The Romance of a Marriage.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Ridiculous kind of nonsense, all this, you know," he says, nervously, and eyeing Paula suspiciously, upon whose face a smile just dawned.

"You're laughing, eh, my dear? and well you may. Man 'o' my time of life and all that. But when you are in Rome you must do as the Romans do."

"But they don't all wear their clothes too tight, Mr. Palmer," says Paula.

"No, confound it," he says, with a puff. "It is that idiot of a costumer. I kept telling him that they wasn't large enough for me, and he wouldn't understand—or pretended he didn't. I must bear it, I suppose," with another unhappy tug at the band.

"Well, let's go," says Stancy, who is quite indifferent to his father's discomfort, and then the gorgeous footmen throw open the doors and mass themselves in the hall and shout for Milor Palmer's carriage, and the chariot, with the powdered coachman, and the Palmer crest on the panels, and the fat bays, as pompous and overfed as their owner, draws up, and Stancy helps the ladies in and follows them, having first stumbled over his sword, which will get between his legs, and Mr. Palmer is left to follow in a close fly.

It is Paula's first fancy-ball, and as they enter the vast, gilded saloon, crowded already, and blazing with gas and wax candles, a faint, a very faint thrill of excitement runs through her.

If it happened only a year ago and another were by her side, instead of Stancy de Palmer, how different she would have regarded the matter! As it is, she cannot but feel a thrill of surprise and excitement; the motley crowd in its confusing variety of fancy dresses, the really beautiful room, the wonderful music—it is a Parisian band, and a good one—and the air of gaiety and brilliance, so different to the staid quietude of an English assembly, all tell upon her.

The entrance of the Palmer party creates a sensation. Mr. Palmer has already become a notoriety of Nouvelle, in consequence of his wealth, and his elaborate display of it, and Paula's beauty, and her engagement to the heir of the Palmer millions, have rendered her famous.

To-night, as she enters, leaning on Stancy's arm—her fingers do not touch it—her tall figure wrapped in the dove-coloured domino, which, though it conceals its grace, cannot conceal its height and youthful uprightness, a murmur goes round, and eyes gleam curiously through the mask holes. Alice marks the sensation their entrance has caused, and she smiles with quiet triumph; but Paula is all unconscious, and looks round with simple curiosity and interest.

It is like a dream, a vague, grotesque dream of half a dozen different periods of the world's history rolled into a vision. Joan of Arc, in silver-plated armour, dancing with a modern Turk with turban and red slippers. A spinning dervish, eating ices and talking in a corner with a Spanish lady all mantilla and fan. An English sailor whirling round the room with a Queen Elizabeth on his arm. Jesters in motley, with caps and bells, in all parts of the room; and, threading his way with solemn strides, a headman, in his dark-red, tight-fitting costume, and carrying his awful axe across his shoulder. Fairies without number fitting here and there, in their white muslin dresses, and carrying their magic wands; a harlequin strikes an attitude before a knight in armour, and a Spanish bull-fighter lifts a brimming glass of champagne and smiles across it at a little Normandy fisher-girl. These, and a hundred other characters moving about with restless gait, the air filled with the music of the band and the light chatter and laughter of the dancers, make the new-comers' brains dizzy and their eyes ache.

Mr. Palmer, quite overcome by this scene, gasps a "Good 'eavens!" and sinks on to a seat, nearly crushing a little lady in the habit of a Spanish flower-girl; and Stancy, struggling with awe and amazement, finds breath to remind Paula that she has promised him the first dance.

"Did I?" she says; "I do not remember it."

"Nonsense," says Alice, always ready to prompt and watch over her, "of course you did. Give me your domino, I'll take care of it."

As Paula takes off the friendly cloak rather reluctantly and stands revealed as Moonlight, a murmur of admiration rises from three or four gentlemen standing near them, who stare through their masks, after the bold fashion of the sons of France. Paula shrinks slightly, and a burning blush shows beneath the lace of her mask; but Stancy looks round with a conceited, boastful simper, and putting his arm round her waist, starts off.

Dancing is not one of Stancy's accomplishments, and before they have made half the circuit of the room he has collided with at least a dozen couples, has banged Paula's breath out of her body, and stamped on her toes; but he is quite satisfied and happy.

"Jolly, isn't it?" he says, panting and perspiring.

Paula murmurs something that may be taken for an assent, and thinks of that waits in the gravel path outside the Court so long, ah, so long ago!

"Have another turn?" he says. "You dance first-rate, Paula; just got my step, and it isn't many girls who do, I can tell you."

"No," says Paula, gravely.

"No; but you have got it to a T. Come on," and he renews the martyrdom for another five minutes; at the end of that time, having nearly knocked down a fat Frenchman and his equally fat partner, he pulls up, and Paula suggests quietly that they shall take a rest.

"All right," he says, and he drags her into a comparatively clear corner, and proceeds to wipe his face after his exertions.

Paula stands looking on at the scene with rapt attention and amusement, and presently one of the stewards comes up; he is an Englishman and known to the Palmers.

"Mr. Palmer," he says, "will you please ask Miss Estcourt's permission to introduce me? I have been besieged by a host of gentlemen who are anxious to have their names on her programme," and he bows to Paula in the grave English fashion.

Stancy makes the introduction in his awkward, shambling way, and the steward departs to bring up two of his friends, who implore a dance.

Paula hesitates; but before she can positively decline, their names are down and her hand is in the arm of one of the applicants.

He is a tall, distinguished-looking man, the sort of man one meets at foreign watering-places, well up in all the accomplishments which go to make life pleasant, and he dances like an angel.

For the first few minutes Paula is as absent as usual, but after a time the music, one of Waldteufel's waltzes, exquisitely played, and the admirable performance of her partner, begin to tell upon her, and she enjoys it. 'or a time he is silent, but presently he begins to talk—quite easily, not with puffs and groans, and Paula answers. She looks up at him with some little curiosity. He is dressed like a gentleman-in-waiting of the Henry VIII. man, and wears the dress as if he had been accustomed to it for years.

"An amusing scene, Miss Estcourt," he says.

"Yes," says Paula, wondering faintly how he managed to accomplish that most surprising of feats, catching her name at the introduction. "Yes, very amusing for me. It is my first fancy-ball."

"Indeed," he says. "You must be intensely interested. It is a good ball; the room is rather hot, though," and he takes off his mask and slips it on his arm in the most natural and easy manner.

Paula regards him curiously. It is a handsome, middle-aged face; one she seems to remember vaguely.

He catches the glance, and replies to it in the direct English fashion.

"We are scarcely strangers, Miss Estcourt," he says, "although I think we have never met formally. I have heard your name, and I daresay you may have heard mine. It is Hurstley." Paula starts slightly and smiles.

"You are Lord Hurstley?" she says. He nods.

"Yes. You live in my country, do you not?"

"No," says Paula. "We did."

He nods again quickly, seeing that he has touched on a wrong chord.

"Ah, yes. I remember to have heard your name from a friend of mine—Major Vericourt."

Paula inclines her head.

"Yes."

"Yes," he says, and then falls a silence. He feels with a gentleman's keen instinct that there is some awkwardness here.

"Is—is he quite well?" says Paula, vaguely.

"Yes, he was when last I saw him. A wonderful man!" and he laughs. "One of those men who never grow old. Lucky fellow!"

Paula smiles.

"Is that so fortunate a state?" Lord Hurstley laughs.

"If you put it to me, I don't know that I can answer 'yes,'" he says. "But we regard him as lucky. Nothing ever troubles him or upsets him. I've known him for years, and his nephew Sir Herrick Powis, too."

The name is out of his lordship's lips before he knows it, and he would give something to recall it; but Paula does not change colour ever. She lifts her eyes to his gravely.

"Indeed, is—is Sir Herrick Powis well? Have you seen him lately?" Lord Hurstley breathes a sigh of relief. He has expected that she would show some sign, and let him know that he had sinned.

"I have not," he says, with a smile, "and I don't know who has. He seems to have disappeared from human ken. Always was fond of wandering about."

"Yes," says Paula, quite calmly, though her heart is palpitating.

"Shall we have another turn?" says Lord Hurstley, and Paula assenting, they join the dancers.

Disappeared from human ken! What does it mean? Perhaps he has married—that other, and they are living quietly out of the world as he had told Paula that he and she would have to live, she thinks; and her thoughts go back to that far-away time beside the stream, and Lord Hurstley talks to deaf ears.

The dance over, the other partner comes up and claims her, and soon before the evening is half over, she finds herself besieged. Stancy come up to get a dance, to discover that her card is nearly full, and goes off sullen and growling.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tully's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick every-body expected my death any day. Finally, an advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 30 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, laminitis, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, swelling speaks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

Nature's Greatest Washers

The sea washes the world—Pears' Soap washes its inhabitants!

For over a century, Pears' has been making its way round the world. Ask for it in your local store; it is there! From the Cape to Cairo, in the bazaars of India, throughout Australia, Canada, the U.S., and South America Pears' has made its way with civilization,—on merits!

Pears' Soap is transparent because it is pure; it is the most economical soap because it wears but does not waste. It cleanses and purifies the skin and freshens up body and mind.

"Pears"

is not heavily scented. Its delicate perfume comes from pure natural ingredients; the difference is important,—it means again that Pears' soap is pure.

Holland Will Not Surrender Ex-Kaiser

But Will Prevent Him From Becoming European Menace--France Standing for Every Treaty Right--Proposal to Sell British West Indies Mooted -- Plunkett Unfavorable to New Home Rule Bill.

CAMOUFLAGE.

THE HAGUE, March 5. Holland's answer to the second Allied note relative to the extradition or internment of former Emperor William of Germany will probably be handed Premier Lloyd George by the Dutch Minister in London this week. Intimations have been given that the Netherlands Government will express its willingness to guard the erstwhile monarch and prevent anything that might threaten the peace of Europe.

HOLLAND WILL KEEP WILLIAM

THE HAGUE, March 5. The Dutch Government in its reply to the second of the Entente Allies' notes, respecting the extradition or internment of former Emperor William of Germany, says that while it appreciates the motives actuating the Allies, declares it is unable to change its previous decisions. It says it is not forgetful of inhuman acts committed during the war, but since Holland is not a party to the Versailles Treaty, the Queen's Government finds itself in a different position from other Powers with regard to these acts. "Since the Government's supreme duty is to respect the constitutional laws of the Kingdom," the note continues, "it can only emphasize that it would be committing an act contrary to law and justice and incompatible with national honor if it consented to violate these laws by abolishing the rights accorded to a fugitive finding himself on Dutch territory." Protesting that this attitude does not put Holland outside the community of nations, the note declares Holland is fully conscious of the effect the presence of the former Emperor has on the Netherlands Government with regard to the country's own interests, as well as international security.

NO MORE CONCESSIONS FROM FRANCE.

PARIS, March 5. (By Associated Press)—The French Government will make a determined opposition to any revision of the Treaty of Versailles that would modify her claims on Germany, it was learned yesterday. The attitude of the French Government, according to the official point of view, is in perfect accord with sentiments of the new Chamber of Deputies. It is held that any further concessions by the French Government to Germany would not be tolerated by Parliament, and if made the Government would be overthrown. The French official view of the economic situation, it was stated in authoritative circles yesterday, is quite the same as set forth in London, that is, all Europe must be put on a prosperous basis. France, however, it is pointed out, is not in a position to make concessions that would affect her own economic interests to anyone, least of all Germany.

AND WHO SOLD HELIGOLAND.

LONDON, March 5. It is expected that the proposal to sell the British West Indies to the United States as a means of helping the balance of the war debt of Great Britain, will be discussed in the House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George, probably on Monday of next week. Opinions obtained privately indicate that the proposal would not be considered.

NEEDS FULL CONSIDERATION.

MONTREAL, Que., March 5. The Directors of the Dominion Steel Corporation, after three hours' session here this afternoon, dispersed without arriving at any definite decision of the matter of the discussed consolidation of the company with the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., or with respect to the recommendations of the expert English engineers involving an outlay of millions on plans and properties in Cape Breton and elsewhere.

WHAT MISS EAGLE SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Ormsby Lady Who Suffered from Diabetes for Five Years, Tells of the Benefit She Received From Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ormsby, Ont., March 5th. (Special.)—"I feel I owe my life to Dodd's Kidney Pills." This strong statement comes from the lips of Miss Gertrude Eagle, a well known and highly respected resident of this place. And Miss Eagle gives her reasons for speaking out in terms that one cannot fail to understand.

"I have been suffering from Diabetes for five years," she states. "I tried the doctors but they could do nothing for me."

"A friend told me of Dodd's Kidney Pills and of their great value. I tried one box and they helped me. I have now taken three boxes and they have done me so much good I feel I owe my life to them."

Diabetes is one of the most advanced and dangerous forms of Kidney trouble. A remedy that will relieve Diabetes will act much more quickly on minor kidney ailments. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the sovereign remedy for all forms of kidney trouble.

Anti-British Propaganda.

The Hearst newspaper syndicate, which owns a string of journals extending across the United States portion of the American continent, is devoted mainly to instilling prejudice in American minds against Britain and British institutions. That such a studied campaign is successful is due to the great wealth at the disposal of this syndicate, and unfortunately there are numerous hack writers attracted to the Hearst offices by reason of the extra remuneration offered to journalists, particularly those who can turn out the most splanetic articles against all things British. Notwithstanding that there is a general feeling of detestation on the part of all genuine Americans for the Hearst propaganda, there is a considerable percentage of the population of the Republic to whom such appeals, consequently so long as such pabulum is accepted and paid for, so long will it continue to be turned out. And it has now gone so far that the majority of good Americans is powerless to stop it.

One mischievous result of the Hearst propaganda is that it is taken as being the actual sentiment of the United States, and many newspapers in Canada and the United Kingdom provoked beyond measure by the language used in the yellow press and by words spoken by Hearst followers in the United States Senate, especially during the Peace Treaty debate, are saying some very uncomplimentary things about the American people. That is to be expected. The Hearst papers have an exceedingly wide circulation; they are eagerly read by millions of people and with the foreign element hereditarily hostile to Britain, are popular and ever welcome. Anything against Britain and British rule is eagerly consumed, and the inflammatory articles in the Hearst press are as food to the rabid foreign element in the United States, which have been nurtured in hatred of everything British. The object of the Hearst newspapers is obviously to create friction and misunderstanding between Britain and America, which in the present course of international diplomacy, the whole yellow press is endeavoring to foster. And there is a danger that it may be successful, because causes for irritation often arise between nations and words which rankle, are uttered in the heat of debate or controversy.

The charge has been made that the United States has broken faith with the Allies, by the Senate's refusal to ratify the Peace Treaty as negotiated by President Wilson. Much has been made of this by the Hearst journals, and they have seized upon it as another opportunity to indulge in their customary "strafing" of Britain. But because the United States Houses of Congress have not deemed it prudent, under certain circumstances, to ratify the full text of the document, that is no reason to believe that hostility to Britain is the incentive. It is the people, not the government, who make friendship between nations possible, and this is a point which the would-be inflammers of public opinion chose to ignore. The American people themselves are not guilty of any breach of faith, because of the Senate's exercise of its prerogative, under the Constitution, and those who would wish that it were so leave no stone unturned to have it appear that an anti-British sentiment permeates the whole of the States in the American Union. That is the mission of the Hearst press, but it is a mission which has failure stamped indelibly across it.

Distinguished Prelate Passes Away.

Rt. Rev. M. F. Power, Bishop of St. George's, Died at Sydney This Morning.

With regret the Telegram announces the passing of Rt. Rev. Michael Fintan Power, D.D., Bishop of St. George's, which occurred this morning at Sydney, where the distinguished Prelate had been on a week-end visit. The deceased ecclesiastic who had attained his 43rd year, was born in this city on Feb. 17th, 1877, and was christened with the name borne by his father and grandfather—Fintan being the name of an Irish saint, whose feast occurs on Feb. 17th. The late Bishop's grandfather, born in Waterford, Ireland, came to Newfoundland and established a cooperage which was continued down to the third generation, being at the present day run by Mr. Frank Power, the Prelate's brother. Rt. Rev. Bishop Power started school at St. Patrick's Hall, later entering St. Bon's in 1890. For eight years he studied there receiving the groundwork of his ecclesiastical career, which was begun in 1898, when he was accepted by Bishop McNeil, for the Diocese of St. George's a year later. Bishop McNeil sent him to St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, where he spent a very successful educational year. In 1900 he accompanied Bishop McNeil to Rome and studied at the Propaganda for six years. On March 10th, 1906, he was raised to the Priesthood by His Eminence, Cardinal Respigli, in the Basilica of St. John Lateran. He said his first mass the following day. He returned to his native shores in August, 1906, after spending a brief holiday in Europe. On his return he took up temporary work on the West Coast and was appointed Parish Priest of St. George's, on Oct. 1906. He was raised to the rank of Bishop on July 25, 1911, he was consecrated Bishop of St. George's by the Papal Delegate, Monsignor Stagni, then visiting the country. On July 30th he celebrated his first Pontifical Mass. The late Bishop Power was a prominent figure in the Roman Catholic Church in Newfoundland, and from the date of being made a Priest gave time and talents, with which latter the Almighty had bountifully blessed him, to his God, his Church, and his flock. Among the latter there is no row for they have lost a real friend and a kindly shepherd. To the relatives who are left to mourn the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

A Canadian Opinion.

School teachers, like editors, seldom receive a word of praise or encouragement from those whose interests they serve, but are severely taken to task if they inadvertently step on some person's corns. It is not alone the meagreness of salary that causes many to turn from the teaching profession. It is the damnable, petty persecution to which a teacher may, especially in small places, be submitted by one or two pupils whose parents are so malicious or so foolish as to act upon the information retailed to them by a designing child, who knows how to play upon their mistaken affection or some secret grudge that they may have against the teacher. Chesterton says, "Hit a man and defend a woman and you will generally make no mistake." We might add: Chastise the tale-bearer and defend the teacher, and neither virtue nor justice will suffer.—Catholic Register.

To-day's Messages.

BLIZZARD IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Mar. 5. Shortly before midnight, a blizzard which has worked this way across the continent, struck Father Knickerbocker, still convalescing from the de-convalescing effects of his last attack of sleet and snow. Driving rain, with the mercury well above freezing, served to-day to greet streets from a foot thick with sheets of ice which have covered them for weeks. To-night, however, this rain, swept by a fifty-mile wind, suddenly turned into a curtain of driving sleet.

PROPOSED LOAN BE MADE GERMAN.

PARIS, Mar. 5. France has neither signed nor approved the declaration regarding the economic situation of Europe which the Allied Supreme Council has proposed to make, it was declared here today. The original text of the Allied declaration, it is stated, begins by setting forth that small nations bordering on Russia must be obliged to seek peace with the Russian Soviet Government in order that economical revival may begin. It followed with the statement that Germany must be provided with means of industrial activity, and that since the prosperity of Europe depends upon the prosperity of all countries, it is proposed that a loan be made to Germany, guaranteed by German assets, in priority to reparations payments, loan payments to be controlled by neutral commissions.

SCH. TERRA NOVA IN DISTRESS.

BARRINGTON, N.S., Mar. 5. The three-masted schooner Terra Nova, 130 tons, loaded with salt from a Spanish port bound for St. John's, Nfld., out eighty days, was picked up today by the steamer Percy Cunniff off Cape Sable Island. The crew were out of food and water for several days and all of them being Spanish, no one could speak English except the mate, who has only a small knowledge. The men were all exhausted after battling with the blizzards and several required medical attention.

LABOR HELPS ITSELF.

CLEVELAND, March 6. The employees of a big stove company through their employees Congress, have awarded themselves a wages increase of 11 per cent.

FREE FOOD HOETING.

LONDON, March 6. Serious riots at Munich Straubing, 15 miles northeast of Munich, arising from the demands for complete freedom in the distribution of foodstuffs, are reported in a Central News despatch from Berlin. Arrests by the proffering court led the mob into conflicts with troops where one person was killed and many injured.

MEXICO CITY, March 6. Cirilo Arenas, a rebel leader, who was captured less than a week ago when he entered the City of Puebla disguised, was sentenced to death on Wednesday night, and executed yesterday morning in Puebla, according to advices received here. He had been engaged in bandit occupations for a year.

VALUABLE COAL DISCOVERY.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 6. A local paper states that the discovery of a coal mine, which it is claimed produces semi-bituminous coal, was reported yesterday to the Resources Department of the Canadian National Railway. The mine is located at Lampman in Saskatchewan 12 feet deep, has been revealed, and farmers in that vicinity are forming a company capitalized at half a million dollars to operate the mine.

RECTOR RESIGNS DEPARTMENT.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 6. It is understood that Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, Minister of Education in the late Harst Government, will resign his seat in the Ontario Legislature in a few days. Dr. Cody was re-elected member for Northwest Toronto last October by acclamation. Now that he is no longer Minister of Education, Dr. Cody prefers to withdraw from political life and devote his entire attention to his duties as Rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church. He retained his Rectorship during the period of his ministry in the Government.

"The Green Lantern."
City's Newest Cafe Opened To-day.
Mr. G. W. R. Hierlthy is the Owner.
"The Green Lantern," the city's newest cafe, opened to-day. Occupying the store on Theatre Hill, just above the Majestic Theatre, formerly occupied by the Fleischman Yeast Co., Mr. G. W. R. Hierlthy, the proprietor, judged well when he selected the spot, for by its doors some thousands of people nightly pass. This morning a Telegram reporter was shown through by Mr. Hierlthy and the impression gained was certainly a favorable one. All the ideas gathered by the owner since he purchased and ran the Oyster Bay Parlours, New Gower Street, are incorporated in "The Green Lantern," and the place is a very model of comfort, efficiency and service. Green electric lanterns, situated at various points, will shed a green, soothing, eerie light on the cafe and an air of novelty will at night pervade. A seating capacity for some eighty persons will prevent any from leaving on that score. In the rear of the store are two other rooms where are situated tables and chairs, everything being sumptuously clean and neat. At the back of the rooms are the kitchen and ice-cream plant, which can turn out 250 gallons a day. Mr. Hierlthy will attend personally to "The Green Lantern," while the Oyster Bay Parlours will be managed by Mr. Pafford.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE HARE AND THE TORTOISE.

A friend of mine, a young middle aged woman, is taking up this year a Saturday course in current events and a correspondence course in Spanish. She is a busy woman, a minister's wife with two children in high school and so it means careful planning to find the time. When people ask her why she tries to do this with all the rest, she says, "Well, you know, I didn't go to college and I'm trying to catch up. My children are going to college and I don't want them to leave me behind."

This woman has kept up her French ever since she left high school. She attended a conversation class for some years, then combined business and education (one cannot teach without learning) by tutoring some girls who were preparing for college. When she reads her Bible at night, she reads a French scholar than most of the college graduates I know.

Some of the Things This Woman Has Done.

Last year she took a course in sociology at the college near which she lives.

The year before that she took the course in political economy, which was the foundation for the sociology course. "You can't imagine how much understanding both these courses have given me of all this Capital and Labor trouble," she says.

She is an owner—and what is more a reader—of one of the famous five-foot bookshelves.

Hardly a year has gone by since her marriage, except when the children were babies, that she did not take at least one course in the nearby college.

And in those homekeeping years she took a correspondence course each year.

Whenever anyone asks her why she is so persistent, she always answers substantially the same answer as I quoted above.

She Has That Need No Longer.

"Well, you see, I didn't go to college and I've got to catch up."

It is my opinion that she has no need to catch up. For I think she has long since passed the average college graduate. A college education is a splendid thing but oh, so few can have it. Did you know that only 4.3 per cent. of all the children enrolled in the American schools finish the eighth grade. I didn't until I read it in a magazine article lately. Of course only a small per cent. of those go on through high school, and a still smaller per cent. of those go on through college.

Probably a Fraction of One Per Cent.

You can imagine what relation these last bear to the children of the country.

That is a saddening thought, isn't it?

Thank Heavens, for men and women like my friend, who take some of the sadness out of it by proving that if one really wants to be educated, one can be without benefit of college.

POOR LITTLE FELLOW.
Poor little fellow, your case is sad, You must go to school when you'd like to play, And you want to be old like your dotting dad, Who may come and go in his own sweet way; And you seldom have travelled on railroad trains, And never alone you may wander far, You long to be done with your growing pains, And get off there where the big men are.

Poor little fellow, your life is hard, There are so many things that you may do; So many pathways to you are barred, And so many rules that are made for you; Oh, you see men come and you see them go, Old and battered and worn and gray, And to win the freedom you think they know, You would fling all of your youth away.

Poor little fellow, time was that I Looked out on the world through the self-same eyes, And the years seemed long and I wondered why I couldn't be old and grown and wise; Then I used to dream of the days to be, And the joys I'd claim and the things I'd do, When the years had fashioned a man of me— Now I'd give them all to be just like you.

Poor little fellow, don't sigh for age, For the years are swift and their cares are great; Bitter the battles that men must wage As grown-ups learn when it's all too late; Oh soon, too soon, shall you come to see, When the work of the world shall be yours to do, Why there's never a man but would gladly be A poor little fellow once more like you.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCESS MARY'S TOUR.

LONDON, Feb. 2. Princess Mary, when she makes her visit this summer to the Scandinavian countries, is expected to travel with Queen Alexandra. At Stockholm she will meet her cousin and friend the Crown Princess, who is the eldest daughter of the Duke of Connaught. The Queen of Norway is her aunt. The visit is expected to last about a month. The Prince of Wales is evidently not going to have it all his own way. Princess Mary will now have her share of the newspaper lime-light outside of England. One cannot help sympathizing with her. It is her first real trip abroad, and to have all the excitement of visiting foreign capitals and seeing strange nations for the first time to an accompaniment of newspaper comment and clicking cameras must be very trying even for a young lady who has been trained for such ordeals from her cradle—unless, of course, she happens to like it.

LONDON'S UNDERWORLD UNDETECTED.

"Satan's Invisible World Discovered" is not as popular a theological work to-day as in the period it was published, but Scotland Yard (London's detective headquarters) will be glad of practical hints for the discovery of London's underworld. One of the most practised criminal lawyers in London told me to-day that in all his long and varied experience in the Metropolitan police courts he had never known such a sudden resurgence of serious crime as during the past few weeks. Many of the fruits are to be gathered from reports in the newspapers, but a number of the most ugly cases never come into court. These last deal with the half-fashionable women, those who deliriously dwell in the outskirts of society, who allow themselves first to be fascinated, and then to be victimised, by plausible young scoundrels on the hunt for "easy money." It is only by accident that these professional blackmailers are exposed, as the women decline to prosecute, not only for the obvious reason that they dread publicity for their folly, but because they are seldom really cured of their fascination. With open robbery the police can cope, though open robbery is becoming rampant in the West End, but with private blackmail not even Scotland Yard can deal easily without the victim's aid.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

The Olympic games are to be resumed in July and August. The meeting-place is Antwerp this year. These games have been held regularly every year since 1896 with the exception of 1916, when they were to have been held in Berlin. We are to put forward competitors, though I believe most of the governing bodies of sport would have been very glad if the competition could have been put off till 1921. The difficulty is that, though we have plenty of raw material in the country from which to manufacture Olympic sportsmen, we have not time between now and July to select the men and equip and train them properly. Money is also badly needed, and already the British Olympic Council have issued an appeal for £20,000.

Of this sum $85,000 is to be expended in assisting governing bodies, $50,000 in transporting competitors to Antwerp, and housing and maintaining them there, $18,000 on the central office, $10,000 on publicity, and $12,500 on preliminary work in connection with the establishment of an organization for the provision of playing fields throughout the country "and for the encouragement of sport, outdoor exercises and recreations." The King, who is believed to be taking the greatest interest in the matter, has opened the fund with a cheque for $500.

SALARIAL, PROLETARIAT AND COMMISSARIAT.

"Salarial" is the name invented by the Labor Party here for those supervisory, administrative, and technical workers who in increasing number are flocking to its banner, and who have customarily bust somewhat clumsily been called "the black-coated working class." Various attempts have been made to furnish a fittingly appropriate epithet for this amorphous and up to now unorganized body, including, humorously, that of "smartisan," as distinguished from "artisan," in that the former had to appear for working purposes in better clothes. But none of these struck root. There may be the greater chance for "salarial" because of its assonance with "proletariat," a word beloved of the writers on labor matters, but that very assonance should continually remind the labor leaders that what is at the root of the present unrest among the middle class is the commissariat. Extremely high food prices more than any other single abuse accounts for very much of this, and while every article of food and clothing and every mile of travel remain at the existing exalted rates, so long still will the Labor Party find a ready seed-plot among the "Salarial." However much the theorist may dislike the idea, there never was so much reality in "bread-and-butter-politics" as at the present time.

CHECKING EXPORT OF SOVEREIGNS.

The statement in the gold case now before the Law Courts that the gold sovereign is now worth 26 shillings, makes people wonder what methods are adopted to prevent the undue flow of gold, both far and specie, which has taken place recently, notably 250,000 sovereigns to Argentina. But "Dora" (the Defence of the Realm Act) provides that no gold can be exported without a licence, and an ingenious arrangement has been made to prevent the foreigner buying sovereigns at 26 shillings and selling them abroad at 26 shillings. The only raw gold that can be exported is South African, and exporters who purchase this in the open market have to obtain a certificate from the bank of England that the gold was so obtained at the ordinary market price. Where sovereigns are sent abroad, the exporter has to buy gold in the market, and the Bank of England, in turn, hands him gold sovereigns to the equivalent gold value, that is 26 shillings. Thus the gold reserve is not depleted, and the sovereigns are acquired by the exporter, not at the currency value, but at their gold value.

MIDDLE-CLASS WOULD-BE EMBELLISHMENTS.

The retired and civil servant who are finding their pensions inadequate to meet modern requirements are not contenting themselves with writing to the papers about their plight. A bank manager tells me he is inundated with letters from such clients who ask him to recommend them some country where the cost of living is not so high. He assures me that bank branches all over the country are receiving similar letters, and that there is at the present time a widely growing circle of middle-class people who are anxious to get away from England to some foreign shore where they can live in quiet comfort on small fixed incomes. The obstacles are that in countries where living is cheap the exchange penalises the transfer of money from England, and that it is almost impossible for a civilian to book a passage to any attractive land, such as Portugal, Spain or Madeira.

THE MANDATE FOR ARMENIA.

Something like a sensation has been caused in diplomatic circles by the report that the Allied Governments were considering the question of inviting Holland to assume the mandate for Armenia. I understand that this report is premature in so far as it affects Holland, but that informally the possibility of entrusting the Armenian mandate to another than one of the principal Allied and Associated Powers was recently mooted in Entente quarters. Not only Holland but Rumania, Sweden, and Spain have all been put forward tentatively as prospective mandatories for Armenia under the League. Rumania, however, is unwilling to do police duty outside Europe, although not unwilling to participate in guarding the Straits and Constantinople, Spain, who in view of her large trade interests in the Levant, and of her now definite Entente orientation, would have been very acceptable to the Allies, has her hands full with Morocco. Sweden, on account of her pro-German leanings, was not a favorite, and besides the organization of the Persian gendarmerie by Swedish officers some years back was far from a success.

Holland, it is held, has had considerable experience in colonial administration, and should do something for the League she professes keen anxiety to join. But would not she act as Germany's commercial agent in the Orient?

THE GYROSCOPIC COMPASS.

During the war many mercantile marine officers serving in certain classes of Admiralty ships were greatly impressed by the efficiency of the gyroscopic compass. The good impression is apparently not only lasting but spreading, for within the past few weeks orders have been placed by several of the best known British shipping companies for instruments of the kind. Sperry gyro compasses are to be installed on a considerable number of ocean-going vessels, including Cunard, Anchor, Royal Mail, and Canadian Pacific liners.

Oldest Tune in the World

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," is said to be the oldest tune in the world. The origin of the air is lost in antiquity but it is supposed to have been learned from the ancient Babylonians by the Egyptians, who popularized it in Africa, and Asia Minor Arabs still sing it. The Crusaders caught the tune from their Saracen enemies, and sang it under the walls of Jerusalem. The air was ultimately carried into Europe, where it survived, in various forms, among the folk songs of the different nations. In 1709, after the defeat at Malplaquet, the French, following a false rumor of the Duke of Marlborough's death in battle, composed a satirical lament, "Malbrook is Off to the War." Like most topical songs, this one was of short-living popularity, but in 1751 it suddenly echoed from one end of France to the other. The young Marie Antoinette gave birth to an heir, and the baby prince's nurse used to put her royal charge to sleep with the old song of her village home, and as if by magic the song became the cradle of the day.

The sailing sealing fleet clearing from St. John's, March 6, 1947, numbered 95 vessels.

In a fire at Lovey's, head of Theatre Hill, on this date, 1859, a member of the Phoenix Fire Brigade named Buckley, was killed.

An interesting case, arising out of the killing of seals before March 12th, was before the Courts in the year 1887 and 1888, when William Rhodes sued Capt. Alexander Fairweather for the offence. The case was dismissed March 6th, 1888.

Obituary.

DR. F. S. STAFFORD.
Dr. Frederick S. Stafford, aged 64 years, died at his home, Allandale Road, at 10 o'clock last night. Death resulted from influenza, from which the whole of the deceased's family, with one exception, is prostrated. For 42 years Dr. Stafford has practised his profession as physician and surgeon, formerly at Twillingate and latterly in the city, where, with his sons, he established a wholesale and retail drug business. His wife, fourth daughter of J. B. Blanford, Stipendiary Magistrate, formerly of Twillingate, two sons, Bennett and Augustus, and two daughters are left to mourn, with whom the Telegram deeply sympathizes. The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon.

Hockey "Sports."

Hockey fans of St. John's will be surprised to hear that a couple of the Halifax All-Veterans team demanded $200 of the League last night before playing or even leaving the Hotel for the rink. This money was demanded by them on the plea that they had given up jobs to come down here and play, and they contended that they should get $200 as compensation. This hold-up was not made until late in the evening, when the rink was rapidly filling with ticket holders, and it looks as if they waited purposely to use that fact as a leverage by which to obtain what they demanded—a gift of $200, in addition to all their expenses—travelling and hotel. They even threatened not to play unless they got it. Needless to say the League did not give in. In justice to the captain and the balance of the All-Veterans' team, we would say that they had no part in this hold-up.

Terrible Weeping Eczema

For the year 1909, I suffered with weeping eczema on my hands which caused me very much pain and worry for I could not use my hands for but very few things. I tried many remedies but they all failed to give me any relief and I was obliged to give up my work and came south at the same time continuing to use any preparation recommended to me, but my hands continued to get worse until I was told to try D.D.D. Prescription, also soap, which I at once did on the first two or three applications gave me the greatest relief and when I had used but half a dollar bottle my hands were healed. I am indeed very thankful for your splendid prescription and may its fame spread world wide, is the wish of

It appears that in making his rounds Mr. Rice had discovered the door unlocked and investigating with his lantern caused the alarm. Nothing on the premises had been disturbed.

Gains 18 Pounds

Was So Run Down He Could Hardly Get About—Tanlac Put Him On Feet.

"Since taking Tanlac I have gained eighteen pounds in weight, and because I am so thankful for what it has done for me I want to tell everybody about it," said George Capson, Salisbury Road, Moncton, New Brunswick, who is employed as a carpenter and joiner by the Canadian National Railway workshops. "For the past five years I had suffered from severe stomach trouble, and during that time I gradually grew worse and was in a badly run-down condition when I started taking Tanlac. My appetite was extremely poor, and many a time I brought my dinner home from the shops untouched. The little I did manage to eat caused me a great deal of suffering, for after every meal what I ate began to sour almost at once. Gas would form and fill my chest until I could hardly get my breath. I would have a terrible choking sensation. My stomach was so badly upset I could hardly retain a thing, and often while eating I would become badly nauseated. I simply had to get up and leave the table. Why, actually I was ashamed to be in company at times as I was constantly belching. It was almost impossible for me to get a good night's sleep on account of my stomach. I had lost weight until I was scarcely more than a frame, and was so weak it was just about all I could do to get around.

"I read a statement praising Tanlac from a man I knew and decided I would give it a trial. Well, the first bottle did not seem to do me much good, but I tried a second and the benefits I received were simply remarkable. I continued taking it until to-day my stomach doesn't bother me at all. I have a splendid appetite and can eat just anything I want without its hurting me a particle. I really feel fine every way now, and I never miss an opportunity to tell all my friends and others what a grand medicine Tanlac is, and what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Really and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Pinex (30 cents worth) from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs, loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Swedish pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid cheap imitations by using your druggist for 25¢ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction. Money promptly refunded. are likely to prove well matched opponents. Continental Europeans in general, do not stand high in regard to fistic accomplishments. It is a form of contest but little in vogue where the pistol or the sword are common weapons. Carpentier is a striking exception to all this, and is the first Frenchman who ever wore the laurels of championship in this line, a thing which makes the coming battle unique.

AMERICA GOT WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS.

New York.—The United States claimed only five world's champions, but the International Boxing Union announces that it has given it six. These are Pete Herman, Johnny Kilbane, Benny Leonard, Jack Brittain, Mike O'Dowd and Jack Dempsey.

Officially the United States lays no claim to the world's featherweight title, and it seems rather strange that the union should have given the honor to Kilbane. The Cleveland featherweight got his championship from Abe Attel, who held only the American laurels. When Abe Attel boxed Jem Driscoll in this city in February, 1909, in an attempt to solidify his claim to the world's title, the American was outpointed with ease by the clever little Briton. It was a ten round bout without a decision, so Driscoll, in spite of his having earned the popular verdict and demonstrated his right to the honor, could not claim the championship of the world.

The last American featherweight who really held the world's championship was Young Corbett, who obtained the title by knocking out Dixon, who had beaten Eddie Santry. The Chicago boxer had knocked out Ben Jordan of England in sixteen rounds, in this city in 1899. Jordan had become mixed up in the world's championship question by beating Dixon in New York in twenty-five rounds.

In 1902 Young Corbett became too heavy to defend the featherweight title and he went into the lightweight class, leaving the world's featherweight championship open to international competition. A boxer may claim a national title and demonstrate his right to it by winning against all comers, but a world's championship cannot be claimed. It must be won in international competition. As a result the world's featherweight championship went into "retirement" in 1902 and nobody has held it since.

In 1904 Attel, the former San Francisco messenger boy, claimed the American title at 122 pounds, and earned general recognition as champion, particularly after he had stopped Harry Forbes, his keenest rival, in five rounds in St. Louis.

It remains to be seen if the Army, Navy and Civilian board will approve the designation of world's champion handed to Kilbane. Personally we doubt if it will, particularly since there is a feeling in this country that Kilbane cannot defend his American title at the featherweight limit.

King Gets Unexpected Gift.

King George has, it is said, recently received a most welcome gift from an unknown donor. It is a complete set of war stamps issued in the occupied parts of France and Belgium by the Germans, and also a set of the stamps issued by the Bolshevik Government. Stamp collecting has always been one of His Majesty's favorite hobbies, and his sets, artistically mounted by himself, are probably the finest in the world. He possesses the celebrated "Baden Powell" stamp, issued during the defence of Mafeking. This was given to the King when he was Duke of York by Queen Victoria (who received it from Baden-Powell) accompanied by the staff memorandum: "Even the circumstances of the siege in no way justified the substituting of his head for ours."

Short sleeves appear on gingham frocks as well as on afternoon and dancing dresses.

The ninoche hat should be worn with the gown that suggests a Dresden shepherdess.

LEONARD'S PECULIAR POSITION.

York.—Lightweight Champion Leonard is in a rather peculiar position. Despite abundant evidence to the contrary, ring followers, and friends in particular, insist that the champion can stop Dundee whenever he cares to. Many of those who were out on Monday, Feb. 16, changed their minds about the fight but they are only a small part of all the boxing fans in the city. The great majority still are inclined to listen with a superior smile to those who insist that the champion is as hard as he knew how—and is saving him up for a twenty-round fight and a big purse." is the opinion of the super wise ones. This is a grave reflection on Leonard's honesty, but a big boost for his manager.

The writer's opinion Leonard is doing his level best on Monday night, and the only reason he did not stop Dundee was that it was beyond his ability to do so in eight rounds. It does not appear probable that Dundee would have lived through another round but even that is a question Leonard might have tried his own exertions.
