"MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY."

Everyone who has a few hundred dollars isn't able to go into the world and make that money earn as much as it should. All men have their own business to attend to, and probably haven't the time to look around for a safe investment. Besides that, there are hundreds of opportunities to put $100,000 to work where a bare $100 or $500 wouldn't get a look in. Our system takes your $100 and your friend's $200 and someone else's $500, and so on, and adds them together with the hundreds of other investors in other cities, making a grand total of hundreds of thousands. Thus, and only thus, are really big profits possible. That is why we can offer you 15 per cent on your money. How much do YOU want to invest at 15 per cent per year?

is as beneficial to the hard-working man of business as it is to the growing child. Scott's imparts the quality to the blood that enables the body to grip strength fast. Scott's helps solve the problem that faces every business-man—that of keeping up with the wear and tear on the body.

The Lost Will;

OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"Then she knew all the time!" exclaimed Jack, aghast at this instance of feminine duplicity.

"Of course, you silly darling!" murmured Nora, but with conscience enough for a blush. "It nearly broke her heart when—I told her that Lord Ferndale—"

"Oh, for Heaven's sake, don't let's talk of him!" said Jack, wincing. "And, look here, Nora, we've no more need to worry about him than we have about Maud Delman. He's found coal, or tin, or copper, or something, on some land of his; and he's simply running over with it. He's all right. Why, the idea of such a—a painted picture being really in love is absurd!"

Nora stifled a sigh; for she was not able to endorse the assertion with absolute fullness.

"Oh, well, I suppose it will have to be a regular wedding show," said Jack, with a sigh. "After all, it will be worth all the fuss to see you in the usual kit—white satin, lemon flowers and—"

"Orange blossoms, you absurd boy!" "Same thing. But don't let's put it off. Remember what a deuce of a time I've been waiting. Besides, there's poor old Demersfeld. By George! he'll be precious glad! He's simply dying to see me married. You'll like him, Nora; and he'll simply fall in love with you. You're just his sort."

At this moment Mrs. Feltham entered the room—notably.

"Has he beaten you well, Nora dear? I sincerely hope so!" she inquired blandly, as the two lovers barked ineffectually. "Not so very badly, Mabel," replied

It was at Christmas time that Molly came to pay her visit to the Hall, because Christmas is the time for pantomime, and children; and Jack and Nora, with Ruth to look after Molly and see that she didn't eat too much chocolate, filled a box at Drury Lane; and it is an open question whether Molly, seated with her hand in Jack's, enjoyed the show most. If there was one speck in Molly's happiness, one spot of alloy in those golden hours, it was there because Jim, between whom and the child was a warm affection, was not present.

At the back of Jack's wardrobe, neatly folded and regularly brushed by his valet, lies the suit of navy clothes which Jack wore on the island. At intervals the valet says, respectfully:

"What about these things, sir? Shall I take them away?"

But Jack always shakes his head, and replies, cheerfully, but rather gravely:

"No; just leave them where they are."

THE END.

Love in the Abbey

Lady Ethel's Rival

CHAPTER I.

"MISS TOMBOY."

About Kitty's mouth opinion was divided; some like small mouths—the cupid-bow kind of lips, that one sees ad nauseam in the French picture galleries; others swear devotion to the thin, classic Grecian; but where is the man, protest as he may, who can withstand the charm of a mouth like Kitty's—so full, and sweet, and mobile—the mouth of a child and a woman combined, with the lips so pliable that they possess a language second only in eloquence to that of the eyes. Kitty's mouth could discourse most exquisite music, without a sound proceeding from her lips—from pain to joy, from innocent wonderment to arch appreciation, from bold defiance to demure, modest humanity; those lips glide as swiftly and forcibly as the serpent changes its coil; and now those lips are formed to the tune of:

"The maids of merry Eng-land, The maids of merry Eng-land."

Then comes a sudden stop; it is not because she is approaching the house, though that is quite sufficient a reason for the abrupt cessation, but because of a suddenly discovered audience. She has been in the possession of one, of which she is perfectly well aware, for some time, for the first note of that tomboy song every dog within hearing made for the spot, and there was now no less than five of "the faithful friend and companion of man" hanging about her, and staring at her with adoring and devoted eyes—to wit, two collies, a retriever, a lurcher, and a slye, who runs panting at her side, yelping in what he considers excellent time and tune to the aforesaid song, but this audience of which she is suddenly sensible is a very different affair. Standing by a little gate that leads from the farmyard into the road stands a young man, who has been regarding her with something of the same expression in his eyes that you might behold in those of the slye terrier—if you could only see them through the tangled veil of hair.

He is not altogether unlike the slye in other particulars: he is—well, fat, has short legs—is red—yes, decidedly red in the face, and is in a profuse state of perspiration, as is no doubt the slye, if his skin were on view. As he stands at the gate, nervously mopping his face with a red silk handkerchief, and trying to smile with that attempt at an appearance of ease, which is perhaps, the most awfully futile thing under the sun, his appearance is—well, certainly not romantic. And yet under that weed-covered boom beats a heart as romantic as ever was that of visored knight or silken-hooded troubadour. "What a hard thing it is, what an unjust decree of fate, that mantle of outward seeming and appearance! Is a man to be deemed incapable of love because he happens to be rather stout, short in the legs, and easily provoked to perspiration? Why should the long-legged, lantern-jawed, dark-eyed youths have the best of it? Nobody smiles when these favorites of nature push back their hair and turn up their eyes, while they murmur the story of their love. Ernest, the tall and pale, is believed at a word—he has only to look out of his melancholy eyes and the thing is done; but poor James Ainsley, standing by the gate, envying the dogs that jostle round his mistress; trembling—and perspiring—with the bashful nervousness of love, gets no ready credence, nothing but a smile! "The world is out of joint! Why shouldn't a fat man be in love? Cupid, as he is commonly pictured, is chubby enough in all conscience!"

Kitty breaks off short in the middle of the adjuration "to let the bottle pass," and comes forward, not without some conflict with the dogs, who are quick at scented a rival, and holds out her hand.

It is a grand and galling contrast. She so calm and cool and fresh, he so nervous, abashed, and warm. What on earth made him tear up that hill in the hot sun?—what but the excitement within him, which spurred him cruelly on, in the vain hope of gaining confidence and assurance by the violent exercise. On the way from the Grange, of which he is sole master, James Ainsley has been resolving how cool and self-possessed he would be when he saw her—how he would raise his hat and plunge into some light and happily selected greeting—how he would be, for once, in full possession of all his faculties, and now here he stands, red as a lobster, and—speechless!

"How do you do?" said Kitty, in her clear voice, her bright eyes demurely meeting his timid yet eager ones.

"Have you walked up?"

"Yes—"

"Is it?" asks Kitty, exasperatingly cool; "yes, I suppose it is the sun, I have been down in the stables, and haven't felt it. How warm you look!" she adds, with an exasperating sympathy that makes him wince.

"Do I?" he asks, wiping the perspiration from his forehead! "I—I don't feel warm. How—how is Mr. Trevelyan?"

"Papa is very well, thank you," replies Kitty; "he is inside, in the drawing-room; would you like to see him?"

Now, certainly, James Ainsley hasn't toiled up the hill to see Mr. Trevelyan, but what can he answer to such a question but that he would, and he says it, poor fellow, as if he came up expressly to see him.

"I'm going in," says Kitty, moving a little way, but James is rendered desperate by the dread of losing the chance he has been speculating upon, and plunges into something—anything to intercept her.

"You've been down to the stable? I haven't seen the new cob yet—may I—do you mind the trouble that is—"

"Will I show him to you?" says Kitty, her manner changing from company manners to ready sympathy; "of course I will; come along; get down, Popsie!" to the slye, who delighted at the sign of a move, evinces his satisfaction by flying round and snapping at James' trousers. "Get down sir!"

"Don't mind Popsie, Miss Trevelyan, I'm fond of dogs, you know. Good Popsie! There's a good dog! You always manage to get the dogs round you."

Parcel Post for Nfld. Expeditionary Forces!

The attention of the public is drawn to the very urgent necessity of strictly observing the regulations published by this Department from time to time concerning the despatch of parcels to members of the Regiment overseas and the following particulars should be strictly observed:

(1) Parcels must not exceed eleven pounds.

(2) Parcels should be addressed with the Regimental number, rank, name and surname of addressee, followed by the last known address of the Unit with which the individual was serving; for example:

No. 0978 Cpl. John J. Kent, 2nd Battalion The Royal Newfoundland Regt., Hazelley Down Camp, Winchester, England.

(3) Parcels should bear the name and address of a second addressee to whom the parcel may be delivered or forwarded, if it should prove impossible to deliver to the first. The Original address should be written on the FRONT of the parcel where the postage stamps and customs declaration are affixed, and the second or alternative address should be written on the BACK of the parcel.

(4) If second address is not furnished at the time of posting and delivery cannot be effected, the contents of the parcel, unless of exceptional value or of a personal nature, will be turned over to the Military Authorities for distribution.

(5) Parcels containing articles of personal nature or of special value will be returned if request for their return, in case of non-delivery, is made by the sender, such request to be written on the cover of the parcel at the time of posting.

(6) The procedure outlined in (4) and (5) is adopted at the suggestion of the British Post-Office, to prevent the waste of a large quantity of perishable food stuffs which form the contents of 90 per cent. of parcels sent to soldiers.

(7) Parcels should be packed securely.

(8) Attention is drawn to the Notice concerning Christmas parcels recently published by the Postmaster General. All Christmas mail for the Pay and Record Office, London, not later than the end of November.

The British Soldier

London Daily Express: The British have a fine capacity for appreciating the achievements of other peoples and an odd habit of depreciating their own. The consequences is that the world, including Great Britain has no idea how large a part the British soldier has played and is playing in contriving the defeat of Germany.
British casualties, if they were published (and why on earth should they not be?) would tell this story. The Dominions have their own machinery for bringing the prowess of their soldiers to the knowledge of the people at home and, incidentally, of the rest of the world. For years the British divisions performed mighty achievements in secret; and the German whispered that all the fighting was left to others. It is only recently that the names of the British divisions have appeared in the official reports.
The individual battalions remain unmentioned. Yet British regiments have borne a full share of the war's burden—and they will bear it un-swervingly and triumphantly, to the end.

The Neros of Russia.

Father Nicholas Velimirovic contributes to the Church Times a long and painful account of a new persecution of Christians by the Bolsheviks in Russia.

"The latest development of the Russian revolution has taken a definite anti-Christian form," he says. "At its start it was anti-Tsaristic, then anti-Aristocratic, then anti-Bourgeoisie, and at last anti-Christian. The Christian community in Russia is now being persecuted by the materialistic, unbelieving Bolsheviks not less than the Christian community in ancient Rome by the pagan Nero, or in modern Armenia by the Islamic Turks. The foul murder of Archbishop Vladimir, the Metropolitan of Kiev, has been noticed and almost forgotten
as an accident.

The Russian Spurgeon.
"The Patriarch was first forbidden to appear in any church of the Kremlin, then to appear in any church whatever, then to appear in the streets and finally he was put into prison.
This done, the Bolsheviks, like Jackals, started to hunt after the clergy.
Two most important clergymen in Moscow, the Archimandrite Makarios and the Protosyberian Vostogov, Russia's most famous preacher—the Russian Spurgeon, as he was usually called—were shot, with twenty other prominent priests.

"A new page of the Christian mar-tyrology is being written in blood and fire. The materialists, the last Neros, are on the scene. And the Christian world has to cope with them."

Rhine Towns
in Panic.

(From the Baltimore American.)
Storming the banks to get their deposits in order to leave the bombed areas, the inhabitants of the German Rhine towns are duplicating the scenes that were witnessed in many of the French cities when the approach of the Germans spread fear and consternation. The bombing of Cologne has shown the Germans what they may expect. They are departing in panic from all the threatened areas. With the panic and the abandonment of enterprise the labor forces are in a state of revolt against the war and demanding immediate peace at any price. Such are the preliminary conditions that mark the approach of the Allies to the German border. It would be infinitely better for Germany to propose that the Allies occupy the Rhine cities and permit the customary activities of these cities to go on than to invite the abandonment of enterprise and the runs upon banks that are now vitiat-ing the entire credit system of Germany and causing Berlin to quake under the impact of the forces of financial fear. The Rhine towns panic is a tribute to the unflinching and uninterrupted advance of the Allies toward their goal. Germans will need to become more familiar with the armies of the Allies, and these are making unimpeded progress, and their occupancy of German cities for some time to come appears to be a sure condition of the armistice.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had profes-

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

FRIDAY, November 15, 1918.

The Press and Public Opinion.

The Press has frequently been charged with failure to create a strong public opinion, and negligence in arousing the dormant spirit of the community in time of political stress. The pressers are too prone to believe that the fault lies with the newspapers, forgetting that it is up to them to give the lead in arousing a popular sentiment having for its purpose the good of the country at large. The catch phrase "the clarion voice of the Press" is too often uttered by men who want the Press to do that which they are unable or unwilling to do for themselves. Practically they expect the Press to set the stage and place the performers, waiting for the coming of the star, who will, after making an appearance, assume control of the subsequent proceedings, and conduct them as best pleased himself. On the other hand there is the prospective leader who fondly imagines that public opinion is making ready to send out the call for his services, forgetting that in the moulding of that opinion he has had no share or labor, and who vainly holds to his heart the belief that the Press is only inspired in his behalf. The men adhering to such opinions and holding such impressions are not made of the stuff to lead. The man who cannot surround himself with the clamor of public opinion, demanding his leadership, is useless in a crisis. And that public opinion is not what the press makes it, but the dominant will of the people themselves. The people's rights are in the hands of the people. The press can always maintain them but the people have first to make the demand. The omnipotency of the press depends upon popular backing, for a press without the people behind it is of no value whatever in determining what shall or shall not be. Bricks cannot be made without straw, and the press would be as the voice of one crying in the wilderness, unless supported by the might of the electorate. The author of a book, well known in Newfoundland, being himself a Newfoundlander, makes this statement:—"A political press is more or less a reflection of its public, and the sooner the public realizes that, the better." From this then it must be assumed that the rising or the creation of public opinion must be spontaneous, the initiative being not with the press, which reflects, but with the people who generate. Obviously, therefore the call must come from the people for a leader. At the same time there is no reason why the man whom the people would delight to honor, should hide himself from their eyes and refuse to listen to their call. Let him make a simple declaration and public opinion, which is now a seething abstract mass, will be cemented into one solid, moving body which will sweep away in its restless course everything opposed to it. The time demands action. Leggards in politics do not win victories. The country, to borrow an election slogan used to good advantage some years ago, "wants a change." The flag flappers have more than served their term—they have served themselves. TURN THEM OUT!

Americans so understand "unconditional surrender." They mean by it the "unconditional surrender" which victorious Germany imposed on beaten France at Versailles in 1871, which included a military occupation of strategic points in France until the indemnity of a billion dollars was paid and which involved the abdication and exile of Napoleon III and the creation of a republican government clothed with power to accept and perform the conditions of peace dictated by Bismarck. Americans desire their Government and their Allies to deal with Germany as she dealt with France and Denmark and Austria in the wars of the last century. They see no reason why the Kaiser and his tribe should not suffer the fate of Napoleon the Great after Waterloo. Prussia was foremost in sending him to St. Helena. As compared with the Boast of Berlin, Napoleon was an angel of light. Such is the popular, though perhaps technically erroneous, definition of the words "unconditional surrender." Germany furnishes the precedents.

Coal Gone Up.

By reference to our advertising columns, readers will note that under the new regulations the price of soft coal per ton will in future be $15.70, plus cartage. Taking the latter at $1.20 per ton, the present rate means an increase of 40 cents per ton. Where is it going to end?

Our Sealing Fleet

The 1919 sealing fleet will contain one steamer more than last year, the Plover and Hudson Bay Co's steamer Discovery being additional. Had not the Erik been torpedoed, the increase would have been two, and the catch, correspondingly, would have increased. At the end of the month all these sealing steamers which have been engaged in the coal trade, excepting the Terra Nova (which has been running between Bell Island and Sydney), will make a trip for bunker coal and then will tie up in port to fit out for the coming voyage.

Obituary.

On Thursday, October 31st, the Angel of Death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayward, and bore from their midst to His Heavenly dwelling, the soul of their little daughter Norah, aged two years. As she had been ill a long while previous to her death, the shock was not altogether unexpected. Her parents are grief-stricken over the loss of their little darling, whose mild, lovable disposition had especially endeared her to them, but they bear their loss with resignation to the Divine Will, for they know she is safe in that abode, where no sorrow can ever enter. God called her to His heavenly home to mingle with the blest, and share the joys of Paradise. That sweet abode of Rest. We would fain have kept her with us, but her little soul did soar. And we hope to be united. On the bright eternal shore. St. Vincent's, Nov. 3, 1918.

More Steamships

We learn that the Federal Line will place two other steamships on the New York, Halifax and St. John's route, in addition to the Casapedia and Lady of Gaspé. The rapidly increasing freight have made it necessary for the Company to take this step. With four vessels in this service consignees and receivers will be greatly benefited.

Some Thoughts on Courage.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Some years ago an old life-saver told me a story about a boy who was brave and a man who wasn't. Both were in a dory. Their dory upset, but they were able to keep up by clinging to it, though neither could swim. When the life-savers reached them, the boy was a perfectly calm and self-possessed while the man was in such a state of panic that he almost upset their boat before they could get him in. At that time, the story did not make any great conscious impression on me. I admired the boy and felt scornful of the man who should have set an example of courage and so utterly failed. The other day something brought this story to the surface of my mind. And this time I wasn't so quick in praising the boy or condemning the man.

The Boy and the Man. Instead, I began to speculate about the whole matter, and to wonder if the boy, when he became the man's age, was any more fearless than the man; and if the man when he was the boy's age had been any less brave than the boy. And to wonder, too, if the man were perfectly well, and what previous experience he might have had which made him feel differently from the boy.

When you stop to analyze it, there are a great many elements which enter into this matter of fear and fearlessness. In the first place, there is a fact which the very young do not realize, and that is that as one grows older one naturally grows less fearless. As Stevenson puts it: "Old people have faults of their own; they tend to become cowardly, niggardly and suspicious. Whether from growth of experience or decline of animal heat, I see that age leads to these and certain other faults."

Also Because They Know More. That is, men grow less fearless, both because they have less blood racing through their veins and also because they know more. A friend of mine once told me of a boy who was a perfect dare-devil with a canoe, though a mediocre swimmer. Then one day he upset the canoe and was barely gotten ashore by a man who had been trying to persuade him to be more cautious; and after that he was excessively timid.

Ill-Padded Nerves Make One Dread Danger. Nerves and imagination are great enemies of fearlessness. Ill-padded nerves make one averse to danger, not so much from a real mental fear of it, as from a purely physical shrinking. And an imagination stimulated by certain kinds of mental labor makes one see more to dread in danger than the stolid temperament would apprehend.

"Courage," says the dictionary, "is that quality of mind which enables one to encounter danger and difficulties with firmness, or without fear." You notice that Mr. Webster does not insist that the fear shall be absent, only properly controlled.

THE INFLUENZA. Influenza, labeled Spanish, came and beat me to my knees; seven doctors couldn't banish from my form that punk disease; for it's not among the quitters; valiantly doctors pour their bitters into ailing human critters; they just sneeze and swear and I have cured every sort of ill there is; I have cured my gout and rheumatism; with the itch and mumps I've battled, and my triumphs have been tattled, but this 'flu' stuff has me rattled, so I pause to say G. Whiz! I am burning, I am freezing, in my little truckle bed; I am cussing, I am sneezing with a poizette on my head; and the doctors and the nurses say the patient growing worse is, and they hint around of hearses and of folks who should be dead. Doom has often held the cleaver pretty near my swanlike neck; I have had the chills and fever till my system was a wreck; I have had the yaller jaunders, foot and mouth disease and glanders, and a plague they brought from Flanders on an old windjammer's deck. But this measly influenza has all other ills out-classed; it has put me in a frenzy, like a soldier who's been gassed; if the villainous inventor this my lodge of pain should enter I would use the voice of Stentor till he had been roundly sassed. May the influenza vanish! Of all ailments it's the worst; but I don't believe it's Spanish-- haven't thought so from the first; on my couch of anguish squirming, I've had leisure to determine that the blamed disease is German, which is why it is accurst.

Milady's Boudoir

THE USE OF OLD PERFUMES. The modern woman does not include perfume extensively in her toilette. If she used it at all it is so delicate as to be a mere breath and of a high grade that will not grow stale and heavy after contact with the air. Oftentimes she obtains the desired effect by secreting her favorite scent in her lingerie drawer, in her hat box and among her furs, or by a spray directed to her hair, which is, by the way, one of the first places to show heaviness due to perspiration and lack of ventilation.

Or late for the first time in centuries, the dressing table has been embellished by all sorts of rare bottles containing toilet waters and perfumes, said bottles being the result of the best of the sculptor's art in the way of bas relief and engraving. These are being close pressed by quaint little cockery jars and pots, which are quite as fascinating in their own way; in either case it is possible to keep the contents in its original covering which serves to preserve its strength and freshness in addition to the decorative effect.

While human beings do not have their powers of scent developed to the point attained for hunting purposes by the average animal, the human race has always been very susceptible to odors. While in the medieval and early modern centuries the use of perfumes degenerated to a mere means of disguising bodily uncleanness, among the earliest records of the ancients the powers of delicate scents were thoroughly understood and the incense they used was about the same as that used in certain church ceremonials now.

Not only did the ancient Greeks and Egyptians and other early races use

Boycott of German Goods.

Christian Science Monitor: The sentiment that has given rise to the movement against German toys is no more emotional than that which has given rise to the movement against German music. It has been forming for more than four years. It is never stronger than it is to-day. Nothing could be more revolting to this sentiment than that Germany should be permitted, tacitly or openly, to resume her former relations with the United States, on the return of peace or at any time in the future, unless she first displays an adequate and decent sense of shame and penitence for the crimes she has committed against humanity and civilization.

James Barter, President Truckmen's Association called attention of the Council to the pay of carmen from November 1st, which is $6.00 per day. The Council will pay from this out.

The Nfld. Industrial Workers' Association, through their Secretary, W. H. Macfarlane, wrote calling attention to an application signed by P. F. Moore, who appeared in the Royal Gazette, the right to use the waters of the Cove River in the district of St. John's for the purpose of driving machinery. The Association wanted to know if it is the wish of the Council to have these waters reserved, they have already memorialized the Executive Government with reference to the Water Power. They offered to set up the Council in this matter if necessary. After some discussion, on motion of Councillor Brownrigg, seconded by Councillor Tait it was carried that a protest be made to the Governor against granting these waters to any person or individuals, if necessary the Mayor be authorized to call a public meeting to take up the matter.

Applications were received from A. James for right to install motor, Emma Hill to repair houses, North Street, and Hung Shing permit to extend porch rear of property, Monkstown Road, and from James Cummings to approve plans a building on Pleasant Street. The two were approved; the other two to be enquired into.

at the City Council.

The Municipal Council held its weekly meeting last evening. Mayor presided and Councillors Messrs. Brownrigg, Malloy and Tait were present. After reading the minutes the following business was discussed:
Barter, President Truckmen's Association called attention of the Council to the pay of carmen from November 1st, which is $8.00 per day. The Mayor was read from C. R. Brownrigg in connection with the lay-off of Sundry property, plan of which has been approved, and in question of the cost of making roads and also the cost of laying sewerage for which the Mayor's report is now being discussed. It was decided that all the property will not be laid out immediately and arrangements may be made for one street at a time.
The N.M. Industrial Workers' Association, through their Secretary, called attention to the fact that the Mayor had signed P. F. Moore, who appeared in the Royal Gazette to the right to use the waters of the Dove River in the district of St. John's for the purpose of driving machinery. The Association wanted to know if it is the wish of the Council to reserve these waters, they being already memorialized the Executive Government with reference to the Water Power. They offered to give the Council in this matter if necessary the Mayor be authorized to call a public meeting to take up the matter.
Applications were received from A. Brownrigg to right to install motor, on Emma Hill to repair houses, on North Street, and Hung Shing to permit to extend porch rear of house, Monkstown Road, and from James Cummings to approve plans for building on Pleasant Street. The Mayor was approved; the two cases to be required into.
The City Engineer's report dealt with the question of repairing blow-out and laying of the sewer on Fort Street.
The Health Officer's report and the Plumbing Inspector's were also read. A requisition for uniforms for the Inspectors was accepted to.

After disposing of some other routine business and passing of the pay rolls and Bills the meeting adjourned.

Nfld Scotch Cured Herring.

There has been relatively little activity in the market for Newfoundland Scotch cured herring since last reports, although some minor sales have been reported. As a result of this inactivity prices have weakened to some extent and it is now understood that sales are being made at the range between $24 to $27 per barrel, according to quality. As supplies are not by any means liberal, it may be expected that before new fall caught herring come into market the present holdings of winter and spring herring will be entirely exhausted. The New York market has probably received its full supply of herring from this source for the present season, and the demand will have to be met out of spot stocks. As there has been comparatively little movement in Newfoundland herring during the present month, merchants and importers have evidenced a weakness which reflects itself in the prices. Those who were holding at $27 per barrel appear to be content to take $25, and it is possible that some would be willing to sell at $24 for fish which have been held much higher. The consumption of Scotch cured herring in the Metropolitan district has been curtailed, in the opinion of the trade, by the continued warm weather, but once the demand is resumed importers are of the belief that stocks here will be quickly cleaned up.--N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Nov. 2.

The Epidemic.

Two patients were admitted to Grenfell Hall Hospital yesterday: Jas. Murphy, Signal Hill Road, and a small girl named Mitchell, whose father, mother, and two sisters were admitted yesterday. Two were discharged, and several removed to the convalescent ward.
A message from Dr. Green, of Bonne Bay, to Dr. Fraser, stated 100 cases had developed there and two deaths had occurred. Dr. Green, who has been ill, is now able to work and needs no further help, but deplors the lack of mail and freight, which would contain many needed articles.
Dr. Cron wired from Hr. Grace yesterday that 21 cases had appeared there last week.
Another message stated that there were 105 persons ill and one death at Broad Cove, Bay de Verde. According to messages to Magistrate Fitzgerald, there was one death at Gambo on Tuesday, and three other patients were seriously ill, but otherwise the conditions were normal. Dr. Smith visited Glenwood on Monday and treated the sufferers, afterwards proceeding to Badger Brook and Millertown, where he found conditions improving, though a large number of persons are yet ill. For the week ending yesterday, Nov. 14th, 1,749 cases had been reported from the various districts, with 60 deaths.

The Soldiers Banquet.

More than 1,000, comprised of Blue Puttees and men-in-training, attended last night's supper given by the Government. Revs. (Capt.) Clayton, Dr. Curtis and Dr. Carter, and members of the Legislature, were also present. A repeat partaken of, Sir M. P. Cashin, Minister of Finance, and Hon. J. R. Bennett, Minister of MUNIC, delivered speeches, after which an impromptu concert was held. Excellent musical selections were rendered by the C.L.E. and C.E.C. Bands, and by the time the celebration ended everyone had thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

West Coast Notes.

(Western Star.)
Caribou have been very scarce of late.
It is stated that Bishop White will pay his first official visit to this coast next year.
A Port aux Choix man was badly gored by a bull recently. One of the animal's horns was driven into his leg.
Among a recent list of recipients of the Distinguished Conduct Medal was the name of Pte. James O'Quinn. Evidently this refers to James O'Quinn, of South Branch.
There are many indications that moose are becoming very plentiful, and numerous signs of the animals have been seen this fall at numerous places from Seal Island on Lower Humber to way beyond Eddy's Lake.
Up to Saturday night there had been fourteen deaths from the influenza epidemic between Deer Lake and Spruce Brook, not including those at Lark Hr., and since several more deaths have been reported.
The coal at Bogonia Seam, South Branch, now shows a width of 22 feet, and still going strong. The great drawback is the lack of men for operations. It is proposed to construct a line of railway from the trunk line to the workings.

A Happy Child in Just a Few Hours.

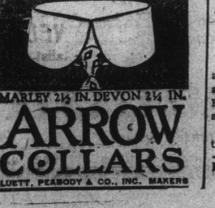

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry.
Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels and grow-up, become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered. When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it and it can't cause injury. No difference what ails your little one--if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "laxative" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.
Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Our Hun After the War.

"At the proper moment" the Home Secretary has promised to produce a plan for dealing with the enemy alien after the war. Why should we delay for a day the duty of proclaiming the ban against the Hun?
There is a real danger here, and it should not escape the attention of Parliament. In our internment camps we have many thousands of Germans who must be released when peace comes and cannot be repatriated within any short space of time. If the "proper moment" when these people are to be sent home and debared by statute from re-entering England does not come quickly, these embittered and dangerous foes will remain here to do us mischief and dissatisfaction and rebuild on the shattered remnants of the old German colony a new and stronger edifice.
As the law stands even the spies and open foes of this country can return without hindrance, provided they can show a clean bill of health and a few pounds of ready cash. A new and stringent law is wanted giving wide powers over every alien and placing a special bar against the Hun.--Daily Mail.

The Epidemic Abroad.

Almost unbelievable conditions exist at Moose Jaw, Sask., and vicinity, as the result of the Spanish influenza epidemic. Eight persons working with a threshing outfit were found dead, no medical help being near. These occurred in the farming section. In one house in Moose Jaw the parents of two children were discovered dead, the little ones playing about the corpses. Just outside the town in another house, the relief committee found the body of a man, who had been dead three days, with the wife lying beside the corpse of her husband unable to move. Other cases of a similarly pathetic nature have been located. There is no help to be had for love or money and those afflicted

Of Serge, Jersey Cloth, Satins and Taffeta, in smart youthful styles, delightfully simple, smartly fashioned from reliable fabrics. Shades are Navy, Black, Burgundy, Plum, Bisque, Mole, Tan, Mouse, Cope, French Blue, Taupe, Brown, etc.

We have won the interest of DRESS WEARERS by always having something different and distinctive. EVERY DAY new shipments arrive, adding NEW MODELS to our huge display.

Ladies' Coats and Costumes, $10.00 to $99.00.

The models for fall show many ingenious arrangements, many unique methods of clever draping and trimming characteristic of our reputation as ever seeking out those elusive trends of fashion so eagerly sought after by women of unquestionably correct style discernment. The newest materials are Plush, Broadcloth, Bolivia, Wool Velour, Kersey and Mixed Tweeds.

Children's, Misses' and Intermediate Serge Dresses, from $3.90 to $17.00

Girlish styles to fit all ages from five to fourteen, and the intermediate fourteen and sixteen sizes which fill a long want in every community, for it has always been a problem to fit the developing girl when the misses' size 14 was too small and the ladies' too large. This is right where intermediate sizes of fourteen and sixteen fit in.

Intermediate Sizes are to be had only at Bishop's.

An Unspeakable Outrage.

(By the "Times" Special Correspondent.)

"It was on April 21, 1916, at Easter time, that notice came that from the area of Lille, Roubaix, and Tourcoing 50,000 people, men, women, and children were to be taken to work in Germany. Nobody was to be outside their proper residence after 9 o'clock at night, but at the first ring on the door bell all the members of the household were to assemble in the doorway. Squads of soldiers presented themselves at house after house, and from the party assembled at the doors they picked men, women, girls, children, as they saw fit, without regard to relationship or what members of the family were taken and what left, but guided only by their judgment as to which surveyed the party as to which were most desirable.

"Where all the members of the household were not present, search was made, and if it was found that the man had stayed in bed in terror were literally torn from their beds and carried off. For six nights the city lay under the horror of this thing, as from Monday night to Saturday night, through the hours of darkness, the squads of men went on with their brutal work, each street and section of the city waiting its turn, the members of every family listening in dread for the awful summons, when the decision would be made as to which of them were to be left and which taken to an unknown fate.

"After selection, all who were assembled at the station and there herded together—young girls of gentle birth, the wives of working men, and women of the town—indiscriminately; they were intimately examined by German Army doctors and see if they were in good health and undiseased. There seems no detail which could have made the whole thing vile and repellent to every civilized instinct which was omitted. In the method of the midnight visits, the ruthless tearing of families apart, the herding and examination of the women, it was made as terrible as it could be.

"It was the 64th Regiment of German Infantry which carried out the hideous work in Lille, and, to do some of them justice, informants told me of seeing men in the streets next day bagged and almost sick with the horrors of their preceding night's work, and officers, truthfully or not, declared that their hearts bled for the people."

A League of the Churches.

"There is urgent need of some demonstration of Christian unity in the maintenance of Christian standards over against the mammon-worship and the reaction into selfishness that may easily take possession of the world when peace comes," says the Challenge.

"There came a time when I found myself cut off from all books, and because I had nothing else to read and must read something, I started on the Bible. And for the first time in my life I began to read it through not as a religious exercise but as a glorious work, each street and section of the city waiting its turn, the members of every family listening in dread for the awful summons, when the decision would be made as to which of them were to be left and which taken to an unknown fate.

The Wages of the Pulpit.

Literary Digest: The standing record of clergymen's salaries throughout this great rich nation is a pitiful shame, and belies the real heart and fairness of the American people. The average salary of clergymen in ten of the largest denominations is only $738 a year. What trade or business would tolerate such a condition? The minister of your church is a human being like the rest of us, and he is feeling the pressure of increased cost of living just as we do. But no Government decree has raised his salary. No corporation of trade union stands back of him. He does not go on strike.

Black taffeta handbags have bands of solid embroidery in blue, purple and green wool.

The latest spais are made of khaki cloth, and the strap is buttoned underneath the foot.

A suit of sand-colored duvetya has a narrow skirt, a bell-like tunic and collar and cuffs of sable.

White angora is not only used to embroider many costumes but is made into collars and cuffs for the same.

The Book for the Battlefield.

"He was home on short leave, and our talk turned to books," says a writer in the Daily Mail. "We discussed the sort of books soldiers like and how you could judge your man by the books he chose. We talked of men who read Dickens, Rudyard Kipling, Thomas Hardy, H. G. Wells, and George Meredith, and then he burst forth:

"But I have made the greatest discovery of all. I don't suppose it is new—nothing is. But it is new to me, and that is all that matters. I have found the one really indispensable book for every soldier. It's the Bible."

"I wonder if any of our sentries in the trenches by 'Chapelle d'Armentieres ever established spiritual contact with that city, full of human yearning, as he stared over the parapet and saw through the mist the tall chimneys of Lille. Women lay awake, as they told me to-day, and cried out: 'When will the English come?' Children wept themselves to sleep, as their mothers told me this morning, because another day had passed and the English had not come. 'We had so long to wait for you; so very long,' said many of these people to-day."

"I am standing in the British military cemetery at Ballieux. It is June 1917. I have found what I sought. A simple mound with a little plain wooden cross at the head of it. My younger brother lies there.

"Then think of how our recent conquests in the East have made the Bible live for us—Armageddon, Bethlehem, the Jordan, Jerusalem, Nazareth, and so forth—places that were mere names for most of us."

A New Day.

"To go into Lille this morning (Oct. 18), was as good as anything that can come to a man who has seen four years of war. I saw the joy of hundreds of thousands of people who during all those four years have suffered tragic things, unforgettable outrages to their liberty and spirit. It seems a miracle to them now that it has come suddenly, and they fill their streets like people in a dream, hugging their gladness, yet almost afraid that it is unreal, and that they may wake again to find swarms of dead-grey men about them, and guns in their gardens and German law laid upon them.

"It was early in the morning, but the streets were already thronged with people. They opened their hearts and their arms in a great embrace of gratitude and love for those who have helped to rescue them from their bondage, and I saw the joy of vast crowds like one spirit of joy, and the light in thousands of eyes was like sunlight about one. It was overwhelming and uplifting.

Make Them Pay.

(By a Canadian Soldier.)
No one could call me bloodthirsty. I am the most peaceable of men. I am not vindictive, and I think I may say that I seldom harbour ill-feeling in my heart.

"Outside a pretty little bungalow in a tree-bordered street in Victoria, B.C., hangs a red flag. There is a sale on. That was my home. People are inside there bargaining for our little household treasures. Cautious housewives are fingering carpets and curtains and appraising their value. A fat old dealer is trying to convince his pal that his priceless Sheffield plate soup tureen is not genuine. There is a man carrying away my child's cot.

"I've no home now. All the little store of books I treasured is gone. My wife is living in a boarding-house and the youngster has no nursery now.

"We've sold up so that I may join the 14th Battalion.

"The Hun must pay for that—must make what reparation can be made for breaking up my home; for all the 'heavy heartaches' we had in parting from our treasures."

"I am standing in the British military cemetery at Ballieux. It is June 1917. I have found what I sought. A simple mound with a little plain wooden cross at the head of it. My younger brother lies there.

"I did not consider him on the face of old age. But these years of war and ever-present anxiety, from two sons and now for one only, had changed him. They have deepened the furrows in his cheeks, have taken the joy of life from his eyes.

"He is only one of millions. The Huns cannot make the young again, cannot restore the young who have been taken from them. But even the brutal instincts can be made to realise how all decent people hate the murderer.

Ideal for Baby

MOTHER instinct tells you that baby must have only milk that is pure, rich and safe. Then use Carnation Milk. You are sure of its quality; for it comes sealed safe against contamination.

Babies thrive on it. It is "whole" milk—not separated. Contains all the cream, all the "food values" of rich, wholesome milk. Uniformly richer in butter-fat than the Dominion authorities demand.

You can have it handy on the pantry shelf ready to use—as you need it. Because it is sterilized, it keeps fresh for months. Even when the can is opened, Carnation Milk will keep fresh and sweet for several days.

In using Carnation Milk for baby follow your physician's advice. He will tell you in what proportion you must dilute it to suit your baby. Carnation Milk is evaporated to the consistency of cream. Water—and water only—is taken away from it. Nothing is added. No artificial sweetening and no preservatives. So you can use it for everything—in every way you use ordinary milk.

This is the safe, convenient, economical way to buy milk. Order three trial cans (tall size) with your groceries—your grocer is the Carnation Milkman.

Write for booklet "The Story of Carnation Milk." It contains many splendid recipes and on page 31 is a fine formula for baby food.

If There Had Been No War.

Had peace continued, General Foch would still be conducting his classes at the Paris Higher Military School, an amiable Professor unknown outside a small circle, and patronisingly dubbed by the military wisecracks the "arm-chair strategist."

Generals Petain and Nivelle would be leading the placid life of retired colonels on inadequate pensions, with no laurels to proclaim their long service to France.

Marshal Joffre would probably be spending his last years in the peace of his native village of Rivesaltes, beloved as "Papa" Joffre, but unknown to fame; and M. Clemenceau would have found a final refuge from a long and turbulent political life in the editorial room of L'Asire.

Sir Douglas Haig would be slowly climbing the Generals' list, a popular man at Court, and in West End drawing rooms, but scarcely a name to the "man in the street." Sir William Robertson would be known to military officers only as a man who, by god and conscientious work, had blossomed from private to Major-General; and Sir Julian Byng would be known to the army as a soldier of promise and meritorious service.

Sir Henry Wilson would be plodding away modestly and conscientiously as a Brigadier skilled in the science of soldiering; Generals Allenby, Monro, Horne, Trenchard, Salmon and Sykes would be as little known to the outside world as scores of other men of similar rank whose names are still only read in the Army Lists. And the "man in the street" would look blankly at you if you mentioned the names of Jellicoe, Beatty, Wemyss and Keyes, good sailormen all, but as far removed from world-wide recognition as from Mars.

In the civilian world Sir Eric Geddes would be sitting in the chair of Deputy Manager of a great railway, probably unable to tell you the badges of a Vice-Admiral or Major-General, which he has won and worn; or the most elementary duties of First Lord of the Admiralty. And his brother, Sir Auckland, would still be lecturing on anatomy in Montreal.

Police Changes At Curling.

(Western Star.)
District Inspector I. Bartlett retired from the police force with the end of October. Mr. Bartlett has been a member of the constabulary for over forty years, a great deal of which time he has been stationed here. About fifteen years ago he was appointed District Inspector for this section of the country. He is being succeeded by Head Constable Peet, who assumed duties the first of the present month. Mr. Peet is not a stranger to Bay of Islands, he having done police duties here in the early days of his joining the force. We understand some police promotions are slated to take place which will include a D. I. for him.

Here and There.

Not Generally Known!

The average man or woman may think all WAR STANDARD FLOURS are alike. Such is not the case. The Canadian Government has decreed that Flour must not be milled ABOVE a certain standard. But there is nothing to prevent millers from milling BELOW that standard.

Ogilvie's Standard Flour
is milled to limit of Govt. requirements.

BOOK TALK

The Devil's Grudge—Mrs. A. Sidgwick, $1.60. Here is a story that tells the truth. It reveals the German life and character with an astonishing intimacy of detail.

Foe Farrell—"Quiller" Couch, $1.50. A rousing story of adventure. The plot is an unusual one; it assumes dramatic and powerful proportions.

Greatheart—Ethel Dell, $1.60. An absorbing story which takes an elemental grip on the reader to an amazing degree.

Joan and Peter—H. G. Wells, $2.00. In the study of the characters, Joan and Peter, the author has done some of his finest, most revealing and brilliant work.

The Man in Grey—Baroness Orczy, $1.50. Strange and mysterious creature, that elusive personality known to the historians of the Napoleonic era.

Our Admirable Betty—J. Farnol, $1.60. It is a romance pure and simple, bristling with stirring episodes, with a delightful company of characters.

The Soul of Susan Yellam—H. A. Vachell, $1.60. War novels cannot as a rule be termed delightful, but there is no other word for this one.

Sylvia Scarlett—C. Mackenzie, $1.75. A book full of movement, color and life.

That Which Hath Wings—R. Dehan, $1.60. A colorful novel of love and war, of wrath and humor, skilfully accomplished. A sequel to the "Dop Doctor."

The Watcher by the Threshold—John Buchan, $1.50. These tales of strange happenings on the dark and forbidding moors of Scotland have a true flavor of legend.

Tony Heron—C. Kenneth Burrow, $1.50. The story of a temperamental antagonist which leads to tragedy, but tragedy not without hope.

The Zeppelin's Passenger—E. P. Oppenheim, $1.60. Mystery and suspense, thrills and heart-throbs are intermingled.

Gentlemen at Arms—Centurion, $1.60. They are real stories, and give in bold, unforgettable outlines, vivid pictures of the men who are saving civilization.

"First and Second Books of Artemas", 75c. each. Concerning men, and the things that men did do, at the time when there was war. "Amazing, witty and profoundly wise."
