After the Motorists.

The provincial officials paid Kemptville a visit recently and created a flurry in the ranks of local automobile owners.
Their business was to see that every owner of a car had purchased a license for 1916. They found some who had neglected to do so. These at once filed an application. Warnings were given to several youths under 18 years of age, who had been in the habit of running cars, not to repeat the offence, and several owners of cars who had been in the habit of operating them for hire were obliged to take out a chauffeur's license.

Pembroke Woollen Mills Partly Destroyed

A fire of serious proportions occurred in the factory of the Pembroke Woollen Mills Ltd., doing damage to the extent of probably $10,000. The fire started underneath one of the new machines in the upper southeast corner of the big building and in an incredible short space of time, on account of the amount of combustible material on the floors, spread throughout the upper storey.
The firemen were quickly at work and soon had five streams on the flames with good pressure, and in a short time had the fire under control. It had done a great amount of damage, however, and the water loss will also be heavy. About 150 hands will be thrown out of employment for an indefinite period.

New Color For Stamp.

A new three cent stamp has been issued. Considerable complaint having been made as to the difficulty experienced in distinguishing between the ordinary two cent postage stamp and the two cent postage stamp and war tax stamp. The postmaster-general has decided to issue a new stamp in an entirely different color, so that the difficulty experienced by the business men will be eliminated.
Therefore a new stamp has been issued of the value of two cents and surcharged in a manner similar to the one now in use, the only difference being the color, which is brown.

Sarnia, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs.
Wm. Paul.

Mr. Thos. Tomlinson, of Franktown, some weeks there with his sons.

Acting upon joint instructions from the Provincial Secretary and Attorney General's departments, Superintendent
Joseph E. Rogers, of the Ontario Provincial Police, has mailed a circular to all bakers throughout the province warning them against the consequences of manufacture and sale of light weight bread, in contravention of the Bread Sales Act.

We are pleased to learn from a private source that Rev. Mr. Siple is gradually recovering his health, and has been preaching for several weeks now on supply and expects shortly to get settled down to work again permanently. The wound caused by his operation is now healed, all traces of it have almost disappeared. We are sure our readers will be glad to receive this good news, for sojourn in Carleton Place.

Recruiting for the 130th.

is making a farewell visit to relatives in Carleton Place, and incidentally looking for a dozen or more recruits from this vicinity to bring the company up to full strength. The battalion will leave shortly for overseas, and as the men are in fine fettle they are anxious that the ranks be full. Anyone desirous of enlisting may see Sergt. Eastwood at any time or find him at the home of his parents near the station.

for next week should be in THE HERALD Office not later than 9 o'clock Saturday morning to insure

Death of Mr. Peter McEwen.

Mr. Peter McEwen, a native of Beckwith, and for many years a resident of Carleton Place, died at the home of his son at Tomstown, Ont., on Friday last, aged 68 years. The remains were brought on here for interment, the funeral taking place from here on Sunday last to the family burial plot in Dewar's cemetery. He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter.

Last Tuesday's Storm.

The electric storm of Tuesday afternoon last did considerable damage throughout the county. In the neigh-hood of Lenark village it was the wind that did the work, roofs being torn off buildings thrown down, and trees of all kinds uprooted. On the 7th Line Beckwith the barns, with season's crop and implements of Mr. Arch. Mac-Donnell, were completely destroyed, a heavy loss. East of Franktown Mr. G.
E. Leach met with a similar loss, his outbuildings, hay, grain, machinery and harness being completely burned.

Automobile Turns Turtle.

The Smiths Falls News says: "Five persons had a terrible experience and miraculous escape when they went over the Bay bridge, on the sand road a mile from town, travelling at the rate of 45 miles an hour on Sunday morning. The car fell into five feet of water, but beyond a shaking up, a bad fright and a good soaking, none of the occupants were hurt. The car, a new Overland, was badly wrecked. W. J. Shields, a farmer living at Kilmarnock, was the driver and with him were his two cousins, Misses Bertie and Corley Shields, Miss Phillips of Kilmarnock, and Wes. Wilson of Merrickville. Mr.
Shields approached the bridge on a curve at a high rate of speed and instead of reducing his power put his foot on the accelerator and the big car leaped like a live thing from the road and crashed through the railing into the water.
Fortunately the top was up and the car fell on its side, which saved driver and passengers from being killed or drowned. Mr. Wilson was first out and succeeded in rescuing the others still in the car and under water."

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

A woman may do her level best to make life and home happy for her husband and children, but if she is treated like a slave, and only given her board and clothing in payment for her services as mother, wife, cook, laundress, nurse, chambermaid and seamstress, is it any wonder that little or no happiness exists in that home? If a mother spoils her son by pampering and waiting on him all the years of his childhood and boyhood, and makes him think that a man should always be waited on by a woman of his household, is it strange that he expects a wife to do the same, and that, in all likelihood, she either wears out in a few years from such service or else becomes bitter or disheartened. We are often told that in every true and ideal marriage both husband and wife must learn to bear and forbear. In every home where happiness exists, there must be perfect trust, confidence and love between husband and wife. There are two kinds of sunshine in the world, and both quite necessary—the one which is caused by the sun's shining out door, and the other by shining in our hearts. It is the loving deeds, the cheery hopeful words and the kindly thoughtfulness that each member of the family shows towards the others that makes an ideal, happy home—a perfect heaven on earth.

The best way to get along in this world is to take things easy. If you are disappointed, laugh it off and resolve to enjoy yourself in spite of an occasional streak of hard luck. Hard luck soon tires of pursuing a jolly disposition.

Look on the funny side of your annoyances.

We may not realize, perchance what home means to us until seas and mountains separate us from the loved ones—perchance not until sickness and misfortune come—perchance not until the Dreaded Shadow falls upon the threshold and the Raven croaks above the bust of Pallas. But when some tie is snapped and some link is broken and some chair is vacant at the fireside then we realize that the cords which bind us to the homestead are knotted in the bosom's core and center—then we realize that the poet sang for us and sang for all the world when he sang beside the Thames: "Mid pleasures and palaces though I may roam, Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

The parlor as a parlor will soon be a relic of the past. The very name seems to suggest stiffness and lack of comfort. The new homes will have the best room, the one in which the whole family gathers, a warm, sunny place, a home room in its truest sense. The next generation will not waste space on parlors. Perhaps a little library, for privacy, will also be indispensable to many. This cherry room of the future will hold the piano, the general books, the pictures, work baskets and everything that serves to make home a heaven of rest for loyal hearts. Speed the day.

Our prisons are rapidly being filled by those who make the mistake of beginning life at the top of the ladder.

The spirit of order must reign in a house before the children can acquire it.

Little arms encircling the neck will make the heart light, over which no diamonds sparkle. All the grand pictures and splendid works of art one can possess will never adorn a room as do the smiling faces of those dearest to us. The things that may be bought are pleasant to have, nor is wealth to be despised; but never pity the poor man who has the wealth that gold cannot buy, nor the woman whose jewels are those of which Cornelia was so proud—good and obedient sons.

Whoever takes a little child into his love, may have a very roomy heart, but that child will fill it out. The children keep us from growing old and cold; they cling to our garments with their little hands and impede our progress to petrification; they win us back with their pleading eyes, from cruel care; they never encumber us at all. A poor old couple with no one to love them, is a most pitiful picture; but a hovel, with a small face to fill a broken pane here and there, is robbed of its desolateness.

You can get into the habit of living peacefully and happily, and that habit is quite as difficult to break as any habit we know of. Let there be no long pontifical; let there be no long, careless, indifferent fits. If little storms arise—and they will arise let them be brief. Don't let us sleep over it, and wake up the next morning and cudgel our brains to remember who nagged last. This kind of thing is mean, it is ungenerous, and it is silly.

What are those whom we meet in society to us as compared to our own home circle? Why do we take pains to be polite and agreeable to them and neglect those who have the strongest claim upon us? It all comes about because we have got into the wrong way of thinking. We have put the home in the background, when it should occupy the foremost place in our thoughts.

Hornets Torment Horse.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Walker and party drove out to Mr. Alex. Kippen's at Christy Lake on Sunday, and a short time after the horse had been stabled, a loud noise was heard in the stable. Upon investigation, it was found that a swarm of hornets had attacked the horse. Mr. Kippen broke a wire netting over a window near the horse's head, and cut the halter shank with an axe. The stable door was opened, and the horse bolted for the lake to free himself of the stinging pests. He swam down as far as Mr. George Noonan's—Perth Expositor.

The Cabbage Root Maggot.

The Entomological Branch has issued an illustrated Bulletin No. 12 on "The Cabbage Root Maggot and Its Control in Canada," prepared by Messrs. Arthur Gibson and R. C. Treherne as a result of investigations extending over a number of years. The small white maggots that are found destroying the roots of cabbages and cauliflowers are familiar to most vegetable growers and farmers. These maggots also attack turnips, radishes, onions, beans and corn and cause serious losses when abundant. These insects and the methods of control are fully described and illustrated in the Bulletin which will be sent free on application.

Giffin, Halifax, N.S., Means for closing the mouths of glass or earthenware receptacles; Louis J. A. Amyot, Que., Elastic girdle corset. United States—A. I. Fromager & J. F. Six, Montreal, switch block and casing; Joseph-Nap. Piche, St. Basile (Portneuf) Que., Fire escape.

FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Kaiser's Nephew in Unknown Grave.

A Paris newspaper says that the body of Prince Maximilian of Hesse, son of the Kaiser's youngest sister, is buried in the small cemetery of Hazebrunck. The Prince was shot during a patrol engagement between Saxons and English near Golewaersvelde, in Northern France. He was found by Trappist monks and died at their monastery, which the monks were forced to leave soon afterward. The body was buried by peasants in a thirty franc coffin that one of them bought.

German Underground Defences.

Part of the German defences recently captured by the British had been in course of construction for two years. There were dugouts thirty to forty feet underground, reveted and traversed, and with every other detail of protection against all kinds of fire which army staffs can devise and labor build. Through galleries running from dugout to dugout they had a subway for bringing up reliefs and food. They led a regular life. At night those not on guard went to bed in their bunks in the cellars as comfortably as in a Pullman, and during the day played cards, if not sent out to snipe the British. When the British assault came, in one capacious dugout, equipped with beds, tables and cupboards, six officers and 170 men surrendered in a body, and were marched out much after the manner of a crowd caught in a gambling house that had been pulled by the police.

Put Your Soul into Your Work.

It does not pay to waste much time thinking and sighing about what might have been, as it is altogether likely that if you imagine you might have been an artist if you had been given a chance that you are altogether mistaken. If you had art in your make-up it would have found expression in your life in some way even if you never painted a picture.

If you do not make a success of your life as it is, it is not probable that you would have worked out a successful life in any other line of work.

William Morris was an artist, but his talent was directed to a very different line than is followed by most artists. He designed wall papers and draperies and by putting his soul into his work he set a standard that others strive to equal.

If your work seems insignificant, put your soul into it and lift it out of the commonplace into distinction. Perhaps you will not realize the value of what you are doing, but others catch the inspiration of your spirit and their lives are brought into harmony with their work more easily because of you.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Cor. xi, 21-33. Memory Verses, 25, 26—Golden Text, II Cor. xii, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The beginning of our lesson chapter takes up the very topic of the last part of last week's lesson, that of the church being espoused as a chaste virgin to Christ as her husband, or, as he said in Rom. vii, 4, we are married to Christ, raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God. We still wait for the actual marriage of the Lamb, which must take place before we can come with Him in His glory. See the order of events in Rev. xix. Paul speaks of Eve being beguiled by the serpent, and the church is the body and bride of Christ, the last Adam, just as Eve was both the body and bride of the first Adam. When this Eve shall have been builded she shall be brought to her Adam in the air, and then shall be the marriage of the Lamb, in which approaching event all the redeemed in glory must be intensely interested. The same serpent who deceived Eve is still deceiving all his blinded ones, coming to them as an angel of light, preaching another Jesus, another spirit, another gospel (verses 3, 4, 13). All from whom the true gospel is hid are blinded by him as the god of this world, and now, as in the time of Paul, multitudes suffer gladly to be taught by fools rather than listen to the wisdom of God (verse 19; I, 3, 4). It is sometimes said of preachers and evangelists that they are in the work for what there is in it financially. This may be true of some, but we prefer to judge nothing before the time till the Lord come, for the judgment seat of Christ will make all His own and their works manifest (I Cor. iv, 5; II Cor. v, 9, 10).

They could not accuse Paul of seeking his own gain in any way, for while at Corinth, as we saw in Acts xviii, 2, 3, he and Aquila and Priscilla worked at their occupation at tent makers. He would not be chargeable to any man nor be a burden to any one—rather would he spend and be spent for them, though the more he loved them the less he was loved by them (chapter xi, 7-9; xii, 15-18). He counted all things as nothing compared with the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, his Lord, for whom he suffered the loss of all things (Phil. iii, 7-10). He did not tell us that it was a special privilege to suffer with Christ (Phil. i, 29) without having tasted of the same in full measure himself.

In verse 23 he speaks of labors, stripes, prisons, deaths, and then in the verses following he tells of five scourgings, three beatings with rods, once stoned, three shipwrecks, besides all other sufferings which he mentions, making up a list which perhaps was never exceeded in the life of any other individual believer. Yet he says: "Most gladly will I glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake" (xii, 9, 10).

Was there ever such another devoted follower of the Lord Jesus or such a record of suffering for His sake? He certainly did cause others to suffer when he was a persecutor and murderer, but when his turn came he must have far exceeded them all. If the record in chapter xii, 1-5, refers to his experience at Lystra, when he was stoned to death there on his first missionary tour, what he saw and heard in paradise or the third heaven, while out of Lystra as such must have greatly sustained him in all his sufferings after that. Peter tells us that we should rejoice to be partakers of Christ's sufferings, for when His glory shall be revealed we shall be glad with exceeding joy (I Pet. iv, 12, 13). In II Cor. iv, 17, Paul speaks of affliction as being light, and but for a moment, compared with the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory which will be ours.

Abraham was sustained by the assurance of the city for which he looked and was fully persuaded that God would do as He had said. What Jacob saw in vision at Bethel must have been a great strength to him, unworthy though he was. The assurances given to Joseph in his dreams must have been a great comfort to him in the years of his imprisonment and slavery. The good will of Him who dwelt in the bush and the recompense of the reward were more to Moses than all the pleasures and treasures and prospects in Egypt. Isaiah was cheered in dark days by a vision of the King, the Lord of Hosts (Isa. vi), and our Lord Himself was sustained by the joy set before Him (Heb. xii, 2). There is nothing like visions of God and of glory to lift us above the things seen and temporal. If we have some physical infirmity, as Paul had, God may be more glorified by our bearing it patiently than by our being delivered from it. Leave it to Him. The lilies all do, and they grow. Nothing counts unless God is glorified in us (Phil. ii, 20). Chapter xii, 9, 10, comes in well here and teaches us that God needs our weakness, not our strength, for His strength is made perfect in weakness. If we desired the power of Christ upon us, as Paul did, we would welcome all things as for our good (Rom. viii, 28).

Would Draw in Other African Natives.

The famous explorer, Sir Harry Johnston, computes that there are 1,500,000 troops from foreign dominions at Britain's command, and demands that this material shall be made use of in the battle for democracy. The Somalis of West Africa, the natives of Sudan, and even the Ashantis could, he contends, be made into excellent soldiers. But if these blacks were once shown how to lick whites in Europe they might some day turn their knowledge against their white masters in Africa.

English Clubs Hit by War.

Clubland has felt the war more and has had greater occasion to deplore it than most of London's cherished institutions. Although every man is now a soldier, the service clubs are feeling the pinch badly: the political clubs of Pall Mall are falling back on their reserve funds to help tide them over, and only bohemian clubs of the first rank are holding their own. New members are, of course, non-existent at any club, and the high price of food-stuffs renders the catering question, always a difficult one, almost insuperable. One club had its cooking departments manned by French before the war. The call to the colors cleaned out the entire staff.

Making a Bad Matter Worse.

It is a dangerous thing, when you have let slip an unfortunate remark, to try to cover up the blunder.

Mrs. G. was talking with the wife of Judge H. about her son's choice of a profession. "I don't want him to be a lawyer," she said.

"Why not," said the judge's wife. "I think there is nothing much finer than the legal profession for a bright boy." "Well," said Mrs. G., bluntly, "a lawyer has to tell so many lies." Then it dawned on her that she was talking to the wife of a lawyer; so she hastily added, "That is—er—to be a good lawyer!"

THE RED CROSS WORK

As Viewed by One of Our Own Nurses—Miss Wilson—in a Letter to Mrs. J. M. Brown.

3rd Can. Stat. Hospital, B.E.F., France.

My dear Mrs. Brown:—

Your very nice letter received a day or two ago. I was so glad to be of service to you in your distress over Horace and was able through the Red Cross Information Bureau to trace him to England and there find to which hospital he had been sent. You can only appreciate a very little at your great distance the value of the Red Cross Society and what our R.C.S. truly means, and represents the noble work of our Canadian women who are so earnestly and faithfully supporting the organization, not only with money, but with their time which they devote to cutting and making all these wonderful supplies which we receive and without which, at times, we might find ourselves in a quandary when the drain on our ordinary issue is excessive. The Canadian women are perfectly wonderful in their steadfastness to duty and the great responsibilities assumed by them has made it most evident that in no other land have they an equal. It is much more difficult for you, in far away Canada, so remote from the immediate view of things, to keep up the same interest unaided by the stimulant of close association which we have constantly by our side.

Your sympathy would go out to the French nation, even more than it has, if you could see them in all their suffering, their devotion and loyalty to the great cause. Every man here is a soldier (as it should be in all countries) and one seldom sees a young face hereabouts. The work on the roads, in the streets, on the farms, in fact everywhere is being done by the women (they are perfect wonders) the old men and youths.

Dear Mrs. Brown, I have never known that there lay latent within me the strength to despise and hate a nation and a people as I now do our enemies. Strange to say, I'm not in the least ashamed of my intense and bitter hatred and only wish, at the present time, I was a man to do a man's work and to assume a man's responsibilities as a combatant. Our cowardly and dastardly foe, from me, would receive no mercy should opportunity come my way. Earnestly do I hope the young men of our fair country, each and all, will join up and help repay, with all their strong might, the many indignities and atrocious crimes of which our arch enemy has been guilty of against our gallant Canadian boys. Assuredly if they do not respond shall the phantoms of the brave lads, who have made the sacrifice, and now some of them, at least, lie buried in the fields of grain and poppies red, as it has been expressed, surely they shall arise and accuse the stay at home disloyalty and breaking faith with them. Do I seem very bitter? Perhaps it would seem so to you, but it is just about nineteen months since I left Canada to serve, and so, as time has passed, my knowledge has increased, and so has my feeling and devotion to the 'Cause' and my hatred of the enemy—the Germans. It is justified.

Convey a message to the women of Carleton Place, say to them that any sacrifice which they may make to support the various organizations is none too great. This they would appreciate if they could see the great and heartfelt appreciation of the sick and wounded boys from the firing line as they receive the many comforts sent them by the women of Canada. Truly their gratefulness and patience would stir each and all to the utmost sacrifice to do still a tiny bit more. Our Canadian hospitals are very popular with all the soldiers.

Yes, indeed it will be a day of wonderful rejoicing when we all greet dear old Carleton Place once more, but I do not permit myself to anticipate such a thing for yet a little while.

With very kind regards and at any time in the future that I can be of service please let me be.

Sincerely and hastily,
EVELYN M. WILSON.

The Ottawa Fair.

Now that the various railway lines have announced specially reduced fares for the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa from Sept. 9 to 15, it is certain that many people from Carleton Place and district will attend this exhibition which is the largest in Eastern Canada and which this year promises to be exceptionally fine. From the standpoint of industrial, agricultural and live stock displays, this fair has attained a remarkably high standard and the entries already in ensure that the same standard will be maintained both in quantity and quality. The programme of special attractions provides an entertainment which will eclipse all previous efforts. Novel and thrilling features have been secured. The stellar place is taken by Emil Laird, a daring American aviator who will give an aeroplane exhibition of looping the loop. At night a powerful searchlight will show the start and later a stream of illuminated smoke will show the course of his machine as he ascends thousands of feet in the air and then defies death by looping the loop. Another thrilling feature will be the daily balloon ascension, C. A. and Madame Farley both going up together from in front of the grandstand. The vaudeville features, nearly all of which has been leading acts at the New York Hippodrome, will also provide thrills as well as entertainment and laughter. The dare-devil Velo will ascend to a high platform from which he will ride down an incline of 170 feet, leaping over a double gap in a loop the loop. The Stantey brothers also provide a sensational whirling act. Other acts include: The Ledalle Comiques, in acrobatic stunts; Rice, Elmer and Thomas, three sailors in a carnival of fun; Morris and Morris in a laughable burlesque cab act; the Four Kings, the cleverest people on the road in a wonderful wire act; the Danube Brothers, a bar and casting act of unusual merit. Each evening there will be spectacular reproduction of the great Battle of Falkland Islands, in which Vice-Admiral Sturdee's British fleet sank the last remaining unit of the German warships at large on the High Seas. The fireworks, following the vaudeville and the Battle of the Falkland Islands, will be in a scale never before attempted in connection with the exhibition. Grand stand prices have been reduced this year to 25 cents.

A Way To Save Doctor Bills.

It's a matter of interest just now how one's physical condition can be got into shape to best receive the benefits of the summer season. Especially is this true of the children. They have become run down by a winter of unnatural manner of living because of ill-considered food and much time spent in doors. Spring comes with its sunshine, its fresh vegetables and all else invigorating, but the children are in no condition to receive nature's remedies. Many parents call in the family physician. Many parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does today. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

SHADOW EMBROIDERY.

How to Make This Fascinating Work on Blouse Fronts.

Not for many years has shadow embroidery been in favor, but this season one sees it here and there on many or-gandie and volle frocks. When the work is done in colors it is most effective.

As the flame indicates, the work is done on the wrong side of the material, and in order for its shadow to be visible on the right side the material must necessarily be thin and sheer. A practical idea if you intend to do the work in colors is to hold different shades of the color or colors you intend to use beneath your material. You can then tell how the finished work will look. The work done on the wrong side of the material is nothing more than the herringbone stitch. Learn how to do this. Practice on a sample of material before actually doing the work. To make the directions clear just imagine you are working on a long, narrow leaf. To make the herringbone stitch put the needle through at the left hand end of the lower line, slant the silk obliquely upward across the space to the upper line and take a short stitch from right to left on the upper line. With the same slant cross the silk to the lower line and take a second short stitch from right to left. Proceed in this manner across the space, keeping the slant true and the length of the stitch even.

Now, there is just one difference in the herringbone stitch and the stitch used for the shadow embroidery. That is that the stitches are placed closer together, so that a solid effect is gained on the right side. Aim to let the work on the right side show lines of little forward stitches of uniform size and exactly on the lines of the design.

If you desire to insert veins in the leaves these should be worked before the petal is covered on the wrong side. For the veins use the back stitch. French knots placed within the leaves and petals of a flower add materially to the effect of the shadow work.

Individuality in Dress.

The "maggie" effect, as it has come to be called, does not by any means imply a harsh and emphatic contrast of dead black and white, though this contrast is often used very effectively in tailored effects and in sport wear. There are any number of soft gradations of tone produced by veiling white with black lace or net, weaving white and black threads together, and the like. A well known French actress adheres rigidly to a particular color scheme in dress, and she wears nothing but black, white, blue and green, yet it is amazing how much variety there is in her wardrobe. Pearl, jet, silver, airy black tulle, rich black velvet, scintillating weaves of green and silver, white flowers with black or silver leaves—all these give her frocks and wraps a variety of color that is so entrancing that one never misses the pinks, yellows and lavenders worn by other women.

When Baking Cakes.

The richer a cake the more easily it is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and become a light brown color the heat should be lessened by shutting off the drafts a little or opening a cold air draft. Then continue to bake the cake until a pointed skewer or broom straw can be stuck into the middle and withdrawn without uncooked paste sticking to it.

FARM MANAGEMENT.

It Considers Farming as a Business and Looks for Efficiency.

The farm management investigator gets his information direct from the farmer. The solution of many of the practical problems of agriculture are found to have already been solved generations ago by large groups of farmers. Particularly is it true of farm management and organization. Every farmer is of necessity more or less of an experimenter. The results of thousands of such experiments gathered by the farm management investigator, classified and interpreted in their bearing on the community's problems and on the individual farm's problems, yield not only many fundamental, broadly applicable principles of good farm organization, but also show in more or less detail in just what respect a successfully operated farm differs from one which is a failure or only moderately successful.

In previous decades the agricultural investigator largely concerned himself with the study of how to accomplish certain ends—how best to feed a pig or a cow, how best to raise potatoes or fruit. The farm management investigator is concerned with determining whether to keep cows or pigs, whether to raise fruit or potatoes, and, if an industry be found to be desirable, to what extent it should enter into the farm organization and with what intensity it should be pursued. All of these problems have in the aggregate been solved by the farmers. Farm management is merely a science for classifying and interpreting the collective experience of the farming people as to what constitutes business efficiency in farming.

Farm management considers farming as a business. It attempts to analyze the various factors having to do with the success or failure of that business as it is found conducted on the individual farm and in so far as possible to determine the broad outstanding factors for efficiency which admit of general application for a region.

Handy Portable Fence.

Every farm where pigs and sheep are kept needs a few rods of a cheap, light, portable fence which will keep the pigs or lambs herded on rape or rye or other temporary pasture. Such a fence as that shown in the cuts is easy to make, will not blow over or be easily pushed out of place by pigs. The panels may be either twelve or sixteen feet long, made out of rough lumber four inches wide. The spaces between the slats are eight inches, making the panel four feet high. The bottom strip is left four inches from the ground, as shown in the cut, to hook into the notch B on the bottom piece of the triangle. The triangle is made of the same kind of lumber with a base six feet long and the notch B just high enough to catch the top slat of the panel. The panels have to lap about eight inches and are turned face to face so that the uprights of alternate panels face each way. The notches B and B have to be wide enough to receive the edges of two boards.

The overlapping of the ends of the panels makes a more secure fence than is often made by letting the ends of the top and bottom boards of the panel project six inches beyond the upright, as the uprights of the panel interlock and prevent the wind or the rooting of pigs separating the panels.

If sixteen foot boards are used the lumber for such a fence will cost not far from 40 cents a rod, which is a very reasonable cost for a fence that can be used in as many different ways as this.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Now German Citizen.

Houston Stewart Chamberlain, an author of English birth and son-in-law of Frau Cosima Wagner, has now legally become a German citizen, following his application for naturalization last April. Mr. Chamberlain has been a resident of Bayreuth for many years.

Houston Stewart Chamberlain, whose father was a British rear-admiral, married Eva, reputed to be the eldest daughter of Richard Wagner, the composer, until Frau Cosima Wagner declared several years ago that Mrs. Chamberlain was the child of her first husband, Hans von Bulow.

In several of his articles Mr. Chamberlain has supported the cause of Germany and held that Great Britain was responsible for the war. The Iron Cross was conferred on him by Emperor William last year.

"Bravo, Highflyer!"

Application was made in the Prize Court on behalf of the officers and crew of H.M.S. Highflyer for £2,580 prize bounty for the sinking of the German auxiliary cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse on the West African coast. For this success, in the first month of the war, the Admiralty sent the message beginning, "Bravo! You have rendered a service not only to Britain, but to the peaceful commerce of the world." It was shown that the vessel was sister ship to the Kronprinz Wilhelm, which had a crew of 516, and £2,580 was therefore awarded on the basis of this number of Germans in the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse at £5 a head.

The Manure Heap.

The manure heap is a scene of bacterial activities. When it lies very long the nitrogen is transformed into ammonia and escapes. When it escapes it is gone forever. Some of the manure changes into nitrates, and these are washed away and lost if the manure heap is uncovered. Nitrates are soluble, and when they are washed away the farm loses all their value. A part of the nitrates are attacked by bacteria and become nitrogen gas.

For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well.

Mrs. G. B. Horton and children have returned from several weeks' visit with friends at the Soo and Sudbury.

Mr. R. C. Tash delivered 300 bushels of wheat in town last week for which he received over $400. Had he sold on an earlier market he would probably have dropped a hundred dollars. All of successful farming is evidently not simply growing the stuff.

Roy, the fifteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Horton, of Medicine Hat, Alta., who was with his mother and brother on a visit with friends in Almonte, succumbed to an attack of pneumonia on Monday of this week.

A gang of C.P.R. workmen a few days ago gave an exhibition of what can be accomplished by having a little sand. The stone station erected here a few years ago had accumulated a considerable quantity of dust and dirt which detracted greatly from its former tasty appearance. With compressed air provided by a locomotive standing on the track and conveyed by rubber hose to a small nozzle, the sand was shot against the accumulation of disfiguring dirt, and the building was made to look as bright and clean as when first erected.

The Almonte fire brigade was presented with a cheque for $25 by Mrs. J. M. Bell for the services rendered by them at the recent fire, thus showing appreciation of the aid given by the firemen.

Carl, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. McFadyen, had the misfortune to have his foot caught in the machinery in No. 1 mill and it was badly bruised and cut, and it required five stitches to close the wound. He will be confined to his home for five or six weeks.

There were two operations for appendicitis performed in the B.M. hospital on Sunday last. Mr. Alex. McLean, son of Mr. A. J. McLean, was taken to the hospital in the forenoon, and was operated upon by a local surgeon, and is now progressing favorably. The other case was that of Miss Jennie Boyle, second daughter of Mrs. W. H. Boyle.

A few weeks ago Miss Dorothy Moore, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Moore of Ramsay, cut her foot, but nothing was thought of it until a few days later when she complained of a pain in her ankle. On examination it was found that blood poisoning had developed and this was followed by lockjaw. Everything possible in the medical and nursing line was done to relieve her suffering, and for a time some slight hopes were entertained for her recovery. Friday morning, however, she became worse, and passed to rest.

After an illness extending over a year, which gradually wasted his vitality, Mr. M. L. Hogan passed away on Friday last, somewhat suddenly, as he had been going about until only a couple of days previously. The late Mr. Hogan was a son of Mr. Patrick Hogan, and was born in Ramsay, 47 years ago. He came to Almonte about 35 years ago, and has since been a resident, and spent 20 years in the employ of the Rosamond Woolen Co., until illness compelled him to resign. About twenty-two years ago he was married to Miss Pauline Letang, and to them two sons, Leo and Lorne, were born, both of whom are serving their country as members of the 10th Battalion. Mr. Hogan's mother died about a year ago, but his father and four brothers and three sisters are living.

Six Toronto men won war medals in recent fighting.

The Northern Ontario fire relief fund now amounts to $257,656.

General Maxwell was exonerated from all blame for the executions in Dublin.

The Premiers of Britain and France agreed on a financial arrangement in a conference at Calais.

The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia upholds the prohibition act recently passed by the Legislature.

A fifteen-months-old baby had its left foot severed when he was pushed under a troop train at West Toronto. Representatives of municipalities in Ontario county expressed their approval, at a meeting in Uxbridge, of a county good roads system.

Mrs. P. B. Whiteley and Mr. Michael J. Powell, of Prescott, are believed to have been drowned when their motor boat took fire Thursday night, her hat being found on Friday.

The Quebec police arrested Cotton Taylor, 28, who escaped from the penitentiary at McCallister, Okla., where he was serving a life term for murder committed eight years ago.

Mr. E. Middleton, Kingston road, has been presented with the Canadian Humane Society's bronze medal in recognition of his saving thirteen sailors of the wrecked freighter Alexandra off Scarborough Bluffs, August 3th last year.

ITALY DECLARES WAR

She is Now in Direct Conflict With Germany.

Germany's Aid to Austria Forced Italy to Declare Hostilities—Announcement "Causes Great Demonstrations in Rome—Baron Sonnino Delivers the Message Through Switzerland.

ROME, Aug. 28.—Italy to-day is at war with Germany. The declaration of hostilities was made by Italy. Following information that it had reached the Imperial German Government through Switzerland, announcement of the Government's action was made here late Sunday.

The intolerable situation created by the fact that Italy was at war with Germany's ally and the fact that Germany loaned all possible support to that ally, Austria-Hungary, against Italians and their interests, led the Government to its decision. That decision was made public in the following announcement:

"The Italian Government declares in the name of the King that Italy considers herself to be in a state of war with Germany as from August 28, and begs the Swiss Government to convey this information to the Imperial German Government."

The complete cessation of all communication between Italy and Germany brought about by the Austro-Italian war, made it necessary for Italy to convey through Switzerland her declaration of war to Germany. It is believed here that Rumania, with which nation Italy long has had an entente, will follow the Italian Government in a declaration of war against the Central Empires and their allies.

The Giornale D'Italia, commenting on the declaration of war on Germany, says:

"Public opinion has been long impatiently awaiting war against Germany, and is now fully satisfied. The declaration constitutes an act of sincerity and loyalty towards the Allies and a proof of our deep faith in their final victory."

Idea Nationale says: "Italy rejoices over the end of an equivocal and humiliating situation, and is welcoming the opportunity openly to fight the common enemy to the finish."

Following a meeting of the Cabinet, the official announcement of a state of war between Italy and Germany was made. A statement, giving the reasons for the action of the Italian Government, also was given out by Baron Sonnino, Minister of Foreign Affairs. It is in the form of a communication to Switzerland, a neutral, and was transmitted through the Italian Minister at Bern.

"The hostile acts of Germany toward Italy have become more frequent. Suffice it to mention the persistent military aid rendered to Austria, and the constant participation of German officers, soldiers, and sailors in the war against Italy."

"Owing to German help Austria-Hungary was enabled to concentrate her maximum efforts against Italy. Germany gave up Italian prisoners who had escaped from Austrian concentration camps into German territory. The Imperial Government instructed the banks to consider Italians as enemies, stopping payments and also stopping pensions due Italian workmen, violating the law openly and revealing systematic hostility."

"This state of things was intolerable, aggravating and wholly to Italy's detriment, the situation resulting from the fact that Italy and Germany are allied to different groups of States at war."

"For these reasons the Italian Government declared in the name of the King that Italy considers herself in a state of war with Germany from August 28, requesting the Swiss Government to inform Germany."

The announcement of war with Germany had the most cheering effect possible on the people. Great crowds formed in the streets immediately the news became public and processions were started in many sections of Rome. Reports from the provincial cities tell of equal rejoicing throughout the nation.

MUCH TERRITORY GAINED.

Grand Duke's Troops Have Made a Further Advance.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The official statement from Petrograd of the Russian operations on the Caucasus front announces that a very considerable amount of territory has been recaptured from the Turks as a result of the recently inaugurated offensive which was begun by the forces of the Grand Duke, and a further advance has been made. In the direction of Diarbekr stubborn fighting continues, the report states. The Russian columns have reached the Masladarski River, which flows into the Euphrates east of the village of Nurik.

New Zealand's War Tax.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—A radical scheme of war taxation is outlined in the second war budget, which has been presented to the New Zealand House of Representatives, according to a report presented to the Trade and Commerce Department by Commissioner Beddoe, of Auckland. An income tax and a 45 per cent. tax on all profits realized from war conditions are among the measures proposed.

Kent Good Roads Plans.

CHATHAM, Aug. 28.—A special roads committee of the County Council has returned from Wayne County, Michigan, where concrete highways were inspected. The committee gained valuable information and will report at the December session. It is expected that some definite action will be taken at that time by the Council towards adopting a good roads scheme for Kent County.

LANARK.

From the Era.

Capt. T. R. Caldwell left on Saturday after a month's furlough at home, to rejoin the 21st Batt. at the front.

Dr. Cameron leaves to-morrow for New York to take a post graduate course in surgery and will be away until the first week in October. During his absence, Dr. Scott will attend to his patients.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Nicholas Hall, who died on Friday morning last, was held from St. Peter's Church, Fallbrook, last Monday afternoon, to the burying ground of St. Stephen's Church, Bathurst, the services being conducted by the Rev. C. C. Phillips. For the past year Mrs. Hall, who had attained the ripe old age of 80 years, had been almost a constant sufferer from cancer of the stomach, a malady which, though full of torture at times, she had nevertheless borne with Christian fortitude and courage.

"Jack" White, aged 10 years, son of Mr. Noble White, was operated on for appendicitis early Sunday morning by Dr. Cameron assisted by Drs. Scott and Downing. The little lad is getting along as well as could be expected.

About four o'clock last Tuesday afternoon a storm of unparalleled violence visited the town. Much damage was done to property. Part of the tin roof on the factory buildings was blown off and carried forward in the direction of the main street, and lodged high up in a maple tree in front of Mr. Grierson's office. The heavy covering on the stone wall at Boyd Caldwell & Co's store yard was lifted bodily into the middle of the street; Mr. Pepper's sign, supported on two pine squares 6x8, was hurled to the ground, the timbers snapping like matchwood, numbers of trees were torn down, glass windows smashed, and other minor damage caused by the tornado. Rain fell in sheets, completely obscuring the view across the street. In point of intensity nothing like it has ever been seen in Lanark, as far as the oldest inhabitant can remember. It came from the northwest, its ominous approach being viewed from the village about half an hour before it burst. Many trees fell across the roads leading to the village and traffic was stopped for a few hours.

Mr. Gladstone McIntyre, of Chicago, is visiting his uncle, Mr. J. N. Dobbie, at the Clyde Hotel.

Misses Mabel and Lillie Sheppard, of Hamilton, are spending their vacation at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Alex. Sheppard, Ferguson's Falls.

Misses Edith Robertson and Louise Smith, of Toronto, are holidaying at Dalhousie Lake, guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Robertson.

Provost Marshal Thos. A. Mason, of the 240th Batt., is spending a few days' leave of absence with his wife and family among relatives at Lakeside.

Captain James L. P. McLaren, son of Senator McLaren, was in town yesterday clad in the uniform of the king. He is recruiting for the 28th Forestry Battalion. Captain James looks well as a military officer.

Pte. J. M. McLaughlin, who was with the Queen's General Hospital in Egypt and later in France, is now at Shorncliffe Camp, England, qualifying for a commission in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Seven other arts students of Queen's are also qualifying for commissions. "Max" has been hoping for some time to get into the firing line and now his wish will likely soon be granted.

Relatives here received word last week of the death of Max James A. Crawford, which occurred at Brockville on Monday, Aug. 7th. Deceased was a native of Lanark, born here 68 years ago.

Sad news came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wright last Saturday when a telegram was received from Port Arthur stating that their son Charles had been drowned at Silver Islet.

Clyde Hall was open to all Lanark friends last Saturday afternoon, on the occasion of an At Home held by Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Caldwell, to meet Captain "Tom" Caldwell home on leave from the front. From four until seven streams of visitors made way to the Hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell and Captain "Tom," assisted by a number of lady friends, received. The day was perfect, bright sunshine tempered by a light breeze illustrating Canadian weather in its most happy state.

The avenue leading to the Hall displayed along its entire length a profusion of decoration, mostly patriotic in its offering, and contrasting pleasantly in its richness and variety of coloring with the deep olive green of the trees and the shrubbery. The compelling natural beauty of the surroundings, trained into almost tropical fashion by the hand of a master florist seemed to look more charming than ever and gave rise to a remark that it was a perfect place for a perfect day. Groups of children made merry over the lawn and ventured near the spraying fountain which played upon the green. What a great contrast this summer picture of a lovely country home seemed to the picture that arose in one's imagination of the trenches whence had come the one in whose honor the occasion was being held! All was laughter and gladness here and over there—well, what's the gain in making a harrowing tale over the hardships of the boys.

In addition to Captain Tom, a sprinkling of khaki gave point to the gathering—Colonel A. Clyde Caldwell, Captain William R. Caldwell, Lieutenant Lloyd Affleck, and a number of young recruits representing Queen's Field Ambulance Corps. There was much handshaking and well-wishing, and chatting and feasting, and the unanimous sentiment of the day was of rejoicing at the meeting of friend with friend. In a few days Captain Caldwell sails from Halifax for England to report for duty. His furlough has been a short one, and among the very many happy recollections of his stay none will be more vivid or more enduring than the memory of meeting all his home friends at Clyde Hall.

BULGARS SEIZE KAVALA.

Greek Post on Aegean Sea in Hands of Enemy.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Bulgarian forces have seized the Greek port of Kavala on the Aegean Sea and all but one of its defending forts. An official communication from Salonica announces that they already have been brought under the fire of allied warships, two monitors and a British cruiser taking part in the bombardment.

The Greek fort of Startila also has been seized by the invaders, according to a despatch to the Paris Matin. The garrison is said to have been wiped out. This and the other Bulgarian incursions is reported to have so aroused the Greek populace that the Government feels uneasy. The Government is also much worried about a meeting of Venizelists scheduled to be held in Athens Monday.

Demonstrations in favor of Venizelos are being held in many parts of the country, it is reported, and the ranks of the Liberal party are being swelled by many persons who, until the invasion of Greece by her hereditary enemies, the Bulgarians, were supporters of the Government's position.

Extending their seizures along the coast, the Bulgars, according to a report from Sofia, are closing in on Orfano, extreme tip of the allied right wing. British advanced forces have been pressed in towards the town, and the invaders have reached the Lakovitz-Dedeballi-Arksali-Mentechilli line.

The Bulgarian advance in the valley of the Struma also continues, according to an official statement from Berlin, and the invaders are nearing the mouth of the river, at the Gulf of Orfano. The opposition so far to the Bulgarians in this region has not been marked.

On the other wing, however, in the Ostrovo region, one of the most sanguinary campaigns of the war is being waged between Bulgars and Serbs. While in some sectors the invaders report gains, on the front as a whole, General Serrail, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, announces they are suffering sanguinary repulses. In the Vardar region also, heavy losses have been inflicted on the invaders by the Serbian artillery.

"Despite German assurances to Greece that Seres, Drama, and Kavala would not be occupied by the Bulgarians," says Reuter's Salonica correspondent, "an order sent last Tuesday to the commander of the forts at Kavala said if the Bulgars advanced the forts were to be handed over to them. Friday the Bulgars entered the town and took possession of the forts. British warships in the harbor then opened fire on the forts, but details of the results of the fighting are not permitted to be sent."

The French and British Ministers Sunday evening asked Premier Zaimis how far the Greek Government purposed to countenance the Bulgarian advance without resistance, pointing out that it would be of no military interest to the Entente powers to defend Central Thessaly from invasion, as Salonica was supplied from the sea, and could not be cut off by land.

The embarrassment of the Greek Government grows hourly in the face of popular resentment against the Bulgarian invasion.

ENCIRCLING THIEPVAL

British Are Steadily Gaining in the Somme Sector.

Leipzig Redoubt and Village of Thiepval, Which Are the Strongest Points in the German Line, Are Being Worn Down—Prussian Guard Has Been Sent to Hold the Positions but Without Success.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The two most powerfully fortified German positions north of the Somme—Thiepval and the Leipzig redoubt—are slowly being won by the British. Despite the utmost efforts of the Teutons to win back their lost ground in these two vital sectors, General Haig's territorial troops not only are repulsing all German attacks, but are steadily increasing their gains. They have won a further 600 yards of trenches along the Thiepval-Courcellette road and, despite the great concentration of German troops in the neighborhood have further pressed in both east and south-west of Mouquet farm.

The Prussian Guard, proudest corps of the Fatherland, has been sent to the threatened front, but despite their most desperate efforts have been unable to win back any of the important terrain which has been taken in the British advance, according to reports from General Haig.

Attacks were delivered not only in the Thiepval region, but against the British lines west of Guillemont and the French front south of Maurepas. All these attacks were repulsed.

Hand-to-hand fighting of the greatest violence continued throughout Saturday around the ruins of the Mouquet farm, General Haig reports. On this sector, as well as in the trenches south of Thiepval, Worcestershire and Wiltshire men hold the British lines. It was these troops who repulsed the Prussian Guard.

Following heavy fighting during the greater part of Saturday night, there was little but artillery activity on the Somme front Sunday, bad weather hindering operations. The British in a strong attack Saturday evening gained a further 200 yards of trench north of Bazentin-le-Petit, capturing a machine gun. For the greater part, however, all attacks on both sides resulted in no change of front.

German surprise attacks in the Arracourt sector, in Lorraine and in the Apremont forest were repulsed, Paris announces, while at Verdun there was only artillery fighting. In several sectors, especially on the Thiaumont-Fléury line, the big gun duels reached a high pitch of intensity.

Repulse of a German attempt to penetrate the Belgian lines is recorded in an official statement from Belgian headquarters at Havre. It says: "After violent preparation by their bomb throwers the Germans last evening attempted to cross the canal near Het Sas and penetrate our lines. Our barrier and machine gun fire repulsed them with heavy losses."

Nine German aeroplanes have been shot down by the French and British at various points on the western front in the last two days, according to official reports. German attempts at an offensive north-east of Verdun came to nothing, says the War Office at Paris.

A semi-official announcement issued in Berlin Sunday says that between February 21 and July 20 there were engaged in the Verdun sector 66 divisions (nearly 800,000 men) of French troops. In the battle of the Somme, the announcement says, the French thus far have engaged 23 divisions and the British 37.

POUNDING AT RIGA.

Russian Armies Begin a New Offensive in the East.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Russians, who for some time had remained quiescent in the Riga region, have again started an offensive against the Germans. Efforts were made by them to cross the Dvina River south-east of Riga, and near Friedrichstadt, but both attempts failed, according to Berlin. On the remainder of the Russian front no fighting of importance has been reported.

While the Russian drive for Kovel and Lemberg has not been resumed—for what reason Petrograd gives no hint—Czar's troops continue to push steadily forward in the foothills of the Carpathians.

Striking west of the Jablonitz Pass, which they now control, the Russians seized the village of Guta and reached the sources of the two Bystritsa Rivers. These gains were made in the bordering of the Pantyr Pass. Continuation of the advance here will give the Czar's troops another road into Hungary.

Petrograd also chronicles a fresh advance for the Russians at Koverla mountain, near the Hungarian border.

John Palo, a barber, is slightly injured; and Peter Milton, proprietor of the Canadian Northern Hotel, is slightly injured and under arrest.

PALE, WEAK GIRLS.

Grow Into Weak Despondent Women—How to Overcome the Trouble.

Healthy Girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The passing from girlhood to womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the blood that makes growing girls suffer from headaches and backaches, from paleness and weakness and weariness, from languor, despondency and constant ill health. Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood building qualities of Dr. William's Pink Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womanhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. William's Pink Pills actually make new, rich blood to meet these new demands. In this simple, scientific way Dr. William's Pink Pills give growing girls new health, and makes their dawning womanhood bright and attractive. Miss A. Sternberg, Haileybury Road, New Liskeard, Ont., says:

"I have much reason to be grateful to Dr. William's Pink Pills as they restored me to health, if indeed, they did not save my life. In 1914 I began to feel run down, and the doctor who was called in said that mine was a bad case of anemia. I lost flesh, always felt tired, and got so nervous that I could scarcely hold a cup to take a drink. My heart would flutter alarmingly. The doctor did not seem to be able to help me at all and my family and friends all thought that I was in a decline and could not recover. I was in bed for some weeks when an aunt came to see me and urged that I try Dr. William's Pink Pills. My father got a supply, and by the time I had taken three boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and from that on I steadily progressed toward recovery. I continued using the pills for some time longer, and they restored me to my old time health and strength. I shall never cease to praise this medicine, and to urge all weak run down girls to give it a fair trial, as I have proved in my own case their great need."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. William's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Count Andrássy Is

Striving to Maintain

Integrity of Hungary

COUNT JULIUS ANDRÁSSY, the strong pro-German, has refused to succeed Baron von Burian as Austrian Foreign Minister without guarantees from the Emperor that the political integrity of Hungary shall be respected, according to a Rome despatch received in London. The despatch says the Emperor hesitates to grant such guarantees.

Reports from Vienna, by way of Genoa, state that Baron von Burian has already resigned, but no official confirmation of his resignation has been received in London. Keen interest is shown in the possibility of Count Andrássy taking office as Foreign Minister, as he is supposed to be a strong advocate of Austria making a separate peace, and was formerly credited with being a warm admirer of Britain and British institutions.

The announcement in Bucharest that Germany has offered territory to Roumania in exchange for neutrality has a direct relation to the highly crucial condition of affairs in the Vienna Government. The visit of the German Chancellor and Foreign Secretary to Vienna for a conference with the Emperor Franz Joseph and his advisers, has sensational importance. One of the outcomes is a decision to declare independence for the Poles. That is, Austria is compelled to announce that it is willing to give up Galicia, part of the medieval Polish kingdom, to a Polish authority. Since the Russians are fast closing on Lemberg, the capital, the renunciation comes easier to Austria.

The high conference at Vienna also considered the turning of Transylvania, or a part of it, over to Roumania. Hungary would thereby be shorn of one of its richest provinces. That is why the Hungarian leaders, Count Andrássy, for instance, are insisting at Vienna that the integrity of Hungary be guaranteed by Austria and Germany. Andrássy took a very anti-German attitude when the Berlin proposals for a Customs union of the Dual Empire with Germany were being discussed. In office in Vienna, Andrássy would not be more friendly to German pretensions than Burian, whom he would succeed. It is reported also that German troops are going to take over the defence of Trieste. German troops have already been called to stiffen the Austrian lines in the East, but the occupation of Trieste by German defenders would be an open confession that Austria no longer is able to defend itself on both sides. The weight of Austria-Hungary's distress is bearing heavily upon the Germans, and the time has come when the fact must be disclosed.

The desire of the German dictators to sacrifice Transylvania will not tend to smooth relations with the proud Magyars. The independence party, under Karolyi, will have new reason for being.

Famous Literary Fraud.

One hundred and fifty-two years ago died the most famous literary impostor in history. George Psalmanazar appeared successively in the guise of Frenchman, Irishman, a Japanese convert to Christianity, then an unconverted Jap living on raw flesh, roots and herbs, and finally as a Formosan, until he acknowledged his many deceptions. He was a clever man, with a remarkable aptitude for languages, says the London Chronicle, and was the concocter of an imaginary religion, which he produced as the religion of the Formosans. He deceived the archbishops and the bishops of England, as well as the fellows of the Royal Society. When his forgeries and impostures were discovered he earned his living as a hack writer, and assisted in compiling the "Universal History," to which he contributed several important items.

Troops' Sufferings Drive Duke Insane

The Kaiser's only son-in-law, Duke Ernest of Brunswick, is said to have gone hopelessly insane at the sight of the sufferings of the men of his regiment during the campaign in Russia. The young Duke, who is a cousin of Christian of Denmark, will be sent on a visit to the Danish court, where it is hoped cheerful surroundings will cure him of the insanity from which he is suffering.

DIED IN DRESS CLOTHES.

Junior Cadets of St. Cyr Gave Lives in Full Uniform.

The glorious heroism displayed at the beginning of the war by the students of the military school of St. Cyr, which is the Sandhurst of France, was revealed in the course of a lecture delivered in London by M. Maurice Barres.

The annual promotion of young officers at the Saint Cyr school of July 31, 1914—just as the war was beginning—was the occasion of a remarkable demonstration of patriotism. Not only the men who had just received their commissions in the French army and were about to leave the school, but also the junior students who still had another year of studies before them, swore on that occasion that they would proceed to the front and go into action to receive their baptism of fire wearing their full dress uniforms with patent leather boots, white kid gloves and plumed kepis. They all kept their word, and were killed almost to the last man, the Germans having no trouble in picking them out on account of their conspicuous dress.

"Foolish valor though it may have been," added M. Barres, "it was yet in accord with the traditional spirit of France, and symbolized the enthusiasm with which the entire nation arose to defend its own existence."

The present-day reputation of M. Barres as a patriotic writer, and especially of course as the literary mouthpiece of the French passion for the redemption of Lorraine, is only the latest phase in a varied career. M. Barres, who was born in the early sixties, was well known when a young man as the leader of a literary school of brilliant individualists. He is a Conservative, and was a supporter of Boulanger and an enemy of Dreyfus.

His name as the champion of the French population in Alsace-Lorraine dates from the early nineties, when there began a remarkable revival of the agitation for the reconquest of the lost provinces. In books like "Colette Baudouche" and "Au Service de l'Allemagne" he made a profoundly subtle and sympathetic study of the moral sufferings of the French under the German yoke. He has done more than any other writer to keep the fierce desire for liberation alive in France.

The growth of the movement in Alsace-Lorraine in the last twenty years has been due chiefly to the increasing intolerance of German administration, and it is remarkable that the younger generation of the French population, in German Lorraine especially, are more French in their sympathies than were their parents. M. Barres was deputy for Nancy from 1889 to 1893. Although he was born in Lorraine, he comes of an Auvergnat family.

Continuing his lecture, M. Barres said one thing only counted—that France should no longer be a beaten nation. The Franco-German war of 1871 was born during the forty years she had passed under the menace of Germany. Sorrow, long humiliation, exploded at last in hope. M. Barres went on:

"With the older men it was otherwise. Men of 40, fathers of families, do not rush to death with the same careless gallantry that marks youths of 18. 'Gemeins, spero,' was their device, but they knew whereof they fought, and their sacrifice was not less noble for being made with deliberate heroism. At first there existed a shadow of sane cultism among these citizen-soldiers, an excessive feeling of independence. But in face of the common danger it ripened, and was ennobled."

"These men continued to look upon each other with a severely critical eye, but took for their standard of judgment the services rendered by each to the common weal. They respected true superiority, that of the heart and that of the mind. Between them and their chiefs there grew up a respectful brotherhood. As one of them, an international Socialist, wrote, 'Has not our internationalist faith been justified, seeing that it inspired our will to save France? They all felt the need and the pride of shedding their blood for a just cause. To perceive the height of moral feeling which they reached we must understand the symbolic action of the heroic Lieut.-Col. Driant, who at the risk of his life crawled to a wounded lieutenant, and under the enemy's fire received his confession and gave him absolution. Thus military units acquired a collective soul and lived in an atmosphere in which saints are born. A regiment, 3,200 strong, spick and span, passed on its way to the trenches the remnant of another regiment reduced to 250 men and commanded by a captain. Torn, muddy, wounded, worn out, these returning heroes cried to the newcomers, 'We have thrashed them.' As we went forward," wrote one of the 3,200, "moved to the depths of our being, to take their places, they disappeared with their weary triumphant step. That day I understood 'La beauté de la Gloire.'"

The Oldest Tidal Mill.

Cams Mill, Fareham, Hants, is said to be the oldest tidal mill in England. It was used until a few years ago, but now it is in disrepair and may, the committee says, even collapse, it is feared, unless some timely help is forthcoming. It is a charming and interesting building, and in more prosperous times no doubt it would have been well looked after, but in the prevailing circumstances it is a difficult case to tackle. However, the lessee of the adjoining property has the interest of the old mill at heart, and if it is possible to save it the committee feels sure every effort will be made.

THE ISLAND OF WONDERLAND

(1) James Bay Embankment and C.P.R. Hotel, Victoria, B.C.
(2) On the way to Cameron Lake, Vancouver Island.
(3) Fishing on Cowichan River, Vancouver Island.

EVERY year a larger and ever increasing number of motorists, and those who wish to spend their vacations in an entire change of environment, make their way to the Island of Vancouver—the gateway of which is Victoria, the capital city of British Columbia—the best known tourist resort in the Pacific Northwest. It is entirely different from any other territory known to automobilists. True, it is in Canada, and reached by the Canadian Pacific via road and magnificently appointed steamers, but it is as British as if it were one of the British Isles. This is realized immediately one lands from the steamer in Victoria, and by the way this very landing is interesting and affords an excellent example of the courtesy of Canadian customs officials, and the extreme ease with its automobilists, who are residents of the United States, can enter into this, to them, foreign country.

But to return to one's first impressions upon leaving the steamer at Victoria. As the steamer glides to her berth through the unique Inner Harbor, considered one of the most picturesque in the world, there immediately looms up on the right, the magnificent Parliament buildings of British Columbia—one of the architectural features of Canada. They are situated overlooking the harbor, facing James Bay embankment and the City of Victoria.

The six-horse tally-hos and the thirty-passenger and smaller sight-seeing cars lined up on the side streets, all competing for business in a vigorous, and somewhat unfamiliar manner, is another indication that we have within a short space of five hours, been transplanted into a new and invigorating environment. The City of Victoria is the starting point of the island highway, which brings the automobilist in close touch with the main portion of Vancouver Island, and all its summer and fishing resorts; its quaint villages, enterprising towns, agricultural settlements, wonderful forests, reached by tributary highways, and the commencement of the Canadian highway, the terminus of which is at Alberni.

It is an easy matter to spend a week in the City of Victoria, and to take an entirely separate and distinct, and at the same time most interesting tour, every day. In fact, during this past summer, enthusiastic automobilists from California, Utah, Washington, Oregon, and even Eastern Canada spent from two to five weeks in this city and island, and left with the greatest possible regret.

Mr. Frederick Wagner, in the Seattle Times, thus describes his first visit to Victoria and the Island:

"Picturesque and rugged in its matchless beauty of unlimited variety; wealthy in magnificent driveways and offering unsurpassed hotel accommodations, with lavish hospitality ever conspicuously present—that is Vancouver Island, in the Canadian province of British Columbia, paradise of motorists and nature lovers, and destined to rank as one of the world's greatest touring fields. 'Nature painted the gorgeous setting for this scenic wonderland, and the people of Vancouver Island have capitalized it by constructing a system of splendid highways that is dotted with attractive hotels where excellent accommodations are to be obtained. And they have supplemented this work by a display of genuine hospitality that is justly entitled to be classed as a valuable asset in the exploitation of their country."

"The chain of mountains that penetrates Vancouver Island and the beautiful valleys, with their numerous streams, lakes and luxuriant vegetation, combine to set before the eyes of the traveller a variety of scenic splendor that beggars description."

"Go where you will on Vancouver Island and you will find scenery that causes you to marvel at the lavishness of nature."

"The coastline of the island is very beautiful, being indented with deep bays and flurds. The western coast differs somewhat from the eastern coastline, for on the ocean side a number of canals reach far inland, as if to aid the miner and the lumberman to get his product to market with ease; while on the other side of the island there are many pleasant bays and several beaches, where summer homes and resorts are to be found."

Col. Churchill urged Britain to prepare for a protracted war.

Prof. Thomas Gregor Brodie, of the University of Toronto, died suddenly in London.

Wallace Dixon, aged nineteen, was instantly killed by lightning at Hesler, while standing in the doorway of a log cabin clubhouse, where he and his companions had taken shelter.

The first $100,000 for loans to New Ontario settlers has been appropriated.

The Brown-Elwood Commission exonerates the Saskatchewan Government, and each accused member of it, of the charges laid by J. E. Bradshaw in connection with the Government's abolition of the bar measure of 1913, but finds four private members guilty of the charges against them.

Toronto's death rate this summer is lower than the average.

Pong Buck Len, a Chinaman, 21 years of age, was drowned in the lake at Toronto while swimming.

The Quebec police arrested Cotton Taylor, 28, who escaped from the penitentiary at McCallister, Okla., where he was serving a life term for murder committed eight years ago.

As he walked toward the automobile he leaned heavily on the arm of his attendant. His exertions in getting into the automobile seemed to exhaust him. He told friends he was not sick. JERUSALEM IN WAR TIMES.

Fast's Hotel a Meeting Place for Prussian Bloods.

To Western minds the idea of the Holy City serving as a base for modern military operations must be full of incongruities. And, as a matter of fact, it was a amazing thing to see the streets packed with khaki-clad soldiers and hear the brooding silence of ancient walls shattered by the crash of steel-shod army boots. Here, for the first time, I saw the German officers—quantities of them. Strangely out of place they looked, with their pink-and-whiteness that no amount of hot sunshine could quite burn off. They wore the regular German officer's uniform, except that the Pickelhaube was replaced by a khaki sunhelmet. I was struck by the youthfulness of them; many were nothing but boys, and there were weak, dissolute faces in plenty—a fact that was later explained when I heard that Palestine had been made the dumping ground for young men of high family whose parents were anxious to have them as far removed as possible from the danger zone. Fast's Hotel was the great meeting-place in Jerusalem for these young bloods. Every evening thirty or forty would foregather there, to drink and talk women and strategy. I well remember the evening when one of them—a slender young Prussian with no back to his head, braceleted and monocled—rose and announced, in the decisive tones that go with a certain stage of intoxication:

"What we ought to do is to hand over the organization of this campaign to Thomas Cook and Sons!"—August Atlantic.

A TALE of RED ROSES

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

"Well, Glider, tell us about it," invited Bendix as Marley went out. "I want you to tell me," laughed Glider, in happy unconsciousness that he was a deadly offense to Sledge, who called him "pretty," "is the Ridgewood avenue extension a sure go?" "Why do you want to know?" inquired Bendix. "I have a little speculation in mind which depends on it," confessed Glider. "Subdivision at the end of the line, I suppose," guessed Bendix. "Well, yes," acknowledged Glider. "Foxy of you to think of it," applauded Bendix. "Your only fault is that you don't guess those things first. Who do you suppose would acquire a deed to that land before the extension was publicly announced?" "I know the answer," returned Glider, crestfallen, but still handsome; "you fellows." "Certainly not," denied Bendix. "But some friend of the family—yes, maybe. How much will you give for the land?" "I'm not at liberty to state," replied Glider uncomfortably. "The owner made me a price on it this morning, but it was confidential." "The owner didn't know he was tagged," retorted Bendix dryly. "You may have the land, I think, for twenty thousand, Glider, but you'll have to speak quick." "Twenty thousand!" gasped Glider. "Why, old Porson offered it to me for eight." "That's what we intend to pay him." "Give me a day or two to think it over," begged Glider. "All right; you're on," agreed Bendix and hurried out of the room. Bert was about to follow him when Sledge called. "Glider," was his peremptory summons, "what kind of flowers does Molly Marley like?" Bert Glider almost stuck the ash end of his cigar in his mouth, then suddenly upbraided himself for a fool as he mentally complimented Sledge on deserving his reputation of being the most astute politician in the state. "Red roses," he promptly returned and twirled the right hand curl of his mustache. He stopped that process abruptly and felt of the curl with deep concern. One of the hairs was disarranged, and he fixed it with the aid of a vest pocket mirror. "Thanks," said Sledge and resumed his interested inspection of the hand hole in the gate. Sledge looked out of the window for long moments of thick silence, and then he expressed his thoughts on a plot in hand in this fashion: "Say, Bendix, send a load of roses out to Molly Marley for her party tomorrow night, the reddest ones they've got."

CHAPTER II.

Molly invites an Additional Guest. "WHERE are the red roses, Molly?" asked Bert Glider as he walked into the reception parlor of Marley's pretentious big house that night. "I don't know," replied Molly, much concerned. "Did you send some?" "No, but I thought some were to be sent to you," laughed Bert. "It's too good to keep, Fern. By the way, that Fern just slipped, and you'll have to pardon me for it. It's Molly's fault. She never called you anything else." "Who is it?" demanded Molly, more eager to hear the news than he liked to see. "The information is highly important, if true, and I must not be kept in suspense." "Hold on to something, then," he warned her. "One, two, three—Sledge!" "Sledge!" she repeated. "What? That great big?" She paused for lack of words, and her face flamed suddenly scarlet with indignation. "Sledge," he joyously insisted, and then, to the puzzled Fern, "You remember the big fellow whose car stopped just abreast us last night?" Mr. Glider, who as a boy had been an expert in pulling the wings from flies, went straight on with the slaughter, seizing immediately the glorious opportunity which presented itself when Mr. Marley, brave in smoking jacket and pumps, sauntered into the parlor. "Great news, Marley!" hailed Bert, beaming with delight upon the joyous laughter of Fern. "Molly has captured a new honor for the family. Whose do you suppose is the latest scalp at her belt?" "It might be almost anybody," returned Marley, who felt that his motherless daughter's popularity reflected somehow on himself. "Who is the particular victim you have in mind?" and he laughed in advance. "Sledge!" exploded Bert. "By the way, Marley, he gave you a hint of it too. Didn't he ask you today while I was there for an invitation to Molly's party tomorrow night or something like that?"

"Well, not exactly, but he did throw out some pretty strong hints," acknowledged Marley with a grin, entering into the joyous spirit of the occasion. "He asked permission to call on Molly. I told him that was up to her." "How unusually considerate!" observed Molly, biting her lips to suppress the rising fury which had driven the blushes from her cheeks and left them almost waxen. The Marley butler, a thin faced and thin legged young man with a painfully intellectual countenance, stalked past the hallway portieres in answer to a below stairs ring and returned from the front door with: "Mr. Sledge, sir, to see Mr. Marley." "Show him into the library," hastily directed Marley, suddenly contrite and feeling a sinking horror, as did all the others in the room, of having this man face to face with Molly, especially after the crimes against her, of which they had themselves been guilty. The instructions were too late, however. "Good evening," rumbled the deep voice of Sledge, who just then appeared directly in the center of the opening in the portieres. He wore an Inverness topcoat, the open front of which disclosed a marvelous expanse of white shirt front, spaced with diamond studs, the glitter of which paled, however, by contrast with the enormous solitaire which illuminated the solid gold watch fob presented to him by the Young Men's Marching club of Ward G. His hair was pressed as smoothly to his skull as an earnest Italian barber could plaster it, and various angry specks on his cheeks told how microscopically he had been shaved. The growing triumph of his toilet, however, he carried. In his right hand he bore, held by a wide velvet ribbon, in the same huge fingers which clutched the gold headed cane presented by the Capital City Sledge club, a thirty dollar box of candy, two feet across, wrapped with six beribboned layers of fancy paper and provided with an absolute maze of drawers and partitions. In his left hand he carried a speckled silk hat of the latest French shape, and that arm encircled a conical parcel, so big that it would have staggered a small man, while from the upper end of the cone protruded a square yard of screaming red roses.

"I brought these for you myself."

"Good evening, Miss Molly," he added, becoming more specific. "I brought these for you myself," and he beamed his cordial good will upon the entire assemblage. It was in this breathless crisis that Molly Marley, aggravated beyond endurance, took her merciless revenge. "How perfectly delightful!" she cried, and she swept toward him with more eager cordiality than she had ever bestowed upon Bert Glider himself. "We've just been talking about you," and then, to the intense consternation of her father and her foremost snitter, she added: "I want you at my party tomorrow night. Won't you come, please?"

into the hands of the official dogcatcher and was taken off to the pound. Molly was in a pitiable state. She appealed to her father. He testily said that he was busy. In her desperation and hardly knowing why she did it, she telephoned to Sledge. One of Sledge's men said that he was very busy. But when he heard it was Molly he jumped into an automobile, accompanied Molly to the pound and got Smash. On the way home Sledge talked of his dog Bob, and Molly shivered when he said he'd like to match Bob against Smash. As if nothing her displeasure, he changed the subject to Molly's party, and for the hundredth time Molly was sorry she invited him.

A yelp from the front porch announced the arrival of Ben Sledge, and he appeared in the brilliantly lighted hall, holding a tightly stretched chain, to the other end of which was attached a one eyed, stub eared, battle scarred bull terrier, which took such a violent dislike to the intellectual faced Marley butler that Sledge was compelled to hold him clear of the door with one brawny hand and spank him loudly in the ribs with the other, whereupon Bob gave a single yelping promise to be good, and Sledge let him down.

"This is Bob, Miss Molly," introduced Sledge. "I'm sending him right back with Mike, but you said you'd like to see him." "Delighted to meet you, Bob," laughed Molly, stooping down and patting him on the seamy head. Bob deliberately batted his good eye with all the effect of a wink and wagged his absurd stump of a tail by way of friendly greeting, then he suddenly made a lunge of about four feet and strained, choking, at the end of his chain, on his hind feet, with his tongue hanging out. From the rear of the lot he had heard the bark of the suspicious Smash.

"Where's Mike?" demanded Molly hastily and in some fear.

Bert Glider and five of the eight couples whom Molly had invited had already arrived and were now, of course, thronged eagerly in the doorways.

"What's your hurry, Molly?" snickered loose jointed Dicky Reynolds. "Hold your caller till I run out and get Smash. He knows me."

"Don't you dare!" shrieked Molly, distrusting him with good reason.

Bob loosened his throat enough to answer the challenge from the kennel, and there wasn't a girl left in the doorways except Jessie Peters, who clung to Dicky's sleeve.

"I'll go with you, Dicky," offered circular little Willie Walters, with an echo of Dicky's snicker.

"If you do he'll bark at you," hotly retorted Molly, knowing Wee Willie's cautious propensities.

The rest of the boys were for keeping up the good work, but Sledge cut short the incipient hysteria by picking up Bob by the neck, returning to the door and booming into the night the silent, potent syllable:

"Mike!"

A squat man, who looked so much like Bob, even to a patched eye, that they could have been taken for twins, emerged from the darkness, hugged Bob to his bosom like a brother and hurried away.

Fern and Molly looked at each other with dismay. If this was the start of the evening what else might they expect?

"Why didn't Mike take them both away?" whispered Fern. "You poor girl!"

"I'm not!" denied Molly fiercely. "I said this morning that I'd like to see Bob, and, of course, Mr. Sledge brought him. The only trouble is he's so quick."

"He's instantaneous," corrected Fern. "You have to admire it," laughed Molly. "Well, the only thing I can do is to be as game as he is." And upon Sledge's return from some careful directions to an unseen companion of Mike's she introduced him to her friends with all the sprightliness of which she was capable.

In that process she firmly intended to make him the center of things and to see that he had a good time. He relieved her of that tremendous burden, however, for after moving through the introductions with a cordial ease which not only delighted but surprised her, until she was reminded that he had been introduced to more notable than she would probably ever see, he quietly disappeared into Marley's den and smoked fat cigars in calm comfort, with a stein of cool beer at his elbow, leaving the young people to enjoy their hilarity without the damper of his presence.

Molly, mindful of her duties as hostess, dropped in occasionally to see that he was satisfied, and each time she found him in exactly the same position, as placidly contented as he could possibly have been in the little back room of the Occident saloon. On one of her visits, after answering in the affirmative her inquiry if he was all right, he rose from his comfortable nest in the big leather chair.

"I suppose we eat," he guessed.

"I think you'd call it bluff," she laughingly returned.

"I get you," he replied. "Mostly decorations. Souvenirs?"

"The usual."

"Hand 'em these," and he thrust into her hands two bundles of small envelopes, red ones and white ones.

She looked at them blankly a moment.

"I get you," she smiled, flushing slightly as she wondered whether her adoption of his phrase was flattery or ridicule. "Red ones, in honor of the roses, are for girls, and the white ones for the boys. What are they?"

"Aw, nothing much," he diffidently replied as he resumed his seat. "Season tickets for grand opera week in the red ones and for the Athletic club fights in the white ones. Admit two. Is it all right?"

"Is it all right? It's glorious!" she assured him, with shining eyes.

Delighted with this unmatchable novelty, Molly was herself placing the red and white envelopes at the covers in the dining room when Bert Glider found her there and closed the door after himself.

"Molly, you're carrying this Sledge joke too far!" he hotly charged.

"Who elected you?" she quietly wanted to know and laid a white envelope at his place with extreme care, angling the corner of it just so.

"Both of us, I hope," he stated, displaying a warning signal by pulling at the top of his collar to give his throat more room. "Molly"—And he advanced toward her.

The symptoms were unmistakable. Molly, having rounded the end of the table, slipped out through the pantry door and handed her remaining envelopes to the intellectual looking butler.

"Place these on the table just as I have done. Alternate red and white ones," she kindly directed, and the next time Bert saw her she was the live center of the laughing taffy pulling. She had preferred to escape rather than to treat this matter either seriously or flippantly when she was annoyed with him.

At 11:30 Mr. Marley, with the worry of eight absent mothers on his own shoulders, was fretting over some invention to send them home when the earth split open in the wide stretch of vacant land across the street and ejected into the sky, with a loud, unearthy noise, a tremendous assortment of fiery meteors, mostly red. Roman candles in reckless bunches shot up from behind every bush, skyrocketed dragged their spiraling tails through all the available circumstance, while fancy bombs carried their aerial foaters and other brilliant pyrotechnical surprises into all the celestial territory hitherto unoccupied.

Through it all Sledge stood as immovable and as impassive as if he had been glued to the spot and frozen. Even when the display flowed out into the middle of the highway and piled up the street cars for two blocks in both directions he remained a calm and disinterested spectator. The president of the traction company was thrown into extreme agitation by this excess of zeal, for he had some consideration for the feelings of the public, and he rushed right out to restore the scattered schedule.

"Here, what's this?" he demanded of a demon with a smoke blackened face.

"Why are you holding up the cars?"

"Sledge's orders," replied the demon, lighting the fuse of a red rose set piece. "He said everything went, and it's going."

Mr. Marley came back.

Sledge was no longer on the porch. Molly had slipped in to wrap up some cake for Baby Peters, and Sledge, who seemingly saw nothing, had followed her.

"Well, is your party a hit?" he anxiously inquired.

"It's a scream!" she said, unable to control her laughter. "Really, Mr. Sledge, I have you to thank for the most extravagantly joyous occasion at which I have ever had the good fortune to preside."

Lucky Boy.

An extraordinary accident is reported from the neighborhood of Malden, England. A lad, eight years of age, was flying a kite when he stepped backward into a forty foot quarry, to the great horror of the bystanders. Fortunately for the little fellow, the string of the kite was tight around his wrist, and the kite, acting as a parachute, effectually broke the violence of the fall, and he was only slightly bruised.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORRIS, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

Ants That Sew. A writer in the Visitor tells of a party of German naturalists recently returned from Ceylon, who have reported the existence of a species of ant that has been observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist, Ridley, made in 1890. They saw a row of the insects pulling the edges of leaves together, then others trimming and fitting the edges and finally the completion of the work by still other ants, which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larvae of the same species, which the workers carried in their mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread-giving larvae like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.

Vary the Cornfield. Corn should not be grown in the same field continuously. Many weeds are especially difficult to control in cornfields. If other crops, such as alfalfa, clover, and small grains are occasionally grown the weeds are more easily controlled, and many of the insects which feed on the corn but not on these crops die of starvation.

FORD OWNERS ON A PICNIC.

Thirty-Eight of the Popular Motors in Procession to Dalhousie Lake.

The picnic of Ford car owners, organized by the Carleton Motor Sales Co., held on Thursday last, was a great success. The weather was agreeable, the day was fine, and the roads all the way were at their best.

The cars assembled in the morning at the town hall, and led by Mr. C. F. R. Taylor, proceeded by way of the Good Roads system to Innisville, Perth, Halderson, Fallbrook, and McDonald's Corners, to the head of Dalhousie Lake, one of nature's beauty spots, the road winding all the way, most every turn a hill or vale, picturesque and beautiful scenery on every side. The distance in round figures is 45 miles, and was covered in two and a half hours, the long line of horseless carriages attracting much attention en route as they proceeded carefully along.

On arriving at the head of the beautiful lake, closed in by mountains on three sides, between which the lesser Mississippi enters by a deep ravine through the rocks from the High Falls and flows beneath an iron bridge into the lake, the motors were drawn up on the side of the road, and here the picnickers, appetites sharpened by the keen air, opened their lunch baskets and satisfied the cravings of the inner man. The management had very thoughtfully sent out an advance guard who had immense boilers of hot tea and other useful incidentals all ready in anticipation of a rush.

The afternoon was spent in exploring the beauties of the spot, many climbing over the heights to see the falls, and the old timber slide that caused so much controversy in the days gone by and made history for the stream. Others were satisfied with viewing the pretty cottages on the edge of the lake and the picturesque roadway either built up or hewn out of the solid rock along the banks, and all too soon the day passed, the supper horn was tooted and by six o'clock the last car had left the spot on the return journey.

NOTES.

Very few mishaps occurred during the trip—one car only on the up trip having tire trouble, and another on the return running hot from want of water.

Fallen trees and other evidences of the effects of the tornado of the Tuesday previous were seen in many places.

Some of the cars returned by way of Lanark, and thus added additional variety to their trip.

The lake is noted for its fine bass fishing, and THE HERALD scribe had the good fortune to bring home a fine specimen, landed by Mrs. R. W. Robertson, one of the cottagers, especially for the occasion. The day previous the same lady landed one that tipped the scale at three and a half pounds. Yes, the bass are o.k. in Dalhousie Lake.

Mr. Stuart Tiggart, the artist, was among the motorists. What he could not understand was how all the waters of the big Mississippi could possibly pass under the little bridge at the head of that lake.

The memory of the day will be remembered with pleasure for many a day, thanks to the kindness of those who originated and carried out the idea.

The following, so far as could be ascertained, comprised the party:

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. R. Taylor, Gordon Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. H. McC. Wilson, Mrs. H. W. Dummett, W. J. Dummett, Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dack, Howard and Kenneth Dack, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Porterfield, Mr. and Mrs. D. Smythe, Miss Christine Box, Miss Olive Cavers, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tamm, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Purdy, Willard Morris, Thos. SUDDEN DEATH HON. F. T. FROST.

Hon. Senator Francis T. Frost died early Friday morning at his home at Smith's Falls, his death coming most suddenly and unexpectedly. Six or eight months ago he suffered from a stroke, but rallied, and was apparently in his wonted health. He sat up until ten o'clock reading to Mrs. Frost and retired as usual. During the night he was taken ill and died about one o'clock in the morning. He was in his 73rd year.

The late Senator Frost's parents came from Vermont in 1834 and settled first at Hawkesbury, Ont., removing to Smith's Falls in 1838. The Senator was born there on December 21, 1843. He was educated at Smith's Falls Grammar School, Coventry Academy, Vt., and St. Lawrence Academy, Potsdam, N. Y. In 1868 he married Miss Maria E. Powell, of Madrid, N. Y.

Deceased was first mayor of the town of Smith's Falls and head of the well-known implement firm of Frost and Wood, a director of the Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company of Canada, trustee of the Ottawa Ladies' College and member of the Ottawa Improvement Commission, to which he was appointed in 1902. He was a Liberal in politics and before his elevation to the upper house in 1903 had sat in parliament as member for North Leeds and Grenville, 1896-1900. He was a member of the Rideau Club, as well as of the Ontario Club, Toronto. In religion he was a Presbyterian.

Senator Frost was appointed to the Ottawa Improvement Commission when it was enlarged from three to five members. He served on the commission until 1911 when he retired.

240th LANARK AND RENFREW BATTALION.

Col. Watt is busy organizing for recruiting purposes throughout the counties. He has been attending public functions and meeting large numbers of the citizens. Recruits are coming in daily, in encouraging numbers, and are a fine type of manhood.

The Commanding Officer has wisely refrained from filling many of the positions of sergeants and clerkships, so that every recruit will have an opportunity of receiving recognition.

To join the 240th Battalion should therefore be the ambition of every young man in the Counties of Lanark and Renfrew, and to bring along his chums with him.

"Your King and Country need you." The 240th Battalion affords you the chance to do your bit like your hero brothers who are fighting for us in the far flung firing line.

Killed by Lightning.

Eric John Campbell, son of Mr. J. R. Campbell, of the 2nd line of Beckwith, was killed last Tuesday afternoon in the electric storm. The father and son were fixing up fences about a quarter of a mile from the house and when the storm came up both started for the house. The young man, who was only nineteen years of age, started to run through the shrubbery towards the house. On the father's arrival Eric had not reached home and the family made a search. His sister found him a short time later lying under a basswood tree, with a number of burned spots on his face and chest, part of his clothing being completely torn from his body. He had been standing on the roots of the tree when he received the shock, the roots being above ground. The deepest sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

Miss M. Florence Ormrod, Miss Mildred Tubman, Miss Lola Cassidy, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Butler, Ashton; Mrs. Jno. E. Hobbs, Harry Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Crawford, Miss Phoebe M. SUDDEN DEATH OF J. C. WILLIAMS

Editor and Proprietor of the Arnprior Watchman.

Sad indeed was the news last week of the death of Mr. James C. Williams, editor of the Arnprior Watchman, and one of the most popular members of the Ottawa Valley Press Association. Mr. Williams took ill on the 12th, intestinal trouble, he went to Ottawa three days later and was operated upon, and on the 19th he passed away.

The late Mr. Williams was born in London, England, in February 1860, and came to Arnprior with his parents eight years later. On November 8th, 1891, he married Hulda Magoon, of Wynman, Que., and they have been residents of Arnprior ever since, and have a family of two sons and three daughters, namely: James Barclay Williams, of Vancouver, B.C.; Mrs. W. E. King of Buffalo, Mrs. A. M. Stewart of Sandridge and Miss Edith Irene Williams at home.

J. C. Williams was one of Arnprior's useful men; he was first secretary of the Arnprior Agricultural Society, a position he held until death, except for a short interval; he was secretary-treasurer of the board of trade; he was for fourteen years a member of the board of education; for many years he was one of the managers of St. Andrews church; he was an active member of the cemetery committee, he was a past Worshipful Master of the local Masonic lodge, a member of the Oddfellows, Independent Order of Foresters and Chosen Friends and with all of these duties, and others, he was editor of the Watchman.

The funeral was one of the largest seen there in some considerable time. It was under the auspices of Madawaska lodge of the Masonic order. The cortege proceeded to St. Andrews church, where the pastor, Rev. J. Faulds, M.A., officiated at an impressive funeral service. The floral offerings were very numerous and unusually beautiful.

THE HERALD unites with the press in general in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

THE KEEPING OF BEES.

The saying 'The resources of Canada are inexhaustible, is true of no food products more than of honey. An abundance of honey-yielding flowers, with a high average of favourable weather for the production and ingathering of the honey, makes Canada a good country for the bee-keeper. Moreover, the bulk of Canadian honey is of unsurpassed quality, and honey has become, as it deserves to be, a staple article of food in many places, selling readily at satisfactory prices when properly distributed.' So states the Dominion Apiarist, Mr. F. W. L. Sladen, in Bulletin No. 26 Second Series, just issued by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, that can be had free on application to the Publications Branch of the Department. Mr. Sladen furnishes the further information that in Ontario and Quebec, and in regions in the other provinces of the Dominion, there are an increasing number of people who make bee-keeping their principle business, some of the specialists in Ontario reaping an income in excess of $2,500 per year, while there are thousands who find it a profitable and healthful auxiliary to their annual revenue. In Ontario alone it is estimated that there are 10,000 bee-keepers. Mr. Sladen, after dealing with the advantages of bee-keeping, and extending instructions and advice to beginners, proceeds to deal with the different elements involved in bee-keeping and honey-productions. In a plain, concise way he tells of the location the apiary should be given, the most desirable races, the development and handling of the bees, the diseases and enemies to which they are subject, and the attention they need at different seasons of the year. He also gives a list, with descriptive illustrations, of the principal honey-producing plants with their approximate yielding periods. In fact, it would seem that pretty well everything worth knowing about the cultivation and management of the honey-bee is detailed in this handy sixty-page official Bulletin or pamphlet published for gratuitous circulation.
