Times and the Cape Argus both consider the British note generous and conciliatory, and all the papers, including the Krugerite organs, assume that the Transvaal will comply with the British demands. It is believed that the Orange State Volksraad will be summoned to consider the situation. A special dispatch from Pretoria says the leaders of the Afrikander Bund have telegraphed to President Kruger, urging him to yield to Mr. Chamberlain's last demands. IN CASE OF WAR. Johannesburg, Sept. 14. - The war instructions issued to railway officials direct them to remain at their posts as long as possible. When the enemy seizes any section of the line, they must go to the next unseized point. They are forbidden to carry arms, or to resist any regular force. Military developments continue, and the work of preparing for emergencies goes on. Upon the arrival of the next batch of British troops the headquarters' staff of the royal artillery will be transferred to Kimberley, whither a battery will proceed to protect the diamond mines.

Anti-Foreign Demonstration in Thibet -Native Catholics Massacred.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 14.-A special from Taccma, Wash., says: grams have been received at Shanghai that several missionaries have been driven out of the city of Paongan, situated 160 miles across the border in Audone Province, Thibet. Over 3,-000 Lamas reside there, the majority of whom joined the anti-foreign demonstration and drove the missionaries out. The latter include Mr. and Mrs. Shields and Mrs. MacBeth. For several weeks previous to the final riot the missionaries were compelled to stay indoors. Details are not known further than that the mission was destroyed and the misisonaries barely escaped by journeying secretly at night. Near Ychang and Chun King an anti-Catholic uprising was caused by the kidnapping of children. Children have been stolen almost by the wholesale by wandering gypsies, but the natives believe that they were eaten by the hated foreigners. A number of native Catholics have been killed. At Fuchow two natives were executed for circulating reports against the foreigners.

LADIES' WORKS. The ladies' department has never shown to better advantage than it has this year. It is situated in the welllighted wing adjoining the art gallery, where the work is displayed in a very artistic manner. Those in charge of the department have arranged it with an eye'to ease and comfort. The heavder styles of work have been placed on long tables, on either side of the room It consists of knitting, crocheting in wool, couching and certain classes of embroidery. The display of hand-decorated china in the annex is much more effective this year than ever before, owing to the greater space devoted to this beautiful and interesting exhibit. The larger space has enabled Mr. J. I. A. Hunt, superintendent of this department, to arrange the display to much greater advantage than last year. The most marked and gratifying improvement over last year is seen in the quality of the work shown. The designs are more beautiful and the work more delicatery and artistically done. Notable Exhibits. MASSEY-HARRIS COMPANY, LIMITED. As usual, we find this progressive company at their old stand in the agricultural implement building, where they exhibit a full line of their worldrenowned machines. They have, as usual, their usual corps of courteous attendants to take care of the crowds of farmers visiting their stand. It has been the center of attraction in machinery hall, not only for the excellent finish of the machines shown, but for the very artistic manner in which their stand has been decorated. The exhibit is in charge of Mr. R. B. Smith, the company's courteous and genial general agent, of London. It is needless for us to comment at any length upon the reputation of this truly Canadian com-pany or the goods it offers for sale, as there is not a farmer in the civilized world who has not heard of them, or even used the machines it makes, all of whom will bear testimony to the exceltreatment always afforded its patrons. Farmers or the people generally do not stop to think what this great Canadian industry means to Canada. It at the present time employs over 3,000 Canadian workmen in its factories, earning nearly one million dollars in wages per annum, and indirectly it employs thousands of other Canadians, wno produce the raw material for the construction of their machines, so largely reap the benefit of so truly a patriotic company. The motto of this company is "Canada for the Canadians," which used by Canadian farmers, who must is a motto well worthy of it and every other Canadian industry; and we only wish that the same motto would be adopted by every farmer of this Dominion, who, if they would patronize home industries in place of foreign, they would not only add much to their own interests, but to the Dominion of which they are part, and thus add to the number of artisans employed in their own country, and help to build the national welfare of Canada. We very strongly re-commend farmers not to place their or-ders for a binder until they have been waited upon by a representative of this to explain the points of excellence of this new machine over any other. We also learn that this is not the only new thing the company has to offer the Canadian farmers at the end of the century. The new No. 7 Mower is now ready for the hay crop of 1900. Space will not permit of details, but company's new catalogues will soon be ready for distribution, which will give a full description of this new mower, as well as of everything else they manufacture and supply. Copies can be obtained either through the local agent of the district, or by mail upon application. This company is distributing at their exhibit a little Pocket Memo Book, containing lots of valuable information for the farmer, and we are glad to see this company has not forgotten the "farmer's wife," as they have prepared a neatly gottenup little book for her individual use, and which contains lets of hints for the household. This consideration on the part of the Massey-Harris Company We are sure will be appreciated by the ladies of the farm. We notice on the inside of the covers of this little book the gentle wool-bearers. Here and the following suggestions to the farm-

Visitors will have one more chance to see this wonderful beast, and all should avail themselves of the opportunity.

THE STANLEY PIANOS.

"It touches the heart." The little heart-shaped card bearing this inscription is in almost universal evidence among the visitors to the Western Fair. It refers to the celebrated Stanley piano and is merely a terse and novel way of expressing the opinion of every lover of music who hears the Stanley. There is beauty, symmetry, quality and genius about the Stanley. It possesses the subtle qualities of tone that clude description, but are instantly felt. An evidence of the popularity of the Stanley is shown in the fact that the entire exhibit at the Fair has been sold, and the firm are taking numerous orders for duplicates of the planos in the display. Mr. H. Wellington Burnett, of Toronto, who is assisting Mr. James Keenleyside, the local representative of the Stanley Manufacturing Company, says they have every reason to be gratified with business done during the Fair. •• MANN MANUFACTURING COM-

When heavy ground is being worked the drills are held down firmly by springs, while they float when the pressure is reversed. This is the only drill on the market embodying this principle, and it has been greatly admired by thousands of farmers who have called to examine its simple mechanism, by which the operator has absolute control of the machine. Several American farmers, greatly pleased with the principle of this drill, have placed their orders, which will be shipped to various points in the United States. Another very popular machine is their Giant Cultivator, which works in land through which the average machine would find it impossible to travel. Three years ago one was purchased by the London City Council, and ever since has been used for ripping up macadam roads. It gives splendid results. The Hamilton new No. 7 ensilage and straw cutter, with reversible belt feed, is a perfect machine. It has a capacity of a ton of corn in eight minutes, and works equally well in long or short stuff. The blade is concave, insuring even cut-ting all along the blade. "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle," is the motto which, faithfully followed for 33 years, has led the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company to success, and secured a reputation for liability and honest dealing with the farming community.

was filled with passengers. The witness saw Watson throw and heard the stone strike the car. He arrested the prisoner on the spot. The case was enlarged until Mon day and bail was refused. Watson lives on the Hamilton road, and is a son of a house-mover. He, with two other young men, was standing around, and Detective Nickle decided to watch the trio. The detective kept within a few feet of the men, and alleges that when between English and Rectory streets. Watson deliberately hurled a stone at a passing car. Nickle grabbed him, and Watson started to scuffle, when the officer drew his billy and felled Watson with a blow on the back of the head. The prisoner was then taken to the police station in the

BOYLE KEEPS STRATHROY.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 14.—Judgment was given at Osgoode Hall respecting the custody of the well-known race horse Strathroy. Mr. Wm. Hendrie some time ago sought to recover on a chattel mortgage given by Charles Boyle, the Woodstock horseman, and ordered the seizure of Boyle's horses. Among them was Strathroy, which Boyle stated that the property of Mr. Young, of Lexington, Ky. Boyle re-covered the horse by strategem from Hendrie's stables at the Woodbine, Whereupon Mr. Hendrie entered suit. It has now been decided that Boyle is entitled to the custody of Strathroy.

At that time the township was a wilderness, only about two dozen families in the whole township, consequently my father had to lift and carry the heavy burdens of a pioneer life, but he did it bravely and cheerfully, for he was a man of unusual strength and courage, and very amiable and quiet in his disposition, and believed in living peaceably with all men, and was a member of the Baptist Church. He was married to Miss Sarah Ardiel, Nov. 14, 1833, by whom God gave him eleven children, eight of whom are still living. The second youngest, Mrs. Needham, of Holly, Mich., died only three weeks M advance of father. {It is Incontrovertible!

The Editor of the "Christian Million. under the heading of General Notes, or August 20, 1896, wrote:— "A good article will stand upon its own merits, and we may rely upon it that nothing will continue long which does not, in a more or less degree, harmonize with the state-ments which are published concerning it."

Mr. Hall Caine, Author of "The Deemster," "The Mansman," "The Christian," etc., when speaking on "Criticism," recently, said:— "When a thing that is advertised greatly is good it goes and goes permanently; when it is bad, it only goes for a while: the public finds it out."

The Proprietor of BEECHAM'S PILLS has said over and over again :-

"It is a fallacy to imagine that anythe will sell just because it is advertised. How many nostrums have been started with giare and snuffed out in gloom? The fact is, a man is not easily guiled a second time; and every dissatisfied purchaser does ten times more harm than one satisfied does good. Assuredly the sele of more than 6,000,000 boxes of BEECHAM'S PILLS per annum, after a public trial of half-a-century, is conclusive testimony of their popularity, superiority and proverbial worth."

London's Lungs. The people of Hamilton the other day $50,000 to purchase Dundurn We learn from the Hamilton Herald that the city will now have in all 100 acres of park land, valued at There is Dundurn, 32 acres; Victoria Park, 22.30 acres; Harvey Park, 8.34 acres; North End Park, 6.50 who know him best, have answered his acres; Woodlands Park, 6.04 acres; traducers by an enthusiastic renewal Mount Hamilton Park, 4.10 acres; Beulah, 0.96 acre; Wellington Park, 0.72 acre; Gore Park, 0.54 acre. It will be seen from this that Hamilton has wisely adopted the plan of scattering parks throughout the city. How does London compare in this respect? We have only one central park, Victoria Park, which contains 14.29 acres. For and public convenience, it is well-nigh perfect. The city could not do without it. It is London's lung. We have also Queen's Park, 35 acres, much of which is covered by exhibition It is a capital place for a holiday celebration, but for every-day a park or play-ground, it is handy for the East End only. Then we have Springbank, a grand expanse, which can hold the whole population; but Springbank is four miles distant.

While we have a larger park area than Hamilton, the majority of the of London have no park grounds within easy reach. In every ward there are many acres lying vacant, which are admirably adapted for park purposes, and could now be purchased at a low figure. Much of this land is well-wooded and would require little improvement. A series of small parks or lungs distributed at convenient points throughout the city would a necessity even at present is shown by the overcrowding of Victoria Park on any sweltering Sunday. It would not be a costly scheme if taken in hand shy at a new idea.

Ontario Fruit for the Northwest.

We pointed out the other day the growing importance of the markets of the great Canadian Northwest to the fruit growers of Eastern Canada, and we emphasized the necessity of the railway companies co-operating with the growers to enable the settlers on the orairies and in the mining regions to obtain our fruit at reasonable prices. History is made so rapidly in of being a Canadian spy. This is pretfy these growing times in the Dominion good proof that St. Pierre has somethat we had for the moment forgotten thing to conceal. The people there how much has recently been accom- thrive by smuggling liquor into Canplished by the Dominion Government and by the C. P. R. to secure the ob- around. The nest should be cleaned ject in view. When a bargain was made with the C. P. R. two years ago for the construction of the Crow's Nest of the stern Old Testament brand is Pass Railroad, the Government had two objects in view-the speedy development of the great natural resources of the region through which the Crow's Nest Pass line runs and the early lowering of the freight rates in the interest of the farmers of the prairies and those in Eastern Canada who supply their wants. For this rea- est, and make them afraid with Thy son, the arrangement was made that the rate on wheat should be lowered 3 cents per 100 pounds. This has proved a great boon to the farmer of the west. But substantial reductions on many other classes of freight were effected by the same agreement, and the freight on all kinds of green fruit shipped to the west has accordingly been reduced 33% per cent. This has been of great advantage to the western settlers, and has given much encouragement to the eastern fruit grower, who has now another profitable market, making him less dependent on the local and British markets than he was formerly. The effect of this excellent arrangement has been felt in the present season, as we learn from the Hamilton correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, who points out that this year, in addition to the great reduction in freight rates, which has been brought responding fatitudes in Europe? Dawabout through the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, limited flyers to Manitoba have carried special fruit cars, and a vast amount of good has been done for the fruit section of the country. In this way tons upon tons of choice Ontario fruit have found a market, and the present season is but the first under

The West Elgin Election.

The Liberals of West Elgin have aken a proper and graceful course in renominating Mr. Donald McNish for the Legislature. Although Mr. McNish was unseated through no fault of his own, he has been maligned for acts which were committed without his knowledge or consent, and which were deeply repugnant to a man of his honor. The Liberals of West Elgin of confidence.

Every honest elector, Liberal or Conservative, will indorse the resolutions passed by the nominating convention. The delegates on behalf of the Liberals of the riding, denounced in a manly way the corrupt practices imported into the last bye-election by non-residents without the cognizance of the local party organization. The executive committee also declare that the West Elgin Reform Association will not recognize any outsiders assuming to take part in the conduct of the ensuing election, and that if any outsiders come into the riding they do so against the wishes of the association. The Liberals of the riding keenly feel the stigma which has been put upon them and are determined to efface it.

Eleven on One Limb at One Time With Excruciating Pain. All Remedies Tried, and Numberless Physicians Little Benefit. CUTICURA Speedily Cures.

My mother has been a victim to ulcers from cose veins for thirty-five years. Eleven of these terrible sores have existed at one time on the limb affected. Excruciating pain and intense suffering were endured, with all sorts of remedies on trial and numberless physicians' calls and on that and numberiess physicians calls and prescriptions applied, but all practically with but little benefit. However, at last the remedial agent was found in Curreura (cintment), which surely proved its weight in gold, alleviating pain and causing healing processes to commence and a cure speedily effected. She has, also, used CUTICURA with marked benefit in erysipelas of the face and eczema. The Curicuna Scar, also, has established a record only as the best cleansing, purifying, and healing in its nature, having proved itself a most excellent and valuable auxiliary to the CUTICURA (ointment).

I would remark that this testimonial is entirely licited, being a voluntary contribution for humanity's sake, and the commendation of the CUTICUBA REXEDIES to the fullest confide being satisfied of their purity, genuineness, and March 16, 1868. W. T. MORSE, Cabot, Vt.

The result lease them to companies.

From the beginning Glasgow owned its own street railway lines. It was too careful of its streets to allow any company to control them. Though the conditions under which a company leased the lines for twenty-one years highly favorable to the city, at the ex-piration of the lease it was decided not to renew it. An offer was made to take over the company's rolling stock, stables, etc., on an arbitrator's valuation, on condition that the company should not put on a rival line of 'buses As this was declined, the council started car shops, and equipped the line with new material entirely. On the day of the transfer the competing omnibuses appeared, but the citizens had long experienced the advantages of loyal support of their own government. All the blandishments of the omnibus conductors were unavailing; the omnibuses ran empty, while street cars were crowded, and soon the chargined rivals withdrew from the uneven contest. Scotch shrewdness has been justified of her children. For short distances a system of one cent fares has been introduced; the cars have been made more elegant and comfortable; electric traction is being installed. In one year the number passengers was doubled, and after paying interest on the capital, and pro-viding an adequate reserve fund, a surplus of $200,000 is left to pay for open spaces, baths and wash-houses, river ferries, art exhibitions, music, and improved sanitation. Boston, Mass., has started on a simflar career with similar effect. There every man who bathes at the beach bathes or takes his shower in the palatial all-year baths, every boy who attends the municipal summer camp, and every woman who enjoys a stroll in the extensive parks or attends a free city concert, has solid reason to support good government. THE AUTOMOBILE

What It Will Do for City and Country Life.

The Marquis de Chasseloup-Laubat, conspicuous among French sportsmen who have devoted much time and labor to the development of the automobile carriage, has an article in the Sep-North American Review in which he tells a most interesting story of "The Progress of Automobilism in The marquis gives the his-France. tory of the original invention of this new style of vehicle, and points out the influences which retarded its acvance into use as a practical means of locomotion. He describes the various test races which have taken place in France under the auspices of the Automobile Club of France, and sets forth the lessons taught by the results of these races, as to the strong and weak points of the different kinds of machines-steam, electric and petroieum-respectively. The reflections of the marquis as to the economic and social changes likely to be brought about by the new method of locomotion are suggestive. He says: "The study of practical mechanics will receive an extraordinary impulse among all classes of the population, and out of it will grow a rapproche-ment between the idle wealth and the laboring man. Distance will be of less mportance than in the past in countries that boast a network of good roads. With mechanical vehicles in general use it will be an easy matter to live 20 or 30 kilometres from the place of one's daily avocations, especially in summer, and it will be conidered a promenade to go for breakfast 50, 100 or 150 kilometres away from home. Profound modifications will undoubtedly result from this, not only in country life, but, what is more important, in the life of a numerous class nhabiting our large cities. Automobilism, even more than our suburban railway lines, will cause the great city of the future to extend even further than it has in the past, and will permit a great number of men to enjoy the ineffable blessing of pure air, of green grass and of sunlight. Automobilism is a means of progress of well-being, and of civilization."

NEW ZEALAND IS HAPPY

Poverty-State Ownership & Success. [Ottawa Free Press.] "We have the minimum of poverty in New Zealand," said Mr. Anderson, o

Christ Church, New Zealand, in discussing the economic condition of that country with a Free Press representative recently. Mr. Anderson is an iron founder, and with Mrs. Anderson, is enjoying a pleasure trip in which by the time they have reached home they will have rounded the globe. They went to England via the Suez, and will return home via Vancouver. Mr. Anderson says the industrial conditions in New Zealand are prosperous and the country is progressing rapidly. While he is an iron manufacturer, Mr. Anderson takes a deep interest in all that pertains to the country's wellfare, and is thoroughly posted on its various resources.

Sheep raising is still and will likely always be the greatest industry in New Zealand. The production of wool annually is something enormous. With the de-cline of the merino wool market the ranchers met the new conditions by changing the stock and now the principal breed of sheep is part merino and part Leicester. The frozen mutton trade with Great Britain has also reached an enormous volume and it one of the most profitable of businesses. The problem of freezing the meats so as to stand the 45 days trip, half of it under the torrid suns, has been successfully solved and the meat reaches England in a wholesome condition.

'We are still pestered with rabbits in New Zealand," said Mr. Anderson, "The country is overrun with them, and we practical colonists have been forced to find some means of making use of them. They are now captured, and frozen and shipped to England, where there is a ready market. are shipped with the fur on, and sell "As high as sixpence a pair is paid for them, and there has been a won-derful development of the trade. It looks as if a practical way has been discovered of reducing the annoyance caused by these animals in their depredations in the fields. "New Zealand is producing a lot of gold, especially by dredging. The rivers are rich in gold and the machinery has been improved so as to save nearly all of it.

"Politically, everything is quiet in New Zealand. The nationalization of telegraphs, telephones, etc., has proved satisfactory, and while there is some criticism as to the management of criticism as to the management at times, the financial results are all right with its sparse population there is lots of land in New Zealand for everyone and a man of energy has no trouble in getting along. The average laborer receives $1.75 a. day." USE

Chicago, Sept. 13 .- The features of and 14c to %c for December. Oats respectively. by traders to be the probable begin-ning of an elevator war was started in the wheat market today. A scramble of shorts in September wheat early in the session added nearly 2c to the price within half an hour, and apparently brought to light a fight among wealthy elevator firms. Armour & Co. and Peavey & Co., being the firms most vitally interested. The fight was over the question of the cash wheat. Heavy seliing of September wheat was done during August, in the belief that the carrying charges, then over 2 cents, would improve but instead they have gradually lessened, and today entirely disappeared. Efforts to cover shorts early today were unsuccessful until September had been bid up from 70%c to 72%c to 72%c. Minneapolis and Duluth reweek and 918 a year ago. RATTLE SNAKE SKIN

Supply is Practically Inexhaustible Process of Tanning.

"Speaking of the uses to which queer kinds of leather are nowadays put," said a resident of West Pike, on Pine Creek, Pa., to the writer recently, "reminds me of a factory in my town where rattlesnakes' skins are employed quite extensively for making a variety of belts. slippers, gloves, neckties and waistcoats for winter wear. For several years prior to 1897 the firm had been making horse hide gloves and mittens for motormen and railroad men, but in the fall of the year men-tioned they began to use rattlesnake skins, for which there was no market. The material was found so pretty and so well adapted for the purpose for which it was utilized that orders for the output of the factory were soon chinaman Geta the Credit-What He received from every prominent city Is Like. in the United States. UNCONSCIOUS PLAGIARISM. One of the many stories which Justin McCarthy tells concerning Mr. Gladstone, in his recently published "Reminiscences," gives an amusing illustration of unconscious plagiarism. It is well known that Mr. McCarthy always had great difficulty in preparing a speech or lecture or spoken address of any kind; whatever he wantbate on Irish administration. Mr. Mc. Carthy made a speech which closed with a direct personal appeal to Mr Gladstone's well-proved sympathies with the cause of any oppressed nationality, and called upon him to come out of the old routine track of mechanical statecraft and to do justice to Ireland. Such a course, Mr. McCarthy declared, would win for a man of Gladstone's nature a triumph that would be worth dying for. "Then, says Mr. McCarthy, "I broke away and concluded with the eloquent away and concluded with the eloquent words, 'and more, it would be worth having lived for.' Now," continues Mr. McCarthy, "I have boldly called these words eloquent, and so they were, and I may say so without any modest scruples, for unfortunately the eloquent words were not mine." Mr. Gladstone replied at once, and while he dealt very severely with Mr. McCarthy's arguments, he made a very gracious allusion to the words which had closed the speech. THE NIGHT BEFORE MAJUBA. The following extract from the "Life cently deposed from the command of the British troops in the Cape Colony, and well known to Canadians as the author of the "Great Lone Land" and other works, will be read with interest. It is descriptive of the scene that met the view of the British troops when they reached the summit of the Majuba Mountain, which they scaled during the night.

"All at once those who were looking over the edge of the mountain saw a strange sight. The whole of the Boer laagers, extending from a point in the valley directly below the north face of the mountain to the point where the attack of January 28 had been made. became suddenly a mass of light. 'The Boer army,' wrote an onlooker, 'had risen from sleep, and in every tent and wagon there was a light. The valley, into which it seemed we could throw a stone from where we stood, was a mass of light. It was a thrilling sight from our point of vantage. There was our was the Sabbath morning."

In the Zulu language, Amajuba, the real form of the name of the mountain means, "the hill of the doves," from the wild pigeons that frequent it.

UNDAUNTED. "Feathers! Feathers!" derisively shouted the toughs and hoodlums in the audience, alluding in this unseem ly way to the former occupation of the orator, which was that of a pillow and matress maker.
"Gentlemen," he said, folding his mentors, "you may calle me feathers

Yunnan Sen owns the largest man in the world. Of course, there are other largest men in the world, but that does not affect the fact. Now he guarded the entrance to a mandarin's yamen, and received the remuneration of three soldiers. He wore a shoe which, with minor alterations, could be converted into a house boat. Why Toast Is Easy to Digest. Invalids the world over are given their bread in the form of toast. The lay world is generally quite ignorant why this is done. It is because, explains Mr. E. Densmore, M.D., toasting bread until it becomes brown largely converts the starch into dextrine; and hence, so far as the brown portion is concerned, one of the processes of digestion is gone through before the bread is taken into the stomach. It will be found that the thinner the slices of bread and the more thoroughly they are toasted, the easier digestion will be, and when all portions of the slice of bread are thoroughly toasted-not burned, but still turned to a deep brown color-it will be found to be still more easily digested than ordinary toast .- London Mail.

A Transient Experience

"Then he isn't going to marry Miss Hunter?" said Tom, abruptly.
"Certainly not, never thought of such

"Ah, Mr. Gladwyn," said Tom, cynically, 'it's all very well to talk of rising, and of being as good as another. It doesn't hold water when things come to a point. What are my feelings considered worth? Norman took care to show me. He felt himself superior, and she doesn't think me worthy of a turn on the ice!"

"H'm," said George, "turns on the ice wouldn't, I should say, go for much with that very charming young lady. As to that, Tom, we all take a ticket in that lottery, and very few of our numbers come out! But Norman's hit on a lucky figure. If you can throw help to make two young people happy. That's what I've come out here to try

"I don't know anything about it," said Tom stiffly. George looked at him.

"Tom," he said, "Tom, there's some-thing at the bottom of your mind about it. You've got a notion."

"If it's anything to your own discredit, what's the use of credit with other people if you've none with yourself? None at all to a fellow like you."
"Mr. Gladwyn," said Tom, desperately, 'I don't know a thing. I was glad enough to think Norman was in disgrace, and would never carry off the prize, and I knew nothing, as I said. But it wasn't natural but what I should think about it night and day, and one night, I suddenly seemed to remember, that when Norman went out to post a lot of letters he let one fall. I declare to heaven it never came back to me till that moment. remembered the noise it made falling. declare at the time I never noticed and then after he was gone, I cleared up, and tore up rubbish, well, in a hurry, and feeling that excited, Gladwyn, I perhaps wasn't as careful as usual. And I remembered tearing through an envelope that wasn't open, and had something inside. I declare, sir, that's all. It'll cost me my place if it is so, but, Mr. Gladwyn, you always do get to the bottom o you made me tell you that I shouldn't have left Longhurst choir, if old Jones hadn't told me I made faces when I sang. George said nothing, either. The slight. man would have got that out of Tom Repton himself," he thought, "queer But I'm survival of old influences. not sure of it. Tom's a bit of a poser."
But by the first train on the next morning, as George came out of his room there was an arrival, and Tom Repton reappeared, breathless and

"I've sat up all night," he said, "and I came off at once. It struck me I'd ask Mrs. Carter if all the waste paper was destroyed, and she said her daughter but it in sacks, and sold it to the paper mills to be made over, and I've been through all the last sack, and it's here. It was crossed on its road by another message which turned all sense of the absurdity of the mistake, all vexation of having placed themselves in a false position, on the part of those concerned, into deep and bitter self-reproach:

'Much worse: doctors alarmed.' "Oh, Mr. Gladwyn," said repentant Tom Repton, "I'll go to my grave thanking you for coming out here, and making me do the straight thing at

In his delirium his memory passed over all his present perplexitles, all the scandal about himself, and went back to the terrible shock of his boyhood when he had found that he inherited a stained name, and that he had been made to marry Helena on false pretences. At night he recurred to had evidently been his miserable re-flections after his father's death, and by day, when he was more himself, but not perhaps, always capable of controlling his words, he fretted over the lost check, and owned that no one could believe in the honesty of Richard Wentworth's son. Helena, quietly, and as a matter of course, insisted on being informed of his. every detail. The strong, bright girl grew pale and thin; she lived on the reports from Corners; even while she shrank from all speculations as to the future.

Right-minded people are more capable of reticence than it is the fashion to suppose. Of those who knew the story of her marriage, no one let a word slip. Whitebury was too large a place for its inhabitants to be entireoccupied in each other, and Miss Wynne was too well known for her sensational statements of her anxiety for her dear young cousin to seem excessive. She was anxious, and in a certain way she realized for how much she was responsible. She could not be otherwise than dramatic and scenic any light on the lost payment, you'll but, in the only way perhaps possible help to make two young people happy. to her, she admitted herself to have been in the wrong.

"Helena," she said one morning, when they were waiting for the count from Corners, which the Gladwyn girls usually brought on their way to school, "Helena, I have been wrong. I have come to see it. I have ooked into my own heart, as George Gladwyn told me to do, and I see that I have nourished a delusion. It is an awful fate to throw away your affection on an unworthy object. There were tears in her eyes, and she meant what she said, but it was not wonderful that her niece was entirely unimpressed by it. "oh, how happy-" (To be Continued.) THE BOERS GREAT FIGHTERS

How the British Were Ambushed and Slaughtered.

In the War of 1881-The Result Would Be Different Now.

By their victories over British troops in 1881, culminating at Majuba Hill, the Boers acquired the reputation of being among the most formidable warriors on

The war of 1881 was a pitiful slaughter of British soldiers. The Transvaal was then under direct British rule. The Boers felt that they were not treated justly, and struck for freedom-in part freedom for themselves, and in part for freedom to brutally abuse the natives. Within four days after the revolt started the Boers ambushed British troops at Bronkhorst Spruit. The battle lasted ten minutes. One hundred and fifty British soldiers out of

The Boers lost not one man. At Laing's Nek the 58th Regiment attacked a force of Boers. The battle last-ed a few minutes; 174 British soldiers were killed and the Boer loss was reported as "trifling." All the regimental and most of the company officers were picked off by the Boer riflemen, and the regiment retreated under command of a lieutenant. At Ingogo River the British lost 150 out of 270 soldiers engaged. The Boers lost eight killed and nine wounded. At the storming of Majuba Hill by the Boers the British lost in killed 226 out of the 400 engaged, the Boers losing one man.

In most of these contests, the Boers were in the majority in numbers. The British forces in South Africa were, after Majuba Hill, greatly strength-ened, and would undoubtedly have conquered the Transvaal, but before another contest, Gladstone withdrew

A grim tale, to British ears. marksfen, and familiar with every foot of the country, the Boers fought as skirmishers, taking advantage of every cover from which to pour their provement seemed to be destroyed by deadly bullets upon the close ranks of the British troops. For genera-tions the Boers had fought and hunted on foot and horseback in the African wilds, beating off the fierce Zulu and other native hordes, and in daily pursuit if the animals large and which South Africa then teemed. Originally of good stout stock, they had thus acquired a skill with the rifle a prompt courage and rapid judgment. which could not be safely fooled with. And fool with them the British troops in 1881 did. The British regulars underestimated their enemy. They despised the Boers' fighting ability, as once on the North American continent they despised the Indians. They paid for their mistake in just the same way. They marched their red-coated masses against the Boer-redcoats brave as the bravest, but poor marksmen, whose serried ranks made simply a huge, glaring, helpless target for the Boer sharpshooters-and were mowed down just as on this continent a hundred and fifty years ago, were Braddock's men at Fort Duquesne, and Abercrom-

Prior to the bloody story of 1881, the Boer fighting ability, while not de-spised except by supercitions British officers and immigrants, was not supposed to be exceptional. In their wars with the natives, while often successful, the Boers were not more so than their British neighbors. They repeatedly sustained severe defeats from the Zulus in the early days of settlement, being almost wiped out by Dingaan in 1838. After this, they developed much as fighters, yet as late as 1875 they sustained bloody defeats from the Sikokunis, and things thereby got into such chaos that British intervention took place, partly to save them. This was what led to British annexation of the Transvaal a year later, followed by Boer revolt in 1881, a revolt due largely to British prohibition of slavery and of brutal treatment of the natives by the Boers. Glad-stone's humanity to the Boers has been honored by the bloody-striped backs of tens of thousands of the Transvaal Kaffirs.

If war should come again, Britain will not make the mistake of 1881. Her foe will not be underestimated. The British officers understand now the size of their task. The fighting will not be of the kind the Boers choose. Further, it is quite likely the Boers are not as formidable as they were in 1881. Bighteen years have passed since during which they have had practi-cally no fighting with the natives, and much less hunting and shooting than previously was customary with They are better drilled, perhaps, but perhaps the better they are drilled the worse for themselves If drill and discipline, rather than marksmanship, become permanent factors, there is no question on which side most of these will be. The Boers also have fine arfillery: but they will have to defend that artillery, which again means fighting of a different type to that in which they were successful in 1881. That the Boers will make a terrible de-fense, no one need doubt; but they are empire from which the attack will come. There can be no sensible doubt

MONSTER MONUMENT

It Is to Take Place in Mrs. Palmer's Newport Residence.

The Young Russian Nobleman Who Has Won the Heart of the Granddaughter of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant-The Engagement the End of the

"All the world loves a lover," and especially when the beroine of the present mance is the granddaughter of General Ulysses S. Grant. So eyes are all turned Beaulien, the beautiful country home of Mrs. Potter Palmer, Miss Grant's aunt, and every rumor and bit of gossip is eagerly seized and dwelt upon, for the doings and sayings of a prospective bride, and the description of the wonderful trousseau, are interesting to every feminine heart, whether she be a new or old

The news first came over the cable on May 8 that Miss Julia Dent Grant was to wed a Russian prince. The engagement was announced from Paris, the acquaintance of the young people having begun in Rome not more than six months ago.

At first it was thought that the marriage would not take place until late in the tall, so that Miss Grant's father, who is on duty in the Philippines, could be present. The plan now is to have the marriage solemnized some time in September at Mrs. Potter Palmer's residence, Miss Grant's engagement is the end of the first chapter of a pretty romance. Mrs. Palmer and Miss Grant were staying in the Eternal City. Prince Cantacuzene was at that time military attache at the Russian embassy, and he and the other Russian officers were attracted toward the young and pretty girl. They showered her with attentions, and made her stay in Rome as delightful as they knew how, and when Mrs. Palmer took her fair charge to Cannes the Prince determined to go aiso.

He succeeded in obtaining a special leave of absence from his duties in Rome on the plea that he wished to join the party of Grand Duke Sergius, but it was noticeable that the Grand Duke's party had less attraction for the young man than Miss Grant. Just when the happy moment came which marked the beginbut it is conjectured that the Prince asked for the hand of General Grant's randdaughter in Paris, whither he had followed her.

On Thursday, May 6, Mrs. Potter Palmer gave a brilliant reception at the Hotel Ritz in honor of the mother of Prince Cantacuzene, at which a formal ennouncement of his engagement to Miss Grant was made. Prince Cantacuzene is 25 years old, of pleasing appearance and erect carriage, and a lieutenant in the Imperial Guards. His family is one of the oldest and greatest in Russia, and the young Prince became the head of his house not long ago by the death of his father. He possesses vast estates to the eastward of Moscow. where he maintains a magnificent chateau. He is said to be unusually talented and altogether a young man of fine char-

The name of Cantacuzene in Russia dates from the time of the Byzantine Empire, when Constantinople was the capital. The name is now a familiar one in Russia and Roumania. The father of the young Prince, was director of the foreign religions to the Minister of the Interior, as all faiths outside of the Greek Church—the established church of Russia—are included in the administration of the Interior Department. Prince Cantacuzene, who has also the title of ¿Count Speransky, is related on the maternal side to the late Prince Gortschakoff, who a quarter of a century ago was "the grand old man of Russia, being Grand Chancellor of Russia and Minister of Foreign Relations.

STILL RULES THE WAVES.

Britannia Owns Half the Tonnage of the World-Uncie Sam Is Next.

The old-time boast that "Britannis rules the waves' was never more justifled than it is to-day. Figures published in Fellden's Magazine, the first number of which is just to hand, says The London Mail, show that the entire tonnage of the world in ships amounts to a round total of 27,673,528 tons, of which enormous aggregate the United Kingdom and our colonies own rather more than onehalf, or, to be precise, the immense and overshadowing proportion of 13,988,508.

Deducting from this latter total 1.061,. 584 owned by the British colonies throughout the world, the United Kingdom possesses no less than 12,828,924 tons. It is indeed a far cry from this predominating tonnage to the second biggest, which, it is hardly surprising to learn, is that of the United States of America, and which figures out to 2,465,-387 tons.

Germany takes third place with 2,453,-834 tons, which thus follows closely upon American heels. All probably but those who follow maritime affairs closely will learn with some surprise that Norway easily occupies the fourth place.

about equal a thread of unspun silk. The most ingenious plan conceivable was devised in this experiment with quartz. The professor, after reducing the quartz at a very high temperature, touched a little very light arrow to the melted substance, and discharged it by means of a small crossbow made for the purpose, which would cause the arrow to carry about 50 feet. As the arrow flew through the air it spun the exceedingly fine thread of the fused quartz.

The camera caught him just as he was swinging round to the left on the one leg, and it is in this long and rapid stroke that the secret of this athlete's prowess is said to lie. The action is partly natural and partly acquired, through long pracsice with Gideon Perrie, the American champion. The photo was taken and sent in by Mr. Harry S. SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Sounding-Board of a Piano. The sounding-board of a piano is made of spruce. There are different grades of spruce. Some grows on marshy ground, and, as is to be expected, retains for a longer time the moisture. Other spruce is grown on the high lands, and is dry, firm and solid. Just what a piano will be depends in a large degree on the quality of spruce used in the sounding-board. Some makers are indifferent about this matter, moved either by false economy or want of knowledge. The wonderful success that has come to the plano manufactured by the old firm of Heintzman & Co., whose London ware-rooms are at 217 Dundas street, is due in a very considerable degree to the fact that in this particular, as in all points of manufacture, they insist on the best. They never allow anything from London, Ont., yesterday. but the very best grown spruce to enter their factory-one of several differences between this high-class instrument and other instruments, KNOWLES-SILK. A happy event occurred yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Silk, Talbot street, it being the marriage of their daughter, Fannie Victoria, to Rev. Richard W. Knowles, of Tupperville. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. At 4 o'clock the groom entered, while Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Frank Briglia's Italian harpers. The bride, dressed in a fawn traveling suit and leaning upon the arm of her father, entered a few moments later. Miss Emma Orme assisted the bride, while Mr. W. A. Silk supported the groom, Miss Hazel Gibson making a very pretty maid of honor. Rev. Dr. J. V. Smith tied the nuptial knot. After the ceremony had been performed the guests, some 50 in number, being intimate friends of the bride and groom, sat down to a sumptuous and well arranged spread. The happy couple left on the evening express for De-troit, Chicago and other western cities, amid a shower of rose leaves. The presents received by the bride included a beautiful sapphire diamond ring, the gift of the groom; a handsome upright Heintzman piano, the gift of the bride's father, and a check from each of her three brothers, $150.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowles will be at home at Tupperville after Sept. 26.

The "Still" Excites a Great Deal of in terest in London.

The Still Motor Company (Limited), Toronto, have sent one of their electric carriages to the fair. The body of the vehicle was made by Gray & Sons, of Chatham, and is an ordinary "Ivanhoe"-a handsome two-seated carriage of fine proportions. The electrical equipment furnished by the Still Motor Company is the invention of Mr. W. J. Still, a young Canadian, and is the only one in the world that can be attached to ordinary carriage bodies, the storage battery being only about one-third the weight of any other. The president of the Still Company, Mr. Thomas Bengough, of Toronto, was in the city yesterday, and pointed to this electric "Ivanhoe" as a proof of the statements he made at the mass meeting in Victoria Park last month, when it was proposed to equip an electric autocar for passenger purposes. He remarked that the autocar might have been running here now and doing a rushing business If the offer of his company had been accepted. He had found that many Petrolia, on the charge of arson, was leading citizens would have financially

And when the contract papers are made out they put them in the fire, in order that the parties in the other world may know the fact, who has been organist of St. James' and to look on each other as man and wife. And the parents thenceforth

"Whatever may be agreed on between of paper, and then put these in the fire, saying that in that way the dead person will get all the real articles in the other world." This custom is also noted by other writers, even as late as the eighteenth century.

3,000 Deaths From Consumption in This Province Last Year.

Dr. McCringen Thinks This Dread Disease Can Be Cured - Afternoon and Evening Sessions. The Association of Health Officers of

Ontario resume their sessions at the city hall yesterday afternoon. discussion on tubercations was continued, and was followed by a paper by Dr. F. H. Mitchell, medical health officer of Delaware, on the officer of Delaware, on the utyce?

Municipal Health Officers and Beards of Health in Dealing with Tuber losis." He hoped the time was not off when tuberculosis would be a thing of the past. The doctor saggested that printed instructions should be distributed among consumptive people to pre-vent the spread of this disease as far as Dr. P. H. Bryce, secretary of the pro-vincial board of health, read a paper dealing with the need for a municipal sanatoria for consumptives, based or the number of cases of consumption in the public institutions. He showed how the death rate in public institutions had been reduced by proper man agement, such as having good floors, properly paraffined, from 22 in the 1,000 some years ago, to about 11 per cent now. In late years the pauper class in hospitals had increased 300 per cent. He also stated that there had been 3,000 deaths in Ontario from consumption last year. On the contrary, the deaths from diphtheria were cut down one-third Dr. McCrimmon thought as a rule that milkmen were not unwilling to have their cattle tested, though they objected to paying for it. The stables, in the place where he came from, were in first-class sanitary condition. Dr. McCray said that there had been a decrease of fully 50 per cent of tuberculosis in England and on the continent during the last 50 years. The people of Ontario needed a great deal of education along the line of fighting this disease. Dr. Mackenzie said he believed that the greatest danger of in-fection lay in the sputa, which, when carried in the air, spread the contagion to others.

Dr. Grange read a paper on the "Dissemination of the Virus." He considered sunlight and fresh air very necessary in the stables where cattle are kept. He also thought that animals suspected of having tuberculosis should be kept apart from healthy animals, and different pails used in feeding them. The men who attended the diseased cattle should not attend the heal-

At 5 p.m. the members left the city hall and visited the proposed sewage farm and the city waterworks. The board of health entertained the visitors to a supper at the Springbank pavillon. Happy speeches were made by Rev. Canon Dann, Dr. Hutchinson, Dr. Byer, Dr. Cassidy, Dr. Roome, Dr. Moornouse, Dr. Francis Low, ex-Ald. Chas. Taylor, and others.

John Dearness, inspector of schools of East Middlesex, gave an excellent paper on "School Ventilation," showing that bad ventilation was one of the principal causes of consumption, and that cleanliness, pure air and a proper system of heating were the best preventatives of this disease in schools.
