LADY IRIS' MISTAKE; Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XIII.

It was easy enough to talk in his absence of shunning him, but there was something about him that commanded respect.

"Talk of sending him to Coventry!" said John Bardon to himself. "They would not do it if he were twenty times a draper's son."

No man at the table had more charming and courteous manners; no one spoke better, or with more knowledge or judgment. In no way was he inferior to the high-bred men who despised him for his humble birth—on the contrary, in most things he was superior to them.

John Bardon could not have described the subtle manner in which they showed him that they did not consider him equal to themselves. They made no attempt to converse with him. No one was rude or uncivil to him; but, if he suggested anything, or advanced any argument, no one replied. They had resolved upon showing him as civilly as they could, that, although great and powerful influence was well fitted by nature and training to be a good officer, though he had an income of over eight thousand a year, he was not one of their "set." If he would understand that, and quietly exchange into another regiment, so much the better. They had enough respect for him to wish to avoid anything like a scene; but he must leave their regiment. They could not forget that he was a draper's son. John Bardon was intensely interested in this man, and just a little envious of him too.

"If I had had put the same courage, the same ease and grace of manner, I should have been in a different position by this time," he said to himself. "This is one of nature's gentlemen; and I bow to him."

When the dinner was over, Lieutenant Allan Osburn rose. A smile, half scornful, half amused, had lingered on his face during the repast. He stood up now, his head towering above those of his fellow officers, his dark handsome face bright with the light of a noble soul.

"I ask permission," he said, "to address a few words to you."

The major bowed; and Allan went on. "It has come to my knowledge, gentlemen, that many of you have been discussing the question of my birth, and have decided that I am not a gentleman. I hear also that it has been stated that I had better exchange into some regiment where the officers are not so particular. Gentlemen, when I joined the regiment I confess candidly that I did not care for one moment whether you knew that I was a draper's son or not. I do not care now—not in the least. Finding that there was a prejudice—which I, mind you, consider a vulgar one—against every one of inferior birth to yourselves, I did not run counter to it by proclaiming myself what I proudly proclaim myself now, 'a shop-keeper's son!'"

There was a profound silence for some moments, then came a few hisses and groans, while John Bardon, forgetting himself, gave a hearty cheer.

"Napoleon said, as you all know, that the English were a nation of shopkeepers. I maintain one thing—whatever you may say of the aristocracy or the landed gentry, the shop-keepers of England are the bone and sinew of the country. They form a connecting link between the upper and the lower classes; they are the backbone of England."

"We do not want any Radicalism here," said Major Hope.

"Nor will you have it from me, major. I am not a Radical. I claim simply for each class the honor due to it. I avow most frankly that I belong to the middle class. I make no mystery of my birth—on the contrary, I am proud of it—proud of the industrious father who worked hard for the wealth I enjoy. My father was a draper who lived in the country town of Elmore, and laid there the foundation of a fortune. After a time, he left Elmore, and went to London, where he amassed great wealth. Gentlemen, you who have common sense, do you imagine that, because my father at the beginning of his life held a yard-measure, I am unfit to hold the sword? I do not wish to detain you. I merely desire to say that I am as proud of my father, the draper who made a fortune by his talents, as you are of your fathers who owe their position to the accident of birth. Some of you have denied it to me, but I claim for myself the proud title of gentleman because my lips are clear of lies, my hands of evil deeds, and my soul of mean or ignoble desires. I claim for myself the title of soldier because I know how to face death myself, and can teach others how to meet it. A few words more, and I have done. You have expressed your opinion that I should exchange—leave the regiment for one where the officers are not so select, not so particular. Let me say frankly that I shall do no such thing. I will meet your prejudices and dispel them. I will show you that it is possible for the son of a draper to be a true gentleman and a hero. If I fail, let me bear the humiliation."

He looked so handsome, so brave, so defiant, more than one sympathized with him.

"You understand," he continued—"I refuse to yield to your class prejudices, and will not exchange. If any of you choose to treat me with contempt, I will, I believe, rebound on yourselves; if any of you choose to ignore me, I shall simply feel that you place yourselves beneath me by the exhibition of what is, after all, but mean pride. You will not find me the less a true comrade because I am a tradesman's son. My right arm will be ever at the service of those who need it, and my sword for my friends when they want it."

He sat down amid a profound silence. Major Hope, on whom all eyes were fixed, was the first to break it.

"Lieutenant Osburn, I drink your health. You are an honest, outspoken, courageous gentleman, and I for one hope you will not exchange. I should be sorry to lose you from the regiment."

But John Bardon noticed that there were not many who followed the major, and he said to himself that Allan Osburn would have every inch of his way to fight. He felt greatly interested in the Lieutenant, for he could remember so well how many rebuffs, how many sneers, how much disdain he had met with before he married Lady Avic, even though he was the son of a millionaire.

Presently John Bardon rose from his seat and went up to Allan Osburn; he held out his hand to him with such evident sincerity, warmth, and desire to improve his acquaintance that Allan was touched and pleased. They talked apart for a few minutes.

"You will have all your work cut out for you, Lieutenant Osburn," John Bardon told him; and the young soldier replied promptly.

"I shall get through it. I have no fear."

"I have been sneered at and treated with contempt myself," said John Bardon, wondering at his own frankness; "and that makes me sympathize with any one in a similar position. My father is a self-made man. He began with a wheelbarrow, I believe, and he ended by making a million and a half of money. No one knows what I have endured from the scorn and cool treatment of these aristocrats. But I have not your courage—nothing like it. I wish I had."

He thought of the proud, beautiful face under the almond blossoms. Ah, if he had more courage, who knew what might have been?

"I am interested in you," continued John Bardon. "I do not often ask favors, but let me be one of your friends. I should be proud of the friendship of a man with such moral courage as you possess, and it would be of great assistance to me. What do you say?"

The sincerity and warmth of his manner pleased Allan, who admired earnestness; and the compact was made—they were to be friends.

"You must promise," said John Bardon, "that the first time you obtain leave of absence, it shall be spent at Hyne Court. I shall be delighted to see you. I can promise you good fishing and shooting in the estate; and there are nice people in the neighborhood."

Suddenly as he spoke, an idea occurred to him which blanched his face and made him tremble. He looked long and earnestly at the handsome young soldier whose face was as full of calm pride and dignity as that of the noblest hero man there.

"Why do you look at me so strangely?" asked Allan Osburn; and John Bardon tried to recover himself.

"An idea occurred to me—that is all," he replied; but to himself he added, with a thrill of exultation, "It is the very thing! I have found the means of vengeance!"

Not Beauty Only These whiter teeth mean safer teeth as well

No doubt the great reason why millions use Pepsodent is to get prettier teeth. It removes the dingy film.

But science has more important objects. Pepsodent brings five effects, and all of them mean better tooth protection.

The ruinous film
Film is that vicious coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old methods of brushing do not effectively combat it. So it often lingers long.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. Countless teeth are thus made dingy.

Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles. Most of the tooth and gum attacks are now traced to that film.

Must combat it daily.
After diligent research science has found two ways to combat that film. Many careful tests have proved them. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. Every use attacks the film in two effective ways. It also brings three other results which have proved essential.

Fights starch and acid
Pepsodent does what fruit acids do. It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Effects are apparent
Millions now know the delightful effects. Any one who will can quickly see and feel them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the vicious film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Then read the reasons in the book we send.

The French Army Mutiny.

MR. JOHN BUCHAN REVEALS A WAR SECRET OF 1917.

Towards the end of May, 1917, after the second Battle of the Aisne, there was a mutiny of a very serious nature in the French Army among corps in reserve which spread to the men in the line. It is a striking proof of the wonderful camaraderie between British and France that although thousands of people in this country knew about it not a word appeared in print then or since until now with the publication of the third volume of Mr. John Buchan's "A History of the Great War." Now that the time has come when there can be no harm in publishing the facts, Mr. Buchan gives a vivid account of what happened.

ON THE BRINK OF DISASTER.
After a description of the battle, one result of which was the succession of General Petain to the command in place of General Nivelle, Mr. Buchan says:

For Petain on his succession to office found a grim problem before him. The battle had been like a chemical which when added to a compound produces an explosion, and the superb morale of the soldiers of France seemed to be in the gravest jeopardy. As early as February Nivelle had complained of Pacific and Communist propaganda among his troops. There were evil elements in French life which seized the occasion of the fatigue and disillusionment of the soldier to instill the poison of cowardice and treason. The rank and file had many grievances. Leave was hard to get, and when it was granted the pre-missionnaire found such difficulties in reaching his family that most of his scanty time was taken up by the journey. Intense bitterness was roused by letters from home, which told the peasant of the struggle of his workmen to keep his farm in cultivation; while the workmen of the towns were exempted by thousands for munition making. There was dire confusion in the medical services during the battle, and wounded were sent all over France to spread despondency by the tale of their needless sufferings.

The first signs of revolt appeared about May 20th, not in the troops fighting on the Aisne, but in the corps which had been some months in reserve.

The contagion spread to the men in the line, and in certain divisions nearest Paris the mutiny seemed to have something of the character of a first step in political revolution. The crisis showed Petain at his best. On the one hand he insisted on reforming flagrant abuses. New regulations were passed granting as a right ten days' leave every four months, with the result that 350,000 French soldiers were on leave at one time; as against 80,000 British.

PETAINE'S GREAT WORK.
Mr. Buchan says that with the help of the American Red Cross, which was now beginning its beneficial work in Europe, the comfort of the fighting man and his dependents was enormously increased.

The penal measures were few; less than a dozen suffered death as murderers. But Petain set himself to a great work of education and exhortation. In two months he visited and addressed the officers and men of over one hundred divisions, and created a profound impression. He had no tricks to win popularity, no easy sentimentalism, none of the air of the bon enfant; he was always grave and dignified, always the general-in-chief. But such was the atmosphere of calm resolution, which he bore with him, that he moved audiences which the most finished orations would have left untouched. By the middle of June the danger was past.

BUSY DAYS.
The sexton views the rows of tombs with pride, because he planned them; he says, "These little quiet rooms! All sorts of folks demand them. Few wish to sleep beneath the grass in robes that have no pouches; and yet they will step on the gas, and I prepare their couches. One sees a railway train approach, the dust and gravel tossing, and he should halt his choo-choo coach, and not attempt the crossing; but foolishly he thinks to pass, and save a half a minute, and fiercely steps upon the gas—mark yonder grave; he's in it. One would enjoy an evening jaunt, a harmless sort of revel; he takes his wife and maiden aunt to hold the rear seat level. Another auto would pass by; it honks and seems to worry; and why not let it do so—why? He's in no earthly hurry; but he's a sport, and naught shall pass, no boat can beat his Lizzie; he steps down hard upon the gas—and so they keep me busy. One journeys sadly while it rains, and sighs, 'I know I'd ought to, but how I hate to put on chains! "Take chances" is my motto. I hate to kneel in dirty grass, in mud and slime to wallow, and so I'll feed the old bus gas—he rests in yonder hollow." The sexton often sighs, "Alas! My lot is hard and dreary, but while the boys step on the gas there's no rest for the weary."

The Story of My Life

WRITTEN BY NEWFOUNDLAND'S FOREMOST SON.

I was born. Of that there is not an atom of doubt, for I possess a birth certificate, and the files of the Daily News and Telegram which bear eloquent testimony to my achievements. Of my boyhood days, I have little to say save that from an early age I gave evidence of that brilliant penchant for muddling which I later brought to a wonderful degree of success. The interests of my fellow countrymen always appealed to me, and it is not, therefore, surprising that the great idea of forming a Fishermen's Protective Union should have evolved in my extraordinary mind. To say that this Union was a success is to throw but little credit on my achievement, which has caused an ardent admirer to write of me as "The greatest and most romantic figure produced by Newfoundland to this day."

True there are such men as Sir William Goode but what is the conduct of the affairs of Austria in comparison to any efforts in connection with my Union. "Suum Cuique" was the motto I selected and as a Latin dictionary, which I once discovered propping up a window in a disused house, informs me, this means "To every man his own." It is because I believe in this motto and because I feel it incumbent upon me to take all the credit that others will not give me, that I write this autobiography. Now, feeling that I was destined for great things, I formed a political party and accidentally contributed in no small degree, to the defeat at the polls in 1913, of Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond with whom I was allied. As I and six of my friends were then elected, we decided that we would sit in the House for the purpose of keeping a watchful eye on the Government of the day. My ability for constructive criticism was frequently demonstrated in the stormy times which followed. Then came the war and the National Government was formed, of which I was naturally asked to become a member. Having nothing to do at the time, I accepted the offer of a cabinet seat, but was later made the subject of a vile political trick, which threw me and my party into the gloomy shades of Opposition where I remained until 1919.

I have many sides to my character and one of these is the ability to know a good thing when I see it. I therefore joined the Liberal-Reform Party and was returned to the House of Assembly at the head of 10 men all good men and true to me and my political ambitions. Then I conceived the idea of the Fishery Regulations, which I presented to the House in a speech lasting two hours. Ah, what a relief it was to me, who saw things with a vividness and brightness that seared my spirit and left scars that burn to this day, to pour out my soul in words of inexpressible sweetness—was I not always a thrilling orator? My hearers sat amazed. But one of them failed to listen to the charms of my voice, and the whole House, with this solitary exception, put my Regulations through. And then, the debacle. Solidarity was the crying need and despite the fact that such genius as mine has never before been seen, this solidarity failed to solidate, and my plans were wrecked on the stormy seas of political opposition. Alas, alack, but these were sorry days. I am too full of grief to write further. I cannot trust myself to put pen to paper without splashing the page with the great tears that trickle down my cheek, and fall on my desk with sickening thud. No more, no more.

ENTERED OFFICES, BY CLIMBING FIRE ESCAPE.
In Yee Ming, a Chinaman who was arrested on a burglary charge yesterday, the police believe that they have solved the mystery of many of the unsolved burglaries which they have on their records since last winter. Yee Ming has been remanded, pending further investigation. As reported in yesterday's Telegram the Chinaman was discovered by a commission merchant, Mr. G. Christian, in his office in the Royal Bank Building. The man was allowed to go, but later it was found that the office of McArthur and Clayton had been opened and ransacked. Suspicion immediately fell on the celestial who had apparently entered the building by way of the fire escape, and he was arrested in Kam Lung's laundry, Cochrane Street, where he was employed. Yee Ming has been in this country for several years.

THE "CURRENT" PRICE OF FISH.
The report that a local fish merchant had bartered a cargo of fish in Greece for currants has caused the whole of Water Street to resound with the pun, "the current" price of fish, which everyone claims to have invented. The story has also been circulated that new regulations are to be introduced, compelling householders to buy a certain amount of currants each week. The truth of this cannot be touched for.

MR MUNN GETS FAIR PRICES.
Yesterday it was reported that Mr. W. A. Munn had sold his two cargoes of Labrador fish which he sent to Gibraltar by steamers last month for orders. The two ships the Trea and Bimp both loaded at Flat Islands, and carried between them a total of 26,800 quintals. They were amongst the first shipments across and one steamer has been sent to Greece, while the other cargo has been sold in Italy. Speaking to a Telegram reporter, Mr. Munn confirmed the statement that he had disposed of his cargoes at fair prices. Asked if he had to accept barter, in the case of the Greek cargo, Mr. Munn replied that he has plenty of currants, which will be sold at lowest prices. He added that it was a pitiful state of affairs here, where a political football is being made of the fish business.

REV. R. J. POWER ON BOY'S SURVEY WORK.
Rev. Dr. Power, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker at to-day's meeting of the Rotary Club. His subject was "Boy's Survey Work," and he dealt with it in a most interesting manner. Previous to Dr. Power's address, District-Governor Walter Grant, left for home this afternoon on the Sable I. Rotarian Grant, in his course of his report, referred feelingly to the reception which the St. John's Club had given him and hoped that it would not be long before he visited this country again. Three cheers were then given with a will for the District Governor. Mr. R. G. Rendell, who was present then appeared to members of the Club on behalf of the poor among the fishermen of the country and told a touching story of the sad condition in which many families are placed to-day through no fault of their own. Chairman Horwood introduced Rev. R. J. Power who first referred to the value of work among the "rough diamonds" to be found among the boys of the city. The boy is the greatest asset that our country has to-day and in helping one, we help the other. He congratulated the Rotary Club on the business like manner in which the Boy Life Survey was being approached. The questionnaire which had been prepared fully covered the ground and could not be improved upon. A little care and expense would be considerably towards making many sickly boys physically fit. There seems to be a general discontent with our system of education to-day, said the speaker and he further referred to the carelessness and indifference of parents should not be allowed to deprive their boys of an education. The sport aspect should not be forgotten when the Survey is made, what he was very glad to see that the religious side had not been overlooked. If the clergy were given the information and the boys were left to them, they would do all in their power to help. Referring to the Survey, Dr. Power said that its success depended upon the thoroughness with which it was done. Perseverance and tact were very necessary qualities for those who took such a survey. In conclusion he told his hearers that the work they were engaged in was the greatest work of God. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Power for his splendid address.

Addresses Rotary.
REV. R. J. POWER ON BOY'S SURVEY WORK.
Rev. Dr. Power, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker at to-day's meeting of the Rotary Club. His subject was "Boy's Survey Work," and he dealt with it in a most interesting manner. Previous to Dr. Power's address, District-Governor Walter Grant, left for home this afternoon on the Sable I. Rotarian Grant, in his course of his report, referred feelingly to the reception which the St. John's Club had given him and hoped that it would not be long before he visited this country again. Three cheers were then given with a will for the District Governor. Mr. R. G. Rendell, who was present then appeared to members of the Club on behalf of the poor among the fishermen of the country and told a touching story of the sad condition in which many families are placed to-day through no fault of their own. Chairman Horwood introduced Rev. R. J. Power who first referred to the value of work among the "rough diamonds" to be found among the boys of the city. The boy is the greatest asset that our country has to-day and in helping one, we help the other. He congratulated the Rotary Club on the business like manner in which the Boy Life Survey was being approached. The questionnaire which had been prepared fully covered the ground and could not be improved upon. A little care and expense would be considerably towards making many sickly boys physically fit. There seems to be a general discontent with our system of education to-day, said the speaker and he further referred to the carelessness and indifference of parents should not be allowed to deprive their boys of an education. The sport aspect should not be forgotten when the Survey is made, what he was very glad to see that the religious side had not been overlooked. If the clergy were given the information and the boys were left to them, they would do all in their power to help. Referring to the Survey, Dr. Power said that its success depended upon the thoroughness with which it was done. Perseverance and tact were very necessary qualities for those who took such a survey. In conclusion he told his hearers that the work they were engaged in was the greatest work of God. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Power for his splendid address.

Became Violently Insane.
WORRIED OVER SALE OF FISH.
Yesterday evening a man named Burridge, belonging to Greenspond, became violently insane at a boarding house on Gower Street and had to be removed to the Asylum. It took Constable White and five others to hold the unfortunate man whilst he was being conveyed to the institution. It is stated that the subject has been brooding over the sale of a schooner load of fish, which he has been trying to dispose of during the past six or seven days.

Yesterday it was reported that Mr. W. A. Munn had sold his two cargoes of Labrador fish which he sent to Gibraltar by steamers last month for orders. The two ships the Trea and Bimp both loaded at Flat Islands, and carried between them a total of 26,800 quintals. They were amongst the first shipments across and one steamer has been sent to Greece, while the other cargo has been sold in Italy. Speaking to a Telegram reporter, Mr. Munn confirmed the statement that he had disposed of his cargoes at fair prices. Asked if he had to accept barter, in the case of the Greek cargo, Mr. Munn replied that he has plenty of currants, which will be sold at lowest prices. He added that it was a pitiful state of affairs here, where a political football is being made of the fish business.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

BLUENOSE WILL BE DEFENDER.
 HALIFAX, Oct. 10.
 With scarcely enough breeze to give the schooners storage way, and thick fog outside the harbour, the third attempt to settle the Nova Scotia fishing schooner championship seemed doomed to failure at eleven o'clock this morning. The race was postponed from ten to eleven thirty, but there were little hope of starting at all, and the division of prizes may be decided by a conference of skippers and the committee. In any case the Bluenose goes at once to Gloucester to defend the International Trophy.

FRANCE PROTESTS PROHIBITION.
 PARIS, Oct. 10.
 According to the Paris Herald the French Government has protested vigorously, at Washington, against the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty, prohibiting liquor on foreign vessels inside United States territorial waters.

UP TO THE TURKS.
 LONDON, Oct. 10.
 The question of peace in the Near East now rests with the Turkish Nationalist Assembly at Smyrna, which has before it the armistice conditions laid down by the Allied Powers. The Mudania conference has adjourned and the delegates have returned to headquarters to await the Turkish decision. The terms include the withdrawal of Turkish troops from the neutral zone of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus, limitation of the number of Turkish Gendarmes in Eastern Thrace, and the non-occupation of that province until after a peace treaty is signed. Constantinople reports that further Turkish forces are in the neutral zone of the Imdid peninsula on the Asiatic shore of Bosphorus, opposite Constantinople, but the front ranks have not advanced further. The British are landing reinforcements to protect the railway communications.

A MATTER OF HOURS.
 CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 10.
 The signing of a protocol armistice at Mudania is expected to take place at five o'clock this afternoon, according to an announcement by the Havas agency. General Harrington and his staff arrived here this morning on H.M.S. Iron Duke and are expected to leave for Mudania at three this afternoon. The Turkish National Assembly has been given until five o'clock to decide.

ITALY SHOCKS GREECE.
 ATHENS, Oct. 10.
 Greece has received another unpleasant shock in the news that Italy considers that the covenant ceding Dodecanese Islands to Greece has lapsed. This Graeco Italian convention was attached to the Treaty of Sevres, which Italy deems no longer operative.

COPPER MAGNET DEAD.
 SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 10.
 Isaac Guggenheim, United States Capitalist and copper magnet died here to-day.

POOR RACING CONDITIONS.
 HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 10.
 The Sailing Committee, having extended the starting time limit to twelve noon, four contestants went away with a very light breeze from southwest, and fog outside the harbour seemed like a forlorn hope for success of the race. Bluenose, Canada and Mahaska on the port tack crossed the line in order of names, while the Smith was a quarter mile in the rear with wind barely enough to give steerage way. From the press boat it appeared that Bluenose beat gun across the line.

Group of German Artists

WILL SAIL AROUND THE WORLD.
 HAMBURG.—Two German sailboats of small dimensions are due to brave the furies of the Atlantic on experimental trans-oceanic voyages within the coming year. On one of them a party of 13 German artists and professional men plan to circumnavigate the globe. They have recently tested their craft in a trip to Copenhagen, and are now trying to complete arrangements for leaving before the end of the year. The vessel is 53 feet long and will carry three writers, three artists, and a number of "movie" actors from Berlin, accompanied by a Munich doctor. This tour is to be made by way of Holland, Spain, the Canary Islands, Cuba, Mexico, both coasts of South America, the South Sea Islands, China, Japan, India and the Straits Canal. It is expected that three weeks will be required in crossing the Atlantic, and the party plans to return home in about two years. The other enterprise is to be conducted by three German sailors in a 43-foot sailboat of 12 tons, which they themselves intend to build. They will attempt to make the trip from Hamburg to New York, and are planning to sail under the auspices of the Imperial Yacht Club of Wurttemberg. It has been reported that American interests have agreed to bear the costs of the experiment if the boat carried the American flag, but that the offer was rejected. These seamen do not expect to take to the water before next spring.

Popular Young Lady.

ADOPTS NURSING AS A PROFESSION.
 Amongst the passengers from here by S.S. Clyde on Saturday last was Miss Millicent I. Bryan who has been an employee of Messrs. Earle Sons & Co. at the firm's branch at Tilting, and who has resigned her position with Messrs. Earle to take up the nursing profession in the U.S.A. Miss Bryan received her early education in a Convent boarding school in Keeseville, N.Y., and since then has always cherished an inclination to return to the land of Uncle Sam. Her popularity amongst the people of Tilting was well attested by the respect of the whole community at her departure, and sincere wishes were the expressions of good will and kind wishes received by her when leaving her native place. Being an accomplished musician she, at the request of Rev. Dr. Jones, rendered her services as organist in the church at Tilting for the past five years, and under her skilled management the Choir attained to the very acme of perfection. That a full measure of success may attend her professional efforts in the land of her adoption is the sincere wish of your CORRESPONDENT.

The Granting of Divorces Making Fiume Famous.

FIUME, Italy.—This city counts a population of 80,000; 15,000 of them received decrees of divorce in the years 1920 and 1921. Divorce seems to be the most flourishing of the local industries, and it is making the city famous. The reason is that the severance of the material bond is easy here and people desiring freedom flock to Fiume from neighbouring states where divorces are not granted. Anyone can get a divorce in Fiume to have lived in the city long enough to acquire the rights of citizenship. Complications, however, occasionally arise. The case is still remembered of an Italian woman who acquired the citizenship of Fiume and divorced her husband, who remained an Italian subject. Shortly after her divorce she remarried and returned to Italy, where she was promptly imprisoned for bigamy, the Italian law considering her divorce null and void, her husband being an Italian, and, as such, not entitled to divorce.

Artificially Grown Japanese Pearls.

DEY EXPERT DETECTION.
 PARIS, France. (By A.P.)—Owners in Paris of valuable strings of pearls have been thrown into something like consternation by the published opinion of Dr. Louis Boutan, professor of science at the University of Bordeaux and an expert in pearls, that he and other pearl experts are unable to distinguish between real pearls and those artificially grown by the Japanese. The statement of Dr. Boutan, made at the French Academy of Sciences, removes the last hope concerning Japanese pearls, which have been grown in quantity since M. Mikimoto, the Japanese scientist made his discovery. Pearls normally, are grown by accident, through a fine grain of sand entering the shell of the oyster. The white substance, called a pearl, grows inside an oyster and is a secretion, caused by the effort of the shell-fish to get rid of the foreign substance. Mikimoto conceived the idea of opening oysters and inserting the foreign substance, or grain of sand, that formerly came there accidentally. Since Japanese began to grow pearls artificially, there has been much discussion whether these new pearls would affect the value of the accidentally grown pearls. The only difference would appear to be in the pearl seed, or grain of seed, and now it is claimed by Dr. Boutan that even this difference cannot be detected. The statement of Dr. Boutan is categorical: "If I did not have a certificate of origin when sections of pearls were shown me, pearls cut into sections for testing purposes, I would not be able to say which pearl is artificial."

Sweden's Revenue.

FROM LIQUOR IS $88,000,000.
 STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, BY A.P.—Sweden's income from liquor trade taxes during 1922 will be over 121,000,000 kronor, or more than $24,000,000, according to the official reports just published by the Liquor Control Board. One of the arguments used by Sweden's "wet" in the recent prohibition referendum in Sweden, which resulted in a victory for the anti-prohibitionists, was that in case Sweden went dry there would be a heavy loss of revenue from liquor taxes, and that other commodities might have to be sacrificed to make up the deficit.

The Enduring Records in the Hills of Lebanon.

JERUSALEM.—On the face of a cliff in the Lebanon hills, Rameses II., King of Egypt, well over 3,000 years ago ordered his stone carvers to inscribe a tablet setting forth his conquest of the land. The figures of the ancient Egyptian ruler and his men still are visible. A few feet away one may see, carved in the same rock by a British stone cutter, a record of the coming in September, 1918, of Field Marshal Sir Edmund H. Allenby, G.C.B., commander of the Allied forces in Asia Minor. And the passage of the centuries from B.C. 1300 to A.D. 1918 is recorded by various other carvings, in all not less than 12 and each describing the march of a victorious army. The cliff selected for the carving of these historic records is at the mouth of the Dog River, 10 miles northeast of Beirut, in Syria. This strip of country lying between the Lebanon and Egypt has been the bridge between the ancient empires of the Valley of the Nile and Mesopotamia, and over it has passed the armies of the ancient, medieval and modern worlds. The narrowest point is where the Lebanon mountains come close to the sea, and at this place Rameses II. set the precedent of commemorating his conquests by hewing out a panel on the face of the cliff. His example has been followed by others through the centuries until now there are a dozen of them. They are all cut about four or five inches deep, from five to nine feet high, and from two to four and a half feet in width. The storms of more than 3,000 years have beaten upon some of them, but still the figures of the ancient Egyptian conquerors are easily discernible as they stand with their right arms uplifted in an attitude of victory. The hieroglyphs have long since disappeared except to the trained eye of the archaeologist. Several Assyrian conquerors led their armies through this pass, including the great Sennacherib, who threatened Jerusalem, but whose army was smitten by "the breath of the Lord," and for a century and a quarter the city was saved from its foes. Alexander the Great led his conquering hosts through the same defile on his way to Egypt, and Greek and Latin tablets tell of the conquests of the great Kingdoms of southern Europe when the march of empire passed from Asia to Europe. Coming down to recent history a tablet tells of the coming of the army of Louis Napoleon in 1860, when the massacres in the Lebanon called for European interference and France first set her foot in Syria. Nearly 80 years passed by, and then the English army led by General Allenby and assisted by the French, swept up like a whirlwind from the south four years ago and ended the rule of the Turk in the southern part of the Levant. A panel has been cut in the cliff near those of the ancient Egyptians, telling of this great victory and bringing this wonderful cliff-record of history up to date.

Nfld. Poultry Association.

The monthly meeting of the Nfld. Poultry Association was held in the Board of Trade Rooms last night. Arrangements were finalized for holding the tenth annual show in the Church Lads' Brigade Armoury on November 20 and 21, and December 1st. The show will be officially opened at 3 p.m. on Wednesday, closing on Friday. Judge Leary who is a founder of the Association, is coming from the Canadian Government Agricultural College, Truro, to act as Judge this year, and will give a lantern exhibition each night at nine o'clock. The Railway Company will be asked to arrange the annual Shopping and Poultry Show Excursion during this week, thus bringing in our outport friends. A model poultry house twelve by twelve, after the designs and approval plans of the Association, is being built and will be disposed of at the show. The ladies of the Spencer Club will entertain the Judge and invite the members of the Bell Island Poultry Association to supper on Nov. 30th at the Armoury. The Association has presented a Silver Cup to be won outright at this year's show as a prize for the outport exhibitor winning the largest number of prizes on his birds. Special prizes will also be given and the Association hopes to make the tenth annual show a thorough success. Two new members were elected at last night's meeting, Serge Major Stewart Dewling and Mr. Fred White who will likely exhibit some birds at the November show. A Silver Cup as a prize for S. E. White Leghorns has been presented to the Association by Mr. Herbert M. Winter and will have to be won for three years before being finally won by the exhibitor.

"Experience" Charming.

SPLENDID NEW PARAMOUNT PICTURE WELL RECEIVED AT LOCAL THEATRE.

George Fitzmaurice's Paramount production of "Experience" scored heavily on its first presentation at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. It proved to be an artistic delight for all who beheld the photoplay. The story is allegorical and deals with the adventures of youth who goes to the city to make his fortune and who meets with temptation, loses opportunity and giving way to pleasure, falls miserably. But love who has followed him, beckons him home again where he finds happiness and the love he had ignored. The picture is quite charming and a reminder of "Everywoman" in treatment. Richard Barthelmess is the featured player and others in the cast who did excellent work are John Miller, Marjorie Daw, Edna Whelan, E. J. Radcliffe, Betty Carpenter, Kate Bruce, Nita Naldi and Lilyan Tashman. The picture constitutes a veritable fashion show and the scenic investiture is of the richest description. It is well worth seeing.

Originals of the Mermaids.

The earth holds few breathing creatures stranger than manatees. Viewed from behind, they look just like what one would imagine a mermaid to look like.

Some of them would be pretty substantial mermaids, however, for a full grown manatee is about eight feet long. It has a somewhat fish-like body, with a broad, flattened tail, and its fore limbs, which are furnished with minute nails, are in the nature of paddles.

Though manatees live in the sea near the shore, near retirement to the water, and cannot exist out of it, yet they will speedily drown if prevented from coming to the surface to breathe.

Every few minutes, says Mr. William Beebe, in "The Edge of the Jungle," day and night, year after year, they must perforce bob up their queer-looking round heads in order to inhale a lungful of the air which they must have, but in which they cannot live. In these circumstances it is not easy to understand how a manatee manages to get any sleep at all; at best it must be taken on the instalment principle, and very short instalments at that!

Wedding Bells.

NEWMAN-PERRIER.

The R.C. Church of Badger Brook, on Wednesday, 2nd instant, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mr. John Newman of Boyde's Cove, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Ada Perrier, daughter of John and Mrs. Perrier of St. George's. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Hinchey in the presence of a host of friends. The bride was very neatly attired in blue silk and Georgette, with veil and wreath and carried a bouquet of Pink and White roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Margaret Sargent and Annie Maloney; while Mollie Conlan acted as flower girl. The groom was supported by Mr. McHarrison. After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the groom's sister Mrs. Hurley, where an excellent supper was served, while dancing commenced in the new hall and continued until the small hours of the morning. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful gold pendant. Mr. and Mrs. Newman left by tonight's express for Boyde's Cove where the honeymoon will be spent. We wish them many happy years of wedded bliss.—M.D.

"My Wandering Boy."

CROWDED HOUSES SEE PICTURE AT THE NICKEL.

Rarely have we seen such a picture depicting life as it really is, as is shown in that wonderful film, "Where is My Wandering Boy To-night," which was seen at the above theatre yesterday. It is the sort of picture that touches the very cockles of the heart. Remember the heartache in seeing your boy leave home for the first time? And now these beautiful sentiments have been made into a story sublime that will live as long as the screen lasts. It will make you smile perhaps and shed tears, but nevertheless it will make you happy. To-night it will be repeated and another record house is anticipated.

Don't forget the S.U.F. Club Card Tournament at their Rooms, one door West Post Office, Water Street, on Wednesday night, October 11th. Come and bring your friend.—oct10,11

FIRST RACE OF TRIAL SERIES.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 7.

With the starting gun an hour away the four contestants for the Nova Scotia fishing schooner championship races are idling about the harbour with scarcely enough breeze to give them steerage way.

Weather officials report a seven and a half knot breeze from northern with promise of stiffening later in the morning and there is every hope the races will get away on schedule 10 o'clock. The sky is overcast but with promise of clearing. A meeting of the racing committee last evening resulted in another half hour being taken off the time limit for finishing the course, this making it possible to postpone the start until eleven thirty if weather conditions warrant such postponement. The starting line is at the breakwater at the inner entrance to the harbour and the schooners have been idling drifting about within that line since daylight this morning. The champion, Bluenose, is the favourite among fans with the Margaret K. Smith second choice, while the Mahaska and Canada are looked upon as "dark horses."

On board C. G. S. Tyrion off Race Course, Oct. 7.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—At nine thirty two pennants were broken out from the mast on the starting line indicating that number two course would be followed in to-day's race. The wind holding from northeast this meant broad reach to inner automatic buoy, close reach to southeast automatic buoy and start the long hitches to finish line. First preparatory gun at nine forty-five, found all the schooners back of starting line with Bluenose on port tack standing inshore. Mahaska was shooting along in light air in surprising fashion. Canada seemed heavily ballasted and moved slowly. Sailors were dancing on Mahaska's foremast spreaders, the wind was about five knots from the northeast.

When the five minutes preparatory gun boomed the schooners came about and heading for the line set stay sails and balloons. It was a pretty fight for the weather berth, with Paddy Keown in the Mahaska getting the better of the encounter. Immediately to leeward of Mahaska was Canada and well to the leeward of her Margaret K. Smith had succeeded in blanketing Bluenose as schooners crossed line. Capt. Frank Wynacht in the Smith drew away followed by Mahaska, with Canada and Bluenose bringing up the rear. Walters got away to a very poor start.

At ten fifteen Smith was off Meagher's beach light and had established a lead of three hundred yards over Mahaska which was a length ahead but a length behind Canada. It looks as if Smith was running out of the wind. At ten twenty Canada had passed to weather of Mahaska and was second boat.

Bluenose passed inner automatic the first mark at 10-54 but Walters pulled a bone passing to starboard evidently mistaking the course and heading for Sambro lights buoy. He was followed a minute and a half later by the Smith. Canada, however, left buoy to port as was required and shaped her course for southeast automatic followed by Mahaska. Whight and Walters realizing their mistake came about and headed for the inner automatic. By this mistake they have lost their lead and when they properly rounded the buoy Canada was leading the fleet by half a mile; Mahaska was second, Smith third, closely followed by Bluenose. At eleven-fifteen Bluenose went to weather of Smith and started after Mahaska.

Bulletin—Race Course—at eleven forty-five Canada came about on starboard tack and headed for second mark. A few minutes before Bluenose, still on the port tack had taken in her foretopsail which had been setting badly. It was estimated from Press boat that Bluenose had overtaken Mahaska's lead at this hour but was still second boat to Canada.

Continent Made by Insects.

Out in the Indian Ocean lies one of the strangest archipelagos in the world. More than fourteen thousand islands go to make it up. Most of them are quite tiny and few rise more than five or six feet above the surface of the water.

These are the Maldives Islands, which few people have ever seen since the waters around them are terribly dangerous for shipping. Every one of them has been built up by tiny coral insects. The smallest island contains a coral population many times bigger than the entire human population of the world.

The process of island building is still going on; for every one that is to be seen above the surface there are a dozen others which, though continually growing upwards, have not yet become visible. In the course of centuries the sea will deposit sand and mud amongst the thickly-studded coral pillars, and so eventually a new continent will be born, a continent built by little beings no bigger than flies.

Gruesome Spectacle.

Murderer Takes Nineteen Minutes to Hang.

Woodstock, N.B., Oct. 6.—The gruesome spectacle of a man being thrice hanged was witnessed to-day in the jail here when Benny Swim paid the penalty for murder. After the drop which did not break the spinal column Swim was taken back to his cell from which his limp body was removed later and carried out to the gallows again. Two ministers, H. V. Bragdon and Rev. P. J. Quigg were present. With the second hangman in charge the noose was adjusted about the body and the trap sprung again. This time the condemned man's neck was broken but the body was not cut down for nineteen minutes by which time the four doctors present, including Dr. Griffin, the official jail physician, pronounced him dead.

The body was delivered to Jesse Foster, uncle of the condemned man, and will be shipped to Rockland, Carleton County, where the funeral will take place to-morrow from the home of his parents.

executioners, the jail attendant physicians, jurymen and others being present after the service Swim arose from his bed for the first time in two weeks, partially dressed himself, thanked the sheriff and officials and walked with little support to the gallows.

Feigned Insanity.

Following the execution Rev. Mr. Bragdon announced that Swim had made a confession to him several days ago that he never was insane, but that he had feigned insanity while in the jail upon the suggestion of a fellow prisoner thinking he might thereby escape paying the death penalty.

Rev. Mr. Bragdon also gave out a statement, signed by Swim, as the condemned man's version of the crime. It told of the shooting of Tremholme and then his wife, but claimed that Tremholme started an altercation with him. This was practically the same story he related at the time of his trial in April when he asserted that he had shot Tremholme in self-defense.

Mayflower Anxious to Race the Winner.

Boston, Oct. 6.—The United States or Canadian schooner winning this year's international fishermen's series to be held off Gloucester commencing October 25, has been invited to meet the Boston schooner Mayflower twice debarred as a cup contender. In a matched race for a purse of $5,000.

After a meeting to-day the Mayflower Association owners of the skipper of all the schooners entered in both the United States and Canadian elimination races in which a Canadian defender and a United States challenger for the international fishermen's trophy will be chosen. A telegram was also sent to the American fishermen's race committee at Gloucester, accepting the offer of that body to manage the proposed special race, should the cup winner of this year accept the challenge of the Mayflower.

The message to William J. McInnis chairman of the American Race Committee was as follows:

"As suggested in your letter of October 3, regarding a race between the international cup winner and Mayflower, we have this to say, which we have wired the owners and captains of each contender:

"If you win the international race are you willing to race the Mayflower on the following day for a purse of $5,000—$3,000 to the winner and $2,000 to loser? To raise the money and also to prepare Mayflower we would ask you to favor us with an immediate and official answer. If favorable answer is received we hope to accept your offer to manage the race off Gloucester.

"Signed) J. Henry Hunt,
"Chairman, Mayflower Association."

Tricked.

Most of the youths of the neighbourhood attended the charity bazaar, and one by one drifted to a stall where a tiny kid glove reposed on a satin cushion. Attached to the cushion was a notice which ran:

"The owner of this glove will, at 7.50 this evening, be pleased to kiss any person who purchases a ten-cent ticket beforehand."

Tickets were purchased by the score, and at 7.50 a long row of young men had assembled outside the booth. Then, punctual to the moment, old Tom Porson, the local butcher, almost as beautiful as a side of bacon, stepped to the front of the booth.

"Now, young gent," he said, "this here glove belongs to me. I bought it this morning. I'm ready for you. Come on! Don't be bashful. One at a time now!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Household Notes.

Few people know the delicious flavor of grapefruit with maple syrup. Persistent traces of grease in clothing may be bleached by Javelle Water.

When baking potatoes cut off a small piece at each end, so that steam can escape.

A single delicate flower blossom is charming floating in each clear glass finger bowl.

Fruites are quite good when baked with a little sugar and flavored with orange and lemon juice.

Dried apricots may be eaten without cooking if soaked for several hours and then drained.

Before serving grapes dip the bunches first in boiling water and then chill in cold water.

Strips of thinly cut steak may be rolled in strips of bacon, fastened with toothpicks, seared and baked.

Steel wool dampened and applied with a little soap is excellent for cleaning discolored aluminum.

When teaching one to make mayon-naises allow them to drop the oil from a clean medicine dropper.

Rice is excellent scalloped, with finely shredded codfish, grated cheese, buttered crumbs and white sauce.

A good pipe for blowing bubbles may be made from the wooden part of a handle used for carrying parcels.

Peel and halve bananas lengthwise, saute in oil or butter, dust with powdered sugar and serve while hot.

If mildew is very fresh, it may be removed with cold water. If it is not fresh, Javelle Water must be applied.

King's Search for a Queen.

A RICH, CULTURED GIRL FOR BRIDE.

King Boris, the bachelor monarch of Bulgaria, is in search of a beautiful bride.

She must be American, young, rich, and cultured, and must interest herself in the education of women and the establishment of schools for young women in Bulgaria.

The announcement of the King's quest is made by M. Stambolisky, Bulgarian Prime Minister, according to a message from Geneva. It is understood that the Bulgarians have lost faith in Royal alliances, and think that an American Queen might be a valuable asset to their country.

King Boris is thirty, and according to reports, has been engaged three times in the past few years. Report, however, was a little premature. The first "engagement" was reported in March, 1915, when King Boris was heir apparent and the German Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein was named as the bride-to-be.

ANOTHER RUMOR.

Again silence until January of this year, and then came another report of the betrothal of the King, this time to Princess Jolanda of Italy. But apparently it was merely a report, and now the announcement of a search for an American bride brings the royal romance up to date.

When King Ferdinand left his country for his country's good in 1918, Boris succeeded to the throne, and at once commenced a new regime which endeared him to his subjects.

EX-KAISER'S MARRIAGE.

The wedding of the ex-Kaiser with Princess Hermine of Reuss is provisionally fixed for November, according to an official announcement made by the general plenipotentiary of the Royal house, Privy Councillor von Berg.

At present the bride-to-be is staying with her aunt, the Grand Duchess Louise of Baden.

Princess Hermine is thirty-five, and a widow. Despite denials, there is little doubt that the ex-Kaiser's decision to remarry was strongly represented by his sons and other members of the Hohenzollern family.

The Princess visited Doorn for a week in February. An exchange of letters followed, culminating in an engagement.

Monarchist papers in Germany are somewhat lukewarm in their approval of the engagement. One paper says: "His (the ex-Kaiser's) decision is comprehensible to those who realize the depressing spiritual loneliness in which he has lived at Doorn since the death of his wife."

An Exchange message states that the ex-Kaiser wished to keep his betrothal secret until after October 22, the birthday of the late ex-Empress. Unofficially Berlin reports, however, gave the news to the world, and then the ex-Kaiser decided not to delay the announcement longer.

Battle Honors.

TO BE EMBLEMIZED ON REGIMENTAL COLOURS.

The King has approved of the award to the regiments and corps of the battle honors won by them in the Great War, and regiments and corps will have awarded them and recorded in the Army List honors due them for taking part in the battles enumerated in the report of the Battles Nomenclature Committee. On the colors will be emblemized not more than 24 honors, of which not more than ten will be Great War honors, to embrace the whole history of the regiment concerned from the date on which it was raised to the end of the war.

The guiding principle in the selection of battle honors will be that the

King And "The Quest."

His Majesty's Welcome Home to Shackleton's Plucky Crew. To Captain Wild, on the return home of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton's Antarctic ship, the Quest, the King telegraphed the following message:—

The King is glad to welcome you and your comrades of the Quest on return home from your long voyage, with all its trials and hardships; and while it grieves his Majesty to think that your gallant leader was not spared to bring you home, the King considers that your record of achievement and the indomitable spirit displayed by all members of the expedition were in every way worthy of his great example.

When the Mayor of Portsmouth visited the Quest in Portsmouth Harbour, Captain Wild presented him with an ornamental bulldog, a gift from General Smuts's daughter.

Sleep by Compass.

North, south, east or west? In which direction should one's head point when lying asleep? Some religious enjoin the east; some scientists have urged the north, corresponding with the pointing of the magnetic compass; while there are those, probably the great majority, who regard it as a matter of indifference.

The eminent French physician, Dr. Cabanes, after much study and consideration, discusses the question elaborately in the "Chronique Medicale." He reminds us that, according to an old tradition which obtained among the ancient Israelites, the direction north-south is preferable.

From north to south runs also the direction of the great magnetic currents of the earth. But this the people of Israel could not have known.

In 1845 Prof. Reichenbach published an essay in which he called special attention to the diseases of those who slept headed toward the east. The best position in sleeping was from north to south, with the head toward the north. Further observations have, however, not resulted in any proof for the supposition that the north-south direction was particularly wholesome in sleeping. The only thing that seems established is that some people sleep better in one direction than in the other.—New York Tribune.

Fads and Fashions.

A short sleeveless bodice of black velvet is worn, peasant style over a frock of red chiffon. A plain, straight skirt owes its charm to loose, three-banded side panels, circular in shape. A new bramble dress of worsted jersey has an allover embroidered blouse and a plaited skirt. An afternoon gown of silver taupe velvet has draped flowing sleeves that nearly reach the hem line.

Ghastly Gas-Lakes.

In some parts of the globe there exist curious invisible gas-traps, many being fatal to any living thing which approaches them. For instance, there is the famous Grotto del Cane, or "Dog Grotto," in Italy. This is a cavern which contains carbonic acid gas, which exudes from the ground. It rises slowly and invisibly, and flows out like an imaginary stream. Dogs have been put into this infernal enclosure to prove to visitors and strangers that the gas is fatal. Hence it gets its name. As the dogs breathe near the earth and within the noxious atmosphere, they soon expire if not immediately removed. Human beings have been known to walk about the "Grotto del Cane," but if they were to lie down flat on the ground they would never rise again!

This serves to recall a great gas lake in Java, which causes a valley nearby to become a veritable death-trap. It is called the "Valley of Death," for those who venture into this ghastly gas valley are instantly killed.

No living thing can exist in its atmosphere, and if the unwary explorer does enter, he dies, and his bones remain unburied by the side of the beasts which have met a similar unfortunate fate. Again, carbonic acid gas is said to abound over the Lake Avernus, in Campania, with the terrible result that the birds which happen to fly over it immediately fall to the water-glass!

"My Boy was Starving to Death" "As He Was Getting No Nourishment He Was Gradually Wasting Away."

Here's a story which will interest every mother. Before my boy was born, I was in such delicate health that the doctor didn't think I would survive the ordeal. For weeks after he was born my life was in jeopardy, so I couldn't feed him and the poor little fellow was left to the care of friends. He wasn't naturally strong, and his poor little stomach became so weakened that he couldn't keep anything on it. As he was gradually wasting away, I finally, in desperation, we sent for a specialist and he said that my child was starving to death. He gave him some medicine and advised a certain diet. The child did improve, but he couldn't seem to get strong. This went on for four or five years and the boy still continued weak and pale looking. He could not play like other children without having to lie down and rest. My sister who lives on a farm near the sea, said that she could fix him up if I would send him to her. While I had been separated from him, I was ready to make any sacrifice to do you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund me money.

Carroll is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund me money.

"Sparklers" Found in Mines in Arkansas.

When as he "em wears em" is saying attributed to Diamond Jim Brady, when he proved for his lavish display of diamonds. This is probably true than otherwise, and it is a fact that a considerable portion of the world's diamonds to be a good investment. Bonds and securities do not lend themselves to public display, but one may wear a $1000 worth of diamonds about his person, if his diamonds are not too fine, and readily turn it into cash if need arises. This fact coupled with the stability of the diamond market and the beauty of the stones themselves make them attractive to many.

By far the chief source of supply for the Kimberley district of South Africa is not generally known, however, there is a notable occurrence of diamonds in the United States. According to the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press, several small karats have been found in chert on property owned by the Kansas Diamond Corporation, which some time ago undertook to test its chert to determine whether the stones occurred on a commercial scale or were simply a geological freak. The fact has not yet been determined.

The only commercial sources of diamonds in the western hemisphere are present in Brazil and British Guiana. As a producer of both brilliant and stones used for drilling purposes Brazil has been least known. Less has been heard of the diamonds fields. Last fall news began to filter down to Georgetown, British Guiana, from the interior that a new mine of promising diamonds had been opened up on the Kurupung branch of the Mazurani river, owing largely to unemployment on the coast lands, caused by the slump in the sugar and rice markets, a rush for the new fields followed. Later reports received state that the Kurupung is proving a bonanza. About 8000 men are already at work on a stone weighing 23% of the largest found to date.

Recently, William J. LaVare applied for a concession of 5000 acres in the same region, after several years of exploitation work in the country. Mr. LaVare left Georgetown on April 10 to stake out the property and protect it against intruders. In March, he states, 16,000 men were produced by native prospectors who are lacking in suitable equipment and technical knowledge.

Quit Dwellers Eat Flesh of Man?

Did the prehistoric cliff dwellers of human flesh? George H. Pepper, the American Museum of Natural History points to evidence unearthed in an archaeological investigation of the ruins of the great walled town of Pueblo Bonito, in Chaco Canyon, Northwestern New Mexico, indicating that they did so occasionally, whether through stress of starvation or in the performance of some mysterious religious rite. In some of the upper rooms of the ancient stone city, charred and bleached human bones were found scattered about with animal bones which had apparently been part of a meal. "Skulls and other portions of the skeletons presented the same appearance," says Mr. Pepper, "as did animal bones broken open for the purpose of the marrow. There was evidence of human bodies having been buried in rooms above the first floor, nor was there any evidence of a fire having been in the room." Whether this ghastly feast was the habit of some Russian-like famine or of a ghastly religious rite is a mystery to which there is as yet no answer. This pueblo was built years before the Spanish conquest of Mexico, and investigations show conclusively that it was occupied for some years.

CAN'T WE HAVE A LITTLE LESS!
There are certain things for which I deeply admire the members of the medical profession—their self sacrifice and courage in times of epidemic and the vast amount of charity work they do. There is one respect in which I think the medical profession needs a good overhauling. I refer to some of the conventions that go under the head of professional etiquette. They don't have To Be Right. "Why," says a friend of mine, "do you have such faith in doctors? They aren't always right. They can't be."

his eyes in a frightful condition which at once made him suspect some serious trouble with the ductless glands. "It was against professional etiquette," he said, "but when I found that the doctor was treating her for some other trouble altogether I felt so badly for the family that I couldn't help suggesting they get a specialist on glands." They got such a specialist and the boy who had been on the verge of idiocy was restored to normality. "Most doctors," he said, "wouldn't have done that because it was against professional etiquette."

eration just because he is the patient of an old school doctor who does not believe in that operation and it is not their place, in spite of all their knowledge of modern methods, to urge it. In the story, an accident makes the doctor realize his mistake, and the child is saved by the operation. In real life the terrible why of some of their undid.

Women's Eyes Are Opening.
Professional etiquette used to forbid any doctor to tell his women patients the terrible why of some of their unnecessary suffering and individualism. I am thankful to say there is a swing away from that convention.

In these days the very poor and the very rich get the best medical attention because the very poor are given it free at clinics and public hospitals where the greatest men in their profession give their time; and the very rich can pay for it. But I have heard it stated on good authority that the very poor are more fortunate than the very rich. Why? Because the fact that the rich can pay so much makes doctors careful about trespassing on each other's property, and professional etiquette and for once it is the rich who suffer.

Of course, professional etiquette has many usages. Without it we should doubtless have many evils that it prevents. But it does seem to me that if it were somewhat modified the public would be better off.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

SHE NEVER GAVE ME A CHANCE.
It happened that I came along as school was getting out. And laughing boys and smiling girls raced everywhere about. But two there were who walked along the road in front of me. And one young head was bowed to earth, a troubled lad was he. And as I stepped around the pair to hasten on my way, "She never gave a chance to me!" I heard the youngster say.

Oh, I have been a boy myself, and I have been to school. And I have suffered punishment for breaking many a rule. I've worn the brand of mischief and been written down as bad. So I could reconstruct the scene—the teacher and the lad. The swift avenging punishment, the stern and angry glance. The blot of shame upon the boy, sent home without a chance.

I did not stop to ask the boy his little tale to tell. There was no need of that because I knew the story well. "She never gave a chance to me!" that sentence had it all. A hundred times I've lived the scene in days when I was small. A broken rule, a teacher vexed, hot rage where calm belonged. A guilty judgement blindly made—a youngster sadly wronged.

I still can see that little chap upon his homeward way. "She never gave a chance to me," I still can hear him say. And so I write this verse for him, and all the girls and boys who shall their tutors now and then disturb with needless noise. Be fair, you teachers of our land, in every circumstance; Don't let some little fellow say he never had a chance.
