LIBERALS EXPECT VICTORY IN BONAVENTURE CO.

Great Railway Project Possible If Government Acquires Gaspe Railroad

FRIENDS OF P. EMILE COTE THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE PREDICT SWEEPING VICTORY

By-Elections in Bonaventure Now Set for November 5th—Much Interest Aroused in Coming Contest—Many Reasons for Win by Present Government—Liberals in Power There Since 1890—Sketch of the Standard Bearer.

With the coming by-election in Bonaventure County now less than two weeks distant considerable interest in the approaching political contest is being aroused throughout the constituency.

At the recent Liberal rally held in New Carlisle, Paul Emile Cote, lawyer of that town and well known on the Gaspe Coast, was unanimously chosen as the standard-bearer for Bonaventure.

The election is set for November the 5th. Up to the present time no conservative candidate has been named but it is understood that a convention will be held by the opposition and a man placed in the field.

The Candidate

Viewing the situation from an unbiased viewpoint Mr. Cote seems eminently well fitted to be trusted with the interests of the Liberals in Bonaventure, and will doubtless poll a large vote. Mr. Cote was born in 1887, and until 1912 resided in Quebec City. He obtained his early education in the Quebec Seminary then went to the School of the Christian Brothers where he took a commercial course. This was followed by a Classical Course at the College of the Holy Trinity in Quebec. He then went to the Faculty of Law at Laval University, where he was admitted to the Bar in 1913. Mr. Cote has been practicing law at New Carlisle for some time in partnership with Hon. J. P. Bugeaud until 1919, when he then opened law offices of his own.

The Outlook

The outlook for a Liberal victory in the coming by-election in Bonaventure is considered most promising by friends of the present government. The reasons for this hopeful view are not far to seek. Liberals have been repeatedly elected in Bonaventure County since the year 1890 when the Hon. Horace Mercier, Prime Minister of the Province, was elected by acclamation. Since that time Hon. F. X. Lemieux, now Chief Justice of the Superior Court, Hon. Mr. Clapperton, Hon. John Hall Kelly, now Legislative Counsellor, and the Hon. J. P. Bugeaud, recently appointed District Magistrate, have all successfully represented the county in the Provincial House.

Another reason is that the Liberal Government has been very generous to Bonaventure with regard to grants of one kind and another. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in the constituency for Colonization roads and other colonization work. Bonaventure also secured a good slice of the $400,000 grant voted to promote fisheries. Bridges have been built everywhere in the county and the farmers have also been greatly assisted by government grants and the organization of various co-operative associations which have given very gratifying results. Several thousand dollars have also been spent to assist the schools and promote educational facilities.

Liberal Campaign

Immediately after the recent convention at New Carlisle, Mr. Cote, the Liberal candidate, began a campaign throughout his constituency. He has held meetings at Gascons, Port Daniel East and Ste. Alphonse de Caplan. Last Saturday and Sunday he spoke at public meetings in Matapedia, St. Alexis, St. Francois, St. Andre and Cross Point. These meetings have all been very successful gatherings and it would appear that the Liberal candidate will carry over all the constituencies. He will not only be successful but will win with a large margin.

last provincial election in Quebec the Conservative candidate for Bonaventure lost his deposit.

"APE MAN" IS SEEN IN EAST INDIES

Scientists Plan Expeditions to Capture "Missing Link" in Sumatra—May Prove Darwin Theory

The mysterious ape-man which has baffled all science in its endeavor to prove the Darwinian theory has been found in the Dutch East Indies, according to J. Van Herwaarden of Holland, who asserts that he came upon one of these creatures recently while hunting on the Island Poeloe Rimau, in the southernmost part of Sumatra.

Relating his encounter in a recent edition of De Tropische Natuur, he says:

Saw it up a Tree

I went out in search of a deer or a wild pig, without result, although I saw plenty of tracks to encourage me. I watched for over an hour, I glanced to the left and noticed something move in a not very tall tree, standing all by itself in a small clearing. For a good view of the object I walked around the tree and clearly saw a dark-haired, being standing on a limb with the front part of its body leaning against the tree as though it wished to hide its self and prevent detection. This surely must be a 'Sedapa', I thought. I was naturally quite excited. At first I only stared at the beast and tried to get a better view. I put my rifle down and started to climb up the tree, when I had occasion to observe its head, its forehead and its eyes, which looked into mine. At first its movements were slow and deliberate, but after it had seen me it acted as though nervous, and moved about quickly.

"In order to better observe the strange creature I climbed down again. The front of the creature was also covered with hair, as well as its back, although the color of its front hair reached down below the shoulders, almost down to the middle of the back, and was fairly well kept and straight. Its head seemed to be somewhat more pointed toward the top than that of a human; the brown-colored face was almost entirely hairless, while the forehead was rather high. The eyebrows had the same color as the hair and were strongly developed. The eyes seemed to be normal, were dark and very mobile, much like the eyes of a man. The nose was broad with fairly large nostrils, but not at all ungainly, and reminded one of a Kaffir's nose. The lips were entirely normal, but the mouth was wide, which was especially noticeable when open.

Thought it Murder to Shoot

"The molar, which I was able to notice through the nervous movement of the mouth, were better developed than with us. The front teeth were regular. The chin was somewhat 'tapered' down. Only once had I a chance to observe the right ear, which looked exactly like a small human ear. The hands were slightly covered with hair on the outside. The arm reached within a short distance from the knees when in a standing posture. I did not have a good opportunity to see the feet, but the toes were well formed. The creature's height was about five feet.

"The face and nothing repulsive about it, nothing ape-like, although the nervous twitching of the muscles reminded me of the movement of a scared ape. I had calmly spoken to the creature as one would do to a dog or horse, but this did not seem to quiet it. When I leveled my rifle at it I heard a wailing cry. 'Hoo! Hoo!' which was immediately answered with similar cries from the forest not far distant.

"Again I laid down my rifle and climbed up the tree. When I had nearly reached the lowest branch the creature quickly ran to the end of the limb on which it had been standing, swung itself out and dropped to the ground from a height of about ten feet. Before I had an opportunity to reach the ground and grab my rifle the animal was easily ninety feet away from me, running for dear life while emitting sharp, hissing sounds.

A Brief Account of our Pleasant Experiences With The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Party on our Trip abroad
By H. B. ANSLOW

London, July 5.—When we returned to our room at the Cecil Hotel on Dominion Day, we found among other invitations, a large official envelope, with the Royal Coat-of-Arms thereon. This contained an invitation to the King's garden party at Buckingham Palace, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This was to be the great event of our visit to London and great were the preparations for it.

Perhaps we can not do better than republish from a London paper a full account of this function, which is as follows:

The King and Queen gave their second garden of the season yesterday afternoon in the grounds of Buckingham Palace.

Saturday was especially chosen by Their Majesties for the gathering, as being the best day upon which professional men and the many workers in other spheres who formed such a large proportion of those present could spare the time for relaxation, and there was abundant proof visible on every side to demonstrate how completely such kindly forethought was appreciated.

The lovely gardens were looking their best, and the guests, most of whom had arrived before four o'clock, lost no time in exploring their many beauties. From the huge square lawn at the back of the Palace they wandered along the borders of the lake, on past the great clumps of beautiful trees, to the marble summer house, and then back again to the North-Eastern corner of the lawn to await the arrival of the Royal Party.

Others preferred to take seats in the shade beneath the trees to the right of the gorgeous crimson and gold shawls and watch the seemingly endless streams of guests arriving from the Palace and from the gates at Constitution Hill and Grosvenor Place.

A kaleidoscopic effect was produced by the beautiful coloured gowns, the colours of which were intensified by the dark morning coats and shining top hats worn by the men. Here and there were to be encountered the gorgeous native costumes worn by guests from India, Persia, and Siam, and a blaze of rich colour was made by the uniforms of the King's Indian, orderly officers.

A highly interested group of spectators were the palace servants, who, from their point of vantage on the parapet under the roof, must have had a wonderful view of the whole proceedings.

The Royal Party entered the grounds shortly after four o'clock, the Queen of Spain walking with the King and Queen, and following them Princess Beatrice and her granddaughters the Infantes Beatriz and Christina, the King Manuel and Queen Augusta Victoria. Awaiting Their Majesties under the trees facing the Garden Entrance were Princess Helena Victoria, Princess Andrew of Greece, and her two younger daughters, Lady Patricia Ramsey, the Infantes Beatrice of Spain, Lady Maud Carnegie and Lord Carnegie, the Duchess of Devonshire, and the Queen's Ladies-in-waiting, Countess Portesque and Lady Bertha Dawkins, the Grand Duke Michael of Russia and Countess Torby.

The Queen looked regal in a draped gown of turquoise-blue gorgette, which was trimmed with many rows of short fringe of a slightly deeper shade, and crystal ornaments at the foot of the skirt and the edges of the sleeves. Her toque was of swathed blue and mauve tulle with an upstanding mount of tiny ostrich feathers of the same shades.

The Queen of Spain looked radiant in a fringed gown and cloak of pearl grey, charmingly the latter being trimmed with a deep collar of stone marten fur and a heavy silk fringe falling from the waist. With it she wore a mantle of silver tulle, with a cluster of grey marabout plumes falling over the left shoulder. Queen Augusta Victoria was in a coat and dress of black charmeuse relieved with touches of white, and her hat which was of cloche shape, had a narrow brim of black lace.

Princess Andrew was charmingly dressed in a cloak and gown of ivory cloth and crepe-de-chine, and her small round hat of the same materials was wreathed with white gardenias. Princess Helena Victoria had a dress of mole-grey satin heavily embroidered with cut-steel and her cavalier hat was trimmed with long plumes shading from light to dark grey.

Princess Beatrice was in black satin and silver lace, and the Infantes Beatriz and Christina, now known as "the little ones," were dressed alike in magnificent United States of straw-coloured alpaca and muslin. Lady Patricia Ramsey was in light fawn nixon and lace with which she wore a big plumed hat of bronze satin and a lovely stole of Canadian sable.

After a number of presentations had been made of distinguished visitors from the Dominions and Colonies among whom were the Canadian Editors party many of whom were wearing blue and gold badges of the Canadian Maple Leaf, the King and Queen moved to where the general company were waiting them, at which point they separated, the King taking a path to the right, and the Queen moving in the opposite direction. Their Majesties made frequent pauses to greet their personal friends, or to allow presentations to be made to them.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster and Mr. Arthur Henderson, M. P. (the Home Secretary), were among the first of those greeted by the King in the course of his progress.

After tea, which was served in the grounds, a number of further presentations were made. Shortly after six o'clock the King and Queen walked through the grounds to the Palace. As they entered the Palace the National Anthem was played.

The general company included the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, who were talking for some time to the Duke of Buccleuch; General the Earl of Cavan, the Duchess of Montrose, bearing black lace and gorgette with a black lace hat trimmed with blue ribbons; the Marquess and Marchioness of Huntly, the Earl of Granford, Lord and Lady Lovat, and Viscountess Barrington, who was escorted by Viscount Barrington, and wore a dress of bronze satin veiled with embroidered gorgette of the same shade and a hat to match trimmed with plumes of a deeper blue; Lord and Lady Oranmore and Browne were with their son, the Hon. Dominick Browne, and his fiancé, Miss Mildred Edgerton; Colonel and Lady Eva Wyndham-Ogilvy, and the Marquess and Marchioness of Ailesbury had with them Lady Ursula Brudenell-Bruce. Lady Ailesbury's dress of black ash and head embroideries was worn with a rose trimmed straw hat and some beautiful pearls, and Lady Ursula was in white lace and a pale yellow hat with a wreath of waterlilies and velvet streamers.

Beautiful Dresses

Others to be seen were Julia Viscountess Powerscourt, Lord Cecil Manners, Lady Sibyl Middleton, wearing grey velvet gown of grey velvet in embroidered with a rose pattern; Lord William Cecil, Lady Joan Vere, in fawn-colored lace stitched with gold, and a leaf-trimmed hat of the same lace; Sir Richard and Lady Muriel Paget, Lady Bryne, Sir Lionel Earle, Lady George Nevill, Lady (William) Harcourt, in mauve silk dress and a black silk cloak; Lady Leyland Barratt, Lord and Lady Tenterden, Mr. and Mrs. H. Seymour Berry, Lieutenant-Colonel Geoffrey Glyn, the Countess of Cromer, in a pale fawn veiled with cream lace and a large shady hat to match; the Hon. Sir George Crichton, and Lady Loch-Elliott.

The Marchioness of Lansdowne escorted by the request of the Lansdownes, and her gown of ivory nixon had black embroideries and Limerick lace trimmings; and two other guests who attracted much attention were Admiral the Hon. Sir Edmund Fremantle (the "Father" of the Fleet) and Mr. Gladstone's daughter, Mrs. Drew, who held quite a little court around her bistro-chair.

Other guests were Countess of Stratford, in a pleated cloak of dress of orchid-mauve chiffon; Sir Charles and the Hon. Lady Burn, Lady Palmeny, the Hon. Mrs. Charles Denison, Viscount and Viscountess Burnham the latter in steel-grey lace with a red-tasseled girdle and a black and red hat; Field-Marshal Lord Plumer, Sir George Lewis, Lady Beatrice Wilkinson, in a graceful black and white gown with a blegg gorgette cloak; Admiral Sir Cecil and Lady Lambert, Lady Grant, Lady Penryn, wearing a frock of broad grey charmeuse and a black picture hat; Sir Jeremiah and Lady Coleman, the Hon. Lady Malet, Commander Louis Glegg, Mrs. Seymour Corkran, in lavender-colored nixon and lace; and Sir Alfred and Lady Grant.

So many of our friends have asked us if we were personally present at the presentations that we take this opportunity of saying that we were. The writer being on the Board of Directors of the Association representing New Brunswick, together with Mrs. Anslow was duly presented to the King and Queen, both of whom cordially shook hands with us, and the King inquired if we were enjoying our trip and hoped we were impressed with London's greatness.

BETTER RURAL HOTEL SERVICE ESSENTIAL TO DEVELOPMENT OF THE TOURIST BUSINESS

Country Hotels in Various Parts of Province Need Attention—A Worthy Undertaking for The N. B. Tourist and Resources Association—Splendid Work Being Done in Quebec—Now Is The Opportune Time to Make New Plans.

Because the tourist season is over, many readers of this paper will be inclined to think that the tourist business may be inclined to only for occupation by the casual visitor. But in commercial life when one year's business is completed its owner, if he is aggressive, immediately plans for a greater offer than the year to follow even if his plans promise no immediate return. The same should apply to the tourist business. With New Brunswick's most successful season in tourist trade just ended all those interested in the development of this new industry—for in the last analysis it is an industry—should lose no time in formulating plans through which the province and the individual may derive a steadily increasing revenue.

RURAL HOTELS
One important requisite incidental with the development of the tourist business in this province is the provision of more and better rural hotels. On the whole north shore there is but one rural hotel that has been fitted up in an adequate way to accommodate and satisfy any number of summer visitors. There are numerous other country hotels throughout Restigouche where the passing traveller may secure a meal or a night's lodging. At a few of these hotels the meals are good, at most of them it is poor—decidedly not what the tourist wants on his holiday trip. This condition applies in a general way to the whole province. At some of these country hotels a tourist with sensitive taste and delicate digestive organs, may acquire dyspepsia or if he stays over one night, he may acquire something even more irritating. There are of course exceptions. In Restigouche most of the rural hotels are clean although in adequate to cater to tourist travel.

In the Bay View Inn at Jacquet River the county has at least one rural hotel which should win the approval of summer visitors. Spacious and modern to a degree seldom found in a country place, this new hostelry is one of the finest rural hotels in the province.

AN IMPORTANT WORK
The work of promoting better rural hotel accommodation for summer vacationists is an important one and should be worthy of the expenditure of considerable effort and money. In various parts of the Dominion much is now being done in this matter. But conditions in many parts are still far from satisfactory and in the meantime dissatisfied visitors are giving our province a lot of adverse advertising. The proposition of better rural hotel accommodation would be a most worthy undertaking for the New Brunswick Tourist and Resources Association. This organization has already done a good work in advertising the attractions of the province but unless certain conditions relative to accommodation for summer visitors are disposed of much of their work is doomed to be undone.

IN QUEBEC
Probably no section of the Dominion is going after the tourist business so aggressively or making such extensive provision for their entertainment as the Province of Quebec and the revenue of the province derived from that source proves conclusively that the expenditure of time and money in this connection has paid handsome dividends. The Province of Quebec Tourist Association is now preparing to launch a Campaign to improve the rural hotels throughout the province. Besides this other progressive plans are being outlined to further develop the tourist business. An article in the Quebec Telegraph says in part: "The work of the Province of Quebec Tourist Association is rapidly being brought before the eyes of the public and an increasing interest is being taken in its efforts to bring a greater number of tourists to Quebec by improving the hotel facilities offered in the rural districts. It is headed by a number of disinterested prominent men who are giving their time and energies to the advancement of the association's projects and so important are these regarded to be that the Provincial Government has made a grant of $50,000 to be devoted to the work of the organization."

"For years the tourists have brought a great deal of trade to Quebec. City and Province both of late years the people have been brought to the realization that tourist traffic is destined to develop into one of the most important assets of the province. It is realized, however, that if the tourists are to be developed along commercial lines more attention must be paid to the attractions of the rural districts. Thousands of motorists enter the province each year; they come through the country, but seldom make any attempt to visit the rural districts. It is with this in mind that the Tourist Association is now giving attention to the tourists who desire to see as much of the country as possible and at the same time sleep and eat in comfortable surroundings."

There are many good hotels in the rural parts of the province; there are many that are of mediocre quality, fit only for occupation by the casual visitor or who finds himself obliged to stop over, or by those who are not particular as to the kind of accommodation. It has facilities which he cannot command and is in a much better position than he is to understand the needs of the tourists. If he is not among those who are willing to co-operate with the Tourist Association in the improvement of the rural hotels, he is losing business for the Tourist Association is prepared to publish a list of those hotels which are operated under its jurisdiction and to give to the hotel proprietors a placard as a visible sign that this particular hotel is doing its utmost to provide efficient service.

ONE WEAK SPOT
The country hotels have long been a weak spot in the province and it is only of late years that definite efforts have been made to rehabilitate them along proper lines. Much of the credit for this move must be given to the commercial travellers who are obliged to take what accommodation they can when they are out on the road. Years ago they appealed to the government for a hotel inspection and this request was granted with the result that a vast improvement has been effected. But the movement has not gone far enough or rather, its expansion has been made necessary by the increase in tourist travel.

STEPS TAKEN
The association now has a number of secretaries in the field circulating among the hotel proprietors a questionnaire which gives details of the accommodation offered. One field secretary has already submitted a report to the directors of the association and it contains some interesting suggestions which are destined to make a vast improvement in the rural hotel accommodation of the province. Some of the contributing factors to poor service are summed up as follows in the report: the lack of signs in the interior of the hotel; the lack of variety in the meals; the lack of arrangements made for giving of meals outside regular hours; the lack of services to the guests upon their arrival and departure; the lack of arrangements made for their entertainment and the lack of ambition on the part of the hotel proprietor to look after his guests, to interest them in the locality, to make friends with them to look after their needs, to give them information and to make sure that they are satisfied.

SUBSTANTIAL AIDS
It is the intention of the Tourist Association to publish a monthly bulletin which will be distributed to hotel proprietors. It is expected that this bulletin will be of great help to them. The magazine will contain an article on tourism in general, one on the history of certain parts of the province; one on the development of the hotel industry in the province and others which will bring to the attention of the hotel proprietor the needs of the tourists in particular and the residents of the province in general.

The public will be asked to co-operate in this laudable aim by bringing to the attention of the association any flagrant cases of neglect in hotels which subscribe to the association's goals. In this way the hotel proprietors will be kept up to scratch and not allow their hotels to deteriorate even if a check should be experienced.

THE OPPORTUNE TIME
In a brief review of the progress being made in this matter in Quebec, the tourists interested in the expansion of the tourist industry in this locality and throughout New Brunswick should find new encouragement. Now is the opportune time to renew organized effort in this matter and Quebec is making every day count. Herein is revealed the timeliness of this article for much can be accomplished during the winter months and greatly improved conditions achieved before the opening of the next tourist season if plans are outlined without delay.

It is with this in mind that the Tourist Association is now giving attention to the tourists who desire to see as much of the country as possible and at the same time sleep and eat in comfortable surroundings.

ARSON CHARGE IN BAHURST COURT

Charles Ellis on Trial in Connection with Destruction of Mill

Bahurst, Oct. 18.—Charles E. Ellis appeared before Magistrate R. A. Sutton here yesterday charged with arson in connection with the fire which destroyed the mill property of Chapman and Jennings, some 15 miles from town, on Oct. 5. S. A. Landry appeared for the crown and Harold Ramsay for the defence. After the examination of several witnesses the preliminary hearing was adjourned and will be completed on Tuesday.

Investigation following the fire revealed the fact, it is alleged, that Ellis was in the vicinity of the mill just previous to the fire. Some peculiar heel marks were found. These, it is said, were followed and led to the place where Ellis was staying. On examining his shoes it was found, it is said that the peculiar heel marks corresponded with an imprint made by the heel of his shoe. The rubber heel was not of the ordinary kind but had been hand-made from an old tire casing.

Douglstown, Que.

The remains of the late Margaret Kennedy who died at her home in Park Avenue, Montreal, on Monday Oct. 6th, arrived here on Wednesday evening and was immediately taken to the residence of Mrs. Isaac Kennedy where it remained until the following morning when conveyed by a large number of relatives and old time friends, the body was taken to St. Patrick's Church, where a solemn Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father E. G. Miles. Her death was supremely peaceful, strengthened by all the consolations which Holy Mother Church offers to her children the final scene was the echo of a well spent life. The last sacraments of the church were administered by the Rev. Father John M. Groves, one of the assistant priests of St. Patrick's Church, Montreal, to which parish the deceased lady was a member. She was a daughter of the late Mr. Isaac Kennedy and his late wife Margaret Costello and was noted for a charitable and kind disposition always imbued with the Christian spirit. In passing to her eternal reward although she had passed the seventy-ninth milestone of life's journey she will be missed by a large number of persons, friends amongst all classes who held her in high esteem. The only near relatives who are left to mourn her death are the following—Mr. Austin Kennedy of Douglstown, Mrs. Joseph Devereaux of Montreal and Mrs. Isaac Kennedy the esteemed and competent postmistress of Douglstown. The community extends much sympathy to the bereaved ones and more especially to Mrs. Devereaux with whom the deceased lady resided since leaving here some fifteen years ago.

Mr. W. L. Dechene of Maribouhead, Mass., who spent a few weeks in Gander with relatives returned here last week and from here he went on to Gaspé.

Miss Henrietta Rall left on Saturday morning for Three Rivers, Que., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rall en route to Montreal.

Mr. G. McWhirter, V. S. of New Richmond was in Douglstown last week on his way to Gaspé and Sandy Beach.

Mrs. Joseph Devereaux of Montreal accompanied the body of the late Margaret Kennedy here on Wednesday night and after the funeral she remained for a few days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Kennedy and Mrs. Isaac Kennedy. Many old time friends were very pleased to meet her again.

State Prosecutor Hints that He May Charge Them with

Chicago, Oct. 20.—If State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, who prosecuted Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert Frank, Jr., re-elected next month he will consider placing them on trial again for another murder it was made known today. While Crowe refused to make a statement, he admitted he had had conferences with Joseph Tracy, father of Freeman Tracy, who was shot and death near the Leopold and Loeb homes.

The killing of Tracy is one of a number of crimes laid to the millionaires' sons. The father of the victim is known to have given Crowe new evidence said to be proof that his son was killed by Leopold and Loeb.

Crowe has a mass of evidence against the youths in connection with investigations of several "mystery crimes" including the evidence dealing with "episodes A, B, C and D," listed in the report of the alienist obtained by the Leopold-Loeb defence. Should Crowe decide to push new prosecutions, the youths would be given into his custody by the authorities of Joliet State prison, where they are serving life terms for the Frank kidnapping and murder.

The boys may appear in court here at an early date to testify in the suit for $100,000 filed against them on behalf of Charles Ream, a chauffeur who charges Leopold and Loeb with kidnapping and murder.

Cape Cove

The Cape Cove annual show took place last Tuesday and we were pleased to see a great many of our "Port Daniel Grand River" and "Barnochilly" friends. Live stock and vegetables were somewhat of a better class than previous years.

Mr. Gordon Boudains of Lunenburg had purchased a new car which is proving very satisfactory. Mr. Boudains is also building up a very modern garage which we understand is being put up by Mr. Earl Mercer Builder and Contractor.

Mr. William LeGrand of Montreal arrived on Saturday night's train and is spending Sunday with his relations we understand that Mr. LeGrand will be returning home on Monday and are sorry that his stay with us is to be such a short one.

Harvest Thanksgiving service was held at St. James Church Sunday the 19th. The church was very tastefully decorated and service conducted by the Rev. A. J. Oakley.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. Robert Lenfesty had a narrow escape of having his house burnt down last Sunday afternoon. Had it not been for the prompt assistance of a few ladies and gentlemen who were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lenfesty, we are afraid that the well known homestead would now be burnt to the ground.

We are sorry to hear that owing to poor health our old and respected friend Mr. John T. Collins will have to give up business. Mr. Collins has been interested in the Boot and Shoe business for a number of years. We were sorry to learn that Mr. John LeGrand was suddenly taken ill on Friday night, but were glad to see him his usual self on Sunday.

Hotel Dieu and Soldiers' Memorial Hospital Both Mentioned in Report.

The annual official announcement of Approved Hospitals in the United States and Canada was made yesterday morning at the Hospital Conference of the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons, New York, by Franklin H. Martin, M. D. Director General. Both Campbellton Hospitals were mentioned in his report.

The official list of hospitals meeting the minimum requirements of the American College of Surgeons presents the results of the seventh survey of hospitals of 100 beds and over, the third survey of hospitals of 50-100 beds, and the preliminary survey of hospitals of 25-50 beds, making a total of 2206 hospitals surveyed, of which 1416 or 69 per cent meet the requirements.

The Director General in presenting the report said in part: "The program of the American College of Surgeons is definite, its requirements are reasonable; its methods of presentation are acceptable. The personal visits and the impartial manner in making the report appeals to the hospital as an unprejudiced effort to arrive at facts. The movement is now its propagandist for it has proven its worth. The requirements are universally acceptable for they aim at focusing the hospitals' attention directly on the care of the patient. This surely means much to the 12,000,000 patients passing through the hospitals of the United States and Canada annually."

The report is based on the findings of a detailed survey made through personal investigation, carried on by representatives from the College, trained and qualified to do the work. A corps of such representatives cover the United States and Canada annually and "find the facts" about each of these hospitals as to their organization, supervision, facilities, procedures, and particularly as to how they control and check up the work of the institution.

"This movement," said Dr. M. T. MacEachern, Director of Hospital Activities, American College of Surgeons, "aims directly to the elimination of deficiencies in hospital services to the patient and the establishing of closer supervision and check-up work of the institution. It has been rapid in its acceptance and accomplishment because of the whole-hearted co-operation of the hospital people and public generally of the United States and Canada."

The total number of hospitals surveyed in New Brunswick was 11 of which 10 or 91 per cent met the requirements. The list of approved hospitals follows.

MAN'S BODY SEVERED AT WAIST BY CAR WHEELS

Nelson, B. C., Oct. 20.—Eugene Burro, aged 30, employee of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail, was killed on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks between Trail and Tadmure yesterday. His body was severed at the waist. The man had been playing music in an Italian wedding and before the accident he was seen to get down the middle of the track to meet the blind end of a train of two cars with an engine backing up. The bill on the homing late led to the discovery of the affair, the time being known from the crushed watch. A coroner's jury exonerated the train crew from blame.

A GASOLINE TAX

Reports from Quebec and other provinces that have imposed 1 cent or 2 cents on each gallon of gasoline sold to motor cars, show that a large amount of revenue has been received from this source. It is probable that New Brunswick will follow their lead next year and have this gasoline tax in effect.

It is but just that some portion of the revenue for good roads should come from such a source. The man who uses the roads most, then pays in proportion to the benefits he receives from our good roads. At present the only source of income is from the yearly license fee on cars. This is all very well, but it does not strike equitably on car owners, as some use the roads very much more than others, and they should in fairness pay in proportion.

Then again, visitors come from other provinces and from the States. They get the benefit of the millions we have spent on our highways and it is only reasonable that they should contribute in the small way that such a gasoline tax will compel them to do. We are glad to see them on our roads, and this small fee will be no hindrance to their keeping on coming and in large numbers, but their traffic will wear out roads just as surely as will the local traffic and they should have a small portion of this burden added to their expenses and as an offset to the great pleasure they derive in motoring along New Brunswick's fine highways and enjoying New Brunswick's beautiful scenery.

By all means let the government start the gas tax next year and if they get too much money to look after, they can reduce the license fee by a dollar or so, and all auto owners will rise up and call them blessed.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE
 In view of its value as an organization which claims to constantly improve teaching methods and educational facilities, the Restigouche

Teachers' Institute meetings which are to be held here next week should keenly interest all teachers throughout this district.

A most attractive programme has been arranged for this year's meetings. Judging from some of the numbers it should be most instructive as well. During the sessions papers will be read by different teachers on various interesting subjects. These include: Drawing, Language in Primary, Middle and Upper Forms Home Study, Teaching of Fractions and Rural School Problems. There will also be an address on the Problems of Teaching in French and English Communities which should prove of general interest. The period of open discussion at the last session will also be a feature of the Institute and it is hoped that all teachers in the County who can possibly attend, will arrange to be present for these helpful meetings.

The old Court House has been moved to the fence on Adelaide Street. In less than three hours, after all preparations had been made, the old building was moved 180 feet. PERSONALS

Mr. W. H. Priest, who is shortly retiring from the management of the Dalhousie Lumber Company, Limited, was presented a Fitted Club Bag on Saturday, Oct. 11th, by the employees. The presentation was made in the evening. The mills that Mr. Priest has been in charge closed down on Saturday evening the eleventh for the season, and during the evening the employees assembled in the office and Mr. A. B. McKinnon as spokesman for the men made the presentation. Mr. Priest was taken completely by surprise but responded in a few short words, thanking the boys for their token of appreciation, and assuring them that the time spent among them, would always be looked upon as one of the very bright parts of his life, and he hoped to return from year to year. The gathering broke up with three hearty cheers and a tiger for the retiring manager.

Mrs. Ivan Dawson and Miss Palmer of Dalhousie Junction, were the guests of Miss Alice Campbell recently.

Mr. W. A. R. Cragg attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Thos. M. Fraser, which took place at Bathurst, on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 12th.

Mayor W. S. Montgomery went to Richibucto on Monday on a business trip.

Miss Myers, Campbellton, was the guest of Mrs. Ed. Shirley last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boudreau, were visitors to Dalhousie on Sunday. They motored from Campbellton.

Mr. Henry McIntyre, Campbellton, was in town on Sunday on account of the illness of his sister Mrs. George E. Mercer.

Many friends read with regret the sad news of the death last week in Moncton of Mr. Frank Magee, who a few years ago was a popular clerk in one of our large stores. His wife, a daughter of the late Mr. Aug. Leves, Ex. M. P. for Kent Co. N. B., and her children will have the sympathy of very many friends in their sad bereavement. The late Frank Magee was a brother of Mr. J. Val Magee of Campbellton.

The many friends of Mr. Charles Stewart were delighted on Thursday evening, when they saw him enjoying the fine game of whist, and there was applause when his name was announced as the winner of the men's first prize. He is certainly much improved in health.

FIDDLE HAD A CURIOUS HISTORY

The largest sum ever paid for a fiddle was $10,500. The instrument had a curious history, Olga Raster tells in her interesting volume, "Chats on Big and Little Fiddles".

Recently published by a London firm. Ten thousand fiddles are attributed to Stradivarius, and this one, "the Messie", is dated 1716, 20 years before his death. It was still among the 91 in his possession when he died, and became the property of his son, who treasured it carefully until his own death in 1775.

Then it was sold to Count Cosio di Salabue, the well-known Italian collector, and reposed calm and untouched 30 years in the bottom drawer of a rickety old bureau. Tardis was found dead one winter's morning in 1845. Round him on every side were priceless fiddles. Nothing else; no luxuries; no comfort. Merely 246 exquisite fiddles, crammed into one little attic. When it was played the "Messie" had had 147 speechless years, yet it answered in tones more mellow, more clear than a Strad that had been throbbing for a century.

One fiddle, which Stradivarius made when he was 89, belongs to Ysaye, the Belgian violinist, and one he made in 1687, before the appearance of his famous instruments, to Kubelik.

LOCAL NEWS

The interior of the office used by the Royal Bank of Canada has been completely painted recently, and the place presents a very neat appearance.

Mr. Pasty Wisted, who came to Dalhousie recently from Three Rivers, P. Q., on account of his mother's death, will remain for a few days settling up the estate.

The 1st. Dalhousie Troup of Canadian Girl Guides will serve afternoon tea on Friday Oct. 24th., from 5 O'clock to 7 in the Skating Rink. Music. Price 25 cts.

Among the many buildings being improved this year in the shiretown, is the Opera House. Mr. Harry Grimes and Mr. Basque are giving the front a good coat of paint, which makes the building attractive looking.

The lighting system of Dalhousie has been extended to furnish street lights on Hamilton Avenue and on the small street between Brunswick and Renfrew.

Mr. R. J. Sandover-Sly of Campbellton, has submitted his report on Dalhousie's Water System. The report was read before the Town Council at its last meeting.

Mr. Gourley was interviewed by our correspondent on many topics. It is encouraging to know from him that the Canadian National Railways expect to do a very large volume of business in 1925. In fact he said "we are looking forward to a big advance in all lines of trade."

Mr. C. A. Gourley, Travelling Freight Agent for the Canadian National Railways, with headquarters at Moncton, N. B., was in Dalhousie on Tuesday, in connection with the freight to be hauled over the Railway, for the erection of the new Court House, in the shiretown of Restigouche.

He saw Mr. A. R. McKee, Agent for the Contractor Messrs. Parsons, Ed. Co., Ltd., of Moncton, who provided him with the required information.

The public building, known as the Post Office and Custom House, which was built about forty years ago in the shiretown, is undergoing considerable repairing at the present time.

Not only is the damage caused by the recent earthquake being remedied, but an interior overhauling is taking place. The firm of J. & D. A. Harquail Co., Ltd. of Campbellton, has the contract, which is in the vicinity of $27,000.

One of the most enjoyable Whist parties held in Dalhousie for a long time, was the one held on Thursday evening in the Rink, under the auspices of the members of the Soldier's Memorial Hospital Aid of Dalhousie.

Over one hundred people patronized the affair and the handsome sum of $56 was realized.

Mr. Norman C. Stewart, 2nd, Mr. Gordon Matthews. The ladies, who formed the committee, are to be congratulated on the success of the evening.

A letter received from Mr. Norman C. Stewart, son of Ex. Sheriff J. E. Stewart, of Restigouche, gives interesting agricultural information from the province of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Norman C. Stewart resides in Phippen, Sask. where he cast his lot several years ago. He says among other things, "The wheat crop has turned out very good for the year having an average of 15 bushels per acre. We had no rain all summer up till about August 1st. There are millions of acres of wheat in Sask., which will never be harvested as it is so dry that it has burned up the crop and when rain did come it started the weeds and they choked out little wheat that was standing."

Our worry of marketing our wheat is over as we formed a Wheat Pool last year and we have almost seven millions of acres in it in Sask., besides the Pools in the two other provinces, all selling through the one Canadian office. It will not make the wheat any dearer to the consumer; but it will give the farmer a good share of the money the wheat speculator got, in previous years."

arm in arm, Prince Terloff and his host, stepped into the snow-covered slope at the back of a long, dark plantation, towards the little bell-shaped stables indicating their stand. There was not a human being in sight, for the rest of the guns had chosen a steeper but somewhat less circuitous route.

"Von Ragastin," the Ambassador said, "I am going to give myself the luxury of calling you by your name. You know my one weakness, a weakness which in my younger days very nearly drove me out of diplomacy. I detest espionage in every shape and form, even where it is necessary. So far as you are concerned my young friend, he went on, 'I think your position ridiculous. I have sent a private despatch to Potsdam, in which I have expressed that opinion.'"

"So far," Dominey remarked, "I have not been overworked."

"My dear young friend," the Prince continued, "you have not been overworked because there has been no legitimate work for you to do. There will be none. There could be no possible advantage accruing from your labours here to compensate for the very bad effect which the discovery of your true name and position would have in the English Cabinet."

"I must ask you to remember," Dominey begged, "that I am here as a blind servant of the Fatherland. I simply obey orders."

"I will grant that freely," the Prince answered. "But to continue."

"I am now at the end of my first year in this country. I feel able to congratulate myself upon a certain measure of success. From that part of the Cabinet with whom I have to do, I have received nothing but encouragement in my efforts to promote a better understanding between our two countries."

"The sky certainly seems clearer than it did," agreed Dominey. "I have convinced myself," the Prince said emphatically, "that there is a genuine and solid desire for peace with Germany existing in Downing Street. In every argument I have had, in every concession I have asked for, I have been met with a sincere desire to foster the growing friendship between our countries. I am proud of my work here, Von Ragastin. I believe that I have brought Germany and England nearer together than they have been since the days of the Boy War."

"You are sure, sir," Dominey asked, "that you are not confusing personal popularity with national sentiment?"

"I am sure of it," the Ambassador answered gravely. "Such popularity as I may have achieved here has been due to an appreciation of the more healthy state of world politics now existing. It has been my great pleasure to trace the result of my work in a manuscript of memoirs, which some day, when peace is firmly established between our two countries, I shall cause to be published. I have put on record these evidences of the really genuine sentiment in favour of peace which I have found amongst the present Cabinet."

"I should esteem it an immense privilege," Dominey said, "to be given a private reading of these memoirs."

"That may be arranged," was the naive reply. "In the meantime, Von Ragastin, I want you to reconsider your position here."

"My position is not voluntary," Dominey repeated. "I am acting under orders."

ASK THIS HALIFAX NURSE

She is Willing to Answer Letters from Women Asking About Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound

Halifax, Nova Scotia.—"I am a maternity nurse and have recommended Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound to many women who were childless, also to women who need a good tonic. I am English and my husband is American, and he told me of Lydia E. Finkham who is English. I would appreciate a copy of two of your little books on women's ailments. I have one which I keep to hand. I will willingly answer letters from any woman asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. S. M. COLMAN, 24 Uniacke Street, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Could Not Sleep Nights

Dublin, Ontario.—"I was weak and irregular, with pains and headaches, and could not sleep nights. I learned about Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound by reading the letters in the newspapers and it became I wanted to get better. I have got good results from it and I feel a lot stronger and am not troubled with such bad headaches as I used to be and am more regular. I am gaining in weight all the time and I feel my friends' kind of medicine. I am taking. You may use my letter as a help to others."—Mrs. JAMES RACON, Box 18, Dublin, Ontario.

"Dear Maurice is so diplomatic," she murmured.

"I am perfectly certain he is going to begin by remarking to you for your shocking conversation."

Their conversation was interrupted for a few minutes by the sport Dominey called the faithful Middleton to his side for a further supply of cartridges. Stephanie hid her time, which came when the beaters at last emerged from the wood.

"Shocking," Stephanie repeated, reverting to their conversation. "The mildest word in my vocabulary I can apply to your treatment of me. Honestly, Leopold, I feel bruised all over inside. My pride is humiliated."

"It is because you look at the matter only from a feminine point of view," Dominey persisted.

"And you," she answered in a low tone, "once the front and the most passionate of lovers, only from a political one. You think a great deal of your country, Leopold. Have I no claims upon you?"

"Upon Everard Dominey, none," he insisted. "When the time comes, and Leopold Von Ragastin can claim all that is his right, believe me, you will have no cause to complain of coldness or distastefulness. He will have only one thought, only one hope—to end the torture of these years of separation as speedily as may be."

The strained look passed from her face. Her tone became more natural.

"But, dear," she pleaded, "there is no need to wait. Your Sovereign gives you permission. Your political chief will more than endorse it."

"I am on the spot," Dominey replied, "and believe me I know what is safest and best. I cannot live as two men and keep my face steady to the world. The Prince, however, has not spoken to me yet. I will hear what he has to say."

Stephanie turned a little haughtily away.

"You are putting me in the position of a suppliant!" she exclaimed. "Tonight we must have an understanding."

The little party moved on all together to another cover. Rosamund had joined them and hung on to Dominey's arm with delight. The brist walk across the park had brought colour to her cheeks. She walked with all the free and vigorous grace of a healthy woman. Dominey found himself watching her, as she deserted him a little later on to stand by Terloff's side, with a little thrill of tangled emotions. He felt a touch on his arm. Stephanie, who was passing with another of the guns, paused to whisper in his ear:

"There might be a greater danger—one that has evaded even your cautious mind—in overplaying your part."

Dominey was taken possession of by Caroline on their walk to the next stand. She planted herself on a shooting stick by his side and commenced to talk him roundly to task.

"My Everard," she said, "you are one of the most wonderful examples of the reformed rake I ever met! You have been acquired respectable."

For heaven's sake, don't disappoint us all!"

"I seem to be rather good at that," Dominey observed a little drily.

"Well, you are the master of your own actions, are you not?" she asked.

"What I want to say in plain words is, don't go and make a fool of yourself with Stephanie."

"I have not the least intention of doing anything of the sort."

"Well, she has Mark my words, Everard, I know that woman. She is clever, very brilliant and anything else you like, but for some reason or other she has set her mind upon you. She looks at dear little Rosamund as though she hadn't a right to exist. You must have recognized her."

Dominey was silent. Fortunately, the exigencies of the next few minutes intervened.

pause in the shooting.

"Now let me hear what you have to say for yourself, sir? So far as I can see, you've been quite sweet to your wife, haven't you?"

"I want to have an affair with the Princeess don't begin it here you'll have your wife ill again if you make her jealous."

"My dear Caroline, there will be no affair between Stephanie and me,

Of that you may rest assured."

"You mean to say that this is altogether on her side, then?" Caroline persisted.

"You exaggerate her demeanour," he replied, "but even if what you suggest were true—"

"Oh, I don't want a lot of protestations," she interrupted. "I am not saying that you encourage her much, because I don't believe you do. All I want to point out is that, having really brought your wife back almost to health, you must be extraordinarily and wonderfully careful. If you want to talk nonsense with Stephanie do it in Belgrave Square."

Dominey was watching the gyrations of a falling pheasant. His left hand was stretched out towards the cartridge bag which Caroline was holding. He clasped her fingers for a moment before he helped himself.

"You are rather a dear, he said. 'I would not do anything to hurt Rosamund for the world.'"

"If you can't get rid of your old tricks altogether and must flirt," she remarked, "well, I'm always somewhere about. Rosamund wouldn't mind me, because there are a few grey hairs in my sandy ones. And here comes your man across the park—looks as though he had a message for you. So long as nothing has happened to your cook, I feel that I could face ill tidings with composure."

Dominey found himself with fixed eyes the approach of his rather sad-faced manservant through the snow. Parkins was not dressed for such an enterprise, nor did he seem in any way to relish it. His was the stern march of duty, and, curiously enough, Dominey felt from the moment he caught sight of him that he was in some respects a messenger of Fate. Yet the message which he delivered, when at last he reached his master's side, was in no way alarming.

"A person of the name of Miller has arrived here, sir," he announced, "from Norwich. He is, I understand, a foreigner of some sort, who has recently landed in this country. I found it a little difficult to understand him, but her Highness's maid conversed with him in German, and I understand that he either is or brings you a message from a certain Doctor Schmidt, with whom you were acquainted in Africa."

The warning whistle blew at that moment, and Dominey swung round and stood at attention. His behaviour was perfectly normal. He let a hen pheasant pass over his head, and brought down a cock from very nearly the limit distance. He reloaded before he turned to Parkins.

"Is this person in a hurry?" he said.

"You'll like the flavor"

"By no means, sir," the man replied. "I told him that you would not be back until three or four o'clock, and he is quite content to wait."

"Look after him yourself," then, Parkins, he directed. "We shall not be shooting late to-day. Very likely I will send Mr. Seaman back to talk to him."

The man raised his hat respectfully and turned back towards the house. Caroline was watching her companion curiously.

"Do you find many of your acquaintances in Africa look you up, Everard?" she asked.

"Except for Seaman," Dominey replied, looking through the barrels of his gun, "who really does not count because we crossed together, this is my first visitor from the land of foreign travel. I expect there will be plenty of them by and by, though. Caroline have a wonderful habit of sticking to one another."

How to Plan a Nourishing Luncheon for the School Child

The return of school days turns mother's attention to the consideration of the school luncheon, its good and its bad points. Correct food habits established during vacation months are disturbed by the elimination of the customary warm noon-day meal, for even though the school may boast a lunch room it is not quite the same as a home meal. Another thing is where so many children are eating together more fooling is apt to be done than eating.

This is a difficult point of correction, unless there is a strict hostess or school mother in attendance. The plastic thermos bottle carried with the luncheon box or basket is a help in supplying a warm drink which may be soup, beef tea, broth or cocoa.

There are not many warm drinks for children that they care for, or that are allowed. Milk of course is urged on all occasions for the growing child.

One thing should be impressed upon the mother and that is that every child should be made to get up in time in the morning to eat leisurely a warm and nourishing breakfast before starting out. In the luncheon there should be fruit for the mid-morning recess, also there should be a light lunch awaiting the child for mid-afternoon at home. If these things are watched the cold luncheon will not upset the general health.

The sweets added to the luncheon should be carefully considered, for while they are a necessity to children they should be carefully chosen. Home-made cake or cookies, tiny baked puddings with raisins in them, and only the best candy, home-made or purchased, should form the little surprise that children love to find in their baskets.

In preparing the fruit to be eaten at recess, it should be fixed so it may be readily and quickly eaten. Pare the orange and wrap it in wax paper, do the same with bananas, peaches, pears, or apples, wash grapes and do them up in the same way. This makes them easy to eat and children will eat them and not throw them aside as too much trouble to prepare.

The occasional hard-boiled egg should be shelled, then wrapped in wax paper. Joints of chicken or turkey may be done up the same way which keeps them moist and nice.

Mixed fillings for sandwiches, moistened with home-made mayonnaise, or with cream, keep very fresh and are nourishing as well as tasty. If the sandwich fillings are varied frequently, the breads as well as the fillings, with the heavy crust cut off in the making, they will not lose their appeal to the childish appetite.

The day the cold chicken joints are taken, skip sandwiches and put in buttered rolls or biscuits for a change, add a little jar of currant jelly with a paper spoon, which adds the moisture and keeps the meal from being dry.

Little individual baked puddings, baked macaroni, scalloped potatoes, or baked chicken pie make odd little treats now and then instead of the sandwiches. It is the monotony that is allowed to creep in that makes the luncheon harmful. It is a duty we must perform and while it is an added care and trouble the end justifies the means. If we get the habit of having things on hand for the five mornings each week it will not be such a burden.

Wax paper as a carrier for the foods is far better than napkins, for it is destroyed when used and does not taint the food with a close stuffiness as the linen seems to do, no matter if it is fresh daily. It is that peculiar odor that sets a child against the luncheon. A straight talk with a child about the necessity of eating properly, teaching them how to eat in the best way, and a promise that they will not neglect themselves, is a step towards accomplishing the right ends. It is also a good idea for the mother to drop in and bring the luncheon with her once in a while and stay while the youngster eats, then she will know just what is going on and can meet, and solve the problem with a better understanding.

Solving School Problems for Mothers

School days are upon us once more and we who are mothers have duties before us that cannot be sidestepped. The first duty is to go to school with your children and meet the teacher who is to have charge of them during a greater part of each day through the season.

Look over the building carefully, see if it is clean, wholesome, properly ventilated. See at what kind of desks your children are to be seated, where they are to hang their clothing, where they are likely to eat their luncheon if they carry one from home and the condition and convenience of toilet rooms. All of these things are of vital importance to you not only on the child's account, but in combating conditions arising from things not so good.

Many of the minor ailments of a child may be discovered and corrected if a careful survey is made at the beginning of the term. Many of the modern school buildings are done up in most details, but a careful inspection may reveal points that should be explained to the child so that they will understand how to avoid anything that is not as it should be. To do this understandingly we mothers must go and stay long enough to find out for ourselves. A child shown by its mother what to do and what not to do, profit by the warning even more than if told by the teacher in the general class, because if mother has been there she knows.

Where and how the luncheon is eaten makes a great difference in the child's well-being and is a point that must be decided upon and driven home in no uncertain way. After the first month the teacher also may have little things to tell an interested mother that will be helpful to her to know and talk over with the child. It is this kind of co-operation that is a mutual interest in a child's welfare and brings about excellent results.

There are questions that arise in the playground at recess time that must be met, the making of kindly and agreeable friendships and the avoidance of the undesirable ones. This is a delicate point—one also that the teacher has hardly time to consider, so that it must be watched and regulated from home by a frequent visit perhaps at recess-time.

We soon know from our children's actions when they are acquiring undesirable traits and it is generally not hard to find the source of the trouble. This must be done tactfully, and if there is something definite to work on, then the teacher's aid can be listed. But only a mother's interested contact can correct the wrong.

Insistence upon the child's return home immediately upon being dismissed from school is an excellent plan. Let them know that school is a business and when the hours are over, they should come home just as father does from the office. In this way a child's playmates come under inspection and one knows just what they are doing, rather a necessary thing in these days in a city large or small. A few hours spent in public libraries, parks, zoos, ice cream and candy shops where many children gather after school will prove eye openers to mothers.

The provision of soap, towel, paper cups, and so on for the child will save many minor illnesses during a season. The insistence upon the child eating the luncheon taken and not to use the entire time in play, is a point that must be impressed, and if trouble follows, the report of the teacher should receive prompt attention at home and the child made to know it was under inspection even if you did not see it personally. One or two instances of this kind usually settle the matter.

The simpler the child can be dressed for school the better. School clothes and home clothes should be kept distinctly separate. Mothers who keep in touch with school conditions never regret the effort.

For the Home Preserve Jar

Green Tomato Preserve
5 quarts green tomatoes.
5 lemons
10 cupsful of sugar.
Wash and slice the tomatoes before measuring. Slice the lemons very thin. In a bowl place the tomatoes, lemons and sugar in layers. Let stand overnight. In the morning cook slowly until the tomatoes are tender and the mixture thickened. The time required will be about two hours. This recipe will fill ten half-pint jars.

Mint Jelly.
1 peck apples.
Bunch mint leaves.
Sugar.
Green coloring.
Cut the apples, first washing and removing the blossom end. Do not pare or core. Just cover with cold water and boil to a mush. Drain through a jelly bag and allow to stand overnight. Next day measure the juice and bring to the boiling point. Boil hard for twenty minutes, adding frequently. Allow three-fourths measure of sugar to the original measure of juice, heat and add to the juice. Again bring to the boiling point and boil five minutes. Wash the mint and bruise some of the leaves slightly by pressing between the fingers. Hold the mint in hand and pass it through and through the apple syrup until the mint flavor is obtained. This process takes the last three minutes of the cooking. Add a bit of vegetable green coloring paste. Pour into sterilized glasses and allow to set thoroughly before covering with paraffin.

Peach and Orange Marmalade
24 peaches.
4 oranges.
3-1/2 pounds of sugar.
Peel the peaches remove the stones and cut them in thin slices. Wash and peel the oranges, cut the skins into thin strips and the oranges themselves into small pieces. Combine all add the sugar. Simmer for two and one-half hours, adding at the end of two hours the walnuts chopped coarsely. The mixture should be jelly-like in consistency when done. Pour into hot, sterilized jars; paraffin when cold and set.

Peach Cocktails
One and one-half cups of very ripe peaches, one cup of preserved cherries, one grapefruit, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one or two bananas, some rather large but equal sized oranges. Wash, dry the oranges, then cut them with a sharp knife to form baskets with handles. Remove the pulp carefully to preserve the baskets in perfect form.

Put the orange pulp into a bowl, add the peaches, cut in small pieces, cherries, halved, grapefruit pulp and juice, sugar and the bananas, sliced. Mix and chill. Place the baskets on serving plates, fill with the mixture and serve.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE ARRIVED SAFELY

Made Passage Across Atlantic in 81 Hours 25 Minutes

Airdrome, Lakhurst, N. J., Oct. 16.—The giant Zeppelin ZR-3 was safely moored in her berth at the naval air station, Airdrome, Lakhurst, at 10:45 a.m. today.

She completed her journey from Friedrichshafen, Germany, a distance estimated at 5,000 miles, in 81 hours, 25 minutes.

The safe arrival of the ZR-3 from Friedrichshafen, Germany, marks the fourth successful attempt of humans to span the waters of the Atlantic Ocean in non-stop flights.

Aeronautic experts of army and navy regard it as the most significant, if not the most spectacular flight.

They declared today as the huge liner ended the longest continuous aerial passage in history and headed toward her berth to settle down and be tied up, that the world was witnessing undeniable evidence that the dirigible was destined to be the inter-continental passenger ship of the near future.

It has been five years since the forerunners of this latest feat were recorded, since 1919, when the perilous currents hovering over the North Atlantic, were negotiated in land-to-land ventures by United States seaplanes.

The British team of Alick and Brown, both Royal Flying Corps men, took the air at St. John's, Newfoundland in a Vickers-Vimy biplane on June 14, 1919. They dropped their landing gear on the rock-rimmed coast and headed eastward. Sixteen hours and 12 minutes later having traversed 1,932 miles of sea and fog, they plunged with their craft into a bog near Clifden, Ireland.

The machine was a wreck, fit only for transportation to a London museum.

The aviators were battered in the crash but a record that still stands has been made.

Hawker and Greaves had tried the stunt before, and had been plunged into mid-ocean when their motor failed.

NUN SAVED HIM BY THREE HOURS OF TOIL

British Officer at Hospital Pronounced Dead by Surgeon

Had it not been for the persistence of a nun in a Dublin hospital on Oct. 10, 1918, who rubbed his body with alcohol for three hours after the surgeon had pronounced him to be dead Major F. B. Hurdall of the British Army, would not have arrived in New York recently with his wife and 11-year-old son Peter on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnowaka to play in the International polo games next month.

On the morning of that day the Kingston, Ireland, for Holyhead on the express steamer Leinster, accompanied by his son. Mrs. Hurdall was ill with influenza at their home in Kilcare and could not sail with them. About 10 o'clock the Leinster was torpedoed by a German submarine in the middle of the Irish Channel and 400 lives were lost.

Captain Hurdall was on a raft with his boy and after an hour and a half Peter saw his unconscious father washed away by a wave.

Half an hour later a destroyer came along and picked up all the bodies that could be seen floating on the surface of the sea and steamed at full speed to Dublin, where they were conveyed to the military hospital to see if there were any signs of life.

When Captain Hurdall was picked up his body was covered with soot and oil from the torpedoed steamer. The naval officers on the destroyer thought he was a stoker until they noticed the gold crest of the Twentieth Hussars embroidered upon his cap.

The surgeon in the hospital pronounced the army officer to be dead, but one of the nuns doing nursing duty declared there was still a slight trace of warmth about the heart.

After three hours continuous rubbing with alcohol she had the satisfaction of seeing Captain Hurdall open his eyes and gaze vacantly at those standing by his bed.

In the meantime his son Peter had been rescued from the raft by the boats lowered by the steamer Munster which did not dare to stop to pick them up. He was landed at Kingston and sent to a nursing home in Dublin, where an aunt found him three days later and took him home.

Captain Hurdall recovered from his trying experiences in the Irish Channel and rejoined the army. He had no further mishaps, he said yesterday. His son Peter said yesterday that although he was only five years old when the accident occurred he could remember perfectly seeing his father carried off the raft by a wave and floating away from him. He added that his mother might not have come to New York either if he had not been attacked by influenza. "It was jolly luck that mother was ill then, wasn't it?" Peter said.

EXPERTS VISITED FISHING PORTS

Artificial Pearl from Scales of Herring is now Planned

London, Oct. 18.—A number of experts have recently visited the fishing ports on the east coast of England and Scotland with the object of studying the possibilities of making a new kind of artificial pearl from the scales of herring. The scales, which are chosen for their brilliancy and purity, are converted by a secret process into a substance known as chitin. Artificial pearls, of which many kinds are now made, are treated with this substance, and are said to resemble the real pearl much more closely in consequence.

When treated with this preparation manufactured pearls, it is claimed, are given not only the precise lustre found in the real pearl, but the same velvety appearance. It is predicted that soon it will be impossible even for experts to distinguish between the genuine pearl and the imitation, without microscopic examination.
