Constantinople, Nov. 23.—The Sultan today issued an | against Christians can occur unless it Trade approving the decision of the Council of Ministers to reject the demands of the powers for international control of the finances of Macedonia. Whether the rejection is absolute or conditional has not yet been definitely ascertained. Vice-Admiral Husni Pasha has started on a tension of the authority of the financial special steamer for the Dardanelles, presumably with instructions for the commander of the forts, regarding the latter's conduct in the event of the appearance of the international fleet. Similar instructions have been sent to the governors of the Turkish islands in the archipelago.

Shells Halt Fire Fiend.

London, Nov. 23 .- The 74-gun frigate Forte, built in 1812, was sunk in the Medway River this afternoon by shells fired by the British gunboat Bustard. Fire broke out this morning on the Forte which had been used as a coal depot, and 2,000 tons of parties were unable, owing to the heat to get close enough to deal with the flames, so the shelling was resorted to in order to prevent the threatened spreading of the fire to neighboring shipping.

There are 45,614 acres in rape, 13,217 acres in flax, 1,997 acres grammes. Selections from the "Mesthe greatest festival of the church is siah" and the "Redemption" will, of course, be common, and one may be certain that with the development musical taste the choral work will be well worth hearing. But how about the homes? Is there to be no music there? Surely it is about time for father to stop buying diame zings for mother and the girls, and to delight their hearts instead with the one ideal Christmas present, a Gourlay piano. The instrument is the finest made in Canada, its tone is rich and mellow, its construction lurable, and its case is always artistic. Indeed, already several gentlemen have given their orders to the firm of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming for Christmas delivery, and letters and telegrams to the same effect are pouring in from all parts of the country. For that reason it would be advisable to place what orders are tended at once, for the "bloom is off does not arrive to gladden the soul until the middle of January. New Dresden Ribbons

Just arrived day before yesterday: A new collection of Dresden Ribbons-4 inches wide. Not on the counter long before they were noticed. There's a pretty dresden-a woman remarked-meaning one with a white ground overspread with cerise roses, blue forget-me-nots and pale green foliage, and edged with pale green stripes. One of our clerks thought this was prettier: white ground on which blossom beautiful violet roses (don't see violet roses every day) and odd little pink flowers-turquoise blue stripes run along the sides. But everybody hasn't the same tastes. Very likely you'll fancy other designs. Come and see.

And by the way, these beautiful dresdens would make simply bewitching blouses. Ribbon blouses are in great vogue in Paris, and the ladies of New York and other American cities are not slow in following the fashion. What about London ladies?

These ribbons will also be bought for making smartly handsome belts, fancy opera bags, dainty neckwear, and innumerable kinds of fancy work. Priced to sell like the proverbial hot cakes. Come and make your 25c choice soon. Price per yard, only....

MEN, WHAT'S THE CRAFTANA?

Don't know? Then you're missing something. Let you into the secret? Sure! It's just a sock for men. But such a peculiarly different sock. Here's what the makers say about it: Absolutely seamless. Made on the graduated principle, and starting with two threads in the top, it increases in wear-resisting properties as it descends. Thus the leg has three threads, the instep and foot four, and the heel and toe five. By this process the weight and strength of the sock is where it is most needed —in the feet. Perfect in fit. Guaranteed unshrinkable. Remember the name-Craftana. 91/2 to 111/2. Prices

Mr. Carnegie's Praise of Poverty.

[New York World.]

According to Mr. Carnegie "there nothing so valuable as to be born in poverty and to be compelled to go forth and battle for yourself." Many will applaud the saying. But is it true?

The poor have no monopoly of virtue or of intelligence. Extreme poverty of Sageville, "that money is not the end besieges the one and dulls the other. It is easy to say that the vapid and vicious young man of fortune would have been a decent fellow if born to poverty, but it is hard to prove. With his temperament he might still have been a burden upon society.

The man of unusual talent or genius

if born in poverty does sometimes escape from his disadvantages to do great work. But the exceptional man of inherited wealth also conquers his environment and atacks his task with the energy of educated ambition. Zoologists will tell Mr. Carnegie that It is not struggle that develops races and species, but the favoring environment that permits them to struggle successfully. Were it otherwise the Esquimaux would be the "Supermen." In the case of the successful selfmade man golden years are lost. What good did it do him that Schliemann must make his fortune before spending it in uncovering the buried cities of Greece? Or Cecil Rhodes that he must use his best years in making money and die at the threshold of his political plans? Or Carnegie himself that he was not free to consider problems dearer to him than those of money-making until his active years had passed? Suppose Keats had been born to the wealth of Byron, might he not with education and travel and outdoor life have reached a sane old age, instead of dying of the foul air of his poor lodging and his stuffy chemist's shop Might he not have enriched English letters with poems beyond price and have left his own fame far more se cure?

These are questions easy to ask, impossible to answer. To burst through the bonds of extreme poverty and rise to eminent usefulness is creditable. To make of wealth a means of culture and of service rather than of weak selfindulgence is also creditable. It is character, not condition that counts.

To Cure Catarrh the Germs must be Killed. Japanese Catarrh Cure does it.

Catarrh is a germ disease, like typhoid fever and smallpox. It is a minute germ that weakens the membranes lining the nostrils, starts up inflammation and ulceration, takes away taste and hearing, and in the advanced stages affects the lungs, kidneys and liver. Japanese Catarrh Cure kills the germs, and cures. It is the only remedy that reaches every part of the affected surfaces. Hundreds of testimonials prove that Japanese Catarrh Cure is the neverfailing cure for Catarrh.

The article published not long ago about Battling Nelson's broken elbow was quite a surprise to many people who cannot understand how Nelson can be such a great boxer with his left arm crippled so that he can not put on his own collar without the aid of a button hook. Nelson, in speaking of the injury, said that it has never once bothered him in a fight. "On the other hand," said he, "I think it helps me a great deal. Whenever I hit with my left arm I send it out straight, and no matter how hard my fist comes in contact with the other fellow's face or body the blow never jars

Nelson has what is known as an anchylosis of the elbow join of his left arm. This joint is a hinge joint, and Nelson has lost the ability to move it, and it is practically a solid bone from his shoulder joint to his wrist. The piece of bone shaped like a part of hinge that forms the connecting link between the upper arm and the forearm was broken and when this break united all semblance of a joint was obliterated by bony growth. While the famous Dr. Lorentz, of Austria, was in Chicago attending to the Armour child Neison called on him for advice. He did not see the professor, but he did meet his assistant, who after a careful examination told the Battler that It was a hopeless case, and that in years some motion would be acquired, and not to leave any one operate on the arm, as it would be useless.

"Did you ever hear of the ghost horse?" said George Withers one night, after he lit a fresh stogie. Of course nobody had heard, so George went on to tell about it.

"I'll-tell you all about it," said he. "It happened at Harlem, and it almost set the man who saw it daffy. He was out on the track early one morning and in the dim light he saw a horse break from the stand. He snapped the watch on him, and to the quarter he went in 0:22, to the half in 0:44, to the three quarters in 1:06 and the mile in 1:28. The clocker rubbed his eyes and looked at his watch again to see if it was going, and when he looked up the horse and rider were gone. He asked some others if they had seen a horse going round in a hurry, but no one seemed to have noticed. "Looked for all the world like Yo Tambien with Isaac Murphy up," was his conclus-40n. He was there again the next morning after a sleepless night, and once more the horse flew around the track, and this time the clocker made the mile

"He was determined the horse would not get away from him, so he followed it to the gates. It was Harlem where the thing took place, and when the horse and rider went through he was right behind, and to his astonishment the pair went right into the graveyard which lies outside of Harlem. He went right after them, but when he got to the gate they went through he found it locked. He tried hard to get it open, but it was no co. He ran up the graveyard a piece and found a watchman, and he asked him whether he had seen a horse go through that particular gate. The watchman said 'No,' and added that the gate had not been opened in tve years. That staggered the clocker, and he exclaimed: 'I saw a ghost borse sure.' To the hospital he went, and for a month it was a toss up whether he would break into a daffy house or not, but he finally came ound." And the stogie was out .- Cincinnati Inquirer.

When he gets the University of Pennsylvania and a the ball he tears straight ahead like a member of the university committee on athletics, returned tonight from Washington, where he had been summoned by President Roosevelt to disasking me to lunch with him at the White House today for the purpose of disucssing with him the situation as to American football. An article of mine published in last week's Outlook was the occasion of the invita-> to say that we are in complete accord as to the need of the permanent abolition of brutality and foul play; of the increase of the powers of the officials and of the severity of the penalties as being necessary to bring about such abolition; as to the depreserving the essential, manly and effort to secure a simple and uniform eligibility code for all American colleges and universities. The President said he emphatically believes in continuing the game." "The President added: 'Brutality this principle, even to the extent of it over by their close, heavy work, in which every man is a huge battering ram, ordering not only individual but whole teams, off the field, college presidents should hold to the sharpest accountability the umpire who permits foul or brutal football in any game. We want simple rules, not complicated rules, because complicated rules offer too many loopholes. The responsible authorities of the several colleges whose teams play together should have what may be called a seeing to the permanent removal from brutal player, but of the man who is not a bona fide student and amateur. It would be a real misfortune to lose ns so manly and vigorous a game as football, and to avert such a possibility the college authorities in each college should see to it that the game in that college is clean.

The President explained to me the sh selection of the institutions that came to the conference at the White House last month by saying: 'I was asked to representatives of Harvard Yale and Princeton, and called it acordingly. If Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell representatives had happened to make the suggestion, only those three colleges would have

PITIABLE STORY

Woman From Hyde Park Complains About Hotelman Whom She May Prosecute.

A pitiable story of whisky and its traveling mate, poverty, was told to Inspector McCallum today by a woman from Hyde Park. She came to London to lodge a complaint against a hotelkeeper, who, she alleges, is selling liquor to her husband despite the fact that she has forbidden him to do so.

The woman is young—probably 25 years of age. Her husband is a thresher, and, according to her story, has made over $1,100 this year. Of this sum, she says, he has given her but $5 to keep house since last spring. She has washed for put up with her husband's actions ro longer and she has resolved to prosecute yards. An attempt will be made to the hotelman.

According to her story, she went into the hotel bar one day and took the glass away from her husband, whereupon the hotelman in turn took the glass from her and gave it back to her husband. She was advised by Mr. McCallum to go to Crown Attorney McKillop and place the matter in his hands. She also intends to lay an information before Inspector Dufferin, of Rebecca Postoffice, and she says that this charge will include the ing, etc., as well as selling to her hus- 1904, they amounted to $1,068,821. band after the hotelman had been warned under the law.
