CHAPTER XVIII.

"And I am wanting to tell all I can, Mr. Vaughan, did you tell the boys I meant to give them watches?"

"Tell them? No."

"Oh! thank you."

"Thank me? Why?"

"Because I can not do it. I have not changed my mind, but things are altered."

"Altered? How?"—noticing even in the waning light that her features wore a very different aspect to what he had last seen them.

"In this way. You remember what you said to me of riches—"

"And their flying away? Yes."

"Well, mine flew away the very moment their wings were fledged. And all my plans flew with them."

"My poor child! Why, how—"

"Please ask nothing, I did use them as you said I ought while I had them. That is all I can tell. I wish I could have let you hear the whole. But I can not, though I should go away happier."

"Go away?"

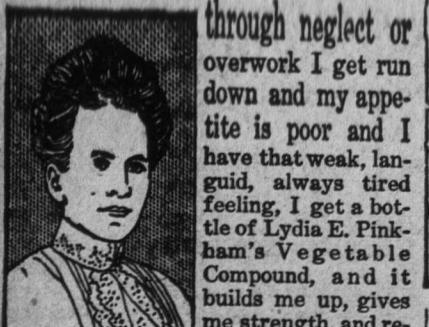

"Yes, soon—leaving so much I had meant to do undone! But I'm not to talk of it. It's best for every one I should not. This much even I can only say to you—my spiritual counselor."

"And your spiritual counselor repeats it to none," the rector answered, discerning deep anxiety below the would-be-jest. Then he let her walk by him with but few words till his garden was regained, where she made a bad attempt at thanking him for years of kindness, midway in which she broke down into all but speechless farewell, and hurried away toward home.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES ROWE, R.F.D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"Is there a ban upon my pupils?" the master thought, watching the slender figure out of sight. Then with a sigh, turning in-doors, "First one, and now this other, seem to come into deep waters. And both I should have claimed as fit as any for the best things the world had. I wonder how old I shall have to be before the truth is driven into me that One above knows best!"

Late in, Sydney followed her mother upstairs to explain her absence.

"I have done as you wished, mamma—found a place where I can earn my living. Will you wish me to go directly?"

"I wish!" exclaimed Mrs. Alwyn. "I have a single wish on such an unnatural proceeding? It is no wish of mine, Sydney, but your obstinacy takes you away. Who are the people and where is the place?"—leaning back, a fan over her eyes.

"It is a lady to whom I wrote. I travelled with her last week. By accident she told me she was wanting a companion, and now she is willing to let me go. I shall be paid only a little, but enough to get on with it suit her."

"If! Yes, and if you do not! What then?"

"Well, then, mamma—fighting bravely to keep hopeful—I must do as many before me. People have had to trust in Providence—"

Mrs. Alwyn flung up her hands and brought her eyebrows into an acute angle. She had no intention of being blasphemous, but the contempt she contrived to pour into her answer was worthy of a staunch agnostic.

"Providence! Sydney—Providence! If I had wanted proof of your appalling wrong-headedness, I have it now, when I hear you adopting the slang of a canting pauper! There go on—fanning herself rapidly—this state of things will drive me demented. Pray go wherever you choose. What is the name of the person who takes you?"

"It is Miss Hurst, of Wynstone, in Herefordshire, mamma."

Mrs. Alwyn looked up with a start of angry fright.

"You remembered my injunction about your own name? This woman may be a connection of people who once knew us. Hurst is abundant in that part of England. For you, Sydney, Alwyn, to be known as living in a species of service might prove an injury to Leonora, who is, at least, unoffending. Never forget that, Sydney, unless you desire to be malicious."

"I have not forgotten it, mother. I never will. Shall I leave here on Saturday?"

"If you are determined on going, yes."

So, daring to make no general ideas, with not time to spare for nursing grief, Sydney made ready to go. On her last evening she ventured a brief visit to the Gate House, where her puzzled friends had missed her sorely.

"And now going out again?" cried the doctor, after his wife's bona side improvement had been gladly vaunted.

"Why, how restless you've turned! Pray how long are you going to neglect us, and what are we to do without you?"

Questions that went night to down the phrases prearranged to quench curiosity. Answer died on her lips. Mary saw in her pallor something that escaped the elder folk's notice, and filled the pause—

"She must come back as much her usual self as mamma is now."

"Ah! and tell us," said Mrs. Dacie, patting her hand, "when we are all set about making wedding favors. I wanted to hear that the last night we were at Chaddeley, but her head ached so when she came back from Lutterthorpe, she could hardly talk. But you will have settled all that by when you come home again, my dear."

Mary saw the girl's face changing, now flushed, now white.

"Perhaps," the doctor cried, "the naughty lassie means to get it all settled before she comes home, Malley, and we are to say a long goodbye to Miss Alwyn."

Another word, and her self-restraint must have snapped asunder. She got up with a laugh marvelously close on tears.

"Right, Dr. Dacie, of course. I am eloping. The chaise is waiting now, so fare ye well."

But Mary, at the outer door, whispered, "There is something wrong, Sydney. But you will write about it to me?"

"As soon—if ever I can," faltered Sydney, avoiding this pleading by a tug. "And if you don't hear, don't be frightened, or angry with me. Oh, it's—with a more passionate outburst of regret than she had ever spent on herself—if only I had done something for you all before I went."

"We owe you too much now," Mary checked her, tightening her arm round Sydney's waist, as they went down the path between gleaming patches of scented pinks. "Can I say back nothing by sharing whatever pain you have now? I know here is something. Am I to be no good to you?"

"Not this time, Mary, for—for the difficulty lies between mamma and me. It is—weighing each word—that I am doing something she dislikes. And I—won't give it up! Don't name it to her, Mary; and assure nothing more."

Mary felt panic-stricken. "But you will write then, and give me your address?"

Sydney hesitated. To admit herself going among strangers, discarding her full name, was impossible. There was only one road out of the dilemma, and that she took.

"I might offend doubly by giving my direction. So, when I write, I shall be through mamma, and I will ask her to send me your answer, sack. And, Mary, if—if Mr. Drayton should come here, tell me directly, will you?"

Mary Dacie's touch trembled as she stroked the head now resting on her shoulder. "I will. Do you want him to return, then?"

"Oh, I do! Badly! If only he came, I think my troubles would halve. And when you see him, be very kind to him."

"For her sake!" Mary Dacie thought, giving with her farewell the promise that for long dogged her like a nightmare. For what could dispute with Mrs. Alwyn mean but rejection?

THREE FAMOUS SCIENTISTS

Dr. Andrew Wilson, Dr. Gordon Stables and Dr. Lascelles Scott, the famous English analyst, have all personally tried Zam-Buk and expressed themselves convinced of its great healing value.

Mrs. St. Denis, of Thompson St., Weston, Winnipeg, suffered long with eczema; and finally her doctor said only Zam-Buk could cure her—another fine tribute of a scientific man to this great herbal healer.

Mrs. St. Denis says: "The eczema broke out on my nose and one side of my face, and I could get no sleep because of the irritation and pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies and my doctor treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk. I procured a supply and to cut a long story short, in a few weeks Zam-Buk cured me completely, leaving no scars."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, scalds, burns, eczema, scalp sores, ulceration, inflammation, piles, etc.; also as an embolism for rheumatism, beriberi and scabies. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Rupert Villiers? What that rejection but preference for Richard Drayton? He worthy of Sydney, Sydney of him, who was she to come between them? Why, if she were not rator to the girl—who had brightened so many years, she must foster all chances of happiness for these two, and yield herself fully to that solitary state, never unpalatable till the rector's quondam pupil had visited St. Clair's. A highway of simple propriety lay before her. Along it the doctor's daughter prepared to trudge, though it was like journeying from sunshine into night.

Next morning Sydney quitted The Dale and started on new seas, horizon limitless, ultimate heaven unknown.

Quickly St. Clair's, with its wide flat meadows, steepy stream, and church-crowned straggling village, was left far behind. Dream-like the swift retracing of last week's expedition, 'twixt when and now years seemed to have rolled. By afternoon Chaddeley was passed. A rose she collected in bud upon the station fence was only just full-blown. Why, seasons might have come and gone since she last saw it! The longer route by Stillcote she had chosen, just for a sight of Jacob Cheene. As the old man stood the four waiting minutes beside her carriage, eying her with a sort of timid fear her valiant purpose should be giving way, she told him all was going well, and the promised funds would reach him soon from Major Villiers.

Then, when Jacob could send her word it was portioned out aright, she should be happier, and so thankful to him.

"Mind, it is a friend who pays it," she begged. "That is enough for any one to know; and, Jacob, the friend is Miss Grey—my mother desires it so—and she goes to dwell here"—giving him the address—"where you must render up accounts to her. What are you looking at?"

"Th—the—this!" he answered, with some confusion, putting up the paper she had given him. "I used to know the name—once."

"My mother said the same. But it may be only chance. Anyhow, as Sydney Grey I shall not"—her lips curving sadly at the dread—"disgrace any belonging to me."

On dresses of flowered materials bands of tulle or moire are used to trim flounces or tunics.

The quaint fashion of adorning the wrists with narrow bands of ribbon, velvet has returned.

All My Corns Are Gone

Every day, legions of people get rid of their corns with Blue-jay. This easy method now removes a million corns a month.

You who suffer with corns do yourselves an injustice. Blue-jay will instantly stop the pain. And in 48 hours, without any soreness, the corn comes out completely.

About half the people know this now. When a corn appears they put Blue-jay on it. Then they forget it. In a couple of days they lift out the corn and bid it good-bye forever.

You can't do that by paring corns. And you can't with old-time treatments. You may get relief for a little while, but the corns simply stay and grow.

Try this modern, scientific way—the way now employed by physicians and hospitals. Get rid of the corn. It is just as easy, just as painless as the ineffective ways.

The 'Leader' Grafonola!

The "Leader" is a veritable triumph of the "Columbia" Company's. It is a beautiful instrument and possesses all the charm of the Grafonola at its very best.

It has full, rich, mellow tones that can be subdued at will, so as to make it suitable for a small room, or again can be made to produce a magnificent volume of sound that just as easily fills a large hall. The "Leader"—which well merits its name—forms a handsome addition to any drawing-room. Come and hear some grand opera records on it.

The Duty on "Bluff."

By RUTH CAMERON.

It is unfortunate that so many Americans accept money as the standard of the man. A man with a great deal of money is very successful; a man with very little is not. And as we all want to appear very successful, we like to pretend to have money, whether we have or not. It is this senseless pretense that is killing much of the pleasure in what should be a real joy—the opportunity to travel.

"I never saw anything like the way Americans tip," a much travelled Englishman told me. "Coming over on the steamer, I heard my steward talking with another. They were comparing their tips. 'Well, said my steward, I've got another American down here; he'll probably give me a pound, and there's an Englishman in 33, but he won't give me more than five bob!'"

Household Notes.

Hardwood floors should be dusted daily. Hot vinegar is good to serve with spinach. Always break rather than cut asparagus.

Never cover the pot in which you cook greens. Boil brass curtain rings in vinegar to clean them. Sanitary doughnut cutters are made of hard wood.

The bedrooms in a house should always suggest repose. Rhubarb jam is a good filling for the children's sandwiches.

The best dressing for asparagus is butter and pure cream. The most popular coffee pots are those of the drip variety.

Camphorated oil will remove white spots from furniture. A combination of rhubarb and orange makes a delicious jam.

Old tablecloths are good cut up into washcloths in case of sickness. The simpler, thinner and fresher summer curtains can be the better.

Tattling is revived, not only for use on collars, but for centrepieces. Spiced rhubarb makes an appetizing relish to serve with cold meats.

A broom cover made of velvet is excellent for going over dusty walls. During housecleaning time all door hinges and all castors should be oiled.

Cut glass needs thorough scouring and scrubbing to bring out its beauty. If one has but a few mushrooms, the most economical way to serve them is on toast.

A good sauce for served spinach is made of lemon juice, paprika, salt and melted butter. Gilt frames may be brightened by rubbing with new baked bread moistened with ammonia.

English mint sauce is made with broth added to the usual vinegar, salt and sugar. Pickweed tops, wild mustard, sorrel, pigweed and purslane are all good greens in springtime.

Once a month put calcium chloride in a pan and set it on the floor to absorb all dampness. There are lots of attractive metal utensils in which food can be cooked and brought direct to the table.

The new wooden spoons with slot for perforated bowls save a lot of time in mixing cake batter. Nothing is better for the walls of a northward-facing living room than a soft yellow or tan paper. Zinc may be well cleaned with

Colombia. By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Colombia is dimly recognized in most of us as a small body of land up under the shoulder blade of South America which failed to look out for the cars when Roosevelt started to dig the Panama Canal and which lost its vermiform appendix as a result.

Colombia is usually colored green on the map and is about as large as a postage stamp. Of course the trained observer knows that it is really larger than that, but most Americans would hardly think of waiting for the next train across it if walking was good.

That is, Americans who have never been in Colorado would not think of waiting for a train in order to cross it. Those who have gone down there have been surprised by three facts. In the first place, there are no trains to wait for. In the second place, walking is interfered with by a patch of mountains higher and more extensive than the Rockies; and in the third place Colombia has a river 1,000 miles long, about 1,500 miles of seacoast and a large stock of mountains 18,000 feet high. It has a waterfall 400 feet high, a natural bridge which would make the Virginia Bridge look

The Newfoundland Disaster Enquiry Before Judge Knight.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

WILLIAM CONWAY (sworn), examined by Hutchings, K.C.—I belong to Turk's Gut, T.B., and was one of the crew of Newfoundland this year, second master watch with Arthur Woodland. Have held this position two springs. I went with our crew on March 31st. I heard the second hand on the ice, say the captain told him to go to the Stephano, kill seals, and go on board her for the night. About 7 or 8 men ahead of me on the way out. It was a fine morning, did not look for weather. About half a mile from the Stephano we came across one of her flags, a few of us stopped a few minutes, when it was just beginning to snow, which was the first sign of weather. I remarked to the men we were going to have weather. On reaching the Stephano Capt. Kean told us to come aboard and have a mug-up, which we did. We had a cup of tea, not very hot, some sweet and butter. When I came on deck I looked down the after hold at the seals. My master watch and three of the bridge masters, came out of the mess room, and we all went forward. On the way I picked up my bag, and got on the rail to get out on port side, when Capt. Kean ordered us all out over the starboard side. It was blowing strong and snowing, but getting to prevent getting over port side. I was one of the last to get over the starboard side. Heard no conversation on deck between the captain and our second hand. When we were on the ice, I heard Captain Kean say, "Hurry up boys and cross her head. I want to get after my own men." Heard no other conversation. We turned sharp across her head, some of the men had to run as the ship was moving. We crossed to her port side, and she turned starboard and went away from us. Last I saw of her she was stern on. George Tuff told us we had to go S.W., where he said there was about 1,400 seals, and we went in that direction. Reached a patch which Bungay and some others stopped to kill. I went on about 150 yards. The second hand said, "It's too dirty boys, to look for seals now, without they were here around, the best thing to do is to go for our own ship, but it seems like it's going to be a night on the ice." Did not hear anyone answer. I thought we would get aboard our own ship, but think now we should have stopped where we killed the seals, because we would have had a chance to make a fire, and get aboard one of the ships next morning, but I had no doubt we would reach our ship. Tuff said he was in front coming out but would stay behind going back. I kept with my master watch all the time, and was picked up by the Bellaventure on Thursday morning. Our master watch left us on Wednesday evening to go aboard the Bellaventure, which is the last I saw of him. Have been in Hospital since coming to St. John's, until this morning, my feet were badly frozen.

WILLIAM J. MARTIN (sworn), examined by Hutchings, K.C.—I belong to St. John's, am a master mariner and chief officer of the s.s. Stephano in summer. Was navigating officer in her this year at the ice. I kept the log, which is now produced. On 30th March, the log reads, "Moderate, northerly breeze, fine, clear weather; 5.10 a.m. ship under way, ice very heavy, making slow progress; heavy swelling ice, steering gear giving much trouble, port shoulder piece carried away, engineers had secured it; 5 p.m. struck patch of whitecoats, took about 1,500 before dark, ship picking up pans till 9.45 p.m., then stopped and burned down for the night. Florizel, Bell, Bon, and Newfoundland in sight." Tuesday, March 31st: "Light southerly breeze, veering easterly, fine clear weather; 5.10 a.m. ship under way, ice slack, making good progress; barometer 29.25; 6 a.m. all men on ice panning seals, ship picking up pans. Florizel and Bon, in company, Bell, and Newfoundland in sight; 11.20 a.m. Newfoundland's crew walked on board, had mug-up, and went on ice again about 11.50 a.m. Noon, wind increasing from S.E., with light snow; barometer 29.50 and falling; 3.30 p.m. wind increasing to storm with blinding snow; ship's horn kept going; Florizel picked up many of our crew, came alongside about 4.30 and put the men on board, ship continued picking up pans; 4 p.m., wind E.S.E., with heavy snow blizzard and turning very cold; 6 p.m. increasing and veering to N.E.; ship stopped and burned down, ice very tight; barometer 29.40; thermometer 16 above zero." Wednesday, April 1st: "Heavy N.W. wind with blinding snow blizzard, ice very thick; ship unable to pick up pans, very frosty weather; 10 a.m. ship under way making very slow progress; noon, heavy gale continues, weather clearing, ship picking up pans with much difficulty. Ice very close packed and heavy, making slow progress; 8.50 p.m. burned down for the night; 10 p.m. heavy N.W. gale continues with clear frosty weather; 11 p.m. barometer 29.30; thermometer 9 above zero. Thursday, April 2nd: "Strong N.W. wind, fine, clear and frosty weather; 5.20 a.m. ship under way, ice heavy and close packed, making very slow progress; 7.30 a.m. noticed Newfoundland firing distress signals (N.C.) Captain sent men on board at once; 8.40 a.m. men returned from Newfoundland, reported that her crew had been on the ice in all the blizzard since 31st March and feared for their safety. Captain sent all crew in search with grub and restoratives. Engineers opened ship out all she could stand to try to force to where the men were; ice very heavy and tight packed, ship making very slow progress; 11.15 wind moderating, picked up one man of Newfoundland's crew in a very weak condition; he reported that their crew were dead and dying; 4.30 p.m. took one other in dying condition, he was much frosted; in everything possible done by captain and engineers to get ship on; doctor doing everything possible for sick men; 5.20 p.m. picked up one dead man, very much frozen; 6 p.m. took another corpse on board; light variable, dull and overcast with snow; 11 p.m. Captain sent doctor on board Bellaventure to render all relief possible; 11.30 p.m. ice tight packed and very heavy; ship stopped to await ice slacking, very heavy butting all day; barometer 29.30; thermometer, 29 above." Friday, April 3rd: "Strong E.N.E. breeze and thick snow; 5.05 a.m. ship under way, ice heavy and tight, making slow progress, bound to s.s. Newfoundland; 7.15 steering gear gave out, connected up hand gear, weather very thick and hazy; 8 a.m. rain and sleet, barometer 29.10; 10.10 stopped near Newfoundland, captain went aboard; noon, Bellaventure arrived; 1 p.m. transferred two survivors on board her, also two dead is an entry 29.70, that would be about 8 o'clock in the evening. There is no entry on the 20th. On Saturday, the 21st, the entry is 29.90. That would be somewhere between 8 and 11 at night. On Sunday, the 22nd, the entry is 29, that would be entered about the same time. I swear the entry was made on March 21st, and on March the 22nd. I cannot account for the thicker writing; in the last two barometric entries. On the 23rd of March there is no entry on the 24th nor on the 25th, nor on the 26th, nor on the 27th. On the 28th, the entry is 29.80; I swear that the entry of the barometer on the 28th of March was made on the 28th of March. I cannot account for the last three barometric entries to be made in the same thickness of writing. No entry on the 29th of March. On the 30th of March no entry. On the 31st of March, there are three entries of the barometer; one at 5.10 a.m. giving the barometer as 29.75; one at noon giving the barometer 29.50, and falling; one the last thing may be 10 or 11 o'clock that night giving the barometer 29.40. On the 1st April there is one entry of the barometer at 11 p.m. On the 2nd April, there is one entry of the barometer 29.30, the last thing at night. On Friday, the 3rd of April there are two entries of the barometer. On the 4th, no entry; on the 5th, no entry; on the 6th, no entry, nor on the 7th, nor on the 8th. I would not enter the barometer if it showed anything between 29.75 or 29.80 up to 30.50. I did not think it would be necessary to enter the barometer when the glass was working steadily between these limits. If the glass was below 29.70 and began to go up I would make an entry between these limits. I made the entry on the 19th of March, 1914, 29.70, as that was the lowest I had seen from the time we left St. John's. I made the entry 29.90 on Saturday the 21st, because the glass went up slowly. I made an entry of 29.00 on Sunday the 22nd of March because I was watching the glass going up steadily. I don't know why I made no entry on the 20th of March, although I made an entry on the 19th, 21st and 22nd. It is a fact that there is only one day's log during the time I was in the ice in which three barometric entries appear for the day, that was on Tuesday, the 31st of March. These three entries were not entered on my memorandum. I took a note of them on a piece of paper. Each time it appeared on the 31st, I took the entry on a piece of paper, except the last entry, the latter I did not take on a piece of paper as I had the log before me, and I was writing up the log. The 31st is rather a lengthy entry. The first barometric entry on the log appears on the 4th line of the log sheet. The thermometer was made at the same time as the last reading of the barometer and was not on the memorandum. There is nothing else there which was not copied from the memorandum. Looking at the Newfoundland from the deck of the Stephano there was nothing in the way of ice to obstruct the view. To the best of my recollection the barometer between 8 and 10 of the 30th at night was 29.90 or 30.00. The next morning at 5 o'clock I noticed the barometer had dropped to 29.75, at noon it dropped to 29.50 and falling. My impression from the glass was that the glass started to go down so quickly the wind would whip off from the N.W. and moderate. That was my expectation at noon. I swear the lowest I saw the glass on the 31st was 29.40. I don't recollect much about the thermometer during the day. The entry 16 above zero. I was anxious about the Newfoundland's men on the Tuesday the 31st, after the men left the ship and the storm came on, until I asked Captain Kean did he think the men got on board their ship, and assured me that undoubtedly they got on board their ship as he had great faith in their leader. I also asked the mate or second hand Yetman, and several other officers of the ship and they also assured me that they got on board their ship. I know the captain was blowing his whistle until 8 o'clock on Tuesday night, but I don't know why he was blowing. It is customary in hazy or thick weather to keep the whistle blowing as there were other ships around. It is one of the customary rules of the road. It had no special significance to me, and I did not know he was blowing it for the Newfoundland's men as the captain had assured me that they had got aboard their ship. I happened to be talking to the captain and I asked him about the Newfoundland's crew. I spoke to Yetman by himself. I did not get specially for the purpose of asking him about the Newfoundland's crew, but it was after I had spoken to the captain. I raised the question of the Newfoundland's crew to Yetman. I did not tell him I had been speaking to the captain, nor I did not tell him the captain's answer. I don't recollect exactly the words I used to him, but they were something like this, "Well, Fred, what do you think of the Newfoundland's crew; do you think they got on board?" I don't recollect the words he used in answer, but he assured me that the men got on board. The earlier part of the log is the record of last winter's run between St. John's and New York, beginning on the 20th December last. On these trips we usually enter the barometer in the log four times a day, each four hours.

To the Judge—I was not advised by any one to make these entries on the 31st of March in my log.

To Dr. Lloyd—I did it on my own initiative. These entries are in a line with the fact that the day was an unusually bad day.

When you read this you will know that "Reid" has quality in his White Plymouth Rocks.

At the great Indianapolis Show, Ind., U.S.A., Feb. 2 to 7, 14, and in one of the quality shows in all America, and in a class of 126 White Rocks, we made this most remarkable winning: 3rd, Cock; 1st, Hen; 1st & 5th, Cockerel; 5th, Pullet. Silver cup for best shaped male; silver cup for best colored specimen. Surely this is a record to be proud of.

This is what Judge Schwab has to say about them: "The winning cockerel, one of supreme beauty, elegant form, and the best of color and condition. First hen up to highest standard."—Extract from A. P. J. April number.

Why then seek elsewhere when stock of such quality is in your own country. Only a limited number of settings to spare this season; $5.00 per setting of 15.

Obituary.

JACOB CHAFE.

There passed away at 6 o'clock yesterday evening, after a very brief illness, a well known resident of the Southside in the person of Mr. Jacob Chafe. Mr. Chafe, who was for many years in the employ of Messrs. Job Brothers & Co., and had charge of the machinery, was stricken with paralysis while engaged in the boiler house. He was immediately removed to his home where everything possible was done for him, until the end came peacefully at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. A widow and several children are left to mourn to whom the Telegram extends deepest sympathy.

ERNEST J. BURDOCK.

With profound regret we chronicle the almost sudden death of one of Bellefleur's most prominent business men in the person of Mr. E. J. Burdock, which sad event occurred at his late home in Bellefleur on Saturday night last. The deceased was quite well on Saturday last, and death came rather unexpectedly though he had been suffering from an internal growth for some time past. He was taken ill rather suddenly at 8 p.m. on Saturday and died a few hours afterwards. Mr. Burdock was well known in business circles, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He is survived by a widow and three children to whom the Telegram offers sincerest sympathy in their bereavement.

Mirard's Liniment Co., Gentlemen,—I had my leg badly hurt the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee.
"I expected it would be serious—I rubbed it with MIRARD'S LINIMENT, which stopped the pain and reduced the swelling very quickly.
I cannot speak too highly of MIRARD'S LINIMENT.

Alexander Kane Loses His Life While Engaged Unloading Salt from S.S. Havso.

The community was again plunged into grief yesterday afternoon when it became known that another breadwinner, named Alexander Kane, of Sebastian Street, had met his death whilst engaged discharging salt from the S.S. Havso at Morey & Co's Southside premises.

Kane was employed on the ship, which is some fifteen feet from the docks, and while pushing one of the wheelbarrows along, he apparently missed his footing, and was precipitated into the water, striking the side of the ship, and one of the lines in his descent. One of the workmen, named Whitten, plunged into the water after him and quickly brought him to the surface. The man was then frothing from the mouth, and showed little signs of life. Both men were Michael Duff, and a Mr. O'Connell, workmen and Kane was quickly brought on board the S.S. Havso where everything possible was done for him pending the arrival of the Roberts who, in the meantime, had been summoned by phone. When taken on board the unfortunate man showed signs of life, and every effort was made to resuscitate him, but it is thought that death came before the arrival of the doctor, who was on the scene a short time after the occurrence. The doctor worked assiduously for nearly an hour in an effort to revive poor Kane, but the vital spark had fled. Whilst he attributed death to drowning, many of the opinion that the man must have been rendered unconscious before reaching the water as he is supposed to have struck the rope from the ship to the shore with considerable force.

The body was taken from the morgue at 8 p.m. by Undertaker Burrell to be consigned and taken to his late home on Sebastian Street. The deceased was 42 years old and leaves a widow and three children to mourn the loss of a kind husband and affectionate father. To these and other relatives and friends of the deceased the community in the general sympathy extended.

CL.B. Withdraws From Sport.

Last night the C. L. B. Boat Club held its annual meeting which was largely attended. Mr. C. E. Hunt presided. The Club was reported to be in a progressive condition. The election of Officers resulted as follows:—
Patron—Lt. Col. Rendell.
President—C. E. Hunt.
Vice-President—Andrew Carnell.
Secretary—H. Barnes.
Treasurer—F. Reid.
Fin-Secretary—E. Hawkins.

Committee—Messrs. P. Davey, S. Ebsary, F. Miles, Capt. Major and J. Chalkler.

During the meeting Lieut.-Colonel Ryndell made a brief address and announced that the Church Lads Brigade would not participate in any inter-brigade sporting contests in the future. No doubt the withdrawal of our pioneer brigade from athletics, notably from the Aquatic Arena, will be sincerely regretted. For a number of years past the C. L. B. and its members always took an active and prominent part in every section of athletics and figured in many hard fought contests.

Envy

With mingled feelings of impatience and anxiety, Marian awaited her second interview with Sam Ratgenbauer, the theatrical manager. She knew she would have his familiarity to cope with, but was determined to handle the situation with the greatest tact possible. He held the chance she sought in the hollow of his hand. Hence, her need of employment and desire to break into dramatic work, made her steel herself against the thought of the objectionable features she would have to put up with in pursuing her course.

She paused that afternoon in front of a news stand and examined the contents of some of the theatrical magazines. She had purchased two of them with the idea of familiarizing herself with the current gossip of the stage, when her eyes lighted upon the contents page of one of the fiction magazines.

"Peg Porter" was the name which stared at her from the page. She started. She had known Peg Porter at college. She was a thin, studious, frumpish sort of a girl who had never "made" any of the sororities, and who had been out of college activities in general. Marian recalled, however, that Peg had written clever themes in her English courses. And now a wave of envy went through her as she realized that Peg had won her way into the magazines.

She bought the periodical containing the story, and devoured it on her way home on the street car. It was an engaging, well-written tale, handsomely illustrated and well featured. "If she can write and sell stories, why can't I?" wondered Marian. Her own college work in English composition, she reflected, had been by all odds her best, and she flayed herself mentally for never having thought of exercising her talent for writing since.

Reaching her room, she produced pen and paper with the determination to write something. She had heard of the thousand dollar checks which some of the popular short story writers received for their tales, and was lashed with envy over the success of Marian found that writing stories was something of an art.

Again, after her meal, she attacked her task with desperate courage, until at last, worn out by the unavailing effort, she desisted in despair. By bedtime she had begun to realize that writing, even more or less ephemeral tales for popular magazines, is something of an art, to be acquired through nothing less than long patience.

Like most envious mortals, who gaze bewildered upon success, and wonder how it is accomplished, she little knew or guessed that the genius works late, that when he goes to bed his oil in his lamp is low, that he often labors with the energy of despair, and that when he at last sees success, it is usually through a mist of tears.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a 1/4 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—
 40 lbs. Superphosphate.
 25 lbs. Fine bone meal.
 10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia.
 15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
 21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt.
 Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—
 66 lbs. Superphosphate.
 13 lbs. Fine bone meal.
 13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
 20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt.
 Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special book let on the use of Sulphate. It will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

April Fooling Thousands.

Even Newspapers Have Played Pranks on the Public.

"National Aero Club Competition Trial flight of all-British-made aeroplanes.

"Mr. H. E. S. Dunn will endeavor to fly in his all-British machine to-morrow from Lytham to Southampton and expects to alight near the Fall Ground between 9 and 10 a.m. County Subscription List will shortly be opened, and the proceeds devoted to the furtherance of aerial art."

Lancashire.—Yuerdon & Co., Printers Lytham."

Thus ran the legend on handbill and placards which were distributed in thousands throughout Southport on the last three days of March, 1914. Flying in 1910 was not so common a feat as it is now, and thousands of people turned up between 9 and 10 a.m. to see the flight. But 10 o'clock came, and no aeroplane, though some of the victims of the hoax who were gazing steadfastly in the direction of Lytham declared they could see something hovering in the sky, far, far away.

It was only when some of the crowd happened to notice the name of the aviator and the printers, H. F. S. Dunn (He's done!) and Yuerdo. (You're done!) that they realized they had been "had."

Hoaxed the Whole World.

On the morning of April 1st, 1902, almost all the tradesmen in Cardigan received a post card or a letter asking them to meet the writer at a well known hotel in the town at 11.30 a.m. sharp, as he had an important order to give them.

Long before 11.30 the hotel was besieged with visitors, and more than an hour was passed pleasantly in anticipation, but gradually one and the other produced the messages they had received, and they suddenly realized it was April 1st, and departed sadder but wiser men.

Once, at least, the whole world was thoroughly hoaxed. The New York Graphic on one April 1st gravenly informed its readers that Mr. Edison the famous inventor, had discovered a way of making nourishing food out of common earth and wine out of water.

The patent office in Washington was besieged all day by crowds anxious to learn particulars of this amazing discovery, and the news was flashed all over the world. Dozens of newspapers in foreign countries published glowing leaders of the wonderful age in which we live, and articles headed "Food and wine for all."

Why the Kaiser Hoaxed.

One paper finished up a leading article with "Let us be thankful that the genius of our benefactors of the race like Edison, cannot now be crippled by supervision and bigotry as it was when Galileo was forced to recant the awful heresy that two and two make four."

What the language of that particular editor, and of the others who had been taken in, was can be imagined when a day or two later the Graphic published all their articles under the heading "They Bite!"

Seven years ago a German paper published a paragraph to the effect that the favourite flower of the Kaiser was the red carnation. Every paper in Germany copied the paragraph and enthusiastic and patriotic Germans by the thousand wore red carnations in their button-holes. As it so happened, a few days after the paragraph appeared the Kaiser visited Aix-la-Chapelle, and every one deputed to receive him, as well as the cheering crowds, wore red carnations.

The Kaiser frowned angrily, and next day the whole hoax came out. The red carnation was the emblem of the German Socialists!

Crescent Singer

WON THE CROWD.

Mr. Sidney Earnshaw, lyric baritone vocalist, at the Crescent Picture Palace scored a big hit in his song: "Sweet Ellen, Ashore," yesterday afternoon and night and on every occasion he had to respond to encoures by repeating the chorus. The applause commencing before the closing words were rendered.

The big feature Brain versus Brain was a marvelous presentation of man in the ancient and modern life. The episode of the French Revolution and Caught in the Act were features in themselves. The same programme is repeated to-night and a treat is in store for those who will attend.

Don't forget the principal picture for Wednesday and Thursday: "The Folly of It All," featuring Edward August.

McMurdo's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the children's medical food par excellence. A perfect emulsion containing a generous percentage of Cod Liver Oil with its heat making and forming properties, and the hypophosphites which are bone and brain making is an ideal builder- tonic for the little people. Very easy to take and not difficult to digest your children will take it readily, and not complain of any disagreeable repeating.

In spring, it is especially valuable, clearing away the remains of winter cough and strengthening the system. Price 25 cents trial bottle and 50 cents regular size, the latter far more economical.

In the Garden.

Come into the garden, Maud, from your divan soft and snug; for the spring-time is abroad, and the garden must be dug. Come into the garden, do, and you'll know what labor means; we'll toil the long summer through, and harvest a lot of beans. The winter's an also an, spring's here, with its wrens and oves; so come with your sprinkling can, and come with your leather loves. The call of the soil is heard, he call that old Adam knew, and though it's a thing absurd, we'll toil as our neighbours do; our labor is all a vain, we know, ere we do a stroke. Unless the stress and strain, and he garden is a joke. For cutworms will take the corn, and chinchbugs destroy the peas, as sure as that we were born to toil with such tasks as these. The hail will destroy the cets, and also the succotash, and when we desire green eats, we'll buy them, and pay the cash. But come to be garden, Maud, regardless of things like these, get close to the fertile sod, and crawl on your hands and knees. Come forth to this verdant scene, away from your Persian rugs! Oh, come with your Paris green, to till the potato bugs!

The Mexican Situation.

Special to Evening Telegram.
MEXICO CITY, April 27. (To the International News Service of New York City). "The Republic of Mexico has always fulfilled international obligations at every crisis and will defend its rights" trumpeted upon by the Government of the United States. Signed Huerta. The foregoing despatch from Huerta was in reply to the following despatch sent him on Sunday—"Chile, Argentina and Brazil offer mediation between the States and Mexico. Will you accept?" In his answer Huerta makes no direct reply; but his declaration is said to have only this meaning, that Huerta will fight.

WASHINGTON, April 27. A thousand gallons of oil are spreading over the land around Tampico, and it is feared will be ignited, turning the entire district into a sea of fire, which would flow to Tampico entirely consuming the city. So says a despatch from Admiral Mayo, to the Navy Department. Mexican soldiers demolished the faucets, checking the flow of oil from the wells. Two enormous gushers are now spouting inflammable substance.

WASHINGTON, April 27. England, Germany and France have advised Huerta through their ministers in Mexico City to accede to the demands of the States, according to announcements made here to-day.

EL PASO, April 27. Americans from Torreon confirm the report that Maurice McDonald, an American, caught by the federales in the battle of San Pedro, had the soles of his feet cut off, was marched through the streets, and finally burned at the stake. American refugees say that reliable Americans who were at San Pedro at the time, verified the report that McDonald was killed and tortured before being shot. His home was at Berkeley. He was a gunner for Villa.

WASHINGTON, April 27. A journal of acceptance by the Huerta Government of the offer of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to use their good offices to bring about an amicable settlement of the difficulty between the States and Mexico, was cabled to the Spanish Ambassador here to-night, by the Foreign Minister in Huerta's Government.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.
They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.
GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life!"

BELFAST, April 27.
A consignment of about 40,000 rifles and half a million rounds of ammunition from Germany was landed at points on the coast of Ulster during Friday night, and distributed by means of 200 autos to various headquarters in Ulster. Volunteers who declare themselves determined to offer stern armed resistance to Home Rule were mobilized early last night and guarded the landing places and roads until the distribution of the arms had been completed. The police were powerless to interfere and all communications were interrupted.

DUBLIN, April 27.
The Dublin social season is practically wrecked by the political situation. Important members of society unless officially obliged, do not attend drawing rooms. No balls have been given by Lady Iveagh or Lady Paget, who set the pace for Dublin gaieties. Dances and dinners are all informal, in order that Unionists can ignore their political opponents. Except for one charity ball, attended by Earl and Countess Aberdeen, and the vice-regal staff, none of the dances expected last week were given. It is intended to put off the proposed entertainment by Lieut. Col. Sir Arthur and Lady Paget at the Royal Hospital.

LONDON, April 27.
"This grave and unprecedented outlook" was the term used by Asquith to-day in replying to questions as to the gun running exploit of the Ulster Volunteers, who under a strong armed force, landed 40,000 rifles and 500,000 cartridges at various points in Ulster on Friday last. The Premier said: "The Home Government without delay, will take proper steps to vindicate the authority of the law and protect the officers and servants of the King, and His Majesty's subjects in the exercise of their duties and the enjoyment of their loyal rights." The Premier spoke gravely as though foreshadowing taking steps which possibly will entail serious sequel. Over one hundred questions were put to Asquith to-day, in his capacity as Premier and Secretary of War. All referred to the Ulster situation, but the replies given were mostly bare negatives or colorless reiterations of what have already been established relative to the recent precautionary disposition of troops in Ireland. The Premier declined to answer several questions with regard to reports of the situation in Ulster, or in connection with orders issued as a consequence. He took the ground that the orders given were confidential as to the despatch of troops to Ulster. Asquith explained the Government did not share with General Paget's apprehensions that the movement would set the country ablaze, and thought it was the Government's duty to safeguard the stores and arms. Altogether during the question period, the opposition obtained only a small amount of material for two days' fighting, which begins in the Commons to-morrow. Carson was only listened to during the interlude, during which the Premier was being catechized, and was greeted as Kibb Carson by the Nationalists, who called out, "Hats off to the King." Immediately after he had finished replying to the questions asked, the Premier left in a motor car for Buckingham Palace to have an audience with the King. In leading Ulster papers rumors are again current that the Government has issued warrants for the arrest of Carson and Captain James Craig, Ulster leaders, but it is believed these rumors are unfounded. The Cabinet will hold a meeting to-morrow to reach the final decision as to the course to pursue in Ulster. In addition to five small cruisers off Larne, there are seven dreadnoughts at Londonderry, within three hours' run from Belfast. The nature of the steps which Asquith announced in Parliament the Government intended to take in Ulster, is not yet known, except that General Macco Reading, of the Adjutant General's staff of the War Department has taken over the command of the police forces in Belfast district. No troops have yet been moved, although it is understood certain regiments have been named to hold themselves in readiness. Five warships trucked off Larne yesterday, and to-night are playing their searchlights on the town.

Car Wandered Way

Some years ago, at Nelson, B.C., a freight car was discovered quite by accident in ten or fifteen feet of water off the dock.

If the railway company had ever missed the car there was no record of it at Nelson, and the only explanation that the local agents could make was that some careless switching engineer had bumped the car off the track and had failed to report its loss, possibly through fear of being reprimanded or losing his position.

The contents of freight cars frequently disappear equally mysteriously. Some years ago a valuable consignment of ore from a Canadian mine was sent to New York for delivery to a local smelter. The ore did not arrive, and the usual "tracers" sent out from both ends failed to find the missing shipment. Months afterward this was discovered. Through some oversight the papers were missing when the freight train drove into the New York terminal, and the car was shunted to a sidetrack to await information. It happened that this track was one where car-loads of cinders from the round-house were accumulated.

When these cars were ready, a switch engine coupled them all and took along also the car of ore, which was dumped with the cinders into the mud. The discovery of a few pieces of rich silver ore among the ashes attracted the attention of track-walkers or others, and led to inquiry. Of course it was impossible to rescue the ore, and the railway company had to pay the shippers for its estimated value.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this world known firm in Newfoundland.—ap17.t

Makes Hair Grow

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.
If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.
The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.
It destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

Walt Mason's Daily Story.

THE FEATHERED PERIL.

"It is at this season," remarked the wild of the woods, "that the gentle hermit of the vale gets real enjoyment out of life. He is entirely free from the annoyances which drive men to red paint in the busy haunts.
He doesn't have to make a garden, or milk a cow, or push a lawn mower, or do other distressing chores. He is the captain of his soul, so to speak, and can govern himself as he pleases,
none daring to make him afraid."

"My wife and I have lived together in peace and harmony a good many years in the suburbs of yonder town. There was no cloud upon our horizon until my wife announced that she was going to buy a dozen chickens, so we could have our own eggs. All old-fashioned women, no matter how sane they may be in other matters, are dippy where chickens are concerned.
They are convinced that the eggs sold at the grocery contain benzene and soda and coal tar dyes, and other harmful ingredients. My wife refused to believe that the store eggs ever saw a hen. She argued that they were made by a trust, and that it wasn't safe to eat them."

"I argued with that magnificent woman for days together, trying to induce her to revoke her dread decree.
I pointed out that chickens, when kept in town, are but whited sepulchres, which bite like serpents and sting like adders. I told her I'd rather eat chick'n nest eggs all my life than have benzene on the place. But, with all her shining virtues, she was a determined female, and when she made up her mind to do a thing she did it. So she went shopping and blew herself for three hens and a rooster of the Pol-land China variety."

"Now, at this period, we were on excellent terms with all our neighbours.
The dove of peace waved its white wings over our little community. In the evenings my friends would come over, from their adjacent residences, and we'd sit on the well surb and discuss the news of the day, and have an excellent time. We borrowed tobacco and dime novels from each other."

"But when my wife brought home those chickens, the neighbors all looked at me coldly. They scented trouble, as the warhorse scents the battle from afar. Terwilliger, who was a plain spoken man, came over and said: 'I see you have been investing in some birds of prey. Now, I want to give you fair warning that if these critters get into my garden, there's going to be a scene of carnage that will make the blood of innocent bystanders run cold. I have been working all spring planting and cultivating dried apples and boneless prunes, and they are just in bloom, and if your hens come over scratching around you must be prepared to sell your life as dearly as possible.'"

"I assured him that our hens would be kept in captivity, and I meant it, for I had built a burglarproof chicken house that no hen could escape from.
I told my wife to be careful and never leave the chicken house door open, and supposed she would mind what I said. But a wife who goes doty over chicken forgets the vows she made at the altar, and doesn't obey her husband."

"One evening I was seated on the front porch reading the paper when Terwilliger came around the corner of the house. He looked incensed about something, and was frothing at the mouth. 'I gave you fair warning!' he cried, and then he seized me by the side boards and hauled me off the porch, and tried to bore a hole in the ground with my head. However, I was a powerful man in those days, and when I recovered from the first onslaught I gained my feet, and seized him by the ankles, and knocked all the bark off an elm tree with him."

"It seemed that our chickens had invaded his garden, even while I was on my front porch, and had ruined several of his best dried-apple vines.
I went back and investigated, and found the door of the hen house had been propped open. I accused my wife, and she admitted, defiantly, that she had let the chickens out, as they were suffering for a breath of fresh air and something green to eat. Such perfidy was beyond forgiveness, so I bade her a long farewell and brought my old clothes to the forest primval."

Music Festival to Benefit Special Disasters' Fund.

Announcement of Edwin Bower Hesser as to Events in Early June at Metho- dist College Hall.

Edwin Bower Hesser, the Boston im-pressario, to-day sent the following written statement to the newspapers, in relation to his contribution to the Marine Disasters Fund, by giving a quarter of the proceeds of his Musical Festival at Methodist College Hall on June 1st, 2nd and 3rd. It said:
"As soon as I heard of the terrible sailing tragedy, before leaving New York City, I telegraphed to the newspapers and Governor Davidson that I should like to arrange some sort of benefit for the Widows and Orphans' Fund. Yesterday I met the gentlemen of the Marine Disasters' committee and happened to hear of the other tragedies—the loss of the "Checkers" and Grand Falls. I saw by the list that there were 22 dependent widows and orphans of those who perished on the "Checkers," and there are doubtless as many left destitute from the death of the crew of the Grand Falls. I was told by the members of the Committee that no provision had so far been possible for the dependents from these tragedies as the sailing fund could not be diverted to benefit them. I asked leave of the gentlemen of the committee to change my offer, and to make it for the benefit of those dependent on the seamen of those two ships, rather than to go into the general fund, which already seems pretty well card for by popular subscription. The fund raised through Musical Festival

Mrs. EVELYN SCOTNEY,
Coloratura

Prima Donna Soprano, Boston Opera Company, in the Mad Scene from
"Lucia di Lammermoor."

will equal in amount the entire profits of the local performance. I think, and should these profits be greater than the 25 p.c. of the receipts which I am donating, I shall turn over any excess to the gentlemen composing the committee, who are identical with those serving on the general Marine Disasters' Committee. This morning, in the Daily News there was an editorial by Mr.
Robinson, the Secretary of the Committee, which read as follows:

CHECKERS AND GRAND FALLS.

"Mr. Edwin B. Hesser has kindly offered to devote a quarter of the net proceeds of his three night opera season to the sufferers from the Checkers and Grand Falls Disasters. Amid the deep sorrow for those who are mourning because of the awful tragedies of the sailing voyage, the lesser, but to the survivors, not the less severe bereavements, are apt to be overlooked. The toll for the Checkers is a heavy one—5 widows, 12 orphans, and 5 dependents—22 for a crew of 6 men. That of the Grand Falls is, as yet, unknown, but enquiries will be made. If only we had awakened to our obvious duty and established a Permanent Disasters Fund, two years ago, these cases might have been met. Mr. Hesser's spontaneous offer has been gratefully accepted by the Committee, which, it will be remembered, was empowered by resolution at the Citizens' meeting, to initiate the establishment of a Permanent Fund. To do so at the present moment may be inopportune, but to obtain all possible help for the widows, orphans and dependents of the crews of the two vessels is a sacred duty."

The article very clearly states the case, but I should like to make even plainer, to the public, the exact benefit which the fund will derive from the Musical Festival.

From the gross receipts will be deducted merely the local Newfoundland expenses, which should not amount to more than three hundred dollars, as I calculate at the present moment. Of course the amount cannot be definitely stated, but a complete accounting will be published in the newspapers following the festival, showing where every cent of expense money goes to. I think that this is a duty to the public when any event is advertised for the benefit of a public charity, and I have always made it a rule to publish such a statement when donating any performance to charities anywhere.

I think that about $700 to $1,000 will be netted for the committee. Last year, for three performances, the receipts were roughly $2,000. There should be no question about the amount being as large or larger this year, and the clearing of $700 to $1,000 should be easy, for I am bringing an aggregation far outshining those of last fall. Mme. Evelyn Scott is without a doubt the most wonderful coloratura soprano of the world today—and the opinions of leading Boston, New York and Montreal
critics will be published in the regular advertising of the event. Assistant her is the leading permanent tenor of the Boston Opera House,
"Checkers" and Grand Falls, who was leading tenor of the Montreal Opera Co., two seasons ago, under a loan from the Boston Opera Co., for a few weeks. Howard White, the American basso of the Boston Opera Co., will prove a great surprise. He was second only to Mme. Scotney in popularity during my spring season last year in Halifax. The contralto is Mrs. Cara Sapin, of the Boston and Metropolitan Opera Houses. The accompanying Maestro John Craig Kelley, of the Boston Opera House.
Subscriptions for seats, $5.00 for three concerts, will be in charge of Mr. Power, at the Atlantic Bookstore. In my window I will have displayed shortly the original Canadian newspaper notices of Mme. Scotney, and he will shortly have circulars
for distribution, giving full details.
In the advertising I shall tell the public as much of the history of each of these artists as space will permit.
Signed, EDWIN BOWER HESSER.

illuminated, at 9 o'clock. The music was furnished by the Cadet Band and

Rossley's Theatre

PACKED TO THE DOORS.

Last night Rossley's Theatre was crowded to the doors long before 8.30 to see the best comedy put on yet by the Levene Stock Co. The stage is fitted up as a Pullman Dining Car, in a very ingenious manner. It is the first time we have seen anything so novel. Tommy Levene as the Porter and Felix Martin as the Irish Tourist,
had the house in roars of laughter.
Felix also gave a clog dance that brought down the house. We can't understand why this Company did not open their engagement with Fun in a Dining Car as it certainly is the best thing they have done. The pictures were splendid. Four full reels with 3rd Story, Maurice Costello, Johnston, Finch Young and many other notable stars, all vitagraph favourites. This is without a doubt the best show seen at Rossley's in a long while.
