CHAPTER XVII.
An Astonishing Declaration.

Cyril stopped suddenly.

"Newall wants you to paint this other picture and make it a companion to 'The Silver Stream,' and he intends calling it 'The Golden Sands.' Original idea, isn't it?" and he laughed cynically. "But it's the sort of thing the public like. And he means to exhibit them in that new gallery he and his fellow cranks—I beg his pardon, connoisseurs—are getting up. See?"

"Yes."

"I'm glad you do. A word from Newall, the mere fact that he has taken you in hand and bought your pictures, will make you. Cyril Burne will be the artist of the coming season, and—"

"Good Heavens, my dear fellow, don't attempt it!" ejaculated Jack, with much alarm.

"She is the most beautiful girl I ever saw; there is nothing in the Gallery that would do her justice. But if she were as plain as—"

"As a Dutch woman," put in Jack.

"I should love her as dearly. If you only knew her! But you will some day, soon, I hope, and you will love her for her own sake and mine, too."

"Well, go on."

"I might never have had another chance of seeing her, but luck was on my side. She was coming from a visit late at night, and an accident happened—"

"And you were there and saved her," put in Jack, with a forced smile of amusement covering his interest.

"Admirable! Quite a scene in a melodrama. Were you much hurt? I noticed you carried your arm rather stiffly. It isn't a cork one, is it?"

"I walked home with her to the Court," went on Cyril, taking no notice of Jack's running commentary, "and—yes, I told her that I loved her!"

Jack Wesley stared at him.

"Yes, most certainly the stage has lost a good deal," he muttered. "You told her?"

"Yes," said Cyril, his face flushed, his eyes glowing, and he seemed scarcely conscious of Jack's presence.

"We met in the glade the next day, and I—"

He got up and laid both hands on Jack's shoulders and looked

This Ointment Possesses Power to Heal the Skin

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what changes can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James Street, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and I am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."

Mrs. W. W. Oliver, Port George, Annapolis Co., N.S., writes: "I am going to tell you my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. There was a spot came on my face something like a mole, but it kept getting worse, and several doctors whom I consulted said it was cancer, and that it would have to be cut or burned out. I intended having this done, but changed my mind when my brother recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. Before I had finished one box of the ointment this skin trouble had gone, and has not bothered me since. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too much, and you are at liberty to publish this letter."

If you have never used Dr. Chase's Ointment send a two-cent stamp for a sample box, and mention this paper. Price sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited Toronto.

down at him. "Jack, she loves me! She has promised to be my wife!"

Jack Wesley's face grew grave.

"Isn't this rather serious, my dear fellow?" he said, quietly.

"It is serious; it is the most serious thing that has ever happened to me," replied Cyril. "It has changed my whole life! Ah, if I could only get you to understand how happy I am!"

"Perhaps I do understand. And now, may I ask who the young lady is? The governess at the Court, or who?"

Cyril stared at him.

"Do you mean to say you don't know?" he demanded.

"How should I? Remember that I left the night of your first fit of madness and knew nothing. Is it the governess, or some young girl visiting at the Court?"

"It is the Earl's daughter, Lady Norah Arrowdale," said Cyril.

Jack Wesley took his pipe out of his mouth and looked at Cyril gravely.

"Lord Arrowdale's daughter?" he said, slowly. "And—may I ask, without being impudently curious, what the Right Honorable the Earl of Arrowdale says to this pretty romance?"

Cyril's face grew as grave as his friend's.

"Well," he said, "he has said nothing at present; he does not know of our engagement."

Jack Wesley's face flushed, and he looked hard at the ground.

"You have not told him—been to him?" he said, strangely.

"No," said Cyril. "Let me tell you all, Jack. I think—I am sure that Norah is rather afraid of her father. She knows so little of him, you see. Why, she had not seen him until that night I saw her drive through the gates. There is a story concerning their separation which is too long to tell now. But she is almost a stranger to him, and we—well, we both shrink from telling him until I had made a success. Then I could go to him with greater courage. I should still be just an artist, but there is a difference between the unknown painter and the successful one. Art is noble in all its forms and grades, but—"

"I understand," said Jack Wesley, and his voice sounded strangely cold. "And yet you decline Lord Newall's offer; you will not go to Brittany?"

Cyril looked at him. He had never heard his friend address him in this tone before.

"No, I don't decline, I accept. But if you had ever loved as I love, Jack, you would understand what a couple of months' separation from the woman you love means," and his handsome face flushed. "Of course I will accept, and with gratitude to you and to him. As you say, it means both money and fame. Why, it is just that for which I was waiting! I will go to Brittany, and then with my position assured, I can go to the Earl and ask him to give me my darling."

Jack Wesley was silent.

"Aren't you going to give me one word of congratulation, Jack?" asked Cyril, in a low voice.

"I congratulate you," said Jack Wesley.

Cyril drew his chair nearer and looked into Jack's downcast face.

"What is it, Jack? You are angry with me about something. What is it?"

"Don't ask me," and Jack Wesley got up and, turning to his table, began to pull the papers about.

"But I insist," said Cyril, earnestly. "Jack, you and I have never spoken a cross word to each other yet; there has never been a breath of coldness between us until now. What is it?"

"Don't insist," asked Jack, with a pained look. "Let us talk of something else."

"But I do insist. I could not rest until I knew what I had done, and—"

"Well, if you will have it," said Jack, as if driven to bay, "I think you have acted—well, not as I should have expected you to act, Cyril."

"If? What have I done?" demanded Cyril.

Jack Wesley flung his pipe on to the table.

"In plain words, Cyril, you have allowed yourself to drift into a course unworthy of you. You have permitted your feelings to sweep away those barriers which every honorable man should place between him and an unworthy deed. Tell me—don't speak yet—but just tell me what you would have said to me if I, the struggling, unknown writer, had won the love of a girl so far above me as a peer's daughter would be, and had, having won that love, induced her to plight her troth to me, her father being kept in ignorance?"

Cyril's face flushed, then turned pale.

"She is, as you say, quite unsophisticated, knows little or nothing of the world. Loves you! Of course, she does. I can understand that; there is nothing marvelous in it. But that very love of hers should have made you careful of her. Do you think her father, the Earl, will not say that you have taken advantage of her ignorance of the world—his world? Do you think he will not point out to you—cast it into your teeth—that she is what she is, and that you are only a poor devil of a painter?"

With tightly compressed lips and face pale and troubled, Cyril looked down at him.

"Jack," he said, in a low voice, "your heart is pure gold. I might have known what you would have thought, have guessed what you would have the honesty and the candor to say. But—he drew a long breath—"Thank God, I can say, 'Jack, you have wronged me.'"

Jack Wesley glanced at the handsome face and shook his head.

"How have I wronged you?" he said. "I am judging you by your own confession. I don't say that you could help loving this peer's daughter; I dare say not. I say that I think it only natural she should have given you her heart; but—why, lad, and his face was full of grief, "if any one had told me that you—you—had acted so, I would have given him the lie."

Cyril took two or three turns up and down the room. His face was strangely troubled, but there was no trace of shame or remorse in it.

"You are very hard on me, Jack," he said, in a low voice.

"Am I? Put it down to my regard for you," responded Jack Wesley. "You are the only man in all the world I care to call 'friend,' and that being so, I am as careful of your honor as I am of my own. Confound the women! They blind even such a man as you to a sense of right and wrong. Can't you see it, can't you see it?" he demanded, with outstretched hands.

"Put yourself in the place of this old man; think what you would say if you learned that a man had been enjoying stolen interviews with your daughter, and that he had induced her to plight her troth to him, and then—mark this well—when the young man chose, he came to you and told you—an Earl!—that he was only a poor devil of a painter?"

"Well!" said Cyril, biting his lip and looking, not at his friend's noble, earnest face, but at the opposite wall, with a strange look of doubt and indecision.

Capt. Augustus O'Brien

"A VERY GALLANT GENTLEMAN."
"And indeed he seems to me
Scarce other than my own ideal Knight."

The greatest crisis in the world's history has produced in our sons and brothers qualities of courage, faith and endurance and abiding love undreamt of in our highest ideals. Men hitherto unknown save to their own immediate friends, men who went about their work unostentatiously from day to day and hid beneath a cloak of native modesty a character as fine and as noble as that of those "perfect gentle Knights" of old, have suddenly equipped themselves, as it were, and we behold entirely different personalities, great men, whose highest word is law and to be worthy of whose friendship is our first ambition. Such a one was Augustus O'Brien.

From the date of the formation of the Newfoundland Regiment, Captain O'Brien's influence was markedly felt.
He was a power for good. From the highest to the lowest we all realized that here, in very truth, was one of Nature's noblesmen. When the September gales blew our camps to smithereens at Pleasantville, I have known him to take a number of us into his own comfortable tent while he sought refuge from the storm in any corner there was. In the bad times at Salisbury Plain it was much the same. On many a cold, wet night more than one man had to thank him for an extra blanket of which he had deprived himself. When the torrential rains turned our encampment into a quagmire and made life a misery for man and beast, O'Brien would spend his spare time in seeing that every man in his command was as comfortable as was possible under the circumstances. There was no thought of self. He sought no praise, no gratitude. "Are the men all right?" Yes.
"Then I am happy."

What a pride he took in the men he commanded! O'Brien never had to speak twice—one word was enough.
Yet he was in no way a strict disciplinarian. He always appealed to the better natures of the men and they responded nobly. He knew in his heart that every mother's son of us loved and respected him above all others, but he never traded on that knowledge. Always modest and unassuming, he came on parade to do his work, and he did it without a particle of officiousness or ostentation. Not an officer in the Regiment knew his job better than did Captain O'Brien and none worked harder. Yet there was no ulterior motive in his efforts,
no desire to "get on" in the world.
His ambition was for the welfare of his men and to make them good soldiers. When he drilled a company or and myself—only one survives. These were great men to work with. They would be great men to die with—very gallant gentlemen.

"Oh, for a touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is still!"

The new scene of operations called forth greater effort and endurance, in some respects, than the old. But when strenuous work was to be done, Capt. O'Brien was always ready with his cheerful smile and zealous spirit.
However tired and worn men would be after the day's duties, they seemed galvanized into action when he called upon them for still further efforts. His Company in the trenches knew no rivals, and though he was away at a special course on July 1st, his spirit was with the men who laughed at Death that day. It grieved him sorely that he could not have been with them and his letters after the disaster were pathetic, but he had able representatives to "carry on" in his absence and his own hour was yet to come. On October 12th he went over the top, leading his beloved 'A' Company—the Old Reliables, he used to call them, the finest company in the battalion—to a greater achievement, materially, than that of July 1st, and met his death-wound in the dash of victory which, I think, was as he would have wished it. He managed to crawl back to our own lines and was carried safely away to hospital,
only to succumb to his wound six days later.

Augustus O'Brien was a great and good man. Those with whom he came in contact will ever be the better for having known him. His name will live forever in the annals of the Newfoundland Regiment, and in later days rich around the camp-fires will sing of him as erst, they sang of Hilwatha. It has been asked why he received no military honour for his work in Gallipoli and France. Men like O'Brien rarely do—and it is better so. He needs no distinctive mark to show his valour or his service.
When medals and decorations have passed into the limbo of forgotten things, O'Brien's name will live still in the hearts of his countrymen.

In Captain O'Brien the Newfoundland Regiment has lost a most gallant and capable officer, his men have lost a most devoted friend and leader, and some of us a part of our very selves.

"E'en as he trod that day to God,
So walked he from his death,
In simplicity and gentleness,
And honour and clean mirth."
"I will remember while the light lasts,
And in the darkness I shall not forget."

THE BEGGAR.

The snow will soon be flying,
The snow we love so
well; in drifts it will be lying along the hazel
dell. The brawling winds will grip us, and give
our ears a lift,
The morning frost
will nip us, and make our whiskers stiff. But we who toiled and panted preparing for this time, are cheerful and enchanted to see the snow and rime. And now there is a comer to every worker's door—the man who loated all summer, and dodged the useful chore. The man who jangled and riled, hard by the village kirk, and who in anger bridled, when he was asked to work. In ancient, chestnut phranis, he laces for things to chaw, for liverwurst and raisins, for pumpkin pies and slaw.
His kids, in countless numbers, are suffering for bread; his aunts are robbed of slumbers because they have no bed. The same old whiskered story, you've heard for years and years, told by a sinner hoary, with alligator tears! He profits by your bounty, you give him tripe and tea,
and wonder why the comy won't feed
such skates as he.

The Battle of the Somme
Westminster Gazette.—The Battle of the Somme is no more blind battering of the enemy for the purpose of containing him and exhausting him;
it has definite strategical purposes of the highest importance, some of which are obvious and others of which may be conjectured or read between the lines of the official reports. But if we would measure it aright, we must realize the immensity of the struggle, the great numbers which are drawn to it and engaged in it, the formidable obstacles, the preparations which have to be made for every advance if disproportionate losses are to be avoided. There has been no battle like it in the world, and the methods by which ground can be won and losses cut down have to be learnt by all the combatants from experience on the ground. Patience and steadiness are above all things needed for such a conflict, and not only the fighting men and those who command them but in those at home who look on.

How Much Longer.

"In November the Germans will begin to retreat, and in seven months
the end will come."

So says H. G. Wells, the famous novelist and war prophet, and his view is corroborated by a military official, who has stated that we shall be on the Rhine by Christmas, and in Berlin by May.

If this proves true, Lord Kitch-ener's first estimate will have proved wonderfully near the mark. He predicted a three years' war, though he is said to have revised this to two and a half years before his death.

That would bring peace in February. Is it possible?

An even more helpful note is struck in Dr. Clifford's remark:

"It may be that the war will be over this side of Christmas."

But there are others who consider that we have only just passed the half-time mark. General Botha stated recently that we must not be discouraged if the war continues for another two years. "The longer this war lasts," he said, "the longer it will be before the next."

However long the war drags on we shall see it through, but we all hope and pray that the present is the last winter on the battlefield which our brave boys will be asked to face—

Bringing Greece
Into Line.

We refer again to the Eastern situation because it is the most important matter to which we could possibly refer at this time. History is in the making there and its making will be the matter of a few short days or weeks, however long the process of preparation or of accident that has led up to it. At the moment of writing no new developments are reported from either of the two battle-fronts, in Roumania and Macedonia, but indications are multiplying that both sides are putting forth increasingly powerful efforts to attain their conflicting ends.

With regard to the Roumanian operations, it is now as plain as day that the Germans are determined to stop at nothing on their way to the goal they have set themselves. We believe they will be willing even to abandon a large section of the Somme front in order to obtain the troops necessary completely to crush Roumania. As a proof, we have merely to regard the weighty reinforcements sent lately to Orsova and its vicinages, conjured apparently from the air, where they have overcome the stubborn resistance of our Ally and placed the defending army in a most precarious position. Now that they have got through several of the passes and set foot firmly upon the low levels, we may be sure they will not relax their utmost endeavours to deal blow after blow until they have driven right to Bucharest.

This the Allies know well and act accordingly. In addition to the resistance which Roumania herself and the Russian reinforcements can oppose, two factors fight in her favour: the oncoming winter and such serious reverses as the German Allies can be compelled to suffer elsewhere, which must be of sufficient importance to command their immediate attention. In respect of the former of these, Roumania has already gained much price-less time. As Falkenhayn's troops move through the passes, their lines of communication and supply become attenuated and more and more difficult to maintain. Wanting complete victory, these troops will be in danger of having the passes behind them blocked with snow and ice and made nearly impassable. For the present there is not this danger, but it approaches rapidly with the shortening days. In another respect, too, this element favours Roumania, for the far northern Russian fronts are considered already to inactivity and may thus permit the despatch of larger reinforcements to this area.

And now there are gratifying signs that the other source of help, a diversion from without, will not be allowed to fail. The arrival of General Roques at Athens and the capture of Monastir have combined, whether by mere coincidence or not cannot be said, to make the time ripe for a thorough understanding with Greece. The demonstration of the Allies' strength against the formidable German-Bulgarian defences is bound to make a deep impression upon doubting Greece and win many more volunteers to their flag. In any case, the Entente Powers seem to have decided that the role of Greece must be defined once and for all. Something in the nature of an ultimatum has been handed to her Government and the enemy plenipotentiaries have been given notice to be taken hereafter will depend upon the nature of her reply. It looks like the last chance for Greece to declare herself a united country and throw in her lot whole-heartedly with the Allies if she does not, she may look for drastic treatment from them, and they will welcome such her subjects as may flock to their standard, render the Royalist party entirely incapable of harm, prevent civil strife and get on with the fighting. The time has now come when Greece must cease to be a stumbling-block; if she is blind to her manifest destiny, she must be compelled towards it, suffering, it may be, in the process the just punishment of her blindness.

A Plea for Government Officials.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Mr. Editor.—Permit me to say a few words in praise of the recent action of our mercantile men in giving a fifteen per cent. voluntary increase to the laborers' wage. This action on the part of the employers of labor will have a far-reaching effect. It will tend to strengthen the good feeling that has heretofore existed between employers and employees, and will tend by mutual consideration to ward off strikes and labor troubles. It is the necessary bond that restores confidence between the employer and his helper. It is explained that this increase is allowed to even up matters and place the laboring man in a better position to meet the heavy demand upon his resources brought about by the extra cost of the general necessities of a household.

If the mercantile men can see and remedy the disadvantages under which their employes work, how is the Government going to act with regard to the Civil Service? In the face of the above action by our mercantile men, what are the Premier and his Cabinet going to do for the Civil Servants? As it must be admitted that the Civil Servant is the poorest paid man in this community to-day and not only that, he is also the butt of every individual who imagines he has a grievance against the Government. If enquiries were instituted it would be found that in every factory, on the railroad and in all the mercantile concerns where large or small bodies of men are employed the wages have increased to meet the situation created by the increased cost of living.

This fact is acknowledged by the Government having to increase the annual grants for upkeep made to the different Departments and Institutions in order to meet the increased demands of contractors and other concerns who employ the patronage of the Government, but when it comes to the employees of the Civil Service, they are entirely forgotten as not worthy of consideration. Yet they are supposed to pay their bills, feed, clothe and educate their families as other people do at the same old rate. They must give their time and perform their duties satisfactorily or otherwise upon the same salary as heretofore.

I can give you instances of some officials who are existing in a state of semi-poverty, and who are trying to keep their families on a salary of from $300 to $500 per year, whose children are growing up in ignorance and whose wives are compelled to remain indoors on Sundays for the want of respectable clothing to attend their respective churches. The cause of this is that their entire salary is expended in purchasing food, clothing, coal and a house rent as far as the meagre amount will go. Under present circumstances it is a crying shame, and a reflection on the Government to treat their employees in such a cruel and callous way. Some of these men are employed in the Police, in our Hospitals, Penitentiary, Lamentic and Poor Asylums, in our Customs and other public institutions and departments, and now, as I have made some mention of their names to the powers that be, I ask my hon. friend the Premier and those associated with him in the Cabinet to devote a few hours' consideration to the welfare of our public officials and to the mark in the same manner as the commercial men have done for the laborers.

Yours truly,
 FAIR PLAY.

 Illustrating a problem which must be faced by many women.

Consider This:

There is danger of a man leaving large property interests and too little income. Property must be producing income in order to be of immediate benefit to a bereaved family. A weekly or monthly income is the natural thing for most people.

A woman can keep a family together on even a small income, provided it is REGULAR.

Financial problems should not be thrust upon a woman at a critical time.

Ninety per cent. of money paid beneficiaries is lost or spent within seven years.

The hands of unscrupulous men are always outstretched for money held by the unwary.

Large sums of money on hand invite extravagance or unwise expenditure.

Assuming enough left in cash to pay the immediate obligations of an estate, even a $25.00 monthly income will pay the rent if necessary, leaving a woman's mind free on that score, at least. (The Canada Life bases its rates on a $10.00 monthly income, and welcomes applications for even that amount.)

Out of sixteen legates under the will of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, only four—men of experience and ability—received outright legacies. The other twelve, women and men of less experience, received "incomes."

Economy in the handling of funds is assured by an organization such as the Canada Life, with large funds to invest and properly equipped to handle investments.

FOOD CONTROL BECOMES OPERATIVE.

LONDON, To-day. The Board of Trade has begun work speedily under the new food control regulations. Two orders have been issued, which will come into operation on Nov. 27th, dealing with wheat and milk. One regulates the percentage of flour which may be milled at from 73 to 78 per cent, and stipulates that after January 1st all flour will be made in accordance with this schedule of food. The milk order fixes a maximum price not exceeding the price which prevailed on Nov. 15th or, alternatively, the price may not exceed by more than the specified amount the price which prevailed in the corresponding month before the war; this amount being twopence per quart. The order doesn't apply to condensed or dried milk or milk preparations.

WAR BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. With the end of the first stage of the Franco-Serbian campaign which resulted in the capitulation of Monastir by the Bulgarians and Germans and the diminution of hostilities in the Somme region in France, except for bombardments and isolated infantry actions, Roumania has again become the centre of interest. Driving eastward through Western Wallachia the Austro-German forces are now reaching out for Craiova, lying on the railway midway between the Danube and the town of Orsova, Hungary and Bucharest. This manoeuvre apparently places a menace in the rear to the retreat of the Roumanians fighting in the north on Hungarian soil and disputing with the Austro-Germans the passages of the Transylvanian Alps leading to the plains of Wallachia in the Gull Valley region. The retreat of the Roumanians continues. In the Campaigning sector Pictroge reports that further Roumanian attacks against the Teutonic Allies have been unsuccessful. On the Danube front the Dobruja artillery engagements are in progress from Siliustria to Oltina. Fighting in Macedonia from the Cerna River to Lake Presha has ended in complete victory for the Entente forces, says the Paris war office. The Serbs have not yet entered Monastir.

BORDEN'S STIRRING WORDS.

NEW YORK, To-day. Canada's determination to wage the war to a triumphant issue without a truce or inconclusive peace was emphasized by Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, in a speech at a dinner of the Canadian Club here last night. Outlining the cause for which the Canadians have thrown themselves into the struggle as one of humanity and civilization, the Premier said he had been commissioned to bring this message to Caradaga in New York. "We are as resolute and determined to maintain that cause to the end as we were on the day of August 4th, 1914." Prolonged cheers greeted the announcement. The Premier stirred his countrymen to high enthusiasm when he recounted Canada's sacrifices and endeavours since the war began. He paid a special tribute to the women of Canada for their part in raising funds for war relief and other necessities, characterizing their heroism and devotion as an inspiration to the men at the front. I reverence the women of the United States for what they have done, the Premier said. "But I shall not bow to the womanhood of the world for what the women of Canada have done in this war."

SCHOONER WRECKED ON IRISH COAST.

ENTRY OF ALLIES INTO MONASTIR.

PARIS, To-day. Allied troops entered Monastir on the heels of the retreating Bulgarians, according to a description of the fallen city telegraphed to the Petit Journal by its correspondent on the Serbian front. A despatch dated Sunday, says: The last Bulgarian patrol of seventeen troops left the city at 9.30 a.m., just as the Allies' advance guard entered. Women showered flowers on the victors as they marched through the streets. The night before the enemy, after twice defiling through the main street, pillaged all the stores and towards midnight set fire to the Ambulance Barracks, forage depots and all buildings of a military nature. The retreat began about 3 a.m. The officials had evacuated the night before and nearly three thousand Bulgarian families left in two days. The enemy was not clear of the outskirts until the night when it is being closely pressed, but bad weather makes both pursuit and retreat difficult. The enemy will attempt to form one line of seven miles to the north, which was prepared two months ago. The last two days he had been obliged to abandon an enormous quantity of material, found among other things at Monastir a number of locomotives which will be of precious use.

GREECE DEFIANT.

ATHENS, To-day. The Crown Council has decided in principle to refuse to surrender the arms and munitions of Greece to the Allies, as demanded by Vice Admiral DuFournet. King Constantine, on leaving the palace after the meeting, was cheered by a crowd which was waiting the conference's decision. It is understood that Premier Lambros will remain in power for the present.

SWITZERLAND WILL NOT RECOGNIZE NEW POLAND.

PARIS, To-day. The Swiss Government has decided not to recognize the newly created kingdom of Poland, according to a Swiss despatch. The despatch adds the decision will not, however, be made public until after the war.

AMERICAN STEAMER ON GOODWIN SANDS.

LONDON, To-day. The American steamer Siberia, with forty passengers, is lying helpless on the Goodwin Sands, a notorious reef, pounding from the enormous sea. The steamer grounded on Monday morning and so far every attempt by life boats to rescue the passengers has failed. It is feared that those on board are in distress and danger. They were visible during the day huddled on the bridge and exposed to the full fury of the gale. The ship is so far submerged that they are unable to go below for food, shelter or clothing. It is stated that there are some women among the passengers but no children. The lifeboat men have had a rough time in their efforts to save the ship's company.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day. During the night our line was heavily shelled southwest of Grandcourt, says to-day's official statement from the French front. To the right of our new front a hostile patrol fell into our hands. Enemy trenches were successfully raided at Gommecourt and in the neighborhood of Rocklincourt and Ypres.

GERMAN DENIALS ON SUBMARINE QUESTIONS.

BERLIN, To-day. Secretary Grew of the United States Embassy received to-day the German reply in regard to the sinking of the British steamer Rowanmore and three steamers which were lost in September. In regard to the Rowanmore, the German Government denies that the submarine fired on the lifeboats containing members of the crew, and maintains that the men overboard were the precautions taken by the Germans and the skill with which their operations were carried out. In respect to two of the remaining steamers in question, the Government stated that they were not sunk by German forces, and maintains that the Antwerpen, the third steamer, was destroyed in full accordance with the rules of International Law. The Antwerpen was built at Newport News for the Standard Oil Company and was on her maiden trip to London when she was sunk.

AWFUL CONDITION OF BELGIUM.

LONDON, To-day. Emile Cammaerts, Belgian writer, writes as follows in the Observer: As I write these lines the slave raids are going on. The voice of the soldier is hard through the Belgian towns and villages, and women, children and men are kidnapped right and left. It is terrible. Trains roll through Germany packed with human cattle. These things have been going on since October 15th. Ten days ago 15,000 had been taken in Flanders alone. Although many are there now between 20,000 and 30,000 (missing). If things are allowed to go on at this rate we shall witness a wholesale deportation of an entire people reduced to slavery. This indeed is a disaster worse than the invasion, worse than the wholesale massacre of Louvain, Tannais and Dinant, worse even than the ceaseless persecutions of the last two years. What is Belgium's answer to this new crime? To-day her soil is struck. Every one of these captives has to choose between death and dishonor; their spirit is broken by the slow gnawing torture endured in complete isolation. In order to inflict new tortures on her victims, Germany has had to abandon her last hope that she might still possess a rank among the civilized nations of the world. Since the beginning of the war she has piled up such a heap of horrors that the wildest imagination might well shrink from it. But these slave raids will be considered in the future the keystone of the ghastly monument. It is not only without justification but without the slightest shadow of extenuating circumstances.

URGES MERCHANTMEN TO ARM THEMSELVES.

LONDON, To-day. Robert P. Houston, Member of Parliament for Liverpool, and head of the Houston line of steamers, writes to the Times urging the British mercantile marine to take sea law into their own hands and arm ships against submarines regardless of Government restrictions. Houston offers the British master of any British merchant ship 2,000 pounds for each German submarine he probably sinks up to a toll of 50 between now and May 1st. Last April Mr. Houston issued a warning to the Nations in regard to the scarcity of shipping and urged that neutrals be compelled to use interned German ships.

CALIFORNIA SHOWS NO SPLIT.

SAN FRANCISCO, To-day. Little likelihood of a split in the California vote in California was seen here today by the Republicans, who have checked the unofficial election figures of fifty of the State's 88 counties.

BRITISH STEAMER ATTACKED, BUT ESCAPES.

NEW YORK, To-day. The British steamer Siamese Prince, returning in ballast after delivering a cargo of horses at Brest for the French Government, was fired upon without warning, presumably by a German submarine, off the French coast on November 4th, according to the officers of the ship which arrived here to-day. Three shots were fired, the officers said, two in quick succession, which passed over the port quarter, and the third, soon after, which dropped into the water astern. Lifeboats were swung out and the crew of 42 and the 54 hostlers donned preservers, and the ship put on full steam. The craft which attacked her was not sighted at any time, owing partly to the weather conditions, and the officers of the Siamese Prince were unable to say whether their vessel was pursued. The hostlers included many Americans. It was stated the attack took place at 7 a.m., 200 miles at sea, while a strong wind was blowing and heavy waves running. No attempt was made to torpedo the ship, which is owned by the Furness Withy Co., and which carried no passengers. The vessel's officers judged that the attacking boat was about one mile distant.

ANOTHER NORWEGIAN SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. The master and part of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Finn, landed to-day, reported that their vessel had been sunk by a German submarine.

SAVED FROM THE GOODWIN SANDS.

DOVER, To-day. Fifty-three passengers and crew of the American steamer Siberia, stranded on the Goodwin Sands, were landed at Deal to-day by the Kingsdown lifeboat.

BOOKS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

From the trolley car the other evening I caught a glimpse of a second floor living-room. It was a rather shabby neighborhood over a shop, and yet a sense of hominess swept over me at that glimpse. Why? Because I could see rows of rows of books against the wall.

Nothing, it seems to me, gives a room the real home touch like plenty of well-filled, well-used bookcases. It is so easy to make a room lovable and homelike if you go about it in the right way.

The Ideal Living-Room.

Some soft restful paper (preferably a plain color), simple draperies, a big low center table with a shaded light on it and plenty of magazines and newspapers scattered about, a fireplace if you can possibly have it, a few comfortable chairs, a few pictures that you really care for and plenty of bookshelves, with friendly rows of beloved books standing at attention upon them.

Let every married couple make that their ideal, and no matter how limited their means they will gradually create a room that will welcome the guest and wind itself round the heart-strings of the housemates.

Though I speak of their effect upon the atmosphere of the room, needless to say, I am not recommending books merely as an ornament.

Books Should be Friends.

Books should be friends. I have no use for unread sets of books. The ideal bookcase contains no books that have not been bought either for reference or for actual reading.

Every bookcase should have in its reference department a Bible, with print coarse enough not to make one irritable, a dictionary, a good grammar and, if possible, an encyclopedia. Other reference books are valuable, but these are invaluable.

Fate Cannot Take Away Your Joy In Books.

Books and the love of them, are among the few things that an adverse fate cannot take from you.

When asked if she were lonely in the remote country town to which she had gone after gay years at Washington, Gall Hamilton once wrote:

"We do have the best of company. Swinburne has been down here for three weeks or so, charming me with his choruses, and Mill is always here at call, which is about once a year. He is a great rest and solace and hope to me. I have a call every evening from Louis Napoleon. In fact it would take me a long while just to name the people who come to see me and who talk their very best in my society."

What Are You Doing for that Ecze-ma?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Ecze-ma began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

Political Advertising

(Manitoba Free Press.)

The use of newspapers as a means of reaching the voters by advertising officially by the campaign committees of the parties was resorted to on an unusually large scale during the presidential campaign. This election practice is growing in Great Britain and in the United States. Campaign managers have found by experience that it is a highly efficient and relatively economical way of reaching the electors.

These advertisements appeared in newspapers of all shades of opinion. Democratic papers carried Republican advertising, and Republican papers made no objection to the Democratic committees buying pages of space to put their case before the people. As a sample of the use which was made of daily newspapers, the case of last Saturday's edition of the New York Times may be noted.

In this issue of the Times, a Democratic newspaper, there were nearly three pages of republican advertising, all signed by the Republican National Publicity Committee. A three-quarter page advertisement reproduces a poster used by the tariff reformers in the last general election in Great Britain. It represented a British workman expressing to an American workman his indignation at the lower wages that prevail in Great Britain under free trade. There was a full page appeal to electors, "Just Before You Vote." Another full page was a blast for Protection, made up of declarations by Hughes in favor of a high tariff, in a fine typographical display. A footnote explained that this advertisement was written and paid for by C. W. Barron, and accompanying it was an appeal for funds to aid in the further circulation of the advertisement.

The Democrats are represented in the same issue by two advertisements, together amounting to a page. They were signed "Wilson Business Men's National League." One was given up to urging the slogan: "If you want war, vote for Hughes." It represented Hughes, as a dwarf, surrounded by a cabinet of Roosevelts in action. The second advertisement, "He Kept Us in Prosperity," is a mosaic of newspaper headings, dealing with projects of development under the present United States tariff.

Some of these advertisements appeared in the Saturday edition of the New York Evening Post. In addition there was a half-page, "Humanity—and Your Vote," by Henry Ford, which is marked "Charged to Henry Ford Publicity Department, Detroit, Mich." In it Mr. Ford sets forth the reasons why he was in favor of Wilson. George Harvey, editor of the North American Review, took the best part of a page to express his thoughts about Wilson, whom he supported a year ago, but to whom on this occasion he was bitterly opposed. In Canada there has been, as yet, very little employment of newspaper advertising space for political advocacy; and a newspaper opening its columns to party appeals to which it does not itself subscribe has been in the past regarded with surprise, not untinted with disfavor. Apparently in Canada the electors are more hide-bound and more fanatical than in the United States and in Great Britain. The Free Press, in recent elections, admitted as advertising matter (marked as such) political appeals which it found necessary vigorously to combat in its editorial columns. Newspapers are gatherers of news and dispensers of opinion; but they also are agencies of publicity, and their employment as such for the purpose of political propaganda is legitimate and proper.

PASSED STONE FROM BLADDER

"During August, 1915, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and so had to crush it. I suffered some and was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills. They relieved the pain. I continued to take Gin Pills and in my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone. Gin Pills are the best medicine in the world. I will recommend them all the rest of my life. Greatest Aerial Fight in History British Victory

Seventy Machines Engaged—Six Foes Brought Down—Enemy Routed.

London, Nov. 13.—The Daily News correspondent at Berlin headquarters giving the particulars of the great aerial battle on the morning of November 9, in which seventy aeroplanes were engaged, says:

"It took place well over the German lines in the direction of Vauxraucourt northeast of Bapaume, whither, certain of our expedition were bound on a bombing-expedition. With them were fighting machines and scouts, making in all a fleet of thirty sail. "Near the villa of Morly, just before reaching Vauxraucourt, they sighted an enemy squadron somewhat outnumbering themselves, its actual strength being something from thirty-six to forty aeroplanes. We attacked at once some of our machines flying at a higher level than the enemy, and they plunged headlong, joining in a general engagement, which was fought at an average height not much above 5,000 feet.

"Of the melee which followed, it is impossible to get any coherent account for no man in it had time of thought for anything except the enemy machines, which he successfully engaged, but for twenty minutes there raged among the clouds such a battle as the world has never seen before, an inextricable tangle of single combats, of daring, swirling machines; the air filled with the roar of seventy propellers and the clatter of guns.

Six Foes Brought Down.

"Four of our machines were lost that is to say they were compelled to descend in German territory, the strong westerly wind drifting the battle as it raged more and more to the enemy's soil. In the ships which came home one brought a dead observer and two others arrived with wounded pilots, and had difficulty in landing in our lines.

"Of the enemy we know six machines were sent to earth, to which three are known to have crashed. What happened to the other three beyond that they were falling out of control, is not known. In yet another the pilot was seen to be shot dead. "What further casualties the enemy suffered, he alone was aware, but the best evidence that the victory was ours lies in the fact that the whole enemy formation was broken, and the scattered Germans fled for safety in all directions, leaving us in possession of the sky.

"Then we went upon our business. We punctually dropped our bombs on stores and ammunition depots of Vauxraucourt, and then came home proudly flying in regular formation no German daring to interfere.

Fads and Fashions.

Many frocks have two belts, making the waist line both high and low. There is a beautiful new shade in velvet. It is the color of the eggplant. A coat of dull blue cloth with collar and cuffs of seal is most becoming.

The use of wide satin ribbons to form an evening bodice is a new feature. A new veil is called the Blarney. It is of abridgnet and shows the wearer's eyebrows just where it covers the hat crown.

Numbers of letters from those of our boys fighting in France contain the request that a small quantity of good tea be sent them for their private supply.

THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

The campaign fund is a free-will offering made by people who would be pleased to save the country at so much per year.

About every four years the people decide to vote on President and see if it will raise the price of fall pigs. A great many people who do not own any pigs have to be coaxed to the polls in an automobile, and this requires a large sum of money. Therefore it is necessary to have a campaign fund which can reach its long, sinewy fingers into every voting precinct and yank the glaze citizen to the ballot-box, also instructing him how to vote en route.

There was a time when campaign funds were made up largely of the spontaneous contributions of disinterested corporations, who had no interest in the election whatever save in seeing the old flag flourish. Some of the best corporations we have paid in to the campaign fund every four years merely to keep the protective tariff from being strangled to death. And yet there are newspapers which denounce the corporations and demand that they be brought under the provisions of the quarantine act.

Nowadays the campaign fund is provided by the docile and semi-intelligent office seeker, aided by the hopeful but parsimonious office holder. This is why campaign funds are smaller than they used to be. No sooner does a party worker get appointed postmaster than he backs up under the pretentious activity regulations and becomes harder to get money out of than a slot machine. When a man is Lady Davidson Addresses Gower St. League.

Quite a large number of the members of Gower Street League were present at the Church last night and listened to an interesting address ably delivered by Lady Davidson in her usual gracious and pleasing manner. On arriving at the Church, Lady Davidson was received by Rev. D. E. and Mrs. Hemmeon and Mr. R. Hearder, President of the League and Miss Wornell, Vice-President. Her Excellency chose for her subject "Women and the War," and in easy conversational style related her experiences while visiting the Old Country last winter, and pointed out the great part the women of the world were playing in the present war. During the evening Miss Flora Curtis gave as a reading "Florence Barclay's story of the making of the Red Cross Flag." Miss Clara Wood rendered "Mother, Marche." Pts. Roy Kendall, of the 1st Newfoundland Regiment, presided at the piano. A vote of thanks to Lady Davidson was carried by acclamation. A collection was taken up in aid of the funds of the W. P. A., and just before the closing of the meeting a cheque for the amount was handed Lady Davidson.

Nfld. Officer Married in England.

A very pretty wedding took place on November 14th at the home of the bride's parents, "Springvale," Cavendish, Botley, England, when Lieut. E. Jeffery, son of the Rev. C. and Mrs. Jeffery, Pouch Cove, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Joyce R. Davies, youngest daughter of the late Captain Robert Davies, R. N., and Mrs. Davies. The gallant young officer and his bride are spending their honeymoon at Lyndhurst, Hants. The Telegram wishes Lieut. and Mrs. Jeffery many years of married happiness.

Fads and Fashions.

A novel feature of some of the new coats is the opening in the hip, from waistline to hem. Through this, one catches a glimpse of the skirt. Evening gowns hang straight from the shoulder and are loosely belted. Sometimes hats and suits are stitched and embroidered in silver thread.

Long chifton over-tunies are worn with a snash over the one-piece chemise robe.

Persian embroideries and Rumanian colorings are seen in evening gowns.

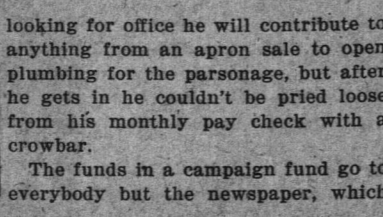

Black chifton velour with a gold motif makes a beautiful model of an evening robe.

The cross-over fichu effect is seen on some of the corsages for velvet evening robes.

A broad gold and silver ribbon is used extensively as garniture on many of the new hats.

Loose narrow belts, long easy sleeves and odd cuffs are features of the new gowns.

The campaign orator also works for small pay, but lives in the hope of being made ambassador to some coral isle, where the inhabitants struggle along without culture and underclothes. Naval Heroes Return Yesterday.

By the express which reached town yesterday afternoon six Naval Reservists returned on furlough and were met at the Station by the Premier, the Ladies' Reception Committee, Officers and men from H. M. S. Briton and a large number of citizens.

The Premier in extending the official welcome to the boys in blue congratulated them on the splendid work they had done since leaving here nearly two years ago, drawing particular attention to one of the number who had been on board one of His Majesty's destroyers which had succeeded in capturing a submarine in its net. To the men of the British Navy the world to-day owes its freedom of the seas, and we are proud to say that upwards of 2,000 of those brave men are sons of Newfoundland.

He referred to the statement made by Mr. Arthur Steel-Maitland, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies in addressing the British Parliament, that Newfoundland had contributed more men to the Navy than all the other British possessions beyond the seas. In conclusion Sir Edward hoped that they would spend a pleasant time while here and that they would not forget to get in some active work among their friends in the outports and help along the cause by getting a few more recruits for the Navy.

The naval heroes were then placed in motor cars and driven to Government House where they were received and welcomed by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson.

Citizens' Committee
Again in Session.

The Citizens' Committee held its 22nd meeting in the Board of Trade Rooms last night. Vice-Chairman Kelly presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Owing to the absence of two of the sub-committee who reported at a previous meeting on the proposed increase of firemen's wages, the matter did not come up for discussion.

Section 213 relative to rental value upon which taxes are to be paid, where the value of such property from year to year notwithstanding the existence of any lease or agreement to let the same at a greater or lesser sum, shall be fixed by the Council and the tax collected on the same. The above section was passed by a small majority after fully one and a half hour's discussion.

Sections 214 to 216 inclusive were also passed.

Section 217. "There shall be paid by ground landlords an annual tax to be fixed, established and imposed by the Council of so much per cent on all ground rents."

It was the opinion of several of the members of the committee that a definite percentage should be given, not to be raised or reduced except by an Act of the Legislature giving the Council power to do so.

The meeting adjourned at 10:30 p.m., till Thursday, 8 p.m., when the last mentioned section will come up for further discussion.

Wedding Bells.

At St. Thomas's Church Nov. 11th, a quiet but pretty wedding took place when Mr. William E. Williams led to the altar Miss Ethel Bishop, the Rev. Mr. Meintion officiating. The bride was given away by her grandfather, Mr. John Carter, cooper of this city, the groom being ably supported by Mr. Edwin Carter, uncle of the bride. After the ceremony the bride and groom drove to the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Heale, Quidi Vidi Road, where a sumptuous supper was partaken of, after which they drove to their future home on Blackmarsh Road. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Williams many years of matrimonial bliss.

JAPAN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.
That Japan will remain faithful to the Allies, no matter what the outcome of the war will be, was the assurance carried to King George from the Mikado by Marquis Mayeda, who arrived in New York to-day by the steamer New York, of the American Line, en route to England. The Marquis is one of the wealthiest men in Japan, and holds the rank of Captain of the Imperial Guard. The Marquis would not discuss his mission beyond saying he bore a personal message which was one of assurance of Japan's faithfulness. He put at rest certain stories issued through German propaganda work to the effect that Japan and Russia would soon enter into a treaty with Germany.

GREEK STUDENTS CAUSE TROUBLE.
ATHENS, Nov. 20.

A number of students of Athens University comprised the principal portion of a gathering of pro-Entente supporters who held a meeting yesterday. They were headed by Professor Patrasas, of the Law Faculty of the University, and an endeavor was made to secure a mass meeting of the students for the purpose of passing resolutions to King Constantine in favor of abandoning neutrality and espouse the cause of the Allies. Loyalist students objected to this and a fight ensued which the police had to be called upon to quell, and in the course of which several persons were hurt.

DEUTSCHLAND LIBELED.
NEW LONDON, Nov. 20.
Bonds covering a libel action against the Deutschland, also damage suit brought against the boat on account of the lives lost, were filed this afternoon to a total of $85,000. An additional suit for $10,000 was brought to-day for the death of Eugene Gustant, a deck hand on the T. A. Scott, Jr. The amount of the bond was set at a conference of the counsel in the case. Four damage suits against the submarine aggregate $175,000.

THE ADMIRALTY CRITICIZED.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
There has been a growing criticism of the Admiralty lately, owing to the recent Channel raid and increased submarine operations. The Post, Mail and Star commented on this subject last week and the Daily Telegraph this morning in a long editorial says that the Admiralty is strangely unaffected by the changes due to the war. It adds that the nation's faith in Admiral Jellicoe's fleet is undiminished, but that the hostilities have brought unforeseen developments notably in submarines, mines and aeronautes, all of which departments are operated by Germans in the prime of life. It is not surprising, says the paper, if the officers forming the Admiralty Board reared in a very different school should be somewhat imperceptive to new ideas. In these days of naval revolution it is perhaps inevitable that the nation should wonder what her Admiralty would not gain if fresh blood were introduced into its deliberations. Would it not be well if seamen fresh from the sea, experienced in the phases of warfare now being pursued by the enemy, were given a more commanding voice in our naval affairs?

SERVICE DISCONTINUED.
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.
The Evening Sun to-day says: "The Plant Line, which for many years maintained regular services between Boston, Halifax, Hawkesbury and Charlottetown, will discontinue the winter service at the end of the year, and may not resume sailings in the spring. It was admitted by officials of the Line that the steamers Evangeline and Halifax are for sale."

THE SERBIAN SUCCESS.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
The Serbians are given a large share of honor by the morning papers in discussing the fall of Monastir. The capture of Hill 1212 by the Serbians and their rapid advance to Hill 1373 threatening the Bulgarians' only avenue of retreat by the Prilep Road, is considered the main factor in forcing a hasty evacuation of the city. Military opinion is that the Allies must now advance toward Prilep, using Monastir as a base and from there to Negotin on the Vardar. From this letter town they claim that Bulgarian positions east of the Cerna, could be overtaken and frontier passes opened to Allied forces which are now engaged northwest of Salonika. The fall of Monastir is considered as clearly showing the superiority of the Allies over the German-Bulgarian forces in view of the formidable defenses which had been created around the city.

DRIVING THEM OUT.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
An Athens despatch to the Telegraph says the German, Austro-Hungarian, Bulgarian and Turkish Ministers to Greece have been informed by Vice-Admiral William DuFornet, Commander of the Allied fleet, they must depart from Greece by Wednesday.

CHURCHILL'S STORY.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
Colonel Winston Churchill yesterday began in the Sunday Pictorial a story of the seige and fall of Antwerp. Churchill says that the Admiralty at the outset urged the immense importance of Antwerp and the need of vigorous measures for its defence, but that nothing was done during the entire month of September. Only when the German bombardment started and an insistent cry for help came from the Belgians, he says, did the Anglo-French Government consult and decide upon measures of relief. Churchill explains his visit to Antwerp by saying it was a natural decision of a small group of Ministers who met at Kitchener's house at midnight, that some one in authority who knew the whole situation should travel swiftly into the city and ascertain what should be done. The article concludes with the statement that the situation could have been saved a SITUATION UNCHANGED.

LONDON, Nov. 20.
The war office announced to-day that the situation on the Franco-Belgian front is unchanged.

IN THE BALKANS.
PARIS, Nov. 20.
The French official communication on the progress of hostilities on the front in France issued this afternoon reads as follows: "The night passed in relative quiet on all fronts. The Allied troops have been complete victors on the Macedonian front from the Cerna River to Lake Preba, according to another announcement."

PROTEST EXPECTED.
ATHENS, Nov. 20.
The Greek Government is expected formally to protest against this foreign formation of a neutral zone between the two sections of the country in which only one Government officially exists. The French will guard the zone and also administrate Servia, Grevenat and other towns in it.

FOUGHT UNDER WINTER CONDITIONS.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
Special despatches from the British headquarters in France describes the British advance on Saturday as the winter's first battle in the snow. The advance was swift, following the victory of Beaumont-Hamel and the stroke was delivered in a blinding snow storm before day-break. For three days the weather had been freezing so that puddles were frozen to a depth of three inches on the road surface. It was raining hard on Saturday morning. The advancing troops found the whole earth blanketed with snow. The advance made by the British and Canadian troops was preceded by a short and fierce bombardment. The Canadians especially had numerous brisk hand-to-hand conflicts in the German trenches which were concealed from observation by heavy snow flakes. A thaw began about 10 o'clock in the morning and the snow was quickly replaced by slush and the air became thick with a raw November fog which halted operations.

SOCIALIST PLEA FOR PEACE.
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.
A special London despatch to the New York Sun says, this morning much excitement was caused in Germany by the publication in the Vorwarts, the Socialist organ, of an exceptionally frank plea for peace by Herr Scheidmann, head of a section of Socialists in the Reichstag, who have upheld the Kaiser since the beginning of the war. The article is headed "Defence and Peace," says "an attitude of absolute victory is impossible for either side. It is as well we should recognize this and make up our minds that we must be satisfied if we can keep the enemy at bay. Why, therefore, should peace not be made?"
