The Faith of Hetty 'Ria.

Somewhat or other, said Hetty 'Ria to herself, I've got to do it. I, Hetty Maria Jessup, have got to straighten the Jessup family out. Ma's lost every bit of spunk she ever had since pa's got so bad, and the youngsters don't care whether they go to school or not, long with the boys and girls calling them 'Old Dan Jessup's kids. Oh dear me, it's almost too big a job for a girl!

Hetty 'Ria's head sunk forlornly upon her breast as she sat alone on the back steps of the rickety, rickety cottage she called home. She struggled with her troubles. Suddenly Hetty 'Ria sat up, pushed back the tangled hair with her chapped, tough hands, and rubbed her weary eyes.

'I wonder if He would jest wonder?' she questioned, gazing up into the clear sky as though she had expected an angel to appear with a golden trumpet and answer her. 'He cured the blind folks, deaf and dumb folks and even the awful leper folks. Surely He could cure pa, as, like, as if He didn't cure the dead ones, too, and make them all new! Course He can cure pa if he wants to. I wonder if He really wants to?' She pondered doubtfully for a minute, then she asked herself, 'Hetty Maria Jessup, what are you thinking about? Didn't He say, 'Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not.' Course He loves us, even if we ain't got nice clothes and shoes and things, perhaps He loves us all the more for that. Didn't I tell you, she addressed the sun, just slinking in the west, 'didn't I tell you 'twas too big a job for a little girl? But it ain't too big a job for a little girl and God to gether, I just guess. I'm going to get the youngsters to help, and will ask Him every single day for a week.

The idea took hold of the childish faith of the younger Jessups, as Hetty 'Ria gathered them around her and told of the wonderful things the Jesus to whom they were to pray could do. She taught them all, from lisping baby Jane to sturdy Ben, how to say the words of prayer. In Hetty 'Ria's greatest mind, a prayer, to be really and truly a prayer, must be said in church, and this part of the program seemed hard to manage. Hetty 'Ria always believed it was a part of the miracle that the very next afternoon, as she, with her brothers and sisters were coming home from school, they discovered the back door of the church ajar. Quickly and seriously, led by Hetty 'Ria, the little group entered, climbed the velvet carpeted stairs to the big room, and knelt in one of the pews. The man who played the organ always practiced every afternoon about this time, for that was the reason he entered the church. As the children wandered over the keys in a gentle soothing accompaniment to his thoughts.

The minister, tired from working on his sermon stole in from his study and took a seat in the church to listen. Suddenly a sound, other than the organ music, caught the minister's ears. It came from a nearby pew. He quietly changed his seat to discover whence came the sound. There he saw, kneeling in the pew, five childish forms, five reverent, little heads bowed upon the cushions, Hetty 'Ria's brown pig tails at one end, and baby Jean's sunny tangle of curls at the other. 'Jean must begin 'cause she's the littiest,' instructed Hetty 'Ria, very softly.

'Dear Jesus,' whispered the baby voice. 'Please won't you make my dear, kind papa like he used to be. Amen.'

'We'd be just awful glad, please,' piped out Nell's shrill voice, 'if you'd make pa over new like you did the paper men. Thank you, eh no, I mean Amen.'

'Ben's joyful, manly voice now chimed in. 'We're jest counting on You not going back on You word. Lord Jesus, cause Hetty 'Ria says if folks honest and true ask You for things that's right to have, You said You'd sure do 'em and Hetty 'Ria knows, for she heard the minister say it and we jest believe You'll do the right thing by pa and us. Amen.'

'It's jest the same thing I want too,' faltered Elizabeth's gentle voice. 'Jest to have our papa cured. And please hurry and do it right away.'

Hetty 'Ria's voice trembled a bit, as she closed. 'We don't know much about praying, dea. Lord Jesus, but we know it was you that said the children could come, and so we're believing You'll listen, even though we don't say it quite prayer like. We would be so much obliged if you could cure pa before Ben's birthday. It's a whole month yet. Amen.'

The minister sat as quiet as a mouse as five pairs of feet crept softly down the aisle and out of the door. Five pairs of wistful eyes looking back at the face of Christ in the great windows, as if they expected the lips to part and the Master's voice to speak to them.

'Dear Lord and Master,' murmured the minister reverently as he watched little Jean's golden head disappear through the door. 'Thou who canst make the dead to live, save this father, and Master, let me have a share in it.'

Hetty 'Ria lay awake that night until the clock struck the long, long years, wondering just how God would cure her father. She wondered if He might not send great throngs of white-robed angels down from Heaven to hover around him and keep the tempters from coaxing him to drink the poison that made him so unlike himself. She even thought that possibly the Garden of Eden, to stand with a flaming sword before Jim Mulcahy's saloon to keep such sorely tempted men as his father from going in. She thought and thought until her thinking changed to dreaming, and the air seemed full of angels, whose soft, gentle fingers soothed and comforted the tired, worried child in a dreamless slumber.

'I ever there was a message went straight up to God's throne,' said the minister at least a dozen times the next day, 'I'm sure the prayer of those babies did. The father to children of such great faith is surely worth saving.' Not only did he say this a dozen times, but he said it to as many as a dozen people, who were stirred to their hearts' core, lost little time in repeating it. It was remarkable how many men remembered within the next few days that they had jobs about their houses or stores that they had forgotten to do. It was even more wonderful, to Dan Jessup at least, that well dressed respectable business men should take the trouble to stop him on the street and take him by the hand in greeting.

'Anybody I'd,' said Dan to himself, 'that I'd fallen heir to a big fortune, y the fuss they're making. What's the matter with me, I wonder. I'm just the same old bum I was last week when they hurried past with their heads turned the other way for fear I'd ask them for a dime to buy a glass of beer.'

Nevertheless, to some continued surprise, people did take occasion to speak to him and offer him jobs of fixing sidewalks or storm doors, treating him like a gentleman, while he was doing his work, and never failing to seem to Dan, to speak of a fine little family, who everybody seemed to know, especially Hetty 'Ria. He wouldn't admit it to himself, but by the second day Dan began secretly to brag his old clothes and rags up his shabby shoes.

The greatest surprise came, however, when, tempted beyond the strength of his feeble will by the possession of a shining silver dollar paid by Mrs. Williams for fixing her chicken house, Dan wended his way toward Mulcahy's dram shop, and was met at the bar with a grin. 'Hello Dan. Can't give you anything tonight, sorry, but I can't. Folks will make trouble for me if I do. 'Don't starve, folks!' he said, in a quired, angry voice.

'What folks is trying to do my business?' 'What's an ain't got business enough of their own, I guess,' answered the saloon-keeper. 'They say there's laws against selling to such men as you, and for the sake of your kids they're going to see it stopped. Say, Dan, why can't you get moderate like and not be making trouble for me?'

'Dan Jessup turned a bit and left the place without a word. 'For the sake of the children' the words ran through his angry thoughts. Everybody seemed possessed to talk about the children lately, and now for their sake somebody had shut the doors of the saloon on him. It was the minister of the big church who interrupted his gloomy thoughts.

'Oh, Mr. Jessup, the very man I was looking for. Have you a half hour this afternoon to give me? It's to get you some advice in my study in the church.' Dan, having no excuse, followed the minister. It was nearly dark before the job was finished.

'Just sit down in that pew a minute,' said the minister, while I run up and see if the organist can change a bill so I can pay you.'

Whether or not Hetty 'Ria would have recognized them as angels, the fact remained that within forty-eight hours after the children left the church, angels, dressed out in white robes, but in common every day dress, were busy helping to answer the children's prayers.

As Dan sat in the corner of the church, the little group filed in as the minister felt sure they would at just that hour and knelt and offered again a prayer that the father might be made well. What Dan Jessup thought as he listened, no human being knows. He never moved as they passed out, Hetty 'Ria saying cheerfully, 'It's a whole week now since we've been praying, it surely won't take much longer. He surely won't forget to do it before Ben's birthday.

Hours after the minister and the organist had left the church, and the sun had sunk behind the hills and the moon was shining through the window, revealing the face and form of the Christ, Dan sat and thought and thought, and at last dropped up on his knees and prayed the prayer of the publican. 'Lord, be merciful to me, a sinner!'

The Reapers.

Red are the hands of the Reapers, And the harvest is so white! Red are the feet that are treading The threshing-floors by night; And, on the young brows, dripping As with the dew of morn, D e p rose-red are the woundings, Like scars of a crown of thorn.

Tired, so many, with reaping— Tired with treading the grain Still they lie in their sleeping. Low in the Valley of Pain— Never again to be quaffing The joy of life, like wine; Never again to be laughing In youth's glad hour divine.

Birds shall sing in the branches, Children dance by the shore; But they who shared the red reaping Shall come back no more. Let whoso can forget them, Walking life's busy way; We who have looked on the Reapers Go quietly, all our days.

Measuring the Height of Trees.

A simple way to measure a tree can be practised by anyone on a sunny day or in bright moonlight. All that is necessary is a straight stick of any length. Draw a circle with a radius (half the diameter) of a little less than the length of the stick. This is done by holding one end of the stick, say, two inches from its end, and moving the other end around, making the circle with a knife or chip. Then place the stick in the ground, exactly in the centre of the circle, perfectly upright and press it down until the height of the stick is exactly the same as the shadow of the tree will be exactly the same measurement in length as its height. Of course in such a case the sun will be at an exact angle of 45 degrees. Measurements of this character can be best affected in the summer, when the sun is powerful. To many to whom this idea may not have occurred, it might be made annually a matter of interest when worn summer days take to the height of prominent trees, and so to compare growth from year to year.

When Jelly is Done.

It would save much time and worry if one could be sure when jelly was exactly of the proper consistency to take off the stove. This is the way. Drip the boiling liquid from the straining spoon as the jelly is cooking. While there is only one drip at the last the jelly needs more boiling, but when the drip separates and drips in two drips because it is time to pour the jelly into glasses.

By Purifying the Blood You Get Rid of Pain

Here is the Sworn Statement of a Lady Who Was Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Pain causes pains and aches, tired, languid feelings and derangements of the vital organs of the body. By ridding the human system of poisonous impurities Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure rheumatism, headache, backache and pains through the body and limbs.

As an illustration, we would refer you to the sworn statement of Mrs. Bergland. It is just such experiences as this that has made so many thousands of people enthusiastic about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is why they are to be found in the great majority of homes.

Mrs. O. Bergland, Danville, N. S., writes:—'I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all who are suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from headache and backache, had heart flutterings and my sleep was so broken and unrefreshing that it was with difficulty that

Some Horse Notes for Fall.

The man who neglects to use the currycomb is often a poor horseman. A cold rain is never good for a hard-worked horse forced to graze its living at night.

Put the shoes off the team while at the fall plowing. It will be better for their feet. Fall plowing, later on when the ground becomes soft, is good work to start the newly broken colt on.

The end of this month and all through next month is a good time to breed for a fall colt next year. A draft horse can travel too close, going extremely close is generally accounted for by the narrowness of chest and body.

Shoulders get sore in the fall as easily as in the spring, and are just as hard to cure. Be careful when starting the fall plowing. If you would avoid colic and acute indigestion keep the ration of new oats to the hard worked horse down for a few days, until he becomes accustomed to them.

If most farmers fed hay as carefully as they do oats there would be more thrifty, fat horses in the country. A mangel rammed full of salt hay is not very appetizing. Feed just what the horses eat up at each meal.

Tomato Sandwiches—Butter the bread and sprinkle with shredded green onions. Lay on thin slices of tomato, spread with dressing, and put the sandwiches together.

Chicken Salad.—One cup cabbage shredded fine, one cup chicken breast cut in cubes, one-fourth cup garden cress leaves, one-fourth cup green beans cooked, dressing to mix. Serve in lettuce decorated with chopped whites of eggs, the yolks stirred or grated, and finely chopped parsley.

Green Tomato Pickles.—Eight lbs. green tomatoes, 1 pint vinegar, 4 lbs. brown sugar, 1 teaspoon each of mace, cinnamon and cloves. Cut the tomatoes in slices and add the sugar. Let boil down gently for 3 hours, then add the vinegar and spice, and cook the whole 15 minutes. Let cool before sealing.

For nine long years he had been wanting the fair daughter of the 'Juncos.' 'Jennie,' he moved, 's they sat on the old rail fence. 'I read the other day that in a thousand years the Lakes of Killarney will dry up.' Jennie clutched his arm excitedly. 'Oh, Tom!' she exclaimed. 'What's the matter, Jack? Why, as you promised to take me there in the honeymoon, don't you think we'd better be a little careful that they don't dry up before we get there?'

'What's becoming of that friend of yours who used to be such a strong advocate of the saloon, on the ground that so long as the nation recognized the business a man had a right to open it if he chose?'

'He's quit.'

'What happened?'

'Somebody tried to open a saloon in his neighborhood and he was the first man to get-out with a petition to stop it.'

Operation For Appendicitis.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes:—'My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure.'

A father decided that he must administer a stern lecture to his faithful son.

Father spoke judiciously, but severely; he recounted the boy's misdeeds and duly explained 'the whys and wherefores of his solemn rebuke, his wife the while standing by, duly impressed.

Finally, when the father ceased for breath and incidentally to hear the culprit's acknowledgement of error, the boy, his face beaming with admiration, turned to his mother and said:

'Mother, isn't dad interesting?'

Citizens should realize that the exceedingly dry weather is likely to produce a real shortage in the water supply, and govern themselves accordingly. A little economy now may prevent trouble in future.

Portugal is practically helping the British, and German East Africa has been heavily invaded by Portuguese troops. The latter crossed the Rovuma river, occupied Miobo, captured Katibus and seized the German barracks. The enemy retreated west of Lindi. The natives joined the Portuguese. This is probably an explanation of the recent demonstration in Lisbon when troops were said to have sailed to participate in actual warfare on the side of the Allies.

Daylight saving is heartily endorsed by British merchants and manufacturers. A season's experience has proven its benefits and advantages. Both economic and social, and made almost certain the permanence of the idea. A Boston campaign for daylight saving is winning new recruits daily. At a hearing in the Chamber of Commerce one day last week more than a hundred men, many of them representative of the business and professional life of the community, endorsed this proposal to put the clock hands ahead. These and other evidences of worldwide interest in daylight saving suggest that within a comparatively short time the summer use of daylight will be general.

Happy will it be for the people of New Brunswick when the day dawns that the administration and the control of our roads are taken out of politics. It is doubtful if the province can ever have good roads under any government so long as the politicians are unwilling to strip themselves of every vestige of patronage in connection with the construction and maintenance of roads. So long as expenditures are governed by the exigencies of party politics or the wish to capture votes in this section of a county or that it is doubtful if there ever will be good roads generally. Take the whole administration of the roads of this province out of politics, is the true remedy.—Moncton Transcript.

Saturday at Evangeline Rink.

A most successful and pleasing affair was the afternoon tea and supper given by ladies of Wolfville in the rink last Saturday afternoon and evening for the purpose of raising money toward the 'Duchess of Cornwall Fund' for our prisoners of war in Germany. A large crowd came by special train from Aldershot and Kentville, over five hundred persons sat down to the supper and the sum of $100 was realized above expenses.

The famous band of the 85th Battalion furnished music and their excellent program was enthusiastically received. Afternoon tea was served from four o'clock till half past five, and was patronized by the Seminary students and many others. Supper time reached from half past five to seven o'clock, and during the evening ice-cream and cake were served to jolly groups around the tea tables.

The entire building, decorated with flags, flowers and autumn foliage in profusion presented a most picturesque and beautiful appearance.

The tea and supper tables were gay with cut flowers, and the various booths were elaborately trimmed by the young ladies of the town and matrons of the different committees.

The band members occupied the south part of the building which was separated from the dining room by a magnificent flower and fruit booth in charge of Mrs. Herbin and Mrs. Black; the ice cream booth under Mrs. Wheaton's care; and coffee booth wherein Mrs. Munroe and Mrs. Callin served. Mrs. Crawley was in charge of the afternoon tea, while the ladies superintending the supper tables were: Mrs. Hales, Mrs. Woodman, Mrs. Easton, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Stairs, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Chisholm and Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Stockhouse and the Campfire Girls were speedily bought out of the attractive wares at the confectionery booth. The 'Pocket Lady' in the person of Mrs. Robie Tafts was a centre of attraction. Her costume was arranged with flounces of pockets. Each pocket contained some article valued at five, ten or fifteen cents. Thronged of 'men in khaki' and ladies in white gowns were eager purchasers here and the pockets were quickly distributed.

The fortunate winning tickets were in charge of Miss Gales and Miss Pitt. Beneath these canvas homes beautiful gypsies drew back the veil and disclosed to inquiring comers all the events of their future years. Misses Angela and Felice Herbin and Miss Violet Black, costumed prettily, carried baskets of flowers and fruit to the visitors.

The entire arrangements were made and carried through in manner which gives much praise to our Mayor's wife, Mrs. Fitch, and all the other ladies in charge.

Business and Politics.

An organization known as the Associated Industries of Massachusetts is distributing among its members a letter which it desires to reach every business man in the State. The aim and purpose of the letter is to interest the men of affairs, the men who should take the greatest interest, but who for one reason or another, take the least interest in politics, in the value and importance to them as a business proposition of forcing changes in political methods in the hope of some day effecting the nomination in place of machine candidates of men fairly and reasonably representative of good business methods and efficiency. Pointedly, the letter asks each business man if he knows what it costs to run the State; how rapidly the expenses of government have increased in late years; how the debt has piled up; how the number of measures in the Legislature affecting business so constantly climbs to a bigger total. These are questions which might with equal force be asked in Nova Scotia, and in every Canadian province. They should set the man who reads thinking, and if they do that they will not have been asked in vain, even if no other immediate result is apparent. Only through party government is it possible to secure responsible government, but party government must be a failure if business men and men of affairs stand aloof and permit party management and control to pass into the hands of the professional politicians, the office-seekers and others with particular interests to serve.

Relief from Indigestion.

THE MOST COMMON CAUSE OF THIS TROUBLE IS POOR BLOOD. All conditions of depressed vitality tend to disturb the process of digestion. There is not a disturbed condition of life that may not affect digestion. But few causes of the trouble are so common as this, weak blood. It effects directly and at once the process of nutrition. Not only is the action of the gastric and intestinal glands diminished but the muscular action of the stomach is weakened. Nothing will more promptly restore digestive efficiency than good, red blood. Without it the normal activity of the stomach is impossible.

This, pale people who complain of indigestion must improve the condition of their blood to find relief. The most active blood builder in such cases is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make the rich, red blood which quickly restores the digestive organs to their proper activity, and the dyspeptic who has hated the sight and smell of food now looks forward to meal time with pleasure. As proving the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing indigestion, Miss Edith M. Smith, R. R. no. 4, Perth, Ont., says: 'I can honestly say I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My stomach was terribly weak and I suffered from sick headache and indigestion, and was always very nervous. I was troubled this way for nearly three years, and in that time took a great deal of doctor's medicine, which, however, did not help me. I could not eat anything without experiencing the most agonizing pain. My sick headaches were most violent and I could not rest night or day. I was asked one day by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and consented to do so. After taking them some time I found they were helping me, and I continued to take them steadily for several months, until I found that I was completely cured. While taking the pills I gained both in strength and weight, and I feel it impossible to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly.'

You can procure these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wolfville Boys Wounded.

We are very glad to be able to say that the apex of the life of Private Paul Davidson and Private Clive Fielding, of Wolfville, in the casualty list as killed in action in the Halifax papers last week was an error. The correct list states that they are both wounded and in the hospital. In a brief note written at the Field Hospital Paul Davidson makes light of his wounds and says they are sending him to England for a holiday of a few months. A letter from Miss McLatchy, night matron at the hospital at Bologna, to her family at Grand Pre, however, states that he is very seriously injured, but in good spirits. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson wish to express their sincere thanks for the letters of sympathy received from friends all over the province.

WILLIAM BLEAKNEY.

He, with sixty other officers, left Halifax for England for special instruction. Lieutenant Shannon is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bill. He is a son of Lieutenant Colonel Shannon, who has been overseas since the beginning of the war and who has been wounded several times.

Bramshott Camp.

The following interesting account of Bramshott Camp, England, where many of our own boys have been stationed, will be read with pleasure. The writer is Pte. Claude Smith, of the 112th Batt., son of Dr. and Mrs. Parves Smith, of Wolfville.

The Canadian camp at Bramshott, where we are now stationed, is all that a camp should be. The military authorities are doing all in their power to promote comfort and cleanliness amongst us.

At first there was considerable discontent because of the cold and damp situation of our temporary canvas camp at the town of Borden. We were informed, however, that that was only to be used by us until our present camp was vacated by the Fourth Division. Accordingly on Thursday, August 17th, we started on a seven mile march to Bramshott carrying our entire possessions on our backs through a rain which soaked everything to the core.

On arriving at Bramshott we were allotted our present quarters and it was not long before we had a fire alight and were drying, and warming ourselves with hot tea which was kindly provided at one penny per cup at the Y. M. C. A.

After a sound and much needed sleep, we awoke on Friday morning to find that there was to be a general leave of six days for the battalion. Of course all were glad of this opportunity of seeing the metropolis. The special train which was provided was packed.

On arriving in London there was a welcome on every side and we found that agents had been at work to see that all was arranged for our greatest comfort. Everywhere there were guides wearing the badge of the 'Soldiers and Sailors Reception Committee,' whose entire business it was to show us the interesting sights of the city free of charge. Again, we found that in every store we entered we were welcomed and that wherever refreshments were served there was a cheap rate for our special convenience.

While in London we saw over the Crystal Palace Hospital for wounded; and here we found that the Canadians were best treated and were most hospitable. For them there was every possible comfort. There is a welcome here for Canadians. There are clubs everywhere which are always open for the comfort of the men. In the tents we have beds with mattresses, chairs, tables and two stoves, for which the fuel is provided free of charge. In the tents we can be very comfortable. No man need go without writing home for there are reading and writing rooms with free writing material.

James Everett Eaton.

In the death of James Everett Eaton, which took place at his home on Main street Wednesday morning, the citizens of Collingville feel that they have lost one of the best of their number. Born in Nova Scotia 68 years ago, Mr. Eaton came to Collingville 23 years ago and all of that time has been employed by the Collins Company. He was quiet and minded his own business to a rare degree. While this was true all felt that they were dealing with a man of rare intelligence and who was very kind hearted. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Sophia Bentley, and seven children, ten grand-children, three brothers and two sisters. The children are L. E. Eaton, of Derry, New Hampshire; Mrs. W. A. Stewart, of New York; Mrs. William Schott, of Irving, N. J.; A. Harold Eaton, of Collingville; Mrs. Herbert Clark, of Newark, N. J.; Mr. Leighton Lawton, of Collingville and Lieutenant Philip Eaton, who is in the United States Reserve Cavalry, in Alaska waters. The brothers are A. W. Eaton, of Pittsfield, Mass.; D. O. Eaton, of Philadelphia; and W. E. Eaton, of Sheffield, Mass.; and the sisters are Mrs. T. W. Offen, of Wolfville, Nova Scotia, and Mrs. F. W. Thomas, of Upper Canada, Nova Scotia.

The funeral was very largely attended at his late home in this village Friday afternoon at 3:30 and the service was conducted by Rev. G. F. Bailey. The bearers were W. U. Chapin, Walter Reid, M. Stanley Neal, Frank W. Fellows, Frank Borden and Jerry Hildes; all holding responsible positions in the Collins Company works. Mr. Eaton was a member of the Baptist church and was also a member of a Royal Arcanum lodge in Hartford—Farmington Valley—Herald, Collingville, Conn.

The supper recently held in Citizens' Hall was a decided success. The audience which was present at the Baptist church Sunday evening listened with pleasure to the man dressed in King's uniform whom we have enjoyed before, a private in the 28th Batt., Rev. Mr. McWilliams. The music was good.

We understand Mr. Antrey Rand is soon expected home from his trip out west. Miss Dorothy Illey is again attending High School at Wolfville. Miss Thelma Gates is also attending the Wolfville High School this year. Rumors of a wedding in town—sometime.
