Students, Attention!

Rare Chance to Secure a College Education.

We have made arrangements that enable us to place within the reach of a limited number of deserving students, opportunities for securing, on easy terms, a classical or commercial education. A little work during the vacation season will secure this for the one worthily striving for such a boon, but who may not be in possession of sufficient money to realize his heart's desire. The facilities at our disposal enable us to offer a year's board and tuition at

to any three young men who will fulfill the necessary, easy conditions required. These may be beginners, or former students of the College who have not been able to complete their course. In addition to this we have at our disposal four scholarships at the

of Charlottetown. A full course in this excellent Commercial College may be won by any four young men or women, in town or country, who will fulfill the easy conditions we require. Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

A Catholic Scene Switzerland.

Mr. William Redmond, M. P., who was in Switzerland recently, describes in the Weekly Freeman of Dublin, the enthusiastic welcome given by the people of Zermatt to the Bishop who was coming to the village church to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to the children. All the morning there had been an unusual stir in the village, the church bell was ringing its most joyful peal, and villagers in holiday attire were flocking thither and thither. In a procession led by a band they proceeded to the cathedral station. Mr. Redmond writes:—

A venerable old man stepped on the platform and every head was immediately uncovered.

THE BISHOP HAD ARRIVED and all Zermatt seemed to know it, and to rejoice. Particularly did the little bell in the steeple of the church at the other end of the town seem to know it, for it clanged out a noisy welcome more breathlessly than ever, and even the swelling sound of the brass band could not drown its voice. It was a really touching sight to see the Zermatt people—great rugged mountaineers, women bright with youth and bent with age, and wee children, all thronging joyfully round the old white-haired man, who was to them the high representative and living embodiment of the Faith which, to these people, is something dearer than their very lives. It was no formal welcome that this venerable old prelate got—it was heartfelt. The people were delighted to see him, and they let him know it in every way they could. I remember once, many years ago, also!

SEEING DR. CROKE ARRIVING AT THURLES. The warm-hearted Tipperary people crowded around him in ecstasy. I was reminded of that scene by the welcome accorded to the Bishop in Zermatt. Only these Swiss mountain men were less demonstrative and more stolid than the gallant hearts of Tipperary. Nevertheless, the welcome to Zermatt was real and hearty, and if there was less loud cheering than there would have been in Thurles, still the attitude of the people was whole-hearted, and it was easy to see that, according to their quiet natures, they were bestowing the highest marks of their esteem and pleasure upon the old man who had come up to their far mountain home to strengthen and confirm them in the Faith of their fathers. Preceded by the band and accompanied by practically the whole crowd, the visiting Bishop wended his way into the town. At the arch which I have mentioned a halt was called; and here with much ceremony his Lordship was invested with his robes, and then, with mitre on head and crozier in hand, he commenced his progress down the long street towards the church, the bell of which kept on ringing on him all the time.

AN IMPRESSIVE SIGHT. It would be hard to imagine more picturesque or impressive sight than the procession as it moved along the narrow thoroughfare. Immediately surrounding the Bishop were the smallest of the children, and really some of them barely reached above his knee. The little girls in their snow-white dresses wore simple wreaths of flowers in their hair and carried nosegays in their hands. It was the prettiest sight in the world to see them toddling along, evidently much impressed with their own importance in the day's proceedings. In strong contrast to the little ones were the great bearded and bronzed men as they slouched along with the sure and heavy tread of men used to perilous excursions in dangerous places where a good foothold may mean all the difference between life and death. Many of these men earn their living as guides, and their days and often their nights are spent away up on the mighty mountain-sides in charge of those who come to the Alps to climb, and who find a wild joy in traversing dangerous crags where but one false step may mean burial forever in some cavernous cavern. Hardy and adventurous spirits are these.

MOUNTAIN GUIDES OF ZERMATT and not afraid to look death in the face time and time again. Their strong Faith is, however, proverbial. Never will they sally forth on a hazardous expedition without first kneeling before the altar in the little church upon which the grim Matterhorn looks down, and no Sunday will they start without hearing Mass.

A Common Sense View of the Confessional.

The Rev. Father Fidelis (James Kent Stone) C. F., during a recent mission to non-Catholics in Philadelphia said:—

"Protestants so often think confession was invented by the priests in order to have the people under their thumb—the poor priest-ridden people." What bunglers these priests must have been to put this practice on Catholics and forget to leave the burden of themselves! Even the Pope has to go down on his knees before some humble friar or monk like myself, and if he makes a bad confession, and does repeat it, it is his own good one, he is damned. Oh, if you only knew it, that burden of bearing confessions is the most terrible thing a priest has to do! Sitting day after day, week after week, year after year, listening to tales of sorrow and crime, and doing the marvelous work of loosing from sin!

"There is another objection, and I am almost ashamed to touch publicly upon it the outcry against the immorality of the confessional. Well, I was a Protestant once, my dear brethren, but I thank God I never said anything of that kind. There is something so low, so incredibly vulgar, not to say malicious in respectable, well-educated, cultured ladies and gentlemen listening to the vile tales of so-called escaped nuns, and unroofed priests and friars!

"I am speaking to you as an honest convert. When I was going to my first confession, previous to being received into the Church, I stopped off at the city of Newark to visit Bishop Bayley afterwards Archbishop of Baltimore, himself an convert and former Episcopalian minister. I told him I was going to confession. 'You are going to the real thing now,' he said; and I thought of that general confession I had so often read when a Protestant: 'We have done those things which we ought not to have done, and we have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and there is no health in us,' etc. I thought of that sweet, familiar prayer. It is upon my mind now and it all comes back to me. How delightfully general that confession was! But now I had to go into my conscience and seek out the weeds of thirty years that had grown in the garden. When I got through I found it was the 'real thing,' and I felt so light and so happy that I might, with a good run, have jumped across the Schuylkill River."

How To Express One's Thoughts.

Although the desire to write is often kindled by much reading, the power of writing is often paralyzed by the discovery that the reading has been of the wrong kind. Again the type who had read little and that little unsystematically is tempted to lay down his pen in despair. Lord Bacon said that "reading maketh a full man, writing an exact man;" from which we may conclude that he who reads may best utilize his stock of knowledge by learning to write. But he must first read, no matter how keen his observation may be or how original his thoughts are; for a good style does not come by nature. It must be the expression of temperament as well as thought; but it must have acquired clearness and elegance, which are due to the construction of sentences in the good company of great authors. To write, you must read; and be careful what you read; and you must read critically. To read a play of Shakespeare's only for the story is to degrade Shakespeare to the level of the railway novel. It is better to have read the trial scene in 'Merchant of Venice' critically; missing no shade in Portia's character; or speech; no expression of Shylock's, than to have read all Shakespeare carelessly. To make a specialty of literature, one must be above all, thorough. The writings that live have a thousand fine points in them upon the casual reader, and, like the carriage mentioned in Miss Donnelly's fine poem, 'Unseen, yet Seen,' known only to God. Take ten lines of any great writer, examine them closely with the aid of all the critical power you have, and then you will see that simplicity in literature is produced by the art which conceals art. That style which is easiest to read is the hardest to write. Genius has been defined as the capacity for taking infinite pains.

There is a passage in 'Ben Hur' which seems to me particularly applicable to our subject. You remember, in the chariot-race, where Ben Hur's cruel experience in the galleys serves him so well. He would not have had the strength of hand or the steadiness of posture were it not for the work with the oars and the constant necessity of standing on a deck which was even more unsteady than the swaying chariot. "All experience," says the author, "is useful." This is especially true for the writer. One can hardly write a page without feeling how little one knows; and if the great aim of knowledge be to attain that consciousness, the writer sooner attains it than other men.

Items of Interest.

Something of the Cuban rebellion for the Catholic Colonians said: "President Roosevelt has solicited all good citizens of Cuba to put a stop to this lawlessness in the interests of their republic. If law can not be enforced and order can not be maintained, the United States is bound to intervene. This country can now see the sort of people that Spain had to deal with in Cuba—how restless they are, how easily dissatisfied with constituted authority, how quick to revolt, how impetuous, unreasonable and destructive!"

"During these fall and winter months," says the Catholic Citizen, "much of the joy of life" consists in our reading—that delightful occupation of the home—about the cozy fireside or under the family lamp. And the weekly paper—filled with all good, reasonable, and unswayed things of the mind and affairs of the day, is a sine qua non—a something-not-to-be-without—in the intelligent Christian home. It makes the conversation of the household, sets up the best ideals and passes an increasing pleasure around to every one of us. Do not be without this boon."

The Leader says: "There is nothing odious about the title of 'Black Pope.' The Roman people thus designated the General of the Jesuits because of his black habit, which is in contrast to the white cassock of the real Pope. In fact, the name is complimentary in so far as it indicates his vast influence and glorious privileges. He is the commander of a compact and well disciplined army, which has always rendered splendid services to the Church of God."

The Catholic Citizen was sarcastic at the Catholic societies which meet in convention and adopt resolutions gratefully acknowledging the service rendered by the Catholic press. "Then," comments the Citizen, "the delegates go home and wonder why the Catholic papers do not team with reports of their sayings and doings. The magnanimity of the average convention seldom goes further than 'resolving' and appointing a press committee, warranted to go asleep at a moment's notice, to be roused from its slumbers only by the motion to adjourn."

The ninth convention of the Ohio Grand Council of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, which was held recently in Canton was a large and generally harmonious gathering," says the Catholic Universe. "Notable incidents of the convention were the visits of delegations from the Junior Order of United American Mechanics and their auxiliary, the Daughters of America who were in convention in Canton at the same time with the C. M. B. A. The friendly overture of this body, which has a well-grounded reputation for anti-Catholic spirit as the A. P. A., was the surprise of the convention, and the best possible proof of the dying out of prejudice in this country. Both delegations were courteously received by the C. M. B. A. The address of their chairman was very felicitously responded to by Rev. M. W. Mulhane. A committee was appointed to escort the ladies back to their hall. This escort was greeted with an ovation. Its chairman, O. J. Benkeki, of Cleveland, made an address, which was warmly received."

Irish exchanges chronicle the death of a distinguished Franciscan, Very Rev. J. B. Cooney, of Clonmel. Father Cooney was born in Armagh in 1842, and was ordained in Rome in 1868. He was attached to many houses of the Franciscan order in Ireland during his career and occupied the position of guardian at Dublin, Drogheda and Clonmel respectively. His connection with the latter city extended to close on to a quarter of a century. Shortly after his arrival in Clonmel he set about rebuilding the Franciscan abbey, which was destroyed by the Cromwell soldiers.

The Dominion Exhibition at Halifax closed on Friday after twelve days of unprecedented success from all points of view. The weather was charming all through and the attendance was by far the largest in the history of exhibitions at Halifax. The total attendance was 142,746, about $2,000 more than the highest previous number at an exhibition there. It is expected the commissioners will have a considerable cash surplus over all expenses.

Messrs. Roche and Carney, Liberal members of the Commons for Halifax, will have to stand trial at Halifax of the election petition against them. This is the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada. It will be remembered that the trial judges at Halifax threw out the petition against these members on the ground of want of jurisdiction, inasmuch as the extension of time, granted by themselves, for holding the trial was invalid. It took the judges of the Supreme Court at Ottawa only ten minutes to reverse this decision and to declare that the extension of time was all right. The appeal of the petitioners against Roche and Carney is thus sustained and these gentlemen will have to stand trial in order that an opportunity may be afforded of discovering something about the manner in which their election was won. One of the trial judges at Halifax declared when the case was before that court that sufficient evidence had even then been given to void the seats. We may depend that the corruption practised at Halifax was just as bad as in Queens and Shelburne whatever worse.

In the election for the House of Commons, held in East Elgin, Ontario, on Thursday last the Conservative candidate Marshall was elected by a majority of 89 over Haight, the Government candidate. It was the most hotly contested fight in the history of the riding. The Government put forth all their efforts to secure the return of the Liberal and the riding was covered from end to end by cabinet ministers and campaign orators, but all this could not avert the people from their determination to elect a representative favorable to an honest and progressive administration of public affairs. East Elgin was a close constituency before the last distribution of seats, by which the Government gerrymandered it, throwing several hundred Liberal majority into it. Notwithstanding this, Ingram, Conservative, carried it at the last general election by 21 majority. Ingram was appointed to an office by the Ontario government and the Liberals made a desperate effort to capture the vacant seat but miserably failed.

The Provincial Exhibition of 1906 was formally opened in the Exhibition building on Monday afternoon and is now in full blast. There was a fair attendance at the opening ceremonies. The proceedings opened with an address from Hon. F. L. Hazzard, President of the Exhibition Association, who in conclusion introduced his honor the Lieutenant Governor who, after some words of praise for the management in bringing together such a splendid show declared the exhibition formally opened. His Worship Mayor Paton extended a cordial welcome on behalf of the city to all visitors and expressed the hope that all would enjoy themselves. Mr. Robertson, manager of the experimental farm at Nappan, Nova Scotia, was the concluding speaker. He explained the exhibits of grain and grasses from the experimental farms in Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia. The cattle show is by far the largest ever brought together in this Province and there are not near enough stalls, although the directors have spent four thousand dollars in providing additional stable room. A large number of the prize winning animals at the Halifax exhibition have been brought over here for competition. The exhibition inside and outside is splendid, the trotting races, commenced yesterday, promise to be most interesting. With a continuance of the fine weather so far enjoyed the exhibition cannot fail of success. Next week we shall have some account of the big show.

Conservative Victory in Elgin.

East Elgin By-Election Gives Marshall 89 Majority.

In Spite of the Gerrymander of 1903—Bad Blow to Aylesworth and Hyman.

THE LONDON ELECTION SCANDAL.

HALIFAX ELECTION CASE SENT BACK FOR TRIAL.

Roche and Carney Must Face the Music—Already Proof Enough to Unseat Them, and Perhaps to Disqualify—The Case Against Fielding—Provincial Conference—Mr. Borden on the Liberal Record.

Ottawa, Oct. 6, 1906.

The election of David Marshall, Conservative, in East Elgin, is a serious disappointment to the ministers from Ontario, and naturally a great satisfaction to Mr. Borden and his friends. East Elgin has been a close constituency for twenty years. The largest majority ever obtained by Mr. Ingram, who was four times elected there, was 178. In 1887-1892 the constituency went Liberal. Mr. Ingram's majority in 1900 was 151.

THE ELGIN GERRYMANDER.

Before the election of 1904 a redistribution took place, which in Ontario was an obvious gerrymander. Mr. Hyman, now Minister of Public Works, whose last election in London has given rise to one of the worst scandals ever heard of in Canada, had charge of the Ontario end of this re-arrangement. The result of his manipulation was such that East Elgin would give a Liberal majority of 70 if the people voted as they did in the previous election. That is to say the change of boundaries wiped out the whole of Ingram's 151 majority and replaced it by an adverse majority of 70.

A SCHEME THAT FAILED.

But in the election of 1904 Mr. Ingram was elected notwithstanding. The government lost so much strength, in that riding as to overcome the advantage that the gerrymander gave and to leave Mr. Ingram a majority of 21. As the late member was admittedly a strong man and a good campaigner, when the look office from the Whitney government Mr. Hyman and Mr. Aylesworth went into the campaign with great hope. The election was called on before the other contests, so that the government could concentrate its strength on this struggle. Mr. Hyman went thither and promised grants for every township. The Minister of Justice made an ardent and sectional appeal for the support of the electors, asking them to find the government not guilty on all charges made last session. Finding the candidate of their party less strong than they desired, the ministers and their managers replaced him by one whom they considered the best in sight. The old campaign machine was also employed, and a few days before the elections the famous Cap. Sullivan was discovered in the riding. It is fair to say, however that his usefulness was considerably impaired by the recent exposures and prosecutions connected with the London by-election of last year. A healthy scare was started, and it is probable that the machine accomplished less than was expected of it. At all events the Conservative candidate was elected by a majority of 89, which is more than four times the last Conservative majority.

THE LONDON SCANDAL.

The London scandal mentioned last week is the great political sensation of the day. In the Police Court of Toronto the original statement of Jeremiah Collins, deputy returning officer, that he conspired with a group of party managers to buy voters by scores or hundreds at $10 each and to examine the ballots as cast to see that each contract was carried out, has been sustained by some twenty witnesses. Elector after elector, brought from London, has gone on the stand and sworn to a contract made before voting and to the fact that $10 was placed in an envelope marked with his name and left with one of the conspirators to be paid the elector after the returning officer reported that he had carried out the agreement. It has been made perfectly clear that the marked ballots were examined and a record kept of the individual votes. A second deputy returning officer swore that he was to examine and report on ballots handed to him.

COLLINS WAS SUITABLE.

The government organs in London, Toronto and elsewhere take the strange course of attacking returning officer Collins, and describing him as a disreputable character. The London Advertiser has printed a record setting forth that previous to last year Collins had been some seven or eight times before the Police Court on charges of disorderly conduct, of assaulting his wife, of gambling, of violating the license law and other offences on some of which he was found guilty. These organs seem to have overlooked the fact that their statements strongly suggest criminal intention in placing such a man in charge of a poll. If it were intended to steal the election for Mr. Hyman one would rather expect that the instruments selected to do the work would be such persons as the government press represent Mr. Collins to be. Whatever his previous record may have been, whatever may have been his motive in confessing in crime, it is established that he did the work that Mr. Hyman's friends desired to have done, and with other conspirators he obtained for the government a large majority where an honest vote would have left Mr. Hyman far behind. The Minister of Public Works declares that he knew nothing about this business, but it appears that he is enjoying the benefit of it and that without it he would neither be a member of parliament nor a Minister of the Crown.

A WRONG RIGHTED.

Meanwhile the Supreme Court has been doing the country a service by sending back the Halifax, N. S. election petition for trial. The hearing of evidence at Halifax went on long enough to show that the election of Messrs. Carney and Roche, and the defeat of Mr. Borden were accomplished by a perfect carnival of corruption. One of the trial judges stated that enough had been shown in the first few hours to unseat both members. The common impression was that the evidence placed them in great danger of personal disqualification. When that stage was reached Attorney General Drysdale succeeded in convincing the Court that it had no jurisdiction to try the case. Judge Russell had made an order extending the time of trial beyond the statutory period as the courts may do in certain circumstances. At the trial however he decided that his own order was invalid. The sitting members were thus confirmed in the possession of their ill-gotten seat.

MADE SHORT WORK OF IT.

An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada and was there heard on Thursday of this week. Rather it was not heard, for the Supreme Court judges unanimously allowed the appeal on the face of the record without asking the appellant's lawyer to make any argument against the Halifax decision. They heard a long argument in favour of the decision of the trial judges and without calling upon Mr. Lovitt, counsel for the petitioner to reply, they sent back the case to Nova Scotia to be tried. It is therefore as good as settled that Messrs. Roche and Carney will lose their seats and that another election must take place in Halifax.

THE SHELBURNE-QUEENS CASE.

The Court also heard the appeal against the decision of the trial judges in the election case against Hon. Mr. Fielding. This appeal asked that the trial court be ordered to hear the evidence touching the payment made by Mr. Fielding between the last election and the one before it, to reimburse Mr. Farrell, Speaker of the Legislature, for money which he claimed to have spent in the previous campaign. The purpose of this inquiry was to furnish ground for Mr. Fielding's disqualification. He is already unseated for corrupt practices by his agents and has not appealed against that decision.

THE PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE.

Next week the conference between the Dominion Ministers and representatives of provincial governments respecting increase in the provincial subsidies will take place. All the nine provinces will be represented, and probably most of the Dominion ministers will be in attendance. One of the questions which Sir Wilfrid promised to bring before the meeting is Senate Reform. It is not likely, however, that this part of the discussion will be very serious.

MR. BORDEN'S SUMMARY.

Speaking on Friday evening at Pembroke, the leader of the Opposition summed up the record of the Laurier administration. "In opposition the present Liberal leaders declared that Canada's taxation and expenditure were excessive, but since obtaining power they have practically doubled both. They railed against the iniquities of the customs tariff, proclaiming emphatically that the protective principle was absolutely unsound and harmful. In power they have maintained that principle, although, when expedient, they still pose as free traders. They inveighed against corruption and extravagance in the expenditure of public money, but in power they have openly and defiantly encouraged the system of illegitimate profit commonly called 'take-off' which prevails in many public departments. They inveighed against any increase of the public debt, and now with abounding revenues they have largely added to it, spending huge sums without regard to public interest, for the benefit of favored partisans. They pledged themselves to maintain the independence of parliament, yet whenever necessary they retain the votes of wavering followers by direct and even written promises of office. They declared that all public lands should be for the actual settler and then enriched their grasping partisans by transferring to them huge blocks of the public domain. They pledged themselves to secure uniform and non-partisan voting lists and then disfranchised nine thousand Conservative voters in Manitoba by the thin red line outrage. They pledged themselves to prohibition upon a Dominion plebiscite and when confronted with a larger majority in its favor than any government ever received they found evasion in a condition until then unheard of. They pledged themselves to abolish or amend the senate and now that a Liberal majority in that chamber has been secured they regard it as sufficiently amended. They proclaimed high standards for appointments to public office and they have violated all decency when it was necessary to reward unscrupulous party servants. They promised purity in elections and they have organized, maintained and protected the machine which has continued to perpetrate the grossest and most outrageous election frauds ever known in any country."

Hong Kong advices of the 4th say that the emigrant steamer Charlestown had foundered, and that Captain Clifton and sixty passengers were lost.

John B. Moran, District Atty for Suffolk County, has been nominated by Democratic Convention in Boston for Governor of Massachusetts. The Republicans have renominated Governor Guild.

The mate, sole survivor of the French steamer Costool, landed at the port of Genoa on the 4th. His name is Laxier. The vessel sank on the night of the 18th September, and the crew of thirteen were lost.

A tornado passed over portions of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana in Friday last. Several buildings were destroyed and at least two persons were killed. The property loss is placed at over a million dollars.

The argument in the Gallery appeal case has been heard by the Supreme Court of Canada, but judgment has not been given. In the Fielding appeal case the petition has been dismissed. This saves Mr. Fielding from personal disqualification.

Practically the entire plant of the Ontario Grape Growing and Manufacturing Company, at Beaufort, between St. Catharines and Fort Ralston, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday morning. It is expected the loss will run between $100,000 and $200,000. As the great wine vats in the cellar collapsed and burst, the wine ran down the steep bank into the canal and the fire so that the water was colored. On the same day twenty-five million feet of splendid red and white pine lumber, sawn last year, was destroyed at Fraser's Mills, near Almyer, Ont., eight miles from Ottawa. The lumber was insured pretty well up to its value.

Students, Attention!

Rare Chance to Secure a College Education.

We have made arrangements that enable us to place within the reach of a limited number of deserving students, opportunities for securing, on easy terms, a classical or commercial education. A little work during the vacation season will secure this for the one worthily striving for such a boon, but who may not be in possession of sufficient money to realize his heart's desire. The facilities at our disposal enable us to offer a year's board and tuition at

to any three young men who will fulfill the necessary, easy conditions required. These may be beginners, or former students of the College who have not been able to complete their course. In addition to this we have at our disposal four scholarships at the

of Charlottetown. A full course in this excellent Commercial College may be won by any four young men or women, in town or country, who will fulfill the easy conditions we require. Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

Queen Street, Charlottetown,

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

The Banquet in aid of the Charlottetown Hospital opened in the Market Hall yesterday and is now in full blast.

Four men were killed and five injured in an explosion of gas in the Market Street Subway, Philadelphia, last Friday morning.

The Knights of Columbus had a demonstration today. They marched to the Cathedral where a solemn Mass was celebrated and a sermon was preached by Rev. Father Hazleton, S. J.

Bernard D. McDonald of Mount Stewart was admitted to the Bar of Nova Scotia in the Supreme Court at Halifax on Friday last. Mr. Justice Longley presiding. The motion for admission was made by Mr. W. B. A. Ritchie.

Premier Fisher, Mr. George E. Hughes and A. B. Warburton, Esq., are now in Ottawa in connection with the conference of the Provincial Premiers. The question of increased subsidies to the Province is to be considered at this meeting, we are told. Shall we get the money?

On Thursday night last the barns of Alexander McEwen, Blue Point, in the West River District, were totally destroyed by fire, together with their contents, including a large quantity of hay and straw. Origin of fire unknown. No insurance.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Patrick Cullen of this city, which took place at St. Paul, Minn., on Monday. He was there on a visit to his son, Rev. Thomas Cullen. Mrs. Cullen was hurriedly summoned to his bedside last week. He leaves to mourn a widow and three sons. R. L. F.

The ferry steamer Elfin, plying between here and Rocky Point, was discovered to be on fire early Sunday morning. The fire alarm was sounded about six o'clock and the firemen responded. After a stream of water had played on the fire for some time the steamer was towed to the east side of the Ferry Wharf, where she soon filled with water and sank. She is a total loss. She was 24 years old.

Fears are entertained that disaster has overtaken a small schooner which left Charlottetown, N. S., last week, for the Bay of Fundy. She was last seen off North Cape on Sunday with all her sails torn and apparently helpless. There were three men on board, the Captain Charles Vint, Frank Gallant and James Gallant.

The wind on Sunday blew at a terrific rate. It was a regular gale. Round town some trees were blown down; at least one barn was unroofed, and a couple of yachts in the harbor were submerged. Two schooners came into Summerside harbor in the middle of the hurricane, having lost all their canvas. They came in under bare poles, but managed to save themselves.

Popular indignation against the action of the British Government has been aroused in Newfoundland, in consequence of the modus vivendi agreement entered into between the Imperial and United States Governments without regard to Newfoundland's rights. This is the contention of the Newfoundland Government who claim the rights of the fishermen of the ancient Colony have been sacrificed. The Bond Government threaten to resign as a protest.

In the trotting races at the Exhibition yesterday, Lady Bingen of Springhillables, N. S., won in the 215 class. Ada Mac, Summerside, second and Reta M, Halifax third. Time 2:17. The 225 race was won by Regal Pandeur, Springhill Sables, Cock of the North Summerside second and Kalol, Charlottetown, third. Time 2:24. The 235 race was won by Nellie Bang, Summerside, Robert C, Moncton, second. Time 2:26. Two other horses entered in this race were distanced in the first heat.

Two prisoners, who escaped from Deer Island in Boston harbor were tossed about all Saturday night on an old frail metallic raft. They encountered a squall, and were rapidly swept out through the outer harbor by a fast receding tide and a high and heavy sea. They had abandoned all hope of seeing land again, when they were picked up four miles east of Graves Lightship, by Captain Watson S. Dalliner, of the pilot boat Louise, who happened to be in the outer harbor on the lookout for incoming vessels. It was by the merest good fortune that they were discovered, as they were both practically exhausted and unable to do anything to attract attention from passing craft.

The Old Oak.

I stand beside the rushing brook, Dull, dignified, alone, My occupation gone, for now The children all are grown.

Now all is peace and quietness Beneath my spreading shade, Yet many stirring times I've seen, And many parts I've played.

An ancient castle I have been, The little brook my moat, My awaying limbs the rigging of The fastest ship afloat.

A block house, safe from Indians, With loopholes through the leaves; And in my tangled roots have lurked The famous forty thieves.

I sigh at times, to think of all The things I still might be; But now, the children grown and gone, I'm nothing but a tree.

"Lovers of the Rosary."

(Written for the Catholic Standard and Times.)

Of all the devotions which color and enliven the Catholic faith, the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary seems to hold the first place. Simple in form but grand in nature, its charm is taking and its beauty fascinating. Its popularity is bounded only by the horizon of the vast surface of the globe, over which the enlightening rays of the Catholic faith are daily shining. In fact, wherever the seed of the Catholic faith has been sown, and wherever it has borne fruit, the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin has followed in its wake as a second crop and has flourished in every land, in every climate under the sun. And it is but fair, as the illustrious Leo XIII., of hallowed memory, most fully says: "So will the love of Mary continue to swell and throb in the vast arteries of humanity, the veins of true Christians, thus shall Catholicism cause it to overflow lips and hearts. Fervent invocations and sublime devotions resound in an immense concert, echoing from north to south, from east to west, to accompany the strange prophecy which fell from the lips of the Lily of Israel ages ago: "All generations shall call me blessed."

The missionaries who preached Catholic faith were themselves devout clients of the rosary and naturally enough when, with the help of God, they succeeded in making converts to the faith of which they were the heralds, among other valuable practices of piety they bequeathed to their spiritual children the rich legacy of the Holy Rosary. This devotion, passing from father to son in faithful and uninterrupted succession, has always been cherished by every sincere and warm-hearted Catholic as a most precious inheritance left to him by his forefathers. Such at least is the case in this small corner of the globe, this diocese of Margalo, which counts a Catholic population about 80,000 strong, who are so enamored of their rosary as to be deservedly styled "Lovers of the Rosary." It is to the untiring labors of the Prince Apostle of India—St. Francis Xavier—that our ancestors owed their conversion to the true faith—a grace which it is absolutely not in our power to sufficiently value if we cast a sad look on the unfortunate bulk of the pagan population, groping in the darkness of their absurd religious tenets, in the midst of whom we are a mere drop in the ocean. The Rosary of the Blessed Virgin taught by the early missionaries has been transmitted to us by our ancestors, and of all the devotions current here the rosary is the one most appreciated and best gone through.

As the rosary is as simple as it is so, it goes without saying that nei-

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't eat and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets third empty, and what is left is digested in waste.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia for years, and tried every remedy I heard of, but never got anything that gave me relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I cannot praise this medicine too highly for the good it has done me. I always take it in the spring and fall and would not be without it." W. A. Nesmer, Sarsaparilla, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Strengthens and tones the stomach and the whole digestive system.

It is not necessary to be a doctor to know that the learning of a skill is required to acquire it. True, it is made up of the grandest and most majestic prayers with which our holy faith is blessed, and the constant recitation of them is well calculated to awaken and instill in us the strongest sentiments of piety and devotion. We have to chronicle with pleasure the fact that even the most ordinary people here, literally an unlettered set, living in the remotest crannies and corners of the villages, practically shut out from the civilized influences of town life, do possess a rosary and recite it. One of the commonest ornaments on the persons of families, either at home or when they get about, is the rosary round their necks. As a rule people in the villages wear rosaries, of which the beads are strung together on a strong thread, which answers their purpose better than wire. For if the thread gives way they knot it up and they have their rosary repaired, while they are at a loss to do the same with wire.

In every family an extremely edifying sight is the daily recitation of the rosary by all the members of the family in common before their little unpretentious home altars. In the parish churches the rosary is publicly recited by the congregation which assembles for the Sunday Mass. The poorer set of people who do not know how to read when they drop into the church for some function or other can always be seen reciting the rosary, quietly slipping their beads between their fingers while they devoutly lip the "Hail Mary." In fact, one of the commonest and most usual manners of praying, whether at home or abroad, is the rosary. Whenever a procession is held the rosary is generally recited or sung by those who take part in it. While the people walk in two rows accompanying a funeral to the church a decade of the rosary is recited after each verse of the Miserere till the church is reached. During the months of May and October—dedicated in a special manner to the honor and glory of Mary—the rosary is daily recited in several churches, and thus the impulse given to it by the late Pontiff receives a vigorous stress as the days go by. Another fact which reflects credit on the "Lovers of the Rosary" is that the Cathedral of Margalo is dedicated to Our Lady of the Rosary, and its titular feast is celebrated in a grand style preceded by a novena. There is also among the parishioners a confraternity of Our Lady of the Rosary counting many pious Catholics within its beautiful ranks. Certain feasts of the Blessed Virgin are heralded by "Salve Devotions" for eight days, which open every day at sunset with the singing of the rosary, in which the congregation takes part. On All Souls' day all the members of the family join together and recite fifteen decades of the rosary for the souls in Purgatory, chiefly of relatives, friends and acquaintances. While imploring Divine assistance in time of plague, famine or drought, and the thousand and one ills to which flesh is heir, the rosary is the pet instrument with which the help of God is implored by the faithful of this place. The rosary is often seen twined round the hands which are joined on the breast of a dead body decently got up for burial. These edifying features which characterize the devotional feelings of a community of people living in

The King's "Cure."

Marienbad, the famous health resort of kings and nobles from all parts of the world, and an immense area of land stretching clear across Bohemia, belongs to the Monastery of Tepl, founded late in the twelfth century. The public affairs and business of the great "spa" are conducted almost exclusively by monks and managed in a way that is not equaled by any purely secular corporation anywhere. Any commission, says a correspondent, in search of information as to how to run a town properly could not do better than study the methods employed by the monks of Tepl. Under their guidance the prosperity of Marienbad has increased by leaps and bounds. They have erected magnificent buildings, constructed public promenades, out down hundreds of trees to make pleasant paths through the forests, and have provided many other attractions for the varied tastes of the visitors from all nations who foregather at Marienbad during the summer. "Grat" among them is unknown. There are no "pulls." Everything is done honestly. Thoroughness in whatever they undertake always has characterized the abbots and monks of Tepl, who are up-to-date in all things. Their way is absolutely free from the slightest trace of religious intolerance. They welcome representatives of every creed, accept their money for the good of Marienbad, and give them good value for it. They do not let religion interfere with business or business with religion. They have made presents of land for the erection of places of worship for the large number of Anglicans, orthodox Greeks and Jews who visit the watering place. All the administrative posts are filled by the monks themselves. One monk is inspector of amusements and conducts his department with a thorough comprehension of the tastes of the gayest visitors, making no effort to impose more sacred music upon them than cosmopolitan worldlings usually care to listen to. Another monk is inspector of sanitation, and thoroughly enforces the maxim that cleanliness is next to godliness. He is assisted by a staff of doctors and sanitary engineers. One monk is inspector of springs, and sees to it that the requirements of the public are properly satisfied in his department. All the bathing establishments are supervised by monks. All the extensive farm lands attached to the monastery are managed by the monks. Some idea of the dimensions of the business operations conducted by the monks may be gathered by the following figures: During the four or five months of the year when Marienbad is frequented by health-seeking visitors an average of 50,000 glasses of the waters of the various springs are handed by the uniformed attendants to patients every day. The monastery owns and conducts six large public establishments, including mud baths, iron baths, steel baths, and baths of water of which is charged with carbonic acid gas. Apart from the water which is drunk by patients at Marienbad, the monastery exports over a million bottles of water of the Marienbad springs every year to all parts of the world. Another branch of industry conducted by the monks is the extraction of the salt from the waters which is then pulverized and crystallized and sold in boxes in the form of pills or powder. The monks have erected and conduct a huge hotel called the Teplerhaus, containing accommodation for several hundred guests, and a restaurant in which the best of simple fare in the world is obtainable at remarkably moderate prices. The monastery owns tennis grounds which have been skillfully laid out in the centre of shady forests, shooting ranges and other establishments for the provision of popular amusements. The monks hire bands to play on the public promenades which they and their predecessors have constructed. Just re-
