cure it was eutrusted, had been forced into thrie groteral entgagements hy tive Ifu*shans; aul thourh be had eminentif distinguificd binsedf by his courage and conduct, he was fored to set fire to his

GCANDINAVIAN BTATES, 1707-1718.

Wagone to prevent thelr falling into the hands of the enemy. Cindaunted hy these misfortubes, Charles cuntinued the campaign even in the depth of a winter so mevere that 2,000 mels were at onee frozen to denth almust in his premence. At length ite inili siege to Pultowa, a fortitimi city on the frontiers of tire Ukraine, witich coms. tainct one of the czar's principal magazines. The garrison wna nmnerolis and the resistance olmethate; Charies himaelf was daugerouniy wouncied in the lieel whilat viewing the works; (and while ite was atill continel to his tent he learned that Peter was allvancing with a numer. ous ariny to raise the slege. Lawing $7,0(m)$ men (1) guard the works, Charles oricremi lis molliers to march and meet the enemy, white he ariompanied them in a litter (July E, 1700). The des. perate charge of the sweiks broke the IRumian casairy, lust the infantry stewnl trm, and gave the horse an opmortunity of rilliving in the rear. In the menantime the ckaris artillery male cireal. fint invoc in tite sweifish line; and Charies, who fiad teen forreci to abancion tris cannen in his forced marcin's, in vain contended against this formifiable diwnivantage. After a dreadfui com. bat of nore than two hours' dirntion, tire \& wedish aring was irretrievahty sulaeri; 8, (O)O of their Inest trioigs were left diad ont the tieli, 6,000 were taken prisoners, and alxout $12,0 \mathrm{MN}$ of the fugitives were sonn after forced to siarrencier on the tranks of tise Inleper, frims want of boats to cromss the Ifver. C'harles, accompanied by almut \$100 of his guaris, ewcaperl to Bender, a Turkish town in Ikeanimhia, ahamioning aii his treasiares to his rivnl, incinting the riofs spoils of Polani and samony. Few victorles have ever hai such tmportant conaccinencer as that which the czir won at Juttown; in one futnl diny Charies last the fritits of nine gears victories; the veteran arity thit had been tive terfor of Eumpe was compintely ruinex; thome who emeaped from the fatal tiehi were taken prisurers, bit they found a fate scarcoly Ixeter than death; fur they were oransporteni oy the caur to colonize the wilde of Silveria: the elector of Saxony re-entereif Ioland and ifrove Staulalaus from the throne; the kings of $\mathfrak{i b e t u}$ ark and l'russia revivert ohd chims on the Swedislt provinces, whike the victorions l'eter fovaled mot ouly Livonia anti ingria, bit a preat purt of Finlamd. Indecei. but fur tise interfareure of the German entineror and the naritime growers, the Swedisht momurely woudithave beren rent in pircew. Cinriom, in lin exile, formeni a new plan for the dowtruction of his hated rival: he instigated the Turks to attemit the conituest of linswia. ami flutteredi himseif that hat might yet enter Vomerw at the hent of a Bohamuredan arusy Yhe bribues which I'eter lavishity trewtowed on the counsediors of the suitan. for a tione Irus trateal thew latrigies, Int ('lurlew. Thruagls his frioni joniatowski, informedi the sultan of his vizker's corription, andi procured the dejesitho of tisat minister. . . The rzar made the muwt vigorous jreparations for the 11 ew war by witidy le was menacell (d. I) lill). The Turk. fish vizier, oti the inther hatil, assemhifil all the furces of the Otoman Eimpire in the plains of Adrianople. Inemetrius cantemir, the howpwiar of Noidavia, beifeving that a farcurable oppurs tunity presented itself for telivering his conntry from the Mohammedan yoke, invited the caar to his aid; and the IRussians, raplilly adivancing, reached the northern bank of the Pruth, near Yassi, the Moldavian capital. Fere the Rusalans found that the promices of Piface Cantemir wefo Illusory," and they were soon 10 envelopend by the force of the Turks that there wemeal to be no escape for them. ISut the casina, Cstheribe - the Livonlan peacant woman whom Heter hal made his wife -gathered up her jeweis sad all tite money she couid tind in camp, and went them as a glft to the vizier, wherehy he was inducel to open negotintions. "A treaty [known as the Treaty of the 1'ruth] was conclucied on terms which, though eevere [requiring the Kitwhons fir give ut Azof], were nore favoumble than f'etr, under the circumstances, could reasomathly hare luperl; the Inmasians retirell in mafety, and Charles reached the Turkish camp, only toleam the downfall of ali his expretations. I new mertis of intrigues in the cuurt of Constantlanple ied to the appuintment of a new vizier; litt this mbinter was ittie tnelined to gratify the hlag of Niweden; on the contrary, warned by the fate of itim preriecessors, he resolved to renuove him from the Ottoman empire (A. I. 1718). Clarles (wa tinued to linger; even after he lial revivelis letter of dismisal from the sultan's own hand. be resolved to remain, and when a rewniutia wes taken to send him away by force, he intir? minchi, with bis few attendants, 4 , tiare the whole atrength of the Turkish enipire. Afte a firce resistance, lie was captured and converyd a primuner to Adirianople.

Another revilu. thon in the divan revtred the fropen of (llarima, and indueed him to remain in Turlivy, whan bis return to the Vorth would prolmbly have $n$. storex kim to him former eminence. The Sweds. under Genernl Sternlook, gained the of the most brillians victories that had In'in ohalami drring the war, over the united furfore of the Janearand Euxons, at Gadehusch [Novinthe ?: 171\%], in the duchy of Necklenhimes. Dint the congueror sulited his fame by burning the de feuceless town of Aitona [January $1: 10,1: 10$ an outrage which excited the indlignation of all Enrope." ile soon after met with roverses and was compelled to surrender bisis ulathe ammy. "The czar in the meantime pushed forward bis conqueats on the silde of Finianti; ami the ghty of his reign appeared to the cunsumaticel by a naval victory oltained over the Swmies theip the island of Oeiand.

Charies hemril of bio riva's progrese unmoved; lut when ho frammi that the Swedish menate intendeli lo make his nister regent and to nrake peace will kusia and ilennurk, he announeed his intuntion of sulum ing fume." He traversedi Eurupe inognito. making the journey of 1.100 nilles, mustly ng forselmak, in seventeen daye. "and lowaplis the clowe of the yeur [1il4] retwehed Stratsums. the capital of swedisit Poneranin. Charleng at the oprening of the nest campaign, fobut hinwelt surmunded witit enemies (A. D). 1:10, stral. sund itself was besieged by the uniten apmies of the l'russinus, banes, and suxums, whike the Hussian fleet, which now rote trinmjuath in the Itaitic, Itrmatened a descent upust swedta After an colvetinate defence, in whisl the swed. fsh monarel cilsplayed all his accustomed bas. ery, sitrainund wais forced wo capiotulate. (hates laring previously eacaped in a minall vome to his native shores. All Europe In lieveri the Swediah monarch undone: it whs bupporif he conli uo longerdefend his own domining, wata. to the inexpresalic atonishment of every ome, it ## scandinalian states, 1707-1718.

Was announced that he lind Invaded Norway. Ilis attention, however, was lewe engaged hy the war than by the gegantle Intrigum of his new farmirfe, Goertz, who, taking advantage of a coolnexs lretween the liumans and the other enemites if Sweden, propowed that Peter and (harles ahoulil ualte In atrict amity, and dletate the law to Eumpe. .. While the acgutlatlons were yet In progrean, Charlos Invaded Norway a eec. oad the, sonl lavewted the castle of Fredericks. hall ln the very depth of wluter. But whlle engaged ln vlewing the works be wat atruck by camon.lall, and was deal before any of hin attentants came to hls amaistance [December 11 , 1isy. The swedlah senate showed llttle grief for the low of the warllke kligg.

The crown Tas conferred upon the late kling'n sleter, hut she mwil resligned It in her huaband, the priace of llemse."-W. C. Taylor, Student's Manual of Youlern Jiatiry, ch. 7. aret. 6.
Atwo is: E. Schuyler, fteer the Great, ch. 535 noul 61-63 (r. 2).-Sir E. B. Crwayy, Jiot. of the Ittumith Twrke. ch. 18.
(Sweden): A. D. 1719.-Accession of Ulrica Eleonora.
(Sweden) : A. D. 1719-1721,-Conatitutional changes. - Treatles of Peace ending the Great Northern War. - Swediah cessions of Terri-tory.-'An axsembly of the states was sum. monevl in February [1:19], aud completely altered the conatlititon. Sweden was declaretl an rectlve klagdom, and the governmeat was restoll In a council of st meinbers, divilied Into right cullegee, who were invegted with a power m) aboslute that thelr elected queen wae reduced to a mere shadow. In short, the anclent ollgarchy was rewared, and sweden browne the prey if a few noble fimilies. In November - Irraty was slgned at stockholm between Swivh and (Ireat Irritala, ly whlels the Duchaos of Brimen and Verden were cerled to George 1. [an Filvotor of llanover] In consldematon of in pryment of one million rix.dollars. lly another trealy in Janunry 1780, George engaged to support Siwerlen against leamark and Kussla, and to pay a yearly subshly of $\mathbf{( 3 0 0}(\mathbf{0})$ ) dinring the war. Alkint the same tlme an armatile was condudet with Doland till a definltlve treaty ohould be arranget on the basla of the I'race of Oliva. Augundis wan to be recogulsed as King of Poland: hut Stanlslaus was to retain the royal tithe during his llfe, and to recelve from Augis. tur a milllon rix-lollars. Hoth partles were to unite to check the preponderance of the C'zar, whase frosjos excited great discontent anil sus. piciun by thelr continued presence $\ln l^{3}$ olam. (Ha Pehruary Int a peace was coucluded with Prosia uader the ineallation uf France abil (ireat Briain. The princlpal artleles of this treaty were that Swerlan ceeded to Prusala, Stettln. the lalatsis of Wollo aud Lisedom, and all the tract betweru the ohler and l'eenc, together with the town of I Mamm and Goluan beyonil the Gler. The hing of P'rusula, on lis slde, enguged not to asist the ('zar, and to pay two milllon rixdollars to the Queen of Sweden. The termas of pesce letween Swetlen and Denmark were more difllcult of arrangement. .. Hy the Treaty of Flackholm, June 12th 1720, the Klog of Denmans restored to Sweden. Wlanar, Siralsund, Rasen aud all that he held in Pomeranla: swewn paylog 600,000 rix-dollars and renounc. ing the freedum of the Sound. Thus the only territorial acqulaltion that Deamark made be the war was the greater part of the Duchy of gehleaWig, the ponecallon of whlch was guarnateed to her hy England and France. Sweden and Humbla were aow the oaly Powers that remalned at war.

At length, through the mediatlon of France, conferences were opened in May 1721, and the confereacen were opened In May 172], and the Feace of Nystad was algned. Beptember 101 h .

The only portlon of his conquesta that [Peter] relloquishend was Finaland, with the ex. ception of a part of Carella; but as, hy his treaty whith Auguntus 11., it the beginaling of the war, he hal promiarl to retore Livonia to Poland If be conquered It, he pald the Crown of Swedea $29,000,000$ In order to evale this engagemeut by alleging that he had purchased that provlnce, "-T. I. Dyer, Jiot. uf Mudern Europe, bk. 5, ch, 7 (r. 8).
Also in: F. C. Schlosser, Hise. of the 18th Century, perionl 1, dio. 1, ch. 2, wet. 8 .
(Sweden): A. D. 1720.-Accestion of Frederick of Hesse-Cassel, hushand of Ulrica Bleonora.
(Sweden): A. D. 1720-1793. -Wars with Rassla and Prussia, Humbliatinc powerles: mess of the klot. - The partles of the Hatsend the Caps.- $\AA$ constitutlonal Revelatlon. Assassinatlon of Custaves lll.-U'Irlca Eleonora, the slater of Charles XII., realgney the crown In 1930, In favor of her liusband, Prince of llesse, who lecame klog unier the thtle of Frederick 1. Illa reiga wlinesaed the conquest of Flnlanil and the cemalon ( 1 its) of a part of that jrovince to liusila (we licema: A. D. 1740 1782). (In lils death In 1751 . Adolphus Frederick, hluhup of Litbeck, and adminlstrator of llolsteln, was ralual to the throne. "Though his personal qualitlew conmmanded respect, lile relgn was a dle astrous one. Ile had the folly to join the comall. tlom of linala, l'oland, Austria, and France agalnst the klug of Prussla. Twenty thousand Swedes were marchedl Into Pomeranin, ou the pretext of enforeling the condlthons of the trenty of Westphalla, hut with the vlew of recovering the dlstricta which had been cerleyl to I'rusela aftur the death of Charles Xill. They reduced C'melom and Wolln, with the fortreseen on the const: luit thls success was owilgg to the absence of the Prusalans. When, In 1754, schwsidd, the general of Frederic the Great, was at llberty to march with 30,000 men Into Pomeranla, he recovered the plucea which had been lost, and forced the Invalers to retlre under the canaon of Siral. suud. The accexwlon of the tear Peter was stlll more fa vourable to Frederic. An enthuslatic mimirer of that primec, Jee mond concluderl a treaty whll hlm. Sweden was forced to follow the (ixample a and thlnga remalofed, at the peace of Ilulnertsburg. la the same condlilon an before the War. Siarcely was Sweden at harmony wlth luer furmilable enemy, whep she became agitated by Interanl commotiona. We have alluded :o the limitatlons set to the royal suthority sfter the death of Clarles Xll., and to the dlacontent it engendered In the breasta of the Swedlsh mon. archs. While they atrove to emancljute thoms. selves from the shackles lmposed upon them, the dlet wan no less anxlous to reader them umre enslarel. That dlet, conslating of four onlers, the acbles, the clergy, the burghers, ard the pasants, was often the scene of tumultuous proceerlings: It was rarely traquull: yct It cojoged the supreme legilaclve authority. It wal also cor-

SCANDINAVIAN BTATES, $1780-1790$.

Tupt: for impovertabed noble and meedy tradewment had foulce, mo let than the whalthlewt membert. All new laws, all ordinameen, were sifned by the stas; yet he had mo power of re. Pital: he was the muepe reglatrar-general.
The ining hal mometlinen rofused to alga oril. nances whlch he juilgei dangerous to the commim weal: in 1750 an act when pused, thrit in fu. tire stamp might be used in lieu of the sign. manual, whenever he shoulit agaln refuse. More Intulerable than all thls was the manner in which the tlet Inolation on regulating the mot trifing detalls of the royni household. Thls Interference was resented by mome of the members, belonging to what wai called the 'Ilat' party, who may be termed the tories of 8 wedlen. Opponed to thew were the 'Caps,' who were for shackilng the crown with new restrictons, and of whom the leaders were umlontitedly in the pay of Ruasia.

As Rincola was the secret soul of the Ciape, an Prance endeavisured to support the Ilata, whenever the courts of $8 t$. Peteraburgh and $8 t$. Germalns were luwille to each other. Stockholm therefore was an arena in which the iwo powers struggled for the ascendancy." Gustavis III., whus succealim his father Adolphus Froderic in 1731, was able with the help of French maney and influence, and by wlaning to his support the burgher carialry of the capltal, to overawe the party of the Capa, and to lmpoee a new conatl. tution upon the country. The new conatituthon "conferroll conshleralile powern on the eoverelgn; enalind him to make peace, of terlare war, without the consent of the dlet; hut lie could make bu) new Inw, or altes any alrealy made, without Ita cuncurrence; and he was bound to ask, though nut always to follow, the alvice of hla menate in mitters of graver timport. The form of the contstituthon was not musth altereal; and the fout orlares of ileputles still remainest. On the whole. It was a Il!x.ral constltutlon. If this revolution was agrerable to the sweden thenimelves, It was enve anallilatarl by 10 ." The lian foreling lnetwerl the two govirnnwute wheh followed led (1) war, lu 1:No, whon finsula was engugerl at the sume time In hastlltles with the Turks. The was frustraterl lit lia ambillous domigns on Fin.

 exactly an iluy wore: infore the wat on on the ludne thot nt a masefuerale: labl. by oue Anker-kling virmbor incluiden. hut nothing :0 juvilfy It Is proved The nurihered klug wasmarequld by (Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1730.-Accession of Christian VI.

(Denmark and Norway): A. D. 1746.-Accession of Frederick V.
(Sweden): A. D. 175 t.-Accession of Adolphus Frederick.
(Denmark and Norvaj): A. D. 1766.Accession of Christian VIl.
(Sweden): A. D. 1771,-Accession of Gustavu 111 .
(Sweden): A. D. 1792.-Accession of Gustavus Adolphue.

SCANDINAVIAN BTATES, $1607-1810$.

(8welen): A. D. $8795-$ Pacece with Prace. See FanNck: A. D. 1794-1705 (Uctumfill May).
A. D. 180s-8503.-The Northern Maritize Learue. English bomberdmart of Copeshagen and cummary estortion of peece. She Faines: A. D. 1801-1803.
(Smeden): A. D. scog.-jpiaed In the Third Coalliman agalmot Prance. Bee Prancre: A D. 1805 (Jancant-April).
(Sweden): A. D. sfob-In the Rueco-Prudian alliace actalat Napoleen. see Ger wirr: A. D). $1800-180 \%$.
A. D. $1807-1{ }^{1} 10$. - Nerthers fruite of the conepiracy of the iwe Emperors at Tilsit.Bombardment of Copenheren and ceisure of the Dasleh Flaet by the Eagdieh.- War of Ruegia ind Deamart with Swedan, and corqueet of Finiand. - Depenition of the Swedish thas.- On the fith of July, 1803, Napolevin aud Alexander I. of Rumala, meeting on a raft, miured In the river Nieman, arranged the termit of the famous Treaty of Tilalt - mee Genwant; A.D 1807 (Jtar-July). "There were revrent Ant. cles In this Tremity of Tilstit in which Fiughod had a vital interest. These secret artictes are not to be found In any collection of State. I'spers; hut Napoleon's ilplomatista have given a aum. clent acrount of them to enable us to npeak of them with amarance. Ninpoleon would not part wlih Constantinople: but he not only gave up Turkey an whole to be deatt with ins Mrs aso der pleased, but ngreet to unlte hila effirts with Alexander to wrest from the loutte all tha pror. Inces but thoumella, If wlitin three munths she huil not male terms nalinfactory to A:r namer In requital for thas, If Englund dhi mut lefore the lat of November make terms satisfartury to Napolern, on the requiation uf Rumsha. the two and Portigal, to clume thels ports agalita the English, and were to unlte thelr forvere in war ngulamt Grent britaln.... In the munth of Say. the fluke of Piortand had had nu andiene of the I'rince of Wales at Corlon Ilatser. It whitb he hail luenril a plece of new. from the Priure wheh It dereply concernell litu, as I'rim. Minis. ter, tis know. The l'rince licegent of Purtugal Imit ment secret luformallon thast Mapminerit a anted (1) Invale our shoren with the Pirtiogitore asi
 It was for its to meve thy Danish. Mr Cataing lont mos thue In melng lo it and while the Eai

 When be haul conthlential laformation of the Muctet notleles of the Tilsit Trenty, hiv pratel. lugs were hastemet, and they were nasie wo percmptory su the ixecastom riquiten the wo llide premptortaeses and hir comid tur jovity hitmad lecesuse the government wore phe trel to surcery. . . Mr. Jackwill, whe haid lwit for mine yemps our envoy at the Court of 1 derlin, ws wat to klel, to regitile of the (rount irtane timilaton by Simpoleon, that the Wintif usry are of In llitioli perte, and restored at the odd of the war The Crown l'riare riflavi, with the Indlanation which wan to lee expmitel.
Mr Jackworl hat treell escortel, what he weat furtb ou hle misslon, by 20 ehipi of the lise, to firgatel and other andotant remelo, and a deet of trapports, conveylas 7,000 Inad tronpa. Ad. miral Gambler commanied the baval, and Land (intheurt the milltary expedithon. Theme forcen hed been got ready withla month, with great ablity, and under perfect secrecy; and hefore the dinal ordern were given, minlater had auch Informalloa of the secret artielos of the Treaty of Tlalt as feft them ton herltation whatever alxiut cizlag the Daplaharet. If It was not lent quietly.

When, therefore. Mr. Jackonn was lailig. anatly dianisaed by the (Trown Prince, bo tinie Fat to le lowt In selzing the thert. tin the 1shb [af Auguat] the forcen were landerl at Wed. berk, for their mareh upin Cupruhagen, abd the fept worked up before the clty. thice more, wh attempt wni male to a volil extremitlow.

The C'ruwn Prince replled by a proclamathit, iniount. Ing on a leclaration of war. . And now the shalr was ileclileal. There coulid he and doulit an कu what the end must ine. ... Hy the lat of Axptember, however. Atralatal was uccupleil by the Frubch: and part of the liritish forie was detarhell tit wateh them: and thla provent that ht wouh? have heen fatal to lowe thene. Hy the Wih of sipteminer, all wian over: the Danishe uavy and ansual were aurrebderal! the porith of the buithinga of the clity were by that time dontriyed: and lin ine strest 600 pryanis were killeyl lig the lmalmalnuent. .. Eiflorta vere made tis conclinate the lhaies after all wan over: Ime, as was sury batitrul. In vala. . . . Almont ns amb as the news of the mohlevement reacheal Enclami, the vietom lifulght the Danlah thert infu l'untanouth luarbour. the uf the numat painful fisturea of the case is the contimenton whirls enmoel. breause the surrember wam bot made iflletly. At the monuent uf the attack, thete wirw I Mantuh morchantmen In our wnters.
 pareselon of; aul, of cousree, of the nusy whilt We had carried cift."- II. Marthenn. Minf of the agrewennts of the Treaty af Tilslt, asarle In dugust, iNit. "a ahow was imalo ly lisualis of oferine lure mediation to Gireat Britatn for the emeluminn of a general perce: but as Mr. ('uns. nlos nuininul. as a plealge of the simerrity if the t'anr. Prank communleathon of the wret aritels, it Thist, the jropmond foll to the ground." Its fallure was manle cortalis lov the action of England In taking poasorgwh hy furre of the Daniah tioet. the the Sth uf Novarnwar wian accoritagly der-lanti agaluat innat Britaln ly the ('zar. ." Denmark has enin lualol (hes. 16) an allance, oftenalve ant thefensluer. with Pramer. unt Nwinlen was notr numumated by Itusiva on join the Contincontai leraguc. Bus the King. fathful to lila ergagenuents (whth Which war Fas declared againat him early In Finiarid. the molzure of whleh hy Jinsela had betn agneed in at Tllatt. "- Ejuitoine if .llimoris Hist uf Eiumpme. arfs. 483-45n oh s1. r 11. if cmapletr work). -"In Norember. Ismo. Flulanil was virtuattr glven up to Alexander, anl swe. den was thun feprfved of her great granary, and teatinit tor ruln. Fogland hail of tate aldini her rigonrusily, Iriving the Kusalan navy Into porr.
 dulin Jhore, with 10,000 men, In Jay, when France, Runala, and Deamark, were all adranc. log ti erumh the tallant $weilem. Mr John Mone fotind the KIng In what he thouglit a very wild mate of miml, progoultg conquests, when he had aot forcem emuingh for defenalve uperntions. All agreempat in thelr view, wies fiouni to be Impun. efbe: the Kiog remetevi the knglishman'e cas-mad that the mado of in llagulve from Stockholm, and lirousght bick hle tringom, whileth hal never laepa lander After the rillnyulsh. ment of Finlanal, the Nwirlinh penple fonall they couthl endure mi more. Tkealides Flaland. they hal lose Ponserania: they were refliceal to want; they ware thlumet hy juwtlleme as wrill why war; lut the Kilng's rultig Ilen was to condanc the condlet to thr lant.

preserve their extatence, An the oullije wa gently de.
 Into thie handa of his agenl unvte. the bake of Sudermanla. Thu pmor Kilng uas arreated on the 18th of Marith, Now, as lie wam mitilng out for his country wat. . anl pluctal In Imprin. onhwint fir is alourt time. Illa nuele, at tirat callat IRogent, was wwill thate King. . . Prace Wan male with Kunala Ia R-pheminer, ision, and whth Fraure In the following January. Pomer. abla was remenrivl to Nwollen, Imit neit F'inland: and atte linl t11 maks preat macriticro. . . She Was comprellayl in inar hrer gurt lu the Contheutal Nyatem af Napmionin, unl tu shut ber jorts Martmeau. Jfikl. of Ainy., IMnt-1815, he. I, ch. I. - "T The invonlon liy the Tzar Nlexamier i ir ant the othor swailinh lands mat uf the gulf of Buthola from the Swallsh crown. F'tuhend wan was anisexel In ferct whe may doulte whothor "amexeal" Ia ther risht wornl. Sluere lam the crowns of linswia abl Fibland are nocesmenty. Wors liy the mate Ir.tmen: the Iumsian abl tion Finnsli natlon has meromitit the same sover. ctyn. Ihat Flotatil to in it incorporatent with lRumaia und Plulanilate countrion forelga to obe nthither. Aut when we wivek of the emwa aud the bathon of Finhuml. Wer ajrak of a itown and of tha entigurerar himaself The eronquernir bail fosmendous of jurt of the Swedlah dimilatoma. and heration on the indiple of that jart to moet hitn in a mepunsfe I'mritanuent. but one chomen lu exactly the atin way by the exlating law jureecrinal fur the oumanin liarlanent of the whole.

In his tow churactir of Grand Duke of Finlami, the Tzar Aloxamider canve to Iforga. und there enn March gith. I wiv, fulty contiment the einethg conatiotion, lans, and relliplon of hits How Siate. Tlie persithen of that Btate ta laxit de merlinet in hin own werols. speaklag hetther Nwirllsh nor FFlmilah, aud mpenklag to horarem IDKke llwol the F'rench tongue. Fluland wat - Placi dímurmale ne magg les unshona": It was a rank of the nathose It was a Nistha ersuquit wlthout. fres. Withan 'd And It was a natlon of hls own foumtlug. The perple of Finluil had cesaed to be a part of the swedish untheit; they

SCANDNAVIAN ETATES, 1010.

nal mot Iwrome part of the Rumian wathous thry bul lxerive a nuthon by strmaelves. Ait thls, bo It repremiterel!, happenen! leflore the fopmul ceecioa of the liot landi hy swevien lo Rumala. Thit was not mactu ill the Peace of Prenlertk. shamat on septenuler lith of the me year. The ireaty comiaineal mon atpulation for the pullil. fal dghte of PMalant: their full conflimation by the new onverpizen was held to le enntigh. Two yenra Inter. In 1411. the boninilary of the new Atate wan rainereml. Alexander, B'rnperor of ail of frum hile couplre. smi welieyl in lim eranal ductiy, the rinnialt dlatelite which hat luen
 The Imundary af life enostituthonalisrand duchy was bronght vety mear laleral to the emultal if (Min wilheris Mirg., Mirch. INpos).

At.m) ix: Chell Montelth, erl, Nispoutipe of the (Demmerk and Norway): A. D. 180t.-Accession of Frederick V1.

(Swedeni: A. D. 1809.- Accenslon of Charles X111
iSweden : A. D. $1809 .-G r a n t i n g$ of the (Sweden): A. D. stio.-Election of Bernadotte to be Crown Prince and auccessar to the thrune. - The' win kitis. litely calhel to the throwe. Ineing mext. The $1: 3$ us uf the perple ohif kitus. Thivere-ut ngitated the while mithell.

 lan wate for thamapitte. li:al willie right to ex

 ly betowhig the nimiolt errown of the Gothe upan one of his own Fiofit Mamlinls, and a ligla noble of his emylre, maneiy, John Julian liap-tive Berreadotie, Pinces of Poats Copvo. Thite diotin fulshed ofticet wee married to a shbter of Joveph Buonaparts's wife. (doughter of a wrallity and mepectablo ladividual, mamed ('lary.) through whom the hed the advantage of an ali. ance with the Impertal familly of Napoloun, onil the had acgulred a high reputation $\ln$ the murth of Europer, bath when goveruor if linaover, and admintiotritor of Aweilloh Pismeranla. on the Inter occasion, Dermalinte was mald th hare alnown hlmeif in a marticular manaer the frieal and firitectup of the Awemllah nativa: suil it wh even Insinunted thas he woukd not lie averem eschatige the errors of Popery for lion anformal teneta of lauther. The Nwelfish nations fiti very generally litue the line of polley whirh primpent thes chrifere.

It wan a rhillet, burs. at ther the world memmi to eleproul. Iet, there is the inat reason in dualit, whether, in prufferring thet. naliotte to their varsint throne, the Swmen dil thlng which was pratifylig to Xaprileoti. The name of the ('nown l'rince of Ewmlen chert. hat Inen known in the warn of the flevolutton, If.

 Itrumairo, Ine was mi far frunu joloing Ihenaparte In lala miterprise aghinat the coumell uf fire Itou, that lie was on the epmit at St. ('himi armal place himarif at the hemel of any burt of the inlitiary, wlut inleht be bromght tio deviare it dieal, and rewnerleal. hit without foring thom s fum instances a warrant fur their thicitit Thre ctheren formeal a comparatlvely wimal thow sts comprefornitite some of the thomb divits: mame In tlo P'rmicels army. neremalty to a atate of servithibe whold shey cosion

 the witle ex of Frawce, wot of Niapolemin. atel his loweal the latimer if thelr country rathet thas

 "ras:vilt Whith leml al very difforethe atum Ho that be hichatf was rendy to morept if the where ne"lit of Fingatrint. the minioter of thin, shes

CCANDINAVLAN ETATES, 1015.

Weanl Moipper' alleardption of his helil attempt Ia Parta. What do you liring from Paris.: Eaitputrom makel, when Morner cumbe Into the Poreign Minatater's eublinet In Nurkibiden 'That I hare inluevt the prince of Pomte Ciuron to aceeept the Nwellith rriwn." 'Hlow censld yers opeak to him alanat it whithout iving commin. dumal?:" "Our omly mifety lieat in the prince of Prober fierva:

Are yout sure that he wlll res. crise it mo that we ary mex demhly committeil?: Coreninly I hase letere here. Prom him to soily' No, from nier in hin.' "Boy; ex. rlummol Mïrner's relation, lils esceliency Vinn Fiume, at the eml of the conferince. - Youl inimit th ait where nelther suin not mokn wifl whine om Fimp. Itite Mörsure prajert wem mofe and mure favie lat the evolurery thoutule lie himelf wha arreatiol In (inelipe, whereliy the gravernnerent ile. sircil w pre remil hin premerice nu a mirmber of the bonte of knlalita ne time aperdal dlet inleil at pamphlet he workel fur lifu plat."-Birerigra

Almin is il. He lhirrtientre, Primite Memoira

 Merrillh. Vemerrista if Charle Jihn, 大ing if simplero enel dirisiray.
Sweden): A. D. 18so. - Allance with Rus-$111:$
Sweden): A. D. z813.- Jolned with the new Coalition againut Napoleon.- Particlpation ia the War of LIberation. sere (ib.hMiny mer,
A. D. 8013-1884.-The Peace of Kiel.-Cesion of Norway to Sweden and of Swedith

 Nerving, howerer. Cireermand, the Firrua Inles. and laland. Whath were resareleci as derpent dencha if Surway. Aopway, whith whes mol Onaf if. "ith thenmark ever shice the Jeath if Isir of lingern. This trenty fumbinel the brewerm from ber cmbuection with bermonys. atnol las.

 the the antim of Xorway noll swaylen lit a stur. i.ag. ur liee atememblet at Clirintaula. Nusetuber Wheh had leen taken lye the Enclisho. were re atiod "-T. II. Wyer. Iliot. of Viniern Éurope.

(Eveden): A. D. sis $4,-$ The Allieo is Napoleon. See Fhanck: A. D. 1614 (Jancall - Lancu), and (Manch-A PMLL)
(Norway): A. D. IB14-1iss.-The Nerwe San tomatliution uader the union with SWedon. - "When, by the treaty of Kiel In $\mid \mathbb{N} 4$. Norway wan taken from Denmark, and handed over th $\$$ weilen, tho Norwegtana motisell them. 8ives the onve more manert thelr nothaniliy. The 8 weles appramel In furce, liy innil anl era. upoin the froutiker of Nurway. If was nut, lowwerep. untl the intier country liad been gancantivei eomplete antional Inilepelitence that alie canented to a nillomi uf the crumetiona uniler the une efown. The ayrrement wan made, nitil the cento attition of Nuerway gmatel on the lith of May 151f, at which tatio the contemparusy lifntory oif Sorway Incelns. The finminatiental lajw of the ernastitition (firundiovi. Whitelt alumus every peamant farmer now: n layin has franteel null humg ap in the chilef riom of lils houge. De-ory flur date the the of November 1414 . The Ace of Vinn
 The yulon of the twie slated le a aution of Hie arthy. She if the cimiseas lit time Act uf tinlous provinles that the kluse if the jojnt errintrlew nillat realhle for a creptiln part of the searlit Norp way: llite, na a matere of fact, this perplot is a ig the (Dilinell of state (statareal), whith imist natl nine enture Combellere of stille. If w lit

 Hinlacer, and the oriblary me miners of the I'rlay

 Thereat of the Conthell furme the Norweghin (iovermment reallent hit the mantre. .lll fime. vore "f this ciume I of Niate. The obtelials, whos form what we whimbl vall the dowernment (as diningulabug from what ke shatith retl the mathand the fisher gralles of the urmi- are, cenal Hey cunthune to. Iraw two thimly of lhele salary notil ther gase has come lafore larilamenit thee Nour theng. (ireat Thing), witheh dectlen there than i: per cints. of the wholle perpoths.

 Yery wife mme. . . In forilgo affilm only lin-4 Sorway wot ant as an laterpermene traton. Tlure internal admbinistrstion. Norway la dolided lutio twemte districts. ralleyl Alliter-whiels we thay lest translate 'Irrefectures. Of these, the thi chef tunan of the conutry. Christlanla (with its

 Conerititun ap Nohwar
(Denmark): A. D. 8885 .-Swedith Pomeranla nold to Prumala. See Vibrsia, Cisoreme.
(Sweden and Norway): A.D. 1818.-Accesalon of Charles XIV. (Bernadotte).

(Denmark): A. D. 1839.-Accession of Chis-

 tlan VII!.(Sweden and Norway) : A. D. 1844.-Accession of Oscar I.
(Denmark): A. D. 1848.-Accession of Frederick VII.
(Denmark): A. D. 1848-1862.-The Schles-wig-Holatein questlon.-First war with Prus-ala.-. The two Duchies of Schleswlg and Holstein lie to the south of modern Denmark. Holstein, the more southern of the two, is exclusively German in lts population. Schleswlg, the more northern, contalins a mlaed population of Danes and Germans. In the course of the 14th century Sclueswlg was conquered by Denmark, hut ceded to Count Gerard of Holste in the Constitutlon of Waldemar providing that the two Duchies should be under one Lord, hut that they should never be united to Denmark. Thls is the first fact to reallse in the complex hlstory of the Schleswlg-Holstein question. The llne of Gerard of Holsteln expired in 1375 . It was suececded hy a hranch of the house of Oldenhurg. In 1448 a member of this house, the nephew of the relgning Duke, was cleeted to the throne of Denmark. The religning Duke procured in that year a contirmation of the compact that Schleswig should never be united with Den. that schleswig should never be united with Den. mark. Dying without lssue in 1459, the Duke was succeeded, by the election of the Estates, by his nephew Christian I. of Denmark. In electing Christian, however, the Estates compelled him in 1460 to renew the compact contirmed in 1448. And, thongh Duchles and Crown were thenceforward united, the only 'ink between them was the sovereign. Even this link could possibly be severed. For the succession In the Duehy was secured to the male heir in direct contradiction of the law of Denunark. . . . It would com. plicate this narratlve if stress were laid on the various changes in the relations hetween Kingdom and Dueb'es which were consequent on the unsettled state of Europe during the three sue. ceeding centuries. It is suffieient to say that, hy a treaty made in 1773, the arrangements concluded more than 300 years before were confirmed. Schleswlg. Holstein reverted once more to the King of Denmark under exaetly the same conditions as In the tlme of Christlan I., who had expressly recognised that he governed them as Drke, that is, hy virtue of Gueir own law of succession. Such an arrangement was not likely to be respected amidst the convulsions which affected Europe in the commencement of the present century. In 1808 Christlan VII. took advantage of the disruption of the German Empire formally to lncorporate the Duchies into hls Kingdom. No one was in a position to dispute the uct of the monarch. In 1815, however, the King of Denmark, ly virtue of hls rights in Holsteln and Lavenhurg, joined the Confederation of the Rhine; and the noliilty of Holsteln, brought in thls way into fresh connectlon wlth Germany, appealed to the German Dlet. But the Diet, in the first quarter of the 19th century, was suhject to influences opposed to the rights of nationalities. It decllned to Interfere, and the union of Duchies and KIngdom was maintained. Christlan VII. was succeeded ln 1808 by hls son Frederick VI., who was followed In 1889 by hls cousin Christian VIII. The latter monarch had only one snn, afterwards Frederick VII., who, though twice married, had no chill. dren. On his death, If no alteratlon had been made, the crown of Denmark would have passed to the female line-the present relgning dynasty - while the Duchles, hy the old undisputel hiw. would have reverted to a younger brauch. which descended through males to the livuse of Augustenhurg. With this prospect befure them It became very desirahle for the Danes to amal. gamate the Duchles; and In the ycar 1844 the Danish Estates almost unan!mously adupted a motion that the King should proclaim Bemmark, Schleswig, Holstein, aud Lauenhurg one ladlvisilhle state. In 1846 the King put forth a declaration that there was no donlt that the Dunish law of succession prevailcd In Schleswig. He admitted that there was more doubt respect. Ing Holstein. But he promised to use lifsen. deavours to ohtaln the recognition of the integ. rity of Denmark as a collective State. Puserless alone agalnst the Danes and their sovereign, Holstein appealed to the Diet; and the biet tonk up the quarrel, and reserved the right of enforc. ing Its lexitimate authorlty in case of need. Christian VIII. died in January 1848. Ills son, Frederick VII., the last of his line. grasped the tiller of the State at a critical moment. Crowns, before a month was over, were tumbling of the heads of half the sovereigns of Europe; and Denmark, shaiken hy these evcuts, felt the full force of the revolutionary movemeut. Face to face with revolutlon at home and Germany across the frontler, the new King tried to cut insteaf of untying the Gordlan knot. Ile separated Holstei . from Schleswig, incorporating the latter $\ln$ Denmark hut allowing the former under lits own constitutlon to form part of the German Confederation. Frederiek V11 prohs. bly hoped that the German Diet would be content with the half -loaf which he offered it. The Diet, however, replicd to the challenge br formally ineorporating Schleswig ln Germany, and by eommltting to Prussla the ofllce of mediation [see Germany: A. D. 1848 (March-Septeynem)]. War hroke out, hut the arms of Prussla were crippled by the revolution which shook het throne. The sword of Deun'ark, unler these- circunstances, proved vletorious; and the Duchles were ultimately compelled to sutimit to the decisiou which foree had prouounced. These events gave rise to the famous protocol which was signed in London, In August 1850, hy Eugtand. France, Austria, İussla, Sweden, and heumarl: Thls document settled the question, so far as diplomaey conld determine it, in the interests of Denmark. The unlty of Denmark. Sclaleswly, Holsteiu and Lauenhurg was secured ly a nui. form law of suceession, and their iuternal affairs were placed, as far as practieahle. under a com. mon admiulstration. The protocol of 18.50 was signed hy Lord Palmerstou during the Russell Ainninistration. It was suceeeded by the treaty of 1852, which was concluded hy Lord Malmes. hury. This treaty, to which ali the great 1 porers were partles, was the logleal consequence of the protocol. Under it the succession to Kingdom and Duehles was asslgned to Prince Christian of Glackshurg, the present relgning King of Denmark. The integrity of the whole inuish ylonarchy was declared permanent, but the rights of the German Confederatlon with respect to Holsteln and Schleswig were reserved. The declartion was made in accordance with the view of Russia, England, and France; the reservation wss inserted in the interests of the German powers; aad in a manifesto, which was communicated to the German Courts, the King of Dcnmark iaid down eiaborate rules for the treatment and govermment of the Duchies. Thus, while the succession to the Danish throne and the jntegrity of Denmart had been secured hy the protocol of 1850 and the treaty of 1852, the elaborate promises of the Danish King, formaliy communicated to the German powers, had given the iatter a pretext for contending that these piedges were st lesst as sacred as the treaty. And the next ten years made the pretext much more formida. bie than it secmed in 1852. . . . The Danes en dearoured to extrieate themselves from a constantiy growing emharrassment by repeating the policy of 1848 , hy grantigg, under what was kaown as the Constitution of 1855 , autonomous institutions to Holstein, hy consolidating the pureiy Danish portions of the Monarchy, and hy incorporating Schleswig, which was partiy Danish adl partiy German, in Denmark. But, the German inhabitants of Schieswig resented this arrangement. They complained of the suppression of their janguage and the employment of Daaish functionaries, and they argued that, under the engagements which had been contracted between 1851 and 1852, Holstein had a volce in constitutional changes of this character. This argument added heat to a dispute already acute. For it was now piajn shat, while the German Dlet claimed the right to interfere in Holstein, Hoistein asserted her claim to be heard on the affairs of the entire Kingdom."-S. Waipole, Life of Lord John Russell, ch. 30 (, .2 ). -In the first period of the war of 1848-9, the only important battie was fought at Duppeln, June 5, 1848. The Prussians were superior in land forces, but the Danes were ahie to make use of a flotilia of gunboats in defending their strong position. "After a useless siaughter, both parties remainell neariy in the same position as they had occupied at the commencement of the conflict." The war was auspended in August by an armis. tice - that of Malmo - hut was renewed in the April foliowing. "On the 20th April [1848] the Prussians invaded Jutland with 48 hattalions, 18 guns, and 2,000 horse ; and the Danish generals, unabie to make head against such a crusade, retired through the town of Kolding, which was fortified and commanded an important hridge that was ahandoned to the incuders. The Danes, however, returned, and after a hioody combat dislodged the Prussians, hut were finaliy obliged to evacuate it hy the fire of the German mortars, which reduced the town to ashes. On the $3 d$ May the Danes had their revenge, in the defeat of a iarge body of the Schieswig insurgents by a Danish corps near the fortress of Fretericla, with the loss of 840 men. A more important advantage was gained hy them on the Gth July," over the Germans who were besieging Fredericia. "The loss of the Germans in this disastrous affair was 86 ofticers and 3,250 mea kilied and wounded, with their whole siegeartliery and stores. ... This hrilliant victory Was immediately followed hy the retreat of the Germaas from neariy the whole of Jutland. A convention was soon sfter concluded at Berlin, Which estahlished an armistice for six months," and which was followed hy the negotiations and treaties described above. But hoatilities were not yet at an end; for the insurgents of Schies. wig and Holstein remained in arms, and were said to receive almost open encouragement and aid from Prussia. Their army, 82,000 strong, occupied Idstedt and Wedelspang. They were attacked at the former place, on the 25th of July, 1850, hy the Danes, and dafeated after a hloody conflict. "The loss on both sides amounted to neariy 8,000 men, or about one in eight of the troops engaged; a prodigious slaughter, une xampled in European war since the hattle of Waterioo. Of these, nearly 3,000 . including 85 oflicers, were killed or woundied on the side of the Danes, and 5,000 on that of the insurgents, whose ioss in officers was pecuiiarly severe."-Sir A. Alison, Ifiat. of Europe, 1815-1852, ch. 53.-From 1855 to 1862 the history of Denmark was uneventful. But in the next year King Frederick VII. died, and the Treaty of London, which had settled the succession upon Prince Christian of Glackshurg, failed to prevent the reopening of the Schleswig. Holstein question.
Also IN: C. A. Gosch, Denmark and Germany since 1815, ch. 3-9.- A Forgotten War (Spectator, Sept. 22, 1804, revieving Count von Molike's "Geachichte des Krieges gegen Dinemark, 1848-49").
(Denmerk-Iceland): A. D. 1849-1874.The Danish constitntion.-Relations of Icejand to Denmark. -" Denmark became a constitutional monarchy in 1840 . The principa! provisions of the Constitution are these: Every king of Denmark, before he can assume the government of the monarchy, must deliver a written oath that he will ohserve the constitution. He alone is invested with the executive power, hut the legislative he exercises conjointly with the Assembly (Rigsdag). He can declare war and make peace, enter and renounce alliances. But he cannot, without the consent of tine Assembly, sign away any of the possessions of the kingdom or encumber it with any State ohligations.
The king'e person is sacred and inviolahle; he is exempt from ali responsihility. The ministers form the Councii of State, of which the king is the president, and where, hy right, the heir-apparent has a seat. The king has an absolute veto. Thc Rigsdag (Assemhiy) meets every year, and cannot be prorogued till the session has lasted for two months at least. It consists of two Chambers - the Cpper Chamber, Landsting,' and the Lower C'ismber, 'Foiketing.' The Upper Chamber consists of 66 members twelve of which are Crown-elects for iife, seven chosen hy Copenhagen, and one hy the so-called Lagting of Faro. The 46 remaining members are voted in hy ten eiectoraj districts, each of which comprises from one to three Amts, or rurai governorships, with the towns situsted within each of then included. The elections are arranged on the proportional or minority system. In Copenhagen and in the other towns one moiety of electors is chosen out of those who possess the franchise for the Lower House, the other moiety is selected from among those who pay the highest municipai rates. In every rural commune one elector is chosen hy all the enfranchised mem. bers of the community. . . . The Lower House is elected for three years, and consists of 102 members; consequently there are 102 electorates or electoral districts. . . . The Lower House is elected hy manhood auffrage. Every man thirty years old has a vote, provided there be no stain on his character, and that he possesses the hirthright of a citizen within his diatrict, and has been domiclied for a year wlthin it before exercising his right of voting, and does not stand In such a subordinate relation of service to private persons as not to have a home of his own.

SCANDINAVIAN STATES, 1840-1874.

The two Cliamhers of the Ikigsdag stand, as legisiative bodies, on an equai footing, both having the right to propose and to aiter laws. At present [1891] this very Liberai Constitution is not working smoothly. As was to be expected, two partles have gradualiy come into existence - a Conservative and a Llberai, or, as they are termed after French fashion, the Right and the Left. The country is governed at present arhitrarily against an oprosition in over wheiming majority in the Lower Honse. The dispute between the Left and the Ministry does not realiy turn so much upon confleting views with regard to great public Interests, as upon the questlon whether Deninark has, or has not to have pariamentary government. . . . The Right represents chlefy the educated and the weaithy classes; the Left the mass of the people, and is looked down upon by the kight. sald in the beginning that I wouid i Il you how the constitutionai principie has been appiled to I ceiand. I have only time hrlefly to touch upon that matter. In 1800 the oid Aithlng (All Men a Assembly, General Dlet), which had existen from 930, came to an end. Forty-five years later It was re-estahllsher hy King Chiristlan VIII in the character of a consultative assemhly.
The Althing at once began to direct its attention to .he question - What Iceiand's proper position should be in the Danish monarchy when eventu aily Its anticlpated constlutlon shonld he carried out. The country had always been governed by Its special laws; fithad a code of laws of its own, and ic had never beeu ruled, In administrative sense. as a province of Denmark. Every suc cessive king had, on his accession to the throne, issued a proclamation guaranteeing to Iceiand due observance of the country's laws ani traditional privilcges. Ifence it was fonnd entirely impracticabie to inciude Iceland under the provisions of the charter for Denmark; and a royal rescript of September 23, 1848, announced that with regard to Iceiand no measures for setting the constitutional relation of that part of the monarchy would be edopted until a constitutive assemhiy in the country itself ' had been heard' on the subject. Unfortunateiy, the revolt of the duchles intervened between this deciaration and the date of the constitutive assembiy which was fxed for 1851. The Government took fripht, being unfortunately quite in the dark about the real state of puhilc oplaion in the distant de. pendency.

The lcelanders oniy wanted to abide by their iaws, and to have the management of their own home affairs, but the sucalled Nationai-Liberai Government wanted to inenr porate the country as a province in the king. dom of Denmark proper. This idea the ice. ianders really never could understand as seriously meant.

The constitutive assembly was hrusquely dlssoived hy the Royai Commlssary when he saw that it meant to insist on allonomy for the Icelanders in their own howe affairs. And from 1851 to 1874 every successive Aithing (but one) persisted in calling on the Gove: nment to fuitl the royai promise of 1848 . It was no doubt due to the very loyal, quiet, and able manaer ln which the lceianders pursued their case, under the ieadership of the trusted patriot, Jon Sigurls. son, that in 1874 the Government at last agreed to gire lceland the constitution it demanded. But instead of frankiy meetling the lcclandie de$r$ ands in full, they were oniy partiaily complied with, and from the first the charter met with but scanty popularity."- E. Magnusson, Denmark and tceland (Aational Life and Thought, eh. 12).
(Sweden): A. D. 1855.--In the ailisnce against Russia. See Russia: A. D. 18ist-1850 (Sweden and Norway): A, D. 1859.-Ac cession of Chartes XV.
(Denmark): A. D. 1863.-Accession of Christian IX.
(Denmariz): A. D. 1864.- Reopening of the Schieswig-Holstein question.- Austrn- Prussian invasion and conquest of the ducaie? See Germany: A. D. 1861-1866.
(Sweden and Norway): A. D. 1872,-Accession of Oscar II.
A. D. 1890 - Popuiation,- By a census taken at the close of 1890, the population of Sweden was found to be 4,784,981, and that of Norway 2,000,917. The population of Denmark, accordIng to a ccosus taken in February, 1890, Was 2,185,335.—Statesman's Year-Book, 1894.

SCHISM, The Great, Sce Papacy: A. D. 1877-1417, and 1414-1418; also, Italy: A. D. 1343-1388. and 1386-1414.

SCHISM ACT. See England: A. D. 1:111714

SCHKIPETARS, Abanian. See ILLir TANs

SCHLESWIG, and the Schleswig-Holstein question. Sce Scandinavias States (l)en. mark): A. D. 1848-1862, and Genmani: A. D. 1881-1866, and 1866.

SCHMALKALDIC LEAGUE, The. Ser Germany: A. D. $1530-1532$.

SCHCENE, The, - An ancient Egyptian measure of length which is supposed, as in the case of the Persian parasang, to have been ixed by no standard, but to hare been merely a ruke estimate of listance. See Parasano.

SCHOFIELD, General J, M.-Campsign in Missouri and Arkansas. Sec Linted states OF AM.: A. D. 1862 (JULY - Seftemben: Misootri - Anyaneas), and (September-i)ecey var: Mimouri-Arianass)..... The Atlanta Campaign. See Uxitted States of Am. : A. D. 1864 (May: Georgla), to (Seftember - October: Grorola). . . . Campaign againet Hood. See Cinited States or Ax.: A. D. 186 : (Notember: Tenkreacti), and (Decembrr: Tefnewer).

SCHOFIELD.

SIINDE

SCHOLARII.-The household troops or Im. periai ife.guards of the Eastern Roman Empire. -T. Hodgkin, Italy and Her Invaders, bk. E, eh. 20.
SCHOLASTICISM.-SCHOOLMEN. See Edrcation, Medineval: Scholasticism.
SCHOOL OF THE PALACE, Charle-magnu.3.-"Charjemagne took great care to attract distinguished foreigners into his states, and among those who helped to second inteliec. tual development ln Franklsh Gaul, many came from ahroad. . . . He not only strove to attract distinguished men lnto his states, hut he protected and encouraged them wherever he diacorered them. More than one Anglo-Saxon ahbey shared his liberallty; and learned men who, after followlng hlm into Gaul, wished to return to thelr country, In no way hecame strangers to hlm. • He Alcuin fixed himself there permsnently. He was born In England, at lork, about 735. The intellectual state of Ire. land and England was then superior to that of the continent; letters and schools prospered there more than anywhere else.

The schools of Engisnd, and particulariy that of York, were superior to those of the continent. That of lork possessed a rich lihrary, where many of the works of pagan antiqulty were found; among others, those of Aristotle, which it is a mistake to say were first introdiced to the kaowledge nc modern Europe hy the Arahians, and the Arahians only; for from the fiftit to the ienth century, there is no epoch in whlch we do ant find them mentloned in some llbrary, In which they were not known and studicit hy some men of letters. . .. In 780, on the death of archbishop Elbert, and the accession of his successor, Eanhald, Alcuin recelved from hlm the nission to proceed to Rome for the purpose of obtaining from the pope and hringing to hlm the 'pullium.' In returning from Kome, he came to Parma, where he found Chsrlemagne. The emperor at onec pressed hin to take up his abode ln France. After some hesitation, Alcuin arcepted the invitation, subject to the permissiou of his hlshop, and of his own sover. eign. The permlssion wus obtained, and ln 782 we find him estabished in the court of Charlemagne, who at once gave him tiree abbeys, those of Ferrieres in Gatanols, of St. Loup at Troyes, and of St. Josse in the county of Ponthien. From this time forth, Aicuin was the condidant, the councillor, the Intellectual me minister, so to speak, of Chariemagne. Frum 789 to 786, the period of inis iesi. dence in the court of Charlemague Alcuin pre. sided orer a private school, cailed 'The School of the laiace, whleh aecompanied Chariemagn Hherever he went, and at which were regularly . It is difficuit to were with the emperor. the course of instruction wursuchid have been Iam disposed to belleve pursucd in this school; Ilcuin nisped to belleve that to such anditors of topics as they occurred gencraily upon ail sorts dut topics as they occurred; that in the Ecole du Puinis, in fact, it was conversatlon rather than teaching, especially so called, that wriot un:
that movement given to mind, curiowity constantly excited and satistied, was its chief mert.

- F. Guizot, Hiat. of Civilization, lect. 29 iv. 8), See, aiso, Edccation, Medreval.
Also IN: A. F. West, Aleuin and the Rive of the Chrintian Schoole.

SCHOOLS. See EdLcation.
GEHMANY: A. D. Treaty of (1806), See Many: A. D. 1806 (Janvart-Acoubt).
Treaty of ( 8809 ). See Germany: ©A. D. 1809 (JULY-SEPTEMnER).
SCHOUT AND SCHEPENS.-The chief magistrate and aidermen of the ehartered towna of Holland were calied the Schout and the Schepens.-J. L. Motley, Rise of the Dutch Republic, introd., sect. 6.-"In every trihunal there is a Schout or sherif, who convenca the judges, and demands from them justice for the iltigating partles; for the word 'schout' is derived from 'schuld,' debt, and he is so denominated because he is the person who recovers or deniands common dehts, accordlng to Grotius."-Van Leeuwen, Fimmentaries on Roman Dutch Laic, quoted in O'Callaghan's Iliet. of Neer Jetherlanif. - iee Netheriands: A. D. $1584-1585$.

SCHURZ, CARL, Report on the South. See Uilted Staten or Am.: A. I) 180.\% SCHULZE-DELITZSCH, and cooperation. Lue Social. Dluvenenta: A. I). 1utk-leki SCHUMLA, Siege of (1828). See Traks: A. I) 18:6-1824.

SCHUYLER, General Philip. See CVited

 NrATES OF AM.: A. D. $1 \%$ (JIAY-AtGOST); 1:77 (JU1.Y-OCTOBER).SCHUYLER, Fort, Defenae of. see LniTED STATES OF AM. : A. D. $1 \%$ (JU1,Y- OCT, ). SCHWECHAT, Battle of ( 1848 ). See Ars TRLA: A. D. 1848-1849.

SCHWEINNITZ, Battic of (1642). See Gerviany: A. D. 1640-1645.

Captured and recaptured. See Germarr: A. D. 1761-1762.

SCINDE, OR SINDH.-"Sindh is the Sanskrit word Sladh or Sindhu, a river or ocean. It was applled to the river Indus, the first great iody of water eneountcred by the Aryan invaders. . Sindh, which is part of the Bomhay Presidency, is bounded on the north and West hy the teritories of the khan of Khclat, in Beluchistan; the Punjab and the Bahawaipur State lic on the north-east. . . . Three-fourths of the people are Muhammadans and the remalnder Hindus." Sindh was lucluded in the Indlan conquests of Mahmud of Ghazni, Akbar, and Nadir Shah (see INDIA: A. D. 9iT-1290; 1399-1605; and 1682-1748). In 1748 the country beeame an appanage of Kabul, as part of the dowry bestowed by the reignlng emperor upon Timur, sou of Ahmed Shah Durani, whio founded the kingdom of Afghanistan.

The connec tion of the British government with simin had Its origln lu A. D. 1 F58, when Ghulam Shah Kalhora granted a 'purwanain,' or pernit, to an oftcer in the East India Companys service for the estahlishment of a factory in the province. ... In their relations with the British government the Amirs throughont displayed much jcalousy o: forelgn Interference. Several Ineaties were made with then from time to time. In 1886, owing to the designs of Ranjit Singh on

sCINDE.

Andh, which, however, were not carried out because of the interposition of the Brittsh government, more intimate connection with the Amirs was rought. Colonel Pottinger visited them to negotiate for this purpose. It was not, however, till 1838 that a short treaty was concluded, in which it was stipulated that a British minister should reaide at Haidarabad. At this time the frlendly alilance of the Amirs was deemed neceseary in the contemplated war with Afghanistan which the Brtish government was about to undertake, to piace a friendly ruier on the Afghan throno. The events that followed led to the occupation of Karachi by the British, and placed the Amirs in subsidiary dependence on the British government New treaties becane necessary, and Sir (liarles Napler was sent to Haidambad to negoti.t e. The Beluchis were infuriated at this proceeding, and openly insulted the offlicer, Sir James Outram, at the Residency at Haidarabai. Sir Charles Napler thereupon attacked the Amir's forces at Meanee, on 17th February, 1843, with 2,800 men, and twelve pieces of artiliery, and succeeded in gaining a complete victory orer 22,000 Beluchis, with the result that the whole of Sindh was annexed to British India."-D. IRoss, The Land of the Five Sivers and Sindh, pp. 1-6.
Albo in: Mohan Lai, Life of Amir Dost Mahammell Khan, ch. 14 (o. 2).-See India: A. D. 1836-1845.
SCIO. See Chios.
SCIPIO AFRICANUS, The Campaigns of. See Punic War, The Second.
SCIPIO AFRICANUS Maiodr, Destruction of Carthage hy. See Cahthage: B. C. 146. SCIR-GEREFA. See Sherivr; Shire; and fil lombans.
SCIRONIAN WAY, The.-" The Scironian Way led from Megara to Corinth, along the eastern shole of the isthmus. At a siort distance from Megara it passed along the dcironian rocks, a long range of precipices overhanging the sea, forming the extremity of a spur which descends from Mount Gerninum. Thls portion of the road is now known as the 'Kaki Scala,' and is passed with some difflcuity. The way seems to have been no more than a lootpath untii the time of Adrian, who made a good carriage road throughout the whole distance. There is but one other route hy which the isthmus can be traversed. It runs inland, and passes over a higher portion of Mount Geranium, presenting to the traveller equal or greater difticuities. G. Rawilnson, Hist. of Herodotus, bk. 8, sect. 71, foot-note.

SCLAVENES. - SCI.AVONIC PEOples. See Slavonic peoples.
sclavonic. See slavontc.
sCODRA, OR SKODRA. See Illyrians. SCONE, Kingdom of. See Scotland: $8-$ 9th Centuries.

SCORDISCANS, The. - The Scordiscans, called by some Roman writers a Thracian peopie, but supposed to have been Celtic, were settled in the south of Pannonia in the second century, B. C. In B. C. 114 they destroyed a Roman army under consul C. Portius Cato. Two jears later consul M. Livius Drusus drove them across the Danube.-E. H. Bunhury, Hitt. of Ancient Geog., ch. 18, sect. 1 (c. 2).

SCOT AND LOT.-"Paying scot and iot; that is, bearing their rateable proportion in the payments levied from the town for local or antionai purposes."-W. Stuhbs, Conet. Hist. of Eng. eh. 20, sect. 745 (o. 8).

SCOTCH-IRISH.
SCOTCH HIGHLAND AND LOW. LAND.-"If a line is drawa from a polnt on the eastern bank of Loch Lomond, somewhat south of Ben Lomond, following in the main the iine $r$ the Gramplans, and crossing the Forth at Aberioll, the Teith at Caliander, the Almoni at Crief, the Tay at Dunkeld, the Ericht at Biairgowrie, and proceeding through the hllls of Brae Angus tili ft reaches the great range of the Nounth, then croesing the Dee at Ballater, the Spey at lower Cralgellachie, tili it reaches the Moray Firth at Nairn - this forms what was called the Highiand Line and separated the Celtic from the Teutonic speaking people. Within thle iino, with the exception of the country of Csitbness which beiongs to the Teutonic division, the Gaelic ianguage forms the vernacular of the inhabitants. "-W. F. Skene, Celtic Scothend, e. 2, p. 459.

SCOTCH-IRISH, The.-In 1607, six counties in the Irish province of Uister, formerly be. longlag to the earis of Trrone and Tyrconnel, were conflicated by the English crown. The two earls, who had submitted and had been par. doned, after a long rebellion during the relgn of queen Elizabeth, had now fled from new chsrges of treason, and their great estates were forfeited (see Ireland: A. D. 1559-1803, and 160i-1611). These estates, thus acquired by King Ja:nes, the first of the stuarts, were "parcelled out among a body of Scotch and Engilsh, brought over for the purpose. The far greater number of these piantations were from the fower part of scotland, and became known ps 'Scotch-irlsl.' Thus a new population wrs given to the north of ireiand, which has changed its history. The prorince of Ulster, with fewer naturai advantages than either Munster, Leinsur, or Connaught. be came the most prosperoun industrious snd law. abiding of all Ireiand. . . . But the Protestant population thus transpianted to the north of ireland was destined to suffer many . . . persecutions.

In 1704, the test-oath wss imposed, by which overy one ir. puhlic employment was required to profess Engish prelacy. It was Intended to suppress Popery, but was used by the Episcopal bishops to c zeck' Presbyterisnism. To this was adied burdescome restraints on their commerce, and extortionate rents from thelrland. lords, resuiting in what is known as the Antrim evictions. There had been occasionsle iligrations from the north of Ireland from the plants. tlon of the Scotch, and one of the mlnisters sent over in 1683, Francis Makemie, had orgsnized on the eastern shore of Maryland and in the adjoining counties of Virginia the frst Presbyterisa churches in America. But in the early part of the eighteenth century the great movement began which transported so iarge a portlon of the Scotch-Irish into the American colonies, and, through their influence, shaped in a grest measure the destinies of America. Says the historian Froude: 'In the two years whlch followed the Antrim ovictions, thirty-thousand Protestants left Ulater fur a iand where there was no legal robhery, ay? where those who scwed the seed coul i reap the harvest.' Alarmed hy the leple tion of the Protestant popuiation, the Toleration Act was passed, and by it and further promices of reilef, the ride of emigration was checked for a hrife perlod. In 1728, howevar, it began anew. and from 1720 to 1750 . It was estimated that atont tweive thonsand came nanualiy from C'lster to America.' So many had settied in Pennsyivania before 1720 that Jnmes Lognn, the Quaker president of that colony, expressed his fear that they would become proprietors of the province. $\qquad$ This boid stream of emigrants struck the Amcrican continent mainiy on the eastern border of Pconsyivania, and was, in great measure, turned southwarl through Maryland, Virginia, North Caroilaa, and South Carollan, reaching and crossing the Savannah river. It was met at various points hy connter streams of the same race, which had entered the ce iti. geat through the seaports of the Caroluas aud Georgia. Turning westward the combined food overtlowed the mountains and covered the rich valiey of the Misissippi beyond. As the Puritans or Round-heads of the south, but freed from fanatielsm, they gave tone to its peopie and direction to its history.

SCOTLAND.

The task would de slmost endiess to simpiy call the names of this people [the Scotch-Irish] in the south who have distinguished themseives in the annnls of their mumry."-W. W. Henry, The wouth lrinh of the Evnth (Pruccelings of the Notch-Irish Cingress, 1889) - Thic descendants oi the seotch-irish wre well represcnted in the list of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Ther werc with erarceiy an exception on the side of ihe pntriots during the Americnn Revolution, forming. for their part of the popilation. a gourliy roportion of the military forec empiored. They are to be found in striking numbers in the recoris of our army and navy. in tiose of our le gis. latures and of our courts. Their names stand high among our divincs, teachers. writers, explorers and inventors. Over one-third of the nım of our presidents is cinimed to be of the sco , trish stock, in greater or iess degree of uescent. In an analysts of the races which settied in the Cnited states the Scutch-Irish are credited whti furnishing one-tenth of the famors men of the country. "Fuil credit has been awarded the Roundhead and the Cat aller for their iendershin in our history ; nor have we been nitogetier binin! to the deeis of the Holiander and the Ituruenot : but it is toubtfil if we have wholir realized the importanee of the part played by thint stern and virile people, the Irish whose preachers taught the creed of Knox and Calvin. Theme Irish representatives of the Covenauters were in thic weat almost what the Puritans were In the uorth east, and more than the Cavaliers were in the sonth. Mingled with the descendants of many other races, they nevertheless formed the kernel of the distinctively and Intensely American atock who were the pioneers of our people in their $m$ ch westwarl, the vanguard of the army of fighting settiers, who with axe and rifle won thelr way from the Alleghanies to the Rio Grande and the Pacific.

They . . . mado their abode at the foot of the mountaing, and became the outposts of civilization. . . . In this fand of hills, coveref by unhroken forest, they took root and flourished, stretching $\ln$ a hroad beit from north to south, a shield of sinewy men thrust in between the people of the ceaboard and the red warriors of the wilderness. Ail through this region they were ailke; they had as little kinship with the Cavalier as with the Quaker; the west was won by those who have been rightly calied the Roundheads of the south, the same men who, before any others, declared for American independence. The two facts of most imp ortance to remember in dealing with our ploneer history are, frst, that tise western portions of Virginia and the Caroilinas were peopled by en entirely diferent stock from that which had long existed in the tide-water regiona of those colonies; and, secondiy, that, except for those in the Carolinas who camc from Charieston, the immigrants of this stock were mostiy from the nortt., from their great breeding ground and nursery in western Pennsyivania. That theso Irish Presbrterlar- were a bold and hardy race is proved by their at once pushing past the settled regions, ard piunging into the wilderness us the lealers of tue white advance. They were the first and last set of immigrants to do this; all others have merely followed in the wake of their predecessors. Bnt, indeed, they were fitted to be Americans from the very start; they were kinsfolk of the Covenanters; they deemed it a religious duty to interpret their own Blhie, and heid for a divine right the election of their own clergy. For generations, their whole ecciesiastic and schoiastic systems had been fundamentally dernocratic."-m Roosevelt, The Winning of the West, v. 1, ch.
Also in: J. Phelan, Fint. of Tennesvec, ch. 23. SCOTCH MILE ACT. See BCOTLND: A. D. $1660-1666$.

SCOTIA, The name. See Scortund, The

SCOT:AND.

The name.- "The name of Scotia, or Scotland, whether in Its Latin or its Saxon form, was not appiied to any part of the territory forming the modiern kingdom of Scotland tili towards the end of the tenth century. Prior to that perion it was comprised in the general appeilation of Britannia, or Britain, hy which the whole island was designated in contradistinction from that of Hi beraia, or Ireland. That part of the isiand of Britain which is altuated to the north of the Firths of Forth and Clyde seems indecd to have been known to the Romans as eariy as the first century hy the distinctive name of Caitedonia, and it aiso appears to have lorne from an early period anouncr appellation, the Cetric form of

Which was Alhu, Alba, or Alban, and lts Latin form Alhania. The name of Scotis, however, ras exclusively appropriated to the island of Ireland. Ireland was emphaticaliy Scotia, the 'patria,' or mother-countr; of the Scots; and nithough a cololy of that people had estahished themselves as cariy as the beginning of the sixth century in the western disticts of Scotiand, It Was not tili the tenth century that any part of the present country of Scotland came to be known under that name. From the tesih to the tweifth or thirteentia centurles the name of Scotia, graduaily superseding the oider name of Alhan, or Albania, was confined to a ciritite reariy corresponding with that part of the Lowlands of Scot-

sCOTLAND.

hnd which situated on the north of the Firth of Forth.
Seotha, pri. he three propoeltlons - 1at, That E tenth century, was Ireland, and Irvland aloue. 2 d , That when applled to Scotiand It was consldered a new name superinduced upon the oliter designatlon of Alhan or Albanla; aud, 3i. That the Scotla of the three succeeding centurles was llmited to the distrlets between the Furth, the Spey, aud Drumalban, - lle at the very thresholi of scottlish hlatory."-W. F. Nkene, Celtic Nrothand, r. 1, introd.

The Plets and Scots.-" Casar tell us that the Inhahltants of Britain in his day palnted themselves whth a dyo extmeted from woad; by the tlme, however, of Britlsh Independence under C'araushus and Allectus, in the latter part of the thinl century, the fashlon hall on far fallen off In luman Britaln that the worl ' Plet,' Pleta, or palnted men. had got to mean the peoples beFond the Northern wall.

Now, all these Plets were nitlves of Britaln, and the word Petl is found applled to them for the first thme, in a panegyrie by Enmenlus, In the year 298; but In the year 800 another painted people appeared on the scene. They eame from Ireland, and, 0 distingulsh these two sets of palnted foes foom one another, Latin historians lcft the palated natlves to be called Plctl, as had heen done before, and for the palnted Invaders from Ireland they retalned, untranslated, a Celtic word of the same (or nearly the same) meanlng, namely 'Scottl.' Nelther the Picts nor the Scottl probably owned these names, the former of which is to be traced to Roman authors, whlle the latter was probably glven the Invaders from Ireland by the Bry thons, whose country they erossed the sea to ravage. The Scots, however, did recognize a natlonal nume, which deseriberl them as palnted or tattoned men. . . . Thls word was Crulthnig. which is found applled equally to the paluted jrople of both lslands. . . . The eponymus of all the Piets was Crulthne, or Crulthnechan, and we have a kladred Brsthonle form In Prydyn, the name by whleh Scotland once used to be known to the Kymry. "-J, Rhys, c'rltic Britain. ch. \%. - A difierent view of the origen and slgnittcaticn of these names is malntained by Dr. Guest.-E Guest, Originea C'elticue, r. 2, pt. 1, ch. 1.-Prof. Freeman looks upon the question ns unsettled. He says: "The proper Scots, as no une dentes, were a Gaelle colony from Irelind. The only question is as to the Picts or Cialedoulans. Were they another Gaelle tribe, the restige of a Guelic occupation of the island carlier than the British occupation, or were they simply Brituns wha had never been brought umder the Roman dominlon? The geographical aspect of the cuse favours the former bellef, but the weight of phitologleal cvidence seems to be ou the sille of the latter. "-E. A. Frecman, Hist. of the Norman Cung. of Eng., ch. 2, eect. 1, foot-note.

Alsois: W.F.Skene, Celtic Scotland, bk. 1, ch. 5
A. D. 78-84.-Roman conquesta unaer Agricola. See Buitain: A. D. 78-84.
A. D. 208-211. - Campaigns of Severus against the Caledonians. Sic Britans: A. D. $204-211$.
A. D. $367-370$. - The repulse of the Picta and Scots by Theodosius. See Brirans : A. D. 367-370.

Oth Century, - The Mission of St, Columbu. Get Culumban Chumeh.

67th Centuries. -Part Included is the EasIlsh Klagdom of Northumberland. See Eva. LAND: A. D. 647-648.

7th Century.-The Four Kingdoms.-"Out of thete Celtic and Teutonle muces [Picts. Scots, Britons of Atrathelyde, and Angles] three emerged in that northern part of Britain which eventually became the territory of the subsequent monarchy of Scotlant, four kingtoms whith definlte limits and under wettled forms of government; and as sueh we find them In this begtaning of the 7th century, when the contlint among these races, which succcedted the chpar. ture of the Romans from the Isluna, aui the termination of thelr puwer In Britaln, may be held to have ceased anil the linite of these king. doms to have become settled. North of ths Flrths of Forth and Clyde were the two king. doms of the Scots of Dalriada on the west aad of the Picts on the east. They were separated from cach other by a range of monntains termed by Adamnan the Dorsal ridge of Lritaln, and generaliy known by the name of Drumaban.

The colony [of Dalriada] wos origtnally founded by Furgus'Mor, won of Erc, whic canie whth his two hrothers Loarn and Angus from Irish Dalriada In the end of the Sth cuntury fwe Dairmada], but the true founder of the Dairladlc kingdom war. hls great grandson Apian, son of Gabran. . . The remalning districts north of the Firths of forth and clyde formed the klngdom of the Picts.

The districts south of the Flrths of Forth and Clyde, and ex. tending to the Solway Firth on the west and to the Ty ne on the east, were jossessel hy the two kingdoms of the Britons [afterwaris sitrath. clyde], on the west and of the Angles of Bernlela on the east. The former cxienidel from the river Derwent in Cumberland In the south to the Flith of Clyde In the morth, wheh suparated the Britons from the Scots of Indriada.

The Angles of Berniela
wre now ia firm possession of the distriets extendtur along the eust coast as far as the Flrth of Forth, origlnully oceupled by the Brithan trile of the ottadunf and afterwards lig the Pletm, and .uciuling the countles of Berwick and Roxburgitand that of East Lothian or Huldingtou, the rivers Esk and Gala forming here thele westre antan $\because$

In the centre of Scotland, sected by the w warms of the se: the Clyde, and where the lonndr ${ }^{-}$ kingloms appronch one anothe extending from the Esk to the segsed a very mixal populatio. ale scenc of most of the comblicts betw. ..... four states." About the mide of the oth erninry. Osulu or Oswh, klug of Northumberland (which then Included Berniclas, havhig overcome the Merclans, "extended his sway uot only over the Britons but orer the Iiets aud Sorts; und thus commenecd the dominion of the Angles over the Britons of Alclyde, the Seots of Halrimia, and the southern Piets, which was destinef tu last for thirty ycars. . . . In the meantimo tive litte kingdom of Dalrinda was in a stute of compiete disorganlsation. We find no record of any reai king over the whole nation of the Scots, hat each sepurate tribe secms to have remained isolated from the rest under lts own chlef, white the Britons exerelsed a kind of sway over them, and along whth the Britons they were under subjection to the Angles." In 685, ou an attempt beling made to throw off the yoke of the Angles of Xorthumbris, King Ecgfrid or Ecgirith, 800 of Oawlu, led an army lato the couniry of the Picts and was there de: inted cruahingly and alaln in a conflict atyied variousily the battle of Dunalchen, Duin Nechtaln, and Nechtan's Mere. The elfect of the defeat is thus demertbed by Bede: "'From that tlma the hopesand atrength of the Anglic klugdom begatt to fluctuate and to retrograde, for the Picts recovered tho territory belonglng to them which the Angles had beld, and the scots who were in Britain and a certain part of the Briton regalned their llberty, which they hsive now enjoyed for alout forty-alx yern.'"-W. F. Skene, Celtic Scothand, bt. 1, th. © (e. 1).
8-gth Centurien, - The Kingdom of Scone and the kingdom of Alban.-"The Pletlish liagdom had risen fast to greatness after the rictory of Nectansmere in 685 . In the century which followed Ecgfrith's defeat, Its klage reduced the Scots of Dairiada from nominal dependence to actual subjection, the annexstion of Angus and Fife carried their eastern border to the sea, whlle to the south thelr allance with the Jorthumbrians in the warfare which both waged on the Welsh extended their bounds on the side of Cumbria or Strath.Clyde. But the hour of Pictlah greatness was marked by the cxilnctlon of the Pictish name. In the midst of the 9th century the direct line of thelr royal house came to an end, and the under-king of the Scots of Dairisda, Kenneth Mac Aipla, ascended the Pictish throne in right of bls maternal descent. Forffty yers more Kenneth and his successors remsincel kings of the Picts. At the moment we have reached, however [the close of the Bih cen. turyl, the title passed suddenly away, the tribe which had given Its chlef to thic throne gave lts name to the realm, and 'Plct-land' disappeared from bistory to mako room first for Alban or Al. banis, snd then for 'the land of the Scots.' "J. R. Green, The Conquest England, ch. 4. - It appears huwever that, before the kingdom of Alhan was known, there was a period during whleh the rala estahlished by the successors of Kenneth Hac Alpla, the Scot, oceupylag the throne of the Picts, wss called the klogdom of Scone, from the town which became its capltal. "It was at Scone too that the Coronation Stone was 'reverentig kept for the consecration of the kings of Alban, and of this stone It was belleved that 'no king was ever wont to relgn in Scot. name, sat upon thats atonc on recelving the royal name, sat upon thls stonc at Scone.'. . Of lts lientity with the stone now preserved $\ln$ the coronstlon chalr at Westminster there can he no doubt. It ls an oblong block of red sundstone, some 26 inches long by 16 inches broad, sad 10 it inches deep. . . Its mythic origin Identities it With the stone which Jacob used us a pillow at Bethel. . . . but history knows of lt only at Scone" Some time near the close of the 0 th century " the klngdom ceased to be cailed that of Scone sid tis territory Cruithentuath, or Pictavia lis Latio equivalent, and now became known as the klogdom of Alban or Albania, and Ficts but lis kings no longer called kings of the Picts but tings of Aiban. "-W. F. Skene, Cellic Sculland, bk. 1, ch. 6-7 (v. 1). gth Century, The Northmen on the cossts and in the Isiands. See Nommant-NOMth. Mes: 8-9TH Centuriss.

10-18th Ceaturiee. - The forming of the modern ifingdom and ita relablons to England. -'The fact that the Went-Saxon or Ligileb Klogs, from Eaiwarl the Edder [son of Alfred the Great] onwurils, illi excrelee an external suprenacy over the Celtc pritces of the island is a fact ton clewr to le misunderstood by any one Who looks the evilence on the natter falriy in the face. I lato thetr supretnicy over Scotland from the relgn of Eailward the Elder, because there is no certaln enrlter fostunce of nubnilsslon on the part of the Scots to any Wrest-Saxon King.

The submisslon of Wisles [.A.D. 828] dates from the tlme of Ecgberht; but Jt evidently received a more ilstinct and formal acknowledgement [A. D. g2e ] In the relgn of Eadward. Two years after followed the Commerudation of Scotland and Strathelyde. . I use the fculal word Commendation, because that word secms to me Commendation, because that word seems to me better than any other to express the real state of the case. The trausactlou letween Eadward and the Celtic princes was simply an application, on an International scate, of the generh priaclpia of the Comitatus. A mon 'chose hts Lord'. he sought somic one more powerful than hlmacif, With whom he entered into the relation of Comltatns; as fendal ldras strengthened, he commonly surrenilered his allodlal tund to the Lord so chosen, anil recelved lt back agaln from him on a feudal tenure. Thls was the process of Commendatlon, a process of everylay vecur. rence in the case of privste men chooning thelr Lords, whether those Lords were slmple gentlemon or K'Ings. Aud the process was equilly famlilur among soverelgn princes themselves.

There was nothing unasual or degrading In the relatlon; if Seotland. Wrics, Strnthelyde, commended themselves to the West-Saxon Kilng, thiy only put themselves in the sinie rclatlou to their powerful neighbour in which every contineutal prince stond In theory, and most of them In actnsi fact, to the Enjperor, Lori] of the Worll. . The nrl-inal Commendutlon to tho Eadward of the century, contirmed by a series of acts of shun. ion spread over the whole of the intermediate th is the true justitication for the acts of his gi rious naincsuke fEdward 1. ] in the thlreenth century. The only differeuce Wus that, durlug that time, feutal uotlons had greatly developed ou both shes; the orlglal Combendation of the Scottish King and people to a Lord had ehanged, in the ideas of both sines, into $u$ feudal tenure of the land of the Scottlsh Kinglom. But thts change was slmply the universal change which had come over all such relatlonsevery where.

But it is here need. ful to point ont two other distinct events whlch have oftcu becin confounded with the Commendution of Scothand, a confusion through which the real state of the cuse bas often brenlo mis. understood. . . . It is hard to make per ple understsnd that there have not always beeu Kiug. doms of Eugland and Scotland, with the Tweed and the Cheviot Hills as the boundaries between then. It must be borne in mind that lo the tenth ceutury no such boundarles existed, and that the nanies of England and Scothad were only just beginalng to be known. At the time of the Commendation the country which is now called Scothnd was divided among three quite distinet goverelgatles. North of the Forth aud Clyde relgned the Klig of Scots, an indcpendent Ceitic prince relgning over a Celtle peopic the Plets and Scots, the exact relation between which two tribes is a matter of perfect Indifer. ence to my present purpuse. scouth of the two Feat firths the Sentish namu and the Bcottlsh domlnion were anknown. The soutls-wcat part of mokern sertlame formed part of the Klagiom of the Nitruthelycle Welsh, which up to 02t was, Ilke the Kingalom of the Scota, an Indepencent Celtic jrincipallty. The wouth eastern part of moxle:s scotiand, Lothian in the whle sense of the wori, was purely Engllsh or Danlsh, as in language it remalns to this clay. It was part of the Klagelom of Northumberlani, and it had lis share ln all the revolutlons of tiat Klagdom. In the year gat Lothlnn was ruled by the Janlah Kinge of Northumberland, subject only to that pricarlous superiority on the part of Weasex which dad been hanited on from Eceberht and Elfred. In the sear ©it, when the three Klag. doms, Scotiand, Strathclyde and Dorthumierland, all commended themselves to Eadwand, the relation was somethlog new on the part of Scot. land and Sirathclyde; but on the part of Lothian, as an Integril part of Northumberland, It was only a renewal of the relatlin whlch had been formerly entured into witis Ecgberist and Elired.

The transactions whlch brougit Bcothand, Strathclyde, and Lothian into thelr reiations to ene another and to the Engllali Crown were quite dlatinct from each other. They were es foliows:- First, the Commenda. tion of the King and people of the Scots to Ead. warl in 904. Secondly, the grant of Cumberiand by Eadmund to Ma' uim in 945 .

In 945 the relgalng King [of Cumherland, or Strathciyde] revolted against hls over-lord Eadmund; he was overthrown and his Kiogdom ravaged: it was then granted on tenure of military servic th his kinsnian Malcolm King of Scuts. . . The southern part of this territory was afterwards annexed ta England: the northern part was retained hy the Scottigh Kings, and was gradually, though very gradually, incorporated with their own Kingdom. The distinction between the two states seems to have been quite forgotten ln the 13th century." The third transaction was "the grant of Lothian to the Scottish kings, either under Eadgar or under Cnut.

The date of the grant of Lothian is not perfectly clear. But whatever was the date of the grant, there can be no doubt at ail as to it nature. Lothlan, an integral part of England, could be granted oniy as any other part of Eng. lami could be granted, namely to be held as part of England, its ruler being in the position of an Engllsh Earl.

rl. .

But in such a grant the seeds of separation were sown. A part of the King. dom which was governed by a foreign sovereign, on Whatever terms of clependence, could not long remain In the positlon of a province governed hy an ordinary Eiarl.

That the possession of Lothian would under all ordinary cir. cumstances remain hereditary, must have been looked for from the beginning. This aione wouid distlnguiah Lothian from all other Earidoms. . . . It was then to be expected that Lothian, when once granted to the King of scots, should graduaily be merged in the King. dom of Scotland. But the peculiar and singular destiny of this country could hardly have been looked for. Neither Eadgar nor Keoneth could dream that thls purely Eugllsh or Danish province would become the historical Scotland. The ditierent tenitres of Arntiand and Lothisn os confounded; the Kinge of Scoth, from the end of the eleventh ceatury, became English la mas. nere and language; they were not wlth ut tome pretenslons to the Crown of England, sad nit wlthont some hopes of winning it. They this learnel to attach more and more value to the Eng. llah part of thelr domiaions, and they latroured to aprent lis language and manners over their original Celtle territory. They rehained their ancteut title of Kings of Scots, but they lecane In truth Klage of Engllsh Lathinn anil of Anvil. claed Fife. A state was thus formel, politicsily distinet from England, and which political ctcumstances gradually mole bltterly hontlie to England, a state which Indeed rucaineti a dark and mysterious Celtic background, but which, as It appears In hlutory, is Engllsh In lawn, language and manners, more truly English inleed. fo many renpecta, than England itself remainel after the Normisn Conqueat."-E. A. Frewman, Hist. of the Norman Conquest of Eing. eh. 3. sect. 4.
A. D. 1005-1014. - The kingdom acquires ite finai name.- "The mixed population of lits and Scota had now become to a great extent amalgamated, and under the Influence of the dominant race of the Scote were llentifled with them In name. Thelr power was now of be further consolldated, and thelr influence extended during the thirty gears' reign of a king who proved to be the last of his race, and who was to bequeath the kingdom, under the name of Scotia, to a new llne of kings. This was Jalcolm, the son of Kenneth, wio slew hls predecessor, Kepneth, the mon of Duhh, at Sonzlevalri. With Malcolm tha descendants of Kenneth mac Alpin, the founder of the Acottish dynasty, le. came extinct $\ln$ the male line."-W. F. Stene, Celtic icolland, bk. 1, ch. 8.
A. D. 1039-1054.-The reign of Macbeth or Macbeda. Maicolm was succeeded by his daughter's son. Duncan. "There is little antle. able in his [Duncan's] life but its concluston. He had made vain eflorts to extend his frontlers southward through Northumberland, and was engaged in a war with the holders of the northern independent statea at his death in the rear 1039. . He was slain ln 'Bothgownn,' whir is hei.
be Caellc for 'a smitli's hut.' ? person w. .o slew him, whether with his own hai or not, was Macbeda, the Maarmor of lloss, os of Ross and Moray; the ruler, in short. of the district stretching from the Moray Frith and Loch Ness northwards. The place wbere the smith's hut stood is sali to have ineeu near Elgin. Thls has not been very dlstinctly estalnished; but at ail events it was near if not actually wilthin the territory ruled by Macbeda, and Duncsa was there with aggressive designs. The marmor's wlfe was Gruach, a granddaughter of Kenneth IV. If there was a grandson of Kenneth kllled by Jalcoim, this was his sister. But whether or not she had this inheritance of reveuge, she was, according to the Scots authorities, the representa. tive of the Kcnaeth whom the grand!sther of Duncan had deprived of his throne and his Ife.

The deeds whlch raised Macbeda and his wife to power were not to appearsnce much worse than othera of their day done for slallar ends. However he may have gained hls power, lee exercised it with good repute, arcording to the reports nearest to his time. It is among the Margere.

BCOTLAND, 1000-1188.
mont curfous of the satagoaisms that cometimen aparte the popular opinion of people of mark from maybing poaltively kwown sbout them, thet this mam, lo a manaer sacred to splendid infany, is the trit whow name appearn in the eccirsinutical records both as a klug of Ncotiand sad a b-aefactor of the Church: and in also the Ant who, as king of Scotland, is and by the chronclers to bave offered his arvices to the Bishop of Rome. The ecciesiatical reconlo of St. Sndrews teil how be and bis queru mare erer certain lands to the Cuidees of Lexdievern, ond there is no sucb fact on record of any eariter siap of scotiand. Of inis connection with ifume, It is a question whether bo weut there himself.
uct he sent money there, buwever, was wo resy itori, is as not only to be recomiled hy the insifar authorties, but to be nuticed on the Contloent an a signiacant event. . . . The reign of this Maclecda or Macbeth forms a noticeabie perioxitu our hiftory. Ile had a wider dominam thansny previous rulcr, having commaud over gli the country now known as scotiand, except the Isies and a portion of the Western Ilighiands.

With him, too, ended that mixevi or aiter. native regal surcession which, wh. iter it was sratemstic or followed the law of force, is excerdingly trouhlesome to the inquirer. From Sluebeth downwards. . . the rule of bie. reditary succesaion hoids, at ail events to the extent that a son, where there is one, succeeds to lus fatier. Hence this reign is a sort of turning. polnt in the constitutional history of the Scottisin crown."-J. II. Burton, Miat. of Scolland, r. 1, ch. 10.
A. D. 1060-1co3. - Effect of the Norman Coaquest of Engiand, - Civliization and growth of the Northern Kiagdom. - Reign of Maicoim II?. - "The Norman Conyuest of England produced a great effect upon their uelgh. buurs. In the tirst place, a very great number of the surons who fied frcm the crueity of Wililam the Confueror, retired Into Seotinid, and this had a considerahie effect in civiliziug the south. efo parts of that country; for if the suxons were Inferior to the Normans in arts aud in learning. they were, on the other hand, much supertor to the Scuts, who were a rude and very ignorant people. These exiles were headed and accom. pauied by what remained of the Saxom royai family, sud particulariy by a young prince daned Eitgar Etheilng, who was a near kinsman of Eifwand the Confessor, and the heir of hils throne, hut dispossessed by the Xorman Cou queror. This prince brought with him to Seotland two sisters, named Margaret and Christian. They were recelved with much kinduess hy Malcuim IIl., called Canmore [Ceannore] for Great ifead), who remembered the assistance which he had received from Edward the Conftewir.

Ile himself married the Princess Margaret (1008), and made her the Queen of scutiand. . When Malcoim, King of Scot. and, was thus connected with the Suxon royal family of Engiand, he began to think of chasing away the Normans, and of restoring Edgar Etheling to the English throne. This was an enterprise for which be had nut sufficient tength; but he made deep and bioody inroads 3t, the northern parts of Engiand, and hrought Way so many captives, that they were to be lound form'oy years afterwards in every Scoi. tish village asy, in every Scottish bovel. No douht, the number of Sezons thus iatroduced Into Scotiand teafed much to Improve and civil. tae the manner of the people... Nut oniy the Suxons, but afterwardis a number of the Nor. maus themmeives, came to settle in ficotiand, and were weleomed by King Malcolm. He wai deairuis to retain these brave men in bis service, and for that purpowe he gave them great grants of land, to the beld for military services; and mout of the Scottish nobility are of Norman descent. And thus the Feudal System was introduced Into Srutiand as well as Engiand, and Wrot on gradunil! wrining strength, till it be. caure the general law of the country, as Indeed it Wis that of Furope at lurge. Matenim Canmore, this increming lu power, sad ohtaining recenfuscementin of warlike aud civilized subjecta, isegan greatiy to eninge dis dominions. At trit in had resided simost entirely in the province of Fife, aui at the town of Dunfremine, where there are stili the ruins of amali tower which served him for a paiace. But ns he found his power Increase, he ventured across the Frith of Forth, and took jussession of Eitinhurgh and the surrounding country, whleh had hitherto been accounted part of England. The great streugth of the custle of Eilinhurgh, situaterl upon a iolty rork, lut hilin to choose that town frequentiy for his restilence, on that in time it becane the metropolis, or cialef city of scotiand. This king Ilaleolm was a hrave and wise prince, though without educatiom. He often made war upon King Wilian the Couqueror of Englund, und upou bls son and suecemour, Wilitam, who, from hif complexion, was cailod Whilian Rufus, that is. IRed Wiliinm. Malcoim was sometimes beaten in these wars, but he was more frequentiy suc. ecasful: and nut oniy madie a complete conginest of Lothian, but threatened aiso to possess him. self of the great English province of Sortinumheriand, which he frequently invaded." Maicoim Conmore was killed in hattle at Ainwick Castio (1043), during one of his invasions of Englieh territory, - Sir W. Scott, Tistes of a Grandjiftist (Scolhud); abridged by E., Ginn, ch. 4
Also IN: J. H. Burton, Hiat. of Scotland, r. 1, ch. 11.
A. D. 1093-1153.-Succensora of Malcola 111. - The reigu of David 1.-His civilising work and infuence.-"Six sons and two daughters were the oflspring of the marriage between Malcoim and Margaret. Edward, the eldeat. perished with his father, and Ethelred, created Alhbot of Dunkeid and Eari of Fife, appears t have survivedi his parents for a very short tims Edmund died In an Englisit ciolster, a penitrut and mysterious reciuse; Eigar, Alexander, and David, lived to we $\therefore$ in succession, the crown of Scotiand. Of the two daughters, Editha l ceame the queen of Heary of Engiand. Tirce parties may be sald to have divided Scotish. I at the period of Maicolm's death." One of these parties, Inspired with jealousy of the Eng. Iish influence which had come lnto the kingdom With queen Slargaret, succeeded in raising Donaid Banc, a hrother of the late king Jlaicoim, to the throne. Donald was soon dispiaced by Edmund, who is sometimes sald to have been an Hiegitinate son of Maicoim ; and in $109{ }^{\circ}$ Edmund was dethroned by Edgar, the ain of Maicolm and Margaret. Edgar, dying in $110 \%$, was succeeded hy Alexander I., and he, in 1124, by David L. The reign of David was contemporary Whth the darls and troubled tlme of Stephen In Eaglaad, and he took an unfortunete part In the etrusele between Stephen and the Empress Matilia. sc.Tering a drendiful iefeat In the famous Battle of the Btandand (ee Btandand. Batple of). But "the whole of the ne"th of Eaglanl beyoud the Teen" wan "for geveral yeart . . . under the intueace, If not under the direst authority of the sevtinh king, and the comparative or refily of this part of tive king. dom, contranting strongly wltit the anarchy pre. valiing la every utier ynarter, matumaliy inelíned the pupulation of the sorthern countics to look witli favour upon a continuance of the Acollinh connectlon. . . Purmulog the poilicy inaugurated by bie mother [the Engiles prinream Mar. garet] . . . . he eneouraged the ruwirt of forcign mercinate to the porta of Ncotinul, Inauring to native tiaders the aunc advantagen whileh they had enjogenl during the refgn of this fatiar ; whilint he famlinurizel his Garelie nobleng in thels wttendance upon the ruyal conirt. whith habits of luxury nul magnifterere, remittiag tirse yenrs' rent and ifilute - according to the arcuint of his eontemporary Mainueghary - to ali his penple whon were willing tid Iniprave ilvelr ilweilfoges. th diress with grouter cligunee, and to nef of ifving. Evern fut tix occuputhat of ins lefmare mombenta lie seems to hase windul to ex. erclase a softening iutluence over his countrymen, for, like uniny umen of his character. he was fond of garienilng, and tie deigited In luiowirl. nating fils penple in the pencefol arta of horti. cuiture, unt in the mysterten of jhanting umi of grafting. For similar reamons ise moluitusly prometerl tite improvensent of agriculture, if mituer. proplans, ifrocted inereasel attentlon to It: for the Scots uf that perlix] were still a pastoral, and. in mone rexpects, a migratory feople.

Havid lopend to convert the lower oriliers Into a more metifed amel ludustrious purulation; whilist tue rajulnod the higher elasmes tu 'live like mollonimeu' upon thelr iwn estates, and not to wate the firopraty of their nolghhours.
 legath, rere lanig. to repolace tite arsplicr bollilages of wowd and watifes rulfely fortitol by warthworks: andi towns rapilly grew up amind the Foyal castles and atwit the prinelpal localltes of conime rece.

The prosprevity of the eountry during the last fiftern years of hls refgu [ife dheil In llitis] contraster! strongly with the miseries of Fingland maler the disastrous rite of stephen;

 enurt of siothudes king resorted the knglits and umbleg of forcign origh, whom the conmonthand of the Conthent liad litherto drlvern to take refinge In England."-E. W. Rolnertson, Scotlomi umler her Eirrly Kingm. r. 1, ch. 6-N.
A. D. $1153 .-$ Accession of Malcolm IV.
A. D. 1165 . - Accession of William IV. 1 The Lion).
1). 1174-1189. -Captivity of William the Lon, his oath of fealty to the English king. and his release from it. - In 11\%t, in the orent slon of a general romalimet of releliton againat Heary II., contriverl at Paris, headed by hls whe and sons, and joined hy great numbers of the nobles thmughout hls domlalons, loth in England aud In France. Wilitam the Llon. klog of Scotland, was Induced to assist the rebellion hy the promice of Northumberland for bimanif Ifary wan In France uutil July, 117t, whon $h$ was warued that " only hla own promence could retricve Eaglaui, where acotch army was pouting in from the morth, whlle thath of 1 thas. tinglon hewled in army In the mlidiand countles. and the yount prince was preparing to hrias over freeh forcee from Craveinem. Ifonry ercesel the rhannel in a storm, ami, liy wivie of - Norman uthop, proceeded at once (1) do fumance at lecket's shrine. On the day of his bumillation, the srotch king. Wililam the i.hn. was surprised at Alawick and capturcil. This. In fact, ended the war, fur David of Iluntingina was foreed to return Into Boothand, where the old fead of Giari aul Bnxon trad brokevomit. The Eaglinh relx-is purchamed peace by a frompt autmimalon. In trea than a niontis flenry was nile to leave Englami to itapif." The k'ing of surut. land was taken as a prisoner to Falilate, In Nop. mandy, where be wan detained for severil months. " By alvice of a deputation of stonth prelates and tiarons lie at last couseuteri to wh. si leraty to llenry as this liege lowl, and tu ito porvisional humage for hie mon. Illw chicf vavils guaranteral this engagement: Ionatagex wrim given; and English garrisona receivetl futo the Sicutch towas, Joxhargh, Berwlek, atu! Eilin. burgh. Next yenr [1]is] the treaty wisw miknuly tatitied at loors."- C. 11. Pearmon, llist. of : ing during the tiarly und Villille ilgen, r. 1, rh. 31.This engagenuent of fenity on the part of Willim the Lling is often referted to as the Trouty of Fulaime. Fourteen yenrs aftorwarals, when creded to the throne, the Nooth king w:s. . . golved from it. "Eariy In Dervmin'r [11* 1 ]. while Itlctard was at Canterbury on lif way to Whitian the Lion came to visit him, mul a har. gula was struck to the satisfactlon if twith pars ties. IRichard recelved from W'ilitan a shan ul 10.100 marka, and hite homage for his Finslivh estutes, as they had veren deedi liy him beobluer Maieolin: In return, he remporal to him the eastles of Inoxhurgh and Berwick, and releamal him and his leeirs for ever from the homage for scotland itself, rnforeed by llenry ln 118.."K. Sorgate, Einglind unter tho lugeris hings, e. ©, ch. $\overline{\text {. }}$

Alomin: IN: IBurns, Lentfish Hiur of ludeivno denfe, r. 1. ch. 12.
A. D. 1254 ,-Accession of Alexander il.
A. D. 1249.-Accesion of Alexander III.
A. D. 1263.-The Norvegian invasion and the Battle of Largs. - The western flighlands and Islanila forment the orlginal territury of the sents. But we have meen buw the Norwergans and Danes, seizing Suetland and brkbey, sprad themselves orer the western Irihinelign, even as far south as Man, thereby putting an rad, fir 30 years, to the interconimunlrainu betwea the mainlands of scotiand mat irdami. These Isinnds long forminil a sort of marlime com. munlty, sometimo:s under tise getive authority of the kings of Norway, sometimes connecterl with the Norweglar suttlers in Ireland-Ustmen, as they were called; sometimes partlaily riled by klngs of Man, but more generally sulbject to chieftains more or less powerful, who, when opportunlty offered, marle encroachments even on the malnland. . . . Alexander II. stems to bave determined to bring this sort of interregnum to a rine, and he wes engaged to an expedition for that purpoee when he died at the Ittile Inland of Eerrefn, near Oban. Illm mon, as he at vanced to manood, appearn to have revivel the lifee of completely reannezing the Isinnds. Complaint Fref made by the islander to Ilaco, king of sortsy, of argremana by the earl of lhem mad other malnand magnates, In the latereat of the thar of scota; and liaco. ho was at once a powreful and a despotic numarih, remolved to vindlcme his clalms as sitzeraln of the inles. Ilaco sccoriliggly tited out in aplenthl fleet, con. foting of 100 vescels, montly of anfye alze, fitly equipjred, and crow ded whth gallant eotdlers and seamea.

In the 10th of Jitly, 1983, 'the mighle armament that erer left the shores of Surway malled from the linven of llerlover. The laland chleftalna, Magnux of the Orknegs, others, met the trinmphust Hert, 'tllag Its toumbern an it advaicerl nawnget Mont of the chlefs made thele penct thungh there were excephlions. lalunde.
til IIneo: se lıval. log thert entered the clyde, numil. Is by this theres many as 160 whipm. I mabiation of (th) wall proveederl stp laxhlong: the' 'rex en drow taunched on Loch fommol, and spremil their pavages, hy fire and awoml, over the lemunx and sitringevilre.

The alarm spremd ovir the , lullige country, and prabtully a scoitivin srat, wegni to gather on the Ayrmilire shle of the Arlii. Whether voisularlly or from atreves of weather, whate portlon of tive Norweghans made a landing near large, on the itymblre coant, eppulte to Bute. Thexe ferlntithacked by the *rots, reinforcemonte wore labded, and a theme but desultury strugigle was kejp up, whth varylog suceses, foum morning till bight. Mnuy of the shife wero Jriven anhure. Mlont in the SiorWeglans who had lmuded werpe vila. The remaiberer of the Hext was werloundy dasmangol, Hereachig Its course uns mig the Jolames, on the ehth of thetolere It reacluol Kirkwall In Ork-

 Such nes tice result of un expedtlosi whitele hat *it out with will fulr proniwes of maceess, "W. Buras, The Nottixh Wirre of fulr memelenes, et 13 (r. 11.-" In the Nor amuly our famo Battle of latige nukes mna.. Sigure, or alin ne at all, imonay llakutis battles and fora.
(If largs there ls no mogthon shatevar the other evldence, Ilakon dhi $1: 11 \cdot 1$ them. land and very certaluly 'retiritse to bif sums,' as in

 of those willd comets $\because$ riltugither cradlle, as rery speclally. The Norse llecords or siagas ary merely lin lost many of hils shlps hy the tempests, and many of his men by fand righting In rarfous parts, - faclily luclidlag laargs, no doube, winich was the last of them misfortunes to him. . To thils day, on a little plaln to the lrisbire the village, now town, if Largs, In Arfhire, there are secn stone cairns and monumental heaps, and, untll whthin $n$ ecntury ago, one huge, solitary, upright stone; stlli mutely lestifying to a battie there-altogether clearly to this battle of King llakon's; who by the Nonse records, too, was in these nelghbourhoods at that came dato, and evilently lo an af sive, high hind of bumour. "-T, Carlyle, Eurily Einge of Noricay, eA, 15.

ALen IN: J. II. Burton, Miat of Ecothind, oh. 15 (e. 2).-Hee, slso, Nonmasi - Nontumex: 8 -

A. D. 1266,--Acquisleton of the Wagtarn Jalanda. -Three yrura after the bntlie of larks. "In 1\%6A, i, num IV., the new K'sg Iof Ninr way], by format trinty ceded to the Kink of Gcotis Man and all the Western lates, peedaltw reserving Orkney and dietinnd to the cruwn Norway. On the other Inand, the King of Scota agreed to pay down rangom for them of a thotwand marks. nind an aanual rent of a hinn. ilred marke."-J. II. Iurtou, Jinet. of Noillendi, cis. 15 (r. S)
A. D. 1286, -Accesalon of Quaan Marcarat (called The Maid of Norway) who dlad on her way to Scotland In 1290.
A. D. is90-1305.- Dath of the Mald of Norvar, - Relga of John Balliol,- Endlah conqueat by Edward P. mplolta of Wallace. - Aleannder III. of so only all Infane gru- । 1, lying in 1548, left crown. This was th. , dying in io Inberti hila ufter of Jorway and dend known in Scottlsh history as the Jialid of Nop. Wigy, was inetrothed fil her alxth year to Prlace Eilward of England, mon of Eslwird l., athe nil lowked promingigg for an enrly tumbon of the seot. than and Einglixh crowns. "Jhit thls project was abrujelly fritwtruted by the edildis death (an her voyage to Ncotlaml, and with the rise of $\cdot$ lalm. mut nfter clalmant of the vacume throme Eilwaril Was drawn fato far other relathong to the Souttisia realm. Of the iflerteen pretonders to the throsise of Seotiand, only then eonld ine regarded is serfous rhinants. $13 y$ the eviluctiont of the llace of Willians the Llon, the rlght of menerngon pasted to the dangiters of his hrother Davhil. T'ee claling of John Ihalibol, land of Gallonay newteri int his descont from the elilent of these: that of Joikert Bruce, Iard of dnomimiale, on his lesarcat from the meconl; that Gf John Ilastliggs. Lurl of Shergavemny. on hls descent from the thirul. . . Ali the rights of n feudal amzeraln W. ee at once nssumed by the Fingllsh Khing the enterctilnto the mosaession of the conntry as into thut of a dlspute-d tief to be' leeld by lis overlord till the dispinte was setiled.

Scotland was thins redluced to the sulijectlon wheleh slie had experiewad under lleury 11.

Th e commissloners whon he named to report on the clalms to the throne were malnty scotch; a proposal for the partitlon of the renim anong the clalmants Was rejected as contriry to Scoteli law, and tho chain of Bullion as representatlve of the eller brunch was tinuily preferted to that of his rivals. The curtes were nt once dellvered to the new monarih, und Batllol dul homage to Edwnrd wllh full aeknowledgment of the servlces due to hlon from the renlm of scotland. For a time there was peace." Hint, presently, Edruard mutle clntms upon the siroteh nobles for service in his forelgn wurs which were resented and dlafegariled. Ile also asserted for hls courts a rlylit of hearing appenis from the Scottlsh trilmuais, whlch was angrily denled. Barons ata.l people were provoked to a hostilliy that forced fatliol to challenge war. He obtained from the pope absoluton from his oath of fealty int lite entered Into a secret alliance Fith the king of France. In the spring of 1296 Edward in vaded Scotland, carried Bervick hy storm, slaughtered 8,000 of its clitizens, defeated the Bcots with great slaugh. ter at Dunbar, occupied Edlnhurgh, Stirilng and Perth, and recelved, in July, the surrender of Ballioi, who was sent to imprisonment ln the Tower of London. "No further punishment, lowever, was exacted from the prostrate reaim. Edward slmply treated it as a fief, and declared Its forfelture to be the fegal consequence of Baiifol's treason. It lapsed in fact to the overiord, aud lis earis, barons and gentry swore homage in Parllament at Berwick to Edward as their klug

The government of the new depenklug
dency
at th ncy was Intrusted to Warenne, Eari of Surrey, at the bead of an English Council of Regency.

The disgraceful suhmlssion of their lcaders brought the people themselves to the front.
Thia genlus of an outlaw knlght, Willian Wai lace, saw in thelr smouldering discontent a hope of freedom for hls country, and hls daring ralif on outiylng partles of the Engllsh soldlery roused the country at last Into revolt. Of Wallace him. self, of his life or temper, we know little or nothing; the very traditlons of hls glgantic stature and enormous strength arc dim and unhlstorical. But the instlact of the Scotch people has gulded it arlght in choosing Wallace for lts nationai hero. He . . called the people itself to arms." At Stlrling, in September, 1297, Wallace caught the Engllsh ariny in the midst of its passage of the Forth, eut half of it ln pleces and put the remainder to flight. At Fal. klrk, in the followlng July, Edward avenged himself upon the forces of Wallace with terrible slaughter, and the Scottish leader narrowly es. caper. In the struggle which the Scots still maintained for several years, he seems to have borne no longer a promineut part. But when they sulimitted, in 1308. Wallace refused Edward's offered amuesty; he was afterwards captured, sent to London for trial, sad executed, his head being placed on London Bridgc, accordlng to the barbarous custom of the tlme.-J. R Green, Short IIist. of the Einglish People, ch. 4, sect. 3.

Aiso is: J. H. Burton, Hist. of Scotland, ch. 15 and 18-22.-C. H. Pearson, ITist of Ehg. during the Early and Midlle Ages, t. 2, ch. 12-13
A. D. 1305-1307. -The rising under Robert Bruce.-A fter the submission of Scotland ln 1303 , King Edward of Englaud "set to work to connplete the union of the two kingdoms. In the lueantlme Scotland was to be governed by a Licutenant alded by a counell of barons aud churchmen. It was to be represented in the Engllsh pariament by ten deputles, - four churchmen, four harons, and two menibers of the commons, one for the country north of the Firths, onc for the south. These members at. tended one parlament at Westminster, and an ordinance was lssued for the government of Scothand. . . . But the great dificuity in dcaling with the Scots was that they never knew when they were conquered, and, ust when Edward hoped that his scheme for union was earried out, they ruse in arms once more. The leader thls time was fRobert Bruee, Lord of Annandale. Earl of Carrick lu right of hls mother, and the grandson and helr of the rival of Balllol. Ile had jolned Wallace, hut liad agaln sworu fealty to Edward at the Conventlon of Irviuc, and had sluce then recelved many favours from the English king. Bruce slgned a bood with Wlliam Lamberton, Blehop of St. Andrews, who had aiso been one of Wallace's supporters. In this bond each party swore to stand by the other in ail his undertakings, no matter what, and not to act without the knowledge of the other.

This bond became known to Eilwand: and Bruce, afrald of hls anger, fled from London. to Dumfries. There in the Church of the Grey Friars he had an intervlew with John Courn of Badenoch, called the Red Comyn, who, rfter Ballof and his sons, was the next luir to the throne.

What passed between them rannot be certalniy known, as they met alone "-bit Comyn was slaln. "By thia murder aul narilege Bruce put hlmself at onee out of the nale of the law and of the Church, but hy it he became the nearest helr to the crowu, after the Balliols. Thls gave him a great hohl on the people, whose falth iu the virtue of hereditary succession was strong, antl on whin the English yoke welghed hearily. On March : 1306, Bruce was erowned [at Scontr] with is newr an imltatlon of the old ceremonies as coulit be compassed on such short notice. The actual crowning was done hy Isalella, Countess of Buchan, who, though her husbial was a Comyn, and, as sueh, a sworn fore of Bruce. eame seeretly to uphold the right of her own family, the Macdufts, to place the crown on the licad of the King of Scots. Edwirdidetermined thls time to put down the Scots with rigour.

All who had taken any part in the murder of the Retl Comyn were denouncedi as triturs, and death was to be the fate of all pursman taken in arins. Bruce was excommunieated by a special hull from the Pope. The Countess of Buchan was confined in a room, made like a cate, in ove of the towers of Berwick Castle. Ont of Kiug Robert's sisters was condemned to a liku muishment. llis brother Nigel, his brother in-law Christopher Seaton, and threc other nobhes were taken prisoners, and were put to death as trai. tors. . Edward this time madc greater preparatlons than ever. All classes of his subjects from all parts of his dominious were invitell to foln the army, and he cxhorted his som, Edwand Prince of Wales, and 300 newly created knights. to win thelr spurs worthily in the relluetion of contumacious Scotland. It was well for Scotland that he did not live to carry out his vows of vengeance. He dled at Burghou the Sands, July 30th. II is death proved a turuiug point in the history of Scotlaud, for, though the English still remained in possesslon of the strongholds, Elward II. took no effeetive steps to crush the rebels. He only brought the army risen by his father as far as Cumuock in Ayrshirc, and retreated wlthout dolog anythiug."- M. Micarthur, IIist. of Scothenl, ch. 3.

Aiso in: Sir W. Scott, Hist. of Erothand - 1, ch. 8-9.-W. Burns, Scottish Wir of Indeln mither, c. 2, ch. 21-22.
A. D. 1314.-The Battle of Bannockburn."It is cxtrenicly difficult to give distinctuese and chronological sequence to the erents in seotfand from 1306 to 1310: the conditions are indeed antagonlstic to distinctness. We have a people restless and feverishly exclted to riforts for thelr llberty when opportunity should come, but not yet cmbodled in open war aguinst their invaders, and thercfore dolug uothing distinct enough to hold a place la history. . . . The other prominent feature in the bistorical condlthona was the new-made king [Robert Bruce], a tall strong man, of comely, attractive, and commanding countenance. - He is ateady and tanguive of temperament; bis good apirito and good-humour never fali, and in the mldst of misery and peril be can zeep up the spirits of his followers by chivalrous atories and pieasant banter. The Engilish were driven out of the atroas places one by one-sometimes by the people of the district. We hear of the faif of Edlaburgh, Roxhurgh, Linlithgow, Perth, Dundee, Ruthergien, and Dumfries.

8COTLAND, 1814.

Bensociburn.
SCOTLAND, 1814-1828.

In the beginalag of the year 1809 scotland wat so far coasolldsted as to be getting Into a place in Europesa diplomacy. The King of France advised his son-in-law, Edward II., to agree to a souffrance or truce with the Scots. . . . While the negotlatloas with France went on, countenance still more important was given to the new order of thlngs at home. The clergy in councii set forth thelr adberence to King Robert, with the reasoas for 1 l . This was an extremeiy lm . portant matter, for it meant, of course, that the Church would do its best to protect him from all ecclesiastical risk arising from the death of Comya. A crisls came at last whlch roused the Government of England to a great effort. After the fortresses had failen one by one, Stlrling Castie still held out. It was besleged by Edward Bruce [brother of Robert] before the end of the year 1313 . Mowhray, the governor, stipulatell that he would surrender if not relieved before the Feast of St. John the Baptlst in the following Ypar, or the 24th of June. The taking of this fortress was an achie vement of whicti Kiag Edward [I.] was prouder than of anything else he luad done in the invaslons of Scotiand.

That the crownlng aequlsition of their mighty hing shouid thus be allowed to pass away, and stamp emphaticaily the utter loss of the great conquest he bad made for the English crown, was a consummation too humbilating for the chivalry of England to endure without an eflort. Stirling Castic must be refieved before St. John's Day, and the relieving of Strring Castle meat a thorough lnvasion and resubjection of Scotland." On both sides the ntmost efforts were made, - the one to reileve the Castle, the other to strengthen Its besiegers. "On the :3d of June [1314] the two armies were visible to each other. If the Scots lad, is it was said, letweea 30,000 and 40,000 men, it was a great force fur the country at that tlme oo furnish. Laviking at the urgency of the measures taken to dhaw out the fendal array of Enghand, to the presence of the Welsh and Irish, and to a large londy of Gascons and other foreigners, it is easy to be beli. ved that the army carried into Scot. land aighth le. as it was salid to be, 100,000 in all. The efticieut force, however, was in the mounted men. and these were supposed to be about equal to number to the whise Scottish army." The scots accupied a postion of great atrength aut adrantage (on the hanks of the Bannock Burn), whleh they had shiffulty 1 lm proved ly houeycomhing all the flat ground with The En piths, to make it Impassable Cor cev valry. The English attacked them at daybreak on the 2tth of 1rne, and suffered a most lgnomiulons and nwful defeat. "The end was rout, confused and bopeless. The pitted fleld adided to the dis. asurs, fur though they avoided it la their ad. vance, many horsemen were premed into it to the retreat, and fioundered among the pltfelle. Through alf the blistory of her great wari before and since, never did England sufer a bumiliatlon deep enough to approach even comparison with this. Besides the inferiority of the victorious army, Bannockburn is exceptionai among battles hy the utter helplessnens of the defeated. There seems to have been no raliying point anywhere.

None of the parts of that mighty host could keep together, and the very chaos among the multitudes around seems to have perpiexed the ondery army of the Bcots. The foot. soidlers of the Enghish army seem simply to have dispersed at all points, and the ilttle sald of them is painfully suggestive of the poor wanderera having to face the two alternatives-starvatlon in the wilds, or death at the hands of the peasantry. The cavalry fied right out towards England.
Stirling Castle was delivered up in terms of the stlpulation."-J. H. Burton, Hist. of Scotland, $\mathbf{v}$. 2, ch. 23. - "The defcated army .. ieft dead upon the fleid about 30,000 men, Inciudlag 200 knights and 700 esquires."-W. Burns, Scottioh War of Indepundence, ch. 23 (r. 2).
Also in : P. F. Tytier, Mist. of Scotland, v. 1, ch. 3.
A. D. 1314-1328. - After Bannockburn, The consequences of the battle in difierent views.- "A very generai impression exlsts, especially among Englishmen. that the defeat at Bannockburn put an end to the attenıpted subjugaton of Scotland. Thls ls a mistake.
No doubt the defeat was of so decislve a character as to render the final resuit all hut certain. But it required many others, though of a minor kind, to hring ahout the convietion described hy Mr. Froude [that the Scoteh would never stion to the supremacy lnflleted upon Wales]: and it was jet fourteen long years till the treaty of Northampton."-W. Burns, The Scotlish Wiar of Independence, ch. 2t (r. 2). - No defeat, however erushing. ever proved half so injurious to any country as the victory of Bannockhurn did to Scotland. This is the testimony borne by men whose patriotism cannot be called in question.

It drove from Scotland the very clements of its growing civilization and its materiai wealth. The artlsans of North Britain were at that thme mostly English. These retired or wero driven from Scotland, and with them the commereiai importance of the Scottlsh towns was lost. The estates held hy Englishmen in Scotland were contiscated, aud the wealth which through the hands of these proprietors had found its way from the southern parts of the kingdom and fertilized the more harren soil of the north, at once ceased. The hitgher and more cultured clergy were Engilsh; these retired when the severance of Scotiand from England was effected, and with them Scotthsh scholarship was ainest extingulshed, and the hudding literature of the north disappeared. How calanitous was the period which followed upon Bannockhurn may be partlaily cstimated hy two signiticant facts. Of the six prinees who had nominal rule in scot land from the death of Robert III. to James ViI., not one died a naturai death. Of the ten kings Whose names are entered on the roll of scottish history from the Ueath of Rohert Bruce, seven came to the throne whilst minors, and James $I$. wass detained in England for nimeteen years. The coutry during these fong minorities, and the time of the captivity of James, was exposed to the strife sommonly attendant on minorities. The war commenced by Bruce ingered for simost three centuries, either in the shape of formai warfare prociaimed by heraids and hy the ceremonials usuaily ohserved at the beginning of nationai strife, or in the informal but equaily destructive hostilities which neighbours induige in, and which partake of the hitternces of civil war.

For three centuries the lands south of the Tweed, and aimost as far as the Tyne at its mouth, were exposed to the censeless ravages of moss-troopers. . . . For a whilie men were kiiied, and women outraged and mirdered, and ehidiren siain without pity, and houses piundered and then hurnt, and cattie swept of tite grazing lands between Twecd and Tyne, until none cared. uniess they were outiaws, to occupy any part of the country within a night's ride of the borders of Scotiand. The sufferers in their turn soon learned to recognize no law save that of might, and avenged their wrong by inflicting like wronge upon others; and chus there grew up aiong the frontiers of either country a gavage population, whose occlupation was murder and plunder, and whose sole weaith was what they had ohtained hy :iolence.

The wnr, indeed, which has been cnlied a war of independence, and filis so iarge a part of the annais of Engiand and Scotiand during the Mididie Agea, was successfui so far aa its main object was concerned, the preservation of power in the hands of charbarous chieftains who neitiner feared the king nor pitied the people'; the war was a miserable failure if we regard the weil-being of the peopie themseivea and the progress of the nntion."-W. Denton, England in the Fifteenth Century, pp. 68-78.- On the other side: "It [the battle of Bannockburn] pitt an end for ever to ali hopes upon tite part of Enginad of accontplisling the conquest of her sister country. . . . Nor have the consequences of thia victory been partiai or confined. Their duration throughout succeeting ecnturiea of Scottish ilistory and Scottish liberty, down to the hour in which this is written, cannot be questionci; and without lannching out into any inappropriate fieid of historical apcculation, we have oniy to think of the most obvious consequences whieh must have resuited from Scotiand becoming a conquered province of Engiand; nad if we wish for proof, to fix our eyes on the present condition of Ireiand, in order to feei the reaiity of ail that wo owe to the victory at Bannockburn, and to tho memory of auch men as Brace. Randoiph, and Dougins. "- P. F.Tytier, Ifist. of Sothond, e. 1, ch. 3. - It is impossible, even now, after the iapse of more than 570 years, to read any account of tint hattle - or stili more to visit tite fleid - without emotion. For we must remember ail the poiitieai nnd sociai questions witich depended on it. For goori or for evil, tremendoua issuea foilow on the gain or on the loss of nationai incicenendence. .. Where the secds of a strong nati nal civilisation, of a strung national ciaracter, and of inteliectuai weaith iave been deepiy sowa in any human soil, the preservation of it from conquest, and from invasion, and from foreign rule, is the essential concition of its yleiding its due contribution to the progress of the world. Who, then, can compute or reckon up the debt which scotiand owes to the few and gaiiant men who, inspired by a spieadid courage and a nobie faith, stood by The Bruce in the War of Independence, and on June 24, 1814, taw the armies of the invader dying down the Carse of Stiring y"The Duke of Argyli, Scotland as it ras and wit is, 0. 1, ch. 2.
A. D. 1326-1603. - The formation of the Scottish Parlinment. - "As many causes con. trihuted to hring governnient earlier to perfec. tion in Engiand than in Batiand; as "e rigour of the feudai institutions abated sooner, and Its defects were suppiled with greater fallity in the one kingdom tian in tise other; Engiand led the way in ail these cianges, and hurgesses and knights of the shire appeared in the parliaulents of that nation, before they were hearil of in ours. Burgesses were first admitted into the Scottish pnrilarients hy Robert Bruce [A. D. 132t]]; and in the preamhle to the iaws of Hobert iil. ther are ranked smong the constituent members of that assemhiy. The iesser harons were indebted to James I. [A. D. 1427] for a statute exempting tiem from personai attendance, anti permitting them to eiect representatives: tise exemption was cageriy faid hoid on, hut the priviiege was so inttic valued that, except one or two instances, it iay neglected during one hundredi and sisty years; and James VI. first ohilged them to send representatives reguiariy to parliament. A Scottisin parifament, then, consiated anciently of great harons, of ecciesiaatics, aud a few representatives of boroughs. Nor ware these divided, as in Engiand, into two houses, hut composed one assembiy, in which the iorl chanceiior presided.

The great barons, or ioria of parliament, were extremeiy few; even so iate as the beginning of the reign of James VI. they nmounted only to 53 . The ecciesiastics equniled them in number, and, being devoted implicitly to the crown, . . . rendered ail hopea of victory in any struggie deaperate. $\qquad$ As fur back as our records enabie us to trace the constltution of our pariiaments, we find a committee disthguished by the name of lords of artieles. It was their husiness to prepare and to digest ali matters which were to be iaid before the parliament. There was rareiy any husiness introduced into parilament hut what had passed through the channel of this committee. . . . This committee owed the extraordinary powers vested in it to the military genius of the aneicnt nobles, too impatient to suhmit to the drudgery of civil business. . . The iords of articles, then, not only directed ail the proceedings of pariiament, but possessed a negative hefore debate. That committee was chosen and constituted in such a manner as put this vaiuahie privilege entireiy in the king's hands. It is extremeiy prubnble that our kings once had the soie right of nominating the iords of articies. They came afterwards to be elected hy the pariiament, and consisted of an equal number out of each estate."-W. Robertson, Mist. of Scothand, bk. 1 .
A. D. 1328.-The Peace of Northampton -in 1327 King Edward III. of Engiand col. lected a spiendif army of 60,010 men for his irst campaign againat the Scots. After several weeks of tiresome marching and countermarching, in vain attempts to hring the agile siects to an engagement, or to stop the boid mavages of Inougias and Randoiph, who ied them. the young king absadoned his undertaling in disgust. He nest "convoked a pariament at York, in which there appeared a tendency on the part of Eng.

SCOTLAND, 1328

War
soth Edward IIL.
SCOTLAND, 1832-1838.
land to concede the main points on which proposals for peace had hitherto failed, by acknowledging the Independence of Scotland and the legtimate soverelgnty of Bruce," A truce was presentiy agreed upon, "which it was now determined should be the introduetion to a lasting peace. As a necessary preliminary, the English stateamen resolved formaliy to exeeute a resigno. tion of ali ciaims of dominion and superiority which had heen assumed over the kingdom of Scotland, and agreed that all muniments or pub. fic instruments asserting or tending to support such a eisin should be deifvered up. This agreement was subscribed by the king on the 4th of Marcin, 1328. Peace was afterwards conciuded at Edinburgh the 17 th of Narch, 1328 , and ratified at a pariiament held at Northampton. the 4th of May, 1328. It was eonfirmed by a match agreed upon between the princess Janna, sister to Edward III., and David, son of Robert I., though both were as yet infants. Articies of striet amity were settled betwixt the nstions, without prejudiee to the effect of the allisnce between Scotland and Franee. was stipulated that all the eharters and documents carried from Scotland by Edward I. should be restored, and the king of England was plenperi to give his aid in the court of Rome towards the recail of tie exconmuvication a warded sgalnst king IRobert. Lastiy, Scotiand was to pay a sum of $£ 20,000$ in consideration of these favourabie terms. The borders were to be maintained in striet order on both sides, and the fatal coronation-stone was to be restored to Scotland. There was another separate oiniigation on the Scottish side, winieh ied to most serious consequeuces in tie subsequent reign. The seventh article of the Peace of Nortiampton provided that certain English barons. . should be restored to the lands and heritages in Seotiani, whereof they had been deprived during the मrar, br the king of Scots selzing them into his own himi. Tise exceution of this articie was deferred hy the Seottish king, who was not, it may be coneeived, very wiliing again to intro. duce Englisi nobies as landhoiders into Scotiand. The English mob, on their part, resisted the remoral of the fatal stone from Westminster, where it had been depositeri. .. The deed called Ragman's Roli, being the list of the burons and men of nute who subscribed the suhmission to Edward I. in 1296, was, however, delivered up to the Scots."-Sir W. Scott, Hist of Scotlind, ch. 12 (c. 1).
Also In: J. Froissart, Chronicles (lr. by Johnes), bt. 1, ch. 18.
A. D. 1329.-Accession of David II.
A. D. 1332-1333.-The Disinherited Barons. -Ballioi's invasion.-Siege of Berwick and hattle of Halidon Hill.-Untii his death, in 1329 , King Irobert Bruce evaled the enforcement of that provision of the Treaty of Northampton Whlch pledged him to restore the forfeited estates of Engiish nobles within the Seotrish border. IIis death left the crown to a child of seven rears, his son David, uuder the regeney of Randolph, Earl of Marray, and the regeney of procrastinated the restoration of the estates in question. At length, in 1332, the "disiaherited barons," as they were calied, determined to prosecute thelr elaim by foree of arns, and they matie common cause with Edward Baiiiol, son of the ex-king of Scotland, who had been exiled in France. The English king, Edward III. would not openiy give countenance to their un. dertaking, nor permit them to Invade Scotland across the English frontier; but he did nothing to prevent their recruiting in the northern counties an army of 8,800 men, which took ship at Ravenspur, in Yorkshire, and landed on the coast of Fifeshire, under Balliol's command. Marching westward, the invaders " tinaily took up a strong position in the heart of the country, with the river Earn in their front. Just before this crisis, the wise and capable Regent, Ran. doiph, Earl of Murray, had died, and the great Sir James Dougias, having gone with King Robert's heart to offer it at the shrine of the Holy Sepulcire, had perished on his way, in eonflet with the Moors of Spain. The regency had devoived upon the Earl of Mar, a man wanting loth in energy and in military capaeity; but so strong was the nationai antipathy to Balioi, as representing the Idea of English supremaey, that Mar found no dittieulty in hringing an arny of 40,000 men into the fleid against him. He drew up over against the entmy on the northern bauk of the Eurn, on Duppifn Soor, while the Earl of Mnrein, witii forces scarcely inferior to the Regent's, threatened the flank of tite little army of the invaders. Bailiol, however, was not wanting in valour or generaiship, and there were, as usuai, traitors in the Scoteli army, one of wiom led the Engiish, by a ford whieh ite knew, sufe across the river in tite darkness of the night. They threw themselves upon the scattered, oversecurc, and iil-sentineiicd camp of the enemy with such a sudden and furious onsiaught, that the fiuge Seottish army broke up iuto a panicstricken and disorganised erowd and were siaugiterel like sheep, the number of the slnin four times exceeding tiat of tine whole of Balliol's army, which escaped with the loss of thirty men. Tine invaders now took possession of Perti, whieh tine Earl of March forthwith surrounded, hy lnnd and water, and thought to starce into submission; but Balliol's ships broke through the biockude on the Tay, and the besiegers, despairiug of success, marehed off and disbanded without striking another biow. Seotiand having been thus subdued by a handful of men, the nobies one hy one came to make their suhmission. Young King David and his affianced bride were sent over to France for seeurity, and Edward Bnliiol was crowned King at Scone on September 24, 1332 , two months after his disembarkation in Seotiand. As Baliiol was thus aetual (de faeto) King of Scotiand, Edward eould now form an alliance with him without a breach of the treaty; and there seemed to be many arguments in favour of espousing hiscause. The young Bruee and his dynasty represented the trouhlesome spirit of Seottish independenee, and were elosely aliied with France, whose king, as wili be ssen, lost no opportunity of stimulating and supporting the party of resistance to Engiand. Bailiol, on the other hand, admitted in a seeret despatch to Ed ward that the success of the expedition was owing to that King's friendiy non. intervention, and the aid of his suhjeets; offared to hoid seotland ' as his man,' doing him homage for it as an English flef; and, treating the prineess Joan's hastily formed union with David as a mere engagement, proposed to marry her himself instead. The King, as aiways, even on less important issues than the present, con-

Fart
wat Etward III.
sulted hin Parliament. . . . Balliol In the mean. While, having diamissed the greater part of his English auxiliaries, wat lying unsuapiciout of danger at Anaan, when hin camp wai attacked in the middie of the night by a strong body of cavalry under Murray, son of the wise Regent, and Douglas, brother of the great Sir Jamea. The entrenchments were atormed ln the darkness; noble, vassal and retainer were slaughtered before they were abie to organise any reaistance, and Ballioi himself barely escaped with his ife across the Engilsh border." In the foliowing year, however, Edward restored his helpiess vassai, lnvading Scotland in person, besiegling Berwick, and routing and destroying, at Haildon Hili, a Scotch army which came to its relief.一 W. Warburton, Edeard III., ch. 2.

Also in: W. Longman, Life and Times of Edward III., v. 1, ch. 4.-J. H. Burton, Hiat. of Scotland, c. 3, ch. 25.-See, also, BerwicrevposTweed.
A. D. 1333-8370.-The iong-continued ware with Edward III.-"Throughnut the whole country of Scotiand, only four casties and a mail tower acknowledged the soverelgnty of David Bruce, after the battle of Halidon; and it is wonderful to see how, by their efforts, the patriots soon afterwards changed for the better that unfavourabie and seemingiy desperate state of things. In the sevcral skirmishes and battics which were fought ail over the kingdom, the Scots, knowing the country, and having the good-wili of the inhabltants, were gencraily successfini, as aiso in surprising castles and forts, cutting off convoys of provisions which were golng to the English, and destroying scattered pirtles of the enemy; so that, by a iong and incessuat course of tighting, the patriots gradually regained what they lost ln great batiles. lou may well imaglne that, during those iong and terrible wars which were waged, when eastles were defended and taken, prisoners made, many hattes fought, and numbers of men wounded and slain, the state of the country of Scotland was most miserable. There was no finding refuge or protcetion in the jaw. laws of hnmanity and charity were transgressed without scruple. People were found starved to death in the woods with thelr fanilles, whlle the conntry was so depopnlated aad void of cultivatlon that the will deer emme out of the remote forests, and approached near to citles and the dwellings of men. . . . Notwithstanding the valiant defence mantained hy the Scots, their comitry was reluced to a most disastrous state, by the eontimed wars of Edward III., who was a wise and warlike King as ever lived. Conld he have turaed agalast seotland the whole power of his kinglom, he might prohalily have effected the complete coaquest, whieh had been so long attempted in rain. But whille the wars in Scot. land were at the hottest. Eilward became also engaged in hostilltes with Frauee, having lald ciain to the crown of that klagdom. . . . The Scots sent an embassy to obtain money and asslstance from the French; and they received sup. plies of both, which enalled them to recover their casties and towns from the Engilsh. Edinhurgh Castle was taken from the Invaders by a stratagem. . . Perth, and other important places, were aiso retakea by the Scots, aud Ed. ward Balloi retired out of the country, in despalr of making good his pretensions to the crown.

The nobles of Scotiand, Anding the affairs of the Lingdom more promperous, now came to ths resolution of bringing beck from France, where he had realded for asfety, their young King, David II., and his consort, Queen Jomna. They arrived in 1841. David II. was stili a youth, neither did he pomess at any period of lifs the wisdom and taients of hls father, the great King Robert. The nobles of Scotiand had be. come each a petty prince on his own estates; they made war on each other as they had done upon the English, and the poor King posessed no power of restralnlag them. Edward 111. being abeent in France, and in the act of besleg. ing Calais, David was loduced, by the pressing and urgent counsels of the French King, to renew the war, and proft by the Klng's absence from England. The young King of Scotland raised, accordingly, a large army, and, entering England on the west frontler, he marched east. ward towards Durham, harassing and wastlgg the country with great severity; the Scots boasting that, now the King and his nobles were sbseut, th :e were none in Engiand to oppose them, save priests and base mechanics. But they were greatiy deceived. The lords of ths northern countles of Engiand, together with the Arehbiahop of York, assembied a gallant srmy. They defeated the vanguard of the Seots snd came upon the main body by surprise. The Scottish army feli fast lnto dlsorder. The King himself fought hravely in the mldst of his nolites and was twice wounded with arrors. At length he was captured. . . The left wing of the Scottlsh army continued dightiag long after the rest were routed, and at length made a safe retreat. It was commanded ly the Steward of Scotland and the Earl of March. Very many of the Scottish nohility were slaln; very nany made prisoners. The King hlmself was led in triumph through the streets of Lond,n, aad committed to the Tower a close prisoner. This mattle was fought at Nevlle's Cross, near Durhan, on 1ith October. 1346. Thus was another great victory cained by the English over the Seots. It was fillowed by farther alvantages, whlh gave the victors firi i time possession of the comlitry from the Scottish Border as : $\cdots$ ns the verge of Lothian. But the Seots, as nsna, were no sooner comp.lled to momentary submisslon, than they began to ronsiler the means of shaklng off the yoke. Eilwaril111. was not more forturate in mating war on Scot. land in hls own name, than when he used the pretext of supporting inatiol. He marcbed into East-Lothlan in spring, 135\%, and colanitted such ravages that the periut was long marked hy the name of the Burued Carllamas, Incause so many towas and villages were burnel. Bu: the Scots had removed every species of provi. slons whelt comld he of use to the invalers, and avoiled a generai battle, while they cusaged in a number of skirmishes. In this moner Elward was compelled to retreat out of Sc, 'land, after sinstalning mueh loss. After the faibire of this effort. Edward seems to have despmired of the conquest of Seotland, and cutered mos terms for a truce, and for setting the Kling at liberty. Thus David II. at iength obtalned his fretdom from the English, after he had becu detained ln prison eleven years. The latter years of this Glug' ilfe have nothlng very remurkable. He dled in 1870. "-sir W. Scott, Taks of a cirando father (Scotland); abridged by E. Ginn, ck. 14-15, ALeo In: J. Frolesart, Chronicleo (tr. by Johnat), M. 1.-W. Longman, Ifie aral Iimee of Edvoard III., 8. 1, eh. 4, 10, 15, 22.

A. D. 1346 . - Founding of the Lordehip of the loles. See Hebridit: A. D. $1840-1504$.
A. D. 1370. - The nccosalon of Robert II. the fist of the Stewart or Stuart Dynanty. On the denth of Duvld II. of Scotland (eon of Robert Bruce) A. D. 1870, he was succeeded on the throne hy his uephew, "Robert the High Steward of Scotland," whose mother was MarJory, daughter of Robert Bruce. The succension had been so fixed hy act of the Scottish Parlisment during " $\quad$, $\boldsymbol{x}$ King Robert's " life. The new Klag Roberi began the Stewart lline, as a roysi dynasty. "The name of hls famlly, was Allan, or Fitz Allan, hut it had become habltual to call them hy the name of the feudal office held by them In Scotlicnd, and hence Robert II. was the first of the Steward, or, as it came to be writuen, the Stewart dynasty. They ohtalned thelr feudal influence through the office enjoyed by their ancestors at the Conrt of Scotland-the offlee of Steward."-J. II. Burton, Hist. of Sootland. ch. 26 ( $n .8$ ). - The suceession of the family on the Scar sh throne was as follows: Robert II., Rokert LII., James I., Jnmes II., James III., James IV., Jnmes V., Mary, Jamea VI. The graidmother of Mary, the great $\mathrm{gr}_{1}$ nother of James VI., was Margaret Tudor, of Engllsh roral family-slster of Ifenry ViIII. The death of Queen Ellzabeth Ir 1603 left the English throne wilth no nearer hu.f than the Scottlish King James. He, therefore, unlted the two crowns and hecame James I. Gi England, as well as Jnmes IL of Scotland. Ills successors of the dynnsty in England were Charles I., before tic Rebelllon and Commonwenlth, then Cinrles II., James II., sary (of the jolnt reign of Wlllian nnd Mary), sut Anne The Hanoverlan line, whieis sueceeded, was derived from the Stuart, through $n$ dsughter of James I. - Ellzaleth of Boinemia MI. Suble. Hist. Genealogy of the Itrume or' Sturt. Also is : Sir W. Scott, IIist. of soothend, ch. 15 (\%.1).
A. D. 1388.-The Battle of Otterburn. See Otternith.
A. D. I390--Accession of Robert III.

Shrewsbury. - The captivity of Hall and Shrewsbury. - The captivity of James I. Frim 13sy to 1399 tinere wiss a truce between England and Scothnd, nod the Neotch ionderers watcted impatieutly for the termination of it that chay might be lei loose on the northern English cumties, " like hounds let off the leash. "Bas asserted on the purt of Enghaul, indeed. that they did not wait for the conchusion. Ten reass of pencefnl hashmadry had propared a harrest for them, nod they swept it off in the od way - the Einglish borderery retaliating by qa lovacinn of the Lowlan ls. The political ns. pectarin berame menariug for seothadi. The conditions which rend ad peare nlmost a necessity for Eugland hat ceased with n revohtlon. It was no longer Riehard II, hut Ilenry IV. Who relgnel: und he began his reign by a great lnvasion of scothud." He marehed with a large any (A. D) 1400 ) as far as Lelth amb threatened Edibburgh Custle, which was stontly defended by the scottish king's ann: but the expedition ras iruitiess of results. Heury, however, gained the adhesion of the Earl of March, one of the most powerful of the Seottlsh nobles,

Who had recelved an unpardonable afriont from the Duke of Albany, then regent oi Scotiand, and who jolned the Engliah againat hls country in consequence. Iu the niltumn of 1402 the Scotch retaliated Heary's invasion hy great plundering expeditlon under Doughas, which penetrsted ar far as Durham. The rievers were returning. I iden wlth plunder, when they were Intercepted hy Hotapur and the traltor March, at Homllde in Hill, near Wooler, and fearfully beaten, a h rge number of Scotch Enights and lords being killed or taken prisoner. Douglas and others among the prisoners of thls bsttle were subsequently relcased by Hotapur, in detance of the orders of King Heary, and they jolved hlm with a conslderable force when he ralsed his standard of revolt. Sharing the defeat of the rebellous Percys, Douglas was agaln taken prisoner at Shrewshury, A. D. 1403 Two years later the Englleh king galned a mare Important captive, in the person of the young helr to the Scottish throne, subsequentiy King James I., who wat taken at sea while on a voy. age to France. The young prince (who hecame thtular king of Scotland in 1406, on his father'a death) was detinined at the Engllsh court nineteen years, treated with friendly courtesy ay If mirted and Henry V. and educated with a re. ife mnr-ied Jane Beaufort, nlece of Henry, $\overline{1}$., and was set free to return to hls kingdori in 1124, prepared hy hls Finglish tralning to introduce in Scotland a bette. system of government and more respent ful ldeas of law. The reforms whleh he undertook gave rise to fear and hatred nmong the lawless lorus of the north, and they rid themselves of a $\mathrm{k} / \mathrm{n} g$ who trouhled them with too many restraints, by assassinating him, on the 20th of February, 1436.-J. II. Burton, Hist. of Sothnie, r. 3, ch. 26-27.
Also in: Sir W. Seott, Hist, of Scothand, o.
1, ch. 16-18.
A. D, 141 I.-Battle of Harlam. - Defeat of the Lord of the Isles and the irighland clans. See Ilablaw.
A. D. ${ }^{1437-1460}$ - Reign of James II.Feuds in the kingdom. - The Dougl .es.James II. was crowned (143\%) at six years of age "Sir Alexnnder Lividgstone became grard, A ot hls person; Sir William Crichton, Chancel Jo of his kiugdom; and I rchihahl, tifth Earl of Doug has, neplew of the late Ting, heeame Lien the history of the perpetual strife of regeney is the history of the perpetual strlfe of Livingstone and Crichiton with eaeh vther und with tue Earl of Donghs. who had beeome 'very potent in kise und friendis.' Ilis '1ine and friendis' now spread over vust terrltories la sonthern Scotland. inchudiug Galleway mal Anonndale, nad in France he was Lori of Longueville and possessor of the ina guificent durhy of Tournine. The position the Donglnses oreul ${ }^{n+1}$ ? in being nenrly elated to the honse of Bahi, to the house of Comsu pla. near the tbrone: but there extinct) unil greater perilonsty unme of this bay lu the very denrness of the Queen-m ther had to Seotland. .. To the Qneen-m ther liad been committed by Parliament the enre of her son, but as Crichton, the Chancellor. seemed dlsposed to take this charge upon himself, she determined to ontwit him and to fultil her duties. Accordingly, saying she Was bound on a pilgrimese, slie contrived to pack the boy up in her luggage, and carried him ofl to stirling Castic. He was toon, howe orr, brought back to Edinburgh by thoee in power, asd then they executed a Ficked plot for the destruction of Wliliam, who, in 1489 , had, at the age of sixteen, succeeded his father, Archibali, as Eari of Douglas. The Eari and his brot' er were executed, and for a time it wouid $\Delta p$ pear that the mightiness of the Dougiases recelved a shock . The Queen-mother had been esriv thrust out of the regency by Living. stone and Erichton. Distrusted because she was by hirth one ' of our auid $\boldsymbol{a}_{\mathrm{m}}$ i nies of Engiand': separated from her son; stili comparatively roung, and needing a strong protectur, she gave her hand to Sir Janies Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn. . . . After her second marriage she slaks out of notice, but enongh is told to make it apparent that negie it and suffering accom. panied the fant years of the winning Jane Beaufort, who hat stolen the heart of the King of Scots at Windenr Castie. $\qquad$ The iong minosity of James, and the first yesrs of his brief reign, were too much occupied in strife with the Douglases to leave time for good government.
When there was peace, the King and his Paritament enacted many good laws. . . . Although the Wars of the Roses left the Engilsh ifttle time to send arinies to Scotiand, and aithough tieere were no great hostilities with England, yet dur. Ing this reign a great Scott'si army threatened Engiand, and a great Engilsh army threatenca Scotiand. James was on the side of the House of Lancaster, and ' the oniy ley to the compil. cated understanding of the transactions of Scotland during the Wars of the Two Iloses is to recoliect that the Iustilities of Janues were directed, unt against Engiand, but agsinst the successes of the IIouse of 'iork.'
. Since the Buc. tie of Durham, the frontier fortress of Roxburgh had been in Engilsh hands: and winen, In 1460, It was commanded hy the great partisan of York, the Eari of Warwick, Janes iaid slege to it in person. Artiliery had been in use for some time, and years before we hear of the 'cracks of war.' Stili many of the guns were noveities, and, curious to study the strange new machinery of death, ' more curious than became the majesty of ane Klug,' James ventured too near 'ane mis. framed gun.' It burst, und one of its oaken wediges striking him, he feil to the ground, and ' died hastile thairafter,' being in the thirtieth year of his age. . . . King Janes III., who was eight yeurs old, was crowned at the Monastery of Kelso in $1460 .{ }^{\prime \prime}-$ M. G. J. Klnioch, Hiat. af Scotland, r. 1, ch. 16.
A. D. isfo.-Accesion of James III.
A. D. 1482-1488.-Lauder Bridge and Sauchie Burn.-James IIL., who was an infant at the time of his father's death, developed a character, as he came to manhood, winich the rude nobles of his court and kingdom could not understand. "He had a disiike to the nctive sports of hunting and the games of chlvairy, mounted on horsehack rarely, and rode ili. $\qquad$ He was attacied to what are now calied the tine urts of architecture and music; and in studylng these usei; the instructions of Rogers, an Engiish musiciau, Coclirane, a mason or architect, and Torplicien, a dancing-master. Another of his domextic minlons was Hommil. a talior. not the foast lmportant in the conclave. if we may judge from the variety and exteut of the royai wardrobe, of which a volumiuous cataiogue is pre.
served. Spending his time with such pensons, who, whatever thelr merit might be in their own - iseral professlous, could not be atting company for a prince, James necenarily iont the taste for soclety of a difterent description, whose rank imposed on him a certsin degree of restraint.

The nation, therefore, with disgust sud dis. piessure, sav the king disuse the society of the Bcottish nobles, and abstain from their counsel, to iavish favrous ucon and be gulded by the advice of a few bhom the age teriuti base meeba cs. In this situation, the pulille ege was tixed upon James's younger brothers, Alet. ander duke of Aibany, and Jolin earl of Mar." The jealonsy and suspicion of the klng were presentiy exclted by the popularity of his broth. ers and he caused them to be srrested (itio). Mar, accused of having dealings with i. itches, was secretiy executed in prison and his enrldom was sold to the king's favourite, Coclirune, who had amassed wealth by a tirifty use of hls la. fluence and opporinnities. Albany escuped to France and thence to Engiand, where he put himself forward as a claimsnt of the Scottish throne, securing the support of Edwsini IV. hy offering to surrender the hard-won independeace of the cingdom. An Engiish army, under Richard of Gloucester (afterwards Klog IRichard IIL) was sent into Scotiand to enforce his clalin. The scotch king assembied his forces and adivanced from Edinburgh as far as Lauder ( $1 \times 2 \mathrm{~N}$ ), to ineet the invasion. At Lauder, the nobles, laving becoming deeply exasperated by the arrogant stata which the ex-architect assumed as Earl c! Mar, heid a meeting which resulted in the sudden seizure and hanging of ali the klug's favourites on Lauder Bridge. "Ali the favourites of the weak prince perished except a youth called Ilamsay of Baimain, who cling close w the king'a person," and was spared. Ierace with Aibany and his English ailies was now urranged, on terms which misde the duke lientenant generai of the kingdom; but it lasted no more than a year. Aibany became obnoxious snil thed to Engiand again. The doings of the king were still hateful to his nobies aud people and $n$ continuai provocation of smouldering wrath. In 1488, the discontent broke out in sctual rebellion, and James was easily defeated in a buttle foucht at Sauchie Burn, between Bannorkbura snd Sirling. Flying from the battle-field, he fell from inls horse and was taken, badly injurnl, into the house of a milier near by, where he disclosed his name. "The consequence was, that some of the rebels who foilowed the chase entered the sut and stabbed him to the heart. The persons of the murderers were never known, nor was the king's body ever found."-Sir W. Scott, Hist of Scotland, ch. 20 ( r .1 ).

Also is: C. MI. Yonge, Came from Ens. Hist., series 3, ch. 18 and 22.
A. D. 1488. -Accession of James IV.
A. D. 1502 . - The marriage which brought the crown of Engiand to the Stuarts.-"On the 8 th of August 1502 the cer mony of marriage between King Jsmes [IV. of Scotlaud] sud Jar garet, Princess of England [daughter of Iienry VII. and sister of Menry VIII.], was celebrated in the Chapel of Holyrood. A unlon of crowns and governmenta might be viewed as a possible result of such a marriage; but there biud bren others between Scotiand and England whence none followed. It was long ere such s harvest of peace seemed itkely to arise from this union it seemed, indeed, to be to huri-d uhder evenis of s contrsery tenor that it was almont jorgotten. yet, s hundred and one years later, it sent the great-grandson of James IV. to be King of Eng. fand."-J. H. Burton, Biat. of Seothind, eh. 80 (r. 8).
A. D. 1502-1504.- The Hightands bronght to crder.-Suppression of the ladependent Lordship of the Isles.-", The marriage of James in 1502 with the Princess Margeret, daughter of lleary VII., helped to prolong the period of trangullity. But, In fact, his energetic adminis. tratloa of justice had, almost froni the beginning of his relgn, reetored confidence, and re-awakeneif In his subjects an industrial activity, that had slumbered since the death of Alexander "II. Evirywhere se set his barons tise novel task of keeping their territories In ori'er. The IIuntlys la the Vorth, the Argylis in the West. Were made virtual viceroys of the IIightand; the Doagiasees were charged with malntaining the peace of the Borders; and ut length the formidahle Lordshlp of the Isles, which had been the wurce of all the Celtic troubles of Scotiand since the days of Somerled, was hroken up in 1504, after a series of fieree rev.' 's, and the claim to an Independent sovereignty sbandoned forever Henceforth the chieftains of the Ilebrides held their lands of the Crown, and were made responsible fer the conduet of their clans." -J . M. Ross, Noultiah Jlistury and Literature, ch. 5, p. 17\%.
A. D. ${ }^{1583}$. - The Battle of Fiodden.-In i513, while Ilenry VIII. of England, who had joined the IIoly League against F'rance, was engaged In the latter country, wesleging Terouenne, he received an embassy from Janes IV., king of Scolladi, his brother-in-law. "French intrigues, and the long-standing alliance between the na, tions, had induced James to entertain the idea of a hreach with Epeland. Causes of complaint were ant wanting. There was a legacy due frin Henry VIL.; Sir Fo bert Ker, the Scotch Wartina of the Marcies, had been killed by a IIeron of Ford, and the murderer found reinge in Eng. I d: Andrew Barton, who, Jicensed with letters of marque against the Porti.zuese in revenge for the death of his father, had extended his reprisals to general piracy, had been captured and alain by Lord Thomas and Sir Edward IIow ard, and the Ecotch King demanded justlee for the death of his captain ro these questions, wheh had beea long unsettled, an answer was now finperiously demanded. Ifenry replled with scorn, and the Scoteh King declared war. The safety of Englad hati been Intrusted to the Earl of Surrey, Who, wheu James crossed the border, was lylag at Pontefract. Without delay, he pushed forward in orthward, awi, challenging James to meet him on the Friday next following, came up with him when strongly posted on the came up with him when strongly posted on the bill of Floiden, 5 ith one flank covered by the river Till, the other by an impassable morass, and his front rendered Impregnable by the massing of his artillery. Ashamed, after his challenge, to aroid the combat, Surrey moved suddenly nonhward, as though bound for Scotland, but Till marchits fingetion to the left, he crossed the Till near its junction with the Tweed, and thus turnet] James's position. The scots, were thus Encinh ripl to figlat [September 9, 1513]. On the English right, the sons of Surrey with difficulty Leld their own. In the centre, where Surrey hrmaell was asaaulted by the Scotch King and his cholceat troops, the battlo loclined againet hit cholcent troopa, the battle luclined againd the English; hut upon the English left the Highlanders Were swept away hy the archers, and Stanley, who had the command in that wing, fell on the rear of the successful Scotch centre, and determined the fortune of the day. The slaughter of the Scotch was enormous, and smong the number of the slaln was James hlm. self, with all his chief noblilty."-J. F. Bright. Hitt. of Eng., 2. 2, pp. 370-872. -" There lay slain on the fatal field of Flodden twelve Scottish earls, thirteen lords, anil five eldcat sons of peers - fifty chiefs, knights, and men of eminence, and isbout 10,000 coinmon men. Scotland had su stained defeats in which the loss had been numcrically greater, but never one in which the num'er of the nobles slaln bore such a proporition to those of the inferior rank. The cause wos partly the unusual obstinacy of the long defuce, partly that when the common people began. .. to desert thelr standards, the nobillty of honour from followhing their example. "-8ir Wh. Scott, Hiat. of Swothend their example."-815 W. Scott, Miat. of Swothind, ch. 21 ( $v .1$ ). ch. 6.
A. D. $1513 .-$ Accession of James $V$.
A. D. I $54^{2}$. - The disaster at Solway-frith.James V. of Scotland, who was the nephew of IIenry VIII, of Enghn! - the son of Heary's sister, Margaret Tudor - gave offense to his prond and powerful unele ( $A$. D. $15+1$ ) by excusing himself from a meeting which had been ar. ranged to take place between the two kings, and for which Henry had taken the trouble to travel to York. It was the eager wish of the English king to persuade his royal nephew to take possession of the property of the monasterles of Scot land, in imitation of his own example. The appointed meeting was for the further urging of these proposals, more especinlly, and it had been frustrated through the intluence of the Catholic clergy with Foung Iing James, - very much to the disgust of many among the Scottish nobles, as well as to the wrath of King Henry. Whence came results that were noexpeetedly sad. Henry determined to avenge himself for the slight that had been put 'pon him. and, having made his preparations fe" war, he issued a manifesto, alleglug various, ijuries whieh gave color to his declaration of ho.tllities. "He even revived the old claim to the vassalage of Scotland, and he summoned James to do homage to hlm as his llege lord and superior. He mployed the Duke of Norfolk, whom he calied the scuurge of the Scots, to command in tle war." After some prellmlaary ralding expectitons, the Duke of Norfolk advanced to the borjer with 20,000 men, or more. "James had assemb"ed his whole millitary force at Fula and Shucrey, and was ready to advanee as son: us he should be infornied of Norfolk's invading his kingdom. The English passed the Tweed at Berwick, Tind marehed along the banks of the river as far as Kelso; but hearing that Jsmes had collected near 30,000 men, they repussed the river at that vil. lage, and retreaterl into their own country. The King of Scots, inflamed with a desire of military glory, and of revenge nn his Invalers, jase the signal for pursulag them, and carrylug the war luto England. He was surprised to tind that his nobility, who were in generai disaffected on sccount of the prefereace which he had given to the cleres, opposed thls resolution, and refuced to attend him in hls projected enterprice. Es. raged at this muting, be reprowchod thern with cowardice, and chreatened vengeance; hut atill recolved, with the forcen which adhered to hlu to make an lmpresion on the enemy. He tens 10,000 men to the western borderm, who entered Encland at Bolway-fith [or Solway Moan]; and he himself followed them at amall distance, ready to join them upon occasion." At the same time, he took the command of his flttle army avay from Lord Maxwell, and conferred It on one of lis favorites, Oilver Bincialr. "The army wis extremely disgusted with this alters. tion, and was ready to diaband; when a amall body of Englloh appeared, not exceeding 800 men, under the command of Dacres and Musgrave. A panic selzed the Scots, who lmmedi. ately took to Alght, and were pursued hy the enemy. Few were killed in this rout, for it was no action: hut a great many were taken pritoners, and some of the principal nohlity." The eflect of this shameful disaster upon the mind of James was so overwhelming that he took to hls bed and dled ln a few daya. Whlie he lay upon his denthbed, his queen gave hirth to a daughter, who Inherited his crown, and who played in subsequent history the unfortunate role of "Mary, Queen of Scots. "-D. Hume, Hist. of Eng., ch. 83.

Also in: J. H. Burto 7, Mist. of Scotland, ch. 39.-W. Robertion, IItist. of Scothand, $\Delta k$. 1.
A. D. 1542.-Accession of Queen Mary.
A. D. 1544-1548, -The English Wooing of Queen Mary.- Imniellately on the death of James V., llenry VIII. of England began a most resolite undertaking to secure the hand of the Infunt queen Jfary for his $s$ an Infant son. Scotlami, however, was nverse to the unlon, and reslsted all the Inthences whilh the English king comill briug to lear. Enraged hy his fallure. Henry despatehed the Eari of Hertford, In May 1544, whth a military and naval foree. commis. slowed to do the utmost destructive work In Ita power, without attempting permanent eonquest, for which it was not adequate. The expedition landed at Newhaven and selzed the town of Lelth, lefore Cardlnal Beaton or Beatoun, then governing Scotland in the name of the Regeut, the Fiarl of Arran, had lenrned of lis approach. "The Cardinai Immedlately deserted the caplal and thel in the grearest dismay to Stirling. The Earl of llertford demnnded the nneondlional snrremler of the infant Queen, nud being informed that the Seottish enplai and nation would suffer every disaster hefore they wonld submit to his Iguomlnious terms, he marehed Immediateiy with his whole forces npon Edinlnirgh.

The Engllsharmy entered hy the Witer-gate without opposition, and assaultel the Vether Bow Port, and beat it open on the sceond day, with a terrible slanghter of the eitizeus. They immedlately attempted to lay slege to the Cistle.

Battled In their attempts on the fortress, they imnedi. ately proceeded to wrak their vengennce on the clty. They set it on fire in numerous quarters, and continued the work of devastation and plunder till compelled to abandon it by the smoke and fames, as wrell as the continual firing from the Castle. They renewed the work of destruction on the following day; and for three successive days they returned with unabated fury to the moling ruins, till they had completeiy ef fected thefr purpoes. The Earl of Hertford then proceeded to liny wante the surrounding country with ire and sword.

This disantrous event forms an important era in the history of Edin. hurgh; if we except a portion of the Catie, the churches, and the worth. west wing of Iloiyrood Palace, no buliding antertor to this dite now existe in Edlahurgh. $\qquad$ The death of IFeary VIII. in 1547 tended to accelernte the renews of his projer for enforcing the union of the neigh. bouring tingdoms, hy the marriage of his son with the Bcotilah Queen, Henry, on his deathbed, urged the prosecution of the war with Scotland; and the councllioss of the young King Edward V1. fost no time In completing thelr ar. rangements for the purpose.

In the begin. ning of September, the Eari of Hertford, now Duke of Bomerset, and Lord Protector of Eng: land, during the mlnority of his nephew Edward VI., agaln enteted Scotiand at the bead of a numerous army; while a fieet of about 60 sail co-operated with him, hy a descent on the Scottish coast. At bis advance, he found the Scottish army assembled ln great force to oppose blm.

After stlrmishing for everal days whith various success in the nelghbourhood of Prestonpans, where the English army was encamped,a scene long afterwards made memorable by the hrief triumph of Mary's hapless descenlant, Charles Stuart. - the two smales at fength cane to a declaive engagement on Daturlay the luth of September 1547, long, after kaown by the name of Black Saturday. The field of Pinkte, the scene of this fatal contest, Hes about slx miles distant from Edinburgh. . . . The Scots were at first victorlous, and succeeded In driving back the enemy, and carrylng of the royai standard of Engiand; but beling almost destitute of cavnir" they were driven from the flehl, after a dreadful siaughter, with the loss of many of their nohles and leaders, both slain and takta prisoners.' $\qquad$ Notwithstanding their severe defeat, the Seots were stlll stubboraly resolved that their young queen should not be won by such savage wooing; and the English returned lounc, after burning Lelth and desolnting the cosst country once more. Next year the rogal naid of sot. land, then six years old, was lextrothed to the dauphin of France and sent to the French court to le reared. So the English seheme of marriage was frustrated in a declsive way. Inemtime. the Scots were relnforced by 8,000 French und 1,000 Ditch troops, and expelled the Euglinh from most of the places they liehl in the country. - D. Wilson, Memorials of Eidinburgh, M. 1, ch. 5 (r. 1 ).

Almo in: P. F. Tytier, IIint. of šouldand, $x .3$. ch. 1-2.-J. A. Froilde, Hist. of Eing., ch. is (r. 4) amd 24-25 (r. 5).
A. D. 5546 .-The murder of Cardinal Bea-toun.-"Cartinal Bentoun [Who had acyuifel practical control of the government, nlhaugh the Earl of Arma was nominally legent] had not used his power with moderntion, equal to the prudence by whieh he attaned it. Nutwithstanding his great abllities, lee had tou many of the passions and prejudices of an angry leader of a faction, to govern a divided pople with comper. His rexentment as:anst ene party of the nobllity, bis insolence townrls the rest, his severity to the reformers, und, above all, the barbarous and lliegal exectition of the famous

SCOTLAND, 1847-1607.

George Wlahart, 4 man of honourable birth and of primitive mactity, wore out the patience of a lerce age; and nothing but a bold hand wae wantiog to gratify the puhilc wish by his deatruction. Pifvate reven e, Intiamed and emacti. And by a faloo zeal for religion, quickiy tupplied thls want. Norman Lealy, the eldest con of the capl of Rolbes, had been tremted by the cardian with injuatice and contempt. It way not the temper of the man, or the splift of the times, quietly to digent on afiront. ... The cardiual, at that time, rewlded in the castie of 8t. Andrew's, which he had fortifed at great ex. pense, and, in the oplnion of the age, had ren. dered it impregashle. Ils retinue was numerous, the town at hls devotion, and the neigh. bouring country full of hls dependents. In this atuatlon, sixteen persons undertook to surprise his castle, and to assassinate himself; and thelr success was equal to the boldness of the attempt.

His death was fatai to the cathollc religion, and to the French intereat in Scotisnd. The mame zeal for both continued among great party in the nation, but when deprived of the genlus and suthority of so skiliul a leader, opersted with less effect." The slxteen con. uplratora, having full possession of the caatle of St. Andrew's, were soon jolaed by friends and oympathizers John Krox being one of the party - untll 150 men were within the walls. They stood as slege for tive monihs and oniy sur. rendered to a foree sent over by the kling of France, on being promisel their lives. They were sent as prisoners to France, and the castle of St. Andrew's was demollished. - W. Robert. son, IIivt. of Mrotland, bk. 2 (c. 1).
Also In: P. F. Tytler, Ilim. of Scotland, e. 8 eh. 1-2.-T. M'Crie, life of,John Finar, period 2.
A. D. 1547-1557. - The hirth of the Protestant Reformation. - In Scotland, the klags of the house of Sthart " obtained a decisire influence orer the apoolntment to the high dignities io the Church, ,ut this proved advantageous nelther to the Church nor, at last, to themselves.

The Fronch alinses came Into vague here also: eccleslastleal benctices fell to the dependents of the court, to the yonnger sons of leadlog houses, often to their hastards: they werc given or solf ' it commendam,' and then served only for pleasure and gain: the Scotch Chureh fell into au exceedingiy ucandalous and corrupt state. if was not so much disputed questions of doctrine as in Germany, nor aguin the attempt to heep ont l'apal Influence as In England. Lut mainly averslon to the moral corruption of the spirituiality which gave the first hmpulse to the eflorts at reformation In Scotlnud. We find Lillard socletles among the srots numeh later than In England: their teadencles spread through vide circles, owing to the anti-clerical spirit of the century, nad receired fresh support from the doctrinal writings that came over from Germany. But the scotch clergy was resolved to defend itself with ali lts might. .il. It perse. cuted all with equal severity as tending to injure the stablity of holy Cluurch, and awurded the most extremic penaltles. To put suspected here. tics to death hy fire was the order of the day; happr the man who escaped the unrelentligg per. secution hy tight. which was only posstble anid great peril. These two causes, an undenia. bly corrupt condition, and relentless punlshment of those who hiamed it as it well deserved, gave the Reform movement in Scotiand, which wee repremed hut not stifed, a pecullar character of exaspertion and thirnt for venreance. Nor wes It without a political bearing. in Ecotiand a elsowhere. In particular, IIenry VIII. propowed to his nephew, King James V., to remodel the Church ifter his example: and to remodel the nohility. Which was siready favourahiy disponed toward Englaed, wouid heve gladly ceen thls done. But Jamen preferred the French pattern to the English: he was kept firm In his Catbolic and French sympathies by his wife, Mary of Guise, and hy the energetic Archbishop Beaton. Hence be became involved In the war with Eng. iand in which he fell, and after this it occasion.
aliy seemed, eapecially at the time of the inva aliy seemed, especially at the time of the inva. sions by the Duke of Somerset, as if the Euglish. and In connexion with them the Protestent, sympathies would gain the acendancy. But national feellage were atill stronger than the re. Iigfous Exactly because England defeniled and recommended the rellgious change it falfed to make way In Scotland. Under the regency of the Queen dowager, with come parsing fuctua tlons, the cierical intereats on the whole kept the upper hand.

It is remarkahle how under these unfavoumhle circimstances the foundatlon of the Scotch Church was lald. Moat of the Scots who had fled from the country were content to provide for their subsistence in a forelgn land and Improve thelr own culture. But there was one among them who did not reconcile hlmself for one moment to thls fate. John Knox was the first who formed a Protestant congregathon in the besleged fortress of $\mathbb{N}$. Andrew's; when the French took the pluce in 1547 he was made prisoner and condenined to eerve in the gaileys.

After he was relensed, lie took a zcalous slare in the labours of the Engllsh Re. formers nuder Elward VI. but wis not aitogether content wlth the result: after the Klugs death he had to fly to the continent. He went to Geneva, where he lecame a stinkent once more and tried to filf up the gaps in his studles, hitt above It he milibed, or cintimed hls knowletge of, the views whleh prevalhed in that Churche

A transient relaxation of eccleslastical conrol in Scotiand made it possible for him to return thlther. . towarls the end of 155.5 : without delay he set hils linnd to form a clsurch. union, according to his iders of rellglous independence, which was not to be agaiu destroyed by any state puwer.

Sometinics in one tuld somethes in another of the places of refuge Which he fonmi, he ndministered the Commanulon to little congregations necording to the lieformed rite; thls was done with greater solemuity at Easter 1556, In the housc of Lord Erskine of Inn, oue of those Scottlsh noblemen who hal ever promoted liternry studies and the religions movement as far as lay in his power. A munher of people of conspr- cace from the Nearns (Mearnshlre) were present. But they were nut content with partaklug the Commuuion; following the mind of thelr preacher they pledgerl themselres to a vold every other religions community, ad to uphoid with ail their power the preaching of the Gospef. In this unlon we may see the origin of the Scotch Church. properly is called.

At Erskiues fiolise met tugether aiso Lord Lorn, afterwards Eurl of Argyle, und the Prior of S. Andrew's, sulisegucutly Earl of Murray; In December 1557 Erskine, Lorn, Mur.
my, Glencalrn (aino a friend of Knoz), and Mor ton, unlted in a solemn engegement, to support God's word and defend hia congregation agalast every evll and tyrungical power even unto death. Whea, in apite of this, another execution took plem whlch excited ualveral averslon, they proceeded wan express declantlon, that they would not sutter any man to be punished for tranagrese. In a clerical law based on human orilnances. What the intluence of Engiand had not been able to effect was now produced by antlpathy to France. The oplalon prevalled that the $K \ln$ ह of France wheliei to add scotland to his territories, aud that the Regent gave hlm aid thereto. When she gathered the feudal array on the borders $\ln 1057$ (for the Scota had refused to contribute towards enllatlag mercenaries) to invade England accordlng to an ubderstandlng with the French, the burons held a consultation on the Tweed, in consequence of which they refused thelr co-operatlon for this purpone. - It was thlu quarrel of the Hegent with the great men of the country that gave an opportunlty to the lonls who were comblaed for the support of reIIgion to alvance with increasing reaolution."I. Von Ranke, Iliot. of Eing. principally in the ${ }_{17}$ th Cent., bk. 8, ch. 2 (v. 1).

Also IN: T. M'Crie, Life of John Rinar, period 1-6.-G. Stuart, Iliat, of the Eldabliahment of the Reformation of Naligion in Ncotland, bk. 1-2.
A. D. 1557.-The First Covenant and the Lords of the Congregation. In 1556 John Knox wlthdrew from Bcotland and returned to Geueva - whether through fear of increasing dangers, or for other reasons, is questlon in dispute. The following year he was sollcited to come back to the Scottish field of labor, by those noblea who favored the Reformation, and he gave up hls Genevan congregatlon for the purpowe of oleylng thelr summons. "In the be. glaning of October he proceeded to Dleppe; but while he walued there for a vessel to convey him to Scotland, he recelved other letters which dashed all his hopes, by counselling hlm to remaln where he was. The Reformers had suddenly changed thelr minds.

Sitting down in his lorlging at Deppe, Knox wrote a letter to the lorls whose falth had fallet, after lnviting him to come to thelrhcip. .. Wlth It he despatched anotleer uklressed to the whole nobllity of Scotland, and uthers to partlcular iriende. . . . The letters of Kmax had an Inmedlate and powerful effect in stmulating the decaylng zeal of the Reforming nobles. Likea fire atlrred up just when ready to dle nut among lis own ashes, it now burned more brightly than ever. Meetlug at Edinburgh In the nonth of December, they drew up a bond whirh knlt them into one body, pledged them to a definite lime of conduct and gave consistency and shape to their plans. They had separated from the Roman coinmunlon; they now formed thenselves lutu an opposing phalanx. Thls document is known ln our Church history as the first Covenant. and ls so Important that ve give It eatlre: "We, percelving how Satan, in his members, the antl-christs of our tlme, cruelly do rage, seeking to overthrow and destroy the gospel of Christ and Ilis congregatlon, ought, according to our bounden duty, to strive in our Mucer's cause, even unto the death, belng certaln of tie victory in Him. The which our duty belog well considered, we do promise bulore the Majeaty of Goxl and His congregation, that we, by Ifis grace, ahall, with all dilgence, contiau. ally apply our whole power, subatance, anl our very Ifves, to malutain, set forward, and vatablish the mont biessel Word of Goxd and Illw roo. gregation; and shali labour, at our ponelbility. to have falthful minlaters, truly and purely to adminiater Chriat's gospel and aacraments to IIf people. We ahall maintaln them, nomith them, and defend them, the who.e comgragution of Chriat, and every member thereof, at wir whole powers and waglag of our lives, agalast gatan and all wleked power that doth Intond tyranny or trouble againat the foreabil congrega. tion. Unto the which holy word and conkregatlon wo do join ua, and so do fonmake and renounce the congregatlon of Batan, with all the superatitlous abomlnation and liolatry the reof; and, moreover, ahall declare ounclves manlfestly enemien thereto, hy thls our faithful promise before God, teatlled to His congregatlon by our subecriptlon to theme presents, at Ellnhurgh, the 8nd day of December 1537 yeara. Gexl callell to witnews - A., Ea. ${ }^{\circ}$ of Argyle, Glencalrn, Jhirton, Archlbald, Lord of Lorn, John Ersklne of Dus," sc. From the tlme that the Reformery hal resolved to refraln from belng present at mass, they had been in the habit of meetlig among themselves for the purpose of worship. Eliers and deacons were chosen to supcrintend the affalrs of theme Infunt commonitles. Eilla. burgh has the honour of having glven the ex. ample, and the numes of her tirut dive chlers are atil prewerved. The exlstence of thrse small Protestant 'congregatlons,' scatterel weet the country, probably led the lords to employ the word so frequently In thelr bond, and thls agaia led to their belng called the Lonis of the Congre. gatlon. It was a lold document to whirh they had thus put thelr namcs. It was throwing down the gauntlet to all the powers of the exinsIng Churchand Shate." - J. Cunulcyhun, Churd Hiat, of Soothand, r. 1, ch. 10.

Al,m, in: Jolun Knox, Jliat of the Peformation in Scotland ( Worka, o. 1), bt. 1.- L. Calderwood, Hist. of the Kirk of Newtlend, 18ni ( (c. 1)-T. M'Crie, Life of John Kinos, periont J-6.
A. D. $55^{8 .}$ - Marrlage of Mary Stuart to the Dauphin of France.-Contemplated uaion of Crowna. See France: A. D. L.5i-lisin.
A. D. 1558-1560, -Rebellion and triumph of the Lords of the Congregation. - The Geaeva Confemalon adopted.-• In 1558 the burning of an old preacher, Wralter MIII, at St. Andrew's, aroused the Lords of the Congregation, as the signers of the Covenaut now called themselves. They presented thelr demands to the rugrt [the queen dowager, Mary of Guise], and som. mo was spent In useless dlscusrion. But the hat ha of the Reformers were stn agtheued by Elis. beth's accesslon In England, and on May $2,155^{\circ}$, the leadling splrit of the Scottish leformation, John Knox, returned to Scothand. . . . Knors Influence was soon felt in the course of affirs. In May, 1559, the regent, stirred to action by the Carlinal of Lorralne, aummoned the reformed clergy to Stlrllng. They came, but surrouaded by so many followers. that the regent was afrat, and promised that, if they would disperse, the would proceed no further. They agrent: tut scarcely were they gone before Mary caused the preachers to be tried and condemned in their abaence. Knox's anger broke out in a fierce ter-moo againat klolatry, preached at Perth. The people of the town tow and destroyed the imegee In the cl "ches, and tore down all archliectural ormamet which contained aculpture. The ex. ample of Perth was followed elsewhere, and the churchen of Scotiand wero mon rohbed of thelr old beauty. From this tlme we muat date the deray of the the ecclealastlcal hulldlage of Scot. nanl, whose rulms stll! bear wlinese to thelr former splendour. . . The Lords of the Con gngation were now in open rebelllon agalnat the regent, and war wat on the polat of lireaklng out. It was, however, averted for a tlme hy the medlatlon of a fow moderate men, amongit whom wat Lord James Stewart, an Iliegitlmate won of the late king, known In later hlatory as the Earl of Murray. Both partlee agreel to lay down their arms, and submit thelr dlaputes to a meeting of the Fatates of the Realm, whilie the regent prombed not to molest the people of Perth, er garrison the town with French soldiers. She kept the letter only of her prumlee; for the hired native troope wita French money, and pro. ceeded to punlah the people of Perth. This per. Idj gave strength to the Cungregaton. They agan toxik uparma, selzed EAlnburgh, summod a purlisment, and deposed the regent (October. 1550). Thla was a bold atep; hut wlthout help from England It could not be malntalned. As the regent was atrong In French troops, the Congregation must ally wlth England. Elizabeth wished to heip them; hut her course was hy no means clear. To ally wlth rebels aghiting againat thelr lawful wovereign was a had cx. ample for one In Ellzabeth's positlon to set.
Ai last, in January, 1560, a treaty was made ai Perwick, between Elizabeth and the Duke of Chatelhernult [better known as the Earl of Arran, who had resigned the regency of Scot. land In favor of Mary of Gulie, and recelved from the French kling the duchy of Chatellier. sult]. the second perion in the Scottlsh realm. Ellizabeth undertook to ald the scotilshi lords in expelling the French, hut would only ald them so leng ns they acknowledged thelr queen. And now a strange change had come over Scotland. The Aoots were fighting slde hy side wilth the Engilsh againat their olf allees the French. AIready their rellglous feelingas had overcone thelr old national aulnooltles; or, rather, rell plon Itself had become a powerful element in thefr natlonal spirit. But meanwhlle affalrs ln Frince thol s allrection favourable to the Reformers. The french troops were needed at home, and could no longer be spared for Scotland. The withdrawal of the French made peace neccssary In Scolland, and hy :he Treaty of Edlahurgh (uuly, 1560), It was provided that henceforth no fordgners should be employed In Scotland witheut the consent of the Estates of the Realm. Elizabeth's pollcy was rewarded by a condition that Mary and Francis 14. should acknowledge her queen of England, lay anlde thelr own pretensions, and no longer wear the British arnis. Before the treaty was slgned the queen-regent dled (June 20), and with her the power of France aod the Guises In Scotland was gone for the present. The Congregatlon was now triumphsnt, and the work of Reformation was qutht!y earrled on. A meetlog of the Estates approved of the Genera Confesslon of Falth, the adminiatrathority of the Pope, and forbade the adminitration, or prenence at the adminilstratlon, of the mana, on paln of death for the thirel offence (August 35, 1600). . . The plane of the Guines were no longer to be carried on in Ecotlan! ann! England hy armed Interference, hut by the polltical craft and cunnlag of theis nlece, Mary of scotlany! [now whiowed thy the death, thecember 4, 1:50, of her husband, the young Frunch king, Franels [I.], who had been Tralned under the lr influence, "]. Mi. Crelyhton, The Ago of Elizubuth, bt: 2, ch. 1 .
Almo is: J. A. Frumele, Hiat. of Eng.. r. 7 , ch. 2-9.- J. Knox, llin. of the information in Hiar. of Suetlund. rh. $3 i^{-981}(r$. 1)
A. D. ${ }^{2} 56808568$. - The relga of Mary.Differing viewa of her conduct and charscter -In August, 1501. Quien Mary returned from her long resldence in Frauce, to undertake the government of acountry of whlch she was the scknowledged soverign, but of which alie knew almost notbling. "She was now a whiow. no the Bcots were freed froin the fear they hal felt of Frelng thelr country alink lnto a province c Frunce. The peoplic, who hatl an almant superittious reverence for klogghip, which wa very Incouslatent wlth their contempt for kingly authority, welcomied lere with open arms. They han! yet to find out that she had come hack to them French In all but blrth, glfted with wlt, Intellect. aul beauty, but subtle beyond thelr power of mearching. and yulte an zealous for the old form of relligion as they were for the new one. The Quren, luo, who came thas as a atranger anong her own people, had to deal with a atate of thinga unknown in former relgns. IIth. erto the Church had taken the alde of the Crown agaluat the nobles: mow both [the Reformed Church and the Lorda of the Congregatlon] were alted agalnst the Crown. whose only bope lay III the quarrels bet ween these 111 matcled allies. The chlef cause of discorl between them was the property of the Church. The Reformed minlsters funclenl that they hal succeeded, not only to the Pope's right of dletation in all mat. ters, publlic and pricate, but to the lands of the Church as well. To nelther of these clalnis would the Lords agree. They were as little inellined to suhualt to the tyramy of presbyters as to the tyranny of the l'ope. They whithstood the minis. ters who wished to forbld the Queen and her attenclants levaring mans in her privete chapel, and they refused to accept as law the Firsi Book of Dlselpline, a code of rules drawn up by the ministers for the guldance of the new Clurch. As to the land, much of it had already passed Inio the hands of laymen, who, FIth the lands, gruerally hore the tlte of the Church dignitary who had fornerly held them. The Priyg Conucil took one-thlri of what remalned to pily the stipends of the ministers, whlle the rest wns supposed to remain In the hands of the Cburchmen in possesslon, and, as they dled out. It was to fall In to the Crown. Lord James Stewart. Prior of St. Andrews, whom the Queen created Earl of Murray, was the hope of the Pritestants, hut $\ln$ the north the Romanists were stlil mimerous and strong. Thelr head was the Earl of fluntly, chlef of the Gorlons, who reigned supreme over most of the buth." One of the tirst proceedlngs of the Queen was to join the Earl of Murray In hostlitites whlch pursued the Earl of Huntly and his son to thefr death.
which abe was detomulaed to metoro I "The moet triorvites quection sow for all partics wa, whom the Quen mould marry. Many forelew prlaceo wofe talked of, and cirzobet suggeoted hep owa ferourte. the Eapl of Lolcontes, but Mary eatited the matter herveli by falling to love whith ber own coudin. Heory blowart, Lord Deraloy." Murney opposed the marriage with bittoreoces, aad took up arme againet it, hut falled of suppors and Bed to Engiand. The wretched conconuesces of Mary'a unlon with the undeome but worthlem Darnley are among the tragedies of history which all the worid th acqualated with. She tired of h/m, and Indamed hile jealouny, with that of all her court, by mak. Ing a favorito of her lialian secretary, Davhl Hastio. Rlazin was hrually murdered, In her proweser, Aarch 9,1500 , by a band of coasplra. tors, to whom Daraley had pledged ble protec. thon. The Queen dinembled her resentment until the had power to make it effective, filng from Edinburgh to Dunber, menntime. When, witbin a month, the returned to the caplenl, it was with a strong force, brought to her support by Jamea Hephurn, Eari of Bothwell. The murderers of Rizzlo wero mutlawed, and Darnley, while recovering from an attack of amall. pos, was killed (Februnry 0, 1567) hy the blow. og up of a house, outide of Edinburgh, In which tbe queen had placed him. "it was commonly believed that Bothwell was gulity of tbe murder, and It was sunpected that he hal done it to pleaso the Queen and wlth her concent. This suxplelon was atrengthened by her conduct. She made no eflort to find out the murderer and to bring hlm to pmishment, anl on tha day of the funeral she gave liotbwell thm feudal supertority over the town of Lelth." In May, three montha after Darnley's death, she married the Earl of Buthwell,-who hal freed himaclf froin an enrlier the hy hanty divorce. This shancless conduct causen a rining of the barons, who accupied Edlnhurgls in force. Bothwell nttempteil to oppose them with an army; hut there was no hatile. The Qneen sur remperel berself, at Carberry, June 15. 13038 Buthwell escaped, first to Orkney, nad then to Denmark, where he dled about ien yeary hater.

- last a month after her thiril marriage the Quren way brouglit back to Eilinburgh, to be grectell by the ralllugs of the mol, who bow unenly uccused her an a numbleress. . . . Frum Filinhurgh she was inken to a lonely castle buitt in an minall ishmil lu the centre of lach deven. A few di.walater a conket contninine eight lep. ters was prokluced. These letters, It whas salol. Bothwell hat left lehind himin his tleht, and they wermed to hinve been written by Mary to him while Durnley was 111 In Ghasgow. If she renlly wrote them, they proved very plalnly that ahe hum phaned the mumer with bethwell. They are called the 'casket lefters.' from the bose or casket lo which they were fouml. The confeckerate barons acted as it they were really leers. The Loril Lindsay nail Robert Melvilie were sent to her at Loch Leven, noml she there slgued the demission of the government to her mon, and desired that Murray should be the first regent." The Infant king. Jumes VI., was crywand at stirlligi and Murtay, recalled from France, became regent. Within a year Mary escaped from ber prison, reasserted ber right of soverelgaty, and was supported by a conslder.
able party. Dofented ta battio fought at Lamgelte, May 18, 1800, the then feed to Lag. haed, and recefred from Elizaboth the bouplealty of a prisom. Bhe wes confaed in varlous cutles and masor honcece, ondling her Ife, after many removes, at Fotheringay, whero i'e was eze. cuted [ee Enolamp: X. D. 1505-1987] Febru. ary 8, 1897.-M. Macarthus, lliod. of Nothand d. 6.- " Io aple of all the prurient sug. geetlons of writere who have fastened on the conry of Mary's life as on a anvoury monel, there is no reason whatever for thinking that she was a woman of licentious dlispoltion, and there is atrong evidence to the contrary. There wis nerer anythlog to her diacredit in France.
The charge of adultery with Rizzlo In dimimed as unworthy of belle (even hy Mr. Proule, the severest of her judgen. Bothwell ladeed she loved, and, like many another woman who doen not dewerve to be called lisentious, she sucrificed bef reputation th the man she loved. But the nunt conclusive proof that she was no slare th appetile is afforded by her alaeteen yesri' residence In England, Which began when the whis ouly tweaty-ave. During almost the while if that time abe was mixing freely In the mociety of the other wex, with the fulleat opportunly tur mikionduct had she been oo Incllned. It is aos to be suppowed that she was fettered by say mecruplea if rellgion of morality. Yet an charge of unchastly ff made agalnst her. . . . Thit imanley wan murdered by Bothwell in not dhepinted. That Mery was cognlsant of the phet and lured him to the shambles, has heen inubiel oy few lnveatigaton at once competent and unbinswed. She lent hereif to thls part not withnut rompunctlon. Bothwoll aad the ailvantuge ever her that the loved has over the lover; and he usert lt me. .oessly for his headlong subition, rolly taklog the trouble to pretent that be ed for the unlappy woman who was wncrite.
- everything fur hifm. He la fact raped more bds :awful wife, whom he was propuring to dlvorce, and to whom he hal leen marriet naly slx months.

What broughe sumilen and iree. irlevable ruln on Mary was not the muriler of Darnley, but the Infatuation whlch made her the passive Instrument of Bothwell's presumptunas ambit'on."-E. & Peesly, Queen Elictstheth, oh 4.-"Constitutlonally, Mary wish nut a perwa likely to come under the sway of a wiblith and abourhing massion. Iler whole uature was mas. chlibe in lts umbiernton, lis tirmares, its matb. nanioulty. She was tolerant, uncapriciona. cupable of carrying out a purpose steaitly, set with tact and policy. She was never hipsterical. acver fancifinl. Wlth ber, love will ulit an engrossing occupation; on the contrure, to May, as to most men, it was but the chith and play thlag of unfrequent lelsnice. Her lowers when mail about her, but whe never went tuas athout har lovers. She sent Clantelat (1) the satiold 2he siw Sle Joha Gorton behendel. She en mitied Rlizlo to a clonse intinacy. Rizzio was licr intellectual matc, the depository of her thate secrets, her, wolltic gulde nad confitant: but the very notorlety of leer Intercourse with him showed how lnnocent and unsexual ic was in its nature,-tbe irunk companlonship of fricadly even had love in the abstract been a more im portant master to ber tban it was, she would base been more cautious and discreet: however fmportant the publle bualocee which they were tremetias might heve been, she would Rurdly hare kept the ieliten merotary In her boudor haff the ul phe. Rifor marriage with Deroley was sot exciualvily a love-brateh: it wat a merriay to which her judfmenc, as weil as her hoart. conentied. Hor hivoletters abound in protty trliee: ber bualaess kitiers are clear, ditroas, mphd, brililantly diroet. Hy the fantuitic Irony of the this macuitio unecatimental careep bas been transiated into an effeminato love otory, the truth being., as 1 have had to may agula aid again, that no woman ever lived to whom love wa iens of a necemolty. This wan the strength of Mary's character an a queen - as a woman, its delect. A love sick sir), when her cantle in the atr was shattered, might have come to hate Daroley with feverish feminine hatred; but the mednte and poiltic intelligence of the Queen couid oniy hare been incldentally affected hy auch conmderstiosa. Bhe knew that, even at the nomt. Imarnley was a usefuc ally, and the motives wheh induced her to marry hlm munt have reatralned ber from putting him forchisiy away. Yet when the deed was done, it in not surpriang that she should have acquiesced in the action of the nohility. Bothwell, agaln, wa in her entimation a inyal retalner, a truated driner of the Crown: but he wan nothing more. Iet it need not surprise us that after her forcible detention at Dunbar, ahe should have resolved to submit with a good grace to the Inevitahle. Earing Argrie and Iluntiey, Bothweil was the mont powerful of her peers. He was esscutinily atrong man; it. it seemed, to rule that turhuknt nobility. He had been recommended to her ece. ptanee by the unalmous voice of the aristoc. racy, Protestant and Cathoile. . . . On a woman of srient sentimentality theme considerations wouid have had ilttle effect: they were ex sctiy the cunsiderations which would appeai to Marys mamculine common sense. Yet, thorigh she made what mermed to her the beat of to vad buslnesa. ahe was very wretched."-J. Skeltun, Einmeyn in History cant BiagrapAy. pp. 40-11.- "To eatah lish the genuineness of the Caskit Letters is necessarily to estublish that Mar; was a co-eon. apirator with Botisweli in the musker of ser husband. . . The expressions in the ietters are not consistent with an innocent purpose, or ith the thenry that she brought Darnley to uburgh In onier to facilitate the obtaining of a disurce. A part even from otiaer orroborntive eridencr, the evidence of the ietters, if their genuinmexs be admitted, is smfficient to estnibilsit her guilt. Inasmmeh, howeser, as her entire inoncence is not eonsistent with other evidence, It can searcely be aftirmed that the problem of the genuineress of the letten thas an absolutely vital beariug " 7 the character of Mary. Mr. Skeltum, who cues not admitt the genulaeness of the letters, and who may be reckoned one of the most dintlugulshed and lugenlous defemlers of Hary in this evurtry, has taken mo pains to conceal hls contempt for what he terms the theory of the ecelesiastice-that Mary, during the whole progress of the plot agalist Darnler's life, was ' innocent as a child, immaculate as a saint.' He is unabic to adopt a more friendiy attitule towards her than that of an apologizer. ant is compelled to sttempt the assumption of a middle postion - tha* she was netther wholly funoceni nur whoily guilty; that, ignorant of the deta'lom and methol of the piot, the oaly raguely guewed that it way In progrees, and falled mere! y In Armiy and prom:tiy forbiddlog lie oze. cution. But in a case of miniler a mirdie pooltion - a position of even partiai indilference 10. except In very pecullar clrcumatancea, well. algh impoesthie; In the cume of a wlfe's attitude to the murder of her husband, the Ilmit of im . posilhility is atll more nearly approached; hut when tie whife promesea auch exceptional cour. age, fertility of remource, and strenith of will as were ponemed ty Mary, the impousthility may be regarded an almolute. "Realden, as a matter of fact, Sary was not indife' int in the matter. She had long regarded her 1 as nd's conduct with antlpathy and iadignathon; whe did not conceal her eujer denlre to be deilvereil from the yoke of marrlage twhim; and she had nhundant reneons, many of whleh were juntidable, for this denire.

The fatal weakness of all such argu. mente as are unel to entahilsin either Mary's at molute or partial innocence of the murder f , that they do not harmonize with the leadlag trates of her dispowition. She wat pomened of altogether exceptional decision and force of will; the wat remarkably wary and acute; and alie was a match fur almost any of her contemporaries in the art of diplomacy. She was nut one to be enncused Into a course of action to which she had any atmong a version."-T. F. Headerson, The Ciaket Lettere and Mary Queen of Aeota, eh. 1 . -" The benutien of her perion, and gracen of her alr, comblaed to make her the mont smiabie of women: and the charms of her address and con. versation aided the imprestion which her lovely Hgure made on the hearts of all ixeholders. Ambitlons and active in ber temper, yet inclloed to cheerfulawes and moclety; of a iofty splrit, conatant and even veliement in her purpose., yet polite, and gentie, and affnhle in her demenmour: she seemed to partake only so much of the male virtues as to remier her estimnbie, without re ingulsining tinuse soft graces whlch compose the proper ormament of her sex. In order to form a Juat ilea of her character, we must set aslde one part of her conduct, winte ahe abandoneni herseif to the gnldance of a proflgate man; and must eonsider these fnuits, whether we admit them to be imprndenees or crimes, as the reault of an inexplicalice, thught int uneommon, leconstancy in the human inhmi, of the frality of our nature, of the vioiconer of jassion, and of the influence Whieh situntions, and sonetimes monentary incildents, have on perwons whose principles are not thoronghly enutirmed by experience and reflee. tion. Finfigedi hy the ungrateful conduct of her insinnd, meluced by the treachemus counsels of one in whom she rejosed conflidence, transported be the vinience of her own temper, which never lay' sumblenty under the guidanee of discretion, she was hetrayed into actions which may with some difticulty be accounted for, hut which admit of no npology, nor even of alleviation. In enumeration of lier qunlitles might earry the appearance of a pauegyric: an account of her conduct must in some parts wear the aspeet of severe satire and invective. Iler numerous mis. fortunes, tive solitude of her long and tedlous captivity, and the persecutions to whileh she had wrought her up to a degree of higotry during her later years; and such were the prevalent apirit and principles of the age, that it is the less wonder If her zeai, her resentment, and her interest uniting, induced her to give consent to a design which conspirators, actuated oniy by the first of these motlves, hal formed against the life of Ellzabeth."一 D . IIune, Mint. of Enghand, ch. 43 (0. 4). -" More broks have been written about Mary Stuart than exist as to nil the Queens in the world; yet, so greatiy do those hiographies vary in thelr representations of her character, thnt ut first it seems searcely credible how any person conid be so dilferently described. The triumpin of a creed or party has unliappily been more considered than the devciopmer * of facts, or those principles of inoral justice which ought to nummate the pen of the llistorlnn; and, after nif the fiterary gladlatorship that has been practised in thls arena for some tirce inundred jears, the guilt or Innocence of Mary Queen of Scots is still under consideration, for party feeliag and sectarian hate have not yet exhausted their mulice.

If the opinions of Mary Stuart's own sex were aliowed to decide the questlon at issue, a verdict of not guity would have been pronounced hy an overwhelmitag majority of aii remlers. irrespective of creed or party. Is, then, the moral stamlard crected by women for one another, lower than tiat which is required of them by men". Are they less acute lu their perceptious of rlght and wrong, or more disposed to tolerate fruities? The contrary has generally heres proved. With the exception of Queen Eliaheth, Catharine de Medicis, Lady Shrews. bury, and Mnrgaret Erskiut (Lady Donglas), of infamous memory. Mary Stuart liad no temale ent-uies worthy of notice. it is a remarkahie fact that English gold cond not purchase wlt. nesse. i irom the femate portion of the household of the Quecn of Scots. Sone of the ladies of the Cunrt, whethr Protestant or Catholic, imputed criume nt any time to their mistrese In the days of her Rayai splendour in France Queen Mary was attentied hy laties of anclent family and unsullied honour, aat, like true women, they chang to her in the darkest hour of her later notversity, through good and evil rejort they ghared the glomin nut sorrow of iner prison life. "-S. H. Burke, Mistorical Portraits of the Tuder Dynasty and the Reformation Jeriml, c. 4, ch. 7. -" Mary Stuart was In many respects the creature of her age, of her creed, and of her station; hist the noblest and most noteworthy quatities of her na. ture were indepenient of rank, opinion, or time. Even the detractors who defeud her conduct on the pleat that slie was a dastari and a clupe are compelled in the same breath to retruct this implied reproach. aul to ndenit. with illogicai ace clamation and incongruous applanse, that the world never sitw more spleudid conrage at the service of bure brilliant iatelligence; that a - ornver if mot a rirer spirit never dlai steer ammanity. A kinder or more faithful friend, $n$ doudtior or more dangerons cnemy, it would he impussibice to dread or to desire. Passion alone couthl shake the doubie fortress of lier impreg. nable heart nud ever active brain. The passion of love, after very suttcient experience, she appareutly aud nuturally uutlived. the passion of hutrel and revenge whs ns inextinguishable in fure inmost nature as the emotioa of loyalty and gratitude. Of repentance it would seem that she kaew as little as of fear; haviag beeutrained from her infancy in a religion where the beca. logue was supplanted by the Crred. Adept ns she was in the most exquisite dellcacy of dissimu. latlon, the most mallent note of her originaidisposltlon was daring rather than subtlety. Beside or behlad the voluptuous or intellectusl attrac. tions of beauty and cuiture, she had sboat her the fresher charm of a fearless and frank sim. pliclty, a genulue and enduring pleasure in small and harmless thlngs no less than in sach as were neither. . . . For her own freedom of will and of way, of passlon and of action, she cared much; for her creed she cared something; for her country she cared less than nothing. She would have flung Scotlend wlth Engiand iato the ineilfre of Spanlsh Catholiclsm rather than forego the falntest chance of personal revenge. the private and personal quailities which attract and attach a friend to his friend and a foliower to hls leaier, no man or woman was ever more constant nnd more emlnent than Mary Qaeta of Scots."-A. C. Swlnburne, Mary Queen of Soto (Miscellanies, pp. 857-959).
Also in: J. H. Burton, Fint. of Scotland, ch. 41-47 (c. 4). - M. Laing, Ifist. of Scothom, c. 1-\%. -F. A. Mignet, Hint. of Mary, Queen of जvets. A. Strickland, Life of Mary, Queen of Nate J. Skelton, Mathund of Lethington.-W. Rolverson, IIist. of Scotland, Appendix. -C. M. Yonge, Cameos of English History, series 4, c. 3:, whd series 5, c. 1, 2, 5 and 6.
A. D. 1567,-Accession of James VI.
A. D. 1568-1572.-Distracted atate of the kingdom. -The Reformed Church and John Knox. -During the winote ninority of the youg king, James VI., Scotiand was torn ly warring factions. Murray, assassinated in 15\%0, was succeeded in the regency by the Earl of Lennox, who was killed la a fight the next year. The Earl of Mar followed him, and Mortoa held the office next.
" The civil commotions that ensued on Murray's assasslnatlon were not wholly adverse to the reformed caluse, as they guve it an overwheiming lnfluence with the king's party, which it supported. On the other band they eicused every klad of lrregularity. There was a acramble for forfelted estates and the purianong of the kirk, from which latter source the leaders of both parties rewarded their partisans. The church . . . vlewed with alnm the various processes by whicil the ecclesiastical revenues were being secuiarised. Nor can it le doabted tiat means, hy which the evii might be stayed, were the suhject of conference leetween committees of the Privy Council and General Assembly. The pian which was actually alopted incorporated ln the reformed church the spiritaal cstate, and relntroduced the bishops by their proper tities, suhject to stringent conditions of qualitication' [see betow: A. D. 15:~] . . Knox, whose iife had been attempted in March 1550-1, had been constrained to retire from Elinburgh and whs at St. Andrews when the new platform was arranged. On the strength of certain notices that are not at ali conclusive, it bas been strenuously denied that he was a party to it even hy consent.

There are facts, loweser, to the contrary.

On the evidence available Knox casnot be claimed as the ulvocate of s divine right. either of presbytery or episcopacy. With fast-fniling strength he returaed to Ellnburgh towards the end of August." $0 n$ the $24 t \mathrm{~h}$ of November, 1572, he died.-M. C. Tayior, John Knax (St. Giles' Lect's, $3 d$ serits)-- It seems to me hard measure that Uhs sicitish man [John Knox], now after three-hundred years, should have to plemd like a eulprit before the world; intrinsicaily for having been, in auch way as it was then poselble to be, the bravest of all Scotchmen Had he been a poor Half-andhslf. he eouid have crouelied linto the corner, like so many others; Scotland had not been delivered; and Knox had been without blame. He ls the one Seotchman to whom, of all others, hls country and the world owe a debt. He has to plead that Scotiand would forglve him for havlag been worth to lt any million cunblama. hle' Sentchmen that need no forglveness. He bared his lireast to the battle: had to row in French galleys, wander forlorn in exile, In elouds and storms; was censured, shot-at through hits wlodows; had a right sore fightlng life: If this world were hls place of recompense, he had made but a bad renture of it. I eannot apologise for Knox. To hlm It is very lndifferent, these two-hundred-snd-ffty yeara or more, whint men say of hlm."-T. Carlyle, Heroes and IIero-tcorship, ket. 4. - "Altogether, If we estiniate hilm [Knox]; as re are alone entitled to do, In hls bistorieal positlon and eircumstances, Knox appears a very great and herole man-no vlolent deunagogue. or even stern dogmatist - although rlolence and sternness and dogmatlsm xere ail parts of hls chsracter. These conrser elenients nilngled with but lid not obscure the fresh, living, and keenly sympsthetie humnnty beneath. Far inferior to Luther in tenderness and hrendth and lovableness, he ls greatly superior to Calvin in the same qualities. You feei thnt he had a strong and loving hesrt under ali hils harshness, and that ron ean get near to It, and could have spent a cheery soclal evening with him in his house at the head of the Canongate, over that good oid whe thst he hal stored in his cellar, and which he wss glad and prond to dispense to hls friends. It might not have been a very plensant thlng to differ with him even in sueh clrcumstances; but. upon the whole, it would have beena pleasanter sad safer sudseity than to have dlsputed some fsvourite tenet with Calvin. There whs in Knox fsr more of mere human feeing and of shrewd worldy sense, always tole raut of differences; and you conld have fallen huek upon these, and felt yourself comparatively safe in the utter. ance of some daring sentiment. And in thls point of view lt deserves to be notleed thnt Knox alone of the reformers, along wlth Luther, is free from sll staln of vlolent persecition. Intolerant he was towarls the mass, towards Mary, and towarls the old Catholie clergy; yet he was no persceutor. Ile was never eruel in act, eruel as his lauguage sometlmes is, nnd severc as were some of his judgments. Modern enlightenment and sclentlfe lndifference we have no right to look for in lilm. IIIs superstlilons alwint the Weather and whtehes were common to him with all men of his time. As a mere thlnker, stre perhsps on politieal subjects, he takes no rank: and his political views, wlse and enlight. enell is they were, seem rather the growth of hls manly instinctlve sense than rensoned from any fundamental princlples. Earnest, Intense, anil powerful in every practlcal direetlon, he was not in the lesst eharacteristleally retlective or speculative. Everywhere the hero, he is nowhere the philosopher or sage.-He was, in short, a man for his work and time-knowling what wis geod for his country there and theu,

When the old Catholic bonds had rotted to the very heart. A man of God, yet with ainfui weaknesses like us all. There is something in him we can no longer love, a harshness and severity by no means beautiful or attractive; but there $/ s$ little in him that we cannot in the retrospect heartily respeet, and even admlr. ingly cherish." $-J$. Tulloch, Leadery of the Ref. ormation: Knoz.
A. D. 1570-1573.-Civil War.-"All the miseries of elvll war desolated the kingdom. Fellow-cltizens, friends, brothers, tonk different sldes, and ranged themselves under the standards of the contending factions. In every eounty, and almost In every town and vlilage, 'klng's men' and 'queen's men' were names of distinetlon. Polltlcal hatred dissolved all natural ties. and extingulshed the reelprocal good-will and confidence whleh hold manklnd together in soeiety. Rellglous zeal mingied itself with these elvil distlnetlons, and contributed not a llitle to heighten and to inflame them. The faetions which divided the kingdom were, in appearanee, only two; but in both these there were persons with views and princlples so different from each other that they ought $w$ be distingulshed. With some, conslderations of rellglon were predomlnant, and they elther adhered to the queen beeause they hoped by her means to reestablish popery, or they defended the klng's suthority as the best support of the protestnnt falth. Among these the opposition was violent nad irreeoneil. able. . As Morton, who commsnded the regent's forces [15:2, during the regency of Mar], lay at Lelth, and Kirkudy lay at Lelth, and Kirkaldy still held out the town and castle of EdInhurgh for the party of the queen], scarce a day psssed without a sklr. mish.

Both partles hanged the prisoners whieh they took, of whatever rank or quality, whthout mercy and without trinl. Great nunibera suffered In this shocklng manner; the unhappy vietlms were led by fifties at a tlme to execution; and it was not tlll hoth sldes had smarted severely that they discontinued this harbarous practice.

In 1573, Morton, being now regent, made peace with one factlon of the queen's party, and succeeded, with the help of a siege train and foree whleh Queen Elizabeth sent him from England, In overcomlag the other faetion whleh held Edinburgh and its castle. Klrt. aldy was compelied to sirrender after a slege of thlrty-three days, reeelving promiser of protec-thirty-three days, reeelving promises of protection from the Engilsh commander, in splte of whieh he was hauged. -W. Robertson, List. of Scotland, is. 6 ( $c .2$.
Also in: J. H. Burton, Mist. of Scolland, ch. 53-56 ( 0.5 ).
A. D. ${ }^{1572 .-E p i s c o p a c y ~ r e s t o r e d .-~ T h e ~}$ Concordat of Leith. - The Tulchan Bishops. -"On the 12 th of January, 1572, a Convention of the Chureh assembled at Leith. By whom it was convened is unknown. It was not a regular Assembly, but lt assumed to litself ' the strength, foree, and effect of a General Assembly,' and It was attended by 'the superintendents, barons. commissloners to plant kirks, commlssloners of provinces, wwns, klrks, and minlsters.'. By the 1st of February the joint committees framed a eoncordat, of which the following articles were the ehief: -1 . That the names of arehblshops and blshops, and the bonnds of dioceses, should remain as they were before the Reformation, at the least till the majority of tho king, or till a different arrangement should be made by the parliament; and that to every cathedral church there should be attached a chapter of learned men; but that the bishops should have no more power than was possessed by the superintendents, and should like them be subjeet to the General Assemblles. 2. That ahbots and friars should be contlnued as parts of the Splritual Estate of the realm. ., Such was the famous concordat agreed upon by the Chureh and State in Scotland ln 1572. . . . The Chureh had ln valn struggled to get possession of lts patrimony. It had $\ln$ valn argued that the bishopries and ahbacles should he dissolved, and thelr revenues applled for the malntenance of the minlstry, the edueatlon of the youthhead, and the support of the poor. The bishoprics and ahbacles were maintalned as if they were Indissoluble. Some of them were already gifted to laymen, and the ministers of the Protestant Church were poorly pald out of the thlrds of benefiees. The colleetlon of these even the regent had recently stopped, and beggary was nt the door. What was to be dons? The only way of obtalning the eplscops prenues was by relntroducing the eplscopai office.

The minlsters regarded archblshops, hishops, deans and chapters as things law ful, but not expedient - ' they soumded of piplatry'; but now, under the pressure of a stifi stronger expediency, they reeelved them Into the Churelt.

Knox yleided to the same necessity under whleh the Chureh had bowed.

It was a mongrel prelaey that was thus introduced into Scotland - a cross betwlyt Popery and Presbytery. It was not of the true Roman breed. It was not even of the Anghlean. It contd not pretend to the apostolleni descent."-J. Cumningham, Chureh Hist. of Sevtland, e. 1, ch. 12.-"The new digulturies got from the populace the name of the Tulehan blshops. A tulchan, an old Scots word of unknown origin, was applied to $n$ stuffed ealf-skin which was brought lnto the presence of a recently ealved cow. It was an agricultural doctrine of that age, and of later times, that the presence of this changeling induced the bereaved mother eusily to part with her milk. To draw what remalnet of the bishops' revenue, it was expelient that there shonld be bishops: bat the reveuues were not for them, hat for the lay lords, who milked the ecclesiastleal cow."-J. H. Burton, IIIst. of Scotlend, ch, $5 t$ (c. 5).
A. D. 158r. - The Second Covenant, called also The First National Covenant. -"The national covenant of scotand was slmply au nbjuration of perery, and a solemn engagement, ratitioll by a sotemn oath, to support the protestant religion. Its immediate occuston was $n$ dread tow well fonmeded a dread from which Scotliand was never entirely freed till the revolu-tion- of the re lutredinetion of popery. It was well known that hemox wns ne emissary of the homse of Gulse and thad been sent over to prevail on the young bing to embrnee the Roman catho. lie faith. . . . A conspiracy so dangerous at all times to a country diviled in religious sentiment, demanded a couter-comblation equally strict misl solemn, and led to the formntlon of the uational covemant of seotland. This was drawn up at the king's repuest, by his claplain, John Craty. It consisted of an ahjuration, in the mont solemn and eaplicit terms, of the various artlcles of the poplsh system, and an engagemeat to adhere to and defend the reformed doctrine and disciplline of the reformed church of Scotland. The covenanters further pledged them. selves, under the mame oath, to defend his majeaty's person and authority wlth our goods, bodies, and lives, in the defence of Christ's evangel, llbertles of our country, miniatration of justlce, and punlshment of lnlquity, agsinst all enemles wlthln the realm or wlthout.' Thit bond, at first called ' the klng's confesslon,' was aworn and subscribed by the klng and his house. hold, for example to others, on the 28th of January 1581; and afterwards, in consequence of an order $\ln$ councll, and an aet of the general assembly, It was cheerfully subscribed hy all ranks of persons through the klagdon; the minlsters zealously promoting the suhscription in thelr respectlve parishes." ${ }^{3}$ T. M'Crle, sketches of Scottioh Church Hiatory, v. 1, ch. 4.

Also in: D. Calderwood, Hist. of the Kirk of Scotland, $\boldsymbol{v}$. 8, 1581.-J. Row, Mist. of the Kirk of Scotland, 1581.
A. D. 1582.-The Raid of Ruthven.-" The two favourites [Lennox and Arran], by thelr ascendant over the king, possessed uncontrolled power in the kingdom, and exerclsed it with the utmost wantonness." The provocatlon whlch they gave brought about, at length, a comblaation of nobles, formed for the purpuse of remor. log the young king from their inf ence, lnvitel to Ruthven Castle In August, 1 upiz, by lis master, Lord Ruthven, lately ereated Earl of Gowrie. James found there a large assemhlage of the conspirators and was detained against his will He was afterwards removed to Stirling, and later to the palace of IIolyrood, but still under restraint. This continued untli the following June, when the klng effected his escape and Arrin recovered hls power. Lennox had diel menntime in France. All those concerned in what was known as the Raid of IRnthven were proclalmed gulty of high treasou and flet the country. The clergy gave grent off use to the king loy approving nad sustaining the laid of Rathyen. He never forgave the Church for its attitude on this occasion.-W. Rohertern, Hist. of Sothend, bk. 6 (r. ${ }^{2}$ ).

Also in: C. Ml Yonge, Cameruy from Ehg Hist., Beries 5, c. 20.
A. D. 1584.-The Black Acts.-' James was bent upon destroying a form of Chureh government which he lumagined to be lucousistent with his own kingly prerogatives. The feneral Assembly rested upon too popular a baiss they were ton hatependent of his nusohte will, they nssumed a jurisdicton which hey. 111 mallow . The minlsters were too mach given bo lisenss poltical subjects in the pulpit - to apeak evil of dignities - to resist the powers hat were ordalnet of Gord. . . On the ed uf May, liest. the Parliansent assembled.
ed. A serics of acts were passed mimost entrely subversive of the rights hitherto enjoyet by the Charch. 13y one. the ancient jurishliction of the Three Estates was rattifed. - mid to speak evil of any one of thens was dechared to be trason; thas were the bishops laedged abomt. By another, the king wis dechared to be supreme in nil canses and wer all persons, nad to deeline hls judgment was pronounced to be treason; thus was the helducs of such meu as Medville to be chastised. liy a third. all convocations except those specially litensed by the klog were declared to be unlawful; thus were the courts of the Church to be shorn of their power. By a fourth, the chief jurisdiction of the Church was lodged in the hands of the Eplscopal body; for the bishops must now do whst the Assemblies and presbyteries had hitherto done. By still another aet, it was provided 'that none ahould presume, privately or publicly, in sermons, declamations, or familiar conferences, to utter any false, untrue, orslanderous speeches, to the reproach of his Majesty or council, or meddle with the affalrs of his Highness and Estate, under the pains contsined in the aets of parllament made against the makers and reporters of lies.'. The parliament registered the resolves of the king; for though Scottish barons were turbulent, Seottish parliaments were doclie, and seldom thwarted the reigning power. But the people sympathlzed with the ministers; the acts became known as the Black Acts; and the struggle between the court and the Chureh, Whlel lasted with some intermissions for more than a century, was begun, "-J. Cunningham, Church IIist. of Acotland, v. 1, ch. 12.
ALMM IN: D. Calderwood. Hist. of the Kirirk of Sothud, r. 4, 1584.-Scottiah Dirines (St. Gites' Let'^. .ries 3), lect. 2.--J. Melvliie, Autobiog. and Diary, 1584.
A. D. 1587.- The execution of Mary Stuart in England. See Enoland: A. D. 1585-1587.
A. D. $158 \%$.-Appropriation of Church lands and ruin of the Epiacopacy.-The parliament of lis? passed an act which "annexed to the crown such lamels of the ehurch ns had not been inalieasbly bestowed upon the nohies or landed gentry; these were stlll considerahle, and were beld either by the tltular bishops who possessed the beactices, or were granted to laymen by rights nerely temporary. The oniy fund reserved for the clergy who were to serve the cure was the principal manslon house, with a fcw aeres of glebe land. The fund from whieh their stipends were to be paid was ilmited to the tithes. The crown . . was little benefitted hy an enactment which, detaching the chureil lauds from all conneetlon with ecclesiastical persons, totaliy rulned the order of bishops, for the restoration of Whom, wheth some dignity and authority, king James, and his successor a fterwards, expressed considersbie anxiety."-Sir W. Scott, LIist. of Scotland, ch. 37 (o. 2).
A. D. 1600.-The Gowrie Plot.-' ${ }^{\text {- }}$ : the morning of the Sth of August, 1600 , as $I$ ames was setting out hunting from Faiklund Palace, he was met by Alexander Ruthven, the younger hrother of the Earl of Gowrie [both being sons of the Gowrie of the 'Raid of Ruthven '], who told him with a great air of mystery that he had discovered a man burying a pot of money in a fleid, and that he thought the affair so suspicious that he had taken him prisoner, and begged the King to come to Gowrie House in Perth to see him. James went, taking with him Mar, Lennox, and about twenty other gentlemen. After dinner Alexsnder took the E!ng aside, and, when his attendants missed him, they were toid that hc had gone haek to Falsland. They were preparing to follow him there when some of them heard cries from a turret. They recognized the hing's voice, and they presently saw his head thrust out of a window, calling for heip. They he! much ade to maze their way w him, hut they found him at last in a small room struggling

With Alezander, while man dressed in armonr was looking on. Alexander Ruthven and Gowrie were both killed in the scuffle which followed. A tumult rose in the town, for the Earl had been Provost and was very popular with the townsfolk, and the Klag and his foliowers had to make their escape by the river. The doom of traitors wns passed on the dead men, and their name was proscribed, but as vo aceomplice could be discovered, it was hard to say what was the extent or object of their plot. The wiole affair was very mysterious, the oniy witnesses being the King himseif and Ifeuderson the man in armour. Some of the ministers thought it so suspicious that they refused to return thanks for the King's safety, as they thought the whole affair an Invention of his own." Eight years later, however, some letters were dlseovered whleh seemed to prove that there had renlly been a piot to seize the King's person.-M. Macarthur, List. of Seotland, ch. 6.
ALso IN: Sir W. Scott, Fist. of Scotland, ch. 40 ( $c .2$ ). -P. F. Tytler, Hist. of Scotland, c. 4, ch. 11.
A. D. I603.-Accession of James VI. to the English throne. See England A. D. 1603.
A. D. 1618. - The Five Articles of Perth. After his accession to the English throne, James became more deeply enamoured of Episcopaey, and of its ecciesfastical and ceremoniai incidents, than before, and more determlued to force them on the Scottish ehureh. He worked to that ead with arbitrary iusolence and violence, and with every klnd of dishonest Intrigue, until he had accomplished his purpose completely. Not oniy were his bishops seated, with falr endowments and large powers restored, hut he had them ordained in England, to ensure their apostollc legitimaey. When this had been done, he resolved to impose a iiturgy upon the Chureh, with certain ordinanees of his own framing. The five artieies in whlch the latter were embodied became for two years the subject of a most bitter and heated struggle between the conrt and its hishops on one slie, with most of the general elergy on the other. At length, in Angust, 1618, an Assembly made up at Perth proved subservient enough to submit to the royai brow-beating and to adopt the five artieles. These Five Artieles of Perth, as they are known, enjolned kneeling at the communion, observance of five hoidays, and episcopal confirmation; and they authorized the private dispeusation both of haptism and of the Lord's supper. The powers of the court of high eommission were netively brought into play to enforee them.-J. Cunniggham, Church Hiat. of Scollund, v. 2. ch. 1.
A. D. 1637.- Laud's Liturgy and Jenny Ged ' ${ }^{\text {s }}$ ' Stool.-"Now we are summoned to a sadder subject; from the sufferings of a private person [Jolu Williams, bishop of Llncoln, pursued and persecuted by Luud] to the miseries aud aimost mutuui rulo of two kingdoms. England nad Scotlantl. I coufess, my hands have always been unwilling to write of that coid eountry, for fear my tingers should be frosthitten therewith; but necessity to make our story entire puts me upon the employment. Nliseries, eaused from the sending of the Book of Service or new Liturgy thither, whieh may sadly be termed a 'Rubric' indeed, dyed wlth the blood of so many of both nations, slain on thut occasion. It seems the design began in the reign of king James; who denired and endeavoured an uniformity of puhlic prayers through the kingdom of Scotland. . . . In the reign of king Charies, the projeet belig resumed (bili whet her the same book or no, God knoweth), it was conciuded not to send into Scotland the same Liturgy of England 'totidem verbls,' lest thls shonid be misconatrued a hadge of dependenee of that church on ours. It was resolved also, that the two Liturgies should not differ in substance, lest the lioman party should upbraid us with welghty and material differences. A similltude thcrefore not Identity belng resolved of, it was drawn up with come, as they termed them. insensible alteratlons, but such as were quickly found and felt by the Beoteh to thelr great distaste. The names of sundry salnts, omittell in the Engllsh, are inserted into the scoteli Calendar (but only in black letters), on their several days.

Some of these were kings, all of them natlres of that eountry. . . . But these Scotch saints were so far from making the English Liturgy acceptable. that the Engllsh Liturgy rather male the salnts odlons unto them. . . No sooner bad the dean of Edlaburgh begun to read the book in the ehurch of St. Glles, Sunday, July 23rul, in the presence of the Privy Councll, both the arehbishops, divers blshops, aud maglstrates of the eity, but presently such a tumult was ralsed that, through elapping of hands, cursing, and crying, one eould neither hear nor be heard. The cisiop of Edinburgh endeavoured in vain to appease the tumult; when a stow, aimed to le thrown at him [uccordlug to popular tradition by an ohd lerb-woman named Jeuny (Gediles], iniml killed, if not eliserted ly one present; so that the same book had oceasioned his death and preseribed the form of his burial; and tbis hub)but was hardly suppressed by the lord provost and bailiffs of Eilinburgh. This first tumult wha caused by such, whom I find called 'the scimm of the eity,' considemble for nothing bitt tbeir number. isut, few diss after, the cream of the nation (some of the highest and best quality therein) engaged In the same canse, crying ont, 'Gold defend all those who will defend Gorl's cansel and Gol confonad the service-bon)? and all the malntalners of It!""一T. Ful! $r$, Chureh IIist. of Britain, bk. 11, sect. : ( 2.3 ), $\rightarrow$ "One of the most distinct nnd familiur of historicai trulitlons : ttributes the honour of flinging the first stool, an I so beginning the great civil war, to a certain Jenny or Jamet Geddes. But a seareh amon's contemporary writers for the identification of such an actor on the seene, will have the sume ineonchisive result that often attends the search nfter some eriminal hero with a mythienl celebrity when he is wanted by the police. $\qquad$ Worlow, on the anthorty of liobert Stewart-a son of the Lord Alvocate of the Revohtion-utterly dethrones Mrs. Gedles: -Ife tells me that it's the constantly believed tradition that it was Mrs. Mean, wife to John Mean, mercliant in Filinburgh, that cast the first stowl when the service was read in the New Kirk, Edinburgh. 1637: and that many of the lusses that carried on the fray were prentiees in disgulse, for they threw stools to a greait length." J. II. Burtou, Hist. of s.e.thent, c. 6, pp. 443-444, foot.note.
A. D. 1638.-The Tables, and the signing of the National Covenant.-" Nohles, mhlas ters, gentlemen, and burghers from every district poured into Edinburgh to take part in a natlonal resintance to these Innovations fof the Service Book], and an appeai was made from the whole body aceemhled lin the capitai, not only sgalnat the Service Book, hat also agninst the Book of Canons and the conduct of the blahops, Iastead, however, of granting redress of these grievances, the King issued a series of angry and exasperat. ing proclamations, commanding the erowds of strangers in the capitai to return immediately to thelr own homes, and instruetling the Councll and the Bupreme Courts of Law to remove to Linilthgow. But instead of obeying the Injune. tlon to leave Edllnburgh, the multtudes there continued to receive accessions from all parts of the country. $\qquad$ In answer to the compliaint of the Councll that thelr meeting in such numbers was disorderly and illegal, the supplicunts uffered to choose a ilmited number from earh of the c. *ses into which they were soclally divhlerlnoises, lesser barons, burgesses, and clergy - to act as their representatives. This was at oace very imprudently agreed to by the Comeil. A committee of foir was accorilngly selectell bs eneh of these elasses, who were listructed to reslde in the eapitai, and were empowerell to take all necessary steps to promote thelr common object. They had also anthority to assminle the whole of their constituents shonld any ex traordinary emergency arise. The opponents of the new Canons and Servlee Berk were this organised with ofllicial approval lnto one large and powerful boxly, known in history as 'The Tables,' w: h speedily exerelsed an inportant influence i., the country. As soon as this ar. rangement ras completed, the crowds of supplicants who tironged the motropolis returned to thelr own homes, leaving the committee of sis. teen to wateh the progress of events." But the obstinace of the King soon brought affirs to a erlsis, and enrly in 1638 the deputies of The Tables "resolved to summon the whole buly of supplicants to repair at onee to the canital in order to eoncert mensures for their rommon safety nod the furtherance of the goonl cause. The smmmons was promptle obeyed ami after full deliberation it was resolved, on the suggrs. thon of Johnstone of Warrliton, that in onder to strengthen thelr union against the eneuies of the Protestant faith they should renew the National Covenant, "hiel had been originally drawn up and sworn to at a time [A 1) 1, lisi] when the Protestant religion wis in immiant peril, through the schemes of France and simia, and the plots of Queen Mary und the lumata Cutholies in England and Scothand. The original docament denounced in velement terms the errors and devices of the fiomish Church, and an addltlon wus now made to it, adapting its decia. rations and pledges to exlsting circumstances." - J. Taylor, The Souttish Corenanters. ch. 1"It wus ln the Gresfriars' Chureh at Ellinhurgh that it [the Natlonal Covenant] was first reccivel, on Febrinary 28. 1638. The aged Earl of sutherland was the first to sign bis name. Then the whole congregation followed. Then $1 t$ was hild on the flat grave-stone stlil preservell in the chureh-yard. Men and women crowled to atd their names. Some went aloud, others write thelr names in thelr own blool; others added nfter thelr names 'till denth.' For hours they stand, till every corner of the firchamen! wso tilled, and only room left for their initials, and the shades of nifht alone checked the continual Iov. From cireyfriars' church yard it apread to the whole of Smthand. Genllemen and noblemen carried coples of it 'lu their portmanteaus and pockein, requiring and collecting subecrip. tions publicly and privately.' Women asat in church di day and all nilght, from Friday till Sunday, In order to receive the Commnnlor with it. None dared to refuse thelr names. "-A. $\mathbf{P}$. Stanler, Lect's on the Hist. of the Church of Scot. land, lect. 2.
Also in: J. Cunningham, Chureh IFise. of Sothind, r. 2, ch. 2.-D. Masson, Life of John Milton, i. 1. eh. 7.-R. Chambers, Domestic Annale of S. Sotlinad, v. 2, pp. 116-127.
The following is the text of the Scottisu Natonal Covenant :

The confesslon of saith of the Kirk of Scotland, salscribed at first by the King's Majesty and his household in the year of God 1580; there. after by persons of all minks in the year 1581 , by ordinaace of the Lorls of the secret councll, and acts of the Generul Assembiy ; subseribed again by all sorts of persons in the year 1590, hy a new orilnance of councll, at the desire of the General Asseably; with a general band for the maintemance of the true rellgion, and the King's person, and now subscribed in the year 1638, by us nublemen, barons, gentlemen, burgesses, min. isters, aml commons under subscribing: :ogether with onr resolution and promises for the caluses after specitied, to malntain the suld true rellgion, and the King's Majesty, aceordling to the eonfes. sion afuresild, and Aets of Parliament; the tenure whereof here followeth: 'We all, and every oue of us underwrittcu, do protest, that after long and due cxamination of ourown conseiencers in matters of true and false religlon, we are now thorouglity resolvell of the truth, by the word and spirit of Gonl ; and therefore we believe with our heirts, confess with our months, sulsecribe with our laands, and constantly aftirm before Gori aad the whole world, that this only is the true Chritian faith and religion, pheasing Gool, ar 1 bringius saluation to man, which now th by the mercy of Gol revcaled to the world by the preach. ing of the blessed evangel, and reeeived, be liered. and defended by many and sundry notable kirks and realms, but chictly ly the Kirk of scolland, the King's Majesty, and three cstates of this realm, as God's cterial truth and only ground of our salcation; as more ph. and larly is expressed in the coufession of our taith, Actabinherel and publicly contirmed by sundry Acts of Parliament; and -nw of a long time bath beeu openly professe the King's Ma. jestr, and whole body reatm, both in burgh and land. To il form of rellglou -re will. sciences in all polnts, as confesslou and ree in our contruth and verity, groum : onls undoubtel writen Worl; and groume i only upon His writen Worl; and therefore we abhor and dclest ail contrary rehrgiun and doctrine, but chiefly sll kimd of paplstry in general and particular heads, even ins they are now damned and confuted by the Word of Gorl and Kirk of Scotland. But la ysecial we detcst and refuse the usurped suthority of that Roman Antichrist upon the Scriptures of God. upon the Kirk, the civil magistrate, and consciences of men: all his tyrannous laws made upon indifferent things agatust our C'hitlstian liberty; his erroncous doc. trine aguildt the sufflelency of the written Word, the perfectlon of the law, the office of Chriat and His blemed evangel; his corrupted doctrine con. cerning orfginal sin, our natural inability and rebellion to God's law, our juntification by faith only, our lmperfect manctlination and obedience to the law, the nature, number, and use of the holy sacraments; hls ive hastard sacraments, with all his rites, ceremonien, and false doctrine, added to the minlstratlon of the true aacramente, wichout the Word of God; his Li:c? judgments agaiust lnfonis departing without the sarrament; hls absolute necesslty of baptism; his blasphemous eplnlon of transubstantiation or real preseuce of Christ's borly in the elements, and receiving of the same by the wleceed, or bodies ol med; his dispensations, whit solcmn oaths, jerjuries, and degrees of marriage, forbidden in the Word; his cruelty a gainst the innocent dlvorced; hls devillsh mass; hls blasphcmous uriesthoxi, hls prolane sacrifice for the sins of the dead and the qulek; hls canonlation of men, calling upon augels or salnts departed, worshlpplag of lmagery, relles, and crosses, dedicating of kirks, altars, days, vows to creatures; hls purgatory, prayers for the dead, praying or spenking in a strange language; with hls processions and blasphemous litany, and multitudes of auricuies or mellators; hls manifold orders auricuiar confession; hls desperate and nnenr tain repentance; his general and doubtsome falth; his satisfaction of men for their sins; his jnst incation by works, "opus operatum," works of supercrogation, merits, pardons, perlgrinations and statious; his holy water, baptizing of bells, conjuring of splrits, crossing, sanlng, anolnting, conjuring, hallowing of God's good creatures, with the superstlious oplniou joined therewith; his worldly monarchy and weleked hierarchy; his tirce solemn vows, with all his shavelings of sundry sorts; hls crroneous and blimely derrees made at Trert with all the subscribers sud approvers of that cruel and bloody band conjured against the Kirk of God. And finally, we detest all his valn allegories, rites, signs, anil' traditinns, brought in the $\mathrm{K}^{;} \mathrm{k}$ withour or against the Word of Goid, and doctr.ae of this true reformed Kirk, to which we join ourselves willingly, In doctrine, religlon, faith, disclpline, and life of the holy sacraments, as lively members of the same, $\ln$ Christ our head, promising and swearing. by tha great name of the Lord our Goxl, that we shall continue in the obedience of the doctrlne and discipliue of this Kirk, and shall defend the same aecorting to our rocation and power all the days of our lives, under the pains contained in the law, and dauger both of body and soul in the day of God's feariul judgment. And seeing thint many arc stirred up by Satan and that Roman Antichrist, to promisc, swear, subscribe, and for a time use the holy sacraments in the Kirk, dcceitfilly agg inst thelr own conscionces, mindling thereby, firsi under the exteranal cloak of religion, to corrupt and subvert secretly God's true religion … inla the Kirk; and afterwards, when time my derve, to become open cacmies and persecutirs of the same, under vain hope of the Pupe's dienensation, devised against the Worid of God, to !is great confuslon, and their double con lempatlon in the day of the Lord Jesus. We therefore, willing to take away all suspicion of hypreizF, ant oit such double dealing with Gox and hls hirk, protest and call the Seircher of all hcarta for witness, that our minds bud hearts do

Pilly agree with this our confession, promlse, outh, and aubacription: wo that we are not moved for any worldly respeci, but are persuaded in our consclences, through the knowledge nd love of God's true religlon printed in our hearts by the Holy Splrit, as we shall answer to Ilim in the day when the secress of all hearts shall te disclosed. And because we percelve that the quletness and stahllity of our religlon and Kirk doth depend upon the safety and good behavlour of the Klag's Majesty, as upon a comfortabie lntrument of God's mercy granted to thls conntry for the maintenance of Ilis Klrk, and minlstration of justice among us, we protest and promlse with our hearts under the same oat lisndwrit, and palns, that we shali defend wis person and autiority with our goods, bodles, and lires, in the defence of Christ Ilis evangel, Itbertles of our country, minlstratlon of justice, and punlshment of inlquity, against all enemles withln this realm or wlthout, as we desire our God to be a strong and merelful defender to us ln the day of our (leath, and comlng of our Lord Jesus Christ; to Whon, wlth the Father and the Holy Spirit, be ali honour and giory eternally. Lilie as many Acts of Parilament not only ln general do abrogate, annul, and rescind ali laws, statutes, acts, constitutlons, canons civll or munleipal, with ali other ordinances and practlck penalties whatsoever, made ln prejudice of the true religlon, and professors thercof, or of the true Klrk disclpline, jurisdic ${ }^{+1}$ on, and frecdom thereof; or $\ln$ favours of Idolatry and superstition; or of the paplstical kirk (as Act 8. Act 31. Parl. 1. Act 23. Parl. 11. Aet 114. Parl. 12, of K. James VI), that papls. try and superstition may be utterly suppressed, according to the Intention of the Acts of Parllamen' reported ln Aet 5 . Parl. 20. K. James VI. And to that end they ordained all papists and priests to be punlshed by manlfold civll and ecclesiastical palns, as adversaries to God's true reilgion preached, and by law estahllshed within thls realm (Act 24. Puri. 11. K. James VI) as common cnemles to ali Christian government (Act 18. Pari. 16. K. James VI), as rebeliers and galnstanders of our Soverelgn Lord's authority (Act 4\%. Parl. 3. K. James VI, and as Idolaters, Act 104. Parl. 7. K. James VI), but aiso $\ln$ partleular (by and attour the confession of falth) do abolish and condemn the Pope's authority and jurisuliction out of this land, and ordalns the maiutainers thereof to be punlshed (Act 2. Parl. 1. Act 51. Parl 3. Act 106. Parl 7. Act 114. Parl. 12. of K. James VI); do condemn the Pope's erroncous doctrine, or any other erroncous doctrine repingnant to any of the Artlcles of the true and Christian rellglon publiely preached, and by law establlshed in this realni; and ordalns the spreatirs or makers of books or libels, or letters or writs of that nature, to be punished (Act 46. Parl. 3. Act 106. Parl. 7. Act 24. I'ari. 11. K. James VI); do condemn all baptism conform to the Pope's kirk, and the Idolatry of the Mass; and ordains all sayers, wilfui hearers, and concealers of the Mass, the maintainers, and resetters of the priests, Jesuits, trattheklng l'apists, to be punished without exception or restriction (Act 5. Parl. 1. Act 120. Pari. 12. Aet 164. Parl. 13. Aet 103. Parl. 14. Aet 1. Parl. 19. Act 5. Parl. 21. K James VI); do condemn all etroneous lumks end writs containing erroneous doctrine against the religion presently professed, or containing superstitious rights or cercmonics papis-tical, whereby the people are greatly sbused; and ordalns the home-bringers of them to be punlshed (Act 25. Pari. 11. K. James VI); do condemn the monuments and drega of lygone ldolatry, as golng to croses, observing the fes. tlval days of malnts, and such other superstitious and papistlcal rites, to the dlshonour of God, contempt of true reilglon, and fostering of great errors among the people, and ordains the users of them to be punished for the seconil fault as ldolaters (Act 104. Parl. 7. K. James VI). Like as many Acts of Parliament are conceived for malntenance of God's true and Christlan rellgha, and the purity thereof in doctrine and sacra. mente of the true Church of God, the liberty and freedom thereof in her natlonal synolal sssem. blles, presbyteries, sesslons, policy, dlscipline, and furisdletion thereof, as that purity of religion and liberty of the Church was used, professed, eyercised, preached, and confessed aceording to the reformation of religion in thls reatm. (A) for instance: Act 99. Parl. 7. Act 23. Purl. 11. Act 114. Parl. 12. Act 160. Parl. 13. K. Jamet V'l, ratlicd by Act 4. K. Charles.) So that Act B Parl. 1. and Act 68. Parl. 6. of K. Janies $\mathrm{V} l$, iu the year of God 1579, declare the mlnistens of the blessed evangel, whom God of Ilis mercy had ralsed up or hereafter should raise, agrecing with tiem that then llved in doctrine and administra. tion of the aacraments, and the people that professed Christ, as He was then oftered in the evangel, and doth communlcate with the boly sacraments (ay In the reformed Kirks of this resim they were presently adminlstered) accoriliag to the confession of falth to be the true nad boly Kirk of Christ Jesus within thls reaim, and dis. cerns and declares all and sunilry, who either galnsays the word of the evingel, received and approved as the heads of the confession of faith, professed $\ln$ Parllament ln the year of (rod 1500. specliced also ln the first Parilament of K . James FI, and ratlfed la thls present pariament, more particularly do specify; or that refuses the sdmlnistration of the holy sacraments as they were then ministrated, to be no members of the said Kirk withln thls reaim and true religlon pres. cntly professed, so long as they kecp themselves so divlded from the society of Christ's body. And the subsequent Act 69. Parl. 6. K. James VI, declares that there ls mo othcr face of Kirk, nor other face of religlon than was presently at that tlme by the favour of Goxl established within thls reaim, whlch therefore is ever styled God's true religlon, Clirist's true religlon, the true and Cirristlan religlon, and a perfeet religion. which by manlfold Aets of Parllament ali within this realm are bound to profess to subscribe the Articles thercof, the confession of faith, we recant all doctrine and errors repugnant to any of the said Artleles (Act 4 and 9 . Parl. 1. Aet 45. 46. 47. Parl. 8. Act 71. Parl. 6. Act 106. Parl. \%. Act 4 Parl. 11. Act 123. Pari. 12. Act 194 and $19 \%$. Parl. 14 of Klng James VI). And ali magis. trates, sheriffs, de., on the one part, are ordaiated to search, ajprehend, and punish all contraveners (for Instance, Art 5. Parl. 1. Act 104. Parl. 7. Act 25. Parl. 11. K. James V1), atul that, notwithstandlng of the King's Msjesty s liceuces on the contrary, which are discharged and dieclared to be of no force, In so far as they tend in sny ways to the prejudlce and hindruice of the ex. ecutlon of the Acts of Purllament aguiust P'apists and adversarics of the truc religion (act 100.

Parl. 7. K. James VI). On the other part, in set 47, Parl. 8. K. James VI, it is declared aad ordalned, seeing the caune of Jod's true religion and IIis Highnessia authority are so joined as the burt of the one is common to both; and that none shail be reputed as loyal and faithful aubjects to our Sovereign Lord or his authority, but be punishabie as rebeilers and gainstanders of the same, who siall nat $E$ tee thelr confessinn and make profesalon of the sard true rellgion; aud that they, who after defection shall give the confesslon of their faith of new, they sinil promise to continue therein in time comlag to maintain our Soverelgn Lord's authority, and at the uttermest of their power to fortlfy, assist, and maintaln the true preachers and professors of Christ's religion, agniast whatsoever enemics and galnstanders of the same; and namely, against all such of whatsnever nation, estate, or tegree they be of, that have foined or bound themselves, or have sssisted or asslsts to set forwaril and exe. cute the cruel decrecs of Treat, contrary to the preachers and true professors of the Worl of Gixl, which is repaited word iny word in the a itcles of Pactication at Perth, the $2311 F_{(0)}$ ). lite, npproved by I'arllament the last of April litis, ratiflel in Parliament 15:\%, atad related Act 123. Parl. 12. of K. James VI., with thls add. dithon, that they ure bound to resilst ail treason. ahle uproars and hostilties ralsed against the true religion, the Klag's Majesty and the true professors. Like as ail lleges are bound to muinlain the King's Majesty's royal person and authority, the authorlty of Parliaments, without Which nelther any laws or lawful fudicatoricy can be established (Act 130. Act 131. Pari. 8. K. James V1), and the subject's ilbertles, who oughit only to the and be governed by the King's laws, the common laws of this reain allanerly (Act 48 . Parl. 3. K. James I, Act 70. Piarl. O. K. James Vi, repeated in Act 131. Parl. 8. K. James VI), Whirh if they be innovated or prejulged the commassion ancnt the mimlon of the $t$ wo kingdoms of scotland and England, which is the sole Act of 17 Parl. James VI, deciares such confusion would ensue as this realm could be an more a free monarehs, because by the fundamental laws, sncient privileges, offlees, and libertics of this kingitom, not only the princely anthority of Ilis Hiajesty's royai descent hath been these mans ages maintained; aiso the peoplc's security of their lands, livings, rights, offlices, llberties and digalties preserved; and therefore for the preserrstion of the said true religion, laws and fiber. ties of this kingilom, it is statute by Act 8 . Pari. i. repented in Act 90. Parl. 7. ratified In Act 23. Parl. 11 and 14. Act of K. James VI and 4 Act of K . Clarics, that ali Kings and Princes at thelr coronstion and receptlon of their princeiy authority, shali make their taithfui promise by their solemn oath in the presence of the Eternal God, thst during the whole tlme of their lives they shall serve the same Eternal God to the utmost of thelr power, accordlng as IIe hath requlred In IIls most Holy Word, contained in the Old snd New Tcataments, and accordlag to the same Word shali maintain the true religion of Christ Jesus, the preaching of His Holy Word, the due and right ministration of the sacraments now received and preached within this realm farsarding to the confessiou of faitb imnediately preceding); and sbail abolish and gainstand all fulte religion contrary to the same; and shail rule the people committed to thelr charge accordlinim to the will and commandment of God re. vealed in III a a oresaid Word, asd sccorcing to the lowable laws and conatitutlons recelved in this reain, no ways repugaant to the sald will of the Eternai Goil; and shali procure to the utmost of their power, to the Kirle of God, and whoie Christian people, true and perfect peace in all thme coming; and that they shall be careful to root out of their Empire ail heretics and enemies to the true worshly of Gorl, who siall be convicted by the true kirk of Goxl of the aforemaid crimes. Whitb was aiso observell by IIII MIajesty at his cormatlon in Edinhurgh, 1833, as may be seen in the Order of may be seen in the Orier of the Coronation. In obedience to the commands of Gool, conform to the practice of the gexlly in former tinies, and accorllng to the laudable exampie of our worthy and religlous progenitors, and of many yet living amongst us, which was warranted also by act of conncil, commanding a gencral band to be made and subscriled by Ilis Slajesty's subjects of all ranks for two caises: one was, for defending the truc rellgion, as it was then reformel, and is expressed in the confession of fuith above written, and a former large confession established by snndry acts of lawful penerai assembiles snd of Inariament unto which it hath rclation. set down in pubilic catechisms, and whileh ind been for many jears with a blessing from hicaven preached and professed in tiits Kirk and kingdon:, as God's undoubted truth grounded oniy upon His writ. tra Wori. The other cause was for maintaining the King's Majesty, his person and estate: the true worship of God and the King's authority being so straltly joined, ss that they had the sanic friends and common enemies, and did stand and fail together. And flally, being con ; inced In our mindis, and confessing with our mouths, that the present and succeeding geuerations in this iand are bound to keep the aforcsaid natlonal oath and subscription inviolabie:- We nobiemeu, barons, gentiemcu, burgesses, ministers, and commons under subscribing, considering divers tlmes before, and especially at this time, the danger of the true reformed religion of the King'a henour, and of the public of the kingrom, by the manifoid innovations and evils generaliy contained and particuiarly mentioned in our late supplications, complaints, and protestations, do hereby profess, and before God, Mis angels and the world, solemnly declare, that with our whole hearts we agrre and resolve all the days of our life constantly to adhcre unto and to defend the aforesaid true rellglon, and forbearing the praetice of ali novations airearly introduced in the unatters of the worshlp of God, or approbation of the corruptions of the public government of the Kirk, or civil places and power of kirkmen thl they be tried and allowed in free assemblies and in Parliaments, to labour by all means lawful to recorcr the purity and liberty of the Gospel as it was establlsined and professed before the aforesaid novations; and because, after due examination, we plainly perceive and undoubtedly believe that the innovations and eviis contained in our supplications, complaints and protestatlons have no warrant of the Word of God, are contrary to the articles of the aforesaid confessions, to the intentlon and meaning of the blessed scformers of religion in this land, to the abovewritten Acts of Parllament, and do sensibly tend to the relatablishing of the popiah religion and syranay, and to the aubvernion and ruin of the true reformed religion, and of our llbertien, laws and estates; wo also declare that the aforecald conftemons are to be interpreted, and ought to bo underntood of the aforeald novatlons and evlli, no lese than if every one of them had been ex. pressed in the aforenaid confemalona; and that we are obllged to deteat and abhor them, amongat other particular heads of paplatry abjured therein. And therefore from the knowiedge nnd consclence of our duty to God, to our King and country, wlthout nny worldiy respect or inducement so far as humnn intirmity will suffer. wish. ing a further mensure of the grace of God for this effect, we promlse and swear by the great name of the Lord our God, to contlnue th the professlon and obedience of the aforesald reilgion; that we shali defend the aame, and resiar ail thene contrnry errors and corruptions accord. ing to our vocaiton, and to the utmost of that power that God hath put into our hands, all the days of our ilfe. And In like manner, with the same heart we declare before God and men, that we have no intention or deslre to attempt auything that may turn to the dislononir of Gol or the dimlnutlon of the King's greatness and authority; but on the contrary we promise and awear thit we shall to the utmost of our power, whth our menns nad lives, stand to the defence of our dread Soverelgn the Klng's Majesty, hls person nnd authority, in the defence and preser. vatlon of the nforesald true rellgion, libertles and la wa of tite Elngdom; as nlso to the mutual defence and assistance every one of us of another, In the same cause of malntaining the true religion and ills Majesty's authority, wlih our best counsels, our bodies, means and whole power, agalnst nll sorta of persons whatsoever; so that whatsoever shall be done to the lemst of us for that cause slall be taken as done to us ali in generai. and to every one of us in partlcular; and that we ahall nelther directly or indirectly suffer ourselves to be dlvided or withdrawn by whatsoever sug. gestlon, comblnatlon, allurement or terror from thls blessed and loyai conjunctlon; nor slatl cast In any let or Impediment that may stay or hiln. der any such resolutlon as by common consent shall be found to condluce for so good ends; but on the contrary shall by all lawful means labour to further aud promote the same; and lf any such dangerous and divislve inotion be made to us by word or writ, we and every one of us shall elthir suppress it or (If need be) shall lncontlnently make the same known, that it may be thously obviated. Feither do we fear the fonl aspersions of rebellion, combination or what elee our ad versaries from thelr craft and malice would put upon ns, secing what we do ls so well warranted, mal arlseth from an unfelgued desire to maintsin the true worshlp of God, the majesty of our King, and the peace of the kingdom for the common happluess of ourselves and posterlty. And because we cannot look for a blesslng from God upon our proceedings, except with our professlon and subscriptlon, we joln such a life and conversatlon as beseemeth Christlans who have renewed their covenant with Gkal: we therefore fslthtully promise, for ourselves, our followers, and all other under us, both $\ln$ publle, in our partlcular familles nad personal carrlage, weadeavour to heep ours. Nees whthla the bounds of Cbristian liberty, and to be good examples to others of all godlincss, soberness and righteous-nem, and of overy duty wo owe to God and man; and that thls our unlon and conjunetlon may be observed without violation we call the liviog God, the searcher of our hearts to witneas, who knoweth thls to be our alncere desire and ua. felgned resolution, as we shali answer to Jesus Chriat in the grent day, and under the psin of God's everlasilng wrath, and of infamy, snd af lows of ail honour and respect in thls world; mant humbly beseeching the Lord to streng then us hy His Hois Splrit for thls end, and to bless our dealrea and proceedinga with a happy success, that reilgion and righteounnese may tourish in the lnnd, to the glory of God, the honour of our King, and peace and comfort of us all.' in wlt. ness whereof we have subacribed wlth our hands all the premisen, \&c." A. D. $1638-1640$. - The Firat Blahopa' War. - In November, 1698, a General Asscimbly wa convened at Glangow, wlth the consent if the klng, ned was opened by the Marquls of thamilton as Foyal Commlsoloner. But when the As: sembly took $\ln$ hand the trial of the blshopa, Hamilton wlthdrew and ordered the members to dlaperse. They pald no heed to the order, but deposed the blshops and excommunkated elght of them. "The Canons and the Llturgy were then rejected, and nll acts of the Assemblles held slnce 1606 were annuiled. In the North, where Huntly was the King's lleutenaut, the Covenant had not been recelved, nud the Tables resolved to enforce li wlith the sworl. Scothand wa now full of tralned soldlers just come hack from Germany, where they had learnt to tight in the Thirty fenrs' wnr, and as plenty of money had becn collected among the Covenallers, no army was easily ralsed. Thelr banner bore the monto, 'For Religlon, the Covenant, and the Country,' nnd thelr leader was James Graham, Earl of Montrose, one of the most zealons mung the champlons of the cause.

Whlle Moatrose had been thus busy for the Covenant in the North, the Klng had been making really to put down his rebelllous Scottish subjects with the sword. Early In Mny a fleet entered the Forth under the command of lianillton. But the Tables took pussesslon of the strungholis, and selzed the ammuntion which hat been laid in for the King. They then ralsed nuother arny of 22,000 foot and 1.200 horse, and placel at its head Alexander Lesile, a veteran traiuell ia the German war. Their army they seut soutbwands to meet the Engllsh host which the ling as bringlag to rednce Scotland. The two armies faced each other on opposite bunks of thr Tweed. The scots were skilftilly posted on lomese Law, a hill commandlog the Northern road. Topass them wlthout fighting was imposible, and to fight would have been almost certain defcat. The Klug seelng this agreed to trat. 13 F a treaty called the Pacitication of iserwick, it was settled that the questlons at lssne betweet the Kling and the Covenanters should be put to a free Assembly, that both armles should be dis. banded, and that the stronghotls should be restored to the Kling (June 0, 1630). The Assem. bly which met nt Edlnburgh repeatell aad approved all that had been done at Glasgow. When the Estates met for the first tinse in the New Parllament-house, Juue 2, 16t1, they weat still further, for they not otily comitrmed the Acts of the Assemblies, but orlered cvery oae to slgn the Covenant under pain of civil penal.
wies. Now for the Arst time they acted in open defance of the King, to whom hitherto they had profemed the greatest foyalty and subminglon. Three times had they been adjourned by the King, who had sloo refused to nee the Commis. doners whom they ent up to London. Now they met in spite of him, and, as in former times of troubles and diftcultes, they appealed to France for help. When tbis intrigue with the Frencb was found out, the Lord Loudon, one of their Commisaloners, was sent to the Tower, and the Engish Parliament was sumamoned to vote upplies for putting down the Scots by force of srnes. "-M. Macarthur, Jlist. if Scotland, ch. 7 .
Also in: 8. R. Gardiner, Ilst. of Eng., 10031641, ch. 88-89 (0. 9).-D. Манео., Lifo of John Yilton, \%. 2, bk. 1, ch. 1.
A. D. 1640 - Tbe Second Blahops' War. Invailon of Eagiad. See Emoland: A. D). 1840 . A. D. $8643 .-T h e$ Solemn League and Coveaant with the Engllsh Parliament. See Eng. LAND: A. D. 1643 (JULY-SEPTEMDER).
A. D. $1644-1645$. - The expiolts of Mont rose. - At the beginning of the conflict betweets Charles I. and the Covenanters, James Grabam, the brillant and accomplisbed Eari of Montrose, attached himself to the latter, but soon deserted their cause and gave himseif with great carnestneess to that of the court. For his reward, he was ralsed to tbe dignity of Marquis of Montnose. After the great defeat of Prinee Rupert at Marston Moor, Montrose obtained a commlssion to ralse forces amoug the IIIghlanders and proveti to be a remarkabiy aucceasfui leader of tbese whid warriurs. Along with hils Highlanders be lneorporated a body of stili wilder Celts, recelved fronifreland. On the 1st of September, 1044, Montmse attacked an army of the Covenanters, 6,000 fixit aull borse, at Tippermuir, "totally routed them, and took thelr artillery and baggage, wlthout lising a man. Perth Immediately surendered to Montrose, and he had some further sncecesses; but threatened hy a superior foree under the Marynls of Argyll, he retreated morthwards latis Badenocb, and thence sweeping down Into Argylishire, he merellessly ravaged the country of the Campbells. Exasperated wlth the devastation of bis estates, Argyli narehed against Montrose, Who, nut waithg to be attacted, surprised the ariny of the Covenanters at Inverlochy, $2 d$ February, 1645, and totally defeated theus, no fewer than 1,500 of the clan Campbeli perishlag la the battle, while Montrose lost only four or five men. Brillinnt as were these victories, they had no abidlng Infuence ln quapdliug thls terrible clvil war. It was a game of riuning and losing ; and looking to the fact that the scoteh generaily took the slide of the Covenat, the struggle was almost hopeless. still. Montrose was undaunted. After the luver. linhy a "fair, he went southwards through Elgin and Banff lato Aberdeenslilre, earrying every: thing before hima. Major-general Baillie, a seeond rute Covenauting commauder, and his lieus. tenant. General Ihrry, were at Brechin, with a fure tooppose hlm ; but Montrose, by a alexterous movencut, eluded them, captured and plllaged the city of Dundee, and eseaped safely into the Grampiaus. On tbe tha May, he attaeked, and by estruerdinary generalship, ronted $11 u r r y$ at Anteamb, bear Xairn. After enjoving 11 short napite wilh his fierce veterans lo Madenoch, he aguia issued from his widds, and Inflicted a still more disantrous defeat on Balitite, at alford, is Aberdeenahiro, July 2. There was now nothing to prevent hls march muth, and he set out with a borce nf from 5,000 to 6,000 Ir n. " Overtaken by Baitile at Kllayth, he once i re defeated that cominander overwhelmingly. ". The number of sialn was upwards of 8.000, with very few killed on the silie of the ruyailists. The victory so effeeted, 15th August 1645, was the greateat Montrome ever gained. IIl's triuniph was eompleti, for the victory of Kilisyth put him in pos. sesslon of the whole of scotland. The goverament of the country was broken up; every organ of the recent administration, elvil and ecciestas thcai, at once vanislied. The conqueror was halled as the great Marquis of Dfontrose. Gliasgow ylelided hlm tribute and homage countles and hurgis componided for merey. The clty of Edinhurglt lumbly deprecated bis vengeance, aud Implorel hils pardon and forglveness." But, $1 f$ the conynuest of scotland was complete for the moment, It came too late. The hattle of Nasehy had been fought two munths before the battle of Kilsyth, and the king's canse was lost. It was in valn that Cbarles eent to his trililant champion of the north a commisslun as L. .eutenant-governor of Scotlanid. Montrose's nriny meited away so rupidiy that when, lu september, he murched sonth, iteadiog ble forlorn liope to the help of tbe klng in England, he lad but 700 foot and 200 mounted gentlemen. The smnil foree was Intercepted aud surprised at Phillphaugb (September 13, 1645) hy Leslle, with t, 000 horse. Montrose, after tighting with valn obsthacy untll bo more tighting could be done.
made his escape, with made his escape, with a few followers. Most of his troops, taken prisoners, were massacred a few days atterwards, cold -blooniedly, In the conrt yard of Newark Castle; and the deed is saldi to have been due, not to milltary, but to elerieal mallgnity - W. Chambers, storise of Cld fiemilien, pp. 200-217.
Also In: M. Napler, Montrone and the Cuke. nututers.- J. I. Burton. Iiwt. of scotland, ch. 3 (r. T). - Lady V. Grevilie, Wonirwe. - P. Bayne, The Chief Acturs in the Puritan Remlution, ch. 7 .
A. D. 1646-1647. - Flight of King Charie to tbe Scota army and his aurrender to the Engliah Parliament. See Enuland: A. D. 1646-1647.
A. D. 1648.-Royalist invasion of England and Battle of Preston. See England: A. D. 1648 (APR1L-AOUST).
A. D. 1650 (March-July). -Scottish loyalty revived.-Charies 1I. accepted as a "Covenant King."-"The scots hall begon the great move. ment whose olject was at once to resist the tyranny of the Stunrts and the tyranny of Rome, and wblch was destined to result in lucalculable eonsequences for Enrope. But now they retraeed thelr steps, and put themselves $\ln$ opposi. tinn to the Commonwealth of England. They wanted a leadrr. 'With Ollver Cromwell borm a Scotcliman.' says Carlyle; 'wltha 11ero Klag and $n$ unanlmous Hero Nation at hls buek, Jit might have been far otherwise. With Oliver boru Scotch, one sees not but the whole world nilght harc become Puritan.' Without shutting our eyes to the trutb there may be ill this passage, we find thr canse of this northera war clacWhere. In splritual things the scots acknowl. edged Jesus Clarist as their king; in temporal. they recogoized Charles II. They had no wish that the latter whouid usurp the kingdom of the former; hut they alwo had no dedre that Crnm. well should selze upon the Stuarti' throne. They posersed a donhie loynity - one towanis the heaveniy king, and another to their ewrinif env. ereign. They fand catat of the ahumes of the fat. ter, but not the monarciy itweif. They necorif. ingiy inviluyl the prince, who was thell in Holland, wo come to Acotinni, and take promes. aiun of him kiagriom.

Churies at this time was conniving at Montrose, who was spreading desofation thoughout Acotiand; and tive young king hoped ly hin mans to reeover a throne without iuring to take upon hinseif any ensharmasino enga coment. Ifit when the mariuis was deforted, he cietermineri to surrencier to the seottisis parilament. One circumstance inai neary enused his min. Anong Montrowe's papers was found a coinmingion from the king. giving him authorty to levy troops and sululue the eountry by force of arms. The indignunt pariament immediateiy recaifed their commis. aloner from IIoiinni; but the indivifinni to wiom the orfer wis adifenmed trencherousiy eoncemberi the document from this coliongues, and by siow. Ing it to none but the prinec, gave him to maicr. stand that he conid no longer safcly tenaporize. Charies being thus convineed hurrted on twarif. and set sail for Scothand, attended by a truin of renpriacipied men. The inost serions thinkers in the nathon saw that they coud expect littie else from him than dupilicity, trenchery, and ifentousnems. It fins been salif tinat tive seoteli conn. peifed Charies to adopt their rietestedi Covenant voluutarliy. Most certainiy the puitical lemiers cannot be entirely exculpatel of this charge : hut it was not so with the religious part of the government. When he deciared his readiness in sign that deed on board the ship, even before le landed. Liringston, wiou tioubted his sincerity, begged him to wait untii he hai renciseri Scotland, und given satisfactory prowis of his good faith. Butit wasali to noefteet. . . . If Charles Stuart hal thougit of ascenciing his native tirone oniy. Cromwell and the Enylish wonld have re. malaed quiet : but he aimed at the recovery of the three kingdoms, and the Bcotch were dis. posed to aid him. Oilver Immediately saw the raynitude oi the danger which threatened the reilgion, liberty, andi morals of Engiand, and didi not hesitate."-J. II. Merle d'Aublgne, Tho Protector, ch. 7.

Almo in: A. Bliset, Onitted Chapters of the Hiat. of Eng., r. 1, ch. 5.-J. II. Burton, Mint. of Scotlant, ch. 75 (c. 7).-P. Bnyne, The Chief Actors in the Puritan Recolution, ch. 6.
A. D. 1650 (September).- Cromveli' victory at Dunbar.- War whth Scotland having been determinel upon hy the Engiish Council of State, and Fairfax having deciined the command, Cromweli was recaileyl from Ireland to head the army. " Ile passed the Tweed with an army of 16,000 men on the $16 t i s$ of Juiy. The Scots had placed themseives unier tie command of the oid Eari of Leven nid of David Lesile. An yet their army was a purely Covenanting one. By an act of the Scotch Church, calied the Act of Ciasses, ail known Mailgnants, and the Engagers (as those men were called who had joined Hamilton's in. surrection), had been removed from the army. The country between the Tweed and Edinburgh had heen wasted; and the inisabitants, terrified by ridiculous stories of the Engiish cruelty, had tekoa alight; but Cromweil's smmy, marching by the conet, sas suppiled by the deet. Iic thus resched the immedlate nefghbourhorif of Fifla. hurgh; but Lealle shilfully aralied himwrif if the mivantages of the ground and refumed to bo broupht to an ongagement. It becume hurcumary for Cromwell to whisaw towanis his supplite. He feli back to Dunbar, which lies ujwn a pe ninsula, jutting out into the Firth of Forth. The base of this proinmin is at a fittie distancer en. circled hy higit ground, an oftshoot of the fam. mermuir Ifils. These heights were corupui by the Acoteh army, as was also the junn through wioch tise ruad to Berwick fies. Cromu:" therefore apparentiy shot up between $t$ and the cea, with no choice hut to rull (1) 114 ships of suireader. IIad Iastie conthumi bis calntious poiley, such might have leern the event. A littie glen, through which runs a brow calleit the Broxburn, separated the two enemles, Br. tween it and the high grounds lay a narruw hut comparatively ievel trare. Eitijer arnys sttark. ing the other must cr t!tis glen. Thepe were two convenient plac. for pasaing it: me the tnore iniand one, tow wids the right of the tias. ilisi, who stoni with their back to tine min. was airendy in the hands of the Acotch. C'mul lea. ife secure the other, at the mouth of the glen, he would have it in his power tosotuck when be pleased. The temptation was too strong fur him: he grudualiy moved his army down from the bilis towards its own rigist fank, thereby bring ing ft on tie narrow ground between tie illii and the brook, intending with his right to wr.ure the pasage at Broxmouth. Cronweli and Lambert saw the movement, saw that it gave them a corresponding advantage if they smidenly cruswil the gien at Broxmouth, and feii upon laslies right wing, while his main body was cotiangend in the narrow ground before mentioneri. The attack was immediately decided upon, sni [nest morning] eariy on the Brd of September carried out with perfect success. The scotch horse of the right wing were driven in confuslon bat upon their main body, whom they trampiri unite foot. 'ad tre whole army was thus rolled bark upon itselt in inexificabie coufusion."- I . Bright, Hist. of Eng., periol 2. pp. 694-896-

- The pursuit extended over a diistance of eight miles, and the cotal loss of the Scots smounted to 8,000 kilied and 10,000 prisoners, while 30 guns and 15,000 stand of arms were taken; the casuaities of the English army did not exceed:0 men. Of the prisoners, 5,000 , beling wounderi, old men or boys. were ailowed to return bome; the remaining 5.000 were sent into England, whence, after enduring terribie hariships, they were, as had been the prisoncra taken at l'reston, sold either as siaves to the pianters or as soldiers to the Venetians. On the day foilowing that of the hattle, Lambert pushet on to Eidlohurgh with six regiments of horse and one of foot; Cromwell himseif, after $\Omega$ rest of a few days, advanced on the capltai, which at onc surfendered to the victors. The example thus set was followed hy Leith, hut Edinburgh Cas le still beld out [untli the foilowing December] against the English. The remnant of the Seottish army (hut 1.300 horse remained of the 6.000 who tonk part in the battie) retired on Stiring. whlle (harles himself took $u_{i j}$ his residence at Perth."- $X$. L. Waiford. Parliamentary Generale of the (irad Cicil War, ch. 8.

Avo tw: A. Hisact, Omittel Chaptore of the Hitet. of Ring., eh. 6.-T. ('arlyle, Ohiour Cromwib's Letters and aypeehre, pt. 6.
A. D, i6gs (Avguat).-Charlect ranh adrance toto Encland, - Cromveli' purault and crmehIns detory at Worceoter.-" laviey was cath. onng the wreck of his army about him at dif. Hag. Chirles, with tim Scottinh authorities hal retirel to Perth. The Preahyterian party became divified; and the royalisia obtained a hyyer influence In the direction of the national policy Cinaries, without furtice question of als real intentions, was crownerl at scone on the lat of January, 1051 . After a tifre muntias blocknde, and tisen a Ionibariment, Edinhurgh Csule whe mirreadered to Cromwilf on tise 18th of December. He hal littie to do to make hiul eif inamter of Scotiant on the south of the Fortio Oa the th of Februnry the urmy nimeched to. wands stiriing, but returued without any rewuit dilven to the gome quarters of Edinburgh by terfible storms of adet and nnow. The Lord Graeral becanne serlously ili through this exposare. But on the bth of June he was out again; and st the end of the monti wis vigorounly prosecuting the campaign. The Scottisil arny Was eutrenched at Silrifng. The king had been invited to take its conimand in perion. Crom. well, on the 2nd of Aurust, had succeeded in pomesalng himself of Pirth. At that juncture the news reached him thnt the royal camp at Stiring was broken up. on the 3let of July: nnd that Charies was on his maref southwari, nt the head of 11,000 men, hifs lientenant general being David Lealey. Argyil was opposed to thls bold resolution, and had retired to Inverary. Charle took the western rond by Carisie; and when on English ground issued a prociamation offering panion to those who would return to tbeir alle. fance - exempting from his promised amnesty Bradnhsw, Cromwell, and Cook. He was also prociaimed king of England, at the head of hin army: and similar prociamation was male at Penrth and other market-towns. Strict discl. pline was preserved, and aithongis the presence of scots in arms was hateful to the people, they were not outraged hy any attempts at plunder. Charles, however, had few Important aeccssluns of strength. There was no general rising in his favour. The gates of Shrewsbury were shut gainst lilm. At Warrington, his passage of the lersey was opposed by Lambert and Harrison, who had got before him with their cavairy. On the aind of August Charles reached Worcester, the parliamentary garrison having evacuated the city. He there set up his standard, and a summons went forth for all male auhjects of due age to gather round their Sovereign Lord, at the geaeral muster of his forces on the 26th of August. An lnconsidersbie number of gentlemen came, with about 200 followers. Mean. While Cromwell had marched raplliy from Scot. land with 10,000 men, leaving bebind fim 6,000 men under Monk. The milltias of the countles foined him with a zeal which showed their beilef that another clvli war would not be a national blesing. On the 28th of August the Genera! of the Commonweaith was close to Worcester, wlth $8, \mathrm{mO}$ men." On the 8 d of September (the snniverary uf the vletory of Dunhar, wors Just a fear lefore), he attacked the rogalist army and medge to hedge the " 'We beat the enemy from hedge to hedge [he wrote to parliament] tlll we beat him Into Worcenter. The enemy then itrew alf his forces on the other aide the town, sil but What he had lont ; and made a very conaiderahio aght with us. for three hours' apsee; hut In the end we beat him totally, and pursued him to blo royal fort, which we took, - and indeed have the battic of Wormenter The prisonerm taken at the battic of Worcenter, andif the aubmequent Alght, exceelled 7,000 . They included some of the moat diatinguished leaderm of the royalints in bengland and scotland. Courtemartal wero beld upon nine of these; and three, amonget Whom was the earl of Iberby, were cxecutm." Charles 8tuart ewcaped by flght, with his long cavalier locks cut clome and his royal permon Ignobly disgulised, wandering and hiling forsix weeks before he reached the const nad got ship tor Erance. The story of his adventures - his concealment in tbe oak at Boacobel, his ride to Bristol as a merving man, with a lady on the pil. lion behind him. we., de., - has been told often enough. - C. Knight, Crown Line. of Eing., eh.
Alno in: T. Cariyle, Oliner Cromerall, Letiers and Sjueches, pt. 6, Veliera 10-124,- Earl of Clar. emion, /fiet. of the Rebellion, bk. 13 ( $($. B), -A. Binest, Umittel Chapters of Eing. Jlist., ch, 10-11 (r. 2).-F. P. Quizot, Hiat, of Oliver Crownell, ok. 2 (r. 1)
A. D. 1652 (Auguat-September),-The conguest completed hy Mons.-Winen Cromwell foliowed Charies and lils Scottish army into Englund, to destroy them at Worcester, he left Mouk in Scritiand, with. few thousand men, and that rewolute general son completed the conquent of the kiugdom. He met with moat realstance at Dundee. "Dundee was a town well fortitied, supplied with a good garrison under Lumisden, and full of wil the rich furniture, the plate, and money of the kingdon, which had been sent thither as to a piace of safety. Monk appeared before It; and having madc a breach, gave a general assault. He carricd the town; and, foliowing the example and instructions of Cromwell, put all the Inhabitants to the sword in order to strike a general tertor into the ting: doni. Warned hy this example, Aberdeen, St. Andrew's. Inverneas, and other towns and forta, ylejded. of their own accord, to the enemy.
That kingdom, which lad hitherto, through ali ages, by means of its situstion, poverty, and valour, malutained its independence, wa seduced to total suhfection."-D. Hume, $B$ iof. of Eng., ch. 60 (c. ©).
Also IN: J. Browne, Hiat. of the Eighlands, 0. 2, ch. 4.
A. D. 1654 ,- Incorporated with England by Protector Cromweil, - in 1654, "Cromwell completed anotber work wbich the Long Parliament and the Barebone Parliament had both undertaken and left unfinished. Under favour of the discusslons which had arisen between the great powers of the Commonwealth, the Scottlsh royalists had once more concelved hopes, and taken up arms. . . . The Insurrectlon, thou gh chiefly con arms.

The insurrectlon, though chiefly confined to the Highlands, descended occsaionaily to ravage the piains: and towards the beginning of February, 1654, Middleton had been sent from France, by Charlea II., to attempt in give, in the Elug's name, that unity and consistency of action in which it had until then been deticient. No sooner had he been proclaimed Protecior; than Cromwell took decisfe measures to cru these dan rets in their iniamey: he deepatehel to Ireland his cecond con, lleary, an fotellgent, circumapect, asd reolute youns man, mal to Scotiand, Blonk, whom that country had alrealy once recogolam to her coaquefor, Both suc. crevied in thelr misulon.

Mont, with his usual prompt and lutrepld boldnen, carted tha war Into the very hewrt of the Ilighlands, ex. tabilshed his quarter there, purnued the Inaup. genta Into their mont lamecreablile retreatio, defeated MIddleton and compelled him to prem. burk for the C'ontinent, ant, after a ramjulign of four monthe, returned to Ealahurgh at the end of Auguat, 1654, anil began once more, wlthout pasilion or inlee, to govern the country which ite had twice subjugntel. C'romwell lime rekoned beforehand on his succem, for, on the 12 th of Aprif, 1654, at the very perioxl wien he ordered Monk to march agalnat the ticottish Inairgents. he had, hy a overeligit orillaance, Ineorpo? rated Bcotland with Eingland, abollshed all monarchical or feudal firfalletion In the ancleat nenim of the Stusist, and determined the place which Its represeutatives, wel: wathe of Ireland, should cecupy la the common Iarlia. meat of the new State. "-P. P. Gulzot, Miaf. of Olieer Cromurell, bk. 5 (e. 2).

Almo IN: J. Lingard, Hiat, of Eing., r. 11, eh. 1.
A. D. $8660-866$ - The rentored Klore and the reatored prelatical Church. - The oppresing of the Covenanters. - "In Bcotiand the restoratlou of the Stuarts had been halled with delight; for It was regarded as the restoration of national independence. And true it was that the yoke which Cromwell had imponed was, In appearance, taken mway, that the Seotelsh Fas. tates again met in thelr old hall at Edluhntgh, and that the senutors of the Coilege of Justice again ailmitulatered the Scuttish law according to the oll firms. Iet wan the Independence of the Ittle kingdom necessarily rather nominal thon rab: for, as long as the KIng had Englani on hls shle, he had nothing to appreheud from disaffection in his other dominions. He was now in sueh a sluation tiat he couid revew the attempt which had proved dentructive to bif $\%$, her without any danger of his father of fuis

The governinent rewhlved to set up a prelaticul churrit In scotland. The design was disapiroved by every scotchman whow judgment was entitiol to resprect

Tie Scoltsil 1'ariament was su constituted that it itad acarceiy ever offered any serions opposition ceven to Kings much waker titan Charies then was. Episcopary, therefore, whs estabitshed by inw. As to the form of wor. ship, a large discretion wus left to the ciergy. In some charcices the English Liturgy was usil. In others, the ministers selected frome that Liturgy such jrayers und thanksglvings as Were ilkely to ise least bifensive to the people. But In generai the doxology was sung at the chose of public worship. and the Apostles' Creed was reclted witeu bajtism was administered. By the great body of the seottish natlon the new Church was detested botio as superstitions and us foreign; as tainted with the corruptions of llome, and as a mark of the preiominatice of England. There was, however, no general Insurrecton. The country was not what it had been twenty. two years before. Dismstrons whr and alleu domination had tamed the sjifit of the peopile.

The huik of the scottisii nation, therefore, sullenly submitted, and, wlth many misgivings of ennechence, attemlet the ministratione of the Foplecipal clefisy, of of Preshyterian divinee who had commetel tu scrept from the goverament a half tolerathos known hy the name of the lowlul. sence. Hit there were, purticulariy in the wis. ern luminnds, nungy flerce and remolute men wha hell that the ohligation to ohmerve the Covinubl was parnmount to the obllyation to ufty the nuglistrite. Thewe penple, in deflan'r of the Isw, perniaterl in meeting to wornhip tival after thelr awn fablon. The Indulgence they rerarilen, wot an partial reparatlon of the wronge fafleted hy the Dtate on the Church, bitt ans new wrong, the more ollons because it wan lla. guised under the appesance of a benetit. l'ep. secution, they mait, coult only klil the huly: lut the black Indulgence wen demily to the mul. Driven from tite towns, they tmennitid on heathe aml mountalns. Attacked by the civil power, they whinout ecruple remellal force by force. At every conventlele they nurstem to arnis. They repeatedly hroke out Into ojearebriilon. Tiey were caslly defeated and mercl. leasly punlaherl but nelther defeat mor puntuh. ment could subdise their spirit. Iluntet dowa Ithe wild beasta, wrisimed till thelr bunem were benten tht. Impelsoned by hundreds, hanged by scores, expomed at one the to the llornwe of m. derm from Englaad, abandoned at anutior thie (o) the inercy of trosps of maraulern f.om the Iligislands, they atili stoon at bay, in a mond ma savage that the boldest and mighileat "pprosour co' If not but dread the andacty of the lr in y y yir." - Lorl Macanlay, Miaf. of Eing., ch "3 (e. 1).The Beottish Parliament by whicis Ejphopucy was eatalifshed at the king' hidding is kawn an the Drunken Parllanient. "Every man of thenr, with one exception, in salil to have leven Intuxicaterl at the the of pasaing It [Octubur i . 106t2]. Its eflect wan that 35$)^{\circ}$ ministory were ejected from tivelr livinge. Tine apparatur of ecciesiastical tyranny was complicten by a Mile Act, mimilar to tive Five Mlie det of finglant. forinidding any recusant milnister to roside withIn twenty miles of his own pariah, or wilhin :hree miles of a roynd borough."-J. F. Bright.
 the dronken purilane nt was fabily al: of in the absurdity of what was culied the dit Rescissory,' hy whilein every iaw that had inev pateved In the Acottisit pariament during twentyeight years was wholiy annmiledi. The logai fonnla. tions of l'resingtery were thus swa "t away. - ${ }^{\prime}$ Knight, Crurn Ilint. of Eing., ch ,

ALw Is: J. Aikman. dinnt of the Prack. tion in सेothant, r. 1, bk: : -5
A. D. 1669-1679.-Lauderdaie's despotism. -The Highland host. - " A new Parlimuent was assembird [0ctuber 10.1661)] at Eitinburth, and ta tiderdaie was sent dowa commisoinuer.
It were endeas to recoment every art of tinknie and arbitrary anthority cxereised during lauder. dale's aiministation. Ail the jaw yers were put from the har, nay banlshed, hy the klug's order. tweive miles from the capitai. and ly that means tite whole Justice of the klagrhom was subpended for a yenr, till these lawyers were hronght to dro ciure fo as their opingon that ail ajorals to Darlinment were ifiegal. A letter wis irocurid from the :ing. for expeliing twelve of the chit magistrates of Edinkurgh, uni ieciarlug thom Incapabie of ail puhile oftice, though their caly crime had been thelf want of compiasure with

8COTLAND, 1679.

Lavierdale. Lauderiale -. The private deportment of Juatice likawto was ualvarmally perverted by factive nad inlerevt: and from the great rapacty of that duke, and atll more of bfi duchem, all othere and favours were openly put to salo. No ate way Allowed to approach the throne who was not deperident on him; and no remedy could be bupedf for or ohtalaed agalant hls manifold oppreminas. . . The law eametel agalati conven. dicles hand calliod them ceminaries of rebellion. Thle expreagion. which was mothing bitt a four. the of rhetoric, Latuderiale and the privy councti were wlling to understand in a It iteral menme; and bersuse the weotern countien abounded in conrenticlem, though otherwlee in profound peace, they pretended that there countien were In a state of setual war and relvellion. They made there. fore an agreement whith some blghland chlef alua to call nut their clans, to the number of 8,000 men; to thewe they jolned the guards, and the militia of Aagus: and they ment the whole to llvo at fre quarters upon the landa of such as had re. fuemel the 1 . la lengagiag them an landlonis to metruin if ceranta from attending con reaticles] i liy required of them. The ob. noxlons connalen wete the mont populous and moat ludustrious la scotland. The highlander were the people the most disorderly and the teat civilized. It he easy to imaglae tile lavere and deatriction whleh enaued.

Alur two muntha' free quarter, the highlanders were sut lark th thedr hilts, loaded whth the apolin and the execrathoss of the weut. ... Lest the cry of an oppreaned people should reach the throne, the councll forbal, under wevere pemaitles, ali noblemea or gentiemen of iandel property to leave the klinglom. . . It is reported' that Chartes, after a full hearing of thi debutes coneernlag seuthab affars, waid, 'I percelve that Iaulerdale has leen gillty of many batl things agnlust the people of Neotiand; but I cannot thad that lue has acted anvihiog contrary to my luterest.' "- 1 ). Hlume, Mist. if Eug., ch. 66 (r. 6).
Alm) in: G. Burnet, Jlist. of My Oien Time, uk.
 A. . 1679 MAy -Juns).-The Defeat of Claverhouse at Drumelog.- The publle in. dignation which these meanires [uuder Lauderdale] rinused was ehietly directed agalnut the Archthshop of St. Andrews [Dr. James sharp]. who was generally regarted as thelr author or mssigator, and was doubly obnoxlous as the of May of the Presbyterian Church." On the 3nd af May, 10i0, the Arcliblsiop was dragged from his carriage on Magns Meorr, three mhles from St. Anders, und murdered, by a band of twelve Coreamuters, headed hy Haekston of Rathlllet. and Balfuor of Buriey, hifs brother in-law. "The great $\ln x \mid y$ of the Iresbyterians, thongh doubthas thinking that the loun was werlla way, eundemaed thls cruel and bloodv deed as a feml muriet; and they could not fuil to aep iratilt would gratily lacrease the severlty ot the int cation aruinst their party. . I who ac weclared a treasonable act to attend a conventlele. and orders were lesucd to the comonand "Te of the tronps in the western district to dis). ell sueh Fextiags at the point of the sword. ... To. Wards the eud of May preparatlons were made whold a great conventicie on a moor la the parist of Avondale, near the borderm of Lanarls.
thlre. The day celected for the service was the trat of June. No merret was made of the ar. raogement, ant it berame known to John Ors. bam of Claverthuune, the 'Blowily Claverhoume: drap was raliov. Wha conimanded a body of dragoma, statloned nt biankuw, for the purpowe af anppresilug the ciovenanters in that disiriet.
Harlay lern apprinel of the lutended meeting. be hantened towarid the apot at the head of bit own trucp of horse sand two companks of dimporns. . . The Covemanters hatl manembled na the furis of trumeleg, In the midat of a hlgh and miviland dotrict vut of whith rinen the wifd crapgy embarnee of Lominuu IIIII, In whine vefalty thikert bruce gainetl ths timat vletory. The jreacher. Thumas Dorg fian, bad pro. ceeded only a short way with hils sermun when a watchman puitell on an aljoinings luci! -ht tred hing gun as a wignul that the enemy whan ajproach. lng. The preaeher paused lo his dlacomise, and clumed whe the oft-quoted words-' You havo got the theory: now for the practlec.' The women and childiren were ment to the rear. The arniel men epparatell from the rest of the meetIng and took uj tivelr powlthon. . . Claverhouse and his dragexans were dencending the slope nf the opponite emluence, callenl Calder IIIII, and with a loud cleeer they rualiet towards the mosnuse und tred a volley at the Covenanters. It Wan returned wlet great eflect, emptylng a number of amhliles. The dragoons made severul un. succensful attempts to crows the inarsh, and Houklug partles sent to the rigit and to the left were repnlaed with considerable lows. At this juncturu Johi Nistet [an old moliler of the Thirty Icars Wirj erled out, 'Jump the ditch and charge tue cmemy.' The orler was instautly otneyed. Bulfour, at the head of the horwemen, and Cleland, with a porton of the lnfuntry, crusaed the marsh and athacked the dragomen whith such fary that they were thrown tato confuslon mind took to flaght, ieavigg from forty to fify of thelr mumber dead on the thell. Claverhanise himself had lits horse kilied ifader him anid narrowly escapel lits pursuers. . . The Vlet y it Irumctug romsel the whole country. Great numbers jumirei In to jola the vietom. and lu a short thane thelr ranks had eivelled to "pwards of $8,1(14)$ meu."-J. Taylor, The Seottish Curnmaterw, ch. 4.
Al.me is: M. Morrls, Churethouse, ch. 4.-Sir W. Scott. NHM Murtulity.
A. D. ${ }^{1679 \text { (June). - Monmouth' auccesa at }}$ Bothweil Bridge.-: The King was lor sup). prosinger the Insurrecton immediately by furces from England to join those In scotland, and the Wuke of Homumath to eommaud them all. The Duke of Monmouth, after a friendly paring With the kine. who had been displeased with hita, set out frous Lomion, June 18, for Scotinad, where he arrivel In three days, with au expedi. thon coubilerell larredthle, and took the cous. mand. The Cownamters were 5,000 or 8.040 strong, mind had tuken up a posttion six milles from Hanltou, it Bothwedl Irldge, which they Burriculded aod disputed the Dake"s passige. These Covemuters were irresolute. An attempi to negothate was made, but they were tolid that ma propmiti eruld be rcecired froun releds iu arms. One falf hour was aliowed. The Covenanters weut on consuming their the In theologlcal controversy, considering the Dulie to be In rebellion against tho Lord and his people.

While this almost imprepared, they were entrely defented In an nethon, $2: d$ of June, which, in compllment to the Duke of Monmonth, was Luo prounlly ealled the battle of Bothwell Bringe. Four hmodred Cuvenanters were killed, und 1,200 made prisoners. Monmonth was evdently fnvourable to them. . . . The Duke would not let the ingonns pusiue und massacre those (as Oldhum cnils them) IProtestunts. . . T The aname histormn adds, that the Dake of York tulked of Monmonth's expedition to Scotland, as a courthig the people there, and their friends in Eughund, by hls sparing those that were left allve; and that charles himself sald to Monmouth, 'If I had been there, we wonld not hare had the trouble of prisoners.' The Duke answerve, 'I eannot kill men in eokl hoxkl; that's work only for hutchers.' The prlsoners who promlsed to live peaceably were set nt liberty; the others, abont 220 , were transported to our plantathons, but were all cast away at sea! The Duke of Laudardule's creatures pressed the keeplng the army some time in Scothund, with a design to have them eat it up; but the Dake of Monmonth sent home the militia, and put the troops under discipline; so that all the eountry was senslble he had preserved them from rulu. The Inke asked the king to grant an indemnity for what was past, and liberty to the Covenanters to huhl thelr meetings under the Klng's icense: but these softening measures fell with Monmouth, and rage and slaughter again relgned when the Duke of York obtained the government of Scothand."-G. Roberts, Life of Vonmouth, ch. $f(e .1)$ Alno ix: J. H. Burton, Mint. of Soothend, ch. i0 (r. 7 ).
A. D. 168 s -1689. - The pitiless rule of James II.- The hunting of the Cameronians.-Claverhouse's brutalities. - In 16N1 the government of Sentland was commilted to the king's brother, the duke of York (ufterwards James II.), as viceroy. " Succeeding the chake of Monmouth, who was universally ineloved, he was anxious to exhibit as $n$ statesman that enpacity which he thought he had given sutlicient proof of as a gencral and as n naval eommander. In ussuming the directlon of the affairs of Scotland, he at first nffected mexleration; liut at a very early period au occusion presented itself for displaylng severIty; he was then pitiless. A few hundred presbiterians, under the conduct of two ministers, Cameron and Cargill, having taken arms and declared that they would acknowledge neither the king nor the bishops, he sent the troops against thear. The insurgents, who called themselves Curgillites and Cameronians, were beaten, and a great number of them klled. The prisoners, taken to Edluburgh, were tortured and put to death. The duke wis present nt the executlons, which he witnessed with an unmoved eountenance, and as though they were curious experi-ments."-A Carrel, Ihist, of the Counter Revolu. tion in Eing., ch. 2.-"Cullke the Engllsh Puritans, the great majority of the Scottlsh Presbyterians were stanneh supporters of monarchy.

Now, however, owing to the 'oppression which mnketh a wise man mad,' au extreme party arose among them, who not only contemned the Indulgence and refused to pay etes, hut publlely threw ofl their allegfance to the Kligg, on the ground of hls violation of his coronation oath, his breach of the Covenant which he solemnly swore to maintain, his perady, nod his 'tyranny in matters civil.' A deelaratlon, to thls effect was publlely read, and then nflixect (Tune 22d, 1880) to the niarket cross of Sanyuhar In Damfriesshlre, by Rlehard Cameron and Dou. ald Cargill, two of the most distingulshed Cose. nanting ministers, accompanled by au armel purty of about twenty persons.

These aets of the 'Soclety men, or Cameronians, as they were called after thelr leader. afforded the government a plausible pretext for far more severe measures than they had yet taken against the IItlmen, whom they hinted for severnl weeks through the" moors and whl glens of 1 rr and Galloway."-I. Taylor, The Soittixh Corenunter: ch. 4-"IIe [James II.], whose fasourite thme had been the injustlec of requiring clvil functionnries to take rellglous tests, establlshed in siculund, when he reslded there as Vicemor, the mant rigorons rellglous test that has ever bern known In the empire. He, who had expressed just indignation when the priests of hls own faith were hangel and quartered, amused himstlf with hearing Covenanters shriek and sereing them writhe while thelr knees were beaten flat in the boots. In this mood he beeame King, und he immetintely demanded and obtaincd from the obsequious Estates of Scothand, as the sarest plelge of their loyalty, the most sanguinary law that has cver in our lslands been enacted against Protestant Nonconformats. With this la iw the whole spirit of his adminlatration was in prefeet harmouy. The fiery perscention, which hal raged when he ruled Seothand as viregerent. waxed hotter than ever from the day (ol which he became sovereign. Those shires in which the Covenanters were most numerous were givell up to the license of the army. . . . Premineut among the bands whieh oppressed anll wastel these unhappy dlstriets were the dragums commanded by John Graham of Claverlionse. The story ran that these wheked mell nsed in their revels to play at the torments of hell, und tucall each other by the names of devils and damned souls. The chicf of this Tophet, a sollitier of distinguished courage and professional shill, but rapaclous and profane, of vlolent temper and obdurate heart, has left a name whlh, whererts the Scottlsh race is settled on the face of the globe, is mentloned with a peculiar energe of hatred. To recapitulate all the erimes by which this mnn, and men like him, goadel the peassntry of the Western Lowlands into madness, would be an endless task."-Lord Maciular, IFist. of Eng., ch. 4 (r. 1).

Also in: J. Cunningham, Hist, of the ch. of Scothind, r. 2, ch. 6.- M. Morrls, ClurerhomeJ. Alkman, Annals of the Persecution in coithad, c. 2, bk. 5-12.- A Cloud of Witnens s.-1. 11owie, The scota Worthies.
A. D. 1685.-Argyil's Invasion.-Monmouth's rebellion. See England: A. [). 16a. (MarJtcy).
A. D. ${ }^{\mathbf{3 6 8}}$. - Declarations of Indulgeace by

A. D. $\mathbf{1 6 8 8 - 1 6 9 0 .}$ - The Revolution. - Fall of the Stuarts and their Bishops.- Presbyteriadism finally restored and established. - 'It the first prospect of invaslon from ilolland [by Wil. llam of Orange], James had ordered the reglments on duty in scotland to march seuthwaft The withdrawal of the troops was folluwed by outbreaks in various parts. In Glaggow the Covenanters roee, and proclaimed the Prince of Orange king. In Edinburgh riots hmake out. The chapel of Holyrood Pulace was dismantled, and the Romish hishops and priests fled in fear for their lives. On hearing that Wiifiam had entered lnto London, the lending Wiings, under the Duke of Il, siton, repaired thither, and had in interview with him. He invlted them to meet in Convention. This they accordingiy did, and on January 0, 1689, it was resoived to re. quest Wiiliam to summon a meeting of the Scottish Estates for the 14th of March, and in the mir-in to administer the government. To this II..ian wnaented. The Estates of Scotiand met on the fred ited day. Ail the hishops, and - great hitinbir of the peers were adherents of Jamrs. After atormy debate, the Duke of ilamiton was lected President. But the minority (This bltes) was a large one. B. The Duke $\therefore \begin{gathered}\mathrm{C}=-1 \text { still held Edinburgil Castle for Jnmes, }\end{gathered}$ snd when the minority found it hopeiess to carry their measures, he proposed they should with him withdraw from Edinburgh and hoid a rivai Convention at Stiring. But these intentions were discovered, many. Jacohites were arrested, and many others, amongst them Viscount Dundee, escaped to the Ilighiands. In the end, the crown was offered to Wiiliam and Yary on the same terms on which it had been offered by the English Convention. The offer was accompanied by a claim of rights, almost identicai with the English declaration, but containing the additional clause, that 'prefacy was a grent and insupportahle grie vance.' On April 11. 1680, William and Slary were solemniy proclaimed at the Cross of Edinburgh. It was high time some form of government shouid ie settled, for, throughout the Lowiands, scenes of mob vio. lence were daily witnessed. The Presbyterians, 6) The Eng down trodden, rose in inany a parish, The Episcopal ciergy were ejected, In some casts with bioodshed. The 'rahbing,' as it is called in Scotch history, continued for some months, untii the Presbyterian Church was reinstated by law as the Estahiished Church of Scotlani, in June $1690 "-E$. Haie, The Fall of the stuarts, ch. 13. - "Episcopacy was now thrown down; but Presbytery was yet to be built up.

Montins passed away, anil the riar 1690 began. King Wiiliam was, quite prepared to estahlish Preshytery, but he was most unfilling to abolish patronage. horeover, he was desirous tiat the foundations of the new Church shouill he as widely iaiif as possible, andi that it should comprehend aif tite miuisters of the old Church who chose to conform to its dis. cipline. But he began to see that some conces. son was necessary, if a Church was to be huiit up at all. On the 25th of Aprii the Parilament met which was to give us the Establlishment which we stiil enjoy. Its first act was to abolish the Act 1689, which asserted the king's suprem. scr over aii persons and in ali causes. Its second act was to restore all the Preshyterian min. isters who had been ejected from their iivlngs the not complying with Prelacy. This done, the parlloment paused in its fuil career of ecciesissticai iegisiation, and aboilshedi the Lords of the Articles, who for so many centuries had mansged the whole business of the Scotch Es. tules and ondained that the clectors of coulumis. sloners to the Eatates shouid take tine Oath of Alleginace before exercising the franchise. The next art forms tie foumlation of our present Estabilisiment. It ratifles the -Westminster Confessiou of Faith'; it revives the Aet 1592; it repeals aii the laws In favour of Eplscopacy; it legailzes the ejections of tho western rahble; it deciares that the government of the Church was to be vested in the ministers who were outed for nonconformity, on ani after the 1st Jnnuary 1681, and were now restored, and those who had been or shouli be admitted by them; it appoints the Gencerai Assembliy to the Gencrai Assembiy to meet; and empowers it hegrigent , visitors to purge out all insufticient, negiigent, scmudiaions, and erroneous ministers, hy due course of eeciesiasticai process. In this act the Preshyterians gained ail that they could desire, as Presbytery was estabiished, and the government of the Churcil was piaced entirely In their hanils. By this act, the Westninster Confession became the creed of the Church, and is recorded at iength in the ninutes of the parliament. But the Catechisms and the 'Directory of Worsiip' are not found by its side. A punph. weter of the day deciares titat the Confession was read aunid much yawning andi weariness, and, by the time it was Enished, the Estatea grew restive, and would ifear no more. It is at least certaiu that the Catecinisms and Directory are not ouce meutioned, though the Preshyterian ministers were very anxious that they shouid. From this it wouid appear that, whie the State has tixed the Church's faith, it has not fixed the Cinurci's worship.

The Covenants were utteriy ignored, though there were many in the Church who would have wished them revived." 2. ch. Cunniughum, Chureh llist. of Svotland, $r$ 2. ch. 7.
A. D. 1689 (Juiy) - War in the Highlands. - The Battle of Kiliiecrankie.-" The duke of Gordon stili hehi out the castie of Edinhurghe for Jamus: and the viscount Duadee [Graham of Claverhouse], the soui of the Jacohite party in Scotiaud. having coliected a smail but gailant army of Highiuders, tirentened with suhjection the whole uorthern part of the kingtion. Dundee, Who hni publiciy disavowed the authority of the Scottish convention, had been diecinred an outlaw hy that assembly, and generni Mackay Was sent ngainst him with a body of regular troops. The castle of Blair belug occupied hy the allterents of James. Mackay resoived to attempt its reduction. The viscount, apprised of the design of his antagonlst, suminoned up afl his emtrorising spirit, and hy forced marches arrived at Athoi before hinn. He was soon [July 27,1 tise) informed that Mackay's vanguard had cleared the pass of Kiliicranky; a narrow lefile, formed by tim steep sides of the Grampian hills, aud a ditrk, rapini, nud deep river. Though charrined at this inteliigence he wns not disconcerted. Ite despatched Sir Alexander Maclean to nttack the enemy's advanced party winile he inimself shoulil approach with the main body of the $1 l i g h i n d e r s$. Mut before Maclean had proceeded a milie, Duudee reccived informatlon tiat Mackay had marehed tirmugh the pass witio hils whole army. lle comnnaded Meciem to hait, and hoidity advanced with his faithfui mand, determined to give bnttie to the enemy." Mackay's army, consisting of four thousand five hundred foot. and two troops of harse, wes formed in eig't battaiions, and ready for action wineu Dundee came in view. His own brave but undisciplined followers, of all ranks and coudltoma did not exceed 3,800 men. "These he Instantly ranged in hootlle array. They stood lnactlve for several hours in sight of the enemy, on the steep slde of a hlll, whlch faced the narrow plain where Mackay had tormed hls Ilne, nelther party choosing to change Ita ground. But the algnal for battle was no sooner glven, than the Highlanders rushed down the hlll In deep columns: and having dlacharged thelr muskets with effect, they had reeourse to the broadsword, thelr proper weapon, with whlch they furiously attacked the enemy. Mackay's left wing was lnstantly broken, aml drlven from the field whth great slangliter by the Macleans, who formed the right of Dundee's army. The Macdonalds, who composed hls left, were not equally successful: colonel Hastlng's reglmant of Engllsh fornt repelled thelr most vlgorous efforts, and obllged them to retreat. But Maclean and Camerou, at the head of part of thelr respectlve elans, suddenly as. salled thls gallant regiment ln thank, and put it to the rout. Two thonsand of Mnckay's army werc slaln: and hls artllery, baggage, anmmnltion, provislons, ant even king Whllinm's Dutch standard, fell lnto the hauds of the Highlanders. But thelr joy, like a smilc upon the cheek of death, delusive and lasineerc, was of short Unration. Dindee was mortally wounded by a musket shot as he was pursilng the fugitlves; he expired soon after his victory, und whith him perished the hopes of James in Seotland. The castle of Edinbursh had nlready surrendered to the eonvention; and the llighlanders, diseonraged by the loss of a leader whom they loved and abinost adored, gradunlly dispersed themselves, uml returned to their savage monntains, fo bewail him in their songs. Ilis menory Is still dear to them; he is considered as the last of their heroes; und his nume. even to this day, ls sehlom mentioned among them without a slgh or a tear." - W. Russell, Hist. of Woutern Eiempe. $p$. 2, letter 17 (r. 2).

At,so is: J. Browne, Hixt, of the Mighlinde, r. 2. rif, (i-\%. M. Morris, Cliererhouse, ch. 11.
A. D. ${ }^{1689}$ (August),-Cameronian victory at Dunkeld, After the victory and denth of bundee at Kiltecrankle, the command of his llighanders hat devolved upon Cannon. an lrish otlleer. "With an army increased to 4 , om nem, he continued to eoast along the Grampians, fullowed by Mackny; the one afraid te descemt from the nomutains, and the other to quit, with his (avalry, the idvantage of the open plains.
 $: 1$ ]. he surrimaded the resimest of chmeronimes, whime I atruction appeired so inevitable that they wore abomboned hy a party of horse to their finte But the C'ancronians, notwithstandiag fenderl themselves with such desperute en. thmsiann that the highlumeres, disconraged by the repulse. and theapalle of persevering fort. tiale, "tispersed and retmrned to their hones."- (r. t).
A. D. 1692 , -The Massacre of Glenco.-I scheme, originating with lard llremalhane, for the pacifying of the llishanders, wis approved ly King Willian and acterl upon, in 1691. It otfered a free parton and h sum of tnoney to all the chlifs who would take the cath of altefiance to William and Mary hefore the trat of January, 1682, and lt contemplated the extlrpathon of such clans as refused. "The last man to sulmit to government was Mactuand of Glenco. Towands the end of December he ap. plled to the governor of Fort Wlllam, who refused, as not belng a clvil maglstrate, to adhin. lster the oaths; but dlspatched hlm la huste. With an earneat recommendatlon to the Sheriff of Argyle. From the snows and other iaterrup. tlons whleh he met with on the roud, the diay prescribed for submission had clapsed, luy fore lie reached Inverary, the county town. Tha lumetit of the ludemnity was strictly forfeitenl: the sherifi was moved, however, by his trars and entreatles, to recelve hls oath of allegiance, and to certlfy the unavoldable canse of his deluy: But hls oath was Industriously supprenmel. hy the advlee particularly of Stalr the prowitent: the ccrtlicate was erased from the list presenten to the privy conncll; and lt appears that un cxtensive eombinatlon was formed for his destruction. The earl of Breadalbane, whose huk he had plundered, and Dalrymple, the seretary, . persualed Willians that Ghoneo was the chict olstacle to the pacifieation of the hiph. lands. Perhaps they concealed the circumstance that he liad applled whthln due time for the ouths to government, and had received them sinec. But they proeured lastructions. signed, und for thelr greater securlty, conntersignel ly the king himself, to proceed to mllitiry execu tion against sueh rebels as had rejecterl the indemnity, and hal refused to submit on assurame of their lives. As these instruetlons were found insmfllcient, they obtained an additional conder. signed, and also conntersigned, ly the king, 'that it Glenco and his elan coukd well lue separated from the rest, It wonld be a proper vindieation of public justlce to extirpute that sect of thieves.' But the drections glven by W.arymple far exceederl even the king's instrintions Gleneo, $n$ sured of an lademity, hat romataed at home, umoblested for a month, whell an detalhment arrived front Fort Willinm, unter ('amp. bell of Glenlyon, whose niece was marrital to one of his sons. The soldiers wre receivel on assurance of peace and friendship; and were quartered amonk the luhabitants of the wequesterell vale. Theír commander enjoyed for a fort. uight thin dally hospitality of his nephen's table. They had passed the evening at carils fugethers and the otheers were to dhe with his father next day. Their orders arrived that night, to attack their defenceless hosts while asleep at milnigh: and not to sutfer a man, under the age of sexem? to escape their swords. From some sumpionus circumstances the soas were impresiad with a sumben appreliension of danger, and discoment thelr upprosell: bit before they could alarm their father, the nussacre spremil through the whote vale. lefore the brak of day, a party. enterlng as friemds, shot Glenco as he rowe from lils bed. Ills wlfe was stript naked by the sot diers, who tore the rings with thelr tieth from her tingers; and she explred next morning with horror and grlef. Nine men were bound and deliberately shot at Glenlyon's quarters: his landlond was shot by hls onlers, snd a goung boy, who clang to his knees for protection, was stabled to death. At another part of the vale the lnhabitants were shot whlle sittiag around their fire; women pernshed with their chlldren lin thelr arms: an ofd man of elghty was put to the sworl; another, who escaped to a house for onacesiment, was hurat alive. Thlrty-elght persons were thus inhumaniy massacred by thelr inmates and guests. The rest, alarmed hy the report of muaquetry, escaped to the billa, and were preserved from destructlon by a tempest that sdded to the hurrors of the uight. carnage was succeeded hy raplne and desolatlon The cattle were driven off or destroyed. The houses, to fuifil Dairymple's instructlons, were burot to the ground; and the women and chlldrea, stript anked, were left to explore their way $t 0$ anme remote and friendiy inabitatlon, or to perish in the snows. The outery agalnst the massacre of Glenco was not contined to Scotlsnd: lut, hy the industry of the Jacohites, it resoundeli with every aggravation through Enrope. Whether the Ininumun rigour or the perIdlous execution of the orders were considered, each part of the bloody transaction discovered a deliberate, treacherous, and an impoiitic cruelty, from which the king himself was not altogether exempt. Instead of the terror whlch it was meant to Inspire, the horror nnd universui exe. cratlon which It excited rendered the highlanders irrecoaclieuhle to his goverament, nad the government justly orilous to ihls subjects."- M. Laing, Iliw. of Ecotlend, 1603-170\%, 8k. 10 (i: 4). Also in: Lord Macaniay, Jlisf. of EEng., ch.

 $\delta(c .4), 16 x^{2}$.
A. D. 1695-1699. - The Darien scheme.King Wiliiam urges a Union of the kingdoms. -"The pence of ifyswie whs succecied by au event which hatd well nigh crented a civil war between scothand and England. As the writers of no nation are more marked by grundeur nad meanness of compositlon in the same person. and the actors In public life ly grauleurana meanness of chnracter la the sime' person. thinh those of Einghad; so the procerdings of the aational assomhly of Encland the the mulde of the Dational assimbly of England, the nobleat that erer was on earth, except that of ikome, wre often tinetured wjith a stringe mixture of the often tinetured with a strmuge mixture of the great and the little. Of this truth an instunce appeared ut this time, in the procerdinges of parliane ut with regard to the scots colons of parliament with regard to the Scots colong of baving cxamined the piaces, sutistied himself that en the isthmus of Daricu there wns antract of country running neross from the Atlintle to posessed, sud, which the Spaniards had never poseseed, :und inhableti by a people continnally at war with them:. that the two sems were height, created a gige of hills, which, by thelr height, created a temperate climato; $\therefore$ that poads combld inade with ense nlong thic ridge, from the one sea to the carriuges, might pasis from the one sea to the other in the spuce of a day, and that consequently thls pnssage secomed to be pointed out by the tinger of nature, us a and intercourse to connect together the tride abd intercourse of the universe.

By this the, oa this aeglected spot, a great and powerful coiony, not as other coionies have for the most part leen settled, by chance, and unprotected by the country from whilience they went, but by s5stem, upon foresight, and to receive whom hie protection of those goveraments to whom he wss to offer hls project. Aud certhe time of Coler ldea has been formed slace the time of Columbus. . . . Paterson's originai

Intentlon was to offer hls project to England, the country whlcin had the most Interest in it: Recelving no encouragement, however, in Lon. don, nor In Holiand, nor Germany io whlcia countries he repalred, he returucd finaliy to Scotland, and there awakened the interest of several intluentlal gentiemen, including Mr. Fleteher of Salton, the Marquis of Tweddale, Lord Stalr, and others. "These persons, in June 1685, procured a statute from parllament, and afterwaris a charter from the crown ln terms of it, for creating a tr ing compnny to Africa nad the new world, with power to plant coloules and bulld forts, with consent of the Inhabltants, In places not possessed hy other European nations. Piterson, now findlag the ground firm under him, .. threw hls project boidly upon the publle, nnd opened a subscrip. tion for a company. The freuzy of the Scots nation to sign pany. The frenzy of the Scots nation to sign the solemn league and coveuant never excceded the rapillity with which they ran to suhscrlbe to the Inriun company. The uobility. the gentry, the merchants, the peot pie, the royal gentry, the merchants, the perpie, the royal hurghs, whthout the exception of one, nust of the other public bodies, subscribed, Yonng women threw their little fortunes luto the stock, widows soid thelr jolle forto get the come stock, widows soid their jolntures to get the commund of money for the same purpuse Almost in un instunt $£ 400$, 000 were sulh. siribed in Scothnd, although It be now sinown of cash in the kingdoun. i. The English sulb jeal sin ete more. In the neein time, the jealonsy of trade which has done nore mischiet to the trade of Eagland than all other cumets put together, created au nlarm in Eugland; and the fontse's of lords and conmons, withent pre. vions inguiry ur reticection, on the Hah December of tha Vear is95, concorred in $n$ joint addreso tu the King akidust the establishment of the Darie'n eompany, as detrimental to the interest of the Eist indila company. Soon nfter. the commons impenched some of their wwn combtrymen tor heing instrumental in erecting the company.

The King's unswer was that ho han beent his scontish ministers, and se som after ehanged lent it Ilanburgh to present arders ine his resident int Imaburgh to present a memorial to the senate, lu which be disownea the comjonys, it. . . . Tho Scots, hothet all connections with minated The Scots, mot lisconraged, were rather it intated by this oppression; for they converted it into 1 prosif of the enry of the Euglish, and which were to How to of the weat advantages Which were to How to Scotland from the colony. The company proceeded to buidd six ships in ifolland, from 36 to 60 guns, and they engaged ,200 men for the colony; anong whom were vonnger sons of many of the nohle and most incient fumblies of scotland, and sixty offleers who had heeu dishanded at the peace." The firat colony suiled from Leith. Juiy 26,1698 , nud arrived sufely at Inrien in two months. They " fixed their station at Acta, cailing it Jew. Sit. Anirew, and the country itself New Cinledonia.

The first publle act of the colony was to publish a decinration of freetlon of trinde and religion to ali natlons. This liminous iden ordginated with Paterson. But the I Uuich Eisst India company having pressed the Klng, in concurrence with hls English subjects, to preveut the settlement of Darien, orders had been sent from England to the governors of the West Indian and American coloniea, to issue prociamations against giving assistance, or even to hold correspondence with the colory; and theas were more or less harahiy expressed, according to the tempers of the diferent governors. The Scots, trunting to far different trestment, and to the supplies which they expected from those coionies, hsd not hrought provisions enough with them; they fell into diseases, from had food, and from want of food.

They lingered eight months, awaiting, hut in vain, for assistance from Scotland, and aimost all of them either died out or quitted the settlemint. Paterson, who hat been the tirst , at entered the ship at Leith, was the last who went on board at Darien." To complete the destruction of the undertaking, the Spanish government, which had not moved in opposition before, now bestirred itself against the Scottish company, and entered formal complaints ac London (May 3, 1690). "The Scots, ignorant of the misfortunes of their coiony, hut provoked at this memorial [of Spain], sent out another colony soon after of 1,300 men, to support an estahlishment which was now no more." This last colony, after gallant fightlig and great suffering, was expeiled from Darien by a Spanish expedition, and "not more than thirty, saved from war, shipwreck, or disease, ever saw their own country again. . . While the second col. ony of the Scots were exposing themsoives, far from their country, in the cause, mediately or imanediately, of all who spoke the Engilsh ianguage, the house of iords of England were a second tlme addressing the King at bome agalnst the settlement itself.

He answered the address of the lords, on the 12 th of Fehruary 1699, In the following words: 'His Majesty does apprehend that difficulties may too often arise, with respect to the different interests of trade between his two lingdoms, unless some way be found out to unite them more nearly and completely; and therefore his Majesty takes thls opportunity of putting the house of peers in mind of what he recommended to hls parliament soon after his accession to the throne, that they would consider of an union between the two kIngdoms.'" -SIr J. Dairymple, Memoriale of Gt. Britain, $p t .3, b k .6$ ( $c .3$ ).

Also in: J. H. Burton, Hist. of the Reign of Queen Anne, ch. 4 ( $c .1$ ) - Lord Macaulay, Hist. of Eng., ch. 24 (c. 5).
A. D. 1703-1704.-Hoatility to England.The Act of Security. - The Scottish Plot."This Parliament of 1703 was not in a temper of conciliation towards England. Glencoe and Darion were still watchwords of strife. The failure of the regotiations for nion necessarily prodisced exasperation. Whilisi Marlborough was fighting the hattles of the Alifes, the Scottish Parllament manifested a decided inclination to the interests of France, hy removing restrictions on the importation of French wines. The 'Act for the Security of the Kingdom' was a more op'n declaration not only of the independence of Scotland, hut of her disposition to separate wholly from England-to ahrogate, on the first opportunity, that union of the crowns which had endured for a century. The Act of Settlement, hy which the crown of Engiand was to pass in the Prutestant linc to tinc cicetress Sophis and her descendants, was not to be accepted; but, on the demise of queen Anne without issie, the Estates of Scotland were to arme a successor from the Protestant descendants of the Stuart line, and that sumcessor was to be us. der condltions to secure 1 ise religlous freedom and trade of the nation from English or any forelgn influence.' For four months this matter was vehemently dehated in the Scottish Parlia. ment. The Act of Security was carried, but the Lord High Conimissioner refused lis assent. Foliowinr this legisiative commotion came what was called in Engiand the 8cottish plot-s mod compilcated affair of intrigue and olticial treachery, with some reai treason st the botton of it [This Scottish Plot, otherwise called the Queensberry Plot, was a scheme to raise the likhland cians for the Pretender, abortively planaed by one Simon Fraser.] The House of Lorils in England took cognizance of the matter, which provoked the highest wrath in Scotinnd, that another nation should interfere with her affairs.

When the Ecottish Estates reassembied ln $i \because$ they denounced the proceedings of the $i$ - e of Lords. ss an interference with the prerogailve of the queen of Scotland; nad ther agaln passed the Security Act. The royal sssent was not now withheld; whether frum fear or from policy on the part of the English mlaistry is not very clear. The Parliament of Engiand then adopted a somewhat strong measure of retailation. The queen was addressed, requesting her to put Carilsle, Newcastle. Ty nemonth, and Huil in a state of defence, and to send forces to the border. A Statute was passed which in the first place provided for a treaty of Union; aud then enacted that until the Scoittish larliameat should settle the succession to the crown in the same line as that of the English Act of settlement, no native of Scotland, except those domi. ciled in Engiand, or in the nary or army. shouid acquire the privileges of a natiral-hom Eaglishman; and prohiblting ali importations oi coals, enttle, sheep, or linen from Scotland. it was evident that there must be "nion or War." -C Knight, Popular Hist. of Eing., c. 5, ch U1.

Also Is: J. H. Burton, Ilixt. of the laign of Queen Anne, ch. 4 and 7 (r. 1).
A. D. 1707.-The Union with England.-To avert war between Scotland and Encland by s complete political Union of the $t$ wo hingdoms in one became now the greatest object of the molicitude of the wiser statesmen on botl siles. They used their intiuence to so good nn effert that, is the spring of 1706, thirty one Commisioners na the part of cach kingion were appointel to negotiate t1': u'rms of C'nlon. The Commissloners held their first mecting on the lith of April, nnd were in session untll the 2:d of July, nhed the Arilcles of Enion agreed upon hy them recelved the signature of tweuty-seveo of the Eaglisis and twenty-six of the Scots. On the 10th of the following January ( $1: 0 i$ ) these Aricles were ratified with amendments hy the Scottish Pariament. The English l'arliament adopted them as amended a month futer, nuel on the 6 th of March the Union was perfected by the roral assent, given solemnly by the Quren, in presence of the Lords nnd Commons of England. "it was agreed that Great Brltain should be the designatlon of the unlted island; the aame of Scotland to be merged in the name of North Britain. It was agrecd that the cinsuta of It Geurge anc. St. Andrew shonld he roajolaed in the fiag of the united kingdom. It wus agreed that the arms of the two countries - the three flons pasant and guardant Or , and the llon rampant Or, wlthin douhle treasure fory and countertory, Gules - chould be quartered with ell heraldic honours. It was agreed that the unlted kingdom should have new Great Beal. As regards the House of Commons, the Eaglish party proposed that Scotland should be represented hy 88 members. Even Scottish writers have observed that if taxation be taken as the measure of representatlon, and if it be remembered that the Bcots of that time had asked and beea allowed to llmit thelr share of the Land-tax to one-fortleth of the share of England, lt would follow that, as an additlon to the 518 members of Parllament returned by England, Scotland was entltled to demand no more than .3. But eren 38 seemed hy no means sdequate to the claims on other grounds of that ancient and renowaed klngdom. The Scottlsh Commissioners stood ont for an increase, and the Engllsh Commissioners finally conceded 45. The Peers of England were at this juncture 185 and the Peers 01 Scutland 134. It was intended that the latter should send representatlves to the former and the proportlon was settled acrording to the ;recedent that was just decided. The 45 m imbers from Scotland when added to the 513 from Eng. land would make one-twelfth of the whole; and i6 Peers from Scotland when added to the 185 from England would also make about one. twelfth of the whole. Sixteen was therefore the number adopted; and the mode of election both of Coninoners and Peers was left to be determinel hy the Parliament of Scotland, before the day appolntel for the Union, that is the first of May 1i0\%. By thls treaty Ecotland was to re. tain ler heritahle Jurisdiction, her Court of Session and her eutire system of law. The Preshyterian Church as hy law estahllshed was to coutinue unaltered, having been indeed excludel from debate by the express terms of tite Commisslon."-Earl Stanhope, Mist. of Eng.: Rign of Queen Anne, ch. 8.

Also in: J. II. Burion, Miat. of the Reign of Quein Anne, ch. 7 (c. 1).-Sir W. Seott, Tiles of A Grandfither: \& w...ind, series 2, ch. 12.-II. Hallam, Const. Ilint. of Eng., ch. $1^{\prime}$ (c. a $;$., The The test of the Act of Lnion may be found in the Prliamentury Ilistory, r. 6. app. 2.
A. D. $1707^{-1708 .-H o s t i l i t y ~ t o ~ t h e ~ U n i o n .-~}$ Spread of facohitism. - "In seotland it [the [nion] was regarded with an ahmost universal ferling of discontent and disinonour. The Jaeobite party, who had entertalned great hepes of eluding the act for settling the kingdom upon the family of llanover, beheld them entirely lighted; the Whigs, or Preshyteriaus, fonnd throuselves forming thenselves forming part of a aition in whieh Prolacy was an institution of the state; the Country party, who had nourished a vain bnt lomourable idea of inalntainlng the independence of Scothad, now saw lt, with all its symbols of ancient sovereignty, sunk and merged under the gurernment of England. All the different professions and elasses of men saw each something in the obnoxlous treaty which affected their own interest.

There whs, therefore, nothing save discontent and lamentatlon to be heard through. out Scotland, and men of every elass vented loudly, becaune against the Union the more loudly, because their sense of personsl grieve.
honour done to the comations concernlag the dishonour done to the country. ... Almost all the dlasenting and Cameronlan ministere were antiunlonlsts, and some $n f$ the more enthusjastlc were o pecullariy vehement, that ion $\sigma$ after the controveray had fallen asleep, I have heard my grandfather say (for your grandfather, Mr. Hugh Llttlejohn, had a grandfather in his time), that he had heard an old clergyman confess he could never hring hls sermon, upon whatever suhject, to a concluslon, withou': having what he called a 'hlaud,' th.. ls a slap, at tie Cnlon. The detestatlon of the slap, at the Cnlon. . . The the ruling of the treaty being for the present the ruling passion of the times, all other distinc. tions of party, and even of rellglous opinions lltion took place, la washe, and a singular coslition took place, In whlch Eplscopalians, Preshy. terians, Cavaliers, and many friends of the revolutlon, drowned all former hostility In the predominant averslon to the Union. . .. For a tlme almost all the lnhahitants of Bcotland were dlaposed to joln unanimously ln the Restoration, as it was called, of James the Seeond's son to the throne of hls fathers; and had hls ally, the King of France, beon hearty in hls cause, or his Scottlsh partisans more unlted among themselves, or any leader amongst them possessed of distlnguished talent, the Stewart famlly might have repossessed themselves of their anclent domain of Scotland, and perhaps of England also." Early ln 1708 an attempt was made to take adFantage of thls feeling ln Seotiand, on behalf of the Preteuder, hya nuvai and military expedition from France, fitted our by the French khig. It was rulgarly fristrated by an nttuek of mensles, Whieh prostrated the Stuart adventurer (the Chevnller de St. George) at Dunkirk. nutil the English governnent had warning cnongh to be ton well prepared.-SIr W. Scott, Tibled of e Grandfather: Acotland, serits 3, ch. 1-2.
A. D. $1715 .-$ The Jacobite rising.- In 1715 "thire were Jacobite risings hoth in scotlund and in Escriand. Eurly in September John Erskine, Earl of Mar - who some years before had been a Whig and ielped to briug ahout the Vnlon - ralsed tite standard of rebellion in Brae. nur, and in a short time fonud hinself in connmand of a large Ilighhma army. But Mar wus very slow in his movements, and lingered for slx weeks in Perth. The Duke of Argyle, fanoms as both a warrior and a statesman, wis sent from Loulon to deal with this danger; and, going to Stirling, used the tinte whlch Sar was wasting ln gathering round him soldiers and loyal Low. landers. While thlngs stowd thus in the far north a few hmmbrel. Jneobites took ap arms la north a few humbrel Jaeobites took ap arins in Northumberlamh nuder Mr. Forsterund Lord Ier. wentwater Joining with some Sonthern Seots whon Slar had sent to aud some IIghlauders Whom Sur had sent to their aid, they marehed to Preston, in Lancashire. The fate of the two risings was settled on the same day. At Ires. ton the Elnglish Jacobites and their Seottishallies had to give themselres up to a small lorly of soldiers under General Curpenter. At Sheriff. Hinir, ahout eight miles north of Stirling. the Highlanders, whom Mar had put in motion at last, met Argyle's little army in battle, antl. though not utterly beaten, were forced to fall bark in Perth. There BIar's army sult dwindled to a mere handfui of men. Jast when things seemed at the worst the Pretender himself landed in Scotland. But he altogether lacked the daring and high spirit needful to the cause at the time; and his presence at Perth did not even delay the end, whel was now sure. Late $\ln$ January 1718 Argyie's troops started from Strring northwards; and the small IIIghland force broke up from Perth and went to Montrote. Thence Jamen Edward and Mar silpped away unaoticed, and salied to France; anil the IIlghlarders scampered off to thelr neveral homes. Of the rebeis that were taken prisoners about forty were tried and put to death; and many were sent beycud the seas. Derwentwater and Kenmure were behended; the other leaders of rank eltier were forgiven or escaped from prison."-J. Rowley, The Settlement of the Constatution, bk. 8, ch. 1.

BCOTLAND, 1715.

Also is: J. McCartisy, Mist, of the Four Gearges, v. 1, ch. 7.- J. If. Jesse, Memoirs of the Pretendera, v. 1, ch. 3-4. - Earl Stanhope. Hiot. of Eng., 1713-1 788 , ih 5-6 (e. 1).-Mrs. K. Thomson, Memoirs of the Jacobites, e. 1-2.
A. D. 3736.-The Porteous Rlot. See EdinBURGR: A. D. 1736.
A. D. ${ }^{1745} 1$ 1746. $^{2}$ The Yount Pretender's invasion.-The last rlaing of the Jacobltes.--As carly as 1744 Charlcs Edward [known as 'the Young Pretender'], the grandison of James II., was piaced by the French government at the head of a formidabie armament. But hls pian of a descent on Scotiand wss defeated by a storm which wrecked ills fleet, and by the march of the French troops whici had saiicd ln It to the war in Flandcrs. In 1745, however, the young adventurer again embarked with but seven friends ln a smaif vessel and landed on a iittle island of the Hebrides. For three weeks he stood aimost ainone ; but on the $29 t i=$ of August the clans railied to fils standard in Gientiman.

Hls force sweiled to an army as be marehed through Biair Athol on Pcrth, entered Edinburgh In triumph, and prociaimed 'James the Eighth' at tive Town Cross: and two thousand English troops who marcied aguinst hlm undier Sir John Cope were hroken and cut to pieces on the 2ist of September by a single charge of the elansmen at Preston Pans. Vlctory at once doubied the forces of the conqueror. The Prince was now at the head of 6.000 men; but aill were atlll High. landers. . . After skilfuily evading an army gnthered at Newcastie, he marched tirough Lancashlre, and pushcd on the 4th of December as far as Derby. But here all hope of suceess came to an end. Hardiy a man had sisen in his support as he passed thrcugh the districts where Jacobitism boasted of lts strength. . . Catholles and Tories abounded In Lancashire, but only a singie squire took up arms. .. The policy of Waipole had la fact secured England for the House of Hanover. The iong peace, the pre perity of the country, and the ciemency of the Government, had done tieir work. . . . Even in the Highiands the Macieods rose in arms for King George, while tbc Gordons refused to stlr, though roused by a small French force whieh landed at Montrose. To advance furtber south was Impossibie, and Charies feli rapidiy back on Glasgow; but the relnforcements which he found there ralsed hls army to 9.000 men, and on the 23rd January, 1746, be boldiy attacked an Eng. lish army under General Hawley, whlci had foliowed his retreat and had encamped near Faiklrk. Agaln the whid charge of hia Highlanders won चictory for the Prince, but victory wasas fatal an defeat. The hulk of his forcen dispersed with thelr booty to the mountalne, and Charles feil sul. lenly back to the north before the Duke of Cumber. land. On the 16 th of A pril the armles faced one another on Culioden Moor, a few milen castward of Inverness. The IIIghlander stil numberei 6,000 men, but they were starving and dlspiritenl.
In a few momente all was over, and the stuari force was a mass of hunted fugltives. Charife hlmself after strange adventurei escaped fin the disg'ilas of a fcmale servant, attending the famou Flora Macdonald] to France. In England fifty of hla followers were hnnged; tirre scotch lorls, Lovat, Baimerino, and Kilmarnock, brought to the block; anl forty permons of rank attainted by Act of Parliament. More extensive ineasures of repression were ncedful in the llighlands. The feudal tenures were abollshed. The bereditary jurisdlctions of the chiefs were bought up and transferred to the Crown. The turtan, or garb of the IHighlanders, was forbldden he lam. These measures, followed by a genersi Act of Indemnlty, proved effective for their purpose." -J. R. Green, Short Hist, of the Eing. leople, ch. 10, met. 1.

A1.so in: I ord Mahon (Earl Stanioope), Hist of Eing. 1713 - 1883 , ch. 26-29 (c. 3).-R. Chambers, Ilist. of the Rebellion of $1 \hat{4} 55$ - Mirs. K. Tiomson, Mempirs of the Jacubites, e. 2-3.Cisevaiicr de Johnstone, Memoirs of the Rebellion of 1745.-J. H. Jesse, Memoirs of the Iretenders.
A. D. 1779. - No-Popery Riots. See EvaLAND: A. D. 1778-1780.
A. D. 1832.- Representation in Pariiament Increased by the Reform Biil. Nee Evglasd: A. D. 1830-1832.
A. D. 1843.- The Disruption of the Church. -Formation of the Free Charch.-"Lay patronage was . . . inconsistent with the concep. tion and the fundamentai principles of the Pres. byterian Church, and she opposed and rejected it, and fougitt agalnst it. It was alwilished shortly after the Revolutlon of 1688 , but again restored by ticc Britlsh Pariament in 1712. con. trary to the letter and the spirit of the Treaty of Union, and to ail conceptlons of a wise policy toward the Scottlsh natlou. . . An internal struggie arose between the pnity who heid firmly to these sentiments and the new partycuilicd 'the Moderate party.' . . . In the middle of the 18th century tha opposite views of the popular and the modcrate parties had become distinct. The chlef point of polity in lispute was the settlement of ministers in parishes against the wishics of the congregations. Cases of this character were constantiy coming brfore the nresbyterics and generai assemblies; and in 1733 It was on mattera arising from such cases that a secession took place. . In $17 i 3$ there were upwards of two hundred dissenting congregations, besides Eplseopalians and Roman Cathollcs.

As an attempt to redress the eviis involved ln patronage. the popular party proposed, In the assembiy of 1833 , that when a majority of a congregation ohjected to the min. Ister presented by the patron, the preshytery should not proceed with the settlement.
was on this reasonable regulation [pussed into an act, called the Veto Act, by the Assembly of 1934] that the struggie which igeued in the bir ruption was fought, although there were other principles invoived in the confifict" "In 1899,

SCOTLAND, 1848.

case arising in the partsh church of Auchterarder, In P'erihshlre, led to a declslon In the Court of Sesaion agalnat the legallty of the Veto Act, and thls declison, on appeal, was aftlrmed by the House of Lords. "For several years the country rang with the clamour and talk of non. intrusion and spiritual Independence, and the excitement was Intensc. Pamphlets, speeches and ballads were clrculated through the klng. dom in hundreds of thousanda. The engrossing subject attracted the attention of every bousehoid, and many a famlly became dlvided in religlous acntiments." Flnaliy, In 1843, Andlag no prospect of leglslatlon from Parllament to fre the Church of Scotland from the odlous fetters of patronage, the popular party resolved ul ${ }^{2}$ a general mecenslon from t . Thls occurrud in . memorahle seene at the opening of the Aso mbir, In Edlnburgh, on the 18 th of May, 1843. The Moderator of the body, I)r. Welsh, read s protest agalnst furtiner proceedings in tho Awembiy, beeause of certaln acts, sanctioned by the Governinent of the country, which hat ln. frlaged on the libertles of the constitutlon of tile Church. Ile then left the chair sud walked out of the church. "Instantly Dr. Chalmers, Dr. Gordon, and the whole of those In the left slde of the C'hurch, rose and followed him. Epwards of two ilundred ministers waiked out, and thes were joined outslde hy three hundred clergymen and otiler ualherents. Dr. Welsh wore his Moderator's Jress, and when he appeared on the street, and the people saw that princlple had risen above interest, shouts of triumph rent the air such as had not been heard in Edinburgh siace the days of the Covenant. They waikell through Hanover Street to Canonmlls, where a large hall was erected for the reception of the disestahilisbed assembly. They elected Dr. Chalmers Moderator, and formed the first General Assembiy of 'The Free Chureh of Scotiand.' Four hundred and sevents.four ministers left the Establishment in 1843; thes were aiso joined br two hundred probatloners, nearly one hundred cheological studenta of the Unlversity of Edlnburgh, three fonrths of those in Glasgow, and majority of those $\ln$ Aberdeen. The Disrup. tiou was nn accompllshed fact."-J. Mackiutosh, SCOTS, Deliverance of Roman Britain by Theodosius from the. See Britals: A. D. 3bi-3:0.
SCOTT, Dred, The case of. See United States of Am. : A. D. 1857.
SCOTT, General Winfield - In the War of 1812. See United States of Ay.: A. D 18i? (September - November); 1814 (JJLy SEptember)....The Mexican campaign of. See Mexico: A. D. 1847 (March-September). . Defeat in Presidential Election. See Carfed States of Ax. : A. D. $1852 . .$. . .Retirement from military service. Sce Csired States or Am. : A. D. 1861 (JULT-November).
SCOTTI.-SCOTS. See SCOTLAND: THE Picts and Scots.
SCOTTISH PLOT, The. See Scotland: A. D. 1703-1704.

SCOURGE OF GOD, The. See Huns:
SCREW PROPELLER, Invention of the. SCRIPAM Navioation: On the Ocean.
SCRIBES, The. -"The Scribes or 'Law. ren,' that is, the learned in the Pentateuch.

SCRUPCLA

Soolland, eh. 10.-"It is not every nation, it in not every age, which can produce the apectacle of nearly sou men leaving their homea, abandonIng thelr lncomes, for the sake of oplnlon. It ls Ilteraily true that disruptlon was frequently a sentence of poverty, and occaslonally of death to the ministers of the Church. Well, then mlght a great Scotciman of that tlme [Lord Jefrey] say that he was proud of hls country proud of the heroism and self-denlsi of whleh her pastors proved eapable. But well also might a scotchman of the present tlme say that he was proud of the success which Volintaryism achleved. It was tise good fortune of the Church that in the hour of her trial she had a worthy leader. Years before, while ministering to a poor congregation In Glasgow, Chalmers had Inslated on tho cardinal doctrine that the poor shouhd be mate to help themselves. He applled the same princlpie to the Scotch Church. He called on his friends around hlm to 'organlse, organlse, organise.' It is not, however, the Church alone wilch deserves commendation. The natlon supported the Church. . . . In the four jears which succecded the dlsruption, the Free Church ralsed $£ 1.254,000$, sad bullt 654 cburches. Her ministratlons were extended to every, district and almost every parlsis in the land."-S. Waipole, Mist. of Eng. from 1815. ch. 21 ( r. 4). - In $18 \% 4$ the Patronage Act of 1712 was repealed, but it was too late to be of much use, and Scottlsh Preshyterianism remalns spllt up into different camps. Some of the older secesslons were in 1847 joined together to form the United Presbyterian Church, mostly dis. tingulshed from the Free Church hy lts upholling as a theory the 'Voluntary Prinelple.'" T. F. Tout, IIi, of Eng. from 1689, p. 238.

Also w: T. Hrown, Annals of the Dieruption. -R. Buchanan, The Ten Tears' Conglict. - W Inanua. Memoirs of Thomas Chalmers, o. 3, ch. 18 und $r .4$. ch. 6-25.-P. Bayne, Life and Letters of IIugh Miller, ok: 5 (r. 2).
A. D. 1868. - Parliamentary Reform. See ENoland: A. D. 1865-1868.
A. D. 1884.- Enlargement of the Suffrage. - Representation of the People Act. See EnoLaND: A. D. 1884-1885.
in. It is evident that In the Scribea, rather than In any of the other functionariea of the Jewlan Church, is the nearest original of the clergy of later tlmes."- Dean Staniey, Lect's on the Hist. of the Jevish Church, lect. 44. - " The learned men after Ezra were calied 'Sopherim' (slngular 'Sopher'), Scribes; because to be a skilled writer was the first criterion of a man of learnlig. To transcribe the authentlcated Law as deposited in the temple was one of the Scribe's oceupatlons. Hls next occupatlons were to read, expound aud teach li. The text was wlthout vowel points, without dlvislons of words, versea and chapters; bence $1 t$ was nearly hleroglyphle so tiat the correct reading thereof was traditlonal and had to be communlcated from master to disclple. As the Great Synod legislated by ex poundlng and extending the Law, these addittons also had to be taught orally."-I. M. Wise, Hist. of the Hebrewa' Second Commonucealeh, period 1 , cin. 4 .
SCROOBY, The Separatist Church at. See Independenta: A. D. 1604-1617.
SCRUPULA. See Aa

SCRUTIN DE 「ISTE.

SCULPTURE.

SCULPTURE

did not indeed naturalize Creck sculpture to the ame extent as they naturalized Greel liternture but the genlus of Rome atamped itaelf upon the erestions of Greek chisels; the hands were almontwsys Greek, while the ldeas were Roman."
-L. E. Upcott, An Introduction to Greek Scwlp. ture, ch. 2-9.

Madiaval asd Modern,-"No advantage or information would be gained hy describing the earlier [meliesval] scuipture to which dates have been ascribed, varying from the 8 th to the 10 th ceatury. It hes no character hut that of ex. treme rudeness and coarteness.

The tirst artist whose worke arrest attention for the real art-feeling they exhibit is Niccolo l'isano. He appeared early in the 13th century, and, as his name implies, he was a native of Pisa. Nlecolo mar justly be considered the founder of a school: fur there can be no douht that the principal artiats who now began to find empioyment ln the service of the church went forth from the workshops of the Pisan master, and that such akill as they poosessed was acquired under his guidance. He lived to an adranced age, and left many distinguished cholsrs and imitators, of whom his son Glovanni of Pisa, Arnolfo of Florence, Margaritone of Arezzo, and Guldo of Como, gained well-deservad repitation. $\qquad$ In 1830. Andrea, the son of Cgolino of Pisa, was settied In Florence, and executini one of the hronze gates of the Baptistery in thst city.

A sculptor of considerable power, Andrea Orcagna, was contemporary with Andrea Pisano, and executed, with hlm, varions works in Florence. ... Among the sculpturs who greatly distinguished themselves towsrds the end of the 14th century Luca della Rublia claims honourable mention. His work: represent. almost exclusirely, subjects of a serious or religious charucter.

Of the work of this perfixi no production in sculpture has obtained a reater reputation than that portion of the Gitu's of the Baptistery, at Florence, executed br Lorenzo Ghiberti. The sulyjects are in inrge panels enclosed in highly-enriched frames, and represent various sccnes from the Old Tentament.
sereral art ists were employed on purts of this +diflce, and the different gate's boast of the skill of different woulptors, but the folding doors of Lurenzo (ihlberti so far surpuss all the others that Hichat Anselo is said to lave dechared, in his almiration of them, that they were 'worthy to the the giter of l'aradise.'

Lorenzo Ghiberti tus lorn in 13\%s. The precise date of his death sy not known, bat it must have brea at a very wrancel sge, as his will is dated 14.j. The nert sculptor who chaims especial notice is Donato da isetto Bardi, better known by the abbrerintel form of his name, Douatello. Ile was a Florentine, born in 1383.

Domateilo lived to a great are, and left many scholars. . . The geraral character of moiern nrt had, up to this time, been essentially religious: and in the expression of leep sentiment. in simplicity. in a chaste character of form in sacred and holy subjects. in the arrangement of drapery, and the harmoniuus fiow of lines in the treatment of this importaut accessory, no school of art if any time or nation can shew works of greater prom. ise than oceur in the productious of the medie. ral artists. The deffiency in their scuipture The in the terhnical requirements of the art. The yude wis, of course, unthought of, and the human tigure was ilttie, if at ali, studied hy the artista ; but In a certaln grace of action, and in the characteriatic drspery which was lntroduced there wae evidently the indleatlon of a rapldy Increasing knowledge of all that was necemary eventlually to eatahlish a deeply lnterestlog a weil ts ea cellent school of arh Thit hopeful cricistion of acuipture, $s 0$ full of aromiee for the futuro, was deatined to be interrupted; and that hy the very means which might have been ex. pected to carry it to perfection. At the period whlch this hintory has reached, the dlacovery of the long-iost treasuree of clasalcal lltersture had given an extraordinary lmpuite to the study of the ancient Greek and Roman writera.
That those competent to appreciste the exceilence of the ancient writings should exert themelves to extend their influence, cannot be a matter of surprime; nor can any wonder be feit, that When the works of the great eages and poets of antlquity were recelving ail this attention and honour, the remains of anclent menlpture shouid also begin to claim the notice of these enthuslastic admirers of the genius and taste of the Oreeks.

Whatever advantages may have been derived from the recurrence to tue anclent esampies, there can bc no doubt that the imme. diate effect upon sculpture was to arrest its deveiopment in one very important particuiarnamely, its power to address modern sympathies.

The religious sentiment that hitherto had marked nearly aif proluctions of art, no longer characterized the works of tae scuiptors. The object, now, was to imitate as ciosely as possible the suhjects and forms that had occupied the ancient arlists.

Among the scuiptors who lived at this time are found the names of Niehael Angeio Buonarotti, Torregiano. Hacc!o Bnndinelif, the Ammanati family, Sansovino, Benvenuto Cellini, and Giovanni de Bologna.

The powerfui genius of Michael Angelo Buonarotti has secured for him a fame and station in the history of art which no artist of his own age. or of a subsequent time, has heen able to reach.

In contempiating the works of Michaci Angeio, the intelligent spectator is so struck with the invention, energy of charac. ter, and vast knowledge of form and anatomy displayed in them, that he scarcely can define, at irst, the cause of their not fultilling the conditious whicli should command entire approval. But it is undeniable that the seufpture of this great master does not yield that full satisfaction afforied by mnny aicient productions, by no means of superior merit in technical excelience.

It is the nbsence of effort and obtrusive display of means which [r] es their charm to ail the beist productious of the ancients, and even to many works of a inter age; and there can be no doubt that it is to the disregrard of this essentiai property or element that the unfavourahle effect produced by many otherwise excellent works of Sichael Angelo must be attributed. .. The quality for which the sculptors of the end of the 16 th and lith centuries are chiedy remarkable is a love of display in the executive parts of their art. This ied to the decline of sculpture.
The honour of giving a new direction to taste, or rather of leading it hack to a recognition of true principles, is eminently due to two sculptors, who Hredin the present century; namely. Canova and Flaxman. . . No modern seulptor has entered so deeply into the recesses of ancient art as Flaxman. His style was founded upon the princlpiew of the nobiest Greek practice, com bined with the unaffected simplletty of the Himanl and other artiste of the i4th century. But he did not serviliely copy them."-1l. Weat macott, Jlandoook of Sevlpt ure, pp. 450-135.

8C1 TUILE

GEBASTE

SCUTACE, "The orgin of this tax is Im . plled In its titie; It way derived from the 'ser. slee of the shleld (scutum)-ane of the distin. gitiming mark of feudal tenure - wherehy the holier of a certain quantity of iand was bound to fispolsh to his ford the expices of a fully. armed horneman for forty days in the year. The portion of iand charged wlth thls service constituted a 'knight's fee,' and was usuaily reckoned at the extent of five hides, or the vaiue of twenty pounds annually."-K. Norgate, Enyland Under the Angecin Kings, v. 1, ch. 9 .

Also IX: W, Stubbe, The Early Plantagenets, p. 54.

SCUTARI: A. D. 843-1479. - Sinbborm resistance and final surrender to the Turks. Bee Greece: A. D. 1454-1479.
SCUTUM.-A long wooden shieid, covered Fith ieather, having the form of a cyilader cut in half, which the Homans are sald to have adopted from the Bamnites. -E. Guhi and W Koner, Liff of the Greeks and Romans, eet. 107.
SCYRI, The. -The Scyrl were a tribe known to the Greeks as early as the second century B. C. They were then on the shores of the Black Sea In the fifth century of the Chriatian era, after the breaklng up of the Hunnish emplre of Attilia, they appeared among the peopie oceupying the region embraced in modern Austria, - on the Hungarian borders. They seem to have spoken the Oothle langitage. - T. Hodgkin, Italy and her furviers, bk. 3, ch. 8 (v. 2).

SCYRIS, The dynarty of the. See Ectadon: ThE aborioinal minodom
SCYTALISM AT ARGOS, The,-The city of Argos was the scene of a terrible outbreak of mob violence (B. C. 870 ) consequent on the dis. covery of an oligarchicai conspirncr to overturn the democratle constitution. The furfous muititude, armed with ciubs, siew twelve hundred of the more prominent cltizens, inciuding the demo. eratic ieaders who tried to restrain them. "This was the rebeillon at Argos known under the name of the Scytallsm (eudgelling): an event hitherto unparalleted in Greek history, - so un precedented, that even abroad it was looked upou as an awful algn of the times, and that the Athen. lans Instltuted a purtication of thelr city, behig of oplnlon that the whole Helienic people was polluted by these horrors."-E. Curtius, BIist. of Greece, bk. 6, ch. 2.
Al,m) IN: G. Grote, IFiat. of Groece, pt. 2, ch. 78.

SCYTHIANS, The. - "Their name, un. noticed by Honer, occurs for the tirst time In the Heslonile poems. When the Homertc Zeus in the Illad turns hls eye away from Troy towards Thrace, be sees, besides the Thracians and Myslans, other tribes, whose names cannot be made out, but whom the poet know, as milk. eaters and mare.milkers. The same characteristle attributes, coupled with that of having waggons for their dweiling-houses,' appear in Heslod connected with the name of the Scrithlans.

Herodotus, who personally visited the town of Oibia, together with the iniand regions adjoinIng to it, and prohabiy other Grecian settiements in the Euxine (at a time which we may preaume to have been about 450-440 3. C.) - and who conversed with both Scythians and Greek com. petent to glve him information - has left uifas more raiuabla statements reapecting the $cythian people, dominion, and mimaners, as they stowl to his diay. His conception of the Mcyithlan, is well as that of Hippokrates, is prectme andi well. defaed - very dizerent from that of the latel authors, who use the word aimust imiscrim. Insteiy to denote ail barbarous Nomals Ifis territory calied Scythia Is a equare aren, twenty days journey or 4,000 stadis (somewhat lent than 000 English miles) in each dlructlon - bounded by the Banube (the courne of which river he conaceives in a drection from N. W. to S. F, , the Euxine, and the Palus Macoth with the rivep Tanais, on three sidee reapectively - and on the fourth or north side by the antions cailed ags. thyrd, Neuri, Androphagl and Mclanchlani

The whole rea was elther oceupley by or subject to the Bcythlans. And thls nume com. prised tribes difering materially in hatita and clvilization. The great mass of the people who bore it, atrictif Nomadle In their habits - veither sowing nor planting, hut living only on fond derived from animais, eapeciaily nure's.milk and cheese - moved from pisce to place, carrylng their famllies in waggons coverei with wicke? and leather, themselves aivays on horseback with their flocks and herds, between tbe borys thenes [the Daleper] and the Palus Mexts [se of Azov]. $\qquad$ It is the purely Nomadic Scrib. ians whom he [Hermlotus] depicts, the earllest spectmens of the Mongoilan rice (si) It seems probabie) known to itstory, ani prototypes of the Huns and Bulgarians of hater centiries." G. Grote, JIiat. of Greece, jit. 2, ch. 17.-" The Scytulans Proper of Ilerolotus and ilipurcrate extended from the Danube anil the C'arpathans on the one side, to the Tauals or Don upon the other. The Sauromate, a rare at : .st half. scythic, then sueceeded, ani leth thr country from the Tanais to the Wolga. i3-yond the ware the Jlassagetie, scythlan in dresw and curtoms, reaching down to the Jaxnrtew on the eat slde of the Casplan. In the satue melphimurbad were the Asiatic Scyths or Same, wim sem to have bordered upon the Bacerians."-(t. Rawlinson, Fire Great Momarchica: Axsyrita, ch. y. fied. mote. - Formn aecount of the Scythian espedition of Darlus, 13. C. 508, see Pehmi: 13. (: 5! 1443.

SCYTHIANS, OR SCYTHEE, of Athens. -"The Athenlan State also ponsebserl slaves of its own. Such siaves were, tirst of ril, the so ealled Scrthe or archers, a corps at fint of 300 , then of $8(0)$ or eveu 1,200 men, who were ales eailed Speusinli, after a eertain Sprusinus, who first (at what time is uncertalu) eftected the rais ing of the eorps. They served an gendarnes us armed police, and their guard house was at tirst In the market, afterws rils in the Anopagus. They were also used in war, and the curps of HIppotoxota of mounted archers :30 strong, whlch is named In the same connection with them, ike wise without doubt consisted of glaves. "-G. F. Schömann, Antiq. of Grecee: The state, pt. S, ch. 8

Aleo in: A. Boeckh, Public Ecunomy of Ath. ens: The State, bk. 2, ch. 11.

SEARCH, The Right of. Sit Exim States of AM. : A. D. 1804-1800: and 1812

SEBASTE. See Samaria: Reheildiso of the cety by Herod.

sELECCIA.

SEBASTIAN, Kias of Portural, A. D. 1537-1578.
SEBASTOPOL: The Name, "The Greck tranalated the name of Augantus Into gebation, . . . In consequence of which a colony foutded hy Auguatus on the shores of the Black ses was called Rebastopolis." - II. N. Hum. phreys. Hiot. of the Art of Printing, $p .68$.
A. D. 2 IS4-ils5.-Siece. See Rivinia: A. D. 189 (SEPT: MBER-OcTODER); and 1854-1856.
e-cESH. See Born in Blez.
SECESSION, AMERICAN WAR OF. See Cuitid Brates of AM. : A. D. 1860 (Novem-men-Decemurn), and after.
SECESSION, Fedorailat movement of. Se Lisitmb STates or Ax.: A. 1). 1808-1804. SECESSIONS OF THE ROMAN PLEBS. - During the prolonged strusgle of the plebelans of Kome to extort civil and polltical fights from the orginally goveralug order, the patrlctans, they galued thelr end on several occastons h y marching out in a body from the clty, refuslog milliary service and threntenlag to found a new city. The trat of these serfe dons wa about 401 B. C. When they wrunc from the patricia", the extraoniluary conceaslon of the Tribunat wee RoxE: B. (. 404-492). The secoad was B. C. 449, when the tyranny of the Decemvirs was overthrown. The thlrd was four yearl later, on the demand for the Canulolan Lnw. The last was B. C. 286, and resulted in the securing of the llortensian Lawn. Bee Rome: B. C. $445-400$; and 986.
SECOFFEE INDIANS, The. See AmERIcar Abinioines: Aloonquian Family.
SECOND EMPIRE (French) The. Sec Frasce: A. D. 1851-1852, to 1870 (SEmTEMnef). SECOND REPUBLIC : French), The. Nee Frasce: A. D. 1841-1848. to 1851-1~52.
SECULAR CLERGY. - The gecular clergy of the monastic agen " was so called because it lived in the world, In the 'slecte.' It was com. pred of all the eccleslastles who were not under row la a rellglous communlty. The eceleslas. ticul members of communitles, or Inhabltants of convents, compraed the 'regular clergy.'"-E. de Bunarchose, Miat. of France, pperh 2. ot. 1, ch. B. fint-nite. -See, alsn, Benedictine Ordehs.
SECULAR GAMES AT ROME. The. The Ludl Sarculares, or secular games, at Rnme. were supposed to celebrate points of time whleh marked the successlve ages of the clty. Acconllog to tradtlou, the tirst age was determined by the death of the last survivor of those who were born la the year of the founding of lome. Afterwirls, the period became a tixed one; but Whether lt was 100 or $1: 0$ years is a debated questoa. At all events, during the period of the empire, the secular gaines were celebrated tive tlmes (by Augustus, Claudins. Domitlan, Sev. erus and Phillp) with Irregularity, as sulted the caprice of the emperors. The last celebration下as in the year A. U. $1000-A$. D. 24\%.-C. Merivale, Miot. of the Romane, ch. 35, with fuot-note.
Alno is: E. Glbbon, Decline and Fall of the Rownent Empire, ch. 7.
SECURITY, The Act of. Sce Scotlasd: A. D. 1703-1704.

SEDAN, The Proach Catastrophc at. See

SEDAN: The Soveral ra Princlpallty and ite extinction. Nee F'Rancr: A, D. 1041-1642. SEDGEMOOR Battle of. See Evoliand:

SEDi:IONACT, The. See Cnitmd GTatea or A'4 1. 1). 1798.

SE*AVEAN DYNASTY, The See Pre1A: A. 11. 14M-14N7.

SRGESVAR, Battle of (8449). Bee AvaTRIA: A. D. $1 \mathrm{H} 4 \mathrm{~K}-1 \mathrm{NH0}$.

SEGNI, The,-The gegal were a tribe lu anclent Gaul who occupled a region on the Rhine supposed to be Indlented hy the name of the modern small town of Slacl or Segnel, on the Mouse above Llige.
SEGONTIACI, The, - A tribe of anclent Brtons living near the Thames.

SEGONTIUM,-"One of the moat Im nortant Toman towis In Wales, the walls of which are stlll vislble at C'uer Selont, near Carrnarvon, on the coast of the Irish sea."-T. Wright, Celt. Fhoman and Slion, ch. 5.-See Britais: A. D.
61 .
SEGUSIAVI, The.-One of the tribe of Gaul which occupled the anclent Forez (departments of the Rhone and the Lolre) and extended to the left hank of the Naone. - Napoleon III., Hiat of Chmar, bh. 8, ch. 2. finet-note.

SEISACHTHEIA OF SOLON, The se Debr, lawn concensing: Ancient Greer.

SEJANUS, The malign infuence of. See ROME: A. 1). $1+3{ }^{\circ}$.

SELAH, - The city ln the rocks - Petra of the Elomites, Idumeans, or Nobatheans. See Nabatheann.
SELDJUKS, OR SELJUKS, Tho. See TrRKs: TuE: EEBAKK.

SELECTMEN. - In 1005 the General Court or Town Mectlng of Plymouth Colony enacted that " In every Towue of thls Jurlsilletion there be three or tre Culectmen chasen by the Townsmen ont of the freemen such as shal be approved by the Court ; fur the better managlng of the nfulres of the respective Townshlps; a ad that the Celec: men In every Towne or the major parte of them are heerlyy Impowered to lieare and determine all dehtes and diferences arfsing lnetwerd pson and pson withln thelre respective Townshlps not exeeding lorty shllllags,' de.

The origin of the Itte 'seleetmen' it is difticult to determlue. It may posslbly be referred to the tun-gerefu of the old Anglo-Saxon townshlp, who, whth 'the four best men,' was the legal representative uf the communlty, or to the 'prohl homhes' of more anclent tlmes. The pretix 'seleet ' would serm to Indicate the best, the most approred, but, as In the Massachusetti Colony; they were culled, as carly as 1642 . 'seleeted tow asmen, ' It ls probable that without referenee to any historie type they wirr merely the men appoluted. chosen, selected ifi n the townsmen, to have charge of town affilrs."- W. T. Davls, Anrient Inthimarks of Plymouth, pp. 84 88. - Nee, ulsu, Township and Town-meetino.

SELEUCIA.-Seleuela, about forty five miles. from Babylon, on the TIgris, was one of the capltais fonnded ly Seleucus Nicator. "Maar ages nfter the fall of the Stacedonian or Seleucld Empire In Asla]..Seleucia retained the genuine characters of a Greeian colony - arts, milltary virtue, and the love of freedon. The Independent republlc was governed by a senate of three hundred nohlea; the people conalited of

seleucla

EELTUCIDA.

000,000 eltisens: the welle wero arrogg, and, as loes so concord prevalled amoer the wrienl ordors of the Btate, they of Tod with contempt the power of the Parthlan; but the madeete of fection was somethes provoked to 1 mplore the davgerous ald of the conmon enemy, who The poted aimost it the gates of the colony." The Parthian capital, Ctesiphoa, grew up at a diotance of only three milies from seleucia. "Uniler the reirn of Marcua, the Romangenerala penetrated as far as Cteniphon and Beleucis. They were recelved as friends hy the Greek col. ouy; they atracked an enemies the went of the Purthlan kings: yet boith cities expernenced the anme treatment. The ack and conflagration of Gelencla, whth the mamacre of 300,000 of the inanditante, taralahed the glory of the luman triumph."-E. Uhbon, iveline and Fall of the Roman Rompire, eh. 8-See, aiso, Cteatrion: Belevelder; and Mepais.

SELEUCIDE, The Empire of the.-The atruggle for power which hroke out after his death among the succesmen of Alexander the Oreat (eee Macedonia: B. C. 323-31f to 207280) may be regarded an having been hrought to a cine ty the battie of 1 pwus. "The perforl of fermentation was then concluded, and monething ilke a settied condiltan of thinga brought about. A quadifpartite divialon of Alexander's dominiona was rerognimel, Mrcedonia, Egypt, Asin Minor, and Syria (or mouth western Asia) becoming thenceforth distinct politienl entitiea. Of the four powers thus catahisheti, the moat important . . . was the klagiom of Syria (an it was calied), or that ruled for 247 years by the selcucide. Seleucus Nicator, the founder of thil kingdom. Was one of Alexander's officers, but served without much diveinction through the various campaigns by whlth the conquest of the Fast was effecteti. At the first distrilhtion of provinces (B. C. $3: 3$ ) among Alexander's generals after his death, he recelved un share: and it was not until R. C. 320, when uron the death of Perdilecas a freeh distribution was made at Triparadisus, that his merite were recognised, and he was given the satrapy of Bubyion. . . Scleueus fedl the Hhwer of the (castern provincts to the fleli of ipsus (B. C. 301). and contrinuted hargely the victory, thus witsnohg hhuseif a prowtion among the farcnust potentates of the day. By the terms of the agrement made after 1 psus, seleneus whe recog. nised as monarch of ath the Greek congunests in Asla. with the sole esceptions of iower syrha and daia Minor. The monarchy thus eatalidishet extended from the lloly Land and the Meviterrancman on the wist, in the Indus valley and the Bohor monotala chain ujon the cont, aud frona the ('asplan and Jianartes towaris the morth. to the lberslan galf nul Intian Ocean towards the south. It comprised L'pper Syrla, Mesopotama, parta of Cappadocla aud Plirygin, Armouha, Is. ayrla, Media, Babyloula, Nusinm, Persia, Curmanha, sagartia, Ily remah, larthia, Baetrin, sogdiana, Aria, Zarauela. Arachosla, Sucnstana, Gedroia, and probably some part of Indla."0. Jibllnwn. *ixth Grotht Oriental Momarchy. ch. 33-The orighal capital of the great Euplre of Sclencou was ibabyhan; but not satsfed whth it he fonuded and buit the city of seleucla. about forty milies from lialylion. on the Tigris. Even there he was not coutent, and, after the bat.
the of Ipous te ermeded, whis a fow yran, the magalioent ctty of Artioch, fa the ralley of the Oruntes, and made is bite royel realdeace. This removal of the capltal from the center of the domialoses to the Byrian border is thought to have been amons the caunes whlch led wit the disintegration of the kiagdom. Mint Ractia, then Pirthic, fell away, abit the latter, in time, abeorbed moet of the Releurli empire. - C. Thatio wall, Hiet. of Grmex, ch. Bo-00 (0. 7-v).
Almo in: J. P. Mahafit, The Sory of Ahannder's Empino.-B. O. Niebuhr, Letis on Ancions Hios., m . 2
B. C. 38 8-234. -Wirs with the Ptolemies and civil ware.- Decay of the empire. - "Aall. orbun sioter, the men of Beleucus, who hal suc. ceeded to him father (murlered In C. $2 \times 1-$ wo Macedonis: B. C. 297-200] at the age of 49, receivel the nurname of Buter [Baviour] frum his complete vietory (time and place unknown) over the Gauil at the tlme when they hal crosend the Iknporus [se Galatia].
lle relgned iltio more (i) than twenty grars. At the beglaning of his reiga, Antiochua carrled on wars with inthgonun and Pulemy Cersunus (nee Macrimisu. B. C. 277-24), which, however, were wo hrought to a ciove. The war with Antlgunas had commenced an eariy an the time of lheme. trius; it wan a maritime war, in wheh mothlog sufticiently important wan dine: buth partic. felt that it was oniy a useietw waste of strongt and soon concluded peace. Antiochus wher enough aitoget her to abstain from interferiag the Alfalrs of Europe. In Asin he sppare eniarged the dompluion of him father, and nuw magnificent empire extendied from the mondatalas of C'andiahar an far as the lleileagmut: but many parta of it, whech his father had left him lia atato of summisslon, asserted their indepenilence, at e. g., C'appadocia and Pontus under Ariarulies, and so also Armenia and severai other countrizes In the midist of his empire; and be was obliged to be antistied with maintaning a notulial sujremary in thome parts. There can be no doubt that lu his relgn Bactrin aiso becrine foude pendent under a Macelonian klag. Even seleoctu hal is 'inger ruled over the Indian statrs, which. having separated from the emplre, returued to thalr own natonai instituthons. Witis l'tolemy I'aliadelphus [Egy pt] he at first conchatev peare. and was on gond terms with him: but duriz the latter years of his reign he was agata iavolved in war with him. although lenomy un doubtedily was far more powerful: nud thas war was protracted unth the relgn of his emin Aut. achus.

The Egyptinus carrial on the war on the offensive agalist Asla Minor, where they aiready junsersed a few places, andi principally at ea. The Syrlans conquered Damaserbs, though otherwise the war was unfavourahle to them: they dild not carry it on with enerty, and the Egyptians at that time conquered Ejhesus. the const of Ionia, Caria, Damphyiai, nall jrubably Cilicia also: the Cyclales likeniwe fell lato their hands alout that period. . ©n the death of Antlochus Soter (Olymp. 120, 3) [13. (' . Wi.) the covernment passed into the he. Is of his survir. ing won. $\qquad$ Antiochus Theos, one of the mant detestabie Asintle desionts." P'eare with ELEPt was brought about liy the marriage of Antiohus Thens to lberenice, daughter of D'toleny italialelplaus: that in order to marry her he was obliged to divorce and send away his wife Landice, of Laodie. Ather Piolemy Philiadelphus died, however (B, C, res). Imodice returned, "recor:" and ther whole Influence, mad Berenice, whith bep child, Wai ceat to Antioch" - the royal meldeace of Aatiochua then belog at Epheour. The aext year Aatlochus, who had himen ilf for a hong time - "la a perpetial state of latoxica. tion" -died, perhape of poteon. Leodlce "caused owsen image of atm to be pheed In a bert, and thus deceived the courtien, who were obligel to tand at a mepectful dibtance," while she, "wlth hef mons, trok pomemion of the fovernment, mad adopted measurea to rid hermelf of Herealce. But the citizens of Antioch olded whth Berenice and... Dhe for a time remalned in promembion of Antloch.

ELLECCIDAE

But ohe wos betraymy by the nobles . ; ; her chlld was dragged from her arm and muniered before her ey en: whe then dell Into the temple at Imphoe, and was hernelf munleral there la the ayylum. The two broth. era shleucus Callatcun and Antlochus Illerax. thra nasumed the crown: but they acem to have divited the empire, and Anthochus ohtalned A sin Minor.

Ptolemy Eirergetes, the thinl anomg the Ptolemien, and the laat in the series that de. erves praice, now rove in fust indignation at the fate of hals unhappy slater (1)lymp. 133, 3) [B. (C. 846). He marched out with ill the furces of thes empire, and wherever he weut the nathons do. clared in his favour.

All the Ionlan, cill. cian, and other cowne, whein .".re nlrealy in be trayersed the whoie of the Syrlan emplre.

He himelf proceeded an far ha bably Medla, Perwia, and the uppur satraplet, suilhern Chomakin and Sistan an for as Cabul, all of which lw-longeed to Syria, sulmitted to hlm. Ite was equally nucreasfulln Asla Minor: the acropo. lia of Sandea, a part of leydla, and Phrygla Major, alone malntalned themas-lves. Even the countries on the const of Thrace . . . were con quered hy the Egyptiana.
steleucus Callinl. cua, in the meantime, probubly maintalned him eif in the mountalnome districts of Armenia, In Aderbiljna. -Ins brother. Antiorhus, deserteil bim, and negotiatel with IPmelny: In the con queral countries. D'tolemy ew.ry where exercled the rights of a conquerorin the harsh Eegyptlan manner.

Whlle he was thas leveing eontri. hutions ainnad, an insurrection brokic out In Egyp. Which oilliget him to return." He, thereupun. dividetl lily conrinests, "retaining for bimelf syria an far as the Enpiorates, and the cont distriuts of Asla MInor nad Tirace, su time be hal in complete maritlme emplre. The remainlog territuries he divided intu two states: the coninty beyond the Euppirates was given, accordine to st. Jerome on bankel (xl. 7 foll.), to ve Xanthlipus, who is otherwlee naknown, and western Avia was left to Antlochus Ilierax. It mould meend that after tials he never visited those countries arain. After he had withicrawn, a party bustile to him cnme forward to oppose him. .. The confederates formed a theet, w-lti tur akisfathe of which, nad supported liy n genenai insurrection of the Aslatles, who were eyasperntel against tise Egyptlans on account of thrir rapacite, selcucus Culllnleus ralled again. He recoveral the whole of upper $A$ sia. and for $n$ time he wife mitherl with his brolher Anticelus Hiesax. Ptolemy belng pressed on all sides madurleci a ruce of ten Years with Seleucus on have retalaed the pleces which thay pomemed at the tane, wo that alf the dimadrancere wes on the atde of the Beleucldae, for the fortiaed town of geleucta, C. E. remaloed in the haseds of the Egypthas, wherehy the capital was placed in dangerous poultion. A part of Clilieta, the Whole of Caria, the lonlan efties, the Thracian Cherionesus, and meveral Macedonlan townalike. wive contlaued to belong to Ezyypt.' Durtag this periol, a war broke out between the broth ern Eeleucus and Aatlochum. ... The wal be. tween the two brothers lanted for yearm: Its ceat wan Abis Mlnor. - Seleucus entahillhed hlm. celf in upper Asla, where the Parthluas, who during the war between the hrothera had aub. duad Blatan and lower Choraman. were in the ponecenton of Media, Baby lonla and Perola.'. ? the end, Antlochus wai overcome, and leel into Thrace. "thit there he was aken priconer by a general of Euergetel, and onlers wero sent from Alexandria to keep him in anfe cuotody' firf In the mean thme a peace had been concluded between selcucus and Ptolemy, hy which the Egyptian emplre In tro lomense extent was strengthened agaln." Antlochus Illerax then es capwil and took refuge among the Gaula, but was muntered for the jewels that he carried with hlm. "Notwthstandlag Its succesoful enter frises, Egypt had been shaken by the war to lia tomndathona and had loat its atrength. .. The cmplre was already in a state of Internal decay and cven more so than that of syria. The death of Energetes [13. C. 221] declded its downfall - But $\ln$ Syria fx the long wars had loosened the connectlon amoniz the provlnces more than ever and those of Avia Mlnor, the jewcls of the syr lan crown, were segarnted fromithe rest. For wille Selencus wins $\operatorname{In}$ L'pper Asla, Achaeus, his uncle, avalleel himailf of the opportunlty of making lifmself an fadependent adtrip lo western Asia.' Neleneus dld not relgn long after thin. Ife was succeedeel by his mon Selencus Ceraunna ( 11 ymp. tis, 2) [13. C. 227] who marched agalnat the yonnger Achseus, bit was murdered by a Ganl nnmed Apathrius, at the instlgation of the same Achacus (Olymp. 130, 1) [B. C. 224]. IIe inal relgned only threc years, and reslided in western Asla. Ife was ancceeded by hls younger firother Antlochus, suroamed the Great. L'nder Antlochus the Syrian empire revived arain and açulred a great extent, expeclally in the smouti. . Nlitiough he wis not a great man, inls courtiers, bot without reanon, gave him the surname of the Great, becnuse to restored the emplre. This happencd at the tlme when Anthgonus Doson [kling of Macedonla] dled. Achac Mas, In $A \sin$ Minor, was in a state of fasurrec thin; the sitrnp of Medin was llkewlse revolting, and the Syrian cinplre was contined to Syrin Babylonla, and Persia. Duriag thls confuslom, ncw soverelgns ascended the thrones every where In Maceloula, Phllp succeeded; In Egypt Prolemy Ihllopator: In Media, Molon; and lin Bactria a conmotidated Macedonian dynasty land already estainlshed itself."-B. G. Niebuir Lertis on Ancient Hist., lect. 103-104 (e. 3)
B. C. 224-187.-The reign of Antiochus the war with the Rorly aucceapea,-His disastrous War with the Romans.- His diminished kingproved hils milltary talents in the wir aralnst the relvelllous lirothers Molo and Alexander, the satraps of Media and Perala (B. C. 220 ). " H next renewed the old content wlth Egypt for the poasestion of Coie-Syria and Paieatine, nnd was Forced to cedo those provinces to Ptolemy Phllopator, as the result of his decisive defeat at Raphia, near Gaza, In the ammo year In which the battle of the Trasimene lake [between Hannibal and the Romane] was fought (B. C. 217). Mean while, Acheeus, the governor of Asia Minor, had raised the standard of independence; hut after an obstinate resistance he wes defeated and taken at Sardis, and put to death hy Antiochus (B. C. 214). This success in the West encour aged Antiochus, like his father, to attempt the reconquest of the East, and with greater appear ance at least of success. But a seven years war (B. C. 212-205) oniy resuited in h.- arianowledgment of the independence of the Parthian monarchy (B. C. 205). The same year witnessed not oniy the crisis of the Hannibaiic War, hut the death of Ptolemy Philopator; and the opportunity offered hy the latter event effectuaily withdrew Antiochus from direct participation in the great conflict. The league which he made with Philip [Philip V., Klng of Macedonia, who had then ust conciuded a peace with the Romans, ending the 'First Macedonian War'see Griefer: B. C. 214-146], instead of being a well-concerted plan for the exciusion of the Romans from Asia, was oniy intended to ieave him at liberty to pursue his designs against Egypt, while Philip bore the hrunt of the war with Attaius [king of Pergamus, or Pergamur ${ }^{-1}$ and the Romans. During the crisis of the blacidonian War, he prosecuted a vigorous attack upon Cilicia, Cocie-Syria, and Paiestlne, while the Ro mans besitated to engage in a new contest to protect the dominions of their youthfui ward Ptolemy V. Epiphanes, the infant king of Egypt, whose guardians had piaced him under the protection of the Roman senate]. At jength a decisive victory over the Egyptians at Panium. the hill whence the Jordan rises, was foliowed hy a peace whicb gave the coveted provinces to Antiochus [see Jews: B. C. 382-167], while the youthfui Ptoiemy was betrothed to Cieopatra. the diaughter of the Syrian king (B. C. 188). It must not be forgotten that the transference of these provinces from Egypt, winich had constantly pursued a toierant policy towards the Jews, ied afterwards to the "arfous persecution of that peopie by Antiochus Epiphanes, and their successfui revoit under the Sarcabees [see JEws: B. C. 166-40]. The time seemed now ar Hived for Antiochus to fly to the aid of Philip. before he shouid be crushed by the Romans; hut the Syrian king stili ciung to the nearer and dearer object of extending his power over the whoie of Asia Minor.

BELECCIDE.

He coliected a great army at Sarilis, while his fleet advanced aiong the southern shores of Asia Minor, so that he was brought into collision both with Attaius and the Rbodians, the aliles of iRome.

Though the IXhodians succeeded in protecting tise chief cities of Caria, and Antiochus was repelied from some important piaces by the resistance of the ininabitants, ive berame muster of several others. and among the rest of Abydos ou the Heliespont. Even the conquest of his aily Philij was ln the first instance favourahie to his progress: for the hesitating poilicy of the Romans suffered him to accupy the piaces racated by the Iacedondan garrisons." It was not until 191 B. C. that the fatuity of the Syrian monarch hrought him into collialon with the loglons of Rome. He had formed an alliance with tho Ptolians in Greece, and he had recelved into his camp the fugitive Carthaginian, Hiannibal; hut petty jealousiea forbade his profting hy the genlus of the great unfortunate soldier. He entered Greece with: amail force $\ln 192$ B. C., occupied the pass of Thermopyia, and entrenched himseif there, waiting reinforcements which did not come to him. Even the Macedonians were arrayed againat him. Eariy ln the foliowing year he was attacked in this atrong position by the Roman consui Manius Acilius Giahrio. Despite the im. mense advantages of the position he was defeated overwheimingig and his armiy aimot totaliy destroyed (B. C. 191). He flei to Chalcis and from Chajcis to Asia; hut he had not escope! the long arm of wrathfui Rome, now roused against him. For the first time, a Roman army crossed the Heilespont and entered the Asiatic worid, under the command of the powerful Scipios, Africanus and his hrother. At tiresame time a Roman fleet, In co-operstion with the navy of Rhodes, swept the coasts of Asia Minor. After some minor navai ongagements, a great battic was fought of the promontory of Syonnesus, near Ephesus, in which the Syrians lost half their fleet (B. С. 100).

SELEUCIDAE

On iand Antiochus fared no better. A vast and motiey host which he gathered for the defense of his dominions was assalied hy L. Scipio at Magnesia, under Mount Sipyius (B. C. 100), and easily destroved, some $$ 0.000$ of its dead being left on the fieli. This ended the war and stripped Antiochus of all his former conquests in Asla Minor. Murh of the territory taken from him was handed user to the king of Pergamum, faithfui aily nnd friend of Rome; some to the repuhiic of Ruones, ani some was ieft undisturbed in its poitical state, as organized in the minor states of Cappadocia, Bithyuia and the rest. "As the battie of Mag. ncsia was the last, in ancient history, of those unequal conflicts, in which orfentai armies yleided like unsubstantial shows to the might of discipilined freedom, so it sealed the fate of the iast of the great oriental empires; for the king. dom ieft to the ieeirs of Seleucus was ouly strong euough to induige them la the luxuries of Antioch and the maiignant satisfaction of persecuting the Jews. All resistance ceased in Asia Minor; that great peninsuia was celed as far a the Taurus and the IIaiss, witil whitever remained nominaily to Antiocius in Thrace: and, With characteristic levity. he thanked the Romans for relieving him of the government of too large a kingdom.

Never, perhaps, did great power fali so rapidiy, so thoroughis. snd 30 ignominiousiy as the kingdom of the seleurcidre under this Antiochus the Great. Ile himseif was soon afterwards siain by the indignam inimhitants of Eiymals at the head of the Persiaa Guif, on occasion of the plundering of a temple of Bel. with the treasures of which he had sought to repienish his empty coffers (i3. C. 137).

The petty princes of Phrygia sonn subnit. ted to the power and cactions of the new hords of Western Asia; hut the powerfoi Celtic tribes of Gaiatia made a stand in the fastuesses of Mount Oiympus," They were ovcrome, how. ever, and the survirors driven beyond the lialvs. "That i' . 1 , tixed hy the meary witt Antiochus as the eastern iimit of Romun power iu Asia, was respected as the present terminus of their conquents, without putting a bound to their infueace." Eumenes, king of Pergamus, "was juntly rowarded for hie sufferings and servicen by the apportionment of the greater part of the teritories ceded by Antiochus to the aggrandizement of his kingdom. Pergamus became the most powerful siate of Western Asia, including nearly the whole of Asia Minor up to the Halye and the Taurus, except Bithynia and Gaiatia on the one side, and on the other Lycia and the greater part of Carla, which went to recompense the adelity of the Rhodians; and to thene Andatlc possessions were added, in Europe, the Thracian Chersonese and the city of Lyepmachia."一P. Smlth, Hist. of the World: Ancient, ch. 27 (0. 2).

SELEUCIDAE

Also In: J. P. Mahaffy, The Story of Alexander's Empire, ch. 24 and 28.- W. Hhe, Hist. of Rome, bk. 8, ch. 2.-C. Thirlwall, Hist. of Greece, ch. 65.
B. C. 150.- Conquest by the Parthlana of Media, Persia, Sumiana, Qabyionia and Asgyria. See Pereta: B. C. 150-A. D. 226.
B. C. 64.- Pompeiva in the East.-Syrla absorbed in the dominion of Rome.-In 64 , B. C. having finished the Mithridatic War, driv. ing the Pondicking across the Curine into the Crimea, Pompelus Magnua marched into Syria to settle affalrs in that disondered region (see Roxe: B. C. 69-68). He had received from the Romsn senate and people, under the Maniiian Law, an extraordinary commiseion, with supreme powers in Asia, and by virtue of this authority be assumed to dispose of the eastern kingdoms at wili. The last of the Seleucld kings of Syria was deprived of his throne at Pompey's com. mand, and Syria was added to the dominions of Rome. He then turned his attention to Judæea. -G. Long, Dedine of the Reman Republic, v. 3, eh. 9-10.-See Jews: B. C. 166-40.

SELF-DENYING ORDINANCE, The.

 See Enolamd: A. D. 1644-1645.SELGOVEE, The.- A tribe which, in Ro. man times, occupied the modern county of Dumfries, Scolland. See Britain, Celtic Tribes.
SELIM I., Turkish Sultan, A. D. $1512-$ 1590.....Selim 11, Turkiah Sultan, 1586-1574. .Selim III., Turkjah Sultan, 1789-1807. SELINUS, Deatruction of (B. C. 409). See SIClLF: B. C. $409-405$.
SELJUKS. See TURE (SEIJCKb).
SELLA CURULIS. See Curcle Cham. SELLASIA, Battle of.-The iast and deciaire battle in what was cailed the Kleomenic Frr-fought B. C. 221. The war had its origin in the resistance of Sparta, under the Influence of lis last heroic king, Kleomenes, to the grow. log power of the Achaian League, revived and extended by Aratos. In the end, the League, to deffat Kieomenes, was persuaded by Aratos to call in Antigonua Domon, king of Macedonia, and practicaliy to aurrender itself, as an instrument in his hands, for the subjugation of Sparta and all Peioponnesua. The deed was accomplished on the fieid of Selleata. Klenmenes tled to Egypt; "Spstan now, for the first time since the retura of the Herakjeida, opened her gates to a foreign conqueror."-E. A. Freeman, Hiot. of Federal Guri, ch, 7. eect. 4 Aloo m: Plutarch, Eleomenes.-See, aleo, Oniecr: B. C. 280-140.
SELLI, The. Beo Heruas.

semutes.

SEMINARA, Battle of (1503). See Itals: A. D. 1501-1.514.

SEMINOLES. See Anzaican Aborigines: Seminolef, and Mcbrioozan Family; also, Florina: A. D. 1816-1818, 1895-1848.
SEMITES, The. -"The 'Semitlc Race' owes its name to a confusion of ethnology with philology. A certain family of speech, cogy wosth of languages closely related to one another and presupposing a common mother-tongue, recelved the title of 'Semitic' from the German echolar Eichhorn. There was some justification for such a name. The family of speech consists of Hebrew and Phoenician, of Aramaic, of Asayrian and Babylonian, of Arabian, of South Arabian and of Ethiopic or Ge'ez. Eber, Aram, and Asshur were all sons of Shem, and the South Arahian tribes claimed descent from Joktan. In default of a better titie, therefore, 'Semitic' was introduced and accepted in order to denote the group of languages of which Hebrew and Aramaic form part. But whatever justification there may have been for speaking of a Semitic family of languages there was none for apeaking of a Semitic race. To do so was to confound language and race, aud to perpetuate the old error which failcd to distinguish between the two. Unfortunately, however, when scholars began to reailse the distinction between language and race, the mischief was aiready done. 'The Semitic race' had become, as it were, househoid term of ethnoiogical science. It was too late to try to displace it; aill we can do l to detine it accuratcly and distinguish it carefuliy from the phifoiogical term, 'the Semitic family of speech. 10 . There are members of the Semitic race who do not speak Semitic languages, and speakers of Semitic languages who do not belong to the Semitic race.

It is questionable whether the Pioenicians or Cansanites were of purely Semitic anceatry, and yet it was from them that the Israelites learned the language which we cali Hebrew. Northern Arabla Was the eariy home of the Semitic stuck, and it is in Northern Arabia that we still meet with it but littie changed.

The Bedarin of Northern Arabia, and to a lesser extent the settled population of the Hijaz, may therefore be regarded as presenting us with the purest examplea of the Semitic type. But even the Bedawin are not free from admixture."- A. H., Sayce, The Ruces of the Old Testament, ch. 4.- "The followlug is a scheme of the divisions of the Semitic race. It is based partiy upon the evidence afforded by linguistic affinity, and partly upon geographical and historical distribution:
A. Northern Semites.

|  | Babylonian: | $\left\{\begin{array}{l} \text { a. Old Babylonla, } \\ \text { b. Asoyrian } \\ \text { c. Chaldzean } \end{array}\right.$ |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| II. | Aramman: | a. Mesopotamian |
|  |  | b. Syrian. |
| III. | Canaanitic: | $\left\{\begin{array}{l}\text { a. Canaanites } \\ \text { b. Phrenicians }\end{array}\right.$ |
| IV. |  | a. Purenician |
|  | Hebr | b. Moabitea |
|  | Hebr | c. Ammonitea |
|  |  | d. Edomite |
| 1. | Sabreana |  |
| II. | Ethiopiana |  |
| II. | Araba |  |

a. Old Babylonla,
b. Assyrian
a. Mesopotamian
b. Syrian.
a. Causanitee
b. Purpnicians
b. Moabitea
c. Ammonitea

Edomite:
Etherian
III. Arabe

It ahould be aald with regand to the foregolng clamification, that it has been made as genernl as poedble, since it in a matter of great dimculty to make clear-cut divisions on an cxact ethnological bade. If a linguiatic clemalication were attempted, acheme largely different would have to be exhibited. . . Again it should be observed that the mlxture of race: which was continually goling on in the Semitic world is not and cannot be indicated by our clasilication. The Babylonlans, for example, received a constant sccestion from Arameans encamped on their bordera, and even beyond the Tigris; but these, as well as non-Semitic elements from the mountalns and plains to the east, they asslmliated in speech and customs. The same geveral remark applies to the Arammans of Northern Mesopotamis and Syria., whlle the penples of Southern and Eastern Palestine, and in fact all the communltles that bordered on the Great Desert, from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean, were continually absorbing lndividuals or tribea of Arabian stock. Finaliy, it must be remarked that in some sub-divisions it is necemsary to use a geographical instead of a properly racial distluction; and that is, of course, to be llmited ehronoiogicaily. Thus, for instance, It is Imposaible to devise a slogle strictly ethnological term for the two great divislons of the Arameans. It is now pretty generully admitted that the home of the Semitic race, before its separation into the historical divisions, was Northern Arabla.

The historical distribution of the several families is thus best accounted for.

While among the Southern Semites tie various Arsb tribes remalned for the most part in their desert home for thousands of yeara as obscure Bedawin, and the Sabeans cultivated the rieh soll of the southwest and the southern eoast of Arabla, and there developed eitles and a fluurishing eommerce, and the nearly related Ethioplans, mlgrating across the Red Sea, siowif built up in Ahyssinia an isolated elvilization of their own, those hranehes of the race with whileh we are immediately coneerned, after a lengthened resldence in common camping grounds, moved northward and westwarl to engage in more important enterprises. The Babylonians, oceupying the reglon wiieh the Bible makes known to us as the scene of man's creation, and whieh hlstorical research ludicates to have been the seat of the carllest elvilization, made thelr home on the dinds of the Lower Euphrates and Tlgris, converting them through canailzation and lirigatlon into rich and powerfui kingdoms tinaliy united under the rule of Babrion. Bufore the union was effected, emigrants from among thege Bahylonians sittlel along the Middle Tligris. foundeld the clty of Asshur, and later still thic group of citics known to history as Nineveh. The Asyyrlans then, after long struggles, rose to pre-eminience in Western Asla. tlll after centuries of stern dominlon they yleded to the new BabyIonian régime fonnder by the Chaldeans from the shores of the Persinn Culf. The Canaanites. debarred from the riches of the East, turned northwest ward at an unknown early date, and Whife sume of them ocrupled and eultivated the valfeys of Paleatine, others seizel the maritlme plain and the western slope of Lebanon. On the cerast of the latter reglon they took adrantage of the natural harlours wanting in the former, and tried the resources and possibilities of the sea.

As Phoniclans of Sldon and Tyre, they became the great navigators and mantime traders for the nations, and sent forth colonies over the Mediterranean [see Pacaricu]. Meanwhilo the pasture lands between the Tigris and the Euphrates and between the southern desert and the northern mountains were'gradnally being occupled by the Arameans, who advanced whb ancks and herds along the Euphrates.
While the bulk of the Armmeans adhered to the old pastoral life among the good grazling districts In the conines of the desert. a large number, favoured by their intermediato position between urban and nomadic settlementa, addieted themselves to the carrying trade between the Eart and the Weat. This remarkable people, however, never attained to political autonomy on a large acale in their Mesopotamian home, to whleh for long ages they were confined. After the decline of the Hettite principailtles weat of the Euphrates [see Hirmites], to which they themselves largely contributed, they rapldiy spread in that quarter also. They mingied with the non-Semilic Hettite inhabitante of Carche. misia and Hamath, formed settlements along the slopes of Amanus and Anti-Lebanon, and created on the northeast corner of Palestine a powerfui state with Damascus as the centre, whieh was long a rival of larael, and even stood out against the might of Aesyrin. Thus the Arameans really acted a more prominent political part to the west than they did to the east of the Euphrates, and accordlngly they have been populariy most closely associated with the nome ' Syria.' At the same tlme they dld not sbandon their old settiements between the Rivers. As the latest of the historical divisions of the race to form an independent commualty, the Hebraic family made thelr permanent settlement in and about Palestlne [see JEws]. Thelr common ancestora of the family of Terah amigrated from Southern Babyionia more than inu thousand years before the Christlan era. It is hlghly probahle that they were of Arsmean stock :J. F. McCurdy, History, Prophecy and the Ifon. umenta, bk. 1, ch. 2 (0. 1).-"The Hebrews dirided the country of Aram [between the MedIterranean and the Euphrates] into several regions; 1st Aram Naharalm, or 'Aram of the two rivers, that ls, the Mesopotamia of the Greeks, between the Euphrates and the Tlgris: 2 A Aram properly so called, that is, Syrin. whose most anelent and Important elty was Damascus; and 31 Aram Zobah, or the reglon in wilch ia later tlmes was formed the kingdom of Palayra. "F. Lenormant and E. Chevalier, Mantif if the Ancirnt IFistory of the Eust, bk. 1, ch. 4.-.'The semilte home ls distingulshed by its ceatral positlon In geograply - between Aslu and Africa, and between the Indlan Oeean and the Meliter. ranean, whileh is Europe; and the röle iu histrry of the Semitic raee has leen also intermediary. The semites have been the great nuldillemen of the world. Not second rate in war, they have risen to the first rank in commerce and rellgion. They have been the cartiers lutween East and West, they have stoxi between the great snelent clvilizations and those whith go to make up the molern work; while hy a higher gift. for which their conditions neither in place nor in time fully aceount, they hare been mediary between God and man, and proved the rellglous teaehers of the world, through whom have come

sEMITES.

its three higheat faiths, ite oniy universal reil-gions."-Geo. Adam Smith, Fiolorical Goography of the Holy Land, p. 5.- $\cdot$ If we ask what the semittic peoples have contributed to this orgaulc and living whole which is calied civilization, we shall and, in the Arat place, tbat, in polity, wo owe them nothing at all. Politicai lfe is perbaps the moot peculiar and native characterfatic of the Indo-European nations. These nations are the only ones that hare known liberty, that hare reconclied the State with the independence of the indiridual.

In art and poetry what do we owe to tbem? In art nothing. These tribes have but littie of the artist; our art comes eatirely from Greece. In poetry, nevcrtheiess, without belng their tributarles, we have with them more than one bond of unlon. The Psalms have become in some reapects one of our sources of poetry. Hebrew poetry has taken a place with us beside Greek poetry, not as having fur. olshed a distinct order of poetry, but as constituting a poetic Ideai, a sort of Olympus where in consequence of an accepted prestige everything is mifused with a halo of ligbt. Hereagain, however, ail the sbades of expression, all the delicacy, all the depth is our work. The thing esseatiatiy poetic is the destiny of man; his melsacholy moods, his restiess search after causes, his just complaint to heaven. There was no necessity of going to strsngers to fearn this. The eternal school here is cach man's soui. In scleace and phliosophy we are exciusively Greek. The investigation of causes, knowiedge for knowiedge's own sake, is a thing of which there is no trace previous to Greece, a thing that we have fearaed from her alone. Ba ! on possessed $a$ science, hut it had not that pre-eminently scientific principie, the absolute fixedness of natural low. . . We owe to the Semitic race ncither politicai iife, art, poetry, philosophy, nor science. That then do we owe to them? We owe to them religion. Tbe whoie worid, if we except Indla, China, Japan, and tribes aitogetber savage, has adopted the Semitic religions. The civilized worid comprises oniy Jews, Christians, and Mussulmans. The Indo-European race in particular, excepting the Brahmanic family and the feeble reilcs of the Parsees, bas gonc over compietely to tile Semitic faiths. What inas beea the cause of this strange phenomenon? How happens it that the nations who bold the supremacy of tbe worid have renounced their owa creed to adopt tbat of the peopie they have coaquered : The primitive worship of the IndoEurupeanrace was charming and profound fike the imagination of the nations themseivers. It was like an echo of nature, $n$ sort of naturalis. the lymm, in which the idea of one sole cnuse appears but occasionaily and uncertniniy. It was a child's religion, fufi of arthessness and poetry, but destined to crumble at the first demadiof thought. Persia frst effected its reform that which is associated with the name of Zo rosster) uader influences and at an epecii unknowa to us. Greece, in the time of Pisfistratus. whas aiready diesatisted with her reilgion, and was turning towards the East. In the Roman periur, the old pagan worsbip bad become utteriy insufficient. It no ionger addressed the imanination; it spoke feebly to the moral sense. The old maths on the forces of nature had become changed into fabies, not unfrequentiy amuaing sad lagcnious, but deatitute of aill religious Vaiue. It is precisely at this epoch that the civlized worid finds itseif face to face with the Jewish faith. Based upon the ciear and simple dogma of tbe divine unlty, discarding naturailam and pantheism by the marveliouniy terse pbrase: - In the beginning, God created the heaven and the earth,' possessing a law, a book, the deposi. tory of grand moral precepts and of an elevated rellgious ppetry, Judaism had an inconteatable auperiority. and it might have been foreseen then tbat some day the worid would become Jewish, tbat is to say would forsalk the oid mytbology for Monotheism."-E. Renan, Studies of Religious Mistory and Criticism, pp. 154-160

Primitive Babyionia. - "T The Bahyionian were. . the first of the Semites to enter the arena of history, and they did so hy virtue of the civilization to which they attained in and through their settiements on the Lower Eupbrates and Tigris. . . Tbe univalied fertility of the soil of Bahylonia was the resuit not only of the quality of the soli, but of the superadded benefts of the colossal system of drainage and canaiization wbich was begun by the ingenuity of tbe first civilized inhabitants. Of the naturaificments of fertility, tbe Eupbrates contrihuted by far tbe farger share. . . The . . formations of ciay, mud, and gypsum, comprising eiements of the ricbest soii, are found in such profusion in Bahylonia that in the days of ancient civiilzation it was the most fruitful portion of the whole earth witb tbe possilie exception of the valley of the Nile. It was roughiy reckoned by Herndotus to equai in productiveness balf the rest of Asia.

The rise of the Semites in Babyionia, ilke nil ther origins, is invoived in obscurity. The earliest authentic records, drawn ns they are from their own monuments, reveal this gifted race as aiready in possession, of n high degree of civilization. with compieted systems of national religion, $\Omega$ innguage already fong past its forma. tive period, and a stage of ndvnncement in art that testifies to the existence of a wenithy clase of taste and lefsuie, to whom their nomndic ancestry must inave heen littie more than a vague tradition. The same reconds aiso show this Semitic people to have extended tbeir sway in Western Asia as far rs the Mediterranean coastland many centuries lefore Phernicinas or Hebrews or Hettites came before the worid in any national or corprate form. Questions of deep interest arise in conmection with such facts as these. It is asked: Did the Babyloniau Semites develop the elemeuts of their civilization alone, or did they inherit that of another race? . . . In the ahsence of direct evidence to tbe contrary, we are entitled to nssume that the same race who in listorical times gave proof of high mentai endowments reached their unique level of intellectunl attainment bs a process of self education. A contrary opision is held hy many secholars of lifgh rank. I refer to the weil-known tifeory that the Semitic Babylonians acquirev their civilization from another people who preceded theln in the occupation and cuitivation of the country [see Babylomi, Primtive]. This hypotheticai race is 7amed Sumerian froun the term Sumer, gencralif, hut erroneously, sup. posed to le the designation of Southern Baby lonia. With this in the Inseripitions is conpled thic name of Akkad, another geograpbical term properly connoting Northern Babylonia. This ap. pellation has given rise to the name 'Akkadian, ueed by most of theae mocuern authoritles to deslgaite a supposed subdivition of the same people, speaking a dialect of the msin Sumerian lenguage.

8EMITES.

. The sumerian theory has played a great role in linguiatle and ethnological research during the last twenty years. The general aspect of the aupposed language led at once to its belag classed with the agglutinative faml. lies of speech, aud the inevitable 'Turanian' convenlently opened lis hospltable doors.
Whilie we are. . . obllged, until further light shall have been cast upon the subject, to assumo that the earllest type of Babylonlan culture wat malaly of Semitic origln, it would be rash to assert that people of that race were the sole occupants of the lower River country In prehlstoric tlmes, or that they recelved no important contributlons to thelr development from any outalde races. . . . It . . . remalns for us to assume it to be posalble that an antccedent or contemporanous people bore a small share with the SemItes in the early development of the country, and that, as a result of thelr contact with the stronger race, they bequeathed to it some of the elements of the surviving reilglon, mythology, and popular superstition. "-J. F. McCurdy, Hiotory, Prophecy and the Monumenta, bl. 2, ch. 1 (c. 1)."As to the ancient hlatory of Babylon, It is well to learn to be patlent and to walt. The progreas of dlacovery and decipherment is so rapid, that what ls true this year ls shown to be wrong nezt year.

Thla is no discredlt to the vallant ploneers lu this glorious campaign. On the contrary lt speaks well for their perseverance and for thelr sense of truth. I shall only give you one instance to show what I mean by calling the ancient periods of Babylonlan history also constructive rather than anthentic. My friend Professor Sayce clainis 4000 B. C. as the beginning of Babyloalan literature. Nabonldus, he tella us (Illbbert Lectures, p. 21), in 550 B. C. explored the great temple of the Sun god at Sippara. This temple was belleved to have been founded by Naram Sln, the son of Sargon. Nabonidus, however, lighted upon the actual fonndation-stone - a stone, we are told, whlch land not been seen by any of his predecessors for 3.200 years. On the strengtb of this the date of $3,200+550$ years, that $1 \mathrm{~s}, 5750 \mathrm{~B}$. C. is assigned to Naram Sin, the son of Sargon. These two kings. however, are said to be quite modern, and to have been preceded by a number of so-called Iroto-Chaldran klngs, who spoke a Proto-Chaldiean language, long before the Semitic population had entered the land. It ls concluded, further, from some old lascriptions on dlorle, brought from the Peninsula of Sinal to Chaidea, that the quarries of Sinai, which were worked by the Eggptians at the time of their thlrd dyoasty, "y dix thousand years ago, may have been visiter about the same time by these ProtoChaldseans. 4000 B. C., we are told, would therefore be a very moderate initial epoch for Babylonian and Egyptlan literature. I am the very latt person to deny the lagenlousness of these arguments. or to doubt the real antlquity of the early civilization of Babylon or Egypt. All I wish to polat out ls, that we should always keep before our eyes the constructlve character of this anclent history and chronology. To use a foundation-itone, on lts own authority, a a stepping. thone over a gap of 3,200 years, is purely constructive chronology, and as auch is to be carefully diatlnguished from what historiana mean by authentic history, as when Herodotus or Thucydldes tells us what happened during thelr own llves or before their own oyes." - F. Max Maller, On the "Enormous Antiquity" of the Eaet (Ninetconth Contury, 1891).-"Dr. Tleie rejects the name 'Accadian,' Which has been adopted by $s 0$ many Asyriologiats, and is strongly lndisponed to admit Turanian sfinities. Iet he in to lar from accepting the alternative theory of Halévy and Guyard, that this so-cali Accadian, or Sumerian, fs only another wig of writing Assyrian, that he can scarcely comprehend how a man of learning and penetration can malntaln such a strange position. He seems to conelder a poiltive decision ln the present stage of the laquiry premature; but pronounces tho hypothesis which lles at the basls of the Accad. ian theory, namely, that the pecullarities of the cunelform writing are expllcable only by the assumptlon that it was originaliy lntended for another language than the Angyrian, to be by far the mont probable. He calls thls language, whlch may or may not have been non-Semitic, - Old Chaldee,' because what was later on called Chaldaea 'was certalaly its startlag-point in Mesopotamia.' The superiority of this name to 'Accadlan' or 'Sumertan' Is not very obvious, as the name 'Che dee' ls not found before the ninth century B. C., whlle the oldest title of the Babylonlan kloge le ' klag of Sumir and Accad.' In the interestligg account of the provinces and citles of Babylonla and Assyria. two idettificatlons which have found muli favour with Asayriologiats are mentloned in a very sceptical way. The 'Ur' of Abraham ls generally believed, wlth Schrader, to be the 'El Mlughair' of the Arabs. Dr. Tlele coldly observes that this identification, though not Impossible. ia not proved. Agaln, the tower of Babel is identified by Schrader elther wlth Babil on the left side of the river, or with Blrs Nlmrud (Borsippa) un the right side. Dr. Tlele considers the fatter site Impossible, because Borsippa is always spoken of as a distlnct place, and was too distant from Babylon for the suppoeed outer wall of the great city to enclose lt. He slso rejects Schrader's theory that the name Nineveh ln later times included Dur Sargon (Khorsabad), Resen, and Calah. as well as Nineveh proper. The bistory Is divided lato four periods: 1. The old Bahylonlan period, from the earllest days down to the time when Assyria was sufficlentiy strong and independent to contend with Babyiun on equal terms. 2. The first Asoyrian perixil down to the accesslon of Tiglath-pileser II. in its B. C. 8. The Second Assyrian Periol. from its B. C. to the Fall of Nineveh. 4. The dew Babylonian Empire. In treating of the first period, Dr. Tiele makes no attempt to deal with the Deluge Tablets as a source of hlstorical knowledge, puttlog them on one sidc apparently as purely mythlcal. He despairs of traclag Babylonian culture to its earlieat home. The belief that it originated on the shores of the Persian Gulf seeme to hlm uncertain, but be is not able to fll the gap with nny other satisfactory hypothesls. Babylonian history begins for him with Sargon I., whom he regards as most probahly elther of Semitlc descent or a representatlve of Semitlc sovereignty. He is sceptical about the early date assigned to this king by Nabunahid, the thirty-elghth century B. C., and

SEMITES.

(B. C. 2200-2180). This ruler, relgning in the upirit of his father, developed stlll further the national syitem of canailization. . . . Five kinga after Cbammurabi, till 2008 B. C., complete the list of the eleven klogs of this inat dynasty, who reigned in all 804 years. The epoch made mem. orable by the deeds and enterprise of Chammurabl is followed by a period of 888 yearn, of the occurrences of which absolutely notbligg it known, except tbe namea and regnal yeart of another list of eleven kings reigniog in tbe city of Babyion. . . The foreign non-semitic race, which for nearly six centurles (c. 1780-1153), from this time onward, held a controliing piace in the affairs of Babylonia, are referred to in tbe inscriptions by the name Kasee. Tbeve Kamabites came from the border country between Northern Elam and Media, and were in all probabllity of the same race as the Elamites. Tbe references to them make them out to be both mountaineers and tent-dweliers. . . . The political sway of tbe foreign masters was undisputed, but the genlus of tbe government and tbe national type of culture and forms of activity were essentially uncbanged. . . Tbrough century after century and millenium after millenium, tbe dominant genius of Bahylonia remalned tbe tame. It con. quered all its conquerors, and moulded them to its own likeness by the force of its manifoid culture, by the appliances as well as tbe prestige of the arts of peace.

Tbe Babylonians were not able to maintain perpetually their political autonomy or integrity, not because tbey were not brave or patriotic," but because "they were not, first and foremost, a military people. Tbelr cnergies werc mainiy spent in trade and manu. facture, in sclence and art. facture, in science and art. . Tbe time which the native bistoriograpbers aliow to the new [Kassbite] dynasty is 577 years. . . Tbis Kass. hite conquest of Babylonia. . . prevented the consoildation of the eastern branch of tbe Sem. ites, by alienating from Babylonia the Assyrian coionists. .. Henceforth there was almost perpetual rivairy and strife between Assyria and tbe parent country. Henceforth, also, it is Assyria that becomes the leading power in the West."J. F. McCurdy, Hiotory. Prophecy and the Monuments, bk. 2, ch. 8, and bk. 4, ch. 1 (0. 1).-"The Kassites gave a dynasty to Babylonia which lasted for 576 years (B. C. 1806-1250). Tbe fact that the rulers of the country were Kamsites by race, and that :beir army largely consisted of Kassite troops, caused tbe neighbouring populations to identify the Babylonians wlth their conquerors and iords. Hence it is that in the tablets of Tel el-Amarna, the Canaanite writer invariably tcrm tbe Babylonians the 'Kasi.' The - Kasi' or Cush, we are told, bad overrun Pales. tine in former years and were again threatening the Egyptian province. In calling Nimrod. therefore, a son of Cush the Book of Genenis merely means tbat he was a Babylonian. But the designation takes us beck to the age of the Tel el-Amarna tablets. It was not a designation which could bave belonged to that later age, when the Babyionians were known to the Israelites as tbe 'Kasdim' only. Indeed there is a passage In the Book of Micah (v. 8) which proves plainly that in that later age the lsad of Nimrod ' war synonymous not with Babylonia but witb Assyria. The Nlmrod of Genesis muat have come down to us from the time when the Kasaite dynaty still relgued over Babylonia.

SEMITES.

sumbia.

Nimrod was not eatiefed with his Bahyloninn dominlons. 'Out of that land he went forth into Anyris, and huilded Nineveh, and Rehoboth 'Ir (the city boulevards), and Calab and Resen.'. . The city of Asshur had been loag is existence when Nimrod led his Kaselte followern to it, and so made its 'high-priests' tributary to Rehylon. It atood on the high-road to the west, and it is not surprising, therefore, that the Kasalte kinge, after making themseiven masters of the future kingdom of Asayria, ahould have contlaued their victorious career as far as the shores of the Mediterranean. We may coajecture that NImrod was the first of them who planted his power so Armiy In Palestine as to be remembered in the proverblal lore of the country, and to have introduced that Bahyionian culture of which the Tel el-Amarna tahlets have given us such ahundant ividence." $-\mathbf{A}$. H. Sarce, The Higher Criticiom, and the Verdiet of the Monuments, eh. 8.-It was during the Kasshite domination la Bahyionia that Ahmes, founder of the eighteeath dynasty in Egypt, expelied the Hyksos intruders from that country; and " bis successors, returning upos Asia the attack which they had thence recelved, suhjugating, or rather putting to ransom, all the Caazanltes of Judea, Pheracia, and Syria, crossed the Euphratesand the Tigris [ree Eoypt: About B. C. $1700-1400$ ]. Nineveh twice fell into their power, and the whole Semitic world became vassal to the Pharaohs. The lafluence of Egypt was real though temporary, hut in the reciprocal dealings which were the result of the coaquests of the Tutnes [or Thothmes] and the Amenhoteps, the share of the Semites was on the whole the larger. Marriages with the daughters of kings or vassal governors hrought Into Egypt aad established Asiatic types, ldeas, and eustoms oa the Thehan throse. Ameahotep IV. was purely Semitic; he endeavoured to replace the rellgion of Ammon ly the sunworshlp of Syria. In 1887 were discovered the fragments of a correspoadeace exchanged betweea the kings of Syria, Armeaia, and Babylonia, and the Pharaols Amenhotep III, nad IV. [sec Eorpt: About B. C. 1510-1400]; all these letters are written in cuaciform eharacter and In Semitic or other Jialects; it is probable that the answers were drawn up la the same charncter und la the same languages. For the rest, the subjugated aations had soon reeovered. Saryoukin I. had reconstituted the Chaidena empire; the Assyrians, cever at war on their enstern nad westera frontiers, had more that once crossedi the Coper Enpirates and penetrated Asia Minor as far us Troad, where the name Assaracus serims to be a relle of an Assyrian dywasty. The Ilittites or Khetas ocelupied the norti of Syria: and when Ramses II., Sesostris, desired in the 15 in eentury to reaew the expioits of his ancestors, he wis ehecked at Kadech hy the Ilittites and forced to retreat after an undeelided battle. The great expaasion of Egypt was stopped, nt least towards the north. The Semitie peoples, on the coatrary, were everywhere la the nscrudant "-A. Leferre, hure aid

The Assyrian Empire,-"Aceording to nll npiwarance it was the Exyptian conquest nbout sixteen centuries B. C., that ied tor the partition of Mesopotamia. Vismais of Thothmes and Llameses, calied by Berusus the 'Arub kings,' est upon the throne of Bahylon. The triben of Uppor Mecopotamia were larther from Egypt. and their chlefs found it enser to preserve their Independence. At irst each city had lis owa prince, hut in time one of thete petty klagdoma abeorbed the rest, and Nineveh became the capi. tal of an united Aceyria. As the years passed a way the frontiers of the nation thus coastituted were punhed gradually southwards until sii Metopotamle was hrought under one aceptre. This consummatlon appeare to have been complete hy the end of the fourteenth century, st which period Egypt, eafeehled and rolled back upon herself, censed to make her laflneme feit upoa the Euphrates. Even then Babyinn kept her own kings, hut they had sunk to be little more than hereditary matrape recelving investl. ture from Niaeveh. Over mad over again Bahy. loa attempted to shake of the yoke of her neiga. bour; hut down to the eeventh century ber revolts were al ways suppressed, and the Assyrian supremacy re-estahlished after more or less detperate conflicts. During nearly haif a century. from about 1060 to 1020 B . C., Bahrion seems to have recovered the upper hand. The vietorles of her priaces putan end to what is eailed the First Asayrian Empire. But after one or two generations a new family mounted the aorthern throne, and, tolling energetieally for a century or so to estahlish the grandeur of the monarchy. founded the Second Assyrian Empire. The upper couatry regained lis ascendeury by the help of military lastitutions whose details now escape us, althongh their results mar be traced throughout the later bistory of Assyria. From the teath century cuwards the effeets of these institutions become visible in expeditions made by the armies of Assyria, now to the shores of the Persian Gulf or the Cuspian, and aow through the mountalns of Armenia into the pialns of Cappadoela, or across the Syrinn desert to the Lebanoa and the coast clties of Pbonicia. The Arst priaces whose tigured moamments-in cuatradistlactloa to mere lascriptions-have come down to us, belonged to those days. The oldest of ali was Assurnazirpni, whose residence was at Calach (Nimroud). The bas-rellefs with which his palace was decorated are aow in the Lourre and the British Museum, most of them in the latter.

To Assnrnazirpnl's sin Shalmanestr III. belongs the ohelisk of hasalt which alwo stands In the British Dinseum. . . Shalmanestr was aa intrepld man of war. The inscriptions on hils obelisk recall the events of thirty-one catupaigns waged against the aeighbouring peoples under the leadership of tite king himisif. . . . Coder the Immediate snecessors of sinhtuanter the Assyrian prestige was maintained at $n$ inigh level ly diat of the same lavisi bloodshed and trach. lent energy; hut townds the righth cutury it begaa to decline. There was then a Mrind of laaguor and decadeace, some echo of which, abd of its accompanying disasters, seems to lave been embodied by the Greeks in the romantic talt of Surdanapnlus. No shadow of contrimation for the story of a first destruction of Niuweh is tw be fourd ia the inscriptions. ani, in the nidule of the same century, we again that the issyrian nrms triumphant under the lendernhlp of Tiplath Pileser II., a king moxelied after the great war riorn of the earier diays. This prime seethe tio linve carried hits victorious arms us fur cist as the Iadus, and west as the froatiers of Egypt. And get it was only under his second succesor, Saryoukin, or, to give him his popuiar name, Sargon, the founder of a new dynaty, that Syrla, with the exception of Tyre, was brought lato compieto submission after a great victory over he Egyptians (721-704). . . Hia son Sennache. rib equalied him both as widier and as a buiider. He began hy crushing the rebeis of Eism and Chaidea with unfinching severity; in his anger he almost exterminated the inbabliants of Babyion, the perennial seat of revoit ; but, on the other band, he repaired and restored Nine veh. 3lost of his predecessors had been absentees from the capitai, and had neglected its huildings.

8EMITES

He chose a site wefi within the city for the mag. nificent palace which Mr. Layard has been the mesns of restoring to the world. This huliding is now known as Kouyoundjik, from the name of the riliage perched upon the mound within which the huildings of Sennacherlh were hidden. Sennacherlh rebulit the wails, the towers, and the quays of Nineveh at the same time, so that the capltal, which had never ceased to be the atrongest and most populous city of the empire, again became the residence of the king -a distinction which lt was to preserve until the fast approaching date of ita final destruction. The son of Sennacherth, Esarhaddon, and hils grandson, Assurbanipal [iong identified with the Sardanapains of the Greeks; hut Prof. Sayce now finds the Sardanapalus of Greek romance in a rebel king. Assur-dain-pal, wiso reigned B. C. $827-820$, and whose nanse and bistory fit the taie], pushed the adventures and conqueata of the Assyrian arms stili fartier. They sub. dued the whoie north of Arahia, and invaded Egypt more than once.

There was a moment when the great Semitic Empire founded by the Sargonides touched even the Egrean, for Crges, king of Lydia, tinding himseif menaced by the Cimmerians, did homage to Assurbanipai, and sued for heip against titose foes to ali eivifization. "-G. Perrot and C. Chlpiez, A History of Art in Chaidaa and Aaryria, ch. 1, vect. 5 (r. 1). - "The power of Assurbanipal was equal to the task of holding under control the subjects of Assuris at aili points. He boasts of having compelled the king of Tyre to drink sea.water to queneh his thirst. The greatest opposition he met with was in Elam, but this too he was abie w suppress.

Amurbanipal says that he incressed the tributes, but that his action was op. posell by his own hrother, whom he had formerly maintsined by force of arms in Babylon. This brother now seduced a great number of other nations and princes from their aliegiance.
The king of Bahylon piaced himself, so to speak, at their head.

The danger was Immensely increascid when the king set up by Assurbanipai in Elsm joined the movement. It was necessary to pit sn end to this revoit, and this was cffected for once without much difflculty. . . Thereupon the rebeilifous brother in Babyion has to give way. The gode who go before Assurbanipui have, as be says, thrust the King of Bahrion Into s consuming fire and put an end to his life. llis adher rits are horribly punished.
The proviares which joined them are subjected to the laws of the Assyrian gods. Even the trubs, who have sided with the rebels, bow besuin :han ting. Whilist of his power in Eigypt it is suid that it extended to the sources of the Nile. Ilis deminion reached even to Ants Minor.

Atayria is the arst conquering power which we encounter in the hlatory of the worid. The moot effectlve means which she brought to bear in consolidating ber conquests conalisted In the transportation of the principal inhabitanta from the subjugated districts to Assyria, and the settiement of Assyrians in the newila, and the setlnces. .A The most important resuit of the aetion of Assyris upon the world was perhap aetion of Assyris upon the world was perhaps that she limited or hroke up the petty sovereignties and the local religions of Western Asia.
It was. an event which convulised the world when this power, in the fuli current of its life and progress, suddeniy ceased to exist. Since the 10 th century every event of importance had originated in Assyria; in tho middle of the 7 th she auddeniy coilapsed. ... Of the manner la Which the ruin of Nineveb was hrought about we have nowbere any authentic record. A part from their miracuious accessories, the one circumstance in whicit... [most of the nccounts given] agree, is that Asoyria was overthrown by the combination of the Medes and Buhyionians. Everything eise that is maid on the subject verges on the fabuious; and even the fact of the ailiance is doubtful, since Herodotus, Who ifved nearest to tho period we are treating of, knows nothing of it, and ascribes the conques simpiy to the Medes. "L L. von lkanke, Unierash Mititory: The Oldeat liistorical Group of Natione, ch. 8 . ch. 8.
The last Bahylonian Empire and ita overthrow. - The story, hriefly toid, of the alilance by which the Assy rian monarchy is sulid to bave heen overthrown, is as fofiows: Alout B26 or 625, B. C. a new revoit troke out in Babyionia, and the Assyrian king sent a generai named Nabu-pai-usur or Nabopoiassar to quelift. Nahu-pai-usur succeeded in bis undertaking, and seems to have been rewarded by being made goveraor of Bahyion. But his ambition aimed higher, and be mounted the anclent Bahyionian throne, castiug off his aliegiance to Assyria and joining ber enemies. "lle was wise enougb to see that Assy ria conid not be completely crusbed by one nation, and he thercfore made a league With Pharaoit Necho. of Egypt, and asked the Median king, Cyaxares, to give his daughter, Amytes, to Nebuchadnezzar, his son, to wife. Thus a league was nade, and ahout B. C. 609 the kings inarched against Assyria. They suffered various defcats, but eventualiy the Assyr. lan army was defeated, and Shaiman, the hrother of the king of Assyria, siain. The united king then besieged Nineveb. During the siege the river Tigris rose aad carried away the greater part of the city wall. The Assyrian king gathered together his wives and property in the palace, and setting fire to it, aif perished in the tlanes. The enemies went into the city and utteriy destroyed ail they couid lay their hands upon. With the fail of Ninoveh, Assyria as a power practicaily ccased to exist." About 608 1. C. Nehuchadnezzar succeeded bis father on tite tiarone. "When he had become estahished in the kingdom he set bis varions captives, Jews, Phopnicians, Syrians, and Egyptians, at work to make Babyion the greatest city in the worid. And as a huilder he remains aimost unsurpassed. -E. A. Wallis Budge. Babylonian Lift iznt Itixtory. ch. 5.-"The Bahyion of Nehuchadnezzar oecupied a square of which each side was neariy afteen maties in length, and was bisectud by the Euphrates diegoeally from northwent to south. cast. Thle aquare was anclosed by a deep mont. fooded from the itver. The clay excerated in dieging the moat, moulded into brick and laid In bltumen, formed the wails of the city. These Wills, more than 800 feet high and more th a 70 thick, and protected by parapets, aftorded $\&$ commodious driveway along their top of re arly 60 mllew, needing only serial bridges over the Euphrates river. The waters of the river were forced to low through the city between quays of masonry which equaled the walls in thickness and height. The walls were plerced at equai Intervals for a hundred gates, and each gateway clomed with double leaves of ponderous metal, awinging upon bronze posts bullt into the wall. Fifty brond avenues, erosslng each other at right anglen, jolned the opposite gates of the city, and divided It into a checkerboard of gigantic squares. The river quays were plerced by 25 gates like those in the outer walls. One of the streets was carried across the river upon an arched bridge, another ran in a tunnel beneath the river bed, and ferries plied continually acrose the water where the other atreets abutted. The great aquares of the city were not all occupied by hulldings. Many of them were used as gardens and even farms, and the great fertillty of the soll, caused by irrigation, proluclag two and even three crops a year, supplled frod suffelent for the lahabitunts in case of slege. Babylon was a vast fortliem provlace rather than a clty. . . . There is a curious faet whlch I do not remember to have seen noticed, and of which I wlll ant here venture to suggest the explana. thon. Babylon stands In the Book of Revelation as the emblem of all the abominations which are to be deatroyed by the power of Clirist. But Babielon is the one clty known to history which ennid have surved as a model for John's ilescription of the New Jerusalem: "he clty lylng tour square,' 'the walls grent and high,' the river which flowed thmugh the city, and in the inkist of the street of it, and on clther slile of the river the tree of llfe. bearing twelve manner of frults:' 'the foumbations of the wall of the clty garnisheci $\quad+1$ all manner of prechus atunes. As the . as the walls Inclosing the great palace were facel with glazed and enameled bricks of hriliant eolors, and a broad space left that they might le seen, - these elarncteris. thes, umd they are all unigue, have lever eomhined in no other city."-W. W. Wright. Anciene portant resulta alroaly whtalume from the stitly of the natler chronieles of lablyglon la the establiali. ment, on grombly npart from the question of the authentleity of the Ihak of Inaniel, of the lils. torical elarietor of Belalinzzar. The name of thas prinee haul always been a puzzle to com. mentators nul historians. The ouly mative authority on Bahylonimn history - Berosts did not appear to have mentionedi sueli a person.

According to the extracts from the work of Berosis preservel for us in the writings of these authors, the following is the listory of the last Klag of Babylon. Ilis name was Nabonidus, or Sabonmlus, and lue tirst appears as the lealer of a band of consplraturs who determined to bring about a change in the government. The thrnue was then oxcuplerl the the youthfil Laborosoarchod (for thly is the corrupt Greek form of the Babylonian Labâshi Marduk), who was the son of Nerfgituas, and therefore, through his mother, the grandson of the great Nebuchadnezzar; but. In spite of his tender spe. the new sovereiga who had only succeerlen bls father two months before, had already given proof of a bad disposition.

When the de. aigns of the conapirators had been carriel out. they sppolnted Nabouldus king In the mom of the youthful son of Neriglisear.

We next hear that in the eeventeenth year of Nabonidus, Cyrus, who had aiready conguered the rest of Asia, marchel upon Babyion (B. C. 539-see PEr. s1A: B. C. $849-521$ ]. The native forces met the Persians in battle, but were put to tlight, with their king at their head, and took refuge lehiad the ramparts of Borippa. Cyrus thervupua ea. tered Babylon, we are told, and threw down her walls.

Herodotus atstes that the last $k \operatorname{lng}$ of Babylon was the son of the great Nebuchad. nezzar-to give that noonarch his true namefor in 20 doing he bears out, $s 0$ far as hls testi. mony is of any ralue, the words of the Bmik of Danlei, which not only calls Belshazzar son of Nebuchadnezzar, but also introduces the wlie of the latter monarch as belag the mother of the Ill-fated prince who closed the long line of astive rulers. Such being the only testimony of secular writers, there was no alternatlve but to identify Belshazzar with Nabonilus.
liet the name Nabonidus atood In no sort of relation to that of Belshazzar; sid the fidentlication of the two personnges was, undoubterlly both arhtrary and difflenlt. The cunelform liseriptions brought to Europe from the slte of Bubylon and other anclent clties of Chaldsea sonn clanged the aspect of the problem.

Naboni-lus, or, is the native form, Nabu noid, that is to say, 'Seho exalts,' Is the name given to the last mitive king of Babylon In the contempornry recorils inseribed on elay. Thls monarch, however, was found to speak of his cldest son as bearing the vers name preserved ln the Buok of Danlel, aud hitherto known to us from that source alone.
the fear of thy great goxheml lu the heatt of Belshazzar, my firstborn son, my own olfopigg and let hlm not eomalt slo, In onler that he may enjoy the fulnese of llfe.'. . 'IbNsitizzar, my tirstlurn son, . . . lengthen his clays; let him not eommit sln.

These passages prorisie us, in an unexpected manner, whth the name which had hitherto been known from tio likolk of Inalel, and from that documept alone: but we were still In the dark as to the reason which could have induced the author to rebreatin ley.
 - innelform inscriptlon wise for the tire time it. terpreted aud pilhished by Mr. I'inehes; it had heen alslatorred anong the rilns of labivion by Mr. IIormmad IRassmm. This document proved to contaln the sumals of the king whase fate tre have fust hew ollscussing - nnmuty. Nubrnidus. Thongh mutlated in purts, it allowed us form some porions of his hlstory, buth heform and cluring the Invasion of babolonia ly (yrus: and one of the most remarkable facts thist if midel to our knowlenge was that of the regolucy - if that term may be used - of the king's whis iluring the absence of the soverelgn from the 1 ourt and army. Here, surely, the cxplanation of the Book of Daalel was found: Belshazzar was, at the time of the irmiptinn of the lervians, acting as his father's representatlve; he was compmandlng the Babylonlan army and presiting u'ur the Bahyloaian Court. When Cyrus entered Baby boo, doublien the only resiatance he met with Tan in the royel pelace, and there it was probabif alight. In the same night Belchazzar wai men snd slain. "-B. T. A. Evetts, Nere Light on the Bible and tho Boly Land, eA. 11, pr. 2. - Cyrua the Grent, In whoee raet empire the Babyionian klaydom was fanily swallowed up, wai origiadily "king of Anzan in Elam, not of Perila. anzan had been firit occusied, it would appear, by his great-grandfather Teispes the Achaemen. tho. The conq ent of Antyages and of his capi. tul Ekbntana iook pince in B. C. 549, and a year or two inter Cyrus obtalned ponsession of Persia." Then, B. C. 538 , came the conqueat of Bahy. lonin, ... itied hy $n$ party in the country hontife to tha king, Nabontion. Cyrua " anasimed the titie of 'King of Babylon, 'thus clalming to be the legitimate descendant of the anclent Babylonian riaga. He announced himself as the devoted worshlipper of Bel and Nebo, who by the command of Merodach had overthrown the sacri. legious usurper Nabonldow, and he and his son accordingly offered sacritices to ten times the usuai smount in the Babylonian temples, and reatoral the images of the gods to thelr anclent ahrines. At the same timo lie alinwed the forelgn populations who had been deporteci to Babylonia to return to their homes along with the statues of their gods. Among theme foreign populations, as we know from the OHA Testament, were the Jewn."-A. II. Sayce, Primer of Aesyriology, pp. itis.

Hebraic Eranch. See Jews, Axyonites; Honartes; nnif Ebomites.
Canaanitic hranch. See Jews: Early IItsmort; and Phenicians.
Southern hranches. See Arabia; Ethiopia; and Abysurimia.

SEMITIC LANGUAGES. - "There is no aronger or more anchanging unity amoog any group of hanguages than that whirh exists in the semitic group. The dead nnd llving fanguages which rompose it hardly differ from earh other so much as the various Romanee or selaronic dialets. Xot only are the elements of scheronic man roeabulary unelanged. but the strueture of the word nud of the pharase has remanined the same. .. The Eemitic linguages form two great branches, earh subdivideed finto two groupe. The northorn braneh comprehends the Aramaic. Lsss rian group and the Canamnitish group; the sonthern a meludes the Irabic group. properly so enliced, nad the limynnite group. The name arumale is given to two dialects which :re very nearly nilled - Chaldean andsyriac. . The A rannice whleh - what spokeu at the time of Christ was ilvided intu wos subdialects: that of Galilee, which resembled the srriac pronuuchathon, and that of Jernsuliont, of which the proanmelatlon was more marked and pearer to (hahlean. Jesus and his dhschples est. dently spoke the diflect of thelr eonintry. Syrise, in its primitive state, is unknown to us, a also Syro.Chaldean. . . Aswyrian is a dls. merre of thls century. $\because$ To the Cinaanitish grup belong Phoenician, Samaritan, the langluges of the left hank of the Jordan, notably Mandite, . and lastle. Hebrew. Thr first ayd the last of these dialects are almost exactly has deeply penetrated alf the langnage of Islam,

SENATE
Turtish, Persian, and Hinduataal.
71 m. yarite relgned to the mouth of Arahle; it was the language of the Queen of Shebn, and is now well known through a great number of inseription, and is perhape stili apoken under the name of Ethill in the district of Marah. the It is in Ahysinia that we must seek for the last veatiges of Himyarite. Several centuries before our era, the African conat of the Red Sea had recelved Nemitle colonien."-A. Lefedre, Race and Lan. guage.

SEMMES, Raphaci. Sce ALABaMA Claima SEMNONES, The.-"The Semnones were the chief Suevic cian. Thelr settlements seem to have been hetween the Jibe and Oder, coinciding as neariy as possible with Brandenhurg. Church and poesibly into Prussian Poland. "Church and Brodrlbb. Geag. Notes to The Germany of Theilun.-See ALEMANMI: A. D. 218.
SEMPACH, Battle of (1386). See Switzer. LAND: A. I). 1386-1888.
SEMPRONIAN LAWS. - The laws propoeed and carried at Rome by the Gracchi (see Romk: B. C. $131-121$ ), who were of the sem prome: B. C. 131-121), who were of the Sem. pronlangens, are often so referred to.
SENA, The Druldic oracle of.- A Httle istreme wed Sena - modern Sein - of the ex. treme westeril const of Brittany, is mentioned by Pomponlus Mela as the slte of a celebrated orncle, consulted by Gnullsh navigators and servel by aine virgin priestesses. - E. II. Bur bury, IIInt. of A urient Geog. ch. 24, wet. & (c. 9).

.
SENATE, French, See Frasce: A. D. 1709 (NOYEMDER-I)ECEMBER).
SENATE, Roman.-' ${ }^{\prime}$ In prelistorie times. the clans whidh subsecpuently unlted to form crantons hal ench possesset n monarchlent constitit. tion of Its own. When the ehau govermments Wre merged in that of the canton, the monarehs ('reges') of these elnns beentacesenators, or elders, In the aew commmnity. In the ense of lhome the thmiker of senators was three hinmired, becanse in the leginuing, as tradition sti:l, there were three hindreif elins. In mgil times the king uppointerl the senators. I'robibly, at tirst, he chose one from eact: elan, honorligi in thls way some nunn whose nge hal given him experlence mat whose ability malle hls opiaion entitled to conshleraton. Ifterward, when the rigidity of the arrange. baent liy ehans was fost, the senntors were selected from the whole buty of the people, whenout nay Ptteant at presserving the elan representathon. Primarlly the senate was not a tegishative boly. Wien the king died withont having nombated his successur, the suntors served suecessively as 'Juterreges ' ("kings for an intervil'), for perionls This weneral duty wntil a rex was chosen.
This general dhty was the tirst of the sonate's uriginal functions. Igain, when the citizens had pirsuld in liaw it the singgestion of the king, the semite hatl a right (' patrum auctoritas') to reto it. if it sumed contrary to the splrit of the city's finstitutions. Ftmally, as the senate was coinposed of men of experience and nbility, the king used to eonsilt it tu thmes of personal doubt eir natlonal flanger. "-A. Tighe, Derclopment of the Romutn Conatitution. Romut Conatitution, ch. 3.-Of the Roman Schate as it became in the great days of the leepublic - it the close of the Punic Wars nad after the following is an account: "All the acts of the Roman Republle ran in the name of the Bonats and People, an If the Benate were half the stats, though ite number seems stlif to have been flmalted to Three Eundred membert. The Senste of Rome was perhaps the moit remsek. able acsembly that the world has ever seen. It members held thelr mote for life; once Senators alwaya Seantors, unlens they were degraled for some dlahonourahle cause. But the Benatorlal Peernge was not heredleary. No fatier could trinst, the honour to his ton. Bach man must win it for himself. The manner in which meats in the Senste were ohtalned is tolerably well accertalned. Many persons will he surprised to learn thst the members of thl augunt body, all - or nearly all - owed thelr places to the voten of the people. In theory, Indeed, the Censors stil possensed the power really exerclsed hy the Klage and early Consuls, of choonlag the Sena. tors at thelr own wlll and pleasure. But officlal powern, however arhltrary, are always limited in practlce: and the Censor followed rules eatabItaherl by anclent precedent.

ORSATE

The Benate was recrulled from the Inate of ofticial pernons.

It was not by a mere tgure of speech that the minlter of Pyrthus called the Roman Senate "an Anembly of Klags.' Many of lte members had exercised Soverelgn power; many were preparing to exerclse it. The power of the Senate was equal to its dignity. ... In regand to legls. Iatlon, they [It] exerclsed an bsolute control over the Centuriate Ayembly, because no law could be aubmitted to its votes which had not origlated In the senate. . . . In respect to foreign aflalrs, the power of the Senate was absolute, except in declaring War or concludlag treaties of Peace, - matters whlci were aummitted to the voten of the People. They asalgned to the Consuls and Pretor thelr respective provinces of administration and command; they fixed the amount of troops to be levied every year from the list of Roman citlzens, and of the contingents to be furnished by the Itallan allles. They prolonged the command of a general or muperseded him nt pleasure. . In the administration of home aftalrs, all the regulation of religioun matters was In their hands.

All the fnancial arrangemente of the State were left to their discretion. $\qquad$ They migit resolve themselves loto a High Court Gf Justicc for the triai of extraordinary onfences." 'I. G. Lhidell, Hivt of IRome.bk. 4, eh. 85 (c.

Also IN: W. Ihne, Mist. it se, ठk. 6, ch. 2. -Sce, also, Rove: B. C. 1 , and Cosiscript Fathers.

SENATE, United Stai"."一"The Senate ls composed of two Senators from each State, and these Sepatore are chosen by the State I-gislatures. The representation ls then equal, each State haviag two Senators and each Seuator hav. Ing one vote; and no difference is male among the States on accouut of slze, population, or wealth. The Senate ls not. strictly speaking. popuiar body, and the hlglier qualitcatic. sdemauled of lis members, and the longer period of service, make it the more Important body of the two. The Senate ls presumedly more conserv. ative in lts action, and acts as a afegumed against the preclpitate and changlag legislation that is more characteristic of the House of Represfofiatires, which, bring chasen directiy by the people, and at irequent intervais, is more eanlly affected hy and reflects the prevalling temper of the times. The Senate is more intimately connected wlth the Esecutliv than is the lower body. The Prealdent must submit to the Senate for fis approval the treatlen he hat contracted with foreign powers; he mutat ank the advice and coment of the senate In the appolntment of smber sadors, other puhlic ministers and consuin, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other atheers of the Unlted States whone appolatment hare an been otherwlee provided for. . .. The seoate has sole power to try all lmpeschments, but tt cannot orfglaste proceedings of imperchment.

BEPOX.

In caso vacancy occurs when the state leghiature is not in sesalon, the guvermor may make a temporary appolatment; hut at the aers meeting of the Legisisture the vacancy must be flled In the unusi way. The proskling other of the Senate is the Vice. Prealdent of the L'ited Ststes. He Is elected in the same mannep as the Preaident, for were he choeen from the Seante itself, the equality of representation would be broken. He has no vote save when the Seast: is equally divided, and his powerl are very Ilmited."-W. C. Ford, The Am. Citiern's Yan. wal, pf. 1, ch. 1.

ALso Ix: The Foderalise, Nos. 62-66-J. Ntort Commentaries on the Const., ch. 10 ( 0.8 )J. Bryce, The $A \mathrm{~m}$. Commonmealeh, ch. $10-12$ (r. it - See, aleo, Congrexa op the United State.

SENATUS-CONSULTUM.-SENATUS DECRETUM. -" A proponitlon sanctloned by a majority of the [Roman] Senate, and aot vetoed by one of the Tribunes of the Plebs, who might lnterrupt the proceedling at any stage. was called Senatus-Consultum or Senatus. Decretum, the only distinction between the hirms belog that the fornier was more comprebrosire. sloce Senatur Cunsuitum might include several orders or Decreta."-W. Hamaay, Munval of Roman Antiq., eh. 6.

SENCHUS MOR, The.-One of the book of the anclent Irish laws, known as the Breboo Laws.

SENECAS, The. See Ayertcan Aburig mes: Spinecab.

SENEFFE, Battle of (1674). See Nrime Lavim (Holiand): I. D. $16 i+16 i s$

SLNLAC OR HASTINGS, Battie of. Se Enoland: A. D. 1066 (1)ctoner).

SENNACHIES.- One of the names gireato the Bards. or Ollamhs, of the andent Irish.

SENONES, The, - A strong trifue in saclent Gaul whose territory was between the Loire and the Marae. Thelr chief town was Agedincum - modern Sens. - Napoleon III., IIist. of Comir, bk. 8, ch. 2, foot note. The Senones were also prominent among tie Gauls which crossed the Alps, settled Cisalplae Gaul and contested portb. ern Italy with the Romans. See Iboys: B. C. 890-347, adi 295-191.

SENS, Origin of. See Srxones.
SENTINUM, Battle of (B. C. 295). See Rome: B. C. 848-290, and B. C. 295-191.

SEPARATISTS. See Inderendents.
SEPHARDIM, The.-Jews descended tmm thoge who were expelied from Spain in 1492 are called the Sepharilm. See Jews: 8-15th Cw tCRIEA.

SEPHARVAIM. See BaнyLoки: TaE EAMJY (CRALDFAN) MONARCHY

SEPHER YETZIRA, The. Sec CADALL SEPOY: The name. See Innu: A. D. 1600-1702.

SEPOY MCTINY.

SEPOY MUTINY, of ${ }^{1763}$. The. See Indta: A. D. 1757-1772..... Of iso6. Nee lindta: A. D. 1805-1816. ...OI isis7-1858. See InDis: A. D. 1857, to 1857-1858 (JLLT-JENSi).

SEPT, OR CLAN. See Clane SEPTA. See Campee Mantite.
SEPTEMBER LAWS, The. Seo HuNCE: A. D. $1880-1840$.

SEPTEMBER MASSACRESAT PARIS. See Francr: A. D. 1702 (Acorve seftrmaen).
SEPTENNATE IN FRANCE, The. Sew Fancre: A. D. 1871-1876.
SEPTENNIAL ACT, The. See Exoland: A. .1716.

SEPTIMANIA: Under the Goths. See Gotmba. Is Gacl; aleo Gotwe (Visioothe): 1. D. 110-419; and 419-45i.
A. D. $715-718$. -Occapation by the Moalema. see Mahonetan Conquet: A. D. 715-782.
A. D. 7530759 - Recovery from the Moslema. See Mallometar Conquetr: A. D. 752 :30.
soth Ceatary. - The dukee and their anceesnorh. See Toulouan: 10-1ith Centcaiz.
SEPTUAGINT, The.-"We have in the Septuagint, a Greek verslon of the Hehrew Old Testament, the Arat great essay in transiation into Greek, a solltary spectmen of the ordloary language spoken and understood in those daya [at Alexandria sd century B. C.). There is a famous legend of the origln of the work by order of the Egyptian king, and of the perfect agreement of all the veriona produced by the learoed men who had been eent at hls request frum Judea. Laying asble these fables, It ap. pears that the books were gradually rendered the beneft of the many Jews settled in pt, who seem to have been actually forge their old language. Perhaps Phliadelphus gave an impuise to the thing by requiring a copy for his llbrary, which eeems to have ad. mitted none but Greek books."-J. P. Dalialfy, Sory of Alexander's Empire, ch. 14.
Aleo m: W. Robertion Smlth, The Old Tentament in the Jexiah Chureh, leet. 4.-F. W. Farrar. Biot, of Interpretation (Bampton Leet's, 1885), ket. 8.
SEQUANA, The-The anclent mame of the river Seline.
SEOUANI, The. See GaUle.
SERANG. See Moluccas.
SERAPEUM, at Aiezandria. See ALEx. ATDRIA: B. C. 282-246, and A. D. 289; also Libraries, Ascient: Aletandria.
SERAPEUM, at Memphian. - "The Ser. apeum is one of the edilices of Memphla [Egypt] readered famous by a frequentíy quoted pas. uge of Strabo, and by the constant mentlon made of it on the Greek papyry. It had long been sought for, and we had the good fortung to discover it $\ln 1851$. Apls, the living lmage of Oiris revistilng the earth, was a bull who. Mile he llved, had hle temple at Memphis Mitrahenny), and, when dead, had his tomb at sakkarah. The palace which the hull lohahlted to his lifetime way called the Apleam; the Sepapeum was the name given to hls tomb." 1. Mariette. Honuments of ETpper Egvpt. p. 88. SERAPHIM, OR "BLUE RIBBON," The order of the.-" There ls no doubt what.

SERTORIUS.

ever of the antiquity of this Ordef, yef it fordimeult to arrive at the exact date of the foundatlon. General oplalon, though without poattive pronf, mecribes its ofigin, about the yeur 1290, to King Maguas 1 . [of sweden], who 1 s eati to have Initituted it at the pensuasion of the Malteve Kinights. Another account accribes the foundation 10 Magnue'e grandson, Magrue Erichmon. . King freterlck I. revired the Order, as also thoee of the 8word and North 8tar, on the 28th Aprl, 1748."-8lr B. Burke, The Rook of Ordere of Kinighthond, p. 820.
SERBONIAN BOG,-"There in a lake be. tween Coelo-Syrla and Egypt, very narrow, but exceeding deep. eves to a wnnder, two hundred furionget length, called Serbon: If any through Ignorance approach it they are lout Irrecoverably: for the channel belog very narrow, like a swad: ling. band, and complaself round wlth vait heaps of asad, great quantltles of lt are ramt into the lake, by the contlnued southern wlode, which so enver the surface of the waler, and make it to the vew so llke unto dry land, that it camon pome. bly be diselogulated; and therefore mas. unac. qualnted with the nature of the place, by mles. log their way, have been there swallowed up. together with whole armles. For the aand being trod upon, slaks down and gives way by degrees, and like mallelous cheat deluden and decoys them that come upon It, tlll co late, When they ore the mischlef they are likely to fall lato, they begin to support and help one mother, but without any posiblility elther of returaing back or escaplng certala ruln."- Dindorus (Booth's tran..), bk. 1, eh. 8. - A ccording to Dr. Brugsch, the lake Sertion, or Sirbonls, eo graphlcaily described hy Didiorus, but owing fits modera celebrity to Mliton's allusion (Paradies Last, ii. 892-4), 解 In our days aimost entirely drled up. He describes it as laving been really a lagoon, on the northeastern coast of Egypt, " divlded from the Mediterranean by a iong tongue of land whlch, In anclent times, formed the only rond from Egypt to Palestive." It is Dr. Brugach's theory that the exodus of the Iaraellites was by thif route and that the hoat of Pharaols pertshed in the Serbonlan quicksands. - H. Brugach, Hiot. of Epypt, v. 2, app.
SERBS, The. See Balear and Dantiman 8tatea, fth Centery (Servia, Croatia, etc.).
SERES. See Cuma: The takie of the COENTRY.
SERFDOM.-SERFS. See giarkat, Mr. disfal and Modern.
SERGIUS I., Pope, A. D. 687-701..... Sergina 11., Pope, $844-847 .$. ... Sergiua III.,. Pope, Wht-911..... Sergiua IV., Pope, 1009-1012.

SERINGAPATAM: A. D. 1792.- Slege by the Eagllah. See IndIa: A. D. $1785-179 \%$ A. D. ${ }^{1790 .-F i n a l}$ captnre by the Englleh. - Death of Sulten Tlppoo. See IndiA: X. D. 1706-1805.

SERJEANTS-AT-LAW. See Txyplars: The Order is England.  SERPUL, Treaty of (1868). See Resela: A. D. 1859-1878.  SERRANO, Mialatry and Regency of. See Spalk: A. D. 1866-1878.  SERTORIUS, in Spain. See Spans: B. C. 85-72.

SERvI.

servi. Are Slaymat, Medieval and Modsan: Emplaina aloo, Cattanz.
gervia, see Baliay and Damemear Btatea.
BERVIAN CONSTITUTION.- The arat important modilication of the primitlire Homan constitutlon, secribed to Klog Servius Tullius. Bee Comitia Centertata.
SERVIAN WALL OF ROME, The. Soe Beren hithe of lrome.

SERVILES, The. See Bralw: A. D. 18141297.

SERVITES, The. - The orier of the "the. liglous Servants of the lloly Virgis," better known as Servites, was founded in 1239 ly eves Florentine merchanta. It spread raplidy in it carly yearm, and han a conslderable number of houser still exiating.
SESOUIPES. Bre Foot, The Rumav.
SESTERTIUS, The. Nee As.
SESTOS, OR SESTUS, Siare and capture of gee Ataxss: B. C. $479-4 \%$.
SESTUNTII, The. See Bhtrain: Celt77 rTE POTZI, OR MALVASIA, BAT.4e of (12631. Mee (invoa: A D. 1261-1299.

SETTLEMENT, Act of. Mee Enaland: A. 1 . 1701 , and Inclasd: A. D. $1661-1685$. SEVASTOS.-The Greek form, in the By: zantine Eimpire, of the title of "Auguatus." "It was divided into four gradations, geratos. protoserastos, panhy permerabtos, and sevanto-kratar."-0. Mininy, Hiat. Byzantine and Greek Empire i16-143, bk. 3, eh. 2, eect. 1.
SEVEN BISHOPS, The: Sent to the Tower. See Enaland: A. D. 188i-1688.
SEVEN BOROUGHS, The. See Five Burocgilk The.
SEVEN CHAMPIONS OF CHRISTENDOM, The. - St. George, for Engiand, St. Denia, for France, St. James, for Spaln. St. Anthony, for Italy, St. Audrew, for Scotianil, St. Patrick, for Ireiland, nad St. Dnvid, for Whles. were culled, ln medieval times, the $s$ ven Champlons of Christendom.
SEVEN CITIES, The lale of the. See Astitires
SEVEN CITIES OF CIBOLA. See Aymbran Ahombines: Premlos.
SEVEN DAYS RETREAT, The. See Cinited states or An.: A. D. 1abs (JcneJely: Viboisia).

SEVEN GATES OF THEBES. The. Siee Thenes, Ghezes: The roundine of the city
SEVEN HILLS OF ROME, The.-" Tive seren hillis were not veeupled all at onee. but one after the wher, as they were requirem The Palatine held the 'ars' of the primitive ahositants, and was the original nucleus of the town, round whilch a wall or earthern rampart was raised by lemulus. The hilii of Saturn, after. warls the copiltollne, is said to have leena united. after the death of Tltu* Tatlus, by fomulus: win drew a seeond wall or cartion rampart round the two tulis The Aventlac, whicb was chietly used as a pasture ground, was added by Ancus Martius, who settled the population of the conquered towas of Poflorium. Teliena, and Ilili was added to the elty by Tuilins 1 iostilius. The popuiation increasing, it seemed necessary to further enlarge the city. Servlus Tullius, Livy teils un, added two hllis, the Quirtinal and the Vininal, afterwande aztending if further to the Esquilise, where, be syese co dre digalty to the plare, he dweir hamedf. The city havlag penched such an estent, a vat undertiking wa planned by the king. Berrivis, to protect is A line of wall [the Berrian Wail] war built to enefrele the acren hilt over whieh the city hules. tendel."-11. M. Weetropp, Burly and Inperisi Rome. iv. 10-87.

BEVEN FIBE MEN OF OREECE.

SEVEN ISLANDS, The Repubile of the. see Ioniax Inlanm: Til 1814.

SEVEN LIDERAL ARTS, The. Sre

SEVEN MOUNTS, The. Sve I'ilative Hill; and quimexal.
SEVEN PINES, Batle of. Nor Cinmid statien or Ax. : A. D. 1862 (Mar: Vimeivia).

SEVEN PROVINCES. The Union of the. see Nethealandm: A. D. 157i-15M1.
SEVEN REDUCTIONS, The War of the.

SEVEN RIVERS, The Laad of the. Se Imdia: The Immieration asd Congclaty of the Aryan.
SEVEN WEEKS WAR, The. See GIR. MAKY: A. D. 1866.

SEVEN WISE MEN OF GREECE,"Tise name and poetry of Solon and the shom maxims, of sayings, of Phokyidise, conduct us to the mentlon of the Seven Wise 3len of Gifetre Solon was himself une of the meven, and moat if not ail of thetn were perta, or compresers to verse. To most of them la aseribed als, an abundance of pithy repartiens, tugether with one aliort aying. of maxim, fer aliar to earh. serving as a mort of diatinctive mat to. . . . Respecting this emisteliation of W$)=\mathrm{Men}-$ who. in the next century of Grecian bistory, when phitomopiy came to be a mattef ${ }^{\text {c }}$ diaw washo and argumentation, were sjob an with wrat culogy - aif the statements are confused, in part even contratietory. Neither the number nor the names are given by aii authore allike. Dikearelims numberell tea, Ilermapus mever teen: the names of Solom the Atherian, Thales the Miiesian, Dittakns :he Mityimsob, athl Bias the Prienean. were , mpriself in all the lists -and the remaining amases as given liv Plat were Kieohnims of Limius in Rhule- Myma of Chenar, and Cheilon of sparta. We camint cestainiy distrimete anoog them the wayings, of thot wes, upma which in later day athe: Amphilk. yous conferret the inonour of liscriptina in the Deiphian rempie: - Know thyseif:- - Yithing tox much - ' Kurw thy opportunity. - - Sufty. ship is the precrursors of ruln.' . ' Viksarchus, permasa were not wise men, or phill wiphers, io the sense which those werds bore in hivilay, but fersons of practical diserpnament in refervice to man and soclety - of the shme turn of mus as their contemporary the fabulist Esw? thoush not employing the same mode of it istrathon Thelr appearance forms an cpoch in tio tan ho to inasmichas ther are the first pern ots whe es required an Ileficule reputntters zemundas dence was begloning to be appreciatent and ad. mired on ths own account. "-G. Grute, Lliwt of Grecee, pt. 2, ch. 29.

BEVEN WONDERS OF TIIE WORLD.

BEVEN YMARS WAR

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD. seellnopes, Tre CoLomits or

SEVEN YEARS WAR: Ite caucee and provecations. Bee (1EnMasy: A. D. $1765-1786$; and fivaland: A. D. 1754-17\%
Campalras If America. Sto Carada: A. D.
 1795, and 1735: Onto (Valber): A. D. 1748175, 1754, and I7Ss; Cable Berton Island: A. D. $1738-1760$.

Eagileh Naval Operatione. Bee Caxada A. 1). 1755; Ever - vb: A. I. 1850 (Jexz-At orish and 1759 (atrocer- Noveranen).
Campalsme in Germany. See Genminy A. II. 1:53, to 1761-1702

The conflict In India. See Imbia: A. I) $1 \%$.se 1891.

The Treatles which onded the war.-The Peace of Parie and the Posce of Hubericburt. - Xegotiations for a pence betw Frone, and Spaia were ispought tu a cisme hy the nixuing of preitminarle ot Fontairebleau. Dovember 3, $1 \% 82$. In the conime of the nest mouth, a conference for the arrangement of termis fetween Prusaia, Austria and Saxony was begun ar ilabertshurg, a luntlog. meat of the Eiector of bumay, between Ledpaic and Drowlen. "The filmitive Peace of Paris, between France puff Kineiami, and Portugal, was agened F'vurnary 10h lota Buth frather und Englant ahuz-done- wirnilles, mad neither Anstria not "pis. dis Wias mentioumi the treaty." Ilut if was stipnial that ail ecritories leionging to the Elector of Jabouter the Landgrave of Itrone, and the connt of Lipy Bucheburg slonid be Frowneli to them. "France cederl to Enginuif Sova Scotia. Canala, and the rountry east uf the Jinsissippt as far as the Ilmervilie. A ham drawn through the Mismbsippi, froca its a murce tu its inouth. was bencefortit to form the brounit ary letwerd the nomessolons of the two hations. erept thes the town and isiand of Tow Orieanm Wree but tu be inciudeat in thiy cession. France alon culdif the isiand of Cape Ircton, wh the ssles and enasts of the St . A wrenes, t ining. usper crortsia restrictions, the risint of ing nt Sewfoundiand, and the isles of sit, I'et and Yiquelon. In the W t Indifa she eevoris (ofoll is and the Grenalines, abd aner of the - . shime wenter islamis, banlo Duminisa, liactat, and Tobago, retalai if the funtli, Lucie, Aisu In Affica, the riv, - tenesal, rec. emas: Gurve: in the East Imifes the "remel) thelit is on the croast of (fromazulel sie sif lidt rusining prevlous onea, s. reatur - veat Britaln Jatai and $T$ ? thaly, is su in Eurame, beside relinqui suac ber con ,uests in Germany, she forented It ros and engaged to piate ilunkirk in tose sta, negareai by furmer theithe, Great Briselto, her shife, restoredi
 1 wialoupe. Marie wata: ndios Martínique Mall cederi wo Great rif. Florida and ali dis. Hicts east of el: Vissi sipha, recovering the diavannal and al? er Jiritisli conquests. British subjerts war nioy 1 priviluge of cuttens Tizarif to the Pows : an be pluced in $1 f$ sume state avo. maters were

By wa of eumpensathen for the toss of Forida, f'r ace, by a $\mathrm{F}^{- \text {-ate agrement, made }}$ over la Spain Now Orlean and what rumalned in ifer of Louleina. The Peare of Fluberteburs. between Austrim. Pruala, and Sazony, was sigbed Pehruary 1ith 1763, Sinrie Thereas re. nouncel all pretonalons ahe might have to any of the Jominlons of the Kiag of Prdania, and emperinlty thowe which had been cevled to him by the treatio of Brealau and Beriin; and ohe agreed to festore tu Irusion the town and connty of liintz, and the fortrexce of Wemel and del. ders. The Eimpire was locinderi In the peace, but bence with the whot even mamed.

In the pence with the Bilertor of Saxiny, Fremberlek en. gaged mperdily to r.vachate thas Siectonate and to restore the archiven, dec. : bat he wonid give nat intemuitication for iowes sulfered no ibilemintitation for iombers suffered. the Treaty of Irewifut, of I74n, wh renew ell,"-T. II. Hyer. Jist. of Vinlera biurope, bk. 6, eh. 8 ( 0 81-" Of the Peace. Trraties it Ifobertaburg. Paria atif other plucen, it la not pecemary that We say aimont anything. ... The substance of the wherie lics now in Three I'ointa. . .. The le, in ali fooints Aunt ria and Promsia, atriven to le, in ali fointa slmply 'As-gou-were', and, in ail outward on tangille puints, strictiy in 20 After such a tornad of atrite as the dvilimed wrid han that whinemad aluce the Thirty. Year Whr Tornado joringing doulotiens from the reglons calied Infernas; and darkeniug thr upper for ${ }^{2}$ from sonth to borti, and frome enat to weat fortheven Yearn long: - issulng tu ki al A A yourere Yestroly, the tormado was Infermal fut Ifeavon ton, had silentiy its purjowes in lt ruges, In matual ciasit as of opposit. lectrlefties with realur fon to requipolise, ani r toration of acro and rejume aguin ufter seven! s, the rathe of the vincipai resuit arriveli in. Inartices fincely, le direant on at the thane by any loy watider. "resples, on survey from this diviance. arve simibe as Threefojd. Let us uname thente ane othe: line: $1^{2}$. There fo no tisking ef silewa trom this mans, na cijpping him don to the orthumx, limits: he and hits Comury have palpatiy on: rown thew. Alustria giverg-bp the probleni: is if lave font slicain' Jes; andi. What yonl for know, -and lat, I jut erive, Frlriakh hinsefl stili tes knows Teutschlanel has found I'rusin. Prussia i securs, cabuot ise conquercd by the whote world irying to do it; Jrussia fas gone through ita Fire Baptism, w the matista it of grofo and men; and isn Nathon beuceforth. In and of poor disiocateri Tculachiami, there is one of the Great fowers of the Worli hencefor: $\mathrm{H}_{\text {; }}$ an actuai Nation. Ami a Niation not gr ubding fiself on © stinct Traditions, Wiggeries, Papistrics. Im. macuiate Concritions: uo, but ou living Facts,

Facts of Aritimetic, Gcometry, Gravitation, Hartin Luther's Ifeformation, abl what it rally Gan lxilieve iu: - to the intinite mitrantage of wifl

In regard to England. Her Jenkins's. Ear Controversy is nt lant seatla : Pint oniy liberty of tife seas, iut, If shen not wiser, fonhaion of them; guardianshig bl liberty for all others whatsoever: Jominion of bee seas for Freuch; what a result is that. were theri no other' Reaily a considerahle Fast in the lifistory of 11.3 Worid. Fact principulig dise to Pitt, as I luplive secording to my best chujecture, and comparison of probabilities and circumstances.

GEVEN YEARS WAR

For which, after all, it not everybody thankful, lese or more 10 my Eaglith brothers, 0 my Yanke half-hrothers, how oblivious are we of those that have done us beneft! . . . $8^{\circ}$. In regard to France. It appears, nohle old Teutsch. hnd, with such pieties and unconquerable silent valours, fach opulences human and divine, amid its wreck of new and old confualons, is not to be cut to Four, and made to dance to the piping of Versaliles or another. Far the contrary! To Versailles itself there has gone forth, Versailles may read it or not, the writing on the wall: -Thou art weighel in the balance, anif found wanting' (at last even 'found wanting')! France, beaten, stript, humiliatel; sinful, unrepentant, governed by mere sinners and, at best, clever fools ('fous pleins d'esprit'), - collapses, like a creature whose limbs fall it; sinks into bankrupt quiescence, into nameless fermentation: generally into dry-rot."-T. Carlyle, Mist. of Friedrich II. ble. 20, eh. 18 (c. 9). -The text of the Treaty of Paris may be found in the Parliamentary History, -. 15, p. 1291, and in Entictis Hist. of tho Lato War, e. 5, p. 488.
The death and misery of the war summed up by Frederick the Great. - "Pruscia enumerated 180,000 men, whom she had been deprived of hy the war. Ifer armies had fought 16 pitched battles. The enemy had beaide almost totally destroyed three large corps ; that of the convoy of Olmutz, that of Mazen, and that of Fouquet at Landshut; exclusive of the garrison of Breslau, two garrisons of Schweldnitz, one of Torgau, and one of Wittenberg, that were taken with these towns. It was further estimated that 20,000 souls perished in the king. dom of Prussia by the ravages of the Russlans; 6.000 in Pomeranla; 4,000 in the New March and 8,000 In the electorate of Brandenbourg. The Bussian troops had fought four grand hattles, and it was computed that the war had cost them $\mathbf{1 2 0}, 000$ men, including part of the recruita that perished, In coming from the frontiers of Peraia and Clisina, to joln their corps in Germany. The Austrians hai fought ten regular battlea. Two garrisons at Schwelidnitz and one at Brealau had been taken; and they estimated thelr loss at 140,000 men. The French made their losees amount to 200,000; the English with thelr allies to 160,000 ; the Sweles to 25,000 ; and the troops of the circies to 28,000 . . . From the general picture which we have aketched, the result is that the governments of Austria, France, and even England, were overwhelmed with debts, and almoat destitute of credit; hut that the people, not having been sutrerers in the war, were only sensible of it from the proiligions taxes which hai been exncted hy their sovereigns. Whercas, in I'russia, the government was pos. sessed of noney, but the provincee were lald waste and desolated, hy the rapacity and bar. luarity of enemies. The electorate of saxony was, next to l'rumala, the province of Germany that hand sufferef the most: but this country found resources, In the goxinese of ita soll and the imiluatry of its iulahitants, which are wantlog to Prussia throughuut her provinces, Silesta excepted. Time, which cures and effuces all ills, will no doubt scon restore the Prussian atates to thelr former abundance, pmaperliy, and splen. dor. Other powers will in like manner recover, and other amhltious men will arine, excite new wars, and incur new disasters. Buch are the properties of the human mind; no man benetus by ezample."-Frederick II., Hise. of the Neven Iast War iPcothumous Worke, 0. 8), ch. 17.

SHABPUR.

SEVERINUS, Pose, A. D. 640, May to August.

SEVERUS, Alezander, Roman Emperor, A. D. 222-235.

SEVERUS, Liblns, Roman Emperor (Weatern), A. D. 481-465.

SEVERUS, Septimins, Roman Emperor, A. D. 198-211.

Campaigns in Britain. See Bhitain: A. D. 20s-211.

SEVERUS, Wall of. See Roman Wallam Britain.

SEVIER, John, and the early settiement of Tennensee. See TExsreare: A. 1). 1760 1772, to 1785-1796.

SEVILLE: Early history of the city.-"Se. ville was a prosperous port under the Pheni. cians; and was singularly favored by the Scipion. In 45 B. C., Jullus Chear entered the city; he enlarged it, strengthened and fortified it, and thus made it a favorite residence with tise paIticlans of Rome, several of whom came til live there; no Fonder, with its perfect climste and litilliant skies. It was then called Hispslis."E. E. and 8. Hale, The Story of Spain, ch. 18.
A. D. 7 12. - Sarrender to the Arbb-Moors. See Spaix: A. D. 711-718.
A. D. 103I-I09r. - The seat of a Moorish kingdom. See Sram: A. D. 1031-1086.
A. D. 1248. - Conqnest from the Moors by St. Ferdinand of Castile. See Spars: A. D. 1248-1350.

SEVILLE, Treaty of (2730). See SFA.i A. D. 1720-1781.

SEVIN, Battle of (1877). See Tuars: A. D. 1877-1878.

SEWARD, William H.-"Higher Law"

Defest in the Convention of 1860. See sunc: A. D. 1 N60 (April. - Noveyuer). .. In President Llacoln's Cabinet. Siee mme: A. D. 1 H61 (Marcti), and after .... The Treat Atrair. Nee mame: A. D. INBi (Nuvfyber).

The Prociamatlon of Emancipation. *e A. D. 1862 (SEPTEMBER). .... Attempted asas-

. In President Johnson'a Cebinet. Se tame: A. [). 1M(6) MAY-JtLy).

SEYCHELLES, The. See Mancarene Intaxpe.

SFORZA, Francesco, The rise to ducal sovereignty of. See Milan: A. D. 14ti-l4t

SHABAT2, Bettle of (8:06). See Balman and Danobian gtates: 14-19tit Cevrcries (Servia).

SHACAYA, The. See Amemican Aboritnes: Andentana.

SHAH, OR SCHAH. See Bry; siso Cates SHAH JAHAN, Moghi Emperor or Padinchah of India, A. D. 1628-1658.

SHAH ROKH, Shah of Perain, A. D. 1iti1751.

SHAHAPTIAN FAMILY, The. See Amen. ican Aborinines: Nez Precíat.
SHAHPUR.-One of the expitals of the later Persian empire, the rulns of which exist near Kazerun, in the province of Fars. It was huiit by Enpor I., the second of the Samanias kiogth

sHAHPUR

SHENANDOAR VALLEY

and receired his name.-G. Rawilneon, Seventh Grat Oriental Monarehy, eh. 4.
SHAKERS, The. -"From the time of the Arst settlements until tic age of the Revolution, If there were any communiatic mocleties founded, [in the United States] 1 have met with no account of them. The first which has had a long life, was that of the Shakers, or Shaking Quakers, an they were at tirst calied, on account of their boullly movements in worship. The members of this sect or suclety left Engiand in 1774, and have prosperedi cver ofnce. It has now muitiplied into settlements - twelre of them in Now Fork and New Engiand - in regard to which we bormw the following statistics from Dr . Nordhoft's book on communistic socleties in the Colted States, puhitibed in 18\%\%. Their property consista of 49,835 acres of iand in home farms, wlth other real eatate. The valuc of their housea and personal property is not given. The population of ail the communities conalista of 695 male and 1,189 female aduits, with 531 young persons under twenty-one, of whom 192 are males and 398 femaies, amounting in all to 2.415 in 1874 . The maximum of population was $\mathbf{5 , 0 6 0}$, a decilinc to less than haif, for which we are not abie to account save on the supposition that there are permanent causes of decay now at work within the communities. . . The Shakers were at their origin a nociety of enthumiasta in humhie life, who separated from the Quakers about the middle of the eighteenth century. Ann Lee, one of the members, on account of spiritual manifestations believed to have been made to her, leecame an oracle in the londy, and in 1773 she declered that a revelatlon from heaven Instructed her to go to America. The next year she crossed the sea, with elght others, and settied in the wnuls of Watervliet, near Albany. Bhe preached, and was believed to have performed remarkahle curr, 4 , From her. [Wat] derived the rule of celibacy. . She died in 1784, as the acknowledged head of the church; and had afterward nearly equal honors pald to her with the Saviour. U'nder the second succerwir of Ann Lee almost sil the societies in New York and New Engiand were founded; and under the third, a woman nsined Lucy Wright, whose leadershlp lasted nearly thirty years, thnee in Ohlo and Kentucky.

After 1890 the Shakers founded no new society. Dr. Nordhofl give the leading doctrines of the Shakers, which are, some of them. singular enough. They hold that God is a dual perand, male and female; that Adam, created In his image, was duai also; that the same is true of sll angels and oplrits; and that Christ is one of the highest spirit, who appeared first in the person of Jesus and afterward in that of Ann Lee. There are fons hearens and four helis. Soah went to the firat heaven, and the wicked of hia time to the first heil. The seconil hearen Tas called Paradise, and contalned the plous Jews untll the appearance of Christ. The thimd. thet lotn which the Aponetie Pani was caught lucluded ali that ilved until the time of ann lee. The fourth in now being filled up. and 'la to supersede all the othera. They boul that the day of judgment, or beginaing of Chriti's king. dom on earth, began with the eatahilshment of their church. and wifi go on until It is braught io its completion.

In regard to marriage and pmperty they do not take the porition that theec are crimes; but only marki of a lower c ter of anclety. The world will have a chance wecome pure in a future state as well as here. They belleved in splititual communication and poseession."-T. D. Woolsey, Communiom and Socialism, pp. $51-50$.

Also In: C. Nordhoff, The Communiotio Sovieties of the U. S. . pp. 117-232.

SHAKESPEARE, and the Eaglith Reaniosance. See Enaland: 15-16Tit Centurisa

SHAMANISM. See Layas. - Lamatry

SHARON Pialn of. - That part of the low iand of the Palestine - sencoast which atretched Mt. Carmel. It was assigned to promontory of t. Carmel. It was asiggoed to the tribe of ban. SHARPSBURG, OR ANTIETAM, Batti of. See United Statis of AM. A. D. 1802 (SEptember: Marthand).
SHASTAS, The. See Ammacar Abonignest: Sastian famit.
SHASU, The. - An Egyptian name "in Which sclence has for a long time and with per fect certalaty recognized the Bedouins of the highest antiquity. They inhahited the great desert between Egypt and the land of Canama and extended thelr wanderings sometimen as far as the river Euphrates."-H. Bruguch, Hise. of Egypt under the Pharaohs, in. 11. - See, sleo, Eoypt: The HyEsoa SHAWHUT. - The Indian name of the peninsuia on which Boutcr ir-4s., was hulit. See Mafsachusette: A. D. 1630.

SHAWNEES, OR SHAWANESE. See AxERICAN Aborigine: Shawaneer.
SHAYS REBELLION. See Mabeachu. OETTS: A. D. 1786-1787.

SHEADINGS. See Manx Knodom. The SHEBA.-" The name of Sheba ls atil to bo recogrised in the tribe of Benu-es-Suh, who Inhabil a portion of Oman" (Southern Arahla). F. Lenormant, Manual of the Ancient Hist. of ithe Fint, bk. 7, ch. 1.-See, also, Arabia: Triz anCIENT ouccession and fision of Races.
SHEEPEATERS (Tnknarika). Bee AyRar CAN Aborionkes: Shobhonean Family.
SHEKEL, The. - "Queipo is of opinion that the talent, the larger unit of Egyptian welght for monetary purposes, and for wetphin the precious metals, was equai to the weight of water contained in the cube of $f$ of the royal or sacred cublt, and thus equivaient to 49.48 kilom or 113.814 ibs. troy. He considers this to hare been the weight of the Monalc taient taken hy the Helirews out of Egypt. It was divided into fifty mlnas, each equal to 849.6 grm ., or 13,111 Engitila gratne: and the mina into dity shekels, cach equal to 14.16 grm ., or 218.5 Engilsh grains.

There appears to be aatisfactory evidence from exleting specimens of the earileat Jewinh coins that the normal weight of the iater Jewiah shekef of sifiver was 218.3 troy grains, or 14.16 grammes."- H. W. Chlahoim, On the Ecrence of Heighing and Merouring, eh. 2.
SHELBURNE MINISTRY, and the negotiation of peace between England and the United States. Seo Enalang: A. D. 1782 1783: And United States of Am.: A. D. 1782 (BETTEMER-NOVEMBER).
SHENANDOAH, The Confederate Cruiser. See Alabama Clamim: A. D. 1862-1865.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY: A. D. 1716. - Ponsension taren by the Virginiags. See Vroosma: A. D. $1710-1716$.

SHENANDOAH VALLuY.

A. D. ${ }^{1744}$ - Parchase from the Six Nationa. See Vimonita: A. D. 1744.
A. D. 1862-1864.-- Campaigas in the Civil War. See United Statee OF Am. : A. D. 18611862 (Decemper-Apall: Vimoimia): 1862 (Mat Jene: Virotita), (Sxptember: Martland), (October-Novexber: Virgimia); A. D. 1804 Mat - Juse: Virgisia), (Jult: Viroisia Maryland), and (ALOLET-October:Virginia).

SHENIR, Battle of.-A cruahing defent of the army of king Ilazael of Damascus by Shalmauezer. king of Asayrin. B. C. 841.

SHEPHELAH, The.-The name given by the Jews to the tract of low-lyligg const nrich the Phlliatines occupled.

SHEPHERD KINGS. See EOTFT: AHE Htesob.
SHERIDAN, Geaeral Phllip H.: In the Battle of Stone River. See United Atates of Ax.: A. L. 1862-1)R3 (1)ecember-Jantart: Texnessex). ....At Chickamauga, and in the Chattanooga Campalgn. See Cxited States of Am. : A. D. 1863 (Alutet-SEftember: Ten. neanee) Ronecraxa' advance, and (UctoberNovevaer: Tenveserei)..... Radd to Richmond. *e United states of Ay. A. D. 1864 (May: Vimoimia).....Rald to Trevillian Statioa. See U'nited States of Ay. : A. D. 1864 (Nat-Jume: Viroisia).....Campaiga in the Shenandoah. See Uxited States or AM. A. D. 1864 (Acocer- - (ctober: Vineivia). Battie of Five Forks. See L'vited States or Ay.: A. D. 1885 (MARCh-Aphil: Viroimia). SHERIFF.-SCIRGEREFA.-"The Sclr. gerefa is. as his name denotes, the person who stands at the head of the shilre, 'pagus' or counIt: he is also called scirman or seirigman. He ls properly speaking the holder of the countycourt, sirgemot, or folenot, and probably at first was its elected chlef. But as thls gerefa was at first the people's ofticer, he seems to have shared the fate of the people, and wo liave sunk In the scale as the royal authorty grudually rnse: daring the whole of our historlcal perion we find hilm exerelslng only a eoncurrent jurisdiction, shared In and controllest by the ealdorman on the one hand and the blshop on the other.
The sherifit was nnturally the leader of the millitia, pusse comlatins, or levy of the free men, who servent under his banner, an the different lords with thelr depreadents serverl under the royal ofticers. . . In the earliest perlinls, the offlee way doubtiess electire, and possithly even to the last the people may have enjuyel theoretlcully, at least, a sort of concurrent cliolce. But I can: not hesitate for a moment lo asserting that mater thw consolitatell monarclay, the scirgerefa was umalmitel y the klog. with or without the ac. "eptance" ".e county conrt, though this in all prubabllty was never refused."-J. M Kemble, The Nurims in Eing, Bk. 2. ch. 5 (r. 2).
Alam Ix: If Ciurlat. Hieft of the Eing. Const. ch -stry nlwo, smber; and Ealdobman.
SHERIFFMUIR, Battle of. sice Scotland A. 11 1in.

SHERMAN, General W. T.: At the f.at Battle of Bull Rua. Ste Cisiten Ntates of Am.:A. II. 1 mbl (Jrir: Vibuisia).....Removal from command in Kentucky. See CNiTsid xtiter of AM. A. II 1862 (Jinstahy-Fehrte.
 Shlloh. Nee C'mited States of AM.: A. D.

SHIPWRECE.

1802 (Fembart-Apart: Texnreary). The second attempt againat Vleksburg. See Uvitrod Gtate of AM.: A. D. 1802 (DEcEMbeh: On THE Minarmarpi). .... The ânal Vickaburg campaiga. See United Staten of Am. : A. D. 1863 (Aphll - Jolt: On the Mmensetpri).....The capture of Jackson. Bee United States of AM. : A. D. 1883 (JCLT: MisenserpPI).....The Chattancoga Campaiga. See Unitid Statea of Ax.: A. D. 1883 (October - November).

Meridian expeditloa. See United States or AM.: A. D. 186s-18B4 (December - Aphli: Tenneesce - Minenneippi). . . . Atlatate cam. paiga. See Unimite States of Am.: A. I. INo (MAT: GLORGiA), and (MAT - SEPTEMBER: Georoia). .... March to the Ega. See C'sited States of Am. A. D. 186: (Neptemaer-DC. tober: GLorbia), and (November-December: Georota). ....The last campaign. See Uxired Statea of Ax. : A. D. 1865 (FEbricart-March: The Carolisab). and (April 26th).

SHERMAN SILVER ACT, and its re peal. See Uxitid Statea of Ax.: A. D. 18M1093.

SHERSTONE, Battle of-The secrond bat. the fought between Cnut, or Canute, and Eil. mund Ironsides for the English crown. It was In Wiltshire, A. D. 1016.
SHERWOOD FOREST.-"The name of Sherwoot or Shlrewood is, there can be no res. sonable douht," says Mr. Lewellyn Jewett. "dertred from the open-alr assentilfes, or folk. monts, or whitenagemotes of the shire lwing there beld In primitive ilmes." The Forest ontr wor. ered the whole county of Nottingham ami es tended Into buth Yorkshilre and 1herlystilre, twenty.fire mlles one way by elght or twa the other. It was a royal forest and favoriti huating resort of both Saxun and Norman kings. but is best known as the seene of the exploits of the bold outlaw Robln Hood. Few vestiges of the great forest now remaln.-J. C. Brown, The Frorents of Eing.

SHESHATAPOOSH INDIANS, The. See American Abohionem: A Linnytias Favilt

SHETLAND, OR ZETLAND, ISLES: 8-13th Ceaturies.-The Northmen in possesslon. See Normans. - Nohthmen: 8-yth Cer. tcieles, and 10-18th C'entchem.

SHEYENNES, OR CHEYENNES, The. See American aboriulnen: A loonjulan Fay. Lr.
SHI WEI, The. See Monuols: Oram, sc.

SHIAHS, OR SHIAS, The Se lalay, alsa Perbia: A. D. 1400-1887.
SHIITES, Sultan Selim's masaacre of the. See Traks: A. 11. 1481-1520)
SHILOH, OR PITTSBURG LANDING. Battle of. See Cinited Staten difin:A.D 1862 (Febryart - Aphil: Tenskmek)

SHiNAR. Nee liabrlonia: I'rimitive.
SHIP OF THE LINE.- Ia the time of wootien navlea, "a zalp carrylag une liss than it guns upon three derks, and of suthetent size to be placed In llue of battle, "was callella "slip of the line." or a "lline of battle ship."
SHIP-MONEY. See England: A. 1). 1634 1637.

SHIPKA PASS. Struggle fur the. See TtrKs: A. 11. 1887-1878.
SHIPWRECK, Law of. See LAW: ADMIr. altt.

BEIRE

SIBERIA

SHIRE. - SHIREMOOT. - "The name acir or chire, which marks the division immediateiy superior to the hundred, mereiy means a subd. ration or ahare of a larger whole, and was eariy used in connexion with an officlai name to deaig. nate the territorial sphere appointed to the par. ticuiar magiatracy denoted by that name. So the diocese was the hishop's scire. . . . The his. torical shires or counties owe their origin to different causen

The sheriff or scir-gerefa, the scir-man of the lawa of Ini, was the king's ateward and judicial president of the shire.
The sheriff held the shlremoot, acconling to Edgar's iaw, twice in the year. Aithough the ealdorman and bishop sat in it to deciare the iave cecuiar and spirituai, the sherif was the constltuting offlcer."-W. Srubbs, Const. Hist. of Eng. ch. 5, wele. 48-50 (0. 1).-See, aiso, K.ionts or the Shire; Ealdorvan; and Gau.
SHOE-STRING DISTRICT, The. See Gerrymanderixg.
SHOGUN. See Japan: Seetch of Hietort. Shoshones, The. See Axcrican Ahomolises: Shombintax Family.
SHREWSBURY, Battle of. See Exoland: A. D. 1403

SHREWSBURY SCHOOL. See EdLcathox, Joderv: Ethopean Cotintries. - EnaLnn.

Shuluh, The. See Libyavs.

SHUMIR, OR SUMIR. See Babylonia: TaE Early (Chaldeas) Monarchy.

SHUPANES.-GRAND SHUPANES.

The princes, ultimately kings, of the early Serrian people. - L. Rauke, Hiot. of Serria, eh. 1,See Balear asd Dantblan States, oth Cen. trat (Servia).

SHUSHAN. See Stan

SiAm.-"The peopie known to Europeans as the 'Siamese,' but who cali themselves 'Thal. that is ' Free Men,' have exercised the greatest cirilising influenee on the aboriginal popuiatious of the interior. Withln the historie perini Siam has aiso generaliy heid the most extenslye domain beyond the naturai llulta of the Menam bash. Even stiii, aithough hemneri in on one shle by the Bitulah possessions, on the other by the French protectorate of Camboja, Siam eonuprises beyomid the Jeeam Valiey a conslderabie part of the Malay Penlosula, and drawa tribute from Duntrous people in the Mekong and Saiwen basins. But this State, with an area abourt haif as large again as that of France, has a pupuiation probabiy iess than $0,000,000$. ... The inhatutants of Siam, whether Slians, Laoos, or Sinmese proper, beiong aif alike to the same Thai strik, which is aleo representedi by numerous tribse in Assam, Manlpur, ani Cltina. The Shane sre very numerous in the region of the [pper lrawaldll aud its Chinese aflluents. In the salwen Vailey and in titc portion of the sittang basin inciuled In British territory. . The Lasas, Inetter kuowa hy the name of Laos or Laotiars, are related wo the shaus, ant occupy the north of Siam. . They form several 'Ling doms,' nil vassals of the King of Siam. The siamise, properiy so calied, are centred cherdy in the lower Meuam busin nad along the malmarid. Althongh the mowt civilizen they an obit the purest of the Thal race. . . . Siam or sayam is said by some natlres to mean ' Three, becalse the country was formeriy peopled by three races now fused in one nation. Uthers de. rive it from saga, 'independent,' nama, 'brown, or samo, 'dark'. . . . The Biamenc are well named 'Indo.Chinese,' their manners, cuatoms, ct vil and reilgious lastitutions, ali partaking of this twofoid character. Thelr feasts are of Brahmanicai origln, whlie thelr ia wess and areministration are ohvlousiy borrowed from the Chil. nese.

Abnut one-fourth of the inhabitants of Siam had from various causes failen finto a atste of bondage ubout the middie of tite present century. But since the aboiltion of sinvery in 1872, the popuiation has lacrensed, espectuily by Chinese Inımlgration. Life, The ' Master of the World,' or ' Master of Life,' as the King of Slam is genernity calied, enjoys ahsolute power over the ilves and property of hls suljeets. . . A second king, alwars neariy related to the first enjors the titie and a few attrilutes of royaity. But he exercises no power. . . . British having succeeded to Chinese Influence, most of the naval und military as weli us of the custom-house off: cers are Engiishmen."一E. Reclus, The Earth and its Inhabitante: Ania, c. 3, ch. 21. -The former caplai of Siam was Ayuthia, a city founded A. D. 1351, and now in ruins." "An terior to the estabilshntent of Ayuthis. . . the annals of Siam are made upof traditionai legends and fables, such as most nations are fond of substituting in the piace of veraclous history.
There are accounts of Intermarriages with Chinese princesses, of embassles and wars with neighbouring States, all interhiended with wonders and mirueulous interpositions of Indra and other divinities; but from the time when the eity of Ayuthia was founded hy Phaja-Uthong, who took the Itice of Phra-Rama.Thitordi, the succession of sovereigns and the course of events are recorled whth tolerahie accuracy."-Sir J. Baw. ring. Kingdom and Perple if Hism, e. 1, ch. 2."For centurles the siamese goverument paid tribate to China; but since 1852 this tribute ias been refused. In 1835 the first commerciai treaty with a Enropean power (Great isritaln) was coneiuded."-G. G. Chishoin, The Two Ifeminpheres, p. 323

Also in: A. IR. Coliphthoun, Anongat the Shane, infrod. by T. de La Couperie, and oup. by SIBERIA; The Russian conquest.- Siberia was scarceiy known to the luasslaus before the middle of the 16 th ceutury. The first conquest of a great purt of tise country was achieved in the fitter part of tinat cuutury hy a Cossaek adsenturer uamell Iernac Tinoseef, who began inss attack upon tir Turtars in 15\%8. Unabie to hinid what he had won, Yermac offered the sovereigaty of inis eonyuests to the $($ zar of Jluscory, whit touk it E!adiy and sent reinforcements. The conquests of lernur we.e loat for a tlme after his death, hut sum recovered by fresh bodies of Muscovite tropiss sent into the enuntry. "Tinis surcess was the furerunacr of stifi greatur nequisitons. The liussians rapidity extended their conquests: wierever they appearell, the Tartars were eifher reduced or exterminited; uew towns were liuitit and coionles pianteil. Before a ceutury itai elapsed, that vast tract of country now calied Slberia, whlein stritchess from the ernifues of Europe to the Lastera Ocean, and from the Frozen Sea to the fruntiers of Cblam, was annexed to the Russlan dominions. "- W . Coxe, Rusian Discoveries between Asia and $\mathbf{A m}$., pt. 2, ch. 1.

BIBERIA.

siberia.

Area.-Soil.-Recent Settlement.-Of the magnitiule of the siberian country, probahly the statement that Its wrea in $5.500,010$ square mifet does not convey an graphic an lilea to the mind of the reubler as the excelleut lllustration, based on actual figures for the respective countrles, whleh Mr. Kennan once gave: "If It were poselble." he said, "to move entire countries from one purt of the giolve to auther. you could take the whole C'nlted States of Americu, from Malne to C'alifornia and from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico, and set it down in the middle of sibe. rla whout touching anywhere the boundaries of the latter territory. Iou coulit then take A laska and all the Ntatas of Europe, with the single exception of Russla, and fit them futu the remuinlng margin like the pleces of a diswected map: and after having this arcommonated all of the Conited states, incluling Ilaska and all of Europe except IRussia, you would sthl have more than $3 \mathrm{MO}, \mathrm{OW}$ ) spuare miles of Slberian territory to spare: or, in other worla. you would still leave unorcupled in sitherla an area haif as large again as the Empire of Germang."" "Not all thla territory is epunily valuable and welf mapted for cultivation, or even hablation, but what there is left is still sufficlent to Inspire respert of any statistlclan who loves to dwell on magnltudes of :Islngs. Acconilug to Mr. Yadrinzefi, a IRusslan suthority on the suhject. more than one fifth of the land can lend liself to cultiva. thon, but even accepting the very conservative Hgures of IIr. Baflow, who estlmates the area ft for cuitivation at hut one-tenth of the total area, we atlll get nearly 500,000 oure miliea, which Is a llttle more than one haif the land In farms In the L'nitud Niates, and is approximately equal to the total area under actua) cultivation in the C'nited States in the crnsus Fear $1 * 49$; moreover, It is twle the area of the land devoted to the cultivatlon of cerenis in thls country during the anme year.

The immigrathon to Nlberia. which consiated aimost exclusively of exiles and Cowsurks until the intter half of thls century. and had not excreded the Agure of 20.3 KM per Frar during the elghtles, recrived a sudilen fm pulse during the present decade and mae from 60,000 In 1802 to $100,000 \ln 1895 . .$. With the Government ansious to have the vant realm sottled, and the prospective settlers belpless and jume. It whe hut nutural for the former to take the initlative In its own hands and organlze the humigration on a lurge srale. Arconilngiy, the prinents atarting for siberia are Informent beforehand hy the Government agenta as to the land they are golng to rereive, and the iocation it is situated in. On arriving at the piace of destinsthon thig are allotted is deaslatines ( $\mathbf{~} 10$ acres) of land for each adult male, bealdes the right of grazlug the cattle on the common partures, and ohtaining wemel for fucl from the common forests. In allilition to that, the peasants recelve monetary lonats fron the Government on long torms. at the dlacretion of the lacal authoritles. All that leads to the ever-growing influx of fumilgrants, which has to tere checkevi by the Guv. ernment, partly bernuw. of lark of facllities for the ereat numiors. partly for ramois more sorilld -I have in mind the crinpialnts of the iandionds In Eumpean Rusala, who froteqi agatnat the per. masion to emigrate given hy the Government to the peasants, slace It lears to a marcity of akricuitural laborern and a conseyuent rise in thelr weges. No peasant is allowed to leave his home. let alone emigrate to Blberis, without permisuloa of the authortiles."-U. 8. Bureau of Statistics, Jonfhly summary of Commerce and Finance.

Cllmate. - The Baila of the Amur.-"So rast a country As Siberia, subjected on one slde to the climatle lnflucrees of the Atlantic, on the other to thooe of the Paclfic, and stretchlng from mouth to north over nearly one thind of the listanre from the rquater to the arctic poic, muat erl. dontly be diversified in cllmate. The cold Nilheris has temperate reglons, which the colonists of the northera provinces rail 'Itailes.' Compared with Eurupe, however. Slberin, as a whole, nay be looked upon as a country of extreme tempen tures, - Its heats relatively ficre, Its coils in. tense. With Justlce, the word 'Siberis' has become synonymons with conntry of winds and of frost, for It Is in eantern Siberia that the poie of frighlity oscllates in winter. . . . There, in great part, is prepared the elemenis of the climate of western Europe. By the effret of the general movement of the atmospher: which trenda slternately from the north. rast to the muth-weat and from the south-went to the north. eat, martime Europe and Biberla makc continual exchanges: one sends humidity and soft iemper. at ure, the other gives cold alrs and char ships.
. Of all the regions of Siberia, the lusin of the Amur and the neighboring coast are thowe which promlee to hare aome day the greatest political importance. Hathed by the sea of Japan, pushivl outhward betwecn Mongolla and Korea, and bordering on China In the nelghborbood of that 'great wall' which the Mhlle. Klnglom raised formeriy for defence against the larminins. the valleys of the Amur, -thome of its affluints from the south and the hilis of ChInese . Iauchuria.represent. In the face of the priplies of the extreme Orient, the milltary powier of a nation of a hundred millions of men. There nurrorer. la the only part of its coast by whleh the rast Russian empire iouches a sea which ly frety open, during almust the whole year, to the brond crean. The shlps which sall from the ports of Mauchuria have no Bosphoris or Sounl in pass, and are not obliged to manoevver, thring pight months among feebergs, ilke the vessels of Archangel.
is a civilized populiation,
re, industry and trade.
$\qquad$ Tli by agrt. cuiture, Industry and trade. F. The connec. tion between Vladivostok and Kronstadt is more fictitious than real. The chain of cillies and of linselan country which will unite them fater is broken hy large rold spaces throughout the eastern part, and la likely to complete itself siowis: for mountains, bare rocks. fakes and marnhes in most of the busin of the Amur, and muny reglone. still unexplored in that vant exicut of conutre. are walting for the travellera whoslail ifescribe the aurface and dincover the hldden rithes We may ayy that. In Asla, the ta ar prowresta yat but the framework of his emplre.
of the four ereat rivers of Blberia the Amur has the least ex. tensive banin, hut It promises to locrome the moet important for navigation, although it is inferior In that respect at the prement day to the rivers of the basin of the $\mathbf{O b}$ or $\mathrm{Ob}_{\text {, all }}$ the towns on which are in frequent communicatlon by ateamers.
 cllmate more teminemte than that uf ti:e prnainder of Btheria."-E. Reclus, Niuntrli fringrapis E'niex wlll, tome 6, ch. 4 (tr. from the Frineh).

SIBUZATES, The. See AquITAnE: TEE ANCIENT TMIBES.

SIBYLS.-SIBYLLINE BOOKS.-'TTar-

 quinlus [Turquinlue Superbus, the latit of the kings of Rome] bulit a mighty temple, and consacrated It to Jupiter, and to Juno, and to Minerva, the greateat of the gods of the Etrus. cana At thin tlme there came a strange woman to the kligg and offered hlm nine books of the propheciel of the Sibyl for a certain price. When the king refused them, the woman went sad burnt three of the books, and came back and offered the alx at the same price whlch ahe had asked for the nlne; but they mocked at her anil wou'd not take the booka. Then she went oway at Jurnt three more, and came back and asked stIII the same price for the remalnlag three. At this the king was astonished, and anked of the augure what he should do. They maid that he had done wrong in refusing the glft of the gods, and bade hlm by ali means to buy the books that were left. So he bought them; and the woman who soid them was seen no more from that day forwards. Then the books were put lato a chest of stone, and were kept under ground In the Capltol, and two men were appointed to keep them, and were called the two men of the sacred books."-T. Arnold, Iliot. of Rume, ch. 4.-"Collectlons of prophecles similar $\omega$ the slhylline books are niet with not only smong the Greekn, but also among the Italians - Etruscans as well as those of Sabellian race. The Romans had the prophecien of the Marcil ('Carmina Marciana, Hartung, 'Religion der Romer,' 1. 139) ; prophetic llnes' ('sortes 'i of the armph Alhunea had come down to Rome from Tihur ln malraculous manner (Marquardt. 'Rom. Alterth., ly. 299); There existed Mkewlse Etruscan 'llbri fatales' (Livy. F . 45; Clcero, - De Divin., 1. 44, 100), and prophecles of the Eiruscan nymph Begoe (que artem scripserat fulguritorum apud Tuscon. Luctant. 'Instit.,' i. 6. 12). Such books as these were kept in the Capitol, together with the Slbylline books, In the caro of the Quindecemveri sacris faciundis. They are all called without distinctlon 'jllhri fatales' and 'Slbylline' books, and there seems ti bave bern little difference between them." W. lhne, Hist, of Rome, bk. 1, ch. 8, font-note (o. 1). -"Every achoolboy ls familiar with the ple. turesque lloman iegend of the sibyl. It is variously told $\ln$ connection witi the elder and the later Tarquin, the two Etruscan kings of Rune; and the scene of it ls lald by some in Cumar, where Tarquinius Superbus spent the lant years of his life in exile-and hy others in Hunue. ...The original books of the Cumazan Bibyl were Written in Greek, which was the laguage of th, whole of the south of Italy at that time. The orncles were Inscribell upon paim leares; to which clrcumstance Virgii al. ludes in his deseriptlon of the sayings of the Cumenn Slbyl being written upon the leaves of the foreat. They were in the form of acroatle renses. . It la supposed that they contalned not mo much predictions of future events, as directions regarding the means by whlch the Frath of the gods, as revenled by prodigies and calumitlen, might be appeased. They seem to have been connulted in the amme way as Eustern nasims cutasult the Koran and Hafiz. . The the kilud. There were no lem then prophetens ofendowed with the gift of previaion, and heid is high repute, to whom the name of silbyl was glven. We read of the Peraian sibyl, the Llhyan, the Delphlc, the Erythrean, the HelWispontine, the Phrygian, and the Tlburtine. With the name of the iast-mentloned Bibyl tourlata make acqualntance at Tivoli. . . . Ciement of Alexandria does not serupie to call the Cummean sihyl a true prophetess, and her oracles saving cantleles. And 8t. Augustlne includes her among the number of thase who beiong to the 'City of God.' And thls ldea of the Sibyls' sacrellness continued to a late age in the Christlan Church. She had a place in the prophetic order beslde the patriarchs and prophets of oid."-If. Yacmillan, Roman Mowaice, ch. 3.-"Elther undor the seventh of the elghth Ptolemy thcre appeared at Alexandria the old est of the Slbylline oracles, bearing the name of the Erythrwan Slbyl, which, contalning the history of the past and the dita forebodlugs of the future, imposer alike on the Greek. Jewish and Christian World, and added almost another book to the Canon. When Thomas of Celano composed the most famous hymn of the Latia Church le did not acruple to place the Slbyi on a levei with Davili and when Michei Angelo adorned the roof of the Slxtline Chapel, the fig. ures of the welrd sisters of Pagan antiquity are as prominent as the seers of larael and Judah. Their union was the result of the bold atroke of an Alexandrian Jew."-A. P. Stanley, Leet's on the Ilist. of the Jewioh Chureh, Weet. 47 ( (,$~ 8$ ). Also is: Dlonyalus, Ilistury, bk. 4, eet. 62.— See, aloo, Cumat.
SICAMBRI, SIGAMBRI, OR SUGAMBRI. See Usipetes; also, Franks: Oriom, and A. D. 253.

SICARII, The. See Juws: A. D. 60-70.

SICELIOTES AND ITALIOTES.-The Inhabitants of the auclent Greet colonles in southern Italy (Magna Gruecla) and Sicily were known as sliceliotes and ltaliotes. to distinguloh them from the natlve sicell and Itali.- A . $G$. Liddell. Ifist. uf Phime, bi. 3, ch. 25 (o. 1).
SICELS.-SICANIANS. See sicily: The EARLT INHABTTANTS.

SICILIAN VESPERS, The. See Italy (Socthervi: A. D. 1282-1300.
SICILIES, The Two. See Two Stciume.
SICILY: The eariy lnhabitants.-The date of the trat known Greek settlement In Slcily it tixed at B. C. 73.5. It was a colony led from the Euburan clty of Chalcts and from the island of Naxos, which latter gave its name to the town which the emicranis founded on the eastern conat of their ne land home. "Slclly was at this time lnhabi by at least four distlact races: by Sicaniaus, w, m Thucydides considera as a tribe of the licrians, who, sprung perhaps from Africa, had overspread Spain and the adjacent coasts, aud even renote islande of the Medterranean; by Nicels, an Itallan people, probubly not more foreign to the Greeks than the Pelasg. ians, who had been driven out of lialy by the progress of the Oscan or Ausonian race, and la their turn had pressed the slcaniaus back, toward the southern and weatern parts of the island, and themepives occupled an large a portlint of :l: as to give thelr name to the whole. Of the other races, the Phcricicians were in possesion of sev. eral polate un the coast, and of some nelghbour

SICILY.

SICILY.

tog thets, from which they carried on thelr commerce with the natives. The fourth people. Which tuhablted the towas of Erys and Egesta, or Begesta, at the western end of the taland, and bore the name of Elymiane, was probahly composed of difierent tribee, varying in their de. grees of aftinity to the Creek. The 8icels and the Pbeenicians graduaily retreated before the Greek. But the Sicelo maintalned themwelves in the Iniand and on the north coast, and the Phoenicians, or Carthaginians, who succeeded them, estahlished themweives in the west, whero they posemed the towna of Motya, 8olus, and Panormus, deatined, under the name of Paiermo to become the capltai of Sicliy."-C. Thirlwaii, Hiot. of Orecece, eh. 12.
Aloo in: G. Grote. Ifiot. of Greces, pt. 2, ch. 22. - E. A. Freeman, Iliot. of Sicily, eh. 2.-See, aleo, Genotrtana Phoniclan and Greek coionies-'Slellian history begins when the great colonizing nations of antiquity, the Phorniciana and the Grecke. began to settie In Sicily.

It was a chief seat for the planting of coionies, first from Pheenicla and then from Greece. It is the presence of these Phoenician and Greek coionies which made the history of Sleily what it was. These settiements were of conrse maic more or less at the expense of the ohiest inhahitants of the island, those who were there before the Phaenicians anil Greeks canne to settie. . . . Phernician and Greek settiers conlic occupy the cousts, hut oniy the crasts; it was unly at the corners that they conid at all spreail from sea to sea. A great lniand region was necessarily left to the blier inhablants. But there was no rumin in Slcily, as there was in Asia. for the growth of grent barbarian powers diangcrous to the setilers. Nelther Phirnleian nor Griek was ever abie to occupy or conquer the wiole isiand; hut nelther people stoxil in any fear of lx-Ing conguerni or driven out, unies by one another. Bnt insteal of conguest eame Inthenee. Thoth ihorniclans and Greeks iargeiy inthenced the mative lunabitants. In the cmi, witiout any generai conjuluest, the whole islmni became pracicaliy Greck.
Carthage nt a iater tine pinys so great a part in Sicllian history that we are temptedi to bring it in lefor lta thine, and to funcy that the Thorniclan coionles in sicily were, as they are sninethenes carelessiy culleti, Curthasinian collontes. This is not su; the Phenlechan dities In sicliy didi in after times become ('urthushatan depericiencles: but they were not fonded by Cincthage. We cannot tix an exact date for the ir fommiathon, nor can we tell for certain how far they were setthel struight from the whi Phernicia and how far from the oider lhuenician citlea in Africa. Isut we may le anre that their foundation happrond thetwern tire migration of the sikeis In the llth century is. (' amd the leginning of Greets settement lin the sth. And we may susinect that the i'hurnidian setthements in the enst of sicily were phantell strahkht from Trre and Sidom, and thowe in the wost from the clties in Africa. We know that all rintui sidelly the phmelcians oceupled smull ishudis und points of coast whiteh were fittel for their trade, hut we may donht Whether they any where in Eamtern Sicily pianted seai coionles, citles with a rerritory attacied to them. In the west they seem to have done so. for, when the Greeks began to adrance in Slcily, the Pharnicians withdrew to their strong posts in the western part of the ialend, Motym, Boloun, ad Panormo. There they kept a Arm hold till the thme of Roman dominlon. The Greekn could never permadentiy dialodye them from their poe. semalone in this part. Hold, partiy hy Phrpnl. clans, partly hy Bikens and Elymians who had been hrought under Phoeniclan influence, the northwestern corner of Sleliy remained a burba. rind corner.

The greatest of ail Phankician cettlementa In Slelly lay within the bay of whleb the hill of Soious is one horn, but much nearer to the other hora, the hill of Herkte, now I'rlle grino. Here the mountalna fence in a wonder. fuily fruitful piain, known ln after tlmes as the Goiden Sheil (conca d'oro). In the mididle of th there was a amali Inlet of the zea, parted toto two branches, wha a tongue of iand inetwen them, guarded by a smali peninsula at the mouth. There could be no better site for Phre. nician traders. Here then roee a Plornilelan clty, whlch, though on the north coast of Sicrly, looks stralght towards the rising sinn. It is atrange that we do not know its Phipuictan name; In Greek It was cailed Panormos, the Alihaven, a name borne also by other placts. This is the modern Paiermo, wifch, under toth Phienicians and Saracens, was the Bennitle heal of Sleily, and which remained the caplent of the lsiand under the Norman kinga. Sicily the East became Weat and the 1 Thus in The men of Asla withdrew before the nen Europe to the west of the island, and theme warred against the men of Europe to the cast of them. In the great centrai isiand of Earote thy helle their own barbarian corner. It was the land of Phoeniclans, Slkans, and Eiymians, as oppoerd to the eastern land of the Greeks and their sikel suhjects and puplis.

For a foug thie (ireek settement wasdirected to the East mather than to the West. And it was saici that, winen s.thlemeut In Itaig and sicily did begin, the earlient (iterk coiony, ilke tive earilest Phopnician coluns, was the most dilstant. It was believed that K yme, the Latln Cumae in Campanla, was fombilul in the 1 filh century B. C. The other plantations in Italy and Slcliy did not legin thl the Bth. Kyme aiways stoxal by itsoll, as the head of a group of Greck towns in its own nelghtmotr. howi inni apurt from tiose mure to the wurh. and it may very weli be that sinte acritent causeri it to be settied sooner than the prints ururer to Greece. Hut it is not likely to hare twen settled 3100 years carller. Most likely it was phanted just iong emough before the mater sites to suggest thelr planting. Anybow in the latter liulf of the sth erutury B. C. (ireck s.ttiament to the Wext, in Iityria, Sleliy, and italy, bugan in goni earnest. It was said that the tirat suttle. ment in slelly came of an acclient. ("lashis in Eubola was then one of the chiof se:a fariug towns of Grrece. Theokles, a man of Chathis. was diriven by storm to the eoast of sicity. ile came lock, saylag that it was a gornd land and that the people wollid be easy to conquer. so in 73513 . C. Lie was sent forth to plant the first Greek colony in sicily. The settlens were parly from Chaikis, partiy from the island of Nasus. Bo it was agreed that the new towa shmid be cailed Naxos, but that Clialkis shonthl conat as Its metropolls. So the new Naxos arcse on the eastern cuast of Slclify, on a peninsula mat? hy the iava. It icoked up at the great hill if Tauros, on which Teormina now stands. The

sicILT.

Gruek cettlern drove out the Silzels and took to mueh land as they wanted. They Juilt and fortlicd a town, and part of their walis may atili be seer. Naxos, as the begianing of Greek cettiement in Slelly, snawers to Ehbatleet, the begtaning of English eettiement in Britain."E. A. Freeman, The Story of Sirily, eh. 1-4.

Also In: The same, Hise. of Sicily, eh. 8-4 (e.1)
B. C. 480-Carthaglaian invasion.-Battle c Himara. - Durlag the same year in which Serxes invaded Greece (B. C. 480), the Greeks in Sicily wero equaily menuced by an appaling invalon from Carthage. The Carthaginiana, InFitel by the tyrant of IIfmera, who had been expeiled from that clty by a nelgitbor tyrant. ent 800,000 men it is maid, to reinstate him, and to strengthea for themseives the slencier footing they aiready had in one corner of the lsiand, Gelo, the powerful tyrant of Syracuee, came promptiy to the aid of the Himerians, and delemter the Carthaginians with terribie ginughter. Hamicar the commander was among the sialn. Those who escaped the sword were neariy ali taken prisoners and made siaves. The fleet which brought them over was destroyed, and sarcely a silip returned to Carthage to bear the dephorable tidinga. -C. Thiriwail, IIfer, of Greece, d. 15.

Also Ix: G. Grote, Ilist, of Gireece, M. 2, ch. 43. B. C. 415-413.-Siege of Syracuse by the Athenians.-lis disastrous failure. See SrRaccee: B. C. 415-418.
B. C. 400-405. - Cartheginian Invasion. The quarrels of the city of Egesta. in Sicliy. with its uelghinora, hrongint alout the fatal ex. pedition from theus against Syracuse: IB. C. &is. dis rears later. in the same jrotructer] quarrei, Egesta appealed to C'artinge for help, sgainst the city o! selinns, and thus invited the sirst of the Hannliais wo revenge terribiy the diefent and death of hls grundfather IIanijene, at Himera. eventy yoars ivefore. IInnilhal landed an army of more than one lingdrei thonambi savge nuer. cenaries in Sicliy, in the spring of 4100 B . C. nni hin sioge to sidnus with such vigor that the citr was carried by storm at the end of ten days and anow of lts inhabitants sida. The temples ad waile of the town were destroyed and it wiss left adesertesi ruin. "The rnins, yet remalning. of the amelent temples of Seliuus, are vist and ins. posing. characteristic as specimens of Woric art during the tifh mad sixth centuries If. (. From the grat masultuile of the fulien columas. It hat lean supposerl that they wero overthrown by an earthyume. But the rulas affonl dis. tions evidelure that these colnmons bare levels fint andermined, and then overthrown ly erow. bars This impressive fact, demonstrating the breney of the Carthagiulan destroyrers, is stated by Nifbilar." From selinus. Ilamilial passedi on to libuera and. laving taken that chey in like manner, destroved it utteriy. The women and chihren were distrihuted as slares: the male captives were wian in a bruis ore the sjut where Handicar feli - $n$ sacriflee to his shade. A new town called Therma was subsetpuently fonmited by the Carthaginians on the site of IIfanera. Hariog satiofied ilimself with revenge. IIanniloni dishamidi his army, gintted with spohi, and returned iome. But three sears iater he invaled before, and the great cits of a crig greater than the fint to fall great city of Agrigeatum was the fint to fall before his arms. "It popula.

SICILT.

thon was very great; compriaing, sccording to one mocount, 20,000 citizens, anous an segregate total of 200,000 males -citizens, metics, and sinves; according to mother account. an aggregate total of no leas than 800,000 persons; numbers unauthenticated, and not to be truated further than an ladicatiog a very populous city.

It tempies and porticom, enpecially the apacious cempio of Zeus Oiympus its statues and pictures - its ahundance of charlots and borees - ite fortifications - its sewers - Ite artifleial lake of near a mile la circumference. abundantiy atocked with lish - ail these piaced It on a pur with the moat apleadid cities of the Helleaic worid." Afler a slege of tome dura. tion Agrigentum was evacuated and moat of lts Inhahitanta escaped. The Carthaginians stripped It of every monument of art, seading much away to Carthage and deutroying more. Gannibal had died of pestilence during the siege and his coileague Imilkon succeedeit him in command. Inving quartered his army at Agrigentum dur. ing the winter, be attacked the cities of Gein and Kamarina in the spring, and both were believed to have been betrayed to him hy the tyrant of Syracuse, Ilonysius, who had then just estah. lichal himseif in power. A ireaty of peace was presently concinded between Dionysiusand Imil. kon, which gave up aif the south of Sicliy, as Welf as Selinus, Ilimera, and Agrigentum, to the C'arthaginians, and made Geia and Kamarian trihutary to them. The Carthaginian army lini been haif destroyed by pestilence and the disense. carrind lome by its survivons, desolated Carthage and the surrounding country.-G. Grote, Ilint. of Grecee, pt. 2, ch. 81-82, with fint note.
(is. 3) tw : E. A. Freemna, IVior. of Acily. ch.
B. C. 397-396.-Diongius, the Tyrant of Syracuse, and his war with the Carthaginian. Sece Synactese: II. C. 39:-396.
B. C. 394-384.-Conqueats and dominion of Dionyius. Sce SYticcene: B. C. 304-384.
B. C. $3^{83}$. - War with Carthage.-I honysjus, the Syrucusan tespot, Was the aggressur in a 13. C. The thentre of war wich hroke ant in 388 , 13. C. The thentre of war extended from sicily to southern linf:, where lionysius liai made consilerabie concuests, but oaly two bat ins of Werions magnitide were fonght - both in sicliy. i)lonysius was the victor in the first of these, which was a desperate and sanguinary struggie, at a place calieai Kilain. The Carthaginian commander. Magon, wns siain, with 10,000 of his tronps, while $\bar{s},(6)$ were made captive. The survivors begged for pewce and Dionyshus dictnted, as a tirst condition, the entire withtirawai of their forces frun Sicily. While negotiations were in progress. Magonis young son, succeerilig to hls father's command, so reorganized and re. luspirited his army as to be able to attack the Syrucusans and difeat them with more terrific sluughter than his own shie had experienced a few days before. This battle. foughtat Kimuinun, revermed the situation, and forced Dionyslus to jurchase a humiliating peace at heavy cost. -
B. C. 344.-Fall of the Ty. 2, ch. 83.

Bius Ct Syracase. See Srractine. 0 of DionyB. C Syracase. See SrRactize: II. (1. iH4.
 B. C. $276-276$. $\mathbf{E}$. $317-209$.
B. C. 276-276.-Empedition of Pyrrhus. See Rove: B. C. 282-275.

SICLLY.

B. C. $264-24 \mathrm{x}$. The Mamertines in Mes-cene.-Firot Far of Reme and Carthare. Evacuation of the island by the Cartharinians. -The Romans is posenealos. see Punio War: Tin Piters.
B. C. a16-312. - Alliance with Haanibal nad revolt againot Rome. The Roman elege of Syracnas. See Pumic Wan: Tue Sxcond.
B. C. 133-103.-Slave wars. See Blave Wate in sicily.
A. D. 499-5a5.-Under the Vandale, and the Goths. - "• Sielly, which had been for a generation subjected, irit to the devaurationa and then to the ruie of the Vandal king [In Aifica], wat now by a formal treaty, which muat have been neariy the leat puhile act of Galseric [or Genseric. who died A. D. 477) ceded to Odovacar [or Odoacer, Who extinguiched the Western Roman Em. pire and was the irnt berbarian king of itaiy), all but a amali part, probsbly at the wentern end of the ioiand, which the Vandal reserved to him. self. A yearly tribute was to be the price of this concenson; hut, in the decar of the king. dom under Galecric's succewsors, it ls pomilble that this tribute was not rigorouniy enforced, as it is also almoot certain that the reserved portion of the inland, following the example of the remainder, owned the sway of Odovacar."-T. Hodg. kin, Plaly and Her Ineaders, bk. 4, ch. 4.-Under Theodorle the Ontrogoth, who overthrew Odoacer and reigned in faniy from 493 until 525 , Sicliy was iree both from in rasion and from trihute and ahared with italy the benefite and the triais of the Gothic supremacy.-Same, ok. 4. ch. 9 .
A. D. 535.-Recovered by Belisarins for the Emperor Jnotinian. See Rome: A. D. $635-858$. A. D. 530.-Gothic invation. See Roxe: A. D. $585-358$.
A. D. 827-77. - Coaqneat by the Saracene.The conquest of Bicliy from the Byzantine empire, by the saracens, was fastigated in the tirat instance and alded hy an influentlal Syracusan named Euphemios, whom the Emperor Michaei had undertaken to punish for abduction of a nun. Euphemios invited the African Saracens to the iniand and Ziadet Aliah, the Agiahite sovereign who had entahitithed himself in power at Cairowan or Kair. wan, feit strong enough to improve the opportunity. In June 827 the simiral of the Mosiems formed a junction with the ships which Euphemios had set athont, and the saracons ianded at Mazarn. The Byzantines were defeateri in a battic near Platana and the Saracens nccupled Girgenti. llaving gained this foothold they waited mome time for reinforcement, which came, at list, in a naval armament from Spain and troops from Africa. "The war was then carried on with actir. ity: Mesaina was taken in 831 ; Paiermo capituia. ted in the following year; and Enna was bealeged. for the first time, In 856 . The war continued witb various success, as the Inviders received asois: tu e from Africe, and tive Christlans from Constantinopie. The Byzantine forces recovered ponsession of Messina, which wat not permanentiy occupied by the Saracens untll 848 . At iength, in the year 850, Enam wo then by the Saracens. Syracuse, in onder is: verve fle commerce from ruin, had purchatru isace hy paying a tribute of 50,000 byzanta; in' it was not untll the felgn of Basil 1., in the of ar 579 , that it was compelied to surrender, and the conqueat of Sicily was completed by the Araba.

sicilx.

Some diatricts, however, continued, elther by treaty or hy force of arms, to preserve thete munclpal lodependence, and the excluaive exef. cteo of the Chriatian religion. within theif tem. tory, to a later period."-a. Finiay, Jlist, of th Bymatime Simpire, grom 716 to 1057, bh. 1, ch. 8 ace. 1. - "Byrncuse premerved about fifty reale [after the landing of the Naracens in Sicili) tho \}afth which ahe liads wom to Chrlat and tuCump. In the last and fatal siege her citizenn cilisplayed mome remnant of the apirf which had formerif $n$. aisted the powers of Athens and Carthage. They stood above twenty days againat the linticring. rams and catep pulter, the mines and tortoisera of the bedegers; and the piace might have heea n lieved, If the mariners of the imperiai theet had not been detained at Conatantinopie in luiliting a church to the Virgin Mary.

In Sicily the reilgion and language of the Greeks were etallcated; and such was the docility of ther risiag generaton that 15,000 boye were circumerivel and ciothed on the same day with the win of tho Fatimite caliph. The Ariblen equadrons invurd from the harbours of Palermo, Bieerta, ani Tunb: a hundred and afty towns of Calahria snd Com. panla were attacked and plifaged: nor coukt the suburbe of Rome be defenied by the name of the Creenars and apontiea. Hani the Mahometana been united, Itaiy muat have failen an casy and giorious accesion to the emplre of the pruphet" -E. Gihboa, Deeline and Fall of the Romann E. pire, ch. 52, - A hundred and tify years aftep the fali of Syrncuse Banil II. undertook its recoven, but deaih overcame him in the nidist of bih piane. "Ten yeam later, tice Byzantine general Maniakes commenced the reconquest of Siclly in a manner worthy of Basil himself. but the women and eunuchs who ruled at Constantionple procured hia recali; affura feli lato coufusing and the prize was eventualiy soatchell from bots parties by the Normans of Apulia."-E. 1 Freeman, Iliaf. and Conquests of the Aurucem, lect. 3.
A. D. 1060-1090.-Norman conquest. Sew Italy (Sotitheha): A. D. 1000-1001.
A. D. 1327-1194.-Union with Apulia in the kingdom ol Naples or the Two SiciliesProsperity and peace. See litaly (sucthena): A. D. $1081-1194$
A. D. 1186.-Introdnction of Siik-culture and mannfacture. See Brzastine Eypirs: A. D. 1146 .
A. D. 1194-8366.--Under the Hoherstanfen. See Italy (Socthiran): A. D. 11:3-1250.
A. D. 1360.- Invasion and conquest of the king dom of the Sicilies by Charlee of Aajom See Ital.r (Solthirns): A. b. 12suli2by.
A. D. 1282-1300. - The Massacre of the Sicilian Veapera. - Separation from the tiag; dom of Naples. - Tranofer to the House of Aragon. Se Italy isucthers): A. D. 12091300.
A. D. 1313.- Aliiance with the Emperor againat Napies. See ITALr: A. I). 1310-1312
A. D. 342.-Keunion of the crowns of SiciIs and Naples, or the Two Sicilies, by At phome of Aracon. &ee Italy: A. D. $1+12-147$
A. D. 1458.-. Separation of the crowa d Napiee from chope of Aragon and Sicily. Bee Jtaly: A. D. 144 :-1480.
A. D. 1530 - Eession of Mexita to th Knights of St. John. Dee Hoapitalicas of St. Joem: A. D. 1550-1505.

SIENA

A. D. 1593-8553- Firstrinl ravagee of the Turka alome tie cemot. 8oe ITAls: A. D. 1323-1570.
A. D. 178 - Codod ty Spain to the Dute $\alpha$ Saves. Eoe Uramemt: A. D. 1712-1714.
A. D. 17 1-1739-Retaizen by Spala, Egaia surrendered, and acquired by $\lambda$ untria, ingaia change for Sardinia. Bee Srapm: A. D. 1710 1733; and Italy: A. D. 1710-1725.
A. D. 1734-8735.-Oceupation by the Spaninds. Copation fo Spain, wlith Naples, formo Liga hiardom for Don Carion Soe Paurce: A.D. 17812735.
A. D. ${ }^{7749-1792}$ - Uncer the Spaalab-Bourb tom ricime. Bee ITALE: A. D. 170-1702.
 Hem Naples by the Freach. Bee Friurce:

A. D. 8 82s. - Revolutionary ingurrection. en Italp: A. D. 1820-1821.
A. D. 184 - 1849. - Patriotic risiac.-A year of incependence. - Subjugation of the inaurceats by Kiag "Bombar" See Italy: A. D. 1440-1849.
A. D. ${ }^{2860-3861}$. - Liberation by Garibaldi.Abcorption in the nevkiagdom of Italy. See lraly: A. D. 1859-1861.

SiCULI, The. See Sicily: Tat mant in. nimfanta

SICYON, OR SIKYON.-"SICYOn wat the starting polnt of the Ionic civiiization which perradel the whoie valiey of the Asopus [a river which flows from the mountains of Argoifs to the Gulf of Corinth, In northeastern Peioponnesus]: the joug series of kings of Sicyon testites to the high age with which the city was credited. At one time it was the capital of ail Asopla as Feli as of the shore in front of it , and the myth of Adrustus has presserved the memory of this the historic glory of Bicyon. The Dorian immi. gration dissolived the poiltical connection be. tween the cities of the Asopus. Sleyon itseif which the Dorian in familles." The ascendancy Which the Dorian invaders then assumed was iost at a later time. The old lonisn population of the country, dwelling on the shares of the Corinthan gulf, cogaged in commerce and tishing. acquired nuperior wealth and were trained to uperior enterprise hy their oceupution. In time ther orcerthrew the Doric state, under the fead of faulty, the Orthagoridie, which estabilished a funnos tyrangy iu sleyon (about $670 \mathrm{~B} . \mathrm{C}$.) Mircin and Cilisthenes, the tirst two tyrants of the ho iss. acquired a great name in greece hy their Mralth, by their liberai encouragement of ant and hy their devotion to the sauctuaries at Olympus and at Deiphi-E. Curtius, Hist. of Gricr. bik. 2. ch. 1 (e. 1).-See, aiso, Traanto,
B. C. 280-146.-The Achaian League. See GREEE: B. C. $280-146$.

S! nNEY, Algernon, The execution of. See SIDNEX, Sir Philip, The death of. See

SIDON, The sulcidai burning of. - A bout s6 B C. Ochlis. king of Peraia. hating sublued 9 revolt in c'yprus, proceeded against the Phornician clites, which had jolned in it. Sidon was betrayed to bita by lite pritice, and bo intimated sIENA.
81ETH.
A. D. 1460.-War with Flereace mad victory at Iontaporti. see flonzare: A. D. 184-1875.

BIENPI, The. See Cotis (Vimeotia): A. D. 876.  SIERRA LEONE.-"During the waf of the [American] Revolution a iarge number of blecka, chlety runaway clares, ranged themacives under the Brtiah banner. At the cince of the war a large number of thewe betook them. cires in Nova Scotla with the view of making that thefr future home; while others followed the army. to which they hail been attached, to London. It was soon accertained that the climate of Nova Scotia was too mevere for thome who had gone there ; and thone who followed the army to London, when that was dibimaded, found themceiven in atrugge land. without friendo and without the meane of subalateace. In a short time they were reduced to the most aliject want and poverty; and it was in view of their pitimbie condition that Dr. Smenthman and Granvilie Bharp brought forwand the plan of emonizing them on the coast of Africa. They were alded In this measure by the Goverament. The first expedition ieft England in 1787, and conaisted of 400 hiacks and alout 60 whites, most of whom were women of the mont debased chatacter.On their arrival at Sierra leone a tract of land of 20 miles square was purchaned from the natives of the country, and they immediateiy commenced a settement along the banks of the river. In leas than a year their number was reduced more than one half, owing. in mome measure, to the unlurathiness of tive climate, but more perhapn to their own irreguinrities. Two yearm afterwand they were attacked by a comblation of nativen, and had algh iren exterminated. Ahout this time the 'Sierra Leone Company' was formed to take eharge of the enterprine. Among its directors were enrolitid the venerable names of Wiiberforce. Clarkson, Thornton, and Granvilie Bharp. The drs: agent sent out hy the Company to look after this infant colony found the number of settiers reduced to alout 60 . In 1781 upwari of 1.100 colored emlgrants were taken from Nova Scotia to Sierra Leone. About the same time as many as a hundired whites em. barked in Engiand for the same place. .. . In 1798 it is sald that Free-town had attained to the dimencions of a fuli-grown town. . . About the same time the colony was farther reinforced hy tive arrival of more than 500 Maroons from the Ibiand of Jamaica. These Maroons were no better in character than the original founders of the colony, and no filtie disorier arose from mixing up such discorlant elements. These were the oniy emigrations of any consequence that ever jolned the colony of Slerra Leone from the Western hemiaphere. Its future scceasions came from a different quarter. In 1807 the alave-trade was declared piracy hy the British Goverament, and a squadron was stationed on the coast for the purpose of suppreasing it. About the rame time the colony of Sierra Leone was traneferred to the Goverament, and has ever since been regaried as a Crown colony. The slaves taken hy the Britich cruisers on the high seas have slways been taken to this coiony and diecharged there; and this has been the main source of ith increase of population from that time."-J. L. Wileon, Feotern Atrica, pf. 4, ef. 2.

SIEVERSHAUSEN Nate of (isc3). Be GERYAMY: A. D. $1854-1601$.
SIEYES, Abi4, and the Fromeh Repointion. Bes France: A. D. 1700 (Jene); :790) i ioi (Octosia); 179 (Octoman-Drcevien); 170 (Noreyment, and (Novzanse-Detemarn).

BIFFIN, Dattio of. Seo Manometar Cox. quatr: A. D. 601.
SIGAMBRI, OR SICAMBRI. goe Cm. Pmits: aleo. Fíanza: Ontorm, and A. II. 253. SIGEEERT 1. King of the Fraska (Ase (rasle), A. D. Bd1-875.....GIGEBERT II., King of the Franka (Ausirasia), ess-cin) SIoEL, Genaral Frans, - Campaign ia Mincont and Arkanges. See Cxitrin statm or Ay.: A. D. 181 (Julp-sertemper: Min motmi); 1802 (Jaxtamp-Manch: MrwolluAbzamach). ....Command in the Sherandeah. gee U'mited Staten of Am. : A. D. 1Mah (MarJteri: Vinamial.
SIGISMUND, OR SIGMUND, King a Huagary, A. D. $1830-1487$; Kiag of Germasy. 1410-1487. Emperor, 1488-1487; King of BC hemis, $1484-1497$... Sloiamnad, King a Svedan, 1509-1604..... Sidimnad 1., Kiag Poland, 1505-154N. . Poland, 1548-1874.
Poland 1587-1682.
SIGNORY, The Floreatiae. Fee Florexct: A. D. $1878-1487$.

SIGURD I., King of Normay, A. D. ilz1180.....Sigurd 11, King of Norway, 118 1135.

SIKANS.-SIKELS. Bee Stcuiv: Tha EABLY imilanitasta
SIKHS, The.-"The founder of the sith relifion was Nanak [or Nanuk], mon of a puty Ifindu trader named Kaiu. Nanak was impa ís the vicinity of Lathor in the gear 1469 . A youth mueh given to reflection, he devoted biniself at an early period of his iffe to a study of the rival creeds then prevaliing in India, the ilinilu and the Muhammadan. Seither matiafiel blm.
After wandering through many lanuls in warch of a matiofying truth. Nanak returneyl to his native country with the conviction that het hat failed. He had found, he madd, many wrifyturet and many creeds; but be had not fount Gid Casting off his hahit of an ascetic, he resumed his fatheris trade, marrled, berame the father of a family, and paswed the remainder of bla life la preaching the dectrine of the unlty of one laribbie God, of the necessity of living virtuously, and of practising toleration towarde obliwra. He died in 1539 , leaving behind him a neputation without opot, and many zealous and admilring discipits eager to perpetuate hls creed. The tounder of a new reifgion, Nanak, iufore bhe death, had nominated his succenor - a man of his own tribe named Angad. Angad hell the supremacy for tweive years, years whleh be em. pioyed mainiy in committing to writing the doctrines of his great master and in enforcing them upon his disciples. Angad was succeriled by Immar Das, a great preacher. He, and his soorIn.law und succemor, Ram Das, were beid it high esteem hy the emperor Akbar. Rut it wis the son of Ram Das, Arjun, who eatahlished ne: permanent bails the new religion.

He fired the seat of the chic: -auru, or high priett of the reilgion, and of his principal followers, at Aw. ritear, then an obscure hamlet, but whlch, in coosrequence of the seiection, speedily rac into tim portence. Arjun them repulatell and reduced to a oystamatie tix the offerlagy of hle adherente, to bo fousd aven then in every city and village in the ruajah and the cla-miliaj terituriea.

ILOAM INBCRIPTION.

The real auccemor of Arjun wat hin mon, ilup Gorind. Hur Covind founded the slikh nation Before hle time the followers of the Guru had been united by mo tle but that of ohediemer to the book. Govind formed them into acom. munty of warriors, lis dhd away with many of the restrictlons regardling foxcl, authortsed if followers to oat nesh. suminoned them to his standiand, and marched whith them to concolidato his power. A mififary orgnalsation besed upon s relptous priaciple, and directed by a strong entral authorlty, wlii aiwaya becomo powerful in a country tho goverament of which is talnted with decay. The tlee whlch bound the Mughul ompire together were siseady howening under the punaigating intluence of the bigotry of Au. nagzile, when, in 1075, Goviad, fourth in tuc. ceminn to the Hur Covind to whom 1 have ad. retted, aroumed the mantle of Guru of the Silicha Govind still further simplifed the dogmas of the fisth. A membling hila followers, be anaounced to them that thescefcrward the doct rines of the 'Khalma,' the saved or liberated, alone dowul prevall. There muat be no human Pmape resemblance of the One Almighty Pather; casto munt ceaco to exlat; before Him all men were equal; Muhammadaniam was to bo motel out; mecini distinctions, alt the woinces of superstition, were to exist no more; they should cain themsilves 'Sligh' and become a nation of colilem. The multitude meelved Goviad's propadithos with rapture. By a wave of the hand be fiuml himself the trustet leader of a confederacy of warriors in a nation whowe lonitiutinas were decaylug. About 1605, tweive years before the death of Aurngzaile, Govind put hla achemes into practice. He recured many forts in the hili- country of the Panjab, defeatedl the Yughui troope in several encounters, and eatabliaberd hlmaelf as a thorn In the side of the em. ples." But more than half a century of atruggie with Moghui, Aighan and Mabratta disputanta Whe eadured before the siche became masters of the Punjab. When they had made their posmalon secure, they were no longer united. They were "dividel lato 12 confoieracles or misls, each of which hat its chlef equal in autbority to hie brother chiefa, . . and it was yot untif 1784 that a young chieftula nemed Yeba Singh gained, mainily by force of arms, positlon which placed bim above his fellows." The eno of Mahe Singh wae Ranjit Singh, or Ruajet Slagh, who eatablished his soverelginty ypun a solld footing. made terms with bis Eng. lah aeighbora (see Ixdm: A. D. $1805-1816$ ), and astended his dominlons by the capture of Sluiing in 1818, hy the conquest of Kashmere in 1919-80, and hy the acquintion of Peebawar in India, ch. B. Malieson, 7'he Decinire Buttles of India, ch. 11.-The wars of the Slehs with the Eoglish. in 1845-6, and 1848-9, the conquett and conerution of their country to Brtish India, and me after career in exlle of Dhuieep Singh, the eve, ane related under ImpIa: A. D. 1845-1849, and is49-1809.

divo in: J. D. Cunningham, Eitot. of the sirho-Sir L. Grimin, Rantit Etingh.
SIKSIKAS OR SISIKAS. See Ammatar

SIXYON. Bee Eicton.

ILAURY HILL. Se Ajumt
BILCHESTLR, Ongia Al
Sillesia: Orida of the aame. see Lr. gth Contury.- Included in the blugdon of Morapla See Momivia: Prie Centuri.
A. D. ${ }^{3355}$ - Declared an integral part of Bohnamia se BOHEMLA: A. D. 1845
A. D. 1688 - Participation in the Bohemian revolt. Spe Genvant: A. D. 1616-1020.
A. D. $3633 .-$ Campaigro of Waitanatela. Soe cramary: X. D. 16"3-164.
A. D. ${ }^{36}$ ) - Rellifiene coacasions ta the Peace of Weetphalif. Eee Gxinuint: A. D.

A. D. 1706. - Rights of the Proteetaste argertedand enforced by Charlea XII. of Swredea. gee Scandixavias Statey (Sweder): A. D.
1701-1807.
A. D. ${ }^{1740-1741}$ - I lavalon and congneet by 17tu-17t1. the Great. Bee Aumratu: $\mathbf{A}$. D. $1740-1741$.
A. D. 3742 - Ceded to Pruscia by the Treaty of Breshar. See Acrant: A. D. IT (J3 (JUNE).
A. D. 174 . - Cension to Prueaí confirmed See Aix-ha.Cinapllin: L. D. 1748.
A. D. 3757 - Overrua hy the Austriase Recovared bJ Frederlek the Great. See Gra. Mant: A. D. 1787 (Jelit-Decemmen).
A. D. 1758. - Acain ocenplad by the Austriang. See Gemyant: A. D. 1788.
A. D. ${ }^{3760-17} 62$. - Last campaigae of the Seven Yaars War. See Gernany: A. D. 1760 ; and 1 i01-1762.
A. D. 8763. - Final aurreader to Prasala. See Sever leare War: A. D. 1768.

SILESIAN WARS, The FIrst and Second. - The part which Frederick the Great took in the War of the Auatrian Succemion, in 1740-1741, when he invmied and took procestion of siliesia, and in 1743-1i45 when he resumed arms to make bls conquest secure, is commoniy called the Eirut Sliesimn War and the Second Sifenlan War. see Acrrais: A. D. 1740-1741; 1748-174; and 174-1745.
Tha Third.-The Seven Years War hea been sometimes so-called. See Pavalu: A. D. 17551756.

SILINGI, Tha. See Spain: A. D. $400-414$. SILISTRIA: A. D. $1828-8829$. . Siege and capture by the Rumeine. See Turre: A. D.
$182 \mathrm{~L}-1890$. 1820-1890.
SILK MANUFACTURE; tranaforred from Greeca to Siefily and Italy. Beo Byzus. TINE EYPIRE: A. D. 1146.
SILLERY, The Mieaios at. See Carada: A. D. 1637-1657.

SILO, King of Leon and the Aeturias, or Oviado, A. D. 774 - 783.
SILOAM INSCRIPTION, The-- A very anclent and moat important lascription which wan discovered in 1880 on the wall of a rock.cut channel leading into the so-called Pool of Silonm, at Jerusulem. It relaten oniy to the excavatlas of the tunnel which carres water to the Pool, "yet lis importance eplgraphlcally and philo logicaliy is immense. ... It ehowi us that eev.
eral centurlen must have elapeod, during which eral centurien munt have elapeod, during which the modiacations of form which ditlogulah the

6LLOAK DTBCRLPTION.

Phovelciea, ith Monbtue aed the flobrem ecripte credually developed, and that the Hebrwa, arovefors, would probebly have been in ponem. alow of the art of writive as cariy at leatit the the time of Eolomoa."-C. R. Conder, strian stono. Lont, p. 118.
gILPHIUM, Boe CTmanaton.
GILURES, The.- An marient tribe in south. ore Wales, muppored by wome to reprecent a solyture of the coltic and pre.Cellic Iahabitanta of Brtala. Sec Imeniane, The Wemtian; aloo. Bartain. Twuas of Celitc. The conqueat of the Bllurw wan eflected by Claudlua Bee bust. ADP: A. D. 48-53.
SILVER-GRAY& See UxTted Statan of AM.: A. D. 1850.

SILVER QUESTION, In America, The.

 See CNITKD STATKE OF AM.: A. D. 1878, 1878, 1000-1mps, aleo Mownt and Baxema: A. D. 1840-18u3, and 1853-16In India, The. Be ra: A. D. 1800.
SIMNEL, Lambinst, D bellita of. Seo Ero.

SIMPACH,: $\quad:$ Acerala: A. D. 1748

SIN,-SINRE LEDA: TEE yames of tiEE COLxTAT.
SINDH. See achros.
SINDMAN, The. , me Comitater.
Singapore. Nee sthaita nettlements.
SINGARA, Battle of (A. D. 348).

SINGiE TAX MOVEMENT. See Social Mhnementh: (1) 1880.
SINIM Sef Chisa: The namer, Etc.
SINSHEIM, Battie of (1674). Sec Netamen-

SION. Ner Jrat'malikM : Conquert. Etc.
sioux, The. the Americas Abirigimea: Nichian Fisuli.y SIOUX WAR. Nec C'stted Ntatea of Ax.: A. 1). $1 \times i \mathrm{it}$.

SIPPARA, The exhumed Library of. See libhartina, Anctint: Babytonia and Aemybia. SIRBONIS LAKE. Su世 NEABANIN BMM SIRIS.-SIRITIS. - THURII. - META-PONTIUM.-TARENTUM.-" Between the point [on the Turentine galt, southenstern Italy] where the dominlon of sybarls terminatent on the Tareuthe wide, nind Tarentum liself, there werr two considerahle Grectau settlemedets Sirla, afterwanis calleel lleraklela, aul Metapon. tlum. The fertilty and attraction of the terrl. tory of Sirls, with its two rivera, Atirls and Sirls. Were well-known crea to the pat Archl. fochus theo 13. C.). but we do not know the date at which th passed froms the Indigenous Chonlans, or Clammians into the hamis nt Greek settlers.

At the time of the Invanton of Greere by Xeraes, the fertile territory of sirtus was conbldered as still umen to be colonlaed; for the Athenians, when their affals appented dexperate, had this sochente of emigration in resprre as a problble resultree. At length, after the town of Thurll had been founded by Athens [B. C. 448, under the administration of Perikles; the Listorian llerutotus and the orator Lreias being among the settlers\}, in the vicinity of the dismantled Srbaris, the Thurians tried to poseess themselves of the Sirtid tertiory, but were oppowed by the Tarentioes. According to the

gEUPTCIHNA.

compromiee concluded betwew thoms, Turpitu wai recognleod an the metropolis of the evikuy. but golat poermoto wee allowed both on TranHoee cat thurtane. The former thacfern ll ine des of the clty, usider the new neme Ilerailete to a spor threo milts from the wein, leaving airts at the place of murtime secens to It. a lualit iwenty. Alve smiles emetwend of Birts on the mat of the Tarentine gulf, wes oltuated Metapwnillum. a Greek town. planted on the certient of Ih astel whave bren dentroyed by an atherk of the samintes, at what pertod we do notk. ". It had been fornded by mome Achnwin o.

The fertility of the Metapontise comino. wan hartly kem celebrnted than thmt of the Birtid. Farther eastwand of Metapwatium agala at the dittance of about iwenty- Ave miles, was altuated the great efly of Tarm, or Tima: cum, a colony from sparis fotrmied sfter the Aret Memenilan war, sovmlagly alout 71, B. C.

The Taryotimes stand orat aming the Italiota, or Italian Greeks, from the year 410 B. C. dnwn to the nupremary of the Romain." -0 . Grite, Ilise of dreme. m. 2, oh. 22 SIRIRARS, OR CIRCARS, The Northen. See Invia: A. D. 1 :Ty-1761.

SIRMIUM. - Sirminm (modern Mltmoltz, ot the Sove) whes the Ruman capliai of Puntroten and an important center of all milliary opent thone in that replow.
Rulaed by the Huas. See Ilesm.
Captured by the Avars. See Avabs.
SISECK, Siege and Battie of (159a) See If wishit: A. 13, 158i-1644.
SISINNIUS, Pope, A. D. TOB, Jankary to Felirintr: SISSETONS, The. see dxilucas dem moinga: Nith ax Faxily.
SISTOVA, Treaty of (1791). See Tcan A. 1). 17:01-19!

SITABALDI HILLS, Battle of the (181\%, See linda: A (1). $1816-1810$.
SITVATOROK. Treaty of (1600). Ere Hevisahr: A. 1) 193 z -16m

SIX ACTS, The Nee Enaland. A. D. 1816-158
SIX ARTICLES, The. Sire Evolamb A. 11. 1534

SIX HUNDRED, The Charge of the. See SIX NATIONS OF INDIANS. WH FM Nathona.

Sixteen of the league, in Paris, The. Sier Frasce: A. 1), 13M1-1:N
SixTUS IV., Pope, A. D. 1-if-1t4
Sixius V., Pope, $15 \times$, . 1500 .
SKALDS. Sev Salma
SKINNERS. Net Trited State ul Ax

SKITTAGETAN FAMILY, The Fe Ayғhican Abohgiser skitranetas filut

SKOBELEFF, Generai, Campaigas of 187i-18i8

SKODRA (Scutari) See Si.rmass.
Si:RRELINGS, 干:

SKUPTCHINA. - Bhe servian parlamess or legislaturt.

EKYTALIBM.

SKYTALISM. Ben BeTtalmas.
SAVE: Opifie of the varile eicallication Othe we i - The tern olave, in ito alcalicmuna of a serilk olater, io derived nadoubeedls trom the rame of the slavi of thelavic people. "Thit ecereruloa of a $n$ - toad into on appeiva. tive name appeore to ha crisen lu the of ybth evatury, in ehe Oriental Frase (Autrala). Whare the prace and blebops were rich in Belivivonias captives, mot of the Bohemian (esciatme Jorilas), but of comablay me. From thene the word wis sxionded to gerimal uns, to the modern langubner, and oven to the utylo of the last Byzan: thes"一E Glthbon. Dooline and Fhit of the Ro and Slavonic Proti?
SLAVE O MAMELUKE DYNABTY OF INDIA, The see ITDIA: A. D. $\mathrm{Dr}^{-1200}$. SLAVE RISINO UNDER gPARTACUS. Ser spantar and lome: B. C. Bthen SLAVE TRADE, Measures egolant the. Bee Mlavinf, Negres: A. I). 17N-1807; and

SLAVE WARS UN SICIL YAND ITALY. - Af'cr the Romana became maxters of Siclly the Ghad won Alied rapldly with slaves, of whleh 3 nut number were being continually açuifod in the liuman ware of conquevt Mont of these alayen were empinyed as sheplierds and herds. nea ta great entnien, the owner - of which gave litte athatiun to them, slmply oncting in the

BLA VERY

moed mercilen fachlos motiofactory product. The revult was that the latter. bull perthalas from bunzer end cold, were driven to desperntha, and frigheful rimag emowar theen broka out, B. ©. ita, It began at Eams, and the leader wa a Syrian callen Eunwan, who proteadell in supernacural powers. The lababitunta of Eana were mamecred, and that town becanme the stronghoid of the revole. Eunue crowned himoif and anoumed the royal amme of Antiochum. Afrigeatum, Dlemam and Tauromenlums fell tato the hande of the lasurgents, and mom than - year paseed before they were surcemofuliy roalsted. When, at hat, they were cevercome, is Wam oniy st the end of moot obatiante alegen, parnicularly at Tuuromenlum and Enaa, and the Vengeance laken was Without mercy. In Itaiy there were sumilar rasinge at the mame itme. from like esumen, but these later were qulcki! sup. proseod. Thitry years later a mecond reveric of alnvee was provuked, both in eouthern ltaly atd In Blefly. - alluppresed promptiy In that fortwer, but growing to erfousnest in ifc inthos. The Sicilian slaves had iwo fealerm, sulvilus und Athesio; hut the former establlalied his uscendancy and calied himeelf $k \ln$. Triphom, The reluelition was suppremel the cost of two heary bnttlen- - 11. G. Lldelell, Jise. of Rome, dk. 5 , ek 48, and br. © it is.
Alimo Is: ( a . Long. Dedine of the Roman Ro.

SLAVERY.

hncient.

Among the Oriental racea.-" Fmm the writ. luge of the int Testamemt a fairly divinct ron. appling can be formal of whavery mining the Hetre wh Hunt materucrition hold the pieture preverated In the Prok of Cenesta, of the patre. archial age, its alavery includied. to the not traserint of really, but an letentation of the past. Whether this ta to or not, can only the premerly dectifed by the historico eritical investl. ani. in opecialists. Although the 11 lebrew : are itereribel as harling shown extreme feructry to the erabuluest of Canam, their legislation as in shavery was on the whole, conskierate and humane. ilaves were aot numerous anouk them, at heats ature the exile. Hebrew sinvery has natunilly beed the suliject of much researeh ami antmpeny. The liest treatise regarding it is allit that of Mielziner. Slavery In the great milithary emplrea, which arime In aucleut times in asterior dial. wha doubteqs of the most cruet saracter; but we lave no gowaf account of slav. ery In thewe comntifes. The hisiorles af Rawlin. *in. Duack"r, Kanse. Eil. Meger, and Mnspero, felf uy alnowit nothlag alout Challean. Asayr ian, ant Menlo. Perslati sinvery Mucts inore is knowa as so siavery, antl the condition of the 4hariag chaswor, in ancient Egypt, although of eren this section of the hlstory there is nutuch aned for an account in which the sonirces of inhompston, unsealed by moniern octence, will be fully utilised. While in Egypt there were not wites, In the atrict wnee of the :rrm, fin=-is ate very rignty il. An did. There were roops of vises, and as mey hrsticn was muperabuanlant, enornous celeat ubilesely. It may sumice to refer to Wikinsom, Rawlinson, and Buckle. It doen not seem rertain that the Vedic Aryans had shares trefore the conquent of india. Those Whann they conquered became the Sudras, antia caste symem grew up, and came to be refreselted as of divine appointment. The two lower castes of the Codr of Manu have now given place to a great many. There was unt a slave ctaste, but indivfluals of any caste might hecome slaves la exieptional ifrminatances. Evell bePure the How inf Iadidian there were nacetics proclainmal
and sthon. sulris."al wuan of brahmana dim in: F. J. Simu 120-129.

tions

Among the Gresis. - "Tlee lastitution of slavery in Civecce to very ancient; It is impoassible in trave its origin, and we find it even in the very earlhest timi ; negnriteri as a decessity of muture, a polat uf view which even the follow. ing ages and the most enilghtened phlitomophera adiplemi. In liter times volces were heard froms time to time protesting agalnat the necessity of the lustitution, showing some slight cuncepion of the liden of human rights, but these werio nivy Isolatedi opininns. Fram the very earlions times the right of the merongest had estahliahe ithe custon that captiven taken in war, If not killeqi or ransometi, Incame the slaves of the comgurerors, or Tere soth into slavery by thens.. . isealdes the wars, piracy, originally regarded an hy on means diahonourable, supplled the sinve marKeth; and thongh in later times endearouns were made to set a ilmit to it, jet the tmide in buman ## sLAVERY.

sLAVERY
being sever coased, alnce the need for slaves was eonaiderahle, not only in Greece, but stlll more In Orlental countries. In the histuric period the slave In Greece were for the moot part barbs. rians, chlety from the districts north of the Balkan peninauls and Ant Minor. The Greek denlers supplled themsolves from the great clave markets held In the towns on the Biack bes and on the Asfatic const of the Archlpelago, not oniy by the barbarians themseives. hut even by Greeks, In particuiar the Chlans, who carried on a conalderable slave trade. Thee siaves were then put up for sale at home: Athens there were apecis markets held fur this purpose on the irst of every month.

A lasge por. tion of the siare population covalsted of thow who were borm In slavery; that is. the children of slavee or of tree tather and slave mother, who as rule alco became slaven, unles the owner diapoeed otherwise. We have no meana of knowlis whether the num ${ }^{2}$ er of thete alave cnlidren born In the housen in Greece was large or amail. At INome they formed a large proportion of the siave population, hut the circumatances in Italy diltered greatly from thoee In Greece, and the Roman landowners took as much thought for the increase of their siaves as of their cattle. Besides theee two clames of slave population. those who were taken in war or by pirecy and those who were bore alaven, thero was also a third, though not important, clam. In early times even free mrn might become slares by legal methods: for lnstance foreign reaidents, If they neglected their legal obligations, and even Greeks, if they were insolvent, might be sold to slavery by thef creilturs [me fnght: Axciest finkis], a serete mesunre whifh was forbichinn by ibolon's iegisiation at Athens, but stili prevalied In other Greek states. Chlifren, whern Hz poed, becume the property of those whil fouml anc. educated theni, and in this manner many of the hetaerae and flute giris fall become the properiy of thelr owners. Finaliy, we know that in avme countrles the Ilelienic popuiation originally resident there were anblued by foreign ithbes, and became the alavea of their conquerom, and their position differed in hut few respect from that of the faidarian slaves purchamed in the marketa. Such nstive sirfs were the Helots at Sparta, the Penestae In Themaiy, the Ciarotae in Crete, etc. We have most information about the poaition and treatment of the Jlelou; but here we must riceive the statements of witers with great can. tion, since they undoubtediy exaggeratel a gionl dival in their accounte of the crueity with which the sipartans treated the Hefots. Silif, it is exrain thet in many renpecta their fot was a and one. The righta angned by law to the master over his alaves were very considerahie. He might throw them in chains. put them in the stonks, coudernn them in the hardeat labour - for Instance, in the milit - leare them without foorl, brand then, punish them with striwn, ind attain the utmont fimit of endurance; but, at any rate at Atheu:
was forbliden to klii them.
Legai mar, ages between slaves wer? not proallite, since they poseemand no permonai righte: the owner could at any moment separate s siave family again, and seif separate member of le. On the other hand, if the slares were In a poal. tiom to earn money, they could scquire fortunes of their own; they then worked on thelr own account, and only pald a certala proportion to their owners, keeplng the rest for themselves and when they had cirel the necenciary anoust they could purchase thelr freedom, aupporing the owner was wifling to agree, for bo was mot com. pelied.

The protection given to maves by the State was very amall, but here again therif were differences in different ataten.... It woulil be imponalble to make aguens at the number of siaven In Greece. Statements on the subject sre extant, hut thee are insufficient to give us eny general ides. There can be no doubt that the number was a very large one; it was a slgu of the greatest poverty to own oo siaves at all, and Aeschlnes mentlons, an mats of a very modist household, that there were only seven slaves to alx persons. If we ald to theec domentic blave the many thousamis wort. Ing in the country, In the lactoriea, and the mines, and those who were the property of the State and the temples, there seems no doult thes thelr number munt have considerably esceeded that of the free population. "- H. Blamber, Th Home Life of the Ancient Greeke, ch. 16.

ALeo IN: C. C. Feiton, Groces, Anciast and Modern, Let. 2-s, thind courey (c. 8).
Amenf the Romans. - Biavery, under the Roman Lmplre, " was carried to an excess berer known clsewhere, before or alnce [ae Ronis: B. C. 189-18s]. Chriatianity found lt permeasIng and corrupting evers domain of human life, and in sia centuries of conalict succeeded in reducing it to nothing.

Chriatianity, in the early ages, never denounced afavery ma a trime. never encouraged or permitted the slaves to rise against their masters and throw of the yote. jet she permeatel the minda of lmith maters anil siaves with ideas utteriy Incousistent with the spirt of slavery. Withln the Church, me ter and sfave stood on an abmolute equility." W. I. Browniow, Lect's on Shaerry and Sirfdom in E'u - 'pe, loet. 1-2.

Medisval and Moderr.

Vilielacte.-Serfdom.-"The jrinwas en. pioyed in cuitivating the ground during the ape Europe] nusy be divided Into thrue clavorw: - Servl. or alares. This seems to have lwel the most numerous ciase, and conslated either of captives taken in war, or of persons the properti in whom was acquired in some one of the varinus muthouls enumurated by Du Cange, vor. Arrus voi. vi. p. 447. The wretched courition of thin numeroin "are of men wlil appear from several circumanances. 1. Their mantern lind ulsolute dominion over their perwins. They fade the power of puntrhing their alavem capitally, wh out the lutervention of any judige. This davgerons right they pomemed not only in the mure early ferlocls, when their manimers were terce. but it crontinued as fate as the 12th cuntury Eren after this jurisulict on of asten came to be rontrainat, the ilfe of a slave was tivioud to be of on littie vaiue that a very ailpht rom:jeam son atoned for taking it away. If masirm had power over the fires of their sia ves, it forident that almoet no bounde woufll ine wit th the rigour of the punishments which they might luttict upoo them. $\qquad$ The crueliy of theme was, in may Instances, exceasire. Slares snight ly put tothe rack on very allght occamions. Thie iswi wla reapect to these point are to be found in Put glesearus, Uh. II. cap. 7. 2 and ant alorking to humanity. 2. If the domataton of masters over the liven and persone of thelr alavee whe thus extenalve, It wes no lem so over thelr actlons and pruperty. They wero not originally permitted u) marry. Male and female sla vea were allowed and even eacourgged, to cohabit together. But this unlop Wan pot conaldered as a marriage.

SLAVERY.

Valletmage.

BLAVERY.

When the manaers of the European nations be came more gentle, and thelr tiens more thberal, sisves who married without thel: master's con. evt were subjected only to a fine. . . . 8. All the children of slaven were In the same condition with thelr parenta, and became the property of thelr wraster.
4. Slaven were so entirely the property of their manters that they could well them at pleasure. Whlle domestic slavery conthoued, property in a slave was mold in the same manner with that which a perion had in any other moveahle. Afterwards ala res became 'ad. ecripal glebw.' and were conveyed hy mele, together with the farm or eatate to which they belonged. . . 5. Sla res had a title to nothlig hut subalatence and clothen from their master; all tue profte of their labour acerued whim.
6. Slavee were diatlinguibhed from freemen by a yeculiar dreas. Amoag all the barbarous na. tions, long hair wrs a mart of dignity and of freedrun; slaves were for that renson, obliged to ahave their heads. were likewlee 'sdecripti glebe,' or 'vilik,' from which they derived their name, and were trana. ferable stong with It. Du Cange, voc. Vilinaus. But in this they differed from slaves, that they pald a oxed rent to their manter for the land which they culcivaled, and, after paylag that sll the fruits of their labour and laduatry behouged to themselves In propiait. Thls dlathection is marked by Plerre de Fontain's Conseli lie de st. Louls par Jolnville, p. 119, érlit. de Du cange. Several casen dectled agreeahly to thls priactple are menteped by Muratori, fohl p. 7i3. III. The last elare ef persons employed in agriculture were i-wmen. ...Notwithitand ing the Immente difference between the Int of these cinsses and the third, such was the spirit of trmany which prevalled among the great profirietoris of lands. that many freemen. In despalr, renounced their llberty, and voluntarily furrominent thmemelves as slaves to thelr powerfut mastern. This tirey did In order that their masters might become more immediately inter. entel to allont 'hem protecthou. together with the muans of 1 . wating thenisclves and thrir fomilies. . It was atlli more common for fremen to surnender their tilerty to bishops or ablonts, thast they uilight partake " she seccurity Whicts the vasais and siaves of churches and munawleries enjojed. $\qquad$ Tite number of siaves is erery nation of Euripe was imnarnse. Tive freater part of the infertor class of peoplie in Fraine were reduced to this atate at the contmencement of the third race of kthigs. Enjrit les Laix, IVr, xxx. c. II. The same wat the cate th Eingiand. Bruls. Pref. to Geu. Il ist. The humane aplrit of the chriatian rellgionstrug. flel long with the maxims and tmanuters of the onfil, and contributed more than any other cir. cuntiance in introuluce the practice of manumis. xivn

The formality of manumbaton wat inel in a church, a a relligious zolemalty. Anuther methoil of obtalolag liberty wai by entering into lindy ondern, or taklag the row is a noumptery. This was permitud for come time; but so many slavea escaped by thls means out of the hands of their matern that the practice was afterwards reatrained, and at last prohiblted hy the laws of almont all the nations of Europe.

Great
ns the power of rellgion wam, it does not appenr that the enfrapchinement of slaves was a frequent practice whicic the feudal syatem preeervel Its rigour. . . The Inferior onder of ntes owed the recovery of thelr llibert to the dectloe of that aristocratical policy. "-W. Robertson, Hish. of the Reign of Charles Fi., noles 0 and 20.

Aleo Ix: A. Gurowakl, Shavery in History, ch. 15-20.-T. Smith, Arminius, pe. 8, eh. 5.See, almo, Dedrtitits.
England.-Villelaage.-"Chief of all causes [of sinvery] in early tines and cmong all people! Was capture In war. The pecullar nature of the English conquests, the frequent wars between the difierent kingloms and the private expedithons for revenge or plunder would reader this a frultiul means whereby the number of siaves would lacrease on English mill. In this way the Romanized Briton, the Welshman, the Angle and Slaxon and the Dane would all go to swell the body of theme without legal status. In thow troubled times any were liable to reductlon to slavery; the thegn might become a thrall, the lord might become the slave of ore who hal been In subjection under him, and Wulistan, in that strong sermon of hls to the English [agalast Sia very - preaerved by Wililam of Slalmeebury], shows that all this scinally took place. It wes at the time of the Danish invailon and the sermon seems to polat cleariy to a region infested by Danes. a region in wihich was the seat of Wuifstan's labors, for he was Archbistiop of Yort from lote to 1023 . Wultstan's graphe pleture dowey not seem to be corroborated by the evidence of the Inontemadsy Survey. Mr. Seebohnis map shows tinat in the weat and southwest there ap. penss the greatest percentage in that record; haat in Gloucenternhire nearly oue fourth of the population, iweuty four per cent., were in a atate of slavery: thint lit Cornwali, lhevon, and Mlaforl the priportion was only one to every thee: in central Euglanil about one to every anven; In the eant, Estex, Surrey; Cambridge and Iferts one to every nulue: in liast Angifi and Wensex no to every twenty ave. wrig in the northeriy diatricts in Xutting hamshlre one tolwo hundreil is giren, and in York, Rutiand, Iluutingdon and filicoln no siaves at ali are recorded. From thin it ls evident that the Danish Invasion was lras serious from this polnt of view than had been tite original conquest. Domemlay reconds the sordal comilition Sin yenre after the mettletueut, sud nany iufluencre, with Christisnity as the primary, were at work to alter the resulta of that miveratent. The maln inference to be drawn is that the comilinted warfare along the Welah marches replenishend the supply to the west. while in the cast the alave elente $t$ was raphdly decreasing an-1 in the north, not withatamilig, the Janish luvasion, there was rather a crmmingiling of gropies than a subjectlon of the one by the onlizer A second cause was the surremier into slavery of the individuat's own body elticrer hy himelf of a relative. Thin could be voluntary, the free act of the limillidual or his relatives, or it could be forced, resuiting from the atornind atress of evil dage. This surrender was one uf the mont unfortunate phases of the Anglo-suxon kervitude

sLA VERT.

Tingronest is
BLATERT.
and indicutes to us the growing lacrease of the tratic to slavee; and the personal suhjectiva was largely the outcome of that which was common to all peoplas, the demend for clavea. Even as carly as the time of Btrabo, to the half century followInc Cenar's conquest, the export of slavee begas In Britain aod before the Norman Conquent the saic of claves had become a conalder. able hraach of commerce. The lavular poiftion of England, her anmerons porth, of which Bristol was one of the chlef. geve riee during the Saxon cocupation to strafic in the daves of ali matloss, and we know that alaves were puhllely bought and sold throughout Enginnd aod from there transported to Ireland or the continent. It wat the prevalence of this practice and the wretched mleery which it hrought upon so many buman belage, 26 well sa the fact that it wis agalast the precepts if not the laws of the church, that led Wulfotan, the Wilberforce of his time, to hring about the cemation of the slave trade at Bristol. From thla place llnes of women and chlldren, gathered together Prom all England, were carriet Into Ireland and sold.

Beoldes thin sale into slavery for purposes of eraftic. which as a regular commerce was not prohlhited untll after the Nioman conquest, many eeem to have suhmilted themselvea to the mastery of mother through the neel of food, which s year of famine might loring. A charter in the Contex Diplomatlcus tells us of thome men who bowed their hemds for thelr meat in the evil daya. Kemble thinks that such caess might have been frequent and Stmeon of Durham, writling of the zear 1009 when there was a ireadful fanilue in England. Whlch ragel partlcularly In the north, anye that many enhit themselves Into slavery, that they might recrelve the newienl support.
Even at late as the ondeal lawa of Itenry 1 , auch an act was recognizell and apechal procellure jraridenl. In milition to all those thum horn intur aluery or remlumal to that conill. thon in the ways alave notenl, thero was nnuther cluss mate up of such as werc realicerl to slavery unwilingle an a probley for dolit or erine: these Were known an 'witethenwas' ur 'wite favennmen.

The legal condition of the whave wa a paricularty lasil one: as a thing, but as a pur. son, he way cinsuel with his loni's gixmla and cattle and sems lu have lwen ratial meorillag to a almiliar sclualule. to tre dispaned uf at the lurit's pleasure ltke his uriot ur hurweng. . . . They liand mulegal rights infore the la wad ambll lanar no as the la we of lleniry I call it. Jot the jumblion of the slare apperarx tollave improved la the his. Lury uf Augle Suxun law. . Hardly uny purt of the work of the Clumels wan of greatior lint. portance than thut which relatext to the meral and medul elevatient of the slave class. lis intlu ence linl much tu mitigate thelr hant lit, Inith
 The ind Eingliah Misnor, IV, $151-1$ Nas. - Tlie Thunewlay survey "attexth the exintence [la Fingianil, it the time of ther Numan (oumperst] atexal tolle. nt the highernt extlmate of their con.
 nearly 7.0100 cotaril and contuetl, whome name's geens to denote the prowershon of laml or houmen lued by service uf laixur ur reat palil in prualuce: and nearly 110,000 rillani. Above these were the Hberi homioes and sukemanui, who seem to represeat the medieval and moders trecholdet. The villanl of Domenday are so douht ili ceorls of the preceding pertod, the zimen of the townalip, the eettled cuitivatore of the land, who In a perfecty froe ctate of soclety were the own. eri of the soll they tilied, but upder the complicated syetem of rishts abd duties which marted the clowe of the Anglo-Baron period had become dependeat on a lord, and now under the prevs. leuce of the feudal dies were regarded se his cue tomary tenants; Irremoveahle cultivators, who had no proof of their title hut the evidence of thetr fellow cuorls. For two centurio after the Con. queet the fillani are to be traced is the powetslon of ifghts both social and to a certain exteat political.

They are spoken of hy the writers of the time a diatinct order of society. who, although despleahle for Ifarance sad comrimenem were in poncesion of conalderahle comforts, and whove tmanuallies from the dap gers of a warlle llfe compensated for the somewhat unreasoning contempt wleh which they were vlewed by clert and knight. During this time the vilieln could masert hif rights against every opprewsor hut bls master; and even agalnot his master the law gare him a standing.ground if he could make his complalnt known to thoee who hat the will to malntain is. But there can be little dinuts that the Siorman knight practically declined to recogralse the minute diatinctions of Anglo-siand dependence, and that the tendency of both law end soclat hatit was to throw lato the clam of nstire or born viltelas the whole of the pupulation described in Domeaday under the heads uf servi boriaril mad viliani."-W. Stuhba, Cionst. Hiat. of Eing., eh. 11, eect. 182. -" It has hervme: commopplace to oppowe medleval merfdim tuanclent slavery one implylag dependence wa the lont of the coll and attachment to the gholw. the other belng lansel on complete auhjectint to an "wner. . . . If, front a general survey of medi. eval servitude we turn tu the uctual crindition of the Engllsh peasantry, say In the lisih cintury. the tini fact we have th neet will stani in veri inarked contrast th our general prommition. Tio majority of the jeamante are vllisitus. fal the logal concepthon of vilininage has fix rixuls mot in the contrexion of the villain with the soil, int in his juermmal ilepenilence on the lord... As to the genveral anpert of villaing ge in ine Jegal theory of Fugitals foudallsm there can lue so dimbt. The ' Dlalogiss de tracemrin gives it in a few worls: the lirela nre ow wers nut ruty of the chatela but of the Ikallow uf thelr 'amertitiofi!' they may transfer them wherevir there ploase. 'and mell ur otherwime alienate them if in! likir Tlanville aml liructun. Fleta and Istitun follem In sulutanere the name dintrine. although ther nae differont turmax. They approprinte the her man vhew that there in mi difirrence of tanality lxet weren merfs and moffs: all are in the nithe at twien a villalu anl a freve math holillug in silialaage. lut It doem nut athit of any dimitustion of status antong s.rfs: 'morvin, 'vitanus' sma condithon, aliloughthis last is primartly menat namely, the fact that a moratu han torlte in it tir brth. ... Mamerial lordy crilh remone pas nate from their luhlinge at their will ami pirat ure. An sppeal to the courts was of tit atail

glavery.

Tradiege in  Trumet.

sLavery

Nor could the rilluln have any help as to the amount and anture of his services; the King's Courts will not examine any complaint in this respect, and may cometimea g 0 so far an to explata that it is no budnete of thein to interfero besween the lord and bis man. . . Even as in his peroon, the viltain was liable to be punlahed and put into priena by the lord, it the puniabment haficted did not amount to lom of life or injury to hila body.

It ls not strange that in flew of such dicabifites Bracton thought himeeif entithed to gaume equality of condition between the Engltsh viliain and the Roman slave, and to weo the terms 'Eervus,' 'vilisnua,' and 'natirus' indiseriminately." - P. Vinogradol, Villainage is Englond, ef. 1.- "Bertdom lo met with for the latt time in the atatute-book of Engiand under ituchand II. By reason of lise thriving condition of the towna, many vilieins who had betaten themseives thitier, partiy with the consent of their owners and partly in secret, became tree. If a slave remained a year and a day in a privlleged town witbout beling recisimed in the literval. he became free. The warn carried on agalnat France, the fact that serf. labour had become more expenaive than that of free-men, thins redering emancipation an 'economical' consid. ention, and finaily, frequent uprisings, contrib uted to diminilat the number of these poor heiots. How rapidiy merfdnm must have failen away mas be inferred from the fact that the rebels under Wat Tyler, in 138 i , ciamerell for the remorai of serfdum; the foliowers of Jack Cimie. to 1450 , for everything eise save the ahoiltion of clavery. The few purchamabje slarea uuder the Tuidors were met with only on the property of the churches, the monateries, and the halopp. rica. This slavery wha often of a voluntary na. tare. Un the King's dumaius bondmen were only eraaclpated by Elizabeth in 1574. The last trices if persoual siarery. andi of sulject race permanently annexeri to the sonil, are met with in the reign of Janes I. As a rule. It may be munned that, with the Tufiors, serfiona dilasp. peareif In Euclnni. "- E. Fischei. The Englinh Curatitution, bk. 1, ch. 3.
Also is: F. liargrave, drymment in the Cise
 -if R. Brownlow. Nisery and Aryitoma io Ev.

France. - Villeinage. - On the comillton of the wrifle clanses in ceal duriug ther tirat five or Garl, o-luth certionse - - in the siolic inwe. and in the c'aplutaries. we reaf mat unly of Serri, hat of trlbotari, ifdis, and Cohmi, who refe cultivatory of the carith, and subjert tio now.
 tute if preplerty or civll righte. Thome who spertainel tio the demesare lnnise of the crown Fere calle, 1 Flecallai.

Tha nimbiner of therse sorvile cultivators was undoubtelly grout, yet ln theme early times i should conceive: mow ficese than it afterwanis bevame

The actomola sha of overgrown private weatila had a hatural cendency to make sla wery nores frepurnt. As the latemar elther of artlains or of free his. handien was but sparingly ho demanid they reft uften emmpelled to exchange their iflerety for hreal. In semsons, aliso, of fanine, nall they were uot unfrequent, many freemen sold thens. wirea c) ulavery. more fortunate men became vasecame, to a power. ful lord, for the mke of his protection. Many were reduced into this state through lmabifity to pay thowe pecuniary compontions for offencen which Fere numerous nad sometimes henry in the barbu. tandance on millitary many more by neglect of attandance on military expeditions of the klog, the penalty of which was a dee called Herlbang, with the alternative of perpetual wervitude. . The charncterfatic dialinetion of a Fillein wai his oblipation to remain upon his lond's eatate. But, equaliy linabie to this conifinement, thero were two clasess of vilieins, whowe condition was exceedingly different. In England, at ifats from the reign of Henry II., one onif, and that the iuferlor speciea, existed; incapabie of prop. erty, and dealtute nf redres, except against the mout outrageous injuries.

But by the cus. toms of France and Germany, pertons in thim ahject state seem to have been calied serfs, and dintlnguished from vilieins. who were only lound to fixed payments and dutien.

Loula ifutio, in France, after Inuumerable particuiar instances of manumission had taken place, by a general edict in 1315. reciting that his kingiom Is denominated the kingdom of the Franks, that be would have the fact to correapond with the name, cmanclpates ali persons in the royal domains upon paying a just composition. as on exampie for other innis proseceaing vilieing to foliow. Plutilp the Lang renewedi the name edict three yean sfterwanis; a proof that it bai not been carried Into execution [see Frasce: 12Th13TH CRN1'misa]. © I'redial sirvitudi. was mut almilished in ali parts of France tili the revolution. in some places, says flaspulier, the peazants are taillabies a voionié, that is. thelr contribution is not permanent. but asseswed by the loni with the adrice of prudhomanes, rem. sennts sur les ileux, acconilng to the peasant 's ahlltiy. Others pay a ixed sum. some are colied serfe de poursuite, whiv canant feave thrle Indidtations, hut may be followed by the fioni futu any part of France for the taille upoo thels mainnurte, as they were sometimes culteri, be manumltted withoin fetters patent of the king, pirchuserd by a tive.- Ihecherehes de In France, i. iv., c. 5. inuthos informs us that. in 1615, the Thers Etat prayed the klug to cause all serfs (hommass de juxiste) to be enfranchised on paying "conjpesiticu, but this was not comppifed with, and they existed in many jarts when lie wrote." ami they eristed In many parts when lie wrote:"

 curthd unls the detectad [at the time of the fievolothon in une ur two of the eastern privinces anmexisi tu France by conquest; every where else the fustitution had ilisuppeared; and indeend tis abolition lial neenrny on fong before that evern the date of It was forgotten. The reacuribes if ntchaodegivts of our own day have paverl that ne carly ns the tistb ceatury serfiom was ins Touger to be met with in Normandy."-A. the Ticipurville, Nate of sixiely in France begiore the licmultion of 1 ise, bs. 2. ch. I.
Germany.- "As the great diatinction in the German community was between the nollas amil the puruple, so amingat the people was the ills. tinction thet ween the free ami the merylle. Next to thime who had the bappiness to the freeluirn were the Freedmen. whom the Induigelace ar caprice uf their masters relleved from the more guling miserles of thraldom. But though the

In Germany: nimen and lidy.

Froedmae wae than Imperfectly emanefpated, be formed a milddle grade betweea the Freeman and the slave. He wae capeble of powewalag property; but wa bound to pay a certala rent. or perform a certain errice, to the lord. He was forbiddee to mant without the lorit's ament; and be and his chldren were anfred to the farm they cultiveted. This milugated servitude was called 'Ldum,' and the Freedman, Ldua Leud, or Latt. The IJdue of an ecciednatical master was called Colonus.

A yet lower clan were the Slaves, of Serfs [EDechte] who were employed in mental or agricultural cerrlces; themselves and thelf earninga belag the aboolute property of thelr macter, and entirely at his diaposal. The number of these miserable belnge was gradually increased by the wars with the Belavonic antlons, and the male of thelr prisoners whe one great object of truitic In the Ger. man faira and markels. Buta variety of cause combliod to mear out thla sbominable system: and as ctrilization adranced, the serefities of slavery diminished; to that ite extlaction was nearly accomplished before the ith century." -8is R. Comyn, Iliose of the Weatern Rmpire. ch. 27 (r. 2). -"The followlag table wlll ahow that the sbolltion of cerfidom in mont parts of Germany hook place vesy recently. Serfiom was aboltehed - 1. In Beden, In 1788. 9. In Hohenzollepa, In 1804. In Bchleswlg and Holstela, In 1804 4. In Naemu, In 1808. S. In Prueda, Frederick Wilitam 1. had done nway wlth certdom la bho owe domaing so early as 1717. The code of the Great Fredertck was tateaded to abolith it throughout the klag. dom, but in reallty $1 t$ only got rid of it in lis hardeat form, the 'refbelgenschaft,' and retalnell It in the maldguied ehape of 'erbunterthlalgkeit. It was not thil 1800 that lt diwappenred altogether [seo Geamany: A. D. $1808-1800$ ]. ©. In Bavarta werfdom disappeared ta 1800 . 7. A tecree of Napoleon, dated from Madrld In 1 whe, abolished It In the Gradd duchy of Betg. and In aeveral other amalier territorien, auch an Erfurt Tialreuth, de. 8. In the kinglom of Weatpha ILs, Ita destruction dates from 1808 and 1809 . 9 . In the principallty of Lippe Ietmold, from 1800. 10. In Echomhurg Lippe, from 1810. 11. In Hwedish Pomeranila, from 1810, also. 12. In Ilemen Darmistede, from 1809 and 1811. 13. In Wurtemberg, irom 1817 . 14. In Mecklenburg. from 18*2. 15. In Ollenhurgh, Iroun 1814. 16. In sayony for lusatia, from 1882 . 17. In Ifo heazollern-slgmaringen, only from 1889 . IN. In Austris, from 1811. So earty wis lite. Jumph II. had Iestroyed 'JeJbelgenschaft;' but werfare In its miligalevl form of 'erhunterthluigkeli," lantid till 1m11."-A. de Tocqueville, Stote of N. ciely in tronnce beform 1789, note 1.
Huagary and Auatria: A. D. 1849.-Complated emanclpation of the peasastry. See Atuthia: A. 1). 1849-1859.
Ireland: sath Cantury.-The Briatol Slavetrade. Hiee Bhatol.: 13th Centtrat.
Monlam reliaquishment of Christian olevery. Hee Barbaky states: A. D. 1810.
Papal dectrine of the condemanation of the Jewn to perpeteal bondage. See Jxwn: $18-14$ Th Centerika.
Poland. - "The atatements of the Pollsh auties and thelp hutorians, po the effect that the peacant was always the heredtiary propirty of the lord of the gasor are falee. This relation between eleven million men and barely hatf million masters is an abuse of the leot two hus: dred yells, and was preceded by one thrusaod years of a better atate of things. Orighally the noble did not even pomesa jurtadiction wrir the peacant. It Tas wrided by the royal castrilinns, and in excepllonal cases wat betowed on lad|. FIdual nobles, as a reward for ditatoguishrvar. Ticea .i. Thoee peasanta were tree who weth domiclied according to German law, or who dwelt on the tand which they themelves hal pr. clalmed. It was owiog to the feudal lirilni umen of labourers, that the reat of the peasante were bound to the soll and could not leare the had without perminalon. But the peamat dill not belong to the lord, he could not be woill The fact that he could posees hand prevebied blan from ever becomlog a mere cert.

It is remarkable that the Pollah pensant enjoyel thew privileges at a time when rilleloage existel to all the reat of Europe, and that bis siavery thegm when other natlona became free. Villionge cemeed In Germany as early an the 12 th and 13 in centurien, except la Mecklenburg. Pomirabia and Lusetla. which had had a Sla vonic jpipula. tlon. . . In Poland it began la the IBih cea. tury. The kloge were forced to pronise that they would grant the peasant no letters of protection agolnat his lond [Ale xander, 150.3: ingiamund 1., 1548; Sigimund III., 1564] lleoceforth the lond was to have the right of pirithing his dlsobedleat aubjects at his own dis.rution.

Without the repeal of a single alatinte far. ourable to the pensants. It became a funilamedtal princlple of the constlitulen, that 'llemertorth an temporal cuint In exlatence can grant the peamat redresa agalnst hala lord, though jruperty, honour, or llfe be at atake." The peasuat wa thus handed over to an arbltrary powir, which hat no $\mathrm{lm} / \mathrm{t}$, except that whll the rereso of an evll Impones on the evll ltself. . . . Thror was an belp for the peamant mare la the mercy uf his luni of in his own deapair. The resuli wa thene cerrible Innurrectlons of the peasmats-the refy therat of which slarmed the nollites - the rula if landed property, and the fallure of thowe mutird from whicha anatlon aloould derive lis prioperity and Ite atreagth."-Cuunt rou Boltice, 1 hland: an Hiterienl sheteh, oh. 4 .
Rome, Italy, and the Church.-" It is perhape hardly surprising that the city of Runge shoukl, even down to the 16 th century, hare patronised slavery, and it was only batirat that the rest of laiy should follow the examile of the motrogalls of Cbristlnalty. The peypes were wont th ixsue edlicta of siavery againat whole tuwne anil provlares: thus for instanur did livai face VIII. ugainat the retalmers of the colomam [sere Paracr: A. 1). 1294-1340]: Clemat V against the Vrbetlans; Slxtus If agninat the Florentines (alon Gregory XI. agninat the Flin.
 Juilus II. agalnat the Imiogarme atul Vinetians. and the meaning of it wam, that any one who could surverd in capturing any of the pernios of the condemned was required to make slavet of them. The example of lonse encouraged the whote of lialr, and eapecially Vender, to carn on a briak truie In foreign, and eapeclaily femalo slaven. The privilege which had spruig up to Ifome and lastel for come yearn, by virtue of whleh a ala re caking refuge on the capitoi became free. was abolished in 1548 ly laul $I I$ apon the reprementation of the Senate. Rome, of all the great powers of Europe, was the lant to retain alarery. Becholastictum having uadep. taken in the isth century to funtify the exlatiag stave of thlogg, a theologtcal sanction wat dis. Threred for slavery; Aqeidius of Rome, taking It was a Christian lantitution, arice original sint hal deprived man of any right to freedom." J. I. von Dallinger, Šudices in Exuropacn History. p. Th. - Bee, aleo, Cattant.

SLAVERY.

Ransia. - Serfdom and Emancipation. "In the earilest perlod of Rumlan hintory the rurni population was composed of three diatinct cinmes. At the botcom of the scale stood the slaves, who were rery numerous. Their num. bers were coutiaually augmented hy prisoners of war, hy freemen who voluntarlly sold them. cives as alares, by losolvent dehtors, and hy certain categorles of criminula. Immediately sbove the glaves were the free agricuitural isbourers. Who had no permanent domlcile, hut wanderod about the country and vettied temporarliy where they happened to find work and antilactory remunerrition. In the thind place. diatinct from these two cinasea, and In some re. spects higher in the wocial scale, were the peasasu properly so called. These peasants proper, who may be roughly described ne smali farmers or cotulers, were diatinguinhed from the free agricuitural labourers la iwo respects: they were promesors of land in property or usufruct, and they were members of a rural Commune. If we turn now from these early times to the 18 th ceatury, we find that the poaltion of the rural popuistion has entirely changed la the Interval. The diatinction between slaves, agricuiturai is. bourers, and peasants has completely disap. prared. All three categorles have melted to. frether into a common clam, calied serfs. who are rexaried as the property of the lavidel proprietors or of the 8 tate. The proprietors (in the wirle of an Imperial ukaxe of Aprii 15, 1:21] seil thrir peamants and domentic ser vants not even to formilies, hut one hy one, ilke cattle, at io done nuwhere elae in the whole world.' '" At the bepinning of the itth century, while the peasantry had "sunk to the condition of aerfs, practically deprivel of iegai prouection and suhject to the arhitmpy will of tive proprletors. .... they were atili in anme respects legally and actualif distin. gulshed from the slaves on the one hand and the 'free wandering people' on the otber. These distinctions were ohilverated by Peter the Great and his immediate successors. To effect his great civli and military reforms, Peter required so annual revenue such at hls predecessors had sever dreamed of, and he was consequeutiy alWays on the look-out for some new olject of uxation. When looking about for this purpose, bit eye anturally feil on the slnves, the domentic uervants. aud the free agricuitural ta. bouren. None of these clames pulif taxes. He causod, therefore, anational rensus to be cuken, in which ail the rarious ciasees of the rural population... ahould be inacrileed in one category: and he imposed equaily on ail the members of thit catognry a poll-tax, in lieu of the former laad-tax, which hat inin excluaively on the peamats. To faclitate the collection of this hay the proprietors were made responallhle fir their serfi; and the 'free wandering people dered, under paln of belng sent to the calleys, to inscrive themweiven as nuembers of a Commuies or an serft to come propitetor. The lant years of the 18 th century may be regarded an the turaing.polnt in the hintory of serfage. typ tlll that time the power of the proprietors had steadlly increasel, and the area of serfage had rapidiy expanded. Under the Emperor Paul

With the arcession of inptoms of a reaction. commencent a hrcencion of Alexander 1. In 1801 - general emancijation, and endiem attempts to correct the more glaring abuses: and during the relga of Nichoina no lese than aix committees were formed at difirerent timee to conslder the queation. But the practical result of all these exorts was extremelr small."-D. M1. Wallace, Ruwia, eA. 29.-"The reign of Alexander II. [who aucceeried Nichoias In 1855], like that of Alexander I. began with an outhurse of reform enthuslam in the educated clames.

The serfage question, which Nicholas had aiways treated most tenileriy, was ralsed in a way that Indicated an intention of dealing with it boldif and energetically. Taking adrantage of a petl. tion presented by the Pulish landed proprietor of the Lithuanian proviuces, praying that thels relations with their werfs might be regulated in a more satisfsctory way - meaning, of course, in a way more natisfactory for the proprietors the Emperor authorized committeen to be formed In that part of the country 'for ameliorating the condition of the peasunts, and laid down the general principies according to which the amelioration was to be effected.

Thls was a declded step, and it was immerliately followed hy oue still more significant. Ilis Jlajenty, whthout Minatating his orthisry advisers, ordered the Minlater of the Interior to send to the Governors nll over Eurupean IRumpla coples of the Inatruc. tlons forwarded to the Governor General of Lith. unnia, praising the suppreel generous, patriotic intentions of the Lithuaninn ls nded proprietora, and suggestiug that, perhaps. the landed proprietors of octher provthcea might expres priviors of other provtacea might exprese a amilar desire. The hint was, of couree, taken, and lo ali provinces where rerfage exiated emancipation committeea were formed. ${ }^{\text {were, }}$ Thowever. serions difficultes in Were, however, serions difficultes in the way. The emancipatiou was not merely a humanlta. ran quention, capahite of being wolved inatanta. neousty hy an Inprerial ukace. It contained very complifs ted prulilems, affecting deeply the ecowomle. sociai, and politucul future of the nation.

It was uuiversally admalted that the peas auts shoull nut be ejected from their homen, though their boinesteads belonged legally to the proprietors; hut there was great diversity of opinion as to how much land they should in future enjoy, hy what cenure they should In future holid it , and how the patriarchai. uadefined authurity of the landlords should be repiaced.

The maln point at tasue was Whether the serfs should become agricultural labourers depeadent economically and sdmitnis. tratively on the landionds, of ahould be trans. formed into a clame of independent commanal proprif ions. The Emperor gave his support to the later proposal, and the Rusaian peansutry acquired privileges such an are enfoyed by no other peanantry la Europe."-Alerander II. (Eminent Pereans: Biogis, reprinted from The Timas).-"On the 84 of Jlarch, 1861 (Feb. 10,

gLAVERY.

Soniante in Amprian.

sLAVERY.

0. 8.) the amacipation act was afroed. The ruetic population isen coneteted of $$, 000,000$ of common cerfa, $8,000,000$ of appaage peneanta. and $93,000,000$ of crown peanntia the aris clase were enfrachised by that act; and a separate la has adace been paned in farof of these crown peamats and appanage peaceate, who are sow 20 free tu fact an they formerly were in name. A crrala portion of lasd, varying in different provinces accoriling to noli and ctimate. was aftixed to every 'soul'; and govermment ald Was promined to the peasante for buying their homenteads and allotmenta. The merfi were not slow to take this bint. Down to January 1 , 1800, more than half the enfrancbiced male merfi have taken advantage of thla promico: and the deth now owlig from the people to the crown (that to, to the bonilhoidera) ta an enormous sum." -W. II. Dlxon, Pres Rumia, eh. 51.-"Eman. efpation ban utterly falled to realize the ardent expectations of lis edvecates and promotern. The great benefit of the mensure was purely monal. It has failed to Improve the materlai condition of the forner serfs, who on the wbole are [1888] worle off tban they were bufore the Emaneipation. The bult of our peamatry is in a condlition not far remored from actual gtarva. tlon-a fact wibleb can nelther be denied nor concraled even by the officisi prete."-Stepniak. The Rucvion Itesementry, eh. 1.

A Loo in: A. Laroy Beaulleu. The Empire of the Twirs, pe. 1. bt. if.

Modera: Indians.

Barbarity of tbe Spaniardo In America, and hamane Labors of Las Casas. - Wben Colum. bus came to Hiapwnlola on his mecond voyage [1403], with 17 hipe and 1,300 followers, he found the relations betwern red men and whlte men alrealy humille, snil In oriler to get foxil for so many spaniarila, fornging experlitiona were undertaken. whleh maile matters wome. This state of thlugs levl Columbus to devlee a notable expedlent. In gome of the pelghlourin is inlmals lived the vorachute Caribs. In teptas of canoes tiny wonht swowp upon the cumsts of Itiapanlola, enpture nuen aul women by the weore, and carry them off to be conked and enten. Now Colum. lins whelah to win the Pricnilsilp of the Indians alwout him by defombing them againat these con'mies, and mo lie made railis agninat the Ciaribs. tuik wime of them captive, and went them as siares (11. Suin. to be tanght spanimhand converted to Cibiatianity, mo that they might crome back to ther folanis an interpreters, and time ine uxpfai alify In mixaluary work. It was menily, suifi shase then nowl weml them where they comith be and th an "gnle they montid lue receivent in phay other prwisionst while munt ine memt froms suatiz for the suppers af the colong Thas pratintiy gexal mu lefure and since, mingite conniterationa of reilginu with thase of domesthe economy. It is apt to jrowe an unwholewme nixutre infum. bua propowall sitch an arranacoucht to Ferditanal and lsalxilia, and it is to their crevit that, stralt. enefi as they were for money, they for mone time refused to accepit it. Slarery, however, syrank up in Hispaniola before aty one combit have fuify reallzed the meanlug of what was goiug ou. Ais the Indline were unfriendly and food must bo had, while foragits expeditione were apt to enil In pluader and bloedebed, Columbus tried to regulate mations by problbiling such expedlitione and In tiou thereof impoolag a IIght tribite or tax upon the entire population of Hispaniola sbove 14 years of age. As thilo population was denee, a flitle from ench persom meapt a groul deal to the tump. The tribute might be a amall plece of gold or of collon, and wat to be pall hour times a Jear. $\qquad$ If there were Indlans Who felt unablo to pay the uflbute, they might - an alleraative reader a certala amount of per. sount mervice ta helptag to plant ceeds or lead catile for the Spanaianda No doubt tbeec regulatione were well meanh, and if the iwo pucts had been more evenily matched, perhapm they might not so speedily have developed into ty ranay As It was they were ilke rules for regulating the depredatons of wolves upon sheep. Twi years had not elapeed before the alternative of permonal service wha demanded frin winde vil lages of Indlana at once. By 1400 the laland had begun to be divided into reparimientom or shares. One or more vllages woud be orderevi. under the direction of their matlve cilefs, to till the soll for the benefit of come apectifeci Apaniard or partuerthip of Spaniards; and aucb a vilisge or villagea conalltuted the repartimlento of the perrion or permons in wbom it as amsigned. This arraggement put the Indlans into is fitute nomewbat resembling that of feurial vilienage. and this wata far an thloge had gone whill the colminiatration of Columhus came airruptis to sn end." Yueen Isabelia dimapprovert, at timit, if the repartimlento syatem, "hut she wnv pur. suaded to annetton It , and premently in limis the ant Ferdinant lacued a moat dlastronis inter They gave discretonary power to Cuando (who succreded Columbua in the goremurshipl to compel Indians to work, but $1 t$ must the for wages. They onlereit blm, morenver, in we that Imdians were duiy Inatructerl tu the i 'hris. tian fuith. ... The way in wielelt twandin rap. ried ont the orler atout missionary work man characteristic. As a meminer if a roblightus orier of knights, he wai familiar with the jrace. the of encomicuifa, by which grompo of mities were nulgned to certain preecepturs to to tisciplineal sud linstructerl in the mystotios of the dery 'uf 'inereptory:' naif os it came to lie a distributefi tuifans anoug the simalario in hing
 - To gon, sueb a one, is given an rimemionda of so many ldilans, and you are fil tone is the the the things of mir holy Catholie Falth." It 1 retice the last chuse was disregardietl as a me re for mallty, and the effect of the deed wan simply to coniagn a parceif of luilians to the wailer mon itis of some Simitsaril, to do as the plensed with thets If he ayntem of repartmienters was in ritert - It dom of willenage, the syatem of cactomberdis atructive slavery has mom. If ever, Inea kuown. The work of the Intings wat hit arat largely agricntorad, but an wany minto of arid were som dimeveral they wete idristh in stucs to work in the mines. In lian chranto wa lomitus. there was little improvemeth. The case had becomes a hard vac to deal with. There were now what are called 'rented nghte, the Hifhts of proporty in slavea, to ba reapected. But In 1610 thare catae a dosen Domalalcat munks, and they soom decided, In detance of rested rights, to denounce the wickednees they now sout them." Geserally, the Bpablards who eajoyed the proft of the labor of the enalaved Iadians handoned thelr hearta agalagt this preach fag, and were enrajed by it; but one smon: thom had blo conscience awakened and an the fullinens of the evil thing. Thia was Bartolome ce Las Cams, who had Jolned the coloniets at Hapaniois In 1502 and who had entered the prienthoud is 1510. He owned slaven, whom he now set free, and be deroted hlmsell benceforth to taborn for the reformatioe of the syatem of alavery in the 8 panish colocies. In 1518 he won the eer of Cardinal XImenes. Who appolnted a commisitun of Ilieronymite fitars "to sceom. pany lat Casan to the Went Indies, wlth minute latructions and ample powers for maklog ln. ventgations and ealurciag the lawa. Ximenen appointed Las Cama Protector of the Indluns, and clothed hlm with suthority to Impeach deHequeat judges or other public ofticials. The new regulatlons, could they have been carried out, would bave done much to mitigate the sufferings $n f$ the Indians. They suist be pald trages, they must be humanely treated and uught the Chrtatian religion. But st the Span. ith goverament needed revenue, the provioion that Indians might be coupelled to work In the mines was not repealed. The Indians must work, and the Spantarde must pay them. Las Cosas argued correctly that so logg an thls prorialou was retained the work of reform would go but little way. Someboly, however, muat work the mlans: and so the calk turned to the questing of eenillig nut whlte labourers or pegrues.

At ove thane the leading colonints of Ilispaniola hat ofoll Las Casaa that If they misht have license to import each o dozen are grom. they would romperate wlilh blin in lifs plane for settlig free the Indians and Improvina their cumdition.

Hu" recalied this suggestlon of the colonists, and propuonal It as jwrlinps tite least wilous way out of the dittentity. It is therefore evblent that at that perloti in his iffe be dilit ont realize the wickerliness of siavery su distinctiy la the cuse of black neen as $\ln$ tior ciase of nall math

Iu dater years lie blamedi bín - If roundiy for making any such conceqsions, limp hee 'mufficientiy conshlered the matter.' lee worlit wot for ali the world liave entortaineal surh a suggestlon for n monelit. . . . Tlow ix. tensive develoynatht of negron alaverpin the If in lasiens dill not legin for many years aftor the jertini in the career of las ('asols with which we ure vuce dealing and tisire is ruthlog lo show that its sugseation or crurcemsion was In niry ay conceried in bringing it nixumt." The the stury of the ilfe ond ialosura of las Cucts, - of the colary which hee attempteri for forstei on the l'eafl limst of the mainiaml, componali if seiflors slater, and whlidh was ruined througit libe he hartariane of the "land of Siar" whom lie transforand into pencef(u) and drvoted Clisis. thas. - annot be tulaj In this piace. Ills final invifitie in the coutlict wlit slavery wore: 1 In laje, the procurlng from I'ope I'aui 11I. of a brit " forbideting the further enalavemeut of Indians under penalty of excommundeation." 2 In 1342, the promulgation of the Now Laws by Charles V., the decf(w) clauce In which was ma follows: $\therefore$ We orter and command that benceforwarll for no caune whatever, whether of war. rebellion, runsom, of In any other manner, can any lodian be made a slare.' This clouse wat never repembed, and it stopped the spread of siavery. Other clauses went further, and made auch s weeplag provlsisuas for lmmedlate abollition that it prover to be impoeslble to euforce them.

The matter was at last compromied by an arringement that eneomiendas should bo in. heritable during two lives. and should then esclamet to tite crown. Thin reverslon to the crown meant the emanclpation of the slavea Meanwhlie such provisions were made . . . that the dreadful encumienda revertel to the mlider form of the repartimiento. Abwolute slavery Was tranaformed Into vilienage. In thls amello rated furm the syatem continued. "-J. Fiske, The Diconery of America, eh. 11 (c. 2).
Aloo ix: Sir A. Ilelps, Sprnioh Conguaer in Am.-The same, Life of las Cava-G. E. Ellia, r. 2. ch. 8), -11. II. Buacroft, Hist of the Rucfic Sleses, r. I, ch. 5.

Nagro.

A. D. 1442-1501.-Its beginning In Enrope and lia establishment in Spanlah America."The peculiar pliame of siavery that will be limught forwari in thils himtory in not the firat and most natural one, In which the siave was merely the captive in war. 'the fruit of the spear, as he hias tyuratively inen called, who lived in the hense of his conqueror and laboured at his lands. This system cuiminated among the liomatis, partook of the fortunis of the Empire: was graduaity modifien) by ('liristlauity ant advanclig elvilization; declineal by now and aimost lopperceptibie dugrees into iurfage ant vasalage: and was exslict. or nenriy su) Whon the mecon! great purind of slavery sulf denly uprose. This surond jurfixi was tmarkerl hy it conomercial character. The slave wam no lunger min actilent of war. He had become the whifect of war lle was no longer a there acel. dentai nolifoct of barter lle was to be ang ght cbange actordingly gave rise to a new branch of condinerr. Slicery lnerame at once a nuth abd thererforth, indeyd. claiuss for teself a his. tury of lis "й" "- sir A. Hedpe, The Spanah Cingurat in Am. "mol ita Ibeluetion to the Mive. of sharery. id 1. dh. 1.-"The tirst negroes linpore. (1) intis Enlarep nfler the extiuction of the ohd pigall slavery were lerongle hat one of the stripa There uns, however, tul reguiar trade hagroes "Whbliohed by the Purtitucese: and the latin rat tion of humain heinges fell oft. Whlice titat of oflur artietes of conamorer increased, matil afler the disucucery of Anerica. Then the muldet de. stractini of tonititudes of indlans In war, by and iy disensen uew to item. proincod a vold IIP liy the inportation of megroxes Eiche the Kindiess and the piety of the Spanish momarchas buade the partig to pronluce thite nesitit. They for bade the enslariag of Indlaus, and they con:
trived that the Indlane ehorihi ifve fa come manner apart from the Spanlarile; and it In a very of culacent fact that the great 'Protector of the Indlams,' Las Caese, shouki, however Innocently, have been coacermed with the trit large grant of fleenses to Import negroes Into cho Wret India Ialasds. Agaln, the singular hardibood of the negro race, which enabled them to thourtah In all cllmates, and the comparatire dehllity of the Indlans, also favoured thin revult. The anxtety of the Cathollc Church for proselytes comblaed with the foregolng cauces to make the hishope and monks skow to perceive the michief of any mensure which mlight tead in save or favour large communtiles of doclle converts."The amme, Ak. 81, ch. 8 (f. 4). The Int notice of the Introduction of negro alares in the Weat Indies appeara in the inctructions siven in 1501 to Uramio, who superveliel Colitmhus in the go erpurnhif. - The same, dk. 8, ch. I (c. 1)
A. D. 1569-1567. - John Hamilne engases England in the tratic. See Axumtca: A. I. 100: 1507 .
A. D. soop-1753.-In colonial New York."Frum the settlement of Sew lork by the Dutch in 1000, down to its conquete hy the Eng. Iish in 1664, there Is no rellahle recond of siavery in that colony. That the lnsitution was coeval whth the Hollsud guvernment, there can be no historical douth. During the half-century that the Hollami fire waved over the New Nether. lands. slavery grww to sutch proportiona as to be regarded an necremary evil, ... The Weat Inilia Company had offered many inducementa to Ite patroina. And lte plealge to furmish the colonlnts with ' as many blacks an they conveniently could.' was acrupulously performed. Wheu New Netherlands berame an Engllah col. ony, slavery recelved subatantial official encour. agenelt, and the slave berame the suhject of crlonial leginlation.

Most of the nlaves in the Provlnce of New York, from the time they were fint intinulured. down to 1664, had heen the property of the Wiost Inila Cumpany. As such they had manall plois of lanil to work fur thelr own benefit, anil were aot without hupe of emancipation some day. But ismiler the Engilah government the condition uf the slave wat clearly defned hy law and one of grent liardahlpa. On the gtth of Octolver, 1644, an Act was paseed In Whlch alnvery wim for the tirst time regandell as IVeytimate Inatitution in the Province of New Cork under the Fingllah government." After the mad exclement cansed hy the pretemted)
 "the leglslature turned limattention to alditional logislation upon the slavery quentlon. turvere laws were paseeyl agalnat the Nigroes. Their perwonal rights were curtalleal untlf their court!. thon was but llitle removed from that of the brute creation. We have gone over the valimimous recurdin of the l'ravince of New York, and have not found asingle act calculated to amellorate the coniliton of the wave."-G. W. Williams, Hivf. of the Jegm flice in America, e. I, eh. 14. A census of the waves In the Province of New York wis made In 1735, the recurd of whlch has theen proserved for all except the must Important counties of New lurk, dlimany and sittolk. It shown 67 slaves then In Brouklyn. - Ike. Miof. if J. Y. e. 8.
A. D. s6ig.-Introduction is Virginic. See Fholnia: A. D. 1619.
A. D. 163:-8768. - Eogianiec and ending in Maseschusette. - In the code of lawe callen the Body of Liluerties, mdopten hy the flemeral ('imat of Xamachusetts In iGi, there is the followian provielos (Articie 01): "There chall never be any Boad Blavery, Vilitiagre, or Captivity amonsat ua, unices it be lanfui Captives thkea in juis Wara and such stmigers as willingly sell themaelices, of are onk to ue. And thete shall have alf the libertlees and Chriatinn umgee whikh the inw of Gol, entahliched in laruel concerning murh permona, doth morally requilre. Thls es. emptes dave from servitude who shali be jut Igel thereto by authority." (Man. IJfa. Soc. (inll., 28, p. 231.)-"No finmance has been dilurovereal of a male hy ore man of himmelf to another, al. though the power of dolag thit wan meryguizenl in the Body of Llbertiea. But of alver liy the way of puniahment for crime, under a wentrnce of a court, there are severni Inatancera minimiel.

Of capilies takea in war and miki lato marr. ery hy the colony, the number appean fo have then larger. though it it not enay to ancertain ia how many imatances It wat done. Aa a measure of policy, it way alopted is the case of much as were taken in the carly ledian wars. . . it was chlefly contived to the nemanats of ibe Perfuml tribe, and to such as were taken in the wnr with King Phillp [ee New Evolavd: A. D. 163it. and 1676-1678). If now we recur to negro slavery, It does not oppear when it was first in. troluced into the colony When Jusesy wan here In 1688. he found Mr. Maverick the owner of three negro slaves. Ite prolmbily nequired them from a slip which brought some slaves from the Weat Indies In that year. Aal this to the trit Importation of which we have any account. But Maverlek wan not propurly member of Winthmp's Company. He canar liere before they keft England, and had hla cosublishment, and lived by himself, upon Nindiles Imland. . . The arrival of a Macemelus.lts ship whe two negrues on bourl, whom the maxter had hrought from Africa for ale, In 1Hfi. fiur Fean after the adoption of the Body of Diltwertive furniabed an opportunlty to teat the mincerity of Ite framers, In weeklig to limit and nastritt slap. ery is the colony.

Upon information that theee negmes had been forctlbly erized and abducted frmm the coast of Africa hy flu. caplain of the vemefi, the magistrates Interpuneyl to pre. vent thelr being solle. But though the crime of man-steriling hati been comnittied, they frumd they had no cognizane of $h$, becauge it hal treat tone in a forelgn jurtalletion. They, huweser, went an far towards reaching the wring thone at they couki; and not only compeltevl the ship. manter 10 give up the men, hut sent them brik to Africa, at the charge of the colony. . . . And they male this, moreover, an crrambion, liy nin act of feglatation of the General Court, in 1816 .to of fegliation of the Generni Court, in 1616 . 'to bear witness, "In the language of the met. "xisainst the helnous and crying aln of man. reating, at also to prescrite such timely redress for what is past, and such a law for the future, as may sum. clently deter allothera belonging ta us to have tu do in such vile and most ndiouscourses, justly alhorred of all good nad just men. 1867 a hlll to resimin the importing of slaves puemed the popular hranch of the General ciurr. but falled in the Councll. Nor would it have avalled if it had pased both hranrhes, lecauso It would have been retoed hy the Goveraur.

SLAVERY, 1685-1772

scting under fantructions from the Crown. This was chown in 1774, when such a hill did pas both brachea of the Reneral Court, and was thus retoon. These succeadive acte of leginlation were ath of the remart recurring llluatration of the truth of the remark of a molern writer of ctan. dand authority upon the suhject, that - ' though the condition of slavery in the colowales mas not have been created hy the imperial leglalisture, yet It may bo sald with iruth that the crilonies werv compelled to recelva Afrions slaven hy the home government.' . . The actlon of the goverament [of Mamachusetta] when reorgavized uader the alvlee of the Contlaental Congrest was showa in september, 1776, In reupect to sev. eral negroes who hud leen taken In an Eagllah prize ohlp and lirought Into Natem to be sold, The General Court, having learned the facte, put a atop to the sale at once. And thls was acrimpanied hy a revolution on the part of the House - That the selling and enslaving the human species is a direct vlulatlon of the matural rights alike vested In them hy thelr Creator, and utterly Inconolatent wlith the avowed priselples on which this and the other States have carrled on their atruggle for llinery.: In reopect to the number of slaves living here at any one time, no ceanu seems to liave lieen taken of them prior to 17 H . . In 170\%, Gorernor Dudley entlmates the wiliole nuniber In the colung at 550; 200) having arrived berwewn 1608 and 1707. Ir. Belknap thluke they were the most numeroun here about 1745 . And Mr. Felt, upin careful calculatlon, compuites thelr number In 1754 at 4,489 . In 1753, Nalem applled to the General Court to sippreses slavery. Ifulton th the same In 1766 , In 1767 , and. ... In 1772 . In 1783 the actlon of the towns was 17.3 the actlon of the towns was more genera! and deciled." In 1780, the then free geate of Hawnchusetis framed and adopted a constitutlon. the upresing declanition of whleh was that "' ati men are born free and equal, and have certaln natural, eacential, and unallenalle righta. When [the nezt year] the highest judleial iri. buns) In the State was called upon to conatrue and apply thle clause, they geve a respone which utruck of the chalns from every slave ln the cornmonwealth. "- E. Washurn, Vavry as it ones Proewiled in Yisat. (Lowell fhot. Leet's. 1899: V(cse. and itt Esrly Jione. Lect. 6).
Alwo Is: W. B. Wherlen, Fromomie and Serial Bint uf V. Eing., eh. 12 and 22 (2. 2). - Lettere and lher reliting to Alavery in Xines. (Waw. Hiat. tor. Cish. AYMh Seriea, e. 8).
A. D. i6gs.- Frat Antielavary anactmant In Rhods lsthad See limude Ishavd: A. D 1651165
Colnn. D. 85 . Introdnctlnn of alarery in Capa Colnag. See Sutita Arnica: A. 1). 14e-1808. Fundamental Cone-Providid inr in Locks' Fendammatal Constititiong fur the Carolians. See Sinhtit Cabolina: A. D. tBeb-16us. Curoline ${ }^{\text {A }}$ - Indien Early Importance in South Carolina, Indian ilavist also sutahlished. A. Sotth Carolina: A. IS 1680 .
A. D. $8685-8772$, - Black slavs In England. during lat extenive proprletary Interest whleh. during latat century, Fogllsh merchants and American colonles and the Fistocracy held is the the pranen colonles and the Weat Indles. Involved Many of these hiect thelr part of many slaves. Many of these hack slaves were trained to ect abouchold rervants and perronal sttendants try.
and In thls capacly accompanted theit owners When thvelling. The prewence of hlack alavee In this country was therefore not an unfamillar tofht; but It will perhape ntartlo many readern m) know that in 174 , accorillag to the extlmate of the 'Gentleman's Magazlne' of the pertod, there Were upwaris of 80,000 hilark alaves doml. openly bought ane, ani that these slaves were newspenght and woll on 'Change.' The newspapers of the day represeat thewe slares at belng upon the whole rather a trouble to thelr themsel Fur one thlng, they ceased to conibler themelves ' daves' In thls socalled ' free coun. try'; hence they were often uawlllige to work, and when forced to labour were generilly sullen. apletul, trearherous, and revengeful. They also frequently, as we shall find from the pres advertlsementa of the day, nude thelr eacape, capture. For lastence belag oftered for thelr recapture For lastince, In the 'Landon Gazette" for Msrch, 1635. there is an advertlmement to the efiect that a thack boy of about 15 rears of age. on the John Whlte, ran away from Colonel Klrie on the 15 th Inst. Ile has a sliver cullar about hla acek, upon whleh is the colonel's coat of arma rad elpher; he hat upon hls throut a great scar, Inc. A reward to uftered for bringing hlm back. In the ' Ihally Putt of Augugt 4, 1720 , Is a almi. lar notlce. rur runaway hack $\mathbf{a}$, 172 n, Is an advertliement for a runaway hack loy. It In added that he had the words. My fady Ifrositield's hlack la Lin. neck. . That a collar a collar roubil his neck. pernatlal for a black slave as for a dog lo shown hy at alvertisement In the 'Lanoton Alvertiser' for tis6, In whleh Kathev Dyir, working golisBmith at the Cruwn In Duck Lane, Ureharl Street, Westminster, Intimates to the puhlle that he makes 'allver padlocke for Black or Dogs:
collarn,' de. . . In the , Tatler' for 1709 . Colarn, de. . . In the 'Tatler' for 1700 , a black boy, 13 yesry of age, 'flt to walt on a gentleman,' Is ofered for ale at Dennla'n Coffee. From the 'Dasly Joumal' of lhoyal Exchange. From the 'Dasly Jonrnal ' of seplember 28, 1728 We lemrn that a aegro loy, 11 yeara of age. wee similarly offercd fur ale at the Virginia CuffeeDecember St, Agala, In the 'Publle Ledger' for December 3t, 1761 , we have for asle 'A healthy Vegro GIrI, nged about 15 Jears; speaks good Engllah, works at her needle, wachee well, doen houschold work, and has had the anall-poz.' So far these ales suem to have been eflucted privately; hat later ou we ind that the auctloneer's hammer ts belag brought lnto play. In 1768, one Joln lilce wan hanged for forgery at Ty hura, and following upon hls execution was a sale of hls effects hy uuctlon, and among the rest a aegro boy:" Ile brought c38. The 'Gentleman's Magazlne of the day, ormmenting upon the ale of the hlack boy, say that thit was ' perhape the tirut custom of the klad la a free coin.

The 'Stamiord Mercury' for [1:71] beare record that 'at a cule of a gentleman' effertat Klchnaond, s Negro Boy was put upand oold for cy2." The inper adds: "A bherklng In. stance la a tree cuaniry!' The puhlle rinschenen had Indeed for manje fer re been disturbed on thim questlon, the greater number la England holding that the syatera of slavery as colernted In London and the country generally should be dechared lllegal. From an early perioul In last century the mubject had not oniy been debated in ths public printe and on the platfinn, bet had been mode matior of eomething like judictal dectulom. At the Aros, lefal opfoion wes oppoed to the tatanmicalos of ala ven brow bit by thelr mantern un thin ountry. In 172e. Lard Talbat, Attorney. generat, and Mr. Yorke, Bollellor, gewersi, gave an optaive which raleot the whole quettion of the lural estotemee of slaves in Grant Britainand Irriam. The npiaina of thew lawyers was that the mere fact of a alave enming into thew coun. trion frum the West Indien dh mot render him frox, athl that he could bo compeiled to return again to the plantationas. Even the rite of his aplifiual. mot his temponi, condilhom. it wan on the atrencth of thla decialoe that miavery somtinued to tlourtah In Engifand until, we we hare enen, there were at one tlme an many as so, (M) black aives in Londina alume (hief justice Iloit bed. howaver, expreseel a contrury oplaliou to that above given: and aftep a long strugigle the muttor whin bruight to dinal basue in the Prituris orame of the negro Bomernett. On June 22. 1722. It wan decliled by Lond Mandeld, In the barse of the wisole bencit, that 'as worn an a lie hernme free." From that day to the proment this has remalned the law of our land an reganla clavers. The fuet Cuwper espreand the juint. lant freling of the country over Lond Mananeld'a diflitm when be aung

- Einves cunnut Ifrmelie In England; if thelr Jungs recelve our alr, that moment they are fire." - Mark stane in Bing. (Chambrri' Jowranl, dan, 81. INDI).

ALmo 85: II. Greeley, Jliet, of the virugge for Samery Brtenaion or Krotrietion. fy, &-8.
A. D. 1688-87to.-Beginniag and growth of Antimiavery mentiment amonc the Quakars. Emancipation ín Pennasivania.-"Ju en rly un the rent 16 Nm . ame enigrantin from Krisuliclus in Cermany. wio had adopted the primeliole of Withiam Penn, aud foilowed him into Peon. aylvania, urgei fit the jumriy mevethg of the Shefety there, the inmunsatury of buying, seli. fiog, and holifax mwn in alavery, whit tike jrincifics of the Christian rellghast. In the ypar 160. the yeariy mertiag for that jeruvince towik uf the anbject as a pubite ennerv, ame the remult way, ndvice to the madmbery of it tis gitand ami to lve partinturly attentive to the ireatinent of those. Winn were then in thele pmonelon. In the war 1:11, the maine yearly merting resimeal the 'Impurtant milojert, anl contrmat and tre. twonl the mbire, whith had laedo lefore gloen.
 ulive: hut finting at lobith, that, thongh finil. vifuols rifiesal to purchame slavion, git others conthand the custom, and in arrater mombers that it was npprehendedi wombline feren the gase after the pulilic: diecharations whils hai

[a] furtisent lifter to ait the memilures whhlitis jurimelicioun . Tink truly ('hristlan I-lter, whleit wis write'n in the sear 1934. Was hesisned, as wr willerer frotel the crontents of it. for make the sutiments of the Dextety better known and altendeld to on the suliject of the slicvertrade. It rontahas . exhortations in thl the member wilhta the yeariy merethy of I'enasifrania and the Jurwey, to dealat from purchadin and Importisg claver, and. Where thay powereed them, to hare a teador cunatiens. thon of their eomalition. But that the frat part of the aubject of thle exhortation ming the en. forced, the yourly mevile for the cami prov lacen came to a reaniutlon In I785, That if may of the nember beloaging to It bought of imported claves, the overweers were to inform thelr nespec. tive monthiy meetinge of It, that 'thene maght treat with them, th they might be vilrerteri for the wlatom of truth.' In the year 1774, we and the came genty meeting legishating sain on the amie muhject. ny the preceding rewolution thry. Who bockme offeaders, werv aubjecterl only to exciualon from the merting for dianlpllar, and from the privilige of cuntributing to the grecual. ary occeaions of the gociety; but by the renlu. tom of the present year, ali member evurremed In imporths weiliag, purchadng. giviag. of tranaferring Negro of other alaves, of utherwime acting in etuch manner an to contiaue thrm it alurery beynod the term ifmited by law or cur um, were directed to be exclualed from mumber. abip of dloownetl.

In the year liso. the ganc yeariy meeting rarriel the mattor still further. It was then enacted. That the owaen of siaref, who refused wesectite proper iastru. neuth for givias them their freetom, were to be sileuwned likewlie, "-T. C'larkwon, JFist of the Ahatition of the dorre-7rack, e. 1. eA. A. - In 1700 Pennayivanda mopted an wet for the graiual emanclpation of alt alaves within fite territuyg. beiag the tret among the states on perform that Griat act of Juatiow.-W. C. Dryant mai S. H. Ony. Aupuher llion. of the U', N, r. S, ch. i
A. D. $16 q^{2}-77^{6}$ - England and the Siamtrade. - The Aatente contract with Spaia.After the upening of the slave trale th the ling Jiali ly llawkins, in $1504-1504$. " the trubld is human desh aferifly ivecame pophlar. it no. moprily uf tt was granted to the Afrian (ounjuby. bit If was invoitil isy mamerous interhoren, aini aishoferta. It is worthy of nothe that whille by the la wof iass a evertain percevitage was cosated fr.m othors A fricun emgon'm fur the nalatenabe of the furts along that trmat, cargion of mogenet Were emectally exempteml, for the farllamont of the Ievoluthon dealredi above all thinges til in tion land inern nade briwern Einghand and Noin fur mopplying the Spandale W'est finlion wht siapen (run the Islanif uf Jamuiva, and it havaneb

 18,0 me every year. The grent perionlof the fing almeamans. One of the minat lminerlan? and thont jegintar jurts of the Treaty of litrite was the comernet knowin as the Iasidento, lis whith suphly uf wiaie tu the spanish culinion The tratle whe feghtatod liy a bing and vialarair

 the Engllsh shanlif bring futu the -jumaish Wiest
 - Fe er yenr. that furing the firot $2 . \mathrm{s}$ getarn of the contract they might lmport a still greater abmber

SLAVERT, 1703-1785.
on paying certhla modarote dutlet, and that they midet carry the niave trade Into mumoroua span. ith porte from which ti had hitherto been an. cluiced. The momopoly of the trude wan cranted to the souch sea Cumpeay, and from thit time the malntrananoe, and tre extenalon both to the spanish dominitoma and to har own colomen, be came a central object of Engilah policy. A fow facts will show the acale on which ti was pirs. meel From Chriatmua 1739 w Chribtman 1702 anc low than 71,118 begroen were importell into Jomate. In a deapach writien at the evel of 1ify, Admirsl Rodeer reperts that in littie more that three years 40,000 nermen had heen introdreml into Gumbaloupe. In a diberuation uposa the methods of making the trude more effectual, which took place in the Engllah Purllament in 1850). It wat shown that $46,0,50$ begrues wery at this thme ansually mold to the Engrinh weokoales aloue. A letter of Gement O'llaro, the Govermur of semegambin. writen In 1706, entimates at the slmont increallile figure of 70.000 the number of aesmee who during the precedlog ofty yean had beot sunually shlippel lrom Africa. A dotla. guished moreru liboturian, after a careful comparimon of the materinta we pumeen declares that fa the century precerllug the prohibltion of the alare trade by the American Congrees, In 1876 , the aumber of negre a Imported by the English alroe, Into the Spaniah, French, and Engllali col. alies ran, on the loweat cmmputation, have been litile lewe than three millilons, and that re muet add more than a quarter of a million, who per lshed on the royage and whowe lurtles wers thruwn Into the Allantie."-W. E. II. Lecly, Hist of Eing in the 1 wh Century, oh. 5 (e. 2).
Aloins: $G$. Hancroft, Hise of the $V$ S. (Au Shar's hisel mer.) $p^{f .}$ 8, eh. 16 (e. 2), -D. Mlacpher. wa. Annule of commerce. r. 4. pp. 141-153.- Siere palle: Thk Covanke: Evalayb: A. D). 1739 17ti, Gembia: A. I) 1783-1748; Amatertive Repcmate: A. 1). 1540-1737.
A. D. $8713-8776 .-$ Malnialaad In tha Amarican calanian by the Engllah Crown and Parlinment. - "The streven of the American Hevolutim made It pomblise for the different staten to take tueasures for the grailual a toiltion of ela very and tire fiumedlate aboiltion of the forelgn alure. truir On this great queation tbe atnte of pulilie epinion in America was mare adrancel than In Loghame forment for arge III. . realated the moverucht for alxolltion with all the obutinacy of whicil isis hard and narrow nature was capmilie. the further impora leglalature hal enacted that the further Importation of negriee, to 1 wo sollt IIIt alavery, sbould be prohlbited. But Gevorge III. Cummanded the governor to veto thin act. anil it was veloed. In Jefferion'a firme Jraft of the leedarathon of Independence. thin actlon of the king wat made the nccasion of a fierre demitn ciation of slavery. but In deference to the preju. ditea of sumth Carollna and Georgla the clanse Fis ntruek out by Congress. When George III. and his retoes hall been eliminatel from the case, it thecate ponslble fur the states to leglalute freely an the kulyect." - J. Flake. The Critiall feriod of twe Hins, $p$ it. - "During the negal governmpureyl shach at one time obtainevl a law whleh mpinind sich a duty on the Imprortaton of slaree anaminted nearly to prohifinton, when one itrentoiderate assembly, placel under a pecuilar. If irrumatnoce, repealed the law. This re. peal meet a joy fill maction from the thee nover. alsa, and no davices, mo aspodienta, which coule aror after be attempted by submequent amen. bilem, and they reldom met whout attemptiof them, coulld succend In getting the royal mone to a remewal of the duty. In the rary firm wes dion hell ubler the republican goveroment, the maembly pecoul a law for the perpetual problbl. tlon of the importation of alaver. This will in arme menaure stop the lecrease of thle great pollticul and moral evil, whill the milads of our cltizens may le ripening fer a complete emanclpathon of human nature,"-T. Jefferion, Jiofere on the Nate of ligainin, every 8.-"It has been froqueatly otated thant Englani is responalble for the Iniroduction of negris alavery lato Brition America; but this asertion will not atand the ceat of axamination. . . It is, however, true that from a very early perioxl a certaln movement afralnat it may be deteeted in solus American Btates, that there was eapeclally In the Northern Provinces. a great and gederal dilalike to the excemive importation of aegroes, and tbat every attempt to prublblt or restriet that importation Tha rebuked and defeated by Eingland. The State Guvernon were forhlditen to give the neresmary ament to any meaburea restrictiog it, and the Engliat purnued this polley steadlly to the very eve of the Itevolation. " W. E. H Lecky, Hise. of Eng. in the Itoth Century, eh. (c. 2)
A. D, 8787. - Introductian lato Lanlaiage Ser Lartmasa: A. 11. 171i-1:18.
A. D. 1735-1749.-Quantimaed mariy In Geor-fia.-Slavary prahibltad at tha boglaming, and Lit9 latrocucad Geomata: A. D. 17351740.
A. D. ${ }^{8} 748$. The preteaded Nagre Plot in A Yort See Nisw Yonk: A. I). 1 its Enctiah ${ }^{5}$ marican colnniad diatributina In the Engliah Amarican çolmalaa. -" The number of African slaver In Nurth Amerien in 1786, the getuemtion preredlog. the Iferolution, was bbout 202.010. Of these VIrgitila had 120,000 , her Winte populaton amounting at the surue time to 173,000. The African lucreate In Vir, ginia had Inenateady. In 1818 came the arst 20 , and In 1649 there were 8011 In $10 \% \%$, there were 2,000 In 18if. there wirre 83,1000 . Iu 1730, there were 120,000. The $1: 2,0 \mathrm{mh}$ who. In addition to theen, male up the Afriving population of America Fere scattered thrusply the provinces from New England to Ceorgia."-J. E. Cooke, Virginia, p. 387
A. D. 1760-8785.-Tha andlag of alavary in Connactlcut and Naw Hampanire.- For the Xrw England Ntates the Revolution Fian the death koell of slavery nond of the slave. trade proterted by the $\ln w$ [ $w$ ee netlon In Mameachusette au! Rhoude Isiand detalled above und ivelow]

In New Ilamphisre the laseltudlon dleels. uatural deatb As Beliknap mald In 1:02. 'Sla. very ls not prohlitited by may exprese In w.
Thine bora slace the conailtutlon was maide [1878] are free.' Although the legal statins of the negm wat somewhat different. he was practleally treated to the amme manner In New Hampahlre that he was treated In thode Isiand. Connectleut dill not change her royal charter lato a atate conatitutlon untif 1818, and ber slaves were Preyl In 1884 . The wave trade in New Eng. land veswele did not cease when the state for bade it whthin New England territory. It wee conducted stealthlly, but steadly, even lnto the Hfetime of Judge Story. Feit gives instances in 1785, snd the inference is that the businens was proeecuted from Saiem."-W. B. Weeden, Economic and social Hist. of New Eng., t. 2, pp. 834-835. $\qquad$ "Connecticut was one of the first col. onles to pass a law against the siave-trade. This was done in 1769 . The maln cause of the tinai aboiltion of slavery ln the State was the fact that lt became unprofitabie. In 1784 the Legislature passed an Act declaring that all persons born of siaves, after the 1st of March $\ln$ that year, shonll be free at the age of 25 . Nlost of those born before thls time were gralualiy emanclpated hy their masters, and the lnstitution of siavery had almnst died out hefore 1806."-E. B. Sanford, Mist. of Conn., p, 252.

SLAVERY, 1760-1785. Southern Antelavery SLAVERY, 1776-1808.

A. D. 1774.-The bringing of siaves into Rhode Island prohibited. -"A fricans had been brought to the shores of this coiony in the earli. est of the vessels in which the comnierce of Newport had reached across the Atiantlc. Becoming domesticated within the colony, the blaek populatlon had in 1730 reached the number of 1,648 , and $\ln 1774$ had leeome 3,761. How carly the philanthrople movement in their behalf, and the measures looklig towarls their cmancipation, had galned healway, cannot be determined wlth accuraey. It is probahle that the movement originated with the Society of Friends whthin the colony. But little progress had been made towaris any emboliment of this sentiment in legislative enactment, however, until the very year of the First ContInentai Congress, when at the direet lnstunce of Steplien Ilopkins (himself for nany years an owner of slaves, thongh a most humaae master), the General Assembly ordahed [June, $1: \% 4$ ] that for the filure no negro or malatooslave shall be lironglit into the colong.' nad that all prevlously enslaved persons on beconing residents of lihoule Island should ohtain their freetom, 'In this dccided netlon.' once more, as has beell so often seen to be the ease with movemonts led ly Stephen Hopkins. "IRlinie Islant,' suys Armild. 'took the learl of all her sister colon ies."-W'. E. Foster, Nitphen Hopkina, pt. 2. 1 ,
Also ix: W. 1) Jolaston, Aharery in Rhole Islitut. 1 . $\stackrel{\text { ? }}{ }$
A. D. 1776-1808.-Antislavery sentiment in the Southern (American) States.-The causes of its disappearance.- Jefferson's.: 'Notes on Virginla' were written in 1781-2. Iliscondemartlon of slavery in that work is rast emphatic. - The whole commerce between master and slave, he says, ' is a perpetual exercise of the most bois. terous passions the most unremittiny despotism on the rat part. and degrarling subuissionton the wher. Our chilldren wee this and iearn to imitate it. . . The man must be a prokligy who can retaln his manuers ami morals undeprived by such cirenmstumers. With what exerration slould the statesman be lonifi, who, jermitting onehanf the citizens thas to trample on the riglats of the other, transforms those iuto dexpots and these into enemies - llestroys the morals of the one part and the amor putria of the other?

Can the liberties of a nation be thonght secure when we have removed their only firm basls - aconvlction In the mintls of men thist these iibertles are the gift of Gonl; that they are not to le vlolated hut whth His wrath? Indeet. 1 tremhle for my coun. try when I reticet that Goxi is just-that Hls juatice cannot sleep forever.'. . . On the practical questlon, 'Whet shall be done about it?' Mr. Jeferson's mind wavered; he was in douht. How can slavery be sbollshed? He proposed, In Virginia, a law, which was rejected, making all free who were born after the pasage of the act. And here again he hesitated. Whst wlil become of these peopie after they sre freet. . . Ile thought they had better be emanclpsted and sent out of the country. He therefore took up with the colonlzation scheme long luefore the Coloniza. tion Society was founded. He did not feei sure on this point. With hls prsetical mind he could not see how a half milion of slsves couid be sent out of the country, even if they were voluatarily llberated; where they shouid be sent to, or how unwilligg masters could be compelled ta liberate thelr siaves. Whlle, therefore, he did not favor immedlate emanclpation, he was realous for no other scheme.

Mr. Jefferson, la August, 1785, wrote b letter to Dr. R1chard Price, of London, author of a treatlse on Liberty, in whleh very advanced oplnlons were taken on the slavery question. Concerning the prevalcnce of antl-slavery oplnions at that period, he says: 'Southwaril of the Chesapeake your book will find but few readers concurring with it ln sentment on the suhject of slavery. From the mouth to the head of the Cnesaptake, the hulk of the people will approve lis theory, and it will find a respectahle minority, a minority ready to adopt it in practice; winleh, for weight and wortli of character, preponderates agilinst the greater number who have not the courage to dircst thelr families of a property which. how. ercr, keeps their consciences unqulet. North. ward of the Clis apeake you may tind, lere and there, an opponeut to your doctrine, as youtind, here and there, a robber aud murderer, lut ia no greater number. In that part of America there are hut few slaves, and they can easily disincumler themselves of them; and emancipation is pu: in such traln that in a few ycars there will be no slaves northward of Marylami. In Maryland I do not find such a dlspositlou to hegin the redress of this enormity as in Vlrginia. These [the inhabitauts of Virginia] Lave suched in the pripciples of liberty, as it were, with their muthers' milk, and lt is to these I look whth anxiety to turn the fate of thls question. Be not, therefore, discouraged.'" S. Brissot de Warville vislted Waslington, at Mount Vcruon, in 1:S8. and conversel with him freely on the subject of slavery. "This great man declared to me, "be wrote in his narrative, afterwards pullished, " that he rejoiced at what was doing in nther States on the subject [of emancipatioa-allud. lng to the recent formation of seversl state socidies]: that he sineerefy desircd the cxtensin of it in his own State; but he did not dissemble that there were stili many obstacles to be orercome; that it was dangerous to strike too rignously at a prejudice which hat legun to dimin. lsh: "that time, patlence, and information would not fail to vanqulslı it."-W. F. Poole, al ati-siar. ery Opinions Infire the your 1800, pp, 2:-3j, and fiwit-note. -"In Virginia ail the foremost states-men- Washington, Jefferson, Lee, kandmph. Henry, and Madison, and Mason - were oppoed to the contlnuance of slavery; antl their opinions were shared hy many of the largest phaters. For tobacco-culture slavery did i.ot serm so indispensahle as for the ralsling of rice and iudigo:
and in Virginia the negroes, half-civilized by Indiy treatment, were not regarded with horror by their masters, lite the ili-treated and ferocious blacks of South Carolina and Georgia After 1808 the policy and the sentiments of Virginia uaderwent a marked change. The invention of the cotton-gin, taken in connection with the sudden prodiglous deveiopment of manufacturen in England, greatiy stimulated the growth of cotton la the ever-enlarglog area of the Gulf states, and created an Immense demand for siare-iabour, just at the time when the importation of negroes tiom Africa came to an end. The breeding of siaves, to be sold to the planters o! the Guif states, then became such a proftable occupation In VIrginia as entireiy to change the popular feeilng about siavery. But until 1808 Vlrginla sym. pathized with the anti-siavery sentiment which was growing up to the northern states, and the came was true of Maryland.

In the work of gradual emancipatlon the iittie state of Delaware led the wny. In lts new constltution of 1776 the further introductlon of siares was prohlbited, all restraints upon emanclpatlon havling already been removed. In the assemhiy of Virginin to 1778 a bill prohibiting the further Introduction of siaves was moved and carried by Thomas Jefferson, nad the same measure was passed in Mnryland in 1is3, Whlle both these states removed all restruiats upon emmneipation. North Carolina was nut ready to go quite so far, but $\ln 1 i>6$ she souglit to discourage the slave, tratie by putting a duty of ${ }^{5} 5$ per head on ali negroes thereafter Imported."-J. Flske, The Critical Period of Am. llist., p. is.
Alsis) 1s: T. Jefferson whtes on the State of Tiryinit, query 18.- J. W. Draper, hixt. of the Am. ('inil Wir, ch, 10-17 (r. 1) - J. AR. Brackett, The Nutua of the Slare, 18io-1:80 (Exackya in Congt. Hist.).
A. D. 1777.- Prohihited by the organic law of Vermont. See Vermont: A. D. 1irit-1izis.
A. D. 1781.-Emancipation in Massachusetts. See, above: A. D. $163 \times-1$ io 1 .
A. D. 1787. - The compromises in the Cnnstitution of the United States. Sece LiNED stites of Am. : A. I. 1 isis.
A. D. 1787. - Exclusion forever from the Northwest Territory of the United States. See innetiwest Terbitony: A. II. $188 \%^{\circ}$.
TEXNENEEE: A. D. 1785-1796 to Tennessee. Sce TEXNESEEE: A. D. 1885-1:96.
A. D. 191 1-1802.-The Revoit of the Haytiaa blacks, under Toussaint $L$ '' Ouverture, and the ending of slavery on the island. See Harti: A. D. 163?-1803.
A. D. 1792 . - The institutinn entrenched in the Cnnstitution of the new state of Kentucig. see lienticky: A. I). 1ised-1792.
A. D. 1792-1807.-Earliest measures for the suppression of the slave-trade. -"In $1: 76$ the Erst motion against the trade was made in the Engiih parliament; and som leading statesmen of all parties, tachuiln $r$ Fox. Burke, and Pitt, de. clared themselres in favour of lts abolition. In lige the Dialsh King took the lead in the cause of humaity by absolutely prohtihithy his subjects from buying, selling, and transportlng slares; and at last, in 1807, the morat sense of the British publle overrode the vested luterests of aerchants and planters; purliament, at Lord Greaville's Instance, pussed the famous act for the Abulition of the Slave trade; and thencefor-

Ward succeadire Britith goveraments it themceives steadily by treaty and convention to bring other nations to foilow their exampie. . . In 1794 the United States prohibited their subjects from slave-trading to forelgn countries, and in 1807 they prohibited the iniportation of siaves into thelr own."-C. P. Lucas, Hite. Geog. of the Britioh Colonies, e. 2, pp. 67- 3 .
A. D. 1797. Siavocracy in Congress. Sce United States: A. D. 170;-18.0.
in A. D. 1799 .-Gradual emancipation enacted in New York. See NEw Yokk: A. D. 1 T99.
A. D. 1806-1807. Aboiition of Slave Trade. See England: A. D. 1846-1812; and E"Nited States: A. D. 1mit.
A. D. 1815. - Declaration of the Powers against the siave-trade. - The following are passages from the Declaratlon against the Slave Trade, whlch was signed by the representntlves of the Powers at the Congress of Vienna, February 8, 1815: " Having taken lnto considera. tlon that the commerce kuown by the onme of and Slave Trade' has been considered by just and enlightened men of all ages as repugant to the prinelples of humanity and universal moral. ity: civilized that at iength the publle volce, In all civilized countries, calls aloud for lis prompt suppression; that since the chnracter and the de. tails of this traffic have been better known, and the evils c? every kind which attend it, completely de-seloped, severai European Govern. ments have, virtually, cone to the resolution of putting a stop to lt , nad that, successirely nhi the Powers possessing Colonies $\ln$ different parts of the world have aeknowledged, either by Legisiative Aets, or by Treaties, or other formai engagements, the duty aud necessity of abolishing it: That by a separate Article of the late Treaty of Paris, Great Britain and France engaged to unite their efforts at the Congress of Vienua, to indnce ail the Powers of Christendom to proelaing the unlversal and detinitive Abolitlon of the Slave Trude: That the Plealpotentiaries assembled at thls Congress. .. declare, in the face of Europe. that, considiering the universal alolition of the Slave Trade as a measure partheniarly worthy of their nttention, conformable to the spirit of the times, and to the gencrous prinelples of their angust Sovereigns, they are mimated with the sincere desire of concurring ia the most prompt and effectual executlon of this necasure, by all the means at their dlsposal.

The said Pleuipotentiaries at the same time acknowledge that thls general Declaration cannot prejudge the period that ench particular Power may cousider as most desirable for the definitive abolitlon of the Slave Trude. Conse. quentiy, the determining the period when this trade is to cease naiversally must be a subjeet of negocintion between the Powers; lt heing understond, however, that no proper means of securing Its attainment, and of accelerating its progress, are to be neglected."-L. Hertslet, Collection of Treutiss and Conrentions, r. 1, p. 11 .
A. D. 1816-1849.- The organization of the American Colonization Society. -The founding of Liberia.-" Sanitel J. Mills organked at Williams College, In i808, for missimary work, an undergraduate socicty, which weas son transferred to Andover, and resuited in the estabillsh. ment of the A merican Bibie Society nnd Board of Foreign Misslong. But the sopic which extgrossed Mills most enthusiastic attention was the Negro. The desire was to better his condition hy founding a coiony between the Ohio and the Lakes; or later, when this was seen to be unwise, in Africa. On going to New Jersey to continue his theological studies, Milis succeeded in intereating the Preshyterian ciergy of that State in his project. Of this body one of the most prominent members was Dr. Irobert Finiey. Dr. Finiey succeeded in assemhling at Princeton the first meeting ever calied to consider the project of sending Negro coloaists to Africa. Al. though supported by few save members of the seminary, Dr. Finiey feit cncouraged to set out for Washington in December 1816, to attempt the formation of a colonization society. Earlier in this same year there had been a sudden awakening of Southern interest in colonization. Tic interest already a wakened and the indefati. gahle efforts of Finley and his friend Col. Charles Marsh, at length succeeded in convening the assemhly to which the Colonization Society owes its existence. It was a notable gathering. IIcnry Ciry, in the absence of Bushrod Washington, presided, setting forth in glowing terms the object and aspirations of the meeting. $\qquad$ right of Randoiph of Roanoke, and Robert Wright of Maryland, dwelt upon the desirahility of removing the turhulent free-negro element ani enhancing the value of property in siaves. Resolutions organizing the society passed, and committees appointed to draft a Constitution and present a memorial to Congress.

With commendable energy the newiy organized Socicty set about the accomplishment of the task before it. Pians were discussed during the suinmer, and in November two a gents, Samuei J. Mills and Ebenezer Burgess, sailed for Africa to explore the western coast and seiect a suitahle spot. Their iaspection was carried as far south [from Sierra Leone] as Sherhro Island, where they chtained promises from the natives to sell iand to the colonists on their arrivai wi:h goods to pay for it. In May they emharked on the return voyage. Mils died before reaching home. His colleague maie a most favorable report of the locality seiected, though, as the event proved, it was a most unfortunate one. After defraying the expenses of this expioration the Society's treasury was practicaily empty. It would have been most difticult to raise the large sum necessary to equip and send out a body of emigrants; and the wholc enterprise would have languished and perbaps died hut for a new impeiling force.

Though the importation of siaves had been sirictly prohihited hy the Act of Congress of March 2, 1807, no provision had been made for the care of the unfortunates smuggled in in det. ance of the Statute. They hecame suhject to the laws of the State in which they were landed; and these laws were in some cases so devised that it was profitahie for the dealer to land his cargo and incur the penaity. The advertise. ments of the sale of such a cargo of 'recaptured Africans' by the State of Georgia drew the attention of the Society and of Gen. Mercer in par. ticular to this inconsistent and abnormal state of affairs. His profound indignation shows forth in the Second Annual Report of the Society, in which the attention of the puhic is earnestiy drawn to the question; nor did he rest untli a bill was introduced into the IIouse of Representatives designed to do away with the evil. This Hili became a law on March 3, 1819. . . . The clause which proved so important to the embryo colony was that dealing with the captured car. goes: - The President of the United States is herehy authorized to make such regulations and arrangements as he may deem expedient for the safe-keeping, support, and removal beyond the limits of the United States, of all such negroes mulatioes, or persons of color as may be so delivered and brought within their jurigdictlon; and to appoint a proper person or persons residing upon the coast of Africa as agent or agents for receiving the negrues, muiattoes, or persons of color, delivered from on baard vessels selzed in the prosecution of the slave trade hy commanders of the U'nited States armed versels.' The sum of $$ 100,000$ was appropriated for carry. ing out the provisions of the Act. President Monroe determined to construe it as hroadly as possihle in aid of the project of colonization. After giving Congress, in his message, Dhecmber 20, 1818, fair notice of his intention, no objection being made, he proceeded to appoint two agents, the Rev. Samuel Bacon, aiready in the service of the Colonization Society, and Joha P. Bankson as assistant, and to charter the ship Elizabeth. The agenta were instructed to settle on the coast of Africa, with a tacit understand. ing that the place should be that seiected by the Colonization Society. . . . For the exieases of the expedition $$ 33,000$ was placed in the hands of Zir. Bacon. Dr. Samuel A. Crozier was appointed hy the Society as ita agent and represen. iative; and 86 negroes from various states- 33 meu, 18 women, and the rest children, were $e^{*}$ barked. On the 6th of Fehruary, 1820. the May. flower of Liberia weighed anchor in New lort harbor, and, convoyed hy the U. S. sioop-of-war Cyane, steered her course toward the shores of Africa. The pilgrims were kindly treated bs the authorities at Sierra Leone, wihere they srrived on the 9 th of March; hut on proceeding to Sherbro Isiand they found the natives bud rerna: sidered their promise, and refused to sull tham land. While deiayed by negotiations $t i^{-}$inju dicious nature of the site sclected wasdisnstrousiy shown. The low marshy ground and the had water quickiy hred the African fever, which soon carried off all the agents and vearly a fourth of the emigrants. Th? rest, weakened and disheartened, were soon ohiiged to reet refuge at Slerra Leone. In March, 1821. a body of 28 new emigrants under charge of J. B. Winn and Ephraim liacon, reached Freetown in the hrig Nautilus. Winn collected as many as he could of the first company, aiso the stores sent out with them, and settied the peopie in temporary quarters at Fourah Bay, while Bacon set out to expiore the coast anew and secure suitable territory. An elcvated fertilic and desirable tract was it length discovered between 251 ) and 300 miles 8. E, of Sierra Leone. This was the region of Cape Montserado. It seemed exactly suited to the purposes of the colonists, but the natives refused to seil their land for fear of breaking up the traffic in siaves; and the agent returned discouraged. Winn soon died, and Bacon returaed to the United States. In November, Dr, Eli Ayres was sent over as agent, aad the C'. S. schnoner Aliggator, commanded by Lieutensat 8tockton, was ordcred to the coast to assist in ohtaining a foothold for the colony. Cspe Montarado was again visited; and the address and Er:oseress of Lieutenant Stockton accom pilshed the purchase of a valuabie tract of land. The cape upon which the settlers proposed to huild their frat hahitations conslats of a narrow pealasuia or tongue of iand formed hy the Hoatserado River, which separates it from the malnland. Just withln the month of the river life two smnil isiands, containing together less than three acres. To these, the Piymouth of Liberln, the colonists and their gools were soon transported. But agaln the fickie natives repented the bargain, and the settlers were iong confined to 'Perseverance Island,' as the spot Was aptiy named. .. After a number of thrilling experiences the emlgrants, on April 25 , 1823, formally took possession of the cape, where ther had erected rude bouses for themseives; and from this noment we may date the exlstence of the coiony. Their suppllea were by this time sadiy reluced; the nutives were hostile nad treachcrous; fever bad played havoc with the colonists in accllmating; and the incessant downpour of the ralny season had set in. Dr. Ayres became thoroughiy dlscouraged, and proposed to lead them back to Slerra Leone. Then it was that Elijah Johnson, an cmigrant fron New York, made hlmself forever famous In Liberinn hlstory by deciaring that he would never desert the home he had found after two years' weary quest! His firmness decided the warcring colonists; the agents with a few faint hearted onea salied off to America; hut the maforitr remalned with thelr berolc Negro leader. The littie band, deserted by thelr appointed protectors, were soon reduced to the most dire distress, and must have perished miserably hut for the arrlval of unexpected reilef. The Enlted States Government had at last gotten bold of some ten liberated Afrlcans, and had a chance to make use of the agency established for them at so great an expense. They were accordlagly srot out ln the hrig Strong under the care of the Rev. Jehudi Ashmun. A quantity of stores and some 37 emigrants sent by the Colonization Society completed the cargo. Ashmun had received no commisslon as agent for the colony, add expected to return on the Strong; under this impression his wife had accompanled him. But When he found the colonists in so desperate a aituation he nohiy determlned to remaln with them at any sacrifice.

On the 24th of Mny, 1833, the hrig Oswego arrived with 01 new emlgrants and a liberal supply of stores and tools, In charge of Dr. Ayres, who, al.asdy the representative of the Soclety, had now heen appointed Government Agent and Surgeon. One of the tirst measures of the new agent was to bave the town surveyed and lots distributed among the whole body of colonlsts. Many of the older settlers found themselves dispossessed of the hoidings improred hy their fabor, and the colouy was soon In a ferment of excitement and lasurrection. Dr. Ayres, finding hls heaith failing. judiclously betook hlmself to the Cnlted Statee. The arrival of the agent had placed Mr. Ashmun ln a false position of the most mortify. ing character.

Seelng the colony agaia de serted by the agent and in a state of discontent and corfusion, he forgot his wrongs and remained at the heim. Order was soon restored but the seeds of insubordination remained. The arrival of 103 emigrants from Virglinia on the Cyrus, In Fehruary 1824, added to the diffleuity as the stoek of fuod was so low that the whole coiony had to be put on half rations. Thia necen. sary measurc was reganded by the diaffected as an act of tyranny on Ashmun's part; and when shortly after the complete prostration of his health compeiled him to withdraw to the Cape De Verid Islands, the maicontents sent home letters charging him with all sorta of ahuse of power, and finally with desertion of his post! The Soclety in consternation appiled to Government for an expedition of investigation, and the Rev. I. R. Guricy, Secretary of the Society, and an enthuslastic advocate of colonlzation, was despatched In June on the U. S. schooner Porpolse. The resuit of course reveaied the problty, integrity nad good judgment of Mr. Ash mun; and Gurley became thenceforth his warmest admircr. As a preventive of finture discontent a Constitution wae adopted at Mr. Gurlcy's suggestion, glving for the first time a defnite share in the control of affalrs to the colonists themselves. Gurley hrought with him the name of the c lony - Llberia, and of lis settiement on the Cape - Monrovia, which had been adopted hy the Soclcty on the suggestion of Mr. Robert Goodloe Harper of Maryiand. He returned from his successfui mission in August leaving the most cordiai relations estahilishicd throughout the colony. Gurley's visit seemed to mark the turalng of the tlde, and a period of great prosperity now began." The national independence of the commonwealth of Llberia was not assumed until 1847, when the first Presldent of the Repuhiic, Joseph J. Roberts, was elected. J. H. T. McPherson, Hist. of Liberia (Johns Hopkins Unio. Studies, series 0, no. 10), ch. 2-3 and 5 .
Also 1n: S. Whkeson, Hist. of the Am. Colonies in Liberia.-A. H. Foote, Africal and the Am. Fug, ch. 10-18.
A. D. 1818-1821.-The opening atruggle of the American confict. - The Missouri Compromise. See United States of Ax. : A. D. 1818-1821.
A. D. 1821-1854--Emancipation in New Granada, Venezuela aud Ecuador. See Colombian States: A. D. 1821-1854
A. D. 1823-Abolition in Central Americm. See Central Amertca: A. D. 1821-1871.
A. D. 1825.-Bolivar's Emancipation in Bolivia. See Peru: A. D. 1825-1826.
A. D. 182\%-Final Emancipation in New York. Jee New York: A. D. 1827.
A. D. 1828-1832.-The rise of the Abolitlonists in the United States.-Nat. Turner's Insurrection. - - While the reign of Andrew Jackson [1828-1830] paved the way on which the slave-holding interest ascended to the zenlth of its silpremacy over the Union, there arose, at the same time, In the body of the abolitionlats, the enemy which undermined the firm ground under the feet of that same slave-holding lnterest. The expression, 'abolition of siavery, is to be met with even hefore the adoptlon of the constltution. But the word 'abolitionism,' as descrlptlve of a defintte political programme, occurs for the first time in this period. . . . The immediate precursor, and, in a certain sense, the fatier of the abolitionists, was Benjamin Lundy, a Quaker, born in New Jersey. In Wheeling, West Virginia, where he learned the saddler's trade, he had ampie opportunity to become acquainted with the horrors of slavery, as great cargoea of slaves, on their way to the southern states, frequently passec the place. Lundy had been endearoring for some jears to awsken an sctive interest among his nelghbors in the hard lot of the slaves, when the Missourl question brought him to the resolve to consecrate his whoie life to their cause. In 1821, he began to puhlish the 'Genius of Univeral Emancipation,' which is to be considered the irat abolltion organ. The 19th contury can ecarcely point to another instance in witich the command of Christ, to leave all thlngs and follow him, was to llterally construed and followed. Lundy gave up his tlourishing business, took leave of his wife and of his two dearly beloved children, and began a restless, wandering life, to arouse consciences evcrywhere to a deeper understandIng of the sin and curse of slavery. In the autumn of 1829 he obtained, as associate puh. lisher of his shect, William L.loyd Garrison, a young litterateur, born in S"wburyport, Masaschusetts, who, from tie pos. lon of a poor apprencice to a tradesman, rosc to be a type-setter, and from being type-setter to be a journalist. The remnval oi son from New England to -altinos, where sundy was then publishing the 'Genius,' was an event pregnant with consequences. Garrison had long been a zcalons enemy of slavery, hut had hitherto seen the IIght way of doing away with the evil ln the ef. forts of the colonization society. What he now gaw of slavery and its effects with his own eyes produced a complete revoiution in his views in a few montlis. He not only recognized the lmpossibillty of preventing the extension of slavery by colonlzing the free negroes in A frica, to ssy nothlng of gradually doing away with it altogether but he became conrinced alsn that the ieadlr: spirits of the colonization society purposely sought to induce the philunthropists of the north to enter on a wrong courge, in the lnterests of slavery. Hence his own profession of falth was, henceforth, immediate and unconditional emancipation.' Ilis separation from the more moderate Lundy, whlch was rendered unaroldable hy thls course, was hastened hy an outside occurrence. The captain of a shlp from New England took on board at Batimore a cargo of slaves destlned for N゙cw Orleans. Garfison denounced inim on that account witl passlonate vielence. The matter was carried before the court, and he was sentenced to prison and to ?ay a mones fine for publishing a lifelousarticle and for criminally inciting slaves to Insurroction. After au imprisonment of seven weeks, hls fine was paid by a New Fork phllanthroplst, Arthur Tappan, uud Garrison left the clty to spread his conrictions by means of pubilc lectures through New England. Although his success was not very encouraging, he, in January, 1881, cstablished a paper of his own in Boston, known as 'The Llberator.' He was not only its publisher, and sole $w$ riter for it, but he had to he his own printer und carrier. His only assistant was a negro. . . . In one ycar, Garrison had foundi sn many who shared his views, that it was posslble to found the ' New England Anti-Siarery Society' in Bostou [.lnnuary, 1832]. The example was imltated in other states. The movement spread so rapidly that as early as Dccember, 1835, a 'national' anti-slavery convention eould le held in Philadelphia. The immediate practieal result of this was the foundation of the 'American Anti-Slavery Society.'... In the saine jear that Garrisult ralsed the standard of unconditionsl abolltloniam in Boston, in event happened in Virginia, which, from the opposite aide, contributed powerfully to lead the slavery question over Into lte new stage of derelopinent. In August, 1831, an uprislng of slaves, nuder the leadership of Nat. Turner, occurred in South. ampton eounty. It was, however, quickly sub. dued, hut cost the life of 61 white persons, moatiy women and children. The excltement throughout e entitesouth, and especially in Vlr. ginia and the states contiguous to lt, was out of all proportion with the number of the victimssnd the extent of the conspiracy. "-H. von Holst, Conat. und Pol. Hist. of the U. S., c. 2, ch. 2.

Aleo In: W. P. and F. J. Garrison, Hilliam Lhyd Garrison: The Story of his Life, 1. 1, ch. 6-0.-8. J. May, Recollection of the Anti-Slarery Confliet, pp. 1-40.-G. L. Austín, Lifo and Tinies of Wendell Phillipe, eh. 8.-0. Johnson, William Lloyd Garrison and his Times, eh. 1-5.-J. F. Rhodes, Hist. of the U. S. from 1850, ch. 1.-B Tuckerman, William Jay and the Conatitutional Movement for the Abolition of Slavery.
A. D. 1829-3837.-Emencipation in Mezico, resisted in Texam.-Schemes of the American slave power for acquiring that state. Bee Texas: A. D. 1824-1836; and Mexico: A. D. 1828-1837.
A. D. 1834-1838.-Emancipation in the British colonies.-"The abolition of slavery, as For had saidi, was the natural consequence of the ex. tinction of the slave trade; and in 1633 the sct for the Abolition of Sjavery throughout the British colonies was passed. The lnw was to take effect from the Erst of August 1834, but the siaves were to be apprenticed to thelr former owners till 1838 and in the case of agricultural slaves till 1840 , and $$ 20,000,000$ sterling were voted as compensation to the slare-holders at the Cape, In Mauritius, and in the West Indies. As a matter of fact, however, two colonles, Antigua and the Bermudas, had the good sense to dispense with the apprenticeship system altogether, and in no case was it prolongec beyond 1838

When Burke wrote, there were, according to his account, in the British West Indies at least 230,000 slaves agalnst at the nost 90,000 whites. In 1788 it is stated that there were 450,000 negrees in the British sugar colonies. At the last registration prior to emaneipation, after Britlsh Guiaua and Trinidad lad become British possessions, the number of slives was givea at some 674,000."-C. P. Lucas, ITist. Geog. of the British Colemies, r. 2, w, 6N-60.
A. D. 1835-1842.-Petitions against Slav-ery.-The Atherton Gag. Nee C:AHED STatis OF AM. : A. D. $1835 ; 183 \% ; 183 \hat{3}-183 \times ; 184 .$.
A. D. 1837.- The murder of Lovejoy. - Rer. Elijah P. Lovojos, publishing a religiou* puper that dealt frecily with sluvery, had been driven from St. Inonis to Alton, lil. There he was thrlce attackei by a moband lis press and printing materlals were destroyed. On the third at tack, which he and his friends resolutely resisted, he was killed. -J. C. and O. Lovejoy, Memetr of Rer. Elijuh P. Lorejoy.
A. D. 1840-1847. - The Liberty Party and League. - The Liberty Party whs formatl by anti-shavery men whu favored political artion against slavery, but not through the old Whig and Demormatio parties. In 1N4i lt breaue lif vided, and a separate boly whi formed which touk the tatue of the Liberty Leaghr, an! whith nominated Cerrit Smith for President, with Elihu Burritt for Vice-Prealdent. "An' distlngulahed from the other wiag, It may be sald that the members of the Liberty League were lema practical, more disposed to adhere to theories, and more fearful of macrifeing princlple to policy."-H. Whison, Hiad. of the Rive and Fall of the Slave Power in Am., v. 2, ch. 9.
Also Ex: W. Birney, James A. Birney and his Times, ch. 29 -See, aleo, United States or Ay.: A. D. 1840, and 1844.
A. D. I840-1860. - The Underground Railrond. -'The Underground Rallroad was the popular designationgiven [in the United States] to those systematic and co-operatlve efforta which were made hy the friends of the fleelng alave to ald him in eluding the pursult of the olave-huntern, who were generaliy on his track. This 'Institution,' as it was famillarly called, played an important part in the great drama of ilsvery and anti-slavery. Bf its timely and effective ald thousands were enahled to escape trom the prison-house of bondage. . The practical working of the syatena requirer? 'statifons at convenlent diatances, or rainer the houses of persons who held themselvea in readl. ness to recelve fugitives, slingiy or in numbers, at sny hour of day or night, to feed and shelter, to clothe If necessary, and to conceal until they could be despatched with safety to some other point along the route. There wers others who held themselves in Hike readiness to take them by privste or puhlic convegance. . When the wide extent of territory emhraced hy the Middle Btates and all the Western States east of the Mississippl is borne in mind, and it is remembered that the whole was dotted with these 'sta. tions.' and covered whth a nctwork of Imaginary routes, not found, indeed, In the railway guides or on the railway maps; that each statlon had its brave and falthful men and women, ever on the slert to seek out and succor the coming foet. tire, and equaliy intent on deceirlag and thwart. ing his pursuers; that there were always trusty and courageous conductors walting, ilke the minute-men' of the Rerolutlon, to take thelr living and preclous freights, otien by unfrequented roads, on dark and stormy nights, safely on their way; and that the numbers actuaily rescued were very great, many counting their trophies by hundreds, some by thnusands. two men being credited whit the lncredible estimate of over 2,500 each, - there are materials from which to eatlmate, approximately : least. the amount of labor performed, of cost and risk incurteit on the despised and deprecated Under. ground Railroni. "- 1 - Wilson. Hist, of the Rise and Fill of the slare Funer in Am., c. 2. ch.
ALwo IM: W. Sthl, The Cndergruund Railrond. M. G. MeDongai, Ahegitire Niuces ! (ay House
A. D. 1844. - Attempted insurrection in Cuba. See Cena: A D. 1514-18.51.
A. D. 1844-1845. - The annexation of Texas. Ste Texas: A. D. $1834-144$.
A.D. 1845-1846. The Wllmot Proviso. See Cinted States of Am. : A. D. 1845-1846.
A. D. $1850 .-C i a y ' s$ lagt "Compromise."The Fugitive Slave Law (with text). See limplidtates of Am.: A. D. 1850 (Mlarch), and (APril-SEPT).
A D. r852.- Uncle Tom's Cabin." See
LiAEl States or Au. A. D. 1852 .
A. D. 1854.-The Kanaas-Nebraske Bill.-

Repeai of the Missonri Compromice. See United States of Ax.: A. D. 18.4.
A. D. 1854- - Abolltion in Venezuela. See Veneztela: A. D. 1829-1888.
A. D. 1854-1855.-Solidification of aatialavery sentlyent in the North.-Birth of the Republicen Party of the United States. See United NTATES of Am.: A. D. 1854-1885.
A. D. 1854-1859. - The struggle for Kansas. See Kansas: A. 1. 1854-1858.
A. D. $1856 .-$ Abolitlon in Peru. See Perv: A. D. $1826-1876$.
A. D. 1857.- The Dred Scott case. See United States of Am. : A. D. $185 \%$.
4. D. sess.-John Brownat Harper's Ferry. Se United States of Am. A D. 8858 .
A. D. 1860-1865.-The shaveholders' RebelHlor in the United States. See United States and After. A. D. 1860 (Noveyber-Decemater), and after.
A. D. 186 s (May). - The Grat war-thrast. Geaerai Butter declares the siaves to be Contraband of War. See Uivited States or AM.:
A. D. 1861 (iIAy).
A. D. $186 x$ (Auguat).-Act of Congrens freeIng alaves employed in the nervice of the Rebellion. See United States of Ax. : A. D. 1881 (Avocst).
A. D. $186 \mathbf{1}$ (Auguast - September). - Fremont's prematnre Proclamation of Emancipn:tion In Missouri, and Lincoln's modification of it. See United States of Am: A. D. 1861 (AI AUAT-October: Miseouri).
A. D. 1862. - Coinpenss?ed Emanclpation proposed hy President Lincoln. See UNited States of Am.: A. D. 1862 (Mahch) President Lincoln's propobal of cumperbated emancl-pation. Pation
the Imended Militar officers forhidden, hy the imended Military Code, to surrender tugitive slaves. Sce timted States of Am. : A. D. 1862 (MARCH) A MENDMENT OF THE MIL:
TARY CODE.
A. D. 1862. - Aholition in the District of Coiumhia and the Territories of the United States. See United States of Am. : A. D. 1862 (APRIL-JUNE).
A. D. 1862.-Genery Hunter's Emanclpation Order, rescinded hy President Lincoln. See United States of Am. A. D. 1862 (May) General Huxter's enancipation order.
A. D. 1862 . First arming of the Freedmen in the War for the Union. See Ux, Fi:d States of Aar. : A. D. 1862 (Mat: South Ca holina).
A. D. 1862.-Gradual Emancipation in West Virginia provided for. see WEST Viromist A. B. 1809 (APril-DECEMBER).
A. D. 1862.-Act confiacatiny the property and freeing the siaven of Rehels. See UiNITED States or Am. : A. D. 1862 (Jcly).
A. D. i86z- Pre
A. D. 1862.- President Lincoln's preliminary or monitory Proclamatlon of Emancipation. Sre Enited Statrs of AMr. : A. D. 1862 (SEPTEMber) (September).
A. D. 1862.-Abolition in the Dutch West Indiea. See Netmeriando: A. D. $1830-1884$
A. D. 1863.-Prenident Lincoln's fnal Proclamation of Emancipatlon. See United States of Am : A. D. 1863 (Janeary).
A. D. 1864 -Repeal of tie Fugitive Slave Laws. Sec Lsittid States of Lu. : A. D. 1864
(Juse).
A. D. 1864, - Conatitntional abolition of slaver in Lovivisma. Bee Unrted Bratia or Am.: A. D. 18 I 1894 (DEcEMBER-JULY).
A. D. 1865, - inption of the Thirteenth Amendment to s.is Conctitution of the United Statee, forever prohibiting siavery. See Unitred gratem or Am.: A, D. 1803 (Janvart).
A. D. 1865. - Abolition in Tennessee by Conetitutional Amendment. See Trwnmeore: A. D. 1885-1468.
A. D. 1865.-Emancipation of the familiee of colored coidlers. See United Statee or Am. : A. D. 1865 (March).
A. D. $1869-2893$. The ciave-trade in Africa and the European measuree for ite cuppresslon. - "While Livingstone was making his tersibie disciosure respecting the havoc wrought by the siave-trader in enst central Afria, Bir Samuel Baker wae striving to eflect in north central Africa what has been so succes. fully accomplished in the Congo State. During his expedition for the discovery of the Aibert Nyanza, his expiorations led him through one of the principal man-hunting regions, wherein murder and spoiliation were the constant occupa. tions of powerful bands from Egypt and Nubia. These revelations were foilowed by diplounatic pressure upon the Khedive Ismail, and through the personai influenee of an august personage lie was finaliy induced to delegate to Slr Samuel the task of arresting the destructive careers of the alavers in the region of the upper Nile. In his book Ismailia we have the record of his opera. tions by himself. The firman issued to him was to the effect that he 'was to subdue to the Khe. dive's authority the countries to the south of Gondokoro, to suppress the siave trade, to introduce a system of reguiar commerce, to open to navigation the great lakes of the equator, and to estabilsh a chain of military stations and commereial depots throughout central Africa.' This mission began in 1889, and continued until 18\%4. On Baker's retirement from the command of the equatoriai Soudan the work was intrusted to Coionei C. G. Gordon-commoniy known as Chinese Gorion. Where Baker had broken ground, Gordon was to build; what his pre. decessor had commenced, Gordon was to perfect and to complete. If energy, determination and seit-sacrifice received their due, then had Gorion sureiy won for the Soudan that peace and security which it was his dear object to cbtain for it. But siaving was an ohi institution in this part of tiae worid. Every habit and custom of the peopie had some connection with it. They had always been divided from prehistoric time lato enslavers and ensiaved. How could two Englishmen, accompanied by oniy a handiful of officers, removed 2.000 miles from their hase of suppiles, change the nature of a race within a fow sears? Though much wrong had been avenged, many thousands of slaves released, many a siaver's camp scatterei, and many striking exampies mute to terrify the evil-doers, the region was wide and iong; and though witinin reach of the Nile waters there was a faint promise of improvement, elsewhere, at Kordufan, Darfoor, and Sennaar, the trade flourished. After three Fears of wonlerful work, Gordon resigned. A short time afterwands, however, he resumed his task, with the powerm of a dictator, over a region covering $1,100.000$ square miles. But the personal courage, energy, and devotion of one man opposed $t 0$ a race can effect but tittie. After another perind of thrre yesry he again reaigned. Then followed a revulston. The Khedivial government reverted to the old order of things.

Ali traces of the work of Baker and Corion have long ago been compietely ohilterated. Attention hee been given of iate to Morocco. This near neighbor of Eing. iand is juat iwenty yeara behind zanzilar. Whlie the heart of Airica reeponds to the civiliz. ing influences moving from the east and the west and the south, Morocco remains stupidiy indiffer. ent and inert, a pitiful exampie of senility and decay. The remaining portion of North Ifrica whieh etili fosters ainvery is Tripuli. The arcipation of Tunis by France has diverted such trafic in siares as it maintained to its nelghtor, Though the watchfuiness of the Mediterrnnean cruisert renders the trade precarious onc, the smail lateen boats are frequentiy able to sail from such porta as Benghazf, Derna, &oium, ste, with living freight, along the coast to Asia Minor. In the interior, which is inaccessible to traveilers, owing to the fanaticism of the semonal sect, caravans from Darfoor and Wadal bring large numbers of siaves for the suppiy of Tri. polltan families and Senoulscian sanctuaries.

The partition of Africa among the European powers [by the Berin Conference of 1885 and the Angio-German Convention of 1 H00 - see AFRICA: A. D. 1884-1891] $\qquad$ was the tirst effective biow dealt to the -inve trade in inner Africa. The east coast, whence a few rears ago the slaves marched in battalions to scitter over the wlde interior of the continent for piliage and devastation, is to day guaried by German and British troops. The island of Zanzibar, where they were equipped for their murderous enterprises, is under the British fing.

The final biow has been given by the act of the Irussils Antisiavery Conference, lately [180:3] matitied by the powers, wherein modern civilization has fuily deciared its opinions upon the question of siavery, and no singie power wiil dare remain indifferent to them, under penaity of oblorpuy and shame. . . The Congo State devotes her annual subsidies of $£ 120,000$ and the export tax of $£ 30,000$ Wholiy to the task of seeuring her territory against the malign influences of the siave trade, and eievating it to the ranis of wif. protecting states. The German \& undertakes the sure guarilanship c African territory as an imperiai posses to render it inaccessible to the slave-1 The coast towns are fortifled and they [the Germans] are making the. towards Lake Tanganika by the el military stations; severe regulations have twea issued against the importation of arms sal gunpowder; the Reichstag has been unstinted in its supplies of money ; an experienced administrator. Baron von Soden, has been appointeri an imperial commissioner, and scores of qualised subordinates assist him. $\qquad$ So far the expeases, think, have averaged over $£ 100,000$ annually." - H. M. Stanieg, Slavery and the Slare Trude in Africa (1898).

Also IN: IR. F. Ciarke, Cardinal Larigerie and the African Slare Trade, pt. 2.
A. D. 1871-1888. - Emancipation in Brezil. See Brazil.: A. I). 1871-1888.
A. D. 1880-1886. Abolition in Cuba, See Ccba: A. 1). 1845-1845.

SLAVES AND OLADIATORS.

slavonic peoples and lanauage.

SLAVES AND GLADIATORS

 of the. Nee Spantacte, llisimo op.SLAVONIC PEOPLES AND LAN-GUAGE,-"The name under which the Sia. vonians appear in aacient ilterature is generaily Venedl or Feneti. . . . This iame, unknown to the Siavoninns themseivem is that hy which the Teutonic tribes have from the frat deniganted these their eastern neighbours, viz. Wend, and the une of this appeilition hy the firman authora piainiy shows that their knowiedige of the Sin. ronians was derived only from the Germans. The Oid German form of this name was Wineda, and Wenden is the name which the Germana of the prement day glve to the remmants of a Sin. vouic population, formerly inge, who now inhablt Lusntin, whilie they give the nnme of Win. den to the Slovens in Cariathia, Carniola and Styria. . . If the Slavonians themseives ever spplied nny common name to the whole of their family, it must inout probahiy have been that by which we now are accustomed to cali them, Slave, or Siavonians: It original native form was Slovene. . . The most ancient wources from which we derive a knowiedge of the Wends or Slavonians, unanimously place them by the Vistula. From that river, which must have formed their wentern frmatier, they exteaded eastward to the Dnleper, and even beyond. To the souti, the Carpnthians formed their boundary. To the north they perhaps crossed the Dwina into the territory nfterwards known as Yovgorod. In the extenalve woods and marsines which cover these remote tract the Navunians seem to have dweit In peace and quiet iluring the first centuries after Christ, divided into a number of smali trlbes or clans.

It was not long, however, before thicir primitive home became too narrow for the siavs, and as thelr numbers could no longer be containem within their anclent boundaries-and, perhaps, compeiled to it hy pressure from with. out - they hegan to spread themseives to the West, iu which direction the great migrations of the fourth and fifth centurle. had made ahun dant room for the new immigrants. By two different roads the Slavs now begin to advance to grat masses. On the one slde, they cross the Vistuif and extend over the tracts between the Csrpathlan mountains and the Baltic, rigit down to the Eibe, the former Germanic popuia.
tion of this region having either emigrated or tion of this region having either emigrated or been exhausted by thcir Intestine contests and thefr deadiy struggie with the Roman empire. By this same road the Poles, and prohably niso the Chekhs of Bohemia and Moravia, reached the districts they have inhnilited siace that perfod. In the rest of this western territory the Sinvo. nians were nfterwards aimost exterminnted during their hloody wars with the Germans, so that hut few of their descendants exist. The other mod by which the Sinvoninns advanced lay to the south-west, niong the course of the Danube. These are the o-cailed South-Siavonians: the Bulgarians, the Servians, the "Croatians, and firthest westward, the Slovens."-V. Thomsen, Relations between Ancient Risosia and Scandinacia, ket. 1.-" A controversy has been maintained re, apecting the origin of the name [Siave]. The fact that. It has become among ourselves a yynonyme of servitude, does not of course determite fits real meaning. Thowe who bear it, naturally dignify ita import and themmelven by andgning on it the aigalifeation of chory' $;-$ the Sla voniaus to themselves are, therefore, "the giorious race.' But the truth seems to be, that 'Slava' in its primitive meaning, was nothing but 'speech,' and that the seconilary notiona of 'fama,' 'gioris,' foliowed from this, as It doea in other tongues. ['If I know not the meaniag of the volce. I shaf bo unto him that speaketh a barbarinn, and he that speaketh shall be a harbarian unts me.' I. Corinthians, xiv. 11.]. Sinve or Slavonian was, therefore, nothing more than the gentile appeliative, derived from the une of the national tongue, and inlitended as nntithetical to 'foreigner.' In the ancient historic worid, the Sinves played an insigniticant part. Some have identffled them with the Scythinns of IIerodotum. . . Like the Celts, they seemed deatined to be driven into corners in the old worid."- J. a. Sheppard, The Fall of Rome, lect. 8. - Bee Slave: Oriets, &e. -"The Wendic or Slar group [linguai] came Into Europe during the fint ofve ceaturien of our ern; it if divided lnto two grent hraaches, Eastern and Weatern. The first includes Russinn. Grent Ruasian in West Centrai Ruasia Little Ruasinn, Rusniac, or Ruthene in the mouth of Russia nad even into Austria, ... Servian, Croatian, Slovenic, and Buigarian, of which the most anclent form is to the whole group what Gothic is to the German dialects; modern Bul. garian is, on the contrary, very much nitered.

The western hranch covered from the 7tb to the 9 th century vant districts of Germany in which only German is now known: Pomeranin, Meckienhurg, Brandenhurg, Saxony, Weatern Bohemia, Austria, Styrla, and Northern Carin. tifia. Though now much restricted, it can stili West numercus diniects; among others the Wendic of Lusatin, which is dying out, Tzecil or Bohemian, which is very vigorous (ten milifons), of which n rariety, Siovac, is found in Hungary; lastiy, Poilsh (ten mililionis)." $\mathbf{A}$. Lefèvre, Race and Lnnguage, pp. 239-240.-See, aiso: Aryana; Sarmatia; and Scythianis.
6-7th Centuries. - win :tions and setticmeqta. -"'The moven of the Avars in the sixth century [see Arar. seem to have had much the same effect upc the Siaves which the movements of the Huns in the fourth century had upon the Tcutons.

The Sinven seem to have been driven by the Turanian incursions in two directions; to the North.west and to the South-west. The North-western division gave rise to more than one Europenn state, and their relations with Germany form an important part of the history of the Weatera Empire. These North. Weatern Siaves do not become of Importance tili n little fater. But the Bouth. western division playa a great part in the history of the sixth and seventh centuries.

The Slaves play in the East, though fess thoroughly and less hrilliantly, the same part, half conqu:r. ors, haif discipies, which the Teuton played in the West. During the sixth century they appenr only as ravagers; in the seventh they appenr as settlers. There seems no douht that Heracilus encouraged Sia vonic settiements south of the Danube, douhtlese with a view to defence agninst the more dangerous Avars.
ber of Slavonic states thus arose in the num. ber of Slavonic states thus arose in the lianda north and east of the Hadriatle, tus Servia, gLavonic peoples and language.

Daimatia now became slavonic, with the exceptlon of the meritime citien. The Slaves primexd on into a large part of slacedonia snd Grrece."-E., A. Fremmsn, Hidoriral Weng. of Burope, eh. s, eref. 4.-Bee, sigo, Balyas and Daycuian Statze : ith Cextunt.

SLESWIG. See Schlewwio.

SLIDING SCALE OF CORN DUTIES. mit Tarity Lehihlation (England); A. D. $1 \times 15-1 \times 2 N$; and 1843.
SLIVNITZA, Battle of (8885). Bee Balean and Dantitan states: A. D. 1878 - 1880 (1ULL(6) $1: 14$ )

SLOBADYSSA, Pattic of (8660). See Po. LAND: A. I). 1608-1046. slovenes, The. Bee Slavonic Peoplem.
SLUYS: A. D. 1587.-Siege and capture by the Spaniards. See Netiliklands: A. D. 158i-1588.
A. D. 8604.-Taken by Prince Marice of Nascau. See Netuerlands: A. D. 1594-1609.

SLUYS, Battie of ( 8340 ). -The firat great naval victory of the English, won hy Edwardill., who destroyed a French fleet in the harbor of Sluys.

SMalkAlde, League of. See Germany : A. 1). 1530 - 1.582.

SMALL-POX, AND VACCINATION. See Plagee, etc.: 8-18th Centtries ; and Memeal. Science: 18th Centuit.

FYERWICK, Masaacre of (1580). See Irki.nvD: A. D. 1539-1043.

SMITH, Captain John American rojagea and adventures. See Vusbixia: A. D. 180:18i1), and 1640-1616; also, Ayerica: A. D. 1614 1615.

SMITH, Joseph, and the founding of Mor monism. See Mohmontsm.

SM1TH, Sir Sidney, and the slege of Acre. Ner France: A. 1). if98-1:99 (Atucat-Ac: ol'st).

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

SMITH COLLEGE. Bee Edecaton, Modkas: REMOMA, &C.:A. ID. 1M4-1N01. SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, The. Iamen Nmithoon, on Engllamian, whi dieni in 1Ney, left him property by wiil to the United States of Ameriea, :or the founding of " m . establishment for the increame and diffumion ot knowledge amoni men." The bequent was ar. cepted by the Cintuel States goverament, and the fund deriven from it, amountigg to ahout 8 Hi . ONO, was s.ppilimi to the creation of the smith aonian Insiltution, organized at Washingtion in 1846. The Inatitution, as planned by I'rifesemer Jomeph llenry, lts frst secetary, has two ob jecte, nemely: to promote origina! investigntion and study in science or iiterature, and to mesis? the diffumion of knowiedge hy interchangen br. tweeu men of iearning every where. In lowh directions it han done a great work. The Nutional Slunenm of the United States, deffintely cronted in 1870, is aswoclated with the Smithmoninn intitition, under lis cuntody and direction. The Cinted Ntates Bureau of Ethnology is in working connection with it, and the Anerican lilistorical Asmeciation is on amiliated society. In 1 wel the Institution recelved a gift of $0: 000,000$ from Thomas G. Iloigkins of Netauket. N. Y.

SMOLENSK, Battic of. Sec Rewsia : A. D. 1812 (JUNE-SEPTVMBER).

SMYRNA: Turkish massacre of Christisns (88as). See Grvack: A. D. 1821-1 1821.
SNAKE INDIANS, The. See Ammman Ahbithiven: Shomitinean Familis.

SNUFF-TAKERS, The. Hee L'sited Statea of AX. : A. 1. 1850).
SOBIESKI, John, and his deiiverance of Vienna. See Pol.and: A. D. 1688-1696; and Hlenoahr: A. D. $1868-1888$.

SOBRAON, Bsttie of (1846). See ixms: A. i) $1 \times 4 \cdot 5-1 \times 19$.

SOBRARBE, Kingdom of. Ser sirin A. 1). $113,3,-12.58$

SOCAGE TENURE. - FREESOCAGE. See Feudal Teseres.

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

Communism.-Socialism.-Labor-orga nization.

Utopias, Ancient and Modern.-"speculn tive Communism has a hriilinnt history. It bexins about six hundred years before Chriat with Phaieas of Chaicedon, whom Militon speaks of as the first to recommend the equalization of property in iand. Piato favors Communism. In the fifth book of the 'IRepublic,' Socrates is made to advocate, not mereiy community of gooxis, but niso community of wives and children. This was un after dinner debauch in the groves of the Acadeny, as Miltou too severely suggests. it was a logical conclusion from a mistaken prem. ise.

The ldenl aimed at was the unity of the State, whose pattern appears to have been jartly Pythagorean, and partiy Spartan. In regard to property, the formulated purpose was, not to aboilsh weaiti, lut to aboliah poverty. In the 'Laws' (v. 13). Piato would aliow to the richest clitizen four times as much income as to the proreat. In regard to women, the alm was not sensual induigence, hut the propagatlon and rearing of the titlest oflapring. This community of wlves ani
'diren was for the ruling clase oniy: not for w. ausbandmen. nor for the artid. cers. So also, probuibly, the community of goods. We say probably, for the scheme is nut wrought out in all its details, and Pinto himself had no hope of recing hils dream sealizal till kings are philosophers, or pilitosopiers are kings. The echnes of this Piatonic sjeculation have leen loud and long. Atrout the year 316 B . C. Evemer:s, sellt eastwand by Cassander, King of Macedon, on a voyage of sclentific discovery, reports in his 'Sacred liatory' the finding of an fsland which he calls Panchaia, the seat of a Repubilc, whose citizens were divideni into the three cissses of Priests, Hushandmen, and Sol. diers; where all property was common: and aii were happy. In 1516 Sir Thomas More pubHished hal 'Utopia:' evldently of Fintonic inspiration. More also chose au isiand for his politicai and sociai Paradise. He had Crete in mind. His isiand, crescent-shaped, and 200 nilies wide at the wideot puint, contained 54 citica. It ond community of zoods, but not of women. The Clvita Solfs of Cempaeolfa, puhtiohed in 168s, was fa fmitation perhaps of Sore's Uto. pis.' This Clty of the Bun stood on a mountala In Coylon, under the equator, and had a commu. sity both of foods and of women. About the mame time Lord Bacon amused himeelf by writing the 'Now Atiantis,' a mere fra pment, the porch of abuliding that was never foniched. In the great ferment of Cromwelf's time the 'Oceane' of Herrington appenred (1666); a book famous in Itt day, with high traditionni repute ever alnce, but now seidom read pxcept by the very few who feuf themacives called upon to master the literaturs of the subject. Hallam pronounces It aduii, peda! ic hook; and nobody diaputea the verdict. $H$ :riugton advocaten a division of land, an one to have more than two thnumand poumbs' (ten thousand rollars') worth. The up. abot of it afl would be, a modernte ariutocracy of the middie classes. Sucb books befong to sclass by themselves, which may be called PoeticoPolitical; asthetic, scholarly, bumane, and hope. ful. They are not andremsed to the manses. If they make revolutions, it is only in the fong run. They are not battles, nor half batties, but only the bright wifd dreami of tired coldiers in the panee of battles. Communiatic books with iron In them. . . are not modern only, bilt recent. Modern Communisin, now grown so suriy and savage everywhere, began mildly enough. As n syatem, it is moatly French, name and all. The famous writern are Salnt-Simou, Fourier, Consdjerant. Proudhon, Cabet, und Louls Blanc. "H. D. Hitehcock, Socialism, pp. $98-86$.

Almo IK: M. Ksufmann, Ltopius.
Definition of Torms: Sociallem. - Commun-ism,- Colisctiviem.-" As corinlism has been most powerful and must studied on the Contlnent, It may be interesting to compnre the defini. tions given by wome leading Freach nnd Ger. man cconomiats. The great tierman economist Ruscher defines it as including 'those tendencles Which demnnd a greater regarif for the common weal than consists with human nature.' Adolf L.did says that 'we runy detine as socialistic every tendency which denunds the subordination of the indivilusi will to the community. Janet mure precisely defines it as follows:- We caii sociaism every doctrine which teaches that the State has $n$ right to correct the inequailty of weaith which exist among men, nnd to legaliy establish the haiance by taking from those who have too much in onder to give to those who hare not cnough, and that in n permanent man. ner, and uot in sueh nnd such a partieular case famine, for instance, a pubiic caiamity, ets.' Laveleyc explains it thus: In the first jiace, every soclafistic doctrine aims at introducing greater equality in social conditions; and in the second place nt reaiising those reforms by the law or the State. Von Scheel simply detinea it as the ecoanomic philosophy of the auffering classes.' "-T. Kirkup, A IIistory of Sucialiom, infrod -"The economic quintessel."g of the wciaistle programme, the rcai aim of the Internationai movement, is as follows. To repiace the system of private capital (i. e. the specuintive methonl : production, regulated on behaif of wciety unty ly the free competition of private enterprises) hy a system of coilective capltal, that is, by a nuethov if production which would introduce s unified social or colfective') organ-Isation of national Isbour, on the baets of collec. live or comnion ownerahip of the meame of production by all the members of tha soclety. this collective method of production would remove the present competitive ayatem, by placing under ofticlal administration such deparmento of production as can be mauaged collectively (anclaily or co-operatively), as well as the diatribution smong sil of the common produce of sif, according to the amount and modill utilty of the productive is apur of ewch. This represents in the shortent posalbie formula the afm of the soclalism of to-day." - A. Schithe. I... Quintcearnce of Saciuliam, pp, 8-4.-"Mochulism, While it may afmit the state's right of property over against anotherstate, don a way with ali ownersilip, on the part of memivery of the state, of thinge that do not perish in the using, or of their own labor in creating materiai profucts. Its first and inat polfcy is in prevent the nequisition or excle'ive use of capital, oy any permin or mosoclation under the control of the atate, with the exception, per. haps, of articfes of luxury or enjoyment procur d by the aavings of wages. No savinge can give rice to what is properfy called cnpital, or means of production in private bnnile. ...Communlam, in ite ordinary signification, is a satem or form of common life, in which the right of pHvate or family property is aboilshed by law. mutual consent, or row. . . . Collectivism, Which is now used by German ins well as by French writers, denotei the condition of a com. munity when its nflini, is, espectaliy lts industry, Is managed in tive collective way, Inetead of the methoi of separate, individual effort. It has. from ita derivation, some ulvantage orer the Tague worl soclallam, winch may laciude many Vnrieties of associated or united ilfe."-T. D. Woolsey, Communimm and Scciulimm, pp. 1-8.

A. D. 2720-800.-Origin of Trades Unions In England. -' A Trade Union, ns we under. stnad the term, is a continuous assoclation of wage-earners for the purpose of mnintaining or improving the conditions of their employment.

We have, by our definition, expresely ex. cluded from our history nny account of the innumerable instances in which tise manuaf workers have formed ephemeral comhinations against their social superiors. Strikes nre ns old si hlatory itseif The ingenlous seeker of historical paralieis might. for instance, tin. 1 In the revolt, B. C. 1490, of the Hebrew brickmakern In Egypt againat being required to make hricks without straw, a curlous precedient for the strike of the Staiy bridge cotton-spinners, A. D. 1892, ngainst "te auppiy of had material for their work. But we cannot sertously regnrd, in in any way anslogous to the Trade Union slovement of to-day, the innumerabie rebeliions of subject races, the siave insirrectling, and the semi-servile peassat revolts of which the nanals of history are fuil.

When, however, we pass from the annail of siavery or sel fiom to those of the nominaily free citizenship of the mediavnil town, we are on more debatahic ground. We make no pretence to a thorough knowledge of English town-ife in the Middle Agcs. But it is ciear that there were nt ail times, nlongside of the ladependent master craftsmen, a number of hired journeyn :n, whe are known to have o casionally combined agalnat their ruiers and governors

After detalied consideration of every published instance of a journeyman's fraternity in England, we are fully

BOCLAL MOVEMENTE.

sOCIAL MOVEMENTE.

conalaced that there la met no evilence of the existence of any such durahle and Indepentiont comhination of wage-earnera againat thelr employere during the likdie Ages. There are certaln other cames tu which maxciatione, which are onmethnew namment to have been cimponed of fourneymen maintalnal a continuous eximtence. Int in alf thewe cases the 'lluchehors' Company, presninud to tre a gourneymen's Praternity, firment a sulvirilnnte dejmar ont of the masters glld, by the rulers of whlels ti was governed. It will ix ohvions that amerintions in whlels the ent. plogers ditspenmed the tunda anil appuintef the ofticern can bear to analogy to numiern Trule L'nlomes. Tinc explmantlon of the tarily growth of stuble conablastion umoneg hirni fourueymen In, we belleve, to be fonnd in the biromperts of ecoumonle aivancenent which the allied fumill. craftoman atill pomemari. . . . The apprenticed journeyman in the akliled hanilicafts tweionged. untll comparatively mombern thaes, to the same anclal grule ain hil cmployer, and wam, lnderd, unanliy the son of manter In the mane or an anologons truile. so long us industry was ar. ried on numbly hy mail unatem, cheh emidioglog but one of two Journeymen. the perion of mily energetic matis merviee ns a hirm wnge-earner cannot nornally have excembed a few yearm.
Cnder men a sytem of luduntry the journeymen womld fosates the same prospecte of economic adivancement that hiudered the growth of atahle fomblaations in the ordlnary handlerafts, and In thlin fact may the the exphation of the striking absence of evidence of any Traile Cinionism in the bultilng trwies right down to the end of the elghternth reatury. When, however, the cmpltullat builder or contractor legan to superwede the master mason, muster plasterer, dec., and thls chas of small elltepreneurs hal again to give place to a hlerarchy of hlred workers. Trade Colous, in the molern wenae, legan, as we shall see. to arlse. We hnve dwelt at mome length upon these ephemeral assoclations of wageearners and on the jourueymen fraternitles of the Middie Ages. because it might plausthy be argued that they were in some sense the predecessors of the Trude Colon. But atrangely enough it is not in there institutions that the origh of Trade Conlonism has usnaily been songht. For the preflecessor of the modern Truite Cinon, men linve turned, not to the medleral assoctathons of the wage-earners, but to those of thelr employers - that is to say, the Craft Gilds. . . The supposed descent of the Trade C'nions frons the medheval Craft Glld rests, as fur us we have been able to discover, upon no evidence whatacere. The listurical pronf is alt the other way, Iu London, for instance, more than one Trade linion bas preserved an unhroken exlstence from the elghteconth century. The Craft Gllds stlll exlst in the Clty Companies, and at no polnt In their history do we find the silghtest evidence of the lranchlag off from them of Inds gepr! - Journeymen's socletles.

We hav. $\quad$ a discover, clther In the Innumerahle trade panphlets and broat-sheets of the ilnie, of In the slouraals of the llonse of Commons, any evhience of the existence, prior to 1700 , of conthuous associations of wage earners for mala. tillulng or improving the condiltons of their empheyment. And when we remember that diring the latter decades of the surenternth mentury the employers of labour, aud especiaily the industrial 'companies' op corponations, memorlatised the lloum of Conmons on every conceivable grter. ance which stected theit particular trute, the absence of ail compleinte of workmenis comblan. thons mugegerf to ue that mo euch comhlantiona existed. In the eariy yeare of the eightreath century we ind leoteted complainte of comblas. thons 'lateiy eatered lato' by the akilioni vorkers in certain trades As the century progrremes we wateh the grad it multipilcation of theme :om. plaints, met hy ounter accusations prementeri by organised bodies of workmen.

If we ex. arnine the evidence of the tise of comhinathus in particular trades, we see the Trade C'nion upring. ing, sot from any particuiar inatitution, hut from every opportunty for the tuerling logether of wage earnern of the same trmie. Jiam smith remarked that ' people of the mane trinle oplitua meet together, even for merrinurat and diversina, but the converation ende in anompracy maninst the puhlic, of $\ln$ some contrivance to ralw fithe. Ind there factual evidence of the rime of one of the oldest of the exlating Trade Unlons ont of a gathering of the journeymen to tuke n melal pint of jorter lugether.' More often ll is a 14. multuous strike, out of which grows a perma. went organlatlon.

If the tracte ly vie in which the Journeymen irequently travel in murdh of work, we note the slow elaboration of nyatrm. atic arrangemente for the relief if tbre 'tramps by thelr fellow.workers In each towa through which they pass, and the inevitalike Mis. aage of thla farextenilng traniplng suchty lutu a natlonal Trate C'aion.

We find that at the beglanlag of the elghteenth century the Ispical journeyman tailor in Lomion aud il wiminater had become a lifelong wage-earucr. It is wot surprialng therefore, that one of the carliont ia. atance of permanent Trade CZnfunlmm that wa have been able to dlecover occurs in this traite. The master tallors in 1720 coupplain to l'arlia. ment that "the Journeymen Taylors in and atout the Citles of London and Westminnter, to the number of seven thousand and upwurils, has: lately entered lnto a combination to rulse their wages and leave off worklag an hour moner than they used to do; and for tic better carrying na their design have subecribed their rexpective names in book prepared for that purposer, at the ecveral houses of call or resort (being pubu' houses In and about London and Wistminster) where they use; and collect several considerade suma of money to defend ahy prosecutions agalnst them.' Parliament liatened to the masters' complaint, and passed the Act f. Geo. I. at, 1, c. 18, reatraining both the giving and the tik. Ing of wages in excese of a stated muximurn, all combination belng prohihlted. Frim that thene forth the journeymen tiilors of lamilun ad Westminater have remained lin effectlve though sometlmes informal comblnation, the organisution centring round the fifteen or twenty buruses of call.'"-8. and B, Wehh. The Ifistory of Trade. Cnionicm, ch. 1.
A. D. 1753-179\%.-Mahly, Morelly, and the consplracy of Babceuf, in France.-"If Rousseans cannot be numbered among the commualstlc writers, atrictl; so called, two of his contemporaries, Mahly and Moreliy - the first mure a dreamer, the second of a more practical spirit - deserve that title.

In the sucial theory of Mably, lnegiallty of concticion is the great cwil in the world

Stably was a theorist wio sliruak beck from the practical appllcation of his own theortes. The exthhllehment of community of goods. ad even risquality of firt unew, he dared not ad. scate. "The evll,' he says, 'ls too laveterate for the hope of a cure. And to he sdvised halt menaures - agratian laws tixlog the maxlean of lamled eatates, and sumptuary laws rezulating expences.

Morelly, whowe rilacipal works are a communtatle porm, called the Baelliade: (1859) and 'The Code of Nature ' (1755), is called by arench witer one of the mot obecure au. thom of the latt century. But be knew what he wented, and had courage to tell lt to others.
Burelly's power on subsequent oplnlon conalite la his belng the trit to put drewms or theortes into a code: frotn whlch thape it seomed eaty to fasatical minds to carry it out lato action. IIs otarting proint Is that men can be made gocd or evll by instlutiona. Private property, or av rice called out hy It, is the source of all vlee. sce, where no property exleted there would opmar anoe of lis pernlclous consequences., In 1782. Briset de Warvlle lavented thr sase, used afterward hy Proudhon. Proprléto ceat lo vol. : Twelve rears afterwand a war agalost the rich began, and such meanure al a manimum of property and the abolltion of the right to malte alll were agltated. But the right of property prevalled, and grew stronger after each out res futlon. In 1798 the conspiracy of the Equalf, us as it is generally called, of babcuif, Was the Sual and desperate measure of a portion of those Jacoblns who had been stripped hy the fall of Robesplerre ( $\ln 1794$ ) of polltical power. It was the lant hope of the extreme revolutionists. for men were gettlig tlred of agltatlons and wasted reat. Thls consplracy seems to have beea fomented ly Jacohlus in prison; and it is sald that one of tirin, who wan a bellever In Morelly and had his Worli in hle hands, expounded lis doctrlacs to bls fellow-prlsoner Babauf. When they were set at llberty hy on amnesty law. there was successful effort made to hring together the soclety or sect of the Equals: but li was fouad that they were not all of one mlod. Bah. auf was for thorough measures - for a cum. muntiy of goods and of labor, an equallty of conlitions abil of comforts. . There was a secre commlttee of the soclety 1 c Equals, as well as an open soclety. The latues cxcitcd the staplelon of the Directory, and an order was Iveu to suspend Its sesslons In the Puntl .0 on (or church of St. Genevleve). The orler wis cxe cutel by Bonaparte, then general of tuw army of the Interlor, who dispersed the members an: $p$ at seal un the al wors of the place of 1 l .ia's.
lext the Equals won ov ? inst the Equals won ov : . hody of the wit e into thelr measures; anit i! en this lorce sus dishandent by the Direc: , he Equals cstabmitice was uuccessful in hringlng as many as mittee Was uccessful in hringlag as many as sisty of the party of the mountain luto their ranks, and an lnsurrectlon was projected. Seven. tern thousand fightlog men were calculated upon hy the consplrators as at thelr disposal. But an officer of the army whom they had tried to hring Into thelr plote dencunced them to the Directory. The leading consplrators were arrested [1797]. Babrenf and Darthé sutfered death, and flve othens were banlshed. "- T. D. Woolsey. Commu niem ant sxialiem, pp. 97-104.
A. D. 1774-1675- The Commuaities of the Shakers, See Sanvera
A. D. illoo-1324.-Robert Owea.- Hila az ferlmanta at New Lanark and hlo New Harmeny Soclat\%.-"Whilnt lo France the hurr. cane of the levolutlon swept over the land, In Eiaglanil a fuleter, but mot on that account lem tremulidnis, revolinton was polng on. Steam and the sew toul maklag machlnery werv trana. firming nunufact are lnto nowlern induatry, and thua revolutlotalsiug the whole found tion of bourgeols welety.

With constantly locreas. lag swiftnems the spilting-up of anclety lato large capltullsts and hon-promenslag prolelartans went on. Ih'tween these, Insteud of the former stable mbldie.clans, an unstable maw of artimang and sumall shopkeepers, the mont ductuating portion of the populutlon, of led a precartous exlatence. The new mode of proluction was, yet, only at the lreginning of lts perlad of ascent; as Jet it was tho normal, regular metbod of production - the only one pooslbie unler existlas conilitlons. Neverthelems, even then it wat producloy crylng moclal abuses. . A: thls juncture there ame forwarl as facturer 29 years old -n $n$ chllitllke simpllelty of chi
1.1
1.1 riner a manu. fime one of thely of chr imont sublime ou at the sama Ime one of the few born : whe re f men. Robert OWen had adoptel the tear $\qquad$ of the matarial. lstle phllowopliers: that mar's character is the provlure. on the one hand, of beredly, on the other, of the eavironment of the ladividual dur. lug his ilfetime, and enpeclul! l during hls pertod of development. In the Indistrial revolution most of his clase saw only chaos and confuglon. and the opportunlty of tishlng ln these trouhled wnters and mukling large fortunes quickly. He aw in it the opportunity of puttligg lnto prac. tlee hls favourte theory, anil 00 of hringing order out of chuos. He had already trled it with success, as supertutendent of more than 500 mun In a Mancliester factory. From 1800 to 1829. lue ilrected the great cotton mill at lew Lamark. In Scotland, sa managing partrer, along the sume lloreg, but whth greater freedom of artion and with a succens that made h/m a Europran reputation. A population, origlnally conslatlug of the most diverse and, for the mont part, very demoralleed elemesti, a population it grailually grew to 2,500, he turned Into a il colony, in whlch druniaenness, pollce, strates, la wsulte. poor lawa, charity, were 10wn. And all thls slmply hy placlig the le In conditlous worthy of human beinge and especially by carefuity bringing up the ris. $\operatorname{lng}$ genemation. Ile was the founder of l.fant schools, aud lntroluced them frat at New Lan ark

Whllst hls competlons worked thels people 13 or 14 hours a day. In New Lanark the Working day was only 10 hours. When a crisia In cotion stnpped work for four months, ble workers recelved thelr full wages all the tlme. And with all this the huslness more than doubled In value, aud to the last ylelded large profits to lts proprietors. In splte of all thls, Owen was not content. The exlstence which he secured for hls workers was, in hls eyes, still far from being worthy of humnn belogs. "The people Wt.e slaves at my mercy.' 'The working part of thls population of 2.500 perwons wes dally produclng as much real wealth for sorlety as, less than half a century before, It woutd have required the working part of a pmpulation of 600,000 to create. I anked myself, what becanne of the diference between the wealth consumed

Trades Onione
and Mimolien Lavo.
by 2,500 persons and that which would have been consumed by $600,0009^{\prime}$ The anawer wa clear. It had been used to pay the proprietora of the entablithment 5 per cent. on the capital they had laid out, in addition to over $£ 800,000$ clear profit. And that which held for New Lanark held to a still greater extent for all the factories in England.

The newiy-created gigantic productive forces, hitherto used only to enrich individuala and to enslave the masses, offered to Owen the foundations for a reconstruction of society; they were destined, as the common property of all, to be worked for the common good of ail. Owen's Communlsm was based upon this purely business foundation, the outcome, so to say, of commerciai calculation. Throughout, it maintained this practical charac-ter."-F. Engels, Socialiem, Utopsan and Seientific, pp. 10-24. - Owen's projects "were received with arplause at first. 'The Times' spoke of 'his enlightenell zeal in the cause of humanity;' the Duke of Kent writes to Owen: 'I have a most sincere wish that a fair trial shouli be given to your system, of which I have never hesitated to acknowiedge myseif an admirer; Lord Brougham sy mpathised with the propounder of this sociai scheme; the judiciai philosopher Bentham lecame actnaily a temporary aiiy of the ' wllful Welshman;' a committee was appointed, iacluding IRcardo and Sir R. Peei, who recommended Owen's scheme to be tried; it was taken up by the Britisio and Foreign Pinilanthropic society for the permanent relief of the working ciasses: it was nethaily presentel to Parllament with petitions humbly praying that a Committee of the louse might be appointed to visit and report on New Lanark. But the motion was lost. The temporary enthusiasm cooled down. . . . Contemporaneonsiy with royal speeches ailuding to the prosperity of trade, and congratulations as to the flontishing appearance of town and combtry, the voice of Owen is sileneed with hls cleclining permbarity. It must be remembered uiso that he had by this time justly lncurred the displeasure of the religious publie, by the hold and muecessarily harsh expressions of his ethical and redigious convictions. Those who conld distinguish the mau from inis methexi, who were fulle aware of his generons philanthropy, purity of private life, and con tempt of personal adoancement, conid make ailowance for his rash assertions. The rest, how. ever. thrned away with pions ineror or sient contempt from one who so tiereely attacked positive crects, and appeared nnnecessarily vehement in his deniai of inoral responsibility. Owen set hls face to the West, and somght new adherents in America, where he fomuled [ 1824 ] a I' Prelim Inary Sulicty' in 'Jew llarmonr' [sec below: A. I. (shis-is? 4 ), whieh was to be the nuciens of his future society.

In the following year Owen aurech to a change in the eunstitution, ia favour of communism, under the title of the ' New Ilarmony Coammity of Equality.' Tice settle. ment enjoyed a temporary prosperity, but soon showed slgus of decay, and Owen was destined to mect with as many triais in the new as he had enconnterel disconrigements in the old worid.' - M. Kaufmann. Ctrofita, ch. 6

Also in: W. L. Sargant. Robert Otcen and his Social Philosophy.-Life of Whbert Onoen (anon.).
A. D. 1800-1875.-Struggle of the Trades Unions in England for a iegal existence.

During the 18th century, "the employers succeeded in pascing a whole series of laws, some of them of Draconian severity, dealgned to sup. prese combinations of working men. In Eng. land they are called the Comblnation Lawe, and culminated in the Act of 40 George III., c. 106 which was paseed in 1800 in reaponse to a petltion from the employera. It made all trade com. binations illegal.

The result of this lisw, which was exprensly designed to put an end to striken altogether, is an instructive example of the usual effect of such measures. The wort men's associations, which had frequently hitherto been formed quite openily, became secret, while they spread through the length and hreadth of England. The time when the books of the l'nion were concealed on the moors, and an oath of secrecy was exacted from its members, is stili : living tradition in labour circles. It was a time when the hatred of the workers towards the np per classes and the legisiature flourished iuxuri. antly, while the younger generation of working men who had grown up under the shadow of re. pressive icgislation, bccame the pillars of the revoiutionary Chartist movement. The old strug gle against capital assumed a more viulent character. . . It was the patent fallure of the Combination Laws which gave the stimulus to the singgestion of repeal soon after 1820," and the repeai was accomplished hy the Act of 1824 . "The immenliate consequence of this Att was the outbreak of a number of somewhat serious strikes. The general public then took fright, and this the real struggle for the right of eumbination lregan after it had received legui reeng. nition. In 1825, the employers ralied and de. mundied the re-enactment of the enrlier haws on the gronnd that Pariament had carried their re. peai with uncine precipitation. . . . The Aet of 1825 which revaied that of the previons rear. was a compronise in which the opponents of fre combination had gained the upper haud. But they had been frustrated in their atteapt to stamp ont the Unions with ali the rigour of the liaw, for the champions of the Act of $18: 4$ were in a positlon to diemonstrate that the recognition of combination had aiready doue something to improve the relations betweell capitul and isbour. It inad at ieast done awny with that scerecy which iu itself constituted a danger to the State; and now that the Cuions were equ nly avowed, their methoxls had beeome less vilent. Nevertheless, the inthence of the manufacturers strongiy predioninated in framiag the liall.
The only alvance on the state of thing procions to $1 \times 24$ which had been secured was the fumbio mental iont that a combination of working mea was not in itself iilegat - tiongh almost any action which rould rise ont of sueh a comblination was prohibited. Yet it was under the Act if 1825 that the Trade Cnioas grew and attained to that important position in whieh we tind them at the heginning of the seventies. llere was rimphaticuily a movement which the law might force iuto iilegai chnnnels, but could aut suppress. . . . The most serious danger that the Trade Uaions encouatered was in the conrse of the sixties. Under the ieadership of one Brosd. heal, certain Sheffeid Cnioas had entered on a course of criminal intimidation of non-aumbers. The generai public took their actlon as indiest. ing the spirit of Trale Cuious gencraily. Is point of fact, the workmen employed in the ## sOCIAL MOVEMENT8.

Shemeld trade were in a wholly exceptional poostion. . . . But both in Parllament and the Prese it was declared that the occurrences at Shefleid calied for more stringent iegisiation and the sup. presion of comblnations of working men. But times had changed aince 1825. The Unions themseives calied for the most searching inquiry fato their circumstances and methods, which wouid, they deciared, prove that they were in no nsy impiicated in auch crimes as had been com. mltted in Sheffleid. The impuise given by Thomas Cariyie had raised powerfui defenders for the workmen, first among whom we may men. tion the positivist Frederic Harrison, and Thomas Hughes, the co-operator. . The preiiminaries to the appointment of the Commisaion of 1867 revealed a change in the attitude of the em. ployers, especiaily the more infuentlai of them, Which marked an enormous advance on the debates of 1824 and 1825.

The investigation of the Commission of 186\%-1869 were of a most vearchlng character, and their resuits are con tained in eieven reports. The Unions came weil through the ordeal, and it was shown that the outrages had been conflaed to a few Unions, for the most part of minor importance. It further appeared that where no combluation existed the relations between empiogers and handis were not more friendly, wille the position of the workers was worse and in some cases quite ticsperate. The report ied up to propossals for the iegislatlon of Trude Unlons, and to the iegisiation of $1871-$ 1876. whilch was supported iny many influentiai 1876. Whalch was supported by many influentiai
emplovers. The attitude of Pariament employers. The attitude of Parifament had changei with a mazing raplidity. . The Trade Cuinu Acts of 1871 and 1878 gire aii Linious, on conition that they rcgister thelr rules, the same rights as were already enjogeni hy the Friendily Societies in virtue of earifer iegislation, i. e. the rights of legai personality. They can sue and be sued, possess reai and personai estate, and can proceed summariiy agaiust thelr othicers for framblulent conduct. They also possess facilitics for the transfer of investiments to new tristees. The Aet of 1871 was exteniled by that of $18 i 6$, framed expressiy with the concurrence of the Trade luion ienders. . The working men, now that they are left to couluct their unetings in ay way they choose, lave gramally derelopel that sotier and methomical procedure Which mazazes the Continental observer. . . At Common iaw, any action of Tralle Criouists to raise wares secucil llahte to punishment as conspines. on the ground that it was directed against the common weal. The course ranu ing the actual prosecutions did. inhted, prevent this doctrint: from ever recelving the sanction of a sentence expressly fonnderlon it: but lt gatheredi In ever havicr thanders over the heads of the Colows, uni its very vagneness gave it the appeanuce of a deliberate persecution of oue ciass of suciety in the interest of another. The Act of 18 ii first hrought withln definite iinits the extreme penaities that could be enforceri against Trale Unionlsts cither at Statute or Common Law. . . By the Consplracy andi Protection of Property Act of $18: 5$ the workmen's economic sims were at last recognised on precisely the same footing as those of other citizens. "-G. von Schulze Gaevc-altz, Sxicial Peace, pp. 86-103.
Aloo in: Le Comte de Paris, The Trades Cninus if Engiand. - TV. Traut, Trade Unions. -National Ansociation for the Promotion of Social Science, Rep't of Committee on Societice and Strikes, 1880
A. D. 1805-2827.-George Rapp and the Harmons Society.-Robert Owpp and the Community at New Harmony. - The "Harmony Society "was first settied in Pennsyivania, on a tract of iand about twenty five milies north of Pittsburgh. in 1805, by George Rapp, tho ieader of a reiigious congregation in Germany which suffered persecutlon there and sought greater freedom in America. From the beginning, they agreed "to throw ail their possessions into a common fund, to adopt a uniform and simpie dress and styie of honse; to keep thenceforth ail things in eommon; and to iabor for the common good of the whoie body.

At this time they stlli ilved in familles, and encouraged, or at any rate dld not dlscourage, marriage."
But in 1807 they became persuaded that "it was best to cease to blvame persuaded that "it was best to ecase to ilve in the married gtate.
Thenceforth no more marrlages were contracted and no more children were born. $\Delta$ eertaln number of the younger peopie, feeilng no vocatlon for a ceilbate iffe, at thls tlme withdrew from the soclety." In 1814 and 1815 the society soid its property in Pennsylvanla and removed to a new home in Posey County, Indlana, on the Wahash, where 30,000 acres of land were bought for it. The new settiement received tie name of "Harmony." But this in its turn was soll, in 1824, to iobert Owen, for his New Lanark colony, which ine pianted there, muier the name of the "New ilarmony Community" "and the frappists returned eastward, to estahish themselves at a lovely spot on the Ohio, where their weilknown village calied "Economy", was huilt. silk, and woolen ansy pince, for it had cotoon, silk, and woolen factories, a hrewery, and other industrles: but the most luaportant of these have now [18i4] censedi. . . Its large factorics are ciosed. for its people are too ferv to ciosed. for its poople are too few to man them; and the members (numbering 110 in 18 it, mostly atred] thiuk It wiser and more comfortable for themseives to employ labor at a distance from thelr own town. They are pecuuiarily intcrested in cual-mines, in saw-mills, and oil-wells; and they control mamfactories at Beaver Fails notably it cutlery shop.

The society is reportell to he worth from two to three millions of dollars."-C. Nordloff. The Communistic So cieticaby the $r: s, p p .6 ; 3-91$. - At the settlement in Indiama, "on the dieparturc of the Rappltes, persons favorable to Mr. Owen's views cane thockiug to New iiarmony (as it was thenceforth calleci) from all parts of the country. Tidings of the new social experiment spread far and Wide. .. Iu the short space of slx weeks from the commencement of the experiment. a populatiou of 800 persous was drawn together, and in Octoler 1820, the nuwher had increasedi to 900 ." At the end of two years, in June, 18:2. Mir. Oweu seems to have glven up the experiment aud departed from New Harmony. : After his departure the majority of the popuintiou also removed and scattered about the country. Those Who remalued returned to individualisna, mad settled as farmers and mechanics in the orvinary Way. One portlon of the estate was ownei by Mr. Owen, and the other by Mr. Maclure. They soid, rented, or gave away tie houses andi ianis, and thelr heirs and assigns have continucd to do so."-J. H. Noyes, Hist, of American Socialieme ${ }^{80}$ ch. "-J. H. Noyes, Hiat. of American Sucialisme,

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.
Co-jperation in Evaland.
A. D. 2816-1886, The modern Co-operative movement in Eacland. - "The co-operative ides as appiied $t c$ indutry existed in the latter part of the last century. Ambelak was almost a co-operative town, an may be read in David Urquhart's 'Turkey and its Resources.' So vast a municipal partnership of industry has never existed since. The fishers on the Cornish coast carried out co-operation on the sea, and the miners of Cumberland dug ore on the principle of sharing the profts. The plan has been productive of contentment and advantage. Gruyere is a co-operative cheese, being formeriy made in the Jura mountains, where the profit were equitably divided among the makers. In 1777, as Dr. Langford relates in his 'Century of Birmingham Life,' the tailors of that enterpriaing town set upa co-operstive workshop, which f the earlieat in English record. In France an attempt was made by Babcuf in 1798, to establish a despotism of justice and equality hy violence, after the manner of Richelieu, whose policy taught the French revolutionists it at force might be a remedy. $\qquad$ Contemporaneous with the French revolutionists we had Shute Barrington, Bishop of Durham, who surpassed all other bishopa in human sympathy and social sagacity. He established at Mongewell, in Oxfordshire, the first known co-operative store; and he, Count Rumford, and Sir Thomas Bernard published in 1795, and for many years after, plans of co oper. ative and social life, far exceeding in variety and thoroughness any in the minds of persons now living. "The only apostle of the social state in England at the beginning of this century, Har. riet Martineau testifies, 'was Robert Owen,' and to him we owe the co-operation of to-day. With him it took the shape of a despotism of philan. thropy. $\qquad$ The amazing arrangements $\mathbf{M r}$. Owen made at his New Lanark Mills for educat. ing his workpeopie, and the large amount of proft which he expended upon their personai comforts, have had no imitators except Godin of Guise, whose palaces of Industry are to-day the wonder of all visitors. Owen, like Godin, knew how to make manufacturing generosity pay.

It was here that Mr. Owen set upa co-oper. ative store on the primitive plan of huying goods and provisions wholesale and selling them to the workmen's families at cost price, he giving storerooms and paying for the management, to the greater advantage of the industrial purchasers. The bencfit which the Lanark weavers enjoyed in being able to huy retail at wholesale prices Wss soon noised abroad, and clever workmen elsewhere began to form stores to supply their families in the same way. The earliest instance of this is the Economical Society of Sheerncss, commenced in 1816, and which is still doing business in the same premises and also in adja. cent ones lately erected.

These practical co-operative socleties with economical ohjects gradualiy extended themselves over the land, Mr. Owen with splendid generosity, giving costly publicity to his successes, that others might prodit likewise according to their means. His remark. ahle manufacturing gains set workmen thinking that they might do something in the same way.

The co-operativc stores now changed their plan. They sold retail at shop charges, and saved the diference between retall and cost price as a fund with which to commence co-operative workuhops. In 1830 from 300 to 400 co-opera.
tive atores had been set up in England. There are records of 250 cxisting, cited in the 'Illstory of Co-operation in England.' . . . The Inochdaie Society of 1844 was the first which adopted the principie of giving the shareholders 5 pur cent. only, and dividing the remaining profit nmong the customers. There is a recorded instance of this being done in Huddersteld in 1827, but no practical effect arose, and no propi gandism of "he plan was attempted until the Rocidale coopers tors devised the acheme of their own accord, and applied it. They began under the idea of saring money for community purposes and establishing co-operative workshops. For this purpose they advised their members to leave their savings in the store at 5 per cent. interest; and with a view to get secular education, of which there wss littie to be had in tioose days, and under tite impres. sion that stupidity was against them, they set apart $2 t$ per cent. of their profts for the purpose of instruction, education, and propugauilsm By selling at retaii prices they not only acquired funds, but they avoided the imputation of under selling their neighbours, which they hari the good senec and good feeling to disike. They intended to live, but their principie was 'to iet live.' By encouraging members to save their dividends in order to accumulnte capital, ther taught them habits of thrift. By refusing to sell on credit they made no losses; they fncurred no expenses in keeping books, and they tutgit the working classe around them, for the first time, to live without falling into deht. This stheme of equity, thrift, and education constitutes what is calied the 'Roclidaie plan.'

The subsequent development of co-operation has been greatly due to the interest which l'rofessor Maurice, Canon Kingsley, Mr. Vansittart Neale, Mr. Thomas Hughes, and Mr. J. Ml. Ladilow took in it. They promoted successive improrements in the law wifich gave the stores legal protection, and enabled them to become bankers, to hoid land, and aliow their members to iucrease their savings to $£ 200$. . The members of $c o$. operative societies of the Rochdaie type nuw exceed 900,000 , and receive more thail $!\frac{1}{2}$ milliona of proft aunualiy. There are 1,200 stores in operation, which do a business of nearly 90 miliions a ycar, and own sharc capital of 8 millions. The transactions of their Coopratire Bank at Manchester amonnt to 16 millions annually. The societies devote to edincation £22,000 a year out of their protits, and many socleties expend importaut snms for the sume purpose, which is not formatiy recorcled in their returns. In the twenty-five jcars from 1861 to 1886 the co-operators have done husiness of upwards of 361 milions, and have made for working people a protit of 30 milions.

Co-oper. ation In other countries bears no comparison witi ita rise and progress in Enginod. The French excei in co-operative workshops, the Germans in co-operative banks, Engiaud in the organisation of stores. No country has succeeded I with all three. Italy exceis even Germany it co-operative baoks. It has, tow, some remarkable distributive societics, seiling commodities at cost prices, and is now beginning stores on the Hochalale pian. France has muny dis trihutive stores, and is likeiy to introduce the Rochdale type. .. America . . . is iikeiy to excel in industrial partnerships, and is introiucing the English system of co-operation."- G. J.

SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.
Saint Simon.
Dusier.
Holyonke, The Groeth of Cooperation in England (Fortnighlly Ree., Auguat 1, 1887). The "Chriatian Socisllam" which arose in Eingland sbout 1850, under the influence of Frederics D. Maurice, Charlen Kingsley, Thomas Hughes, identified itself practically with the co-operative movement. - R T. Ely, French and German Scecialiom, pp. 240-251.
Also is: G. J. Holyonke, Hist. of Co-openation in England. - The same, Hint. of the Rochdale Pioneers. - B. Jones, Cu-operative Production.
A. D. 1817-1825.-Saint Simon and Saint Simoniem. - 'Comte Henri de Saint-Simon, the fouader of French soclaiiam, was born at Paris in 1780 . He belonged to a younger hranch of the family of the celehrated duke of that name. His education, he tells us, was directed hy D'Alembert. At the age of nineteen he went as volunteer to asaist the American colonles in their revoit against Britaln.

It was not till 1817 that he began, in a treatise entitled 'L'Industrie, to propound his socialistic views, which he further developed in ' L'Organisateur' (1819), Du Système Industriel' (1821), 'Catechisme des Industriels' (1828). The last and most important expression of his views is the 'Nouveau Christianisme' (1825). For many years before his death in 1825 Saint-Simon had been reduced to the greatest straits. He was ohliged to ac. cepta laborious post for a saiary of $£ 40$ a year to live on the generosity of a former vaiet, and faslly to solicit a smail pension from his family ia 1823 he attempted suicide in despair. It was not till very late in his career that he attached to bimself a few ardent disciples. As a thinker Saiat-Simon was entirely deficient in system, clearness, and consecutive strength. His writlags are largely made up of a few ideas coatinu slly repeated. But his specuiations are always agenious and original; and he has unquestion. bly exercised great influencc on modern thought, both as the historic founder of French sociailism and as suggeating much of what was afterwards elaborated into Conitism. . His opinioas were conditioned hy the French Revolution and by the feudal and military aystem still prevalent in Framre. In opposition to the destruetive lib. enalism of the Revolution he iusisted on the necessity of a new and positive re orgsnisation of suciety. So far was hic from advocating socisa revolt that he appeaied to Louis XVifi. to in. augurate the new order of tinings. in opposition. however, to the feudai and military system, the former aapect of which had been sirengtheued hy the iRestoration, he advocated an arrangemeat by whici tic industriad ehiefs should coutroi societr. In place of the Medieral Church. the spiritual direction of soclety shouid fall to the men of sciencc. Whast Saint-Simon desired, therefore, was an industrialist State diretell by modern acience. The men who are best litted to organise society for prexuctive labour are cutitied to hear rule in it. The social aina Is to produce things useful to life: the final eni of socisi activity is 'the exploitation of tho plabe hy association.' The contrast between lubour aud capital, so much cmplasised hy later scialism, is not present to Saint-Simon, hut it is assumed that the industriui chiefs, to whom the controi of production ls to be committed, shall rulc in the lnterest of society. Later on, the cut:s of the poor reccives greater attention, ill in his greatest work, 'The New Christianity,'

It becomes the central point of his teaching, and takes the form of a religion. It was this religious development of his teaching that occasioned his final quarrel with Comte. Prevlous to the puhlication of the 'Nouveau Christianisme Saint-Simon had not concerned himself with theoiogy. Here he starts from a belief in God, and his ohject in the treatise is to reduce Christianity to its simple and essential elements. During his lifetime the views of Saint-Simon had liftie influence, and he ieft only a very few devoted disciples, who continued to advocate the doctrines of tieir master, whom they revered as a prophet.

The school of Saint.Simon in sists strongly on the claims of merit; they advocate a nocial hierarehy in wifich each man shall be placed according to his capaeity and rewarded according to his works. This is, indeed, a most special and pronounced feature of the SaintSimon Socialism, whose theory of government is a kind of apiritual or scientific autocracy.
With regard to the family snd the relation of the sexes the school of Saint-Simon advocated the complete emancipation of worian and her entire equality with man."-T. Kirkup, $A$ History of Socialism, ch. 2.

A. D. 1832-1847.- Fonrier and Fourieriam.

 [see Almost contelnporaneousiy with St. Simon [see ahove: A. D. 1817-1825] another Frenchman, Charles Fourier, was elahorating a different and, in the opinion of Miil, a more workahle schemc of social renovation on Sociaiistic liues. The work, indeed, in which Fourier's main ideas are embodied, cailed tic 'Théorie des quatre Mouvemeuts,' Was puhlished in 1808, long before St. Simon had given his views to the worid, but it received no attention untii after the discredit of the St. Simonian scheme, beginning in 1832. Association is the central word of Fourier's as of St. Simou's industriai system. Assoclated groups of from 1,600 to 2,000 persons are to cultivate a aquare league of ground cailed the Phalange, or phaianx; and sre likewise to earry on ali other kinds of industry which may be necessary. The iadividuais are to live together in one pile of buildings, called the Phaiaastery, in order to cconomize in huildings, in domestic ar mogements, cooking, etc., and to reduce distrihutors' profits; they may eat at a common tahle or not, as seems good to thicm: that is, they have iife in common, and a goord deal in each other's slght; they do not work in common more than is necessary under the existing system; and there is not a conmunity of properiy. Neither private property, nor inheritance, is abolished. In the division of the produce of indnstry, after a minimum sutticient for harc subaistence has been assigned to each one, the surplus, deducting the capital necessary for future operations, is to he divided amongst the three great interests of Labour, Capital. and Talent, in the respective proportions of tive twelfths, four twelfthe, and three-twelfths. iadlviduals, according to their sevcral tastes or aptitudea, may attaeh themselves to more than one of the numerous croups of labourers within cuch association. Every oue must work; useless things will not be proxinced: parasitic or unnecessary work, such as the work of agents, distributors, middiemen gencrally, wiil not exist in the phalanstery; from all whieh the Fourierist argive that no une need work exees sively. Nor need the work he disagrecahle. On the contrary, Fourier has dlscovered the secret ofmaking labour attractive. Few kinde of labour are intrinaicaliy diaggreeabie; and if any is unpieasant, it is mostiy because it is monotonous or too long continued. On Fourier's plan the monotony wili vanish, and none need work to excess. Even work regarded as intrinslcaily re. pugnant ceases to be so when it is not regarded as dishonourable, or when it absoiuteiy must be done. But shouid it be thought otherwise. there is one way of compensating such work in the phaianstery - let those who perform it be paid hlgher than other workers, and let them vary it with work more agreeabie, as they wlii have opportunity of doing in the new community."-W. Graham, Sxcialism. Veu and OUd, pp. 93-100.Fourier dled in 1837. After his death the feadership of his discipies, wio were stlli few in number, devoived upon M. Considérant, the editor of 'La Phaiange,' a journai which had been started during the prevlous year for the adivocacy of the doctrines of the schooi. "The activity of the disclpies continued unabated. Every anniversary of the birthiay of the founder they celebrated by a public dinner. In 1898 the number of guests was only 00 ; in the following year they had increased to 200; and they afterwards rose to more than 1,000. Every anniversary of inls death they visited his grave at the cemetery of Montmartre, and decorated it with wreaths of immortelles. Cpon these solemn occasions representatives assembled from ali parts of the work, and testifted by thelr presence to the faith they had embraced. In Janmary, 1839. the Librairie Sociale, in the Rue de $i^{2}$ Eenic de Medicine, was established, and the works of Fourier and his disclpies. with those of other socialist writers, obtalned a large circulation.

In 1840 'La Piaiange, began to appear, as a reguiar newspaper, three times a week.
Some of its prineipies begnn to exercise a powerful intluence. Several uewspapers in Paris, and througiout the country, demanded sociai revolution rather than politicai ngitntion. The cries of 'Orgunlsatlon du Travail,' ${ }^{\text {' Drolt au Travall,' }}$ that were uow beginning to be heard so frequentiy in after-dlaner toasts, and in the montlas of the populiace, were traced hack to Fourler. Cabet ind already published his 'Vorage en Ienrle'; Louis Blanc was writing in 'La Revue du Progrès, and many other shates of soclalism and communism were springling into existence, and eagerly competing for putilic favour.
3i. Schneider communicated the theory to his eountrymen in Germany, in 1837. The knowietge was farther extended in a series of news. paper articies by 31. Gatzkow, in 1842; and separate works treating of the subject were subsequently publlshed by 31. Stein and M. Loose. In Spain, it found an active discipie in Don Joaehin Abreu; and a plan for realisation was liald before the Regent hy Don Manuei de Beioy. In Engiand, Mir. Hugh Doherty was already ad. vocating it ln the 'Morning Star.' In 1841, his paper appeared whth the new name of 'Loudon Phalans'; and it was announced that thousands of pounds, and thousanis of acres, were at the disposal of the diseiples. The Communists of the school of Owen recelved the new opinlons favourably, and wished them every success in their undertaking. In America, Fourier soon obtained followers: the doetrine neems to have been introduced by M. Jean Manesca, who was the secretary of a phaiansterian society, estab.
iished in New York so eariy as 1838. In 1840, no less than 50 German familien started from New York, under the leadership of MM. Gaert. ner and Ilempel, both Fourierists, to establisha eoiony in Texas. They seem to have prospered for a time at least, for their numbers subserguently rose to 200,000 . In October of the same yean, the trat number of the 'Phaianx' appearelat Buf. faio, in Now York State. Mr. Aibert Brisbare. Wino had recentiy returned from Paris, liad just pubilisied a work on the 'Sociai Destiny of Man.' whlch is, to a great extent, an abridgnient of il Considérant's 'Destinée sociaie.' He heeame the editor of the 'Future,' whlch replaced the 'Phas. lanx,' and was puhisined at New York. Thil paper obtained but a smali clreniation, and Mr: Brisbane thought it aivisahie to discontinue if, nnd, in its stead, to purchase a coinmn in the - New York Tribune.

When Mr. Brisbase began his propaganda, there was a 'Society of Friends of Progress ' in existence in Bosten. it inciuded among its members some of the most eminent men in the intelicctual capital of the New Worid. . . A paper cailed the 'Dlal' wat started, io which Emermon, Parker, and Mar garet Fulier contributed. Their object was to advocate a community upon the prixiples of Fonrier, but so modiffed as to sult their arn pecuiliar views. The result was the acculisition of Brook Farm.

But the influence of yit: Brisbane was not iimited to indirectiy inspining these eccentric experiments. It was sald that in New York alone, in 1843, there were three news papers retlecting the oplnions of Fourier, sad no less than forty throughont the rest of the Sitites Besides this, many reviews were occupied in discussing them. The first association in Americs to cail ltself a phalanx was Sylvanla. It was begun in October, 1843, and insted for aboula year and a half. There were 150 memlers, and Mr. Horace Greeiey's name aypears among the iist of its ofticers; It consisted of 2,300 actes in Pennsyivania. $\qquad$ There were thirty-four undertaken during the Fourier excltement, but of these we have complete statistlcs of only four teen. . . . The years 1846-7 proved fatal to most of them. Indeed, Mr. Brisbane acknow ledged in Juiy, 1847, that oniy three then survived"A. J. Bc- Fourier (Fortnighlly Fier, Dec, 1872) - "Horace Greeley, under date of Juls 1847, wrote to the 'People's Journal' the following. 'As to the Associationlsts (by their adrersaries termed "Fourierites "), with whom I am proud to be numbered, their beginnings sre yet too recent to justify me in asking for their bistory any conslderabie space in your columns Brietly, however, the tirst that was leard in this country of Fourler and his view', 'beyon i a little circle of perhaps a hundred persons in two or three of our large cities. who had pickel up some notion of them in France or from French writlngs), was in 1840, when Alicirt Brishane pubisished fils first synopsis of Four'er's theory of industriai and househoid Associat: nn. Bince then the subject has been considerably ciscussed. and severai attempts of some sort have been made to aetualize Fourler's ileas, generally by men destitute alike of capacity, public cond. dence, energy and means. In oniy one instance that I have heard of was the land paid for on which the enterprise commenced: not ne of these vaunted "Fourier Associations" ever bad the means of erecting a proper dwelling for so many as three hundred people, evea if the land had been given them. Of course the time for payiag the frst instailment on the mortgage covering their land has generaliy witneased the dissipation of their sanguine dreams. Yet there are at least three of these emhryo Associatlons stiii In existence; and, as each of these is in its thind or lourth year, they may be supposed to gire some promlse of vitality. They are the Forth American Phaianx, near Leelsviife, New Jessey; the Trumbuil Phaianx, near Bracevilic, Ohio; and the Wisconsin Piaianx, Ceresco, Wisconsia. Each of these has a considernble domain neariy or wholiy paill for, is improving the soil, increasing its annual pr: $\cdot \mathrm{c}$ cts, and estabiishing some brinches of manuiactures. Each, thongh iar eaough from heing a perfect Association, is anlanated with the hope of becoming one, as rapidiy as experience, tlme and means wlii ailow.' Of the three Piaiarixes this mentioned as the rear guard of Fourierlsm, one - the Trum-bull-disappeared about four months afterwari (rery nearly at the time of the dispersion of Brook Farm), and another - the Wisconsin hasted oniy a year ionger, leaving the North American aione for the last four years of its ex-istence."-J. l. Noyes, History of American sucialisme, ch. 40.

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

Proudhor and Anarchism

SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.

Also IN: R. Brisbune: Albert Bris' ne; a Vental Bionraphy.
A. D. 1839-1894.- Proudhon and 1 = doctrines of Anarchism, - The Individualisuc and Communistic Anarchist, "the present generation. -"Of the Sociails. ct thinkers who serve fa a kinif of link between the C'topists anif the school of the Socialism of historical evolution, or scieatific Socialists, hy far the most note. morthy figure is Proudion, who was born at Besc. y con in 1809 . By birth he beionged to the workuy class, his fatier being a brewer's cooper, and he himseif as a youth foliowal the occupation of cowherding. In 1838, however, he pub!steet an essay on general granmar, and in 1830 he gaineti a scholarship to be iefd for tiree rears, a pift of one Madame Suard to his native lown. The resuit of this advantage was his mist important though far fromi his most voluminous work, pubiished the same renras the essay which Siadame Suard's schoiars were bound to write: it bore the titie of 'What is Property?' Qu' est-ce que in proprlété ?) his answer being Property is Rohbery (La propriété est ie voi). As may be imagined, this remarkabie essay causeri much stir and Indignation, and Prouilhon was ceasured by the liesançon Academy for is pronuction, narrowly escaplng a prosecution. in act he $\pi$ riss tried at Besuncron for a letter he wroie to Victor Considérant, the Fourierist, but wa', aequittei. In 1848 he wrote ins 'Plitosnphe de la Misere' (Philosophy of Hoverty) whel receivel an elaborate repiy and refutation fom Kuri Marx. In $184^{\circ}$ he went to Paris. In the Revolutlon of 1848 he a'.uwed himseif a vig. orohs coatroversialist, ar. 4 was elected Ineputy or the Sriae. . . Ifter the faliure of the revolutina of ' $\$ 8$, Proudhon was imprisoneli for three rears, during which time he married a roung romsn of the working ciass. In 1858 he fuily dereloperi his system of 'Mutuailsm' in his iast work, entitled "Justice in the Revolution and the 'hurch.' In consequeuce of the publication of this book he had to retlre to Brusseis, hut was amnestied in 1860, came back to France and died at Passy in 1805."-W. Morris and E, E. Baz Scridlisin, its Grooth and Outcome, ch. 18.-." In anarchism we have the extreme antithesis of soclallsm and communism. The soclallst desires so to exteud the spicere of the state that it shail embrace ail the more lmportant concerns of iife. The communist, nt ieast of the oider school, wouid make the cway of authority and the rou. tine which folio'; s therefrom unlversal. The anarchist, on the o her hand, wouid hanlsh ail forms of authority an lhave oniy a system of the most perfect llberty, The anarchlist is an extreme individuaiist. . . Anarchism, as a social theory, vas first eiaborutely formuinted by Proudhon. in the first part of his work. "What is Property?' he briefly stated the doctrine and gave it the name 'anarchy,' absence of a master or soverelga. In that connectlon he said: 'In a given soclety the authority of man over man is inverseiy pro protlonai to the stage of inteilectual developmelit which that society has reached.

Property and royaity have been crumbing to pieces ever since the worid began. As man seek. justice in equailty, so society seeks order in anarciy." About tweive years before Proudhon pubished his views Joslain Warren reached simllar conciusions in America. But as the Frenchman possessel the originality necessary to the construction of a sociai phitesophy, we must regaid hin as altogether the chief authority upor scientific anarcbism.

Proudhon's sociai ideai was that of perfect indivitual iiberty. Thuse who have thought in a communist or sociailst have whollv mistaken his meaning.
Prouthon helieved that if the state in aif its de. partments were abolishec, if autiority were eraiicated from society, ad if the prancipie of inisuez faire were made innlversai in its operution, every form of sociai lii wouid disappear. Accorling to his views men are wicked and ignorant because, either directig or indirectiy, they inave heen forced to be so: it is because they have been subjected to the wilf of another, or are able to trinsfer the evil resuits ot their acts to another. If the indiridual, after reaching the age of discretion, could be freed from repression and compulsion in every form and know thn te aione is respousibie for his acts and must vear their consequences, he would become thrif prudent, energetic; in short he wouid aiwn s sre and foilow his highest interests. He would always respect tbe rights of ot ${ }^{2}$ :rs; that is, act justly. Such individuais could carry on ail the $g$ reat industriai enterprises of to-day either separately or bj volumary asscciation. No compuision. however, could be used to force one to fultil a contract or remain in an association innger thau his interest dictated. Thus we shouid have a perfectly free play of enlightened seifiuterests: equitabie competition, the oniy natural form of sociai organization. . . . Proudhon'a titery is the sum and suhsten, ${ }^{\circ}$ of sctentitic aus rchism. How closeir have archists adhered to the te tching One group, with its centre at merican an. .alr master? , and with branch associatious in a few other aries, is composed of fai•hfui discipies of Proudhon. They believe that ue Is the ieading thlnker anong those who have found the source of evli ia society and the remedy therefor. They accept his avaiysis of social phenomena and toilow hils iead generaily, though not impilicitiy. They cali themselives Individualistic Auarchints, and claim to be the valy clas who are entited to that name. They do sot attempt to organlze very much, h: $\mathrm{v}^{4}$ rely upon 'actlve lndividuals, workling here and there all over the country.' It is supposed that they msy number in all some five thousand adLerents in the Unlted States.

They, IIk's Proudhon, conslder the government of the Unltu 1 States to be as oppreasive and worthless as widy of the European monarchles. Liberty prevaila here no more than there. In some respects the system of majority rule is more obnoxious than that of monarchy. It is quite as tyrannlcal, and In a republle it is more difitult to reach the eource of the despotism an 1 remove It. They regard the entlre machinery of electlons as worthless and a hlndrance to prosperlty. They are opposed to polltleal machlnes of all kinis. They never vote or perform the dutles of cltizens in any way, If it can be avulded. . Concerulag the family relatlon, the ararchists belleve that civil marriage siould be abuilshed and 'autonomistic' marriage substluted. Thls means that the contaucting fartle aould agree to llve together us long as it seems best to do so, and that the partnershilp should be dissolved whenever elther one dealres it. Stlll, they would give the freest poselhle play to love and honor as reatralnIng motives. . . . The Indlviduallstlc Anarchlists profeas to have very little In cummon wlth the Internationalists. The latt- - are Communlsthc Anarchlsts. They borror : helr analysis of exlstlng soclal condltions from Marx, or more accuratcly from tle "communlstle manlfesto" issued by Marx and Engels in 1847 . In the old Internatlonal Worklngman's assoclation they constltuted the left wing, which, with its leader, Bakunlne, was expelled In 18\%2. Later the fri. lowers of Marx, the soclallsts proper, dlsbanded, and slnce 1983 the Internatlonal in thls country lus been controlled wholly hy the anarchlsts. Thelr vlews and methods are slmilar to those wblch Bakunine wished to carry out by meaus of his C'nlversal Allance, and which exlsi more or less detinltely lu the minds of Russian Nilillists. Like Bakunine, they deslre to organlze an Inter. national revolutionary movement of the laboring classes, to malntalu it by means of consplracy and, as soon as possille, to bring about a general Insurrection. In thls way, with the help of explosives, polsons and murcierous weapons of all finds, thev hope to destroy nll exlsting lnstltutions, ecclesiastlcal, clvil nud economle. Cpon the snoking ruins they will erect the new aud perfect soclety. Only a few weeks or nontlis will be necessary to make the transltion. Di - ing that time the laborers will take possession of all lands, buildi' ;s, Instruments of productiou aud dlstributhou. With these in thelr possesslon, and withont the Interposition of governmeut, they wlll orgunlze Into assoclatlons or groups for the purpose of carrylng on the work of soclety." H. L. Osgond, Scientific Anarchism (Political Science Quarterly, Warch, 1889).

Also in: F. Dubols, The Anarchiat Peril.
A. D. 1840-1848.-Louis Blanc and hls scheme of State-aided Co-operntion.-"St. Simonism would destroy Indivldual llberty, would welght the State with endless reaponslbilltes, and the whole detalls of production, distributlon, and transportatlon. It would besldes be a deapotism if it could be carried out, and not a beneficent despotism, considering the weakness and imperfection of men. So objected

Louls Bianc to St. Simonism, in his 'Orgenien thon du Travall ' (1840), whllst bringing forwand a scheme of his own, which, he contends, would he at once slmple, Immediately appllcable, and of Indefinlte extensilillity; ln fact a full and tinal solutlon of the Boclal Problem. The Igrges stem of production, the large factory end workshop, he saw was necesary. Large capltal, too, was necescary, but the large capltallst was not. On the contrary, capltallsm - capltal ln the hands of private lncividuals, with, as a necessury consequence, unboundi il competition, was rilinous for the rorking classes, and not gooxl for the i.Iddle classes, Including the caplitalsts themselves, because the larger cajfliallsth, If suf. ficlently astute or unscrupulous, can dentroy the smaller oncs by under-selling, as in fact thry constantly did. In own scheme was what lo now called co-operatlve production, with th.c differ. ence that Instend of voluntary cffort, he looked to the State to glve it its first motlon, by ad. vanclng the caplt ${ }^{-1}$ without lutereat, by draw. Ing up the neceasar. :egulatlons, and by naning the hlerarchy of workers for one jear, after Which the co-operatlve groups were to elect thelr own officers. He thought that If a num. ber of these co-operatlve assoclatlons were thus launched State-alded In each of the greater prov. Inces of Industry, they could compete successfully wilth the private capltallat, and would beat hilm whthln no very long tlme. By competition he trusted to drive him ont In a molente tlme, and without shock to Industry In genera! But having conquered the capltalist hy competition, he wished competitlon to cease betweer the differ. ent assoclatlons in any given Industry; ns he ex. pressed 1t, he would ' avall hlmself of the arm of competlition to destroy competlilon.'. . . The net proceeds each year would be divided lnto three parts: the frst to be dlvided equally amongst the members of the assoclatlon; itre secoml to be devoted partly to the support of the oll, the sick. the Intirm, partly to the allevlation of cries whleh would welgh on other lulustrics: the third to furnish 'Instruments of labour' to those who might wlsh to joiu the association. Cripltalists would be lnvited lnto the assciutions, and would recelve the current rate of interest at least, whlch Interest would be gmaranteed to them out of the national budget; but they wond only participnte In the net surplus in the charac ter of workers. . . Such was the scheme of Lonis Blanc, whlch, In 1848, when member of the Provisloual Gevernment In Framere, la- had the opportunlty, rurely grunted to the moinl srstemn:aker, of partlally trylug in practior. İe was allowed to establish a number of associations of Workligg men by the ail of Governmont subsidies. The result did not renlize expretatinns. After a longer or shorter perion of strugtling, every one of the associations failed. while, on the other hand, a number of co operntive assoclations founded by the workmen's own capital, as also some indusirial partnerships founded br capltallsts, on Louls Blanc's principle of distribu tlon of the net proceeds, were successful.
I do not refer to the 'atellers natlonaux, 'sse France: A. D. 1848] whlch were not conntenanced by Louls Blanc; but to certalu sssocistlons of worklng nen who received advances from the Goverament on the principle advaraice In his book. There were not many of these st first. L. Blanc congratulated himself on being able to atart a few: after the seconi rising the Government subaldized ifty. six asmocla ious, afl hit ove of which had fatled hy 1875." - W. Graham, Socialiom, Now and Oud, en. 8, wet. 8, with foot-mote.-"In 1848 the Constituent Aecmhiy roted, in July, that Is, after the revolution of June, a ubaldy of three milifons of france in order to Encourage the formatlon of working men's aseociatlons. Six hundred applicatlons, half coming from Pars alone, were made to the comminsion entrusted with the distribution of the funde, of which oniy fifty-six were accepted. In Parts, hirty associatlons, twenty-seven of Which were composed of rortlog men, comprising in sll 484 ussoclates, received 800,000 francs. Within six months, three of the Parialan associations falled: and of the 434 assoclates, seventy-four resigned, oftren were excluded, and there , ere eleven chinges of managers. In July, id51, elgrieen assciations had ceased to exlst. One year later, twelve othe had vanlshed. In 1865 four were still extant, and had been more $r$ less successful. In 1575 there was but a slngle one feft, that of the Hle-cutters, which. as Citizen Finance remarked, was unrepresented at ihe Congress."E de Laveleye, The Socialiom of Tu-day, ch. 5, foot note.
Alan IN: L. Blanc, 1848: Litatorical Revela(imen, oh. 5-9, and 18.
A. D. 1840-1883,-Icaria.-In 1840, Etlenne Cabet pullished In France un Etoplan romance, the "Poyage en Icarle," which awakened re markable lnterest, very qulckly. Ife described in this romance an lifeal communlty, and elglit rears latcr, laving contlaned the propagntlon of his social theories in the men tin.e, he under took to earry them lnto practlce. A traet of and was seeured in Texas, and in Fcbruary, 1848, sixty nine emlgrants - the adrance guard of what prombsci to be a great aniny of Icarlans -set sail from IIavre for New Orlcans. They woin iuilowed during e jear by others-a few huditeds in ail; but even before the later comers rached New Orleans the jloncers of the movement had abandoned their Texas lands. disapminted $\ln$ all thelrexpeetatlons and finding the.. Ives utterls unprepared for the wark they had to th, the expendltures they hal to make. and the handships they had to conlure. They retreaterl to New Orleaus and were jolned there by Cabet. It happened that the Murnuons, at this time, were deserting their town of Nanvon. in Illiunis, und were mnking their hejlrit to Salt Lake City. Cabet struek i barguin with the re. treating jiscijules of Joseph smith, which gave his community a lome ready-made. The follow. ens who whered to hlm were convered to Nill Too in thie spring; but two hunired unore gave up the socialistle experiment, ard either remainal at New Orleans or returnel to France, For a fow Yars the colany was fafrly prosperous - Sanvor, (fors] selhols were nulotained. Careful training in manaers and morals, and to Iearion prinelples and preeepts, is work with whith the schools are especially charged. The printing office ls a place of grent activity. Vews papers are prioted in English, French and German. Icarian school-books are publlshed. A library of 3,000 or 6,000 volumes, chicidy standard French works, seems to we much patmized. . . . Frequent theatrical entertainments, of diversions, and lectures are common ineans of diversion. . . These families . . . aro far f.om the condition of the happy lcarians of the 'Voyage, but conaldering the dificuities they have encountered thes must be accredited Flth having done remarkably well." Dissensions arose however. In 1856 Cabet found hhuself opposed hy a majority of the community. In November of that year he withdrew, with about 180 autherents, and went to $8 t$. Louls, where he died suddenfy, a lew days after his arrivai. Thoee who had accompanled hlm settled themwives upon an estate called Cheltenham, if miles weat of St. Louls; but they did not prosper, and were dispossessed, by the foreclosure of a mortgage, in 1884, and the last of the com. munity wat disprase. The sectlon left at Nauvoo held no tile to fands there, sfter Cabet separated from them, and were forced to remove in 1860. They establlshed themselves on a tract of land in Adams county, southwestern lowa, and thure Icaria, in a slender and modest form has bec a maintained, through many vielssltudes, to the jresent day. A new secession, occurring 1870-83, sent forth $n$ young colony which settled at Cloverdale, Callfornla, and took the name of the Icaria-Speranza Community, borrowing the name "Bperinza" from another Útopian romance by Pierre Leroux. - A. Slaw. Icaria.
A. D. 18ft-1847.-Broot Farm.-On the 20th day of september, 1841, artleles of assoclatlon were made and executed whllch gave exls. tence to an Assoclation loaring the name and style of "The Subscribers to the Brook Farm Instltute of Agrlculture and Elincatlon." By the second of these artlcies, it was declared to be the object of the Association "to purchase such catates as mary be required for the establishment and contlnumice of an agriculturnl, literary, and scientific school or college, to provile sueli laods and houses, animals, librurles and apparatus, as may be foind expedlent or advanageons to the main purpose of the Association." By nrtlele six. "the Associatlon gnarantces to ench slare. holder the interest of tive per cent. anaually on the anount of stock lield by him In the Lissocia. tion." By article soven, "the shareholelers on their part, for themselves, their heirs and assigns do renolsince all clain on any profits aceruing to the Association for the use of their capltal In vesterd in the stock of the Association, excent tive per cent. interest on the amonnt of stock held by them." By article cight it was provided that cuery subscriber mas receive the tuition of one pusil forevery share lien i by hlon, instcad of ave per eent. interest." The subscribers to these Artl. cles, for shares ranging ln nmory from sivo to $1.500, were George Rapiey, Nathanlel Haw. thornc, Ninot Pratt. Chirles A. Dana, William B. Allen, Suphla W. Iipley, Marin T. Pratt, Surah F. Steams, Marianne Kipley, and Charies 0. Whitmore "Tbe 'Brook Farm Assuclition for Ellacation and Agriculture' was Fut in mo. tlon io the spring of 1841 . Thare was no dilif. cuity in collectlng a company of men and womern large enough to make a beglnning. One third of the sabscriptlons was actually paid in, Mr. Ripley pledging his library for four hundred] dollars of his amount. With the sum sulseribed a farm of a llttle less than two hundicil acres was bought for ten thousand five humilred dollars, in Wrat Roxbury, abu:at nine miles frum Boston. The slte was a plcasant one, oot far from 'Theodore Parker's mecting-liouse in Spring Street, and in close vicinlty to some of the most wealtiny, capable, and zealous frieads of the enterprice. It was eharmingiy diversifed whith Liti and hollow, mesdow and upiand. . i. Later experlence showed its unftness for iucrative tlliage. but for an institute of education, a semlenthetlc, humane undertaking, nothing could be better. This is the place to Bay , once for al! with the utmont posibie emphasis, that Broob Farin was not a communlty in the usual sense of the term. There was no eiement of soclal. ism' in li. There was about it no cavor of antinomianism, no taint of presimism, no sroma, however faint, of nihilism. It was wholiy unlike any of the 'reilglous' associations which had been establinhed in generations before, or any of the atheistic or mechanical arrangements which were attempted simuitaneously or afterwards.

The institutlon of Brook Farm, though far from belng 'relighons' In the usual sense of the word, was enthusiastically reilgious in splrit and purpose.

There was no theologicai creed, no ecciesiasticai form, no inquisi. tion into opinions, no avowed reilance on superhumsn aid. The thoughts of ail were heartliy respected; and while some istened with sympa. thy to Theodore Parker, others went to church nowhere, or sought the privileges of their own communion. - A sympathizing critie published in the 'Dlai' (January, 1842) an account of the enterprise as it then appeared: . . . 'They have bought a farm lu order to make agricuiture the basis of their life, it. being the nosi diract and simple in relation to nature. $\qquad$ The pian of the Community, as an economy, is, in brief, this: for all who have property to take stock. and recelve a fixed interest thereon; then to keep house or board in conmon, as they shali severally desire, at the cost of provisions purchased at whoiesale, or raised on the farm; and for ali to iabor in comntuuntty and be paid at a certain rate an hour, choosing their own number of hours and thelr own kind of work. With the results of this iabor and thelr interest they are to pay their board, and also purchase whatever else they require, at cost, at the warehouses of the communlty, which are to be tlled by the community as sueh. To perfect this economy, In the course of tlme they must have all trades and all modes of husiness carried on among themselves, from the lowest mechanical trade which contributes to the heaith aud comfort of life, to the finest art which adorns it whth food or irapery for the mind. All iabor, whether Inelity or lateifectual. is to be paid at the same rite of wages, on the princlple that, as the fabor lecomes nierely bodily, it is a greater sacritice to the individual laborer to give his time to it.'

The dally life at Brook Farm was, of course, extremely simple, even homely.

There was at no time too much room for the one hundred and fifty inmates.

The hlghest morai rethenent prevailed in all departments. In the morning, every speeies of inilustrial activity went on. Iu the afternoon, the faborers chagged their garments and lecame teachers, often of abstruse branches of knowledge. The evenings were devoted to such recreations as suited the taste of the individual. The farm was never thoroughly tilled, from the want of sufficient hands. A good deal of hay was raised, and milk was produced from a dozen cows.

Some worked ali day in the tield, some only a few hours, some none at all, being otherwise employed, or hy some reacon diequalifed. The moat cultivated worked the hardest. ... The serious difncuitles were tnanclaí. . . . An enrly a 1848 the wisiom of making changes in the direc. tion of sclentife arrangement was agitateif; is the firt monthe of 1844 the reformation was tert. ousiy begun," and the model of the new organzatlon wes Fourier's "Phaianx." "The mont powerfui lnstrument in the converslon of Broot Farm was Mr. Aibert Brisbane. He had studled the syatem [of Fourier] in France, and made it his huslnese to introduce it here.

In Misch, 1845, the c..vok Farm Phalanz was incorporated by the Legisiature of Massachusettis. The Constitution breathes a spirit of hope whleh is pathetic at thls distance of tlme. . . The publication of the Constitution was foliowed la the summer by 'The Harbinger,' which became the leading foumai of Fourieriem in the couatry. The trat number appeared on June 14th.
Its list of contrihutors was about the most remarkable ever presented. Besides Ripley, Dwight, Dana, and Rykman, of Brook Farm, there were Brisbane, Channing, Curtl [George W., who had Ilved at Brook Farm for two years], Cranch, Godwin, Greeiey, Lowell, Whlter, Story, Higginson, to say nothing of geatlemen less known.
'The Rarbinger' llvel auarly four years, a little more than two at Brook Farm, less than two in New Yo:t. The last aumbe: was issued on the 10th of February, 1840.
It is unnecessary to specuiate on the causes 0 ? the faliurc at Brook Farm. There was every reason why it should fail; there was no earthif, however much heavenly reason there may hare been, why ": should succeed." In August, 184", a meetlng of stockhoiders and credltors author. ized the transfer of the property of the Browk Farm Phalanx to a board of three trustets, "for the purpose and with the power of disjosing of it to the best advantage of all concernetl." dnd so tue most attractlye of all socinl experiments came to an end. - U. B. Frothlagham, Giorge Ripley, eh. 8-4.
A. D. 1842-1889. - Profit-sharing expen-ments.- "Protit sharing was tirst prictised srs. tematically by M. Leclalre, a Purisian housepainter and decorator. Beginning to aluit bis workmen to participation in the protits of his huslness in 1842, he coutlnued the systom, with modifieations aud developments, until his death in 1872. His tiaancial suecess was signal it was not due to mere good fortune. Leclaire was a man of lilgh business capacity. France, the iacrense in the number of parthcipating trms. from 18.") onwards, has been compara. tlvely steaty, the uumber now [18*9] standing hetween 55 and 60. In Swlezerland, the 10 instaaces, datlug ten years back or more. hare no followers reconied in the sources of iuformation open to me. This fact may be exphined in some degree hy the cireumstauees that Dr. Bohmert's work, the chlef suthority thus far on thls suhject. Was published in 18is, and that the principal investlgatlons since that time hare beea concerned mainly with Fronee, Engiand. and the Unlted Statcs. Thls remark will appir to Germany also; hut the prevalence there of sociallsm has probahiy been an lmportat reason for the small and slow jucrease in the aumber of firms maklag a trial of the system ef purticipa. tion.

In England, the aliaadomment of their noted trials of industrial partnership by the

SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.

Mesm. Brigge and by Fox, Head and Co. In isit checked the adrance of the scheme to a more general triai; hut in the lat ave yeari, $?$ bouren have entered upon the plan. In the Tilted Btatel, the experience of the Mesars. Brewater and Co. exerted a similar influence, hut by 18820 concerns had introduced protit sharing: thene were followed hy 11 in 1886 , and in 1887 by 12 others. Titere are, then, at least 29 cames of jrott sharing in actual operation at this time $[1889]$ in this country, which began in 1887, 1886, or 1882. As compared wlth France, Germany, and Switze, iand, the Unlted States show a smalier aumber of cases of long atanding, and $n$ consider. ably larger number of lastances of adoption of the aystem $\ln$ the last three years [1887-1889].

Not by mere chance, apparentiy, the two repubilics of France and the Uutted Biaten show the longest lints of profit sharing frma."-N. P. Gliman, Proft Sharing, ch. 9.- Bee, aiso, below: 1859-1887-the proft. sharing experiment of M . Godin, at Guise, in France.
A. D. 1843-1874.-Ebenezer and Amana, the communities of the "True Inspiration Coagregations."- In 1848 the arat detachment of a company of immigranta, belongligg to a sect called the "True Inspiration Congregations" which had existed in Germany for more than a century, was brought to America and settled on stract of land in Western Now York, near the city of Buffalo. Others followed untll more thsn a thousand persons were gathicred in the community which they called "Ebenezer." They were a thrifty, industrious, pious people, who belleveri that their leader, Christian Metz, and sume others, were "inapired instruments," hhrongh whom Divine messages came to them. These mesaages have ali been carefully preserved sad printed. Communism appears to have been no part of their religious doctrine, but practicaily forced upon them, as affording the only condition under which they could dwell simply and piously together. In 1854 they were "commanded by laspination" to remov: to the West. Their land st Ebenezer was advantageously sold, having been reached by the widening boundaries of Buffulo, and they purchazed a large tract in Iuwa. The removal was aceomplishcil graduaily duriag the next ten years, and in thetr new set. tlement, comprising seven villages, with the common name, Amana, the community is sald to be remarkably thriving. In $18 i t$ A mana contalned a population of 1,485 men, women and children.-C. Nordhoff, The Communiticic Sucieties uf the Vrnited States, pp. 25-43.
A. D. 1843-1883.-Kari Marx.-Hia theory of Capital.-Hia socialiatic influence. -' The greatest and most intluential mame in the history of swialism is unquestonahly Kari Marx. Like Ferdinand Lassalle, he was of Jewish ex. traction. He was born at Treves in 1s18, his lather being a luwyer in that town; and he studied at Berlin and Bonn, but neglected the speclalty of taw, which he noninally adopted, for the more congenial subjects of pitilosophy and history. Marx was a zealous student, and pparently an adherent of Hegetianism, hut soon gave up his intention of following an academic arter us a teachcr of philosophy, and joined the s, if of the Ihenish Gazette, published at Co Hite as atis organ of the extreme democracy. White thas engaged, however, he found that his soowledge of cconomics required to be enlarged and corrented, and accordingly in 1848, after marrylng the sister of the Prusinn Minlacer, Von Weatalen, he removed to I'aris, where he applied himsuif to the stuly of the questions to wnich his life and activity were henceforwarl to be devoted so entirely. Ilere also he began to puhlish those youthful writinga whlch muat be reckoned among the most powerful exponitions of the eariy form of Germus nocialism. With Arnold Huge he eflited the 'Deutscil. Franzo. sische Jalirbucher.' In 1845 he was expelied from Parlis and settiedi in Brussels, wiere he pubished his 'Discourn sur te Libre Echange, and his criticlsm of Proulion's 'Philomphie de in Misere,' cutitied, 'Misere de ia Philopopilie. In Paris he had already met Friedrici Engele, Who was destineri to be his lifeiong and loyal friead and companion-in-arms, and who in 1845 puhilshed his importment work, 'The Condition of the Working Class in Englanil.' The two friends found that thes had arrived ai a complete ldentity ó opinion; and an opportunity soon occurred tor an emphatic expression of their common views. A soclety of socialiats, a kind of forerunner of the Internationai, had entab. lished itself in London, and had been attracted hy the new theories of Marx and the spirit of strong and uncompromising conviction with which he advocatel them. They entered into relation with Marx and Engels; the soclety was re-organlsed under the nanie of the Communist Lengue; and a congress wus held. which resulted (184ĩ) in the franing of the 'Manilesto of the Communlst Party, ' Which was puhilished in most of the innguages of Western Europe, and is the first proclamation of that revolutionary socialism armed with ali the learning of the alneteenth century, but expressed with the fire and energy of the agitator, whiteh in the International and other movements hins so startied the world. Duriag the revolutiouary troubles in 1848 Marx returned to Germuny, and along with his com. rades, Engels, Wolf, de., he supported the most advanced democracy iu the New Rhenish Gazette.' In 1849 he settled in London, where he spent hls a $e \mathrm{er}$ life in the elaboration of his economic views and in the rcalisation of his revolutionary programme. During this period he puhlished 'Zur Kritik der politischen Oekonomie (1859). and the tirst volume of his great work on capltal. 'Das Kapital', (186\%). He died $\ln$ London. March 14. 1N83."-T. Kirkup, A History of Nainlism, ch. $7 .-"$ As to the collectivist creed, Marx lowk upon history as ruied by material interists. He horrows from Hegei the idea of develupment iu history, and secs in the progress of ctvilization merely the development of economic production, which involves a confict of classes. The older socialists were idealists, and coustructed a perfect social system. Jarx simpiy studies ecouomic changes, and thelr effects on the contliet of classes, as a basis for predicting the future. Starting from he principie that there are no permanent economic laws. but merely transitory phases, a principle denied hy the moxiern French ceonomists, he does not crifl. cise hut expinins our modern capitalistic industrial system, add its effects ou society. Formerly, says Engels, an artisan owned his tools and also the promuct of his labor. If he chose to employ wagc earners, these were merely apprentices, and worked not so much for wages, but in order to learn the trade. All this is changed by the fatroduction of cespltal and the modern in. duatrial aystem. Mars explatan the origin of caplen hy caging that it was formeriy the renuls of conquest. the pllige of pencanta, and of coloajes, and the secularization of church property. However, he does not hold the precent caplatiotit to the mbibers. He doee not deal with the capltalist but with capital. Ilis primary theory then is that proft on capltaj, on which the poasiblilits of accumulatiag wealth depends, in due to the fact that the laborer doen not recefve the entire proluct of hia labor as his rewand, but that the capltallat tukes the fion's share. Under the old induatrial system, the laborer's tools, his means of producton, belonged to blim. Now they are owned by the capltaliat. OwIng to the Improvement of machlnery, and the Invention of steampower, the laborer can no fonger apply hls energy in such a way as to be fulfy remunernted. He now must sell his muscular energy In the market. The caplealist who buys it offers hlm no Juat reward. He given the laborera only a part of the product of bls labors, pocketing the remalnder as Interest on capltal, and returna for Hisk Incurred. The faborer is cliented out of the dliference between his wages and the full proxiuet of hls lator, whlle the capltnilst's share In Increased, day by day, by this stolen amount. - Proxluction by all, diatribution among a few. Thls is the gist of Marx's theories. Capital in not the result of Intelligent mavinga. It la almply an amount of wealth appropriated by the caplallat from the laborer's share in his prod. uct."-J. Bourdeau, German swinlimm (V. Eing. hinder and Fitle Rer., ©iph., 1891, \&r. from Rerve des Dene Mondea). - "The princlpil lever of Marx agalnat the present form of Industry, and of the distributlon of Its results, is the dicetrine that value-that la, value In exclange - is crater by labor alone. Nuw thls value, as ascertalned b- exchanges In the market or measured by sone staudard, doxes not actually all go to the labmerer, In the slape of wages. Perlape a certaln nimber of yarls of eotion cloth. for 1 n stance, when sold, actually pay for the wages of haturers and heave a surplas, witich the employer appropriates. Perhaps sis hours of hator perdiem inght emable the hadrorer to crate pronlucts enongh to support himself and to rear up an ureraue family: but at present lue has to work ten hours for lis sulsistence. Where do the results of the four aldithonal hours go ? To the cmployer, wid the capledilst from whom the employer borrows money; or to the employer who alon Is a caplallst and Investa his capital in his works, with a veew to a future return. The latorer works, sml brings new workmen Into the work, who in turn do the same. The tendency of wages heing toward an momont just sutll ichit for tbe malitenunce of the labor, there Is mo hepre for the future class of laborers. Nor eatu compertition or concurrence lelelp the matter. A concurrence of caplalists will temd to reduce wages to the minlmum. it other condl tions remain as they were before. A concurreace of laborers miny raise wages above the iiving point for a while: but these fall agaln, through the stlmulas whith high wages glve to the Increase of population. A general fall of profits may lower the price of artleles used by laborers; but the effect of this is not to ald in the ead to the faborer's share. He can live at leas eapense, it is true, but be will need and will get lower wages. Thus the sytum of hahnp and capltal is a ayotem of rohbery. The eapt Latiat in an 'expropriator' who mumt be expro prialed. as Marz exprocees is. a junt syotem cun never exfot as loog as wagen are deternined by tree contract between haborers and employ ers; that is, ae log we the meane of carrylng on production are in privato hasade. The only curs for the evila of the present faduocrial ayatem is the dentruction of privato property - os far, at feast, as it is used in production; and the nutint. tution of the atate, of of bodien or dilatilets con. trolied hy the state, for the privato owner of the meane of production. Inotend of a numiker of clames In poclety, espectiffy inatead of a hourgeolate and a proletariat, there muxt be but one ciana, which worke directly or fedirectly fir the atate, and receiven an wages what the utate de. ciden to give to them. The state, ft ls taken fur granted, will give in return for bours of lathor as much at can be afforded, conolatently with the Interents of future fabor and witi the ex. penses neceneary for carrylag on the ntate arg. tem Heelf."-T. D. Wooleey, Communiem ind Socialism, pp. 162-163.

Aleo IN: K. Ma, 1, Capital

A. D. 1848. - The founding of the Oneide Commualty. - The Onelda and Wulllingfond communitles of Perfectlonats are followiry of doctrines taught by one John Ilumplirey Xiyes, a native of Vermont, who began hls prracling at Purney, In that state, about 1884 . The crim. munlty at Onelia, In Madlimon county. New York, was formed in 1848, and had a atringaling exlstence for many years ; but gradually sweral pranches of Imilustry, such as the making of traps, travellling hagn, and the llke, were surctomfully established, and the coninunlty leckme prosperous. Everythling is owned li common, and they extend the communalty syatemi "lownd property to persons." That is to any, there is no marriage anong them, and "excluslvurss in regard to women and chlldren" Is dlyplacedl ioy What they claln to be a selentitic regulathon if the Intercourse of the sexes. In the carly years of the Onelda Communlty several ither sutle. ments of the followers of Noyes were nttemptell: but one at Wallingford, Connectleut, Is the whly surrivor. - C. Nordloft. The Communnatie is. cietien of the IV. S. pp. 259-293,

Also ix: J. II. Noyes, Hist. of atmeritan s. cialinmm, ch. 40.
A. D. 1848-8883. - Schulze-Delitzech and the Co-operative movement in Germany.- I'russlan Saxony, Augist 20th, isies. Ile ellitimel jurisprudence at lalpalg and Ilatle, and after. warls atecupled judichal ponsw under fle bowern. ment, becoming D'strict Juige at belitan. in 1841, a positlon which he held untll 1s:3n 18t8, he was elected to the 'russhan Sintional Assembly, and the following yeur he berane a nember of the decond Chaniter, lu which he sat as Schulze-Delitzsch, a mane which has since adlered to him. lieling a member of the l'rogresslst party, he proved a thorn in the (iovernment's thesh, ant he was made District Joulge at Wreselien, but he returned hater to the Prasian Diet, and became also a member of the Sorth German and German leelchatage. For mite than thirty years Schuize heaterl the cet opuratire movement In Germany, but hls self.stacritice Impoverished him, and although hils moto as a

sOCIAL MOVEMENTA

bOCLAL MOVEMENTS.
anclal rotormer had alwaye brea 'Belf-bolp,' at oppored io Lavalie's 'Stato-help,' be was compelled in hle decllaing years to wacept a fife of 37,000 from I irleada. Schulzo difed honoured if aot famow on Aprll geth, 1808 . Gchules. Delitzech the the father of the co-operative movement in Oermany. Ho had watched the dovelop. ment of thlo movement in England, and an early as 1843 he had Ifted up bis voice to eapoucal of co.operative prinelples in ble own country. Though a Redical, schulre was no Sxclailat, and $t=$ belleved cooperntion tu be a powerful weapon wherewith to wlthatand the atexdy adraace of Sxifilistle doctrines in Germany. Bebides carry. ing on agtation hy means of platform speaking, be publwhed vartnus works on the subjeet, the chief n ? which are: 'Die arbeitenden Ki incen uad das Amociatlonswesen in Deutschland, aie Programm zur einem deutachen Congnems,' (Leipalg. 1R3s): 'Kapitei $2 u$ elnem deutichen Arleefl ercatechimmun.' (Lelprig. 1868): ' Dhe Abechaffung des geachafthichen Ristero dureh Herrn Lavalie, (Berln, 1805): ' Hie Entwlekriung des Geamarn chaften in eluzeinen (lewertmzwelgen.' (Leipzig, is isis). Schulze alvocated the applicntion of the co operative principle to other organimatons than the Eagitah stores, and especinly to lomn, raw material, and induatrial amwocintions. Ite made - practlcai beginalag at iuls own home and the edjacent cown of Ellenburg, where in 1840 he eatahilsheed two co-operative assochatlons of sine. makers and jolners, the object of wifich was the purchase and suppiy to memhers of ruw materiai at cost price. In 18.50 he formeri a Lowan Ameoci. stlon (Vorschussvercln) nt Delitzach on the prin. ciple of monthly payments, andi in the foliowing rear a stmilhur association on a inrger male nt Eileabirg. For a iong thue Schulze find the delid of agleation to himselh, nat the conserpuence was that the noore intelligent sectiona of the working classea tiok to hif proposals realliy. Another reason for his succerws, however, was the fact that the movement was prastical nond entirely unpoilticai. It was n movement from whech the soclallstlc element was ahsent, and one in which, therefore, the moneyeri classey goud safely co-nperate. Sclmize, In tact, sought
 The falt of hats seheme as a regenerative agency was that it illi not affect the bunses of the peo ple, and thus the roots of the sochal question were nut tonehed. Schuize couli only laxik for say conviderable support to suall tradesme'n and artisilus to those who were really nble to help themedves If slown the way. Bit hls motoo of Self liolp' was an mameaning goapel to the vast ciawe of people who were not in this happy position. .. The onovement ncared a turniag polat with the caplataist year schuize ideathled himself with the caplealist party nt a Congress of German remomists, helliat Gotha, nnd 110 soon hegan to lose favour with the popular chasee's. The high-water mark was reached in 1860, ut which there the co-oprrative asacolations hadi a nicmber. ship of 300, OHW, and the bustuens done famounted capital ralsed by contribution or ioan approach. log a third of this sum. In the year 1884 no lewer than sh0 Loun and Credit Associations had beea estabished, while in 1801 the number of Row Maurrial and Productive Associations was 172, and that of Co-operative Stores 66. Poedibly the movement might have continued to propper, oren though Bchulke was aumpected of aympathy with the capitalinte, had no HVal appeared on the acese. But a Hival did appear and he wan none of her than limalle."-W. H: Dawion, Gierman shelialiom and Mrdinand Lise sall, eh. 7. - The co-opernilvo mocletles in Ger many on the schulze-Delltasch plao bare bend regularly organized into an maclation. "The number of socletien in this asuoctation Increaved from 171 in 1859, to 781 to 1804 , and was 8,8 zis In 1885. At the iact named date they were dis. trinuted thus: loma and credlt socletien, 1,265 co-operative socletirn in various branches of trade, 1,146: co-operative store socletles, 678 buliding mocleties, 33. At the ead of 1804 the membership wha $1,500,000$. Of their own cagiLal, in shares and rewerve fuads, they powesserl $\mathbf{8 0 0 0 0 0 0 , 0 0 0}$ mark:; and of borrowed capitat $\$ 00,000,000$ marks. " - Frience, Apph. 0, 1887.
 M. Godia at Guise. - "The Fumilistere founded at Guile (Atsne). France, by the late M. Jean Baptiste André Godiln, has a world. whe reputa. tion. The soclal Paiace itself, a marvel nf ingenlous pisilantiuropy, whleh realizes succemfuily come of the elameteriatic idem of Fourfer entitem M. Gox!la to a highi place among ine sucial reformern of the i9th ceatury. He was the son of a worker ta iron, and even before inls apprenticeship hail concelved the litea that he was destined to set a great example to the indastriai worid. ... The husiness carred on in the great foundries at Guise is the namufacture of cast. Iron ware for the Eltchen and gencral house use, and of heating apparatus of various kInis. M. Goviln was the timst man in France to use cast iron to naking stoves, in place of shect iron: thls was but one cxample of inis theentlve powers. Iie hegall in 1840, with 20 wol': lume, the anufacture whlch cmpiored in issis over 1.tow at Guse and sun in the branch establishmeut at ineken, in Ihelglum. From the begin. alng there was an organization for mutual nid amoug the workmen, assasted by the proprietor. The Fumllitice was opened in i860; but it was not untll 185\%, owlag to the obstacles presenteri by the French inw to the plan which he hat In mind, that M. Gosiln introluced partieipation by the workmeu la the protits of his gigantle estabinshment. . . . in isso the extablishment becanne a jolat-stock company with ilmited ilablity, aad the aystem of prott sharing was begun wheh stIII [is89] obtains there. II. Gotlo'a main hilea was gradually to trausfer the ownership of the busfaces and of the assoclated Familistere into the hads of hls workmen. . . . No workman is aimitteti to partlcipation [in the profit-shanaing] Who is not the owner already of a share. But the faclity of purchase is great, and the intcrest on hils stock ndds materially to the tacome of the average worknun. M. Godin was gradually dis posing of hls capital to the workmen up tin his death [In 1888], and thls process will go on untl Madame Godiu slapiy retains the direction of the busincss. But when this shall have hap. pened, the oldest workmen shall, in like manner, release the'r shares to the younger, fu onler to keep the ownershlp of the establishment in the bands of the actual workers from generation to fencration. In this way a true cooperatlve productive house will be formed within ten or a dozen yeare. M. Godin'a capital in 1880 was $4,600,000$ francs; the whoie capital of the house

soclal Movements

BOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

In t8es had riaen in $0,000,000$ france, and of thala sum $9,755,800$ frones wers held by rarinu: em. ployers in Uctober, 1887. The organlation of the workmen as particlpatore forms quite a hler. arthy," at the hewl of which tand the " amencl. ates." "The "amonclate' munt owa at least BN) francs worth of atuck; they munt be engaged In wort, and bave thelr home in the Famillistere they elect bew members themaelves. . . They will furuinh Malame Oniln's ucceaor from their ranks."一N. [', GHman, I'rojtt Sharing, pp. 1is-1i7.-Iu April. 1459, N. Godín began io rrailec the sume important of has liew of eocial Peform, namely, " the subatitution fur our presellt inntatey dwelliges of homes and dwelling combined latos suclal Palaces, where, to une of. Gullo's expremive worls, 'the equivalede of richen, that is the mont enowntal alvantages which wealth beatows on our common life, may be hiought withto reach of the mase of the popu. Intion. In Aprit, 1850, be laid the foundation of the east wing of such a palace. the Fiamitiatere of Gulse. If wus corered In in Deptember of the same year, completed In 1800, and fully occu. pied In the year following. in 1802 the central bulthlag wat commenced. It was completed in 1804 and occupled ln 1805. The office In front of the east whig were bult at the anne time at that wing - $\mid$ I 1 e60. The other appeadages of the palace were added in the followlog onder - the uursery and bahlies' school In 1868; the schools aud theatre in 1860; and the laths and wash. houses in 1870 . The west wlog wat begun in 1877, thlahed in 18:9, and fully orcupled in 1880. Till its completion the inhabttants of the Famil. latere numbered about 900 permona; at presebt [1880] It accommodates 1,200 . Its population therefore already asamise the proporthon of a conshlerable sllage; while tis style of conatruc. thon woull ensily allow of the addition of guadfougles, communleatigg with the north-enstern und north- Weatern angles of the central buldilng. by which the number of oceujunts might le ralsed to 1,800 or 2,000 , whthout in any way $\ln$ terfering with the enjoyneats of thi present lonutes, supposing circumstances mate it deslrable to increase thelr uumbers to thly extent.

Of the moral effect upon the pupula:fon of the frec and yet soclal llfe whleh a uultary dwellfur makes posalble, M. Gohln wrote In 18:7:-- For the ecitriatlou of those who belleve that the wurklug elasmes are undlisclptined or undlact. pllable, I nust say that there has not been in the Fimilistere sluce fis foumdation a single pollece case, und yet the palace coutalas DOO prersums; meethags in it are frequent aud numerous: and the most active interegurse and rolations cabit unomg all the Inhabitants.' Aud this is not the couseyuence of any atriet control exerilsed over the finmates. On the contrars, the whole Hfe of the Fiamillstère is one of carefuliy. guisded indluldial thert?, which is prevented frou degenerathe lutu ifcense simply hy the intluence of publie: upinlun among lis inhabitants, who, mindulvicring thelr own internai affairs as a uuttell luxly, exercise a disclpinary action upou emeh other. There are no gates, beyond doors turning on a central plrot and never fastened, Introxinced in wiuter for the sake of warmith; bo porter to mark the time of eatrance or egrexan of anyone. Fiety set of apafturents Is accesathie to Its occupants at any hour of the day or night, with the same factlity as If It opened out of a well.lighted street, olare alf the halle of the Familistere wre Inghted during the whole alghe, And at there are tend diferenis ris trances, each freely communketiog with the whole bulling, It woull be lese easy for one in nute to apy the movements of another than it is for the nelyhtoury In an orilnary street tukep an untuok on ench other's actlons.

Itht met factor, and I conelve a very Impurtant fat lip, th this cfiturt, mus ant be fow: slght of, anaily that the strelal I'alace at Guise is not a hone privided for the poor, liy a benevolence whleh bousw h s own twe clay in Its imolated dwelling over asalnut the obwles where those of coarset clay aro clus. teres! toxether. It la a home for M. (hulim and memicer of bis family, the heade of departmots and other perang connected with him, whowe sbens rime cotumileralily above thome of the workers, no lesm thas for the workity fa the foundry - a manalon of which It is the gloty that all the pooms on every floor orlglanly difre only by a few luches of helght, and ancli allght dinferences in the hetght and whdth of dimsen ad winduws an pequire careful vhervation to de: tect, and that all participate allke, accortling to the quirter of the sky to which they leok, la alr and light. So that the differene of aconamo. datlou is practlcally meduced to tire number of aquare feet which the means of the lamate enahles him to oceupy, and the latermi urrangement of the sace at his dieposal, "-F.. V. Neale, Aemrilted Ifomen.

ALso 15: E. Howland, The Exeint Inluce at Nuim, and The Himilistire at Ouine (Hurpris Gexlin. Axinl sxutionn.
A. D. $1860-1870$, Nihllism Io Rustim, - For urilvity betwean 1880 and $18 i 0 \mid$ we numt go buck hislf : cent. io tltte compuny of pifted young men, most of whom rowe to great lintive. $t$ who used at that thme to nuel tore.ther ut muse of a tich merchant ln Moscow. for the dit esslou of philosophy, politles uni riligion They were of the mont farlons views. sume of folluw the constitutfonul fevelopme of the Western uathos: others becanie fommhers of the new Slavophil party, contending that Iluswia should be no inilator, but develop her owa mation instl. tuthons in her own wuy ; and there wore ut leat two amoug them - Alexander Herzon : $\mathrm{H} \| \mathrm{M}$ chaei Bakunla - who w , re to be promiarut expenents of revoluthoury sochallsm. Itut they all owued at this prerion one common master - llegel Thelr hons was an ardent Ilegeliat, ant bis young frients threw themsidres into the study of llegel whit the greatest zo:a!. Ilerzen himwill they read everythfag that cancefrom his fin, how they devoted nights and weeks to do:lliug ti, ibe meaning "f slngle passages in his w rititiov, and how gremily they devauret every bew piniph let shat lssict: from the Germunt prean in any part of bla system. From llegel. Herzen and Bakunin were led. exactly llke Nary and the Gernaan loung liegelluns, to Fenermads, sud from Feucrbarlh to suciallsm. Bakunin, whenhe retired from the army, mather than be the Instre ment of appressing the l'oles anoug whom be where he livel among the Young llegellaus and wrote for their organ, the 'Hallische Jalirhtecher';

SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.

NiAdum.
DOCLAL MOVEMENTE
but before elther he of lierzen ever had any per. monal latercommunication with the mpmberin of that schoul of thought, they had panmed through precteely the mame development. Herzeu apeate of soctillam almont In the very phrmam of the Youag Ifegollans, as belug the new 'terreotral religlon, " In which there was to tw nelther Goxl gop hearen; as a new ayatem of coclety whleh woulddiape nese with an authoritalive govercment. buman of Divine, anil which shoulf be at once the completion of Chrlatlanity and the realization of the Revolution. 'Cliriatlanity, 'he mald, 'made the siave a son of man; the Revolution has emnneipnted himi Into a clizen. Socialism would make blm a man.' This tendency of thoutibe Fanatroagly supportel in the Rumian mind by Haxthaused's diacorvery and laudation of the pural cominine of Rucela. The Rumalan state Wan the mont arhitrary. oppremoive, and corrupt to Europer and the Rumion Church wan the mont Ignorant .. il supentltiens; lhut bere at laat was - Rumisg Institution which was ganled with cavy even by wive men of the $i$ est, and was resily a practical anticipation of that very mecial aystem which was the last work of Eumprean phillosoplay. It was whith on smali prite, there. fore, that Alexaniler Herzen theciared that the Muscovite peamant in his uirty sheepokla had colved the soclal problem of the bineteenth century, sad that for Runcia, with thls great prohlem airealy solved, the Revolution wan ol viously comparatively simple operatioa. You hal hut to remove the Czardom, the services. and the prienthood, and the great mase of the people wruld atil remain orgaalzal in fifty thoumul! complete little self governing commuaites Hiving on their commoa land a ad ruling their commoa sfalrs us they lad been doing long before the Czandom came lato leing. All 'ie wildest phasess of nilithst opinlow in the alxties were sirealy raging ia liumia in the forties. Although the oaly poiltical outbreak of vilelin: las's refinn, the Petrachetaky coaspir"- inf 1v49, was litlie mure than a petty atreet Hot, as storm of serious revole agalaat the tyraany of the Czar was long gatherlag, which would have lurst upon hls head after the disasters to his army la the Crimen, had he aurvired them. Ile sulv it thlekealag, however, andi on hls death-bed sald in ths soa, the noble and unfortisaute Alexaader II., I fear you will dad the burden too hcavy The soa found it eventunily heavy eaough, $t$. is the meanitime he wisely beat before 'lie storm, pelaxell the restrainta the futher had limposeli, and gave pledges of the most liberal reforms in ercey depmrtineat of State - judicial Ruminis. tration, lueal givernmeat, popular educatioa, urf cmanclpation. . A' Independent press was min amoug the liberties conceded, but Rus. slan "pinkna at this perioul fomad omost effective voler in a aewspa. 4 : started lu Londoa by Alex. ander Ilicrzea, eailed the 'Kolokol' (Bell), which for a aumber of years made a great limpression In Ihassth. . Heracn was the hero of the Putar: Ilereuism, we are toll, berame the rage, aal lierzenism appears to have meant, be. fipe all, a fres haniling of everythhg in Church ir State which was previnusly thonght tor) saerell to be touched. This fcomoclastle splrit prew uore aad more characturfatic of Rusainn sinitity at this period, and presently, under its influence. Herzenian fell into the shade, and nihilisas occupied the scene. We posseas various aconuntis of the meaniag and nature of nflilhom, and they all arree subotantially In their dencripthon of lt. The word wat ornt employed hy Turgentef in bla novel' Fanern and Boney whero Anmill Petrovitch auppriono bls father and uncle
 - A nibilist,' eald Nleholas Petrovitech. 'This worl nust come from the Latio alhil, nothlag. matar a I caa julye. anil consequeatiy it aimal. des a inan who recognies nothing. 'Or rather winn Pesperts mothing.' Ealif P'aul Petrovitch. 'A man who hooks at everything from a crlteal polite of view, mid Arearl. Dies not that come tos the samo thiag?' af. id his uncle. 'No, bot at all. A nlibiliat la at ... vho bows before un) authority, wiousceptes no prinelple without examination, no mutter what crevitt the principle ham.

- Yes, before we had IIegelians; nuw we have alhilists. We shali ate what you wil! do to exint in nothingnems, In a sacuum, as if under an aif puinp." Kowcheleft, writug in 18if, gives similar explanation of ollillism. most dangerous mondhe of character, and the funal langerous ponsilile. We suffer from futal uabelief in everything. We have ceased to belleve in this or in that, nut becaune we have studied the subject thoroughly and become conviaced of the uutemability of our vlows, hut only becanse wome authir or saother in Germany or Eiugland holds this or that doctrlae to be unfyunded. ... Our nillifists are simply liadicali. Thetr loud apeeches, thelr fault-dniliug, their atroag ansertlous, are grounded on nothlug. '"J. Rae, Contennorary Sucinlism, eh. 9. -See, alen, Nimilisx.
A. D. 1862-1863.-Fordinand Lassalie and the formalion of the Social Democraflc Party In Germany.-" There has prohahly been no thore Interwstiag apprearanee la the later poiltical history of Germauy thau Lassaile's - no eliarac. ter that has secured more completely the attennion of its Worlid. There thay be and there are masay difticuitles in the way of accepting las. salles political creed, but he had sutficleat brealth and strength to win a secure place to the two widely separated dumains of German selence and pollties aud to profoundly intlueace the leallag splrits of his time. . . In addition to his worth in the departmeat of scleace Lasanfle was aiso a auan of aliulrs, a practieal politlclan, auil-however large an element of the actor aad soplalst there may have beea la him the greatest Gicrinau orator since Luther and Joln Tauler. Besides thls, he was naturally herolc, as beautiful lu person as Goethe; and when we remember that he was crossed la love and me: Iu consequeace with a romnatic death at the age of thirty.nlue, we see at oace, as the pubilisist de Laveleye has suggested, the making of a story like that of Abelard. Lassalie has been the poetry of the various accouats of contemporary socialism, and has alrealy created a itteruture which is still growiag alinost with the ruplidity of the frothe literature. The estimate of Lassalle's worth has been la each account uaturally Int:urnced by the cocoamlcal or scuthemental stauipmint of the writer. To de Laveleye, who takes so much interest In sociailsm. Lassailie was a hailsome agitator, whose merit iles chietty in hle woutk as interpreter of Kurl Marx. To Jloa. tetiore he was a man of acleuce who was led by accideat into poltices; and Frunz Mehrlag. who was onec the follower of Lassalle, in hif:

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

Lamalle.

SOCLAL MOVEMENTY.

'Geschichte der deutschen Sociai. Demokratie' dis. cucce hif career in the Intolerant mood In which one generally approaches a formaken worthip. The Englichman John Ree, on the contrary, in his account of coclaifm, makes Lassalle a hero; and in the narnative of the talented Dane, Georg Brandes, Lasealle is already on the broad road to hif place as a god. In the same spirit Rudolf Meyer in his work "The Fourth Estate' Struggle for Fimancipation' does not hesltate to use the chief hyperbole of our modern writers, and comparea Lassalio with Jesus of Nazareth. Heine also, who saw in his fellow Isreaite that perfect Hegelian 'freedom from Gowl whici he himself had attempted in vnin, hails Lassaite as the 'Messiah of the age.' Among Lassaile's more immediate disciples this deification seems to have become a formal chitus, and it is affirmed, hard as one finds it to believe the story, that after Lassalie's death he became an object of worship with the German iaborers.

The father of Lassaile was a Jewish merchant in Lresiau, where the future 'fighter and thinker' as Boeckh wrote mournfully over his tomb, was born on the 11th of A pril, 1825. The Isracite Litsati, for so the family name is still written, was a wenithy wholesale dealer in ciotio, and witio a conscionsness of the grod in such an arocation had from the first intended thnt Ferilunnd shouldi be a merchant. . . . But this was not his testinv.

The first feature in Lassaile was has wili, the sonrce of his strength anditis ruin, and one can find no period in his iife when this wili seemed in the lenst capable of compromise or submission.

When le decided to become n Christian and a piniosopiver instemi of a merchant, the fat. dy hal notiling to do hut to accommodiate themselves as best they could to tinls ar. rangement."-L J. IInff, Ferdiutul Lisatle (Pol. . نienre Onarterly, Ept., 188\%).-"It was In 1068 that Lassalle legan his agitation in hehaif of the ?aboring classes, an agitation which resulted in tite formation of the ferninn socini Demoratic l'arty. l'revions to his time. Ger. mau lahorers hal heen considered contented and peaccable. It hai been thongit that on work-ing-nten's party migit be estabished in France or England, but that it was hopreiess to attempt to move the phlegmatic German intorers. Las. salle's inistorieal importature lies in the fict that he was able to work upon the inlorers so powerfully as to arouse thein to nction. It is che to Lassallu alove ail otieers that German working. mon's bittalions, to nse the social slemocratic expresain, now form the vangural in the strug. gle for the emancipation of intor. iasuate's writing dlif not advance naterinlly the theory anti N:arx in his economic writiugs, but he chothed their thongita in sued mumner ns to enal ie orimary laborers to understand them, and this they uever cenlei hare done withont such help). . lassalle genve to iRteardo's haw of whges the decigmation, the irun law of wiges. and expounced to the latorers its fuli signiticance, showing them how it Inevitathy forced wages down to al lelel just sumblent to cmble them to inve. iic arknow ieciged that it was the key-stone of his system ani that his doctrines stemi or feil with it. Laborers were toid that this law conid be overthrown only by the aboil. thon of the wrges systern. Ifow Laconlle really thought this was to he accounilished is not so evident. He proposed to the laborere that gov. erament shouid aid them by the use of les credit to the extent of $100,000,000$ of thalers, to estabfish co-operstive assoctations for production; and a great deal of bresth has been wasted to show the inadequacy of his proposed measurem. La salie could not hlmeelf have supposed that so in significant matter as the granting of a small losn would solve the labor quention. He recog. nized, however, that it was necemary to havo some definite party programme to lngure succese in agitatlon

On the 28d of May, 1868, German social democracy was born. Little im. portance was attached to the event at the time. A few men met at Lelpalc, and, unier the Icadership of Ferdinand Lassaile, formed a new political party cailed the 'Universal Geman Laborers' Union ' ('Der Allgemeine Deutsche Ar. beiterverein').

Lassalie did not iive to see the fruits of his fabors. He met with some suecess and celebrated a few triumphs, hut the Union did not fionrish as he hoped. At the time of hia death he did not appear to have a tirm, lasting hold on the laboring popuiation. There then existed no social-democratic party with political power. Although Lassalle lost his llfe in a duel [1864], which had its origin in a fore affair, and not in any struggle for the rights of labor, he was canonized at once by the working. men.

His infuence increased more than tenfold as soon as he ceased to live."-Ir. T. Ety, Freneh and German socialiom in Motern Times, ch. 12
A. D. 1862-1872.-The International in Es-rope.- "The Internationai came into being im. melliately after the hoiding of the Interumtional Exhibition at London, in 1862. At ienst it was then that it took bodily shape, for the idha, in lis theoretical form, dntes from much earier In 1862 certain manufacturers, such as M. Arles. IVfour, and certain newspapers, such as Le Temps' anil 'L'Opinion Nationaic," started the Hen that It wouid be a gooi thing to sind didegates from the French working men to the iondon Exinihition. "The vislt to their comrales In England,' said ' L' Oplnion Natiomale.' would establish mutnai relations in crery way mivastagenus. Witile they would be able to gie an bien of the great artistic and industrial works at the Exhibition, they wouid at the same tine feel more strongly the mutuai interests which bind the working men of both countries together: the ohi heaven of internathonai discorl womlel wette down, and national jealonsy wond give place to a heatithy fraterual emutation.' The whole programme of the luternationai is stummal up in these lines; but the manufacturers little foresw the manure in which it was going io be carried ont. Napoicon III. njpenred to te very favonrahie to the sending of the delegate's to $i$.minan. Ile ailowed them to be ciosen by mivermal suf frage among the members of the several trates, and, naturaliy, those who spoke the strunget on the rights of labour were chosen. $13 y$ the Emperor's orders, their journey was facilitated in every way. At that time Napoleon still Irenmed of relying, for the maintenance of his Empire on tile working men and peasants, mal of thas coping whth tire iiberal middie classes. At Lon don the Engilsh working men gave the most cordini weicome to 'their brothers of France.
 'Internationai fraternization' at the Freemasons'

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

Tavera.
They proposed to create commit. tees of working men 'an a medium for the later. chsnge of ideas on questions of internationsl trade.' The conception of a universal assocletion appeart here in embryo. Two years afterwards It saw the fight. On the 28th of September, 1864, a great meeting of working men of ail na. tions was held at St. Martin's Hall, London, under the presldeney of Professor Beesly. M. Toiain spoke in the name of France. Karl Mari was the real inspirer of the movement, though Mazzinl's secretary, Major Wolfi, asalsted hlm$s$ fact which has given rise to the statement that Mazzini was the founder of the International Bo far was this from being the case that he only joined it with distrust, and soon left it. The mecting appointed a provislonal committee to draw up the statutes of the association, to be ubmitted to the Universal Congress, which was expected to meet at Brussels in the following jear. In this committee Engiand, France, Italy, Poland, Switzerland, and Germany were repre. sented; and afterwands delegates from other countries were admitted. They were fifty in all. They adopted none of the ways of a seeret soclety. On the contrary, it was by publleity that they hoped to carry on their propaganda. Thelr office was in London. . . . Mazzinl, by hls secretary, Woilf, proposed a highly centralized organization, whieh would entrust the entlre maangement to the leaders. Marx took the other side.

Marx carried the day. Soon. in hls turn, he too was to be opposed and turned off as too dietatorial. Mazzint and his followers seceded. .. . The progress of the new associathon was at first very slow." After its second congress, held at Lausanne, in 1867, it spread raphlify and aegulred an influence which was espeetally alarming to the French government. In 1870 the internat lonal was at the summit of its power. In 1872 its congress, at the Ilague, was a battle. field of strugging factions and elashing liens, and praetlcally it perished in the eontllet. "The causes of the rapld deeline of the famous Asso. ciation are easy to discover, and they are ingtrue. tive. First of all, us the organlzer of strikes, its principul and most practlcal end, It proved Itself timid and impotent. The various bolies of workiag men were not sfow to pereeive this, aud gave it "p. Next, It had taken for motto. Enamcipution of the workers by the workers thems.ives. It was intendet, then, to do whih. out the bonrgeols-radieais, 'the palaverers,' 'the adrenturers, who when the revolution was made, would step hito power and teave the working men ns they were before. The majority of the deequtes were nevertheless bourgeols; but. in reality. the sentlment of revolt against the uristocratic ciirection of the more intelligent inembers alsitys perslsted, and it fastened principaily on Fiar Mars, the true fonnder of the Internathonat, and the ouly political bruin that It contalued. But tukeep ia exlstence a vast assochation ent brscing very numerous groups of different nat thonalithes, and Influenced sometimes by divergent cursents of lifeas, to make use of pubfiefty as the sole meaus of propaganda, and yet to escaje the represslue laws of difierent States, was evhlently nueasy task How could It possibly have lasted after the only man capable of dlrecting it had been ostraclzed? The cause of the faifurc was not accilental; it was part of the very essence of the attempt. The proletariat wlll not foilow the middle-class radjcals, because political Ilbertles, repuhican instltutions, and even universal suffrage, which the latter clalm or are ready to decree, do not change the refations of capital and labour. On the other hand, the working man is evidently lucapahle of directing a revolutlonary movement which is to solve the thousand difficulties created by any eomplete change in the economie order. Revolutlonary Socialism thus leads to an insoluble dilemma and to practical impotence. A further cause contributed to the rapld fail of the Internatlonal, namely, personal jealousles."-E. de Lavelcye, The Socialism of
A. D. 1866-1875.-Rise and growth of the Patrona of Husbandry, or Grangers, in the United Statea.-The onler. composed of furmers, known as Patrons of Husbandry, or Grangers, was founded in 1866 . It grew rapldiy during the first decade of its exlsteuce, and reported a membershlp, in November, 1875, of 763,203. After that period the numbers deellned. The general aims of the order were set forth in a " Deelaration of Purposes," as follows : "We shafl entleavor to advance our eause hy laboring to accomplishing the following objects: To develop a better and higher manhood and womanhood among ourselves. To euhance the coniforts and attractlons of our homes, and strengthen our attachments to our pursults. To foster mutual understanding and co-operation.

To diseonntenance the eredlt system, the mortgage system, the fashion system, and every other system tending to prodigality and bank. ruptey. We propose meetlog together, talking together, working together, huying together selling together, and in general acting together for our nutual protection and advancement, as oreasion miny require. We shall nvoid litigation as much as possible by arbitrathon In the Grange.

We are not enemles to capital, but we op pose the tyranny of monopolles. We fong to see the antagonism between labor and capltal reuoved ly eommon consent aud by an eniight. end statesmanship worthy of the nineteenth century

Last, but not least, we prociaim it among onr purposes to incolente a proper appreciation of the ablities and sphere of woman, us is indleated by ahmitiag ler to membershlp and position In oirr order."-IR T. Ely, The Iat. bur Morcment in Ameriea, ch. 3 - &ee, nlso, United Etaten of Am: A, D. 18 :it-1891.
A. D. $1867-1875$ - - The Brocton Community of the Brotherhood of the New Life. - The Commnnity of the Brotherhood of the New Life was estabilished at IBrocton, on the shore of Lake Frie, by Thomas Lake IIarris, in 186\%. Hirris had bien. partiy at least, the founder of an euriicr comununity nt Mountaln Cove, In North ('arolina, which weut to pieces after two years. For some time he travelled and feetured in Amoriea and England, nud during $n$ eertain perint he engaged iu limsiness as a banker, at Inenia, In Jutebess county, New lork. Ile possessed qualltes whieh exerifsed a fascinating intluenee upon mnny people of superior euitiva. tion, and made theni docile reciplents of a very peculinr religlons teachlng. IIe ehimed to have uade a strange splritual diseovery, through which those who disclplined themselves to the acceplance of what it offered might attalu to a "'new ilfe." The disclpline required seems to have fuvolved a very complete surrender to the leader, Harris; sad it was on such terms, apparently, that the Community at Brocton-or &alem-on-Erie as the Brotherhood renamed the place - was constituted. Among those who entered it was the briliiant writer, dlpiomatiat, and man of soclety, Laurence Oliphant, who jolued, with Inls wife, and with Lady Oilphant, inls mother. The connection of Oliphant with the society drew to lt more attention than it might otherwise have recelved. The Communlty bonght and owned about 2,000 acres of iand, and devoted its iabors extensively and with success to the culture of grapes and the making of wine. The breaking up of the Brotherhook appears to be covered with a good deal of ohseurity. Harris ieft Brocton in $18 \% 5$ and went to Cailfornia, where he is reported to be living, at Sonoma, on a great estate. Some of the Brotherhool went with him; others were acattered, and the Brocton vineyards are now cuiti. vated by other hands, - W. E. K., Brocton (Byffalo Courier, July 19. 1891).

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS. Knights of Labor. SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.

Also IN: M. O. W. Oliphant, Memoir of the life of Latrence Oliphant.
A. D. 1869-1883.-The Knights of Labor,"The secon: grent attempt [the first having been 'the International'] to organize labor on a broad busis - as broad as society itself, in which ail trades should he recognized - was the Noble Order o: Kinghts of Labor of America. This or. ganizeti,n was horn on Thanksgivlng Day, 1469. in the city of Philadelphia, and was the result of the efforts of Uriah S . Stephens, as the ieater, and six associates, ali garment.cutters. For severai years previoas to this date, the garment-cutters of Philadelpinia had been organized as a trades-union, but had fuiled to maintain a satisfactory rate of wages in their trule. A feeling of dissutisfaction prevalied, which resulted, in the fsil of 1869 , Ina vote to disband the union. Stephens, foreseelng this resilt, had quietiy prepared the outlines of $n$ pian for an organization embracing 'ali branches of honorable toll, ' and based upon edneation, which, througheo-operation and an intelligent use of the baliot, should graduaily aholish the present wages system. Stephens himself was a man of great force of character, a skiiled mechanic, with the fove of books which enabled him to pursue his studies during inis apprenticeship, and feeling withal a strong affection for secret organizations, having been for many years connected with the Jlasonic onler. . ile helievel it was necessary to bring ali wage-workers together in one organization, where measures affecting the interests of nil could be inteiligentiy discussed and atteri upon: and this fe held could not be done iu a trides-union. At the last session of the Garmentcutters' Linion, and after the motion to disband had prevailed. Stephens invited the few members present to meet him, in order to discuss his new plan of organization.

Stephens then laid before his guests his plan of an organization, which he designated The Noble and Holy Order of the Knights of Labor.' It was a new departure in labor organization. The founder described what he considered a tendency toward large combinations of eapltal, and argued that the trades-union form of organization was like a bundle of sticks when unbound, - weak and powerless to resist combinstion.

Stephens' trest controiling ldeas may be furmuiated as follows: first that surplus labor aiways keeps wages down; and, second, that nothing eas remedy this evli but a purely and decpls spe. cret organization, based upon a plan that slabl teach, or rather Inculcate, organlzatlon, and st the same time educate lts membershlp to one set of ldeas ultimately subvernlve of the present wsg+s system. At a subeequent meeting, held Dec, 28, 1860, upon the report of a Committee on Ritual, Invoiving ohilgatlons and oatis, Mr. Stephens and his six associates subscribed their nanies to the obligations; and, when the ritual was adopted, Mr. James L. Wright moved that the new Order be named the 'Knights of Labor.'

The members were sworn to the strictest secrecy. The name even of the Order was not to be dlvulged.

The rules of governmedt excluded physicians from the Order, be. cni'se professional eonfldence might force the societies' secrets into unfriendiy ears. The rule prohihiting the admission of phyaicians, howerer was repealed at Detrolt in 1881 . Politicdads were to he excluded, because the founders of the Order considered that their moral character was on too low a plane for the sacred work of the new Order ; and, besides, it was considered that irrofessional politicians would not keep the serets of the Order, if such secrets conld be used for their own alvantage. Den engiged in political work are not now exeluded fur that canse alone. Lawyera were to be exel led, and still are, because the founders cons! ered that the logical. If not the practical. career of the dawyer is to get money by his aptitudes and cunning, which, if used to the advantage of one, must be at the expense of another. ... finm seliers were and are excluded, because the trade is not only useless, by being non-jroductive of articles of use, but results in great sulferintr and immorality.

The fountiers also eonsidered thut those who seli or otherwise hanile lignors should be excluded, becanse such persons woulh be a deflement to the Order. In consequence of the close secrecy thrown around the new organization, it did not grow rapidiy, Stephens. Impressed with the Masonic ritual and that of the Odd Feliows, was unwiliing to allow any change.

So the society struggled on, admitting now nad then a menber, its affalrs running sumwthly, as a whole, hut the name of the organlation never divulged. $\qquad$ In January, Isis, when the whole maehinery of the organization was perfected so far as bodies were coneerned, there had been no general deciaration of principles. The Order had been intensely secret, as much as the soclety of the Masons or of the Odd Fellows. The name of the Order legan to he whe pill about; hut begond the name and mus gerated accounts of the membership, nothing Was known of the Kights of Labor. The membership must have been small,- indecd, not counting far into the thousands. In fact, it did not reach fifty thousand until five sears later.

Abrut this time [1878] the striet secrecy in the workings of the Order, and the faet ilat the obilgations were oaths taken on the Bible, brought on a contlict with the Catholic Cluarch, and during the years 187\%-78 many Local and several Distriet Assemblies lapseci. . . . Meisures were adopted whereby a sitisfactory concil. iatlon was brought about, on the general gromed that the labor movement couid consistently take no interest In the advocacy of any kiad of religion, bor assume any position for or against

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

miernational in  4 merica.

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

creeds. The prejudlces against the Knlghts of Labor on account of Cathofic oppositlon then naturaliy, but graduaily. disappeared; and the Order took on new strength, until there were in 1879 twenty-three District Assembilies and about thirteen hundred Locai Assemhifes in the Unlted states. The third annual seesslon of the General Assemhiy was held at Chicago. In September, 1879, when the fecicral body busied ltself with general legislation, and was called upon to consider the resignation of Mr. Stephens as Muster Workman. This resignation, urgently pressed hy Mr. Stephens, was accepted; and Hon. Terrence V. Powderly was elected Grand Master Workman in his place. . . . The membersilip was stated to be ilve thousand in good stanifing. The next nnnuai meeting of the Gencral Assembiy (the fourth) took piace at Pittshurg, in September, 1880, nad consisted of forty delegates. At this session, strikes wcre denounced as lnjurious, andi as not worthy of support except in extreme cases. .-. The iftih session was hetid in September. 1881, at Detruit. This session hall to deal with one of the most importunt actions in the history of the Onter The General Assembiy then declured thnt on and after Janunry 1. 1882, the nnme and objeets of the Orier should be made pibllc. It aiso dc. clared that women shoulif be admitted uponan equal footing when men.

A beneft insur ance inw was also passed, and of the ritual was advisell. and an entire change of the ritual was advisel.

The sixth annuul ass-nliliy was heid in New York In September, 18s0, the chief business consistiug in the discus sion, and inally $\ln$ the adoption, of a revised coustitution and riturl. At titis Assembiy, what is known as the 'strike' element-thut is, the supporters and befievers in strikes - was in the majurity, and laws and reguiations for supportiay strikes were adopted; and the co-operatiou of members was suppressed by a chauge of the co-operative law of the Order.

The sercuth sanuai session of the Generai Assembiy was heif at Cincinnati In September, 1883, and consisted of oae hundred and ten representative delegates.

This large representation was owing to the raph growth of the Order since the mame and objects hal been male pubif.c. . The inembership of the Order was reported to this Assembly to be, In mulud numbers, fifty-t wo thousani. In September, 1884 , tbe eighth annul Assembiy convened at Philadelphia. St :h. and boycotts were denounced. . . The nant Geaeral Assembiy convened at Liamilton. Ontario. in Oetuber, 1885, and ndopted legisiation houkiag to the prevention of strikes and boycotts. The session iasted eigbt days, the membership being reported at one hundred uud eieven thou sanil. ... The tenth unnual session of tic Genin Octuter 1886 in October. 1886. . . Mr. Powderiy, In his tes. tiuray before tbe Strike Investlgating Committee of Congress, Aprii 21, 1888, mate the foliowog statement as to membership: Our present membershlip does not exced 500.000 . althongh we have been crealited with $\%, 000,000$. "Tins statement indicates a growth of nenrly 400,000 n one year. The growtin was so rapid tiat the Executive Boarl of the Order feit construined to call " hait in the initintion of new members. Toully (Deceminer 10, 1886), winife the membersitip has fahien of lu sume locnities, from varions causes, in the whole country it has increased, and is, accordlag to the best inslde estlmates, not much less than one million."-Carroll D. Wright Historical Sketch of the Knights of Labor (Quar. terly Journal of Economics, Jan., 1887). "At the annual conventlon of the Knights of Labor, held at Philadelphla, November 14-28 [1803], Grand Master Workman Powderly, for fifteen years the head of the order, was succeeded hy J. R. Sovereign, of Iowa. The new feader's first address to the organizatlon, issued December 7, contalned in addition to the usual denunciation of capitalists, a strong demand for the free coinage of silver and an expansion of the 1894; Fiecord Political Acience Quarterly, June, 894; Record of Political Erents.
America-By the one The International in America, - By the onder of the congress of the International held at the Hague in 1872, the General Council of the Association was transferred to New York. " Ilodern sociallsm had then undoubtedly begun to exist in America. The flrst proclamatlon of the council from thel new headquarters was an appeal to workingmed - to emancipate labor and cradicate ail lnternational and nationais strife.'. The 'Exceptlonal Law' passed agalnst socialists hy the German Parilament ln $18 i 8$ drove many sociailsts from Germany to thls country, and these have strengthened the cause of American socialism through membership in trades.nnions and in the Sociai. istic Labor Party. There have been several changes among the sociailists in party organlzation nad name since 1873, and national conventions or congresses have met from tine to time

The nnnic Soclaiistlc Labor Party was adopted in 1878 nt the Newark Conventlon. In 1883 the split bet ween the moderates and extremists had become definite, and tbe latter heli thicir congress in Pittshurg, and the former in Baitimore.

The terrible affair of May 4, 1886, when the Chicago Internationalists en deavored to resist the police hy the use of dynamite, terminated afl possihifty of joint ac tion-even If tbere could previousiy have been any remote fiope of it; for that was denounced as criminal folly hy the Sociulistic Labor Party

Tbe Internationailsts, at thelr congress in Pitishurg, adopted unanimously a manifesto or dechuration of motives and principles, often calfed the Pittshurg Prociamation, in which ther describe their ultimate goai In these words: - What we would achiere is, therefore, plainly and simply,- First, Destruction of the exlsting class rule, by ail mcans, i. e., hy energetic, re. icntiess, revolutionary, and international action. Second, Establishment of a free society based upon co-operativc organization of production. Third, Free exehange of cqulvalent products hy and bet: en the productive organizatlons with. out commerec and proft-mongery. Fourti, Organization of education on a secular, scientific and equal basls for both sexes. Fifth, Equal rights for all without distinction to sex or race Sixtin, Regulation of ali puhific affairs hy free contracts between the autonomous (independent) communes and assoslations, resting on a feder alistic basis.' "-R. T. Ely, The Labor Morement in America, ch. 8-9.
A. D. 1875 -1893.- Socialist parties in Germany. - Their increasing strength. - Before 1.475 there existed in Germany two powerful Socialist associations. The first was called the Generai Assoclatlon of German Working Men ' (der allgemeine deutache Arbelterverein). Founded by Lasealle ln 1868, It afterwarde had for president the deputy 8chwelzer, and then the deputy IIaseneiever, Its principal centre of activity was North Germany. The second was the 'Soclal-democratic Working Men's Party' (die Soclai-democratliche Arbelterpartei), led by two well-known deputles of the Reichstag, Herr Bebel and IIerr Llebknecht. Its allherents were chletly in Saxony and Southern Germany. The first took lnto nccount the ties of nationality, and claimed the intervention of the State ln order to bring about a gradual transformatlon of society; the second, on the contrary, expected the triumph of lis cause onlg from a revolutlonary movement. These two assoclations exlsted for a long time in open hostillty towands each other; less, however, from the difference of the aims they had $\ln$ view than in consequence of personal rivairy. Nevertheless, $\ln$ May, 1875, at the Congress of Gotha, they amalgamated under the title of the 'soelallst Working Men's Party of Germany' (Soclalistische Arbelterpartei Dentschlands). The deputy Hasenelever was nominated president; but the union did not last long, or was never conpiete, for as early as the month of August following a separate meeting of the - General Association of German Working Men' was held at Hamburg. . - The German Bucialist party does not confle itseif to stathg general prin. ciples. Now that it has gained foothold on politicar soll, and sends representatives to Par. liament, It endenvours to make known the means by whleh it hopes to realize the reforms It has in vlew. Thls is what lt clains: - The German Socialist party demands, ln order to pave the way for the solution of the soclal questlon, the ereation of soclallstic pronluctive associatlons aided by the State, under the denioeratic control of the working people. These productive assoclations for manulacture and agriculture should be crented on a sufticlently large scale to enable the soclallatle organization of labour to arlse out of them. As basls of the State, it demands direet and universal suffrage for ail cltizens of $t$ wenty years of age, $\ln$ all elec. tions botb of State and Commune; dlrect legis. lation, by the people, including the decislon of peare or war: general lubllity to bear arms and a milltia composed of civilians instead of a staul. luy ariny; the abcitiou of all laws restrictiug the right of associatlou the right of assembly, the frice expresslon of 0 )lnlon, free thought, and free luquiry; gratultou's justice administered by the people; compulsory educatlon, the same for uil and given by the State; and a declaration that religion is an oljeet of private concern." E. de Laveleye. The Scialism of To day, introl. and ch. 1.- $\quad$ The social democratle party [ 1 n Germany] advanced in strength, as far as that is measiurcil by votes, untll 18:8, when the de. erease was ouly sllygt. Two attempts were male on the life of the Emperor Willam in that year, and the sincial democrats had to bear a gowl share of the blame. - In the IRcichastag the celebrated socialistic iaw was passed, whieh gave government exceptlonal and despotic powers to proceell against seinl demoxracy Governmental persecontion nuited the divided members and gave new caergy to all. . . . They nll became seeret missionaries, distributing tracts and exhortlag indiviluaiiy their fellow laborers to join the struggic for the emancipation of labor.

The German cocill democrate have held two congrenees alnce the rocialiatic law, both, of course, on forelgn soll, and both have lndicated progreas. The irat was held at Wyden, Bwitzer. land, Augunt 20-28, 1880. Thls resulted la complete triumph for the more molerate party. The two leading extremiats, Hasselmann sad Moat, were both expelled from the party - the former by all save three votes, the latter by ali save two. The next congress was held at Copen. liagen, Denmark, from March 20 to April 2, 1Ns3. It exblbited greater unanimity of sentlmeat and plan, and a more whe-spread Interest in soclai democraey, than any prevlous congress."-11. T. Ely, French and Gernuan socialison, ch. 14.-At the general electlon, February, 1890, In Germany. the Social Democratic party "polled more votes than any other single party in the Emplre, and returned to the Imperial Diet a body of represen. Ilves atrong enough, by akiful alliances, to exerc.se in eftective influence on the conrse of allairs. The advance of the party may be seen in the inerease of the socialist vote at the suc. cessive electlons since the creation of the Empire: In 1871 it was 101,927 ; $1874,351,670$; $1 \times 37$, 493,447; 1878, 487,488; 1881, 311,981; 1844, 549,000; 1887, 774,128; 1890, 1,427,040. The effect of the coercive laws of 1878, as showa by these figures, is very noteworthy.

The tirst effect was, as was natural, to disorgnoize the socialist party for the time. Hundreds of its leaders were expelled from the country; hundreds were thrown lato prison or placell under pollce restri. : 7; Its clubs and newspapers were suppressed; 1: "as not allowed tohold meetings, to make speceles, or to circulate literature of any klnd. In the course of the tweive years during which this exceptional legislatiou bas subsistet], it was stated at the recent Soclallst Congress at Halle [1890], that 155 sociallst journals amil 1.2100 books or pamphlets had been prohibltell; 940 members of the party had been banisheri without trial; 1,500 had been upprehendell aud 300 punished for contraventions of the Antl-sociaist Laws." But tinis "poliey of repression has ended in tripling the strength of the party it cias designed to erush, and placlog it in passes. sion of one-ffth of the whole voting power of the natlon. It was bigh thine, therefore, to amadon so ineffectual a polley, and the sochalist cuerclise laws expired on the $30+1$ September, 1 Nitio.
The strength of the 1 rity in Parliament has never corresponded with its strength at the polis.

In 1800, whth an electoral vote which, under a system of proportlonal represcintation, would have secured for it 80 members, it has earried only 37."-J. Rae, Contemporiry iscialism, pp. 33-34.-The Soclal Demorrats "re talned their position as the strongest party in the emplre in the elections of 1893, casting nearls $1,800,000$ votes, and electlug 44 inembers of par. llament.

Another indication of the growth of soelal democracy, ls the fact that it has מalued a foothold among the students of the miver-sitles."-R.T. Ely, Socialism, p. 59.-" The two principal leaders of the Soclal. Demervatic partr in Germany - In fact, the only members of the party to whom the term leader can properly be applied-are uow Wilhrim Llebknecht and August Bebel. Botb men have lived ereutfal lives and have suffered often and severely for the sake of their cause.... Lieblnecht inis dune a great deal to popuiarisc the polltical and suciad

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

SOCLAL MOVEMENTS.

theories of men like Marx and Larmelle. He it through and through a Commurlit and a Repuhlican, and he is determined upon realislag his ideala hy hook or hy crook. . . . He works for the suhversion $\mathrm{c}^{-}$the monarchlcal princlple and for the eatahlishment of a Free Penple's State. In this Staty all suhjects willi stand upon the same ievel: there will be no clasees and no priviloges.

Bebel once summarised his vlews $\ln$ a sentence which, wo far an he spoke for hlmself, is as true as it la short. 'We aim,' ho sald, 'In the domaln of politics at Repuhiscanlem, In the domain of economics at Soclalism, and in the domain of what is to-day callell religion at At thelsm.; Here we see Bebel as in a mirror. He la a Repuhifican and a Sociallst, and he ls proud oa it; he is without religlon, and he is nevar tlred of parading the fact, even having hlmself described In the Pariamentary Almanacs as ' religlonslos. Likc his coileague Liehknecht he is a warm admirer of England."-W. H. Dawson, Germen So. cieliem and Perdinand Lasealle, eh. 15 .
A. D. 1880. - Mr. Henry George, and she proposed confiscation of rent.-The SlugieTax movement. - The doctrine of Mr. Henry George, set forth in his famous bonk, "Progress and Porerty," puhlished in 1880, is stated in his own language as follows: "We have traced the want and suffering that everywhere prevall among the working classes, the recurriry paroxysms of Industrial depression, the scarcity of employment, the stagnation of capltal, the tendency of wages to the starvation polat, that exblbit themselves more and more sirongly as materiai progress goes on, to the fact that the land on witich and from which all must live !s made the exclusive property of some. We have seen that there is no possithie remedy for these evilis but the abolition of thelr cause; wc have seen that private property $\ln$ iand has no warrant in justice, but stands condemned as the denlai of natural right-a suhversion of the law of nature that as social development goes on must con. demu the masses of men to a siavery the hardest snd must degradling.

I do not propose etther o purchase or to confiscate private property In land. The first would be unjust; the second. neerilcss. Let the individuals who now hold it stlli retain, if they want to, possession of whet they are pleased to call their luud. Let theni continte to call It their laud. Let them buy gad seli, and bequeath and devise lt. We may suy in leave them the shell, If we take the kernel. It is not necessary to confacate laud; it is onls necessary to confiscate rent. Vor to take rent for public uses is it necess - $v$ that the Stute should bother with the lett! "lands, and assume the chances of the snl corruption that mig necessary that any new sin, collusion, ve. It is not createl. The machinery air dery should be of extcniding machinery air exists. Instead of extending it, all we liave to do is to slmplify and reduce It. Ey ieaving to fand owners a perceatage of rent which would probably be much less than the cost and foss Invoived in at tempting to rent lands through state agency sni by making use of this existing machinery we may, without jar or shock, assert the commin right to lamd by taklag rent for puhific uses We ulready take some rent in taxation. We have onls tu make some changes $\ln$ our modes of tas why ter takn it all. What I, therefore, propose, as the simpic yet soverelgn remedy, which will raise wages, increase the earnlngs of capital, extirpate pauperism, abollsh poverty, give remunerative employment to whoever wishes It, afford free acope to human powers, leasen crime, elevate morals, and taste, and intelligence, purify government and carry clvilization to yet nohier heights, is - to appropriate rent hy taration. In this way, the State may become the unlversal landlord without culling herself so. and without assuming of single new function. In form, the ownershlp of latd we uld remain just as now. No owner of land zeed be dispossessed, and no restriction need be placed upon the amouut of land any ore cou'd hold. For, rent being taken by the state in taxes, land, no matter in whose name it stoos, or in what parcels it was held, would he seally common property, and every member of tue community would particlpate in the advantages of its ownership. Now, insounuch as cha taxation of rent, or land values, must necessarly be inereasel just as we abolish other taxes, we may put the propositlon lato practical form hy proposing - To aboilsh uil taxation save that upon land values. "- H. George. Prag. rese and Purerty, bk. 8, ch. 2. - Mr. George sent hls 'Progress and Poverty' Into the world with the remarkabie prediction that it would find not only readers hut apostles. . . . Mr. George's predlction is not more remarkahie than its fulfiment. His work has had an unusually extensive sale; a hunired editions in America, and au edition of 00,000 copies In this country [Engiand, 1891] are sufflient evidences of that; but the noast striklng feature ln lis reception is precisely that whlch its author foretold: it created an army of aposties, and was enthusias. ticaily clrculated, like the testament of a new dispensatlon. Societics were formed, journals were devlsed to propagate lts saving doctrines. and littie companies of the faithful held stated meetings for its reading and exposition The author was haited as a new and hetter Adam Smlth, as at once a roformer of science and renovator of soclety. "-J. Rae, Contemporn!y seialiam, ch. 12.
A. D. ${ }^{1883-i 88 s}$. - State Socialistic measures of the German Government.--' Replying once to the accusation made by an opponent in the lefichstag that his social-political measures were tainted with Sociatism, Prince Bismarck saia, 'You will be compelled yet to add a few drops of sociai oil in the recipe you prescribe for the State; how many I cannot say.' In no mcas. ures has more of the Chancellor's 'social ofic been introduced than in tite industrial iusurance laws. These may be said to indicate the highwater mark of Germau State Sochalism. The Sickness Insuramee Law of 1883, the Aceident Insurance Lavs of 1884 and 1885 , and the Oid Ag', Insurauce Law of 1889 are baself upon the principle of compulsion which was Introduced into the sick insurance legisiatlon of Prussla in 1854.

The trio of Insurance laws was complete, in 1889 lyy the passing of a measure providiug ar the insurance of workpeopie against the time of Incapacity and odid age invalldats und Aitersversicleruugsgesetz). Thls was no after thought suggested by the laws which preceded. It formell from the tirst part of the complete plan of lusurance forcshatowed hy Prinet bismarck over a decade ago, and in some of the Chancellor's eariy speeclics on the social question he regarded the pensiouing of ofd and

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS. Now Trad Cnionism. SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

Incapacitated workpeopio as at once dealrable and Inevitahle. The Old Age Insurance Law is expected to apply to about twelve millir a workpeople, including labourers, factory 0 , s. tives, journeymen, domestic servants, cl. ts, asoistanta, and apprentices in handicrafts and in trade (apothecaries excludnd), and smaller officials (as on railways, etc.) wo long as thelr wages do not reach 2,000 marks (about $£ 100$ ) a gear; also persons employed in slilpping, whether maritime, river, or lake; and, if the Federal Council 60 letcrmine, certain classes of small indeptndent undertakers, The ohligation to insure begins with the completion of the sixteenth year, but there are exemptions, including persons who, owing to physical or mental $u$ surss. are unahle to earn fixed minimum winces, and persons already cntitled to public penslous, eyual in smount to the benefts secured by the law, or who are assured accldent unnulties. The contributions are paid hy the employers and workpeople in equal shares, but the State also guarantees a yearly subsidy of 50 marks ( 52.10 s .) for every annuity paid. Contrihutlons are only to be palil when the insured is in work. The law fixes four wages classes, with proportionate coniributlons as follows:-

Wages.

Of corrse, of these contributions the workpeople only pny half. Old age annultles are tirst claimable at the beginning of the seventy-Arst ycar, hut annuities on account of permanent lncupaeity may begin at nny time after the workman has been insured for five rears. The minlmurr perion of contribution In the case of old age peusiouing is thirty years of forty seven preminms ench. Where a workman is prevented hy Hlness exceeling a weck but not exceeding a year), caused by no fault of his own, or hy military duties, frim eontlnuing his contributions, the perion of his nhsence from work is reekoned part of the contribntory year.

Contrihutions are male in postage stumps aftixed to yearly receipt eards supplied to the Insured. Annnitles are so be paid through the post-ottlee anonthly in alvance."-W. 11. Diawson, Bismirch

A. D. 1887-1888.-Development of the "New Trade Unionism."-. The clements eomponing what is termed the New Trale Cnionism are not to be fonmal in the constlation, organization, and rules of the [nions started within the last two or thre yenrs. In these respeets they eithor conform to the experience of modern C゙nions, or they revive the pructices of the oller Vnions. There is searedy a featnre in which noy of them differ from typers of Chions bong in existome. In whit, thein, consists the ' New Trade Cnionism, of which we bear so much! Mainly in the uspirations. condurt, umales uf alvocicy, uml methots of proectare of, aml also fin the expres. slons uscel, athl principles finculented by the now lenters iu labour nowentents, in their speceles and hy thelr acts. This New Uniogism has luru formilated and promulpated at Trades Cnion Cougresses, at other Congresses and Conferences, and at the mectings helil in various parts of the country; and ha lellets and ardeles ibhlela have appeared in the newspaper, press, and public Journals from the pens of the new leade: The institution of Labour Bureaus, or the estab. lishment of Labour Hegistries, is one of the acknowledged ohjects of the Dockers' 'nlon. Singularly enough this is the fitht time that sny anch project has had the sanction of a boni- the Trade Union. All the older Unions repuliate every such scheme. It has hitherto betn regarded as opposed in principle to Trade C ninn. ism.

At the recent Trades Union Congrise held in Liverpcol, September 1800 , the following remolution was moved by one of the lamion delegates representing the south Slde labour Protection League ' - . That in the oplulon of this Congress, in order to carry on more effectually the organization of the large mass of unorganized labour, to hring into closer comblantion those sectlons of labour already organized, to provide means for comminaiention and the interchange of information between all sections of indusity, and the proper tahulation of statlatics as to employment, se., of advantage to the workmen, it is necessary that a labour exchange, on the model of the Paris Bourse des Travall, should be provlded and malntained hy publle funds in every industrial centre in the kingdoul.'

The mover said that not a single dilegate could deny the necessity for such an institution, in every industrial centre.' The Congrews evi. dently thought otherwise, for only it voted for the resolution, while 92 voted against it.
The proposal, however, shows to what an extent the New Trade Unionism secks for Government aid, or municipal assistance, in labour move. ments. Tise most astonishing resolution carried by the Congre's was the following - Whereas the ever changing methods of mannfncture affect large numbers of workers alversely hy throwing thetu out of employment, without comprisaton for loss of situation, and whereas those presing are in many Instances driven to destitution, crime, and pauperism: Resolved, that this (ongress is of opinion that power should at once be granted to cuch municipality or Cinnty conncil to establish workshops and factorica uniler munl. cinal control, where such persons shall bre put to useful employment, and that it be an instruction to the Parllamentary Committee tont oner tahe the matter in hand.

The proposal of all others which the new Trate Cnionists sought to ingraft upen, und had determined to earry an a pertion of the programme of the Trader linion ("ongress, was the "legal Eight llour day:" and they netually suecerlet in their design after a stermy buttle. The new lenders, with their socialist alties, had Ixech working to that end for oyer two years."- (: Howell, Irate ["ituinm. Vear antil ilh. rh. E, pit. 2.
A. D. 1888-1893. - Mr. Bellamy's "Looking Backward," and the Nationalist movement. - "The so colled. Sationalist 'movement, wirg inating in an ingenious novel called - lawhing 13itckwar!' [published in 1888], is one of the unst interestime phenoment of the present an dition of public opinion In thas commery Dr. Elwarl Bellamy, a novelist hy professinn, is the reeornized futher of the Satimatist cluhis which Inave lacen formed in various jarts of the lyited States within the last twelve nomblis. llis rothelr existence: and furnistes the inspiration of picted in Mr. [bellanty s romance] is industrial,

SOCIAI MOVEMENTS. "Looling Pachont" and SOCLAL MOVEMENTS

mother than militant, in every feature. There are no wars or government war powers. But the function has been acaumed by the nation of directing the industry of eve:y citizen. Every man sod woman la enrolied $\ln$ the 'induatria army,' this conception being fundamental. This miveral induntrai service rente upon the recog. nized duty of every citizen 'to contribute his quote of Industrial or Inteliectual work to the msiatenance of the nation.' The perlod of serrice 'ls twenty-four years, beginning at the close of the course of education at twenty-one, and termianting at forty tive. After forty - Ave, while discharged from labor, the citizen still remain liable to special calis, In case of emergencies. There are, of course, no such numerous exemptions from this indinstrial service as qualify very greatly the rigor of the Continental military ser. rice of the present day. Every new recrult beioags for three years to the ciass of unskilled or common laborers. After this term, he is free to choose in what branch of the service he will engage, to work with hand or with braln :-' It is the busincss of the administration to seek constantly to cqualize the attractions of the trades, ar ir as the condiltions in them are concerned, on that ail trades shali be equally attractive to persons having natural tastes for them. This is done br moking the hours of fabor in different trades to differ accordling to their arduousness. The principle is that no man's work ought to be, on the whole, harder for him than any other man's for him, the workers themselves to be the juiges.' The headishlp of the inciustrial army of the nation is the most important function of the President of the United Statcs. Promotion from the ranks Hes throngh three grades up to the offleers. These ofticers are, in ascending order, lieuten. ants, eaptains, or foremen, colonels, or superln. tendents, and generals of the guilis. The various trades are grouped lito ten great departments, each of which has a chifef. These chiefs form the councll of the general-In chies. who is the President. He mast have passeti through all the grades, from the common laborers up.

Congress has but little to do be. vond passing upon the reports of the Presldent and the heads of departments at the endi of their terms of ottice. Any la ws which one Congress enacts must receive the assent of another, five Sears later, before golng lato effect; hut, as there are do parties or politicians in the year 2 owo A. I. thls is a matter of Hitie consequence. in $\mathbf{M r}$ Bellamy's Ltopia, money is uaknown: there is, therefure. no netil of lanks or hankers. Buying and selfiug are processe's entirely antiquited. The nation is the sole producer of commodities. All promis leing in the employmeat of the na. tion, there is supposed to be no need of ex changes between individuals. A credit-card is issued to each person, which he preseuts at a national distributing slop when iu need of any. pung. and the amount due the governmeut is punched out. The yearly allowance macte to each person Mr. Bellaing diees not put into tig. ures. . .. Every person is free to spenal his in come as he pleases; but it lo the sume for all, the sole basis on which it is awarded being the fact that the person is a human leing. Consequently, cripples and idiots, as well as chil. dren, are eatitced to the same share of the nro torite of the nationai industries as is allowed the most stalwart or the most capabic, a certain amount of effort only being required, not of performance. Such is the force of public opinor that no one of able body or athe mind re. fuses to exert himself; the comparative results of his eflort are not considered. Absolute equality of recompense is thus the rule; and the notion of cinarity with respect to the infirm in body or mind la dismiseed, a credit-card of the usual amount being issued to every such person as his naturai right. 'Tie account of evcry per. son, man, woman, aud chiid . . . Is always with the nation directiy, and never through any Inter. mediary, except, of coursc, that parents to a cer

It is by virtue of the relation of guarlians. to the nation, of their membership in it, that they are entitled to support.

The Idea naturally occurred to a conalderable number of Boatonians, Who had read Mr. Beilamy's socialistle romance With an enthusiastic convictlon that here at jast the true soclai gospel was deifvered, that associations for the purpose of disseminating the vlews set forth in the book could not be formed too soon, as the forerunncrs of thls Nstional party of the future. Accondingiy, a club, called 'The Boston Beilamy Club, was started in September, 1888, which was formaily organized as 'The Natlonsiist Ciub,' In the following December."N. P. Gllman, "Jationatiam" in the C"nited Sintes (Quarterly Journal of Eeonomice, Oet, 1889).The Nationaidsts "have very generally entered into the Populiat morement, not because they accept that in its present form as idcal, but because that movement has seemed to give them the best opportunity for the diffusion of their priaciples; and there can be no doubt that they They gren a sociaiistic bias to tibls movement. They have aiso influeneed the labor movemant. and, with the Socialistic Labor Party, they inave saceceded in producing a strong sentlment in faror of independent poiltical action on the part of the wage-carnera. Especially note worthy was the platform for ind pendent politleal action of fcred at the meeting of the American Federation T. Labor in Clifeago in December, 1893, " $-\mathbf{R}$. T. Eiv, 太rialism, p. 69.
A. D. 1894. -The American Railway Union and the Pullman Strike.-In May, 1894, sonse t.000) Workuren, employed in the car shops of the Pullman Company, at the town of Pullman, near Chicago, stopued work, because of the refusal of the company to restore their wsges in the staLdard froin which they had been cut down during the previous year and hecause of Its refusal to arbitrate the question. While thls strike was in progress, the American Rallway Cnion, a comparatively uew but extensive or ganization of railway employces. formed by ant under the presideney" of Eugeae V. Debs, met in convention at Chitaro, and was induced to mahu the cause of the Pulman workmen its own. The result was a deeinion on the part of the luiou to "boycott" ali pullmau cars, ordering its nemhers to refuse to handle cars of that compane. on the railways which center at Chicago. This order weut into effect on the creuing of June 36 . and profuced the most extensive and ularming paralysis of traffic and business that has crer been experienced ia the Vnited states. Acta of viofenee soon accompanied the strike of the rail. way eltpluyges, but huw far comminted by the strikers and how far by respousive mobs, has never been made clear. The iuterruption of malis brought the proceedings of the striken within the jurladiction of the federai courta and withln reach of the arm of the United Statea government. The powers of the national courts and of the national executive were hoth promptiy exercleed, to rentore order and to stop a ruinous interference with the genersl commerce of the country. The ieaders of the atrike were indicted and placed under arrent: Unlted Staten troops were aent to the scene; Prendent Clevelund, by two colemn prociamations, made known the determination of the Government to supprese a comblnation whlch obatructed the L'nited States mails and the movements of commerce between the staten. Ürgent appeais were addressed by the leaders of the American Rallway Union to other labor organlzatlons, with the hope of bringing about a univeral strike, in ail depart. ments of industry throughout the country ; but it falied. The good rense of workingmen in general condemned en sulcidal a measure. By the 15th of July the Puliman atrike was pract. cally ended, and the traffic of the rallways wan resumed. President Cleveland appolnted a commisslon to investigate and report on tha occur rence and lis caunes, but the report of the commission has not been published at the time thls is printed (November, 1894).

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS.

A. D. 1894, - The Coxey Movement.- "A pecullar outcome of the soclal and political conditlons of the winter [of 1899-4] was the organlzatlon of various 'armles of the unemployed' for the purpose of marching to Washlngton and petltloning Congress for ald. The orlginator of the ldea seems to have been one Cozey, of Mas. silion, Ohlo, who took up the proposition that, as good roade and money were both much needed In the country, the government should in the existing crisis issue $\$ 500,000,000$ in greenbacke, and devote it to the employment of workers $\ln$ the $1 m$ jrovement of the roads. Hi announced that he would lead an 'Army of the Common. weal of Christ' to Washington to proclalm the wants of the people on the steps of the Capitol on May 1, and he called upon the unempioyed and honest laboring classes to join him. On March 25 he set out from Masslilon at the head of about a hundred men and marched by easy stages and without dleorder through Ohio, Pennsyivania and Maryiand. provislons belng donated liy the towns and villages on the way, or purchased with funds wilech had been subscribed by sympathizing friends. The numbers of the army iiureased as it advanced, and groups of voluu-teen wet out to jola fit from distant atates. On May 1 the detachment, numbering about 350 marched to the Capitol, but under an oili Diatrlet law was prevented by the pollce from entering the grounds. Cozey and another of the lemier, attempting to efude the pollce and adilres the amembled crowds, were arrested and were after warde convicted of a misdemeanor. . . . Some What earller than the start from Blasillion, an. other organlzatlon, 'The Unlted Btates Indua trial Army; headed by one Frye, hind marted from Loa Angeles, California, for Washingtom, whith purposes similar to thone of the cose force, though not ilmilling their demands to wort on the road. Thle force, numbering from wis to elght hundred men, avalied themmives of the ansistance, more or lese involuntary, of freigh tralns on the Southern Paclac Railway as far a 8t. Louls, from which place they continued os foot. Though observing a degree of nilitary dincipline, the various 'armien' were unarmed, and the diaturbances that arove in severui piace In the iatter part of Aprii were montly due to the efforts of the marchers, or their fricmils in their behalf, to press the railroads into wervice for transportatlon. Thus a bund under a lealer named Kelly, startlng from San Francisco, Aprll 4, mecured freight accommodations as far at Orraha by slmply refusing to icave Oakiand until the cars were lurnished. The rallroads castward from Omaha refused absolutely to carry them, and they went into camp near Councli Bluft In Iowa. Then sympathizlng Knights of Labor selzed a trisla by force and oflered it to Kelly, who refused, however, to accept lt under the cir. cumstances, and ultmately contlaued on foot an far as Des Molnes, in Iowa. After a long stay at that place he was finally supplied with tat. boats, on which, at the close of thls Record. his band, now swollen to some $1,200 \mathrm{men}$, was finating southward. A band coming east on a stolea traln on the Northern Pacifc, after overpowep. lng a squad of Unlted States marsinis, was cap. tured by a detachment of regular troops at For: syth, Montana, April 26 . Two days ister the milltha were called out to rescue a train from a band at Mount Sterling, Ohle."- Potitical Nience Quarterly: Record of Political Ecenta, June, 1894 -There were straggling movements, from differ. ent quarters of the country, in Imitation of those described, prolonged through most of the summer of 1804 ; but the public feeliug favorable to them was limited, and they commouly eam $\omega$ an lynominious end.

SOCIAL WAR: In the Athenlan Confederacy. Nee Athens: B. C. 3iv-3i3i.

Of the Achaian and Etolian Leagues. See Guence: 13. C. $280-146$.
Of the Italians. See Rome: B. C. $90-88$.
SOCIALIST PARTIES and Measures in Germany. Nee Hoclal Movements: A. D. 146218RH: 1475-1893: 1843-1KN8

SOCIETY ISLANDS, The. See TaHiti.
SOCIETY OF JESUS. See JEacits.
SOCII, The.-The Itailan subject-allies of lanue, before the Roman franchise was extended (1) them. See Rove: B. C. $90-\mathrm{Ns}$.

SOCMEN.-Mr. ILallam thinks the Socmen, enumerated in Domeday Brok. to have been cmirls who were smali handowuers. - II. Hallam. The Midelle Agen, ch. 8, note 3 (r. 's).

SOCOTRA.-The Dloscorides of the Greeks Au island In the indian Ocean, south of Arabis. whilch the British government practically con trols under a treaty with the sultan. The isiand has an area of lised syuare miles. - . T. Beat. Sixntru ( Nineteenth (ientury, June, ivyi).
SOCRATES: As soldier and citizen. see Athens: B. C. 424-406; and Greeck: B. C. th3. .... As teacher. See Education, Liscient Greece.

SODALITATES.-Assoclatlons, or riuhb, among the anclent Romans, formed originalls for soclal purposes, but finaily given a political character.-G. Long, Deeline of the Limmanhe public, er. 3, ch. 11.-Nee, also, CO1.1.E61A.
SODOR AND MAN, The Bishopric ofIn the 11 th contury, the pecullar naral engire which the Norsemen had establlshed iu the Heb-

sODOR AND MAN.

8031.

whes, and on the nel ghboring coacts of Ireland and scotland, under the rulers known as the II Ivir, became divided into two parta, called Nordurejer or Norderies and Sudureyer or Suderies, the northern and southern division. The divid. tag. line was at the point of Ardnamurchan, the mont wenterly promontory of the mainland of Scotiand. "Hence the English blshopric of Sodor and Man - Sodor beling the southern divis. lon of the Scottioh Hebrides, and not now part of any Englith dioceme. ... The Bishop of Sodor and Man has no seat in the House of Lords, owing, as it is commonily maid, to Man oot having become an Engilish ponsemion when blahops began to ait as Lords hy tenure. "-J. H. Burton, Hist. of Scolland, eA. 15, foot-noto (e. 2). -See, aleo, Normans.- Nortiaven: $10-18 \mathrm{TH}$ Cevtrriea SOFT-SHELL DEMOCRATS, The. See Cnitid States of Ax. : A. D. 1845-1846.

SOGDIANA. -"North of the Bactrians, beyond the Oxus, on the weatern slope of Belurdagh, in the valiey of the Polytimetus (Zarefthan. i. e. strewligg gold), which tows towardis the Oxus from the east, but, instead of joining it, ends in Lake Dengis, lay the Sogdiani of the Greeks, the Suguda of the Old Persian Inscriptions, and Cughdian of the Avesta, in the region of the modern sogd. As the Oxus in Its upper course separates the Bactrians from the Sogdiani, the Jaxartes, further to the north, separates the latter from the Scyth According to Strabo, Imilar, but the Bactrians were logdianl were similar, but the Bactrians were less rude. Maracanda (Samarcand), the chief clty of the sogdiani, on the Poiytimetus, is satd to have had a circuit of 70 stades in the fourth century B. C." - M. Duncker, Hisk. of Antiquity, bk. 7, eh. 1 (c. 5). -See, aloo, Boghara.

Occupled hy the Huns. See Hexs, The Wuite.

SOHR, Battie of (1745). See Aestria : A. D 174-1745.

SOISSONS: Origin of the name. See belee.
A. D. 457-486.-Capital of the kliggdom of Syagrius. See GavL: A. D. 457-488; also, Franks: A. D. $481-511$.

A. D. 486. - The capltal of Clovis. Paris: The capital of Clovis.

A. D. $518-752$. - One of the Merovingian capitals. See Fiunsks: A. D. 511-752.
A. D. 1414.- Plifage and destruction by the Armagnacs.- In the civil wars of Armagnacs and Burgundians, during the reign of the insane king Charles VI., the Armagnacs, then having the klog in their hands, and pretendediy acting under his commands, lald siege to Solssons and tonk the city by storm, on the 21st of May, A. D. 1414. "In regard to the destruction committed by the king's army in solssons, it cannot be estimated. . . . There is not a Christian but would have shuddered at the atroclous excesses committed hy this solditery in Molssons: married romen violated before their husbands, young damsels in the presence of their parents and rela. dies, holy nuns, gentle women of all ranke, of Hom thcre were many in the town: all, or the greater part, were violated against thelr wills, and known carnality by divers nobles and othern,

Who, after having satiated their owa brutal passlons, dellivered them over without mercy to their servants; and there is no remembrance of such disorder and havoc being tone by Chrisof Sniesins. Thus was this grab and nohle ctty of Solesnas, atrong from itis situation, walis and towern, fuli of wealth, and embelifshed with the churches and holy relica, totalify ruined and destroyed by the army of king Charlen, and of the princes who accompanied bim. The king, bow. ever, "efore his departure, gave orders for tis rebuilding."- Monstrelet, Chronicles (ir. by Juhnes), bk. 1, ch. 120 (e. 1).

SOISSONS, Battle of (788), See Franxs: A. D. 511-752

Battie of (923).-The revolt agalngt Charies the Simple, which resuited in the overthrow of the Carolinglan dynasty had its beginning in of In 922 , Robert, Duke of France and Count of Paris, grandfather of Hugh Capet, was chosen and crownel king by the malcontents. On the 15th of June in the next year the most despernte and sanguinary battle of the civil war was fought at solesons, wherc more than half of each army perished. The Capetians won the field, but their newiy crowned kling was among the siain. -Sir F. Paigrave, Hiet. of Normandy and Eng., r. 2, p. 40.

SOISSONS, Peace Congresa of. See Spain:

 A. D. 1726-1731.
SOKemannl. See Slavery, Medleval

Evoland.
SOLEBAY, Naval battle of (1672). See Netherlands (Hollaxd): A. D. 1672-1674. SOLES, Society of See Ctba: A. D. 15it 1851.

SOLFERINO, Battle of ( 1859 ). See Italy :
SOLIDUS, The.-" The solldus or aureus is computed equivalent in weight of gold to tweaty one shililings one penny Engilish money."
C. Merivale, Ifint. of the Romans, eh. 32.

SOLOMON : His reign.-His Temple. See Jews: and Temple of solomon.
SOLOMON ISLANDS. See Melaneria
SOLON, The Constitution of. See Athexs: Solw; aiso, Dent, Laws coni erniso.
SOLWAY-FRITH, OR SOLWAYMOSS, The Battie of. See Scotland: A. D. 1542. SOLYMAN, Cailph, A. D. 715-717. .... Soiyman II: Turkish Suitan, 1520-1568...... Solyman If. Turkish Suitan, 1887-1691.
SOMA-HAOMA.-"It is well known that both in the Veds and the $A$ vesta a plant is mentioned, called Soma (Zend, haoma). This piant when properiy squeezed, Fieided a juice, which was allower to ferment and, when mixed with milk and honey, produced on exhilarating and intoxicating beverage. This Soma juice has the same Importance in Vedic and Avestic sacrifices as the juice of the grape had in the worship of Bacchus. The question has often been discussed What kind of piant this Soma could have been. When Soma ascrifices are performed at present, It is confessed that the real Soma can no longer be procured, and that some ci-pres, such as P dit. kas, etc., must be used instead." The Soma of later times seems to have been identlited with a species of Sarcostemma. The anclent Soma is conjectured by some to have been the grape, and by others to have been the hop plant.-F. Max ## sOMA.

Yi ither. Thiag. of Warth, appendis 8. --Aee, alsn, Zobe:antilis.

SOMALILAND.-This region, on the African comst of the Gult of Aden and the Imilum Ocean, is partly under British and partiy reder Italian montrol.

SOMASCINES, The.-The Aomamines, or the Congregation of Somasen, so culieci from the town of that name, wrep an orier of regular clergy foumion in 1:54) by i Venctian noble. Gifruiamo Mis nl.

SOMATCPPHYLAX.-"A momatophyiax In the Macedontan army was no doubt at first, an the worl infans, one of the officens who l.ant ? answer for the king's safety; perhaps in modern fanguage a colonel in the bindy-guards or househoid troops: but as, in unmixed monarchies, the faithful officer who was neareat the king' peron, to whose watcifluinems he trusted in the hour of danger, often found himseif the adviser In matcers of atate, so, In the time of Alexander. the titte of sonatophyiax was given to those generais on whowe whatom the king chiefly leanel, and by whowe advice he wais unually guldefi."-8. Sharpe, Hist. of Egypt, eh. 6, aeel. 18 (c. 1).

SOMERS, Lord, and the shaping of constitutional government in EngIad. Nee ExoLAND: A. D. $1710-1712$.

SCMERSETT, The case of the negro. See 3haveny, Nearo: A. D. 1885-1772.

SOMNAUTH, The gates of. See Aroran. Igtan: A. D. 1842-1809.
SONCINO, Battie of ( 843 s ). See Italy: A. II. $1412-1447$.

SONDERBUND, The. See Switzerlard: A. 1). $1 \times 13-18+8$.

SONOMA: A. D. 1846.-The raising of the Bear Fiag. sec California: A. D. 1840184:
SONS OF LIBERTY. See Ľnited Statea of AM.: A. D. $1: 05$ The heception of the NEWS.

SONS OF LIBERTY, Knighta of the Order of the. See l'aiten Staten of is.: A. D. 1vet (OCTODER).
SOPHENE, Kingdom of. Sce Arxenia. SOPHERIM. sive schibes.
SOPHI I., Shah of Persia, A. I). 1628-1041.
.Sophi II., Shah of Persia, 1686-1604.
SOPHI, The. sie Meuntanem.
SORA, The School of. Sec Jews: 7th Cen. Tiny

SORABIANS, The. - A Sclavonle tribe which aceupleft, in the eighth century the country lwetwern the Elle and the sanle. They were suibhual by clomemagne in 808.- J. I. Mom. bert. Hixt if 'l'hertes the tirent, bk. 2, ch. 11.

SORBIODUNUM. - A strong Romen for trese In Ifritain whicl is ldenthind in site with Old siarnin of the present day.-T. Wright, Celt, Rimitan "hil sitron, ch. $\delta$.
SORBON NE, The. See Enucation, Medi meal: Fuhace- - Liviveraty of Pars.
SORDONES, The. - A menple of the amme race as the ameinent Aquitamians, who hhabled the castern Prrences num the Aude- Napoleon III., Ilinf. af Craar. bh: 3, ch. 2 (c. 2).

SOTIATES, The. See Aqcitaine: Tife Ascievt Thames.
SOTO, Hermando de, The expedition of. Ser Fiomida: A. D. 1528-1.42.
SOUDAN, The. Sec stdan.

BOLTIIL AFRICA.

SOUPFRANCE, A. - "The word is tmos Inted as a rruce, liut it means something very differeat from a modern truce.

The soufrance wan more of the nature of a peace at :Lae proment day: and the reacon why of old It was treateri mas distinct from a pence was this: The warn of the time genernily arose from queations of surces. sion or of feudal superfority. When It leernine desirabie to cease fighting, while yet nelthrer mille Wan prepared to give in to the other, there was an agreement to alve up fighting in the mena time, reserving all rights entire for future dls. cumbion. A Rouffrance or truce of this kind might laat for centuries."-J. II. Burton. Hiaf. of swithand, eh. 21 (r. 2) SOULT, Marshal, Campaigns of.
 Jtixe); Spats: A. D. 180 H (Septembeh-I)g. chmaen) to 1812-1814: Genmany: A. II. Fils (May-Avgeet); France: A. D. 1815 (Jise).

SOUTH AFRICA: The aboricias inhabl taats.-'Bouth Afrt in lts widest extent is peopled by two gres aut perfectiy dixtiuct in. digenous races - the affre and the Hottentes. The aftinity of the Katir tribes, ethnograililicaly ineluding the Kafira proper and the people of Congo, is lased upon the various idioms apoken by them, the ciirect representa!! ea of a comman but now extinct mother crugue. The aggregate of langunges is now conventionally know ass the A-hnntil, or, more correctiy, the Ihntul iliguiatic syatem. The more common term Katir, fromith. Arable Kafr - infldei, reaily represents but: small section of this great fanilly, nut lxing otherwlse a term of reproach imposed upou thra by strangers, is of course unknuwn to the prople themselves. All the Bantu tribes are dlistin. guished by a dark skln and woolly hair, whirh varles much in leugth and qually, but is never sleck or straight. Accoriligg to tos geographienl posftion the lantu system is ilviled Into the Eiastern group, from its principai representatives known as the Ama-Zulu mill Ama. Khosa or Katr proper, the Central, or He tcluana yroul, und the Western or (1. va-H.rero, or Da.nama croup. . . . The northern divislon of these Bantus leins the name of Ama. 7.alh, and they are amongst the best represcintatio's if diark eotonured meers. The Zulus nre netatively weil develophed and of iarge size, thonghnotsurpassing the average helght of Europruns, and whis deridedly leitere frutures than the Ama. Khosn. . . . The most wide-wprend and must numernos of ail there Katir tribes are the Dethuana [ [heluhlag the llasutos], thelr present domain stretching from the upper Ormge rivir northwards to the Zamiesi, mad over the west coas hightard nortlo of Namaqualand; of this vast region, however, they oceupy the outshirts onlr.

The Ifotentots, or me e eorrectiy Liol Kive (men), have no matcrial fentures in connmou with the greut Bauta family, exeept their wroilly hair. thongh even thle prisents mome eonkideralle points of differonce. Their gener I typ is that of a poopie with a pecullar pate cellow brown complexion, very curly 'elf.lock' or mateci hair. marrow foreheut, high cheek-lones projecting sidererays, polnted chlu, body of methinn size. rather hardy than strong, with small hauls and fect, and piatroocephaions cranium. Hottentotsare prowrly divided into three groups. the Colonial, or Hotientots property so called dwelling In Cape Colony, and thence enatwards to the borders of Katriand . . . t the Kornana, settied malnly on the right bank of the Orange river fatly, the Samaqua, whose domala embraces the western portion of Bouth Atrich, bortering east warde on the Kalahari dewert." dium), eh. 25.-Gee, aloo, Aprica: Tug Inbabit Enillices.

QOLTH AFRICA.

A. D. 1486-1806. - Portnguene dacovertDutch peaseaslom. - Engilah acqulaition.- The Capre of Gooll Ilope, "an far an we know, wat arst durhled hy Bartholomew Diaz In 1 the (wee Sorttoal.: A. D. 1483-1498). Ile, and wome of the mariners with him, calied It the Cape of Totmente, or Capo Tormentoso, from the miserien they endured. The more comfortahle name Whlch it now beapi wauglven to it hy King Johas of Portugai, an being the new way dlacoverell hy his suljects to the giorious Indies. Diaz. It seems, never in truth saw the Cape, hut was carried past It io Aigoa Bay.

Vasco da Gama, another anilor hero, naid to have been of royal 'Porthguese descent, foliowed him in 1497. Ile famienl to the weat of the Cape. .. . Vasco da Gamin did not stay long at the Cape, bant proceeding on went up the East Coast as far as our seend South African colony, whith beara the name which he then pave to it. Ile calied the lad $T^{\text {terra }}$ de Nital, lecause he reachedi It on the day of cur Lord's Sativi'y. The name bas atuck to it ever since and no douht will now he premerrei. From thence Da Gama went on to India. . . . The Portuguese seem to have made no settiement at the Cape Intended even to be permanent; but they did use the piace during the 10th and tirst half of the next century as a porst at whicit they could cali for suppiles and susistance on their way out to the Eaxt Indies. The bist had then lecome the great goal of com merce to others besides the Portnguese. In 1600 our own East Indiln Company was formed, and in 1 thite that of the Dutch. Prevlous to those dates, in 1501, an English saiior, raptain Lan caster. visited the Cape, and In 1820) Enghishmen isnderi and took pussession of it in the name of James I. But nething came of these visitings and declarations, although an attempt wns made by Great Britain to estalifish a house of cuil for her trade out to the East. For this purpose a smail gang of convicts wis dieprosited on Rubben Isimen, which is just off Capetown, hut as a matter of course the convicts quarrelled with thensed ves and the Nativco, and came to a speedy enif. In 1595 the Dutch came, bat did not then rembin. It was not tili 16.52 that the first Europrons who were destined to the the ploneer ocenpants of the new inni were put on shore at the (ape of Goond Hope, and tins made the tirst hush setticmeut. Previous to that the Cape ladi in fact been a place of cail for resseds of ail nithons golng and coming to und from the Eint. But from this date, $105{ }^{2}$, it was to be used for the butch exchisively. . . The home Authorfity at this time was not the Dutch (bovernment, bint the Council of Seventerin at Amsterdam. wh, were the Directors of the Dutelt East India Compmay.

From 10.5. when the piace wins hat sic years oid, there comes a very sall record tatery. The first eargo of siaves was landed at hise Cap from the Guineal const. In this year, nite of an entire popuintion of sfon, more than a lailf were siaces. Tine total number of these

Was 18?. To control them and to defend the place there were hut 118 European men capable of learing arma. This niave element at once became antagoniatic to any ayatem of real colonization, and from that day to this has done more than any other evil to retarl the progress of the people. It was extiuguinhel, much to the diaguat of the oil I Dutcli inhabltante, under Mr. Buxton's Emancipatlom Act in Ixat; -but its effects are atiil felt." The new land of whleh the Dutef hatl taken pumsession "was by no treans unoecti. pled or unpomesswed. There wan a race of mar agres in promendion, to whom the Dutcit monn gave the name of Ilotetetuts. [The unme was probabiy taken from wome oonml in their langunge Whacit whe of frepuent orcurrence; ther wem to have brell calieai ' Ottentiome.' Ilothute, 'Iloten. toten, ' ' Itorimodods,' and 'IIadmamionin,' promis. cuousiy. - Foot-note.] . Soonafter the settic. ment wan estabilished the hurghers were forbiditen to trade with these peopic at all, and then liontillise commeacel. The Ilotentote found that much, In the way of land, had been taken from them and that nothing was to be got. They ier - have not received, ns Savages, a bad charac ter. They are saifi to lave poasemed thielity, attachment. sad intelityence.

But the Ilit tentot, with all his virtues, was driven into rebelfion. Thro was soue fighting, in which the natlives of courne were beateli, and rewarde were olfered, so much for a iive Ilottentot, and so much for a dead one. Tins went on tiil, in 1672, it was pound expedient to purchuse fani frona the natives. A contract was made in that year to prevent future cariliing, ar was then alieged, be. tween the Goveruor and one of the native prinecs, by wilich the district of the Cape of Gomi llope was ceded to the Dutch for a certain nominaid price. . . But after a very enrly period - 189t - there was no further buy ing of lani. The innd was tirm anucxedi by Europeans as convenience reguired. In aif this the Dutch of those dajs did very much na the English have done since.

The IIottentot
Is matid to be neariy gonc, and, belng a reliow man, to havo iacked strength to endure European sefluctious. But as th the IIottentot and hils fate there nre varied opiluions. I hare beren toid by some that I have never seen a pure Ilotteutot. Csing my own eyes and my own dider of what a Hotcentot is. I shonld have suid that the butk of the popuiation of the Western Province of the Cape Colony is Ilotentot. The truth probahly is thut they have becone so mingled witio other races as to bave lost much of their identity; hut that the race has uot perished, as bave the Indians of North America nad the Maoris. last half of the 1 ith and the whole of comtury sill the gradual progress of the depuit, - a colony it conld bardiy le called, going on tu the same siow determineri way, nad niways with the same purpose. It wres no colony Ineranse tinse who managed it at home in Inf. lianl, and they who at the Cape served with admirable tideriity their Dutch masters, n. Wer cutertalued an idea as to the colonization of the comutry. . In $1 ; 9.5$ came the Enstinh. In that year the French IRepublican trmpis haid takent possession of IIollanil [ser F'uncire: .1. I).
 Grange, after the manner of deflimened poteatates, took refuge in Enghand. Ile save an authority, which was dated from kew, to the Goveraor of the Cape to dellver up all and every. thing in his mands to the Einglish forces. On the arrival of the Engiloth fleet there was found to he, at the came time, a colonitet rebellion. In this double emergency the poor Dutch Gov. ernor, who does aut seem wo huve regartied the Priace's onler as an authority, Was morely puz. zled. Ile fought alltie, but only a litte, and then the English were in pmacantom. ... is 1897 Lond Macartney came out on the frist Brit. ish Covernor. Urent lirtaln at thils time took pmemeulon of the Cape to prevent ther French from doing so. No doult it was a numt destr. able pmemembing, as felog a half-way lomme for us to Indla at lt hai been for the Dutch. lint we shoulid not, at any mite then. have touched the place had it not inen that Iloliand, or rather the Dutch, were manifently nomble to retafo it. Our rule over the loutchmen wan uneasy and no. prodiahle. Bomethlng of relintllon weems to have been golng on durtag the. whole time.

When at the peace of Amlens in 1802 it was ar. rangel that the Cape of (fowl Hope should be reatured to Ifolland [me Frasce: A. D. 18011802), Euglish Minlaters of state did not proh. ably grteve much at the lown. liat the prace of Amlens wan delualve, nall liere was soon war between Enyland ami Fnunce. Then again Gireat liritain felt the mecesalty of taklog the (cape, and procepeleyl to din m) on thin necaslon without any gemblance of Intchanthorty. At that time whatever telonged to llolland wirs aisonat certaln to fall into the hands of France. In 1803 . . . Sir lhavid Balri wna ment with half a dozen reglmente to expel, not the Dutch, but the Dintel (oovernor and the Dutch woidlers from the Cajue. Thin he dlld enslly, having encountered some slemiler remistance; and thins $\ln 18006$. on the 19th January, wfter n century and a half of Dutch raie, the Cape of Gooml llupe became a British coiony."-A. Trollope, Nouth A/frica, t. 1. ch. 2.

Almo in: W. Greswell, Our Eouth Africion Eimpire, r. 1, in. 1-4.-R. Rusedi, Natal, p. 2. en. 1-3.-Sir B. Frere, Misturical Sketeh if S.

A. D. 1806 -1881, - The Engliah and she Dutch Boera. - The "Great Trek. - juccessive Boer republlea of Natai, Orange Free State, and the Tranavaal, absorbed in the British dominions.- The Boer War. - The early history: of the Cape Colony, after it became a depenilency of the i3fitsis Crown, "la a reconl of the struggles of the settiers, both Engish and Dutch, ayainst the despotle system of govern. ment catablished by lorid Charles Somerset: of Kattir wars, in which the colonists were often hani put to it to hold their own; and of the struggle for the llls.rty of the Press, sinstained With success liy John Fulrinifn, and Thomas Pringle, the port of south Africa, the Ovid of a seifechosen exlle. Fur a time the Ilutell and Engilsh setticrs Ilvedi in preace and amley to. gether, but the English eftorts to allevlate the condition of, aud tinally emanclpate the slaves, wevered the two racer. The Duteh settlers helid the old Biblical notions about slavery, and ticy resernterl ficreely the $\ln$ w of 1833 emanclpating all nlaves tirroughout the colony In 183 H . The Boers at once determined to ' trek, to leave the coiong which was under the farisilction of the Einglish iaw, and thad in the south African wil. derness, where no human law prevailed, food for thetr fiocks, and the paotorel freedom of Jacob sad of Abrabam, The Boere would live tirif owa lives in their owa way. They had nothing In common with the Englichman, and they whated for mothlog in common.

They wera - primitive people, farming. huatigg, rrading the Rhble, ploum, murdy, and tacleperalent; and the colonial Government was hy no menne wiling to me them leaving the Bellis and farmu that they had colonised, in onder to found freah matrea ontialie the boundaries of the newly arinuifoll tertiory. But the Guveramient was pow rithem: It tried, and tried in valn, to prevent thls emigm. tlon. There whe no law to prevent it. . . . No. whth thefr waggona, their hormea, thelr rattle shil shrep, their gina, and their few huusehold genale, the landy Boern atruck out Joto the Interlor and to the north east, In true patriarchal familin) fihe mignatlon belog known as the (Ireat Trek). milk$\operatorname{lng}$ thelr promined land, and that 'demolate free. dom of the wild aes' which wes dear tor thrip hearts. They foumied a colony at Natal, fought amil linpelizel the new colony In thelr own hisencl. The Zulu chlef, Dingann, whes mulal them the territory, murilerc: the Boer lealer, l'eter lidthef, and hle 79 foliowers as mon an the decil was slgnel. Thls was the heglaning of the Boer hatrell to the natlve mees. The Bners funkbt with the Zulue succensfully enough, fought with the English who came upon them leus wircwe. filly. The Imperial Government decld if that It would not permilt ite subjects to estalijish any Independent Governments In any part of soumb Africa. In 1848, after no silght struggle and bloolnined, the Ditech reputhle of Natnl remed to be, and Natal became part of the Ifritivit do. minlon. Agaln the looers, who were unwiling to remaln under IIritlah rule, 'trekk (r) ' nurth. warl: agala a free I)utch state was foumicidthe Orange Free State. Once agaln the Finglinh Government peraluted in regarelling then as lift. lsh subjecte, and an rebels if they refundif to admlt as much. Once agaln there was strife ard blonlahed, and In 1848 the Orange mettloment was placed under Brileh authorty, whill the leadling Boern fed for thelr Ilves across the Vasl Kiver, and, obstlanteiy Independent, bregna to nonal the Trunovaal Republic. After alx yrars, however, of Britsh rule in the ()range te- the Imperial Government declded to give it back to the boers, whose atubborn deslre for melf government, and unchanging diailke for forvign rule. made them practically unmanageable as suljects. In Aprll isith a conventlon wal enteredi late with the boers of the Orange territory by which the Impertal Goverament guaranteci the future independence of the Oringe Free state. Acruss the Vial Rlver the Transpaal Boers grew and flourthed after thelr own fachlon, foukht the natlves, eatahlilshed thelr repubile anil their lksraad. But in 1887 the Tranavanal repuhtic had been getting rather the worst of it in some of these struggles, and certaln of the Transraal Boers seem to have made suggeatlons to Engiand that she should take the Transval rupublic under her protection. Sir Theophilus Shepstone was sent out to Investignte the sltuatlon. He sems to have entirely mlounderatoxal the condition of thlags, and to have taken the Prightened desires of: few Boers as the honest sentlments of the whole Boer aation. In an evil hour he hoisted the English fiag In the Transraal, and declared the llttle republic a portion of the territery of the Dritioh Crown. As a matter of fact, the majority of the therf were a tierer, in. depenaient penpie, very jenioun of their liberiy. and withous the lenat desire th come under the pile. th earape which they hat wandieral so far from the carlieas settiements of their race.
Tien Buers of tise Transval went deputation after iepuitation to Englami to appeni, and appeal in viin, againat the munexation. Land Carmarrom li ui wet his whole heart upon a arieme of soutin African ennferleration; hila belief in the rave with which this confeideration might lie ac. complisheil was carefully fuatereil by juidiclouniy oloureel ofthelal reportm.

Nir Gartio Prere, an a frimi.' Aivimeri the Buers ' not to believe one worid of any statensents to the effect that the Eugliuht people woulit lwe wiliing to give up the Tminamai. ' Never Indieve,' he said, 'that the Eingliah prople wili dionaying of the kisd.' When the clief civil and military command of the eastern part of Bunth Africm wan given to Bir Garnet Woieciey, Sir Gurnet Woheley was not lens expilcit in his statementa. . . In apite of the announcementa of SIr Bartio' Frere, Nir Garnet Wolecley, and Sir Uwen Janyon, the disoffectert Byy. were nat withont more or jese direet Fing' neoursgement. 'The Boer depu. tations lati 1 many frienis in Engiani.
One of tbo who timas sympathiset Why Mir. Glaintone. In his Midiothian speeches he de. nounred again ani agnin the Conservative policy which had ied to the annexation of the frana. vani. ... Whlie ali the wincis of the worlid were carrying Mr. Giadistone's wonis to every minner of the earth, it is not surprising that the Butps of the Transvaai... should have caught at these encouraging sentences, and lxeen cheered by them, and animated by them to rise againat the drapotisin denounced by a former Prime Mialster of Engianil. . For some time there mellet to be no reasonable chance of liberty, but lo the end of 1880 the $130 e r s$ naw their opport $u$ aly. . There were fow troops in the frans. rail. The Boer four hai come. As in nimat lasurrections, the immiedlate cause of the rising was sighit enough. A Boer nanted Bezhuldenot Whs sumumoned by the landidrost of I'otchefstroin to pay a claIm made by the Treasury officiais at Pretirh. Ikethutdenot rowisted the cluim, which certaniy appmery to have beeu lifegal. . . . The landifist attached a waggon of gezliuidenot's, add announcef that it wouldi be soid to nieet the claim. On Novemixer 11 the wnggon was hrought inte the open squisre of Potcinifitrom, and the therift was about to begin tbe sale. When a numi. of armed Boers pulied bim of and carried the waygon away in triumph. They were unopposed, as there was no force in tive town to Resist them. The incident. trifing in itself, of Bezhuidenot's cart, was the mateh which tired the loog-prepared train. Sir Owen Lanyon sent some troops to Potchefatrom; a wholly unsuc owfur attempt was made to arrest the ringleader of the Bezhuldenot affair; it was obvions that a therember 13, 1880, aimost exactiy a movil: fiter the afiair of Bezhuldenot's waggin, a $n$ ar. "ucet$\log$ of Bocrs at Heidelberg prociainied the T ransvall once again a repuhilc, established o tranasPirate Goverament, and prepared to : Hitheir rectlons in arms. The news of tbe insur. rectlons aroused the Cape Government to a sense of the serloumene of the alluation. Movementa of British tronge were at once male to put the inaurgents down with aif speed. It in putili an unartted point ou which adde the Arit she t was fleci. There were mome shote oxchangel at Pot. chefatrom on Iecember 18. .. Proviousis to thils the otth regiment had marclieil from Leviden. berg to reinforce Protorta na December 6, and On the wive Middloisurgh abous a week inter. Colonel Anatruther seems the Boer raising. vinced that the force be had with have felt constrong enough to rencier had with him was quite sebels enough to renifer a good account of any The who might attempt to intereept its march. The whole atrength of his force, however, offiThe aciuried, dif not amount to quite 250 men. The tmope crosed the Oliphante River, ieft it iwo days march behind tisem, and on the morninf of the 20th were marciling quietly siong plasineir long iline of waggona and thoir band playing ' (Ox) anve the Queen' undier the hright giare of the sun. Suddeuly, on the rising ground aear the Bronkhornt Sprilt in body of armed Boera appeared. A man galloperi out from among them-PMui do Beer - with a fasg of truce Coionel Anstruther rode out to meet him, and recelved a memled deapatch wapolng the colonel that the British advance wouldi be conaidered as an deciarstion of war. Colonel Anatruther repliedi simply that he was ondered to go to Pre. torin. and that he shouid do mo. Each man gailoped back to hin own force, and tiring began In ten minutes the fight, if aght it can ine enled. Wiss over. The Boers were univalied sharpsiluotters, had marked out every ofticer; every shot was aimed, and every shot told. The itwers were weli covered hy trees on rising ground; the Engilsh were beneath them. had no cover at all, and were completely at their mercy. In ten minutes ali the olficers had fallen, mome forty men were kilied, and neariy double the number wounded. Colonel Anstruther, who was bimaeif badily wounded, saw that he must either surrender or have all his men shos down, and he surrendered. - Colonel Anstrutier, who afterwardx died of his wounds, bore high trifute in hls despatch to the kindnese and humanity of the Boer when once the ight was done. ... Bir George Coiley struggied bravely for a while to make head against the Boers. At Larg's Nek and Ingago he didit hif best, and the inen under him fought gullantiy, hut the superior positions and markamanship of the Boers gave them the advantage in both ights. Lnder their murder ous tire the ofticers and men fell belpleasiy. Of cer after offticer of a regiment wouid be shot down by the unerring aim of the Boern while try ing to rally his meu, while the British fire did comparatively silight damage, and the troops seldom came to sutthelently close quarters to use the bayonet. But the noot fatai battie of the carapaign was yet to come. Sir Eveign Wood had arrived at the Clape with reinforcements, had met Sir George Coliey, and had gone to Pictermaritzburg to await the coming of furtber relnPorcements. On Saturilay night, February 26, Sir George Coliey with a amall force moved out of the camp at Mount Prospect, and occupled the Majuha Hili, which ove:looked occupled camps on the flat beyond Lang's Jek. Early nest norning the Boern attacked the hill; there was some desuitory firing for a while, under cover of which three Poer atorming parties ascended the hill almoat unseen. The British

SOC゙TH AFRICA, 1806-1881.

and Zulu Wurs
were ourtlanked and surrounded, a deally firc was ponred in upon them from all slides. The slanghter was excesslve. As usual the offleers were shon shot down. SIr George Colley, who was dlrceting the morements as coolly as If at revlew, was klle:l just as he was giving orders to ease firing. Tie British broke and tied, tired upon as they fled ty the sharpshooters. Some esenjed; a large nunber were taken prisoucrs. Sin dianstrous a defent liad seddom falleu ujou Brltsh arms. The iecent memory of Malwand was yulte obllterated. That was the last eplsode of the war. Geuerni Wood agrced to a temporary armlstlce. There had been negothations going on between the Boers aud the Britlsh before the Majuba Hill defent, which need never have ocenrred if there had not been a clelay $\ln$ a reply of liruger's to a letter of Slr George Col. ley's. The negotlations were now resumed, sud concinded In the establishneut of peace, on what may be called a Boer basis. The republle of the Transval was to be re-cstabllshed, with a Britlsh protertorate and a British Ikesldent Indeed, but practlcally granting the Boers the selfgovernment for which they took up arms."J. H. McCarthy, England under Gladetone, ch. 5. Also Is: J. Nixon, Complete Story of the Tranowual.-T, F, Carter, Nurratire of the Bever Wit.
A. D. 1818-1868.-The Kafir wars.-British absorption of Kafraria.-"In 1811 the first Katir war was brought on by the depretatlons of those wurllke natlves on the Buers of the custern fronther; a war to the kuife ensued, the Kafirs were driven to the other slde of the Grcat Fish River. nnd military posts were formed along the border. A second war, however, broke ollt in 1818, when the Kiatirs lnvading the colony trove the farmers completely ont of the country west of the Grent Fish liver, penetrithg as far as Citenhage. But the Kutirs coulle not stand ugainst the guns of the colonists, and the secomi war termbated in the mivance of an overwhelming force lito Kintirland, and the amnexation of a large slice of torritory, cast of the Grent Fish River, to the col. ony. . . . For a thild time, in 1835, a horde of about 10,000 thyting men of the Katirs spread fire and slanghter and pillage over the eastern districts, a war which led, as the previous ones had done, to a more extended invaslon of Kafrariat by the British trongs, und the snbjngntion of the tribes enst of the Kel river. . . . A tourth great liatir war in 1846 , provoked by the daring raints of these hantile tribes and their buhd invia. sions of the colong was also followed up by fartler (bromalaments on Katir territory, and In 1stia a potelamathon was issued externding the fruntier to the Orange river on the north and to the licinkmma river in the east, British sovereiguty leing then ulso declared over the territory extembing from the latter river eastward to the licl, thongh this spate was at first reserved for vieupatinn ly the Katirs noll numed British Kinfraria. IBut jeate was restored only for a brief time; in 1Not is resh Kitur relellion hat broken nit, and for two years subsequently a sort of guerillia warfire was malntained along the east. © Th frontler, involving great losses of life and damernetion of property. In 1 eq8is thels last Katir war was bronght to a concluslon, and Britlsh Kinfraria was pheced under the rule of European futcriognries and iseorpornted with the culony: Iu 186s the Basutos [or Easteru Bechnanas], who occupy the territory about the head of the Orange river, between lis iributary the Caledon and the summits of the Drakenberg range, and who hat llved under asemi-protectorate of the British since 1848, were proclalmed British subjocts.

Snbsequently large portlons of formerty Independent Kafraria between the Kel river and the sonthern border of Natal have passed under the government of the Cape." - Hellwuld Johaston, Afrien (Ntanford'a Cimpendium), ch, $3.
A. D. 1867-1871. - Discovery of Diamonds. - Anneration of Griqualand west to Cape Colong. See Ghiquas.
A. D. 1877-1879. -The Zulu War.-"At this thm [187\%] besides the three English Colouies of Cape Town, Natal, and the lately formed Grlqualand, there were two Independent Dutch Republles, - the Orange Free State, and the Trunsvaal. Much of the whlte population even of the Engilsh Provinces was Dutcli, and a still larger proportlon consisted of reclalmed or half. rechlmed natives. Thus . . . there lay behind all dlspntes the question whlch invariably at. temus frontler settlements - the trentment of the nutlve popnlation. Thls difticulty had become promineat in the year 1873 and 1874 , when the fear of trenchery on the part of a chlef of the name of Latugallbalele located In Sntal lad driven the European Inliabitants to unjustitable vholence. The trlhe over whleh the chicef had ruled had been seattered and drlven from its territory, the chlef himself bronght to trial, and on most insufficlent evidence sentenced to trans. portation. It was the persuaslon that he was fitriguing with external tribes which lat es. cited the unrensonlag fear of the colonists. For beyond the frontier there lay the Zulus a renurkuble uatlon, organlsed entlre! y tunu a military system, and formag agrent stamline army ninder the despothe rule of theirtilug Cetohwayo. Aloug the frontler of Natnl the Euglish preserved friendly relatlons wlth this theratenigg chilef. But the Dutch Boners of the Trimatalal, larsh and arbitrary in their trentuent of natists, had already involved themselves in a wur with a neighbonring potentate of the name of secoconat. and had got into disputes with Cetehwisu, which threatened to brlag njon the European (olnairs an indiscriminate assanlt." Lord Carmarvo thought it prnctienble to cure the tronhles in south Ifricu by a couferlerntion of the rohmies.
"The diftconlty of the situation wis wh whoms to the Coloninl Ninister that lue han choren as digh Commissloner at man whoer exprofore and curgy le equld thoronghly trast. linfors mately in Sir Bartle Frere he hand seleroma man mot cinly of grent ability, hut onfe who carrimd self-reliance and laperialist views to an totremp.

The dauger coused hy the recklion ronduct of the 13 aers njon the fromiter, mal their proved Inenpacity to reslst their mative enemina lat made it a matter of the last importime that they shouhd join the proposend Confederation, and thas be at once restrained and awsioted ly the central power. Sir Therophllus shepstume had been charged whit the duty of hringilus the Transvanl Repnblle to consent to an arrange ment of this sort. . . . Vnable to pressuabe the Boers to accept hly suggesthons for an anicahte armugement, he proceed al, in virtur of powes intrusted to him, to declare the Ropublic asHexed, and to take over the goterametat. Thts high-hamed act brought with it, as some of lts critics in the House of Commons had propiesied disastrous dilfilculties. Not only were tive Buers thenseives almost as a matter of course dis affected, hut they handed over to the Inmerial Gosernment all thelr difticulties and hostilliles. They were Invoived in disputes with both thelr barbarous nel $\boldsymbol{q}^{\prime}$ bours.

8OUTH AFRICA, 1877-1879.  Zulu War  SOCTII AFIRICA, 1885-1893.

In 1875 they had made demands apon Cetchwayo, the most impertant of which was a rectificatlon of frontier largely in thelr own favour. . . . Commlssioners were appointed In $18 \% 8$ to inquire Into the rights of the case. . Tiie Comnilssioners arrived at aninous deelslon agalnst the Dutch claims.
H:-: hefore the Treaty could be carried out If requiret 1ai'Aration from the High Commlssluuer, amd it can a hack from his hands elogged with forusiflal! :onditions. . . Whlle ... he arcepted the t.cundary report, he determined to naluke it in ot portunity for the destruetlon of - wellyos power. In December a Speciai Commisi.i: vas despatched to meet the Zuiu Envoys, to explain the award, but at the same time to demand correspondling guarantees from the King. When these were unfoided they appeared to be the abolltion of his milltary system and the substitution of a system of trihai reximents approved hythe British Government, the aeceptance of a British Resldent hy whose advlce he was to aet, the protection of misslonaries, ani the puyment of certaln fines for irregularitics committed hy his suhjeets. These cinims were thrown luto tie form of an ultmatum, and Cetchwayo was given thlty days to decille. It was ta be suhmisslon or war. It proved to be war. Sir Bartie Frere had already prepared for thls eontIngency; he had detained in south Africa tile troops which should inave returnert to England, and had applied to the IIome Governmeut for more. . . Lord Chclmsford wus appriuted to the coumand of the troops upon the froutier, and on the 12th, the very diay on willeh the time aiiowed for the acceptance of the ultimathum expired, the frontier was crossed. The iurasiou was directed towards Cinudi, the Zulu capitil. . . The first step across the frouticr proxtuced a terrihle disaster. The tromps under the immedlate commanil of Loril Chelmsfori cucamped at Isamilaua without any of the ordinary precautlons, and in a bad position.... In while himself ad situation Lori Chelmsford, while himself advancing to reconnoltre, left two hattalions of the 2 th with sonte uative allies under Cotonel Pultelne, who were sulisequently finued by a hody of y, 000 natives and a fci Euroleans under Colonei Duruford. The forcus Iff lin the camp were sudicenly nssaulted by the Zulus in overwhelnalng munlers and entirely de streyed [January 20, 1870]. It was only the magnificent defence by Charl and Bromhend of the prost nud hospital at Iorke's Drift which presented the victorious savages from jouring into Natal. Lord Cheimsford on returning from his mivance hurricd from the feurful seque of slaughter hack to the frontier. For the moment all was panlc; an immediate Irruptlon of the encmy was expected. But when it was found that Colonei wood to the west could inod his own though ouly with much rough tighting, aud that Colonel Pearson. towaris the mouth of the nirer, after a successfui hattie lad occupied and held Ekowe. conflience was re-esta!!tished. Iut the trons in Ekowe were cut of fromali commulcation except by means of heliogtaphic signais, and the interest of the war whe for a Whlle ceutred upon the beleaguered garrison.
Whet extreme caution, in splte of the elamorous critclsm ievelled ugainst inm, Lond Cheinasford refused to move to its rescue till fuliy reinforced. Towards the end of March inowever it was known that the provisions were running low, and on the 291 h an army of 6,000 men agaln crossed the frunticr. On thls occasion there was no luck of precnution. . . As they approached the fortress, they were assaulted at Glagilovo, their strong formation provel ellicient agaiust the wlid bravery of their aswallants, a coniplete rescued was won, and the gurrison at Ekowe rescued. A diny or two enriler an even more reckless assault upon Coionel Woods camp at Kamhula was encountered with tine same suc cess. But for the re-cstablishment of the English prestlge it was tiought necessary to undertake a fresili Invasion of tie conntry. . . Several attempts at peace had been made on tie part of the Zuius. But their amhassadors tie part of In tie oplnion of the Englisli generais, sufflclently accredited to ailow negotiations to be opened. Yet it would appear that Cetehwayo was reaiiy desirons of peace, according to his orn acconnt even the assault at Isamilana was an accitent, and the two last great buttics were the resuit of local efforts. At length in July properly uathoriscl envoys came to the camp. Terms of submisslon were dictated to them, hut as they were suiting once nececpted a tinal hattie was fought resuiting completely in faveur of the English, who then cecupied and hurnt Ciundi, the Zulu capital. . Sir Garnet Whoiseley was ... again sent out with full powers to effect a set ticment. His first business was to capture the King When this was douc he proceeded todivide Zulu lamd into thirtern districts, each unier a separate chinef; the military system was destroyed; the people were disarmeil and no importation of urms allowed; a Resilent was to dechle disputes in which IBritish sulijects vere Involvai. The reception of missionaries agafnst the will of the pople was not however iusisted on."-J. F. Bright, INist. of Englend, perient 4, pp. 5t5-5in. Aisoss: F . Coleuso and E Duruforl, Mist. of the Zul" Wier.- L. Wilmot, Miat. of the Zuln Hirr-C.J Sorris-Newman, In Zuluhted with the Riritish, -C. Mijn. Cetsirayo's Dutchmem.
A. D. 1885-1893. - British acquisition of Mataheleiand or Zambesia.-Dominion of the British South Africa Company.-War with King Lohenguia.- " The Boers, ever on the hookont for mell lauds into which to trek, had ioug ago fixed thelr oyes on the country north of the Lianpopo, known generally as Inatnbeieland, ruled over by Lolvengula, the son of the clief of the Mitabithes. - The reports of Munch, Batiues. and others, of the rich gold mines containell in this "mritory. were weil known. . . . other travellers anil sportsmen, Mohr, Oates, Selons. gave the most favourable accounts not only of the gold of the conutry; hut of the suitahility of n harge portion of thic high piatean known as Mashomalad for European settlement nod agricultural operations. When Sir Charles Warren was in Chechuanaland in 1885 , surveall of his ofticers nade journeys to Matabelelithll. and their repurts all tended to show the desiratilite of takiug linsersmion of that countr: : ludecd sir Charles was assured that Lobengula would wei come a British allianee as a protectiou aguhst

the Boers, of whoee designs he was afraid.

As a result of Sir Charles Warren's misslon to Bechuanaland, and of the reports furnished by the agents he sent into Matabeleland, the attention of adventurers and prospectors was more and more drawn towards the latter country. The Portuguese . . . had been electrified into activity by the events of the past two years. That the attention of the British Government was directed to Mstalicleland even in 1887 ls evi. dent from a protest in August of that year, on the part of Lord Sallsbury, against an ofticial Portuguese map claimlng a section of that country as withln the Portugutse sphere. Lord Sallshury then clearly stated that no pretenslons of Portugal to Matabeleland could be recognised, and that the Zambesi should be regarded as the naturai northern limlt of Britlsh south Africa. The Britlsh Prime SInister reminded the Portu. guese Government that nccordlag to the Berlln Act no clalm to territory in Centrai Africa could be recognised that was not supported by effec. tive occupation. The Portuguese Government maintalued (lt mist be admitted with justice) that thls applled only to the coast, but Lord Sallshury stood firmly to his positlon. . . Germans. Bocrs, Portuguese, were all ready to lay their hands on the eountry claimed by Lobeugula. England stepped In and took it out of their hands; and at the worst she can only be aecused of oheylng the law of the universe, shight is light. By the end of 1887 the attempts of the Transvaal Boers to obtaln n hold over Matabele. laud had reached a erisls. It became evlident that no tlme was to be lost If Enghand was to secure the Zambesl as the northern llmit of extenslon of her South African possessions. Lobengula himself wiss harassed and anxlons as to the deslgns of the Boers on the one hand. ant the daings of the Portuguese on the north of hls territory on the other. In the Rev. J. Smith Mof fat, Asslstant Commissloner in Bechuanaland, Fugland haif a truaty agent who had formerly leen a misslonary for many years in Matabele. land, nd had great intluence with Lobengula. Under the elrcumstances, It does not seem to have been dlfficult for Mr. Moffat to persuate the King to put an end to hls tmubles by placlng himself under the protection of Great Britain. On 21st March 1884, Sir Hercules izoblason. Governor of Cape Colony, and IIer Xiajesty's Iltgh Commassioner for South Africa, was ahle to Inform the Home Government that on the previous llth February Lobengula had appended his mark to a brief document whleh secured to England suprcmaey In Matabeleland over ail her rivals.

The publication of the treaty was, as might be expecterl, followed by reelamations both on the part of the Trausvaal and of Portugal. Before the Britlsh hold was firmly establlahed over the country attempts were made by large partles of Boers to trek into Matabeleland.

Indiviluai Boers as well, It must be sald, as individuai Engllshmen at the kraai of Lobengula, attempted to polson the mind of the latter againat the Britlsh. But the King remained throughout falthful to his engagements. Indeed, it was not Lobengula himself who gave any cause for anxiety during the inltial stage of the Engllsh occupatlon. He 1s. no doubt, a power$f u l$ chlef, but even he is obllged to defer to the Wishes of his "indunas ${ }^{1}$ and hls army. . . . Lobengala himself kept a firm hand over his warriors, but even he was at tlmes apprehensive that they might burst beyond all control. IIrpplly thls trylng lnitial pertod passed without disabter. No sooncr was the treaty signed thsn Lobenguln was besleged for concessions of laad, the maln object of which was to obtain the gold wlth which the country was said to abouni? especially in the east, ln Mashonaland." T princlpal competitors for what was looked uput as the great prize were two syndicates of caplal ists, whlch finally became amalgamated, in 1889 under the skllful dlplomacy of Mr. Cecil J' Rhodes, forming the great Britiah South Africs Company, about which much has been hearl in recent yiars. "The principal fieid of the operations of the British South Africa Company was defined in the charter to be 'the reglon of south Africa iylng lmmediately to the north of British Bechuanaiand, and to the north anil west of the South African Republle, and to the west of the Portuguese dominions.' The Company was also empowered to acquire any further conces. slons, if approved of by 'Our Secretary of State.'. The Company was empowered to act as the representative of the Imperial Gor. ernment, without, however, obtalnlng any assistance from the Government to bear the expense of the adminlstration.

The capital of the Company was a million sterilng. It ls not easy to define the relatlons of the Chartered Com pany to the various other companles which had milning Interests in the country. In ltself it was not a consolidation of the laterests of those companies. Its functlons were to admlnister the country and to work the concessions on brhal of the Concesslonaires, in return for which it was to retaln fifty per cent. of the protits.
When the British south African Company was prepared to enter into actlve occupation of the territories whleh they were authorised to exploit they had in the one hand the impls of Lohengula eager to wash their spenrs In white biond; on the south the Boers of the Transvual, embittered at belng prevented from trekking to the north of the Llmpopo, and on the east und in the north-enst the Portuguese trylng to raise s wall of clalms and hlstorical pretensions against the tle of English energy.

An agreement was conchuled between England und Portugal in August 1890, by whlch the eastery llmits of the South Africa Company's clalnss were rixel, and the course of the unknown Sabl River, from north to south, was taken as a boumlary. But thls did not satisfy cither Portugal or the (iompany, and the treaty was never rathied. new agreement [was] signed on the llih June 1891, under whlch Portugal ean hardly be said to har, fared an well as she would have doue under the one repudlated by the Cortes in the prevlous year. The boundary between the British Company's territories was drawn farther east than in the previous treaty. The llne starting from the Zambesi near Zumbo runs in a general solth-east dlrection to a point where the Stazoe River ls cut by the ssid degree of east longltude. The boundary then runs in a generally south direction to the junctlon of the Lunde and the Sabl, where it strikes sointh.west to the north-east corner of the Soutla African Repullic, on the Limpopo. In tracing the frontlor aiong the slope of the plateau, the Portugnese sphere was not allowed to come farther west than $3 \%^{\circ}$ $30^{\circ}$ E. of Greenwich, nor the Brithsh ipthere east of $33^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. A sllgbt deflectlon westwards was made so as to Include Massl Kessl In the Portuguese sphere. . Accordling to the terms of the arrangement, the narlgat lon of the Zambeal and tbe Bhlre was declared free to all natlons." -J. S. Keltle, The Partition of Africh, eh. 18. By the spring of 1893 the Britlsh South Africa Company had falrly luld hands upon lis great domiuion of Zambesla. Matabele was swarming with searchers for guld; a railroad from the port of Belra, tbrough Portuguese terrltory, was in progress; a town at Fort Sallsbury was rislng. Lobengula, the Matabele king, repented speedily of hls treaty and repudlated the construetlon put on lt hy the English. Quarrels arose over the Mashonas, whom the Mataheles held In slav. ery and whom the new lords of the country protected. Botb partles showed lmpatlence for wroand it was not long in breaking out. The first slots were exchanged early ln October ; hefore the end of the year the Britlsh were complete masters of the country, and Lobengula had tled from his lost kingdom, to die, It ls said, during the dight. Tbere were two pitched battles, In wbich the natives suffered terribly. They ohtalned re. venge In one lastance, only, hy cunting of a party of thirty men, not one of whom survived.

sOUTH AUSTRALIA.

SOUTH AFRICA COMPANY, Tbe British. See Aprica; A. D. $1884-1891$; and SouthAFhica; A. D. 1885-1893.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.-"Tbe tlite is a misnomer. South Australla comprises nearly a thind of tbe Continent of Australla, through which it extends from soutb to north. It is bounded on the west hy tbe colony of Western Australla, and on the east by those of Queens. land, New $outh Wales and Victoria. In area, It eovers 903.425 square miles, and is larger than the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Belgium, italy, Spain and Portugal put together. . . . The southern coast-llue, from the horder of Victoria w that of Western Australla, Jueasures at least 2.(4) miles From Cape Jervis, at the southern extremity of the Gulf of St. Vlneent, a suecession of munntain ranges runs almost due north for 2N miles. ... East ward of the Mount Iofty Range endess plains stretch away lnto Niow South Wales and Victoria, and west warl those in whieb Adelalde is situated are lounled by the Gulf. A vast, sballow depression oceurs to the north and west of the Flladers Range, which in souse places is below the level of the sea. The only navigahle river in the southern part of the colvay is the Surray, whlich. entering lt from the east between New South Wales and Victoria, pursues a tortuous course. The streams which, time of winter foods but roariug torrents in the fime of winter floods, but the rapidity of their fail ls such tbat tbey speedlly exhaust themstlves, and in summer are mere rivulets conneeting chains of ponds. . . On the maj the lakes of Nouth Australia cover a consinlerihle surface but ther have little In the way of heauty, Interest, of value. .. It bas been sald that explorers do not usually deal ln balf-lights; they find either a paradise or just tbe reverse, and ln thelr descrlptions are prodigal of superlatlves. IIence. perhaps, the hldeous plcture of Sturt's Stony Desert hut was so hlghly greadrawn. It has proved to be pooxl sheep-country, and the area of actual wilderuess is ahrinting every gear."-Descriptio

Sketch of South Australin, by Henry T. Burgers, lu Australasia Illustrated, o, 2, pp. 813-15.
A. D. $1834-8836$. -Early Settlement of the Colony. - . Two names are consplcuous above They are in the hlstory of the eaily settlement. They are those of Edward Glhbon Waketheld aud George Fife Angas. To the former belongs the honour of devising a new metbormer for succeasful colunizatlon, and io the lntter that of belng cblefly Instrumental lu bringing lt to the test af actual experiment. . . The colonizatlon of South Austrulis Was nndertaken princliles. It was monted in tongland at a period when emigrution projects were popular, for times Were had. The fuilnre of some attempts, and notably that at Swan Kirer lu Western Autrali bly that at Swan Kirer lu Western Australia, led wase observers to see that the land-grant system was futal to prosperlty, and among those wbo suggested better methools Mr. Wakefleld took a formust place. The cssential prineiple of hls seheme wis that land shonld be exchanged for labour instead of belng given awray, or alicuated for a merely nomiual sum. The fden of fonndlng a colany somewhere in Sonthern Australia altogether lidependent of prevlous settlements found powerful nilrocntes, and after some years of agitatlon lu publie mertings and otherwise an Act was passed by the Imperial Parllnment of 1834 in whieh it was embodied. Ender that Act Comminsioners ware appointed and empowered to undertake the enterprise. It wns stipulated that no part of the expense lncurred should fall upon the IIome Guvernment. The Commissioners were authorized to borrow esjo, (KW) to defray the cust of emigration, and a futher sumi of f:2(N), en ( for the general charges of fomming the eolons. By way of securing a sort of puarslitee, thig were restrained from exereising thelr gencmil power: until the sum of $x 20$, 0) itiad been Invested iu exchequer bills in the numes of trustees, and 35, , (WM) aeres of land were sold. It nay be mentioned here that out elanse iu the Act expresslr prohibited the transportation of convicts to the colony. Though the South Austrulian Assoclatlon that had leen formed to carry ont the projeet had succeeded thus far, the initial diffloulties were not over. . . The chief obstacle was the necessity of selling suficient land to comply witl the requirements of the statute." Thie jrice being finally reduced to twelre ehillings an acre. "Mr. Angas succetded lit forming the soutli Australlan Com. pany.

The Company took up a sumficient number of land-omers at the rednced rate to fulfil the stipulutions of the Act, all other purchasers being placed on the same more adrantageous tcrus, and thas the enterprise was fairlr launelied

Early lu iNist the dispatch of emigrauts began, nnd on the 29th of July of that year the 'Duke of lork.' which was the Erst vessel to arrive, cast anchor In Nepean Bay. rescels arrived In tolemhly qulek suc.. Other the sume reudezsous. . When Coloucl Lleht arrivel in the month of August with a staff of surveyors, he entered on a carefnl examluation of the country west of the Gulf of St. Vlncent.

As the result of these ohservatious. which experience has conftrmed In erery respeet. Hold. fast Bay was selected for the place of final dis. embarkatlon, and there, hy Deermisr, isort, must of the arrivals up to tbat time were congregated." T. Burgess, Rerieso of Nuth Australia, by Henry T. Burgess, In Australasia Illustrated, e. 2, pp.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

775-8.-See, also, Avstralia: A. D. 1800 1840.
A. D. 1840-1863.-Discoveries of mineral wealth. -Constitutional organisation.-Over. expmenditure un publle works in the young colong bronght on a financial erisls in 1841-2, whieh whs ruinous to many. "To sir George Grev belongs the eredit of resculng the Colony from the insulvency luco which it had been piunged. . . . But persounl vigour in the conduet of affairs was not the only force that aided the suecess of thls able Governor. Mheral discoveries, whieh eame in thacly to hls surecour in the shape first of sliver and then of the workd-fnmed Kapuuda and Burra copper mines, mithaterl respeetlely some in mill 1t0) miles from the :- jital, worked wonders in the resusclation of a lepleted land Interest: aud, through such resuscitation. raphily helpar on the recovery of the Colonf's finanees. In 1845, mon after the discovery of the inst-named mine, Sir George was appointed Governor of New Zenland. . . . The next Governor was Colonel Robe. . . . Colonel liobe, . . . by attempting to enforee a roynty in minerals, $n$ course eontra Fening the prineljle of lami sales adopted by the first Comalissioner in founding the Colous namely - that all minerals went with the lana they sold, aroused the opposition of the Colonists.

The tenure of sir Henry Young, the next Governor, who was appointed in 1848, was fruitful in events of great interest to the material prosperity of the country. The first of these was the great gold discovery of 14,51 , which so de. pleted the pastural pursults of suuth Austruiin as 10 leal to n moncutary erisls. Another event Was the openlig up of trale with the Rlverina distriet of New south Wiles ; and a thirl was the establishment of listrict Couneils. Nir lienry was tranaferred to Tismania in $1 \times \mathrm{FH}$. and wis sneceeder in 1s,ing by sir liehorl Vactioncll. sir $\{$ tichard helld othce for nearly seven years, diuring which periou the Colony aequired its new comstitution.

The new Legisluture set itself to work in ripht carnest for the reform of the Idind Luws, und passed the lieal l'roperty Act. Introlnceal by Nir lisbert Torrens, whel dit awny whth muelo of the cumbrous procedhre with regard to the sale of property, and has ever since bern sthdied, as it desirves to bee by refurmers in that direction. The discovery of the Wallaroo Copper mines in 1880 gave intuther importu to the development of the comintry. fol. lower. ns it was. by the ayriculamal settionent of the ifistrict. Exploration too was corrien on © xtanively be Mr. Bubbage, Major Warburton, and Ji Ctart leading to some rery molva.
 Northern Territory whs ummexill oo somth dus

A. D. 1885-1892.-Movements toward Australian federation, Ste It-Ttithit: $I$. 1kxi-1 +ins
A. D. 1893-1895. - Lahor Settlements.-- The traveriker in Sunt Anstralia whon is in any loma, thoula piy a visit to the Labour sittlements on the Minrate river

These labuar
 In Ahelatile nul dowrict in the winter of $1 \times 03$.

 public works, and in inrge number of artisins and labourers found themselves without empoy ment in the eapltal of a country larger than half of Europe, amil with a total propulation less than that of the single elty of Man livater, This srar. city of worls alongside of colintiess millious of unlaboured acres seemel to strike the Truits Councll of Adelaide, and some members of the Kingston Ministry, as an amazing anomaly, and an cffort was forthwlth made to bring such hund and habour into effective contart. A fommitiev was formed. Mr. Gillen (elnee dead), then Mhiw. ter of Lands, was walted upon and, after disuswlug various suggestions, it was finally agriol that the Vlliage Settlemente part of the Act to amend the Crown Lauds Aets could be arailit of for the purpose of orgauizing some labour Villages on the Murray river. Competent members of the Trades Council were dispatelual to the Murray to fix upon an eligible site for a ploneer settlement. On the return of these niputs with sitisfaetory reports, the first crontingent of the Adeinide unemployed startel unt for ir destluation. Under the Act referredi to abr .. whleb was passed in 1N93, Any ? 11 or more persons of the age of 18 jears and upwards mar, by subscribing thelr names in the manoer prescribet, form an association for the purpue of Village Settlement.' The law belng thos so favournble, it greatly facliltated the project which was set on foot. A grant of 16,000 acres was made under the det to the 100 familles who rol. unteered to join the Association, wlilie n loan of E? (M) was likewise made, by way of orlers uman micrebants, to enable the settiers to purchase anme neccessary tools, borses, outfit. ete., for theirneeds. Some udditlonai ald was obtained fron roluntary sources, but the assistanee, all tokd. fill vers nutch short of what was recpulend to give al com munity of some bito souls ansthing like a fair start in sueb a tentative enterprise. Ilowerer. entlmshasm anong the volnuteres for the Murray maie up for scanty etpuipntent, and on thr sinnil of February, 1*93, a specinl traln earried the one humired families away from the eapital, unidt the goonllues and gooxl wishes of its citizuns. In June, $1 \times\left(i i^{\circ}\right.$. . I found these workers with their wires und famllies located on the banks of the Murray. Whither sereral other similar voiuterer assor hitions hat foilow erd them in the nemutime

At the time of my visit [to the pioneer sctike. ment, at Lerupl only wome 14 nouthe had daperd
 'dhmperl,' us it were, on the slde of the river. aml ieft to provile for themseives as lave they: emill, whth a very scanty equipment of mones nud muteriais at their dispusal. . . . In as rery few werks all were bonsed in temporary shat thes. and 'u' work of breaking up land, arrang. ing the pumping piant for Irrigation work, athed gottiu, everything in working oriler waw well on ita way. Mueb pride was tuken, and deservediy so, in the faet that only two met had tu be ixpeiled for disatferetlon during the 110 months' life of the settlement. Ail had workell with a will in the rough experience of the find few werks, and there was no eall for cexpulsinas afterwarls

The committere clecteri by the *ettlers, on the principle of manhomi suffise planmed out the inbour to be done. nad ralequted the mu'n to the doing of lt. Menikers of the committer were not exempt from anatis whan of the whll. Nll workell cight houre t d w at whatever iamur was assigneti to t':cul. Diti!

BOUTH AUETRALIA.

SOUTH CAROLINA, 1680.

labour began and ended hy the sound of a horn at the stlpulated thme. Meal honrs were of course provided for in the dally arrangement of working time. All food stufis and provislons are kedt In a common store. A written conpon, algned by the secretary, will obtaln the quantlty of breal, meat, or other requislte allowed to each individual.

No money was required unler the arrangements of the assoclation. The coupon or tlcket of the sucretary was all the curruncy needed. There are to shops, Ifruperlea, or grocerles allowed except the conimon store. No driak is kept or sold in the camp. The earnlngs of the settlers. the value created hy their labour, Is reprosented In the extent and improvement of the laul reclalmed, the lrrigution work effectel, the stock ralserl, and the gencral 'svelopmeat in and around the viltage. A government Commissloner values these Improvemeuts from time to tlme. Flftr per cont. of the value thus certition is mavinced as a luan at five per cent. for ten years by the state to the assoclation formed under the rules latil down by the Minis. ter .f Lands. . . At the termhation of 13 years from the organlzation of a Labour villuger, and the repaymeut of the state alvances, the inembers are to be allowed to decite whether the cooperallve communistle plan is io termitate or continue.

I dliscusseal the probibile decision on this rital point with many members, snd I fenr that the individhalistic senthent wil: largely prevail ut the end of the probutionary period "-M. Davitt. Life und Progrean in ilusralesifr. ch. 16-1\%.

SOUTH CAROLINA: The abotiglaal inhabitants. bee Adenicas Aborioines: Al. gonqtias Family, Chenokees, Mtrehooean Famhiy. Shawanker, Timiquanas Faminy.
A. D. ${ }^{1520}$.- The coast explored by Vasquez de Ayllon and called Chicura. Ner AuEs1'A: . I. 1). 1510-15:5.
A. D. 1562-1563.-The short-lived Huguenot colony on Broad River, See Flonida: A. 1 . 1int:-1ints
A. D. $1629 .-E m b r a c e d$ in the Carolina grant to Sir Robe. Heath. See America: A. I) 11290
A. D. 1663-1670. - The grant to Monk, Clareadon, Shaftesbury and others. - The first settlement. See Souru Chlouins: A. D.
160:-10in.
A. D. 1669-1693.-Locke's Constitution and ite failure. See Nortir ('anolisa: A. 1). 1664 1693.
A. D. 1670-1696.-The founding of Charleston. - The growth of the Colony. - The exple. dibim of Captah siarle lis 10 öt (sce Nonta Catmaisi: A. II. 1663-1670) resulted In n sottlement, male In $16 \%$, which is historicilly referred to ns that of "Old Charleston." This continuet to be for some years the eapital of the coluthern colony; " but, is the commerce of the tion worre diseovered It could of the positime wrore diseovered. It collda not be ap.
 somel remosal takk plat $\therefore$ the grovernment liter. ally following the people, who had in numbers antiopated the legishative action: and the seat called oyster Phint, almirally conceived fur the purpuses of eommerce, at the contuence of two apaclous and deep rivers, the Klawah and Etiwan, which, in compliment io Lord Shaftes.
bury, had already been called sfter oury, had already been called after hlm, Ashley and Cooper. Here the foundation was lald of the present elty of Charleston. In that year 30 houses were hullt, though thle number could have met the wants of hut a small portlon of the colong. The heads of famllles at the Port Royal settlement alone, whose names are preservel to us, are 48 In number; those brought from Clinr. endon by Yeamans conld not have been less humerous; id the additions whleh they mi:st seven or elght the mother-country, during the Heven or elght years of thelr stay at the Abhley Hver bettlement. were llkely to have been very conslderable. Houndheads and cavallers alike thme, remalned in Carollna, which, for a long tlme, remalned a pet province of the proprletors Leberty of conscience, which the charter pro fesued to guaranty, encouraged emigration. Tho hoper of avarice, the Hgor of creditors, the fur of punishment and persecutlon, were equal Incentlves to the settlement of thls favored but for. -ign reglon. Iu $167 \%$, when Nova Belgla, bow New York, was conquered by the English, f aumiver of the Dutch from that place songht refuge in Carohna.

Two vessels tlled whith forelign, perhaps French, Protestants, were transported to Curolina, at the expense of Charles II. In 1679; and the revocation of the edict of Nnutz, a few ycars afterwards, . . contributed stiil more hargely to the Infant scttlement, and provided Cirolina with some of the best portious of her growing population. . . In 1690 , In Massuchusetts agionalists, from Dorchester In Massuchusetts, ascended the Ashley river neiarly tolts heal, and there founded a town. to which they gare the name of that which they hall left. Dorchester berame a town of some tmportance. It is now degerted: the habita tions and Inhabituls have allke vanished; but the reverend spire, rlslug throngh the forest trees which surround It, still attests (1840) the place of thetr worship. and where so many of them yet repusc. Various other countries and culses contributed to the growth and population of the new settlement."- V. G. Simms, Hist. of太imth Ciarolima, bk: 2, ch. 1.
A. D. 1680 .- Spanish attack from Florida. - Indian and Negro Slavery. - "About 1680 a few lembling scotch Preshyterians planned the es. tablishment of a refuge for their persecuted breth. shrunk tosmatlerdimensions Chrolinn. The plan shrunk tos smaller dimensions than those originally contrmplated. Finally Lord Carlross, with a colong of ten scotch famllies, settled on the vacant treritory of Port Royal. The fate of the settlement fureshatow: ! the miserles of Darien. It suffered alike from the climate and from the jeulousy of the Euglish settlers. . For nearly teu fears the dread of $t$ spanish attack had hung over south Carolina.

In 1680 the threutened sturu broke upon the colony. Three galleys landed an inviding force at Edisto, where the Goveruor and secretary had prlvate honsea plunderel them of noney, plate, and slaves. mid killed the Governor's brother-in-law. Ther then fell upon the scotch settlement, which hail now shrunk to 25 men, and swept it clenn out if ex.
 under their hajuries. They raised a forec of 400 men and were on the point of makimp a retaliatory attack when they were checked by an urder

BOUTH CAROLLNA, 1680.

8OUTH CAROLLNA, 1750-1761.

Irom the Proprietors. . . . The Proprictors may have felt . . . that, although the Immediate af. tack was unprovoked, the colonist were not wholly blameless in the matter, The Spaniards had sulfered from the ravagea of pirates whn were believed to be befriended by the inhablants of Charlestown. In another way tou the settler had placed a weapon in the hands of their enemies. The Spaniards were but little to be dreaded, unleas strengthened by an Indian alliance. But from the first settlement of Carolina the colony was tainted with a vlee which imperilied its relations with the Indians. Bar. badoes had a large share in the original settlement of Carolina. In that colony negro slavery was already firmly established as the one aystem of Industry. At the time when Yeamans and his followera set sail for the shores of Carolina, Barbadoes had probsbly two negroes for every one white inhabitant. The soil and cllmate of the new territory did everything to contirm the practice of slavery, and South Carolina was from the ontaet what she ever after remained, the peculiar home of that evil usage. To the West India planter every man of dark colour seemed a natural and proper object of traffic. The settler in Cacollna soon learnt the sameview. In Virghia and Maryland there are but few traces of any attempt to enslave the Indians. In Carolina ... the Indlan was klduapped and sold, sometimes to work on what had once been his own soll, sometimes to end hls days as an exlle and bondsman in the West Indles. As late as 1708 the native population furnished a quarter of the whole body of slaves. It would be unfair to attribute all the hostllties between the Indians and tho colonists to this one source, but it is clear that It was an Important factor. From their very earliest days the settlers were involved In troubles wlth thelr savage nelghbours."-J. A. Doyle, The Einglish in America: Virgina, Mary. land, and the Carolinas, ch. 12.-"Of the orlgiual thlrteen states, South Carollna alone was from Its origin essentlally a plantling state with slave labor. . . . The proprietaries tempted enilgrants by the offer of land at an easy quit-rent, and 150 acres were granted for every able man-servant. 'In that they meant negroes as well as Christians.'

It became the great object of the emigrant 'to buy negro slaves, without which,' adds Wilson, 'a planter can never do anr great matter': and the negro race wus multiplied so rapldy by luportaticas that, in a few years, we are toil, the blacks in tho low country were to the whites in the proportion of 22 to i2."-G. Bun. croft, Hiat. of the U. S. (Author's last recision), $\mu t$. 2, ch. 8 (f. 1).
A. D. 1688-1696.- Beginning of distinctinns bet ween the two Carolinan, North and Snuta. Bee Nortu Caholina: A. D. $1688-1729$.
A. D. 170x-1706.-Prnaperity of the colnny. -Attack on St. Augustine.- French attack on Charlestnn.-"At the openiug of the new century, we mint cense to look upon South Carolina as the bome of indigent emigrants. strug. gling for subsistence. While numerons shaves cultlvated the extensive plantations, their owners, educated gentlemen, and here and there of noble famtlies in England, had ahundatit letsure for social intercourse, living as they didi in proximity tweach uther, aud in eusy ancess (u) Charles Town. where the Governcr resided, the courts and legls. lature convened, and the puhlic office were kept. culture diatin pupitality, reandement, anal ilterary culture diatinguithed the higher class of gentle. men." But party strife at this period raped bitterly, growing mainly out of an attempt to (stablish the Church of England in the colmy. Governor Moore, who had gained power on thils Issue, sought to atrengthen his position by an attack on St. Augustino. "The assembly julned In the scheme. They requested him to ko 0 commander, Instead of Colonel Daniel, whom he not inated. They voted $£ 2,000$; and thought ten vessels and 3.50 men, with Iudian allies would be a sufficlent force.

Hoore with about 400 men sets sall, and Daniel with 100 Carolina troope and about 500 Yemasser limlana march by land. But the inhabltauts of Sit. IIn. gustine had heard of their coming, and had sent to Havana for reinforcements. Retrenting to their castle, they abandoned their town to Col nel Daniel, who piltaged it before Moure's thet arrived. Governor Moore and Cohtull laniel unlted their forces and laid siege to the cuastle; but they lacked the necessary arthtery for to reduction, and were compelled to send tio Jamalica for it." Before the artillery arrived, "two Span. ish ships apt red off St. Augustine. Monre in. stantly burned the town and all his own ships and hastened back by land.

The expruse en. talled on the colony was $\mathbf{£ 6 , 0 0 0 \text { . When this at- }}$ tack on St. Augustine was planneti, it must have been antictpated in the colony that war would be declared against Spain and France." Fous cears later, the War of the Epankh Snccession betng then in progress, a French theet appeared (August, 1706) iu the harbor of Clarleston and demanded the surrender of the town. Although yellow fever was raging at the time, the govesuor, Sir Nathaniel Johnson, organized so effectlve a resistance that the tnvaders were driven of with considerable loss. - W. J. livers, The Carolinat (Nisratire and Critical ilint. of Am, o. 5, eh. 5).
A. D. 8740 . - Wiar with the Spaniarda of Florida. See Georala: A. D. 1738-1743.
A. D. ${ }^{1759-1761 . ~-~ T h e ~ C h e r n k e e ~ W a r ~-~}$ "The Cherokees, who had acconpanied Forbes in hls expedition against Fort Du Quesue [see CaNada: A. D. 1758], returnlug home along the mountalns, had Involved themselves in quarrels whth the back settlers of Virginia and the CaroHinas, in which several, both Indians and while men, had been killen. Some chiefs, who had proceeded to Charleston to arrange thls disintte, were recelved by Governor Littletou In rery haughty style, and he presently mar hed into the Cherobee conutry at the head of $1,5140 \mathrm{~mm}$, contributed by Virginia and the Carotiuas, demambing the surrender ot the murderers of the Eng lish. Ile was soon glad, however, of any apology for retiring. Ilis troops proved very insubordinate; the small pox broke out among them; and, having accepted 22 Indian hatages as security for peace and the finture delivery of the murderers, be broke up his caup, aud fell buck in haste and confusion. was Lithleton'e army gone, than the Clurwhee attempted to entrap into their power the commander of [Fort Prince George, at l'se had of the Savannahi], anl, apprehensive of some plan for the rescuc of the t:ostages, he gave ordess to put them in irons. They resisted; and a suidics having bech wounded in the struggle, hils infurf. ated companlons fell upou the prisonery und pus shem all to derth. Indignant at this outrage, the Cherokees beienguered the fort, and went out wir partles in every direction to sttack the frontlers. The Aseomhiy of South Carolina, In great alarm, voted $1,000 \mathrm{men}$, and oflered a premium of e2s for every Indian scalp. North Csrolina oflered a elmiliar premlum, and authorized, in addition, the holding of Indian captlves as slaves. An exprens, asking assistance, was sent to General Amherst, who detached 1,200 men, nnder Colonel Montgo:ary, chlefly Scotch Highlanders, lately atatloned on the western frontler, with orders to make a dash at the Cherotees, but to return in season for the next campalgu against Canada. . . Jolning hls forces With the provincial levies, Montgomery entered the Cherokee country, ralsed the blockade of Fr. Prince George, and ravaged the nelghborint Iistrict. Marching then upon Etchoe, the chile viliage of the IIddile Cherokees, within fire miles of that place he encountered [June, [760] a large body of Indians, strongly posted In a difficuit defle, from which they were only driven after a very severe struggle; or, accord. log to other accounts, Montgomery was himself repulsed. At all events, he retired to Charleston, and, in obedlence to his ordcrs, prepared to embark for service at the north. When thls determination became known, the province was thrown into the utmost consternation. The As. sembly declared themselves unable to ralse men to protect the frostlers; and a detachment of 400 regulars was presently conceded "to the sollicita. tlons of Ileutenant governor Bull, to whom the aiministration of South Carolina had lately been resligned. Before the year closed, the conguest of the French dominions In America east of the Blisslasippl had been practlcally finished and the French and Indian War at the north was closed. But, "while the northern colonles cxulted in safety, the Cherokce war stlll kept the frontlers of Carollna in alarm. Left to themselves by the withdrawal of Montgomery, the Upper Cherokees had beleaguered Fort Loudon. After living for some tlme on horse-Hesh, the garrison, inder a promise of safe-conduct to the settlements, had been induced to surrender. But thls promise Was broken; attacked on the way, a part were killed, und the rest detalned as prisoners; after which, the Indlans directed all their fury agatnst the frontlers. On a new application prescutis male to Amherst for assistance, the Prescutiry regiment, now commanded hy Grant, was ordered back to Carollna. New levies were also male in the province, and Grant presentiy marched into the Cherokee country [Jnne, 1\%6i] with 2,600 men. In a second hittle, near the same spot with the fight of the prevlous year, the Inilians were driven haek with loss. The Indians took refuge in the detiles of the mountains, and, subdued and humbled, sued for peace. As the condition on which alone it would be granted, they were required to dellver up four warriors to be shot at the head of the army, or to fumish four green Indlan scalps within fwenty days. A personal application to Governor Bnll. br an oll chief long known for his uttachment to the Engllsh, procured a relinquishment of this brutal demand, and peace was presently made." -R. Iildreth, Mist. of the $U . S$, ch. $27(r, 2)$.
A: कo in: D. Mamsny, Livi, of Mouth ciarolina, Races of North sect. 2. -S. G. Drake, Aooriginal Races of North Am., bk. 4, ch. 4
A. D, 1760-1766.-The question of taration by Parliament.-The Stamp Act.-The first Continental Congress, - The repeal of the Stamp Act and the Declaratory Act. See Uniten Staten of Ax. : A. D. 1760-1775; 17681764; 1765; and 1768.
A. D. $1766-1774 \cdot-$ Opening events of the Revolution dec United States or Am. : A. D. $1760-1767$, to 1774 ; and Bostos: 1768 , to 1778.
A. D. 1775.-The beginning of the War of the American Revolution.-Lexington.-Con-cord.- Action taken on the news.-Ticonderoga. - The aiege of Boston.-Bunker Hill. EThe Second Continental Congress. See NITED States of A M. : A. D. 1775.
-Filght of the Royal Governor. Revolution. 1775, a prov the Royal Governor.- In January, 1775, a provinclal conventlon for South Carollina was called together at Charleston, under the presidency of Charles Plackney. It appointed delegates to the second Continental Congreas, and took micasures to enforce the non-Importa: tlon agreements in whieh the colony hat jolned. At a second session, in June, this conrention or Provinclal Congress of South Carollas "appointed a Committee of Safety, Issued 8000,000 , of paper mones, and voted to rulse two regiments, of which Gaisileu and Moultrie were chosen colonels. Lleutchant-governur Bnli was utterly powerk'ss to prevent or interrupt these proceedings. While the Couveution wus stlll In session, Lord Wllliam Cauphell, who had acquired hy narriage large possessions in the province, arrived at Chirleston with a commisslon as governor. Received with courtesy, he presently summoned an Assembly; Litt that body deelined to proceed to bushess, and sonn adjourncl on lts own nuthority. The Con:mittce of Safety pursucd with energy measures for putting the province in a statc of dofense. A goxd deal of resistanee was made to the Associution [for commerelal non-intercourse], especially in the haek couutles. Persuaslou fail. ing, force was used. . A vessel was fitted out by the Committre of Safety; which selzed an English powder ship off St. Angustine and brought her into Charleston. Noultrie was prosentiy sent to take possession of the fort in Charleston harbor. No resistance was made. The small garrison, In expectation of the visit, had alrealy [September] retired on board the shlps of wur in the hurbor. Lord Campbell, the governor, aceused of secret negotiations with the Cherokees and the disaffected in the hack couuties, was soou obliged to seek the same shelter. A reginent of artillery was voted; and measnres were taken for fort lf ying the harhor, from whieh the British ships were soon expelled."-R. IIlldreth, Ilist. of the $L^{\prime}$. S., ch. $30-31$ (c. 3).

Also is: D. İimsay, Hist. of South Carolina, v. 1. ch. 7, sect. 1.
A. D. 1776 (Fehruary-April),-Allegiance to King George renounced, independence assumed, and a state constitution adopted."On the 8th of February 17.76, the convention of South Carollna, by Drayton their proslifent. presented their thanks to Johm Iotithodge and Henry Iliddieton for their services in the American congress, which had mitle its inpeal to the King of kings, established a nary, trusury, and general post-office, exerclsed control over commerce, and granted to colonies permission to create elvil Institutlons, Inderendent of the regal authority. The next day arrived Gadsten, the higheat oftcer in the army of the province, and he in ifke manner received the welcome of publie gratitude. When, on the 10th, the report on reforming the prorincial government was considered snd many hesitatef. Gadstea spoke out for the ahsolnte independence of America. The majority hat thus far refused to enntempiate the enil toward witch they were irresistihy impeileni. . . But the criminal inws conid not be enforced for want of otticers; pul). lie and private ultairs were rinning into confuslon; the imminent danger of farasion was proved by intercepted ietters, so that neceasity eompelled the adoption of sonie adergate systern of rale. Whife a committee of cleven was preparing the organie law, Gadisien, on the 18th, began to act as senior ofticer of the army. Companies of milltia were called down to Charieston. and the military forers augmented by two regiments of riftemen. In the eariy part of the year sutifun's Isiand was a wifterness, thickiy covered with myrtic. ilve.onk, and paimettos; there. on the 2 l of March, Wilitam Mouitrie was ordered to compiete a fort large enough to hold 1.010 men. Within five days after the convention recefved the act of parlinment of the preceifing December which anthorized the capture of Anmertean ressels and property, they gave up the hope of reconciliation: andi, on the ${ }^{2}$ fith of March 1786, asserting the goxi of the perpie to be the origin and end of ali government, and enumeruting the unwarrantabie acts of the Brit. Ish parliament, the impiacability of the king. and the viofence of his ofticers, they establisheid a constitution for South Caroina.

On the 2itin. John lhutieige was chosen presidient. Henry Laurens vice-president, and Wilifam Henry Drayton chief justice. ...On the aid of Aprif the court was ofened at Charleston, and the chief justice after an eiaborate exposition charged the grand jury in these words: 'The law of the hand anthorizes me to deciare, and it is my duty to dectare the law, that George IIf., king of Great Britain, has abdicated the govern. ment, that he has no nuthority over us, and we owe no obedience to him.' '"-G. Baneroft, Hiat. of the EV. S. (Author's liat recision), epoch' 3, ch. 25 (r. 4).
Alsa, is: W. G. Simms, Hint of S. Ci rulina, bk. t. ch 5.-Sce, aiso, Eited States of Am.: A. I). 1:56-1:39.
A. D. $1776^{6}$ ( Jv 2).-Sir Henry Clinton's repuise from Charieston. See L'sited Statemof Ам. A. D. 1 تife (JrNe).
A. D. 1776-1778. - The war in the North. The Articles of Confederation. - The alliance with France. See Livited States of Am: A. I). $1 \% 76,1017 \% 8$
A. D. $177^{8 .}$ - State Constitution framed and adopted. See lisited states of Am. : A. I. 1756-17io.
A. D. 1778 -1779.-The war carried into the South. - Savanaah taken and Georgia sub-dued.-Unsuccessful attempt to recover Savannah. See Cisiten states of Am. : A. D. 1778-1779 Tiee war cairied into the Sol"til: and $17: 80$ (September-Octoner).
A. D. $17^{80}$.-Siege and surrender of Charles-ton.-Defeat of Gates at Camden.-British subjugation of the state. see Lisited states or Ax. : A. D. 1880 (Febrtary-Acoter).
A. D. 1780.- Partiman werfare of Msrion and hle Mec. See Untred States of Ay: A. D. 1780 (Avevet-Drcimakr).
A. D. 1780-1781, - Greene'e Campaiga. Klar's Mountaln. - The Cowpens.-Guifiord Conrt House. - Hobkirk's Hiti. - Eutsw Springs.-The Britich chut up In Charleston. See United Statea or AM. : A. I. 1ïmu-1inl.
A. D. 1788 -1783. - The campaiga in Vis-glala.-Siege of Yorktown and surrender of Corawallis. - Peace with Great Britala. ve Cniten Ntates or AM.: A. ID. 1781, to 1 is3.
A. D. $17^{87}$.- Cemalon of Western land claims 1 , the Ualted Statel. Sce Uivted Staten or AM. : A. D. 1;id1-1786.
A. D. $17^{87}-17^{88}$. - Formation and adoption of the Federal Constitution. Nee lsired STATE or 1 N . : A. (). 1787 ; and $1787-17 \times \mathrm{Ny}$.
A. D. 1! B-1833. The Nullification moremeat and threatened Secession. See Livited Staten of AM. : A. D. 1828-1833.
A. D. 1831. - The first ralliond. See Stean Loconotion on Land.
A. D. 1860.-The plotting of the Rebeition. - Pagsage of the Ordinance of Secession. see United states or Ay. : A. D. 1860 (Noveneea - Deceminr).
A. D. 1860 (December).-Major Anderion at Fort Sumter. See Civited States of Ax.: A. D. 1 NBO (DECEMRER) MAJOR ANDERHON.
A. D. 1863 (Aprii),-Beginalng the War of Rebellion. - The bombardment of Fort Sumter. See L'sited States of Am. : A. D. 1Noi (Marca-ApriL).
A D. 1861 (October-December).-Cspture of Hitton Head and occupation of the cosst Inlands by Unlon forces. See Enite: Stated of Am.: A. D. 1861 (October - IDecember: Sorti Carolima-Georgia).
A.D. 1862 (May) - The arming of the Freedmen at Hilton Head. Ele Cointed States of Am.: A. D. 1862 (May: siotu Car. oliva).
A. D. 1863 (April). - The repuise of the Monitor-deet at Charleston. Sue IVITzD States of Am.: A. D. 1863 (Aphll: sotta Carolisa).
A. D. 1863 (July). - Lodgment of Union forces on Morris Inland, and assault on Fort Wagner. See U'nited States of Am. A. D. 1863 (Jelv: Soctu Carolina).
A. D. 1363 (August-December).-Siege of Fort Wagner.-Bombardment of Fort Sumter and Charleaton. See United Staten of A. . A. I). 1863 (Acocst-December: Soctil CaroLiNA).
A. D. 2865 (February) - Eracuation of Charleston by the Confederates. See lisiren States of A. : A. D. 1865 (Febriary : Sotth Carohisa).
A. D. 1865 (Febraary-March).-Sherman's march through the state. - The burning of Columbia. Sce United States of An.: A. D. 1865 (Febridary-March: The '́arolisas).
A. D. 1865 (June). - Provisional Goverament set up uader Preaident Johason's Pian of Reconetruction. See United States of Av: A. D. 186.5 (MAY-JCly).
A. D. 1865-1876.-Reconstruction.-" After the cisse of the war, two distinct and npposing pians were applied for the reconstruction. or restoration to the Union, of the State. The inst, known as the Presidential pian [see C'vited

SOUTH CAROLINA.

SOLTH SEA BLBBLE

statte of AM.: A. D. 1865 (MAT - JCLy)], was gulckly superseded by the second, known as the Congressonal plan; but it had worked vast mls. chlef by fontering delual ve hopes, the reactlon of which was manifest in long eaduring bltterneas. Conder the latter plan, emiboclled $\ln$ the Act of Congreas of Msrch 2, 1867 [sec L'sited States of Ax.: A. D. 1807 (March)], a conventlon was assembled In Charleston, January 14, 1868, 'ir frume a Conatitution and Clvil Govermment.' The previous reglstration of woters mule in Octulur, 1867, showed a total of 125,328 , of whom 40.348 were whites, and 78,088 hlacks. . . . On the question of holding a const tutloual conven. thon the rote cast in November, 467, was 71.097, 13) whites and 68,876 blaeks vorlng for It , and 2.801 whites agalnst it. Of the delegates cliosen to the convention 84 were whites anil 63 blaeks. The new Constltutlon was adopted at an electlon bell on the 1 tell, 15th, and $16 \mathrm{th}_{\mathrm{s}}$ of A pril, 1864, all sitate offlcers to Initlate lis operatlon being elected at the same time. At thlis clecton the registrathon was 133,507; the vote for the Con utituthon ro, i5s; agalnat it, 27,288; total vote. 88.040: not vothg, 35,551. Agalnst the approval by Conkress of this Constitution the Denoocratle State central Commiltee forwarded a protest," whald declared: " The Constlitulton was the work of Nurthern adventurers, Southern renegades, and Ignorat negroes. Not one per cent. of the White populaton of the State approves it, and not tro per cent. of tho negroes who voted for Its aduption understool what thiss act of voting Implled." "The new Stat: offlers took office July 9. 1868. In the first Legislature, which as. senibled on the same day, the Senate consisted of 33 mambers, of whom 9 were negroes and hut 7 were lhenocrats. The House of liepresentatives conslisted of 124 members, of whom 48 were white men, $1 t$ only of these being Democrats. The whole Leglshature thus conslsted of it white and 8.5 colored members. At thls date the entire fundel detit of South Carollna amounted to th. $410,308.2 \%$. At the close of the four years (two terms) of Goveruor IR. K. Scott's adhulnistra. tion, i)ecember, 1872, the funderl delte of the State amounted to $18,515,033.91$, including past. due and unpald interest for three years. - W . Allen, Governor Chamberlain's Adminiatrition in Euth Cirrolina, ch. 1.-' Mr. James S. Plke, late Mialster of the Cuited States at the Mague, a Republican and an original abolitionist, who risited the state in 1873 , after five years' supremacy by Scott and his successor Moses, and their allies, has puhlished a pungent and inotructlve account of puhllc affairs during that trsing time, under the title of 'The Prostrate stite.' The most slgnlticant of the striking fea. tures of thls book is that he undertakes to write 4 correct hlstory of che state hy divlding the principal frauds, already committed or then in process of completlon, luto elght dlstinct classes, which he enumerates as follows:-1. Those Which relate to the increase of the state deht. ?. The frumels practiced $\ln$ the purchase of lands for the freedmen. 3. The ralroad frauds. 4 . The election frauds. 5. The frauds prac'lced in the redemptlon of the notes of the Bank o South Carolina. 6. The census fraud. 7. The fraud in furnishlng the legislative ehamber. 8 Geueral anid legislative corruptlon. .) Mr. Pike in bis 'Prostrate State,' speaking of the state finan. seat in 1573, says: 'Bul, as the treasury of South Carolina has been wo thoroughly gutted by the thiteres who have hltherto had possension of the state government, there is nothing left to steal. The note of any negro in the state is worth as much on the market as a South Carollna bond. Thls relgn of corruptlon was checked $\ln 187 \&$ by the election to the governoral $F$ of Dinalel H . Chamberlaln, the regular Republlcan nominee Who had been Attorney.General during scotts admlnistratlou. "Governor Chaquberlain, quite In contrast with his predecensors, talked relorm sfter hls election as well as before lt ," and was "able to accomplish some markell and whole. mome reforms $\ln$ publlc expendltures." In 1876 the Democrats sueceetled ln overpowering the negro vote and aequired control of the atate, electing General Wale IIampton governor:J. J. Hemplill, Reconatmuction in South Camolina (Why the whlid South? ch. 4).-Generally, for an account of the measures connected with "Reconstruction," see United States of Ax. : A. D. 1885 (MAT - JCLY), to $1868-18: 0$.

SOUTH DAKOTA: A. D. 1889,-Admission to the Union. See United States or AM. : A. I). $1888-1890$.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Seo United Statee of Ay: A: D. 1862 (Septexber: Makyland Lee's first infasion.
SOUTH RIVER, The.-The Delaware and the IIudson were called respectlvely the South Rlver and the North River ty the Diutch. during thelr occupatlon of the terribory of New Nether.
SOUTH SEA: The name and its application. See Pacific Ocean.
SOUTH SEA BUBBLE, The. - "The South Sea Company was first formed by Itarley [Eari of Oxfonl, Lord Treasurer of Englanil) lu 1ili, hls ohjeet being to Improve public credlt, and to provide for the floating debts, which at that perfol amounted to nearly $£ 10,000,000$. The Lord Treasurer, therefore, establlshed a fund for that sum. He secured the interest by making permanent the duties on wlne, vlnegar, tobacco, and several others; he allured the creditors hy promising them the monopoly of trade to the spanish coasts ln Ameriea; and the project was sunctioned both hy Royal Charter and hy Act of Parliament. Nor were the merchants alow in 8wallowing thls glided balt; and the fancled Eldorado which shone before them dazzled even thelr discerning eres. . . This splrit spread throughout the whole nation, and many. who scarcely knew whereabouts America lies, felt nevertheless quite certain of its being atrewed With gold and gems. : The negotiatlons of Utrecht, however. in this as la other nantters fell far short of the Ministerial promises and of the public expectation. Instead of a free trade, or any approach to a free trade, whith the American colonles, the Court of Madrld granted only, besldes the shameful Aslento for negro slaves. the privilege of settllng some factories, aud sending one annual ship.

This shadow of 9 trade was bestowed hy the British Government on the South Sea Company, but it was very sion disturbed. Thelr first annual shlp, the Royal Prince, dld not sall till 1717; and next year broke out the war with Spain. ... Stlli, howerer, the South Sea Company sontinued, from its other resourees, a flourishing and wealthy corporation; its funds were high, Its Infuence considerable,

SOLTH SEA BL'BBLE.

and It was conshlered on every necalon the rival and competitor of the Bank of Engiand." At the clow of 1719 the South Bee Company suhmitted to the government proposis for buying up the puhile deht. "The great ohject was to huy up and diminish the hurthen of the Irredeemable snnultles granted In the swo last reigns, for the term mostly of o9 years, and smounting at this time to nearly 8800,000 : year." The Bank of England became at once a competitor for the snme undertaking. "Tie two bodles now dlapiayed we utmost eagerness to outhid one another, eacis sceming slmont ready to ruin itseif, so tinat it couid lut dinappoint ite rival. They both went on enhnncing their terms, untii at length the Bouth Sea Company rome to the enormous offer of seven militons and a haif. $\qquad$ The south Sen 13111 finnily passed the Commons by a livision of 172 against 55. In the Lords, on the th of Aprii [1720], the minority was oniy 17. ... On the passing of the Bili very many of the annultants hastened to carry thelr orders to the South Sea House, before they even received nny offer, or knew what terms would be nitiowed them!-remiy to yieid a fixed and certain income for even the amnilest sinure in vast but visionary schemes. The offer which was made to them on the $20: h$ of Map (eight rears and a quarter's purchase) was much less favouranle than they had foped; yet never. theless, six dnes afterwards, it is computed that neariy two-thiris of the whole number of annuitants had niready ngreed. In fact, it seems clear that, during this time, and throughout the manner, the whole antion, with extremely few excreptions, looked upon the South sea scheme as promising and prosperous. Its fimis rapidiy ruse from 130 to mbove 300

As mon as the South Sea Bill bad received the lhyai Assent in April, the Dlrectors propused a subscription of oue million, which was so eagerly taken that the sum subscrlbed exceeded iwo. A secoud subscription was quickly opeued, ant no less quackiy tileci.

In August, the stocks, whleh hal lxem 180 In the winter, rose to 1,000 . Sueh general infatuathon wouli have becn bappy fir the I irectors, hai they not themselves partaken of it. They opened a thiri, and even a fourth subseripton, iarger timan the former; they passed a resolition, that from Christmas next thelr yearly dividemi should not be less than tifty per cent. : they assumed an arrogant and overbearing tone. . . . But the public delusion was not couGned to the South sea Scheme; a thonsaud other musiroom projects sprung up ju that tecming soll. . . . Change Ailey becante a new efition of the lRue Quincampuix [sce Fhance: A. D. 171:1780]. The crowds were so great withh doors, that tables with clerks were set iu the atreet.

Some of the Compunles hawked about were for the most extravagant projects: we tud mmongst the number, 'Wrecks wh fished for on the Irish Coast - Insurance of llorses, anti other Cattle (two millions) - Insurance of losses by servants - To make Sint Witer Fresh - For Buiding of Ilospitals for Bastimi ChildrenFor Bullding of ships ngainst l'irutes - or mak. ing of Oll from Sun-tlower seetis - For inproving of Dait Liquors - For recovcring of Seamen's Wages - For extracting of silver from Lead - For the transmuting of Quicksilver into a maileable aud fine Metal - For maklug of Iron with Pit-coai - For importiug a Number of large Juck Asses from Spuin-For trading in Human Halr - For fatting of Hogn-For Wheel for a Perpetual Dotlon.' But the mont atrunge of all, perhapw, wan 'For an Undertaking which shall to due time be revealed.' Each nub. scriber was to pay down two guineas, and bereafter to receirc a share of one hundred withs disclogure of the ohject; and so tempting was the ofter that 1,000 of these subacripilons were paid the mame morning, with which the projector went of in the afternoon.

When the gums intended to be ralied had grown altogether. It is snid. to the enormous amount of C8ON,(OM), (0) 0 . the drat check to the puhife $\ln$ fntunthon was giren by the same body whence it baid tim sprung. The South Sea Directors . . . uhenlaed an order from the Lords Justices, and writs of sclre fnciae, against severai of the uew hubbie Companles. These feii, hut In failing drew down the whole fabric with them. As sion a distrust was excited, nit men became anxhus to convert their londs futo moner:

Early lo Septeinber, the South sen stock begni to decline: Its fali became more rapid from day to day, and Lu iess then a montis it had sunk below $3(0)$.
The decilne progressireiy contlouedi, nad the new of the crash in France fof the contem. borary Mlasissipni Scheme of John Law - vee France: A. D. 1717-1720] completed oafa Thousands of famliies were reducelt to ingegary.

The resentment and rage were uulversal" - Lori Mtanon (Eari Stauhope), Hivt. of Eng. 1733-1583, ch. 11 (c. 2).
Aleo is: A. Auderson, Hiat. and Chronders. Deduction of the Urigin of Commerre, r. 3, $\boldsymbol{p}$. +3 amb ufer.-J. Toland, Neret Hist. af the Nuth Eit Sheme (Works, e. 1).-C. Muckay. Memorm of Extriurdinary Pognilar Inluaions, ch. ?
SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY, The.The organization of the so called Coufellerate States of America, formed unong the statea which attemptedi in 1881 to secerle from the American Linion, is commonly refersed "as the Southern Confederacy. For an account of the Constitution of the Confederacy, aud the establishing of ity goverument, see Cxited states or Ay. : A. D. 1 Eb1 (Fembrahy)
SOUTHERN CROSS, Order of the.- 1 Brazillan order of kulghthood instituted in 1 wis by the Emperor. Peiro I.

SPA-FIELDS MEETIJG AND RIOT, The. See Ekgland: A. D. 1816-18:0
SPAHIS.-lu the Turkisi feudal system, organized by Mnionser II. (A. 1). 145i-14>1), "the generai name for the holders of military tefo was Spuah, o Cavailer, a thtie whiel cenctis an swers to thoge wheh we flad in the femblal countrles of Christian Europe. . . . The Spalid was the feudai vassai of his Suitan and of his Sultan aloue. . . . Eacir Spahi . . . was not waly bound to render military service himself la peram, but, If the vaiue of hif fief exceeded n certaln spect. fied amount, he was required to furalsh and malntain an armed borseman for every maltiple of that sum."-Sir L. S. Crensy, Mhat. of the Ottoman Turks, ch. B and 10-•T Thr Spahis cannot properiy be considered os a class of nobles. In the villages they had nelther estates nur dwellings of their own; they bad uo right to jurisdictiou or to feudal service.
yo resl rigits of property were ever bestowed oa them: but, fur a spectic service a cortain revethe minz granted them."-I.. Ranke, Hist. of S'ertia, ch. 3 -See, almo, Timar.

SPAIN.

Aborigial Peoples- - 'Spaln must olther have drea birth to an aboriginal people, of whe propled by way of the Prreneen and by eml. grants croolag the narrow stralt at the columbs of llercules. The Iberian nice actualiy forma the foundation of the populations of Spain. The Baske, or Bacgues, now conflined to a fow mountaln rafleja, formerly occupled the greater portion of the peninsuis, as is proved hy its geographical nomenciature, Celtic tribea subbe. quer. 1 crowed the Pyrenees, and establibhed thenia. res in varinus parts of the country, mla. lag in many lastances with the Jberians, and forming the encalled Celtiberian. This mized race is met with princlpally in the two Cantlies, whist Galicia and the farger portion of Portugai appear to be inhabited hy pure Celte. The Iberians had thelr original seat of clvilisation in the sonth; they thence moved northward along the coant of the Mediterranean, penetrating as fra sat the Aips and the Aperninea. These origi. nal elementa of the population were jolned by colonists from the great commercina peophis of the Mellterranean. Calla and Malaga wer founded by the Pheadclans, Caringena hy the Carthaginlans, Sa." ute br immigrauts from Zacrathe, Theane is Rholian colony, and the rillis of Ampurias recall the Emportum of the Massllias. But it was the Romans who mindlted the chnraeter of the Iberian and Celtle Inhnod tants of the penlnauln."一E. Reclus, The Eirth anil ita Inhubitunto: Eurupe, r. 1, p. 872.
B. C. 237-202.-The rule of Hamilicar, Hasdrubsl and Hannibal in the aouth.- Beginling of Romaa conqueat. See PcNic Wars: Tue Second.
B. C. 218-25.-Roman conquent. - "The nations uf Apaln were subjugatect one after nonother by the Romnus. The contest began with the recond Punle war [B. C. 218], anil it ended with the defeat of the Chatabri and Astures by Augustu4, B. C. 25. Fmm B. C. sions the ho. napsa had a dominlon in spoula. It was dlvelerd toto two provinces, Illspain Clterfor, or Tarra. coausis, ad Illspania Elterlor, or Baetlea. It Ent extraordlanary proconsuls were sent to Spuin, but afterwards two praetors were sent, genemily Nith proconsular authority aud twelve fasces. During the Macedonlan war the two p"rts of Spain were placed uader one governor, hut in B. C: 167 the old drrision was restored. and so it remalued to the time of Augustus. The houa. dary leetween the wo prowinces wis origianly the Iberus (Ebro).

The country south of the Ehro was the Carthaghnan territory. Whleh came into the possession of the Romurs at the eod of thls [the second Pualc] war. The centre, the west, aind uorth. west jarts of the Spanish peninsula were athl mitependent. At a later time the homudary of IItspunala Citerior extended further shuth, anil it was tixed at last between Crei and Murgis. now Guardlas Vlejas, In $36^{\circ}$ 41' N. lat."-G. Loag, Decline of the Roman $\mathrm{Re}_{\mathrm{t}}$ public, r. 1, ch. 1.-See, nlso. Celtrmertass; batanta; sid Nemantian War.
Wh. C. 83-72. - Sertorius. - Quhntus Sertorius, Who $\pi \ldots$. he ahlest and the best of the leaders of the Popular Pafty, ur Italinn Party, or Marcontended, as it is variously Ieslgnated, whlch int Rom in civil Sulla snd the senate, In the tint Rom in civil war, left Italy and withdrew to spaln, or was aent thither (it is uncertain which in 88 or $\%$ ? B. C. before the trumph of Sulian had comp.i" "Igainat the authority of Suila falied comple ${ }^{\cdots} \cdot{ }^{\prime}$, and be had thoughts it is sald of ceekng a peaceful retreat in the Madelra Islands, raguely known at that periorl as the Fortunate Islen, or fele of the Blent. But after come ad. rentures in Mauritania, Jertorium accepted an Invitation from the Lualtanlans to beconie thelr lemier in a revolt galnat the Romans which they meditated. Putting blmself at the head of the Lualtaninns, and druwing with them other Iherinn tribes, sertorius organized a power in Spain years and wheh eames at bay for neariy ten yean and whleh came near to breaklt the peninaula from their dommion. He wai joined, too, hy a large number of the fugitiven from Rome of the proscribed party, who formed a tenate in Spaln and inatluted a government there which aspired to dispince, in time. the senate and the republle on the Tlber, which sulla had reduced to a shadow and a mockery. Firat Metellus and then Pompey, who were sent againat Sertorius (see hoye: B. C. 79-68), uuf. fered repented defeate at his linnds. In the ead, Nertorlus was only overconie hy treachery among his own ofticers, who coasplred a galnst him and assassinated litm, B. C. 7?. - G. Long, Decline of the Romat R lijpubic, r. 0, ch. $31-33$.
Atine in: Il. G. Liddell, lliat. of Rome, bk. 7. $B$.
B. C. 49.- Cesar's frat campalgn againat the Pompeiana. Nee RouE: 13. ©: 40 .
B. C. 45.-Casar's last campaign againat the Pompeians.-His victory at Munda. See Rome: 13. C. 45.
3d Century,-Early Christfanity. See Caris. TINNITY: A. D. 1(n)-31: (NPATN)
A. D. 408.-Under the usurper Conatantine. See Barsin: A. 1) tor.
A. D. 4EY-414. - Invasion of the Vandala, Sueves, ana Alans. - From the pad of the seur She to the autumu of 400 , the lmrbarle torreut of Alans, sucres and Fimulals whith had swept awny the larriers of the Roman empire berond the Alps, spent lts rage on the manappy prov. iaces of G:mal. Wo the 133 h of October, 409 , the Pyrentes were passed and the sante flood of tenpertuons lavaision poured lato Spaln. "The misfortunes of spain may be described in the languige of to mast elonjuent historian [Marlanal]. Who has concisely expressed the passlouate, and perhaps exaggerited, deelamations of contemporary writers. The Irrupthon of these nations wat followed by the most dreadful cafamities; as the barlarims exerctsed the' rindlacrim. inate crully on the fortures of the bomans aud the spanarls, and ravaged with equil fury the chties aud the upen comptry. The progress of famine reduced the malserable Inhabltants to ferd the wild ${ }^{\text {shen }}$ of their fellow-creatures; and even the wild beasts, who multiplled wit! 10 cht coatrol In the tlesert, were exasperated hy the taste of bluod aad the Impatience of hunger boldly to attack and devour thelr human prey. Pestilence soon appeared, the insefratuic companint uf famlae; a large propertion of the people was swept awar: and the groans of the dying excited only the envy of their surviving frlends.
At length the barbarians, satlated with carnage

BPAIN, A. D. 400 -414. Amb Nomiah $\begin{gathered}\text { conveat. }\end{gathered}$

and raplue, and sfilcted by the contagious erits which they tiemselves had introd uced, tixed their permanent meats la the epopulated country. The anclent Ciallcla, whou limits Ineluded the klagelom of ohl Cactle, was Itviled Int ween the Suev aul the Vanlals; the Alanl were matterv! over the jrovincer of Carthageta and Lualtana, from the Meditermiean to the Atante thean and the fruitful territury of Betho was alluted to the sillagl, another branch of the Vandaile nathon.

The lanils were agaln cultivated and the towns and vlingres were agalu occupled hy a eaptlve people. The greatest part of the Spuniarle was even diapowed to prefer this new comiltion of poverty and barbariom to the severo oppreselons of the Roman government; yet there were many who etlli asmerted their native free. dont, and who refuned, mine ergeclaliy in the mountains of Cailcla, to suhnilt wo the barimrian yoke." - E. Glblmon, Deeline and F'ill of the lloman Emjire, ch. 81.
A. D. $484.488 .-$ Flrt conquests of the Vislsoths. Sec Goris (Vintoorns): A. D. 4lv419.
A. D. 428. -Conquests of the Van Ials. Sew Vandala: A. 1). 42a.
A. D. 477-713.-The Gothlc klagdom. See Gothe (tishoras): A. D. $453-444$, and $800^{\circ}-$ 711.
A. D. 573.-The Suevl overcome by the Vislgotho. see stevi: A. I). 409-5is.
A.D. 6i6.-Flrat expulaton of the Jewp. Sue Jews: 7tu Centeny.
A. D. 718-713.-Conquent by the ArabMoore. -The last eentury of the Gutilic klag. dont in Spain was, on the wiole. a perion of de. cllne. It gained mone extension of boubularles. It is true, by the expulsion of Byzantine anthor. ley from one smail soutbern corner of tite Spuush peninsuia. In whleh it had llagered long; lut repented usurpathons had shaken the throne; the ascemdancy of church and clergy luml weakened the (iothic noblity without strengticaing the gerople; freiuent recurrences of pollticai ilsor. der hai interfered witit a general jromperity and demoratized suctety in many ways. The condi. tlon of Spain, in fact, was such as might pladuly tuvite the tushed armles of tslath, wheh wow bound ou the African side of the uarrow stmit of Gibraltar. That another incitation was needent to bring them in is not probahte. The story of the kreat treason of Comut Illan, or Ifyan, or Juliah, and of the betrayedi daughter, Fhiriada, to whise wronge lie maie a sacrifice of lils country, has beea woven Into the history of the Menrinh colnguest of Spula ly too many looms of romance atal poetry to be coisliy torn away, and it way have some bothom of fact fin lts coupusition; but sober reason requires us to le. lieve that uo pusslite treason in the case confal ine more than a chance incident of the inevitable catast roplie. 'The thal eonquest of North Africa lad locets completed by the Arab general Musa Ibn Nusery r, - except that Ceutn, the one strong. hohl which the Gothes held on the African shde of the atraits, withuown them. They had not only conquered the leerlers or Moors, but had prae. ticully absorbel and athlifated them. Spuin, as titey learned, was dlstructed by a fresh revolutiun, which had brought to the throne Roderick - the lati Gothic そing. The numeruus Jews lo tbe country were emblttered by perseeutlon and bouked to the more tolerant Hoslems for their deliverance. Probably thelr fuvitation proved more gutent than any which Count liran could adilreis to Mum, or to film master at fammache. Ilut Ifyan commatuled at Ceuti, and, after te. feuding the outpost for a tlase, he gave It up. It seins, ioo, that when the moveurat of la. vaston inccurrel. In the sprige of ill. ('ount Ityan was with the livadera. The firit expril. thon to crose the nurrow stralt from (entia tu Ubraltarcame under the commabd of the vallast one eyed chleftaln. Tarik Ibn Zeyud Ina Ab. dillah. "The lanillog of Tarth's forece was com pleted on the both of April, 111 (Helt Rerget A. II. 03), and his enthusiantic followery at vare naused the jrmmontory upon whleh the lameted, Dechelvel'Tarik [or Gebel-Tartk]. the mock of Tarik. The tanace has been retaired in the moxeralzed firmi, Uibritar. It ls aten sjoken of lo the Arabian chroniclen an Duchebatu• I Fntn, the portal or mountalu of vletory." Tarlk entered Spain wltí but 7,000 men. Ife afterwards received reluforcements to the extent of 5.1 KN ) from Muss. It was witil thls small army of l?.0, No men that, after a little more than two nomilom, be enconntered the far grvater hoot whihh Kisa Ikilerlck had derfed hastly to oppose him. The Gotific king despleed the anall bumbers of bis foe and runbly staked everytining upon the simple feld. Somewhere not far from Medina Nidonde, - or nenrer to the town of Xeres de to F'namer - on the banks of the Guadalete, tho deale.s. hattie begau on the 10th day of Juiy, A. it il lasted obstinately for several daya, mulan. appeared first on the Gothic shef but is among the Clirintlans and illscipline amm, Sosicms turned the scule. When the buttle indent the conquest of Spala was practically achleved Its Gothe klog fadl disappeared. whether slain or fled was never known, and the orgnuiathin of resistunce dimpureareal with hinn. Tarik jurwied hls success with nudachous viger, cren dlater ing tire commanis of his supertisr, Misat. Ihehi ing his small army linto deturimeents, bu jushet them out in ail directions to seize the luaprant clijes, Xeres, Moron, Carmona, Corlora, Dulaga. and Gharmita - Granala - (the latter en es :- valvely peopled with Jews that it was callew

I Iarnattu-al- Yahoud," or Grauada of the Jows were speelify taken. Tolecio. the Gothbe eapl. *at. surreudered and was occupled on l'silm sus. day, il2. The same spriag, Dusa, baralag cess, crossed to Spain with an army uf : 9 gho and took up the nearly thished task 11 . foels Seville and latd slege to Mertia - the fimerita Augusta of the Ifomans - a gront and shadidid city of unusual strenget. Neridn rowistel with more valor than other cities lad show, bat sur. renalered in July. Sevilie revolted anl was pubishat turribly liy the merchess lowlem an at Before the cind of the secomi year after Tamis tirst funding nt Gibratar, the Arat, our ArabMoorish, luveders inad swept the whole southerg. contrul and eastern parts of the prolnsula, clear to the I'yrenees, reducing Sarmonss:a after asiege aud receiving the surfonder of Itaredoba, Valen eia, and all the tmportant ci- its. Then, in the summer of 713, Jusa and Tarik wont awar. under orders from the Caliph, to settle shetr Jenlous dissensions at Damascus, and to ryprt the facty of the great compuest liney handiII. Coppee, LIint. of the Conqueat of span, the 2-3 (r. 1).

Alwo mi J. A. Conde, Jhiof, of the Arade in Guin, eA. -17 (o. 1). For preceding events see Cotra (Vintcorma); and Mamonetas Conqurit and Empine.
A. D. 713-910. - The rally of the fugdelve Chriotlanas.-"The fimi blow lof the Stomlem conquest/ had atuaned Cothic Spala; and, befinm she could recover het consclousnman, the skilful bands of the Moolemah had lound her, hand and fout. From the ame atupor they wire mot al. lawel to reenver. The very clemency of the Moslems mbbed the Chriatians of argument. If their inoods were sharp, their condiurt after lant. tle was far briter than the inhabituntas had any right to expect. fur better than that of the liman or Gothite comyuerors hat been. when they invaded Spaln. Their rellglon, the defence of wheit ing he have been the last rallylage polnt, was respected under easy conditionan; theis lives readerem secure and confortahle; they were under trithate, bit a tribute no more exacting tian Roman taxea or Gothie mubolifes. .. It was the (talite element, and not the Iliapano fiomuna, that felt the fumiliatlon nosat. , The Npana. inh Gothe, at firat impellod by the simple instinct of self-preser ration, had fed in all dlrectlons lee. fore the gery march af the Mombmain. after the Arst fatal inatie in the plalns of shlonia. They hail taken with thent lo their flight aif the mova. ble property they could carry ami the trensurus of the churchere. Nome bad paseed the I'yronees to join their klommen in Sepilima. ia; and others had hdden in the mountaln valieys of ther greut chaln-luarrier; whlle a considiemble number, varlously atated, had collected in the fintricate territory of the Asturlas and lu Galicla, where strength of puslition made ameads for the lark of numbers ani urganzathon, and where they conld find banare of making head agulnst the enemy. The country is ent up in alf directions by luaccessibie, sarped rocks, deep ravlues, tanjiedi thlekets. and uarrow gorges aud detiles.". This hand of refigees in the Astartas - the foriorn hopre of Clarlation Spaln - are sald to have found a kul. ?ant leader in oue Pelayo, whose origin and lilstory are so covared with myth that bome hastorisis eren questhon his reality: Inat whether by Pelayo or another prisce, the Asturlan Sphatarifs werc held together in thadr mountains und hegnu astruggle of resistance which ended anly, elght centurtes later. in the recovery of the entire peninsula from the Noors. Their place of retreat Fas snalmost inaccessihle cavern - the Cave of Covadonga - In attacking which the Moslems sufured a terrible aud memorathe repuise (A. I). battle will endure as long as thame slanif lase slugie late curva de Covadonga, as the craife slaif last; and la Curra de Covadonga, the cradie of the mon-srchy. whil be one of the proadest spots on the soll of the leninsula. . . This Ittle rising in the Asturias was the tudication of $:$ new life per Interests, and a headturer cond ": new life, Pelaro was the usher und the nepremetion. this Lew order, and the christian klugdom of whedt was ite flrst theatre. ovent was its first theatre. .. The battle of Cowalomga, in which it had Its origin, cleared the whole territory of the Astarias of every ther whole territory of the Asturias of every limenten sonder. The fame of its header, and the Shate thicingater. The fame of its header, and the ghat tifings that a safe retreat had been secnered. Girat Tred the namerous Christlans who were stili Lew spirit of partotism fast nesses, and infused a

Polay

In name.
With commendable prudenee, be tending himaelf with mecuring and mlowly ex. tendlug his mountain kiagdom by detecending canstrosily into the plains and ralleya. Ar. jacent territory, alonidonet by the Solems, was was apled and annexed; and thus the new naton was hade readr to met forth on its recongurring march. "- 11. Capuée, Conguas uf Epmin oy she Arah. Merars, bs. f, eh. 1-2 (e. 1)- - The aymall province thin preserved by frelayo [whose death In supposed to have ocriurnel A. (). Faij] rew Tnto the gernin of a kligidom called at difterent times that of Gallicla, Oyledo, anid leon. A comatant horler warfare thectunted buth maya, but on the whole to the alvantage of the Chissthass. Mennwhille to the cast other small atates were growlng up wifich developed Inta the kiag. fom of Navarre and the more linportaut realm fomous among the analie Plurtugat, the moat nomot recrut the spaniah kingions, are the nuos reculut In date. Portugal as yet wea unheary of, and Castlle was known ouly in a lime of caaties on the march betwern the Sara. cens and the klngfom of Leon."-E. A. Free. man, Jist, and chaqu"ete of the Nimucens, tret. 5 .
 clreumacribed to the that of hils min Favila, to bo clreunscribed to the Asturlan mountalas; but Alfousy I., the son-lu-law of Prelagio, ant cended the thrme after Furifa, amd he mom penetrated Intu (Gulleta up to the Douro, nud to Leon and Oid cuatlle...Cunleas, or C'ungas, was the capital of the Asturlasas. of sure the time of Pelagio. Prublu for her of Diforion I.] founded Orlede, to the "cst and thls Neate becance dater on the hend of tiw inonarchy." Whont n century iater. In the relke of the vigoronis bing Alfonso III. [A. II. 8 (16-4in], the city of Leom, the anclent lavio of the Romana, wns raited from It ruins, nail Garcha, the cldest son of Aifousn, ets. tabliflad hls court there. One of Garcha's broth. ern helld the goverumetot of the $\mathbf{A}$ aturias, and nnother one that of Gailein, "If not as separate klugdons, at feast witha a certalu degree of initeprudence. This equiveral situatlon of the two princes was, prechance, the reason why the king of Onledo changed bis titie to that of Leon, nod Which ajpears in the relgn of Garcin as the timt atcemat towaris dismumbering the Spaulsh Monarchy. friviloas to this, In the relgn of King Alfonso III. Navarre, niways relnellioas, had shakell off the Asturlin yoke." E . Me. Murdo. Hist. of hirtugat, intrul, itt. 3.

A. D, 756-1031. - The Caiiphate of Cordova. See Mahometas Conqueat and Expire: A. D. 750-1031.
A. D. $77^{8}$. - Charlemagne's conquenta.-The Invashinn of Spaln by Chariemagne, In Fi8, was Invited by a party ainong the saracens, disaf. tected towards the relgning Callph, at Cordova, who projosed to piace the northern Spanish fron ther ander the protection of the Christan monareh and acknowiedge lis suzeralnty. Ile passed with Prences with a groat army and adraneed with little serfous opjosition to Sarugossa. apparently oceupylng the country to the Ebro with Garrisons and adding it to his doninions us the Spanish March. At Baragossn he entorntered Frsistance and undertook a siege. the resuits of which are deft uncertain. It would seem that he Was called away, by threatening news from the northern part of his dominions, and left the conqueat incomplete. The return march of the army, through is pam of the Pyrenees, was made memorable oy the pertidious ambuscade and hopelea buttlo of Roncesvalles, whleh became immortalized in romance and song. It was in the country of the Gascons or Wascones (Basques) that this tragic erent occurred, and the amall. ants were not Baracens, as the story of the middle ages would have it, but the Gascons themelves, who, In league with their nelghbors of Aquitalne, hsd fought for their Independence so obstinately before, againat both Charlemagne and hls father. They suffered the Franks to pass into Spaln wlthout a show of enmity, but lald a trap for the return, In the narrow gorge called the Rosclds Valls - now Roncesvalles. The van of the army, led by the klng, went iorough In safety. The rear-guard, "oppressed with baggage, Ioltered slong the rocky and narrow pathway, and as It entered the solltary gap of Thayeta, from the lofty preclplces on elther side an unknown foe rolled suddenly down enormous rocks and trunks of uprooted trees. Instantly many of the troops were crushed to death, and the entlre pasarge was blockaded. . . The Franks who escaped the horrible slaughter were at once assalled with forks and plkes; their heary armor, which hal servel them so well in other Aghts, only encumbered them amid the bushes and bramliles of the rarine; and yet they fought wlith olstinate and fercions energy. Cheered on hy the prowess of Eghiharl, the myal seneschal, of Anselm, Count of the Palace of &oland, the warlen of the Marches of Britang. and of many other renowneqi chiefs, they cid not lesist till the last man hal fallen, coveren with wonnels and hlood. . . . How many perished In this fatal surprise was uerer told; but the event smote with profound effect upon the linaginntion of Europe; it was kept allive in a thousand shajes by tales and superstitions; heroic songs and storles carried the remembrance of it from generntion to generation; LRolanel and his companions, the Palailns of Karl, untimely slaln, became. In the Midile Ages, the types of chiralric valer and C'hristian lierolsm; unt, seven centuries after their only appearance in historr, the genius of Pulcl, Buiardo, and Ariosto still pre. served la imunortal vers the traditons of their glors.

Holand is but once mentioned ln autheutic hlstory, lut the rotance and songs, which make hin a nephew of Karl, compensate his memory for this neglect."-P. (iombiu, Ilist. of firnure: Ancicnt (rinul, rh. 16, with fint-note.

Alart is: J. I. Monlert, Ifiat. of Charle the Greut, lik. 2, ch. 5.-G. IP. 12. Jiunes, Hist. of Churlemetome. Md. N, -J. O'llagan, Nomg of Rohemid. -T. Bultinch, Iegemin of Chirlemighe-II. Cop-ch. 3 (r. 2 ).
A. D. 778-885( ${ }^{\text {P) }}$-R Rise of the kingdom of Navarre. Ne Sivallie: Ohitis of the King. DOM.
A. D. 2026-1230. -The rise of the kingdom of Castile. - . Inclent Cantabria, whieh the writers of the Ath contury usually termed Bardulla, and which. nt this perionl [the wth century] stretchent from the IBsenyan sen to the Duero, towarls the clowe of the sume century legan to be called Castella - duubthens from the numer. ons forts erected for the defence of the conntry by Alfonso I. [the shinl king of "vleds, or Leon]. ds the boundaries were gradually removed towarde the south, by the victories of the Chriatian, the came denomination was spplled to the new an well ss to the former conqueste and the whole continued subject to the same governor, who had subordinate governors dependent on hlm. Of the flat governors or counth, from the perlod of It conquest by that prince in 76n, to the relgn of Ordolo I. (i full century), not even the names are mentioned in the old chroniclers; the firit wo meet with is that of Count Rodrigo, who is known to have posesesed the dlgnlty at leant six years, - Fix. from 880 to 806." The last count of Castlif, Garcia Sanchez, who was the elghth of the line from Rodrigo, perished In hls youth hy ascemination (A. D. 1026), just at he was at the polnt of recelving the title of kligg from the soverelgn of Leon, to. gether wlth the hand of the latter's deughter. Castlle was then selzed by Sancho el Mayor, klag of Navarre, in right of hle queen, who was the elder slster of Garcis. He sasumed It to be a klngdom and associated the crown with hls own. On bla death, in 1035, he bequeathed this new kingdom of Castlie to one of his sons, Fernando, While leaving Navarre to another, and Aragon, then a lordshlp, to a thlrd. Fernando of Castlle, belng $\ln$ volved soon afterwards In war with the young klag of Leon, won the klagdom of the Intter $\ln$ a single hattle, whers the last of the older royal dynasty of Spain fell fighting like a vallant knight. The two kingdoms of Castle and beon were unlted under this prosperous kligg (see, also, Portcoal: Early history) until his death, A. D. 1065, when Castlle passed to Sancho, the eldest of hls sons, and Leon to Atfonso, the second. But Sancho soon ousted Alfonso, and Alfonso, hldligg his time, acquired both crowns ln 10\%2, when Sancho was assasslnated. It was this Alfonso who recovered the ancient capital clty, Tuledo, from the Muslums, nudl It was ln his reign that the famons Chl Cam. peador, Itodrigo de Blrar, performed hls fabulous explolts. The two kingdoms were kept ha unlon until 115\%, when they fell apart again and continued asunder until 1230 . At that time a lastlng unlon of Cnstile and Leon took place, under Fermando III., whom the church of liome lase canonlzell.-S. A. Dunliam, Hist. of s; win und Pirtugal, Bk. 8, sect. 2, ch. 1.
A. D. 1031-1086. - Petty and short-lived Moorish klagdoms.-' The decllne ant diswilution of the Mohammedan monarchy, or western caliphate, afforded the annhitlous local goverums throughout the Peninsula the opportunity for which they had long slghed - that of openily assertlng thelr lidependence of Corlova, ani] of assiming the title of kings. The wali of seville, Mohanmed len Ismall ben Ahld, . . . apprars to have been the first to assume the powirs of royalty; he declared war agalnst the seffelected king of Carmonn, Mohammed Inen ith. dalla, on whose citles, Carmona and Eclija, he had cast a covetons eye. The hrother of fiahia, Edris beu Ali, the sou of IIamud, governmi Maiaga with equal independence. Algeziras hatl also its soverelans. Elvlra and Granada obered Habus ben Maksan: Valencia had for ita king Ahlelasls Alul IIassan, Almeria hal Zohnir, uul IDenla hal Mugehid: hut these two pettr stuts were sion absorbed in the rislng sphere of Viaicncia. IIusca and Snr gosea were alon subjent to rulers, who thougl. ow to assume the tithe of kings were not the less independent, since their sway extended over most of Aragon. The coverelgn of thadajos, Abdalla Muarema ben Alas. tas, was the acknowledged hend of all the con federated governors of Algarve and Lumitania and Toledo was subject to the powerful lsmail Led Dyluun, who, like the ling of Seville, ecretly appired to the government of all Mohammedan Spaln."-8. A. Dunham, Hist. of Spain and Portugal, bk. 3, wet. 1, ch. 1 (0. 2). -" These petty kings were sometlines fightligg agalnst each other, and sometimes jolning hands io oppose the down-coming of Christions. until they were startled by a new lncurion from Africa which, in consolldatlig Isinn, threatened destruction to the existing Elngdoms by the absorption of every one of them in this African rortex. I refer to the coming of the Almo-ravldes."-H. Coppée, Conquest of Spain by the Arab. Moora, bk. 8, ch. 2 (c. 2).

8PAIN, 1081-1008.

SPAIN, 1084-1090.
A. D. 103-1090.- The Exploits of the Cid. -" Rodrigo biez de Bivar, who came of an old 1040. . . His name of 'EI Cid' others say -Mio Cid,' His name of 'El Cid.' the Lonl, or 'Mio Cld,' Which ls exactiy ' Monseigneur,' was given him first by the Moors, his own soldlers and subjects, and unlversaity allopted by all Spanlards from that day to this. Such a title is signidcant, not only of the relations between the two peoples, but of Rodrigo's position as at once 8 Moorish and a Spanish chief. 'El Cnmpeador.' the name hy which Rodrigo is alsodistinguished. means $\ln$ Spanish something, more special than 'champion. A 'campeador' Was a man who had fought and beaten the select tighting.man of the opposite slle. in the presence of the two armies. ... Hodrigo earnell the name, not at tue wrease oi any Moor but of a Chrlstlan, havlog when quite a gouth slain a Navarrese champion in a war between Castifie nud Navarre. The Fernando $I$., of the sear nccurs in a deced of Cliristian Recorery of Sikain, "-II. E. Watts, Chiristian Recorery if Siknin, ch. 3.-" Sancho III. of Navarre. who diel in 11134. had united sinuost all the Christian states of the Peniusula under one dominion, having married the ineiress of the country of Castlle, and obtainel the haml of the sister of Bermulez III. the last king of Leon, for his second son, Furdinnnel. The Astunias. Na him arre, and Aragon were ali subject to bim. und be was the first who assumed the title of king of Castile. To him the sovereign housers of Spain have looketi up as their conmon ancestor, for the male line of tife Gothic Kiars became extinct lo Bermulez Ill. D. Saucho cia hecame kine amongst his chiidren: D. Garcia hecame King of Navarre, D. Furdinand, King of Castife, and D. Ramlrez, King of Aragon. The Cid, who was a subject of I. Feriinanil, entered upon his miiitary carcer under that monarch's banners, where he displayed that marrelious strength and prollgious ralour. that constancr and croiness, whiefl raised him alhere aif the other warrlors of Europe. Bauy of the victories of Ferdinand and the cifl rere obtninchl orer the Hoors. . .. It is... in the reign of Ferdinand said to hnve romantic adrentures of the Cid are sail to have occurrel: his attachment to Ximena. the יnliy daughter of Count Gormaz: his duel father: and lastiv who had mortaily injured his ather: and lastiy his marriage with the daugh. The of the man who had perished by his sworl. The authentlclity of these poetical achlerements rests entlrely on the romances [of the Chronicle of the Cld]; but though thla brilliant atory is not to be found ln any historical document, yet the universal tradition of a nation seems to stamp it whth sufficient credic. The Cid was in hablts of the strictest friendehip with the eldest son of Fendlaand, D. Sancho, surnamed the 8trong, and the two warriors always combated side ay alde. During the lifetlme of the father, the Cid, in 1040, had rendered tributary the Musulman Emlr of Saragoesa. He defended that Moorish prince against the Aragonese, in 1063 : and when Sancho succeeded to the throne In 10es, he was placed, by the young Kling. at the head of all his armles. ...D. Sancho, who remalned friendship of a hern, and who a:ways remalned faithful to him, was, notwlthstanding. no less ambltious and unjust than his father Whose example he followed in endeavouring to deprive his brothers of thelr share of the paterna inheritance. To the valour of the Cld he owed his victories over D. Garcia, King of Galicla, and radel The King of Leon, whose states he inraded. The latter prince took refuge amongst the Moors, with the Klig of Toledo, who afforded him a generous assium. D. Sancho, after having also stripped his sisters of thelr Inheritance was slaln in 10:2, before Zamora, where the last of his sisters, I. Crraca, had fortified herseif. Alfonso VI., recalled from the Moors to ascend ac racant throne, after baving taken an onti, administered by the bands of the Cid. that he hrif been in no degree accessory to his brother's leavicr endeavoured to attach that celebrated leatier to his lnterests by promising him in mar ringe his own niece Ximena, whose mother wns sister-in-iaw to Ferllnand the Great and Bermudez III., the iast King of Leon. This mnrriage. of which historical crldence remanins, was cile hrated on the 19th of Juiy, 1074. The Cid was at that time neariy fiftryears of age, and had survived his first wife Xlimena, the daughter of Fount Gormaz. so celehrated in the Spanish and French tragedies. Belng soon afterwards de. of sitched on an embassy to the Moorish princes of Nevilie aud Cordora, the Cid assisted them in galining a great victory orer the King of Greu. ada: hit scarcely had the heat of the battle passed away when be restored all the prisoners whom he hai takeu. with arms in their hands, to libertr. By these constant acts of generosity he Won the hearts of his euemies as well as of his friends. IIC was admirell and respected both lis Minors andi C'iristlans. Ite had soon aftermarís arcasion to cialim the protection of the former: for Aifunso VI., instigated by those who were envions of the hero's success, banished him from Castily. The Cid upouticis oceasion took refuge with his frieud Ahmed ai Suktalir, King uf haricossa. by whom he was treated with bouni less conttlence and respect. He was appointed by him to the post of governor of his son, nnil Whs in fact intrustel wlith the whole adminiatm tion of the kingdom of Saragossa, during tife reign of Joseph Fii Muktamam, from 10ki losi, withlll whici period he gaineci many bri innt victories over the Christiaus of Aragun, Navarre, and Barcelona. Always generous to the ranquishel, he again gave liberty to the prisnners. Alfonen VI. notr began io regret that he had deprived himself of the servlces of the most raliant of his warriors; and be ing at. tackel by the redoubtable Joseph, the sorn of Teschfo, the Morablte, who had invaded 'spin with a new army of Moors from Africa, and hav. lug sustalned a defeat at Zalaka, on the 231 of Urtober, I087, he recalled the Cld to hls asslat. ance. That hero lmmedlately repalred to hls standand with 7,000 soldlers, levled at hls owu clarge; and for two years contlnued to comhat for hls ungrateful soverelgn; hut at leugth, pither hls generosity ln dismlasing his captires, or lals disoberllence to the orders of a prlace far Inferior to hlmself ln the knowledge of the art of war, drew upon hlm a second disgruce about the year 1090. Ile was agaln baulwhed; hls wlfe and son were imprisoned, and his gools were confiscated. It la at thls period that the poem commences."-J. C. L. S. de Slamondl, Litcrature of the Nouth of Eiurope, ch. 23 (r.2).

Also IN: Chronicle of the Cid, from the Spaninh, by R. Anuthey.-G. Tlcknor, Ilint of Spanish lit., period 1, ch. I (r. 1).
A. D. 1035-1258. -The Rlae of the Kingdom of Aragon.-The provlnce of Aragon, with Navarre to the west of It and Catalonia to the east, was Included In the Spanish March of Charlemagne. Navarre took the lead among these provinces In acqulring lndependence, and Aragon became for a time a lordshlp dependent on the Nararrese monarchy. "The Navarre of Suncho the Great [the same who gathered Cas. tlle among his possesslons, making it a klngdom, and who relgned from 970 to 1035] stretched some way beyond the Ehro; to the weat lt took Iu the ocean lands of Blscay and Gulpuzcon, with the origlual Castlle; to the east lt took ln Aragon, Rlpacurcla and Sobrarbe. . At the death of Sancho the Great [A. D. 1035] hls no. mentary domlulon hroke up. ... Out of the break-up of the dominlon of Sancho came the se parate klnglom of Navarre, and the new klng. doms of Castlle, Aragou, and Sobrarbe. Of these the two last were presently uulted, thus legluning the alvance of Aragon. . . . The power of Aragon grew, partly by conquests from the Mussulmaus, partly by union with the Freuch tiefs to the east. The first uulon betweeu the crown of Aragon and the connty of Barcelona [hy marrlage, 1181] led to the great growth of the power of Aragon on both sldes of the I'yrenees and even beyond the Ithone. Thls power was broken by the overthrow of Klng Pedro at Muret - [I'edro I1. of Aragon, who allied hlmself with the Albigenses - see Almi. (GEN:ES: A. 1). 1210-1213- and was defeated and slain by Slmon de Mlontfort, at Muret, near TouIouse, September 12, 1213]. But by the tiual armagement whleh freed Barcelona, Itonssillou, and Cerdagne, from all homage to France [.1. I). 1258], all trace of forelgn superiority passed away from Christlan Spaiu. The Independeut klugdom of Aragon stretched on both sides of the Pyrenecs, a faint reminder of the days of the West-Gothic kings."-E. A. Freeman, Hiat. Geag. of Fiuruge. ch. 12, sect. I.

Also is: S. A. I)unhain, IIjut. of Spain amd Portugal, bh. 3, set. 2, ch. 4.-See, also, ['rovesce: A. 1). 11\%-120\%.
A. D. 1086-1147.-Domination of the Almoravides. See Almonavides.
A. D. 1140.-Separation of Portugal from Castile.-Its erection into an Independent kingdom. See I'ontrasl: A. D. $1095-1325$.
A. D. 1146 -1332.-Invasion and dominion of the Almohades and the decisive battle of Tolosa. - The Iavasion of Spain by the Moorish Almohades (see Ammohadze), and thelr struggle for donilnlon wlth the Almoravides, producef, at the outset, great alarm In Christandom, but was productive in the end of many opportunltes for the adrancement of the Christian cause. In the year 1212 Pope Innocent III. Was moved lys su appeal from Alfonso VIII, of Castlle to call on all Christian people to give ald to thelr bretliten In Spaln, proclaiming a plenary Indulgenee to those who would take up arms in the holy cause. Thousands jolned the erusade thins preached. and flocked to the Castllan standards at Toledo. The chlef of the Almohades retorted on his alde by proclalming the Algilned or Holy War, nhleh summoned every Moslem ln hls domintons to the field. Thus the utmost frenzy of zeal was antmated on beth sldes, and the shock of confliet could hardly fall to be declsive, under the clrcumstauces. Substantlally It proved to le su, and the fate of Mahometanism In Spnin ls thonght to have been sealed on Las Nuvas de Tolona the Plalns of Tolosa - where the two great hosts came to thelr concounter $\ln \mathrm{July}, 1212$. The rout of the Boors was complete; "the pursult lusud tlll nightfall, and was only lmpeded ly the Slow lem corpses."- II. Coppee, Conquest of syuin by the Arab. Meorr, bk. 8, ch. 4 (r. 2).

12-15th Centuries. The old momarchical constitution. - The Castilian and Aragonese Cortes. See Cohter, Tue early Sipanim.
A. D. 12-16th Centuries.-Commercial importance and municipal freedom of Barcelona. Lee Barcelona: 1"-16tit centuries.
A. D. 1212-1238.-Progress of the arms of Castile, Leon, and Aragon.-Succession of the count of Champagne to the throne of Navarre. - Permanent union of the crowns of Leon and Castile. - The founding of the Moorish king. dom of Granada. - Castilian conquest of Cor-dova.-" Alfunso of Castlle dled two years after hls great victory [of 'las navas de Tulisu']. Ile Ioft hls crown to his ouly sun Henry, a bey ef cleven, and the regency to hls duugliter Berenguela, queen of Leon, who was separated, upon the almost alwnys availalile plea of tow mar cunsangulnity, from her husband Alfonso. Berenguela administered her delegated jower ably, but held It only three years: at the end of that tlme the young klog was acchlentally killed by a tlle fulling upon hls head. Br-renguela was her brother's natural helress; lut idwlaing lier only son, Fertiuand, whom she had uured and educated herself, she Ininuediately ronouncel ber claln to the throne lin hls fivour. . . a and cansed Ferilluaud III. to le acknow letged bing: Alfonso IX., however, long continued to disturb hls whe and son's goverument. The kly! of Aragon [l'edro 1I.] was recalled Immediately after the great battle to the concerns of his Freuch clomluious." where he jolned hls klusman, the connt of Tonlouse, as stated above, In rewisting the Albigensian crusude, and fell ( 1213 ) at Duret. - Whilst Iedro's uncles aud brothers were strug. gling for his surcesslon, the fueen downger obtained from the Pope no order to Sitmon de Montfort, the leader of the crasmle, to deliver ber son [whom the father hal glven up as bestage before lee resolved to commit himself to war whi the crusaders] luto her hauds. Ilaving thus got possession of the rlehtful heir. she promurd the assemblling of the Cortes of Aragon, to whom she preseuted the yonng klug, when nobles, clergy, and town deputles voluntarily swore aliegiance to him . This was the ornt time such an outh wha then in Aragot, the mont iimited of pre linges. it had been usual for the Aragonpre kings at their corouation to swear observance of the lawn, hut not to receive in return an oath of fidilty from the peopie. Henceforward this corresponding oath of flefity was reguiariy taken under the following form, celelirated for its aingularly boid ilberty. ' We, who are as good af you, make you our king to preserve our rigite; If not, not.' The Cataians followed the example of their Aragonese brethren in prociaiming James kiog; but many years ciapsed ere he coutd sufficiently allay the disorders excited by his ambitious uncles to prosecute the war against the Moors. At length the several kings of Cas. tile, Leon, Aragon, and Portugal, were reads, unconnectedly, to invade Mussuiman Spain, There Almohale princes and Mchammed aben IIud, a descendant of the kitugs of Saragossa, were contending for the soverelgnty, aud many waits were atruggling for independent royaity; ali far more intent upon gratifying their mutuai jeaiousles and enmities than upon resisting the common foe, with Whom, on the contrary, aff were willing to enter into alfiance in furtierance of their separate views. Under thicse circumstances, James of Aragon made himself master of the greater part of Vaiencia, and of the isiand of Majorca [and subsequently of Minorca]; Fer dinand of Castile cxtended iits conquests in Andafusia; Aifonso of Leon his in Estremadura; aad Sancho 11. of Portugal, who had iately succeeded to his father Alfonso II., acquired the city of Eivas. . . . Sancho of Navarre took no frirt in these wars. After the battie of 'las navas de Tolosa ' he quitted the career of arms, deroting himself wholly to the internal adminis. tration of his kingdom. He had un chilldren, neither had his eidest sister, the queen of Eng. Luai [Berengaria, wife of Richard C'ceur de Lioni], any. Thenee his youngest sister's son, Thibuit, count of Champagne, became his naturai heir. But Sancho. judging that the distance between Navarre and Champagne unfitted the two states fur being governed hy one prince, adopted lifs finsman, James of Aragon, and to him. as heir. the Savarrese clergy and uobility, and the connt of Chanpagne limaseif, prospeetively swore featt. Lpon Sanehos death, in 1234, however, the Navarrese, preferring independence under the fiaeal heir to an union with Aragon, entrented kius James to release them fron their ouths. Ile was then engaged in the conquest of Vucus. cia; and unwilifing, it may be hopedi. to turu his arnus from Mahometan enemies against his fetfow Chistians, he complied with the request, aud Thibait was prociainaed king of Navarre Thibalt neglected the wars carrieti on by his Spanioh hrother kings agaiust the Iahometans, tc accept the command of a crusade for the recovery of Jerusaiem. The expeditlon was unsuccessful, but the reputation of the feader did au" suffer. Upon his return, Thibatt fotiowed the example of his uncie in studying only to promute the itternai welfare of the country. He hatrininced the cultivation of the grape and the manufacture of wine into Navarre, with other agricuiturai improvementa. Thlizalt is nime hirwn as one of the most celebrated troubadours or pocts of has day. Prior to Thibait's accession, the conquering progreas of Leon and Castite had been temporarily interruptod. Alfonso of Leon died in 1230, and hy his will divided Leon and Galicia between two diaughters of his first marriage, wholly overiooking his son Ferdinand. Br negociation, however, and the influence which the acknowiedged wisdom and virtues of queen Berenguela appear to have given her over every one but her husband, the superior claims of Ferdinand were adimitted. The two infantas were amply eudowed, aud the crowns of Leon and Castile were thenceforward permanctily united. With power thus augmented, Ferdlnand III. renewed his invasion of the Mussutinan atates, about the time that Yaine, the last of the Aimohaie candidiates for sovereignty, died, bequeathing his pretensions to Johammed abu Aivdaliah alyen Alhamar, an enterprising leader, who, in the general confusion, had established himseif as king of Jaen, and was the sworn enemy of Yaile's chief rivai, Abdailah aben Ifud. Ferdinand invaded the dominions of Abdaltah, and Mohanmed took that opportunity of materialiy cniarging his own. After a few yeara of generai war, Alwiailiah aben Hud was assassinated by the partisans of the king of Jaen, and his hrother Alf, who succeeded to his pretensions, met a sinifiar fate. Molammed ben Aihamar was immediatcly received into the city of Granada, whith he made his capital: and thun, in 1238, founcied the kingdom of Granada, the fast bright relie of Moorish diomination in Spain, and the favourite scene of Spanish romance. Had Hohammed succeedeli to the Almohade sorereiguty in spaiu, aud his authority been acknowiedged by ali his Mussuiman countrymen, No abje and aetive a monarch might probahly have offered effective resistance to Christian conquest. But his dominions consistedi only of what is stifl ealied the kingdon of Granada, and a smail part of Andalusia. The remaining' Malametan portions of Audalasia. Vaienein, and Estremadura, as well as Murela and Aigarre swarmed with independeut 'walls' or kings James of Aragon completed the subjugation of The Merfar the following year. Cordove so long the Morrish eapitai, was taken by Ferdinand [1:33], with other places of iuferior uote. The Murcian priuces avolded invasion by freely of fering to become Castifiam vassals; and now the conquering trowps of Castlle nad Leon poured into the territorles of Monammed. The king of Gramadu, unsupported by his uatural allies, found himserf merinual to the contest, aud sulmitted to breome. ike his Murclan neighbours, the vassa! of Ferdinaud. In that eapacity be was compelferi to assist his Christiau liege ford in conquering Mussulman Sevilie."-M. M. Busk, Hiot. af Simit and Portugnt, ch. 7.

8PAIN, 1212-1238.

Laon and Cisatile. Gramada.

A1.so in: Chromicle of James I., King of Aragon. surnamed the Conqueror; tr. by J. Forster.
A. D. 1238-1273. - The Mooriah kingdom of Granada. - The building of the Athambra. M Hew era had begun iu the fortunes of the Momrs. Reft of their two magnificeut capitain at Cordova and Seville, they had gathered into tic extreme south, under the able and beneflicent rule of Aben-ai-Hamar, Who, though a trihutay to Custille, termed himself Suitan and Emir of the Faithfut, and is usuaily cailed King of Granada. Karnattah, as the Arabs liad named it, meant the Cream of the Weat. The Spaniards in fater times, diecelved hy the fikeness of the word to Granada, a jomegrauate, fancted it to have been theuce named, and took the fruit as its emblem.

The Liogdom was a mere fragment, and did not oren reach to the Stralts; for Algetira, the green laland, and its great fortremses, belonged to the Africana; and it had ln it olements of no small danger, contalning as it did the remnants of .o lews than thlrty two Arab and Moorish t.twee, many of them at deadly feud with one ancther, and ilvided by their nerer endlog natlonal enmitles. The two great tribes of Abencerrages, or wons of Zeragh, and the Zegris, or refugeen from Aragon, were destined to become the most fanous of these. The klag hlmself, Mohammed-Alous-Sald, wat of the old Arahlan tribe of A1 Hamar, hy whose name he la usually calied. He Was of the best old Arable type - prudent, just, moderate. cemperate, and active, and so upright as to be worthy to belong to this age of great kings, and hls plans for hla little klagdonn were favoured by the peace $\ln$ which hls Chris. than neightwours left him; while Alfonso $\mathbf{X}$. of Castllle was vainly endenvouring to become, not Emperor of Spaln alone, but Roman Emperor. The Almohldes of Algarve obeyed nelther Al. fonso nor Al Hamar, and the:- united to subdue them. Ten citles were surrecdered by the gor--roor on condlition that he should enjoy the estates of the Klag's Garlen at Seville, and the teuth of the oll of an ollveyarl. There was stlli a mar. gin of petty walis wio preferred a brief lnelependence to a secure tenure of existeuce as trit. utaries, and these one by one fell a prey to the Castllians, the Inlaalitants of thelr cities being expelled, and adding to the Granadine popula. tlon. Al Llamar recelved them kinilly, hit made them work vigormsly for thelr maintenanee. Every nonk of soil was in full cuitivation; the mountain-siles terraced whith vineyards; new mades of Irrigation invented; the breeds of horses and cattle carefuliy attended to; rewards Instlated for the beat farmers, shepheris, and artsans. The manufacture of silk and wiol was actlvely carried on, also leather-work and sword. cutlery. Ilospitals and homes for the sick and intirm were everywhere; and in the schonis of Grumada the rembants of the scholarship of Cordora und serilie a nlectel. Grauma itsplf stiond in the maldst ot in. aga, aromad wo hills. each crowned by a formess: Almayzin, su called ly the fusitives from laneza; and the dl llamra [ir Allanabra], or leed Fortress. The wail was extemied so ns th take in its constanty inereasius fuphiation, and the king thegam to renter the . 1 . hamia ome of the stromgest and minst bematiful phate ith existence. Thougls begm by AI Haanar it was motempleted for several getierations. eath alding to the unrivalied lematy of the Interior, for, as usua in Arahimarchitecture, the thun of hatary ref wails.

Mohammed Aben. At llamar dhen $1: 3: 3$, nud his son Mohammed 11 . foilwwid in his steps."-C. M. Yonge, The story

Alan is: W. Irving, The ilhembret.-1. C, Murphy, Ar, hem -latiquitira of symin.
A. D. 1248-1350.-The conquest of Seville. -The reigns of St. Ferdinand, Alfonso the Learned, and their three successorsin Castile. -sevilie, which hat hecome the secomel city of Musiem Spalu, its schoois and universities rivailing thexs of fordism, sharmil the fate of the latuer and surrendered to the Christians on the 22l of December, 1248 . "This was the achiteremeut of Klag Ferdinand III., under whom the crowns of Cantlle and Leon had become united. His territory exteaded from the Bay of Bliscay to the Guadalquiver, and from the borders in Portugal as far as Arrigion and Valencia. llis glory was great in the eatimatlon of his country. men for his conquests over the Moorm, and foir centuries afterwards he was canonized hy the Pope, and is now known as Salnt Ferdlunad.

Ferilanand IIved at the same time whth snother king who wat aleo canoulzed - Louls IX. of France, who became Balnt Louls.

- The two klags, in fact, were coudins, and the granimother of both of them was Eleanor, daughter of Henry II. of England.

The son of Saint Ferdland was Alfonto X., called 'El Sahio,' the learned, and not, as it is nometlmes tranalatel, 'the wise.' He certalaly was not very wlee, for he Ild an Immenee uumber of foollsh thlags; but he was such a strange man that it would be Interest$\operatorname{lng}$ to know more about him than It is easy to in. It was a periol when not only commerce and in. duatry hut ifterature and art were takling a new start in Europe - the tlme of Roger Bacon and Dante. Alfoneo loved his books, and dabhlen in science, and was really one of the learned men of his thase.

His mind was very naturaily disturbed by a gilmpse he had of belag emperor of Germany [or, to speak nccurntely, of the Holy Itoman Emplre]. . . The dignlty was elective," and Alfonso became the cauddate of oue purty among the German electors; but he dle nut on. tain the digaity (eee Geryanz: A. D. 12:n12is). "Fealinand de la Cerda, the son anil leir of Alfonso, dled during the llfetlme of his father, aud a difticulty arose about the successlon whith extended over a long tlme, $A$ Cortes was as. sembled to decide the question, and it was agreed that Suncho, hrother to Ferdinand de is Cerin, shonld he heir to the crown, to the excluslon of the childrea of Ferllnadd, gramichilidren "f Alfonso. This declalon displeased the king of Friuce," who was the uncle of the chilitirn sti aside. Alfonso " declared In favor of his san suncho, and came near havlng a war with Fraure in consequence." Yet Sancho, soon af terwarls. was perinated to rebel against his father, and the latter was reduced to sore straits, having no nllies anong his nelghbors except the khit of Morocen. -At last the goaded king assembied his few remaining allherents in seville, mid, in a sulemu net, nut oniy dlsiniterited hiss relui sun simeio, but called down maledictions on his lumul. In the sane act he lnstinted his gramsuns, the infanter de la Cerila, aa hits heirs, and after theun, in clefantt of lasne, the bime of France." But Sancho fell ill after this, und the fondiness of his oid father revivel with sach intetsity that he sickened of anxiety and riff. "Sanchorecovered and was scon as weli as ever: but the king grew worse, aul sonn died $[1:-f]$. fuil of grief and affection for has son. Ild hat not, however, revoken his will. Nokaly minded the will, mil Sinucho was proclaimed kins. Ile reigned. and his son and grandson reigued after him." The son was Ferlinaml IV., who rame tot the throne in 129.; the grandson was Mfonso XI., who followed him $\ln 1312$. The latter was succeeded In 13.00 hy hls son Pedro, or Peter, surnameri the Cruel, and quite eminent under that siniter designation, especially through the ninfortunate connection of the English Biact Prince with his later evll fortunes.-E. E. and 8. Hale, The story of Spuin, ch. 18.
A. D. $1873-8460$. T The oiom crumbilig of the Moorlah kingdom of Granada. - The founder of the kiagdom of Gramada, Aben-Ailiamar, or Ibnud.ahmar, died in 1278. He was succeeded by his son, Abú A balitilab, known as Hohammed II. Obeying his father's injunctions, he calied upon Yahub, the Suitan of the Beni Miernes at Fez, to come to his ald, and captured Aigeciras, to serve at a receptaele and magazine Por these African alifes. Ho aino presented Tarifa to Ya' $\mathrm{i}^{\circ} \mathrm{b}$. The two allied forces then went out to meet Nufto de Lara with the Chris. than frontier troops, and souted bim. But Mohammed was moon prevalied upon by his fearis to renew be Chrintian alifance; and the Chriatian troope, thus freed from one enemy, coon wrented Aigeçira, Tarlfa [1291]. Ronda, and other towna, from the Ben Brerines, who were, ali but a amali remnant, driven beek, into Arrica.
Mohammed II. died in 1802, and was succeeded by a greater king, Mohammed III., another Abú Abdliiah, is, dethroned by a revoit of bls brother, Nasr; but when, in 1312, Nasr in turn Was forced to abdicate, be was succeeded by Is. mas'il Abu- 1 . Waied, after whom came Mohammed IV., in 1818. Meantime the Chriatian monarchs were aiwars preseing the Moorlish frontier. In 1509. Ferdinand IV. of Catile succeeded in tak. iag Gibraitar, while the troops of Aragon iesieged Aimeria, and thus the efrcle was ever nsrrowing, but not without bioody dispute. When Don Pedro, Infante of Castie, made his great eflor , gainst Granade in 1819, be was wofuily defeated in the battif of Elvira, and inis rich eamp despolied by the Moors. Mohnmmedi 1V. succeeded in retaking Gihraitar from the Christians [or, rather, according to Condé, it was tsken in 1831 by Mobammed's aliy, the king of Fez, to whom Johammed was forced to cede it].

Ife was assassinated by his African ailles, and succeeded by bis hrother Yúsuf iu 1333 . Prompted purely by self-interest, Abu-i-has, another feader, with 60,000 men, beside the contingent from Grabada, encountered tice Chitis tians near Tarifa in the year 1340, andi was de feated with immense fioss [in the hattie of the Guadaceilto or the Saiado]. Yusuf was assansin. ated by a madman in 1954, and was sueceeted by Miohammed V. . Driven from his throne hy ${ }^{5}$ revolt of his baif hrother Isma'ii, he tirst theid for inis life to Guadis, and then to Africu, in the year 1359. And aif these intestine cyuarcis were playing into the Christians' hauds. Isma'ii, the usurper, beid the nominai power less thana a year, Then he was dethroned audi put to deuti.. ilis zucceasor, Mohammed VI., surrouuded hy dithculties, eame to the strauge deterninatiou to place himseif and his kingdom under the protec:tiuu of that King Pedro of Castile witom history has named 'ei eruei,' hut whom his adherents calieni 'ef justiclero,' the doer of justice. The Castiian king vindicated his claim to the his. toric titie by putting Mohammed to deatih, and stiniag the evulitiese treasures which he and the chilefs who composed his sulte brought with them.' To the throne, thus once more vacant by assassination, Mohammeti V. returned, and ruied a seond time, from 1362 to $1301 . \ldots$ Then cane the reigns of Yúsu! II and Mohammed Dit, uueventiul, except that, in the words of the Arahian clirunicier, the Mohammedan empire atili went on decaying, until it became an easy prey to the infdel, who surrounded it on evers mide, like a pack of bungry wolvea.' Many par. tents of ruin were dispiayed, and the pubilic mina Was already contetuplating the entire success of the Cliristians" A century of confused struggien ensued, in tite course of which Gibraitar wa severai times besiegeif by the Chrlatiana, and was Anaily taken by the Duke of Medias Sidonia in 1460. Utiher strungboids of tite Monre feli, one by one, and they "were being more and more restricted to the fr fittie kingdum of Granadia, and the Christians wrere streagthening to disiodge and expei them."-11. Cuppee, Hist. of the Coirgueat of Simin by the Arab- Momer, ok. 8. ch. 5 (r. 2).
Almo is: J. A. Condé, Iliot. if the Dhominion of the Arube in Spuin, pt. 4, ch. $0-33$.
(Arazon): A. D. 1283-s 300.-Acquitition of Sicliy by King Peter, -It passes as a aeparate kingdom to his younger son. Dee Italy (Soctuers): A. D. 12ge-1300).
A. D. $3366-8369$. Pedre the Cruel of Castio and the iavasion of the Engioh Biack Prince. - ${ }^{\text {P }}$ Pedro the Cruei, King of Castite ut this time ( $1350-1360$ ), had earned his titie hy a series of murders, which dated from the time ine was aixteen years oid, and comprised his wife, hits stepmother, two of iifs half brotiera, and a great number of the ehief nohies of his kingdom. He Was on bad terms with the pope, fur he was the friend of Moors and Jews. aud had piundered hishops and monasteries; he was hated in ilg eourt of France, for hils murdered queen was the king's enusin. Biancine de Bourbon; he was at war with the King of Armgon. Inssiguted by this monarci and hy the King of Navarre, the eidest of Pedro's haif.hrothers, Don Henry of Trastamer., wio bad been serving for some time With the Free Compauinus in Languedioc, conceived the iflea of uniting them in a prand centerprise against the kingiom of Castifle. Ciaries F. [of France] approved the project, and lent money and his bext captain, Du Guescilin: Pope Crban V, contributed his hlessing and money; aud the Free Lances cageriy combriceti a schenie whici promised them tike plunder of a new country," The experition "succeeded without binoisheri. The people rose to weicome it, and Don Periro was forced to escape through Portugai, and take shif hastiiy at Corunaa. Don dieury whs crowned in hifs palace at Burgos (Airil 1:300). In inis distress fhn J'edro appited to the Jrince of Waies [the Biack Prince, then howifug the goverument of Aquitaine] for support. There was no reasou winy Eugland or Aquitaine should be mixed up iu Spanisil poditics. Both countries required rest after an ex. hausting war. . ilut Pediro was a skilfui diplumatist. lie bribed the I'rince of Waies hy a prombse to cede the province of Blscay." With the eonsent of his father. King Edward III. of Engiaud. the Priuce took up tine cause of the oniius Don Pedro, and feri an army of ?4.0nt inorse, besides prest numbers of urehers, finto Spala (A. D 1306). At the decisive hatite of Ararette the Spaniards and their uliies were overwheimingly defeated, Du Guesclin was taken prisouer, ion llenry thed, and Pediro was relnstated on the Castilian throne. "Tisu eame disappointment. The priuce demanded performauce of the promisa Sha l'edru had unde, and proposed to stay in Spaiu tiil they were acquitted.

For some months Edward vainig awisted the performanee of his aily's promists. Then, as hia troops were wasting away with dysentery and other dicemses caused by the utrange cllmate, till It was sald scarcely a nfth remained allve, Edwand recolved to remove into Agultalne, which Don Ileary wis attucklog, and was glas to find that the pamees of the Pyrenees were left open to hlan by the Klagn of Arragon and Navarre (Aupust 1887). reatite of Eawarl's miechlevous pullicy iown be. camue evilent. All be bad achleverl In Spaln Wuv almost ! nstantly uadone by Don lleary, who cromed $t_{0}$., Pyrences a few weeks only after Eilwand bul left Apaln (Sept. 1367) recovered his Elagdoni ln the courme of the next year, and captured nad billed lan Perlou a little later (March 1360). The whole power o! Castlle, which was far from leing contempilhle at sea. was then thrown Into the scale agalnet England." -C. II. Pearmon, Eing. Mist. in the Fourtereth Century, eh. &
A Lso ix: J. Frolseart, Chronielea (tr. Dy Johnew), sk. 1, ch. 230-245.-P. Merime, /fiet. of Jeter the Crurl, r. ©, ch. i-11.-Ster, also, France: A. D. $1360-1380$ )
A. D. 1368-8479,-Castlle under the House of Trastamere,- Discord and clvll war. - Trlumph of Queen Isabelia.-The Castllian dynasty in Xragon.- Marriage of Isabella and Ferdinand. - A more fortunate period began [in (instle] with the sccession of Ilenry [of Trastamare, or Ileary II.]. 11/s own relgn was harilly dlsturled by any relecilion; end though his soccessors, John I. [1379] and lleary 111. [1390)], were not altogether no unmolested, esprecially the latter, who anceniled the throae In his minarity, yet the tronbles of thelr time were slight. in comparison with those formerly ex. clted by the houses of Lara and llaro, leith of which were now happlly extinct. Tbough Heury 11. 's llegithuary left film no thtle but popolar choice, his youen was sole representallve of the Cerilas, the offrypring of Snacho 1 V .'s could the worse eiter brutier. $\qquad$ To klagilom could lee worse prepared to mect the dlaorilers of a mlnority than ('astile, and In nune illit the clrcumstances so froipuently recar. Joha 11 . Wias but formeen months ald at his ncceasion [ 141 x$\}$ ]; and but for the dislaterestedness of his ubcle Ferlinand, the nohbity wombl have le'en locdlued to avert the danger by placlag that irince upon the throne. In this instance, however. Ciastile sintered lems Pruat faction doring the infancy of ${ }^{\prime} \cdots{ }^{-r}$ wevereign thon lu his maturity. The queen first juinaly with Ferilnanal, and. ager, at after his accession to the crown of Arago unlnistered the gorernment witb crellt. (a external aftairs thrlr reluns were not winc is consldered as glorions. They were generally at peace with Aragon and Granala, but one memorable defea. by the Portognose at Aljubarrota [August 14. 1385] llingrac's the anasis of lobn I., whowe caase [attompting the conquest of l'orthgnl] was as unjust as hls armes were uasnccessful. This comparatlrely gohlen periol ceaseg at the ma jority of John 11 . Ills relgn was tiled up by a series of consplracles and elvil wars, healed by Hls coualns John and lleury, tive infants of Aragon, who enjoyed very extenslve territories in Castle, by the testament of thelr father Ferll. unnl. Thelr brother the kling of Aragon frequently lent the asslstance of his arms. These colapiracies were all ostensihly directed ggalast the favourite of John II., Alvaro de Luun, who retained for 85 years an absolute control over hls fechle maater.
His rate is anong the memorable lesmans of history, After a llfe of troubles endured for the make of thls favonrite, cometimes fugitive, cometlmes a pritonrr, bls son hewillig rebellions agalont blm, Jol n II. sudiealy yleldetl to an fatrigue of thie pa ace, and arlopted sentlments of diallee tow arim the man he had so long foved. Alven de Lut a was brotght to aummary trial and le. hes lel; ins entates were confisatel. Ile mot hle death wltb the lotrepldity of Stmafunl, to Whom he seems to have borue some reaembluace In character. John II. did not long survlsi hiu minlster dylng $\ln 145$, after a reign that way bu consldered as inglorious, compared with any except that of his suicesant. If the father was not respectel, the onn feli completely latis cous. tempt. Ile hal been governed by Pacheco, nati. gule of Vlllena, a implicity os John lyy Avap: de Luna. Thi intluence lated for mone time afterwards. Hut the klag lnclining to transfer Ifls contaleace to the gueen, Joanam of P'ortagal, and to one lkertrand de Cueva, upon whom ervmmon fame had tixed as her paramour, a powefful confederacy of dlanffected nobles was fomus againat the royal authortiy.

Tbey depmand Ifeury in an assembly of thelr factlon at Arila with a cort of theatical pageautry whlch has often been described.

The confederates st up Alfonso, the kligg' bruther, mal a clvil wirf of oome duration ensued, in wblch they las the support of Aragon. The queen of Canille himat thit tlme borne daughter, whom the enemins of Ifenry IV., and ladecel no small part uf his adherents, were cletermined to treat as spurims. Accordingly, after the death of Alfonso. his sister lsabel was conaldered as heiress of the kinglom. . . . A voliling the orllum of a contest with her brother, lanbel agreal to atruts by whlel the successlon was absolutely mettlei uipun her [1489]. Tbls arrangement was hut lomg afterwinnls followed by the molon of that prine with Fenlinand, son of the kligg of Aragon. This marringe was by no means acceptable lo n $1^{\text {natt }}$ of the Castlllan ollgarchy, who bal preferntl. connexion with Portugal. And as llary had never lust alght of the lateresta of one whim the consldered, or pretended to consitler, is his daughter, be took the first opportunity of ravole lng his forced disposition of the crown and restur Ing the direct ilne of succession in faveur of the princess Jonnna. E'pon bis death, In lit. the right was to be declded by arms. Joanna disi on ber slde the common preamptions of law, the testamentary dlsposition of the late klug, the support of Alfonto king of Portugai, to whom she was betrothed, and of severai conshlerable lembers among the uobllity. For 1sabella Were the general bellef of Joanan's Iitegitimucy, the assistance of Aragon, the adherence of a ma. jority both among the nobles and peoplr, und, taore than ail, the reputation of ablity whint both she and her husband had descriedly ac. quired. Tbe scale was, however, pretty equally balancel, till the klag of Portugal having bern defeated at Toro ln 1476, Joanna's party ifisor. crel thelr laabilty to prosectite the war by themsedves, nind successlvely made tbelr submission to Ferilnand and Isabeila." Ferdinanil of Aragon, by whome marrlage with Iabella of Caspile the two kingdoms became practically united. was blmaelf of Castllian dencent, belng the graudsoa of that magnanlmous Ferdinand who has beea loublla.

Rrilimutad nod

SPAIN, $1470-1402$.

mentioned above, as the uncic and joint guarifinn of John II. of Cantile. In 1410, an the death of King Martin. the sight of succesalon to the throne of Aragon had been in dispute, mad Fenilnand wat obe of several clalmanta. Inateml of resort. Ing to arms, the conteniling parties were whely permumied to suhmit the question to apecla trlbunal, compramel of three Aragonew, three Catalang, and three Valencians. "A month wan pasead in hearing argumenty; a secomi wan al. otted to conaidering them; and at the expiratlou of the jrescribel time it was announced to the people.. that Ferifinand of Casilie hal as. ernited the throne. In this decislon it lo impos. shie not to suspect that the juiges were swayed rather by poiltic considerations than a striet aense of hermiftary right. It was therefore hy nu meana universaily popular, eupectally in Catalonía.

Ferilinand however was wcil re. crived in Aragon.

Perdinnule succersor wa bif son Alfoneo V., more distinguished in the history of Italy than of Spaln. For all the latter years uf his life he never quitted the king. dom that he hat ucyuired hy hls arms [see Iraty: A. D. $1412-1+4 i] ;$ and, enchanted hy the deli. ciots alr of Naphes. intrusted the government of bis patrimonial territories to the care of a hrother anil an heir. John II., upon whom they devilverl by the death of Affonso whthout legitf. mate proyeny, had been engaged during his jouth in the turlufent revolutions of Castlie, ns the heal of astrong party that opposerl the domination of Alvaro de Luna. By marriuge with the heiress of Navarre he was entitled, accorting in the nsage of thome times, to assume tise tifle of king, and adninistration of government, dur. lag her ilfe. But inls amistious retention of power stili longer promuced events willeh are the chicf stain on his memory. Charies, prince of lana, Was, by the constitution of Nararre, enif ito sueceed hle nuther [1442]. Nhe hai
:cif him In her testament not to asmame ti conment was aifory wish father's conment. That conwent was aiways whhhcil. The prince rafsed What we ought not to call a rebeilion; but was tuade prisoner A fier a fife of perpetual oppression. chlety passed in exile or captivity, the priuce of Viana dled in Catalonia [if81], at a montent when that province was in open fusur. rection upon his account. Though it hardly seunts that the Catalans had any more generil proverations. they persevered for mure than ten years [unti] the capltulation of Barcelona, after s foug siege, in $14^{2} 2$ ] with inveterate obstinacy In their rebelfion, offering the soveruignty tirst to 5 jrinee of Portugal, and afterwards to tlegnier duke of Anjou, who was dewtined to mus his life in unsuecessful competitun for kingdoms." Furdianad, who married Isabelia of Castile, was Siana and hulf-hrother of prince Charles of throne, of succeeded his father. John II., on the throne of Aragon, in 14i0.- II. Ilaliam, The Viklle .lges, eh. 4 (e. 2).
Alas) Is: W. II. Prescott, Ilist of the Reign of Firdindind and Fabelhe, pt. 1, ch. 1-5.- See, alsu. Nisarre: A. D. 1442-1521.
A. D. $145^{8 .}$ - Separation of the crown of Napies from those of Aragon and Sicily. See Italy: A. D. 1447-1480.
A. D. 1476-1492, - The lest atrageie of the Granada. Fall of the city and lingdom of Wrans ulready " The days of the Moorish Elagdom wire ulready numbered when, in 1406, Aboul Harem succeeded Iamael; but the diaturbaner: an Chatilie emboldeged him, and when, in i+it, the reguiar demand for trifute wis male, he answered: 'Those who co!ned gold for you are dead. Nothing ls male at Granada fou the Christians hut sworl-hlules and lanee polnt.. Mon was the last prociamation of war from the plonfs. Even the Imaums diampproved, and preached in the mosque of Granada. 'Wne to they said: "the suing ${ }^{\prime}$ " "The end is come. they salid 'the ruias wilt faif on our heada is Nevertheless, Aboul Incem surprised the Ara. gonewe efty of Zainara with 60,000 fohahitante. davery; hut hif the sword or sold them into parery; hut hy was nut welcomed, evil was preffeted, and he became more and more hated Then be put four of the Abcncerrages to death. The King and queen [Perdinand, or Fernando nad Ieabelia] now began to prepare the whole to trength of their kingulum for a flan effort, not to be reinxed till Spain should bo wholly a Chris than hand. become Din Rodrigo Ponce de Leon Who had become Maryula of Cadiz, maife aud leb night attack upon Alhania, or efght tagets Irom Granada, and though the inhabi. tants lought from atreet to street be mastered it.

Athama was terrihle loss to the Jowors, and was lewalled in the inallad, Ay de me Ai lhma. which we mured the bearts of the people that it was forhidien to be aung in the streets of Grunada. It has been trans, ited by Byron, who has fin fact unfted two ballads. . Alhania had once before been taken by St. Fernando, but could not then be kept, and a counefj was held hy the 'Reyes Catolicos' [Ferdinand und Isnbeina in which it was declared that it woulif take 5.000 mules hurthen of provislons sent sev. eraf times a year, to support a garrison thus in sifit of the the enemys country. The high apirit of the queen, however, carried the day. she deciared that the right thing to do was to take loja to support Athana, and, after causfug the three chief nosgues to be purified as C'hrlsthan churches, she stralned every ertort [148:] to equip an army with which Feraando was to betlege Loja. On the day hefore he met out Isabel giave birth to twins - one dead, the other a daugh. ter: and this was viereed asan til omen.

Ali Fen, one of the bravest of the Moors, defeated loss of his baggage. him to retreat with the veuted proggage. Aboul Hacem was prestruggies of the women in his harem. Ilis fave olutite wife was a Christian hy hirth, named Iva. bel da wife was a Christian hy hirth, aamed lanbel de Solis, the daughter of the Alcayde of Bed. mar; int she had become renegade, and was commoniy called Zoraya, or the llorning Star. Chifiliss herself, she was rebemently set on the prumotion of Abou-Abd-Allah, son of another Wife, Ayescha, wio is generally known by the Spanish contraction of his name. Boabdil; also In Armbie as $A 1 Z_{\text {aquir, the little, and in Spanish }}$ as 'ef lhey Chleo." Such disaffection was rnised that Abouf Ilacem was forced to return home, where he imprisoned Ayescha and her son: hut they let themseives down from the window with a rope iwlsted of the vells of the Suitana' women, and, escaping to the palace or dibaycin. there held out gainst him; supporten hy the Abencerrages. The Legris held hy Aboul Ha cem, and the streets of Granada ran red with the fifood shed hy the two lactlons ilij, in 1482 , while the elder Eing was gone to relieve Loja, Ing propar cuands and santoom, the priocipal Clariatian force retired to Condova, to make ready for the aprtag. Ei Zagal had returaud from Atrice, and whin now Agbeing in the Chrla. than ranka. It was an fmpoming army which was reviewed by Ferllianal on the $20 t h$ of April. 149t, In the beautifui Vega, whout ofx miles from the elty of Oramadn; the force connified of 10,000 horne end to,000 foot, resuly to take $\mid \mathrm{mmp}$. thon In the fian diege.

ft was no pmer of the spanish klog's purpone to manilt the Mare

ITe lald blo siege in the lega, bust usil hith mope in ievastatiag the murroundilng country, tinkite primonern and capsuring sutte.
Menntime the Chifatlan eamp griw like a city and when Queen Isalelin catie with leer trala of beauty and prace, it was also a courre cily lo miniature." fa July, an acelidental are ileatriyed the while encamument, and roumed great hipes among the Dtoors. But a city of Woanlirhibl the plous queet called Santia Fie - the Hhly Faith) moun texik the place of the tents. and "the mannentary chathu of the Moximgave way be profounif depremaion, and then husuced thein th capluylate. The last hume had lurleed atruck on the great horsologe of blatory; and an the isth of November the aruiatice wav matmaneyl fig making a treaty of peace and wecupmucy."-11 Conpeés. llist. of the conquest of Syntín by tha Arus. Vimers, bk. 8, eh. 8 (r. 2)--After barge dliscusston on both shides, the terois ef capleula. thon were deanlively metthed.

The fababl tants of Granada were to retaln juceresolota of their monques, with the frue "sercise of their refighon, with all its peculhar reglem and core. monles; they were to lxe judged hive their uwa laws, under thelr own calls of tatalotraw, sub) ject to the general control of the (axe hat guy.
 cleut usages, mann+rs, langmage, wald |rwas 10 the protectent In the fill enjoymmt ? the ir property, with the risht of dispwil. ; it is where they woshld; and to the furnisheol with veserls for the conveyance of suth th chang witula three yeare to pase lato Arwas si, heacler enxce were to the lanmonel than then notue whatever brofore the expirathon of lape over a specthed torritory tu the Alpumarras fus which he was to du homage th the ( silian crow it. . . Thee city was to the surfemberm in owir to ghinular dimarbances in (imamath the surs oder was uctually made one the of of Whed in mese of the lattles of his kin-unt W: 11 ITrescon, Hiat of the hirigh er fi fhernd anal ladella, if. Is of limemthe

A. D. 1476-1498. - Tiue reorganizstion of the Hermandad, of Holy Brotherhood, in Castile.

A. I 481-1525. - Entablishment and oro ganiza... $n$ of the "Spanish Inquisition. -lis horsible work. See liqutinitu: 1 II ! tusu.
A. D. 1492.-Expulsion of the Jew's xe Jews: - -15th Cestrime.

BPAIN, [402-1633.

A wheo Buryundian Wombog.

SPAIN, 1400-1817.

A. D. 1403-1533-Discovery of Amertca. Firat royacon, colcolsatione and coaguepte. Aee Aymuca: A. D. 1409, 1498-1400, and after. A. D. 14ps-The Papal graat of the Now World, see Amentca; A. D. 1493.
Alinaded girtition Treaty of Tordenilles.Amoaded partition of the Now World with Pontural. Soo America: A. D. 1494.
Gerimary and the Pope whth Naples, Veaice, of Frames. ad the Pope cealact Charlee VIII. of France. Bee Italy: A. ID. 14941406.
A. D. 8496 1517, Marriage of the Infanta Jeanma to the Auetro-Burgundian Arehdulat Phillp. - Blith of thelr som Charloe, the holr of many crowns.: juanlty of Joamar.-Death of Quena Isabella-Resency of Fordianac. Ho escond marriace and hls death. - Accesiom of Charles, the firat of the Amotro-Spanlah djamety, - Jonnna, mecond daughter of Fer. diuand and Imbelia, was married in 1408 on "the and ene rimip, son of the eminesor Saximilian Burguadr] of in Hight of hla muther [Mary of Burguadr], of the Low Countries The firat frult of the marriage wan the celehrated Charles V., bora at Ohent, February 24th. 1500 , whowe birth was no cooner announced to Queen Inabella tian she predicterl that to this infant would one dar deacend the rich lalieritance of the spanith momarcliy. The premature denth of the feir apjment, Prince Miguel, not hutiz after [and] almon ot ite yueen of Portugal, the elder daug er nf Isabella and Ferlinand]. preparel the way for thls evert by devol ving the succemalon on Juma Charles mother. From that moment the wos efrigns were preseln In thelr entreatles that the grchluluke and his wafe woulal vialt Spaln. In the fatzer part of 1501, Phlipp and Joanna, atemded by aumemus sulte of Flemish cour 14ers, set out on their juarmey," passing throumeh Frabce and being royally entertatied on tire way. In Spaln, they tirst recelved the uniral oath of fealty from the Castllian corter, and then were solemnly recognized by the four arms of Aragon an succeamory to the crown. in defaid of mane lesme of King Ferdinand. The clre'inu. oface is memorable as afforing the tirst exam fo of the parliamentary ree zultion of a 5 malc Letr apparent In Aragonese hutory. In it all the lumons on liberally lavisheri on fhum, his bown mecretly swelled with diwe:ctent. fom atill further by his fol. wers, 4 to pressen, him to usten his return to flauler fhere the fre suid sucilal manners of the pe ite wroc mus more congenlal to their tastes I in the resern Fuan stately ceremonalal of the spa cotec -irt Fersinami and Isabella saw with megret

Crive
The Exheil with mortifcation his i livereare ti - 1 , whocould hoast few pre dittruct ins - who wooled the affectlon- © Ser hushati thy aharuatons of excestive finion and lrt able jealonsy." Agalnat the rem. ant axt of klag Wioter of his wife, Pio os. for Flamers fu mat iatlog on the we! itt iv with hanis XII. Whits arranged for il. nate fiager of the Infant Charles with pr $\mathrm{p}^{\text {i }}$ ( autic of trance - a name fing whlch at curre: The unhappy Jo anmit wom $-=$ te:t:- Thangeri iu the impo she gar birb io ther the tuht ul March, + 44 and, and the nest apring she Jolned ber hue. band In Flandern, bui only to be wome treated by him than before. Qucen Imbellim, already decilining in bealth. was deepis afrected by tho news of her daughter's unhapplaes and increme. Ing diturtance $A$ miad, and on the gath of Norember, 1304, the ilied. By her will, she settled the crown of Curlite on the Infanta Joanna as "queell proprletor," and the archduke Phillip as (who wana hencelo the appolnted King Ferdlnand (Who wan benceforth king In Arapurn, but not In Canclle), to be sole regent of Castle, In the erent fattere abmence or Incapaclty of Joanna, until the On the son Charlem should attaln his majorty. On the day of the quecu's death Fercluand redignel the rrown of Caatlie, whelh he hall worn the accestulon, only, and caused to be proclaluned the accesylon of Jonna and Mhlilp to the Caslillan throne. "The king inf Aragon then pubervor of Castile itie of ailmilalertutor or gov. ermor of Cantile, as prorlided by the queen's testament." Ife next convenerla cortes at Toro, In January, 1305 , whideh approved aonl ralified of provioinns of the will aud "wok the ouths of allegiance to Jumana as jueen and lady proprevers, and to lthilp as her husband. They then determinenl that the exifency contemplaterl exlstent ind int, of iasa is incmpacity, actually existey, and proceeded to teader their homage to King Ferdiuand, as the lawful governor of the reaim lin her nanie." These arrangements were unsitisfactory to mauy of the Cantilts. mobles Who appned! a currewpouldence wlth $t$ uilip, in the Netherlame, and permuaded hima "to assert hils pretensient to undlylided suprethacy ln ('us. tllc." "ppusition to Ferdland's Fencr In creasul, ant it wan fomenterl not on! reacr ln nut hif friewts, hut by the Lhag France, Loni4 Xl. To placnte the latter curasy, Ferdimatid whu it In marrlage a uloce of the French klng. of. iibe. dauglifer of Jean de Folx, and upgeriate. treaty, ylgoed at BMis, Octoler 19 , lial. in which be realgned his clatime on Naples (1) hile intendend lorde and her hein. Le uis was nowe ditacler ! Prom the literests of Plinip, and through her: sivin to the arcluduke to pass through hif nougdom. But Ferdianad, astute as he was, all. inf himacle to be dectived by hls son-Ju-law, " is reed to a compromise, know as the concord of Namamanca, which provide for the goveromeut of Castlie In tho joint namee of Ferdinald, Milijp, aud Jmuma, while, at the hls wife and was secrelly $1, r$, ing to transfer his wife and lilaself to Sjuin ty nea. On the tirst attempt they werc driven to Eagland by a slorn: but In Ajril, 1500, Phutp aud Joanna laudel at Coruia, lu spala, uns In June Ferdl. anad was forcel to algn and swear to an agree ment " by whlich hic surrendered the entlre sovrevisnty of C'astlle to Phllip and Jomana. r"rerlug to himell only the grand-mastersilipa of the milltary onlers, and the ret roues securid by Isabella's testament." Phllip took the gov. emment lntu hls own hands. cadearoring to obtaluauthority to place hils wife ln enatinement, as one iusane; but this the Castlllmu. would not bruok Otherwlse he cartict thlag. with a high hand, surrounillng hlmself with Fleminh favor-branch and the court in every feature. Ilis in amence, extraragancenad fryolty excled gen eral disginat, and would proiahly have provokel serfous revolts, if the country had beca called upon to endure them long. But Philip's relga what brief. He alckened, suddenly, of $a$ fover, and died on the 25th of September, 1506. Hts demented wldow would not permit his body to be interred. A provislonal councll of regency carried on the government untll December. After that it driftell, with no better authoritative guldance :han that of the poor lnsave queen, untll July 1507, when Ferdlvand, who hal been absent, In Nixples, during the year past, returaed and was joylully welcomed. His unfortunate daughter "henceforth resigned herself to her father's will. . . Although she surviven 47 Jearn, she never quitted the walls of her habltatlon; and although her name appenred jolvtly with that of her son, Cluarles V.. In all public act, she never afterwanls conld be laduced to dga a paper, or take part ln any transactlons of publle nature. . . . From thls tlme the Catholle klog exerclsed an authority nearly as undlsputenl, and far leas ! Imited anil clefined, than in the days of lsabella." Ile exerclsed thls authorliy for alne years, dying on the 2kl of January, 1516. By his last will he settled the succession of Aragon and Naples on hls daughter Joanoa and her helrs, thus uniting the soverelgaty of those kingiloms with that of Castlle, In the wame person. The alministration of Castlle during Charlcs' ahsence was Intrusted to Ximenes, and that of Aragon to the klug's natural son, the archhlshop of Sangossa. In Septemher, 1517, Charles, the helr of many klngloms, arrived In Bpaln from the Netherlands, where his youth hid been spent. Two months later Carilnal Xhenenes dled, but not befone Charles had rudely and ungratefully dlsmissed hinn from the govera. ment. The queen, Jomnas, wis stlll llving: but her arlititary son hal ulrealy comnnanded the proclanatlon of himaclf as king. - W. II. Preg. cott. Hine. of the lhign of trertiname ami Imunelha, pt. 2. ch. $1 \dot{3}-13,16-1 \% .14-20$ ), 2t-25,-See, also. Auetria: A. (I). $1486-1.526$.

15th-i7th Centuries. -Waste i commercial opportunities. Seu Tuank, Numbus.
A. D. 1 Sot-1504. - Treaty of Ferdinand with Louia XII. for the partition of Naples. - Their quarrel and war. Nee Itaif: A. I). 1501-1.004.
A. D. 1505-1510.- Conquests on the Barbary coast. N'e Bahbaby States: A. D. 15051.510.
A. D. 1508-1509. - The League of Canathrai

A. D. 1511-2513.-Ferdinand of Aragon in the Holy League against France. Siv Pratir: A. 11. $1519-1013$.
A. D. $1512-1515$.-Conquest of Navarre.Its incorporation in the kingdom of Castile. Ser Sivallat: I. II. $1+12-152 \mathrm{i}$
A. D. 1515-1557.- Discovery of the Rio de la Plata and colonization of Paraguay. Nee

A. D. 1516-1519.-The great dominion of Charles. A.". Insrma: A. II, 1496 -1506, num Netheni.anis: A. 1). 140t-1.719.
A. D. 1 15.-The Tresty of Noyon, between Charles and Francis 1, Ler Firancik: A. 11. 1516-1:17.
A. D. 1518-1522. - Popular discontent. Election of Charles to the German Imperial throne. - Rehellion of the Holy Junta, and its failure. - Ahsolutism of the crown estahlished. - Charles had not luecu long ln Spaln before "symploms of discontent . . . wereevery where vishle. Charles spoke the Bpanish languars imperfectly: his discourse was consequeuily slow, and dellvered with healiation: and frum that circumsiance many of the Spanlanls wero Induced to regand hlm as a prince of a slow and narrow genlus. But the greatest disaatisfaction arose from his attachmen; to his Flemish faviuurltes, who engromed or exponed to sale cripy office of honour or emolument, and whose rapari. ty was so unbounded that they are sall to hars remitted to the Netheriands no lese a sim than $1,100,000$ ducate In the space of ten months.
Whlle Spain, agitated hy a general discontent, was ready for rebelllon, apaclous field whis opened to the ambitlon of her monarch. Ths death of the Emperur Maximillan [1519] had left vacant the lmperial throne of Germans. The Kloge of Spain, of France, and of Englaud. offered themselves as candldates for thly high digulty," and Charles was chosen, entering nuw upon hls great career as the renowned Emprror, Charles V. (gee Germany: A. D. 1519). "('harles recelved the news of hls electlon to the lmperial throne wlth the joy that was natural to a young and asplring mind. But hls elevation was far from affording the same satisfaction to his sipar. lsh subjects, who foresaw that thelr blowl aad thelr troasures would be lavlahed In the support of German polltics." With great dificulty he obtalned from the Cortes money sufficlent tu ethills hlm to proceed to Germany in sultable style. Harlig accompllshed thls, he salled from cor. unaa in May, 1520, leavlag hls old precepter, now Cartinal Adrian, of Utrecht, to be Regent dur. lng hls absence. "As soon as it was umlerstinal that, althongh the Corters hal voted blm a free gift. they had not obtalued the redress of unv gricvance, the ladlgnation of the people lerade general and uncontrollable. The citizans Toldolotonk arms, attacked the cladel, mul cor pelled the governor to surrenter. llaving, in the next place, establlshed a democraticul formif gevernment, composed of deputies from the wer. eral parishes of the clty, they levled tromp, and appointed for thelr commander Don Jian de Padilln, son of the Commendator of Castile. s young man of an amhltous and daring spirit, and a greut favourlte whth the populare: se. govha. Burgos, Zanora, and several other cities. followed the example of Toledo." Segovit was bersieged by Fonseca, commanler-in-chief in Costhe, who, prevlously, lestroyed a groat part of the tuwn of Mealho del ('ampo by Are, betalis Its cltlacns refusel to deliver to, litas at train of artllery. Valladolld now rose ht rewolt, butwhlthstiniling the prosedee of the lkegent in the city, and forced him to dianvow the procetinges of Funseca. - J. Mhghaml, Hiat. of Syriln, e. i. ch. 12.-"In July [1030], teputies from the print. pal Castithn cities met In Avila; and having formerl an assochation called the santa Jumat, ur Iloly Leagac: proceeted to deliberate comerning the proper metlunls of rexlressing the srimatis's of the mation. The Junta derdured the anthority of Alrim Illegni, on the grommel of his ix-ing a

 Jomana at Turlevilhas. The nnfurtamate quevi dleplayenl an laterval of reasma, durine whith
 sary for the safety of the kinglon: but she wnom reliped into hor former Inbecility, and wath not be persuaded to slgo ang more pururn. The Junta nevertheiens carried on all their delibern tions in her name; and Padifis, marching with a conaiderabie army to Valiadolid, selzed the seais and public archives, and formaily deposed Adrian. Charies now isuued from Germany cir. cular ietters addressed to the Castiilan cities, making great concessions, which, however, were not deemed satisfactory by the Junta; who, conachous of their power, proceeded to draw up a remonstrance, containing a long ilst of grievances.

Charies having refused to receive the remonstrance which was forwarded to him In Germany, the Junta proceeded to fevy open war against him and the nobles; fur the latter, who had at irnt sided with the Junta, finding their own privilieges threatened as weli as those of the King, began now to support the royai suthority. The army of the Junta, which numbered about 20,000 men, was chiefly compowed of mechanics and persons unacqualnted with the use of arms; Padilia was eet aside, and the com. mand given to Don Pedro de Giron, a rash and inexperienced young nobleman." From thls time the insurrection failed rapleify. In Decem. ber, the royalists recovered Tordesilias and the permin of Queen Joanna; and in April, 153i, Padilia was deffated, taken prisoner and exe. cutel, near Viliaiar. "This defeat provedi the ruln of the Junta. Valiadolid and most of the other confederated towns now submitted, hut Toiedo, animated by the srief and conrage of Padilia's Widiow, stili heitd out." Even after the surrender of the elty, "Dotia Maria retiredi but on the 10th Feb. 15, it four months ionger; but on the 10 th Feb. 1529, sine was compeifed to after which trapuifity disgisise to Portugul: Castile."- T. II. Dyer Wias re estahifished in Castile, - - T. II. Dyer, Hist, of Woslern Europus. ure: and the blow wifieh crusibetion the insurgents on bie pialns of Viliaina deprived theron [the spaniurds at iarge] for ever of the fell liberties which they had ireen permitted to retain. They were excluded from ali sinare in the governmeni, and were henceforti, slambinmed to the curtes oniy toswear ailegiance to the heir apparent. or to furmish sulsidifies for their namster. . . The null)w, who had stoxi by their master in the struggle fared no iwtter. They gradnality sunk into the unsubstantiai though graittering pabeme of court. Meanwhilie the government of he law ine, assuming the powers of lmoth making the law and enforching their exeention. heconne in its cessentiai aftribntes neariy us nisofiute as hisigh of Turker."- W. II. Irescott, Hist, of the buign of Philipi II., bk, B. ch. I.
Churtes IV: Wh: B (rivertson, Ifits, of the Heign if A. D. 1520 . 3 (r. :
A. D. 1519-1524. - The conquent of Mexico. Ser Mexicu: $A$ if. 1519, to 15:4.
A. D. 1533 . - The conspiracy of Charies V. With the Constahie of Bourhon agninat France.

A. D, 1523-1527.-Douhte-dealings of Pope reage. - Capture and sack of imperial reIraly: - Capture and sack of Rorr.
TMLY: A. II. 1523-15:\%: and lise:.
A. D. 1524.-Disputes with Portugal in the Marcilian and the Coworid. - The voyage of Magelian and the Congress of Badajos, sire dшкиен: A. D. 1519-1 5.34.
A. D. isac,-The Treaty of Madrid.-Per(ddy of Francio I. See Fravce: A. D. 1525-1526.
D. 1526. - Compuleory and Lonveraion of the Compneory and nomial pleted. See Moops: $D$ or Moriscoes, comA. D. $1528-1543$ : A. D. 1402-1600.

A. D. ${ }^{1522-1542 .}$ - The expeditions of NarFlorida : A. D. 1528 de Soto in Fiorida. See A. D. A5 D. 1528-1342.

Peru. See Pert. - Pizarro's congnest of 1548. See Perv: A. D. 1528-1581, to 1539-
A. D. 1535 - Conquest and vasaalage of 1535. See Barbart States: A. D. 15i6-

> А®
A. D. $1536-1544$ - Renewed war between Charles V. and Francis I. Treaty of Crespy. A. D. 1541. D. Disis-1547.

Charies 1541. - Dinastrous expedition of States: A. D. 1541 . Aigiers. See Barbary
A. D. 1556.-Abdication of Charies,-Acces1555
A. D
the Pope. - Succease in With France and western France, - Trenty Italy and northweatern France.-Treaty of Cateau-CamA. D. See France: A. 1). 1547-1559.

It.-H. Dis ${ }^{1559-1503 .-E a r l y ~ m e a s u r e s ~ o f ~ P h i l i p ~}$ It.-His atupid and atining despotism. -His dom.-His destruction of out of the king-duatry.- His choice on of commerce and inHis huidding of the ot anau-id for a capital. His huilding of the Escorial.- "I the beginextraurdinary decree. [. That issued a nost signai reveiation of the . That document is a adopteif as the rery somi of his Government Theterninedi to stop by ail imaginalife means the. intitration $\operatorname{lnt}$ Spalif of the liectrines of the re. ifgious ruformation which agitated Europer, it sums that he pianned to isolate fier interifect froms that of the rest of the worth. . . For this pur. pase he onfered that nonue of his subjects, with. oblt uny exception wiatever, shoulif leave the thing or to learn, or to tenefo, or to read anycolidg, or even ' reside' in may of the universitites, Tolirges or schomis estaillished in foreign parts. To these wha were thus elagageif be preserihed montis. ${ }^{\text {sing }}$ simin return home whithin four momthis Aay ecelewiastic viofating this decree was to be donationalized and fose ali his temporatites; any layman was to ine pmished with the Thus athon of his jrojerty and jerpermai exife. Thus a surt uf Chitese lecisialonamd policy was fromtiers a line of enstom to Was of be on her the tiomgite of of conntome fonsest tirmugh which amination. No sipmiard was 10 receive or to thiilip. tharir we. ind lion, the cortes of Cantile fand

The (ortes presenteri to Thitip of info hilip. dreil tund cevern petitions. . . To these heri thons which amed at somethine To thene beti Juficions be gave sume of has manal crative answers, furt fe gramed very readity thane of hict were nivurd. Fur Instance, he promulgatel sumphary ondinances which were ridiconlonta, and which could not possibily faver any silutary effects. Ile nisu pubilained decreos wifich ware restrictive of comineree, and prohithtef the ex. prirtation of gold, sifver. grains, cattie and other priminctis of the sali, or of the manifacturing industry of the conutry. . . . in ther menntinee, thes Inanclai condition of the Kingdoni was rapidity growing worte, and the defclt resulting from the inequality of expenditure and revenue was areuming the mot alurming proportions. All the ordinary and extreordinary meaps and resources had been exhausted.

Yet, on an average. Phillp recelved annually from hls American Dominlons alone more than $1,200,000$ ducath-which was at least equivalent to $86,000,000$ at the present epoch. The Councll of Finances, or Hacienda, after consulting whth Phllp, could not devise anything else, to get out of dificulty, than to resort again to the sale of tities of nobillity, the sale of vacals and other Foyal property, the alienation of certain rights, and the conceasion of privileges. $\qquad$ It is dl :cult to give an ides of the wretched idmlulatra. tlon which had been fatroduced in Spaln, and of those ahusen which, like renomous leeches, preyed upon her vitalis. Suffice it to say that la Castlie, for Instance, according to a census made in 1541, there was a populatlon of near 300,000 souls, and that out of every eight men there was one who was nohle and exempt from taratlon, therehy increasing the welght of the hurden on the shoulders of the rest; and an if this evil was not already unbearable. Philip was selling profusely letters patent of nohility. . . . In thene con junctures [1580], Phllip, who had shown, on sll occaslons, that he preferred residing in liadrid. determined to make that city the permanent aeat of the Court and of the Supreme Government, and therefore the capltal of the 3onarchy. That barren and insalubrious lucality presented hut one alvantage, if it be one of much value, that of being a central polnt. Reason and common sense condemned it from the beglnning.

g. . . .

 Shortly after having selected Madríd as his capital, Philip had laid [1583] with his own hands, in the vicinity of that city, the frst stone of the foundations of the Escorial that elghth marvel of the world, as it is cailed hy the Spanlards."-C. Gayarré, Philip II. of Spain, ch. 4.-" The common tralltion that Phillp built the Escoriai in pursuance of a row which he made at the lime of the great hattle of si. Quentin, the 10ih of August, 1555, has been rejected ly modera critlew. But a recently discreered document leaves ilitie douht that such a vow was actually made. However this may have leen, It is certain that the king designed to conmemorate the event hy this structure, as is intimated by its dedlcation to St. Lawrence, the martyr on whose day the victory was gained. The nance given to the place was 'El sitlo de San lorenzo el Real.' But the monastery was better known fronn the hamlet dear which it storel-El Escurind, or El Escorial-which lat. ter amon bersme the orthography generally adopteif by te Castlliana.The erection of a religious a ase on a magnifcent scale, that would proclalm to the world hils devotlon to the Faith, was the predominant idea the the nind of Phillp. It was, moreover, a part of hls acherne to combine In the pian a palace for himeelf.
The site which. after careful examlastion, he melectad for the bullding, was among the mountalns of the Gundurrama, on the bordera of New Castile, alout elght leagues northweat of Mairid. . . In 1584, the masonry of the Encorlal was compirted. Twenty-one years had elapmed slince the firat stone of the monistery was Lald. Thia certalaly must be regarded an a short perind for the crection of to stupendous a plle.

Probably no single edifice ever contalned such an amount and variety of ineatimahle treas. ures as the Escorial, $-\infty 0$ many paintligs and aculptures hy the greatest manters,-so many articles of exquiatie workmanalip, composed of the moot precious materials." It was despulled hy the French in 1808, and in 1837 the tinest works of art surviving were removed to Mailthi. "The Escorial ceased to be a royal residence. Tenantless and unprotected, it was left to the fury of the hlants which swept down the hillis of the Quadarrama. "-W. II. Prescott, Hist. of the Keign of Philip II., bk. 6. ch. 2 (e. 3).
A. D. 8560 --Dieastrona expeditlon againat Tripoli. See Barbart Static: A. D. $1543-$ 1500.
A. D. 1563-1564.-Repulme of the Moors from Oran and Masarqniver.-Capture of Penon de Velez. See Barbaby Statis: A. D. 1563-1565.
A. D. 1565 - The mamascre of French $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{p}}$ guenota in Florida and occupation of the ronntry. See Florida: A. D. 1585 ; and 138i1568.
A. D. $\mathbf{~ 5 5 6 - 1 5 7 1 . - E d i c t ~ a g a i n a t ~ t h e ~ M o r i b - ~}$ coea. - Their rebellion and ita suppreasion. See Moors: A. D. 1482-1800.
A. D. 1560-1610. - The Revolt of the Netherlands. See Netmerlands: A. D. $1508-15: 2$, and after.
A. D. ${ }^{570-1578}$. - The Holy League with Venice and the Pope againat the Turks.Great battle and victory of Lepanto. See Turks: A. D. 1506-15:1.
A. D. 1572. - Rejoicing of Philip at the new of the Massacre of St. Bartholomew's day. See France: A. D. 1572 (Acovst - (uctobeb).
A. D. 1572-1573.-Capture of Tunis by Dea John of Aumtria, and ita recovery, with Golette, by the Tarka. See Turks: A. i. 15:21573.
A. D. 1572-1580.-Piratical warfare of England. Set AxERICA: A. D. 15:2-15M.
A. D. 1580. - The crown of Portugal claimed bs Philip II. and aecnred'y force. See foll. troal: A. D. 1579-1580.
A. D. 1585--Secret alliance with the Catholic League of France. See Fhasce: A. 1 1576-1585.
A. D. 1587-1588. - The expedition of the Armada, againat England. See Exglavd A. 1). 158 i-1588; and 15 Ky .
A. D. 1590.-Aid rendered to the Catholic League in France. - Parma's deliverance of Paria.-Philip'a ambition to wear the Freach crown. See France: A. 11. 1580.
A. D. $1595-1598$. - War with France. - The Peace of Vervina. See Frasice: A 11 15931588.
A. D. 1596. - Capture and plundering of Cadiz by the Englieh and Dutch.-" In the le. glaning of 1508. Phillp Woa an limpritatut tri. umpll ly the capture of Calais. But thinawobe the alarm of England and of the llallamiats as much as of the French. A joint expmutinn was equipped agalnst Spain in which the kinclish took the lead. Lond Admimal lfowarl silem with a fleet of 150 veasels against Cadiz, amit the Earl of Essex conmanded the land forcte. in June 21 the Spaniah shlps which asoemhind fir the defence of the town were entlrely defeated Ensex was the first to leap on shore. and the Englich troope eablly took the city. The clem-

Dectine and deray.

SPAIN, 1621.
ency of the English soldiers contrasted favoura bly with tise terrible harbarities of the Spaniariis in the Netherlands. 'The mercy and the clem ency that had been showed here,' wrote Lori Howard, 'wili be spoken of throughout the world.' No man or woman was needlesaly in . jured; hut Cadiz was sacked, and the shipplng In its harbour destroyed. Essex wished to fol low up this exploit by a further attack upon Spain; hut Howard, who had accomplished the task for which he had been sent, insisted on returaing home."- M. Creighton, The Age of Elizaheth, 8 k . 7, ch. 8.- "The results of this expedl. tion were considerahle, for the king's navy was crippled, a great city was destroyed, and some millions of plunder had leen ohtained. But the permanent pmasession of Cadiz, which, in such case, Eseex hoped to exchange for Calais, and the destruction of the fleet at the izores - possible achievements buth, and unwisely neglected - rould have been far more proftiabie, at least to England. "-J. L. Motiey, Miet. of the Unitel Witherlands, eh. $92(c, 3)$.

A. D. 1598.-Accession of Philip III.

A. D. ${ }^{1590-1700 .}$. The first century of decline and decay. - "Spain became united and consolinated under the Catholic kings [Ferdinand snd Isabeila]: it became a cosmopolitan empire unier Charles; and in Philip, austere, bigoted, snif commanding, its height of glory was reached. Thenceforth the Austrian supremacy in the pequmpuhn - the star of the llouse of lahshurg declined, until a whill of diplomncy was saff ficient to extinguish lia lights in the person of the childlese and imisecile Charies II. Three reizns - Philip III. (1:59x-1621), Philip IV. (16:1186i), and Charles II. ( $1665-1000$ - fill this century of national decline, fuli as it is of crownell jilicey, hrpichondria, and mainess, the result of incestuons marriages, or naturai weakness. The spicadid and prosperous Spanish empire under the emperor and his son - its vast conquests, discoveries and foreign wars, - becomes truns. fortact into a bauble for the caprice of favorites, under their successors.
amill its immeus. urable wealth, Spain was beakrupt. The goli, and silver, and prectous stones of the West. emptied themoelves into a land the poorest and most debt-laien in Eurupe, the most spiritually ignorant deapite the countiess churches, the mosit anturious for ita dilssolute nobility, its worthless otticials, its ignoble family relations, its horrible morui aberrations perrnding all grades of the population; and nli in valin. The mighty fancy, the enthusiastic loyalty, the fervid faith of the richly endowed spaniard were not commer. balancell by humbler but more practical virtues, - live of industry, of agriculture, of manufactures The Castilians hated the doings of citizens and peasants; the taint of the Arib and the dew was on the profexsion of money getting. Themsands left their ploughs and went to the Indies, found places in the police, or trought themseives tithet of nobility. which forthwith Pemereent all work dishonomblie. The lend grew intu a literal infatuation with miracles, relics, chioisers, fraternitles, plous foundations of every description. The church was omnipotent. Nobonly cuitivated the soll. Hundreds of thousands livel in the ennrenta Brgsing soup at the monastery gates, - such ls a type of the fumishur Spain of the 13th century. In econotuic, political, physlcal, moral, and Intellectual aspects, a decar pervaded the peninsula under the later Habsburgers, such ns no clvillzed nation has ever undergone. The population declined from $10,010.000$ under Charies $V$. (Charles I. of Spain) to $8,0,00000$ under Charies II. The peopie had vanished from hundreds of places in New Castile, Oid Castile, Toledo, Estremadura, and Andnlusia. One might travel miles in the lovely regions of the South, without seeing a molitary cuitivated field or dwelling. Sevile was almost depopulated. Pecuniary distrens at the end of the 1rth century reached an unerampled height; the soldiers wandered through the cities begging; nearly all the great fortresses from Barzelonn to Condiz were ruinous; the king's servants man away lucause they were neither money to suppiy the than once there was no money to supply the royal tahle; the ministers were besieged by high offliais and officers aeek. lug to extort their pay long due; couriers charged with communications of the highent im. portance lingered on the road for lack of means to continue their journes. Finance was reduced liliocy of the sratem of taxation rohbery. .. The Even in the system of taxation was unparalleled. Even in 1504 the cortes complained that the merchant, out of every 1,000 ducat capital, had to pay 300 chrats in taxes; that no tenand-farmer cuuld maintain limself, however low hta rent might be: and that the taxes exceeded the incone of numerous estates. Bad as the system Was under Philip II., it became worse under his Austrinn successons. The tax upon the sale of forni, for instance, increased from ten to fourteen per cent. Looms were most proiluctive when they were absolutely sileat. Almost the entiro household arrangements of a spanish family were the proxacts of forcign industries. In thie lxginning of the 17 th century, five-sixths of the dumestic and uine-tenths of the forelga trade were in the hands of aliens. In Castife, aione, there were 180,000 foreigners, who had gained complete possession of the industrial and manufacturing interests. ' We cannot clothe ourselves without them, for we have neither linen nor cioth; we cannot write without them, for we have no paper,' complains a Spaniard. Hence, the enormous masses of gold and silver annualiy transmitted from the colonies passed through Spain into French, Engiish. Italian, and Duteh joickets. Not a real. it ls said. of the $85,000,000$ of ducats which spaia received from the colonies in 159., wns found in Castile the following year. In this in:lescribable retrogression, but one interust in nny wny prospered - the Chunch. The inore agricuiture, industry, trade declined, the m. re exclusively did the Catholir slergy monopo. Hze alt economic and intellectual fife."-J. A. Ilarrison, syath, eh. 2s Alao iv: In Wntmun, Miot. of the Reign of Philif III.-J. Dunlop, Memoirs of Spain dur. ing the litigns of Philip, IV. and Charlea II.
A. D. 1609 . Final expuision of the Moris-coes-The resulting ruin of the attion, majerially and moraliy. See Moons: A. D). 14921604.
A. D. 1619.-Ailiance with the Emperor Ferdinand againat Frederick of Bohemil See Geryanr: A. D. 161N-16\%0.
A. D. 1631, -Acceasion of Philip IV.
A. D. 1621 . - Renewal of war in the Nether-inad.- End of the truce. See NETHinhurds: 1. D. 1021-1638.
A. D. 162y-2636.-Hoatlie policy of RicheHieu. -The Valtelline War In Northern Italy. See Frusce: A. D. $162+1626$.
A. D. 1627-1631.-War with France la Northern Italy over the successlon to the duchy of Mantua See Italy: A. D. 1627-1631.
A. D. 1635.-New hostile alliances of France. -Deciaration of war. See Germany: A. D. 1634-1639.
A. D. 1635-1636.-The Cardinal Infant in the Netheriands.-His Invasion of France. See Netherlands: A.D. 1635-1638.
A. D. $1635-1642$. - The war with France and Savoy in Northern Italy. See Italy: A. 1). 1833-1659.
A. D. 1637-2640. - The war on the Freach frontier.--Siege and battle of FontarabiaFrench invasion of Roussillon.-Causes of disaffection in Cataloaia. - In 1837, a Spanish army, 12,000 strong, crossed the Py rences under the command of the Duke of Medina del IkioSecu, Admiral of Castlle. "He took St Jenn-de-Luz whthout difficulty, and was advancing to the slege of Bayonne, when the old Duke ilEpernon, governor of Gulenne. . . . threw himieelf luto it. There was ilitle ilme for prepara. tlons; but the Spanish commsnder, on belng told be would tind Bayonge destitutic of defence. replled that could not be sald of any place which containell the Dake d'Epernon. Ife accorilingly refralned from laying alege to Bayonne; and alt his other crterprises having falled from the viglIant actlvity of Epernon, he abandoned St Jean-de-Luz. Wlth some other posts In Ita nelghbourhood, and the seat of war was speeclity trunsferred from Guleune to Langnedoc: Olir arez. In forming his plans agalust that province. ham expectedn revolt anong tis numerous anil offeu retrelltons inhubitants.

The hopes. however, entertained by Oltwanz . . . proved utterly fallaclous." The Spanish army, under Serbelloue, Insesten Lencate, the first furtress reached on entering Languedoc from lhonssllton. and tresleged lt for a month; bat wasatackial at the end of that tlme liy the Duke de Halmin, son of the Inte Sareschal Schomberg, and irl ven from its works, with the lese of all lts arthlers. and 3.0 OMO men. "In the following senson [16:3)] the Fremeh. In thelr turn, attempted the Invasiou of Spaln, but with ns little nuecess as the spant lards hal ohtalned ha divieme or Laugedioc.

An army, amomatheg to not leas than 15.(MO) lafantry and 2 , (0) eavalry, mader the orders of the l'rince of conale, the father of the great Conde, and a devoted reminar of Hehellem, crossed the fromtler took Irnu, and lald slege to Fontarnhia, which is slmated on a peulasnla, juthus int the river Bldassoa. A formilable Fronch thort was, at the same time, stathoned on the const of Gupusema. to co-operate whith this army." and, nfter faility ln one athack, his. sur. creded in destroying the spmulsh shlpse sent to the succor of Fiontaralin. .: Funtarabla belog conslderenl as the kev to spaln. on then entrance to the kinglom frim fayonue. Its natoral atrongth haml twen greatly luproved by fortitheathons." Its garrison behd ont stomsty until the arrival of II relifevlng army of 13.1 MO ), leel hy the Admiral of ('astile. Searly a month elapmel luefore the batter ventured io attack the leseleglng force: but when be did, " whlle the Spublatide linot only zum; mern, the French were totally de featexl, and preclpitately driven forth from their intrenchments.

Many of them were kllied in the attack, snd s utll greater number were drowned lo attempting to pases the Bldeceon. Those who eccapel thet with precipltatlon to Bayonne. . . . Butt Spaln was harily relleved from the alarm of the lnvaslon of Navarre when she was threatened with a new danger, on the slde of Rousaillon. The Prince of Condé was agaln entrusted whth a milltary expedilion agaluat the Epanlah fron. tlers. .. The small countr of Roussillon. which had hitherto belonged to Spain as an ap peadage of Cataluala, lles on the French shle of the ligher Pyrenees; but a lower range of mountains, called the Courbleres, branching off imm them, and extending withln a lesgue of the Mediterranean shore, difides Roussillon frum Languedoc. At the extremity of these hillw, anill alout a league from the sea, stuod the fortros of Salsas [or Salces], whlch was consldered us the key of Spaln on the dangerous slde of lhonssillon and Catalonia." Salsas was lavested hy the French, 1839, and taked after a slege of forty days. But Ollvarez, the Spanish nilnis.er, allopted measures for the recovery of the lmpur. tant fortress, so energetle, so peremptory, snd so) unmeasured in the exactlons they mate upua the people of Catalonla, that Salsas was retaken In January, 1640. "The long campalgn in the vicinity of Salsas, though It proved ultimately prosperous to the Spanish arms, fostered in the busom of the kingilom the seeds of rulkillion. Those arhltrary mensures which Olivariz eufolnell to hls Generuls, may have galued Salsas, fut they lost Catalonia. The frequent intercomrse whleh tonok place between the C'atalans and French soldlery, added fuel to thow thames nearly realy to burst forth, and, shortly afferwarls, excitell the fatal Insurrection ai barce-loma."-J. Dunlop. Memoirs of Spain during the Reigns of Philip 11: and Charles JI., r. 1. ch. &
Al,so is: T. Wright. Ifint. of F'ronef. r. 1. et 17.
A. D. 1639-1700.-War with the piratical Buccaneers. see Antimea: A. Il 16:3!-1im)
A. D. 1640 . - Revolution in Portugal. - That country resumes its independence. Sir. llok. TLTAL: A. 11. 18Si-1B6.
A. D. ${ }^{1640-1642 \text { - - Revolt of Catalonia and }}$ Portugal, wilh the aid of France. - French conquest of Roussillon.-After thelrdefeat of condé at satces, Olivarez onlered the ('astilima fremps io take up thelr winter quarters in Chtatui:a, anl. "commandlag the Catalonlans to raise mill equip f.(010) soldlers for the wars of Inly, he assigneid them their proportlan of the eapruse if the state, enjolaing the stntes to raise it, by a dereet of the king. Had the castillan tropios remamel by thelr presence and thelr dischplitue "thenta eiraging them hy their exerssers mad their hame. lence, prephaps Ollvarez ulght have gariod through hits lohd destgn, and anuhithted. whe ly one, the destructive provileges of the varimus provinces. But, on the contrary, they commited every sort of vhlence nall hingstite. . . The Cathloulans, stirrell up to vengeauce songht intrlhuthon In chance combats. lest thu ir dreat if the Castillian troups by frequent contests with them, and were excitel alinust to frenzy liy thejr volence and raplae. In the mean timir. the nlaten of Catalonias refused to otrey the remat is cree, aud sent two depmiles to remonstrite with the king and his minister. These mesmoners unfortunately executed their commiseton in an fnsolent and mesacing tone; and Olivarez, of a haughty and inflexible character, caused them instantly to be arreated. These tidings reached Jarcelons at the moment when come fresh out. rage, committed by the Castililan soldiers, had excited popular indignation to tie highest pitch; and a general insurrection was the immediate consequence. The viceroy was sialn upon the spot, and a negotiation was instantiy entered into Fith France in order to procure support in rebei. lion. The courage of Oilvarez did not fail even under this fresh misfortune: ali the diapusahie troops in Spain were instantiy directed upon Cataionia: i ali the other provinces, but more especially 1 -rtugal, were ordered to arm for the suppression of the revoit. Turhulent subjects and interested ailies are always sure to take ad. rantage of the moment of diftcuity. The Por. tuguese, hating, with even more hitter animosity thas the Catalonians, the joke of Castilie, oppressed by Vasconcetios, who ruled them under the Flce-queen, duchess of Mantua, and cailed upon to aid in suppreasing an insurrection to which they iooked with pieasure and iope, now instantly threw of the ruie of Spalu. A con spirsey burst forth, Which had been preparing under the knowiedge and advlce of Kicheileuf for more than three years; and the duke of Bra. ganza, a priace of no great ablitiles, was bro. claimaiking. ios lif the mean tline the maryuly de los Velez had taken the conmmand of the army sent against the Cataionian rebeis; ani a willing instrument of the minlster's vengennce, be exerclsed the most barbarous crucities us lie uarched on into the refractory provinie. The tuwn of Turtosa was taken and sackeri by his ooldiens, and the people sulijected to every sirt of riolebce. FYre, masascre, anid desolation markerl bis progress; lut, insteal of Insplring crumching terror, and trembling seif-abandonment, hls conlact roused up lion tike revenge. ifurrying on the negotiatlons with France the Catalung on the pegotiatlons wilh France, the Catalonlans acucpted any terms which illchelieutamans tu offer. declared themselves smbject to the Frenel crown, and pronounced the tunthity of Spain st un ond for ever in Cintalonia. A simall corpos of F'reneh troops was Immedlately thruwn for hard from Roussiflon, and aivancel to Thragroma water the commani of IJ'Espeman, a general Who hai shown great skili and courage at sulces. The Catalondans, with the usuml bravaubof their Dation, had represented thelr army ns a thousamifohl stronger, both in auminers nnd dimeipllae, than it really was: and the French otilimers were In conserpuence lamentalsly disuljonaterl when they saw the milita which was f10 silpport thent. and still more the aposinteri when they lehehi that militia In tace of an enemy. Is a last ro. sultrie agninst the inrge spanisli forve undire I.os Villo. D'Espenan threw himself litio Taraguna, Was ellypoyed, on the part of Franer, in organ. lzing the Catalenians. ilure lie was ahmont In.
 provisions andi aminunition, was somin furceal tu siga at capitulatlon, whervigy he agreal to evacuate the terfitory of Spain with ali the trinps which haidentered Catalonia from France. This finnamuces and petitlons on the part of the Canalunians; and, retrentlug at once from Tara. gun to the French frontier, be abandoned the theid to the enemy. Had Oifrarez now welred the favourabie moment, ., it ia probable - it once inave lon probahle - that Catalonia wouid at once inave leen pacitied, and that her dangerous privileges woulit in part have been sacrificed to the desire and necesslty of peace. . . . But the count duke sought revenge as much as advan. tage. $\qquad$ Continued severity only produced a taineri theinsel resistance: the Cataionians susin greater inselves till the French forces returned in greater numbers, and with more experfenced commanders: the tide of success turued agalnat the Castlllans; ami Los Velez was recalled to glve place to Leganez. glve jlace to Leganez. .. In varlons engagements. . the Spanlah armies were defeated by the French: the Cataionians themselves became better soldlers under the severe diaclpllae of ne. cessity; and though the Spanislisclpllae of ne. the French off Tarigonn, ami saved that city from the enterproses of Las Mothe tire general result of the campaign was decidedly unfavourable to Spain. At the same tlme, the French were making progress iu luonssilion; and in the year 1642 the king himseif prepareil to invade that smali territory, with the evident inteation of dissevering It from the Sjuanish crown. Sev. eral ininor places laving lueen taken, siege wad lalil to Perpignan: the people of the country Were not at ali unwliing to pass under the domatuiou of France: audi nnother werions misforthme threatened the mluistry of Olivarez. At Mans [mer Fuasce: A. I). $16+1-164 \cdot$ ] the connt-inke eagerly entered into the views of the French malecoutents, ani promlshi them every assistance they demandedi. The fallure of the eonspiracy, the arrest and executlon of smone of the conapirators, nui the fati of I'erpignan, came raphliyg one upon the other, showing the fortum of Jichelleustlll triumphitig over all the Inest lah schemes of lus miversaries. "-G. I'. IR.

A. D. 1643.-Invasion of France from the Netherlands.-Defeat at Rocroi. Sir Fuance: A. I) $1 t 5+2-1043$.
A. D. $1644-1646$. - The war in Catalonia.Sieges of Lerida, -In |tt4t, Jhlijp IV.:" nnder the prudent and sugacionts counsw is of Ion Louls dip ilaro. Was dirreting his princlpal efforts to the recovery of Catalonia. . I Mon I'lilip de syiva, an olther of eserience Syfa, un olthere of expericuce ani deternima. tion, Was pint at the homl of the Castlilat troops, and immerlately mivanceri to the slege of the brons tuwn of iacrida, the king hlmself belag Donitally it commanid of the army. The Framoll iroxps fil catalumin were at that the commandedin, Shothe Ihoulaneonrt, who no surnerlteardu" "ulvime of the Spanlsh tronps towarla l.arin hion lie mareliedi whli great rapllity to the whef of that place: ' but ap. pronched lie ebrius with so minelh careiessures that he was uttickini hy Sylva and totally de. frated. With a lows of $\dot{3}$, omi men and 12 ynins. ife then, for a diversion, laid siege to Tarragena, unil fint 8,000 more of hls men, without neeom. pllshing the rebiuctlon of the place; lning fireti, In the emi, to retrent to Barreloma, while i.arida Was warrendermi to the Spmalaris. - lat Mothe havite Imen recailed abil Imprlaned, the Cobut ile liarconrt was withirawn from Sinuy, and put at the head of fresh fories. for the purjusu' of ryibiring the dilsusten of the former gen. eral." Harcourt began uperations (Aprid, 1645) by laying slege to the strong fortress of Rosas or Roees, which commanded the principal entrance to Catalonia from Rousdilion. The fortrese surrendered the followling month, and "the Count de Harcourt, $\qquad$ after capturing some places of minor Import, pasued the Segre, encountered the army of Cantelmo in the neigh. bourbood of Liorens, and, gaining a complete victory, made blmself master of Balaguer." After these successes, the Count de Ifarcourt wha calied away from Cataionia for a time, to act against the insurgents at Barcelona, but returned in 1646 and undertook the slege of Lerlda. He was now opposed by the Marquile de Leganez. whom be had aucceasfuily encountered in Italy. and whom be was foolishiy disposel to regard with contempt. While he pressed his siege in carelems security. Leganez aurprised him, in a night attack, and drove bim in utter rout from his iines. "Thls signai disaster caused the Count do Harcourt to be recalied; and in order to recover all that had been iost in Catalonia, the Prince de Conde was appointed to comrnand in that province, whlie a conslderable part of the army of Flanders wac ondered to proceed to. wards the frontiers of Spain to serve once more under his command." Eut Condé, too, was to pay the penaity for desplsing hic enemy. He reopened the siege of Lerida with ostentatious gaiety, marching into the trenches with music of Violina, on the 14th of May. In littie more than a month be marchel out again, without muslc. abandoning the slege, having lost many men and ohtained no sign of succens.-G. P. R. James, Life and Times of Louis IIV., v. 1, ch. 3.
A. D. 1645-1646.-French snccesses in Fianders. Lois of Dunkirk. See Netarrlande: A. D. 1645-1646.
A. D. ${ }^{1647-1648 .-C a m p a i g n a g n i n g t ~ F r a n c e ~}$ In the Netheriands. - The defent at Lens. See Netherlands (Spanieh Provincer): A. D. 1047-1648.
A. D. 1647-1654.-The revolt of Maganieilo at Napies and its termination.-Attempts of the Duke of Guise and the French. See ITaly: A. D. $1648-1654$.
A. D. 1648.-Conclnsion of Peace with the United Provinces. See Nethehlands: A. D. 1046-1648.
A. D. 1648-1652.-Subjugation of Catalo nin.-"During the four years whleh [In France] had been fliled with the troubies of the Fronde. Spain endeavored, and with success, to recon. tuer the province which had abandoned her. In 1650, Mazarin hail recognizel the perli of Cataionia, and hai endeavored to send asslstance in war and money. it was poasibie, however. to do but little. In 1651 the Spanish beaticged Bar. celona. After Marchin's desertion they hoped to capture it at once, but it was defended with the courage and constancy of the Catalonian people. La Mothe Ifoudancourt was again put in command of the province. He had been un. sucoessful there when France was strong, and it could hardly lave leen expectel that he could rescue it when France was weak. Iie succeeded, bowever, in forcing his way into Barceiona, and defended the clty with as much succesa as could, perhapa, have been anicipated from the acanty means at his commandi. The inhabl. cauts emilused, with coustarcy, the danger and want caused by the alege, nuther than surrender themeeives to Spain. Some Freach ohips salled Yor the rescue of the place, but they aequitted themselvee with littie valor. Provisions were sent into the town, hut the commander ciaimeld he was not in condition for a conflict whith the Spanish feet, and he retreated. Endeavors were made, both by the French troopm and thome of the Catalonians, to raise the slege, but without success. In October [1652], after a siege of ifteen months, Barceiona surrendered. luwws was captured soon after. Leucate was betrayedi to Spain by its gavernor for 40,000 crowns. ite Intenied to enlist under Orleans, but learning the king had reentered Parla, be made bls peace. by agreeing to betray no more. The Apmaish granted an amnesty to the peopie of Catalonia The whole province feli into their hands, and became again a part of the klngdom of Apain. The lose of Catalonia was chlefly due to the tur. buience and disiogaity of Condé. Ilad it not been for the groundlese rebellion which be ex. cited in the autumn of 1651, and whleh ab. sorbed the energles of the French armies during the next year, Catalonis might have been saved for France and have remained a part of that kingdom. . . . It was a natlonal miofortune that Catsionia was lost. This great and impurtant province would have been a valuahie accusalion to France. Its brave and hardy population would have become loyal and induatrious Freach. men, and have added to the wealth and power of that kinglom. For the Catalonians if was atiii more unfortunate that their iot thould thus bave been determined. They were not closily related to the peopie of Aragon or Castlit. Thes were now left to share in the siow decay of the Spanish kingdom, instead of having sn opportunity for development in inteillgence sam prospertity as members of a great and progrenalve nation."-J. B. Perkins, Pranco under Musurin, ch. 13 (r. 2).

A. D. 1650-1651.-Aliance with the New Fronde in France. - Defeat at Rethel. Site France: A. D. 1650-1651.
A. D. 1652. - Campaign on the Fiemish Grontier.- Invalion of France. - Recovery of Gravelines and Dunkirk. Bee Franct: A. D. 165.2.
A. D. $1657-1658 .-$ War with England ia alliance with France.-Loss of Dunkirk aud Gravelines. See France: A. D. 16if-10 10 : and Enoland: A. D. 1855-1658.
A. D. ${ }^{1659 \text {. - The Treaty of the Pyrenees.- }}$ Territorial cespions to France. - Marriage of the Infanta to Lonis XIV. See France: 1.0 1050-1861.
A. D. 1665.-Accesslon of Charles ii.
A. D. 1667 .-Conquests of Louis XiV. is the Netherlands. - The War of the Quees's Rights. See Netherlande (Spanieif Prov. INCEE): A. D. 1B7.
A. D. 1668. - Towas in Fianders ceded to Louis X1V.-Triple alliance and the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. See Netherlands (iloL LavD): A. D. 1668.
A. D. 1668. - Peace with Portugal.-Recoynition of Its independeace. See i'ortuoal: A. II. 1637-1688.
A. D. 1673-1679.-The War of the Conllion to resist Louis XIV. See Nethicklanin (llol Nimetieq. Prace of.
A. D. 1686. The League of Angsbarg. Germaxy: A. D. 1686.
A. D. 8690-1696.-The War of the Leagre of Aerpory or the Grand Alliance argingt Lonia xiv. See Frunce: A. D. [640-1600, to 1605-1000.

A. D. 1097 , - The Pasce of Ryawick-

 French conquaste rantored. See France: A. D. 1697 .A. D. 8698-1700,-The question of the Succesaion. - The Treathes of Partltion. The will of Charies II. - As the lith century appronched Its close, the king of Spaln, Charles II., was near. log the grave. "His days had been few and evil. He had been unfortunate in all his wars. In every part of his internal administration, and to all his domestle relatlons. . . . He was chlldless: and his constitution was so completely shattered that, at Ittle more than thirty years of sge, he had given up all hopes of protertiy. Ilis mind was even more distempered than his body.

His sufferinga were aggravated by the thought that his own diseolution might not Im. probahly be followed hy the disaolution of hie empire. Reveral princee fald clalm to the successlon. The King's eldeat slater had marrieri Lewin XIV. The Dauphin would, therefore, in the common course of Inhertance. have succeeded to the crown. But the Infanta had, at the time of her eapousals, solemnily reanunced. in her own name, and ir that of her posterity, alf clalni to the succeaslon [see Frunce: A. D. itaso1681). Thly renunclation had been confirmell in due lorm hy the Cortes. A younger slister of the Eling had been the trat wfle of Leopolid. Em. peror of Germany. She too hal at iner marriage renounced her claims to the Spanish crown, hit the Cortes had not sanctlonel the renunclation, and it was therefore consldered as lavalld by the Spanish jurists. The fruft of thls marriage was $s$ danghter. Who had espoused the Elector of Havaria. The Electoral Prince of Bavaria in. herited her claim to the throne of Spaln. The Emperor Leopold was son of a daughter of Phillp III, and was therefore first cousln to Charlea. No renunclation whatever had been exacted from hls mother at the tlme of her marr risge. The questlon was certalnir very compll. cated. That claim whilch, accorilligg to the or dinary rules of inheritance, was the strongest. hal been barred hy a contract executed in the most hinding form. The claim of the Electoral Priuce of Bavarin was weaker. But so aloo was the contract whlch bound him not to prosecute his ciaim. The only party agalast whom no instrument of renuaciation coulif be proluced whas the party who, In respect of blewol, hat the weakest clalm of all. As It was clear that great alarm would be exilted throughout Europe If either the Emperor or the Dauphlin should bee. ome Klag of Spain, each of those Princea offered to waive his pretenstons in favour of hls veruad mon: the Emperor In favour of the Arch. duke Charles, the Dauphin in tavour of Phillp. Duke of Anjou, soon after the J'eace of Rys. wick. Whllam III. and Iewls XIV. determined hisettle the question of the succession whithout cunsuiting either Charles or the Emperor. France. England, add Ifolland, became partles to a traty [called the First Partilon Truaty] hy Which It was atipuiated that the Electoral Prince of Rararia strould suceced to Spaln, the Ioriies, and the Netheriands. The Imperial family were whe bought of with the Mllanere, and the Dauphin was to have the Two slcliles. The great ohject of the King of Spain and of all his coun mellors was to avert the diamemberment of the monarchy. In the hope of attinining ihlis end Charles determined to name a succesor. A will was accordingiy framed hy which the crown was bequeathed to the Bavarian Prince. Unhappliy, this will had scarcely been algned when the Prines illed. The quention was again unsettled, and presented greater difficulties than before. A new Trenty of Partition Was concluded between France, England, and Holland. It was agreed that Spaln, the Indles, and the Netherlundo. should descend to the Archduke Charles. In return for thls great concemsion made hy the Bourbons to a rival house, it was agreed that France should have the Mllaneme, or an equivaleat in a more commodious situation. The equivalent in view was the province of Fiew was the province of Lorraine. Arbuthnot. some yenrs later, rilliculed the Partition Treaty Fith exquistie humour and Ingenulty. Everybody mist remember his description of the par. oxysm of rage Into which poor old Lord Strutt fell, on hearing that his runawny servant, Nick Frog, hls clothifer, John Bull, and his old enemy, Lew saboon, had come with quadrante, poles, had litill for hims to survey his eatate, and to dram his will for him. . When the linteligence of the second Partition Treaty arrived at Xadrid, is rolnser to momentary energy the langulabing ruler of a langulshing state. The Spanish am. baseador at the court of London was directed to remonstrate whth the government of WHHam and his remonstrances were no insolent that he Was commanded to leave England. Charles retallated by diamissing the English and Dutch aminerssadors. The Freach King, though the chlef author of the Partition Treaty, succeeded In turulng the whole wrath of Charles and of the Spanish people from himself, and In directing it against the two maritime powers. Those powers had now no agent at Madrid. Their pertidlous ally was at hilerty to carry on his inirgues uncheckel; : and he fully avalled himself of this ad. vautage." He avalled hlmself of the edvantage so successfully, In fact, that when the Spanta king died, November 3. 1700, he was found to have left a wrill, bequeathing the whole Spanish monarchy to Phillp. Duke of Anjou, ser ond son of the Inuphla of France. "Lewle actell as the Engllsh ministers might have guessed that he woild act. With scarcely the ahow of beslat tlon, he broke through all the ohllgatlons of the Parittion Treaty, and accepted for his grandson the splenilld legacy of Chirles. The new soverelgn hastened to take posceston of his domin. lons." - Lord Macaulay, Nohon'e War of the Euc. A1.40 Limis NiV: II. Marth, Bist. of France: Ape of J. W. (era. (tr. by M. L. Bnoth), e. 2, ch. 4J. Dingeranl, The Paoce of Utreeht. en. b-10.9. - Winl Cose, Memoirs of the 1021-1700, e. 2, eh Symin. Coxe, Mematirs of the Bourbon Sininge of
A. D. 1700-Accassion of Philip V.

And the Europeas Lea The Bonrbon succesalon, and the European League againat it.-" Lout XIV. having. . resolved to accede $w$ the will, Phlllp of Anjou was procialmed King by the Spanlards, nid made hia solemn entry lute Hacrid on the 1 th of April 1701. Most of the Eu. ropean powers, such as the States of Italy, Swoden, England, Holland, and the kingdomm, of the North, acknowledged Philp V.; the King of Portugal and the Duke of Bavoy even concluded truatles of allance Fith him. Moreover, the sltuation of polltical atalrs in Cermany, Ifun. gary, and the North was such that It would have feen emey for Louls XIV., with prudent management, to preserve the Spanlah crown on the head of his grandson; but he scemed, ss if on purpose, to to everything to ralse all Europe agaluat him. It was alleged that he almed at the ehimerteal profect of univeral monarchy, and the reninion of France with Spaln. Instead of trying tu dio away thle suppoaltion, he gave it willthonal furre, by lasulng letters-patent In favour of Phillj, at the moment when he was departlag for Spain, to the effect of preserving hls rights to the throne of France. The Dutch drendedinothing so much an to eee the French maklag encruachments on the Spanish Nether. Ianis. whleh they regaried as thelr natural bar. rier agalnst France: the preservation of which appeared to be equally Intereating to England. It wound have ineu prudeut in Louls XIV. to give thes marltime powers mome ecurlit on this polnt, who, slnee the elevatlon of WIllam, Prince of Urange, to the crown of Great Britaln, held as it were In thelr handy the balance of Eu. rope. Whthont being awayed by this condler. ation. he obtalned authortig from the Councll of Mididd to Intruluce a Freach army Into the Spunish Netherlands; and on thls occasion the Iutch trixps, who were quartered in various places of the Netherlands, according to a stlpulation with the late King of Spain, were dis. armed. Thls clrcumstance becane a powerful motive for King Willum to rouse the StatesGeucral agalust France. Ife found some ditioculty, however, In Itrawlug over the British Purlinnuent to his vlews, as a great inajority in that lfunse were averse to nulugle in the quarrels of the Continent: but the death of James 11. sitered the mlinds and lacllnatlons of the Enyllah. Loutis XIV. having formally acknowlenged the gott of that prince as King of Great Britaln, the English I Purliument had uis longer any hesitation In Joluhag the Dutch and the other enemies of Friace A thew und jowerfullengue [the Becond (irand Allianiet) was furnewl agalnat lames. The Emperor, England, the C'nlted Provinces, the Emplre, the Kitugs of I'ortugal and Prussla, and the" Duke of siavoy, all jolued It lit successlon. The allleq engaged to restore to Austria the Sluaiwh Setherhmes, the duchy of Mllan, the Kinsibint of the Two sliflles, whth the ports of Tumbaly : and never t" permit the nalon of Erame wifl Spula."- (: Wuch, The Rendu. tiond of Biturme, terival i.

Ahwi in luril Mitronluy, Ifiat. of Eing. ch. 25 (r i). -l II Burtull. Jint. of the Reign of Queen Anur, ch. is (r. 1)- W Cose, Memare if Murlburenti), ch $y$ (r. 11 . -The same, Memoirs of the

A. D. 17c..--The War of the Succession: Cadiz defended. - The treasure feet lost in Vigo Bay.-The lime inppruach tu Spain uf the Wir of the sumowion-already raglag for utenths la Northern linh and the Spanfas? crimils - was lit the form of an exper? ureinst Colla, wulertaken in the autumon of $1:$ Ify the Finglish athl Ituteh. "Klog Willam va the riest to plan this expedithon against Calic und after hls decruse the project was resumed. But hat King Willam IIved lee would cercainly not have selecterl as chlef the Dule of Ormond a princely nobleman, earlowed with mauy amin hie quallitew, hut destlute of the skill ami the energy which a great enterprise regulres. C'inter him Nir Ifenry Bellasys conimanded the Eugllinh and General Sparar a contingent of Dutch troupa. amounting together to 14,000 men. Almiral sir Gearge Renole had the direction of the Hect. Their proceellingn lave been related at full lengith In another Lisuiry [Loml Mahon's (Earl Stin hope's) ' War of the Suecenslon In Spala'l - how the troopm were att on slore near Callz lit the tint daye of septeminer - how even liefore they Inoded angry diseenslons hal eprung up let merin the Dutch and the Engllsh, the Iandemen atll the seamen - and how these dissenslons which thr. mond wanted the energy to control proverl fital to the eaterprtse. X's dlsclpllae was kept, no eplitt was displayed. Week after week wan font.

Flually at the cluse of the munth it was ils. covered that anthlag could be done, and a coun. cll of war deched that the troope shouhl nerm bark. On thelr return, and of the conat of Portugal, an opportuulty aruee to recover is onme part thelr lowt fame. The spanish gutleon from Ataerica, ladea with treasure aul making thelr gearly voyage at thls tlme, were lount by their laws of trade to unload at Cadiz, hut in sp. prehenslon of the English theet they had jut lato Vigo Bay. There Urmond determined tu jur. sue them. On the zzal of Octoler lue Hearnd that narrow lnlet whleh winds ambat the high Gallician mountalns. The Spanlarls, asuisted by wome French frigates, which were the ewort of the galleons, lud expected an athack amil mule the lest jiteparathons lin thelr piwer. They durst not disembark the tremsure wlhout att ixpress onler from Malrid - and what unler from Malfil ever yet came In due tlme ? - Int thy hal milled the nelghbouring peasatry lum arms they lad mannetl thelr forts; they land anulumal their ships in line withlu the harlour; and ther liad drawn a leuvy bom nerose Its thoulh. Nothe of these moanm aralled them. The Eliclish sal men broke thrunglt the boom: Griment at the shlps were all elther taken or destroyidl. The greater part of the transure was thruwnowirlmard by dration of the French and Spmatsit chiofs. hint there remminesl enough ow yloh a large amount of benty to the vhotops - Fiarl stan. hopro, Klisf of Eing.: Rign of Quern . Itwe, eh :
 in sjusin, ch. $\mathbf{3}-1$ - For the campuigus of :he War

A. D. 1703-1704. - The War of the Succession: Charles IIl. claime the kingdon. -The English take Cihralter. - "The IVMithluf 1 of the Ilorse, hal retirent intu lourtitgal; athi lie

 the Rlo de la I'luta and llazili, as woll us a jart of Estrumbiluru and finlicla (Muy 6th) Ientro whth Crat Britaln amd the Stutestiomel in brated comuserdal traty between Eaghomitad

Portugal mamed after Mimeelf [see Pontuanl: A. D. 1708]. It is the mont leconic treaty on record, contalalng only two Articles, to the - Ifect that' Portugal was to admit Britioh cloths, and England to mimit Portugucse winea, at ons: thind lems duty than thowe of France. Don Pedrona accemion to the Orand Aliliance entirely clanged the piamm of the ailies. Instead of con. aning themeelven to tise procuring of a remenatile Indiemnity for the Emperor, they now resoived to drive Pinilip V. from the throue of Spain, and u) piace an Austrian Archduke upon it in inls stuat. The Emperor aud his eldeat aon Joseph formally renounced their ciaims to the throne of Epaln in fa rour of the archinke Charies, Leoo pold's mecoad son, September 12th [1703]; ani the Arcladuke was prochaimed King of Spain, whe the titie of Charles 111 . The new King Fas to prureed into lortugai, and, with the as: sivtance of Dos Pedro, endeavour to obtain pos. maion of Spain. Charies accordlagly pruceevied to lloinand, and embarked for Eiggiand In Jannary 170才; whence, after paying a visit ti Queen Anue at Windsor, he duaily set sali fur Lishon, February 17th. .. In Mareh 1704, the Pretender, Charles III., together with an Eug. fish and Dutch army of 12,000 men, inaded iu Portugal, with the intention of eutering sjalin oo that ide : but so far were tivey from aceompllshing thin pian that the Spaniarda, ou the con. trary, under the Dinke of Berwick, penctrated into Purtugal, and even threatenel! Lhsbrou, but were driven lasek by the Marquis dias Minus. An Engilah Beet under Admirai Ihouke. with tronps under the Prince of Imarmatadt, nade an ineflectuaj attempt on Barcelona; but were connpensated for thelr failure by the captare of ciitualtar on their return. The importance of thin furtress, the key of the Jediterranenu, was ont then sufticientiy enteemed, andi its gurrisou bul ineen uegiected by the Spanlsil Guvernment. A party of Engish adiona, taking ailvantuge of Salut's day, on which the eastern prortion of Lef fortress haid leen feft unguaried, wriedi the almost inaccessible jreelplee, wiflst at the manue time anuther party atormeti the sonth Sule ifead. The capture wf this important fortress was the Wirk of a few flours (August tha). Darnustait mould have ciained the place for Klag Charles of the Queen of Engiand. - The Sjmularls, *-ndible of the importunce of Gilbraltar, specelity nasale un effort to recenver that fortress, undi as early ne Oetoper ifia, it whe investeti ty the Mariquis of Viladarias with an urmy of 8.wou) nurn The Freath Court afterwaris sent Burshat Tesse to sugersede Villadarias, and the bicze continnerd thi April lios: hat the brave diffree of the Priace of parmatmit. andi the drfeat of the French biek buthy squadrom under Point is by. Admirai Leake, thanily compelleti the raisiug of the ainge."-T. II. Hyer, lliat. of V Mhern ELurupw, bk. 5, ch. 6 ( $r$. S).
Alon is: J. II. ISurton, Hawe if the livign of Lefrattar, ch. 6-8.
A. D. 1704.-The War of the Succesmina: Blenheim. Eec Gravasy : I. i). liot
A. D. 1705.-The War of the Surcession: The capture af Barceiona. - As it to exhititit. whna a duterent thentre of the same great warfare, the most remarkable coutrast to the patience, the caution, and the forenight of Scari-borough, Charles Mordaunt, earl of Peterborough, cook the command of an expedition to Bpaln. Mactulay cuilin Peterborough ' the mont extraordinary charncter of that age, the ting of 8 weden himeei! not excepted, learned and amoroun Charles XiI.' 'He salied from Portamouth in June, 1705, haring the com. the land firce men; unlimited authority over the land firces, and a divided commanued with sir Cluudesiey Siourei at ma. At Liabon, Peterborough wan reinforcel, ani he here took on boand the arch dibke Cimarice, aud a numeroun suite. At dibraitar he receiveri two veteman battaifuns, in exchange for the anme number of recruitn whilet he indi brougit frum England. The prince uf Darmatalt also here jof eivi Peter. borough. The jrince nani the areholuke denired us besigege liarceiona. Peterborough opposed the acheme 1 ! attempting, with 7,000 nen, the reduction of a phace which required 30,000 men for a reguiar slege. With the spradron under sir Cloudesicy shovei, the fleet malleif from Gib. ritar. A inailag was effecteri near Valeacia: nad bere the people were found favonrablie to the culase of tife dustrian priuce, win was prociained, $u_{j \times i}$ the surreadier of the castie of Ikenia, as Charies LII., klug of Spain and the Indee. D'eterlorongi, encomraged by this re crption, conceived the euterprize of dashirg upon the capitai, winist alit the Spanishis forces were on the frumiters of Portugui, or in Cintalonia; and king Phillp was at Natrid with few tonops Such an expioit hati every chance of surcese, but The trexpmg weres overruled by a comecil of war. The tronpo were inndeyi lefore larceitom on the 2ith of Angust. In three weeks there was motiing but difmenslons amungat the great meth of this experithon. The prince of inimstadt nod the carl of Peterlmought haf conue to an ojpea rupture. The Dutch otticen sula thelr trenpon shonid nut joh in no enterprise su, bunalfextly impomsibite of suciess for $n$ smatl forece. I'eter. lmpough concelved a plon of athack totally oppenerf to all the routhe manies of warfare. The citadici of Miom jouich, built on the summit of a ridge of libils skirting the men, commatilefi the town. Peterbormgh gave notier that be shoutid raise the slege: sent his heasy urtillery on board the ships: aini made every jreparation for cm anfi tou horse, be marched ont of the campo on the evening of the 1 tht of september, accompa wled the the jrime of inarmstadt, whom ine had fluvteel to joln ilda. They marcined nif night by the shde of the momatalns: nal lefore daybreal Were unker the bill of Nontjonich, ami cluse to the outer works. Petcrimorough tolid his otheers that when they were diservered at dayllyth. the cuemy wonld descemi hato the onter ditch to re ped them, and that then wins the the to receive their tire, beap in upon them, dirive them fantu the onfer works, and guln the furtress by foliowhy them close. The scheme sucteried. and the Enghish were semm naasters of the bastion. The citalid hell out for several cluys, bint was thaily reduceif by a lambardment frim the iallis, the emnom baving leen reinatied from the ships. Tis refiuction of soutjouich by this extraundinary atet of daring, was wery benns fuilowedi by tire sirremiler of Barcelona.

The Imesumsiou of Barcelcma, is which king' Charles III. was procisianedi with great solemgnity, Was fuliowad by tue adhenton to his cause of the chief wows of Catalnala. Petertimongh was for following up his wonderful sucrem hy other daring operm. timas. The Gerinan miniters and the finten "fitcers opmonel ail his projecta" He was ahle. uotwlthatandling, to mine the ajege of San Mateo and to save Vaiencla frum a threntenel siege. " It was emon foumi that king Charies was Ineom petent to foliow up the surceapen which Peterborcuish hal accomplished fur him. "- C, Kulght, Cruon JIime, of Eng, eh. 3 m . - The ahove is subatantinilf, in lintef, the acemunt of Peterlevrough's campaikne given hy Malam, Macautiay, and most of the latur histurlans of the War of the sucees. slon, who sirew the barmifire fapgely from a litice lxnok pubiliahent in 1:2N, cailed the "Military Mromifr of C'aptain (teorge Carieton." The story has been recentiy told, however, in a very difirent way and to a very dilferent effect, hy Cofonel Artiour lharneli, whon deeifinen to arcept the C'arleton Memolis as autientic hitory. Thope Memolra have inen foulged by some eritics, indeal, to be a pure wirk of action and attributed to ite Foe. They ary inciuden, in fact, in mev. ersi ciltions of ite Fue's works. Colonel Parneil, who eeme $t 1$ have inventigated the matler throroughiy, reewgnizen Captain Carieton as a real permonallty, and conciuiles that he may have furulthed mome kind of a note. lomok or dlary that was the suberratimm of the alleged Memoirs: but tinat momeluxily (he suspects Dean 8wift, in the internat of Peterbomugh, hult up in that gmunilwork a fabric uf ttiction which hat most wrongtulis lereme nerepted histiry. Acrori. ing to Cotonel Parneli, it was mut Peteshorough, hut Prince (tworge of Hesme Iharmstadit (killed in the assult on Mont joukch) and lie Ruvigar, Eari uf Gulway, who were entithed to the credit of the succeases for which freterborough has been laturithoi. "In onfer to extol a contemptible Inponstor the menenary of this grent Hugnenot Masalay ant minat Engifil writera of the present century."- (col. A. Imrnelf, The Wir of the Snecraion in spriu. prit: ch. $12-18$; and app. C:

Alsul in: E. Warbuirson, Vemenir of Plembor. ongh. eh. -11 (r 1)-F. S. Ilussell, the Eurl if Pterthrimigh, r. 1, ch. i-9.
A. D. ${ }^{1706}$ - The War of the Sncceaton: Rapid changing of kingsand courts at Madrid. -'P The courts of Matrif mai Vermithes, exas. perateal nui alarmed liy the fali of Bufcelona, suld ly the revolt of tive surmoming country, det.rminell to nakio a great efort. A harge arus. muntanily comamatei by lhilifp. but really uniser the oriery of Marahai Tense, entereni Catalunia. A heet uniner the Comnt of Tulunse: one of the nntural chilifren of bewis XiV., ap: pearrol befure the part of Barcelona. The diy was attarked at onve by sea and hani. The permon of the . Trehduke was fil cousliderable danger. Petertn mush, at the hemid of alount $3 .(0) 0$ men, mandiowl with great raphifity from Vaiencis. To give twille, whith su small a foree, to a groat reg ular army under the conduct of a Marshal of Framer, woubl have twen maduess.

His "ommiswion from the istitioh government gave him supreme puwer, uot unty over the army, funt. whenever he shonlif be acinaliy on boanl, over the nare alwo. He put oltt to sen at night in an upwil boist. Without comenunicuting his dealyn to aly prermon. Ile was pickiol up, several leaguea frum the shore, by one of the ships of the Eng. Hah mquadron. As soon as he was on bourd, he announcent himeelf at arme In cormand, acil ent a pinnace with his entore to the Adreiral. Itat these onlers been strea a fow houre sarlier, It is protable that the whole Freach fees would nave freen talien. As it was, the Count of Touhute put out to cen. The port was open. The luwa was relicred. On the foifowiog aight the enemy maleal the siege and retroated to Roumbiso. Petephorough returned to Valencla, a place Which he preferred to erery other In Spain; sond Philp, who hail been some weels obsent from his wife, could ealure the mivery of expanition no fongef, and flew to rejotn her at Mairil At Maind, howevet, it was limpomithle for film oir for her to remalin. The splendid succese whirb Peterborough hail obtalaed on the eastern conat of the Pealasula had Inspireal the alurginiti liai. way with emulation. T1e adraneed lnti, the heart of Apain. Berwick retreated. Alymntara Ciuadal limingo, and Snlamanca refi, nonl the ronquerors marched townrds the capitai. I'hillip was earnently preseel hy his advisers to rrimure the cent of goveroment to Burgoes In the mean time the invalera hadi entered Mairis in trhuniph, and had proclalmell the Archifuke in the atreete of the imperial city. Arragha, eves Jeainus of the Castitian ascenalency, foliowel the exampie uf Cataionia Saragoeas revolitel with. out zeing an enemy. The groverbir whom Philtp had aet over Carthagena betrayed his trunt, ani surrendered to the Alilies the hest armenal and che inst shlpe which Spain ponerswel.

It seemed that the struggle had terminstril in favour of the Archiuke, and that nothluy premained for Philip hut a prompt Alight iuto the dimminions of his gramalfatier. Bo Juigent thowe who were lgnonant of the character null hatits of the Spunish peopie. There in no country in Eumpe which it is so ensy to overrun an signin, there is an country in Europe whicil it is unre temptibie than the regular military rendatawe which Spain offeri to an invaier; notiln; mive formidabie than the energy which ahe puts firth when her reguiar military resistance ha- been beaten down. Her armies bave fong twrae the much resembiance to motm; but her mobs hase hani, in an unusuai degree. the spirit of armies

Cistile, Leon, Andaiusin, Easprmadura rome at once; every peasant procuremi a tirdick or a pilke; the Allies were maskers mily of the ground on wheh liey trod. No midier could wamiter a hundired yaris from the malu linily of the invading army without imminemt rivis of leling priuarieel; the country through whinh the conquirons inal passerd to Mavirdd, and which, as they thought, ting had substumi, was all in arms bebinif them. Their communications with for thgal were cut wat. In the mean timue, monery began. for the first time, to flow raplilly int:, the trensury of the fugitive king. . . Whilh the C 'astilians were evorywhere ariniug in the cante of lilifp, the Alilis were erving that cause is effectunliy by thrir miamanagement. dialway stahi at Madril, where bis sodliers :oxlulgent in surh imuutless llcentiousaess that one half of them were in the foopitals. Charies remained dawiling in Catalonla. Peterborough had taken Iequiena, ami wisimed to mooh fron Vatencis Gaiway; but the Archaluke refused his conwat to the plan. The indignant general remainel accurdingiy in hla favourite city, on the benutiful abores of the Medilermanean, realing Don Quizove, strias balle and suppers, resilig In valn (1) ret mone cood eport nut of the Valenclas iuallo, and maslag love, not in vala, to the Yal. enctan women. At length the Arclulule oul. vanced Into Caollie, and ondent Peterlinatough ta jolm him. But it was tos) Inte. Berwlek hat already compellod Galway to evacumte Sindrld: and, when the whole furce of the Allien wan col. hectel at Quadalixara, it was found to be dechireliy Iaforfor In aumber to that of the enemy. fleterborough formed a plan for regainion ping. uration of the capltal. IIs plan was rejectel by Charles. The pallence of the menoltive and vala. phorlous hero was worn out. He hal wone of that serenity of vemper which enahlell Maribor. ourb to act in perfect harmony with Eugene. and to eadure the rexatlous interfereace of the butch deputies. He demanded permalioion wh leare the army. Permicelon was readliy granted! suid he set out for ltaly. . From thint mumeni to the end of the campaign, the thle of fortune ran atrong agplatet the Auntrian cause. Berwlek had placed alls army between the Aliles and the frumtien of Portugal. They retreatel on Valeucia. and arrived in that provisce, leaving about 10,000 primoners in the hanils of the eaemy."Lard Mreaulay, Xahon' Wiar of the Nuceccuian (tienge). - In the Netheriands the Alles won the lmpurtant rictory of Ramilliem, and in fialy. Prince Bugene fodicted a more defeat ou the French and remeued Turin. - See Stratilisda A. 11. 1700-1707; apd Itait: A. D. $1801-1711$.

ALo iv: C. T. Wiloon, Tho Dulio of Bervick ch. S-6. - W. Coxe, Xomwirs of if Burcioun singo of Spain, eh. It (r. Is A. D. 1707.- The War of the Sncceanlon: Ths fortimee of the Boprbons retrieved at Almanse.- "The enemy [the Allies] treitan tio blure agaln io Feliruary. After some weeks of masureurring on the contines of the klagutinn of Valencla and of New Castle. Aprll as. Galway and Las Mloas, wlablog to anticipate the arrivai of a relaforcement expected fromt France, at. tacked Berwlek at Almanza. Slaguinrly chomph. the Engliah were commandel by a Frimel refu: gee (Ruvignl. Barl of Gulway), nmi the French Iy a royal bastard of England (the Doke of Berwirk. amturai onn of James II.]. The ruemy the Franco-Cantilians were somewiat iuferior in in: fiutry, some what superfor iu cavalry and artillery." The battle, decidel by tipe cirviry. was disastrous to the Allies. "The Engllail. Wutch sad Portuguese Infantry were cut to pleres: the Portuguese foot showed a courage less fortunate. hut not lean latrepid, than the Spaulvi cavalry: Another curps had fought whe stifi greate F fury -the French refugees, comunaderi by Jeni ('aralier, the reoowned C'anisarl clicflain They had engaged. Freach regiment, wuil the iwn corps had amost destroged cach other. Six latiallons were surrounded antl taken In a lxals. Thirucen other ballallons, ive Eugisht, tive Dutch. and three Portuguesc, retired, at evening, to i wimitit hitil; reeling themselves cut off from the mountains of Valencia, they surreulered thetinmires prisoners the next moralag. Hochstadt (Hilrabeim) was fully avenged. Five thatanath it. ui, uearls 10,000 prisoners. 24 cannon, 120 tags or atandands, were purchased on the part of the coaquerors by the loes of oaly about 2.000 mec. Many Prenchmen, taken at Hochatail or at Rumillien, and enmilest by force in the ranke of the euemien, were thelivered by the victory. The Duke of Oriens rewched the army the next uny. Ile mampiel wheth Berwhy on Viplea. cha, which atrreatenel. May 8, without atrikiog a blow. The generals of the exemles, boith wouliled, retired with the wrecks of thelr amplea towarin the mouths of the Eliro. The wlule kiugiom of Valencta aubmitted. With the excepthon of three ur four places. Ieerwleck followed tile enemy tiwaris tho mouth of the Eloro, whillat Orieans returned to meet a French corpan that was comiug by the way of Sararre, and with that corpos entered Arazut, Seariy all Aragon ybliled withutt realatarie. Berwlek johed Urleans by acerniling the Eilim; they murent toCether on the Negre and hegna the linoknile of Lerlula, the bulwark of Cataloula." Lerlifa was Caken hy storm on the 12th of October, and " piliagel wlth Immense limoty.. Occother, cantle of lerfila nurremilervi, Sovember is. A great part of the Catalan mumataineers lald down thelf arms.

Fortune had favorell the Franco. Cantlisan on the Portuguem fruntier an in the States of Aragem; ('luilad- Iluifigo haml leen taken hy araniult, detober th, with the luen of tume than 3,000 men on the side of the enemy. The news of Ahanza hal everywhere remal. materi the hearts of tive french armbes. " -11 . Marlu, Hine, of Prears: Age of Louis XIV. (er. by Y. L. Dhus(t), e. 2. eh. s.
Alems tw: Cil. A. Parabil, The Wiar of the sure.

A. D. $1707-17100$-The War of the Snceesslon: Bourbon reversen and anal triumph."In less than a month after the vletory of ilminiaza, the lhurfont trinps hall recovermi all Arragon, with Valeucla and Murela, exeeptlug the perts of Dentia and Alicaut: but the war at lif coutinumal in C'atalonla. witere Geurral Stau. hope vow nillest the doubtic othee of amtrassarior to ('harles ainl gevernif of the Eng iisil forces, and forme starminerg was mut by the emperor Jomepit to take the command of the Auptrian trmepis. The spanial guveranmeut was reluced to still greater pecunfary diatress than it hal nuf. feral infore, by the suceces of the English mitrudron of ('arthagena. unier the command of Sir charies Wager, wilch traik three of the great gailenus mul dixpresell fourteen, which were ex fretel co furnish an nnusual suppiy of the ore. clons metais from America. After a whort siege of Port Mahom. Geurrai Ntanhope tonk prieges shon of Minura anit Majorea A. D. Iormp the conut of Clfurntes galned Sardinia: and ati the ellorts. splrit, and taiteuts of tire duke of Orleans were insuthient to make the slightest luppres. sinu in Cataiocia. Il- consertueutly compialued. In ints letters to Versillits. that his operutions were thwarted or retarded by the intrigues of the Priscess (Orsinl aund the ambasamior Ameiot. Ife wes accusell In return, and that not without ramin, of forming designs on the criwn of Spalh, aud correspondlog with the rnermies of Phillp on the subject. The fortunes of Frauce and Spain stlll continued to decliae, and Louls felt that prace was the only measure wituleh curitis siop the progress of that ruln whleh menaced the louse of Bourinul. Conferences were accordlagly opened at the llague, and Louis pretended that he was willing to give up the Intereat of Phillp; at the ame time hif Kiog of Spm a; and Plulif in tio turn (inntignted partilone rot the spanly monarrty which the treaty of "Techt holl at pi llated In faront of the Emperar To defent the roferta and merret is trigues of the Spanish m. step [Carflan! Alber.

 thought of aurtiag an alliance whit Finflamif. It majatalaing the tmaty of Litpeche. the fundal. meutal artlclee of w . th had been clicested hat hermelf. That alliance thto which the thetel by Provinces aloo entered, wa cunchalowi at the Il a que JJamary thh, " is © SYarlloal tiluep. onl, whant belage tap it it Itmonacerfed by the Triple Alliawce, peristed! In lils ulealgit of recommenelng she war. So mwner had he re. crupelithon, than be forrem. amil equiplivel an experthon, than be attact of Sandinin ( $1: 1 \%$ ), wheh he tonik from the Eimperiog. Thle (exn. danlama lank foull be of Nicily, whech the Fpiniama fonk frum at thake of saroy llils) France min Englami, ludignatit ox the lifraction of irtaly which ther regan af an thetr own ruple Allarue, Whil ha contalned the plan of a traty of ['itren ind the y!salruphe athlace we dima lu exchange which the king of sjuin was to diwhelm. The t. hht of reve whin to the sartlinla. That tresty likentee grabitid in thon at the graml duchy of Tuscouy, י"t comillioun of the mit hesitate ta mulucrlise the cinullthons of the 'piactrople athoure: lint It was othorwise fial. When Frunce abil Eniolatal deedarind war and ibe port of file the finglish wifat (atlleha

 the formar aud Vhetur Inablells Duke of satvole, larma, and fincent: s onto..l the the Infant if span, wat sorqtly ribnod iu Italy. Tlue Emperor parovolied commerclal fesloumies In Englanil ant llolland by charteriaga Company uf thend 1724) With excluaive privileges of II allas to the Sial and Weet Indies and the couta of Africm. An aftempted congress ae up. Meantime the Pronch court givo mortal effene to the King of Spaia by semilig home hla daughter, Wo hat been the latemiet brtile of the young King Loulu XV, wil marrylng the Iatter io a frilloh princems. The dibal remile wia to drav the Emperor and the Klag of Sinfli che two origina enemles in the etilinollment clutert il ireaty froween them wis cun-jrurbaces of fraunclathou of Plllip V. to the at ahat of the Limperif tes Notheriands, an well The eventual inventiture of the and the Indlese and Pacentla, and that of the grand duchy of Tuscany, were alzo contimed. The nal' claten cuntalneil in the treaty was that io chech The King of Sjuain undertomik to harantae the Prmous Pragaiatc Sanctlon of Fhaples VI. which aechimil to the danghter of that prince the aucreation of afl his coutites. It was chitefly on this meonnt that [bllip F. Becmene reronctled to the mourt of Vlenna. The peace of lienna was trrompanind liy a defeastre mifiance Inet wren the Emywror nut the kilng of spains." The terma of the allinnce Were mach at to afarm Eingladil for

 R/Fhiz lumasibess lo F'ruace. Hy ti actlon of the hatere, a leagur was wet on finit a pablabe of Stad ix lunt Mahan (Entl stanhoymelo /linp.

 A. D. 17ri- The olvein" rh "-lit
 1anes. it: $i$ A. D 174. - Guarantec

 Iand. -Siege of liibraliar. quarrela with Eng--Second - Sreat of --Second Treaty of Vienna.- Acquisition of the Itslian Duchies.-. $\quad$ Hif kincugre treeane all. orer: amd thontoly
 It atless were enty defonsive, yet rarh mate fex tenaive jreparations for war. George I interad ouf fort: the men was cuvered whth Engeliah therls nu Finglish a patron tinder Admintl llimiur an moyed the trulde of spaluler Alminat llimine an Spaniarin lahil slege to Gbbratar. aml wizel at hig tu the Eoggllvis south then Company but all there vant preparations led to nor resiltes of imb jrirtance of all the European l'owers. spain alone has ang rea! dealre for war. I'owers. Thatian

BPAIN, 1723-1781.  SPAIN, 1779-1782.

IIminaries of a general pactacation were algned at Parls, May sist 1787, hy the ministers of the Emperor, France, Great Britaln, and Holiand, and a Congrees was appolnted to amemhle at Alx.la.Chapelle to arrange e definitive peace. But Spain stlli held aloof and mought every oppor. tunlty to temporise. The hopes of Philip beligg again awakened hy the death of George I. In July 1727, he renewed his intrigues with the Jacobites, and Instigated the Pretender wo proceed to a port In the Low Countries, wad to melze an opportunlty to paes over Into England. But thew unfoueded expectations were son illapr' 'led by the quiet accemion of George 11. to the tnione sud policy of his father. . . . The Spanish Queen [Elizabeth Farnewe], howeve : stll held out ; till, alarmed by the dangerous stive of Phil. Ip's health, whowe death silght fruatrute her favourite scheme of ohtaining the Itallan duch. lea and leave ber a mere cypher wlthout any polltical intluence, she Induced her huaband to sceept the preilminaries hy the Act of the Parlo. March 0th 1728. A congrese was now openel at Solseons, to which place it hal been trans. ferred for the convenlence of Fleury [Freach minister), who was hishop of that dioceec. But though little remained to be arranged except the matialaction of Spain in the matter of the Italian duchies, the negoclathons were tedious and protracted." In the end they "lrecame a mere Parce, and the varlous plenipotentinries gralually wltiulrew from the Congreas. Meanwinle the birth of a leuphin (sept. tilh 172D) having din. adpaced the bopes of Philip V. and his Queen as to the French auccesalon, Elizaleth devoted her. self sil the more warmiy to the promecution of her Italian schemes: and tinding ali her eforts to separate Fraber and Englaud unavailing, she at length determined to arcept what they oflered.

She peramaded Philp ty enter into a reparate treaty whith France sand Englami, which was conciuded at Neville, Nor. Uth 1 Bisy. Engiaud and spaln arranget their conumerchal nul other diferences; the mecceaton of lhou carlina to the Italian duchlem wun guarantee!; nul it was agreed that Legiorn, l'orto Ferrajo. I'arma, add Placenza should be garriwimel by bione spaniaris, who, however, were uit fo interfore with the ctvil government. Nothing ramer was sald about Gibraltar I'hilip. Indecel, memeel uow to have abandoned ail hop of rerovering that fortress; for be monn afterwanis caused to lee constructell acrose the ivthmus the strung lines of inn lungue, and thus completily isentated gilh. ratiar from hils simanish ithaluions: The Ditecin acendeol to the Treaty of Sevilie ahorty after lts execution, on tise understauding that they whould recelve eutire astinfaction nexperctage the India Company entabilishend by the Emperor at Ontend Charles Dil. was lumignant at Inclag thus trentemi ly spain.

Ou the ilcath in Antminio Farnome: Iluke of Parma, Jamanty loth lisi, he tomk nifiltary proweswion of that state. . . The rerrsatility of the cabinots of that age, however. enablel the Eimper attain his Parourte oll. jeet at a moment wuen be least expected it The Gneen of Spain, wearied with the slownews of Carlinal Fleury in carrylgg out tise provisions of the Treaty of sevilie, sindieniy declared, in a At of paaton. that spain wan uo longer bound by Llat treaty (January 1731) (ireat lirialu anil the Dutch states, in conscort with tire spaniais Court, wlthout she coucurreuce o! France, now entered lato negociations with the Empernr, which were akilfuliy conducted hy Loril Wulde: grave, to induce hlus to accede to the Treaty if Seville; and, on March 16th 1781, was concliuited what has been called the Becond Treuly of Vienma Great Britaln and the Stake guarabteed the Pragmatic Sanctlon; and the Euljurir, on his side, acceded to the provisions of suilio respecting the Italian duchies. ami agreui to annibilate the commerce of the Austrian in tinerlandis with the Indies hy abolishing the olmosions Oatead Company. Ile aloo engaged nut tult. stow hle daughter on a Bourlonn prince, or in any other way that might endanger the iniance of power In Eurupe.

In the following So rember an Englith aquadion dinembimaken at Leghorn 6,000 Spaniaris, who took posmensiun of that place, as well as Purto Fermjo, Parma, and Hacenza, in the name of Don Carlos, an thikr of Parma and preaumptive helr of Tuscany. "-T II. Dyer, Hior. of Moxlern Europe, bk. B. ch. I ir. ili.
Almo Ex: Lord Mahon (idarl Stanhome), Hist. of Eing., 1718-17世3, ch. 1t-15 (r. y) - W. Cise, Yise. of the Houce of Aurfin, ch. 8y (t. 3) - 16 . Coxe, Momoire of the Rurbon Kimpa is simin. ch. 36-40 (e. 3).- E. Armatrong. Eliminth Firr. nex. "The Termagrunt of Nymin." ch. 11-1t
A. D. 1733. - The Firat Bourbon Family Compact (France and Spain). See Frisce. A. D. 1733.
A. D. 1734-1735- Acquiation of Naples and Slcily, as a Kingdom for Don Carios. Ne Pranex: A. 1). 173is-173s.
A. D. 1739.- Outbreak of hostilities with England. The War of Jenkins' Ear. Te EnG: AND: A. D) 1 139-1itl.
A. D. 1740 . - Unauccenaful attack of the English on Floride. See Georoin: A 111 ith $1 i t 3$.
A. D. 1740-1741.-Beginning of the War of the Austri.a Succession. See Aurthis id. 1i40-: 741 .
A. D. 1741-1747.-The War of the Austrias Succesaion: Operations in Italy. ficy Irulr: A. 1). $1 i+1-1 i+3$. to $1 i+6-1 i 4 i$.
A. D. 8743.-The Second Family Compace of the Bourbon kings. - Arrangementa conceraing Italy. See France: A. II lit: the tonesf.
A. D. 174E.-Accession of Ferdinand V1.
A. D. $1744^{6}$. - Termination and results of the War of the Anatrian Succeasion. tiv lix LaChapelle. Tie Conirema
A. D. 1759.-Accesaion of Charles lli.
A. D. $8761-1762$. The Third Family Compact of the Bourbon kings. - Ergiand declares

A. D. 1762-1763.-Havana lost and recor. ered. sere (tul: A. [) $1.51+1$ [.it
A. D. 1763. - End and results of the Seven Years War.-Fioride ceded to Great Britaia. -Louisiana acquired from France. -ip ater Jeinn Wak: The Theitien.
A. D. $1760-1769$ - Occupation of Louisiame. -The revolt of Few Orleans and its suppres-
 1769
A. D. 1767.-Suppression of the order of the Jesuita. Ster Jkarits: A. 11. 1861-1:149
A. D. 1779-1781. - Reconquest of West Floride. Ser Flakida. A. II $1774-1 i^{-1} 1$
A. D. 1779-1782. - The unaucceanful siefe

SPAIN, 1782.

Gedey.

SPALS, 1788-!800

A. D. $1762 .-$ Aims and intersats in the settiement of peace betweem Great Britain and the United Staise.-Attempts of Vergemase to satiefy Spain at Amarican expence. See Exitid Statise or Ax.: 1 . D. 1782 (Brptex hen-Novevark.
A. D. 1783-1800.- The queation of Floride boundaries and of the navigation of the Mis-slssippi, in dispute wlth the United States sissippi, in dispute with the United States.

A. D. 1788-1808. - Accession of Charles IV. -The Quen, Maris Louise, and Manvel Godoy.- Corruption and degradation of the Court. - Causes of French contempt. "Charles iil. had just died when the French Revolution commenced. He was the heat mover. elga that Spain hal had in a long time ; he left gime ministers: Aranda. Campomaness. Florila Elanca: hut it wan not given to them to cunthue his work. Thim reparative relgn was folbwed hy one the moat disintegrating. Npaln. crace zaew for an instant hy an intelligent prince, was, in a few years, unier the governmeat of an imberlle one, to tounder lur an lanohle marigue. The weh of thin linter was hegun hin medlately upon the ace man of the new klug (harles IV. wan forty years ohl : corpulunt anil reak minded, slmple and cholerlc, Incapable of buliev ig evil because he was Incappahle of con ceiriag it: amorons. chante, devout, and cunse quenty the alave of bla wife even mure than of his chupprament, the tirst years of his narrince then print of sur his eutire Iffe. Nerupulous to the frint of separntine himalif from the quereit wher he uo hentere hopperl to have rhllitren by ber he took refinge In the chase, nianumblaber. Fhat int exprefoc, curling ouly for the inhle umusic amil hull-dights. "xhaustis) when he hatd followed bis trule of klus for lualf an hour. Suatl aul ath ult beasty dark of courphex xon. but with *ince srace. whe eve ghone aid ahove all car giafo. Mnriv Lonise of l'arma was at onver supwr. pitious and pasalotiate, Ignorant, uneavy, with a rery friviluma mout as a foumelathon, whith obath. nary withont firnuses, with artitice wlthunt in iolliverice, whethtigute leading to no rewilt. sin pr covetursurews than umbithon, nuld empti hitwo of minal, stllf nure of heart. Il.r lusthand

 - futhly for her wher "ihbron. she was hirty.

 ritur: What she axeededed the threme nond the nune of tionthy there him the hor wity. Ile. W1. a suat provinefal centlman: fir cinck of bry handermes was thell sempeones Howhe tire ine of the winth. Whlech piver ion vole ib that ait if resprainall and hmproloins pawion. Io lua Friture it mema to he hiawner of liwelf. The Wh wility: be took alvinhage of is wifhour hame. she was bot satianioul to makre of Cowhy him limer she doolreal to mahe a great man of Wwir. She formatued hims to the court and $+17$

Into the intimacy of the royal household. Where Charles IV. tractahly becanic Infatuated with aim. Slarle Loulme had at frat some circumthe lavisheat upradation of the honors which she lavishent upmu hima, and whilch marked, hy but many scanials, the progrems of her ramalon: but the was rery mon entirely pusversed hy it. to that wheh aver her an ascembancy equal Charles wheh whe arrugated wo berself over Charles IV. Thus on the eve if the Frenth Revoluthun, these three iversons, so atrangely the sustere degan, In evimrt rewthane, and under the allstery decoring of the palace of ihlllp II., that comenty, an off as vher sund stuphlty. of the crmplant husband dupsel hy his wife nul of the old mistress explalted by her lover. At the Irglaning of the relpu. (harles if. Proniscruple the quevel from hyprerlsy. Ginthy frons pollcy berame devont. The puwen whated power for Graluy, and Ginduy wishatl It fur hoce. It was neqexary to m.t aside the olf chunsellons of Gindoy relleyt ind rutholle: Marie laulese amd Then melled on the ohl spanish fanaticisam. Thre mlulsters very wan hant luflurnce, and after havhig merluled thom fir sume time, the pheen Ungracerl them. A complete rearchon unok place In spain. The church regained tho couplre: the imgulsitlon was reeestuhblishevl. it would up penr then that the Revelution nuse wombersarify a devolit governament eoule bint w.ter It. But before helng a Buintwan the klag was a hasimanal, and Marle Limise was devent maly to musk liver therigites. The sume pasditia hat har tos devire peace to roader hime pepplar. Thes debllitata trmphation of ashity. There who hatiot treat dhminate it. We see it macressively liakevi to Findaml. then to Frumer: trent the bevolution with cumaideration. romilemu it with vinlenere emplue it whthont vigor: ark sul ullhuser with fatal fur her than warre for Spulta the ficesmen ity hath thruitule of it- rule re. The Frenell were lait by the latite ant tralitione of the - amplen nution conalgurd tur the rible uf andiliury. Ilolld She the court of Epmia ac cowarlly and vermit phe: bue they thosisht that the lase Allatrian rowlute. Bhane could take up agala the worh if napus of rospous trentment and appropiate applications What iomis XIS hacl clablertaken suldy It the tuterest of deaphotism. Frature. her and revereratad by the levelu- bin. hand the richt athal the power hi accomplinlh, fir the Whethest good of Apaln ani of bumanlty. Theor caleula. thons in which the execnilal clement, that is to ceivel the Conapeation, led the Mrectory astray. and endial by araslag Ninpolion Into the mowt fatal of lis enterprises." - A. Norel. $:$ : Eír in Ib codution frunguim (trans. Irum the Frewch), pt 1. 1. $1.183-17 \%$

A. D. 1798-1793. The Coalitlon of European Powers against revolutionary France. -Interest of the Spanish Bourbons.-Treaty of Aranjuez wilth Great Britain. Sie Fuaser:
 1:9月 (MARCH—SEPTEMAER).
A. D. 1793.- Successes on the Freach fron-Behi Phokineme of thf: Wah.
A. D. 1794, French anccesses ln the Pyre-
 - Mat).
A. D. 1795. - Peace and alliance with the French Republic,-Cession of Spanish San Domingo. lue Fuanik: A. I' lís (IINEー DE: EMAF:
A. D. 1797.- Naval defeat by the English of Cape St. Vincent. NיE Exisaind. I. II. 17v\%.
A. D. 1797 - Cesaion of westera part of Hayti, or San Domingo, to France. See Havt: . I. II. 10H2-1Nh
A. D. 180t.-Recession of Lonisiana so

A. D. ${ }^{1802 .}$ - The Peace of Amlens. - Recovery of Minorca and Port Mahon. Sie Fuasce:

A. D. 1805. - The naval defeat at Trafal-(EMuER).
A. D. $1807-1808 .-$ Napoleon's plots for the theft of the Spanish crown.-The popular ris-Ing.-Accession of Ferdinand VII- "Fir uniry than ten yman mpaln hanl Ineon ilmwin ln the wake uf reviluthoary Prume Tu Nupaleon from the Ingelaning of his rilgn sloe han lerett as sulmer vhent as Ifolland ur swlizerlanel; she lime dereal Trlaintat to; muke the treaty of Ambens. fayd glven her thet to deatructlon int Trafalear.
 lamel and the Italian Repuhlie, Napoleens hat re. mowlolted the gesarmanert at his plensure, and In ramexl with spatio. The Srlate of the lorace was of fill!erar of the 1 wo Ameriens, de but the แain ןroshan wian that afremb army wasto uny Interventinn of Enghand The ex'cupathon of lartural twok flace wxill after. Jimot arriving family whlo a fotlossme of weveral thumamela met flet. At the wine thar there 'inturnewl la de.

 lato spain, whleh conthaid untll m, om liad ar. rived, and had taken yalet possebslua of a num. ber of Spaulsh fortresees. At lant Murat nat appolnter to the crominand of the army of Apuin. Ile enterel the country on Mareli 1. $1: 4 \mathrm{Na}_{\mathrm{a}}$. anil narcherl na Maditil, calculatlug that the king would retlre nail take refuge at द्वevllte ot ('anliz. This act revealed to the worltl, and eves to a Inge party anuing the French themselven, the nature of the power which had been ereated as Tllatt. The lawles acts of Napoleonin curlior llfe were palliaterl by the name of the froubly IRevolutlon. and alace Itrimalre he lumb ralah. lahnel a cliaructer for comparnilve umaleration. Itut here was anked voleace whthout the evouse of fanatlelam; ame on what a ecrale! the of the grealer states of Euroge was In the lamilu if a fiarglar, who would moreover, If suceresfinl. Ine. conue klag not onls of Spaln but of a lmomilh.as ensple la the New Work. The serpull was worse cuen than thls commencement, alitwinsh the course which events tox)k wems to slaw thas be unans of a llttle delay be might hase utiainms ulminlstritlou of spaln had long leece in the com. temptlile hamals of Nunnel Gexloy, suplowil in In the fuewnis lover, yet at the sume thur high In the favor of Kligg Charles IV. Ferilluand, the lecir apparent, healled an oppoulthus. lime in character he was ant letter than the trio lue up. gomel, and he had lately been put uniler arrat on susplelous of lesigns upoa fils fatheris life. To have fomented this oppoustion withont taking elther shle, and to have rendered luots siles elpually conteniptible to the Spanish peryle. was Napmeron's sume. The spatish proyld. wh.) profomally andmitred hlm, might then hiver tuma imiluevel tionak ham for a klag. Napolocin, hew: ever, perixtruterl hls crime Ike fore the wamlal if the palace hroke ont. The march of Murat mows hronght it to a heme. (On Marelt 1: a tuanit liroke omt at Aranjuez, which had tor the tail of the favourite, and then to the chalieation inf the king. and the prevelathaton of Fiorlinand amid unl cerwil trity Sunaluh enthusiasia. If was 3 fatal matake to have fureed on thls prymar er plowhon, und Sapmeon has elsaracteris: ically that Nurels 29, las which he trles to throw the lame

 the mobleanal clergy, whleh will leat lua live la short, wll that tionk place, limi lt his a sety mark uf Invemtion, and was certainls ueber re lige thas begum. all that the Fremeh comid la was was limlured to Inetake lamaself to Siluthens

 !! his father and mother followerl on the with.
 tewsarrivet of an lasurrecton at Malrilamb of the stern mappreanhon of It ly Murat Inthe eral Sapoleon surveredod ln exterilug the alntiation tom late that the Insurferthon of spath hat ant really Ik'en suppreswal. This crince, as ofmagy as It winy moustrons, brought on that great mpu-

SIPAIN, 1 Sot.

lap Insurrection of Earmpe agalnat the universal monarchy, whlet has protusilly molltien all aulsey Uent hlatory, and makey the Intl-Napohebale flevolution an reent of the sanse order as the Freach Revolation. A rising anparal leled for les sudilengews and subllme spoutaneousness twok place throughout spala aud speedlly found a response lu Germnuy. A new tapulse was glven, nut of which grew the great nathnallty moveatent of the nlateternth centary.
 arf. 1.
At.un tw: Slr A. Alloon, Hive, of Europe, 18m 1N15, ch. 52 (c. 11)--1R. souther. Jint. if the fi.
 Panitrey, Nemanirn of Jippuleon, r. 8, ch. 32-P $P^{2}$ lanitry. Hint. "f Fivmiem, e. 3, ch. tainl b-s.
A. D. 1808 (May-September), The stolen crown conferred on Joseph Bonaparte.-Na. ional revolt.-Organization of Juntas and planalng of guerilla war.-French reverses.Qulck fifht of Joseph Bonaparte from Madrid. - Arrival of English forces to ald the people. Mirat was ilsalypunterl of the crown of Spuls. on whleh he had tixad hiss hopera. It had trevin refued! with surprlse anal indlgnation lye Ni: puieon's brother Leiuls. Whos wore rolnetantly even that of Ifollami, but was unwllling ture change it for n stlli deejer royal servitude. Jose ph Boaaparte. Inowerer. conseateyl to uhinfina hils nure tratigull throne of Suples for the dangers and discontents whelh surroundeal that "f Smala. Napmeon, who lad numbated hlam to it dube fith, wha deslrous of pricuring at leant the alparent coasent of the spamblh aation. The Conucel uf Castile, the chlef priltseal landy if -ain, when haformed of the Trutlos of Bayume, asentat to the accesshon of doseph lis cexample Wha follioweil ly the suprome dubta and the mumipalter of Madrol. There was, Judend, mo atronative but war. Ferditumplepopiayed on the tulutry. Ite nut oaly wrote to Najubion to cx pirese his satisfartion it the ele vation of dorepls.
 dhe man who hat ustrped his rown: Haws tewt fims mulder hls own hat his utter muworth

 Juty ith, and a day or twa after doselh left a tre"ty with hig brother Sundem, he which he atil never to subult to the wridhote memy who anif teprived hima of lifs rishts. Thls licter hif another proclatmathon whels Ferollnaud and his hrothens were compe-lley! to slgun at berdeans Mey lith. callap Hpan the Spanlaris nut to "p this last adifress, evidently extorted from a pris oner, a genural ery of Indignation arome la Spinln the people everywhere dew to armm, except where proventrid by the presence of Freach troxps. The clty of Valencla renouncel its olse. dleare to the Guvernment of Malrld, May 23rd. Seville followed lts example, nind on the 2ith, Jiseph Palafox organlael at Snragosan tho Insurrection of Aragon. As these lasurrectlons were accumpanicel with frightfil massacrem, prinel. pally of persons wha hat hele high clevil or mill. tary punts muler Charles IV., the beiter classes. to pas an emil to these lomrible scenes, establinshed centml Juatar In the prinelpal towns. . . They propusel! but to meet the encony

They Imatiles lo the apen tifh, Dum to lariss, wear out and overneme hilu ly 'guerilla,' or the dacuralve and lueroswint attacks of meparnte small bande. The supretac Junta lasumel lostructous for con dueting thla moxle of warfare. Ambalasin was Thetter difed for orgailwag the revolt, if such is caa be cullect, than any other province of spaln. Its populathon fonmed ione-fifth of the whole na tion, It prosersend the sule canthat fommery lat the klagedum. It vontainel half the dlapmanthle span Inh armis. and it could recelve asolutunce from the Eaglish leoth hey newas of Glliraliar and of Collingwond's they that was crulsime on the cuast. One uf the fint feats of armes of the Frencians was to compel the surrember of fire French ships of the liap and a frigate. Which hat remalaeyl in the part of Cinllz ever since the huttle of Trafilgar (June Itho. Marshal Moncry was repuimel towarls the end of dune in an alsance than Yulenclia, and compelled to not reat
 In the north-wes the spauiards were bese fors
 -infrated he Marshal lbessleres, iluly $1+$ thi, at dietory was the temporary suhuissinu of Leon, the Fronelh. Lhat this misfortime was mure than comaternalameryl by the victory of dieneral Cinstantur avor thi Frolleh in Amlalusta, a few lays after fenerals limpont and Verlel hal ad vaacol iato that provine as far as corlowa, bat ration, the commenieme th of the Fremeli reverses have Madril, Ausnet /as. which he lad ouly enLeren in the diay uf the battle, and tyy tulurgos. This lapmertani vietory not muly lusplerel the

 On the day ufter the battle Costantos lavised a prochamathon whieh doxe him great honsur. Ile turobieal the spantards to slow humbaty towaris the Fromel prianers of war, and thrintened to shont those wher shoule matereat them. Such. hines. "Wer. was the exnsperalan of the gheple arainat their Invalers, that sumbers of the Freneds were milosacred an their mate to Calliz for embarka time, and the remalnder were treated whth bar barme hahumaty. These criseltes hall, how ever. Hectl provikerl by the atricitios if ille Frourh at the capture adil suck of Condova. The campmiga la Aragon was stll more clorloby for the spualaris. Palafox. whether or hut be was nothing, the meana by which the French were repulsell in everal deuperato amaulia upon Saragoeas, and at length compelled to retreat after a alege of some weeks (August 14 th ). The partiot cause was soon after strecgethened by the arrival at Corunna of Ceneral La Romana, with F.000 of his men from Denmaris (Sept. goth). Keats, the English admiral in the Batitr, land in. formed him of the rising of his countrymen and providell him the means to trannport his troops from Nyhorg. The English Government, soun after the breaking out of the insurrection, hal proclalmedl a peuce whth the Spanish nation (July 4th 180w), and had prepared to assist them in thelr hervic struggle. The example of Spain had almo encouragel the Portuguese to thmur ofi the insurferable yoke of the French. A Iinta was eatablishell at Opmoto. June bith, anil nu insurrection was organised in sll parts of the king. dom where the french forces were not pretomilnant. Sir Arthur Weilesler, with aloutt 10.000 British iromps. landell at ylonilego Iayy, July 81 st ."-T. II. Dyer. Jliaf, of Numern Eurupe, bk. 7. ch. 14 (e th Alimi is. T. Hamilion, Annale of the Penin. milur Compuigna, re 1, ch. $t-10$. -Barma Jomilul, life if Nifundoun, ch. 12 (e. 2), -( deen. For. Mist. of the Hist in the Prnisoula, r. 2. $\boldsymbol{p}^{\text {f. }}$ 1.-Count Miat de Melito. Vemaira, rh. 23-2\%.

A. D. 1 LOB (September-December).-Napoheon'a overwhelming campaign againat the Spanish armien, - Joseph reinatated at Madrid. - "The French Himaters In the Peninsina whimik the inelled in Nspmberon's invincllithy wheth hat prevallet thronghout the Continent. mait the Elupenor anw that he mant cruald the - paniarisa at once, before the Eugliwh conld ad valce from the forttical bome they hal acynirent oull the thank of the spangh phrius. To mecure his prower ath the slde of tiermmpy, he hat a prolinget intervew wh the Canr at Eirfurt.
 partal: and it the enil of tha month Sinpuleting wit ont from Parla for llay whter. atod conthumal

 drisen from Bilhme diy tiveral donchlom Blinke ware drawn uf lehthint the Elime It the last

 E-9世!

 they were again her hen wod thed to Hue mann tatias of the Cintativian chata. With the other if La kemman made tow way kiter lewn. t'ne ove - thelr plaine when Manalial Lanmem, llae las.

quered at Baylen not only maintalned their ground with oballancy, but drove back the French. At length they were outnumberell. aml Castaho feil back ln admirahle order umin Madrld through Caliatayud. The right, undir Palafox, retirel In disorder to Saragoma: ami now the road to Madrld was blockeel ouly by Gemeral San Juan with 12,000 men, who had en. trenched the somm Slerra Pase. But thly powt also was carrievl on the soth Noveniker hy the Podich lancers of the Impertal Gusrd, who rude up and speared the artilerymen at their guns. Aranjuez was at once abomioned by the critral Junta, and on the 2nd Decrmixer the Frimeth vanguaril apprarel ou the heights north of Mad. nil. The capital becane st once a meene of in. nult and confualon: Larticadem were erectent and the bells sounded the alarm, lutt po dibin cipliue was vislble in the assembling bands; sod when the helghts of the Retiro, overlionklug the clty, were carriel by the French ou the moming of the 3nl increniler, the authoritios ment out to arrange a mirrender. th the following turnuing the French enterefi the clty, Jow'ph was again instaileyl in the paince, where de putathos Wattel upon hims to cougratulate himi and ridew their problesaluns of devertel attachneent, and the clty mitthed down ouse more to tranquil nulbmis. sion to the foreigner." -11 . IR. Clinton, The llar in the 1rninuelit, ch. 3.
Alm) is: Gen. Vane (Marquis of latudenderrs). Sorry of the Rainoular Misr.ch os
A. D. ${ }^{180}{ }^{18}-1809$ (Auguat- january). Wet Hugton's firat campaiga. - Convention of Cibtra. - Evacuation of Portugal by the French. - Napoieon in the field. - Sir John Moole's advance into Spain. - Hia retreat. - His repulse of Soult at Corunna, - Hia death. - "sir Irthur Werlemicy's divislon monpirisell g.000) mern. AD. ofher corps, numer sir Jinn Mloore. Whifit had just arylved from the batic, numbered 11 (ma)

 by sir llew inarymple mul sir lhirry Bhrramh, two gencruls whove explents wire betior haling In the privnte nerorim of the llorse ditarin than In the anmals of their conntry. . . . Nir Anhar majur ketuml smaners curpes johned the army thar Wellesley they prepmred to march tha ario joined Latmarde and ladem int Torro S Coltas:

 principal athek oni the Itritad what the watre and left, the wather la their rear The attas

 The road of Torres Velras. the shorpest rand ho l.simen, was murovered. When the action mas bearly uver, ale llarry llurraril had landent it a privase lether, sle Arthur Wichlowly wrute. 'The French got a terrible keatiug on the 3 :s. Thes

SPAIN, 1800-1800.

did not low loas, I believe, than 4,000 men, and H. Burraid had bot pren entirely dentroyed, if alr them burard had not prevented me from purnutig them Indeed, slace the arrival of the great coerala, wo appear to have been palaled, and averything has gone on wrong." Slr John Moore arrived with his corps on the glat, and ble troope were nearly all landed when hostilltlee were sus. peaded by the Conrentlon of Clatra for the pracustion of Portugal by the Freach. Sir Ar. thur whies to Lond Castlereagh, "Although my flil not bell to this lastrument, I beg that you prove of it or that I I negotlated it, that I approve of it, or that I had any hand In worllag it., Imposelble for member, he writes ' It le quite thli army. in me to continue any longer wlth allow me to return home therefore, that gou wouid] of my offce." ley were all recalied home, Burrard, and Welles. ley were all recalied home. Sir John Moore re. malned at Llebon, having been appointed in command the army. A Court of Inquiry waa ondered on the subfect of 'the late iraneactlons tore the publlcity of ery hail to bear much before the publlcity of these proceeding wad lo et hlm right in public opinion. The Inguiry tire and convention dian pprobation of the armis. comend convention on the part of the king lreing cominunicated to sir llew Inalrymple. Neither of the two 'great generals' was again employed. One alvantage was galnev] by the Conrention. The liuaslan theet In the Tagus was delivereif up, to the British. Sir Jolin Moore, late in (ctolere, began lifs march into Spain, 'to co-ojereate,' us bls instructlans set fortio. with the Apanish armies in the expuinion of the Froach." Ile was to jand the Isritish furce in I'urtugai; and to lue be landed at ('orunnas. Instedit io, onn) me(n to Prench had mufed and disperserd them. fint the lein had himaself come to cromimanil his stingis end hal arrived at thayonne on the Bri of Xisvember. Moore was epparuted frum ibuird hy n fate information to dirlue hasi bera led by fate information to dirlife his own arms. ife and uncertuin. Madrid was sumatin the lative of the Froncis. Minare name an formari mowe. ment agatust the wlvanced corfis of sumf; mond then, learuing that the Frebeh armales were guthering alt nrou:i.] him, be determithed to res treat. Sir bavid Balri had previnialy julned fenliag lortugal, abij had directeol hiv mateh from ahapun in the evening of the ? tho of Jhe cemper fluring this retront. the retirling uring tempribl la febore. The winter hati set hat with ITwore coilet not save hif uren frobly their own "reveres. Which mater curnies of the" Inhathitans I, "Bery place through which thry jbisasel dit etheral halted lifn exhaunted trongos, lefermified to give battle to Soult, to whom Napoleon had given up the pismuit of the Buslioh army, hat. ing recelved deapatches which Indicated that war With Austris whas clowe at band. Boult declined the conflet; and on the Brittan marched to Corunns. On the 11th, when they had ascended the heighte from which Curunina was vislble, there were an transports In the bay. The troops met wlth a klad reception la the town; and their generai applled hianelf to make his positlon as strong as puoulble, to realat the enemy that was approaching. On the evening of the lith the traniports arrived. The sick and wounded were fot on board; and a great part of the artillery thelreen thoumand Britlah remalned to fight, if Corunna beran em were moleated. The battle of Jaouary. Souit had 20,000 veterans 16 th of merous tield.guns; and he hed plants, with nu dable battery on the he had planted a formivaliey and the on the rocke, commanding the French Infantry descencled hills. Coiumus of Hdge; and there was from the higher strength bet there was soon a elose trial of lower ridge Moore beheld the 42 ad and sone Jriving the eneny before them through the vil. lage of Elvina. He sent a bittailon of the guarls to support them; but through a misconception the 42 nd retired. Noore Immedi. ately dasherl Into the Aght; exclaimed Porty. secund. remember Egypt, and ent them back to the riliage. The British held thelr ground certathe of thelr assallants; and victory was certain under tive sklifui direction of the herole commaneler. When lue was dashed to the parth by a shot from the rock battery. Sir Darid Minite the cocoul In command, isal also fallen. Montre was carried Into Corunna; and endured sereral hours of extreme turture befire be Wh-lled uj) hif great spifit. The commaud had derolved ajon general Hope, who thought that his tirat duty was now to embark the trinjps. When the sufferers in Monaren came. faign canse hotne the howitals were flied whith Wrounded and sick: aud sonde of the tromps frought hack a ju-stileatiai ferers"-C. Kulght, 24. r. i. of fomplor Jliat. wh Eubridgment of ch. Alas in: (ieat Sir Wr of Euy.). the llitr in the Prinumido. bs. P. Napler, Jfint. If IViiwn, Vemairs of the Jivie of itellington, I

 r. 4.-d $1 k$ (Blelg. (icnérint Nir Juhn . Womreikimi-

Fuy. Nint. mith llitr in the frninmili, r. 2. py: siege of Saragosan. - Wheu Morse Was purnated hy Nif polerat. the buke of Infantath. who fail uf MuIrli. formed the Qulxutic deolkit of roe takitts the cophai. Marshal Victer, J lahne of the lith Jatuiry, Ishe, where 1 , 5(m) spanlarily were wion, athif dom) men and alf the store and arillery wore taken. The Frencis. In retaiantinu for the Ejaniaris haring hangei wome shlifers Whan had teru captured, mandereal many of the atrintiong ont tie Inhabitants of liches. The raluar lahind wails in their securd defencery Sarngosen, the slege of Which [abanioned the previous Auguat. after a therce struggle] was re newed by 35,000 French under Marshals Moucey and Mortler, on the 20th December. 180). The clty was defended by Palafox, who had retired into It after hle defeat at Tudela. The second slege of thto renowned city - though the defence eventualiy proved unsuccessful - crowns with everinstling slory the Spanlsh Wrar of Indequendence.

The citlzens gave up their gonds. their houses, and thelr boallee to the war, and. mingling with the jreasants and ooldiers, formed one mighty garrion sulted to tire vant fortrese they had formed. For doxors and windows were bullt up. house-fronts forpholed, Interual com mulcatlons opened, strects trenched noll crosed ly earthen ramparte mounted with caunon, and every atrong bulluing was a separate fortitica thon: there was no weak point - there could the bone in a clty whlch was all fortrens, where the space corerni! by houses was the measure of the raniparts (Najpler). All the trees outalde the Falls were cut down. the house destroyed, and the materials carried luto the town. ... The puinlie magazine were provinhoned for six montis, and all the conventual commonities and the inhabltanta lind large private storem. Nearly 8.mW artillerymen and saplers, und 30,000 nein of the regular army, had takeu refuge in the cliy, and at least 20,000 chtzens and figlitive persants were tis forarms. The popular lemblers had recourse to all the aid whilch superatition could glve them: deninuclatous of the wrath of Hearen were hurled ou thoee who were susperted of wavering, and the clorgy readily recounterl stories of nilrache to encourage the faltiful. Saragissa was 'belleved to be Invhichle throurh the frotectlon of Uur lady of the 1hilior. who had elooen it for the serat of her pecculiar worshitp.

An appearauce la the sky, which at other thats maght lave passed unremembered, and perhapm unnoticeal. hal given strong equtimas.
 fore the commerevinent of the tirst slege, a white clouil appeared nt uexin, aud gridnally assumeal the form of a paimetree: the sky le'ing In all other parts clear. except thut a fow sureks of theery choud hovered about the larger ines. It was tirst alservend orcr the charch of X. Sinura ael liortillo, and moving from thence till it wetned to be lamediately alnive that of the pilhar, enintimed in the same form almont half an funtr, and then dixpersed. The luhabiatis nere In a state of wach excltement that erowde joltued In the arclamation of the tint Incholitor. shio crient ratt, " I miracle: "一 and after the defent of pengle prowiaimhig with exultathon that the Pirglu hat by thiv tokeft preftenreal the victors ber firntertiou as ling as the worhil mhatit ent dure "southey) At dayloreak illt the '3lat the Monte Tirrera. last C'onme Cisazan do la Id.yriere - a senteral highiy distinguinhat in the twise and fiallan campaigia - failet fa hito at. tack ufut the oulurlos on the foft trank of the Fibme, and the evonthlence of tho sjaniamis It their leaders was rexturiol Three haya later the.

 tluas lneing directell ly fencral lat (ombe. In the 3uth Inecember, the trenches lxitug com pleted, the town was atmmoned to surrender and the example of Madrit was referred to: but Palafox replled proudiy. 'If Madrld has satr. renderenl. Mailrid has leeen cold: Baragosea will nelther le molit mor murremdered.' Marsimel Minn cey beling recnileal is Maitrid. Junot took commaud of hls corps. The besleged attempted anv eral sallen. wlilch were repuleed; and after a Leary Inmianincut, the St. Joweph convent wa carried by the Freach on the 11th Januars, teng The Spanlsh leaders malntalned the courage if thelr conntrymen by proclaimhag a forgenl de sputch narrating the defent of Sapolenn. The guerrilia bauda begnn to gnther In guund the French. aml their condition was becoming peril ous. But the command had now Inern tuken by the Invinclule Marshal Lannes. Duke of Mlupte Ix-lto (wito had been detalned by a long tlineze), the approaches were teadlly pushent int, the brenches in the walis ixecame fliler, and on the goth the Freuch rished forward and towh prases. slon of the ramparts. 'Thua the wails of Zata gozn ซeut to the ground ; hut Zaragoza remadned erect, and as the lirnken glrile fell from the horole clty. the thesleger started nt lure naked atrength. The regalar defences hail rrumbiled, hut the popuiar resistance was Instantly calied whis all lts terrors litu netlon: aud as if fortude Lat rewolveal to mark the exact moniont when the ordinary ralculations of ecienere shomble frase. the chlfef chighers on lenth ades [La Cinte and

The Junta was It mo degree cowel: they remolvel on ramatance to the last extremite, soit a row uf gibluta was malser for any who shomld dare to projeme surremder. Adilithonal harri cades were constructesl, and alarm-lu-l/s were rung to summon the chizens to the thratemel points. As rach house was in liself a furt which haif to the separately uthekid, minius mow was lual recomite to. In this art the skill of the Frouch was unquantloneal, and fiom after remta and houme after houme was carrienl But stlly the chilitren lefise lusithed together in the rellan of Hilus of Fichrasty the daty dentho sore trom four to five lamitral, - the fivias write nable watteral almbit the wrents and folletvands of from the batiorion on the left bank of the Elym.

 trated with fever. atul unte lout the midiar pirbs:

P'AIN, 1808-1800.

SPAIN. 1809.
accuritug to the French: on honourable terma, acturding to the Apmalarils. Such was the close of one of the moat werule defences in the history of the world. If any condtions were really accepted, they were III ulserved by the vletors: the churches were plundered, and many of the clergy aud mouks were put to death.

The other stronghoides ha Aragon, one after another. aurreadened (1) the Frrencts before the enil of March. In Catahoula the French, under General Gouvlon st. ('yr, had met with equal succem. With su, (M) meen St. Cre hal taken liomas after a month's slege - which was prolonged by the premence of that brillmnt paval commander. Lord toclirave (afterwanly Eart of Inmelomatdi, whith an English frigate In the harinuar - In Decem. ber, 1sim, land routenl lledlag at Carimileu, hat relifveal Barcelona (where General Duhesme was that up with s,000 Freachneus), and had agala, on the Elst Ihecember, routed lieding at Mollmum det lies, where all the spanisht stores, lyclulling su, inno muakets from England, were takea. la the apring of 1 tup Redlog made another attempt (1) welleve the Intlependence of the north-east and movel to relieve saragname ; but on the lith Frliruary he was met by St. cyr at igualada. where liedlog himeelf was killeil and his arluy was ilippersen. The whege of Gerona alome Iu the nurth eant of Spain remalued to le uadertakion." - II. If. Clintun, The HIIr in the Ptminumbi. el. 8. Ab,Ne IN: C. M. Yogge. Thot af Geduln Sheile.
 Ch. It (r. 3) - Wir W. F. Fi Napler. Ilion. of the Harun le Marhat. Nemerira, e. i, ch. ti)
A. D. ${ }^{1800}$ ( February - June), - The war in Aragon.-Siege of Geroman - "This decimbe victury [of lgualata] cermbanted the regular war meacel proparations for the slege of Giernua.
 the liscord of st ('gr aud Verdler; buti tu the hegiunlag of Mur they apimand before the town. and un the tat of Junic the Investment wan comp pheted. 13 us the prowess of the spanlards the Where appearenl the greater alknatage than in the lefinue of their walleyt towns: If was litit IIII 1:th . fugu4i, after 3: Juys of ofnen treuches, mal

 Gomumade the town: yot the gallant govermer Atwarte. stlll hehd oat, wind the safe artival of a converyent by Blake reandmatend the Epirit of the karriwn. The grand awinte of the I- wer thw ra was glen (sept. 1i): but the Prench were

 s.l. The capture of there niceresolse cotivors. wat by Hake for their relief rediatelt the low sigem at last to extromity : fanime und pestlle the lireaxtithed the elty; but it was bot tlll the lulath itatus- Werpe reduivel bu the werewity of eating atrath, Who had saprermided st tyr int the comb hatert. Ine the heronic Avarre, to the ctermal wan at Fizueras where hue sent afterwarils

Jusers int the unau time. hat Ixeell taken in! wao auccrevten! In the conmuand lit Ira later years of the emplre. Hils ant emay, bow. ever, Wam unfortunate: for the indefatigatile Binke, elienurugel by the retreat of 81 Cyr lewarls the I'yreberes, had agaln alvanced wlith 12,010 mell; and an actlon ensued (May 93) at Alcaniz, In whleh the Frweh, melzed with at panle, Hedl tu confuslon from the aeld. Thla un-Sarngisas, hut the ils-lpllme and mancuppres of the French assertell their wonted superfority la the platas: the spanlaris were molteel clome to chate the next Jny. The army of Bhake was en.

 In fraguth, an It latil done in Chtalonia, after the Pall of lier ina. -'-H'Putume of Alivoris Hise. of
A. D. ${ }^{1809}$ (February - July), - Wellligtom again in the Engtish command. - The French of the Date Portugal checked. - Pazeage of the Douro by the English. - Battle of Talavera. - "Najule enh, before Moore's corps hat actually lift Corruna, reacelved the war at ath end, and, In lisuitag lastrictlons to luts thlence, the complete smilijugation a? the Pealnsula. Exirptlag, hideril, mome lanlatell districts In the eant. the onty phrts buw to pmasesolon of the Spmatards or ihilr alles were Andalunda Whath had lween sured by the predpliate recall of Nimplemb to the borth: aml Portugal, wheh scertupled us agalnes the Fremeds, was bompanaly there number sir dohn $t$ 'rudinik nt the the of Gienerul Mixares diplirtury whth the hulk of the army for spuin. The procestluys of the Freach marshuls for the retwevery of the cutre Penlusula Fere speeilly arrauged." Lannes fixok the diree thon of the wigee of surusimana, where the spanlaris. tightelng as usial whiludenirable comataney frum inhiuit stone walls, were holding two Ish arnuy hatu the recesmes of the Sierra Mopanand lifor chasel mumher of the Sierra Morena, from the dying blows of Mionve, hat promptly lish, aul way preparing to crise the Portugueso fromitior on hiv wirk of combuest. In ald of thle J.alch It waw roacered that white the last-named mirsthal mivnacel! frum the uorth, Vietor, by Way of Elvas, nul Lathisec by way of Almetoa, hanth comberge tugether upinh Portugnl and that whel the Einslish at LIAlama had lweed driven futheir ahips the several enrps shonhat ualte for the thunl sultingathon of the l'eulnsula hy the ineruputinn of . Dudalusha. I crordlagly, lea ving Xey to mintain the aroual already wou, sondt ly the chal of Marth wan the secure poosecession of limposvible that the "mapalga might have had the terminathun he destrey: lant at this point he Waited for lutellizence of the Emsild in hla fromt and of Vietur and Laplase on has thati Ilis caution wavel lortugal, for, whlle her stlif hersititetht ou the brink of the Dhuro. there agala urrived to the Tugus that renowned e mamaier lefone whore geralus the fortumes het ably of the mardaik, but of their intpurial master, were mumberint of hor areatest war. The ay atem of mand expeditlous and lusiguldiaut diverntones though not yet cmaclualvely abasdonant, wan mona superseded hy the gloriet of a viadble mm . test: and is a sbort time ft wan known and felt by a great majority of the mation, that on the anell of the Penlatula England was falry plttent a galast Prance. At the commencement of the year 1890, when the prospects of 8 paniah Independence were at thelr very gliwomleat polnt, the Briclah Calinet had proposed and conclunded a comprehenelve treaty of alliance wleh the Provlsional Admiuletratlion of Epala: and it was now remolved tiant the contest in the Peninuma should be contlnued on a acale more effectual than before, and that the principal, Insteal of the merondary, part should the birne by Engiand.

England's colunal requirementa ieft her Hittle to show agalnot the myrials of the contl. nent. It was calcuiated at the the that 60,000 Britich soldirfa might have been made diapose. able for tise Peningular mervice, but at no perion of the war was such a furce erep sctualiy collecterl under the otandards of Wriliagtom, while In Spain, without numterialiy disaiding the arms of the Einplre on tive I Minute or the thine. We liad alilea, It la true. In the troopa of the country; but these at firat were lltile better than refractory recruita, reciulifing all lise accemorim of disclpliac, equipment, and organiantion; jeal. ous of ail porelgnerg, even am Priende, and but unreasonahly suspletone of aupporters who conld alwaye finil in tivelr sisipa a refuge whlch was denled to themeelves. that abure all theme diftlcuities was that arising from the Inexperience of tice Government in contincotal warfare. When, however, with thowe amblyunus pris. pects, the Guvernment dill at lougth resolve on the symtematle prosecuthon of the r'enlasular war, the eyen of the nation were at once instinc generai t" cominct it. . . Ile stontiy declared his opinion tiat Proftigul was lenaile aguinet the French, even if netial posecharem of simin. and that It offerend ataphe oflurtubutien of in. fluencing the great resilt of the war. Witis tibese vicw be remmandmed that the forta. gluese army ninulid ine organie.d at its full Irenstio: that it shonid the in part taken luta British pay and nader the direction of liritiah whirers, atid that a force of thot hews than ar), (kN) Euglivis trenps shoulif to deaputciced to keep thit army tugether. . Noch was the prestige alroady "llaciled to W"ciliosier's name that his urrival in the 'Tagus chancef every frature of the scewe So longer mexplefous of nur fateutiona of the raminh armate we med only say variable certaimes and mare or feas diagrace:

 In the sulicy of ther Thens. Tierere were, therewith Cuena, nati iry ther rowit of a ieflomatra.

 preference harlag beca die indicely givea to the tormer, the tronps at onos commenced their masch upon the Douro. The Brithat firre undiet SIr Arthur Wellenley's command mmormiel at thit tlme to about 20,000 men, to which almut 15,000 Portuguese is a mopectable state of uir. gapimation, were added by the ezertions of bleria lond. Of thes about 84,000 were mow liml agaiast Soult, who, though not inferiop in streagth, do somper mocertajbed the alvance if the Eaplith commander, tban be arrangel fir retreat by detachlag Loteon with 6,000 men to diolodge a Portuguese poat from bla left rear Bir Artbur's intention wae to envelope, if pialble, the French corpe by puahing firwari a atrong force upon It left, and thus interveptiug It retreat coward Ney's poltion, whilie the main body amaited soult in hils querters it Oporto. The former of thete operations lie is. trusted to Beresfond, the latter he directeri in person. On the 18th of May the troope nachel the muthern bank of the Douro; the watery of Which, 800 garis in wldth, rolled between them and thele eivernarien.

Aralling himseif of a polnt where the river hy a bead $\ln$ its colime Was not encily vialble from the cown, Nir Arthur determined on tranaporilag. If poaithle, a few trompe to the anthera bank, and ncrupiting so unfalaised atone building, wbleh be perceitend was rapalile of affording temporary cover. The meana were anon supplled by the activity if Colenel Waters-an onfeer whoee habitinai nuit. clty rendered hlm one of the herves of thix meut orabife war. Croming In a akirif to the upinnite bonk, he returned with two of thre buitx, shit in a few minutes a company of the llufts wat entablished in the hulldigg. Ifelnfore ements guickly followed, hut not withont dleworery. The afarm wat given, and presentiy the eliticie Was enveinped by the eager battalions of the Frenci. The British, bowever, hell tisir grimmi: a pamage was effected at other pointe filuring the struggle; the Freach, after an ineffectua) reslatance, were fain to abandon the clity in pre clpitation, and Blr Arthur, after hin une" xamibld feut of arms, zat down timet eveniug for the dinner whici hat been prepared for smult
Tinls irrititne operation teing effected, Sir Ir. thur was now at tlberty tu turn to the thaia jroject of the campraign - that tis which, in fec: the attack upon Noule had been sulwidiary the defeat of Victor in Estremadur:
('uesta would take no advice, mai fusiond a tise aioptiom of his own schemee witio such oltstluacy, tint Sir Arthur wan compretheri for trult his pians accorilugiy. Instend, therefore of if consenting Victor at he inal intecticel. he arvanced inu) spain at lise lueginuing of Jnly, th eflect a junctlons witi Cuesta nod feed hity tis thwards Madrid. Tise armies, when mitot, formed a mans of $\quad$ is,000 connintants: but the su SB. (MK) were Bpanisid, and for the bruat if war sir Arthur comlit oniy rerkim on has ot. ink Britiala triops, theresfori's Portugume having Inoul desputchent to the north of Partusal 16
 coned hy the anceours which Joseph thenapare. nlarmed for the safety of Madrid hami lasotig concentrated at Toietor and when the twis armies ut lengti confronted pach of iberat Tha Prenpy were arrayed ngninat Nir Arthur mat hat ilig from the north on the lluc of the British cota municentiona along the raliey of the Tague. On the with of July the Britioh commander, after makdue the betre dlopooitlone in hle power, re. celved the attert of the Freach. difrected by Joseph Bonaparte lo permon. with Victor and Jourdan at hio alde. anil after an engagrement of great covertity, In which the spuniarts were vir. cuanily lanctue, he remalinel master of the dehi egalnot double bis numbera, having repulead the enemy at all polntan with lineny lime, and havrog apturnit several humilrud priconers and 18 pleces of cannon in tiin the ant great pitched hattle between thr French and EDrgilah in the Pattle uula. In thlk well fuyght held of Tala vera, the French hat thruwn. for the form tume, thelr Whote dispoastile firse upon the Britishi army without sucrem: ani! Sir Arthur Wellesley 10 . lefred, with a quatianable connilence, that the retative superiority of lisio tmops to thinse of the Emproror was practicaliy decildel. Jominl, the French milltary limaturian, confewes almmat as muell and the oplnitus of Sapmienn litmeelf. at risble in hia comreapomilence: underwent fruin

 A. D. 1800 (A) en. (rit) of Almonacid, Puerto - Norember)- Batties or Almonacid, Puerto da Banos, Ocena, and Toiemo: lumt the retreat of the llitish hnring set the Freweinarmlees at lilerery. lie was attackerplungt diffated after a sharr, action at AImunarlid (Sue so angry correspmonicence teet weern wrillevies afher nut commanit $A$ gleall of sincecow at Tanuines,

 Suyd over the widd phaino if can ille hy tree

A. D, Isang (Auguat--December).-Weilingdimalties.- His retreat into Portuge

Inforced hy the of the rith, the aray was roInforced hy the arrival of a trmop of horve.artll. lery, and a bripale of II att trcipe from Liabon. under Geaeral Crawforl. U'ader the elrcum. atances of his siltuation, however, It was lmpon. alble for Sir Arthur Wiflesley to follow up hia victory. The prodtion he occupled was atil one of exireme perli. A prowerful twemy was and. pabelng on his rear; and no relliance could lo placet for the supply of his army. elther on the Themiser of the Bpanish Gemeral, of of the Junta. The arny of Vanegas, which, in obellence to the onlyria of the supreme Junta, had alrancel from Mairliejm, wha engaged, during the $28 t \mathrm{~h}$ and geth, In endearourlig to dialodge the French garrizon frum Toledo. His advane puahed on during the alght to the neighbourhood of Mal-rid, amil tookk risoners eme rld, anil took prisoners come patroles of the eneniy. Vinegas, however no sooner learned from the prisoners that Joeeph aad Sebantinn! any further offenilve operations dealtited from any further offenaive operationa. The Intelif. grence that Vaneras had falled In executiog the part aifotted to hin, was apeedily foliowed by information that soutt had with faclity dirven the spaniards from the pasien leaillag from Sala-nianca tu Placentle nianca to Placentia. It was in congequence ar. rauged between the Generals, that che Britiah army should immediately march to attark Soult. Taid tiant Cuesta y' ould remain In tle powiton of Talavera. to limetect thls noverient from any operation of Virtor. The wounded were to tw ieft in charge The woundel likewise were to he tert in charge of Curata. - Ont the cordingiy mmmencelt thelr muarch on (lmpera. On hils arryal there, sir Arthur Weileskley re. "eloced Inteiligence that Noutit was airenly at Uusai Moral. . Shortiy aftei, a courier nrShortiy afte:, a courfer nrrlvel from cuesta, annrinacing, tiort. As the enelmy were stated to le ad vanc:- - on his thank. and an it was amertained that the corps of $S_{i}$.y anil Mortier hay heen united under sontt, hie fand deternined on quitting has proation, and foinhig the Britisharny at Uropena. This movemedt was execuled the same night ; and bearly bee whole of the British woundel were left ung protceteri in the tow 1 of Talavera. The conduct

In yutitting the prostion of tion fin which the mad a mandinged the oniy situa. inhin rear conld the rasiste of Victor on the Brit. Wharcens conly be resisted whith any proapect of nitcress.

The whole calculations of Sir Sir Arther deverulued at once overtbrown.
She Taghes hermine hridge throw his army acros 3 the Tagis hy the liridge of Arzobisbis.
to the hiriger of Arzolnision, and in their retreat def Alimige of Aranhism, and laving the llake def Alinstulerque will iwo ilvalans of infantry moi oue of eavalry to defeed it, he withirew thi Ther French his army to paraleda de ciarthon. The Freach, in, wever, iaving taken jowst om the Oppreste side of the river, mon sucreentoil ian dis. checring a find hy which blty crosedi, shi wir
 The Wrorks, with the :~ of an piectos of cantal

 Whe the of Slugust, be sucatiof of Arumpiez. At: rided idvantage over an advnncend divishaf of the. ( bethy . . Maraesed ly inconsistemb ordion, Vanegan was unfortumately Induced gain to mol at IInintineld Thin angeteturnt, thoush many lautry. trimacietel In the asinjotre deffat of the army if Visecas. If was drive日 tu the Werra Morric. With ilue lime uf all tes Imgenge ath ar tilhty With this actiou terminated the cabs.

 if Mailflil, atal tie expulshom of the eneiny from the central prosltare of Npals The Itritals arise ut Nismievon mill wervert as a mhlelu to she authera ptovinor, and NIt Arthur Wellowey. (whone the gratioude of hls eonntry hat tom ris.

 Talareral equatelervis it of tragortatier lis tualu. taln the fowlt the then orcupheyl Butthe tutal hb ust the suth of Aygut the fell hack through all "perathing lit thacert conmal bet ween the kiog liah ami spanimb urulew. The suppace junta the enethy. "hile the Margule Wellesky, then : islonamulif fos spain, mate strong reprementa. tomen of the privatione to whels the liritioh army of the anther!tiem. In the chrrowntulence whit h

 the tronul he orcuplen!. The sar lind lat wistalumin arfice of setparalleled defests The lifhinh buit reitrind Into l'orpugal, aul the eflirta of Laral Wiellogton, were for the jrisment, Ithitem! to the difenere u! that klagdem." - T. Hamilent.

Alen is: If Wialte, fife of the flute of 11 il. lisenton, ch. 6-SIr WI F I'. Nnpler. Whot of the

A. D. $1800-1810$ October - Septemberi. The Lines of Torres Vedras. - "Nme' Iuwiria

 bebt courthets or abbjects. Weillugtoun saw that A1' the resoline and all the effurtm of his gigatitio durlise the rery time whell ilse wothl limekel alowisp hlawelf fol he sat tow a lig the masul from that repy circomatature, not roby the reser lutbon of fightige tor the hant extrimhy, bit alma Which will comethue tu tw the aimiration of thenght that souse digy, momer of latir. the Whole of Eumuge wouhl rise agstast Napm for such a fiolag were affimionl to it liy to alat at ticerefore was. In his oplatom, bert on much to drive the Frenilh sutt of the Prolnanla as the tactletatam of the cepiral jutia whily lan cimb. but milher tu keep the content there aflue at any conf, butll the nument shuld arrire for os Inevilative ntul univeral a revoli. In view of Itre new Iavaslon pourlng Into Npaln, He comht ant diwall of umberiaklay auy otemalve ofmern thome arainot the Fremeds. Kiven if evoblinterl with gealisa, they woblh bare raphlly enhatotex hle very limited forrea. Ilis amall army conshl toithave lated mouth amblitit tie farse thene. remilereal utill more formilable by piery rewitree uf defenalve warfare, where he mish defy aumertorty in ntimbers and the riak of mar prise, where lie rouhl almatoln muphlem lo

 In came of dlasater; where, alow, lee might take edvantage of the diotanere and the difticulties fiaumbluy our tronpe, by creatitic arouthe as diomert In which we olould dind It Intmmallile to Ifve. To batul out under these notricted fut with Imiunitable obothary until firmipe. auccuur, wan the anity chatrme which afforifed Wirtlogton sothe chance of surcem In virn of whipted. The inereally whith wigesentel it to of uts "porathen whidh was, othe tuny ayy, with. ont pravident la miltary hlatory the jumition lue wam meklug for lue fontoil ta the chotrons of every whe elther by the oceat or the rever. whith at this pelit lis nearle as whle ans an lablatid sea. thim prohhenta was aeversilhle unty ars the north where It jolteint the momband There. how ever. the prodonguthouf the Sherra d'E:Atrila prowented a merios uf rusisent helghts. Trasty forming a true matural larrlof, the strousth of u life h had alreaty atruck noore than utw military chowerver . . N'Cllingtoh was the tirat who of mote than a habitrod miles the cifewmfireme.

 Sost the whole witilathe peplulathot of the somth maper wiativer to the isunder ti. it the mafot Thiv iomarome eliadel extemiend to the Vidras, whidels protected lis frous. as far as Alemques; theace to the eant hy Aohral and treila whech overbang the Tagus and extended to Laboon, where if was curefod allke by the to Labon, Where tt was cuvered allke by the mouth of the ifver and by the crean. the hefinaing of the month of Octoler, iwn whe the sll of Culowel Fletcher of the En giveers. lie hat employell thoumands of worknien anal praciants, wlethout Intermisolion, in throwlog uj birenchments, couarrucelog redoubta, and form lug alitiewn for Inumjating the plata."- P. Lan. frey, Lifo ef Nigmiema 1., r. 4, en. 4 Alwn in: W. H. Maxweil, loife of Wollinglan, P. 2. eA O-12.- (hen. Sir W. F. P. Xapler, Shian. of the llipe in phe Hninath, is. 11, ef. y (e. 2).

A D. 1810. - Revolt of the Arcenilas prov-1 wio.
A D. 1A10-1f1a. - The Freach advance into Portegal, - Thelr recoll from the Llaes of Torred Vodrae-" Hy the sping of 1 1311, the Frebch armies in spaln numbered fully 8 sio. (MNO mev. and Saprolevin had Intended to crom the Pyrebees, at ilve hewal of thile enormous furere. Ift maringe, lowever, of mure probabiy thi. tonumerable colls and cares of Emplre preventenl him from carrying out his purpurer ; and this wan our of the caplat nimeskes of ble llfe, fir his promence wat necematy on the weene of ereatm. If atill demplame the insurrectlon of spaitt; he behl Wellinguo clieap as a ispmy gecturtal ; strunge an lt may appear, lie wat whally lyno. mant of the exhbence of the l.dnes of Turres feyl. ras. and he perwated in malntalalng thant the oniy real eneniy In the Prealnanta was the Iritimit arut a grent army to sulmiue Amilalusin anal the Nuth, frime to hla ayt in thus divilitugh lis firreve with zucuorable result: for Eumpore. Nasséun tiotk the fortereses oh the mortherast of Purtugal. and by the ciome of september hail cuterad tmin flank, anit be adrameel. in lidel heart, froms tidmira, ulu dialxin. To his amazensebt, luw. ever, the Imptrgnable lines. as kigantle oimacie ullerly unforescell. sume befure hime, and bruashit riensry: daring as lir was. afier vinu efforts in fint a ruinerahle puimt, revoiles) frutu lefore ther Invincible rampart, hatitrel and judismat, bue as :11 hiverul. Jisacina. nith adtuiratil, kill. onse cluwe a furmidahle jmalthing urar the Tagus. and helld the Ifrithala commanifure It diovk.

 had wastent the adjoindus roglug with the atid ownif: Napuleon, mallitating a new war. Was mable to dablatila a regluerat from Frames of hive colleatgue, I'mued and hume hack, and Prousthenall ly a small detadinent omiy, was at lian relluctantiy firieml bin retreat This mase.
 nitio mou unilinary sklli, but Wellingtums hall at. 1.tineal his oliject and the Frovela senemil ree.en. lird spain wlth the wreck culy of a ollce buhte firre. Masina. lawiver. Wiblld mot ronfess afluy, be attacked Wedlingtua it Futate de

Onuru, and masilily onif micond a Fictryy, owing th the jralousies of Infertur men. Thls, arvep. thelema, Wha lifig Jas e efort, be was auperiediol ta stanave to his lese lifitemant, amp Wrilington's comlitet of the war hat Ineris complietely furai. teel Torres Veriras Impmanentiy arrmator Nia. poleon's man'h if contillest; the French uever waste the Impertal forcea, nat surtomaled the bs. as It wort, wlita cirche of tire. It was all la Vala that aucther grat army was atruck diwn ha the flelld at cranas; that suchee lavaled wiml ther nation laymane bore furcuse than ever: Na.

 In. lawfui king Ifler Fruentem de Unuro the coutere in spalis hasp tanguldhel in 1811 .

 Inray In the fullon iag y yar the Britigh cum-frumber, compietely dercishog the dintant Eme 1renor, who would ilirect operatlonm from Parts: Salmanala, beside the Tormes, which thiren "perls th hime the putcos of Mimprig. Yiet. In an Frevelh, the rityert her mondily kept in riew, mal befire fing he has in retrent ons furtio

 ch $111-11$

 It ninavh or y-3 - it suinthey, Jlins fir the At-

 A. D. $1810-182 s$. Revoli and achitevement of independence in Venezuela and New Gra-14!!
A. D. 1810-1825.-Revolt and Independence

A. D. 8812 (Juare-Auguati, - Wellington's victory at Salamanca, - Abandonment of Madrid by King Joseph. - $\mathrm{la}_{11}$ the munth of liay ant Ahesamber I if Rusial whill was to dieter mithe. hiv fis isols. Whether Eurupr should ac filion his his uwh firtunes. phat hamelf at the War ins -Ibaln, whith had hitherto excmpued the first place in puldie attenthon. Ineegne from that mitar comalicration Whateverer effetiver Imat. talingo were at tle diapmat of the war minimer. Wire furwardend th the Vistula: while tor recrult the roplacents it smin. d. juite were formary la to relaforce the French armies. Lord Welling. ton's army consinted of $\mathbf{6 0 , 0 0 0}$ men, Portuguese and Spanlards included. Of these, $10,000 \mathrm{in}$. fantry, with about 1,200 cavalry, were cantoned on the Tagus at Almarez; while the command-er-in-chief, with the remainder, preparea to operate, on the north of that river, against Marmont. The capture of the redoubts at Almarez had, in some degree, isolated the French marsuai; and, although he was at the head of 50,000 vetersns, Lord Weilington felt himseif in a condition to cope with him. At the same time Lord Weliington had to observe Soult, who, commanding the army of the south, was around Seville and Cordova with 58,000 meu-while Suchet held the eastern provinces with $\mathbf{3 0 , 0 0 0}$ excellent troops - Souham was in the north with 10,000 - and the army of the centre, probabiy 15,000 more, was disposed around the capital, and kept open the communicatlons between the detached corps. On the other hand, there were on foot no Spanish armies deserving of the name. Bands of guerrillas moved, indeed, lither and thither, rendering the communications between the French armies and their depots exceedingly insecure; but throughout the north, and west, and centre of Spain, there was no single corps in arms of aar milltary respectability. In the east, Generals Lacy and Sarsfieid were at the head of corps which did good service, and occupied Suchet pretty weil; while D'Eroies, more bold than prudent, committed himself at Rhonda with Generai Rourke, in a combat which ended in his totai defeat and the dispersion of his troops. let were the French far from being masters of the country. Few fortified towas, Cadiz and All. cante excepted, continued to "'splay the standard of independence, but every Sierra and mountain range swarmed with the enemles of oppression, out of whom an armr, formidable from its numbers, if not for its discipline, might at any moment be formed. But it had never entered into the couasels of the ailies to furnish a nucleus round which such an army might be gathered. . . Meanwhile, the commander-inchief, after haviug given inis army a few weeks repose. $\qquad$ broke up from his cantonments, and advanced in the direction of Salamanea. On the 17 th of June his divisions crossed the Tormes, by the fords above and below the town, and. tinding no foree in the fleid competent to resist them, marched direct unen the capital of the province." Saiamanca whs take no the Sith of June, after a siege of ten dars, and a series of manourres-a great game of thetics between the opposiug commaaders - ensued, which ocenpied their armies without any sernous collision. until the Salammea wis fought. "The dispositions of the French, thnugh masterly against one less self-collected. had leeeu, thronghout the dav, in Weilington's opinion, fuli of hazard. They aimed at too much-ani, manceurring to throw themselves in force upon the English right, riskeci. as the event proved fataily, the weakea. lug of their own right and centre. Lord Wellingtunsaw that tiling eonstantir in one direction disconnected the divislons of Marmont's army, and left an lnterval where he mleht strike to ad: vantage. . . . It was the first mistake that Mar mont had made, anif Wellington never permitted him to retrieve it. Lorl Wellington had dined amid the ranks of the third dirision, and I'acken-ham, its frank and chivalrous leader, was one of those who ahared his slmple and so!. lier-lite meal. To him the commander.in-chief gave his orders, somewhat in the following words: ' ${ }^{\circ}$ you see those fellows on the hill, Packenham? Throw your division lato columne of battailons -at them directly - and drive them to the devil. Instantiy the divlsion was formed - and the order executed admirably.

By this magnit. cent operation, the whole of the enemy's left was destroyed. Upward of 3,000 prisoners remalned In the hands of the victors, while the rest, broken and dispirted, fell back ln utter confusion upon the reserves, whom they swept away with thern in their filght. Meanwhlle, in the centre, a fiercer contest was going on.
$\qquad$ Marmont, struck down by the explosion of a shell was carried off the field early in the battie, with a broken arm and two severe wounds in the side. The command then devolved upon Clausei, who did all that man in his situation could do to re. trieve the fortune of the day. . . But Lord Weilington was not to be arrested $\ln$ his success, nor could his troops be restrained in their career of victory. $\qquad$ eagles, with a number of cannon and other trophies, remained in the hands of the English: $10,000 \mathrm{men}, \ln$ addition, either died on the field or were disabled by wounds; whereas the loss 0 n the part of the allies amounted to scarcely 5,000 men. $\qquad$ After this disaster, Clausel continued hls retreat by forced marches. . . . Meanwhille, Joseph, lgnorant of the resuit of the late battle, was on his way, with 20,000 men, to join Mar. mont, and had arrived at the neighbourhom of Arevolo before the lnteliigence of that officer's defeat was communicated to him. He directed inls columns instantly toward Segovia.
the 7th of August the British army moved while Joseph, retreating with precipitation, left the passes of the Guadarama open, and returned to Madrid, where the confusion was now extreme.

Lord Wellington's march was coadhicted with ail the celerity and good order whieh distinguished every movement of his now magnit. cent army. On the ith, he entered Scgovia. On the 12th [he] entered Madrid in triumph.

The city exhibited the appearance of a car. nival, and the festlvities were kept up till the dawn of the 13 th came ln . Immediately the new constitution was proclaimed; Don ('arlos D'Espana was appointed governor of the city, and the peopie, stili rejoicing, yet restrained frim excesses of cvery sort, returned to thelr usual emplorments." Gen. Vane (Marquess of Londonderry), Story of the Peninsular Wir, ch. 31.
Al.so in: Gen. Sir W. F. P. Napier, Hist of the Witr in the Peninevin, bk: 18 (n. 4).-Lt. Col. Williams, Life and Times of Wellington, $c .1, ~ \mu p$. 275-290).
A. D. 1812-1814.-Final cempaigns of the Peninsular War. - Expuision of the Freach."The south and centre of Spala scemed clear of enemies, but the hold of the Freach was as ret shaken only, not broken; for ln fact though Weilington's march had forced his enemies in wro directions (Clausel, with the remain der of Marmont's army, having retired north, while the king mithdrew south-east), such were their numbers that each division hecame the centre of an army as powerful as his own. the two armies against which Weliington had to contend by fur the largest was the army of Soult and the king, on the south east. On the other hand, Clausel's forces were beaten and retreatling, 30 that it appeared to the general better to leave a detachment under Hill to cover Madrid, whlle he hlmself repalred with the bulk of his army to strike a fnal blow at Clausel by the capture of Burgos, Intending to return at once and with hls whole combined forces fight a great battle wlth Soult and the klng before the capltal.

The resistance offercil hy Burgos and the deficicney of proper art liery proved greater obstacies than had been expected. The delay thus caused allowed the French to revover. $A$. As Soult began to draw towards Madrid from Valencia, thus threatening the safety of Hiil, there was no course left hut to summon that zeneral north. ward, and to make a comhlned retreat towards Salamanca and Portugal. . This was the last or Wellington's rctreats. Events In Europe lessened the power of hls encmies; whlle fighting for hls very existence on the main contlinent of Europe, Napoleon could not but regard the war in Spaln as a very secondary concern, and a great many old and valuahle soldlers were wltidrawn. The jealousy whlch exlsted betwecn Joseph and the generals, and the dislike of the great generals to take upon themselves the Spanish war, threw it Into Interior hands for sonic llitle while, aud there ls little more to chronicle than a succession of hard. Won rictories. . . A vigorous insurrection had arisen all along the northern proviuces; and it was this more than anytining else Thich declded Wellngton's course of action. While leaving troops to occupy the attention of the French la the valley of the Tagus, he intended to march northwards, . . connect himself with the northern Insurgents, and dircctly thrcaten the communicatlons with France. As he had expected, the French had to fall back before him; he compeilicd them to evacuate Burgos and attempt to defend tie Ehro. Their positioa there was turned, and they had again to fall hack lnto the hasln of Vittoria. This is the plain of the river Zadora, which forms In its course almost a rigit angle at the south-west corner of the plain, which lt thus surrounds on two sides. Across the plain and through Vittoria runs the high road to France, the only one ln the neigitsourhood sufticlently large to allow of the retrcat of the French army, encumbered witil ail its stores and baggage, and the accumulated wealth of some years of occupation of Spain. While Wellington forced the passage of the river ln front souti of the great bend, and drove the eneung back to the towu of Vittoria, Graham beyond the town closed this road. The beaten coneny had to retreat as best he could towards Salvatierra, leaving behind ail the artilicrs, stores, laggage, and equipments [Junc 21, 18i8]. The offeasive armies of Frauce had now to assume the defensive and to guard thelr own frontier. Before advanclag to attack them in the mountains, Wellington undertook the hlockade of Panpelina and the siegc of St. Sebastian. It was imposslble for the Freuch any longer to regard diplomatle or dynastic niceties. Joseph was superseded, and the defcnce of France intristed to Souit, wlth whom the klig had hopelessiy quarrelled. He proved hlmself worthy of the churge. A series of terrible hattles was fought in the Pyrenees, but one by one his positions were forced. With fearful bloodshed, St. Nelastian was talien, the Bidasou was crossed
(Oct. 7), the battle of the Nivelle fought and won
(Nov. 10), and at length, In Fehruary, the lower Adour was passed, Bayonne invested, and Soult ohllged to withdraw towards the east. But by this tlme events on the other side of France had changed tine appearance of the war. . Napo.
ieon was belng constautly driven hack ward upon ieon was beling constaicly drivenhack ward upon the east. The effect could not but be felt by the southern arms, and Soult deserves great credlt for the skill wilth which he still held at bay the vlctorions English. He was however defeated at Orthes (Feb. 27), lost Bordeaux (March 8), and was finally driven eastward towards Toulouse, intending to act $\ln$ muion with Suchet, whose army $\ln$ Catalonia was as yet unbeaten. On the heights upon the east of Toulonse, for Wellington had brougit his army across thic Garonne, was fought, with somewhat doubtful result, the great battle of Touiouse [April 10]. The vletory has been claimed hy both parties; the aim of the Engllsh general was however won, the Garonne was passed, the French positlon taken, Toulouse evacuated and occupied by the vlctors. The triumph such as It weas had cost the vletors 7,000 or 8,000 men. a loss of life which might have been spared, for Napolcon had already a hdicated, and the battle was entirely useless."-J. F Bright, Hist. of Eng., period 3, pp. 1317-1321. A1so IN: Sir A. Alison, Hist. of Europe, 17891815, ch. 76-77 ( $c, 16$ ) - Count Miot de Melito, Me moirs, ch. 33-34.-Gcn. Sir W. F. P. Napler, Hiat. of the War in the Peninsula, e. 4-5.
A. D. 1813.- Possession of West Florida taken hy the United States. Sce Florida: A. D. 1810-1813
A. D. ${ }^{181 z^{-1814}}$ (Decemher-May). - Restoration of Ferdinand and despotic govern-ment.-Aholition of the Cortes.-Re-estahlisiment of the Inquisition. - Hostility of the peopie to freedom. - "The troops of the allies iu Catalonia were paralyzed, when just about to take thelr last measures against Suchet, and, as they hoped, drive out the last of the French from Spain. An envoy arrived from the captive Ferdluand. wlth the news that Ferdinand and Napoicon had made a treatr, and that the Spaniards might not tight the Frencla any more, nor permit the English to do so on thicir soil. Ferdinaud had been a prisoner at Valencay for tre ycars and a haif; and during that time he had, by his own account, known nothing of Wiat was doing $\ln$ Spain, but from the French newspapers. The notion uppermost in his little mind at this timc appears to have been that the Cortes and the liberai party $\ln$ Spain were 'Ja cobins and infilels. and that lt was all-important that he shouid return, to restore ahsolutism and the Inquisition. In sending to Spain the treaty lie had made with Niapoleon, he took no notice wiatever of the Cortes, but addressed himself soiely to the Regency: nnd wilth them, his business was to consuit whether he shouid adicere to the treaty or break through it;which he might easily do on the plea that it was un extorted art, agreed to under deficient knowledge of the state of Spaln. Thus crooked was the policy, even at the moment of restoratlon, of the fooilsh prince who seems to have had no ability for any thing hut mean and petty lntrlgue. The terms of the treaty might easiliy be anticlpated from the circumstances nnder which it was made. Napolenn wanted to shake out the British from his southwestern quarter; he was in great need of the veteran French tmops who Were prisoncrs In Spaln: and he hai no ionger any hope of restoring hls brother Josepb. The trenty of Iecember, 1813, therefore provided that Ferdlnand and his snccessors should be recognised as monarchs of Spain anil of the Indles: that the territory of Spain shonld be wbat it hal been before the war - the French giving up any bold they had there: that Ferdi nand should maintaln the integrity of thls terrl. tory, claring lt completely of the Britlsh: that France nad Spaln should ally themselves to malutain their maritime rights ngainst England: that all the Spanlards who bad adhered to Klug Joseph should be reinstated in whatever they had enjosed under him: that all prisoaers on both sides should Inmedlately be sent bome: and that Joseph and hifs wife should recelve large anniltles from Spain. The General of the Spanish forces ln Catalonia, Copons, was in so minch haste to conclude a separate armistice for hlmself, whth Suchet, withont any regard to hls Britash comrades, that the Cortes had to net with the utmost rapldity to prevent lt. Nince the Cortes had Inrested themselves with executive, as well as legislatlve power, the Regency had becoinc $n$ mere show: and now, wh the Cortes Instantiy quasided the treaty, the Regency followed the cxample. On tbe 8th ot Janisry, the Regency let his Majesty know how much he was beloved nad deslred; bilt also, how impossible it was to rutify any act done by hlm while in a state of captivity. As Napoieon could uot zet back bls truops from Spain in this way, he tried another. He released some of Ferdinand's chief off 'ers, and sent them to him, with adrocates of hls own, to armnge about an end to the war, and exchanglig prisuaers; and Genemi Palafox, one of the late captives, went to Madrld where however, he met whith no better success : bsn hls prederessor. By thit time (the end of Jannary) it was settled that the Spanish treatr, whatever it might be, was to be framed under tbe sanction of the Allies, at the Congress of Chatilion. Whth the hope of paralyzing the Spanish forces by division, Fapoleon sent Ferdiaand back to Spain. He went through Cntaionia, and arrived In his own dominions on the 34tb of March. These intrigues and negotiatlons cansed extreme rexation to Weilington. Tber suddienlr stopped crery attempt to expel the French from Catn louia, and threntened to bring into tbe field ngainst him all the prisoners he had left behind him in Spain: and there was no saylug how the wiuding op of the war inight be delaycd or injured lis the politlcal quarrels which were sure to break out whenever Ferdinand and the Cortes csme into collision. . . . IIe therefore lost no time: and the war was over before Ferdlnand entered Madriu. It was on the 14th of Msy that he entered Malrill, bis carriage drawn by the populace. As he went throngh the city on foot, to show bis confidence, the people cheered him. They were aware of some suspicious arrests, but Were wllifing to hope that they were merely precautionary. Then followed the complete restoration of the religions orders to tbe predomiance which had been foumil Intoicrable before; the abolition of the Cortes; ind the re-establishmeut of the Inquisition. The Constitution had been rejected by the King before his cntry into Madrid. In a few weeks, the wbole country was distracted with discontent and fear ; and, in a lew months, the prisons of Madrid were so overflowing with state prisoners - nluety being arrested on one September night - that conveat Were made into prisons for the safe-keeping of the King's enemies. Patriots were driven Into the mountains, and became handittl, while Ferdl nund was making arrests right and left, coercing tbe press, and ceremoniously conveying to the great square, to be there hurned in ignominy, the replsters of the proceedings of the late Cortes." -II. Martineau, Hiet. of England, 1800-1815, bk. 2, ch. 6.-"Ferdinand was a person of narrow mind, and his heart seems to have bcen ln capable of generous feellng; but he wns not: wicked man, nor would be have heen a bad Klng lf he had met with wise minlsters, snd hat ruled over an enlightened people. On tbe two important subjects of elvll and reilgious freedom he and the great body of the nation were in per. fcct sympathy, - hoth, upon both subjects, laihued wlth error to the core; and the popular feeling in both cases outran hls. The word Liberty ('Libertad') appenred in large broaze lctters over the entrance of the Hall of the Cortes in Madrid. The people of thelr own linpulse burried thither to remove it.

The Stoae of the Constltution, as It was culled, was everywhere removed. . The people at Seville luposed nll the exlsting authoritles, elected others : $:$ thelr stead to ail the offlees which had cxlsted under the old system, and then required those authorities to re-establish the Inquistion. Ia reestablisbing that accursed tribunal hy a formal act of govcrnment, In suppressing the frecdoas of the press, which had been ahused to lts owa destriction, and in continulng to govern ant merely as an absolute monarch, but as $n$ despotic one, Ferdinand undouhtedly complled wlth the wlshes of the Spanlsh nation. ... But, in bls treatment of the more conspicuous persor.s amcag the 'Liberales,' whom he condcmned $t$. striet and long imprisonment, many of the in for !ift, he brought upon himself an indeliole reprosis." -1. Southey, Hist. of the Peninsular Wir, ch. 46 (c. 6).
A. D. 1814-2827.-The Constitution of 1812. -Abrogated by Ferdinand.-Restored by the Revolution of 1820. - Inte.vention of the Holy Alliance.-Absolutism and bigotry reinstated by the arms of France.-" During the war and tbe captivlty of Ferdinand, the Cortes inild, la Msrch 1812 cstahlished a new Constltution, by which the royal nuthority was reduced to little more than a name. Ferdinnnd VII., after his return, immedintely spplled himself to re store the ancient régime in nil its inmitigated bigotry and exciusiveness. He issued deerees, In May, 1814, by which ail Liberals snd Free $r$ isons, nad all adherents of the Cortes, aad of the oticers appointed by them, were either compelled to fly, or subjected to imprisonmeat, or at least deposed. All natlonal property wis wrested from the purchasers of $1 t$, not oniy witbout compensation, but fines were even lmposed upon the holders. Aif dissolved convents were re established. The Inqulsition was restored, nad Dir Caplllo, Bishop of Almeria, appointed Grand Inquisltor, who acted with fanatical severity, and is sald to have lncarcerated 50,000 persoas for their opinions, many of whom were sulijected to turitire. . . Ten tbousand persons are computed to have fled Into France. The kingdom was governed by a Camarilia, consigting of the Reprlution and the Holy Alliance.

King'a favouriters, selected from the lowest and most worthless of the courtiers. . . . The French invasion of Spaln hand oceasioned a revolution in Spanish America [see Argentine Reptblic A. D. 1800-18:0; Colommin States: A. D 1810-1819; Mexico: A. D. 1810-1819, and 18201826; Chile: A. D. 1810-1818; Perti A. D. 1820-1826]. The ioss of the American colonies, and a had system of rural economy, hy which agriculture was neglected in favour of sheepbreeding, had reduced spalu to great poverts. This state of things naturully affected the finances; the troops were left unpaid, ai,d broke out into constant nutinies. A successful Insurrec. thon of this kind, led by Colonels Quiroga and Mie yo, occurred in 1820. Nina, who had dlsthguished hinself as a guerilla leader, but, having compromlsed himself la a previous mutiny, had been compelied to tly into France, now recrossed the Prenees to ald the movemen'. The Constitution of 1812 was prolhimed at Sary gossa; and the cowardiy Ferdinand

They addressel a note to the Spaniards req: ing the restoration of absoiutism. ... In spring, the French army of observatlon, wilcu had been increased to 100,000 men, wan jaced uniler the command of the Duke of $\Delta=$ goulame." The Spanish troops " were few and ill disciplincd; while in Old Castlie stood guerilla bands, under the priest Merino, ready to ald the French invasion. An attempt on the part of Ferdinand to dismiss his Liberal ministry induced the minls. ters and the Cortes to remove hlm to Serllle (March 20th 1883), whither the Cortès were to foilow. The Duke of Angouleme addressed a proclamation to the Spanjards from Bayonne, April 2 nd, in which he told them that he did not tive 5 pain as an enemy, but to ilberate the captive King, and, In conjunction with the frlends The Frder, to re-estahiish the altar and the throne. The French crossed the Bidassoa, April 7th. ene only serious resistance which they experienced was from Mina [in Catalonia]. Ballastoms [in Navarre] was not strong enough to op use them, while the traltor O'Donneil [commandlng a reserve $\ln$ New Castile] entered lnto negociatlons with the encmy, and opened to them the road to the capital. Ballasteros was compelled to retire into Valencla, and the French to retire into Valencla, and the French entered also obliged to proclaim it at Madrid, March 8th 1820. The Cortes was convened in July, when Ferdinand opened the Assembly with an hypocriticai speeeh, remarkabie for lts exaggeration of Liheral sentiments. The Cortes iminediately proceeded again to dissolve the convents, and even to seize the tithes of the secular ciergy, on the pretext that the mones was required for the neeesslties of tie State. The Incrulsition was onee more abolishled, the freetiom of the press ordained, the rlght of meetling and forming clubs restored. . . The Spanish revolutionlsts were divided into three parties: the Decamisados, answerlng to the French 'Sans-culottes'; the Communeros, who were for a moderate consti. tutional system; andi the Anilleros, known by the symbol of a ring; who, dreading the interfer. enee of the Holy Ailinnee, endenvoured to conclliate the people with the crown. On the whole, the insurgents used their victory with moderation, and, with the exceptiou of some tew vic. tims of revenge, contented themselves with depriving their opponents, the Serviles, of their places and emoluments. . The revolution. though originated by the soldiery, was adopted by the more educated class of eltizens. On the other hand, the clergy and the peasantry were bitterly opiosed to it. In the summer of 1821 guerilla hands were organised in the provlnces In the cause of Church and King. anyl obtained the name of 'Armies of the Faith.' '. . In these civld disturbances dreadful atrocities were committed on both sides. . The French Gove ernment, with the ulterior design of interfering in Spanish affairs, seized the pretext of this disorder to piace a corlon of troops ou the Pyrenees; to which the Spaniards opposed anarmy of observation. Ferdinand, reying on the Army of the Faith, and on his Foreign Miuister, Martinez de la Rosa, a Minlerado, thought he might venture on a coup d'etat before the appearance of the French; hut his cuards were worsted $\ln$ a street tight, Julr ith 1820 guards were worsted ln a street fight, Julr ith 1822. . Ferdinand was nuw base enough to applaud and thank the vic. turs, to dismiss the Moiferados from the Mlnistry, and to repiace them hy Exaltados, or Radicals. This state of thlngs had attracted the attentinn of the Holy Alliance. In Oetober 1822, the three northern monarchs assembled ln congress= at Verona, to adopt some resolution respecting Spain [see Veronis: Tue Congress of].

Madild, May 23rd. A Regency was now Instituted till the King should be rescued.
A French corps was despatched . . against tings; hut on the Cortes had reopeued their slttings; hut on the advance of the French they retired to Cadlz, June 12th, taking with them the King, whom they deciared of unsound mlad, and a provlsional Regency was appointed." The French advanced and laid siege to Cadiz, whlch capitulated October 1st, after a bomhardnient the Cortès escaping by sea. Mina, in Catalonia, gave up resistance in November. "The Duke of Angouleme returned to Paris before the end of the ycar, but Spain continued to be occupled hy an army: of 40,000 French. The tirst act of Ferdinand after his release was to pubiish a proclamation, October 1st, revoking all that had been done since March 7th 1820. The Inqulsition, indeed, was not restored; hut the vengennce exercised hy the secular tribunals was so atrocious that the Duke of Angouleme issued an order prohlhitling arrests not sanctioned hy the French commander: an act, however, which on the principle of non-interference was disavowed by the Freach Government. . It is computed that 10,000 Constitutionalists, chietly of the edueated ciasses, were thrown into prison. The French remained in Spain tlll 1897. M. Zea Bermudez, the new Minlster, endeavoured to rule sides moderation. But he was opposed on all sides. ${ }^{\text {A }}$. His most dangerous enemy was the of carrying dently of the Ministry dently of the Yinistry, the victory of blgotry and absolutism." In 1825, Bermudez was driven to reslgn. "The Junta. . in the spring of 1827 excled ln Catalonia an insurret Serviles The Catalonia an insurrection of the Serviles. The insurgents styied themseives Ag . graviadns (aggrieved persons), because the King did not restore the Inquisition, and because he sometlmes listened to his haif Llberal ministers, or to the French and English ambassadors, instead of suffering the Junta to rule uncontroiled. The history of the revolt is ohscure. . . . The ohject seems to have been to dethrone Ferdinand in favour of his hrother Carios." The lasurrection

Was suppressed, "the province disarmed, anc. many persons executed."- T. H. Dyer, Hist. of Modern Europe. bk. 8 (r. 4).

Also IN: E. Blaqulere, Historical Recien of the Squnioh Revedution. - F. A. de Chateaubriand, Menwirs: Congrees of Verona, v. 1.-S. Walpole, Hist. of Eng., ch. 9 (v, 2), - Sir A. Alison, Hiot. of Europe, 1815-1859, ch. 7, and 1[-12.
A. D. 1815. The Allles in France. See Fraxce: A. D. 181* (July-November).
A. D. 1815 .- Accession to the Holy Alliance. See Holy Allince.
A. D. 1888.-Chile lost to the Spanish crown. Sec Cirle: A. D. 1810-1818.
A. D. 182 x, - Mexican Independence practically gained.-Iturbide's emplre. See Mexico: A. D. 1830-1826.
A. D. 1822-1823.-The Co'gress of Verona. -French latervention app oved. See Verona, The Conghens or.
A. D. 1824.- Peruvlan independence won at Ayacucho. See Perv: A. D. 1820-1826.
A. D. 1833.-Accession of Isabella.II.
A. D. 1833-1846. -The civil war of Cerlists and Christinos.- Abdication of Christlna,Regency of Espartero.-Revolutlon of 1843.Accession of Queen Isabella. - Louis Philippe and his Spanish marriages.-"The eres of King Ferdinand VII. were scarcely closed, September 20th. 1833, when the Apostollc partywhose strength lay ln the north of Spaln, and especlally $\ln$ Navarre and the Basque provinces - proclalmed hls brother, Don Carlos, klng under the tltle of Charles $V$. In order to offer a successful reslstance to the Carllsts, who were fight = for absolutism and priestcraft, ieve was no ot ar course for the regent, Maria Chiristina, than to throw herself into the arms of the llberal party. So the seven years' war between Carlists and Christls s, from a war of successlon, became a strife of prluelples and a war of citizens. At the outset, owing to the sklll of General Zuma. lacarreguy, $t 0$ whom the Christinos con: 1 oppose no leader of equal ahillty, the Carlists had the advantage ln the field. Don Carlos threatened the Spanlsh frontlers from Portugal, where he had been llving in exile wlth hls dear nephew, Don Mlguel. In thls stralt, Chrlstina applied to Eugland and France, and between those two states and Spaln and Portugal was conclucled the yuarlruple alllance of April 22d, 1834, the alm of which was to uphold the constltutional thrones of Isabelia and Maria da Gloria, and to drive out the two pretenders, Carlos and Miguel. In that year both preteuders, who eujoyed to a high fle. gree the favol of the Pope and the Eastern powers, had to leave Portugal. Carlos reached England on an English ship in June, but tled again in July, aud, after an adrenturous journey through Fraoce appeared suddenly In Navarre, to inspire ' is followers with courage hy the royal presence. The war was conducted with passion and cruelty on both sites. After the death of Zumalnearreguy at the slege of Bilbao, June 14th, 1833, the Christions, who were superior ln point of numbers, seemed to have the advantage. . . . The turning-polnt was reached when the commanil of the Christino army was commilted to Espartero. In 1836 he defented the Carlists in the murderous battle of Luchana. In 183\%, when Carlos advanced into the nelghborhood of Madrid, he hastened to the succor of the eapital and compelled him to retreat. To these losses were added ditunlon In the Carlist camp. The utterly Incapable, dependent pretender wa the tool of his Camarilla, which made excellence In the catechiam a more important requialte for the chlef command than millitary eclence, and which deposed the most capable generals to put lts own creatures in command. The new com. mander-In-chlef, Guergue, sald, bluntly, to Carlos, 'We, !'s blockheads and Ignoramuses, have yet to concuct your Majeaty to Madrid; and whoever does not belong ln that category is a traltor. This Apostollic hero was defeated several tlmes $\mathrm{b}_{\boldsymbol{y}}$ Espartero $\ln 1838$, and the enthuslasm of the northern provinces gradually cooled down. Ile was deposed, and the chlef command Intrusted to the cunning Maroto.
. A As he [Maroto] dld not succeed $\ln$ wlnnlng victories over Espartero, who overmatched hlm , he concluded, Instead, August 81st, 1839, the treaty of Vergara, In accordance with which he went over to the Christlnos, wlth hls army, and by that means ohtained full amnesty, and the confirmation of the privl. leges of Navarre and the Basque provinces After thls, Don Carlos's cause was hopelessly lost. He fled, In September, to France, with many of hls followers, and was compelled to pass slx years in Bourges under polle supervlsion. In 1845 , after he had reslgned hls c!alms ln faror of bls eldest son, the Duke of Montemolln, be recelved permission to depart, and went to Italy. He dled in Trieste, March 10th, 1855. His followers, under Cahrera, carried on the war for some tlme longer In Catalonla. But they, too, were overcome by Espartero, and In July, 1840, they fled, about 8,000 strong, to France, wheri they were put under survelllance. The clvil war was at an end, but the strife of princlples contlnued. Espartero, who had bean made Duke of Vletory (Vlttoria), was the most Important and popular personage ln Spain, wlth whom the regent, as well as everybody else, had to reckon. In the mean tlme Christina had contrived to allenate the respect and affectlon of the Spanlards, both by her private llfe and her polltical conduct. Her llberal paroxysms were not serious, and gave way, as soon as the momentary need was past, to the most opposite tendeocy.

In 1838 the Progressists apprehended a reactlon, and sought to anticipate lt. Insurrections were organized in the larger citics, and the constltution of 1812 was ma le the programme of the revolt. . . Soldlers ot the giard forced their way into the palace, and cumpelled [Christina] to accept the constitutlon of 1812. A cun stitutlonal assembly undertook a revislon of this. and therefrom resulted the new constltution of 183\%. Christina swore to it, but hoped, by controlling the electlons, to bring the Moderados Into the Cortes and the minlstry. When she sue. ceeded In thls, in 1840, she lssued a munleipa? ordlnance placing the appointment of the mutoiclpal authoritles in the hands of the administra. tion. This occasloned riots $\ln$ Madrid and other citles ; and when Christlna commlssioned Espartero, who was just returning vlctorious, to suppress the revolt $\ln$ Madrid, he refused to constl tutc himself the tool of an ucpopular pollicy. But he was the only man who could hold iu cheek the revolutlon which threatened to hreak out or all aides; and so, September $16 \mathrm{th}, 1840$, he hal to be named minlster presideut.
Under sich clreumstances the regency had but llttle charm for Christina, and the'e were, moro-over, other causel working with these to the anme result. Soon after the death of her husband, she had bestowed her favor on a young lifeguardaman named Muroz, made hlm her chamberlain, and been secretiy married to him. This unlon eoon published itself in a rich bless. lng of ollspring, hut it was not untll the year 1844 that her publle mniriage with Munoz, and hls elevation to the rank of duke (of Rianzares) and grandee of Spaln took place. Haring by thls course of life forfelted the fime of an honeat w. man, and exposed herself to all anorts of attacks, she preferred to lenve the country. Oc. tober 12th, she abdicated the regency, and journeyed to France. May 8th, 1841, the newiy elected Corter named Espartero regent $\mathrm{C}_{4}^{5}$ Spa.: anc guardian of Queen lababila and her slster, the Infanta Luisa Fernanda. . . . Since he knere how actlvely Christina, supported he Louid Philippe, was worklng ngninst him with goid and influence, he ontered lnto closer relation. wlth England, whereupon his envlous foes anj rivale accused hlm of the sale of Spanlais commercial Interesta to England. Br suse he quieted rebelifous Barcelona by a bombardment in 1842 , he was accused of tyranny. In 1843 new lusurrections broke out in the south; Colonel Prim hnstoned to Catalonia, and set himsclf at the head of the soldlers whom Chrlstina's agents had won over by a liberal use of monty; Espartero's deadiliest foe, General Nurvnez, landed in Vaiencia, and marched into Madrid at the head of the troops. Espartero, agalnst whom Progicsslsts and Moderados had consplred together, found hiniself forsaken, and embarked at Cadiz, Juis 26 th 1843 , for England, whence he did not dare to return to hls own country untli 1818 . In November, 1843 , the thirteen-year-old Isabeila was declared of age. She assumed the governmen made Narvaez, now Duke of Vaiencla, minist prealdent, nad recalled her mother. Tasesuy gate and doors were opened to the Frenci intuence, nad the game of intrigue and reaction ence, and the gnme of intrigue and reaction re. commenced. In 1845 the constitution of 1837 was nltered in the interests of absolutism.
In order to secure to his to ouse a iastlng intivence In Spaln, and acquire for it the reversion of tite Spanlgh, throne, Louis Philippe, in corcert witb Christina, effected, October 16th, 1846, the marriage of Isabelia, with her kinsnian Francis of Assis, and of the Infanta Luisa with the Duke of Mont pensier, hls own youngest son. (At first his plan was to marry Isale" la aiso to one of hls sons, the Duke of Aumale, but he nbandoned it on account of the energetic protest of the Paimer. ston cahlnet, ind, Instead, chose for Isabella, In Francis of Assis, the person who, by season of his mental and physical weakness, would be least likeiy to stand is the way of hls son Montpensier.) This secretly negotiated marriage cost Louis Philippe the friendship of the English Tabinet. "-W. Maller, Political Mist. of Modern Times, sect. 8 .
Also Ex: W. Bollaert, The Wars of Succession in Portugal and Spain, 1826 to 1840, i. 2.-C. F. lienningsen, $A$ Trelte Months' Campaign cith Zumahicarregni:-Sir H. L. Bulwer (Lord Dalling), Life of Palmerroton, o. 3, el. 7.-E. A. Fyffe, 1!ist, of Moztern Europe, o. . ch. 6 .
United S $^{1845-1860 \text { - Cuha in donger from the }}$ United Statee.-Filihustering movements.-
The Ostend Manifeeto. Sef CrBa: A. D. is4 $5-1960$.

4-46
A. D. 1862.-Allied intervention in Mesica
See Mrico: A. D. $1861-1867$.
A. D. ${ }^{2866}$ - War With Perv. - Repulse from Callao. See Perv: A. D. 1820-1876. of sahella.- - Revolution of 1869 geverament it Quheen.-Conetlution of 8860 .-Flight of th. Queen.-Conetlitution of 1869.-Religions toieration. - Candidates for the vacant throne. Eesection of Amadeo of Italy.- Unfriendlirese of the nation to him.-Hle abdicatlon."In January, 1868, occurred an lnsurrection headed by General Prim, in leading officer of the arma, which, faillng, caused his temporary exlie. In June there originated ln the barrack of San Gil, $n$ few hundred yurds from the paiace, a more serious revgit, Whlch extended over - great part ofladrid. In October of the same year the Mlnlatry, In n public proclamation, nileged os a justiflcatlon for an nutncratlc exerclec of poter, that 'revolutlonary tendencies constituted an tm . posing organlam whth dangerous pretenslons: that a rebelifon adverse to the fundamental in. stitutlons of tire country nad the dynasty of Ias. belle such as had never been seen In Spain, had obtained possession of Important municipalitles, and triumphed $\ln$ the deputatlons from nill the provinces, ${ }^{\text {' }}$ and that 1 t was necessary to dlosolve the munlclpailties and renew the provisional deputations. By thls arbltrary aesumption Spain was under as complete a despotism as exThed $\ln$ the nelghboring emplre of Morocco. The dissatlsfactlon at such maiadministratlon, such nbuses in the government, and the thlnly disguised lmmoraifit?s of the Queen, soon found expresslon $\ln$ audihie murmurs and severe criticism. These verbil protests were followed by machlnations for the overtirow or control of a sovereign suhject to ambltlous priests and a venal coterie. Two exlles, Marshai Serrano and MInrshai Prim, unlted with Admiral Topete at Cadiz, nil began a revolution whlch soon had the sympatiny and co-operatlon of a large part of the nrmy and the navy. A provisional revolutlonaiy junta of forty-one peisons - a few others, notably Sagasta and Martos, were afterwards arlded - was appolnted, Whlch signed decrees and orders having thr force and effect of laws. In less than a nol. Francisco Serrano was authorlzed by the junta to form n temporary mlnistry to ruie the country untli the Cortes sbould meet. The defeat of the royal troops near Aicolea prevented the return of Isabelia to Madrid, and on September 30, 1868 , she flei. sicross the border Into France. . With the fight of the Queen vanished for a tlme the parliarnentary monarchy. and, despite her impotent prociamations from rrance, nad cffers of amnesty, a provislonnl government wha at once established. A decree of the Government to take laventories of sll the lihraries, coilectlons of manuscripts, woriks of art, or objects of historical value -a measure necessary to make useful and avallable these treasures, and to prevent spoliatlon and transfer Here under fuliy sxecuted except at Burgos. Here, under lnstigation of the priests and aided by them, a mob cassemhied, broke down the doors of the cathedrai, assasslnated the Governor, wounded the chief of pollce, and expelled those engaged ln making the required examitnatlon and inventory. This outbreak, attrihuted to a cierical and Carilst consplracy, awnkened oppositlon and horror. A stming presitre was created for the lmmeaiate establishment of freedom of womblp. The atrocious butchery at Burgos aroused the inhahitante of the capltal. the Nunclo wat imperilied by the excted populece that the inmatic corps laterposed for the anfety and pimution of their colieague. Marchal serrano quieted the angry muititude gathered at his realdence by eaying that the Government had prepared the project of a constitution to be submitted to the Constitutional A seemhiy, one of whose ifint articles was ilberty of wornhip. On Fehruary 12, 1869, the Constititional Cortes convoked by the Provisional Government, assembled with unusual pomp and ceremony and with striking demoastrations of popular enthusiasm

The Repubilcans, among whon the eioquent Caatelar was influentiai, were a compact phalanx and to them the independent Progresistas, led by General Prim, made overtures which were accepted. On Sunday June 5, 1869, the Conatitution was promulgated.

While recog nizing the provinces and endowing them with important functions, the Cortes refected the plan of a federal repubilc, and adhered to the monarchical form of government as corresponting wlth and a concession to spanish traditions, snc as most ilkely to secure a larger measure of the Ilberal principles of the revoiution. The Constitution, the iegitinnte outgrowth of that popilar uprising, recognized the naturai and laherent rights of man, and established an elective monarchy. . . . Congress was chosen by universal suffrage. The provincial assemblies and the minicipal autiorities were clected by the peopie of thelr respective localities. The ancient privlieges of the aristocracy were annulied, and the equality of ali men before the law was recog. nized. . . . The Cierical party claimed the continued maintenance of the Roman Catholic Church nati the exclusion of ail other worship, but the country had outgrown such intoierance.

The Cathoiic form of faith was retained in the organic law as the religion of the State, but a larger liberty of worsinip was secured to the people. In Article S.SI. tho Cathoile Apostoic Roman religion was deciared the State religion, aud the ohifgation to maintain its worship and ministers was imposed. Foreigners wcre granted toleration for public and private worship under the limitatious of the universal ruies of morais and riglt, and Spaniards, even, professing another than the Cathoilc reilglon were to have the like toleration. . . Spain quietly passed from the anomalons condition of a provisionnl iuto a reguiar constitutional government. the titie of Provisiona Government having been changed to that of Executive Power. In June a regency was estahisheid, and serrano was chosen by a vote of 193 to 45 . From June 16, 1800, the date of Prim's tirst eabinet, untii December 27, 1870 . When he was shot [as he roie through the street, by nssassius, "hio cscaped], he had four sepmote ministries besides severni clannges of individual ministers; and this instability is characteristic of Spanish poitics.

For the vacant throne some Spaniards turned to the Duke of Montmensier: some to the Court of Portugnl, and in defauit thereof to the house of Savoy the monent of greatest embarrnssment, the candidature of Leopold. l'rince of Hohenzollern, was proposed [- a proposal which led to the FrancoGerman war: see France: A. D. 1870 (June - Icle)]. . . Leopoid's declension was a welcome relief. His candidacy being removed,the atrife for the throne became dercer. On November 8, 1870, Generni Prim anaounced to the Cortes the Duke of Aosta, son of Victor Em. manuel, as the Ministerial candidate for the crown. Cutelar impetuoualy denouaced the attempt to put a foreigner over Spaniarda. On the 15th, Amadeo was elected king, reseiving on a vote by beliot a majority of ceventy-one of thone present and a majority of eighteen la a fuii house. . . . The choice excited no enthusiasm, elicited no applause, nor was a vira given by the multitude outside the building where the Cores had made a sovereiga. Thirty thoumand troopa, discreetiy ported in principal thoroughfares, prevented any houtile demonstration, und the leadIng Repubilicans, Figueras, Castelar, and Pisy Margall, advised agalnat any acts of vlolence. Many journals condemned the Cortes. Grandee protested, placards caricatured and ridiculed.

. . . A

Ne vertheless, Zorrilia went to ltaly to make the formal tender of the crown, and on January 3. 1871, the prince reached Marrid and took the prescribed oaths of office in the presence of the regent, the Cortes, and the diplomatic corps. The ceremony was brief and simpie. The reception hy the populace was respectifui and cold. The Provisional Government resigned, and a new ministry was appointed, embracing such nien as Serrano, Martos, Moret, Sagasta, and Zorrilis.

Amadeo never had the friendshlp of the Carists nor of the simon-pure Monarchlsts. The dynasty was offensive to the Idherents of tha Carlos and of Alfonso, and to the Repubilicaas, who were opposed to any king. . . . Beconilag [after two years] convinced that the Opposithon was irreconcliable, that factions were inevitable, that a stable ministry was imposible, Amadeo resolved on the singular course of abdlcating the ruyal authorty, and returning to the nation the powers wlth which he had been intrusted: " aud tills abdication he performed ou the 11th of February, 1873.-J. L. M. Curry, Conatitutional Government in Spain, ch. 3-4.
Aleo In: J. A. Harrison, Spain, ch, 2i-2s.
A. D. 1873-1885.-Reign of Aiphonso Xll. son of Queen Isabelia.- On the abullentiun of King Amadeo, "a republle was deciared' br the Cortes, and the gifted and eminent stotesiuan Casteinr, strove to give it a constltutional and conservative character. But durin" te di orders of the last few years the Bas of Navarre and Biscay had been in cited by the Carists. The grandon Carios who hnd troubled Spain 1830 appeared ln those provinces still favourablo to his cause, ana young champlon of divine right ot ceived the support of French legitimists, (1a the other hand, the doctrines of the i :aris Commme had found in the south of Spaln many allierents, wion desired that thelr country shumbi form a ferieration of provinclai republics. Mal nga, Seville, Cadiz, Cartagena, nnd Volucia revolted, and were refiuced oniy nfter shart dighting. A group of generais then tietcruiluil th offer the crown to Alphonso, the yount an of Isabeila 11, in whose favour site had nbilieatert in 1868. Castelar, the moderate republicata statesinan, reluctantly consented, and ramb Alpionso XII, on landling ln Spaln. 18ї, re ceived the support of most repubicans an Carlists, dlsgusted by the excesses of the ir ces. treme purtisans. His generais graduaily hemmed

SPANIBE COINS.

In the Carlite along the north near Bilbeo and Irun; and when the by battles a German suhject Prince Bismarck reat Geman ahips to ald the Aiphonsiata. Theme in the spring of 1876 forced Inn Carion and mont of his aupportera to crow the French Prontier. The Madrid Government now determined to put an end to the fueros or focal privilieges of the Basque provinces, which they had misured in openly preparing this revoit. So Blecay and Navarre henceforth contributed to the general war expenses of Spain, and their conacripts were incorporated with the reguiar army of Spain. Thus the last municipai and provinciai privi. ieges of the old Kinginm of Navarre vanlshed, shi national unity beeame more complete in Spain, as in every other country of Europe ex. eept Auntria and Turkey. The Batque provinces resisted the change which placed them on $a$ level with the rest of Spaln, and have not yet become reconefied to the Madrld Goverament. The young Klig. Aiphonso XII, had many other difficuitles to meet. The goverament was dimorganised, the treasury cmpty, and the country nearly ruined; but he had a trusty adviser in Canovas del Castifo, a man of great prudence and talent, who, whether prime minister or out of office, has really heid power in his hands. He sueceeded in unifying the public debt, and by lowering its rate of Interest he averted State bankruptcy. He aiso strove to free the administration from the hablta of bribe Laking which had tong enfee hied and diagraced it; hut in this he pur with lens nuccem, as also in atriving for purity of pariliamentary election. . . . The Senate is composed of (1) oohien, (2) deputies eiected hy the corporations and wealthy clacses, and (3) of life senators appolated hy the crown. The Chamber of Deputien is eiected hy universal suiirage, one deputy for every 80,000 inhahitanta. The kify or either House of Parilament has the right of proposing iswa. In 1888 King Alphonso paid a visit to Berlin, and was made honorary colonel of a Uhian regiment. For this he was hooted and threatened hy the Parlaians on his visit to the French eapital; and this reception increased the coidneng of Spain toward the French, who had aggrieved their southern nelghbour hy deaigns on JIorocco. The gond understanding bet ween Spaln and Germany was overclouded ly a dispute about the Caroline Islands in the Pacific, whieh Spain rightiy regarded as her own. This aggravated an liness of ai phonso, who dled suddeniy (November 25, 1885). His young widow, as queen-regent for her infant child, has hitherto [1880] succeeded with marvelious tact."-J. H. Rose, A Century of Conts-nentil History, ch. 43 .
A. D. 1885 -1894. - Aiphonso XIII.-At the time of thls writing (November, 1894), the queenregent, Marin Christina, is stili reigning fn the name of her young son, Alphonso XIII.

SPalato. See Salona, Ancient.

SPANISH AMERICA: A. D. 1492-1517.Discoveries and earif settiement s. See AMERICA: A. D. 1492, to 1519-1517.
A. D. $1517-1524$.-Discovery and conquent of Mexico. See Averica: A. D. $1517=1518$; and Mextco: 1519, to 1521-1524.
A. D. ${ }^{1527-1533 .-D i s c o v e r y ~ a n d ~ c o n q u e s t ~}$ of Peru. See America: A. D. $1524-1525$; and PERU: A. D. 1528-1531, ahd 1531-1533.
A. D. 1533.-Conquent of the king dom of Quito. See Eccador.
A. D. $1535-1550$ - Spanish conqueats in A. D. $1536-1538$ - D. 1450-1724.
A. D. ${ }^{1536-1538 .-~ C o n q u e s t ~ o f ~ N e w ~ G r a-~}$ nada. See Colonbian Statesi A. D. $1536-1731$. audiencias of Quito, Chareas, New Granade and Chile, under the viceroyalty of Peranada, acdiencias.
A. D. 1546-1724.- The Araucanian War. See Cuile: A. 1). $140-1724$.
A. D. 1580 . -Final founding of the city of Buenos Ayres. See Araentine Replblac:

1. 1). 1. D
A. D. 1608-1767. - The Jesuits in Paraguay. See Paragray: A, D. 160s-1sis.
A. D. ${ }^{1620}$ - Formation of the government of Rio de La Plata. See Angentine lieperb. LIC: A. D. 1.580-1:
A. D. 1767.-Expuision of the Jesuits. See Pamachy: A. 1). 16ilis-18:3.
A. D. ${ }^{1} 77^{6}$.- Creation of the viceroyalty of Buenos Ayres. See AnaENTINE Revirbic:
 A. D. 1810-1816.-Revolt, independence and confederation of the Argentine Provinces. eonfederation of the Argentine Provinces. sed drgentine Reprblac: A. D. $1806-1820$.
A. D. $1810-1818$, - Chilean independence achieved. Scc Curie: A. D. $1810-1518$.
A. D. ${ }^{1810-1821 .}$ - The War of Independence in Venezuela and New Granada. See Colombian States: A. D. 1810-1810.
A. D. 1812 - Paraguayan independence accomplished. Sce Paraguar: A. D. 1608-1373. Mexico. $1820-1826$. - The independence of Mexico. - Brief Empire of Iturhide. - The A. D. 1820-182 ${ }^{\text {edic entahlinhed. See Mexico: }}$ A. D. $1820-1826$.

Centrai ${ }^{1821,- \text { Independence acquired in the }}$ Central American States. See Central AMERICA: A. D. 182'-1871.
A. D. i8a4--i tan independence won at Ayacucho. See 2 2. : A. D. $1890-1826$.
A. D. 1836. The Colominhin States: ... D. 18 ? ${ }^{\text {A. }}$ of Panama. See Colomilan States: ... D. $18: 6$.
A. D. i828.-The Banda Oriental hecomes
the Repuhlic of UUruguay. See Araentise Reprblic: A. D. 1819-15it. Reptblic: A. D. 1819-1874.

A. 1) 1588 ARMADA, The. Sce England: 1588

SPANISH COINS. - "The early chroniciers make their reckonings of values under ditferent names at different tlmes. Thus durlig the dlscoveries of Columbus we hear of littie else but Inaravells'; then the 'peso de oro' takes the lend, together with the 'easteliano'; all along 'mareo' and 'ducado' belag uceasionalle used. At the beginning of the 16 th century, an: before and after, Spanish values were reckoned from a mark of silver, whileli was the standard. A inark was haif a pound either of cold or silrer. The gold mark was divided into 50 castellanous; the silver mark into elght ounces. In the relgn of Ferdinand and Isabella the mark was divided by law Into 65 'reales de vellon' of 34 maravedis eueh. making 2.210 maravedis in a murk.
In the relgu of Alfonso XI., 1312-13.30, there were 105 maravedis to the mark. white in the relgn of Ferdinand VII., 1808-1893, a mark was divided into 6,40 maravedls. In Spandah Amerlica a 'real' is one.elghth of a 'pewo' and equal to if reaies do vellon. The pemo contalns one ounce of silver; It was formerly called ' peso de ocho renies do plata,' whence came the term 'plece of elght,' vulgarimm at one time In rogue among the merchants and huccaneers in the Weat Indles. .. The cantellano, the one tifleth of the golden mark, In the relgn of Fer. dinand and Isabella, was equiralent to 490 masavedis of that day. The 'peso de oro,' accordlng to Oviedu, was ermcty equlvalent to the castel. Isno, and either was one third greater than the ducarlo or ducat. The 'dohlon'... was frit struck hy Ferdinsid and Itabelia as a goll coln of the weight of two cantellanos. The modern doubloon fan ounce of coined gold, and is Forth 10 pesos fuertes. Reduced to United States currency, the peen fuerte, as allghtly alloyed bullion, is in weighe nearly enough equilv. alent to one dollar. Therefore a mark of sllver is equal to 8 dollars; piece of elght, equal to one peso, whlch equals one dollar; iteal de vel. ion, 6 cents; a Spanleh-American real, 121 cents; a maraved, ilf of a cent; a castellano, or peso de oro 82.66 ; a douhloon 35.14 ; durat, 81.02 ; a mark ofgold 8128 , assuming the Liuted States allny. The fact that a castellano was equivatent to only 490 marsvedis show: the exceedlagiy high value of sllver as compared with gold at the period in questlon."-H. H. Bancroft, lliat. of ihe Pacific skates, e. 1, pp. 102-103. fout-note. SPANISH CONSPIRACY, The. See -OCISLATA: A. D. 1885-1800.

SPANISH COINS.

spanta

SPANISI ERA, The. Bee Era, Spanisi. SPANISH PURY, The. Sce NetmenLANDS: A. D. 1575-1577.

SPANISH INQUISITION, The, Sce isQeIsition: A. D. 1209-1525.

SPANISH MAIN, The, -"The Spi. دlsh maln was slmpiy the malnland, terra firma, of Spanish America. as opposed to the islands: but the term 'terra irma was specially applied to the northern part of South America, extending - all along the North Sea from the Haclic Ocena to the mouth of the river of Amazons upon the Atlantlc' Burke, European Settlements In America, Pt. III., chap. xvi.), and comprising the towns of Panama, Carthagena, and Porto Bello [spe Trerra Firme]. Longfellow hlunders In the 'Wreck of the Hesperus ' when he speaks of the old sallor who 'had salled the Spanish maln." "- O. P. Lucas, Hiot. Geog. of the Britioh Colonics, e. 2, p. 85, font-note.
SPANISH MARCH, The. See Spaiv: A. D. 78.

SPANISH MARRIAGES, The questinn nf the. See France: A. D. $1841-1848$.
SPANISH SUCCESSION, The War nf the. See Spaik: A. D. 1698-1700, and after; Netierlanids: A. D. 1\%02-1\%04, and after; Germant: A. D. 1702, and after; Italif: A. D. 1701-1718; NEW ENOLAND: A. D. 1709-1710; and Uthecer: A. D. 1712-1714.

SPARTA: The City.-Ita aituatlon, nrigin and gravth, -Lacnnia. -" Hnllow Licede-mnn."-"Laconia is formed by two mountaln. chalns runnlng fmmedlately from Arcadla [from the center to the southeastern eatremity of Peloponnesus], and cacloalng the river Eurotas, whose source is separated from that of an Arcadian atream hy a very trifing elevation. The Eurotas

In, for wome way below the cltf of Sparta, a rapld mountala-itream; then, ster forming in cascade, ft atagnates Into a morass; hut lower down it passes over a frm coil in a gentle snd direct courne. Near the town of Eparta rovikn and allis spproach the banke on both skica, aal almont entirely shut in the river both sbove sal below the town: thls enclosed plaln is without douht the 'hollow Lacedamon' of Homer."C. O. Maller, Iliat, and Antig. of the Doric /iue, dk. 1, ch. 4. -Upon the Dorian lavasion and vecu. pation of Peloponnceus (see Dowiask axd Josians) the clty and nelghlorhood of Sparta in Laconla,-1. ©. Sparta and 'hollow Lacedemon,' - becnms the seat of the domlnant atate which they founded in the penlnsula. The conquerors, themelves, and thelr descendants, were the unif full clitzens of thls Spartan state and were called Epartlate or Spartans. The prior lahahitants of the country were reduced to polltical dependence, In a class ralled the Pericecl, or else to sctusl serfdom in the mone degraded clas known as Helots. "Sparta was hot, llke other towns of the Grecks, composed of a colld body of humsen, but, orlginally in a rural and open sltuation on the river and lts canals, it gradually strotebed out Into the open country, and Dorians lirend fat beyond Sparta along the entire valley, without the luhahitants of remoter polats belag on that account in any leas degree clelzens of Sparta than those dwelling hy the ford of the Eurotas. They were all Spartans, as hy a stricter term they were called, as distinguished from the Lacedemonians. . . . Sirictly apart from this exclusive community of Spartlate there remalned, with lts ancient conditions of Hfe latact. the older population oit the land, which dwele scattered on the mountains surrounding the land of the Epartiate on all sldes (inence called the dwellers-around, or Pericecl). Nore than trebling the Spartlate In number, they cultivated the incomparably less remunerative arable land of the mountalns, the precipitous declivitles of which they made avaliable by means of terraced wall for cornfields and vineyards. . . . Free proprietors on their own holdiugs, they, according to primilive custom, offered their tribute to the kiugs. The country jeople, on the otler hand, reslding on the fields of the Spartiatix, met with a harder fate. Part of them prolably cunsisted of pease on the domains; others had beer conquerea. .he course of internal feuts. They were left on the tields which had been ouce thefr own, on the condition of handing over to the Spartlate quartered upon them an lmportant portlon of thelr produce. This oppression provoked several rislogs; and we must assume that the aucient sea.town of Helos was for a time the centre of one of these outbreaks. For this is the only adralasible explanation of the opinion untversally prevalling among the anclents, that from that town is derived the name of the Helots. "-E. Curtius, Hist. of Greece, r. 1, Uf: : ch. 1.

Also IN: G. F. Bchömann, Antig. of Firtele: The State, pt. 8, eh. 1.

The Constitutinn ascrihed in Lycnrgus. "Sparta was the clty from whleh the Dorians slowly extended thelr dominlun over a cousider. ahle portion of Peloponnesus. Of the frog. ress of her power we have only the host meagre Information.

The Internai condition of Sparta at this eariy period ls uniformly described as one of strife and bard goverament, a condition of affairs which was certainly unfarourahle to external dovelopment and con queat. Herodotus attributes liene discenalone at feast in part, to the mutual animosity of the two royal families: the $t$ win cons of Aratodemus quarrehed all their lives, and their descendante after them did the arne. Plutarch, on the other hand, speaks of quarrels betwren the kings and the peopie. .. Whatever the cauce, it is mere certain than any other fact in eariy 8 partan hitwory that the conifition of the country was for a hug tlme one of Internal strife and diemeneion. it was the great merit of Lycurgus to have put in en tc thls disuatrous state of affairn. Lycurqua 1 the foremont name in Spartan history. Tradition is nearly unanimous in deweribing this law giver an the author of the proaperity of sparta, and the founder of ber peculiar inatitutions, inut sbout the date and the events of hin life the greateat uncertalnty prevalied. . . . Thucydides, though he does not mention Lycurgun, amerts that the form of the government had continued the anme in Sparta for noore than four hundred years before the end of the Peloponnetian war. In lifs opinion, therefore, the reforms of Lycurgue were introfuced shortiy before $80+$ B. C. This date is conside rahly later than that uasully giveu to Lycurgua, on the authority of the ancient chronologera. Herolotus teils us that Lycurgue, When visiting the Deiphic shrice, was halled by the prientcsa as a befug more than human, and come authorities asserted that the Spartan iastitutions were revealed to him there. The Lacelaemonians, however, regarded C'rete as the source of their peculiar arrangements isee Cretej They were thus enabied to connect them with the great name cf Minos, and derive their authority from Zeus himeelf. ... Plutarch has fortuastely trasseribed the test of the Rlictrae, or urifinances. which were glven to Lycurgis at Detphl. There does not seem to be any reason to doubt that these were the oldest ordinancea known at Sparta, or that they formed the hasis of their 'good government.' They were therefore the oldeat political ordinances known in Hellas, and, indecd. in the worid. Found a temple to Zeus Hellanius, and Athena Hellania, srange the tribes, and the Obes, thirty in num. ber, estahlish the Gerousia with the Archagetae. summon the people for meetling from time to time between Babyca nad the Cuacion, there bring forward and decide (reject). The people sre to have the supreme power.' Thus the first duty of the lawgiver was to found a public sanctuary which should be as it were the centre of the community. Then the people were to be arranged In tribes and Obes. The dlvision Into tribes was not a new one; from the first the Dorians at Sparta, as elsewhere, when free from the admixture of external elements, were divided fato three tribes, Hylleis, Dymanes. Pamphyll, but it in possible that some chauges were now in. troduced, regulating the intes $\because a l$ arrangement of the tribe. In each tribe were ten Obes, of which we know nothlng beyond the name. They appear to have been local divisions. As the $G$ iisia [see Gercsta], including tie Kligs, cur.aired thirty members, we may conjecture that each Obe was represented $\ln$ the Senate, aad therefore hat the two kings were the repreantatives of . io distlinet Olves. The Archagetae are the kings, or leaders of the peopie. From time to time the community wore to be gum. moned to a meeting. . . . Before the acembled people measures wore to be latroduced that they might dieclide upon them, for no menture whe vallil which had not seceived the manction of the whule people. The elemente with which these orlinances deal - the Kings, the Council and the Asembly - appear in the llomeric poems, and grew paturally out of the patriarchal goverament of the tribe. The woik of Lycurgus did not consiat in creating new elemente, but in conmildating those wid' 1 already exinted into a har. monious whole. . Three other ordinancea Which are ascribed to Lycurgus forbade (1) the Use of written inws; (2) the une of any tools but the axe and anw in huliding a house: () frequent wars upon the came enemiles. He fin also nald to have forhiddlen the use of coined money in gparta. Nefther gold nor ailiver was to be used for purposes of exclange, hut bars of iron Which by their amall value and great bulk readered money dealings on any large sea'e Impos. shile. The iron of these bars was alao made unuaually brittle in order that it might be use. lcse for ordinary purposes. Such precepte were douhtless obwerved at Sparta, though they magy not have heen derived from Lycurguas The training which every Spartan underwent whe intended to dininisish the sphere of positive law as much as poasible, and to encourngo the utmont simpliclty and even rudeness of life. About a century after Lycurgus, in the reign of Theopompus, two changes of grent imporeance were made in the Spartan coustltution. The veto which the enriler rietra had allowed to the as semhled people was cancelied, and a new law was introduced, whlch gave the ultimate control to the Geronte: and Kings. If the people decide croukedly, the elders and chiefs shall put it hack,' I. e. slasll reverse the popular deciston Under what circumatances this ordinance, which is sald to have been ohtained from Deiphi, wat passed, we do not know, nor is it quite clear hit It consists with what we find recorded of ti. constitutional history of Sparta $\ln$ later times

The second Innovation was ever more im. portant. Though Herodotus ascribes the institu. thon of the Ephoralty [see Eprors] to Lycurgus it seems more correct to follow Aristotie and others in ascribing it to Theopompus. The Ephors, who were five in number, appear in the first instance to have been of no great impor tance. But as they were intimately connecte with the commoas, efecteif from and hy them their representatives, we must asume that the ephorsity was a concr sion to the peopie, and it may hare been a compensation for the lose of the right of voting in the ussemhly. In time the ef hors grew to be the mont important oficers tn the itate, both in war and in peace. They were assoclated with the council, they presided in the assemhly, and even the kinge were not exempt from their power. To this resuit the growing dread of 'a tyrannis,' like that at Corinth or Sicyon, and the increasing importance of the Spartan training, which the ephorss superintended, in a great measure contrihuted. . The kings were the leaders of the arm:- For a time they always tic) the field together, hut owing to the dissensions of Cleomenee and Demaratua, a law was passed that one king only should go out with the army, and it was henceforth the cuatom for one king only to be absent from Sparta, at a time. The lings had the right of makling wat on whon they would, and no one could prevent thom, on paln of belng under acirne, but an thoy wore liable to bu broustht to trial on their return for failure in an eapedition, they uaually cbtained the consent of the ephors or the amembly befor solns.

BPARTA.

The orfgin of the dual monarchy which from the frat was mo dlatlactive a fenture of the Apartan gove ment, in very obecure, and many attempts hare ween made to esplaln It. It may have artsen hy fusion of the native and tramigrant races, each of whlei was allowenl to retaln ite own prince in the new community. It is perhaps anore renconsble to assume that the two king represent two leadlug fam. tlies, each of which hal a claim to give a chlef to the community. That two families holding equal sights should be regarled as descended from the $t w i n$ sons of the Dorian founler of Sparta in merely one of the actlons which of necendity arose in the periud when all polltical unions and arrangements were expreased In the cerma of genealoglcai connection. . . The Apeila was an amembly of ail :be Spart?n cill. zen who had reached the age of thlrty yearh. In historical times it was predided over by the ephors. No speaklig wne allowed except by ofticers of State and pernons duly favited, and perhape the senators. The votes were glven by sccismation. The assembiy decided on war and pence, treaties, and foreign polltics renerally; It ciected the ephors and gerontew. $\qquad$ Itore lm . portant for the development of Sparta than her political conatltution was the education and trainlag whicb her citlzens recelved. . . The Spartaudld not exiat for himseif but for his city; for her mervlce be was trained from birth, und the most intimate relatlons of bis life were hrougit under her controi. In the recluded valley of the Eurotas, where tlli the tlme of Epam. Inonilas no iuvaler ever set foot, nmid profound peace, be nevertheiess led the llfe of a warrior In the feid. His sirength and condurance were lented to the utmost; he was not permltted to surrencier hlmself to the charm of family lifo and domestic affections. Even when sllowel to marry, be apent but ilttle time at home; his chll. dren, if thought worthy of life, were takeu from him at an early age to go througb tbe same training in which he litmself had been brougbt up. Only when he reacheil the age of sixty years, at which toe couid no longer serve hie country in the theid, was ic pernltted to cnjoy the feeling of persouni freedom."-E. Abbott, Hist. of Greece, pt. 1. ch. 6.

Also IN: G. Grote, Hiot. of Grecee, pt. 2, ch. 6.-G. W. Cox, Hiat. of Greece, bk. 1, ch. '5.C. O. Muller, IFist, and Antiquities of the Durie Race, bk. 3 (c, 2).

B, C. $743-510$. The First and Second Mes. senlan Wars.-Military upremacy in Peioponnesus establisbed.-"The effect of the Ly' arge' institutions was to weid the people of ato what Grote well denominates a mitim, brotherinod' - the most potent milltary machine whleh nt that time, and for long after, existed in Greece or in the world. ILad their poiltleal ambltion and shillty been proportinnate, it is difficuit to doubt that the Laceda. monians migit bave auticipated the career of the Romans; but their inability to produce really great statesmen, and the iron rigidity of their golitical aystem, piaced in their path cffectuai barrien to the attalament of such grabdeur.
The irnt ohject of thelr attecks was the seleb. bouring Dorian klardom of Memenle. The kin. shlp betwean the two peoples aul thels rulcris had prevtously kept thom on frleodly terms. It wat symbolized and es prensed by jofnt sacrloces. acnuinly ceiebruted at temple in broboup of Ariemis which stood on the borders between the two countrles, wat the source of the river Neila. It wat a quarrel that broke out at these annual fites which led to the outbreak of the armt Jes. enalan war, about 749 B . C. The circumatancet of the quarrel were ditierently related by the two parties; hut it renulted in the death of Teleclus, one of the Spartan kinge. Ifif suhject Invadm? Memenia to obtain redreas. As ornt the trughle wis of an Indecislve charactep, but ultmaiely the Memenians were obilsed to take refure un the fortised mountaln of thome, and ali the reat of thelf country wa overrun and conquerel hy thelr peraistent enemles. After the war had laoted twenty years, the Meseenlan gardaon wsi compelled to bandon Ithmme, the fortificatlons of whlch were razed by the Spartans, and Jes. senla becanie part of the Lacedemonitn territory. - ail It Inhabitanta who refueel to submit bo. ing difiven Into exile. Pausanlus and other so cient writers give long detall of the event of thla twenty yeari atruggle, the great heru of wblch wat the Mescenian king Ariatomenem ; but thewe details are a legendary as the expiolts of the Homertc heroes, and all that is certainly known about the war la that It ended in the aub. Jugation of Messenla. The severity and uppre slon whith which the conquered weople were suied led them, about forty years later, to rimo up in revolt, and another struggle of meventeen years' duration followed. In thils, gain, Aris. tomenes is represented as the Jlessenfan leaier, aithough he had put an end to his own life st tbe unsuccessful ciose of tbe former conteat; and the later Hellenic writers tried to get over thil imposelbillty by decinring .hnt the Arlstomene of the second war must have been a deacendant of the eariler hero bearing the same name. in the courre of the war the Spartnas suffered severely, as the Measenians ind the support of other Peloponnesinn communlties - esperinlly the Arcadlans - who had begun to diem. :le strength and nrrogance of the Lacedmenondans. C'limately, however, the revolt was crusied, and from that time tili the days of Epamiuuadas, Jessenia remained a part of the Laconian terri. tory [see Messenian Wahs, Finst and Second] To Sparta it was an important acqulsitiou, fus the plain of the Pamisus was the most fertile district in Peioponnesus. The Spprtans next became aggresaive on the eac*ern and northern from tlers of tbeir territory. Among the numerous indepeudent cominunities of Arcadia, the two most important were Tegea and Mantiuca, in the extreme east of the Arcadlan territory. With these cities, especially the former, the Spartans bad some severe struggles, hut were not able to conquer them, thougb they estahlished a dominant influence, and reduced tbem to the position of dependent alifes. From Argos . . . the Lace. demonians wrested, in the course of two cen turies, the strip of territor- between the Parnon range and the sea from Tbyrea down to the Malean promontory. By the beginning of the 6th century B. C. they were masters of twoufthe of the whole area of Peloponneest - 8

SPAITTA, B. C. 404-408.
beritory of something more than 8,000 square mileq. To modern notions such s terflory, Whlch is amalier in extent then more thas one Acottloh county, seema utteris insignidicant; hut It sumbed to make Bparta the largeat and atrong. ent state in Heila, and even at the pianacle of ber power ahe never made any further addition to har poncesolons in Peir wonnesus. Protected from invsaion by impregna bie nstural defences, and poneming a militery diacipline, a soclal and poiltical unity, such as no other Grectan com. munity couil boaet, the lacedermonlane pones. art peculiar adrantages is the competition for tine Helienic leaderalip. It was about the ciove of the 6th century B. C. thet Sparta, hav. Ing anmerted her supremacy in Peioponnesus, began to take an sctive part in the afanis of the Helienic $r$, mmunities outaide the penl ula In 810 B. C. her king, Cleomenes, wr o Arbens at the heed of a large force to obey, mandate $\begin{array}{ll}\text { of the Deiphlc orncle sad l liberate } & \text { cetty by } \\ \text { the expuiflon of the Pisintratids. "- } & \text { i. Hanson, }\end{array}$ the espuinlon of the Pisineratids. "The Land of Greece, eh. 11.
Alno ws: C. Thlriwail, Hice. of Orece, eh. 9.G. Grote, Aliot. of Graet, pe. 2, eA. 7-8.
8. C. sog-jo6. - Peraretent undertakiage of Cleomenes to reetore tyranay at Athens, opposed by the Corinthians and other allies. See ATEENB: B. C. 800-600.
C. .. 50e.-Interforence of King Cicomenes a: Aimens, and lie fallure. Bee Atares: B. C. $510-507$.
8. C. jos.-Refugal of ald to the lonian revoit. Bee Preabia: B. C. 821 - 408.
B. C. 496.-War with Arces.-Prostrat'nn of the Argive state. See Aruos: B. C. &vo421.
B. C. 193-491.- Headehjp in Greece recognised. -Defance of the Peraian ting, Enforced naity of Greece for war. See Grezce: B. C. 492-401.
B. C. $4^{81-479 .-C o n g r e s s ~ a t ~ C o r i a t h .-O r-~}$ ganiced Heilenic Union against Perala.-The Spartan headship. See Grexce: B. C. 4814it.
B. C. $4^{80}$ - The Perslan War.-Leonides and his Three Handred at Thermopyle. Ey Greece: B. C 480 The. ipyle.
B. C. $47^{8 .- \text { - Interforence }} 0$ forhid the buiding of the walis of Athens, folied Themintocies. See Atirexs: B. C tip $^{2}-178$,
B. C. $47^{6-477}$. Mad conduct o Pausanias at Byzantium. - Alienation of the isaiatic Greeks.-Loss of the leadership,:. the Greek worid. - Formation of the Confocrersy of Delos, with Athens at its head. if ingree: B. C. 478 - 477 .
B. C. ${ }^{464-455 .-}$ - " Freas Earthquake.The Third Messeniau War.-Offer.sive rebuff to A thenian friendiness. Ncc Mebsenias Wars: Tief Thimd.
B. C. 403-458. - Emhittered eamity at Athens.-Rise of Pericies and the democratic Anti-Spartan party.-Athenian alijance with Argos Thesealy, and Megara. See Athess: B C. $406-454$.
B. C. $45 \%$-Iaterference in Phocis.-Coilision with she Athenians and victory at Tanagra. See Greece: B. C. 458-458.
B. C. 453.- Five Jeara truce with Athens. Sep $\Lambda$ TRENS: B. C. $460-449$.
B. C. $449-445 .-$ Aid to revoita in Beotis, Eubak and Megara against Athenian rule or lafensec. - The Thint Years Truce dee Gazece: B. C. $40-445$.
B. C. 440. Interfereace with Atheme in Samosoppesed by Corinth. Bee ATumse: B. C. 440-437.
B. C. $432 \cdot 431=$ Hearing of charges against Atheas. - Congreas of Alies. - Docision for Wher. Thetanatiark on Platian-Opeaing of the Peloponacuian Waf. See GaEkck; B. ©. 482-481.
B. C. 431-499.-Firat and socond yeare the Poloponneaian War: Invaeions of Attica. - Plague at Athens.-Diath of Paricles. Seo Garick: B. C. $131-420$.
B. C. $42{ }^{-477 .-T h e ~ P a i o p o n a e s i a n ~ W a r: ~}$ Siege of platak. Bec Gaxpce: B. C. $420-427$ Brioz of Pratiea.
B. C. $425-427$.-The Polopeanesian Wap: Ald to the inenryunt Mitylemeans.-Itefaijure. Bee Gurick: B. C. 420-497 Phormio's sea.
8. C. ${ }^{425}$. - The P! nnesian War : Catactrophe it Sphar : Pemee pieaded for and rofued by A. efo 425.
B. C. 424 -42s.-1 1 neslan War: Enccesses of brasidas ch chacidice.-Athenian defeat at Deiium. - Death of Branidas.- Peace of Nitias. See Grexce: B. C. 24t-421.
8. C. 428 -418. - The Peloponnedian War: New hostile comhiaasions. - The Ar ive cono federacy. - War in Argos and Arcadia. - Victory at Mantinea. see GaEEcE; B. C. 421418.
8. C. 415-483.-The Peioponacsian War: Heip to Syracuse againet the Athenians,Comfore to the fucitive Alcihiades. See Srra. CuEE: 13. C. 415-413.
B. C. $413-482$. The Peioponnesian War: Aid to the revoiting cities in Asia and the RErean.- Intrigues of Alcibiades. See Cheece: B. C. $413-12$.
B. C. 483- Negotiations with Persian as-traps.- Subsidies for war againat Athens.Invasion of Attica. - The Decelian War. Seo Greece: B. C. 418.
B. C. 41 - $40 \%$. At heman victories at Cynos- $^{\text {n }}$ 3.na and Abydos.- Exploits of Alcibiades. His return to Athens. - His second deposition and exiie. See Greece: B. C. 411-407.
B. C. 406 , The Peloponnesian War: Defoat at Arginuse. See Greece: B. C. 406 .
B. C. 405 - The Peloponnesian -Nar: Decisive victory at figospotami. See Greece: B. C. 405.
B. C. 404. - End of the Peioponnesian War: Surrender of Athens. See Atulns: B. C.
B. C. 404-403. - The organising of Spartan supremacy. - The Harmosts in power, - The overthrow of Athenian power in the Greek world, made tinai by the battle of EAguspotami, B. C. 405, rendered Sparta supreme, and estabilisied her in a sovereignty of aftairs which is often ai. luded to as the Spartan, or Lacediemonian Emplre. The citics which had been either allled or subject to Athens were now submisglve to the Spartan conqueror, Lysander. "He avalled himseif of his strength to disolve the propuiar ayntem of government in alis the towns which had beionged to the Attic confederatlou, and to commit the goverament to a Excd body of men enjoying bis confdence. As at Athens the Thirty

SPARTA, B. C. $404-403$.

SPEAKER

[see Атвамя: B. C. 404-408], so elsewhere Commissions of Ten [called Dekarchles] were establlshed; and la order to glve security and strength to those governlng boilfs, detachments of Spartan troops were placed hy their side, under the command of a llarmost. Thls measure, again, was, by no means a novel invention. From an early period the Lacedamonians had been in the habit of despatching Harmostae (i. e. mllitary governors) Inco the rurai distrlets, to hold sway over the l'erifecl, and to keep the latter in striet subjectiou to the capital. Such Hiarmosts were subsequently also sent abroall: and thls, of itwelf, showed how the spartans hail no intentlon of recoghalalng various kluds of subjectlon, and inow they at bottom designed to make no essential difference loet ween subject rurai communitles in Laconla and the forelgn towns whlch had of thelr swin accord, or otherwlse, submitted to the power of Sparta. The duration of the Mar mosts' tenure of office was not dietinel." "- E. Curtius, Hist. of Grecee, bk. 5, ch. 1 (e. 4).
Also m : G. Grote, Hint. of Circere, pt. 2 , ch 72.-G. F. Schomann, Antiq. of tirecee: The Nitte, pt. 3, ch. 1.-C. Sunkey, The Spurtin und Theban supremacica, ch. 1.
B. C. 399-387. - War with Persia and with a hostile league in Greece.- Struggie for the Corinthian lathmus. - Restored independence of Athens.-The Peace of Antalcidas. See Greece: B. C. 399-ixi.
B. C. 385.-Destruction of Mantinea See Greece: B. C. 385.
B. C. 383.- Treacherous seizure of the Kadmeia of Thehes. Sec Greece: B. C. $3 \times 3$.
B. C. 383-379. - Ovarthrow of the Olynthian Confederacy. Sec Gueece: B. C. $383-379$.
B. C. 379-371. - Liberation and triumph of Thehes. - Spartan supremacy hroken at Leuctra. Nee Greece: B. ('. 370-3:1.
B. C. 378-362.-The conflict with Thehes. -Two attempts of Epaminondas against the city.-The battle of Mantinea. Sce (Ireece: B. C. 371-362.
B. C. 353-337- Independent attitude towards Philip of Macedon. see Gueece: B. C. $35 i-336$.
B. C. 387. - Building of Wails,-It was not until abiout the year 317 B . C., during the dlstractlons which followed the death of Alexamier the Great, that walls were built around the eity of Sparta. "The malintenance of Sparta as an unwalled clty was one of the deepest and most cherished of the Lykurgenn traditions; a standing prowf of the fearless hearing and seif-contdence of the Spartana against dangers from without. The erection of the walis showel their own corviction, but ter) weil burne out by the reai circumstances aromull them, that the pressure of the forcigner had become so overwheiming as not to leave them even gafety at home."- - . Grote, Hint. of firccee, mt. a. ch. ©6.
B. C. 272.-Siege by Pyrrhus.-Not many years after the walls of Sparta were first bulft the city was suldeeted to a siege by Pyrrhus, the ambithous Epirote king. There were two clalmants to the Spartan erowa, and Pyrrhus, espousing the cause of the unsuccessful one, marched into Peloponnesus witha powerful army, (1). C. 272) and assalied the Lacelarnomian capital. IIe was repuised and repulsed astin, and tave up the attempt at last, marching away to Argos, Where his interfereace in local yuarrels had been solicited. He perished there, ignominlously in another abortive enterprice, being killed by a tlie flung down by a woman's hand, from a housetop overlooklag the atreet in which he whs attempting to manage the retreat of his discomfited forces.-C. Thirlwall, Hiat. of Greece, ch. 60.- See Macedonia, dc. : B. C. 277-244.
B. C. 237-328. - Downfall in the Cleomenic War. See Grerce: B. C. 280-146.
A. D. 367 - Ravaged by the Goths. See Gotns: A. D. 258-267.
A. D. 395.-Piundered by the Gothn. See Gorns: A. ©. 395.

SPARTACUS, The Rising of.-Schools for the tralning of giadiators, to supply the barbar. ous amusement which the Romans dellghted h , wcre numerous at Rome and throughout Itals. The men placed In these schools were slaves. criminai prisoners, or unfortunates whose parents abandoned them in infancy. As a rule they were forced lato the brutal profession and the schoois which tralned them for it were piaces of continement and restraint. From one of these schools, at Capua, some seventy or more gladia. tors escaped, in the year 78 B . C., aud fled tis the mountains. They had for thelr leader a Thracian, named Spartacus, who proved to be is soldler of remarkable ablity and energy. Statlonlng hilmself at Arst on Mount Vesuvius, Spar tacus was jolned by other slaves and fugitives until he had a large force under his commanal. Again and agaln the Roman armles seat agulnst him were defeated and the insurgents equipped themselves with captured arms. Fola Nucerin, and other towns In Southern Italy fell into their hands. In the year 72 they noved toward Northiltaly, routing two consular armi's on their waty and were thonght to be intealing to escape beyond the Alps; but, after another great victory at Mutina (Modea) over the pro. consul of Galla Cisalpina, Spartacus turued southward agnin, for some unexplained reason, and ailowed limself to be blockaded In the extremity of Lucanla, by M. Lelinius Crassus. in this sltuation he sought to make terms, but his proposais were rejected. He then succecied in breaking through the Roman lines, but was pursucd by Crassus and overwheimingly defented at Mount Calamatins, where 35,000 of the lusurgents are said to have been slaln. The thing remnant was agaln brought to bay uear Peiilla, In Bruttium, and there Spartacus ended hils life. A few thousand of the lnsurgents who escajed from the field were intercepted by Pompey and cut to pleces, whlle 6,000 captives were crueltiet, with Roman brutality, along the road betweer Capuan and Rome.-G. Long, Deelino of the $R$, man Republic, e. 3, ch. 2.-See, also, Rome: B. C 88-68.
SPARTAN EMPIRE. See Sparta: B. C. 404-403.
SPARTAN TRAINING. See Edecathn, Ancient: Greece; also, Sparta, Tite Conititetion, &e.
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COM-MONS.-"The splendor of the positlon of Speaker of the British House of Commons is perhaps not generally realized. The appolintment, nominally for the duratlon of but one parliament, generaily extends over several.
Chosen from among the members, subject to the approval of the Crown, the Speaker can be removed only upon an address to the Crown. Beades a paiatial residence occupyiag one wing of the Houses of Parliament, and a iarge patronage, he receives a saiary of $£ 5,000$ a year. At the end of his iabors he is rewarded with a peerage and a pension of $£ 4,000$ per annum for two llves. He is a member of the Privy Council, and the Arst gentleman in the United Kingdom, taking rank after harons. . . . The wig and gown whlch he wears, the state and ceremony with which he is surrounded, douhtless contrihute to the isolatlon and impressiveness of his position.

SPEAKER
When, at the opening of proceedings, he makes his way in state from his residence to the Chamber, through the corridors used hy members for passing to the committee, ilihrary, and refreshment rooms, it is against etiquette for any one to be found thereln. When on summer evenings he and his family take the alr upon the portlon of the terrace which is outslde hls residence, there is no more thought of approaching them than there wonid be if he were a Grand Lama. When in the chair, he can be approached only upon strictiy buslness matters. His levees, held twice a year and open to all members, can be attended oniy in court costume. sword hy the slde. "- The Sation, Aug. ${ }^{17,1893}$ ( $p$. 117).
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. See Conoreas of the United States.
SPECIE CIRCULAR, The. See Üyited States of Am.: A. D. 1835-1887.
SPENCEAN PHILANTHROPISTS.SPENCEANS. See England: A. D. 18161820.

SPEUSINII. See Scythlans, or Scytree, or Athens.
SPHACTERIA, Capture of. See Greece: B. C. 425.

SPHINX, The.-"About six hundred yards to the S. E. of the Great Pyramid is the Sphinx. The Sphinx is a natural rock, to which has been given, more or less accurntely, the externai appearance of that mystic animai. The head alone has been scuiptured. The hody is formed of the rock itseif, suppiemented, where defectlve, by a somewhat ciumsy masonry of ilmestone. The totai helght of the monument is 18 metres 80 ceatlmetres, equal to 65 English feet. The ear measures 8 feet 5 inches; the nose 5 feet 10 inches; and the mouth 7 feet 8 laches. The face, in its wldest part, across the cheek, is 4 metres 15 centimetres, that $1 \mathrm{~s}, 13$ feet 7 lnches. Its origin is stili a matter of douht. At one time it was supposed to be a monument of the relgn of Thothmes IV. (XVIIIth dynasty). But Fe know now, thanks to a stone ia the Bouiak Museum, that the Spilas was already in existeace when Cheops (who pricceded Chephren) gave orders for the repairs which this stone com. memorates. . The Sphinx is the colossal im. ag. of an Egyptian god cailed Armachis."-A. Mariette. Monumenta of Cpper Egypt, p. 70 . SPICE ISLANDS. See MoLuccas.
SPICHERN, OR FORBACH, Battle of. See Frasce: A. D. 1870 (JUly-AUGest). SPINNING-JENNY, Invention of the.
See Cotton Mantracture.
SPIRES: A. D. 1526-1529.-The imperial Diets.-Legal recognition of the Reformed religion, and its withdrawal.- Protest of Lutheran princes. See Papact; A. D. 1525-1529.

STAFFARDA.

A. D. 1689 . -Destruction by the French. See Frasce: A. D. 1680-1690.

A. D. 1733 - Taken by the French. See Utaecit: A. D. 1712-1714.
SPOILS SYSTEM, The. See Civil-SErVice Reporm in ter Unitid Statiza
SPOLETO: A. D. II55.-Burned by Frederick Barbarosea. See ITALY: A. D. 1154-1162. SPOLIA OPIMA.-"The proudest of all military trophies were Spolia Opima, which couid be gained only when the commander-inchief of a Roman army engaged and overthrew in slngle combat the commander-In chief of the enemy. . . Roman history afforded but thre exampies of legltlmate spolia Oplma. The tirst were won by Romulus from Acro, King of the Cenlnenses; the second hy Aulus Cornelius Cossus from Lar Toiumalus, King of the Veientes; the third hy M. Claudius Marcelius from Virodomarus, a Gaulish chief (B. C. 222). In all cases they were dedicated to Juplter Feretrius and preserved ln his tempie."-W. Ramsay, Manual of Roman Antiq., ch. 12 .
SPOLIATION CLAIMS, French. See United States of Am.: A. D. 1800 .

SPORADES, The. See Cycladers.

SPOTTSYLVANIA, Battle of. See United Staten of AM.: A. D. 1864 (May: Viroinia) Grant's Movement, de.: Spottisevania.
SPRING HILL, Engagement at. See Usited States of AM. : A. D. 1864 (NovexBer: Tensezsee).
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.: A. D. 1637.-The first settlement. See Consecticut: A. D.
1634-1637.
SPURS, The Battle of the ( 5513 ). See
FRANCE: A. D. $1513-1515$.
Frasee: A. D. 1513-1515. SPURS, The Day of the. See Cochtrar, The battle of.

SQUATTER SOVEREIGNTY. See Unt. TED STATES OF AM. : A. D. 1854.
SQUIRE. See Chitalry.
STAATEN-BUND. See Germany: A. D. $181+1820$.
STADACONA. See Qcenec: A. D. 1535. STADION, OR STADIUM, The. See Hippodrone.
STADIUM, OR STADE, The Greek"Throughout the present work' I shali unlformiy assume that the Greeks empioyed hut one measure under that designatlon the stadium] which was . A huadred fathoms, or 600 Greek feet.
This has been proved, in my opinion, beyond a douht. br Coi. Leake In is douht, by Coi. Leake ln his paper 'On the Stade as a Llacar Measure'. repubilshed in hls treatise 'On some disputed Questions of Ancient Geography.' . . At the present day the controversy may be considered as setticd. stade of 600 Greek feet was in reality very . . A the b00th part of a degree [of the circumference of the earth]; ten stades are consequentiy just about cqual to a nautical or geographicai mile of 60 to a degree."-E. H. Bunbury, Hist. of An. cient Geog. ch. 6, note c.

STADTHOLDER. See NETHERLaNDs: A. D. 1584-1585.

STADTLOHN, Battle of (1623). See GERMANY: A. D. 1621-1623.

STAFFARDA, Battle of (1690). See

STAHL.

STANDARD.

Stahl, Gentge E. See Medical Science: 17 th Century.-Closing period, de. STAHLHOF. See Hansa Towxs.
STALLER AND HORDERE, The.-"In the time of clifred [Alfred the Great] the great officers of the court were the four heads of the rovai househoid, the Hordere, the Stailer, the Dish-thegn, and the Cup-thegn. . . . The Hordere was the officer of the court $\ln$ its atationery aspect, as the Stalier or Constabie was of the court on progress.

Of the four officers one only retained under the fater Weat-Saxon monarchy any real power. The dish-thegn and cupthegn lost importance as the court became sta. thonary and no ionger maintained a vast body of royal foliowers. The atalier retained only the functions of leading in war as the feudal constable, which in turn passed away with iater changes in the military system. The hordere alone heid a positlon of growing importance. $\ldots$ No doubt the 'Hoard' contained not oniy money and coin, but the coastly ornamenta and robes of the crown."-J. R. Green, Conqueat of Eng., ch. 10, note.-' The names hy which the Chamberiain was designated are Hregei thegn, literaliy thane or servant of the wardrobe, Cubicuiarius, Camerarius, Búrthegn, perhaps sometimes Dispensator, and Thesaurarius or Hordere.

We may presume that he had the general management of the royai property, as well as the immediate regulation of the household.
The Marshal (among the Franks Marescalcus and Comes stabuii) was properly speaking the Master of the Horse. . . The Angiosaxon tities are Steailere [Stalier] and Horsthegn, Stabuiator and Strator regis."-J. M. Kemble, The Saxons in Eng., bk. 2, ch. 3.-See, also, Conetable.
STALWARTS AND HALF-BREEDS. During the administration of President Girant, certain ieaders of the Republican party in the United States - conspicuous among them Senator Conkling of New York - acquired a control of the distrihution of appointed offices under the Federal Government which gave them a more despotic control of the organization of their party than had been known before in the history of the country. It was the cuiminating development of the "spoils system" in American poititics. It produced a state of things in which the organization of the party-its eiaborated structure of committees and conventions - state, county, city, town and district,-became what was accurately described as a "political machine." The managers and workers of the machine were hrought under a discipline which allowed no room for personal opinions of any kind; the passive adherents of the party were expected to accept what was offered to them, Whether in the way of candidates or declarations of principie. Tine faction winich controiled and supported this powerfui machine in politics acquired the name of Stalirarts and contemptuously gave the name of Haif-breeds to their dissatistied Repubican opponents. During the term of President Hayes, who favored Civil Service Reform, the Stalwarts were considerably cinecked. They had desired to nominate General Grant in 1876 for a thiri term, hut found it un. wise to press the proposition. In 1880, however, they railled ail their strenyth to accomplish the nomination of Grant at Chicago and were hitterly enraged when their opponents in the convention carried the nomination of Gardeld. They joiner ln eiecting him, but Conkling, the Staimart leader, speedily quarreied with the new President when denled the contrui of the Federal "patronage" (that in, officiai appolntments) in New Yoris State, resigned from the Senate, appealed to the New Yorls Legislature for re-election, and was beaten. Then foll wed the t.agedy of the assassination of Presldent Garteld, which had a very sobering effect on the angry poilitics of the time. Conkiing disappeared from pubilc Hife, and Staiwartism suhsided with him.-J. C. Ridpath, Life and Work of James A. Garjield, eh. 10-12.
Also ns: E. Stanwood, Hiot. of Presidential Elections, ch. 24-25.-J. Bryce, The American Commonivealith, ch. 60-65 (0. 2).
STAMBOUL. - "It must be remembered that the Constantinopie of 1200 was only that portion which is now calied Stamboui or Istamboul, a word which is probabiy the Turkish ah. breviation of Constantinopie, Just as Skenderoun In the a bbremation of Alexandretta, Skender bey for Alezander bey, Ianik for Nicaea, Ismidt for Nicomedia, &c.

The 'Itinerario' of Clavigo states that before the Mosiem occupation the inhahitants themselves cailed the city Es. comboli. The Turks allow a few foreigners to have their warehouses in Stamboui, but wili not permit them to reaide there. All the emhassies and legations are in Pera, that is, across tine water; $\qquad$ or at Galata, which is a part of what was originaliy calied Pera."-E. Pears, The Fall of Constantinople, ch. 7, foot-note.
STAMFORD, Battie of. See Lose-coat Field.
STAMFORD BRIDGE, Battle of. See England: A. D. 1066 (September).

STAMP ACT, The. See United States OF AM. : A. D. 1765; and 1766.
STANDARD, The Battic of the ( $133^{8}$ ).In the civil war which arose in England, on the death of Henry I., over the disputed succession to the throne, Matilda's claims, as the daughter of Henry, were supported against Stephen of Biois hy her mother's brother David, king of Scotland. David, as the nephew of Edgar EEtheiing, heir of the dethroned Saxon royai house, had some ciaims of his own to the English crown; but these he declared that he waived in favor of his niece. ''Tinough he himself declared that hc had no desire for the English throne, there is mentioned by one chronicier a general conspiracy of the native English with their exiled country:men, of whom the south of Scotiand was fuli, for the purpose of taking advantage of tire condition of the country to put to death the Normans, and to piace the crown upon David's head. The piot was discovered, . . and many of the conspirators were hanged, but many others found a refuge in Scotiand. At iength, in 1138, David entered Engiand with a large army, and pusied forward as far as Northailerton in Yorkshire. IIe was there met by the forces of the Northern bishops and barons. . . They gathered round a tali mast borne upon a carriage, on which, above the standards of the three Northern Saints, St. Peter of York, St. John of Beverley, and St. Wiifred of Ripon, was dispiayed a silver pys bearing the consecrated wafer. The motley army of the Scots, some armed as the Engligh. some in the wild dress of the Picts of Galloway, after a well-fought battle [Auguat 22, 1130]

STANDARD

STAR CHAMBER

troke against the full-clad Norman soidiers, and were killied by the arrows, which had now become the national weapon of the English; 11,000 are sald to have fallen on the fleld." From the great atandard above described, the fight at Northallerton was called the Battle of the Stand ard.-J. F. Bright, Hiot. of Eng., period 1, p. 79. -See Exgland : A. D. 1135-1is4.
STANDERATH, The. See Switzerland: A. D. 1848-1890.

STANDING ARMY: The firat in moders Europe. See Fravee: A. D. $1453-1461$.
STANDISH, Milea, and the Plymouth Coi-
-ay. See Mansacheserts: A. D. 1623-1629. STANISLAUS AUGUSTUS PONIATOWSKI, King of Poland, A. D. 1764-170? STANISLAUS LESZCZYNSKI, King of Poland, A. D. $1704-1709$.
STANLEY, HENRY M.: Expiorations of. See Africa: A. D. 1860-1873.
STANWIX, Fort. - The early name of the fort afterwards called Fort Schuyier, near the head of the Mohawk River, in New York
A. D. 8768 .- Boundary Treaty with the Six Nations. See United States or Ax. : A. D. 1765-1788.

STAN2, Battle of (8798). See SWITEERSLITD: A. D. 1792-1798.
STAN2, Convention of. See Swttzerland: A. D. 1481-1501.

STAOUELI, Battlea of. See Barbary States: A. D. 1830.
STAPLE.- STAPLERS, The.-"A term which makea a great figure in the commerclal regulations of this period (13th and 14th centuries] is that of the staple. The word, in its primary acceptation, appears to have meant a partlcular port or other piace to which certain commodities were obliged to be brought to be weighed or measured for the payment of the customs, before they could be sold, or in some cases exported or lmported. Here the king's staple was said to be established. The articles of Engilsh produce upon which customs werc anclently pald were wool, sheep-skins (or woolfels), and leather; and these were accordligly denominated the staples or staple goods of the klngdom. The persons who exported these goods were called the Merchants of the Staple: they were incorporated, or at least recognized as forming a society with certain privlleges." By a charter granted by Edward IL., in 1313, to the merchants of the staple, Antwerp was made the staple for wool and woolfels, and they could be carrled for sale to no other port iu Brabant, Flanders or Artols. In 1326 tbe staple was re. moved altogether from the continent and fixed at certaln places withln the English klngdom. In 1341 lt was establlshed at Bruges; $\ln 1348$ at Calais (which the English had captured); $\ln 1853$ it was agaln removed entirely from the conti. nent;-and thus the changes were frequent. During some Intervals all staplen were abolished and trade was set free from thelr restrictlon; but these were of brief duration. $-G$. L. Craik, Hist. of British Commerce, ch. 4 ( .1 1). -"The staplers were merchants who had the monopoly of exporting the princlpal raw commoditles of the realm, especlally wooi, woolfels, leather, tin, and iead; wool figuring most prominently among these 'staple' wares. The merchants of the atapie used to claim that their privileges dated from the time of Henry III, but existing records do not refer to the staple before tbe time of Edward I. . . Tbe staples were the towns to which the above-mentioned wares had to be brought for sale or exportation. Sometime there was only one such mart, and this was situated abroad, generally at Bruges or Calals, orcasiona!!y at Antwerp, St. Omer, or Middleburg. From the reign of Richard II untll 1558 the foreign staple was at Calais. The llst of home staples was also frequently clanged."- C. Grose, The Gild Merchant, pp. 140-141.
Alsonv: A. Anderson, Hist. of Commerce, v. 1, p. 216, and after.

STAR, Knighta of the.-'On tbe 8th September, 1331, king John [of France] revived the almost obsolete order of the Star, in imitation of tbe Garter, and the first chapter of it was held at his paiace of St. Ouen. At first there were but eighteen lknights; the rest were added at different chapters. They wore a bright star on the crest of their helmets, and one pendant at their necks, and the same was embroldered on their mantles."-T. Johnes, Note to Froisart's Chronicles, bk. 1, ch. 152.
STAR CHAMBER, The Court of.-"In the reign of Edward IIf, the Klng's Contlnual Council was in the habit of sittlng in what was called the Starred Chamber (la Chambre des Etoiles). After the establlshment of the Court of Chancery as a separate and independent jurisdic tion takling cognizance of the greater portion of the clvll business of the Council, the latter body appears to have usually sat in the Star Chamber while exercislng jurisdiction over such cases Vs were not sent to the Chancery. ... Henry VII. . . created, in the 3 rd year of his reign, a new court, sometimes lnaccurately called the Court of Star Chamber.

It contlnued to ex. ist as a dlstinct tribunal from tbe Privy Councll tlll towards the close of the reign of Henry VIII. but in tbe meantime, probably during the chancellorship of Wolsey, the jurisdiction of the anclent Star Clamber (l. e. the Councll sitting for judiclal business) was revived, and $\ln$ lt the limited court erected by Henry VII. became gradually merged. . . Inder the stewart Kings the court was practically identlcal witb the Privy Councll, thus comblning in the same body of men the admlnistratlve and judiclal functions.

Under the Stewart Kings the plllory, whip. pling, and cruel mutilations were inficted upon political offenders by the sentence of this court and at length the tyrannical exercise and 11 legal extension of its powers became so odious to the people tbat it was abollshed by the Long Parlla ment in 1641."-T. P. Taswell-Langmead, Eng. Const. Hist., pp. 181-183. - "The Star Chamber was no temporary court. During 150 years its power penetrated into every branch of English life. No rank was exalted enorinh to defy lts attacks, no inslgniticance suff clentit obscure to escape its notice. It terrifled the men who had worsted the Armada; it overshadowed the dlg. nlty of the judicial bench; it summoned before its tribunal the Prynnes and the Cromwells, who at last proved its destroyers. It fell at length, but great was the fall thereof. and in ita ruin was invoived the downfall of the monarchy. It Is with something of astonishment that the inquirer discovers that this august tribunal was merely the Council under another name; and that the court, whose overgrown power the patriots of 1640 cast to the ground, was the same body whose early encroachments had alarmed the par. llamentary leaders under Edward III and Rich. ard II. The process by which the julicial authority of the Council passed lnto the form of the Court of Star Chamber admits of some dlspute, and is involved In no little obscurity.

STAR CHAMBER.

STATES.GENERAL.

The Council's manner of proceeding was unlike that of other courts. Its punlshments were as arbltrary ns they were severe; it also exercised a power peculiar to itself of extortlag confession by torture. Some, however, may lmaglne that powers to great were only occasionnlly exercised, that exceptional exertions of authority were employed to meet exceptional crimes, and that gigantic force was put forth to crush gigantle evils. .. It ls, indeed, perhaps not generally known, that crimes of a rery ordinary nature such ns would now come before a police nagis. trate, occupied the attention of the Star Chum-ber."-A. V. Dices, The Priry Council, pt. 8, ch. 4.

Also is: II. Hallam. Cimnt. Ilist. of Eng., v. 1, ch. 1.-13. Gueist, Hist. of the Eng. Conut., ch. 35 and $34(r .2)$.

STAR OF INDIA, The Order of the.-An Orler of Kinighthood lustituted by Queen Victoria, $\ln 1861$, to commemorate the assumption of the Government of Indin by the British Crown.
STAR ROUTE FRAUDS. Post routes on which the mails are carried by stnges, wagons, post-riders, or by ans other service than railwas or stenmer, are called "star routes," for the reason that the contracts made for them to not specify the methorl of carriage, but simply requlre the service to be performed with " celerity, certainty and security." which conditlons are representel on the registers of the post office tepartinent by three stars. In $18 i 8$ it mas found that an enormous srstem of fraul had been conirived in connection with certain of these routes (uearle 10.0 of of which were then under contract). bia ring of puhlic men, so numerous and influential that, though the frauds were broken up. no man was brought to punishment.
STAR SPANGLED BANNER. See Flat. Also, on the writing of the song, see UNited States of AM.: A. D. 1814 (AUGUet-Sept.)
STARK, General John: Victory at Bennington, sec Csited states of AM. : A. D. 17\% (JCLY-OCTOEER).
STARO-OBRIADTSI, The. See IRcsia: A. D. $165 \%-1659$.

STAROSTS.-'" Elders," in Poland, who administered justlec in the towns. - Count Moltke, Polind. p. 8.-See, also, Mir. The Russinan

STARRY CROSS, Order of the.-An Austriau order, founded in 1668, for ladies of uoble blrth. by the dowager Empress Eleanora.

STATE SOVEREIGNTY, The doctrine of. See Cinited States of Am.: A. D. $178 \%$.

STATES-GENERAL OF FRANCE: In the zith Century.-"l lately attempted to ex. plaln the manner in which the iclentity or union of the IRoyal Councll and of the Parliament of l'aris was virtually, though not formally dis. solvel [see Parliament uf Paris], bo that each of them thenceforward existed as a substantive and dlstinct body in the state. This tacit revolution barl been nearly completed rhen Phillp le Bel for the first tlme convened the States-General of France" (A. D. 1301). The circumstance under which thls occurred were as follows: Philip had lmpowed a tax from which the clergy were not excepted. Pope Bonlface insued a bull forbiddlng them to make the requlred payment. " Philip retaliated by an order forbidulng them to pay the customary papal dues to Bonjface hlmself. The Pope then aummoned a synod, to advise him how he might moat effectu. ally resist this lnvasion of his pontlical rights; and Phillp, in hle turn, summoned the baroas, clergy, and commons of his realm to elect depu. ties who should meet him at Parin, there to deliberate on the methods to be pursued for the successful conduct of his controversy wlth IRome. To Phillp hlmself, the lmportance of this grest Innovatlon was probably not perceptlble. Ile, as we may well believe, regarded it only as a temporary device to meet a pasalng exigency." Once more, before the end of his reign, in 1314 , Philip assembled the States-General and procured their apparent assent to a tax, which prored to be exceedlingly unpopular and which provoked a very turbulent resistance. The next meetligg nf we States-General, - called by Klag John-was in 1855, on the outbreak of the wsr with Edward III. of England. Under the lead of the celebrated Etlenne (Stephen) Miarcel, the States took matters on that occasion quite into thelr own hands. They created a commlssion to supcrintend the collecting of funds raised for the war, and they provided for an adjourned session in the following year to recelve an accounthg of the Expendlture. When the adjourned session took place, in 1356, King John was a prisoner in the hands of the English and hls son Charles reigned as regent in his stead. This Charles, who became king $\ln$ 1364, and who acquirel the name of Charles the Wlse, contrirell to make the meeting of 1856 an abortive one aud then endeavored to raise moneys and to rule without the help of the three estates. The result was an insurrection at Paris, led by Narcel, which forced the regent to convene the StatesGeneral ouce more. They met ln 1357 under cir cumstances which gave them full power to check and control the royal authority, even to the extent of instituting a permanent commission, from thelr ow.. membership, charged with s general superintendence of the admintstration of the government during the lntervals between sessions of the States-General themselres. At that moment there would have geemed to be more promise of free goverumcut In France than across the channel. But the mlrantage which the national representatives acquired Was lrief. The taxes they imprsed produced disappointment and discontent. Ther lost public favor; they fell into quarrels amoug themselves; the nobles and the clergy deserted the deputles of the people. The goung regent gained Influence, as the States-Geneml iost it, and lie was strengthened in the end by the vito lence of Marcel, who caused two offending min lsters of the crown to be slain in the presence of the king. Then ensued a short period of ci-il war; Paris was besieged by the Dauphin-regent; Marcel perished by assassination; royalty recovered lts ascendancy ln France, with more tirm. ness of footing than before. "It was the commencement of a long series of similar conflicts and of similar successes - contilcts and successes which terminated at length in the transfer of the power of the purse from the representatlves of the peophe to the ministers of the crown."-Str J. Stephen, Laet's on tho Ifist. of Prance, loet. 10. $" T h e ~ y e a r ~ 1857$ was the perlod when the States. General had greatest power during the Middle Ages; from that time they rapldly declined; they lost, as did also the Third Eatate, ali poiltical influence, and for some centuries were only empty shadows of national assemblies."一E. de Bonnechoue, Hiot. of Firance, period 4, bk. 2, eh. 3. -"One single resuit of importance was won for France by the states-general of the 14th wontury, namely, the principle of the natlon's right to intervene in their own affairs, and to set the government stm ${ }^{\prime}$ hit when lt had gone wrong or was lncapabie ui performing that duty itself.

Starting from Klog John, the states.general Wecame one of the pring ples of national right; a princlple which did not disappear even when it remalned withour appllcation, and the prestige of whlch survived evun its reverses."-F. Gulzot, Popular Hist. of France, ch. 21.
Also wr: A. Thierry, Formation and Progress of the Tiers Etat in france, o. 1, ch. 2-3.- See, also, Frince: A. D. 1856-1858.
The last States Genetal before the Revolution. See France: A. D. 1610-1610.
The Statee-General of 1709. See Fravce:
A. D. 1789 (MAy) and (JUNE).

STATES-GENERAL,OR STATES,OF THE NETHERLANDS. St NETHERLANDS: A. D. 1494-1519, ar 1 1584-1585 Limita of tie United Provisi

STATES OF THE CHURCH: Origin. See PAPACY: A. D. 755-774; aud 1077-110?
A. D. 1 198-1216. The establishing of Papal Sovereignty. See Papacy: A. D. $1180-1216$.
A. D. 1275. -The Papai Sovereignty conGirmed by Rodolph of Hapsburg. See Germany: A. D. 1273-1308.
A. D. 1352-1378.-Subjugation by Cardinal Albornoz.-Revolt, upported by Florence, and war with the Pope. See Papač: A. D. 1853-1378; and Florence: A. D. 1375-18is
A. D. 1380.-Proposed formation of the kingdom of Adria. See Italy (Sottiern). A. D.
A. D. 1409. - Saje to Ladislas, king of Napies, by Pupe Gregory XII. See ITALY (Sotthern): A. D. 1386-1414.
A. D. 1503-1513.-Conquests and consolidstion of Papal Sovereignty under Julius II. See Papacy: A. D. 1471-1513; anu Italy: A. D. 1510-1513.
A. D. 1545-1556.-Alienation of Parma and Placentia. See Parxa : A. D. 1545-1592.
A. D. ${ }^{1597}$;-Annezation of Ferrara. See

Papact: A. ©. 1507.
A. D. rojar. - Annexation of Urbino. See Papact: A. D. 1605-1700.
A.D. 1796-1797- Territories taken by $\mathrm{E}_{0}$ naparte to add te che Cispadine snd Cisalpl.ıe Republics. Ses France: A D. 1700 (ApriL (OCTOBER); 1790-1797 (October-APRLL)
A. D. $1808-1889$. - Seizure by Napoieon.-

Partial annexation to the kingdom of Italy.Final incorporation with the French Empire. See Papact: A. D. 1808-1814.
A. D. 1815 .- Pppal Sovereignty restored.

Sce Vienna, The Congrese of.
A. D. 1831-1833. - Revolt suppressed by Austrian troops. See Iraly: A. D. $1830-1832$.

A. D. $8860-186 \mathrm{R}$, - Absorption in the new kingdom of Italy. See Italy: A. D. 1850-1801.
STATUTES. See Law.
STAURACIUS, Emperor in the East (Byzantine, or Greet), A. D. 811 .
STAYOUTCHANI, Battie of (1739). See RUssiA. A. D. 1725-1739, Rusaia. A. D. 1725-1739.
STEAM ENGINE: The beginning of its invenilon, before Watt. -"It is probable that the Itst contriver of a working steam-engine Was Edward, second Marquis of Worcester [A.D. 1601-1667]. . . He was born at London in 1601. His eariy years [when his tltle was Lond Herbert] were princlpally spent at Raglan Castle, his father's country seat, where hls education was carefuliy attended to. . . From an early period of his ilfe Lord Herbert took especial pieasure in mechanical studies, and ln the course of his foreign tours he vlsitted and examlned the famous works of construction a ${ }^{2}$ road. On settling down at Ragian he proceeded to set up a laboratory, or workshop, wherein to induige his mechanlcal tastes. . . Among the works executed by Lor: Herbert and lils assistant at liagian, was the $r$ : draulic apparatus by means of which th; castle was suyplied with water. ... It is urobable that the planning and construction if these works induced Lord Herbert to prose zute the study of hydrauiics, and to enter upon that series of experimic $s$ as to the porver of steam Whlch eventualiy led to the contrivauce of his 'Water commandlag Englne.' '" No descriptlon of the Marquls's engine remalns which enables modern engineer to understand witi certainty Its princlple aud mode of working, and rarious frms. ...But tiough it in widely different frrms

But though the Marquis did not leave the stean-engine in such a state as to he taken up and adopted as a practicabie working power, he at least advanced it several important steps.

Even during t'.e Marquls's lifetime other minds inesitles hls were dillgentiy pursuing the same subject. ... Onc of the most dlstinguishicd of these was Sir Samuel 'roriand, appointed Master of Mechanles to charles II. immediately pfter tise hestoration. .. Morisnd's ln ventlons proved of no greater divantage to him than those of the Marquis of Worcester had done. .The nex' prominent experimenter on the , powers of stean was Dr. Dionysius Papin," Beisig a Protestant, he was driven to Eugland in 1651, four years before the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and received, through the friendsisip of Dr . Boyle, the appolntment of Curator of the Royai Soclety. It was during tilis conncetion that he constructed his well-knowu "Digester," whlch was un apparatus fir the cooking of meats under a high pressure and consequent higit temperature of steam. For the safe emnloyme "so high a pressure he invented tile safety the Digester led hlm ic as a motlve force. Hai, riments with steam Hav., ween invited to Gerby tmosphcric pressure, on a large scaie, producing the racuinm by a condensation of ateam; but his undertaklogs werc not successful. He next tried steam uarigation, converting the aiternate motlon of a piston in a steam cylinder into rotary motion, turning paddie-wheels on the sides of a boat, by armlig the piston-rods with teeth, osed lato whecls on the paddle sit. "His time experimente wero douhtleas fallures," but he fanally succeeded to hle satisfaction, and was conveylng his model to London for exbihi. tlon, in 1707, when nome barbaruus boatmen in Germuny destroyed lt. Papla could raise no means for the construction of another, and threr geors later he dled. "The attemptu hlthert, made to lavent a worklng steam-englne, it wlil be observed, had not been attended with much success." But, "although the progress made seemed but dow, the amount of net result wan hy no means incoashlerable. Yon were becomlng better acquainted with $t$ te elastlc torce of steam. . . Many separate and mlnor lnventions, which afterwands proved of great value, had been male, such as the four-way cock, the safety-valve, and the piston morlng In a cylinder. The principle of a rue pteam-englne had not only been lemonstrated, out most of the weparate parts of such an ensine had been contrived hy various lnventors. It seemed as if all that was now wantlag was a genlus of more than ordinary power to combine them $\ln$ a complete and eflective whole. To Thomas Savery is usually accorded the merit of having constructed the tirst aetual worklng steam-engine. Thomas Savery was born at Shilston. Devon, about the year 1650 . Nothing is known of his early life, beyond that he was educated to the profession of a miltary eveneer. .... He occupied much of his spare time ln mechanlcal experiments, and ln projecting and executing contrivances of various sorts." One of the earllest of these was a boat propelied hy paddle. wheels, worked hy man-power, turnlng a capstan, and this lie exhibited on the Thames. "It is curious that it shoulil not harc occurred to Savery, who inventel both a paldie-witeel boat and a steamenglae, to combine the two in one machinc; hut he was probahiy a!ck of the former Invention . . . and gave lt up in dlegust, leaving lt to Papin, who saw boti his Inventions at work. to hit npon the grand ldea of comblning the two in a steam-ressel.

STEAM ENGINE.

S'EAM ENGINE.

It is probabie that Savery was ied to enter npon his next and most important invention by the circimstance of his havling been brought up in the neighbour. homl of the mining districts." and heing well aware of the great diftevity experingced hy the niners in keeping their pits clcar of water." He devisel what he called a "Fire Engine" for the raising of water. In this lie made a double use of steam, in tight eyinders, frst to creatc a vacumm, br condersing lt, and then to force "'re water, so lifted, to a Ereater height, by pressure of freah ate:m "The great jressine of steam requireal to foree up a high eolumn of water was such as to strain to the utmost the imperfect bwilurs and receivers of those eariy days; and the frequent explosions which attendend its use crenturily feri to its discontinuance in faronr of the sufrerior engine of Sewcomen, whieh was shortiy after inventedi.

This engine [of whicit the frst working moriel wins compieted in 100.8 ]. . Workeni cmirely by tine pressure of the ctinosplitere, stemm being oniy used as the most experitions nutitori of problucing a vacuum," in a steim cylinicr, unter the piston whiein worked the rodi of a pump. "The elurine was. lowever. founl to he rary impor fect," until it was improved hy a deviec for throwing a jet of coid water into tic ce"finder, to produce more rapld condenmation of steam. "Btep by step, Newcomen's engine grew in power and efticlency, and became more and more covisplete at a velf-actlag machine."-8. Smlles, Ciece of Boulton and Watt, ch. 1-4-" We have certaln evidence that the Marquis of Wor ceater'a Engine was la full operaticn for at leant seven yearm, and that one of the conditloms of the Act of Parliament obliged hlm to deposit a model ln the Exchequer. His own entimate of lts value may be juiged hy bis gladly giving up for the proinised tlt'ty of It to the Klng, his clalm on Charles 1 equal to $£ 40,000$, ln ileu th. reof. His Lorushlp's Invention wa never oftered by him as a merely amusing trifle."-11 Dircks, Lifo and Times of the Second Marquis if Woreester, p. 887.
A. D. 1765-1785. -The Improvements of Jamea Watt.-A fter Newcomen, " no liaprove. ment of easentlal consequence. was effected In the steam engine until it came lnto the hande of Watt." James Watt, born at Greenock, Scot land, ln 1736, educ: u. 1 to the profession of a mathematlcal Instrument maker, and settied as such at Glasgow In 1757, began a few years later to give his thoughts to this suhject. "Directing his atteatlon first, with all his profound physicil and mathematlcal knowledge, to the various theoretical polnts involved ln the working of the machlne, 'fle determined,' says M. Arago, 'the extent to which the water dilated in passing froin its liquid state lato that of steam. He cul. cuiated the quantlty of water which a wiven weight of coal could vaporise - the quantity of steam in weight, whlch each stroke of one of Yewcomen's machines of known dimenslons ex. pended - the quantlty of cold water which required to be lnjected Into the cyllnder, to give the descending stroke of the piston a certain force - and fually, the elastlclty of steam at different temperatures. All these investigations would have occupied the lifetime of i finborious philosopher; whlist Watt hrought ail his numerous and dlfficult researches to a conclusion. wibout allowing them to lnterfere whit the laburs of hls workshop.' . . Newcomen's nathine laboired under very great defects. Iu the first place, the jet of coill water into the cylinder wis a very imperfect means of condensing the steam. The cylinder, heated before, not being thoroughiy cooled by 1t, a quantity of stean reinained uncondensed, and, hy its ciastlcity, inpeded the descent of the plston iessening the power of the stroke. Again, when the summ rushed lnto the cyinder from the boiler, it found the cylinder cold, in consequence of the water which had recently been thrown in; and thus a eonsiderahle quantly of stenm was inumediately condensed and wasted while the rest diif not attain its full elasticity till the cylinder leeame again heated up to 212 degrens. Thare two defects were sonrces of great expernac.
Watt remedied the evil hy a simple but benis. tlful contrivance - his separate condenser. The wholc effleacy of this contrivance consisted in his making the condensation of the steam take place, not in the cylinder, but In a separate vessei eommunicatlig with the cyinuler by a tube provinimi with astop-cock.

So fur the invention was ali that coulid he deslred; an additlonnl contrivance was necersary, however, to render it compl.fe: The stcam ln the act of being condensedi in the separate vessel would give out its latent heat;

GTEAK ENGINE

STEAM LOCOMOTION.

thls would rales the temperature of the condenatng water; from the I satal water rapour would res; and this vapour, In addition to the atmospheric air which would be disengaged from the injected water by the beat, would accumulate in the condenter, and spoil its efficiency. In order to overcome this defect, Watt attached to the bottom of the condenser a common air. pump, cailed the condenser pump, worked by a pinton alteched to the beam. and which, at every stroke of the engine, withdrew the accumulnted water, alr, and vapour. This was a slight tax upon the power of the machine, but the total gain ras enormous-equilvalent to making one pound of conl do as much work as had been done by ive pounds in Newcomen's engine. Thls, certainiy, was a triuniph; but Watt' improve. ments dit not stop here. A the old engine, the cyilnder wal open at th.e top, and the descent of the platon was caused soieiy by the preasure of ide atmosphere on its upper surfare. Hence the natne of Atmosph. Fic Engine, which was aiways applied to Newcomen's machine." Watt constructed his engine with the cylinder, ciosed at both ends, shaliug the rod of the piston through a tightly pacised hole in the metailic cover, introducing stea both above and below the piston, - but still using its expansive power oniy on the upper chamber, whie in the iower it was empioyed as before to create a vacuum. "Thie engine with this improvement Watt named the Modified Engine; it was, howevcr, properly, the frst real steant ergine; for in it, for the first tine, steam, beskles serving to produce the vacuum, acted as the moving force. . . . Another improvement lep. sthking in nppearance. hut of value in cconomising the consumption of fuei, was the enciosing of the cylinder in $n$ facket or externai drum of wood, ie:ving a space between which could be filled with steam. By thls means the air was prevented from neting on ine outside $e^{\prime}$ the cyinder so as to cool it. A silght moniffe nion was also neccssary in the moxle of keeping the piston air-tight. . . . The purpose was..ceffected by the use of a preparition of wax, tailow, and ohi, smenred on the plston-roi and round the pist Gu-rim. The linprovements which we hnve described had all Inen thoroughly matured he Mr. Witt hefore the elld of 1 iti., two years after his nttention hard bren ralled to the subject." Another two years had passed before he found the means to introduce his invention into practice. He formed a partuership at levgth with Dr. Roebuck, who had hateiy forade i the Cirron iron-works, wear (ilagow: "I patent was taken ont by the partin $r$ in 1760, and an engine of the new construc. tion, with an eighteen-inch eylinder, wha erected at the Kinneii :ont-works [lensed by Dr. Roe. buek], with every prospect of complete success: wheu, unfortunately, Dr. Roebuck was obliged by pecuniary embarrassments to dissolve the partnership, leaving Watt with the whole patent. but without the means of rendiering it available." For five yents after this fallure the steamengine was practleally put aside, while Wntt devoted himself to civil engineering, which he hatl worked into ns a profession. "At length, inust fortunate Watt entered into a partnershlp must fortunate for himsalf and for the world. This was with Mr. Matther Boultou, of the Notho Founiry, near Birmingham-a gentleman of remarkable scientific nbilitics, of liveral dis.
pontion and of unthounded enterprice." A pro longation of Watt's patent, whlch had neariy ex pired, wat procured with great dimcuity from extension whe whe a poweriul opposition to the extension was led hy Edmuad Burke. The new engine, now falriy tutroduced, speedlly supplanted Newcomen's, and Watt and his partner were made wcaithy by atlpuiating with mine owners for one third art of the vaiue of the coal Which each engline saved. "The irst conse quence of the introduction of Watt's improved steam-engine into practice was to give an im. puise to mining specuiations. New mines were opened; and old mines. now glelded a return. This was the oniy obvious consequence at first. Oniy ln mincs, and generaily for the purpose of pumping water was the steam.en the Yet issed; and before lt could be rendered applicable to other purposes in the arts $\qquad$ the genius of Watt required once agaln to stoop over ft , and bettow on it new creative touches." He produced the beautiful device known as the "paraliel motion," for connecting the piston-rod of the engine with the beam through which lts mothon ls transmitted to other nieces of machinery. additionai improvement, which, in point of the additionai power gained, was more important than the paraiiei motlon, and which indeed pre ceded it in point of time, was the ' Double-acting Engine, ${ }^{\prime}$ " in which steam was introduced to act expanslvely on each side of the piston in th: et gine. He also inviuted the governor, to regu late the quantity of stcam admitted from th. boiler into the cyiinder, and thus regulate tise motlon of the engine. "To describe all the other inventions of a minor hind counceted with the steam engine which came from the prolitic genius of Watt, would occupy too much space." -Life of James Wiatt (Chemberas Viscelliny, o. 1. - "The Watt engine had, by the construction of the improvements described in the patents of $1 ; 89-85$, been given its dlstinctive form, and the great inventor subsequently did llttle more than improve it le altering the forms and proporthous of its detalls. As thus practically completed, it embodied neariy nll the essential features of the modern coglne. The growth of the steam-engine has here ceased to be rapic', and the ch:nges whleh followed the completion of the work of James Watt have been minor mproremeuts, and rarely, if ever, real developn. its." -1R. H. Thurston, Iliat. of the Grouth of the Steam Engine, ch. 3.
Also in: S. Smiles, Liet or Bumiton and Witt. ch. 5-17.-J. P. Muirhes' Life of James Wiett. -The same, Origin and Pregress of the Mechani cal Incentions of Jemes Wratt.

STEAM LOCOMOTION ON LAND.The beginning of Railroads.--' The applici-

 tion of the steam engine to tromotior on land Was, according to Wrat, suggested by Robison, in 17i59. In 1:34, Watt pateuted a locomntiv: engine, which, howeser. he nerer exiented About the same time Murdoch, assistant to Watt, made $n$ very efflcient working model of a $1: \%$ motive engine. In 1802, Trevithick and Vivian pntented a locomotive engine. Which was comstructed and set to work in 1804 or $1 \times 05$. It travelled at nbout five miles an hame, with at wet loud of ten tons. The use of fixed steam engines to drig trains on railiwrys by ropes, wis introduced by Cook in 1808. After various inveators had long exerted their ingenulty in Falo to edve the locomotive engine a Arm hold of the track by means of rackwork. raile and toothed driving wheels, legt, and feet, and other contriv. ances, Blackett and Hedioy, in 1818, made the important difeovery that no such wids aro m. quired, the adhenton botween mooth wheeit an mooth palls being suffictent. To adapt the locomotive engine to the great and wldeiy varled speeds at which it now ha to travel, and the varled loade which it now has to draw, two thinge are escential - that the rate of combuation of the fuei, the orfginal source of the power of the engine, shali adjust itseif to the work which the engine nas to perform, and shali, when required, be capahie of being increased to many timen the rate at which fuei is hurbed in the furnace of atationary engine of the same size; and that the aurface through which heat is communicated from the burning fuei to the water shali be very large compared with the buik of the boller. The fint of these ohjects in attained hy the 'hlast-pipe, invented and used hy George Stephenson before 1825; the second, hy the tuhular bolier, Invented about 1829, simultaneousiy hy Séguin in France and Booth in Engiand, and hy the latter suggeated to Stephenson. On the 6 th October, 1890, occurred that famous triai of locomotive englnes, when the prize oflered hy the directon of the Liverpool and Manchester Railway wat gained by Stephenson's engine, the 'Rocket,' the parent of the ewift and powerful locomotives of the prese.it day, in which the hlast-pipe and tuhular bolier are combined."W. J. BL Rankine, Manual of the Steam Eingine, pp. xxp-axwi.- George Stephenson, the son of a common workingman, and seif-educated as a mechanic and engineer, was appointed enginewright of Kliling worth Colilery in 1812. In the foliowling year he urged the scasees of the colilery to undertake the construction of a "traveling engine," as he cailed it. "Lord Ravensworth, the principai partner, had aiready formed a very favourable opinion of Stephenson, from the important improvements which he had effected in the colllery engines, both above and below ground; and, after considering the matter, and hearing Stephenson's statements, he authorized him to proceed with the construction of a locomotive. . . . The engine was built in the workshops at the Weat Joor, the leading mechanic being John Thiriwail, the colilery binckamith, an excelient workman in his way, though quite new to the work now entrusted to him. . . . The wheels of the new focomotive were ail amooth,and it was the first engine that had been so conatructed. From the first, Mr. Stephenson was convinced that the adhesion between a smooth Fheei and an edgerall wouid be as efficient as Mr. Blackett had proved it to be between the wheel and the tramroad. ... The engine was, after much labour and anxiety, and frequent aiterations of parts, at iength hrought to comple. tion, having been about ten months in hand. It was first placed upon the Kiiilingworth Raliway on the 25th of July. 1814 ; and its powers were trled on the same dny. On an ascending gradient of 1 in 450, the engine succeeded in drawing after it eight loaded carriages of 30 tons' weight at about lour miles an hour; and for some time after, It continued regularly at work. It was indeed the most auccessful working engine that had Jet been constructed.
BTEAM LOCOMOTION

The working of the

GTEAM LOCOMOTION.
engine wan at Ant berely economlcai; and at the end of the year the steam power and the hores power were accertained to be an neariy as potsihle upon a par in point of cont. The fate of the iocomotive in a great mensure dependeli on this very onglio. Its apeed was not beyond that of a horve's waik, and the heating surfsce pre. sented to the tre being compnratively smaii, sufficient ateam couid not be raised to enubie it to accomplish more on an average than alout three mlies an hour. The resuit was anything but decls. :; and the locomotive might have been condemned as useiess had not Mr. Stepilenson at this juncture appiied the stenm liast fcarrying the excape of steam from the cylindier of the engine into the chimney or smoke-stark of the furnace], and at once more than doubled the power of the engine." $A$ second engine, em. bodying this and otier improvements, was con. structed in 1815, with funds provided by Mr. Ralph Dodds. "It is perhape not too much to say that this engine, as a mechanical contrivance, contained the germ of ali that has since beea effected. . . It is aomewhat remarkahie that, aithough George Stepheneon's locomotive enginen were in daliy use for many years on tive Kililngworth railway, ther excited compara. tiveiy little interent." But in 1821, Mr. Stephenson was empioyed to construct a ine of ruilway from Witton Colilery, near Dariington, to Streltton, and to hulid three iocomotives for use upna it. The Stockton and Darlington ilne was opeved for traffic on the 27th of September, 1895, with great success. In 1826 the huilding of the Liverpooi and Vanchester Raliway was begun, with George Stephenson as the chief enginecr of the work, and the puhilic opening of the line tonis piace on the 15 th of September, 1830. The ifrectors had oftered, in the previous year, a prize of $£ 300$ for the beat iocomotive engine to he desig. ed for use on their road, and the prize was won hy Stephenson's famous "Rocket." wiilch attained a speed of 35 mlies an hour. It was at the ceremoniai of the opening of the Livermoni and Manchester Raliway that Mr. Huskisson, tien Prime Mlnister of Englnnd, was struck duwn hy the "Rocket" and fatally lnjured, explrimg the same night.-S. Smiles, Life of George Stepheneon, ch. $\mathbf{G}-24$. -" Whatever credit is due tu the constructlon of the tirst raliroad ever luilt in Americe is usunity cinimed for the State of Massachusetts. Every one who has ever lookeri into a school history of the Linited States kuows momething of the Quincy railway of 1826 . Properly speaking, however, thls was nercr - or at least, never unth the yenr 1871, - a raiiroad at all. it was nothing but a specimen of what hai been aimost from time immemorini in common use in England, under the name of 'tram-wnys.'
This road, known as the Granite rallwar, hulit by those interested in erecting the Bunker iilili Monument, for the purpose of getting the stune down from the Quincy quarries to a wharf on Neponset River, from which it was shipped to it dcstinatlon. The whole distance was three mile\%, and the cost of the road was about $$ 34,000$.
Apart, however, from the construction of the Granite raliway, Massachusetts was neither particulariy eariy nor particuiariy energetic in ito railroad development. At a later day many of her sister Stains were in adrance of her, and especiaily was this true of South Caroilna. There is, indeed, some reason for believing that the south Carolina Railmod was the frot over conatructed In any country with a definite pian of operatiog le oxcluaively hy focomotive steam power.

sTEAM LOCOMOTION.

On the 15th of January 1881, - 0 . actiy four monthe after the formal opening of the Janchenter & Lverpnol road, - the int an niversary of the South Carolina Raliroed was ceiebrated with due honor. A queer fooklag machine, the outifne of which was sufticient in itseif to prove that the inventor owed anthing to Stephenson, had been conatructed at the Weat Poin: Foundry Works in New York during the oummer of 1830 - a firm attempt to suppiy that focomotive which the Board had, with a sublime conidence in posaibilities, unanimouniy roted on the 14th of the preceding January shouid aione be used on the road. The name of Best Priend Was given to this very simpie product of native genius. . In Juae, 183i, a second locomotive, calied the Weat Point, had arrived in Charienton: and this at lant was constructed on the princlipie of Stephenson's Rocket. In its general sopect, ladeed, It greatiy resembled that already famous prototype. There is very characteristic and suggentive cut representing a triaitrip made with this locomotive on March 6th, 1881. . . . About six month before there had actualiy been a triaf of speed between a horme and one of the pioneer focomotives. Which had not renuited in favor of the locomotive. It took place on the present Baitimore & Ohio roac' upon the 28th of Auguat, 1880. The engline in this case was contrived by no other than Mr. Peter Cooper.

The Cooper engine, however, was scarcely more than a workivg model. It active-minded tasentor hardiy seems to have aimed at anything more than a demonstration of posibilities. The wholc thing weighed oniy a ton, and was of one horse power. . . . Poor and crude as the coun try was, however, America showed itseif far more ready to take in the far reaching consequences of the 'nitiative which Great Britain gave in 1830 than any other country in the worid. It might aimost be said that there was a railiroad mania. Massachusetts ied ofr in 1826; PennsyiFanla followed in 1827, aud in 1898 Maryland and South Carolina. Of tive great trunk ilnes of the country, a portion of the New York Centrai was chartered in 1825; the construction of the Baitinore ct Ohlo was begun on July 4th, 1828. The country, thercfore. was not onfy ripe to accept the residits of the Rainhili contest, but it was an. theipating them with eager hopc. . . . Accordngly, after 1830 triai trips with new iocomotives followed hard upon each other. To-day it was the seusation In Charieston; to-morrove iu Baiti. more; the next day at Aibany. Referenee has already been made to a cut representiug the exeursion traiu of March 5th. 1831, on the South Carolina Railroad. There is. honever, a mucli more faniliar picture of a similar trip made on the Pth of August of the same ycar from Aibary to Schencetady, over the Mohawk Valley road. This sketch, moreover, was made at the time and ou the spot by Mr. W. H. Brown."-C. F. Adiams. Jr., Railroads: Their Origin auà Prob. kims, ch. 1.

STEAM NAVIGATION, The beginninge.

 -"The earileat attempt to propei a vessei by mimu is cialmed by Spanish authorities . . . to have been made by Blasco de Garay, harbor of Barcefona, Bpaln, in 1543. 4-14 Theaccount seems somewhat apochryphal, and it certainiy led to no usefui resuite. $\ln 1600$, Papin proposed to use his liton-engine to drive paddle. Wheels to propel ve sels; and in 1707 he applied the steam-engine, which he had proposed as a pumping engine, to driving a model boat on the Fuida at Casel [ree above - Stray Exame
The Bearminen, &c.]
In the year 1786, Jonathan Iluila took out an Engilish patent for the use of a steam-engine for ship-propulsion, proposing to employ his steamboat in towing. Therc is no positive evideace that Hullis - rer put his scheme to the test of experiment, aithough trudition doea say that he made a modei, which he tried with such lil-auccess as to prevent hie prosecutlou of the experiment further A prize was awarded by the Freach Acad emy of Scicace, in 1752, for the best essay on the manner of impeifing vesseis without wind. It wan given to Bernoulifi, who, in his paper. proposed a set of ranes like those of a windmil -a screw in fact - one to be piaced on each side the vessel and two more behind. . . . But more remarkable essay is quoted by Figuier the paper of I' Abbé Gauthler pubilshed in the - Memoires de ia Soctété Ruyale des Sciences et Lettres de Nancy.

A ilttle iater (1760), Swiss ciergyman, J. A. Gencrois, pubilished in London a paper reiating to the improvement of narigation, in willcis his pian was proposed of compressing springs liy steam or other power and appiring their effort while recovering their form to ship propulsion. It was at this time that the Arst attcinpts were made in the Cnited States to solve tinis problem.

Wiillam Henry was a prominent citizen of the then little village of Lancaster. Pa., and was noted as an ingenious and successfui meehanic. . . . In the vear 1760 he went to Engiand on husiness, where hils attention was attracted to the invention-then new, and the subject of discussion in every circie - of James Watt. He sart the possibility of its appilcation to navigatiou and to driviug carriages, and, on his return home, commenced the construc fon of a steam-enginc, and tiulshedi it in 1763. Placing it in a boat fitted with paddicWheels, he made a trial of the new machine on the Conestoga River, near Lancaster, where the craft, hy some aecident, sank. and was fost. He was not discouraged by this fallure, but made a second model, adding some improvenients. Among the records of he Pennayivania Plito. sophicai Soelcty is. or was, a desigu, presented by Henry in 1382, of one of his steamboats. John Fitel, whose experiments will presentiy be referred to, whs au acquaintance and frequent visitor to the house of Mr. Ifenry, aud may probably harc there received the earlicst sug. gestions of the importance of this appileation of sterm. About 1777 . . Robert Fulton, then tweive rears oid, visited him, to study the juint. ings. of Beujamin Wor, who lad long beeu a frieud and protégé of Henry. Hc, too, uot im probabiy, reeeived titere the first suggestion Which afterward. . made the youg portrait painter a sueecssfui inventor and eagincer. In Franze, the Marquis de Jouffroy was one of the eariiest to perceive that the inpirovements of Watt, rendering the engine more compaet, more prowetfui, and, at the same tiuse, more reguiar and positive in its action, had made it, at last, readity appifcabie to the propulsion of ressels.

Comte d'Auxiron and Chevaiter Charien

steam Navioation.

steam Navioation.

Mourats, of Pollenal, frtende and eompeatonn of Jnufroy, were imilarly interented, nus the three are cald to hare. . , united In devining methols of appirlag the new motor. In the yeur 180. D'Auxiron determined to attempt the realizathou of the plins which he hal concelved. Ila se. atraed hie powition in the army," nbtained from the King a patent of monogoly for fifteen years, and formed a company for the undertaking. $"$ The firat reasel wis commenced In I Necember, 1779. When nearly compieted. in september, 1774, the boat sprung a leak, nni, one night, foundered at the wiart." Quarrels nadi intiga. tion ensued, ['Auxiron dled, and the company diewolved. "The hedrm of D'Auxiron turned the papers of the teceamed inventor over to Jouffroy, and the King transferral to him the monopoly held by the former.
M. Jacques Perfer, the then distinguishel mechanic, was consuited, and prepared plans, whlch were adopted in place of those of Jouffroy. The boat was bulit by Périer, and a tria! took place $\ln 1734$ [1735] on the Seine. The result was unsatisfactory." Jouffroy was atili undiscoursgei, and puraupl experiments for everal ycarm, at iils country home nnd at Lyons, untli he had impoverialied himself nud whe forced to abamion the fell.. "Abrut 1;85, John Fitch and Jnurs liumsey were engaged in ex. periments having iu vlew the npplication of ateam to navigntlos. Ifumsey's experiments be. gan in ti7t, nnd In 1788 he minceeded in driving a boat at the rate of four mlles an hour against the current of the Potomnc at Shephenistown, W. Va., in prewence of General Washington. His nethol of promulston has often been relnvented slnce.
ilumkey emplotel his engine to drive a great pump which forced a strean of water aft, thus propeiling the boat forward, as proposed varller by Bernouilit.

Rumsey cied of apoplexp. while explalning some of his schemes before a Lontion soclety a short time later, December 23, 1793 , at the age of 50 years. A boat, then in procers of constriction from his plans, was afterward tried on the Thames, $\ln$ 1793, and steamed at the rate of four milies an hour.

Joinn Flich was an unfortunate and eccentric, hut very ingenions, Connecticut me. chanic. After roamlng about untli to years of age, lie finaily settied on the banks of the Deia. ware, where he buit his first steauboat. The mnchlnery [of Fitcli's first model] was made of brass, and the boat was impellel by paidiewheels. . . . In September, 1785 , Fltch presented to the American l'hilosophical Soclety, at Philadelphia, a model in which he had substituted an enderss chain nud floats for the paddie-wheels." His tirst actual steamboat, however, whlch he tried a: Phlialelphita In August. 1787, before the menibers of the Federai Constitutional Convention, was fitted with neither puddle-wheels nor floats, but whll a set of oars or paddles on each alde, workel by the engine. His second boat, finished in 1:88, was simliariy worked, but the oars were placed at the stern. This boat made a trfp to Burllngton, 20 miles from Philadeiphia, "Suhsequentiy the boat made a number of excurslons on the Delaware River, making three or four miles an hour. Another of Fitch's boats, in Aprii, 1700, made seven miles an hour. . . . In June of that year it was placed as a passenger-boat on a Kar from Philadelphat to Burington, Bristol, Borde atown, and Trenton.

During thls perloi, the boat probshiy ran between 2,000 and 8,000 miles, and with no cerlous accident. Durluy the winter of 1700-91, Fitch cummenced another stemmbont, the 'Persevernace,'" whitch was never finiclied. Although he obsalned a jut. ent from the Cnited States, he denpaired of wne. ceas In this country, and went, in 1798, w Frunce. where he fared no better. "In the year liw, Fitch wus again ln New York Clty, experiment. lng with a ilitle serew eteambont on the 'Cullect' Pond, which then rovered tisat part of the rity now nceupled by the "Tombs, tre city prims. This litile imat was a ship's yewi fited with a acrew, ilke that adopted later by Womlcroft, and dirfen hy a rudely male englae. Fitch, whille in the cliy of Philadelphia at about thils tlue, met Ollver Evanm, and discussed with him the prohahie future of steam-navigation, and projoned to form a company ln the Weat." Nwn afterwards, he settied on a land-grant in Kin. tucky, where he died in 1788. "LJuring this period, an interest which hal never dinntulshet In Great Brftain had led to the Introductlon uf experinientai steamboats in tint country. Patrick Milier, of Halswinton, hal comnienced ex. perfmenting, in : $940-87$, wlth bouts having double or triple hulis, and propelled by puddewheei placed between the purte of the compound vencei." On the suggestion of Jume Taylor, he placed a steam-engine In a boat constructed upon this pian, $\ln 1888$, and attalneyl a apeed of five miles an hour. The next year, with a iarger vessel, be made seven milea an hour. But for some reason, he pursued hls undertaking no further. "In the United States, several mechnnics were now at work bestdes Fitch. Samuel Morey and Nathan lend were anong these. Nicholas Roosevelt was another. . . . ln Great Brftain, Lord Dundas and Willinm sym. lagton, the former as the purveror of funds and the latter as engineer, followed by Henry lhell, were the first to make the lntroduction of the steam-engine for the propuision of ships su completely succesul that no interruption subsequently took place ln the growth of the new system of water-transportation. Symington commenced work in 1801. The fit boat bullt for Lord Dundas, which has been clalmed to have been the 'first practical steamboat,' was finlshed ready for triai early $\ln 1802$. The vessel wat called the 'Charlotte Dundas,' In honor of a dnughter of Lori Dundas. . . . Among those who saw the Chariotte Dundas, and who apprectated the lmportance of the success achleved by Symington, was Henry Bell, who, 10 years afterwarl, constructed the Comet, the first passengerveasei built In Europe. This vessei was built In 1811, and completed January 18, 1812. . . Bell constructed several other boats $\ln 1815$, and with his success steam-narlgation in Great Britas as fairiy inaugurated." Slean' ${ }^{\text {me }}$ me this pracui. 1 success had been anticipated by a few years in the U'vited States, through the labors and exer tions of Stevens, Livingston, Fuiton, and Rooseveit. Fuiton's and Livingston's first cxperiments were made In France ( 1803 ), where the latter was Ambassador from the United States. Three years iater they renewed them In Amicrica, using an engine ordered for the purpose from Bouiton \& Watt. "In the spring of 1807 the 'Clermont,' as the new boat was christened, was launched from the ship-Fard of Charles Brown, on the East Iliver, New York. In August the machlaery was on board and ln succeaful operation.

8TEAM NaVIGATIO.

The hull of thin bout was 183 feet long, 18 fees whie, and o deep. The boat soon maile a trip to Ally y, running the distance of 150 mlles in 32 houl. running time, anil returning in 80 houra.

Tillu was the frat royage of conaliderablo length over made hy a steam vesuel; and Fulton, though not to be claceed with Jamen Watt man Inventor, Is ontlteded to the great honor of havlug been the arrit to make ateam narigation an overy. day commerclal sucreas. . . The success of the Clermont on the trini.trip was such that Fulton sonn after advertised the ramel as a regular pas. eenger-bont between Now Yort nad Alhany. luing the next wlater the Clermont wan re. palred and enlarged, and in the summer of 1808 whe agaln on the route to Albany; and, measstime, iwn new steambonta - the Raritan and the Car of Neptune-had been hullt hy Fulton. In the year $181 i$ he built the Paragon. $A$ A stenm ferry; boat was bullt to ply between Now York sid Jerser Clty In 1819, nind the next year two others, to connect the metropolis with Brooklyn. - Fulton had zome active and enterprising rivals." The prize gnlued by hlm "was most elosely contested hy Colunel John Sterena of Hoboken," who built hle frut stenmboat in ${ }^{\circ}$. 04 . propelling it hy a screw with four hlades, and his second in 1807, with iwo werews. Ife was shut out from New York waters hy a monopoly which Fulton and Livingaton had procured, nnd sent his little shlp hy sea to Philladelphin. "After Fution nal Sterens had thus led the way, steam navigatlon was Introducel very ragllly on both aldee of the ocean." Nicholas $J$. Rumseveft, at Pittshurgh, in 18i1, hullt, from Filtou's plans, the arst stenmer on the western -Ivers, and took her to New Orleans. "The firnt ateamer on the Great Lakes wns the Ontarlo, hulte in 1816, nt Sackett's Hnrbor, "-l. H. Thurs. ton. Hise. if the Grouth of the Sleam Engine, ch. 5 .
Also in: The same, Rulw re Fulton.-C. D. Colden, Life of Robert F'ullon.-T. Westcott, Life of John Firch.
On the Ocean.-"In 1819 the Atlantic was Arst crossed hy a shlp using steam. This was the Snvannah, of 380 tons, faunched at Corlear's Hook, New York, August 22, 1818. She was bult to ply between New York nnd Sarnnnah as a salling packet. She wiss however. purchased by Savannah merchants [by a Mr. Scarborough] and fitted with steam machlnery, the pridle. Wheels bellig constructed to fold up and be lald upon the deck when not in use, her shaft also havlng a jolnt for that purpose. She left Savannah on the 26th of Mlay, and reached Lirerpool in 25 dags, using steam is days. The $\log$ book, still preserred, notes several times trifing the wheels in on deck in thirty minutes. In August she left Liverpool Sor Cronstadt. An effort was mnde to sell her to Russln, whlch falled. She sallell for Savannah, touchlng nt Copenhagen and Arendal. nnd arrived in 53 days. Her machinery later was taken out, and she resumed ber original character as a salling packet, and ended her days by belng wrecked on the south coast of Long Island. But stenmpower had by 1830 grown large enough to strike out more boldly. The Savannah's effort was nn attempit ln which steam was only nn auxillary, and one, loo, of a not very powerful kind. Our coastwise stenmers, as well as those employed is Great Britain, as also the voyage of the Enter-

gTEAM NAVIGATLON.

priee to Calcutta In 1825 though she took 118 days In dolng It), hall settlel the poselblity of the use of utenm at sea, and the question und now become whether is ship could he bullt to emons the Athntic depending entirely on her of fuep power. It had become wholly a gueation of fuel consumption. The Barannah, it may be milh, usell pltch-plne on her outward voyage and wrod was for a very long tme the chlef fred for stcaming purposea in America. In 1886. under the Induence of Brunet's boli genlus, the Great Wentern Btenmuhlo Compnay was founded ns an off. uhnot of the Ureat Weatern Rallwoy, Whose terminua was then Bristol." The Coin pany's frat shlp was the Great Wentern. She ris of unprecedentell slze - 236 feet length añid 85 feet & Inches hreadth - "determinelt on by Brunel as le-lag necemary for the requlatio power and coal carrylng capnetty. The Grep Western was lainchet on July 19, 1887, and was towed from Brintol to the Thames to receivo her machlnery. Where she was the wonde of London. Bhe left for Briatol on March 81, 1838; and nrrived, after having had a crious are on board, on April 21 In the meantime othera board, on April 2l. In the meantime othera had been struck with the posslallity of slenming to New York; and a compnny, of which the moving spirit was Mr. J. Lalril, of Birkenliend. purchnsed the Blrius, of 700 tons, employed between London and Cork, and prepared her for a royage to New York. The completion of the Great Western was consequently hastened; nnd she left Bristol on Sunday, April 8, 1938, at 10 A. M. wlth 7 pnasengers on bonrd, and reached New York on Monday, the 23k, the a fremoon of the tame day with the Sirlus, which hat left Cork Harhor (where she had touched en route from Londonl four days before the Grent Weatern had left Briston. The lnterer still had nearly 200 tons of crail, of the totnl of No0, on board on arrlval: the Sirins had consumed her whole sup. ply, nnd was barely nhle to mnke harbor. It is needless to speak of the reception of these two ships at New York. It whe nn event which stirred the whole country, and with reason; it had practically, at one stroke reduced the breadth of the Atlantlc hy half. . . . The Grent Western started on her return voyege, May 7th, Fith 66 psssengers. Thls wss made in 14 dnys, though one was lost hy a stoppage nt sea." Whthin a few years following several stenmers were placed la the transatlantlc trade, among them the Roynl William, the Britlsh Queen, the Presldent, the Liverpool, and the Grent Britaln, the latter a screw steamer, hullt of iron nnd put nfloat ly the Great Western Compno.: In 1840 Mr. Samuel Cunard of Halline was founded hy Mr. Samuel Cunard, of Hnllfax, Nova Scotla, in compnny with Mr. George Burns of Glasgow and Mr. Darld McIver of Llverpool. The screw propeller (taking the place of the paddle-wheel), whlch made lts irst nppearance in ocean navigation with the Grent Britaln, ohtalned its practcal introductlon through the labors of the great Swedish englneer, John Ericsson, though an ldea of it had been ln the minds of many inrentors for $n$ century and a hnif. Erlcsson, Induced hy Francls B. Ogden nnd Captaln Robert F. Stocton, I. S. A., rame to the United States in 1839, and the Introduction of the screw. propeller occurred rapldiy after thnt date, the paddle-wheel disappearing from ocean steam-padipe-wheel aisappearing from ocean steam.
sho more alowly from the steamer steam savigatios.
engeged in lake and river napigation. -F. E Charwick, The Dowolopment of the Neamolip ("Oecon Streumahipe" el. 1).

Alen tiri A. J. Maginala, The Allantic Forry, eh. 1-9. - 11. 11, Thurtion, Jias, of the Growlh if the Sream Eingin, eh. 5. - W. C. Church, Livo if Airlesaon, eA, b-10 (0. 1).

STEDMAN, FORT, The capture of. See U'aited Btates of Am; A. D. 1005 (Janch Arail: Vingivial
STEEL BOYS. Setiamland : A. D. 1:601748.

STE ${ }^{\text {BL }}$ YARD, The Asecciation of the. See Ilaval Tuwna.

STEENWYK: Slect and rellef (Igse), Bee Netmerlanm: A. J. 1577-1581.

STEIN, Pruselan reform measures of. See $1007-140 \mathrm{H}$; and 1800 .

STEINKIRE, OR STEENKERKE, Battle of. See Franch: A. D. 1602.

STELA, OR STELE. - Thls is one of the words mont frequentiy used in Egyptan archere ology, because it des gnates a moaument whlch is found in hundreds. The stels is a rictangular that stone gencrally roundeci at the summit, and It was made use of ty the Egyptians for all sorts of lnscriptlons. These stelie were, generally speaklag, used for epltaphs; they also served, however, to truncribe texts which were to be proserved or exhllited to the publlic, and in this fatter case the stela became a nort of mosumental placard." - A. Jarlette. Monumento of Tpikr tigypt, p. 29, joot note.

STENAY: A. D. 1654,-Slege and capture by the French. SeeFrance: A. 11. 165316.8.
A. D. 16 g9.-Ceded 10 France. Sec Fuance: A. 1. 16:74-1681.

STEPHANUS, OR ESTIENNE, Robert and Heary, The Prees of. See l'Ristivo dec. A. D. $1466-1508$.

STEPHEN (of Blole), Klag of England, A. II. $1135-1154 . .$. Stephen 1., Pope, A. 11 . 7.jy, March.....Stephea I. (called Salnt), KIng of Hungais, 997-1u*s..... Stephen 11.; Pope, 752-i57..... Stephen 11., Kiag of Hungery, $1114-1131 . .$. Stephen Jil., Pope, $6 \times-7.2 . .$. Siephen 111. and IV. (In rivilry) Klage of Hungary, 1161-11\%3..... Stephen 1V., Pope, 816-817.... Stephen V., Pope, 8ns-*91..... Stephen V., King of Hungary, 12:0-1:*2..... Stephen V1., Pope, 890-89\%..... Stephen V11., Pope, $929-1811 . .$. . Stephen Vill., Pope, $849-$ 842..... Stephen 1X., Pope, 105i-1058. Stephen Batory, King of Poland, $157^{\circ}-$ 15N6.....Stephea Dushan, The Emplre of. Sre Balkas asd Dascbias States: A. D. 1341-1356.

STEPHENS, Alexander H.-Opposition to Secesion. See United Stateb of Am.: A. D. Iebl (Jantaliy - F゙fbrenky).....Election to the Vice-Presidency of the rebellious "Confederate Siates." Nie U'sitfod States of Am: A. 1). 1NB1 (Febreany)..... The Hampton Roads Peace Conference. Sce l'mired statee of Am. : A. D. lotij (FebreАну).

STEPHENSON, George, and the beginning of Rajironde. See Steay Locomotion.

BTOCETON.

STETTIN: A. D. 3630.-Ocenpied by Guetevis Adelphus and his 8wodes. Bee GER. MAMY: A. D. 1630-1681,
A. D. is4, Cesolem to Sweden ia the Pace of Weatphalle dEE Gravary: A. D. 164y.
A. D. ic77.-slege asd Capture bs the Elector ol Brandeaburg. Hee scamdimatian Atation (SWLIEN): A. $\bar{F}$ 104-1607.
A. D. $1720 .-$ Cesslon by 8 fredea to Prusile. Ree Ricampayiam Btates (Bweuex): A. D. 1i10-1781.

STEUBRN, Baron, in the American Rep. olution. See Laited BTATES of Ax.; A.D. $1: 179$ (Janvary-D)EčmaER) ; 1760-1781.

STEVENS, Thadteus, and the Reconatruction Commalttee. See Uisited 8tatin or AM. ;A. D. $1865-1806$ (DECEMBEM-APRIL), to 180N-1 1NiO.
STEVENS INBTITUTE. See EdLCA. THON, DHEDEMY: AnEMICA: A. D. 1424-1893, and

STEWART DYNASTY, The. Bet Stit. Laxd: A. D. 1870; and Exolasd: A. D. 16in, to 1649.
STILICHO, Ministry of. See Roxr: A. D. $804-105$, to $41+404$.

STILLWATER, Battle of. See Ǔxitrid Staty or Am. A. D. 1777 (JtLT-Octoneh).
STIRLING, Earl of, The American graat to. See Niw Exolasd: A. D. 1611-1631.

STIRLING, General Lord, and the American Revolutlon. bee Cinited States or Av.: A. D. 1756 (AvGemt).

STIRLING, Wallace's vietory at (1297).

GTIRLING CASTLE, SIeges of.-Sitiling Chatle was $t^{\circ}$ In 1803 by Euward 1. of Eng: land. after a turee mouths alege. Which he cuin. d ad lo person and which be looked upmos as 1.v, roudcat millitary achlevement. Eleven yeurs lat. In 1814, It was besleged and recaptured by the couts, under Edward Bruce, and It was In a desperate attempt of the English to relleve the castle at that time that the batile of Bannockburu was fought.-J. H. Burton, Hiet. of Scullund, ch. 2:-23 (r. 2).-See Bcotland: A. D. 1314.
STOA, The.-In the architecture of the Giecks, the stoa was a colondade, ether connected with a bullding or erected separately for ornament and for a place of promeuate and meeting. In the intter wee, the form was that of elthera single or a double colonnade, on one or bith atides of a wall, the latter freyuently alorned with pletures. -E. Guhl and W. Koncr, Life of the Grele und Sumuna, pt. 1. Rect. 27.
STOCKACH, Battle of (1799). See Faascr: A. 1). 1i:98-1 iv9 (Argest-Armii.).

STOCKBRIDGE INDIANS. See Ayert car Abortianes : Stockbilime lidians.

STOCKHOLM: A. D. 1471.-Battle of th: Brunkeberg. See Scax disavian States: A. D. 1397-152\%.
A. D. 1521-1523.-Siege by Gustarus Vaba. See Scanimatian Statea: A. 11. 1397-152i.
A. D. 1612.-Attaciked by the Danes. Fee Scandisavas Stathe: A. D. 1611-1629.
STOCKHOLM, Treaty of. Sec Gehmas: A. I). $1 \times 12-1818$.

STOCKTON AND DARLINGTON RAILWAY. Sec Stean locorution ox had.

STOLA The. -The Romac ladies wore by mey of uadar garment, a lonig tuale deccendlas - the feat, and more particularly deaomatated "stola"
ETOLHOFEN, The troakiac of the limes - (1797) Hee OzMMANT:A. D. 1700-1711. TONE AOE.-BRONZE AOE, -IRON ACE.- "Human relice of creat aatiquits aecur, more or iemaluadantly, la many parts of suropo.

The antijuitles refersed to wro of many klads-dweiling.places, epulchrul and other monumente, forts and campa, and a great har rese of Implements and ornamente of stone and metal. In reeklag to clamity these relice and remalas accordlag to their relativo antiquity, archeoto giets have melected the implements and orraments a atsorllag the most matisfactory bads for such an arragement, and they divide prehitetoric time tnto three perlods, which aru termed reapeetively the Btone Age, the Bronae Age, and the Iron Age. Of the te periods the earllest way the swone Age, when Implemenis and ornaments were formed escluively of ctone, wood, horn, and bone. The une of metal for such purposes was then quite unknown. To the stone Age succeeled the Age of Bronze, at which time cutting instrumenta, such as owords and kniver and ases, began to be made of copper, aund unalloy of that metal and tid. When in the courre of time iron replaced bronze for cutting instruments, the 1 bronze Age came to an end and the Iron Age supervened. . . The archreologleal periods are simply so many phases of clvilization, and it is concelvable that Stone, Bronze, and Iron Ages might hare been contemporaneous in dif. cerent parte of obe and the same continent. It has been found necessary witbiu recent yeari to sublivile the Nione Age nto two periods, cailed respectively the Ohl Stone and i ew Stone Ages; or, 10 employ the terms suggested by Bir Jobn Lnbbock, and row generaily adopted, the Palurofithle and Neolithic ". dols. The stone implements beionging to the oitter of these perfols show but littie varlety of form, and are vers ruilely fashioned, being merily roughiy chippell tuto alupe, and nerer ground or pol. Isbid. "-J. Gelkle, Prohinturic Eure,, p, 5-11. STONE OF DESTINY. The. Ree LIA. Pail.
STONE RIVER, OR MURFRE. . BOROUGH, Battle of. See CNITEDSTATL UPAN: A. D. 1HR2-1NHB (D)RE.-JAN: EENKENEE) STONE STREE I. - In nidil loman road whicis runs from London to Chiciester. STONEHENGE. SNe Ancur STONEMAN'S RAID. Nec Linited Staten or SM.: A. II. INB.i (APMII-MAY) STONEY CREEK, The Surprise at. See July).
STONINGTON, Bombardment of. United Statem of in. :i. D. INi:-1814 STONY POINT, The storming of. Unitennsite of AM.: A. D. liiN-lity. STORTHING, The. See Turns: aud Constiturios af Nohway.
STORY, Judge, and his judicial services. Ste Lav. EqLits: A. I). I&I2.
STRAFFORD (Wentworth. Earl of) and and 1640-1 1 H1 : aiso. InELASD: A. D. 1633-1639. STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, Tho. -

- The Stralts settlemente are the British posses-dions In or pear the Malay perianula deripiag their mame from thi Btriltt of Malacem, which diride that pealasula from the great liland of Bumatra. Taken from North to Eouth, ther consial of the laland of Ponarg with the siffp of malaland oppoulte, hnown as Proriace Wellender. the ferritory and ielande of the Diadiage, the terfiory of Salscen, and the ialand of Bings. pore." Peanag was ceded to the Eigglieh Einst India Company in 1780 , by the rajah of Kedal In 1801) the oppoalte otrip of maininad was bought from the rajah. In 1810 a factory was ertablished at slogapore nod lo 1824 is wam aequired by treaty from the • ot n of Johor. In the name year, English pomanione in gumatra were ex. chagged with the Dutch for Malacca. In 1420 the three cettlemente were united uader one gov. ornment. Io 1 A 67 themo Malay dependencice were separated from the Indian edministration and coantituted a crown colong. The tat of government is at Bliggapore. "Outside British territory, the peninaula from the le thmus of Kr to the douthern extremity Is divided into as aumber of states, governel by aative ruiers, and partly independent, partly more or lesm subject to foriga Intuence. -C. P. Lucas, Ilistoricel Gengraphy us the Brition Culonies, v. 1, acet. 2, eh. 8 .
STRALSUND: A. D. 8698.-Unanccessful slege by Walleasteli.-Swedish protectlom See Gehmany: A. 1), 162i-1029.
A. D. ${ }^{86} 7^{8 .- \text { Slege and captare by the }}$ Elector of Erandenburg. See Acandinaviam Btater (Bweden): A. D. 164-1697.
A. D. ${ }^{17}{ }^{15}$.- Slige and capture by the Danes and Prushlabs. Aee drandinavian Staten (ewedes): A. D. 1707-1718.
A. D. ${ }^{8720 .}$ - Refioratlon by Denmark to A. D. 1 lio-1 ini. A. D. 1710-17:21.
A. D. 1809.-Occupled by the Patriot Schill.

Genvair: and captured by the French. Nee (iemvait: A. D. 1 (vor (Aphil-JULy).
STRASBURG: A. D. 357-Julian's victory. - Tine most serlous battle In Julian's rampaigns against the Aiemannl was fought in August, A. I). 357, at strasburg (tien a lloman post calicd Argenioratum) where Chnorlomar had crossed the khine with 33,000 warriors. The result was $n$, great victory for the IRomans, -E. Gibbru, Decliue ant Full of the Roman Limpire. eh. 10.-See GatL: A D. 355-361.
A. D. 842. - The Oaths. - During the civil wars winch occurrey between the grandsons of Charlemagne, in stl, the Jear following the great batte at Fontainclies, the two sounger of the rivals, Karl and Ludwig, formed an alliance against Lothaire. Kart fonnd hls support in Aguitahe mud Neustrla: Ludwig depended on the East Franks and their German kindred. The armies of the two were assembled in Febritary at strasburg (Argentaria) and a solenm ontia of friendisijp and theiltrs was taken by the kinga in the presence of thedr people and rejouted by the lutter. Tive oath was repeated in the German language, and in the Romance languare - then just acyuiring form in sonthern Guul. - and it has been j reserred in buth. . In the liunance form of this oath, we hare the carliest mommment of the tongue unt of which the moiern French Was femed."一P. Godwin, llist. of Fronce: Ancient fianl, ch. 18 .

STRASBURG

STYLES IN AlICHITECTLRE.

Also En: J. C. L. de Sismondl, The French Under the Carlovingiane; tr. by Bellingham, ch. 8.
A. D. 1525.-Formal establishment of the Reformed Religion. Dee l'aracy: A. D. 15221505.
A. D. 1539.- Jolned in the Protest which gave rise to the name Protestants. See Papacr: A. D. 1525-1524.
A. D. 1674-2675.-The passage of the Rhine given to the Germans. See Jetambands (Holiasd): A. D. 1674-1678.
A. D. 168z.-Seizure and annexation to France.-Overthrow of the independence of the town as an Imperial city. See France: A. D. 1679-1681
A. D. 1697.-Ceded to France by the Treaty of Ryswick. See Frasice: A. D. 1697.
A. D. 1870.-Siege and capture by the Germans. See Frasce: A. I). 1870 (Julf-Au. GUAT), and (SEPTEMBEH-OCTOBER).
A. D. 1871.-Acquisition (with Alsace) by Germany. See Fbance: A. D. 1871 (January -May).

STRATEGI.-In Sparta, the Strategi were commanders appointed for armies not ied hy one of the klogs. At Athens, the direction of the milltary system belonged to a board of ten Strategl.

STRATHCLYDE. Sec Cumbria; also, Scotland: 7th Century.

STRELITZ,OR STRELTZE. See RussIA. A. I). 169 i-1体.

STRONGBOW'S CONQUEST OF IRELAND. See Ineland: A. D. 1169-1175.

STUAPT, General I. E. B., The Raid of. See L.ited Staten of Am.: A. D. 1802 (June : Viroisia).

STUART:', The. See Scotland: A. D. 1370: and Esgliand: A. D. 1603.
STUM, Battle of (1629). See Scandina. vian States (Sweden): A. D. 1611-16\%9.
STUNDISTS, The, -In the nelghborhood of Kherson, In southeru Russib, the Stundist religions movement arose, ahout 1858 . As its nanue implies, it 'had a German origm. As far lack as $1:-9$ the grent Empless Catherine liad colonized Klerson with peasants from the Suahian lnnd, who brought wlth them their religion, their pastors, and thelr industrious, sober wrys. For many zears national prejudices and the barriers of language kept Russians and Germans apart from each oticr. But sooner or lnter trite life brgins to tell. . . Nome of the Russian peisints who liad heen helped in their porerty or ministered to ln their sickness bs their Gur. man mithbours began to attend their services - to kerep the 'stunden, or 'hours,' of praise and prayer - they learned to read, werc furnished with the Now Trestamest is thelr own langunge, and weatually some of them found the deeper hiess. isg of eternal life. In this simple seriptural fash. lon this meborible uovement began. Men tolel thoir ueichboura what God hal done for their souls, and so the hewvenly coatagionspreal from cotage to cottage, from villige to rillage, and frin prowince to prosince, till nt lenpth the lussian Stundists were found iu all the pro. visfers from the boundaries of the Austrian Eim. pire in the West to the land of the Don Cossack ln the East, and were supposed to number somethines like a quarter-of-amillion souls.
Daloon, a Latherna chergyman. Jong resident in St. 1'etersburg, and whose knowledge of religious movements In Russla la very conslderable, goes 80 far as to say that they are two millloas strong. . . Compared with the enormous popu. Intlon of the IRusslan Emplre, the number of Stundists, wiether two mililions or oniy a quarter of a million, ls lusignlficant ; but the splrit of Stundism . . Is slowly hut surely leavening the whole mass."-J. Brown, ed., The Ntundistr.

STUYVESANT, Peter, The administration of. See NEW YoRx: A. D. 164\%-1664, to 16 Ht .

STYLES IN ARCHITECTURE. - The evolution of the Classic Greek, the Romanesque, and the Gothic.-In a work of this unture it ls lmpossible to give anythlng that wouli represeut the history of Architecture iu even a moderately satisfactory way. The most that seems practicable is to quote some such sheteh as the following (from the late Professor Free. man), of the hlstorical deveiopment of au artlstic use of the two fundametiel princlples or forms of huilding - that of the eatablature and that of the arch - In producing the styles of Archltecture known as the Classic, or Greek, the Komanesque, and the Gothle: "The two great princlples of mechanical construction which pervade all architectural works may be nost convenlently takea as the types of the two groups under which we nay primarily arrange all styles of architecture. These are the entablature and the arch, two forms of constructiou which will be found to form an alsolutely exhaustire divislon. . . . As two straight lines cannot form a mathenntical figure, so two uprights, be they walls, posts, or pillars, can hardly constitute an archltectural work; circumstanees will contlnually occur, In which two points must be connected, and that not by a third wall, but hy something supportal by the points to be connected. The different ways of effecting this constitute the grand dis. tinction which is at the root of all rarieties of architectural style. The eutablature effects the union hy slmply layling on the top of the two uprights a third lorizontal mass, heid together hy mere cohesion: the uprights beiug placed, as Mr. Pugin says, 'just so far apart that the blucks iaid on them would not break by their owa weight.' It ls naulfest that thls is totally independent of materinl: the coustruction is precisely the same, whether the mnterials be beams of wond or blocks of stoue. In the other form, thint of the arch, the conaection is effected, aot by a single hlock kept togrther hy cohesiou, but by a series hound together, without risible sup. port, by a wonderful law of the mechanieal powers. This again is ulostractedly inderpende.at of niaterial.
. A ds all buthlings must be con ructed on one of these two principles, archi tectural styles may be most natnruly divided accordingly. . . Every dethite style of architectury lins for its animating priuchple of construction rithor the entublature or the arch; its forms and letalls adupt themelves to this constructlon, and it is the different ways in whirk this construction is solmght to te decorated, aad the dlferent eierres of excellente atmined by each, which constitute the subordinate distiactions among the members of the two maia groups. . . . The question of the first introduction of the arch is one of the sery greatest lnterest, and at the same time of the greatest difficuitr.

We tind it hard to realize the position if c villsed uations. possessing a finished ani gractful styic of nrchitecture, empioylug it on the erectlon of sumptuous and magnlficent edifices, and yet totally ignorant of any mode of connectiug walls or plllars save hy the mere horlzontal hlock of stone or tlmber. Silll more $\ln$. comprehenslble does It seem to us that any people should have heen aware of so great a mechanical advantuge, and yet have but rarely employed it, and never allowed it to become a leadlng feature of constructlon, or enter in the lcast degree luto the system of decoration. Yet ... such was the case with some of the most famous nations of antiquity; the bare knowlelge both of the arched form and the arched construction seems certain $\ln$ Egypt, probable ln Greece : yet It ever eutered lito elther stylc of archltecture.

STILES IN ARCHITECTURE.

SUBLIDE PORTE.

It is undouhtedly to the natlons of ancient Italy, to the inhabltants of Etruria, and the Romans to whom they communicated their arts, that we owe the first regular and systematic employment of the arch. ... InGreclan archlteeture We hare the entablature system completely de. veloped; the mechanlcal structure, common to it with the rudest cromlch or the most unalorned Cyclopean gateway, is now enriched in the most simple and conslatent manner ; a perfect system of ornament embraces every feature, and refines all into consummate dignity and beanty. The three orders of Greclan architecture afford forms of perfeetion unsurpassed hy mere human skill: It was only the gearnings of the hearen. ward splrit, the inspiratlon of the Church's ritual, that could concelve aught more noble; not purer, not loveller, but vaster in conception, more ma. jestic in execution. and holler ln its cnd. Yet even here we see the inherent lneapacity of the entablature system to attain the highest perfee. tlon either of huilding or architecture. The exceeding difficulty, rerging on impossibility, of rooting a large space by its means, unless with matcrials then unknown, presents insuperable diffieulties. Grecian archltecture produced one form of the most perfect beanty, hut it could proluce one only : every structure is east in pre cisely the same type, with the sume outline, the same features both const ructive and decorutive." In the systematic employment of the arch, "we have first the classical Roman, the style of lione leerself in her dars of greatest power, in whieh the ahorigiual areh system of the Italians and the entablature of the Greeks are minglide together in a strle of great boldness and splendour, but utterly devold of architectural consistency. When, towards the close of the cmpire, thic ental) lature began to be dropped. and the arel noule the principal feature, a cousistent rommerarched strle at onee reappears: we hare now the germ of Romanesque, a style subsequently developed by the northern natlons into many forms of great splendour. . . Thls grent fumily iucludes many natlonal varieties : Brazntine, Lombard, Gernun. Provençal, saxon. Norman: presenting grent diversities annong themsulves, but agreeing In several general features of Romon origin, of which the most prominent. and tho true badge of the style. Is the round arch. which is employed in all important positions, and mater. as it should be the chief fenture of the decorative system. The architecture of the Earacens, which from them has spread, under certain moditications. into all countrles which have bowed to the falib of Hahomet, is of Roman origin. and its earlier forms iniglit in strictness be consldered as varietles of IRomanesquc. It ls a style highly enriched and magnlicent, ret milxed, fantastlc, and Incongruous, and not easily admittlng of a comprehenslve detinltion. $\qquad$ To the Romanesque, after a transitional period, succecds the Gothle archltecture. We now feel at once that we have arrlved ut the most perfect form which the art can assume. . . . All the different forms of this matchless style, all the countless varleties of outllne and letail for which it is so consplcuous, aim, each of them with greater or less success, at the carrying out of the one filea which is the soul of all, that of vertical exteaslon. To the upward aspiration of every feature, we owe, not indeed the infentlon, but the adaptation and general eniployment of the outward baige of the style, the pointed arch; from the same source arlse its aecessories, the round or polygonal ahacus, the peculiar style of moulding. the clustered pillar, the contrmed uste of vanlting. Then again, externally. the high gnble, the spire, the pinnacle, the firing buttress, the jyramidal outHinc whleh in lits hest examples is glven to the whole structure, are all expressions of thls one great idea."-E. A. Freeman, A llintory of Architecture, introd., ch. 3.

STYRIA: Origin, and annexation to Austria. See Arestria: A. D. N(1,i-1246.
A. D. 1576.-Annexation of Croatia. See Husanhy: A. D. 1ini-1604.

17th Century.-Suppression of the Reformation. See Germani: A. D. $1608-1618$.

SUABIA, The Imperial House of. See Genmasy: A. D. $113 \mathrm{~m}-126 \mathrm{~s}$; and Italy: A. D. 1154-1162. to $11 \times 3-1250$

SUABIA AND SUABIANS, Ancient. Sce SuEvi: and Alemañi.

SUABIAN BUND, OR LEAGUE, The. Sec landoriene. dec.; ai*o Citien, Imperial and Fref: and Frideral (ioversivest.

SUABIAN CIRCLE, The. See GEimany : A. D. 1493-1519; also. Alemassi: A. D. 496504.

SUABIAN WAR (1496-1499). See Swit.

SUARDONES, The. Fic Anones,
SUBIICIAN BRIDGE.-The Pons Sublicins was the single lridge in uneient Rome with which the Tiher was orivinally spmmed.

SUBLIME PORTE, The.-"The figurative language of the institutes of Jahomet II. [Sultan, A. D. 14.51-14*1]. still enıployed by his successors, deserilxes the state under the martial metaphor of a trint. The Lofty Gate of the Royal Tent (where Oriental rulers of old sate to adminlster justice derotes the elief sat of government. The Italian translation of the phrase, ' La Porta sublima.' has herou adopted by Western uations, with slight moxliticutions to suit their respective langunges: and loy The Sublime Porte we commonly nuran the Imperial ottoman Govermment. The Turkish legists and historims deplet the iletnils of their government by imagery driwn from the gume metiphor of a royal tent. The dome of the state is supported hr four pillars. These are formed by, lst, the Viziers; Dud, the Kudiaskers (judgres): Brd, the Defteriars (treasurers) ; and 4 th. the Nischandsis (the secretaries of statre). Bresibme thipson, there ure the Outer $A$ gas, that is to say, the nilitar ${ }^{-}$ rulers: and the Inner Agas, that is to say, the rulers cmployed in the court. There is also the

SUBLDEE PORTE.

arder of the Uloma, or men learned in the law. The Vizier were regarded as constituting the mont important piliar that upheid the fabric of the state. In Mahomet II.' time the Viziers were four in number. Their chief, the Grand Vizier, is the higheat of ali offleers. . . . The high legal dignitaries (who were at that time next in rank to the Kadiaskers) were, 1st, the Kho-dya, who was the tutor of the Sultan and the Princes Royal; 2nd, the Mufti, the authoritative expounder of the isw; and, Brdly, the Judge of Constantinople.

The great council of atate was named the Divan; and, in the absence of the Suitan, the Grand Vizier was its president. . . The Divan was also attended by the Reis-Effensi, a generai secretary, whose power afterwards became more important than that of the Nis-chandsis: by the Grand Chamberlain, and the Grand Marshal, and a train of other officers of the court."-Sir E. S. Creasy, Hiot. of the Ottoman Turks, pp. 86-97.-See, also, Pharaors.

SUB-TREASURY, The. See United States of An.: A. D. 1837.
SUBURA, it Rome, The.-"Between the convergin poirts of the Quirinal and Esquiline hills iay the Subura, a district of ill-fame, much abused by the poets and historians of imperial times. It was one of the most anclent district comratuities (' pagl') of Rome, and gave name to one if the four most ancient regions. Nor was it entirely occupied by the iowest class of people, as might be inferred from the notices of it in Martial and Horace. Julius Cesar is said to have iived in a smali house here. $\qquad$ The Subura was a noiss, bustling part of Rome, fuil of smail shops, and disreputable places of various kinds." -R. Burn. Dime and the Campagna, ch. 6, pt. 1.
SUCCESSION, The Austrian: The Question and War of. See Avesmia: A. D. 1718 1738, 1740, and to 1744-1745; Netaerlands: A. D. 1745, and 1740-1747; Italy: A. D. $1741-$ 1; 43, to $1746-1747$; Aix-la-Chapelle: The Congress.
SUCCESSION, The Spaniah: The question and war of. See Spans: A. D. 1698-1700, to 1713-1;25: and Ctrecht: A. D. 1712-1714.
succoth. See Jews: The Rocte of the Exoders.

SUDAN, OR SOUDAN, The.-"Forming

 a maturai frontier to the Great Desert is that section of Africa knowu by the somewhat vague name of Sudiau. By this term is understond the regiou south of the Salara, limited on the west and south by the Atlantic Ocean as far as it reaches. From the Gulf of Guinea inland, there is no defuite southern border line. It may, how. ever, be assumed at the fifth degree of north iatitude. ... [The] Nile region is generally taken as the eastern fronticr of Sindan, althouch it properly realeses to the foot of the Abrssinian highlands. Hence modern maps iave introxiuceal the appropriate expression 'Egyptian Sudan' for those eastern distriets comprising Scnaar, Kordofan, Darfur, and some others. Sudan is therefore, strictiy spcaking, a broad tract of country eaching right across the whoie continent from the Atiantic seaboard almost to the shores of the Red Sea, and is the trite home of the Negro races. When onar knowlnter of the interior has become sufficientiy extemied to enable us accurateiy to dx the geographlcal limits of the Negroes, ## sUEVI.

It may become deairable to make the term Sudan convertible with the whole reglon inhabited by them."-Hellwald-Johnaton, 1 grica (Stanford's Compendium), eh. 9.
A. D. 1855-1894.-French conquests in the Weatern Sudan. See Aprica: A. D. 1855, and atter.
A. D. 1870-1885. - Egyptian conquest. General Gordon's govermment.-The Mahdi's rebellion. - The British campaiga. - Death of Gordon. See EGTPT: A. D. 1870-1883; and 1884-1885.

SUDOR ANGLICUS. Bee Sweativg SictNERE; and PLAGUE: A. D. 1485-1593.
SUDRAS. See Caste Systrem of India.
SUEVI, OR SUEBI, The.-"I must now speak of the Suevi, who are not one nation as are the Chatti and Tencteri, for they occupy the greater part of Germany, and have hitherto been divided into separate tribes with names of their own, though they are called by the general designation of 'Suevi.' A national peculiarity with them is to twist their hair back and fasten it in a knot. This distinguishes the Suevi from the other Germans, as it aiso does their own freeborn from their siaves. "-"Suevia would reem to hare been a comprehensive name for the zountry between the Elbe and the Vistula an far north as the Baltic. Tacitus and Casar di eer about the Suevi. Suabia is the same word as Suevia."Tacitus, Fermany, tr. by Chureh and Brolribb, ch. 38, rith geong. note.-"The Suebl, that is the wandering people or nomads. $\qquad$ Cresar's Suebi were probabiy the Chatti; but that desiguntion certainiy beionged in Casar's time, and even much later, to every other German stock which could bedescribed as a regularly wandering one." - T. Mommsen, Hist. of Rome, bk. 5, ch. 5. with note. -"The name of the country calied Suabia is a true ethnologicai term, even as Franconia is one. The one means the country occupied by the Suevi, the other the country occupied by the Franks. $\qquad$ At what time the name first became an unequivocal geographicai designation of what now, in the way of politics, coincides With the Grand Duchy of Baden and part of Wurtemburg, and, in respeet to its plysicai gengraphy, is part of the Black Forest, is uncer. tain. It was not, however, later than the reign of Aiexander Severus (ending A. D. 235).
Ticrein, Alamannia and Sucvia appear together - as terms for that part of Germany which hand previousiy gone under the name of 'Decumates agri. 'and the parts about the 'Limca Romannes.' With this, then, begins the history "if the -utri of Suabia, or, rather, of the Suabians. Their ailinnces were chiefly with the Alamami and Burgundians; their theatre the German side ". Fmnce, Switzcriand, Italy, and (in coujunctinu with the Visigotis) Spain. Their epoch is from the reign of Alexander to that of Augustulus. in ronni mmbers, from about A. D. 225 to . 1 I. 475."-R. G. Latham, The Germania of Ticithe: epilgomem, sect. 20.-See, also, Alevixixi, ani Bavaria: The etunologt.
B. C. 58.-Expulsion from Gaul by Cessar. - A iarge body of the Suevi, a formidable (ire. man trile, the name of winch has survived ia monlern Suabia, crosser the Ihhine athl elte-w. Gaul about B. C. 61. They came at the invitation of the Arverni and Sequani of Gaui, whe were forming a league againat the Edul, their rivala, and who eought the aid of the German warriors. The iatter responded eagerly to the cali, and, having lodged themselves in the country of the Sequani, summoned fresh hordes of their countrymen to join them. The Gauls soon found that they had brought troublesome neighbors into their midst, and they all joined in pray. ing Cxesar and his Roman legions to expel the insolent intruders. Cessar had then just entered on the government of the Roman Gallic provinces and had signalized his first appearance in the feld by stopping the attempted migration of the Helvetii, destroying two thirds of them, and forclig the remnant back to their mountains. He welcomed an opportunity to interfere further in Gallic affairs and promptly addressed certain proposals to the Suevic chfeftain, Ariovistus, which the latter rejected with disdain. Some negotiations followed, but both parties meant war, and the question, which should make a conquest of Gaul, was decided speedily at a great battle fought at some place about 80 miles from Vesontio (inodern Besancon) in the year 58 B. C. The Germans were routed, driven into the Rhine and almost totally destroyed. Ariovistus, with a very few foiloters, escaped across the river, and died soon afterwards. -C. Merivale, History of the Romans, ch. 6.

SULIOTES.

Also ws: Cesar, Gallio Wars, ok. 1, ch. 31-53. -Napoleon III., Hist. of Craar, bk. 3, ch. 4.
A. D. 406-409. - Final invasion of Gaul. See Gatl: A. D. $400-409$.
A. D. $409-414$ - - Settlement in Spain. See SpalN: A. D. $408-414$.
A. D. 409-573.- Their history in Spain. "' The Suevi kept their ground for more than half a century in Spain, before they embraced the Christian religion and became Arians. Being surrounded on all sides by the Visigoths, their history contains merely an account of the wars Which they had to maintain against their neigh bours: they were long and bloody; 164 years were passed in inghting before they conld be brought to field. In 573, Leovigild, kiug of the Visigoths, united them to the monarchy of Spain."J. C. L. de Sismondi, Fall of the Roman Empire ch. 7 (o. 1).-See, also, Vaxdals: A. D. 428, and Goths (Visioothe): A. D. 50i-il2.
A. D. $460-500$.- In Germany.-Tliose tribes of the Suevic confederacy whic: ? mained on the German sicie of the Rhine, witite heir brethren pressed sonthwards, along with the Vandials and Burgundians, in the great invasive morement of 406, "dwelt in the south west corner of Germany, in the region which is uow known as the Black Forest, and away castwards alout the Cpper Dauube, perhaps as far as the river l.ech. They were already mingled with the Alamanni of the mountains, a process which was no doubt carried yet further when, some thirty yeirs after the the now reached by us [about 460 ] Cloris overthrew the monarchy of the Alamamil [.A. D. 496], whom he drove remorselessly forth from all the lauds north of the Neckar. The result of these migrations and alliances was the formation of the two great Duchies with which we are so familiar in the melliaevai history of Germany Suabia and Franconia. Suabla, which is a conrerthle term With Alanamnin. represents the laud left to the minglet suevi and Alamanni; Franconia that occupied east of the Rhine by the lutrusive Franks."-T. Ilodgkin, Italy and her Invadere, bit. 4, ch. 1 (o. 3),-See, also, Alemax. KI: A. D. 480-504.

SUEVIC SEA.-Ancient name of the Baltic. SUEZ CANAL. See Earpt: A. D. 1840 1809; and Comyerce, Modrrix : RECENT Revolution.

SUFFERERS' LANDS, The. See Omi: A. D. 1786-1798.

SUFFETES. - "The originai monarchical constitution [of Carthage] - doubtless inherited from Tyre - was represented (practically in Aristotle's time, and theoretically to the latest period) by two supreme magistrates called by the Romans Suffetes. Their name is the same as the Hebrew Shofetim, mistranslated in our Bible, Judges. The Hamilcars and Hannos of Carthage were, like their prototypes, the Gideons and the Sameons of the Book of Judges, not so much the Judges as the protectors and rulers of much the spective states." - R. B. Smith, Carthage and the Carthaginians, ch. 1. -See, also, Jews: Ispael.
cXDER The JUDese cnder the Judaes.
SUFFOLK RESOLVES, The. See BooTos: A. D. 1774.
SUFFRAGE, Woman. See Woman Suf. Frioe.
SUFFRAGE QUALIFICATION IN ENGLAND. See ENGLAND: A. D. 1884-1885.
SUFIS.
SUFIS.- A sect of Mahometan mystics. The final object of the sufi derotee is to attain to the light of Heaven, towards which he must press forward till perfect knowiedge is reached in his union with God, to be consummated, after death, in absorption into the Divine Bcing."
J. W. H. Stobart, Iahm and ite Fonnder, el. 10 . SUG. Stobart, Ialim and ite Fownder, el. 10 . SUGAMBRI, OR SICAMBRI. See CEIpetes; also Franes: Orions, and A. D. 253. SUGAR ACT, The. Sec CNITED States of An.: A. D. $1: 63-1 ; 64$.
SUGAR-HOUSE PRISONS, The. See ONERS AND EXCHANGES.

SUIONES, The.-"Next [on the Baltic] occur the communities of the Suiones, seated in the very Ocean, who, besides their strength in men and arms, also possess a naval force. . . . These people houour wealth."-Tacitus, Germany, Oxford Truns., ch. $44 .-\because$ The Suiones iulabited Sweden and the Danish isles of Funcn, Langland. Zeelind, Laiand, etc. From them and the Cimbri were derived the Sormans."- Note to salme.
SULIOTES, The.-"The heroic struggle of the little commenwealth over a number of years [1isi-1804] against ali the resources and yearseuuity of Ali Pacha [rizir of Jaunina] is rery stirring and full of episode.

The origin of the Suliotes is lost in obscurity. The Thicin clief famlies traced their origin to differeut vllages and districts; and, though their language was Greek, they appear to bare consisted, for the most part, of Christian Albanians, with a small admixture of Greeks, who, fying from the oppression of the invaders, had taken refuge in the well-nigh inaccessible mountains of Chamouri (Chlmarl) [in Epirus], and had therc establinhed a curious patriarchal community. . . . At the tlme when they became consplcious in history the Solinetes wefe possessed of four villibses iu the great ravine of Suli, namels, Khapha, Avariko, Samonira, and Kako-Suli, composing a group known as the Tetrachorion; and seven

SULIOTES.

SUPREME COLRT

viliages in the plains, those inhabltants, befng cousidered genulne Suilotes, were aiiowed to re. tre into the mountain in tlme of war. . . . They aiso controlied between 50 and 60 tributary vil. iages, with a mixed population of Greeks and Albanlans; hut these were abandoned to their fate in war. In the eariy part of the last century the Suilotes are sall not to have had more than 200 dghting-men, although they were almost alwars engaged $\ln$ petty warfare and marauding expeciltions ; and at the period of thelr extraor diuary successes the numbers of the Suilotes proper never exceeded $\mathrm{S}, \mathrm{KMO}$ souis, wltio a tightong strength of $1,010 \mathrm{men}$, who were, however, reinforced at neel by the women. Their goverument was pureiy patriarchal ; they had nelther witten iaws nor law courts, and the family formed the poilticai unft of the State."-R. Rodd, The Customs "thd Lare of Modern Greece, ch. 10.
SULLA, Proscriptions by and Dictatorahip of. See Rome: B. C. 88 -i8.
SULLIVAN, General John. See Uxited States of Am.: A. D. 1775 (May-Auocst); 1736 (Avoust); 1779 (AvoUst-SEptember).
SULTAN, The Title.-Glhbon (eh. 5i) re presents that the title of Sultan was first lnvented for Mahmud the Gaznerlde, by the ambassador of the Caliph of Bagdad, "who emplored an Arabian or Chaidaic word that signlfies 'lord and 'master.'" But Dr. Whiliam Smith $\ln$ a note "- th:s passige ln Glbhon. eiting Weii, suls: "It is uncertaln when the title of Sultan wis first used, but it seems at all events to hare beeu older than the tlme of Mahmud. . . . Ac cording to Ibn Chalduu it was tirst nssumed by the Bowides." See Turks: A. D. 999-1183.

SUMATRA.-Sumatra, next to Borneo the largest isiand in the Malay Archipelngo, has an area of more than 128,000 geographleal square uiles, and is about 1.100 miles in iength. The Dutch hegan to estabish settements on the eastern coast in 1618, aad have gradually become masters of almost the eatire lsland, though large parts of it are still undeveioped and ifttle ex. plorel. Untll lately, an independent sovereign, the sultan of Achin, ruled a considerable do. minion in the northern extremity of Sumatra, but the Achinese hnve been subjugated, after at obstiuate war. Generally the natives are Moham. medans, and of the Maiayan race, but ln widely differing tribes. Among the most barbarous are the lataks, of the interior, who are pagans and camibals. thourh quite adranced in sereral arts.

SUMBAWA. Sce Malay Archipelago, and Timor.

SUMIR. See Babrlonia, Primitive.
SUMNER, CHARLES, The assault on. Sce United sitaten of A.m.: A. D. 1836.
SUMTER, The Confederate cruiser. Sec Alabama Cialims: A. D. 1861-1862.

SUMTER, Fort: A. D. 1860.-Occupied and held hy Major Anderson, for the United States Government. See UNited States of AM: A. D. 18 Bif (D.CEMIER).
A. D. 1861 (April) - Bombardment and reduction by the Rebel batteries. See Lisited States or Ani: A. D. 1661 (Marcil-April).
A. D. 8863.-Attack and repulse of the Monitors. See U'vited States or Am.: A. D. 1sís (Alpile: Sutil Cabiliva).
A. D. 1863.-Bombardment and unsuccessful assauit. See Livited States of Am.:
A. D. 1863 (Augutst-December: South Caro lisa).
A. D. 1865 (February-A pril).-Recovery by the nation. - The restoring of the fag. Set United Stateg of Am.: A. D. 1865 (Febreary: Soltte Carolina).

SUNDA ISLANDS.-A name appiied dif. ferently hy different geographers to lalands in the Malay Arehlpelago. Most frequently, Sumatra, Jara, Iorneo, Celebes, and some contiguous smaller lshunds, are called the Greater Sunda Islands, while the Timor group (Bali, Lomholk, Sumbawa, Flores) are stried the Lesser Suncia.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.-Orlginated by Robert llalkes, at Gloucester, Eng., in 1780.
SUNNAH, The. Iec Islam.
SUNNI SECT, The. See Ishay
GUOVETAURILIA.-Nacrifices by the Romas at the and of a lustrum and after a triumph.

SUPERIOR, Lake, The discovery of. Sce Canada: A. D. 1634-1073.
SUPREMACY, The Acts of.-The first Aet of Supremacy, which establlshed the inderen. dence of the Church of Engiand and broke its reiatlons wlth Rome, was passed by the Euglish Parllament during the reign of Henry Vili., la 1334. It enaeted "that the King shouid" be taken and reputed 'the oniy Supreme Head on earth of the Chureh of Engiand called Ecclesia Anglleann,' with full power to vislt, reform, and correct all heresies, errors, abuses, offences, contempts t? cnormaltles whleh, by any manaer of spiritual authority or jurisdiction, ought to be reformed or corrected."-T. P. Taswell-Lang. meai. Einglish Const. IIist., ch. 11.-The Act of Supremacy was repealed in the reign of Mary and re-cnacted with changes in that of Flizabeth, SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, The. "On the 24th day of September, 1i89, the aet orgmizing the supreme Court was passed. The Cnurt was coustituted with a Chief Justlce and tive associates. John Jay was appointed the first Chief Justlce by Washiag. ton. Webster said of hlm that when the ermine fell upoa his shoulders, it tomehei a lethg as spotless as itself. The Court first couvened In Fehruary, 1:90, in Vew York. It does not appear from the repor that any case then came hefore lt. Jay remaned Chief Justice mutil 179.5, when he reslgned to become governor of the State of New York. A Chief Justior iu our day would hardly do this. Ilis judleial dutles were so few that he found time, in 1:94. to accept the mission in England to negotiate the treaty so famous in history as 'Jay's Trmaty. John IRutledge of South Carolina was nppointed to succeed Jay, but he was so promonnett in his opposition to the treatr, mul so binter In his deuunciation of Jay himself, that the feleral Senate refused to confirm him. William Cushing of Massachusetts, one of the assuciate justiees, was then nominatel hr Washingtom. and was promptly coutrmed: but he preferrel to remain associate justice, and Oliver Ellsworth of Compecticut was made Chief Justlice. He held the office until 1801, whea John Marshall of Vircinia was appoiatel by President Adnms. Marshall held the office thirty four years. He was known nt the time of hils appoiutment as an ardeut Federalist. In our timo be is known as 'the great Chief Justice.' Roger B. Taney was the next incumbent. He was appointed by Preaidest Jackson. His political enemies styied him a renegade Federalist, and aid that his appointment was his reward for his ousequious obedience, while Secretary of the ireasury, to President Jackson. But Taney, desplte the Dred Scott decision, was an honest man and a great judge. His opinions are modeis of lucid and order! y discussion, and are of admirable literary form. He heid the office for twenty-eight years, and upon his death in 189. President Lincoin appointed Saimon P. Chase, of Ohio. Chief Justice Chase died In $18 \mathrm{i}_{4}$. President Grant then appointed Morrison R. Waite of Ohio. He died in 1888 . Melviile W. Fulier, of ilifnois, is the present [1880] incumbent, his appointment having been made hy President Cieve. land.

SUPREME COURT.

In 1807 an associate judge was added by Congress: two more were added in 1837, anc? one in 1863. They were added to enahie the Court to perform the work of the circuits, which increased with the growth of the col.7try." J. S. Landon, The Conat. Hist, and Gro't of the $\dot{U} . \dot{\mathcal{S}}$, lect. 10 . -" The Supreme court is directly created by Art. iii., sect. 1 of the Constitution. but with no provision as to the number of its judges. Originaily there were air ; at present there are nine, a chief justice, with a salary of $\$ 10,500(£ 2,100$ ) , and eight associate judges (saiary 810,000 ). The justices are nominated by the President and confirmed by the senate. They hoid office during good behaviour, i. e. they are reniovable only hy impeachment. They have thus a tenure eren more secure then that of Engiish judges, for the iatter may be removed hy the Crown on an address from both Houses of Pardiament.

The Fathers of the Constitution were extremeiy auxious to secure the indepen. dence of their judiciary, regarding it as a bulwark both for the peopic and for the States against aggressions of either Congress or the Presidcat. They affirmed the life tenure by a a unanimous rote in the Convention oi 1787, becanse they deemed the risk of the continuance in office of an incompetent juige a less evil than the suhserviency of all judges to the fegisiature, which migit flow from a tenure dependent on legislatire wili. The resuit has justitied their expectations. The judges hive shown then $\mathrm{n}_{4}$. selves independent of Congress an ? of party, yet the security of their position has a.rely tempted them to breaches of jndiciai duty. Impeach. ment liss been four times resorted to, once miny against a justice of the Supreme court, and then unsuccessfully. it mpts have been made, beginning from J should bold offi. only, to whter the as that of the st. who argued that juilges ms of four or six years co of the Federal judges, most States: hut Cumges has tren aitered io the proresid constitutional anmendinent. The supreme cuurt sits at Washington from October till July in every year."-J. Bryce, The Am. (mamomiceath, pi. 1, ch. $22(r, 1)-" I t$ is, 1 be. dieve, the oniy nationai tribunal in the worid which can sit in judgment on a uational faw, and Gill declare an act of all the three powers of the Cinioa to be nuli and void. No snch power does atr rim exist in Englumh. Auy one of the three puwers of the state, King. Lords, or Commons, an" ing alone, may act illegra!ly; the three acting wigether cannot act lliegaliy, An act of par

SUSQUEHANNAS.

Hament is finai; it mar be repealed by the power which enacted it; it cunant be questioned by any cther power. For in Engiand there is no whiten constitution; the powers of Marliament, of King, Lords, and Commors, acting together, are literaily houndless. But in your Cnion, it is not only possible that Presideat, Senate, or House of Representatives, acting aione, may act lliegaily; the three acting together may act illegaily. For their powers are not boundiess, tic; linve no powers but soin ws the terms of the constitution, that is. the originai treaty between the States, have givea them. C'ongress may pass, the President msjy assen to, a measure which contradicte the terms of the constitution. If they so act, they ret illegrally, and the Supreme Court can declare suct an act to be nuil and void. This difference flows directiy from the difference between a written and an unwritten constitution. It does not follow that every state which has a written constitution need vest in Its highest court such powers as are vested in yours, though it certainly seems to me that. in a federal constitution, such a power is highiy expedient. My point is simpiy that such a power can exist where there is a written coustitution: where there is no Written constitution. it canaot."-E. A. Freeman, The English People in its Three Homes: Lectures to Anerican Audiences, pp. 181-192.
SURA, Battic of (A. D. 530). See Persu: A. D. 220-627.

SURENA. - The title of the commander-In. chief or tieid-marshai of the Parthian arnirs, whose rank was second oniy to that of the kiag. This title was sometimes mistaken hy Greek writers for an individuai uame, as in the case of tie Parthian geaerai who diefeated Crassus.-G. Rilwlinson, Sirt? Great Griental Monarchy, p. 23.
SURGERY. See Medical Science.
SURINAM. See Griana: A. ก. 1580-1814. SUPPLUS, The distributioa of the. See Cinted States of Am.:-1. D. 1835-18:\%

SURRATT, Mrs.: The Lincoin Assassina-

 tion Conspiracy. See LNITED STATEs of AM.: A. D. 18 ' (APMII. 14 TII).SUSA.-SUSIANA.-SHUSHAN.-Orig. inally the capital of the ancieat lingdom of Elam, Shushan, or Snsiana, or Susa, as it has been variously callen, was in later times made the principai capital of the Persian empire, and became the seene of the Biblicai stury of Esther. A French expedition, directed by MI. Dieulafoy and wife, undertook an exploration of the ruins of Susa in 185.5 aad has brought to iight some remarkably interesting and important remains of ancient art. The name susiana was applied by the Grects to the comntry of Eiam, as well as to the cupital city, and it is sometimes still used in that sense.-2. A. Itagozin. Story of Jerlin, Butylon and Persia, atho to ch. 10.-See, aiso, El. M: and Babylonla: Primitive.
SUSIAN GATES.- A pass in the mountoins which surronuded the plaiu of Persepolis, "p cruter of aucient Persia pruper. Alexander had difficulty in forcing the Gates.-G Grote, 'Iist of Crece, pt. 2, ch. 03.

SUSIANA. Soe Srsa.

SUSMARSHA. SEN, Battle of (8648). See Germany: A. D. 1646-164s.

SUSQUEGANNA COMPANY, The. See Pensurlyanla: A. D. 1833-1890.

SUSQUEHANNAS, The. See Amgricat Abohtolines: Stsqueflasisas.

sussex.

SWREDENBORG.

SUSSEX.-Originally the kingdom formed by that body of the Sazon conquerors of Britain In the 5 th and 6 ch centuries which acquired name of the South Saxons. It is nearly rep cented in territory by the prevent counties of Suscex and Surrey. See Evaland: A. D. 4i7527.

SUTRIUM, Battle of.-A victory of the Romans over the Etruscans, among the exploit. ascribed to the veteran O. Fahius Maximus. - W. Ihne, Hist of Rome, bk. 8, ch. 10 SUTTEE, Suppression of, In India. See IndIA: A. D. 1828-1833.
SUVARROF, OR SUWARROW, Campaigas of. See Reasma: A. D. $1^{\circ}$ '-1908: aiso France: A. D. 1798-1799 (Atcost-Apmi); 1799 (April-September), and (AUuUat-DeCEMBER).
SVASTIKA, The. See Tri-skelion.
SWAANENDAEL. See Delatare: A. D. 1629-1681.

SWABIA. See Suabia.
SWAMP ANGEL, The. Sen United States of Ax.: A. D. 1863 (Algubt-Decey. ber: Soctir Catolina).

SW AN, The Order of the--A Prussian order of knighthood, instituted in the 15 th century, which disappeared in the century following, and Was revived in 1843.

SWANS, The Road of the. See Norvans. SWEATING SICRNESS, The. - The "Sudor Anglicus," or Sweating sickness, whs a strange and fearfui epidemic which appeared in England in 1485 or 1486, and again in 1507, 1518, 1520, and 1851 . In the last three instances it passed to the eontincut. Its first appearance was always in Engiand, from which fact it took one of its na-zes. Its peculiar characteristic was the profuso sweating which accompanied the disease. The mortailty from it was very great. - J. H. Baas. Outlines of the IIistory of Merticine, $p$. 818-319.-See, also, Pladee, etc.: A. D. 14851503.

SWEDEN: Early Inhahitants. See Sctonea.

History. See Scandinavian States Constitution. See Constitution of Sweden.

SWEDENBORG, and the New Charch. -

 "swedenhorg was born in 168s, and died in 17:.3. The son of a Lutheran Bishon of Swetlen, a student at several unirersities, and an extensive traveler throughout all the principal conntries of Europe, he hal excuptionai opportunities for testing the essentiai quality of contemporaneons Christianity. . . Until he was more than fifty years of age, swedentorg had written nothing on religimus subjects, and apparently misen them no special atteution. He was primeipally known. in his own eountry, as Assessor Extraordinary of the loard of linies, and an futhential meniher of the Swedish 1hiet : and not onis there, but tirougiout Europe as a writer on many liranches of seienee :und philosiphy. in this field he acquired great distinfion: and the number and variety of topics which he treated was remark able. Geometry ani ulechra, metnliurgy aud magnetism, anatoms, phrsinlogy, and the relathon of the soul to the bat? warr among the sult. jeets which receired his attention. There is to be noticed in the general order of his publicatious a certaiu graduai, but stealy. progress: mfrom lower to higher themes, -from a conterp. platlon of the mere exterial phenomena of na ture to a study of their deep and hidden causes He was always fuil of dovout spiritual appirations. In all hla sclentitic researches he stealfastly looked through nature up to nature's God.

Maintaining this inflealhie belief In Goxi and revelation, and in the escential unlty of truth, Swedenborg, in his upward courue, at lsot reached the boundary line between matter and spirit. Then it was that he entered on those remartable experieaces by which, as he affirma the secrete of the other world were revealed to him. He declares that the eyes of his spirlt were opened, and that he had, from that time forwaril conscious dadiy interccurse with spirits and angels. His general teaching on this subject is that the spiritual worid is an inner sphere of being, - not material, and in no wise discernillie to nqtural senses, yet none the less real and sub. ntantiai, - and that it is the ever.present medinm of life to man and nature."-J. Reed, Why min $I$ - Neso Churchman 9 (North Ari Rer., Jan., 18). -" The doctrine of Correnpondence is the centrai idea of Swedenborg's system. Everything vis. ibie ins beionging to it an appropriate spirituai reality. The history of man is an acted parahle; the universe, a tempie covered with hieroglyphics. Behmen, from the light which flashes on certaln exalted moments, pagines that he receives the key to these hldden significances, that he can interpret the 'Signatura Rerum. But he does not see spirits, or talk with anguls. According to him, such communications would be less rellabie than the intuition he enjored. 8wedenborg takes opposite ground. 'What I relate,' he would say, 'comes from no suclit mere in warl persuasion. I recount the thinge I have seen. I do not labour to recali and to express the manifestation made me in some moment of ecstatic exaitation. I write you domn a plain statement of fourneys and consersations in the spiritual world, which have made the great: part of my daily history for many ycars together. I take my stand upon experience. I have proceeded by observation and induction as strict sa that of any man of science among you. Only it has been given me to enjoy an experience reach. ing into two worids - that of spliti, as weil as that of matter.'. . . According to Swedenborg, ali tike mytioingy and tine symboilsms of ancient times were so many refracted or fragmentary correspondences - relics of that better day wh+n every ontward object suggested to man's mind its appropriate divine truth. Such desultory and nacertain innss between the seen and the unseen are so many imperfect attempts towni that harmony of the two worlds which be lieliesed himself commissioned to rereal. The happy thoughts of the artist, the imaginatice analogies of the poct, are exchanged with Siwedenborg for an claborate system. All the. terms and objects in the naturai and spiritual worlds are eatalogueni in pairs."- 12 . A. Vumghan. Hours with the 1 fyotice, uk. 12, ch. 1 (r. 2)"It is more than a century since the fommation of this eluurch [the New.Church] was hial. is the publication of the theologieal writin: $\boldsymbol{t}$ if Fmanuel swedenborg. For more than half if that theme, findiriduals nod soeicties bare zecat actire in trunslating them, mid in publishins them widely. There hare been many preachers of these loctrines, and wot $n$ few writers of hobs and periodicals. The male of 8 werlenborges writ lngs, and of books intended to present the doctrines of the church, has been colistant and large. How happens $1 t$, under these circumatances, that the growth of this church has been and is so slow. If its doctrines are all that we who hold them suppose them to be? There are many answers to this question. One among them lis, that its growth has been yiater than is apparent. It is not a sect. Its falth does not consist of a few specinc tenets, easily stated and easily received. It. it a new way of thinking about God and man. this life and another, and every topic connected with these. And this new way of thinkligg has made and is makling what may well be calied great progress. It may be discerned e very where, In tho selence, literature, phiiosophy, and theology of the times; not prevaient in any of them, but exlating, and cognizable by all tho are able to appreciate these new truths whith iheir bearings and results. . . . Let it not be supposed that by the New-Church is meant the organized socleties calling themselves by that name. In one sense, that is their name. Swedenborg says there are three essentials of this Church: : beiief in the Divinity of the Lord, and in the sanctity of the Scriptures, and a life of charity, which is a life governed by a love of the neighbor. Where these are, there is the Church. Whoever hoids these essentials in faith and life is a member of the Now.Church, whatever may be his theolog. ical name or place. Only in the degree in which he so holds these essentials is any one a member of that church. Those who, holding or desiring to hold these essentiais in taith and life, unite and organize tiat they may ie amaistell and may assist each other in so inolding them, constitute the visi'Jle or professed New.Church. But very falme w uld they be to its doctrines, if they sup. posec themselves to be exclusiveiy memixers of that Church, or if they founded their membership upon their profession or oxteraai organiza. tion."-T. Parsons, Outlines of the Religion and Philomophy of Slecdenborg, eh. 14, zect. 5 .

SWEDEABORG.

SWITZERLAND.

Also in: E. Swedenborg, The four leading Doctrines of the Neir Chureh.-G. F. E. Le Bors Des Guars, Letters to a Man of the Worlu.-B. F. Barrett, Lect's on the Nere Dispenation.
SWEENEY, Peter B., and the Tweed
Ring. Sec NEW YoRE A.D. $1863-1871$.
SWERKER I., King of Sweden, A. D., $11.55 . .$. Swerker II., King of Sweden, 1100 1210.

SWERKERSON. See Charlas Ewerker. Son ; and Join swerkerson.
SWERRO, King of Norway, A. D. 11881202.

SWEYN I., King of Denmark, A. D. M911014..... Sweyn II., King of Denmariz, 104i1076. .... Swejn III., Klag of Denmark, 1153115.....Sweyn Canutson, Kling of Norway, 1030-1035
SWISS CONFEDERATION AND CONSTITUTION. See SWITZERLAND:A.D. 1SiN1890; and Cosistitetron of siftraellasio

SWITZERLAND.

Early lahablitante. See Helveiti: Alemanhi: A. D. 496-504; Bergendians: A. D. $443-$ 451: algo, below: The Three Forest Caxtons

The Three Forest Cantons, their original Confederation (Eidgenossenschaft), and their reiations with the House of Austria- History divested of Legend. -"It is pretty ciear that among those Helvetil with whom Cresar had his cruel struggle [see Helfetio, The arhested migration or the], and who subsequently hecame an integral portiou of the enpire, there were no people from the Forest Cantons of Sehwytz, Uri, and Unterwaiden. The meu who deffed the Roman eagles were inhahitants of the mountain slopes between the lakes of Genera and Constance. On the Worth, the anthority of the Romans penetrated no farther in the direction of the mountainous Oberiand than to Zurich or Turicum. They, no douht, ascended far up the valiey of the Rione, where they Lave ieft their mark in the speech of the propie to this day; but they did not climb tie inommtain passes lending across the great cliain of the Alps. It mar be questioned if the higier valleys of Switzerland were then, or for centuries after the fail of the Westeru Empire, inhabited. . . . In the district of these Forest Cantous no remains of lake inhahitancy have yet been found. . . . Yet mone of the plates wiere thes are net with couid lave been more natnraily suited for lake-dweil. iugs than these. The tiree Forest Cabturs begnu the political Listory of Switcerland, having establisined among themseives that political centre round which the other Cantona cl_stered. In ethnological history, they were the latest members of the Smiss family, since their tertiory remained Without oceupauts after the more accessinle fortions of the country hati been peopied. In the same sense, the cantou from which the confederation derived its name - that of Schwriz-is the youngest of ali. When the Irish monk, after wards canonised as St. Gali. settled uear the Lake of Constance in the 7 th century, he had goue as completcly to the one extreme of the inhabited world, as his hrother Columba had gone to the other when ine sailed to Iona. If the districts of Thurgan, Appenzell, and St . $\mathrm{Go}^{\circ}$ were at that period becoming gradually inhabited. it is supposed that Schwytz was not occupied iv a permanent population nntil the iatter half of the 9th century. ...31. Rilliet [in 'Les Origines de la Conféteration Suisse, par Alhert Rilliet] is one of the first writers who has appiled bimself to the stndy of . . . original documents [titie deeds of property, tile chartularies of refigious iouses, records of litigation, etc.] as ther are stiil preserved in Switzerlaud, for the purpose of tracing the character and progress of the Swiss people and of their free institutions. It was among the accidents propitions to the effurts of tile Forest Cantons, that, among the higit fendal or manorial rights existing within their territory, a iarge proportion was in the fands of monastic bodies. Throughout Europe the estates of the ecclesiastics were the best honshanded. and inhabited hy the most prosperous vassais. These hodies ruled thelr vassals through the aid of a secular officer, a Vogt or adrocate, who sometimes was the master, sometimes the servaut, of the community. In either case there was to some extent a divialon of rule, and It wat not the less so that in these Cantons the larger eatates were hell hy nuns. The various atrug. gles for supremacy in which emperors and com. petion for empire, the succesuive popes, and the potentates atrugging for dominion. eeverally ©gured, gave many opportunities to a brave and engaclous peopic, ever on the watch for the protection of tieir liberties: but the preduminant fenture in their policy - that, indeedi, which securei their final triumph - was their steady adiherrace In such contests to the Empire, and their acknowledgment of Its supremacy. This is the more worthy of notice since popuiar notions of Swls history tule the opjoalte direction, and introduce us to the Emperor and his ministers as the oppressors $w$ bo dirove an exasperated people to arms. In fact, there atill lurk in popular history many fallacies and mistakes about the nature of the 'lioly Roman Empire' as an Institution of the midile ages [see ilovan Empire, The IIoly].

SWITZERLAND. The Porwe Cantone SWITZERLAND.

It is not natural or ensy indeed to assoclate that mighty centrai organisation with popular ifberty and power; and yet in the fentiai ages it was a strong and effective protuctor of freedom.

Small republics and free citles were scattered over centrul Europe and protected in the heart of feudalism.
M. Rlifiet aptly remarks, that in the Swiss vaileys, with their isoiating mountains, and their narrow strips of valuable pasture, pollical and focal conditions existed in some diegree resembling those of a wailed city." The elecilon, in 1273, of Rudulph of IIapshurg, as King of the Romans, was an erent of great Importauce In the bistory of the Swise Cantons, owing to their previous connexion with the House of Hapshurg (ste Atstria: A. D. 12461282), "a connexlon yengruphicaily so ciose that the paternal domains, whence that great family takes lis ancient name, are part of the Swiss territory at the present day." Such agencles as belonged naturaily to the most powerfui family in the district fell to the IIouse of Hapsburg. Its chlefs were the chosell advocates or cham. plons of the religious communlties neighbor to them; and "under such imperiai oftices as are Enown by the title Balliff, Procurator, or Relchsrogt, they occasionaly exercised what power the Empire retained over lts free communities. Such offices conferred authority which easily ripened Into feudai superiorities, or other forms of soverelgnty. M. Rilliet attributes considerabie, but not. it seems to us, too much importance to a rescript bearing date the 36 th Mas, 1231 . It is granted by iIenry VII., King of the Romans, or more properiy of the aggregated German communities, as acting for his father, the Emperor Frederic II. This iustrument revokes certain powers over the juople of the cominunity of Uri, which had been grunted nt a previous time by Frederic himself to the Count of Hapsburg. It addresses the people of C'ri by the torm Uni. versitas - high in class among the enfranchised conmmunties of the Empire-aud promises to them that they shali no more under ans pretext be withdrawn from the direct jurisiliction of the Empire. . . . The great polnt reaclied through thls plece of evidence, and corroborated by others, is, that at this remote period the district which is now the Canton of Lri was dealt with as a Roman Universitas - us one of the communities of the Empire, exempt from the immediate authority of any feudal chief. . . . M, Rililet's researches show that Cif is the Canton in which the charscter of a free imperial community was inst eatablished, perhaps we shouid rather asy It was the Canton in which the privilege was moat completely preserved from the dangers that assalled it. The Hapshurgs and tiself rivuls had astronger hold on Schwsts.

In many of the documents reiating to the right of Ku dolph over thie district, bearing date after be became Casar, it is uncertaln whether he acti at emperor or as immediate feudal lord. . . . itu. dolph, however, found it, from whatever cause, his policy to attach the peopie of Schwytz to his interesta as emperor rather than as feudal ford; and he gave them charters of franchise whinh seem uitimately to have made them, llke their nelghbours of Uri, a free community of the Empire, or to have certifled their right to that character. In the fragmentary records of the three Cantons, Unterwalden does not holi rank as a frea community of the Empire at so early a time even as Schwytz. It is only known that in 1291 Unterwaiden acted with the other two as an independent community. In the disputes for supremacy between the Empire and the Church ail three had been loyal to the Emplre. There are some indications that Rudoiph had discovered the slgaal capacity of these mountalneers for war, and that aiready there were hands of Swiss among the imperial troops. The reign of Rudoiph lasted for 18 years. ... During bls 18 years of possession he changed the character of the Cxsarship, and the change was felt by the Swiss. In the eariy part of his relgn he woned them to the Empire - before Its end he was strengthening the territorial power of his dynasty. ... When Rudoiph died in 1291, the imperial crown was no longer a disputable prize for a chance candidate. There was a contlici on the question whether his descendants should take It as a hereditary right, or the eiectols should show that they retained their power by another choice. The three Cantons felt that there was danger to their Interests in the coming contest, and took great step for their own protection. They formed a league or confederacy [Eidgenos. senschaft] for mutual co-operation and protection. Not oniy has it been handed down to us in Ilterature, hut the very parchment has been preserved as a testimony to the eariy independcnce of the Foreat Cantons, the Magaa Charter of Switzeriand. This document rereais the oristence of unexpiained antecedents by cailing itself a renewal of the old league - the Antlque Confederatio. . . Thus we have a Confederation of the Three Cantons, dated in 1201, and rcferring to eariler alilances; while popular history sets down the subsequent Confederation of 1314 as the earlieat, for the purpose of making the whole history of Swiss independence arise out of the tragic events attributed to that period. If this leads the way to the extinction of the story on which the Confederation is hased, there is compensation in finding the Sonfederation in active existence a quarter of a century carlier. But the reader will observe that the mere fact of the exlatence of this anterior league overturns the Whole received history of Switzerland, and changes the character of the alieged strugg!e with the House of Austria, prior to the battle of Morgarten. There is nothing in this document or in contemporary events hreathing of disioyalty to the Empire. The two parties whom the Swiss beld in fear were the Church, endeavouring to usurp the oli prerogatives of the Empire in their fullnest and the feulial larons, who were en. croaching on the imperial anthority. Among the three the Swlss chose the chlef who would be least of a master. . . . Two years before the end of the 18 th century [by the electlon of Albert, son of Rudolph, the Hapsburg famlly] agaln got possestion of the Empire, and retalned ft for ten years. It passed from them by the well-known murder of the Emperor Allert. The Swiss and that prince were lll-dlsposed to eseh other at the thine of the nccurrence, and indeed the murder liself was perpetrated on Swiss ground: yet it hatl no eonnexlon with the canse of the quarrel whleh was deepenlng between the Ilouse of Mapsbirg and the Cantons. $\qquad$ There exlst in contemporary recorls no instances of wanton ontrage and insolence on the IInpsburg side. It was the ubject of that power to obtaln pollital ascendancy, not to lndulge lis represenentlves in lust or wanton insult. . . . There are plentiful reconls of illsputes in wheh the in. plentiful records of illsputes in which the in. tereste of the two powers were mixet up whth thise of partlcular persons. Some of these were triflng and local, relatlag to the patronage of benctices, the houndaries of parishles, the use of meadows, the amount of toll duties, and the like: others related to larger questlons, ts to the conmerce of the lake of the Four Cantons, or the translt of gools across the Alps. But in these discussions the symptoms of violence. as is natural enough, appear rather on the slde of the Ewles commultles than ou that of the aggrin. ellsing lmperial houst. The Cinton of Scheritz. Indeed, appears to hare obtainct by acts of vlolence und rupnelty the notoriety which matle Its name aupreme umong the Cuntons. . . We are now at a critlcal point, the outhreak of the long War of Swlas [ndependence, ant] It would be pleasant if we had more dixtinct llght than elther hilstory or recrind preserves of the linmeillate motives which brought Austria to the polnt of invaling the cantons.

The war was no doubt connecten] with the struggle for the Emplre [betwecn Frideric of Ausiria and Louls of Bavaria-see Gervasr: A. D. 181+134]; ; yet It is not elear how Freteric, even hatl lie been vletorlous over the three Cantons, could have gninel euough to repay hlm for si costly an expeditlon. ... We are simply tall by one party aunong historlenl writers that hls army was sent agulnst hls rebelllous subjects to rerluce them to obedience, and by the other that it was sent to conquer for the "House of Hapshurg the free Cantons. That a magnitleent army did march agalinst thein, and that it was scattered and rulned by a sniall holy of the Swlas at Morgarten, on the 15 th Noveniber, 1315 , is an historical event too clearly attested $\ln$ all its grandeur to stand open to dispute. After the battle. the vietorious Cantons renewed their Confeleration of 1291, Wlth some alteratlons appropriate to the change of contlitions. The first lond or confellerutlon comes to us In Latin. the seeond is in German. . . . Such was the base around whlch the Cantons of the later Swiss Confederatlon were gradually grouped. . To thls conelu. slon we have followfi M. Rilllet without encountering William Tell, or the triumsirate of the meadow of Rutll, and yet with no consclous. ness that the part of Hamlet has been left out of the play." According to the popular tradition, the people of the Three Cantons were maideaed by wanton outrages and lnsoleaces on the part of the Austrian Dukes, untll three boll leadern, Werner Stauftacher, Arneid of the Melkthai, and Wislter Furst, sembled them in alyhtly meetings on the ilttle mealow of Gritli or Ratil, in 130f, and bound them hy oaths in a league agalnst Auntria, whlch was the beginaing of the Swiss Confederatlon. This story, and the famous legend of William Tell, connceted wlth it. are fadling out of authentle hlstory uader the light which moiern Inventigation has brought to bear on It. - The Legend of Tell and Reilli (Edin. burgh Rer., Junuary. 1860).

Also in: O. Deleplerre, Fiatorieal Diffentics. -J. ILeywood. The Extablinhment of Siciss Eres. dow, thil the Sretulimutian Origin of the Legend of Willian Tell (Royal Ifiat. Sce. Trans., v. 3).

4-ith Centurlea. See Burorsdy.
 lons of the House of Savos beyond Lake Gen-eva.- The city of Geneva surrounded. See Sayoy: 11-15til Centehtes.
A. D. $1332+1460$.- The extension of the old Confederation, or "Old League of High Ger-many."-The Three Cantona increased to Eight,-"All the orlgimal cantons were German In speech and feelligg, and the formal style of thelr unlon was the Old Laague of IIIgh Ger. many. But in strlet geograplifeal accuracy there Was. . a small Burgundian element in the Confederation, if not from the heglnnlag, at lenst from lts aggrandlzement in the $18 t h$ and 1 th centurles. That is to say, part of the territory of the stntes whlich formed the oll Confed. cration lay geographlicully within the kingdom of Burgundy, and a further part lay withln the Les. ser Burgundy of the Duhes of Zahringen. But, by the time when the hlstory of the Confederation beglns, the klagdom of Buryundy was pretty well forgotten, and the small German-speaklng territory which lt trok ln at its extreme north. east corner may be looked on as practleally German ground. . . It ls speclally needful to bear in mind, first, that, till the last years of the 13 th century, not even the germ of molern Switzerland had appeared on the map of Europe; sec. ondly, that the Conferleratlon dhl not formally become an independen. power till the 17th eentury; lastly, that, though the Siviss name had been in eommon use for ages, it did not beeome the formal style of the Confederation till the 19th eentury. Fothlng ln the whole study of hlstorical geography is more necessary than to root out the notion that there has always been a country of Switzerland, as there has always been a country of Germany, Gaul, or Italy. And It is no less needful to root out the notion that the Swlss of the origiaal cantons in any way represent the Helretli of Cresar. The polnts to be borne in mind are that the Swlss Coufederatlon is simply one of many German Leagues, which was more lasting and beeame more closely unlted than other German Leagues that it gradually spllt off from the German Kingriom - that in the course of thls process, the League and lts members obtalned a large body of Italian and Burguadian allles and subjeets - lastly, that these allies and subjects have in modern times been joined into one Federal body with the original German Confederates. The three Swahian lands [the Three Forest Cantons] which formed the kernei of the Oid League lay at the point of unlon of the three Imperial klag. doms, parts of all of which were to become members of the Confoderation in lis inter form.

The Confederation grew for a whlie by the ailmiselon of aelghbouring lands asid clties as membera of a free Germal Confederation, ownlag no superior hut the Eanperor. Flrat of ali [1339], the clty of Luzera Jolned the League. Then came the Imperial clty of Zarich [1851], which had a ready begun to form a little dominlon $\ln$ the uijolning lands. Then [1852] came the lund of triarus and the town of Zug with is amail territery. And lantly came the grent rity of Bern [:058], whleh had already won a domlulon jrer a conaliderahle body of detached and outiylog alles and aul,jects. These confederate lands and towns formed the Eight Auclent Cun. tons. Their close millance with each other helped the growth of each canton separateiy, at well as that of the League ns a whole. Those cantona whoe geographleal position allowed them to do eo, were thus able to estend their power, in the form of various ahades of domla. lon and alliance, over the smaller lands and towns in their aelghbourhood. . . . Zarleh, and yet more Bern, each formed, after the manaer of an ancient Greek clty, what $\ln$ ancleut Greece would have pasaed for an emplre. In the 15th century [ $1415-1460$ ], large conqueats were made at the expense of the House of Austria, of which the earlle: oues were made hy direct Imperlal sanction. The Confederatlon, or some or other of lit members, had now extended lis territery to the Rhine and the Lake of Constanz. The lands thus won, Aargau, Thurgau, and some other dlatricts, were held as suhject territories in the hauds of some or other of the Confederate States. .. No new states were admitted to the rank of confederate cantons. Before the next group of cautons was admitted, the general state of the Confederation and Its European poatton had greatly clasnged. It had ceased to be a pureiy German power. The first extension leyond the original German lands and those Birgundlau lands whleh were practically Germas began in the direction of Itaiy. Lri had, by the annexatlon of Crseren, become the nelghthur of the Duchy of Mllan, and In the niddie of the 15th century, this canton acyulred some rights la the Vai Levantina on the Itallan side of the 11 ps . This was the beglaning of the extensiom of the Confederation ou Italian gronad. But far more haportant than this was the aidrance of the Confegerates oser the Burgunilan lands to the west."-E. A. Freeman, Ifiturieal Ueog. of Lintepre, rh. 8, seet. 6 .
A. D. $1386-1388$.-Austrian defeats at Sempach and Naefels. - "Seldom, if erer, has Switzerland sirin a more eventful nonth than that of July, 1346. for $\ln$ that month she fought and won the ever-memorahle hattle of Sempach. To set down ali the petty detalls as to the canses which led to thls engagement wouid be tedious ludeed. It is sufficient to point out . . . that there ls seldom nueh love lost betwesu cppressor and oppressed, anif Anstria and the Sirlss Confederation had for some time beld that relation to each other. A ten years' peace had lndeed heen concluded between the two powers. but it was a shmm peace, aud the interval had leen used by both to prepare for new conflets.

Zurich lald slege to Kapperswyl with the intent to destroy the odious Austrian toll-house:

Laserne levelied with the ground the Auatrias fort Both aburg, and entered into alliauces with Entlebuch nad Bempach to overthruw the Aun. tr'an aupremacy. Thla was equal to a dectaratlon of war, and war wat ladeed lmmlaent. liske Leopold III. of Austrla, was moat ansloua to bring the quarrel to an lasue, and to chantion the Insilent of whe cltizens and peamatry.
The noblen of Southern Germany maliled sound the gallant aworlsman, and made him thelr leader in the expedltons againat the bourgeolste and peasantry. And nomoner had the truce ex. plred (June, 1880), than they directeil thelr Arat attack on the bold Confederation. pian was to make Lucerne the centre

- Mdla tary operations, hut $\ln$ order to draw a acg atteu. thon from iuls real oljeet, be sent a diriolon of 8, (NO meu to Zurlch to aimulate an attack on that town. Whilist the unauspectlog Confeder. ates lay lule wlthin the wala of Zurich, be gathered reinforcementa from Burgualy, Swahia, and the Anstro. Helve' a Cantons, the iotai force belug variously eq .anted at from 12,000 to 24,000 meu. He $m$ ched his mrmy in the direc. thon of lucerne, hut hy a round-mbout way, aud seized upou Willisan, whleh he set on tire, inteadling to pmuish Sempach 'en passant' for her demerthu. But the Coufeleraton gettlng knowl. edge of his atratagem left Zurich to delend her. eff, and struck straight across the country ln pursult of the eueny. Cilmuing the heights of Bemprach. .. they encamped at Deyersi 12 , a wron fringligg the lilitop. The Austrina leaving sursee, for want of some more practicabe road towarls Sempach, made thelr way slowly and palnfully along the path which leads from sursee to the helghts, and then turns suil. deuly down upon sempach. Great was thelr surpise aud consteriation when at the juuction of the Sursee aud Illitisrleden roads they came sudidenily uma the Swlse force.

The Swiss
Irew inj lu hattic order, their force taking a kind of wemlge-shaped mass, the shorter edge formons. and the bravest men ocenpylag the front posillons. . . . The onset was furlous, and the institan Hotspurs, each eager to outstrip his fellows in the race for houour, rushed o.. the Swiss, drove them back a llttle, aud then tried to encompass theur and crush them lu their milist.

All the fortune of the battle seemed agalnst the Swlss, for their short weapons coutio not rearha foe guarded hy long latees. But sudIruiy, the secene chauged. 'A geot aud pinas man.' says the old chrmicler, deeply moritied hy the misfortune of his country, stepped for. warl from the ranks of the Swlos - Aruild von Whakeried. Shontlug to his comrades in arms, - I will cht a road for you; take care of ny wife and chlleren!' he dashed on the euemy, and. catching holl of as many spears as hls arms conhi encompass, he bore them to the gronud with the Whole weight of his body. His comrades rushed over hls corpse, burst through the gap made in the Austrian rauks, aud begau a ficree hand to. hand encounter. . . A fearful carnage fol. lowed, In whll no mercy was shown, aud there fell of the common soldiers 2,000 men, and no fewer than 700 of the nobility. The swlss iust hut 120 men. . . . This great victory . . . gase to the Confederatiou independence, and far greater millitury and pritical eminence.
The story of Winkelried's herole actlon has glven rise to much fruitless hut luterestlng discussion.

The truth of the eale, In fact, can nelther be con. Ormed nor denled, in the absence of nay sumficlent proof. But Wiakeiried ts no myth, whatever may be the care with the other great Swleo hero, Tell. There le proof that a family of the name of Wintrifted Ured at Unterwalden at the time of the battle. The victory of Naefels (A pril, 1888) forms a worthy pendant to that of Sempach. The Austrans, having recovered their apiritis after thy terrible disanter," Invaded the diarus valiey in strong force, and met with another overihrow, loaing 1,700 men. "In 1880 - earea years' peace was arranged. . In This peace was Arat prolonged for 20 years, and after. wards, In 1419, for 80 year. "- Mra. L. Ilug and R. Stead, The Story of Svitesthand, ch. 13.
A. D. 1396-1499. -The Gres Learrien,-Democratic Iadopendonee of Graubuadea (Grisons) achieved. - Thelr Alliance with the Swima Can. toms.-The Swablan War.-Practical separation of the Confederncy from the Empire, "It was precisely at thla epoch [the later yeara of the 14th century) that the common people of Graubonden [or the Grisona) felt the necensity of standing for themseives alone againat the world. Threatened by the Habshurgs, suspicious of the Bee of Chur [tee Traoz], ili.governed by their decadent dynastic nobles, eacouraged hy the ex. ample of the Forent Cantons, they began to form len gues and alifances for mutual protection and the preser ration of peace within the province. Nearly a century was occupied in the origination and consolidation of those three Leagues which turned what we now cali Grauhanden into an independent democratic state. . The towa of Chur, which had been teteadify rising in power, together with the immediate rassals of the see, took the lead. They combined into an associa: tion, which amomed the name of the Gotteshaus. bund; and of which the Engadine [the upper valiey of the Inn] formed an Inportant factor. Next followed a league between tbe Abbot of Dissentis, the nobies of the Oberland, the Cons. munes of that district, and Its outising depens. denelen Thit was calied the Grey League - ac cordlag to popular tradition because the folk who swore it wore grey serge coats, but mose probahiy because it was a League of Counts, GrafenGrawen. The third league was formed after the final dispersion of the great inhertance of Vaz. Which passed through the Counts of Toggenburg Into the bands of femaies anil their rejresenta. tives. This took the name of Zehn Gerichte, or Ten Jurisdictlons, and embraced Davos, Beifort. Bchandgg, the Prattigau, and Malenfeld. The date of the formation of the Gotteshaushund is uncertain; hut lts origin may be asslgned to the last years of the 14th century [some witters diate It 1390]. Tbat of the Grey League, or Grane Bund, or Obere Theil, as it is variously called, is tradtitonaliy 1494. (It is worth meutioulug that this League took precedcuce of the other two, and that the three were known us the Grer Leagues.) That of the Zehn Gerichte is 1438. lu 1471 these three Leagues formed $n$ triple aili. ance, defensive and offeusive, protective nnd aggressive, without prejudice to the lloly Ronan Empire of which they still considered thensseives to form a part, anil without due reserva. tion of the rights acquired by inheritance or purchase by the House of Austria within their horders. This important revolution, which de. feudalized a conslderable Alpine territory, and

Which made the individual membere of lea numerous Communes woverelgns by the right of squal votlog, was peaceabiy effected. $\qquad$ The conatitution of Grathonden after the formation of the Leagues, lu theory and proctice, . . was a pure democracy, haseit on manhool suttrage.
The tirat difticulties with whleh this new ' Ro: public of peasants had to contend, arose from the nelghlmurimad of peudial and imperfal Anstria. The Princes of the House of Habshurg had acquirerl exteuslve propertiea and privile ges in Granblanden. These points of contact be. came the source of trequent rulm, and gave the Altatrians opportunities for interfering in the affalrs of the Grey Leagues. A littie war which broke out in the Lower Engadine in 1475, a war of raids anil reprisals, maie bail hlood between the people of Troi aud their Grisons neighlours. But the real atruggie of Graubonden wlth Austria began in enrnest, when the Leagues were drawn lato the mo ealled Ewablan War (14001490). The Emperor Maximiliau promoted an asmelatlou of suti German towas and nubien, In order to restore his Imperial authority orer the swiss Cantons. They resisted his eneroachments, and formed a close aillanee with the Grey Lengues. That was the commencement of which That was the commencement of a tfe entle iound Granithinden, as a separate poiltica for several centurfes. Grauhunden acted as an fur everai centufles. Grauhunden acted as an independent Republic, but wai ai independent Republic, but wal aiwaye ready to cooperate with the Swiss. . Fiybting slde hy shle [in the Swablan War] with the men of Uri, Glarus, Zarlct, the Buminers learned the arte of warfare lu tho lower Rheinthal. Afterwards, in 1400. they gained the decisire battie of this prolinged struggie on their own ground and unassisted. In a nnrrow gorge caliew Calven, just Where the Manaterthat opeus out into the Vintachgal ainve Glurns. $\mathbf{J , 0 n 0}$ men of the Grey Lenguen defeated the whole chivnlry aud levies of Tirol. Mans thumsuads uf the fue (from 4.000 to 8,000 Is the mein (silhate) were left dead upon the Aeli." Maximilinu hastened to the scene with a fresh nrms, hut found only deserted rillages, and Wus forcei by fanline to retreat. "The victory of Calren ralsenl the Grisous to the same rank as the swlss, auil secured their reputation in Eu. rope as tighting men of the best quality. It also led in a formal treaty with Austria, in which the prlats at issue bet ween the two parties were carefull: detined. "- J. A. Synnuds, Hise. of Graulinilen (in stricklinds "The Engudine, pp. 29-33)- - Dariug the Swahlan War, in 1499 the Swiss conchutel $n$ trenty witin France. "Winlibald Plrkhelurer, whio was present with 400 red - habited citlzens of Nuremberg, bas graphicalle described every fuedent of this war. The Imperial reinforcelincuts arrived slowly and in separate bodies: the princes and nobles fighting in real curuest. the diles witb little luclluation The swlss were, consequently, ahle to defeat each slugle detachment before they could uuite, aud were in this manner victorlous in ten engagemeuts." The Enuperor, "diviliug his forces, despatched the majority of his trops agalnst Basle, under the Count von Furstenburg. Whilst he adranced towards Geneva, nud was ocenpled in rrnselng the latke when the news of Foritenturs' defeat and death, near Dornach, arrived. The princes, ifttle desirous of staking their honour agaiust thelr low born opponents, instantly returned bome in great nuubers, and the emperor

BWITEERLAND, 15M-1681.

Eet therviors compelled to make pece [14P]. The fivien rotalaed pocmenitoa of ine Thurrau and of Boole, nad Bchafhausen jolsed the ennled. ention, which whe mot subject to the Impertal chamber, and for the futine beloager merely Is name to the empirn, and rradually fell under the tnfuence of France, "- W. Monvel, Mite. of Gep many, ch. 191 (e. 9)
A. D. 147 -1477 , - Defest of Charle the Bold. Bee Bumaunde (Tus Fineven Derspow): A. D. 1470-1477
A. D. 1418-5508.-Disarpentent over the gpolis of the war with Charlee the Bold, Threatesed rupture. - The Comvention of Btass.- Eelarcament of the Confederacy.Ite loote and precarioue conslitution.- "In the wat with C'iarlee the Bold. Berr had galned greatly In extent on the weat, while the immence cooty taken in battle and the tributes lald on conquered ctiles aremed to the country cantons to be unfelrly divided, for all were supposed to recelve an equal share. The cliles protested that If whe no fair divislon of booty to give rach one of the conntry atates, who had altogettiet furnished 14,000 men for the war, an even share With Bern whicis had rent out $\mathbf{4 0 , 0 0 0}$. Another bone of contention was the enlargement of the ualon. The eltice bai for a long time deslred to bring the cantons of Frelburg and Bolothurn Into the League. . . But tisese were munlcipal gov. eruments, nad the Forves Atales, unwilling to add more to the Fotlng strength of the citles and thereby place themselves la the minority, refused gain and agaln to sdmit theme cautons. The tituation dafly grew inore critlcal. Schwyz. U'ri, and l'nterwahlen made an arreement with Garus to stand hy encis other in case of attack. Luzern, Bern, mil Zarich mulc a compnct of mutual clizeushlip, a form of agreement by which tisy sumgit to circumrent the outh they bad taken In tie Lengue of Eilgite to enter Into no new allinuces. Junt nt this point there was aileged to have been dlesurertel a plot to destroy the city of Luzern by culutrymwa of Obwaiden and Entibucis. The citien were thrown Into a frenzy and peace was atralued to tite uthost. Titreats and recriminntions nawe.if . ." side s.) sifie, hut finuily, as an aimost buy 'r a eflort toward reconcilhatlon, a Dlet was called to nect at Stanz on the sth of thecenber, 1481. Tife de. tails of this conference remal like romance, so yreat was the transformation wheh took piace In the feellugs of the confederates. . . . Just ns the llet was ahout to break up in confusion a comprombe was effected, nad an agreement was drawn up whicis Is khown us the Convention of Stanz (stanzerverkonuiss). Asto the matter latest in contentlon, it was agreed that movable booty shoulif be illvided wecording to the number of men sent intu war, but new nequistinns of territory shomini be slared equaliy among the atates jarticlpating. Tius tive princlple of state. rights was preserveti aml the lilea of jopular rejresentation received its first, unif for 300 yearg nlinost its only recognition. In another agrec. meut, made the same day. Frellurg and Soiothurn were momittol to the Lengue ou equal terms witis the others. In $1: 001$ the confrderntinn was eniarged by the aimbsion of Imsel. whleh, on account of jis situatiou und imper tance, was a most desimble acquisitiou, and in the same yent the adilition of schatf!nasen, like Basei, a free lmperial clty with oulying territories, atll further etroagthened the Unfors. The gezt, and for yob yeare ith lact, eddition to the leser membernbly of the allinecs was Apperzell. Conmected with the confederncy thero were, for varylag periolo nat fa diferent rolatlonahipe. other cerrilortes and elties more or lem under its contmol. One clam eopelsted of tho ev.cnilied Alled Diatricts ('Zugewamite and Verbobitete Orte). Who were attached to the ceptral boily not as equel membern, hut an friends for mutual ceslatance. This form of allitance beyan olmust Fith the formation of the lewgue, and graluaily exteaded tili it tacluded St. Gallen, Mel, Nitu. chatel, the Blehopric of Basel (which terfitery lay outalde the elty), the reparate confedernites of Graubtaden and Valnle, Geneva and merepal free Imperial cltiet of Germany, at one time no datant as Btrmeshurg. More clowely ate ciand to the confecleratim wire the 'Gemelne Vogtelen; or auhject territories (Aergeu, Thurgnu, etc.). Whowe goverament was admintotered by varlous membern of the league in partnershlp. Tises lands had been obtalned partiy by purchace or forfelture of longs and parily hy conquest.
Hefore the middie of the 16 ih century aearly all the terrltory now included in swlezeriand wat In come way connected with the confederathon. Cpon this territorial basls of states, suhjert fanis antl alles, the fabric of government atinil till the clowe of the 18th century. It wan a limme confederation, whone sole organ of coniminn actlon was a Dlet $\ln$ which each stete was f . teled to one vote. . A Anmot the only tiread thut held the $\$$ wise Conferteration together was the ponsension of subject inads. In these thry were Interested as partaers in a husiness corpurio tlon.

Theme common propertles were nil that prevented complete rupture on meveral iriti. cal occasiona."-J. M. Vincent, Sute and Filiribl Gov't in stritzerlamd, eh. 1.
A. D. 1515 -Defeat by the French at Ma-rignano.-Trbatlee of perpetual alilance with Francle 1. Ste France: A. 1). 1315; aud 1515 1518.
A. D. 1519.-Geneva in civle relations with Berne and Frelharg. See Geneva : .1. 1). 131) : 53.5 .
A. D. 1519-1524.-Beginning of the Reformation at Zurich, under $Z$ wingll. See l'al:cy: A. 1). $1: 19-1: 54$.
A. D. 1528-1538. -The spreading of the Reformatlon. - Adhesion of the Forest Cantons to Romanlam. - Differences hetween the Swiss Reformers and the German Protestan's. - The Conference at Marhurg.- Cis 1 war among the Cantons.-Denth of Zwin, 1. - From \%ur. tch, "the reformed faith penctrated, hut culy gradunily, into the nortinern and enstern cuntume. Bern was renched in 1529, after a hrilitant lis. nutation hedi in that dity. Basel mud schuff. buasen foilowed in 1520, nnd then st. Viatl. Appremzell, Graubonden, and solutiurn, thuyb sone of them hand serious struggies within thensiltes nad fell in only partiy with the reforms. But in the Centrai or Forest Cantons it was that the thereest upposition whs encountered. From the very simpilicty of thelr lives the beto pic Ignored the degeneracy of the priesthewl. and amongst these pustoral pcopies the privits were of simpler manners and niner :matal !ifthan those in the cltes: titey disiiked lewralug and enilgitenment. Titen there wat the with feeling of antlpathy to the cltes, coupled with: strong dibilke for the roformes wheh had abol. teloed 'Relslaufen' (milltary service under foreign payl, that staceding source of lucome to the cantosa Lucerne, bought with French gold. struggled whet Zurich for the lead. So far was the oppodition carrled that the Catholle districts by a majority of votes Imelsted (at the Diet) on a nieante for suppresing heresy in Zurleh, whilst nome were for expeling that canton from the leayue. The Forest Cintons leanell orders that Zwingll shoult be selzed shoult he bo found within their cerritorlew; consequently be kept a way from the great convocation at Baden, 1526.

Wher and wider grew the chamm betwren the two rellgious pariles, and Zwingil at leagth Pormed a 'Chriatha League' between the owlise Protestants and mome of the German citlen and the Elector of llesse. On the other hand, the Cathollew entered into an alllance with Ferdinam! of Austria, a determinel enemy to the reformed religion. At lent the Protentant party was ex. aspernted beyond bearing, and Zurieh declared War on the Fureat Cantons, 2wlagll blmaelf jolning in the vicisituices of the campalign. His camp prezenterl the pleture of a well.organized. ac Pearing army of a truly Paritan stamp.' T acounter at Kappel, In June, 1520, how. e cook a peaceful turn, thanks to the medliathe. 1 ) Landanmann Aelill, of Glarus, greatly to the dlegust of 2 wingli, who prophetically ex. claimed that mome day the Catholles woulil te the stronger party, and then they would not show mo much moderation. Ali iff.feding. in. deed, subshled when the two armles enme within sight of ench other. The curlous anil touching eploxie known as the 'Kippeler Bllelsuppre' took place liere. A land of jolly Catholles liand got hold of a large bowl of milk, but lacklug bread they placed it on the loonalary llae let. tween Zug and Zurleh. At once agroup of Zurich men tarned up with mome lonves, and presently the whole party foil to entlug the 'Milelasuppe' right merrlly. A pence was conciniled on the goth of Juni, 1500, by which the Austrian Lengue was illssolved, and freetom of Wurshlp granted to all. ... By hls treatles. - De vera et faisia religione ' (t, is.), Zuineli hal. hongh unwilingly. thrown the gatuthet anto the Wittenters ganp. The work was htembed tio be a sclemetde refutation of the (:athulle docetrine of transubstantiatlon, and a war of words aruse. The contest whe by each diputamt carried on "suo more: by Luther with his usuat authoritative and tempest uous velumence, by Zwingll In hls owu cool reasoning, ilignithed. and conrteous style and republican frankuess. Presently there came a strong deolre for a union Inetween the derman Protestimes, und the swiss Ieformers [calied sacramentarlian ly the LathCrams]. . : the impulse to It heding given by Charles V's 'Protest' agahst the Proterants. Landgrave Phlifp of llessie, the poiltical ieader of the German reformers, invited Luther and Zwingil to meet at his custib of Marburg [15:2y]. with the view of reconcillag t? two sectimas. The relighots colloquina wa, auled by watay sarants, princes, nobles un! al ae chlaf leallers of the lieformation, ey impht have lenae preat thlogs, but came to grief th -omisl: the obsthacy of Luther, as is welf kr $\quad$ or tather through hils determination to approve of no man's vlews except they should agree exactly with his own. Luther insisted on a literal interpretation of the wonls 'Thle te my body' whllet Zwiogll asw to themonly \& metaphorical or symbollent sigalacatlon. To return for a moment to home polltic. The peace of 1529 was a chort lived one. Zwingll, ansjous only to apread the to. formed fath over the whole republle, did not realize clearly the hatred of the Foreit ditrict agalint the new creel. .. War was faminent, sinl was indeed eagerly deslred on hoth alrles. Hern, inullaz that war was likely to bo Injurlous to her private eads, lasisted on a stoppage of mercantlle trafice between the oppowing detricta, but $Z$ wlogit meorned to use suching mesns to hunger the enemy and so hring them to submit. However Zurleh was outvoted in the Christina Lengue (May Iftl), sad the Forest was excluded front the niarkete of that city and Bern. The rest may be easlly gtemed. On Zurich was turned all the fury of the famidied Forent men. and they went a challenge la 1 letober, 1531 . A second lime the hosilie armes met it Kajpel, but the puantions were reverwel. Zurich was unpreparell to meet a foe four times as numerous as her own, and bern bestated to conve to her shll. However Goliling, the captaln of the Hitle force, reckleauly engaged with the opposing army, whether trom treachery or incapactey fo nut known, lut he was certainly opposed to the reformed faltih. Zwlugll had taken leave of hls trlenil Buillager, as though torescelug his own denth th the coming struggle, and hal julned the Zurich force. He was wlth the chlef banner, and, whith mome 500 of hla orernantelied conralles, fell lu the thlekest of the battle. . But the refurmation was far too deeply rooted to be thus itstroyed. Bulligger, the friemi of Zw lighti. and, ister im , of Calvin, worthliy succeerled to the hendship of the Zurlels reforniers."- Mrs. L. llug and IX. Steal, siritzerlomit, ch, sat.

ALso is: J. II. Merle d'Aublgne. Ifiot. of the Refiomatom in the 10 th century. Ek. is and is- 18 (r. 3-4) - L L. pon llanke, Slint. of the Reformation tn Germany, br. 6. ch. 2-f (c. 3).
A. D. $1531-1648$. - Rellglous divislons and condicts. -Annexntions of territory. - Peace with the Duke of Savoy.- The coming of Protestant refugees, - Industrial progress.Peace. - ${ }^{\boldsymbol{A}} \boldsymbol{A}$ pence at Dennikon in 1531 marks the acknowledgemant of the princlple of each Cruton's Indepeadence.

The Confedemey was now futuly dlviteci. 「here is, perhaps, no other Instanee of a state so deeply and so permanently sumdered by the Reformution. Other governments adopted or rejectel the reformed rellyton for their dominions as a whole; the Confeleracy, by lis constitution, was constralacel to aliow ench Cantun to determine its religion for It wiff : and the presenee of Catholic and Reformed stutes shde by side, each clinging with obstibacy tu the religuin of their choice, beeame the origiu of jealensles and wars which have threateneri more than once to remb asunder the thes of unim. Next to the endless but unlmerestling theme of religiens differences comes the hastory of the an-: mexations" by wheh the Conferleract extecded ita limits. "In the directlon of the Jural was a comatry divided between mang goveraments. which the princes of Savoy, the flapoburgs of hat become morselied smong many claluants during it century and a haif of wenkneso, und which Duke Charles 111. of Saroy was now seek. ing to reconcile to his authority. Geneva was the chlef clty of these parts.
Factlons In favour of or agalnst [the rule of the Duke of Baroy] - dirided the eity [see Geneta: A. D. 1504-1585]. The alilance of Bern and Freyburg Was at length souglit for; and the eoneluslon of a trenty of co-citlzenshlp $\ln 1526$ opened at once the prospect of a collislon between the IIouse of Savoy und the Confederacy. That collision wns not long delayed. In 1530, nfter repeated nets of provocation by Charles III., 7,000 men of Bern appeared within Genera. To reaeh the clty they had traversed the Pays de Vaud; after entering lt they pussed onwards to the provinces of Gex and Chablals. All that they traversed they amexed. Eren the city which they had eutered thcy would have ruled, had not some sparks of honour and the entrentles of its lnhab. Itants restralned them from the nunlhliation of the llberties whleh they had been called on to defend. The men of Freyburg nad of the Valais at the same tlme made humbler couquests from Baroy. Later, the strong fortress of Chlllon, and the rich bishoprie of Lausanne, were selzed upon by Bera. A wide extent of territory was thus added to the Confederacy; nud agaln a considerabie popuiation speaking the Freach tongue was brought under the dominion of the Teutonle Cantons. These aequisltlons were extended, lu 1555, by the cession of the county of Gruyere, through the embarrassments of its last Imporerlshed Count. They were dlminished, however, by the loss of Gex nod Chablals in 1504. The jealouss of many of the cautons at the good fortune of their confederates, and the revling power of the House of Saroy, had made the conquests Insecure. Emmanuel Phillbert, the hero of St. Quentin, the nily of the great sovereigns of France and Spain, asked back his provluces: and pradence counselled the surrender of the two, in order to obtaiu a contirmatlon of the posacssion of the rest [sec Savor and Piedmont: A. D. 1559-1580]. The southern side of the Lake Leman. Which had thus been momentarily held, and which nature seemed to have lntended to belong to the Confederaey, wns thus abandoned. The frontiers, however, which were nor secured became permanent ones. The Dukes of savoy had transferred much of thcir ambitlon. with their cupltal, beyoul the Aips; nud the Confederates remained secure in tileir remainlng possessions. The Confederacy might now hare added further to lts power by admitting new nembers to its League. . . . Constance had urged fits own Ineorporation. The reiglous tendencies of lis Inhabitants, however, had nade It suspected; and It was aliowed to fali, in 1548 , without hoide of recovery, under the dominion of Austria. Gencra . . Was piending loudiy for admissiou. Tine jealousy of Bern, and later the nostllity of the Catholic Cantons to the faitin of which the city ind become the centre, refused the request. She remained a mere aily, witti even her independe nee not always ungrudglengy defended against the ussaults of her enemies. Religlous zeai indeed was fatal during thls century to political sagacity. Under Its Inthence the aliance with the rich city of Mnihausen, willeh had endured for more than a hundred years, was throwu off in 1587; the overtures of Strasburg for alliance were rejected; the pioposals of the Grlsous Leagues were repulsed. The opportunltles of the Confederates were thus neglected, whlle those of their neightours became proportlonately lnereased.
The prog. ress that is to be traced during the 16 th century Is such as was due to the times rather than to the people. The cessatlon of forelgn wars and the fewer laducements for mercenary service gave lelsure for the arts of peace; and agrlculture and trade resumed thelr progress. Already Switzer. land began to be sought hy refugees from Eng. land, France, and Italy. The arts of weaving and of dreing were lntroduced, and the manufacture of watches began at Geneva. whleh had been almost abandoned except in service of others, comes littie Into the nanais of the Confederatlon ns a State.

As anotier century advances, there is strife at the very gates of the Confeleratlon. . . But the Confederacy ltself was never driven into war."-C. F. Johnstone, Mistoricil Abstracts, ch. 7.
Also is: H. Zschokke, Hist. of Svitzerland, ch. 33-11.
A. D. 1536-1564- - Calvia's Ecclesiastical State at Geneva. See Geneva: A. D. 15361564.
A. D. 1579-1630.-The Catholic revival and rally.-The Borromean or Golden League. " Pre.emlnent nmongst those who worked for the Catholic revirnl was the famous Carlo Borromen, Archblshop of Mllan and nephew of Pius IV. He lived the life of a saint, and ln due tlme was eanonized. To his see belonged the Swiss bailliages $\ln$ the Ticluo and Valtellina. Indefatigabie in his mbours, coustautly rlsithng every inrt of his dlocese, tolling up to the Alpine huts, he gathered the scuttered flocks into the Pajal fohd, whether by mildness or by force. . . . For the sprend of Catholic doctrines he hit upoa thre different means. IIe cailed Into belng the Colleghm Heivetleum ln 1570 at Milm, where the Siwlss pricsts were educated free. He sent the Jesults lato the couutry, and placed a nuucio at Luccrac, $\ln 1580$. In 1580 whs slgued, between the seren Catioilc cantons, the Borroncean or Golden League, directed ngalust the reformers, and in the foliowing year a coaltion was, by the same cuntons, excepting Solothurn, entered luto whth Philij) of Spaln nud with Savoy. The Jesuits settied themselves in Lucerne and Freiburg, and soon galned lattuence amongst the rich nod the educated, whilst the Capuchins, who tixed themselves at Aitorf, Stanz, $\mathcal{A}_{1}$ 品cazeil, und elsewhere, won the henrts of the uasses by their lowliness nad devotion. Iu this way dill loome seck to regain her influence over the Swiss proples. aud the effect of her policy was soon felt in the semi-1rotestant and subject lands. . . . In the Vuluis, the Protestant pirty. though strong, was quite swept ont by the Jesnits, before 1630 ."- Mrs. L. Ilug aill if Stend, Siriterrlanel, ch. 25.
A. D. 1620-1626. - The Valteliine revolt and war with the Grisons. See Fhance: A. D. 1024-1020.
A. D. 1648.- The Peace of Westphalia. Acknowiedged independence and separation from the German Empire. See Gensany: A. D. 1648
A. D. 1652-1789.-The Peasant Revoit and the Toggenburg War.-Religious conflicts.Battles of Vilimergen. - The Peace of Aarau. -" Abont the mldaie of the 17 til century tiere Fas growing up, in all the cantons except the Wnidstatten, a feeing of strong discontent among the peasants, who stlll suffered from many of the tyrannles whlch hal deseended to them from the old days of serflom. They felt the palnful contrast between thelr lot and thnt of the three old cantons, where every peasant voted for hls own maglstrates and hls own laws, and helped to decide the taxes and eontrihutlons which 1 . should pay. . . . Now that thelr Ilh erty had been proclalmed at Westphalln, they were lnsplred with the ldea of trylng to make it a reallty.

They rose on the oceasion of the reduction of the value of their eopper colnnge.

Oppositlon began among the Entlibuchers of Lucerve, a tall and sturdy race, that llved ln the $\operatorname{?n} \boldsymbol{y}$, fertlle valiey on the banks of the Himbacer . Thelr splrit was soon quenehed, lifweve: by the threats of Zurich and Berne; bult thish they ylelded for the moment, their ex.ampl! had spread, and there were popular risings, t, clted ln che large eanton of Berme by the me cnuses, whleh were not so easily eheeked. There was a seeond revolt in Lucerne, which was intended to be nothlng less than a league of all the lower classes throughout the ten eantons. The peasants of Lucernc, Berne, Basel, solothurn, and the territory of Aargau, all jolned In thls and held an assembly at Sumiswald, In April 1653, where they chose Nleholas Leueuberger as thelr ehlef, and prochimed tbeir purpose of making themselves free as the Smah Cantons. To thls union, unfortunately, they brought nelther strength of purpose nor wisioni.

Meanwhile the eltles ware not hlle. Zurich, the capltal, gave the order for the whole eonfederaey to arm, in May 1653 . The struggle was short and deeislve. For n few weeks Leuenberger's soldiers rohbed and murdered where they could, and made feeble and futhe attempts upon the small eltles of Aargan. Tuwarls the end oi May he met, near Herzogeubuehsce. the lernese troops.
. A desperate tight eusued, hut the Insurgents were soon overpowered. Tbis battle ended the Insurrectlon." Leveu. herger was behealed. "No sooner was this rerolt of the peasants over than the smouldering fires of reilglous batred, zealously fanned by the elergy on both sldes, broke out again. . . . Sev. eral famllies of Arth, in Sehwyz had been obllged by the Catholles to abjure their faith, or tiy from thelr homes." Zurieh took up their catuse, and "a general war broke out. . . . Berne tirst despatched troops to proteet her own frontler, aud then sent 40 banners to the help of Zurich." The Bernese troops were so careless that they ailowed themselves to be surprised (Jauuary 14. 1656) by $4,(000)$ Lucerners, iu the territory of Villmer. gen, nad were ruinously defented, losing 8,0 men and eleren guns. "Soou nf terwardsa pertee wis eoneluded, wbere everything stom much as it bad stood at the beglnniug of thls war, which had lasted only nlne treeks. . . . A second lusurreetion, on a smaller scale thau the peasants' re. voit, took place la St. Gall in the first rears of the 18th century. The Swlss, free in the efes of the outslde work, were, as we have alrealy seen, mere serfs in nearly all the eantons, and sueh was thelr couditlon In the eountry of Toggenburg.

The greater part of the rights over these estates had been soll to the abbot of St. Gall in 1468. In the yenr 1800, the abbey of St. Gall was presided over by Leedterar Rargixsur ax soverntign lord.

He begau by questioning ah the commune rights of the Tuggenhurgers, and ealled the people his serfs, in order that they might beeome by used to the name as not to rebel agalnst the hardness of the condlition. Even at the tlme when he became abbot, there was very Ilttie, either of right or privllege, remalning to these poor people. . . . When, In 1701, Abbot Leorlegar ordered them to bulld and keep open, at ther own expense, a new road through the Ilummeiwald, erushed as they had been, they turned." After mueh irultless remonstrance and appeal they took up arms, supported by the Protestant eantons nind nttneked by the Catholles, with ald eontributed by the nunelo of the pope, himself. "The eontest was practically ended on the 25 th of July, 1712, by a deelslve vlctory by the Protestants on the battle-field of Vilmergen, where they had been beaten by the Lueurue men 56 years before. The battle lasted four hours, and $\mathbf{3 , 0 0 0}$ Catholles were slaln.

In the month of August, a general peace was eoncluded at Aaran, to the great advantage of the eonrquerors. The five Cathollc eantons were obllged to yleld thelr rights over Baden and Rapperswyi, and to assoclate Berne with themselves ln the soverelgnty over Thurgau and the Iheinfeld. By this provislon the two rellglons beenme "-pualized $\ln$ those provinces.
The Toggenlurgers came onee more under the jurisrlietion of an abbot of St. Gall, but with improvel rights aud privileges, and under the powerful proteetion of Zurich and Berue. The Cathoilc rantons were long in reeovering from the expeuses of thls war. ... During 86 years from the peace of Aarau, the Swiss were engaged in nelther foreign nor elvil war, and the disturbnnees whlch agitated the dlfferent eantons from time to time were contined to a ilmited stage. But real peace and unlon were as far off as ever. leligions differences, plots, Intrignes, nad revolts, kept people of the same canton and vitlage apart, until the bullding whieb their fore. fathers latl raised in the early days of the republie was gradually weakened nnd ready to fall, like a house of eards, at the first blow from France."- H. D. S. Maekenzie, Suitzerland, ch. 15-16.
Also in: H. Zschokke, Wist. of Steitzerland, ch. 42-56.
A. D. 1792-1798.-The ferment of the French Revolution. - Invasion and suhjugation hy the French. - Rohhing of the treasure of Ber.de. Formation of the Helvetic Repuhlic. -"The world rang with arms and eries of war, whth revolutions, battles and defeats. The Freuch promised fraternity and assistance to every people who wished to make themselves free.
Thelr arms advanced vletorious through Savoy and the Notherlands and over the Rhlne. Nearer aud nearcr drew the alanger around the country of the Alphe people. But the goverbment of the Confederate states showed no foresight in view of the langer. They thougbt themselves safe behind the shleld of thelr lnnoeenee and thelr neutrality between the eontending partles. They had no arms and prepared none: they had no strength and did not draw eloser the bands of their everlasting eompact. Eacb eanton, thaidly and in silence, earel for Its own safety, but little for that of the others. All kiuds of pamph. lets stlrred up the people. At Lausanne, Vevey, Holle and other places, flery foung men, in nolsy assemblages, drank suecess to the arms of emanelpated France. Although pubilc order was nowhere disturbel by such proceedlags, the gor.
ornment of Berne thought it necessary to put a atop to them hy severe measurel and to compel allence hy wholesome fear. They sent plenlpotentiaries supported by an armed force. The guilty and even the innocent were punished. More fled. This silenced Vaud, but did not quell her indignation. The fugitives hreathed vengeance. . . . In foreign countries dwelt sadly many of those who, at various times, had been banished from the Confederacy because they had, by word or deed, too boldly or importunately defended the rights and freedom of their fellow. citizens. Several of these addressed the chiefs of the French repuhlic.

Such nddresses pleased the chiefs of France. They thought in their hearts that Switzerland would be an excellent bulwark for France, and a desirahle gate, through which the way would be always open to Italy and Germany. They also knew of and longed for the treasures of the Swiss cities. And they endeavored to find cause of quarrel with the magistrates of the Confederates. . . . Shortly afterwards, came the great general Napoleon Buonaparte. and marched through Savoy into Italy agalnst the forces of the emperor. . . . In a very few months, though in many hattles, Buonaparte vanquished the whole power of Aus. tria, conquered and terrified Italy from one end to the other, took the whole of Lomhardy and compelled the emperor to make peace. He made Lomhardy a repuhlic, called the Cisalpine. When the suhjects of Grisons in Valtelins, Chiavenna and Bormio saw this, they preferred to be citizens of the neighboring Cisalpine repuh. lic, rather than poor suhjects of Grisons. For their many grievances and complaints were rarely listened to. But Buonaparte said to Grisons: ' If you will glve freedom and equal rights to these people, they may be your fellow-citizens, and still remain with you. I glve gou time; decide and send word to me at Milan.'. . When the last period for decision had passed, Buonaparte became indignant and impatient, and united Faltelina, Chiavenna and Bormio to the Cisalpine repuhlic (22d Oct., 1797). $\qquad$ So the old limits of Switzerland were unjustly contracted; four Feeka $\quad$ fterwards also, that part of the bishopric of Bale which hod hitherto been respected on account of its alliance with the Swiss, was added to France. Thereat great fear fell on the Cunfederates. . . . Then the rumor spread that $n$ French army was approachling the frontiers of Switzer. rand to protect the peoplc of Vaud. They had called for the intervention of France in virtue of ancient treaties. But report said that the French Inteuded to orerthrow the Confederate authorities and to make themselves masters of the country. ... Almost the whole Confederacy was in a state of confusion and dissolution. The governments of the eantons, powerless, distrustful and divided, acted each for itself, without con. cert.

In the mean while a large aring of French advanced. Under their generals Brune and Schauenberg they entered the territory of the Confederates, and Vnud, accepting foreign protection, declared herself independent of Berne. Then the governments of Switzerland felt that they could no longer maintain their former dominion. Lucerne and Schaufthausen declared thelr subjects frec and unifed to themselves. Zurich released the prisoners of Stafn, and promised to amellorate her constitution to the advantage of the people. . . . Even Frelburg now felt that the change must come for which Chensur had bled. And the council of Berne received into their number 52 representatives of the country and said: 'Let us hold together in the com. mon danger." All these reforms and revolutions were the work of four weeks; all too late. Berne. indeed, with Freihurg and Solothurn, opposed her troops to the advancing French army. Cour age was not wanting; hut discipline, akill in arms and experienced officers. On the very Irst day of the war (21 March, 1798), the enemy's llght tronps took Freiburg and Solothurn, and on the fourth (5th March), Berne Itself.
France nuw anthoritatively decided the future fate of Switzerland and sald: 'The Confederacy is no more. Henceforward the whole of Switzerland shall form a free state, one and indivislble, under the name of the Helvetian republic. All the inhahitants, in country as well as city, shall have equal rights of citizenship. The citizeng in general assemhly shall choose their magis. trates, officers, judges and legislative couneil; the leglslative council shall elect the general government; the government shall appoint the cantonal prefects and officers.' The whole Swiss territory was divided into 18 cantons of about equal size. For this purpose the dlstriet of Berne was parcelled into the cantons of Vaud, Oberland, Berne and Aragau; several small cantons were united in one; as Uri, Schwyz, Unter. walden and Zug in the canton of Waldstatten; St. Gallen district, Rheinthal and Appenzell in the canton of Santis; several countries suhject to the Confederaey, as Baden. Thurgau, Lugano and Bellinzona, formed new cantons. Valais was also added as one: Grisons was invited to joln; hut Geneva, Muhlhausen and other districts formerly parts of Switzerland, were separated from her and incorporated with France, So decreed the $f$ sreign conquerors. They levied henvy war-taxes and contributions. They carried of the tons of gold which Berne, Zurich and other cities had accumulated in their treasure chaubers during their domlnion. . . But the mountain. eers of Uri, Nidwalden, Schwyz and Glarus, original confederates in liberty, said: 'In battie and in blood, our fathers won the glorious jewel of our independence; we will not lose it but in battle and in blood.'

Then they fought valiantly near Wollrau and on the Schindellegi, hut unsuccessfully. . . . But Aloys lieding reassembled his troops on the Rothenthurm, near the Morgarten fleld of vletory. There a long and hloody hattle took place. . . . Thrice did the French troops renew the comhat: thrice were they defeated and driven bock to Aegeri in Zug. It was he second of May. Nearly 2,000 of tie enemy lay slaiu upon that glorious teld. Giorously also fought the Waldstatten on the next dny near Arth. But the strength of the herves bled away in their very vietories. They made a treaty, and, with sorrow in their henrts, entered the Helvetian republic. Thus ended the oid Bond of the Confederates. Four hundred and ninety sears had it lasted; in seventy-four days It was dissolved." - H. Zschokke, The History of Sucitzerland, ch. 57 and 60.-"A system of robbery and extortion, more shameless even than that practised in Italy, was put in force agalast the cantonal governments, against the mouaster les, and against private individuals. In compensation for the material losses Infilcted upon the country, the new Helvetic Republic, one and in-divitulble, was proclalmed at Aarau. It conferred an equallty of polltical rights upon all natives of Switzerland, snd substituted for the ancient varieties of cantonal soverelgnty a slngle national government, composed, llke that of France, of a Dlrectory and two Counclls of Legislature. The towns and districts which had been hltherto excluded from a share in government welcomed a change whlch seemed to place them on a level wlth thelr former superiors: the mountaln-cantons fought with traditlonal heroism in defence of the liberties which they had Inherited from their fathers; but they were compelled, onc after another, to submit to the overwhelming force of France, and to accept the new constitution. Yet, even now, when peace seemed to have been re. stored, and the whole purpose of France attained, the tyranny and violence of the invaders exhaunted the endurance of a spirited people. The magistrates of the Republic were expelied from office at the word of a French Commission; hostages were seized; at length an oath of allegiance to the new order was required as a condition for the evacuatlon of Switzerland by the French army. It was refused by the mountalneers of Unterwalden, and a handful of peasants met the French army at the village of Stanz, on the east. ern shore of the Lake of Lucerne (Sept. 8). There for three days they fought with unyielding courage. Thelr reslstance lnflamed the French to a cruel vengeance: siaughtered famllles and burning villages renewed, In this so-called crusade of Ilberty, the savagery of ancient war."-C. A. Fyffe, Hist. of Modern Europe. v. 1, ch. 4."Geneva at the same time [1\%98] fell a prey to the ambltion of the all-engrossing IRcpublic. This celebrated city had long been an object of thelr desire; and the divisions by whlch it was now distracted afforded a favourable opportunity for accomplishing the object. The democratic party loudly demanded a unlon with thst power, and a commission was appointed by the Senate to report upon the subject. Their report, however, was unfavouruble: upon whlch General Gerard, who commanded a small corps in the neighbourhood, took possession of the town: and the Scuate, with the bayonet at their throats, formally agrecd to a union with the conquering Republic."-Sir A. Alison, Hist. of Europe, 17891815, ch. 25 (c. 6).

SWITZERLAND, 1702-1708.

Alsu in: A. Thlers, Hint. of the Fr. Rec. (Am. ed.), v. 4, pp. 248-252.- Mallet du Pan, Memoirs and Cur., v. 2, ch. 13-14.
A. D. $1797^{\text {- }}$ - Bonaparte's dismemberment of the Graublinden. See Frasce: A. I. 1797 (Mar-Octuber).
A. D. 1798-1799.-Battlefield of the second Coaiition against France. See Frasce: A. I). 1798-1799 (ALGL'AT-APRLL).
A. D. 1799 (August - December), Campaign of the French against the Russians.Battle of Zurich.-Carnage in the city.Suwarrow's retreat. Sec France: A. D. 1799 (AUOCBT-DECEMBER).
A. D. 1800.-Bonaparte's passage of the Great St. Bermard. See Frasce: A. D. $1800-$ 1801 (May-Febrcary).
A. D. 1802.-Revolution instigated and enforced by Bonaparte. See Frasce: A. D. 18011803.
A. D. 1803-1848.-Napoleon's Act of Medi-ation.- Independence regained and Neutrality guaranteed by the Congress of Vienna, Geneva, the Valais, and Neuchitel.-Tae Federal Pact of 1815. - The Sonderbund and Civil War. - The Federal Constitutigi of 1848 . "Bonaparte summoned deputies of both partles to Paris, and after long covisultation with them he gave to Switzcrland, on the 2d February 1803. a new Constitution termed the Act of Mediation. Old names were restored, aud in some cases what had been subject lands were in. corporated ln the League, whlch now conslsted of 18 Cantons, each having a separate Consiltution. The addltlonal slx were: St. Gallen, the Grisons. Aargau, Turgau, Tlcinc, and Vaud. Thls was the fifth phase of the Confederation. A Diet was created, there being one deputy to each Canton, but still wlth llnited powers, for he could oniy vote nccording to his instructions. The 19 deputies had, however, between them 25 votes, because every deputy who represented a Canton with more than 100,000 inhabitants possessed two votes, and there were six of these Cantons. The Dlet met once a year in June, by turns at Zarich, Bern, Luzern, Freiburg, Solothurn, and Basel, the Cantons of whlch these were the capitais becoming successively dlrecting Cantons. Three were Catholic and three Protestant. The head of the directing Canton for the tlme being wss Landammann of Swltzer. land and President of the Diet. The Act of Mediation was not acceptable to all parties, and before Swltzerlaud could become entirely independent there was to be one more forelgn Interventlon. The fall of the Emperor Japoleon brought with lt the destruction of hls work in that country, the neutrality aud independence of which were recognalzed by the Cougress of Vienna [see Vienna: Conoress of], though upon condition of the malntenance in the Confederatlon of the new Cantons and in 1814 the Valals (a lRepublle ailied to the confederstlon from the Mindle Ages tili 1798), Neuchattel (which, from being subject to the King of Prussla, had been bestowed by Napoleon upon Msrshal Berthier), and Gencva (which had been annexed to France under the Dircctory in 1798, but was now independent and rendered more compact by the addlition of some territory belonging to France and Savoy) were added to the existing Cantons. Fiually, the perpetual neutrality of Switzerland and the lnviolablllty of her territory were guarantced by Austria, Great Britain, Portugal, Prussia, and Russia, in an Act signed nt Paris on the 20th November 1815. Neuchâtei, however, only really gained its inde. pentence in 185\%, when it ceased to be a Prus. sian Principality. The Confederation now conslated of 22 Cantons, and a Fcdeml Pact, drawn up at Zarich by the Diet iu 1815, and accepted by the Congress of Vlenna, took the place of the Act of Mediation, aud remaincd in force till $18+5$. It was in some respects a return to the state of things previous to the French Revolutlon, and restored to the Cantons a large portion of their former sovereignty: $\qquad$ Then came an cpoch of agitation and discord. The Confederation suffered from a fuudamental vice, i. e. the powerlessness of the central authority. The Cantons had become too independent, and gave to their deputies instructlons differing widely from each other. The fall of the Bourlons in 1830 had its echo in Svitzerland, the patriclans of Bern and the aristocratle class iu other Cantons lost the ascendency whleh they had gradually recovered since the beginning of the eentury, and the power of the people was. greatly Increased. In several months 12 Cantons, among which were Luzern and Frelbure molltied thelr Constitutions In a denocratic sense, some prace. ably, others by revolution.

Between 18:30 and 1847 there were In all 27 revlsions of cantonal Constltutions. To polltical dleputes reIlgious troubles were added. In Aargau the Constitutiou of 1881, whereby the Grand Council was made to consist of 200 members, half belng Protestants and half Cathollcs, was revlsed In 1850 , and by the new Coustltution the meinbers were no longer to be ehosen with any reference to erced, but u:s: the busls of wile popular representatlon, thus glving a umerical adrantage to the Protestants. Discontent arose among the Catholles, and eventually some 2,000 peas. ants of that falth took up arms, but were beaten by Protestants of Aargau at Villmergen In January 1841, f.nd the consequence was the suppres. slon of the eight eonvents In that Canton, and the eonfiscation of their most valuable property.

A tirst result of the suppression of these convents was the fall of the Liberal government of Luzern, and the mivent to power of the chlefs of the Cltramontane party In that Canton. Two years later the uew governmeut eonvoked delegates of the Catholie Ciuntons at Rothen, near Luzern, and there ln secret eonferences, and under the pretext that rellglon was in danger, the bases of a separate League or Sonlerbund were laid, embracing the four Forest Cantons, Zug, and Freiburg. Subsequently the Valals joined the League. whlch was clearly a vlolation not only of the letter but also of the spirit of the Federal Pact. In 184 the Grand Council of Luzern voted In favour of the Jesults' appeal to be entrusted with the direction uf superior pubhic educatlon, aud this led to hostilities between the Liberai and Cltranoontane partles. Bands of volunteers attacked Luzern and were defeated, the expulslon of the Jesults became a burnlag questlon, and tinally. when the ordinary Diet assembled at Bern In July 1847, the Sonderbunt Cantons declared their lutention of perse vering in their separate alllance until the other Cantons had leereed the re-cstablishment of the Aargau convents, abandoned the question of the Jestits. aid renounced all molitications of the Pact. These conditions could evilently not be ac. cepted. . . Th the titi November 184\%, after the Ifeputies of the Sonderbund hul left the Diet. thle League was dechared to be dissolved, and hostllities broke out between the two eontending parties. A short and decislve eampulgn of days ensued, Freiburg was taken by the Federnd troops, ander General Dufour later Luzern opened its gates, the small Canions aul the Falals eapitulated and the strife came to an end. .. As sion as the sonderbuml was dissolved, it berame necessary to proved to the revision of the Federal Pact."-Sir F. 1). Adans and C. D. Cunuinghtm, The Siciss Coujelerition, ch. 1.
A. D. 1810 - - Annexation of the Valais to France. See France: A. I). 1810 (Febucary -I)ecember).
A. D. $1887 .-$ Accession to the Holy Alliance. See Holy Aithance.
A. D. 1832.-Educational reforms. See Edtcation, Modern: Europlean Countrieb. Switzerland.
A. D. 1848-1890.-The exinting Federal Constitution.-On the conclusion of the Sonderbund secesslon and War, the rask of drawlug up a Constltutlon for the Confedcracy was condded to a committce of fourteen members, and the work was finlshed on the 8th of April, $184 \%$. "The project was submilted to the Cantons, and aceepted it onee by thirteen and a half; others joIned Iuring the summer, and the new Constitutlon was fnally promulgated with the assent of all on tue 13th September. Hence arose the seventh and last phase of the Confederatlon, by the adoptlon of a Federal Constitutlun for the whole of Swltzerland, being the first which was entirely the worls of Swiss, without any forelgn Inhnenee, aithough Its authors hal studled that of the UnIted States. . . . It was natural that, as $\ln$ process -f tlme commerce and Industry were Ieveloped, and as the diferences letween the Ieglslatlon of the various Cantons became more apparent, a revlsion of the first realiv Swilss Constitution should be found necessa This was proposed both $\ln 1871$ and 18:\%, buw the partisans of a further centrallzation, though successful In the Chambers, were defeated upon an appeal to the popular vote on the 12th May 18:2, by a majority of between five and slx thousand, and by thlrteen Cantons to nlne. The question was, however, by no meaus settled, and In 1874 a new projeet of reViston, more acceptabie to the partlsans of cantonal Independeuce, was adopted by the people, the numbers belng 940,199 , to 198,013 . The Cantons were about two to one In favour of thou revislon, $14 \frac{1}{2}$ decharing for and it agaiast it. Thls Constitutlon bears late the 29th Nity 18 it. and has slnce been added to and altered in cer. taln particulars."-Slr F. O. Adams and C. I). Cunningham, The Suciss Confederation, ch. 1."sinee 1848 ... SwItzerland has been a federal state, consisting of a central authority, tho Bund, and 19 entlre and 6 half states, the Citntons: to foreign powers she presents an uuitel front. while her Internal poliey allows to each Canton a large amount of indepenclence.
The basis of all IegIsIative division is the commume or 'GemcInde, eorresponding in some slight degree to the English 'Parish.' The Commanue In its leglslative and adminlstrative aspect or 'Einwohuergenelnde ' is composed of all the inlabitants of a commune. It ls selfgoverning and hus the control of the local police; it also adminlsters all matters courected with punperism, elucation, sanltary and funeral reg. ishtions, the rite brigade, the malutenance uf public peace and trusteeships. . . . At the head of the Commune ls the 'Gemeinderath, or 'Commuat Council,' whose mumbers are elected from the inhabitants for a fixed period. It is presicial over by an 'Ammann,' or 'Sayor,' or "Iresileut.'. . . Above the Commune on tho ascenving scale eomes the Canton. . . . Each of the 19 Cantons and 6 half Cantous is a sovereign state. whose privileges are nevertheless limited by the Federal Constltution, partleularly as regards legal and military matters; the Constitution also deflnes the extent of each Canton, ami no portlon of a Canton is allowed to secede ami joln Itself to another Cantr 1. $\therefore$ Legislative power is In the hatals of the 'Voik'; $\ln$ the patis. lcal sense of the word the 'Volk' conslsts of all the Siviss Ilviag In the Canton, whe heve passed their 20th year and are not under disabllity from crime or bankruptcy. The roting on the part of the people deuls mostiy with alterations in the cantonal constitution, treatics, faws, decisions of the First Comncil invoiving expenditures of Frs. 100,000 and upwarl, and other decisions which the Councli considers advisable to subject to the public rote, which aiso determines the adoption of propositions for the creation of new laws, or the afteration or abolition of old oncs, When such a piebiscitc is demanted br a petition signet by 5.000 voters.

SWITZERLAND, 1848-1880.

3YDENHAM.

. .

 (Grosse flati) is the highest poiltieal and administrative power of the Canton. It corresponds to the 'Chamber' of other countries. Every 1,300 inhabitants of an electoral circuit sead one member. The Kifine Rati or spectal council (corresponding to the ' $\mathbf{y}$ 'nisterium' of other continental conntries) is comjosed of three mem. bers and has three proxies. It is chosen by the FYrst Councli for a period of two years. It superintends ail cantonal institutions and controls the rarious public boards. . .. The pupulations of the 22 sovereign Cantons consthute together the Swiss Confederation. $\mathrm{S}_{\text {. The }}$ highest power of the Bund is exercised by the 'Bundesversammilurg, or Parifament. whleh consists of two chambers, ths 'Satlonairath,' and the 'Standerath.' The Sationalrath correaponds to the Engfish House of Commous, and the Standerati partially to the House of Lords; the former represents the Swiss people, the latter the Cantons. The Nationalrath consists of 145 members. .. . Ercry Canton or half Cantou nust choose at least one member; and for the purpose of elcction Switzerland is divided into 49 electural clistricts. The Jationairath is triennial. . . The Standerath consists of 4 members, each Canton having two representativesand each hall Canton one. . . A bill is regardell as passed when it has an absolute mapority in both chambers, but it does not come Into force until either a plebiscite is not cis. mandell for a space of three monthe, or, it it is demanded (for which the requeat of 30,000 voters is necessary) the resuit of the appeal to the people is in favor of the bill. This privilege of the people to control the decision of their representatises is called Las Referendum [see ReFEREndem]. $\qquad$ The highest admiuistrative authorIty in Switze-land is the Bundesrath, coraposed ci seveu memhers, which [like the Bundesversamnifung] $\qquad$ meets in Bern. Its members are chosen hy the Bundenversammlung and the term of offiee is ten rears. . . The president of the Confelleration (Bundespresident) is chosen by the Buudesversammlung from the members of the Bundesrath for one year. The administration of justice, so far as it is exercised by the Bund, is entrusted to a Court, the Bundeggericht, consisting of nine members. "-P. Hauri, Sketch of the Conat. of Switzerland (in Stricklanl's "The Engndine").
Also is: Sir F. O. Aclams and C. D. Cunninghe m, The Siries Confederation.-J. MI. Vincent, State and Federal Goc't in Svitzerland.-Old Suth Lentleto, gen. series, no. 18.-CVio. of Penk. Pub's, no. 8. -For the text of the Swish Constitution, see Cosstitution of Sifitzer. lasd.
A. D. 187\%, Exclusion of Jesuits. See Jescits: A. D. 1760-18:7.
A. D. 1894.-The President of the Swiss Fedcrat Council for 1804 is Enife Frey, the Vice President, Joseph Zemp. According to the latest census, taken in 1858, the population of Switzeriand was $2,917, i 40$.

SWORD, German Order of the. Sec LI. Vonia: $12-13$ tim Ceitrmies.
SWORD, Swedish Order of the.- In Order, ascribed to Gustarus Vasa. It was revived, after long negiect, by King Frederick I. in 1748.

SYAGRIUS, Kingdom of. See Gatl: A. D. 45:-436.

SYBARIS, - SYBARITES. - Sybaris and Kroton were two ancient rireek cities, fonuded by Achrean colonists, on the coast of the gulf of Tarentun, iu sonthern Italy. "The town of Sybaris was planted hetween two rivers, the Sybaris and the Krathis (the name of the latter borrowed from a river of Achaia); the town of Kroton about twenty-fre milles distant, on the river Esarus. . . The fatal contest hetween these two citles, which codell in the ruin of sybaris, took phace in 510 B. C., after the hatter had subsisted iu growing prosperity for $$ 10$ years. .. We are told that the Srinarites. in that final contest, marched against Kiroton with an army of 300,000 men. . . . The few statcments which have reached ins respecting them touch, unfortnnately, upon fittic more than their fuxury, fantastic self-indulgence and extraragant indolence, for which quadities they have become proverbial in modern times as well as in ancieut. Incedotes illustrating these qualities were current, and served more than one purpose in antiquity, "- G. Grote, Hist. af areter, j: a, eh. 22.

SYBOTA, Naval Battle of. - Fought, B. C. 433, between the fleets of Corinth and Corcyra, in the quarrei which led up to the Peioponncsian War. The Athenians hat ten ships present, as allies of the Corcyreans, intending only to watch affiatrs, but at the end they were drawn into the fight. The Coreyreans were beaten. - Thucydides. Ihiatmy. bk. 1, sect. 46 .

SYCOPHANTS. - "Not until now [about B. C. 428 , wheu the demagogue Cleon rose to power at Athens] did the activity of the Sycophants attain to its full height; a ciass of men arose who made a regular trade of collecting materiais for fudictments, and of bringing their feliow citizens before a legal tribunal. These denunciations were particularly directed against those who were distinguished by wealth, birth and services, and who therefore gave cause for suspicion; for the informers wished to prove themseives zeaious frieuds of the people and active guardians of the constitution. . . Intrigues and conspiracies were suspected in ali quarters, and the popular orators persuaded the citizens to put no contidence in any magistrate, enroy or commission, but rather to settie everything in fuli assembly and themselves assume the entire cxecutive. The Sycophants made their ifing ont of this universai suspicion. . . . They threateaci prosecutions in order thus to extort moncy frou guilty and innoceut ailike; for even among those who feit frec from guift werc many who shuuned a poititical prosecution beyond all other thingz, having no couflience tu a jurg."E. Curtius, Hist. of Greere, bk. t. ch. 2(c. 3).

SYDENHAM, and Rational Medicine. See medical Scienct: 17ti Centcry.

SYDNEY.

SYRACUSE, B. C. 418-418.

SYDNEY: First settiement (1788). See Acstralia: A. D. 1601-1800.

SYLLA. See Stlla.
SYLLABARIES. - "A good deal of the [As. syrian] ilterature was of a lexical and grammaticai kind, and was intended to asoist the Semitic student in lnterpreting the old Accadian texts. Llsts of characters were drawn up with their pronunclation in Accadian and the translation into Assyrian of the words represented hy them. Since the Accadlan pronunciation of a character wis frequently the phonetic value attuched to it by the Assyrlans, these syllabartis, as they have been termed-ln consequence of the fact that the cunelform characters denoted ayllahles and not letters - have been of the greatest possihie assistance in the declpherment of the inscrip-tlons."-A. H. Bayce, Asryria, its Princes, Prieste and Prople, eh. 4.

SYLLABUS OF 1864, The. See Papacy: A. D. 1864 .

SYLVANIA, The proposed State of. See Northweet Terbitory of the United States or Ax. : A. D. 1784.

SYLVESTER II., Pope, A. D. 909-1003. .Sylvester III., Antipope, 1044.
SYMMACHIA. - An oftensive and defensive allance between two states was so called hy the Greeks.

SYMMORIE, The.-" In the archonship of Nauslnleus $\ln$ Olymp. 100,3 (1. C. 378) the institutlon of what were called the symmorise (col. legia, or companies), was Introduced [at Athens] in relation to the property taxes. The object of thls lnstltutlon, as the details of the arrangement themselves show, was through the joint liability of larger associntions to confirm the sense of ln . dlvidual obilgatlon to pay the taxes, and to secure their collcetion, nud also, in case of neces. sity, to cause those tnxes whieh were not recelved at the proper tlme to be advanced by the most wenlthy citizens."-A. Boeckh, Public Economy of the Athenians (tr. by Lamb), bk. 4, ch. 9 .

SYMPOSIUM.-The Symposlum of the aucient Greeks was that part of a fenst whlch en. sued when the substantlal eating was done, and which was enllvened with wine, music, conver. eation, exhibltlons of dancing, etc.-C.C. Felton, Grece. Ancient and Medern, course 2, lect. 5.

SYNHEDRION, OR SYNEDRION, The. See sanheinrm.

SYNOECIA. See Athens: The Beenning. SYNOD OF THE OAK, The. See Rome: A. D. f(N)-518.

SYRACUSE : B. C. 734. - The Founding of the city.-" syracuse was founded the year after Naxos, by Corinthlans, under a leader named Archlas, a Heracieid, and prohably of the rullng caste, who appears to have been compeiled to quit his country to a void the effects of the indignation whlch he had exclted by a horrible outrage committed in a famlly of lower rank.

Syracuse became, in course of time, the parent of other Sicilian citles, among which Camarina was the most conslderahle. $\qquad$ Forty. flye years after Syracuse, Geia was founded by a hand collected from Crete and Rhodes, chiefiy from Lindus, and about a century later (B. C. 5nis) seat furth settlers to the banks of the Acragas, where they huift Agrigentum."-C. Thirlwall, Hist. of Greece, chi. 12.-The first settlement at Syracuse was on the islet of Ortygia. "Ortygis, two Engtish miles in circumference, was meps. rated from the maln island only hy a narrow channel, which was hridged over when the clty was occupiedi and calarged hy Gelon in the ??ndi Otympiad, if uot earlier. It formed only a small part, though the most sccure and best-fortithed part, of the rast space which the clty afterwarda occupled. But it sufficed alons for the inhasitants during a considerable time, and the present city in ita modern decline has agaln reverted to the sa эe modest timits. Moreover, Ortygis offered suother advantage of not less valuc. It lay across the entrance of a spacious harbous, approached hy a narrow mouth, and its fountain of Arethusa was memorable in antiquity both for the ahundance and goodness of its water."G. Grote, Hist. of Greece pt. 2, ch. 22.
B. C. $4^{80}$ - Defeat of the Carthaginians at Himera. See Sicily: B. C. 480.
B. C. 415-413.-Siege hy the Athenians.The Greek city of 8yracuse, in Sicily, having been founded and bulit up by colonization from Corinth, naturally shared the deep hatred of Athens whlch was common among the Dorian Greeks, and whlch the Corlnthians particuiarly found many rea. 'is to cherish. The feellng at Athens was reciprocal, and, as the two clttes grew supreme in thelr respective spheres and nrrogant with the consciousness of superior power, mutual jealousies fed their pssaion of hostlllty, although notihing in their affairm, either politicaliy or commercially, hrouglit theni really Into contlict with one another. But Syracuse, enforcing her supremacy in Slcily, dealt roughly with the lonian settlements there, nud Athens was appealed to for aid. The first call upm her was made (B. C. 428) in the midst of the earlier pcriod of the Peloponnesian War, and came from the people of Leontinl, then engaged in a struggie with Syracuse, into which other Sicilian cities had been drawn. The Athenians were easily induced to respond to the call, and they sent a navnl force which took part ln the Leontine War, hut wlthout any marked success. The result was to produce mmong the Sicilians a common dread of A thenlan interference, which led them to patch up a general peace. But fresh quarrels were not long in arising, in the course of which Leonilni was entirely destrored, and another Sicllian clty, Egesta, which Athens bad before recelved into her niliance, ciaimed help agalust Syracuse. Thls nppeal reached the Athenians at $n$ tlme (B. C. 416) when their populace was blindly following Alclblades, whose ambltion craved war, and who chafed under the restraints of the treaty of peace with Sparts which Nicias had brought about. They were carried by his lntiuence into the undertaking of a great expedition of couquest, dirccted against the Sicilinn caplenl - the most costly and formldable which any Greek state had ever tilted out. In the summer of B. C. 415 the whole force assembled at Corcym nnd safled neross the Ionian sea to the Italian coast and thence to Sleily. It consisted of 134 triremes, with many merchant, ships nud trnnsports, bearing 5.100 hoplltes, 480 bowmen and 700 Rhodian silngers. The commanders were Nicias, Lamachus and Alcihiades. On the arrival of the expedition in Sicily a disigrecment among the generals made efficien. nction imposslhle and gave the Syracusans tlme to prepare a stubborn resistance. Meantime the enemies of Alibiade st Atheis had brought about a decree for hly arrest, on account of an alleged profanation of the sacred Eleusinlan mysterien, and, fearing to face the accusation, he fed, taking refuge at Sperts, where he became the impiscahle enemy of his country. Three months passed before Nlcias, who held the chlef command, made any attempt agalnst Syracues. He then struck a slngle blow, whlch was successful, but which led to nothlag; for the Athenlan army was wlthdrawn Immediately afterwards and put into wlnter quartera. In the following pring the regular operatlons of a slege and hlocsade were , undertaken, at sea wlth the fleet and on land 'by a wall of clrcumvallation. The undertaking promlsed well at Irst and the Syracusans weie profoundly dlscouraged. But Spirta, where Aicihiades worked pasionately in thelr favor, ent them a general, Gylippus, who proved to be equal to an army, and promlsed relnforcements to follow. The more vlgorous Athenian general, Lamachus, had been killed, and Niclas, with incredible apathy, siffered Gylippus to gather up a amall army in the island and to enter Syracuse with it, in defiance of the Athenisn blockade. From that day the situation was reversed. The besleged became the assallants and the beslegera defended themselves. Nicias ent to Athens for help and maintalned his ground with difficulty through another long winter, untll a second great flect and army arsived, under the capable general Demosthenes, to relnforce hlm. But it was too late. Syracuse had recelved powerful ald, in shlps and men, from Corinth, from Sparta and from other encmles of Athens, had hulit a navy and trained sallors of her own, and was full of contident courage. The Athenians were continually defeated, on land and sea, and hoped for nothing at last hut to be able to retreat. Even the op portunity to do that was lost for them ln the end by the weakness of Nlclas, who delayed movlog on account of an ecilpse, untll his fieet was deatroyed in a final sea-fight and the lsland roads were hlocked by an lmplacahle enemy. The fight when it was undertaken proved a hopeless attempt, and there is nothing in history more tragleal than the account of it which ls given in the pages of Thucydldes. On the sixth day of the struggling retrcat the dlvision under Demontheises gave up and surrendered to the pursuers who swarmed around lt. On the next day Niclas glelded with the rest, after a terHble massacre at the river Assinarus. Nicias and Demosthenes were put to the sword, although Gylippus lnterceded for them. Thelr followers were imprisoned in the Syracusan quarries. "There were great numbers of them and they were crowded in a deep and narrow place. At first the sun by day was still scorchIng and suffocatlng, for they had no roof over their heads, whlle the autumn alghts were cold, and the extremes of temperature engendcred violent disorders. Being cramped for room they had to do everythlng on the same spot. The corpses of those who dled from their wounds, exposure to the weather, and the llkc, lay beaped one upon another. The smeils were Intolerable; and they wrere at the sanse time afficted by hunger and thirst. During elght montha they were allowed only about half a plat of water and a plat of food a day. Every find of minpry which could befall man in such a place befell them. This wat the condition of all the captlve for about ten weeks. At length the gyracueans sold them, with the exception of the Athenians and of any Sicllian or Itallan Greeka who had slded with them in the war. The whole number of the public prisoners is not accurately known, but they were not leas than 7,000. Of all the IIelienlc actlons which took place in thls war, or Indeed of ali Ifellenle actlons which are on record, this was the greatest - the most glonious to the vietors, the most rulnous to the vanquished; for they were utterly and at all polnta defeated, and thelr sufferings were prodigious. Fleet and army perished from the lace of the earth; nothing was saved. and of the many who went forth few returned home. Thus ended the Sicilian expedition."- Thucydldes, History (tr. by Jowett), ok. 6-7.

Also IN: E. A. Freeman, Hist. of Gieily, v. 8. -G. Grote, Hist. of Grecce, pt. 2, eh. 68-60.-SIr E. Creasy, Fifteen Decisive Battles, eh. 2.-See, also. ATHENs: B. C. 415-418.
B. C. $397-396$.-Dionyaiua and the Carthe-cinlans.-Elghteen years after the tragic deliv. erance of Syracuse from the hesleging host and fieet of the Athenlans, the Sicilian capltal ex. perienced a second great peril and extraordlamy escape of llke klad. The democratle government of Syracuse had meantlme fallen and a new tyrant had risen to power. Dlonysius, who began life in a low station, mude his way upward hy ruthlesa energy and cunning, practislng skilfully the arts of a demagogue until he had won the conflence of the people, and making himself their master In the end. When the soverelgnty of Dionysius had acquired firmness and the fortifications and armament of his clty had been powerfully lncreased, It suited hls purposes to make war upon the Carthaginians, whlch he did, B. C. 897. He attacked Jotye, whlch was the most Important of thelr cities in Slcils, and took It after a slege of somc months' duratlon, slaughtering and enslaving the wretched inhahltants. But his triumph in thls exploit was brief. Imilkon, or Hlmilco, the Carthaglalan commander, arrived in Slclly wlth a great fieet and army and recaptured Motye with ease. That done he made a rapld march to Messene, In the northeastern extremity of the isisnd, and galned that clts almost without a hlow. The inhahltants escaped, for the most part, hut the town is said to have been reduced to an uttcr heap of ruins - from whlch It was suhsequently rehuilt. From Messenc he advanced to Syracuse, Dlonys. lus not daring to meet him in the field. The Syracusan fleet, encountering that of the Carthaglnians, near Katana, was almost annihliated, and when the vast African armament, numbering more than seventeen hundred ships of every description, sailed Into the Great Harbor of Syra cuse, there was nothing to oppose it. The clty was formidahiy invested, by land and sea, and its fate would have appeared to be sealed. But the gods interposed, as the ancients thought, and avenged themselves for insults whlch the Carthsgindans had put upon them. Once more the fatal pestlence which had smltten the latter twice before In thelr Slclian Wars appeared and their huge army was paisied hy It. "Care and attendance upon the sick, or even interment of the dead, became impractlcahle; so that the whole camp presented a scene of deplorable agony, aggravated by the horrors and stench of 150,000 unburied bodies. The military strength of the Carthaginians was completely prostrated by such a vidtation. Far from being able to make progres in the slege, they were not even ahle to defend themselves against molerate energy on the part of the Syracusans; who were themselves untouched by the distemper." In this situatlon the Cartharinian commanier hasely cleserted his army. Having secretly bribed Dionrsius to permit the escape of himself and the small number of native Carthagialans in his force, he abandoned the remaiader to thelr fate (B. C. 304). Dlonysius took the Iberians into his service; lut the Libyans and other mercen. aries were elther killed or euslaved. As for Imilkon, onon after his return to Carthage he shat himaelf in his liouse and derl, refusing form. The blow to the prestige of Carthage wris dearly fatal, producing a rebellon among her abjects whicli assumel a most formilable character: hut it lacked capable command and was suppressed.-G. Grote, Hist. If Grecce, pt. 刁, ch. 82.

B. C. 394-384.-Conquests and dominion of Dionysium.-" The successful result of Itonssfos' tirst Punle War seems to hare largely spreal his fante in Old Greece," while it increasel his prestige and power at home. But "he had many dithicultles. He too, like the Carthaglnians, had to deal with a revolt among his mercen. aries, and he hal to give up to them the town of Leontinol. And the people of Nuxos and Ka. tane, driven out by himself, and the people of Messana, driven out by HImilkôn, were waaderfag about, sceking for dwelling-places. He restored Messana, but he did not give it hack to its old Inlabitants. He peopled it with colonists from Italy and from Old Greece. . . He also planted a body of settlers from the olid Messen. ian limd in Peloponaesos," at Tyndaris. "Thus the north-eastern comer of Siclly was held hy men who were really attached to Dionysios. And he weat on further to extemil his power along the north const. . . . The Sikel towns were now fast taking to Greek ways, and we hear of commonwealths and tyrants among them, just as among the Greeks. Agyrls, lord of Agrrium, was said to be the most powerfal priace in Sicily after Dionssios himself. $\qquad$ Whth him Dloarslos miste it treaty, and also with other Sikel loris anil cltles." But he attacken the new Sikel town of Tauromenion aul was ellsastrously repulscel. "This dis intiture at Tauromenion cheeked the plans of Dionysios for a whilc. Sereral towns threw off his dominion. . . . And the Ciarthaghiaus also began to stir again. In B. C. 343 their gencral Magon, seemingly without aus fresh troops from Africa, set ont from Westurn sicils to attack Dessuna." But Dionyslos defeated him, aml the next year he made peace with ide Carthagialans, as one of the consequences of whish he captured Tauromenion in 391. "Dionysios was now at the helght of his power in Sicily. . . . He commandel the whole east coast, and the preater part of the north and mouth consists. Dionersos and Carthage might be said to divile siclly between them, and Dionysios hat the larger share." Being at peace With the Carthaginians, he now turned has nems against the Greek eities in soothern ltaly, and took Kanlônia, Hipponion, and IRegion (B. C. 387 ), making himself, "bryond all doubt, the chlef power, not only in Stcily, but in Greek Italy alco." Three Jears later (B. C. 884) Dionyslos ment a splendid embaesy to the Olympic fentival in Greece. "Lysias called on the arsembled Greeks to show thelr hatred of the tyrant, to hinder his eavoys from tacriacing or his chariots from running. His charlots did run; hut they were all defeated. Some of the multitude male an attack on the plendid tents of his earoys. He had also sent poems of his own to be recited; hut the crowd would not hear them."-E. A. Freeman, Th, Alory of sicily, ch. 10.

B. C. 383 . War with Carthage. See Sicily: B. C. 883 .
B. C. 344.-Fall of the Dionysian tyrunny,The elder Dionysius, - he who cllmbed by cin ning deinagoguery from an obscure beginning in life to the he $\mathrm{y}^{-\boldsymbol{t}}$, of power in Syracuse, making himself the ty'sal tyrant of antiquity,- dled la 867 B. C, after a reiga of thirty-eight years. He was succeeded hy his son, Di. $j$ ysius the younger, who inherited nothing in character from hls father hut his vices and his shameless meannesscs. For a time the Jounger Dionysius was largely controlled hy the admirahle infuence of I)lon, brother-in. law and son-in-law of the elder tyrant (who had several wives and left several familles). Dion had Plato for his teacher and frient, and strove with the help of the great Athenian - who visited Sicily thrice - to win the young tyrant to a life of virtue and to philosophical aims. The only result was to finally destroy the whole influence with which they began, and Lion, ere long, was driven from Syracuse, waile Dlonysius abandoned himself to de. haucheries and cruelties. After a time Dion was persuaded to lead a small force from Athens to Syracuse and undertake the overthrow of Dlonyslus. The gates of Syracuse were joyfully opened to him and his friends, and they were speedily in possession of the whole city except the islandstronghold of Ortygia, which was the entrenchment of the Diongsian tyranny. Then casued a protracted and desperate civil war in Syracuse, Which half ruined the magnificent city. In the end Ortygia was surrendered, Dionysius haviag previously escaped with much treasure to bla dependent city of Lokri, in southern Italy. Dion took up the reins of government, intending to make himself what modern times would call a constitutional nonarch. He wished the people to have liberty, but such liberty as a philosopher would find best for them. He was distrusted, misunderstood, - denounced hy demagogues, and hated, at last, as hitterly as the tyrants who preceled him. His high-minded amhitions were all disappointed and his own character suifered from the disappoint ment. At the end of a year of sovereignty he was assassinated hy one of hils own Athenlan Intimates, Kallppus, who secured the gondwill of the army and made himself despot. The reign of Kallippus was maintained for something more than a year, and he was then lriven out hy Hipparinus, one of the sons of Dionysius the elder, and haif-hrother to the younger of that name. Hipparinus was presently murdered and another hrother, Nysiens. took his place. Then Nyseus, in turn, was driren out hy Dionyslus, who returned from Lokit and re-established hls power. The can. ditlon of Syracuse under the restored despotlsm of Dionysius was worse than it ever had hecu in the past, and the great city seemed likely to perish. At the last extremity of suffering, in 84 B. C., ita people seat a despaling appeal to Cortath (the mother-city of Byracuse) for help. The Corinthlans responded by despatchlag to Sichly a mall tieet of ten triremen and a meagre army of 1,200 men, under Timoleon. It is the amt a ppearance in hintory of a name which sor $n$ shone with immortality; for Timoieon proved himself to be one of the greatent and the uoblent of Greeks. IIe found ailairs in Sicll, compllcated hy an invasion of Carthaginians, co-oper. ating with one Hiketas, who had made himaeif deapot of Leontlini and who hoped to become master of Syracuse. By skilfuliy usiug the good fortune which the gods were believed to have favished upon his onterprise. Timoleon, within a fer months, had defeated Hiketas in the fieid; had accepted the surreuder of Dionysfus in Ortygia and sent the failen tyrant to Corinth; had caused such discouragement to the Carthaginlans that they withdrew fleet and army and salied away to Africa. The whole city now fell quickiy into his hands. His first act was to demoliah the stronghoid of tyranny in Ortygin and to erect courts of juntice upon its site. A free constitution of government was then re-estahished, ali exiled citizena recalied, a great immigration of Greek Inhabitanta Invited, and the city revivilled with new currents of life. The tyranny in other citiea wan overthrown and ail Sicily regenerated. The Carthaginians returning were defeated with fearfui losses in a great hattic on the Krimesus, and a peace made with them which narrowed their dominion in Slcily to the reg!in weat of the Halykus. Ali these great achlevements completed, Timoleon resigned hla generalship, decilined every oftice, and became a simpie citizen of Syracuse, ilving onis a few years, however, to enjoy the grateful love and respect of its people.-G. Grote, Hist. of Greece, pt. 2, eh. 84-85.

Also In: Piutarch, Timoleon.
B. C. 317-289.-Under Agathokles.- $\Lambda$ ilttle more than twenty years after Timoleon expelied the hrood of the trrant Diongsius from Syracuse, and liherated Sicliy, his work was entireiy undone and a new and worse detpot pushed him. self into power. This was Agathokles, who rose, ilke his prototype, from a humble grade of life, acquired weaith by iucky marriage, was trusted with the command of the Syracusan army - of mercenaries, chiefly - obtained a com. piete ascendancy orer these souiless men, aud then turned them loose upon the city, onc morning at dayhreak (B. C. 317), for a carnival of unrestrained riot and massacre. "They hroke open the doors of the rich, or cilmbed over the roofs, massacred the proprietors within, and rarished the femaies. They chased the unsuspecting fugitives through the streets, not sparing even thowe who took refuge in the temples. . . For two daya Syracuse was thus a prey to the sangulary, rapacious, and lustful impulsem of the soldiery; 4,010 citizeus ind beeu already slaln, and many more were seized ns prisoners. The political purposcs of Agathokics, ns weil as the passions of the soldiers, being then satcd, he arrested the massacre. Ife conciuded this hloody feat by kiling sich of his prisoners as were most obnoxious to him. and hanishing the rest. The totai number of expelled or fugitive Syracusans is stated at 6,000 . ' In a city so purged and terrorized, Agathokies had no diffruity in getting himself proclaimed by acclama.
tlon sole ruler or autocrat, and he sson succeeded in extending his authortty over a large part of Sicily. After some jears he became involved in war with the Carthaginians, and suftered a disastrous defeat on the Ilimera (B. C. 810). Be. sieged in Syracuse, al a consequence, he resorted no boider tactics than r-it been known hefore his time and "carried the war into Africa." His in. vamion of Carthage was the Arst that the Punic capital ever knew, and It created great aiarm and confusion in the city. The Carthaginians were repeatediy beaten, Tunce, and other dependent towns, as weil as Ctiea, were captured, the sur. rounding territory was ravaged, and Agathokies became master of the eastern coast. But all his successes gaiped him no permanent adrantage, and, after four years of wonderfui campaigning in Alriea, he maw no escape from the ditficulties of his situation except hy basely stealing away from his army, leaving hils two wons to be killed br the furious moldiers when they discovered bla alght. Returning to Sicily, the wonderfuily crafty and unscrupuinus ablities which be powsessed enabied him to regain his power and to commit outrage after outrage upon the peopie of Syraeuse, Egesta, and other towns, untif his deati in 289 B. C.-G. Grote, Hist. of Grece, pt. 2, ch. 07.

B, C. 212.-Siege by the Romans. See Punic Warm: The Second.
A. D. 279.-Sacked by Franke.-The Em. peror Probus, who expelied from Gaui, A. D. 27\%, the invaders then beginning to awarm upon the hapless province, removed a iarge hody of captive Franks to the coast of Pontus, on the Euxine, and settied them there. The restive harbarians soon afterwards succeeded (A. D. 279) in capturing a fleet of vesseis, in which ther made their way to the Mediterraneau, piundering the shores and isiands as they passed towards the west. "The opuient city of Syracuse, in whose port the naries of Athens and Carthage had formerly been sunk, was sacked by a handifui of harbartians, who massacred the greatest part of the trembling inhabitants." This was the crowning expioit of the escaping Franks, after which the continutd their wowage-E Giblon, Decline and fill th the fiminell Eimpire. ch. 12.
A. D. 878.-Siege and capture by the Saracens. Sen Surns:A. D. 82,-xis.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY. See EdUCA. tros. Modehs: Avemca: A. D. 1:09-1804.

SYRIA. - "Between the Arablan Desert and the enstern const of the Levant there stretches along aimost the fuil extent of the iatter, or for nearly 400 milies - a tract of fertice land rarying from 70 to 100 miles in hreadth. This is so broken up by mountain range and valiey, that it has never ali been brought under one native government; ret its weil-defined boundaries the sea on the west, Mount Taurus on the north, and the desert to east and south - give it a certain unity, and separate it from the rest of the worid. It has rightly, thereiore, heen covcred byonc name, Syria. Like that of Paiestine, the name is due to the Greeks, but by a reverse process. As 'Palestina,' which is reaily Phlilstina, was first the name of only a part of the coast, and thence spread inland to the desert, so Syria, which is a shorter form of Assyria, wan originaily appiled by the Greeks to the whole of the Assyrian Empire from the Caucasus to the

BYPT4

Lovant, thea shrank to thle alre of the Euphrs. men, and anally within the limits drawn abore. Syris is the north ead of the Arablan world. The population of Byria has always been ewenthally Semitle [

Syria's poultion between two of the oldest homes of the human sace mado her the pamage for the carlient Intercourse and exchanges of civilisatlon. It is doubtful whether hlstory has to record any great campnigns . . . earller than thote which Egypt and Ascyris waged agalnat each other acrose the whole extent of Syria (ree Earft: Anott B. C. 1700-1400, to B. C. $070-52.5$ ]. . . . The Illtites came mouth from Asha Mlaor over Mount Taurus, and the Ethioplans came worth from thelr conquent of the Nile. Towarls the end of the great duel between Asayria and Egypt, the seythlans from north of the Caucasus devastated syram. When the Bahylonlan Emplre fell, the Perulans made her a province of thelremplre, and marched across her to Egypt [wee Eotit: B. C. 585-832]. At the beglnning of our era, she was overrun by the Parthlana The Perslans Invaded her a acond tlme, just before the Moslem Invamion of the neventh century [we Mahoyetax Conquest: A. D. 632-639]: she fell, of course, under the Seljuk Turks in the eleventh [see Trrks: A. D. 1003-10:3, ane after]; and In the thirteenth and fourteent h the Mongols thriec swept through her. Into thla almost constant stream of emplres and races, whieh swept thruugh syria from the earllest ages, Europe was drawn under Alexander the Great [see SIACEDONIA: B. C. $33+330$, and after]. . . . She was scoured during the followlig centurics by the wars of the Suleuctds and Ptolemles, and her plans were planted all over by thelr ensentially Greek clrlilsation [see Selevcid.e; and Jews: B. C. 332-16i], Pompey brought her under the Homan Emplre, 13. C. 65 [see Rome: 13. C. 60-63; and Jews: 13. C. 16640], and $\ln$ this she remainell till the arabs took her, 634 A. D. [se Mahometan Conquest: A. D. 692-630]. The Crusaders held her for a century, 1003-1187, and parts of her for a century more [še Crisades: A. D. 1090-1099].
Napoleon the Great made her the pathway of hls amhition town.ils that empire on the Euplirates and Indus whase fate wats dectded on her plalas, $1 ; 00$ [see Fbance: A. D. 1;9\%-1:00 (Atricst-Acoces)], Since then, Syria's history has malnly consisted in a number of sporadic attempta on the part of the Western world to plant upon ber both thelr clvilliation and her former rell glon."-George Adam Smith, Hiolorioal Ocog. raphy of im Ibly Land, Ak. 1. ch. 1.

TADCAster TIGHT.

Also in: C. R. Conder, Byrian alone LownE. Reclua, Tho Farth and its Inhabitante: Aeia 0. 4. ch. 9.-See, also, Dayasces.

SYRIA COELE- Bee Cale-8rnia.
SYRO-CHALDEAN LANGUAGE, The. See Bemitic lanovaoza

SYRTIS MAJOR AND SYRTIS MINOR.
-These were the names given hy the Greeka to the :wo gulfs (or rather the two corners of the one great guif) which deeply ladent the coast of North Africa. Syrtis Major, of the Greater Nyrtle, ls now known as the Guif of Sldm; Syr. tha Minor as the Gulf of Khabs, or Caben.

SYSSITIA, The, -" The mont Important feature in the Crecan mode of IIfo is the usage of the Sysaltla, or public meals, of which all the cltizens partook, whout distinction of rank or age. The origin of thle lastitution cannot be traced: we lemra however from Aristotie that it was not pecullar to the Greeka, but exlsted athil earller In the wouth of Italy among the Cenotrians.

At Sparta [whlch retalved thle laoltutlou, in common with Crete, to the latent tlmes], the entertalnment wat provided at the expence, not of the state, hut of those who shared It. The head of each famlly, as far as his means reached, contributed for all lis members; hut the cllizen Who was reluced to Indigence lont his place at the publle board. The gueste were diviled Into companles, generally of afteen persons. who filled up vacancles hy ballot, in which uasimous consent was required for every electlon. No member, not even the king, was permitted to stay away, except on some extraordluary oceaslon, as of a ascrifice, or a leng thened chase, when he was expected to send a present to the tahle: such contrihutlons frequently varied the frugal repast."-C. Thlrlwall, History of Grep- ch. 7-8.
SZATHMAR, Treaty of (1718). See HenOARY: A. D. 1899-1718.
SZECHENYI, and the Hungarian wakenIng. See Huxgart: A. D., 1815-184.
SZEGEDIN, Battle of (8849). Ser Acstria: A. 1). $1848-1849$

SZEGEDIN, The brokea ireaty of. See Traks (Tie Ottomans): A. D. 1402-1451. SZIGETH, Siege of (1566). See Hengart: A. D. $1526-1587$.

T.

TABELLARIE, Leges. - "For a long perion [at llome] the votes in the Comitia were glven rivà vare. . . ; but roting by ballot ('per talnilas") was intronheed at the begfnning of ihe ith eentury $\{21$ ceutury B. C.] hy a succession of laws which, from thelr subjeet, were named Leges Tabellariae. Cleero teils us that there were lu all fuur, manely: 1. Lex Guhinia, passed B. C. 139. . . . 2. Lex Cassla, carr al In B. C. 137. - . 3. J.ex Papiria, passed B. C. 131. . . . 4. Lex Caclin passed B. C. 108."W. Ramsay. Mamual ot Romen Antiq., ih. 4.

TABLES. The. See scotiand: A. D. 1638.
TABORITES, The. See Bonemia: A. D. 1419-1434.
Tabreez, Battle of. See Persia: A. D. 1409-1857.

TACHIES, The. See Texas: Tie aborioinal miamitants.
TACITUS, Roman Emperor, A. D. 275-276.
TACNA, Battle of (8880). See Chime: A. D. 1843-1884.

TACULliES, The. See Anerican Abomgises: Atiapascan Favily.

TADCASTER FIGHT (1642),-Lorl Fairfax, commandlag la Yorkshlre for the Parliament, and havlag his headquarters at Tadeaster, where he had assembled a small force, was attacked hy 8,000 royallsts, under the Earl of Newcastle, Derember 7. 1642, and forced to retire, after ohatlinate resiatance. This was one of: the earliest encounters of the great English Civil', War.-C. R. Markham, Life of the Great Lord Fuirfax, ch. 8.

TADMOR.
TAILLF: AND GABELLE.
TADMOR. Hee Pab.mima.
TAENSAS, The. Hee Axemicar Aboma mes: Natcimean Fayily.

TAEXALI, The. - A tribe which held the northeantern conts of ancient Caledonia.
tagals, The. Ne Philfppine Inlandm. TAGLiACOZ20, Capture of Conradinat. See Itali (Soutmias): A. D. 1250-1288.
TAGLIAMENTO, Battle of the (8797). See Fhasce: A. D. 1708-1707 (0ctoneaApail).
TAGOS, OR TAGUS, The Greek iltle. See Demitiag.
TAHITI.- This is the central and principai lidand of the suciety group. It is of eonsiter. able slze, having an area of 600 equare milles. Ifs mouniainous arenery is imprewaive, ite elimate delightfai and heaithy, lis tropleal productions lavish, and it has the repute of being one of the mont romantlo and charming spots of the world. Ten smailer laiands, contiguone to ft, form the archlpeingo. The Freneis have controlled it since 1842, aithough Queen Pomare IV, is nominally stili the reigning sorereign. See Polisfama.
TAIFALE, The,-In the fourth rentury, "the Talfalie inhabited that vart of the oovinee of Dacia which is now caliex Watha, They suth- thentif aceompanled the $V$ isigntis in their -gratlons westwarl, and settleit on the month side of the liger, lin the comutry of the Pletavl. wiere they were In the thene of Gregorg of Tours, who cails them The iphail, and theirdistrece Theiphalla." - W. Smith. Nate for Biblumis Decline and Fiall of the Rumat Empirf, eh 20.

TAILLE AND GABELIE, The.- Under the old regine, before the lievniution, "the chief item in the French budget was the taille [anaiagous to the English worl 'taliy']. Thls was n direet tax imposed upon the property of those assensed, aui in theory it was in pmportion to the amount they posseased. But in tis most of France it fell chitety upon perennai property. It was imposible tbat with the most exact and honest system it shosidd be accurately appor. flonct, and tho system that was in force wan botio ioose and duhoncst. The lical ansessors exempted some and nvertaxed others: they released thelr friendis or their viliages, anti hmposed an ircreased burden upon others, and, to a very large extent, exemptions or refiuctions were obtained by those who hat money with which to brithe or to lifigate. The buik of tbis tax feli upon the peasants. From It, indeed. a large part of the population, ami the part possessing the most of tbe wealth of the country. was eutirely excinpt. The nobility were frec from any personal tax. and unicr this hemi were probably facinded t00,000 people. Tinc clergy were free, nimest ali of the ottlelais of every kind, and the members of mauy professions and tradics. Many of the cities has obtainal exemption from the tailie by the paymeut of a sum of moncy, witich was eilber uominal or very moderate. Oniy laborers and peasants, it was sali, stili remainei subject to ft . Out of $11,000,000$ people [ In the 1ith century] in those portions of France where the tailie was a personai tax, probahly 2.500 .0100 were cxempt.

Next to the tailie. the most important tax was the gabelie, and, though less oncronn, it also produced $a$ vast amount of misery. The gabeile was a duty on sall, and it was turmell by the governirent. The buriten of an exceaslve tax was increased by the cupldity of thow Who bought the right to collect its proceeds. The Freneh government retalned a momopoly of milt, much like that which it now posecmen of cobacco, but the price which it il ugged for this article of necemity was such. ta.: the states of Normandy declared that mait ceat the people more than all the reat of thels : od. in mome provinces the price axed imposed - duty of about 8,000 per ceat., and malt soll for nenriy ten sous a pouud, thirty times lte present price In France, though it is atill subject to a considerabie dut. From thin tax there were to personal exempilons, but large portions of the country were not subject to the gnbelie. Brittany was free, Guicnne, Poitou, and several other provinces were wholly exempt of pald a triting subaldy. About one thind of the population were free from thla duty, and the exemption wan no valued that a rumor that $t \mid$ - gabelie was to be imposed was suffieient tr excte a local luar. rection. Such a duty, on an article like aalt, wan aiso necessarily much more oppressive for the poor than the rich. As the exorbitant price would compei many to go without the commolIty, the tax was often rendered a direct one. The amount of malt was ined which a tamily shonid consume, and this they were forcel to take at the price estabilished hy the government.

The gabeile was farmed for about $20,0 \times 0$, . 000 livres, and to cover the expenses and protits of the farmers probably $\mathbf{2 7 , 0 0 0 , 0 0 0}$ in all was eoflected from the prople. A family of six wouh, on an average, pay the equivalent of ninety franca, or aiout elg'iteen dollars a year. for this duty,"-J. B. Perkins, France unter Mazaria, ch. 18 (r. 2), " Not onis was the price of sait rendered exorhitant by the tax, but lis consumption at this exorbitant price was conpuisory. Every human being above seven years of age was bound to consume seven pounis uf salt per annum, which salt, moreover, was to be exchusively used with fool or in cooking. To use if for sating meat, butter, chcese, de., was prohithited under sevcre penaities. Tie arcrage afice of sait [in the refgn of Louis XIV.] over two-thiris of the country, was a shifiling a pound. To buy salt of myy one but the anthorised ageuts of the Governurent was punisined by flues of 200 . 300 , and who livres (ahout $£ 80$ of our money). and smugglers wire punisiced by imprisonmeut, the gailiys, and death.

The use of salt in agriculture was reudered imposstbie, and it was forbidden, under a penaity of 300 lisres (about (50). wh take a beast to a salt marsh, and allow it to drink sea water. Salted hams and bacon were not aliowed to enter the country. The sait used in the tisheries wis super:ised nal guarited by such a number of vexations reguiations that oue might suppase life object of the Government was to render that braneil of commerce impossíbie.

Buy even the dabelie was less ouerous than the Tailie. TL: amount of the Tailie was fixed in the secret councils of the Gorernneut. according to the exigencles of the finaucial simation every year. The thirty two Intendants of the provinces were informed of the amonnt which their districts were expected to forward to the Treasury. Each Inteudiant then made known to the Eicetions (sub-districts) of his Généralité the sun which they had to nad. and the ofticers cailed Elus apportioned to each parish its quota of contribution. Then. in the parisbes, wns set in motion a system of biind, stupid, and

TAILLE AND GABELLE

TALHCDO.

remorelen extortion. of which one cannot read oren now without a fich f larlgantlon. FYrs of all, the most dagitlous partinlity and Injuntice prealded ovet the diatribution of the tax. Parishes which had a fried at Court of in au. thority gol, exempl, and with them the tax was a mere form. But thewe exemptlons caued It to fall whith more cruablas welght on thelr leas for: tunate nelghboum, sis the appolnted sum must be made up. whoever pald lt . The Inequalltes of tazation almost surpace bellef. . . . But thls Wat far from being the worl feature. The chlef inhablants of the country villages were conl. pelled to All, In fotation, the odlous otice of col. lectors. They were responallile for the groms amount to be levied, which they might get as they could out of thelr parishioners. . . . Friends, or persons who hal powerful patrons, wem exemnted; whlle eaemies, or the unprotected, were drained of thelr last farthing. . . . The collectors went abous, wo are told, alway keeplag well torether for feap of violence, maklag their vislts and perquialtons, and met everywhere with a chorus of Imprecatlons. As the Tallie was always in arrear, on one slde of the a'reet might le wen the collectors of the current jear pur. sulng thelr exactlons, whlle on the other side were thone of the year prevlous engaged on the ame buslness, and further on were the agents of the Gabelle and other taxes employed In a slmilnr manner. From mornlng to evenlag, from sear's beginning to year's ending, they tramped, es. corted by volleys of oatlis and curses, getting a penny bere and a penny there; for prompt phy. mont under thls marvellous aystem wan not to be thought of."-J. C. Morison, The Rrign of Lovis IIV. (Fortnightly Rer., April, 18it, t. 21). - Cnder Colbert (1681-1683), in the reign of Louls XIV., both the tallle (or vilieln tux, as it was often called) and the gnbelle were greatiy reluced, and the ingquities of thelr distribution and collection were much lessenel. - II. Martlu List. of France: Age of Lumis XIV., r. 1, ch. 1 - For an latlmatlon of tise orggin of the talle, se France: A. I). 1453-1491
TAIPING REBELLION, The. See CuINA: A. D. 1850-1864.

TA] MAHAL, The. See Indin: A. D. 18051654.

TAKBIR, The, The Maliometan war-cry "God If Gruat.

TAKILMAN FAMILY, The, Sec Ameriras Abohionff: TaEllman Family.

TAlajots. See Sardinia, Tue Islavd: NIME ASD EANLE HISTORY

TALAVERA, Battle of. See Spais: A. D. 18100 (FY:BRCARY-Jt'LT).

TALCA, Battle of (1818). See Crile: A. D. 1810-1818.
TALENT, Attic, Babylonian, &c. - " Sot only in Attica, lut in aimost all the Hrllenic states, cyen in those whlch were not In Grecee hat were of IIdlente ongin, money was reckoned by talents of sirty minas, the minu at a hundred drachmas, tic cirachma at six oboli. At Athens the obolus was divided into elght citalcl the chalcas into seven lepta. Down to the half oholus, the Athenlan moner was, In generil.
 obolus, In silver or copper; the chalcas and the maller pleces only in copper. . The value of the more anclent Attlc stiver talent, silver vniuc reckoned for aliver value, will he 1.500 thlr.

Primalan currency: of the minn. 25 thater; of the drachnin. gute groschen; of the niniusi E . BP. - equivalent to $1.028,17.10,31.1 \mathrm{cta}, 8.85$ cis. respectively.

Before the time of tholou, the Attle money was lieavier; alw the commer. cla! welght wis heaviet than tiast by which money was welghel. One hundred new druch. mas were equivalent to 72-73 anclent drachnaa: but the anclent welght remaincl wlth very little alteration as comnerctal welght, to wiilch, In Inter ilmes, an lucrease was alwn added. Througit the alterathon of Solon, the Attic money. Which before mond to the . EgInetan in the relition of 5: 6, hail to the mame the relatloti of 8:8. The new was related to the anclent Attle money an 1*:85. Comparel with the heary Eginetan irachma... , the Attic was called the light itrachum. . . . The former was equivalent to teu Attle oholl; on tiant the Eglnetan thent Welghed morc than 10,000 Attle Urachmas. It was equal to the Babylonian talent. Nevertheless the AXgluetan money was son colned mo light that it was related to the Attle nearly as $3: 2$ The Coriuthlan talent is to lie cstibuted ns offghaliy equivalent to tie Egluetam, but it was almin In inter timen ilminlshed. The Egyptian talent , contalned, accorling to Varro In Play, elgity Roman poundy, ani cannot, thercfore, linve been essentally different from the Attic talent, slace the Attle mins i. Inted to the Homan pround as $4: 8$

Ti - Fir bolc talent is related toslie . 土 iglnetas
toslx, and is noother than the inoney-talen Athenlans in use before the time of sol whleis continumi lu use as commerelal According to the nost aceurate valuation, therc. fore, one hundred Eubule drachuas are equivntent to 128 drachmas of soton vireu the rclation of tite Alexandrin to Euloulc talent in round numbers as 6 t) $\gamma-181$ (1) $1+1$ ); but lt was ruther more accurately as 120 to $13 \times$ :

Somucit gold
as was estiniated to le equlvaleat to a talent of silver, was muloubtcitiy also called a tulent of goid. Aut, thaity, a velgit of gold of 6.000 dracinmas, the vaiue of Thleh, compared with silver, always deperded pon the exlsting relaton between them, way sometimes thas calied." - A. Ihreckli, rublic Econnmy of Athrns (tr. by Lumb), bh. 1, ch. 4-5. See, alsu, Sherel.

TALLAGE, The, -"L゙mler the gentral beal of domum, auxlliunt, and the ilke, canne a long series of lmposts [ In the period of the Norman kinys], which were tienretically gifts of the nation to the king, and the amount of which was Ictermined ly the ltluerant justlees after sepafate negotiation with the payers. The most Important of thene, that willeis fell upon the towns and demesne lands of the Crown, is known as the tullage. Thls must lave nffectel other property besides land, hut the partlcular metiond In which It wis to be collected was determined by the communalty on whici lt fell, or by spechal arrangement with the jnstlees." - W. Stables. Cinnt. Hint. of Eug., ch. 13, acct. 161 ( $c .1$ ).

TALLEYRAND, Prince de: Alienation from Napoicon. Ser France: A. D. 1808-1808.

TALLIGEWI, The. See American AbORIGIEE: ALPEBHANS.
TALMUD, The.- " The Talmud [from a Hebrew verh slgnifylng 'to learn'] Is a vast Irregular repertory of Rabhinlcal retlectlons, discusslons, and animadrerslons on a myriad of ## TALMCD.

TAMMANY.

toples treated of or touched on in Hiols Writ: a sreasurg, in chootic armagement, of Jowiah inre, actentlife, legal, mand legeadar:; great atore. houes of estm-bblical, yet hiblicaliy referabie. Jowth apeculation, fancy, and filth. ... The Talmud proper is throughout of a twofold character, and coaniate of iwo divisions, weverally called the Mishas and the Gemara. . . . The Miohna, ia tblo coanection, may be regariled at tbe text of tbe Talmud itceif, and the Cemara as a sent of commentary. iarly foliows the Miahne, tentence by senteace.

The Gemara regu. annotates upon it muds, the Yerubbimi [Jerumiem], or, more correctly, the Palentinlan, and the Babli, that in, the Babylonian. Tbe Mlabas is pretty aearly tbe ame In both these, but tbe Gemaras are difier. ent. The Taimud Yeruabainal givee the tradl. tlonal mayinga of the Paleutinian Thabbla. the ' Gemars of the Childrea of the West,' as it If styled; whereas the Talmud Babil gives the tradtionai marings of the izahble of Bahyion. This Talmud is about four times the size of the Jerusalem one; it is by fur the more popular. and to it almoat exclualvely our remarke relate." --P. I. Ilemhon, Talmudic Viocellnny, introd.The date of the compliation of tbe Iabyionian Talmud in fixed at about A. D. 800; that of Jerusalem was a century or nore eariler. Bee, also, Mincusa.
TALUKDARS.-"A Taluka [in India] is a inrge eatate, consinting of many viliages, or, as tbey would be cailed la English, parlshes. These villages had originaity separate proprieton, who pald their revenue direct to the Government treasury. The Nati-e Government In former tlmea made wev hy patent, to a person called Taiukidar, Its right over these vilinges, hoiding him responsibie for the whole revenne. . . . The Wealti and influebec thus acquired by the Ta. lukdar often made him, in fact, Independent.

When the country eame under Britishame. engagements for pryinent of the Government Leverune were taken from these Thlukdars, and they were callei Zamindars."-Sir if. Teniple, Jamea Thomason, p. 158.-See IndiA: A. I). 178-1793.

TAMANES, Battle of. See Spans: A. D. 1300 (A Leacht-Nnvembeil).

TAMASP 1., Shah of Persia, A. D. 158315i6.....Tamasp 11., Sbah of Persia, 17301783.

TAMERLANE, OR TIMOUR. See Ti. yotri.
TAMMANY RING, The. See New York: A. D. 1*63-1871.

TAMMANY SOCIETY, - TAMMANY HALL. - "Shortly after the peace of $1 ; 33$, a soclety was formed In the clty of New York, known hy the name of the Tammany soclety. It was probably originaliy instluted with a vlew of organizing an association antagonist to the Clncinnall Soclety. That society was said to be mouarcilical or rather aristocraticai in its tendency, and, when tirst formed, and before its constlintion was amended, on the suggestion of Generai Washington and otber original members, it certainiy did tend to the estahlishment of an hereditary order, momething llke an oriler of nobility. The Tanmany Soclety originaliy seema to have had in view the preservation of our democratic institutlons. . . . Tammany So. clety, or Columbian Order, was founded by Wil-

Ilam Monney, an uphointerer resldiag in the city of New York, nome time in the erfmiaitetration of Prendernt Wabblagton. William Mooney wha one of thoee who, at that early day, regamed the powers of the general govornment an dangerous to the independence of the state governmentr, and in the common libertien of the people. Ills object was to all the country with matilutions denlgned, and mea determined, to premerve the junt balance of powe:. IIIs purpose whi patrotic and purely repuhilican. . . . Tammany Wha, at frat, oo popular, that most permons of mert became mernhers; and to nun sous were they tbat its annlveriary [May 12] was regaried at a holling. At that time there was no party polltics mized up in ite proceeding. But wbea President Wamhlagton, it the latter part of his adminintration, rebuked "weif created meletien," from an apprehenslon that their uitimate teadency would be hostle to the public tranquility, the members of Tammany supposel tbelr Inatitution to be inclucied In the reproof; and they aimont forsook 1 L. The founder, Wilitiam Blonney, and few others, continued steadfast. At one anniversary they were reduced no low that hut three persons attended its festival. From this time it became a polltical Inatitution, and took ground with Thonas Jeffermon.' "-J. D. Ilammond, Ifintory of Ithitical hartice in the State of Sien York, e. 1, ch. 18.-" The ldeal patrons of the woclety were Colamhus and Tammany, the inat a legendary Indian chitef, once lord, fo wai mild, of the island of Manhattan, and now adoptel as the patron saint of Amerlea. The asciriation was divided into thirteen tribes, each trike typliong a state, presided over hy a sachem. Thire were aiso the bonorary posta of warrior and hunter, and the conncli of sachemas had at their heal a grand sachem, a type evidentily of the I'restident of the L'sited States. " IR. Illurreth. llist. of the U. S., e. t, eh. 3. $\because$ Stortly after Washington's inauguration, May 12, 1750, the Tammany soclety or Columbian Orler was founded. It was composen! at first of the moxierate men of both political parties, and seems not to lave leen recognized as a party institution until the time of Jefferson as Presi. dent. Willam Momey was the first Grand Sachem; hiss successor In 1700 was W'illium Pltt smith, andí In 1791 Josiait Ugiden Ifotfman rereived the honor. John Pintant was the first Sagamore. De Witt Clinton was scrile of the couneil in 1791. It was strictly a national soclety, basel on the principles of patriotism, and had for ita object the perpetuation of a true love for our own comntry. Aboriginal formas and ceremonles were adopted in Its incorporation. "Mrs. M. J. Lamb, llist. of the City of N. Y., r. 2. p. 362, fint-mpte. - "One must distlngulsh between the Tammany Soclety or Cohmhian Order'and the political organization calied for shortness 'Tammany Ilall.' . . The Tummany soclety owns a large bullding on Fourteenth Street, near Thiri Avenne, and it leases romins In this building to the 'Democratic ilepubiican Generai Committee of the City of New York., otherwlse and more commonly known as 'Tam. many Hail' or 'Tammany. Tammany Hall means tbereforc. fret, the building on Fourteenth Street where the 'Democrscy' have thelr headquarters; and secondiy, the poiltical boily ofllialiy known as the Democratic Repuhican General Commiltee of the City of New York

TAMMANY.

The elty of New Yorl is divided by law intn thirty 'aseemhiy districts;' that is, thirty districts, each of which election ansemblyman to the state iegislature. In each of these assem. bly districts there is held annualiy an election of members of the aforesaid Democratic Republican General Committee. This commlttee is a very large one, consisting of no lest than five thousand men; and each assembiy district is allotted a certaln number of members, based on the number of Democratic votes which it cast in the last preceding presidentlal ciection. Thus the number of the Generai Committeemen elected in areb assembly district varies from slxty to two hundred and seventy. There is intended to be one Genersi Committeeman for every fifty Democratic electors in the district. In ean as sembly district there is also elected a distriet leader, the head of Tammany Hail for that district. He is always a member of tbe General Commlttee, and these tblrty men, one icader from each assembly district, form the executive committec of Tammany Hall. 'By thls commiltee,' says a Tammany officlai, 'all tbe lnternal affairs of the organization are directed, its candl. dates for offices are selected, and the plans for every campaign are matured.' Tbe Gencrsi Commlitee meets every month, five bundred members constituting a quorum; and in October of eaeb year it sits as a county conventlon, to nominate candidates for the ensuing clectlon. Tbere is also a sub-committee on organization, containing one thousand members, whicb the s once a month. This committee takes charge of the conduct of electlons. There is, besides, a finance committee, appointed by the chairman of the General Committec, and there are several minor cominittees, unnecessary to mention. The chalrman of the tinance committee is at present Mr. Xichard Croker. Such are the generai consmittees of Tanmany Hail. . . . Eaeh nssembly district ls divided by inw into numerous election districts, or, as they are ealled in some cities, voting preclncts, - eaeh electlon district contalnlag about four hundred voters. The eiection districts are fookei after as follows: Every assembif distrlet lias a distrlet committee, composed of the members of the Generni Committee cleeted from that district, and of certaln addithonal members ehosell for the pirpose. The district eommittec appoints in each of the electlon districts iachuded in that particuiar assembly district $n$ eajtain. This man is the local boss. He has from ten to twenty-five aids, and he is responslble for the vote of his election district. There are about cieven hundred cleetion districts In New liork, nad eonsequentiy there are about cieven hundred raptalns, or local bosses, each one being risponsible to the (assembly) district committee hy which the was appolnted. Every captain is helif to a strlct accouut. If the Tammany vote In his clection district inlls of withont due canse, he is fort iswith removed, and another nppolnted in fils piace. Usually, tbe captuin is an actuai resident $\ln$ his district; but occasionnily, beiag selected from a dlstant part of the city, he acquires a fictitious resideace in the distriet. Very frequentiy the captaln is a liquor deaier, who has in eilentele of customers, dependents, and hangers.on, whom hic 'swlags, or controis. Ile is pald, of course, for his ser. viees; he has some money to distribute, and $n$ Littic patronage, such as places in the street.

TAPROBANE.

cleaniag department, or perhaps a minor clerkshlp. The captain of a district has a personai acqualntance with sll lte voters; and on the eve of an election he is able to tell how every man in his district is golng to vote. He mskes his report; and from the eleven hundred reports of the election district captains tbe Tammany leaders can predlet with accuracy what wlll be the vote of the city."-H. C. Merwin, Tammany Hall (Atlantic, Feb., 1894).

Asso Lx: R. Home, The Story of Tammany (Harper's Monthly, v. 44, pp. 685, 835).

TAMULS The See Turanian Races.
TAMWORTH MANIFESTO, The. See Enoland: A. D. 1834-1837.

TANAGRA, Battle of (B. C. 457). See Grerce: B. C. $458-456$.
TANAIM, The.-A name aseumed by the Jewish Rabbins who especialiy devoted themselves to the interpretation of tbe Mischna. H. H. Milman, Hist. of the Jeve, ble. 19.

TANAIS, The.-Tbe name anciently given to the Russlan river now called the Don, - which Iatter name slgnifles simply 'water.'
TANCRED, KIng of Naples and Sicily, A. D. 1189-1194.

TANCRED'S CRUSADE. See Crubades: A. D. 1098-1090; and Jercsalem: A. D. 1099 , and 1099-1144.

TANEY, Roger B., and Prealdent Jackson's removal of the Deposits. See UNITED States of Am. : A. D. 1835-1836. . . . The Dred Scott Decislon. See United States of Am.: A. D. 1857.

TANFANA, Feast and massacre of. See Germany: A. D. 14-16.

TANIS. See Zoan.
TANISTRY, Law of. See TUATH.
TANNENBURG, Battic of (14ro). See Pothand: A. 1). 13i3-1572.

TANOAN FAMILY, The. See American Abobitines: Tasoan Fayily.

TANTALIDFE, The. See Armos.
TAORMINA.-TAUROMENION.-About 302 B. C. Dionysios, the tyrant of Syracuse, expelied the Sikels, or natives of Sicily, from one of their towns, Tauromeniou (moderu Taormina) on the height of Tauros, and it subsequently becnme a Greek city of great wealth, the remains of which are remarkably Interesting at the present day. "There is the wall with the work of the Sikel and the Greek slde by side. There is the temple of the Grock elianged into the ehurch of the Christian apostle of Sleily. There is the theat re, the work of the Greek eninged and mowithed by the Roman, the theatre which, unilike those of Syracuse and Argos, stlll kecps so iarge a part of lts scena, and where we hardiy mourn the loss of the rest as we look out on the hills and the sea between its fragments.' - E. A. Freeman, Ilist. of Sicily, ch. 11, sect. 2 (c. 4).

Alno IN: The Century, Sept., 1893.
TAOUISM, See China: The Reliotons.
TAPIO BISCKE, Battle of ( $\mathbf{1 8 4 9 \text { ). See }}$ ALSTRIA: A. D. 1848-1849.

TAPPANS, The. See Amertcan Anorigines: Aloonquian Family.

TAPROBANE. - The name by which the lsland of Ceyion was known to the anclents. Ilipparchus advanced the oplnion tbat it was not merely a iarge is' $d$, but the beginning of anotker world. - E. J. Sunbury, II iat. of Aneient Geog., ch. 23, sect. 2 (r. 2).

