Hunting With Camera Instead of Rifle.

Thanks to modern science, a man can enjoy all the delights of hunting nowadays without wetting his hands with blood. Equipped with a camera, a good lens and various helpful devices, in which he takes the same pride as a hunter does in his modern rifle, he can bring home magnificent trophies for the walls of his den without doing butcher's work to secure head or pelt. He can engage in a war of wits with the wild creatures, taking a little longer odds, no doubt, for it is far easier to get within shooting distores of general than it is to get within distance of game than it is to get within camera range, and as for the danger, the man who goes after lions or other the recious beasts with a camera surely requires as much nerve as the other man who takes an arsenal along and murders the unsuspecting brutes at long ders the unsuspecting brutes at long ders the unsuspecting brutes at long range. The hunt for dangerous animals need not be discussed, however, as the average man has no chance to indulge in that variety of sport. Few of us car afford the outlay of time and money required to reach the haunts of the jun gle baests, but all of us are near enough to some bit of woods or field to go cam-That is one of the beauties of this coming sport, that all game is fair game for the camera. There is no close season for the man with the little black box and no limit to his bag. He requires no hunter's license, no membership in an expensive gun club and ordinarily no guide. In fact, the amateur has a good chance to perfect himself in the sport without going very far afield, and this practice, by the way is an essential. Camera hunting must be learned just the same as hunting with shotgun or rifle. The beginner at the sport must learn how to judge distance even more accurately than the marksman. He must study the problems of light and speed if he is to catch his game on the wing or running. He must learn to think quick-ly and act promptly in focusing and reg-ulating the stop, and he will find camera target practice at the less shy and difficult subjects near home quite as fas-cinating as popping away at tin cans or clay pigeons with firearms.

Moreover, he must study the ways of wild things quite as carefully as the man who means to kill them, and, approaching them with no murderous in-tent, he is more likely to learn intimate ly of their habits than the sportsman who is planning to destroy them.

One of the most fascinating of cameraports is a night hunt from a cance. The problem is to ascertain by the tracks and other signs where game is in the habit of coming to the water's edge to drink. There, after dark, the approach is made to that spot very stealthily. Without noise, and, of course, with molight in the cance. The hunter can be guided only by the sounds, and must judge his distances by the slight noises made by the game, and when he believes himself within range and has the camera pointed, the flash is exploded and the pointed, the flash is exploded and the whole water's edge with its background of forest is suddenly illuminated.

A good negative of such a scene with deer or moose starting at the flash makes an enlargement which is as beautiful a thing to hang upon the library wall as the branching antiers of the game itself, and is quite as convincing a trophy of the owner's skill.—From "Camera vs. Rifle," in December Technical World Magazine

SIMPLICITY.

(New York Herald.)
We love to speak and piay with children because of their simplicity, the simplicity of their nature. Simplicity is without similarity or simulation as opnosed to duplicity. Duplicity is duplex, not simplex, as is simplicity, can neither be added o nor taken from lecaduse it is the unit of its own fair famed existence, natural, simple, nothing inorc, nothing less. God is simplicity, elimply, because with God there are no complexities, no intricacies, no assumptions. God is like to Himself in the startene perfect ideal of His own grand and uncopied simplicity. #### CHINA'S POPULATION.

CHINA'S POPULATION.

(From the London Globe.)

According to the latest official returns the number of inhabitants in China proper, Manchuria and the new dominion is $12.425.025. And as we have pointed out before, ourselves, the National Review (China), the estimates of China's population have always had a tendency to exaggeration, and even it 10.000,000 be added on for Mongolia and Tibet the total is far below that usually quoted. In 1901 Mr. Rockhill, then United States Minister to Pekin, after careful inquiry came to the condusion that the number of inhabitants of China proper was probably less than $20,000,000. That would make the total population of the empire something slightly under 300,000,000. If something slightly under 300,000,000. If $12,000,000 of the latest census erred on the side of understatement.

(Sheffield Telegraph.)

A company of Edinburgh students were starting for Glasgow on a football excursion and meant to have a carriage to themselves. At the Jast moment, however, just as the train was starting in hastened an old woman.

One of the young fellows, thinking to get rid of her easily, remarked:
"My good woman this is a smoking car don't you know?"
"Well, well," answered the woman: "never mind; I'll mak' it dae." And she took a seat.

As the train started the worfd was passed around. "Smoke her out." All every student produced a pipe, and son the windows were closed accordingly, the car was filled with a dense cloud of tobacco smoke. So foul was the air that at last one of the boys began to feel ill. As he took his pipe from his mouth and settled back into his seat the old woman leaned forward to him.

"If ye are dune, sir," she said in a wheedling tone. "wad ye kindly gie me a bit draw? I came awa' in sic a haste I forgot mine."

A REMARKABLE YOUNG WOMAN (Buffalo News.) Hetty Green, of New York, is a

ed to deny the authenticity of reference books which say she was born November 21st, 1835 She declares 1834 was the year. What other woman in these days would claim a greater age than she was suspected of? Nor is the only respect in which Mrs. Green is remarkable. She is worth anywhere from $70,000,000 to $80,-000,000, and enjoys the proud title of "the richest woman in the world". She believes in the simple life and compound interest, but will accept the latter straight if there is nothing better in sight if there is nothing better in sight. Mrs. Green did not start poor. In 1965, when she was 31, her tather died, leaving her what was then considered a large fortune. Upon this she has built during the past forty-six years with unwearying persistence. She does not go in for real estate. Her favorite diversion is to accumulate ready cash against times of stringency, when she helps out mere men to their financial savation and her own profic in many ways she has Margaret Deland's from Woman' reduced to pitiful proportions, but she is more fortunate than "Mrs. Mattland" was that in she has a son who is loyal to her, is a good business man, and as yet has not committed the folly of an imprudent marriage. Of the more aminble side of Mrs. Gren's character the world hears little, though it gets a glimpse of her philosophy once in a while. On her birthday there cropped out a yearning for kindlier judgment that she has been accustomed to.

THE EVE OF THE CAT.

The pund of a can's eye oromacny appears as a long harrow oven, or is attained, vertical once have the annual action to be locating through more small in the iris of its eye, especially the interest the light. One is accustomed to rekard the marrowness of the pupil as the distinguishing peculiarity of the eyes of cats. All animals of the cat family sharp this peculiarity. Yet the natural shape of the pupil of the cat's eye is circular.

of cats. All animals of the cat samples of the pupil of the cat's are in circular.

By varying the quantity of light entering the eyes of experimenters have seen the pupils of the eyes of cats and tigers change from straight lines to perfect circles, and while under the influence of airopane, which suspends for a time the muscular control of the eye, they are always circular.

The normal form of the cat's pupil is then the same as that of the human pupil, but when submitted to the influence of light its behaviour differs. In a pright light our pupils become very small circles, while those of a cat turn into vals or narrow sits. The general effect is the same in either case, namely, to diminish the quantity of light passing into the eye.

In the larger animals of the cat bam-ovals or narrow sitts. The general exfect is the same in either case, namely, to diminish the quantity of light passing into the eye.

In the larger animals of the cat bamily, such as tigers, the pupil sometimes behaves exactly like a human pupil, and when brightly illuminated contracts into a minute circle instead of becoming linear. In the case of domestic cats, the older the animal the more frequently does the pupil exsume a circular form.

It has been said that so long as there is a cat near it is not necessary that one should consult a watch or a clock to ascertain the time, since the animal seyes will furnish the desired information.
The first European to learn of the use of the cat as a time-indicator is said to have been the Frenchman Huc, who has left us on account of how he was initiated into the mystery.

M. Huc and a party of friends had set out to visit a mission in China, situated at quite a distance from the French headquarters. On the road they met a young Chinaman, who joined the partytime, this newcomer ventured to suggest animal being obtained, the young Chinese took the cat into his arms, pushed up its eyelids with his hand, and asked the Frenchman to look at them, at the same time volunteering the information that it was not yet noon. In examining the Chinese pointed out that the pupils of a cat's eyes grow gradually narrower up to twelve noon, when they become scarcely perceptible lines, drawn perpendicularly across the eye, and that after that dilation recommences.

It would seem that the dostors, if they are able to do it, would rob humanity of all its joys. Not content with harping upon the aculteration of our food-and drink; with warning us about the awful germs that ordinary drinking water contains, they have inaugurated a campaign against that most delectable of human pastimes—kissing. Over in Massachusetts the other day they presented a youth, on his twenty-first birth-day, with a gold medal, simply for the reuson that he had never "kissed a girl outside of his own family," as if that were a merit. We imagine that most people who read of the warding of the medal felt nothing but pity for the lad who had wilfully missed so much in life; but, according to the sanitary experts, this lad has set an example we should all fellow.

This information has been obtained from statistics compiled by the Dominion Fortry Branch, which shows that nearly thirty million more laths were produced in 1910 than in the year before, but that owing to a decrease in the price per thousand, the total value of the industry was thirty-five thousand dollars less. Two-fifths of the total was cut in Ontario, which Province increased its 1909 production by fifty-seven million or nearly twenty per cent. New Brunswick, the cond Province in importance, increased proptrion of the total from one-fifth to one-quarter by cutting sixty-two mil to one-quarter by cutting sixty-two milsion more than last year. ### POTATO BAGS

Ottawa Citizen.)

Potatoes on the Ottawa market are being sold in bags not un to the standard of size and weight, chiefly because there is no standard size in this Province for potatoes or for any other similar commodity. At the annual meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association in Toronto on Tuesday, Mr. Thomas Dilworth, the President of the Association, called the attention of the members to this anomaly, which is causing much confusion and a decided loss to house-holders in all parts of the Province. Of course, we are all anxious to blame the seller in such cases, but after all, the latter may be, like ourselves, only the victim of others. The standardization of measures seems the only solution of a difficulty which has an important bearing on the question of household expenses. (Ottawa Citizen.)

THE RESURRECTION. Very beautiful, is it not?—the pic-ture of the opening of springtime which we gather from our Bible, catching here we gather from our Bible, eatching herea glimpse and there a glimpse as it lies reflected in the song of paalmist; and prophet, and of Jesus, who had so often watched it as a boy on the hills of Galilee. Doubtless He used to go out to gather early lilies, and note the green garments of the fresh young grass. Ten million million tiny strugglers on our hills and in our fields to day are trying to show us that ours. day are trying to show us that ours, too, is Holy Land. The flowers have begun to greet us in our walks—dumb angels, with faces all a shine with the tidings that the Saviour-season arisen. Thank God for the resurrection thoughts which the pring months die that we may live again. Nothing is quickened save it die. Mortality is the condition of all immortality. What echoes we have wakened of this truth! The opening spring prints it off on every hillside in illuminated text of leaf and flower. We find, as always with these central facts of Nature, that the best and highest meaning of the truth belongs to ourselves—so completely is man a part of all, so completely is all represented in man. Our word, "Resur-rection," seems to concentrate the his-tory of the universe, to whisper the secret of the life of God! -W. C. Gannett.

ESSENCE OF GOOD COOKING.

ESSENCE OF GOOD COOKING.

The essence of good cooking lies in fourthings; the ability to preserve, develop, improve and vary the flavor of foods. The French excel particularly in the art of vanying the flavor. A small plece-of meat suffices them to make a whole pot of vogetables redoient of it. Convensely, they use all sorts of vegetables to, fin-part their unique flavor to meats—in soups, stews, sauces, and the water in which meat or fish is boiled. The combinations in variations are endless. An English epicure declares that the secret of the excellence of French cookery lies in the lavish use made of vegetables. Chicago Captains Almost Lose Ship's Insurance.

Had to be Out in the Lake by Midnight.

Chicago despatch: Forfeiture of $125,-000 insurance, loss of their commissions and disgrace loomed up in front of four lake captains last night for three hours. Their boats were held fast in the Chicago River, the bane of all lake seamen, and they had until midnight to pass out into Lake Michigan becond the twofor the season closed. They won by two minutes. At about 840 clock the Jupiter, a big freighter, was steaming up the south branch of the river, when she went fast on the old Washington street tunnel. She swung into such a position that the Lehigh, Arthur Orr and Mohawk, also huge freighters, were blocked.

The Jupiter defied a fleet of tugs to pull her off the tunnel, while minutes ran into hours, and the ceptains became frantic. When it seemed that all hope of clearing the river harbor before the allotted time had gone, the captain of the Lehigh decided on a desperate plan. He ordered his crew to push the Jupiter ever with his own vessel. Slowly the Lehigh moved until her prow came against the Jupiter, and then with puffing and splashing the big iners creaked and the Jupiter slid over. The race for the lake began with the captains holding their watches and blowing whistles for bridges. At ex-actly 11.58 the Orr, the last of the steamers passed the two-nile crib, and all had complied with the lakes insur-

Particulars of the Wreck of the Steamer Raleigh.

No Life Seen on Board the Vessel This Morning.

Efforts of Crew to Reach the Snore.

Buffalo despatch; At 8 a.m. this morning the steamer Raleigh, blown upon the rocks off Sherkston, Ont., yesterday, could still be seen among the breakers a quarter of a mile off shore, but there was no sign of life on the wreck to indicate that Engineer Wm. Pritchard was still alive. The body of the other vietims of the wreck, Fred Wise, a sailor, and his wife, Mrs. Wise, the steamer's cook, were washed ashore last night and it was reported that a third body had been tossed up on the beach two miles below the scene of the wreck. Members of the crew have started down the beach to ascertain if the third body is that of Engineer Pritchard. The storm is still raging, and it seems likely the Raleigh raging, and it seems likely the Rateigh may break up at any time.

The third victim was picked up later last night half a mile east of the wreck, according to G. B. Snyder, of Ridgeway. Dr. Snyder said last night that the man had not been identifitd, but that it was believed he was one of the crew of the Raleigh. At 3 o'clock the crew, with the excep-tion of Pritchard, decided that it would be safer to start for shore in the small boats than to risk being washed .. way when the vessel began breaking up. The first boat which left the ship contained seven of the crew and was in charge of the second mate. They were badly but feted during the short trip to the beach and just as they were nearing safety the little craft was boarded by a nigh sea and swamped. Meanwhile the beach was patrolled by men watching the outcome of the at tempt to reach shore, and these, wading into the surf, lent willing hands in pulling the half-drowned survivors to the beach.

The second boat, containing Captain Beauvais, the mate, and the cook and stewardess, who were drowned, left the vessel half an hour afterward only to be swamped in the whirl of surf which edged the beach. It was here that Cook Wise and his wife were lost. The rescuers started into the surf, but arrived.

About twenty minutes after the cap-tain's boat had left the vessel the steamr's stern broke off.

Men were standing by on the beach with huge fires alight all night watching for a favorable opportunity to get Pritchard off. At midnight marine men said they were powerless to go to ti: man's as-sistance because the seas were so high that the boat could not live. It is said that there is only one tug, the Frank W., owned by the Great Lakes Towing Co., of Cleveland, which is seaworthy enough to put out, and it was not ex-pected that an attempt would be made to reach him before morning unless the wind abated. The cargo of pulpwood in the vessel it is believed will buoy the steamer up considerably. Captain Beauvais, the mate and the seven men in the first boat are being cared for at Abraham Bear's farm house near Shiscer's

Father of Trusts Dissolved for Good.

Control Vested in Numerous Subsidiary Concerns.

New York, Dec. 4 .- The career of the "oil trust" officially came to an end to-day. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, sometimes called the father of the trusts, and perhaps the most celebrated corporation in the surf fairs as the holding company of more than thirty corporations in various lost branches of the oil business. Beginning to-morrow, these subsidiaries, which under the decree of the Umical States Supreme Court must conduct independently the various enterp. ises, will assume entire management of their own affairs. The oil trust theoretically passed out or existence on August 31, when the books containing the records of the company stockholders were close i for distribution of the scool of the subsidiaries, but during the intervening period of readjustment it was necessary to preserve the old form to a large extent. Now the work of disintegration has been completed, the stock issues representing the subsidiaries will pass into the mands of owners of old

London, Dec. 4.—Reports reaching here from the steamship Medina, which is conveying King George and Queen Mary to the Indian durbar, indicate that the distinguished passengers had an extremely rough passage through the Bay of Biscay.

The sea, which is usually rough in the bay, was uncommonly turbulent, and a portion of the Queen's apartments was flooded. Queen Mary was forced to vacate hastily, and take up her quarters in the special storm cabin with a swinging cot, but the King, who is a good sailor, continued to occupy his usual cabin.

The Medina, which has proved herself a good sea vessel, suffered less than the convoying warships, which were severely buffeted by the gale. Several of them sustained damage to boats and railings, and the King, appreciating the difficul-ties under which they were laboring, ordered them to steam ahead of the

Had a Busy Day in Toronto Betore Leaving.

Received Warm Welcome at Hamilton.

Torento despatch: Toronto's formal in roduction to the new Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught, and to the Duchess of Connaught was made complete yesterday. The Royal train left Toronto at 11.15 last night, and after spending most of the night on a specially guarded siding at Islington, was conveyed to Hamilton, where it is due to arrive about noon.

Their Royal Highnesses' visit was concluded when the Toronto Club entertained the Duke at a most claborate dinner, while the Duchess spent the evening at the Royal Alexandra Theorem at the work of the Markey witnessing a performance of "H M. atre, witnessing a performance of "H. M. S. Pinafore." The theatre was specially decorated for the Duchess.

The morning was spent by the Duke and Duchess visiting a number of the public schools and St. Andrew's Colega. They went first to Queen Alex-andra School in Broadview avenue, thence to Riverdale Collegiate, and to Morley street, where His Royal High-ness turned the first sod for the new Connaught school. Chairman Levee of the school board and Inspector Hughes accompanied the party to Government House. At the Riverdale high school Senior Principal Embree and Principal Senior Principal Embree and Principal Michel received the party. At the turning of the sod fully eighteen hundred children were present. The spade was presented to the Duke by Trustee Hodgins. This spade, at the Duke's request, is to be used to decorate the walls of the new school when it is completed. RECEPTION AT HAMILTON.

A despatch from Hamilton, Ont., says A Prince and Princess of the royal blood were received as the city's guests to-day with all the loyal enthusiasm that thousands of cheering Hamiltonians could express as the illustrious visitors drove through the city streets; with all the love and featty that words could convey in addresses from the municipal corporation and representative organiza tions and with a demonstration of patri otism on the part of young Canada, as represented in thousands of school boys and girls, that furnished a splendid and inspiring spectacle.

It was a notable welcome, indeed, that Hamilton accorded the Duke and Duch ess of Connaught this morning. dreds of factory whistles snrieked a wel-come as the royal train swung around the bend at the western city limits, while scores of belis were pealing out a greet-ing by the time the big mogul engine poked its nose through the eastern end of the tunnel, and a minute later rolled up to the T., H. & B. station. Hundreds of boys from the city school battalions, who lined both sides of James street. who lined both sides of James street, north to Main street, cheered wildly and waved flags frantically, as the royal soaches were sighted, and started a demonstration that was taken up by the thousands who surrounded the station, extended down James street and clear around the route of the procession. Their Royal Highnesses time and again gave evidence of their satisfaction with the warmth of their welcome.

Fruit Trees Ruined in Dunnville Orchard

Dunnville despatch: That he did malicionely injure the property of Frederick Sorge is the charge pending against David Steinman, a farmer here, as a result of the trip of Provincial Inspector Henry Reburn from Toronto. The offi-cer was called from the Department of Provincial Police to investigate the inprovincial ronce to investigate the in-jury done to twenty-four fruit trees. The bark had been peeled off with a knife, and Steinman is now charged with the offence. An information was laid before Magistrate S. W. Brown, who ally urned the case until Monday next. Steinman, who is about 65 years old. Steinman, who is about 65 years old, is alleged by the crown officers to have resented the prosecution recently by Sorge of his friend, John Miller.

Reduced Number of Immigrants Coming This Year.

Supply of Foreign Labor Sufficient for U.S. Needs.

New York, Dec. 4.-Herbert Francis Sherwood, in discussing the ebb and flow of immigration in the Review of Reviews for December, says that little attention is given to the fact that in the course of the year which is just closing a marked change occurred in the move-ment of immigration to this country.

"Between January 1 and September 30, 1911," he says, "450,670 persons land-ed on our shores from the third-class cabins of the trans-Atlantic liners. While some avident restrictionics might some ardent restrictionist might assert this total was large enough, yet it was less than two-thirds the number who came to us in the same class in the course of the corresponding period of last year.

"The exact falling off was $278,424, or "The exact falling off was $278,424, or 38.18 p.c."
Mr. Sherwood says: "The immigration to the Dominion of Canada for the first nine months of this year, in contrast to that of the United States was greater than for the corresponding period of last year, but the ebb was only 18.12 p.c. of the flow. This, it will be recalled, is about 12 p.c. below the average for the United States. It, however, was 6 per about 12 p.c. below the average for the United States. It, however, was 6 per cent higher than that for the corresponding period of 1910.

"Only recently has the ebb and flow of immigration been accepted as a register of the condition of the labor market in the United States, or has it been recognized as obedient to the law of supply and demand. We now realize that this country has tapped a supply of labor which is sufficiently automatic in the expansion and contraction of its current xpansion and contraction of its current to meet the needs of a land subject to such fluctuating requirements as is our

Some of the Unionist leaders, including Austen Chamberlain and Walter Long, who favor the Conciliation iBilligiving women the right to vote under certain circumstances, are urging the members of their party who favor woman suffrage to abandon the cause claiming that the Government's promised Manhood Suffrage Bill will inevitably lend to adult woman suffrage, to which they are opposed.

ERIN'S SACRED PLACE

STORY OF GREEN ISLE AS TOLD IN HER GRAVES.

Beautiful Glasnevin Cemeterý in Dublin Where Repose the Remains of Her Immortal Patriots — Restless Spirits, Broken Hearts and Martyrs to an Idea Lie Under the Moss-

Much of the checkered history of Ireland during the 19th century is suggested by the political memorials which plentifully rise amid the calm gylvan beauty of pleasant Glasnevin, Dublin. This peaceful abode of serenity, with its rare natural attractions revealing themselves gradually through the fairy-like hase of a kindly Irish spring or summer day and the songbirds in tune in every secluded grove, is a worthy resting place for Ireland's honored dead. The principal standard bearers of her cause, the leaders in her long, and sometimes and grove, is a worthy reating place for Ireland's honored dead. The principal standard bearars of her cause, the leaders in her long, and sometimes almost despairing fight for national unity, here, on the bosom of their beloved "Kathleen ni Houlihan." find reat and blessed balm for their patient sufferings, their troubled lives, their ruined ambitions and their wasted hopes, and often enough their broken hearts.

The splendid pillar tower, beneath which is the crypt where sleeps the great "Liberator." Daniel O'Connell, rises high above the surrounding monuments, impressing the mind with a sense of appropriateness and of worthy tribute to Ireland's greatest son. No monument rises to mark the spot where Parnell, through darkness and despair and the ashes of a glorious career, found peace and rest, but the lonely impressiveness of the large expanse of grassy mound which marks the grave of the dead leader leaves an indelible mark on the memory.

Close to the crypt of O'Connell lies one of his most steadfast supporters before the advent of the Young Ireland party, Sir Charles Gavan Duffy. Living alternately between Italy and London his sole thought was Ireland and any project for assisting her cause was sure to find in him a zealous supporter in time and money. His history of the Young Ireland movement is the chief authority on the methods and aims of the men of '48.

Every political movement in Ireland has had its bard—sometimes even a

Every political movement in Ireland has had its bard—sometimes even a definite school of poetry, as in the '48 definite school of poetry, as in the '48 movement — to sing its aspirations in thrilling verse out of hearts overflowing with love of country and devotion to her cause. In a prominent part of the cemetery rests John Keegan Casey, the son of a peasant, who, working in Dublin as a clerk, was attracted to the Fenian movement, became one of its active members, and sang its political desires and hopes of freedom in definit and stirring halfreedom in defiant and stirring bal-lads of simple language, which reach-ed and roused the hearts of the people where more ornate and polished verse would have failed. The movement failed chiefly through the procrastina-tion and wavering hesitation of lames stephens, its chief organizer, but it owed a great deal of its strength to the author of "The Rising of the Moon," "and many soul-stirring ballads and songs," to quote the inscription on the beautiful Celtic cross errected over his grave by the Vonge received over his grave by the Young Ireland Society. He was a political prisoner in 1867 and died in 1870 before he had reached the age of 34. "His last words were a prayer of intercession for his country's liberty and his soul's salvation."

and his soul's salvation."

Ireland owes much to her songsters and it is fitting that the greatest of her poets, the unhappy James Clarence Mangan, should find his last resting place in the midst of her honored dead. Mangan inevitably suggests a close parallel with Edgar Allan Poe in the melancholy gloom which overshadowed their lives, in the regrettable tendency to seek oblivion by drowning their senses and their genius in strong drink, in the fatal similarity of their end, but, above all, in the haunting rhythm above all, in the haunting rhythm and nameless charm which distinguish the immortal verse of both. Mangan died of cholera in a public hospital in Dublin at the age of 46, and would have filled a public serve had would in Dublin at the age of 46, and would have filled a pauper's grave had not ore of the noted Plunkett family placed his burial place at the disposal of the authorities.

And what thrilling memories are evoked as we stand by the grave of heroic Anne Devlin—"The faithful servant of Robert Emmet," so the simple epitaph reads. Housekeeper for Emmet during the dangerous time when his insurrectionary plot was hatching, she was arrested after the fiasco of July 23, 1803, tortured and frightfully maltreated by the brutal yeomanry who prodded her with their bayonets in the arms and shoulders until she was covered with blood, and bayonets in the arms and shoulders until she was covered with blood, and afterwards half hanged her on the shafts of a car converted into a gallows. This young woman of barely 26 neither then nor afterwards during the long years of cruel imprisonment allowed an incriminating word of Emmet and his associates to escape her lips. In her later life this noble example of heroic womanhood was a common washerwoman living in a common washerwoman, living in a miserable hovel, unnoticed and unknown, and as her epitaph reads she "lived in obscurity and poverty and so died" in 1851

"lived in obscurity and poverty and so died" in 1851.

The fine cross of Celtic design over the untermeted grave of the "Manchester martyrs," Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, with its simple inscription giving the names and stating that they were "hanged at Manchester and buried there in the jai! November 23, 1867," gives convincing proof that the people were ready if properly led to fight desperately for their independence. Whatever may have been the merits of the crown case at their trial, it appears certain that several petitions of English origin, and influentially signed, were addressed to the Covernment praying for a reprieve tially signed, were addressed to the Covernment praying for a reprieve and that Mrs. Annie Besant, the famous theosophist, publicly protested in the court against the unfairness of the trial. Their joint prayer, after the dread sentence of death had been pronounced, "God save Ireland," was the inspiration of one of T. D. Sullivan's most stirring ballads.

AN EGYPTIAN WOMAN Loads In Establishing Refi For Her Countrywemen.

For Her Countrywemen.

Every eye is now turned on Turkey, and, while Egypt is under the protection of England, the majority of its people are akin to the Turka Bahiast al-Badia is said to be the most popular woman of her race in Egypt. She has taken part in various movements to help Egyptian women.

At a recent congress she delivered an address setting forth the needs of the Mohammedan women and calling on the members of the congress to support laws to help them. The congress voted in favor of six of the reforms she proposed—that every girl should receive a common school education, that in every school there should be an educated woman to teach the girls goods manners and the rudiments of religion, that as soon as practical a university school should be established for women, that a physician and a nurse to aid women in childbirth should be maintained in every city and village, that special schools be established where girls should be taught housekeeping and the care of children and that the hiring of women to stand about a bier and beat their heads and faces at funerals be forbidden.

When Bahisat-al-Badia proposed that the women of Egypt should be allowed to attend the mosque, pointing out that this privilege had been enjoyed by Turkish women for years, there was an uproar in the congress. When she tried to have the question of polygamy discussed there was a great tumult, every member of the congress objecting.

Romance of Radium

British attempts to produce radium have met with considerable success. Mr. Francis Fox, who is chairman of the British Radium Corporation, states: "It was in 1843 the Trenwith Mine, at St. Ives, was proved to contain pitchblende, much to the detriment of the corporation is the proper. mine, at St. Ives, was proved to contain pitchblende, much to the detriment of the copper, and it was practically impossible for the miners to separate them. The mine was closed, and remained derelict until three or four years ago, when I was asked to join a company for working tin. On reading the papers I came across the word pitchblende, and I told the company that in this particular mine they should make it the abject of their quest. This they did, and on searching the waste heaps they found large lumps of this valuable mineral. I then communicated with Sir William Ramsay, who became the company's scientific adviser. Other eminent men all appreciated the great importance of securing a regular supply of radium from within our own borders. We hear occasionally of other ders. We hear occasionally of other ders. We hear occasionally of other sources of supply, but up to now none of them seem worthy of much attention. Our scientific advisers have strongly urged us to confine our attention entirely to pitchblende, being so far the only reliable source of radium from a commercial point of view. At Trenwith, we have, I believe, an assured supply for some years to come."

King Edward and France.

A very notable ceremony took place recently in Paris, when a bust of the late King Edward VII., presented to the British Chamber of Commerce in Paris by its president, was unveiled by the British Ambassador, Sir Francis Burtin In the Commerce in Paris In the Commerce of the commerce of Paris by its president, was unveiled by the British Ambassador, Sir Francis Bertie. In the course of his speech the ambassador said:

"His late Majesty always felt himself at home in this brilliant capital, and, indeed, in any part of France. He had a great admiration for the arts and sciences of this country, and highly appreciated the attractive qualities of the French people. They in their turn were drawn towards him by his invariable urbanity of manner and his sympathetic nature. They looked upon him, as he indeed was, as a good and sincere friend. He was a great King, and our French friends join with us in mourning the loss which we have sustained by his loss which we have sustained by his death."

Mixed Metaphor In the Commons. Mixed Metaphor In the Commons.

Major Archer Shee's wonderful sentence, "Even the Stygian eloquence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer has not been able to wash the white elephant entirely," would certainly have to figure in a new budget of "Misfortunes in Metaphor,' by Sir Henry Lusy. Irishmen naturally contributed to the selection he gave thirty years to the selection he gave thirty years ago. There was Mr. O'Connor Power's "Mr. Speaker, sir, the Government have let the cat out of the bag, there have let the cat out of the bag, there is nothing to be done but to take the buil by the horns." But two English members gave the collector a double event one night. Alderman Cotton remarked: "At one stage of the negotiations a great European struggle was so imminent that it only required a spark to let slip the dogs of war"; and Mr. Forster began a peroration with "I will, Mr. Speaker, sit down by saying—"

Blind Swimmers.

It is a standing puzzle that all blind swimmers are able to hold an almost perfectly straight course for very conperfectly straight course for very considerable distances, though no more guidance is given to them than some species of call or whistle coming from the winning goal. A blind man, in tact, desiring to go in a straight line possesses the curious power of being able to do so almost exactly. An English mayor instituted a series of contests in an open lake between blind men and ordinary ones of about equal skill and strength, and the result was marvelous so far as the straight steering of the blind was concerned.—London Globe.

Sterne Borrowed It. There are many persons who think the sentene "He tempers the wind to the shorr land" is to be found in the Bible. I would search the Bi-ble pretty thoroughly before you would find that sentence in it. Where would find that sentence in it. Where you would find it would be in Sterne's "Sentimental Journey." Sterne gets a good deal of praise for the origination of this sentence, but it was originated, as a matter of fact, before he was born. In a collection of French proverbs published in 1594 we find, "Dieu mesure le vent a la brebistondue."

Which is Your Choice?

Sloppy, leaky wooden troughs, or clean, durable Concrete?

Wooden drinking troughs are about as reliable as the weather. They are short-lived and require re-

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION

LESSON X1.-DEC. 10. 1911.

Nehemiah and His Enemies.—Neh 6: 1-19.

Commentary.—I. A plot against Nehemiah (vs. 1-4). I. It came to pass—These exents belong to the period of the rebuilding of the walls, particularly to the time when the work was nearly completed. Sapballat.—A leading officer among the Samaritans. His authority was received from the Persian Government. He was bitter in his opposition to the Jews in their efforts to build up the Jewish nation. Tobiah.—An Ammonite, who was a man of influence, and who was associated with Sanballat in his hostility to the Jews. Geshem.—A bitter enemy of Nehemiah and his people. He is mentioned in verse 6 under the name Gashmu. Had not set up the doors—It is probable that the work of putting the doors in place was left until the walls were completed, the openings in the walls being closed temporarily with some sort of barricade. In this way there would be no delay in building the walls being closed temporarily with some sort of barricade. In this way there would be no delay in building the walls, and the city would the sooner be protected. 2. Let us meet together—Nehemiah and his fellow Jews had been subjected to ridicule by their enemies (ch. .; 2, 3), they had been threatened (ch. 4; 11), and now a effort was being made through deception to bring Nehemiah into the power of his enemies to do him injury. The pretense of Sanballat was that he wished to hold a consultation with Nehemiah upon matters of interest to both. In the plain of Ono—A region about thirty miles northeast of Jerusalem. "An interview in the plain Commentary .- I. A plot against Neregion about thirty miles northeast of Jerusalem. "An interview in the plain of Ono would have necessitated Nehemiah's absence from Jerusalem during three or four days. The object of his enemies was doubtless to seize or to assassinate him at a distance rfom Jeru "-Ryle. Thought to do me mis-The enemies of the Jews recognized the fact that Nehemiah was the now erful leader among the Jews and a great victory would be won if they could only destrey h m. 3. I am doing a great work... I cannot come down—Nehemiah real ized the largeness of the task upon which he had entered and felt that his duty was in Jerusalem, rather than "in the plain of Ono." Why should the work cease—The work of rebuilding the walls was too great and too important to be allowed to stop, and it certainly would have been carried on with less vigor in the absence of Nehemiah, if it had nat ceased entirely. Nehemiah was wise enoguh to know that Sanballat was plan-ning his destruction, but he was too enogun to know that canbains was pissing his destruction, but he was too wise to le Sanballat know that he knew it. 4. Yet—"And."—R. V. Four times— This indicated Sanballat's eagerness, to gain his point. Answered them after the same manner—Instead of weakening, eN-hemiah maintained his same decision of purpose and showed himself to be a

II. A false accusation (vs. 5-9), 5. An open letter—It was customary to fold a letter and seal it, when sending it to another, or, if special respect was to be shown to the person addressed, the let-ter was enclosed in a silken bag. To send an open letter to another was to show great disrespect to him.
6. It is reported—Nehemial had braved ridicule, had disragarded threats had withstood blandishments, and nov he was to be the victim of misrep:cser-tation. In our day almost anything can be "reported," and it was true also in Sanballat's time. Among the heathen— "Among the nations."—R. V. and Gashmu saith it—Gashmu was a bitter en-emy of Nehemiah. He was not oly bitter, but conscienceless. His train of bearers of unfounded reports has been numerous since his day, and some still survive. Think to rebel—This malicious falsehood was designed to terrify Nehemiah, and to turn the Jews ngainsi him on the ground that he desired to become king. Mayest be their king — Nehemiah had no such purpose. He held the office of governer, conferred by the Persian government, and was faithful in the discharge of the office and was satisfied. According to these words According to the report given above.

7. To preach of thee—There is no dealst that there were prophets in Jerusalem who spoke highly of Nehemiah, but the report contained in the open letter was without foundation. "Sanballat suggests, (1) that Nehemiah had bribed prophets to support him, and (2) that their support as of a treasonable nat-ure."—Com. Bible. Take counsel —Sanballat appeared greatly interested in Nehemiah's welfare, and he had made a strong appeal to him. 8. Thou feignest them—Nehemiah was bold to declare, and only that the reports were untrue, but also that they had their origin in the heart of Sanballat. 9. For they all would have made us afraid (R. V.)—It was the purpose of the enemies of the Jews to frighten them, so that they would not be able to build the wall of Jerusalem. Strengthen my hands — In vie w of all the opposition arrayed against him, Nehemiah made his prayer to God for strength. The words, "O God," are not in the Hebrew text and the marginal reading of the Revised Version is, "I will strengthen my hands. III. Enemies within the city (v. 10-19).

10. Shemajah-He was professedly a ophet of the Lord. Who was shut up He feigned to be in fear of Sanballat and the other enemies, and seems to have imprisoned himself in his own house to show how much he was affaid.— Whedon. Within the temple Shemaiah Whedon. Within the temple—Shemaiah proposed that he and Nehemiah should ge into the sacred place where only priests mightenter, that there they might find safety. Come to slay thee—Shemaiah sought to make Nehemiah afraid by telling him this falsehood. Had Nehemiah yielded to the request of Shemaiah, thus showing cowardice, he would have lost his influence with the would have lost his influence with the dows and great discouragement and weakness would have come to them. Satar is not particular as to the methods employed in gaining his ends. He is satisfied to take advantage of circumstances or of human weaknesses to urge his cause, Sanballat's attack upon Nehe dah well illustrates Satan's attack upon

God's people.
11. Should such a man as I fice-Nehemiah was the governor and leader of his people, a man with a clear head and strong heart, to whom was com-mitted a preat work. It would have been utterly inconsistent with his nature to try to save blasself and let his people be swallowed up by their enemies. There was no cowardice in Nehemiah to which Sanballat or Shemaiah could appeal. I will not go in—His reply was prompt and positive. Nehemiah was a stalwart man of God. Hesaw clearly the path of duty. He had no occasion to argue the case with Shemaiah. Although She-maiah came to him under the guise of riendship, Nehemiah discerned that hisf advice was wrong.

12. God had not sent him-He was a 12. God had not sent him—He was a false prophet. Pronounced this prophecy against me—Instead of giving the prophecy for the good of Nehemiah, he had sought to destroy him by it. Had hired him—He was a hireling prophet. Professing to be the prophet of the Lord, he had prostituted the office to the basest ends. 13.19 Shemyich was not asest ends. 13-19. Shemaiah was not alone in this plot. Other prophets were implicated. In spite of all opposition the walls were completed in the incredibly short space of fifty-two days. The completion of the work caused the ene-mies to be downcast, and they even came to understand that this work was of God.

Question .- What report did Sanballat and other enemies of the Jews hear? What invitation did Sanballat and Tobiah send to Nehemiah? What was their purpose? What answer did Nehe-miah make? How many times was the invitation sent? What was the significance of sending an open letter What were the two principal charges contained in the letter? What was Nehemiah's reply to the letter? What effort did Shemaiah make? What did Nehemiah learn about Shemaiah?

PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic.-Devotion to duty. I. Broubht greater tests upon Nehe

II. Brought defeat to the enemies of

I. Brought greater tests upon Nehe miah. We have in this lesson the persistency of opposition in various forms from the enemies of Nehemiah and the Jews, and the persistency of endeavor by Nehemiah in the completion of the wall around Jerusalem, Nehemiah was a model man of business, a mo earnestness, unselfishness, faithfulness and piety—a good man in a great work. He had a fixed design and pursued a steady course. No specious pretense could call him from his work. He lost no time in rebuilding the ruined wall. He sought to keep up the quickened and responsive zeal of the people. His patriotism was strong because it was based upon true piety. He kept at prayer. He kept at work amid all the inducements to do otherwise. He was careful to ascertain facts, to plots ,to weigh evidence, to examine character and to balance circumstances that he might arrive at the truth. Faith and prayer and work had achieved great things in Jerusalem. To the en-emies of God's people it was a time of vexation and dismay. In spite of their would be lost for them. They had at-tempted force all to no profit. They next resolved upon strategy, but Ne-hemiah was still fortified by a good conscience and possessed-his soul in patience while they beset him with their wiles and accusations. "He looked on the field of danger with the eye of an eagle and walked over it with the heart of a lion." His enemies first sought to draw him into the country under pretense of counsel. Failing in their endeavors to drive Nehemiah from his work they further attempted to ascribe evil motives to his work. Wicked reports were propagated. They tried to intimidate him and urged him to seek refuge in the temple. Nehemiah had to hear the gossip but refused to flee from it or give it attention. He had only denied that such things were true, but said they were reported with-out uathority. He was better known at court than to be thus suspected. He would not omit duty merely for fear his motives should be misco kept a good conscience and trusted God to protect his good name. Every effort to draw him away from duty only quickened him to greater diligence.

II. Brought defeat to the enemics of Judah. It was the cessation of the work that Nehemiah's enemics aimed at. They would get bim to go anywher only so he left his work. They tried four times to prevent the completion of Nehemiah's work. His integrity and innocence preserved him, while his ene mies suffered the humiliation of those who boast of their power and then fee themselves completely defeated by the people whose might they had despised. It was a cruel thrust at Nehemiah to cause him of seeking position for him-self and not the honor of God, and his own exaltation more than the prosperity of Zion. Nehemiah commended the whole case to the direction of God. He was not overcome by the treachery, ingratitude or perserverness of those around him. Prayer was Nehemiah's commonest resource and God his con-stant helper. Nehemiah considered his relation to God, his obligation to him, his expectation from him and the in-terest which God himself had in the terest whole plan before him. As he was doing expected to be kept in safety withour neglecting his work to save his life False brethren were the severest trial to Nehemiah. The rage of his proseto Nehemiah. cutors though terrible was not as dan gerous as their professed friendship and of his countrymen the false advice Having pure motives and a clean heart enabled Nehemiah to act and speak in a way to bring him complete triumphi over all artifice, intimidation, ridicule over all artifice, intimidation, ridicule and deceit from his enemies. They despaired of every doing the Jews the mischief they had designed against them. This was the hour of Israel's triumph and the humiliation of her enemies. Nehemiah attained the full vic tory of finishing the fall around Jerus alem. Victory gained under such diffi-culties served to establish confidence varieting words the good work had adventies served to establish confidence vanced and unless they could quickly and faith among the people who had crush it they plainly saw that all been well-nigh defeated. Montreal—At the Canadian Pacific
Live Stock Market the receipts of live stock were for the week ending Nov. 25:
3,500 cattle, 3,550 sheep and lambs, 2,600 hows, and 750 waives. The offerings on the market to-day were $50 cattle, 1800 sheep and lambs, 90 hogs and 250 calves.
As the supply of cattle was much smaller, a steady feeling prevalled in the market, and prices show no important change. There were no really choice stock on the market, therefore the top prices paid were only for the best, and do not indicate that the market was any lower. The demand was only fair, as showers generally were well supplied with stock, consequently the trade was rather slow, but at the close but few were left over. The demand for sheep and lambs was good, and as the supply was fair the market was fairly active, with no chanke in prices to note. An easier feeling developed in the market for hogs.
Prices scored a further decline of 10c per cwt. At this reduction the demand was fair from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $5.40 to $5.59 per cwt. The demand for calves was good.

BRADSTREET'S PEPORT.

Montreal reports to Bradstreet's say the past week has seen some increase in the volume of business moving at re-tail ,and further interest is being displayed in sorting lines of winter goods. Wholesalers are also busy on holiday shipments. The demand for staple commodities compares well with the same season in previous years and the total turnover of business for December promises to be heavy. The port is practically closed for the year.

Toronto reports to Bradstreet's say all lines of trade report an excellent movement of seasonable and staple lines. If the cow has been properly fed there will be no necessity of giving any mediine after calving. A bran mash over which some water has been poured is a very acceptable feed, especially in cold-weather. Ground out; mixed with grain and a pail of warm water can be given, for it will be found that her feverish and exhausted condition at this time demands considerable water, and it is much better to be given warm than cold. She should not be exposed to cold draughts of air.

The udder of a cow should be elastic and pliable, and show many folds when milked out. If it is symmetrical and well proportioned, as it should be, the teats will be about equal distance apart, and shooth and evenly shaped. A large udder does not always indicate that the cow is a good one, but it is imperative that her milk veins be large, and the more winding and branching they are the better. Though these veins do not carry milk, as one would naturally suppose, they convey blood from the udder to the body, and the more blood that passes through the udder the more milk the cow will give, in that milk is pro-duced from the blood.

Brewens grains are now in much greater demand than formerly, and are a far more valuable food than they appear. They are not considered so good for milk production as wet grains, but are far easier to handle. Before feeding to cows they should be soaked. Experiments go to should be soaked. Experiments go to prove that dried grains are a profitable food for fattening when used in conjunction with hay. With sheep also good results were obtained, and may replace hay, being more effective in saving roots. Their price is higher than formerly, but the value per food unit compares very favorably with other concentrated foods. At present they have an additional advantage in being bulky food when soaked in water.

The fertility of the soil can best be The fertility of the soil can best be-built up and held by feeding a large part of the crops and returning the manure-to the land. If it is not possible to get manure, plow under crops grawn for the purpose. There should be deep pleying, but no sub-soiling. Leguminous crops-should be grown for the nitrogen they give the soil.

The term "catch crop" applies to any crop that is not regularly planned for a certain field. That is to say, it is a crop put in where another crop has fail-

It is generally estimated that it costs a cent and a half to produce an egg at the present high price of grain. That is to say, if a hen lays 120 eggs in a year, which a good hen should do, it will cost $1.80 for her feed for the year. Should the hen lay less the proportionate cost of each eggs will be increased.

The following is recommended as a reliable condition powder for live stock. Two pounds of ground flaxseed as a base, in which mix five ounces of powbase, in which mix five ounces of pow-dered charcoal and one pound of comto the body, and the more blood that passes through the udder the more milk the cow will give, in that milk is produced from the blood.

The dry cow is usually the one that receives the least attention on the farm.

"You do well to leave your sentence unfinished. You will not harm a hair of my head, and you know it, Major Powerscourt. The Indian hero would hardly gain much credit in a victory over poor little me."

She left the room and went up to her own — a luxuriant approach.

She left the room and went up to her own — a luxuriant apartment, brilliantly lighted. But once slone, and the insolent smile faded, the fair face turned hard and drawn, the black eyes took a fierce, bitter light. "Will you sit down, Major Powerscourt?" the little beauty said, waving one richly ringed hand airily toward a chair. "You have a great deal to say to me, I dare say, and it will be much more comfortable to say it sitting than standing. How is Lieutenant Trevanion now? Poor fellow! I am really very sorry for him. ### LENGTHENING LIFE.

The increase in population during re death rate. This has resulted directly from the applications of science to medi-cine and hygiene and indirectly from the imprived conditions of living which sci-ence has made possible. In all civilized ence has made possible. In all civilized countries the birth rate is now smaller than the death rate was formerly. But the death rate cannot decrease indefi-nitely; it has indeed possibly reached in Great Britain a lower level than can be Great Britain a lower level than can be maintained. A death rate of 16 per thousand in a stationary population means that the average length of life is over 60 years, and as one-fourth of those who die are under five yeards of ago the average age at death of those surviving infancy would be about 80 years. Odd as it may appear at first sight, the decreased death rate of a country such as Great Britain is largely due to a decreated. Great Britain is largely due to a de-creasing birth rate combined with an increasing population. Such conditions give a population in which there are fewer children under five and fewer old people over sixty, in which groups the death rate is about 60 per thousand, whereas between the ages of 5 and 35 it below 5. In France there are fewer children than have ever existed in any population, which reduces the death rate: but there are more old peopletwice as many as in Great Britain. It should also be remembered that the death rate of those over 45 has increased continually, owing mainly to the keep-ing alive of weakly people at earlier ages.—The Popular Science Mouthly

ENGINES ON FISHING BOATS. Used on Few of the Larger Vessels But on All the Smaller Ones,

Out of the fifty large fishing smack Out of the fifty large fishing smacks hailing from this port, schooners of from 40 to 120 gross tons, only three have auxiliary engines. On the other hand, of the sixty or more of smaller craft, sloops and schooners of from two or three up to twenty or thirty tons, belonging here and in neighboring New York and New Jersey waters and coming to the Fulton wholesale fish market, almost every one now has a kicker installed.

The big boats with the three exceptions noted still rely solely on sail power, though they may take a tow from Fulton Market slip to the Battery when they go to sea and a tow from the Battery up when they come in The smaller boats, almost without exception equipped with gasoline engines, may make entire trips without hoisting a sail. If the wind is light or the tide against them they don't wait, they just start their engine and mosey right along. Of course their trips are shoretr.

It is more of a job to put an engine into a big vessel than into a small one. Most of the larger vessels now in commission were built before gasoline engines had come into their present wide gines had come into their present wide use. A hundred ton schooner would take an engine of 100 or 120 horse-power, which would take up some room. So for one reason and another not many of the larger boats have thus far been pro-vided with power. But it is the general vided with power. But it is the general opinion around Fulton Market that big new schooners which may be brought out in the futrue will be equipped with auxiliary engines.

A few of the big boats now carry a power dory or a boat a little bigger than a dory, like a seine boat, equipped with a gasoline engine. This power dory is carried on the schooner's deck for use as a handy boat on occasion. They may use it for towing boats loaded with seines or they may use it for the picking up and quicker rbinging in of men out up and quicker rbinging in of men out fishing in dories to tow them in. On at least one occasion a power dory has been used to tow the schooner itself.

A schooner captain who was out for bluefish but who was now becalmed where there wasn't a sign of a blue, caught sight about nightfall of a schooner about a dozen miles away that was in the midst of a school of them. So he got his power launch overboard with a towline made fast to the schooner and started towline. er and started towing, and he made a mile or two an hour through the night, to bring up in the morning where the blues were and to get a full catch.

THE FOOD QUESTION

Collier's (Canadian edition) of August 26th contains an article entitled "West The people of Westfield, Mass., woke up to the fact that they were not getting pure food or pure material for use in food. A delightful concoction known as a tart proved to be puff-paste made with alum, with a jully centre dyed with coal tar with a jelly-centre dyed with coal tar. The article goes on to say: "So little baking powder is used in some homes that this product would seem comparatively unimportant. But a great deal of baking powder, however, is used in the hought cake, and his with and a the bought cake and biscuits, and a great deal of this is adulterated." The adulteration may be by ammonia, which is fraudulent, but not injurious, or by alum, which is decidedly injurious, as it hardens the tissues of the mucous membranes. As a precautiou look at level and see if ingredients are stated. Betand see if ingredients are stated. Better square it if alum or semetaling that looks take alum (such as alumina) is one of them, or if the ingredients are not stated by the manufacturer it will be well to select some other.

be well to select some other brand Jams, jellies, catsups, confections, gelatine, dessert powders, flavoring ex-tracts are often colored with coal-tar dyes. These dyes are sometimes harm less, but very frequently injurious, de-pending on the particular combination. There is one bottle of Creme de Menthe at the Normal School which contains coal-tar dye sufficiently poisonous to have killed two people. The bottle is almost full, but the small amount used caused the death of a man and his wife and then the product was sent for an alysis. ### WINDOWS IN MANILA.

WINDOWS IN MANILA.

Perhaps in no other country in the world are conchas used as a substitute for window glass. These shells are flat, nearly round, and average four inches in diamteer. The edges are trimmed off, so as to leave panes about three inches square, and these are set in narrow strips of wood. The shells are of course translucent rather than transparent, and the result is a soft, opaiescent light, very agreeable in a country where the glare nary glas were used. To obtain the of the sky would be intolerable if ordinaximum window openings the sashes are made to slide horizontaly onl wide silis of hard wood in a manner similar to that adopted by the Japanese. (Special.—Postmaster F. Tippins, of this place, who for three years has been more or less of an invalid, and who for some time was confined to his bed, is up and around again, a healthy and hearty man. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

"After recovering from an attack of Grippe," the Postmaster says, in telling the story of his cure, "I took a pain in my back and I suffered for nearly three years, finally getting so bad that I was confined to my bed.

"One day I told my wife to go and get me some Dodd's Kidney Pille, as that would be the last medicine I would try. After using about half the box I began to feel better, so I kept on taking them. When I had taken two boxes I was able to get up, and ten boxes cured me completely."

The principal danger of Grippe is the after effects. The way to guard against this is strengthen the Kidneys so they can strain all the dregs of the disease out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills are always the last medicine anyone takes for Kidney Disease. It always

HOLLAND'S ARMY.

Although Holland has jumped in the space of ten years from an appropriation of $,000,000 itorins, or about $12,000,000, for the maintenance of her army, the end is not yet. The second chamber of the States General has been discussing for some weeks past a bill proposed by the Miristry for the remodelling of the entire military system. It proposes to increase the number of men drawn annually by lot for service in the army from 17,600 to 23,500.

In order to minimize the burden on the industrial population it is proposed to reduce the period of liability for aceive service from eight to six years. The annual levy will be called to arms in two parts, the first section consisting of the remainder. The first section will remain eight months and a half with the colors; the rest only for four months; A system of gymnastic instruction for the youth of the country is to be substituted for "preparatory military instruction," which is a feature of the offer system. A corps of military workmen numbering 1,500 is to be organized to give special auxiliary services whenever the same and the Ministry is supported in segard to it by the majority composed of the ultra-Protestant group, the Catholics and the moderate Liberals, Domocrab and Socialists, but its passage is assuree.

The national budget contemplates aparts and Socialists, but its passage is assure.

and Socialists, but its passage is assured.

The national budget contemplates appropriations of 22:200,000 florins, with estimated revenue of 20:2,000,000. There is therefore on the surface a deficit of 20.000,000 florins or about $8,000,000. However, 11,000,000 florins or thereabout of the appropriations may be classified as extraordinary and by some ither paring and pruning the Finance Minister expects to reduce the actual shortage on the year's expenses to about $,000,000 florins, or about $2,400,000. Even this is not regarded by critics of the Government as è very brilliant showing for a preserous country which is planning to increase its army.

SOME INVENTION.

A New Jersey man has utilized a modern invention and made it a great labor saving device. He bought a vac uum cleaner for his wife to use around the house. He raises broilers for the market and conceived the idea of mak ing the vacuum cleaner pick the feathers from the chickens. He set the machine to grinding at full speed, and rubbed the nozzle over a broiler. Even the pin feathers were removed and no singeing neded. Then he thought he would save the feathers, and in place of the bag to receive the dust he tied pillow easings to the receiving end of the tube. This plan worked well, too, and he can pick his broilers and make feather nillows at his broilers and make feather pillows at the same time. If his plan lowers the price of broilers the chicken man will reeive the thanks of a grateful public .-From the Utica Press.

FOR FOOD THOUGHT

Who pays the enormous expense of those show-rooms in our towns and cities? Is it not the people who buy pianos there? Why buy from them when you can get just as good, and in many cases better, from me, delivered Free from the factory to your door? This is one of the reasons I can sell you a piano for less morley than you pay at any show-room. All kinds of instruments taken in exchange. We defy competition for the money in all grades. Get my prices before purchasing, for they are certainly very low for strictly high grade pianos

Also agent for Raymond, New Will iams, and New Home Sewing Machines. P. S.—Pianos sold on instalment plan
