We will receive No. 1, No. 2 and cull apples this year, and will pay the highest market price.

FINDS MOOSE LIKABLE

HUNTER TELLS SOME OF HIS EXPERIENCES.

William Rindsfors Says That Animal No Longer Seems to Him an Object for Bullet of Sportsman, But He Regards the Moose as a Sort of Overgrown Freak of a Fellow to Watch With Interest and Amusement.

I HAVE seen and hunted moose under many circumstances and conditions; often have I watched them when undisturbed and unafraid, when they felt the presence and fear of neither man nor beast; I have followed and observed them in the summer's lakes and muskogs and in the winter's snows; I have seen the bull with the hairy stubs of spring and the gallant antlers of fall, and I have seen the ungainly mother and her funny calf, writes William Rindsfors in Hunter-Travelers-Trap-Per. In fact I have known the noble but incongruous, the powerful but awkward moose so long and under such varying circumstances that to me he is no longer an animal to see and kill for sport, but a sort of bullish, overgrown, over-muscled freak of a fellow to watch with interest and amusement. When I first see him each season I have an instinctive desire to first admire his ungainly, foolish, green strength and then walk up to him like an old country friend, slap him on the back and say, "How are you, old fellow? I sure am glad to get back in the country again."

To me the moose is different from any other animal. Different in appearance. Note the long but useful upper lip; the long, awkward, but reliable ears; the humped-up fore-quarters, that make me sometimes think of our "comic artist" portrayals of a combination elephant and donkey. Compare his actions. What other animal can trot like a "Maude S" through down timber, brule and Jack pine and yet with a noiseless speed; can swim for hours in the lakes, dive to their bottom for food and walk through quicksands with a natural desire; is equally at home on high land and low land, on snow, ice and water, in open glade and thickest brule; could live and thrive on frozen willows, that burn one's hand like a hot iron? Is so strong and yet so awkward. He is an ass in a lion's skin with lion's courage and the brains of an ass. Compare his movements with the grace of the deer, sheep, cougar or coyote, his awkward, bullish, blind-fury defence against the cold-blooded, skillful calculating attack of the wolf. Surely the moose is different. The "last" of a vanished type of the distant misty past. A hold-over of the carboniferous age, a huge one of the herbivorous age. But I like him at any rate and I never gloat over his body since I killed the first one long ago. Now I kill him for a useful purpose or not at all.

Some of my first hunting experiences were with moose. How well I remember one frosty morning in New Brunswick. Hubald Martin was the guide's name, who hauled me on a springless wagon, many miles above the St. John river, over "stumpy lanes," but mostly up creek-beds we drove, until, after several days, we came to the "portage" and sent our driver back, while we pitched our tent and ate our potatoes and butter in great content.

Day after day we waded down stream, never lifting our feet above water, to avoid the splash of a "break water" step. At last "the" morning came. How fast my heart beat as we cautiously waded around each river bend and peered down the next stretch. How fervently I prayed the good God to bless us. We are rounding the bend. How the primeval instinct came back. There on a low gravelly-bare island, unconscious of us, stood the largest animal to me in the whole world—a veritable mammoth. The Lord was with me and I feared not. I could feel Hubald tremble. The shots rang out on the frosty air. He turned; few faltering steps; a dead moose; crimson waters; I, the happiest hunter of hunters. With true Latin emotions Hubald grasped my hand, threw up his hat and shouted: "Ain't you glad! Ain't you glad!" He could not understand my apparent indifference. True, I felt proud and happy. A dream had come true. But, when I look even now on that noble head, I feel that same sad desire to put him back in his "bogen."

The days passed, I had willed "my moose," but I could not leave that heavenly country of fish and game. With back packs we went to a longabandoned camp to stay two days. There were many ponds and much "sign." Slowly we walked up an old tote road. Down we crouched as two moose came round a bend, cow and calf. The wind in our faces we held our breath behind a screen of moose weeds. Slowly the two moose came down the road nibbling; unafraid. The calf wandered off the road, the mother, with proper solicitude, now and then calling it back. But all is not well. Full well that cow knows it. Instinctively she feels something is ahead. She stops and silently looks around. Perhaps she hears my heart beat, or smells my dead pipe. A warning authoritative snort; the calf comes back at once; while the cow drives it ahead, as they slowly but surely leave that country.

Another fall has come, and again I am in the New Brunswick woods; this time by canoe to a chain of lakes that head the Green river and Rimouski. We cross a little divide with back packs. Many moose are seen, but not the big bull. He must be near; there are so many cows and calves. Pierre knows it. "We go ride; boil tea; maybe dusk; bull come to cow. We stop for tea; no smoke must be there; we break small dry twigs."

Pierre lays over the faggot pile to start the little smokeless fire. Is he crazy? Just as the fire catches, he falls on it, puts it out, grabs his gun and jumps behind a big tree. I do likewise. A "wuff, wuff," then silence; then "wuff, wuff," very close; as with flashing eyes, looms large the big bull, that misunderstood our crackling of dry limbs for that tea kettle fire. No other bull could sneak through the thicket for his harem. "Wuff, wuff"—again. Two shots. A bull staggered against a little tree and fell and, again an excited "Latin" voiced his joy. And so, next day, after a night under the trees, two happy men staggered campward. One with huge horns; the other with green scalp.

Carlisle Events

LIZZIE GOT BALKY

One day last week a prominent lady from one of the main streets of our burg drove her Tin Lizzie down to the Taleho Park to visit the manager and his family. After spending a pleasant afternoon with her friends the time came when the best of friends must part, and so began to crank the Ford, but unfortunately got no results. Mr. Thos. Mills, in his usual good samaritan way, tried his hand at the crank with the same results. He cranked and cranked and cranked and grunted and grunted and puffed, and then cranked some more until he was completely out of wind, but Lizzie was balky, a regular brute. Then Mr. Gerald Mills tried his luck, only to find that Lizzie was worse than stubborn. As a last resort they telephoned for Dr. N. L. Mills, who is an expert on such critical cases. After carefully diagnosing the case he gave the crank a quick spin and a grunt and away she went. Dr. Mills said that Lizzie had a special ear for music and that the only reason that she refused to act was that both Thomas and Gerald had struck the wrong note and grunted in the wrong key.

HAD PLEASANT TIME

While drawing in grain today Mr. Roy Robinson enjoyed a very exciting program. Just as he had the load nearly finished one of his horses shook the bridle off, and the team, which were quite spirited, started to run away. Mr. Robinson slid off the load and took a ring side seat in the center of the arena and watched the proceedings as the team ran several times around the field. At last the hind wheel on the leeward side collided with the wire fence and was completely demolished with the exception of the hub and one spoke. The one spoke only acted as a shaker, as the terrified steeds began to distribute the load quite evenly over the field. At time of going to press the last act had not been put in the arena, and we will have to announce it later.

Ironsides at Flamboro

The Junior Baseball team motored to Flamboro Centre last Saturday and took part in the ball tournament, Waterdown stacking up against the F. C. in the first contest, which they won after a hard fought struggle in ten innings.

In only two innings did Flamboro Centre score. Costly fumbles by the infield and the mastery pitching of Capt. Featherston were mainly responsible for F. C.'s defeat.

Waterdown scored five runs in the first five innings on L. Harris, when C. Payne took up the mound duties and held the Waterdowners hitless and scoreless until the tenth inning, when Langton opened up with a two bagger which paved the way for three runs and victory.

The second game resulted in a victory for Carlisle. The battery work of the Warner boys, and the playing of L. Harris and H. Baker being the main features for the Carlisle victory. The fifteen straight-innings proved to much for the Waterdown team. The following is the line-up.

Cliff. Reid was blamed for stealing the pepper out of the boy's shoes.

Capt. Featherston had 17 strikeouts in 15 innings.

It was a treat to watch Herb Slater handle Featherston's curves.

Ribson played errorless ball on first base.

The rough ground made hard playing for Reid at second.

McNamara and Gordon certainly did burn up the paths when on the offensive.

Eggie Langton's hitting made victory certain.

Trev. Shaidle makes good at the bat.

Vance and Nicholson in the field pull down high hit balls in big league style.

L. Harris of the F. C.'s played a nifty game of ball.

Warner Bros. of Carlisle are a whole team in themselves.

Battenham on first for F. C. is a strong player.

E. Warner's three-base hit was the longest hit of either game.

After the games the players sat down to a dainty lunch provided by the ladies of Flamboro Centre. The quality and quantity of the repast speaks for the generosity of the F. C. fair sex. Who wouldn't go to Flamboro Centre 7 days a week?

FOOD HOARD IN MASSACHUSETTS

5,000,000 Lbs. of Sugar in One Warehouse

And Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Elsewhere.

Boston Report—District Attorney Pelletier to-day announced that investigators had discovered more than 5,000,000 pounds of sugar in storage in a warehouse in the Charlestown district. As the State laws made no provision for action against hoarders of foodstuffs, the district attorney instructed the inspectors to report their findings immediately to the Federal authorities.

There are 4,748,100 pounds of granulated sugar, 52,500 pounds of cube sugar, 333,600 pounds of syrup, a by-product of sugar, and 193,700 pounds of yellow sugar in the lot, the district attorney said.

Millions of pounds of butter and cheese and 14,000,000 dozens of eggs also have been found in warehouses here by agents of the Department of Justice, it was said. Seizure of some of the great stocks of food is said to be contemplated by the Federal officials. Evidence of the discoveries is to be presented to a Federal grand jury, which was convened to-day in special session.

Inquiry into the large stocks of food found here developed, according to Federal agents, that virtually all export orders had been filled, and that the supplies on hand were held for domestic use.

Relics of Aztec Era

Near Phoenix, within the Salt River valley, are to be found seven communal settlements of the same pre-Aztec era, with central buildings that were far larger than that at Casa Grande, a writer in the Christian Science Monitor states. To the northward and northeast every river valley retains evidence of the passage of at least a portion of these peoples, for some reason leaving their cities and their irrigated fields on the plains and seeking the mountains and the upper plateaus.

All Called On to Show Courage.

Whatever your sex or position, life is a battle in which you are to show your pluck; and you are to be the coward! Whether passed on a bed of sickness or a tented field, it is ever the same fair play and admits no foolish distinctions. Despair and postponement are cowardice and defeat. Men were born to succeed, not to fail.—Thoreau.

A Profitable Purchase.

In an antiquary's shop window in Madrid there was exhibited recently a painting and a sign reading, "Authentic picture of Goya, 7,000 pesetas" ($1,365). A poor woman passing by observed the sign and at once created a disturbance which attracted a big crowd. She declared that the antiquary who now wanted to sell the picture at so great a price bought it from her for 20 cents.

FRANCE KICKS ABOUT PERSIA

Says Country a Virtual British Protectorate

And Fears Effect On Syrian Conditions.

Paris Cable — The Anglo-Persian Treaty continues to be the topic of the day in French and Peace Conference circles, the French discussing especially the probable effect of the agreement upon French interests in Syria.

The Echo de Paris, which is credited with reflecting the views of the French Peace Delegation, publishes the full text of the Anglo-Persian agreement, and in its comment says:

"If the above stipulations do not constitute a most complete Protectorate, then words have lost their meaning. Doubtless nowhere is a formal Protectorate mentioned, and doubtless a clause announces the independence and full integrity of Persia, but the substance of the agreement will fool no one."

A strong party in the French Chamber of Deputies is advocating the extension of French influence in Syria. Henry Franklin Boettling has given notice to President Deschanel that he will interpellate the Government on the question when the Chamber meets again on Aug. 26.

The French press does use the word "Protectorate" in connection with French influence in Syria. The papers argue that from time immemorial France has had great interests in Syria, and claim that until such time as Syria is able to govern herself France should be designated to afford her such financial help as she needs to help her through her period of formation.

In this connection the papers are somewhat caustic in their comment on the news that Prince Feisal, son of the King of the Hedjaz, is returning to Paris to resume his place at the head of the Arab delegation. They print reports that the Prince is dissatisfied with the prospective Syrian settlement.

"Let Great Britain make a sign," says the Republique Francaise, "and Prince Feisal will submit. France is not used to dealing with straw men. The Conference believes it is accomplishing miracles in procrastinating and in postponing the settlement and difficulties, instead of solving them immediately. Nothing embitters conflicts more than to leave them in suspense."

The Figaro says that the Anglo-Persian agreement is equivalent to a Protectorate in Persia, and quotes the Morning Post, of London, as saying: "Were we not concerned in this matter, we should say this was a Protectorate."

A Pill That Lightens Life.—To the man who is a victim of indigestion the transaction of business becomes an added misery. He cannot concentrate his mind upon his tasks and loss and vexation attend him. To such a man Parlee's Vegetable Pills offer relief. ### WHO ARE THE PUBLIC?

Are Never Present When Term is Used.

We hear much about the public. It is seldom praised; often it is berated. The public will stand for anything, we are told. The public likes to be duped, said P. T. Barnum years ago in explanation of his success as a showman. The public be damned, said a corporation head a generation ago. Society never advances, declared the philosopher Emerson. The public is a huge beast, someone else has said.

Almost anybody who talks about the public on matters pertaining to the public will reiterate such opinions today, observes the Kansas City Star. And no offense is taken; no indignation meetings are held and no resolutions drawn up in condemnation of such insulting language. Apparently nobody feels insulted.

Who, then, is the public? Nobody can tell us; always the thing eludes our search. But is not the public anybody but you and me and anybody except the persons talking about it? Therefore, the public can never be found, though one should inquire all his days. Always the thing is further on, like the rainbow's end.

So there is little use relying on the public to do anything, to take the initiative, to start something, to rise up in rebellion against wrong oppression, outrage, injustice.

There has been much talk about rebellions, revolutions, when public indignation has reached the boiling point; but there never was and likely never will be a public uprising of any kind without a leader, without some individual working alone or in cooperation with a very few other individuals to organize "public sentiment," to give it form and substance, "a local habitation and a name."

Therefore all the abuse that has ever been heaped upon the public might be gathered into one mass and once more hurled at the thing's head and nothing would ever be heard of it and nobody hurt.

What recourse can be had, then, when the people suffer, when a community, a city, is oppressed by bad government, selfish and soulless corporations or what not? None at all by damning the public.

It all comes back to you and me who started the discussion. You are a vital part of the public; I am. You owe it to yourself and to the cause of justice, as do I, to wait not a moment in doing something, in going straight to a neighbor and with him to somebody else, and on and on until an army is raised and the outrage put down. Let us realize our own individual responsibility to an abstract public. The public will do its duty when you and I act.

Kauri Gum.

It comes from the Kauri tree. The Kauri tree grows in New Zealand. Great forests of it there shed the useful gem.

About $100,000,000 worth of it has been dug.

But that is by no means the extent of the Kauri resources.

Rich Kauri peat lands in New Zealand yield the "chip gum dirt."

This yield is valued at from $25,000 to $30,000 an acre, aside from the trees and the buried trunks.

Factories for the production of Kauri gum oil are springing up in New Zealand to utilize this rich harvest.

For centuries the good Kauri trees have been quietly shedding Kauri gum from trunks limbs and leaves; much of the despos it buried eight feet below the surface and the chipped-off gum has formed immense peat deposits that are now rich in oils needed for paint, varnish, etc.

GERMANS ALONE ARE AWAKENED

Feverish Production is Everywhere in Evidence.

Much Stolen Material Still Being Used.

Paris Cable — M. Arbel, a manufacturer of the north of France, has returned from Germany, where he made an unsuccessful attempt to recover the machinery stolen from him during the war by the Germans. As a result of the dismantling of plants in occupied territory in France and Belgium and shipping home all the portable machinery after destroying the heavy pieces and their foundations Germany is economically stronger than before the war, he said. What surprised and angered the traveler is that the Germans are still using much of the stolen machinery.

Were it not for the labor unrest, M. Arbel asserts, the German iron and steel plants would be working at high pressure, while two-thirds of those in France have been destroyed.

In the opinion of the Frenchman, the crops in Germany are superior to those he had seen in France. German farms are stocked with stolen cattle and horses. With their chemical knowledge the Germans have made wonderful progress in intensive cultivation.

With the workers and traders at their posts, the German means of production are formidable, viewed from a French standpoint.

It is the opinion of many in France that the Germans are the only people of the war devastated countries who seem to realize that the most intensive production alone can save the nation. All reports from Germany, confirmed by M. Arbel, say that the Germans are working with feverish activity.

Much criticism is heard here because armistice conditions failed to provide for a cessation of the use of stolen machinery. An effort is being made to bring the matter forward.

How to Carry Ink.

When traveling fasten all the bottles and small jars by adhesive tape. Fasten the tape to one side of the neck, carry it across the cork and down on the other side. Celluloid and ivory boxes and jars may be fastened in the same way. They are easily opened and yet so securely fastened that there is no danger of leaking.

WITLEY IS CLOSED

All Future Sailings Through Buxton.

London Cable — Witley Camp closes to-day and in future all sailings will be conducted through the discharge depot at Buxton.

Col. Hanson, the commanding officer, sails in October for home, but the depot will remain open for some time longer. Men who miss their allotted sailing will, in future, have their pay stopped from the date of their proper sailing, and will also have to find support for themselves and their families until another sailing is available.

Checked for Air. Some little irritant becomes lodged in the bronchial tubes, others gather, and the awful choking of asthma results. Nothing offers quite such quick and positive relief as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. The healing, soothing smoke or vapor penetrates, clears the passages and gives untold relief. Usually it completely cures. It has behind it years of success. It is the sure remedy for every sufferer.

Animals in Hedges.

Those quaint box hedges, which one sometimes sees nowadays in the British Isles, cut out on the top into curious little shapes of birds and animals, are of exceedingly ancient lineage. Pliny, the younger, in describing the garden of one of his villas, mentions "animals in box, facing each other," and this was, perhaps, in about the

His Favorite Dish.

A Chinese merchant, being questioned as to his favorite article of food, prefaced his reply by stating that many foreign dishes which we consider appetizing are disgusting to the Chinese. With the way thus prepared, he announced that of all foods he cared most for a stew made of a particular kind of snake, costing from six to eight dollars.

And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

ARTHUR HENDERSON TO VISIT UNITED STATES.

New York, Aug. 17.—Arthur Henderson, secretary of the British Labor Party, former Cabinet Minister and Privy Councillor, has accepted an invitation to visit the United States in October, according to an announcement made yesterday by William Kohl, chairman of the American party. Mr. Henderson will go on a lecture tour of the principal industrial centres of the country.

ARMENIA IN DIREST CRISIS

Turko-Kurd Plot Against New Republic.

Enver Bey is Leader On the Ground.

Paris Cable — The Armenian delegation in Paris has received from the temporary Premier of the Armenian Republic, M. Sikkhatiesian, details of a vast movement by Turks and Kurds against the Republic and the Armenian refugees who fled from Turkish Armenia and the Caucasus.

Kragim Bey, M. Sikkhatiesian says, with numerous Turkish officers, is at the head of the movement, while the leader on the ground is Enver Bey, former Turkish War Minister. From papers seized, the Armenian Premier declares, it appears that the movement is instigated by Young Turk agents. M. Sikkhatiesian continues: "The Allied troops have already evacuated the territory of the Armenian Republic, and the Armenian Government's demands for help have been of no avail. Please insist to the French that Allied detachments should be sent immediately to Armenia."

"We are in a very critical situation, the Allies must either give us military assistance or send us ammunition. Protest to the Peace Conference and make the Allied Government acquainted with the state of things."

The Armenian delegation says it learns from other sources that before this plot was discovered the information department of the Armenian republic learned of the presence at Sarikamish, Armenia, of units belonging to the Turkish army, in violation of the armistice terms imposed on Turkey. A Turkish division is concentrated in Khorassan, Persia, and, encouraged by the withdrawal of the British troops, is trying to get in touch with the Russian Bolsheviks, the mission says.

"Blood is already being shed in the regions of Uakhitchovyan Charouz and Oit," the mission's announcement continues. "Nothing" but the hope of efficient intervention by the Allies can frustrate this vast Turko-Kurd plot and save the Armenian nation, which has suffered so much already, from another catastrophe."

First Across Canada.

The first white man to cross this continent by a route north of Mexico was Sir Alexander Mackenzie, a Scotsman, who rose high in the service of the old Northwest Company which was amalgamated with the Hudson's Bay company in 1821. Mackenzie was in the far West when he planned his trip across country to the Pacific coast. In the autumn of 1822 he led his party far up the Peace River, where they built a post and wintered. On May 9, 1793, the party set out, passing up the Peace River, through the Rocky Mountains, across to the Fraser River, which was followed down stream for some distance, and then across country through an unexplored region, until the party came out on the Pacific coast. Mixing a quantity of vermilion with melted grease, Mackenzie wrote on the inland side of a high rock rising from the shore these words to mark his visit: "Alexander Mackenzie from Canada, by land, the twenty-second of July, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three. Lat. 52 degrees, 20 minutes, 43 seconds north." Mackenzie then retraced his course and returned to the East.

Why Fish Are Brain Food.

The two vacationers had fished an hour without a nibble to reward them for their patience.

"At a time like this," said the first man, "old Isaac Walton would have indulged in philosophy. Have you anything philosophical on your mind that you might work off just now to relieve the monotony?"

"Nothing but this," replied the other man. "I suppose it is by refusing to bite and compelling fishermen to philosophize that fish get the reputation of being brain food."—Newark News.

Cool Comfort

It's Sunday morning—blazing hot, and pretty near a whole day before you for rest and recreation.

First, then—a shave. Whether you are going for a spin in the car, taking the family to church or visiting a neighbour, you cannot go with a day's growth of beard on your chin.

The thought of shaving won't be irksome if you own a Gillette Safety Razor—rather, you think of five minutes' cool comfort with the highest type of shaving edge ever developed. No man in the world can command a keener blade than the one you slip into your Gillette.

And if Gillette shaving gives you an added joy to your Sunday, why not take five minutes every morning for a clean shave as the start for a better day's work.

For $5.00—the price of the Gillette Safety Razor—you have your choice of the Standard Gillette sets, the Pocket Edition sets (just as perfect, but more compact), and the Bulldog Gillette with the stocky grip. Ask to see them TODAY at the jewellers, druggists or hardware dealers.

Mr. Harry Featherston returned home from overseas on Tuesday last. Harry is another of our local boys who has nobly done his bit in the late war, and his friends will extend to him a warm welcome home.

Mr. Wm. Bell of Montreal is with us again, purchasing apples and pears for shipment. Mr. Bell is an annual visitor to these parts, and yearly purchases large quantities of fruit from the surrounding farmers.

The Rev. W. L. Archer, rector of St. Matthew's church, Hamilton, will conduct the Harvest Home services in Grace church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The choir of St. Matthew's Church, Hamilton, will furnish appropriate music for the occasion.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Nicholson on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd at 2.30 p.m. Papers will be given by Mrs. Walker Drummond on Worry, Work and Waste, and by Mrs. Wedderburn on Laughter, Love and Life. Also other program will be provided. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies of the village and vicinity to attend the meeting.

Monster Garden Parties are being held at Strabane and Kilbride on Labor Day. A royal good time is promised all who attend.

Mr. Smith, of the J. B. Smith Lumber Co., Toronto, and Mr. Peter Tudor of Caledonia were calling on friends in the village last Monday.

The many friends of Mr. William Smith, Sr. will be sorry to learn that he is seriously ill at his home here. Mr. Smith was operated on last Sunday for rupture, and is now doing as well as can be expected. His many friends will hope for his speedy recovery.

Arrangements are being made for the holding of the annual Winter Poultry Show. It has not yet been decided where the show will be held, but the Drill hall is one of the places mentioned, and it is altogether likely that this is the building in which the monster show will be held.

The following pupils of the High school have been successful in the recent examinations. E. M. Attridge (honors), E. C. Davidson, J. D. MacQuarrie (honors), P. E. Slater, F. H. Pereira, H. M. Vance (honors). A record which speaks highly for the teaching staff of our school.

A new iron fence has been erected in front of the cemetery. The fence was purchased in Hamilton and was erected by Messrs. Ryckman and Spence. It presents quite a handsome appearance. This is more of the good work that is being done by the Cemetery committee, and we trust that the good work will continue.

Some of our local boys are arranging for the holding of a monster corn roast. Invitations will be issued in a few days. Owing to the small crop of green corn it has been decided to use canned goods on this occasion. If possible an orchestra will be secured and a dance held in a new barn on the farm where it is intended to hold the roast.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blessinger, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Slater and Mrs. Geo. Church motored to Caledonia on Sunday last, visiting with Miss Jean McGregor, a former High school teacher here. While there they visited the Y. M. C. A. camp at Middleport and report finding everything very satisfactory in the camp and the boys enjoying their holiday.

Mr. Harry B. Stock, who has been local manager of the Bell Telephone Company at Belleville for the past seven years, has tendered his resignation and accepted a position with the Wood Milling Company as assistant manager at Hamilton. The Wood Milling Co. is a branch of the Dominion Flour Mills Co., Limited. Mr. Stock is well known here where the major part of his early life was spent. We congratulate our young friend on his appointment.

The delegates who represented the County of Wentworth at the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association which opened in Toronto yesterday were Warden F. C. Biggs, Councillors W. R. McQueen, J. A. Gray, J. A. Moffatt, and J. H. Neilly. Acting Reeve John Peart will represent Barton. Reeve Peter Ray, East Flamboro, Reeve T. J. Mahoney, Saltfleet and County Clerk J. F. Vance went to Toronto yesterday to attend the meeting of the executive.

Peter Ray, the worthy Reeve of East Flamboro, is wearing a happy smile these days. One of his pet schemes, the incorporating in the County System the road from Flamboro to Carlisle and from the Halton line to the town line between East and West Flamboro passing through Carlisle to the 9th con. road, has passed the County council, and will mean a great deal to Flamboro. Peter certainly is a live wire and can be trusted to safeguard the Township's interests.

The annual meeting of the Corn Club was held on Tuesday last in their offices on Mill street. The auditor's report was read and was very gratifying indeed. It showed, after provision had been made for all doubtful debts, a balance on hand of $250. This will be devoted to the purchase of new devices for use in the club. It was regrettable that a number of members are behind in their dues, and it is urgently requested that all come and settle at once, and save the collector the bother of calling on them in person. We notice that several Dundas names appear on the list. The Club intend holding extensive exhibits at the Fall fairs.

A GREAT CANADIAN.

Dr. Crozier Has a Place in Intellectual Aristocracy.

Dr. John Beattie Crozier is a Canadian who has won his way by unaided merit to the highest ranks of Britain's intellectual aristocracy. On April 23, his seventieth birthday, he received a letter expressing warm appreciation of his "eminent services to British scholarship and speculation," and his "unselfish endeavors for human welfare," signed by Lord Morley, O.M., Lord Bryce, O.M., Mr. Frederic Harrison, Prof. Sir William Osler, Lt. Lieut.-Col. Sir Francis Younghusband, Mr. St. Leo Strachey, Dr. W. L. Courtney, Mr. H. W. Massingham, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Dr. John Clifford, Mr. J. L. Garvin, Mr. J. A. Hobson, Mr. Arthur Sherwell, Mr. James F. Muirhead, Mr. G. P. Gooch, and Mr. Bailey Saunders. These are the names of leading public men, writers, physicians, scientists, editors, historians, social workers, and political economists. Few men have had so significant a tribute paid them in their lifetime as this spontaneous testimonial by Dr. Crozier's contemporaries.

Dr. Crozier was born in Galt in 1849, and graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto in 1872 as a double medalist. He went to England in the same year to begin his career. His books were produced by immense industry, in the hours spared from the practice of his profession. His monumental work, "History of Intellectual Development on the Lines of Modern Evolution," begun in 1897 and completed in 1904, won him official recognition in the form of a pension from the civil list, which enabled him to devote more time to his literary labors. The titles of his volumes—"The Religion of the Future," "Civilization and Progress," "Lord Randolph Churchill: A Study of English Democracy," "My Own Life," "The Wheel of Wealth," "First Principles of Investment," and "Sociology as Applied to Practical Politics," show the versatility of his interests and the range of his research. He has recently lost his wife and his only son, the latter killed in the war. "I sit here desolate," he writes a Canadian friend, "except for kind friends who come in relays every afternoon to see me and talk." But he can look back upon a life of distinguished achievement, crowned by the praise of his fellow-workers.

Dr. Crozier tells a Canadian correspondent that he left Canada because "at that time our Canadians would have nothing but the imprimatur of London and the English—no colonial at any price!" Have Canadians altogether outlived this reproach? Is it not true to-day that they are reluctant to recognize or encourage native merit until it comes back with the hall-mark of London or New York? The number of Canadians of talent who have found it necessary to leave the country to find a field is not flattering to national pride.

Principal Says Farewell.

Sir William Peterson, who is retiring as principal of McGill University, after 24 years of service, to be succeeded by Sir Auckland Geddes, said farewell in a letter which was read at the annual convocation. "My colleagues in the administration and on the teaching staff know how greatly I have valued their co-operation and loyal support during those 24 years," said Sir William. "May the record of McGill in the next quarter of a century outshine and eclipse everything that has been accomplished in the past. In any case the friends of the university may rest assured that her progress and prosperity will always have a foremost place in my thoughts and affections."

The announcement from the Carnegie Foundation that a retiring allowance of $4,000 had been voted to Sir William Peterson was received with gratification by every one connected with McGill. In his letter the secretary of the Carnegie Foundation said: "The executive committee in taking this action desired me to express to you, as best I might, their affectionate and kindly feeling, as well as to assure you in this official way of their appreciation of the magnificent services for civilization which you were able to do during the four hard years of war which have passed. The committee hope that there will be left for you many years of activity and influence in education and statesmanship such as can come only from a man of your ripe experience and knowledge."

Canada's Immigrants.

Canada's immigrants, 1900-16, numbered 4,141,111, of which only 1,168,282 were of British stock. "The 8,075,000 total population compiled in 1915 gave Canada 53 nationalities and 83 languages and dialects. In Winnipeg one-third of the male population is foreign, in Montreal one in seven, in Toronto one in ten. Rich Northern Ontario has a 45 non-Anglo-Saxon population, Manitoba 42 per cent., Alberta 40. In 1916, Saskatchewan had 647,855 people, of whom less than half spoke English."

These were but a few of the striking figures furnished the I. O. D. E. sessions when the national educational secretary, Mrs. G. Smith, stirred all to action in regard to Canada's melting pot. Very plainly did she point out that, unless this problem were solved, Canada's war sacrifices would have been naught.

Wake up, Ontario!

Let the Referendum Battle-Cry Be
"No!" - "No!" - "No!" - "No!"

SINCE the announcement in the Legislature last spring that a Referendum on the Ontario Temperance Act would be taken this fall, the different temperance organizations of the province of Ontario have met together to consider what attitude they should take. The result has been the formation of the Ontario Referendum Committee, which comprises representatives from the organized temperance forces of the province and the temperance sentiment of the province outside of these organizations. The new Committee will conduct the Campaign. We are asking the voters of Ontario to vote "No" to all questions submitted on the ballot.

The Referendum Ballot AND HOW TO VOTE

	Yes	No
1. Are you in favor of the repeal of THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT?		X
2. Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure through Government agencies and amendments to THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT to permit such sale?		X
3. Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure in standard hotels in local municipalities that by a majority vote favor such sale, and amendments to THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT to permit such sale?		X
4. Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies and amendments to THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT to permit such sale?		X

By the Ontario Temperance Act, sale and distribution of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes within the province were prohibited. For practically three years the province has experienced the good effects of this law. Its repeal would be a calamity. Any of the amendments would spoil it.

For the Temperance forces to win they must secure four "No" majorities. That is, a majority for "No" on EVERY question. The Temperance forces will be defeated if there is a majority for "Yes" on any of the questions. You must mark an X after each of the four questions, or your ballot is counted as spoiled.

A century of temperance progress in this province is at stake in the coming Referendum. The Ontario Referendum Committee earnestly and respectfully ask you to mark your X in the "No" column after each and every question, as indicated in the sample ballot reproduced herewith.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson X. Sept. 7, 1919.
The Kingdom of God.

Matthew 13: 31-33, 44-50.
Commentary.—1. "The kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 6: 10). This expression is a part of the prayer that Jesus taught his disciples. In praying thus the petitioner acknowledges the supreme authority of the Father; he bows in submission to the divine will, recognizing its excellence; he yields full obedience to all of God's requirements; he would dwell in that kingdom and have that kingdom set up in his heart; he desires to have that kingdom fill the whole earth; he asks that the Father should consummate his great plan for the salvation and eternal blessedness of man. No one can pray this prayer in full sincerity and faith without being brought into the kingdom of heaven.

II. An advancing kingdom (vs. 31: 33). 31. Like a grain of mustard seed—the comparison is an apt one, for the kingdom of heaven was apparently small in its beginning. Jesus, the obscure Galilean, with his few disciples, did not make a great show, and the future did not promise much; but the kingdom was likened to something that had life in it. A man... sowed in his field—There were both purpose and preparation in the sowing, and growth was expected. 32. Least of all—The mustard seed was the smallest seed that the farmer was accustomed to sow. Becometh a tree—The mustard plant grows to a great size in Palestine, sometimes reaching a height of fifteen feet, and is strong enough to admit of a man's climbing it. It is a convenient place for birds to find shelter, and when the seeds are ripe they afford food for them. The kingdom of heaven has energy and is moving forward and will continue until the kingdoms of this world become the kingdoms of Christ (Rev. 11: 15). 33. Like unto leaven—Another feature of the kingdom is presented under a most familiar figure. Leaven was an article found in every home and usually consisted of a lump of dough kept over from a previous baking. Which a woman... hid in three measures of meal—The task of baking devolved upon the women of the East. Three measures of meal would be equal to something more than a bushel. The leaven was placed in the meal, yet the parable is true to nature. This parable sets forth the permeating, pervading, transforming power of the grace of God. The grace of God works a change in the motives, in the desires, in the purposes, in the affections, in the pleasures, in

Nature and the Indian

The Indian never liked work but he wanted his squaw to get well as soon as possible so that she could do the work and let him hunt, therefore he dug papoose root for her, for that was their great remedy for female weaknesses.

Dr. Pierce uses the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his "Favorite Prescription" skillfully combined with other agents that make it more effective.

Women who are worn out, who suffer from pain at regular or irregular intervals, who are nervous or dizzy at times, should take that reliable, temperance, herbal tonic which a doctor in active practice prescribed many years ago. Now sold by druggists, in tablets and liquid, as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

WOODSTOCK, Ont.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Medicines. I had nervous prostration and was completely 'down and out.' I was so bad the doctors considered mine a hopeless case. I was much discouraged and was ready to give up when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines put me on my feet again and gave me the only real relief. Being a nurse I have recommended Dr. Pierce's Medicines to many, especially the 'Favorite Prescription.' I know of many a young mother to whom I have recommended 'Favorite Prescription' that has been wonderfully helped.

"I am glad to find my name in connection with Dr. Pierce's Medicines, knowing how good they are.—Miss A. F. Wilson at 511 John Street."

come and a proper disposition was made of the two kinds. 49. At the end of the world—At the judgment. The angels—The messengers of God doing His bidding. Sever—The righteous and the wicked live together here and they may even be in the same church or congregation, but "at the end" they shall be separated. 50. into the furnace of fire—The place of torment for the wicked.

V. Entering the kingdom (Matt. 18: 2, 3; Luke 17, 20, 21; 2 Cor. 10, 3-5). The kingdom of Heaven is making its way in the world. It is of highest value and is desirable and best of all, it is within the reach of every one. John the Baptist proclaimed the coming of the kingdom, and Jesus brought it where he can enter it. The language of Luke 17, 20, 21, declares its nearness and also declares that it has its place in the heart. We are to be in the kingdom and the kingdom is to be in us. It is a spiritual kingdom and he who enters it is a transformed man. He is created anew in Christ Jesus.

Questions.—What is the kingdom of Heaven? By what means did Jesus show its nature? What does the parable of the mustard seed teach? What phase of the kingdom is illustrated by the parable of the leaven? How is the superlative value of the kingdom set forth? What truths are set forth in the parable of the net? How may one gain entrance into the kingdom? PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic.—The universality of the kingdom. The Kingdom of God is the central fact and consummation of all revelation. It was the design of creation, and is the purpose and end of all the institutions of the Old and New Testaments. It was reassured in the Edenic promise. By it is meant the all-inclusive dominion of God, by the greatness of his power, displaying his majesty and glory (1 Chron. 29: 11). Revelation deals particularly with the moral kingdom of God, which includes the kingdom of grace and consummates itself in the kingdom of glory. It is a kingdom of heaven manifesting itself in a world of sin—a fountain of life gushing out into the desolation of death." Its design is to conform human character and conduct to the divine character and conduct to the divine character. It comes into conflict with a false kingdom whose head is the "prince of this world," ruling in the hearts and governing the lives of unregenerate men. Jesus declares the kingdom of God to be already present (Luke 17: 21), though it is referred to in the scripture as also future. It is now in the process of development, as is clearly taught in some of the parables recorded in Matt. 13. In the Old Testament we have a preparatory economy. "a shadow," of this kingdom (Heb. 10: 1). Jesus was its embodiment and his was the perfect ideal of human life. Through the processes of grace he is separating unto himself a kingdom among men to be established at last in visible and complete perfection. The kingdom of God is universal and eternal. He shall rule the world in the midst of his enemies (Psa. 110: 2). Daniel prophesied of a kingdom set up by the "God of heaven," which "shall break in pieces" all other kingdoms, and itself "shall never be destroyed," "an everlasting kingdom" (Dan. 2: 44; 4: 3).

God's moral kingdom embraces all subjects of government. Mankind is particularly dealt with a such in the scripture. In the fall the original divine image was defaced and man through rebellion passed outside the favor of God. Redemption discloses

God's purpose and method of restoration. Its outworking commenced with the separation of an individual (Gen. 12: 1) to become the progenitor of a separate nation, to which should be committed the promises for all nations (Rom. 4: 12), and through which the promised "seed" should come. Christ's loving sacrifice of himself became the basis of a new covenant, by means of which, through self-humiliation, repentance and faith men become the subjects of the Spirit birth. Through this alone they enter into the kingdom which is "righteousness, and peace, and joy" (Rom. 14: 17). No other way or mode of entrance is possible (John 3: 5; 10: 9). The kingdom is not to be identified with the church, though the latter is the appointed agency for its advancement. It can

God's kingdom will, in its progress and manifestation, dispel the powers of darkness and overcome the false and opposite elements. This will come to pass in consequence of a great crisis, the destruction of the false kingdom and the anti-christian power of this world (2 Thess. 2: 8). Then will Satan be bound.

Pattern to Copy.
Beatrice's Aunt Marjorie was to be married, and Beatrice was to be the flower girl. They were to have their pictures taken before the ceremony, and the bride was looking sad, or so thought Beatrice. Looking around the room, Beatrice spied the Kewpie doll, dressed as a bride, which had done duty at a previous shower. Beatrice said, "Don't look so sad, Aunt Marjorie—smile. Smile like the Kewpie doll."

Felt Need of Change.
Charles was staying in the country where playmates were few. So long as it was Hobson's choice he amused himself with a little neighbor girl some years younger than himself, but on being supplied with toys, he entirely abandoned his former playmate regardless of all her attempts to lure him back. On being remonstrated with by his mother for his neglect of Julia he disgustedly remarked, "Oh mother, I'll go back to Julia some day, but a fellow sometimes wants a change."

Must Have Proper Foundation.
The flowers of rhetoric are only acceptable when backed by the evergreens of truth and sense. The granite statue, rough hewn though it be is far more imposing in its simple and stern though rude proportions, than the plaster cast, however elaborately wrought and gilded.—Macaulay.

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

Mollie laughed shortly. "Because she wouldn't go."

"What you want is change," he said, after this piece of defiance. "I mean change of scene, place, surroundings, and freedom from worry. Let me see." He considered for a moment. Mollie waiting with a semblance of patience, and meeting Clytie's reproachful gaze with a grimace. "Yes; I used to send you, when you were a child, to Withycombe. You remember?"

Mollie clapped her hands. "Rather! Of course! Dear old Withycombe! That jolly old farmhouse on the hill running down to the beach. With the fishing-boats and the lime-kill! The very place! Let's go there, Clytie, dear; go at once. It's only twenty miles; and we can put up at the farm, and take some horses, and the pony jingle, and make a regular picnic of it. Mother Bunce at the farm—what a dear, fat old thing she used to be."

"Mrs. Bunce is dead," said Doctor Morton. "But the farm is being run by her married daughter."

"I don't remember her," said Mollie.

"I dare say not. Really, I think you can't do better than go there, and at once, as Miss Mollie says," he resumed.

"Yes," said Mollie. "And tell Mr. Granger not to worry her with letters, and papers, and things."

"I will obey your royal highness commands," he said.

Mollie nodded, not at all crushed by his sarcasm.

"I always like you; you are so sensible," she declared, with emphatic approval. "I'll send word to Mrs.—what's her name—at once, and we'll start to-morrow or the next day at latest. And I'll bring Clytie back as fat as one of the Butleys' little pigs, and burned as black as a nigger; then you can go around and boast how you've cured her."

Dr. Morton grinned. "Thank you. Do you know what I should prescribe for you, if I had my way?"

"No, and it doesn't matter. I shouldn't take it. I once poured a bottle of medicine into a flower pot; and the way that poor flower shrivelled up and died was a lesson to me. Ask him to stay to lunch, Clytie; he's been so sensible and good."

The doctor declined, gently displacing and patting the arm thrown around his; and when he had gone, Mollie, ignoring Clytie's attempts at a lecture, set about their preparations.

Simple as they were, they took three days in the making; for Mrs. Fry, at the farm to which they were going, had to get the rooms for her expected lodgers, the horses had to be sent on, and so on; but on the evening of the third day the two girls arrived at the quaintly beautiful combe, or valley, which, like a cleft in the hills, wound in serpentine fashion from the uplands to the sea's margin. It was one of the most secluded spots imaginable, and the Hill Farm, as it was called, looked down upon a thin line of thatched cottages that stood on the edge of the narrow road which the new inhabitants proudly designated a "street."

These inhabitants were, with the exception of the few farm laborers, fishermen, as simple and as rustic as children of a larger growth; the place was seldom visited by tourists—who made for the neighboring and more famous combe, Pethwick—and no spot would have been better chosen for Clytie's troubled mind.

The farmhouse was a large and old-fashioned one; and Mollie, as she let the oar fall with a splash into the water.

"Oh, what's that?" cried Mollie. "Nothing, miss," he said, as very red in the face, he picked up the oar. He was a trifle pale by the time he had got it, and resumed his former position.

Clytie! Clytie! Then she was the Miss Bramley his father had willed him to marry. Yes; what an idiot he had been not to recognize her! He stole a glance at her, and, of course, with the clue the name had supplied, remembered her distinctly. Was this the almost scraggy little girl all legs and arms, with whom he had once played? It seemed impossible. What a beautiful young woman she had grown into. How she had changed! And how changed he must be, seeing that she had not recognized him!

It was an awkward moment for him; for the fact of these two girls being the Miss Bramleys affected him, he told himself, almost more than it should have done. For, after all, he asked himself, what did it matter? Plain or pretty, he had surrendered, renounced her; no, set her free, that was the pleasantest way of regarding it. He was rather glad that he had seen her. She would make a beautiful and gracious mistress of the old Hall—the house of her fathers—in every way a fitting and suitable mistress. He should always be glad to remember that he had spent some hours with her, had seen for himself that she was worthy of the position he had it dreamily, could not help thinking of the strange fact that for a year, at any rate, she was the mistress of it.

She had scarcely bestowed a second glance on the fisherman whom Mollie, in her masterful way, had "commandered," had scarcely noticed whether he was young or old.

Mollie leaned forward, her hands clasping her knees, her bright eyes flitting from one point to another, occasionally resting for a moment on Jack's grave face.

"Pretty girls, both of them," Jack thought. "The elder is right down beautiful. Reminds me of some one—can't remember who, though. Seems thoughtful and rather sad; in mourning, too, I suppose." Each girl had a black band to her white dress. "Lost somebody, I expect. Wonder who they are—visitors?"

"Jolly, isn't it?" said Mollie, throwing herself back and trailing her hand in the water. "Do you think there is another place in the world so beautiful as this?"

Clytie looked round.

"No, dear. Oh, yes; I imagine there must be."

"Well, I doubt it," said Mollie. "Abroad, perhaps. What do you say? Have you been abroad, in foreign lands?" she asked Jack, abruptly, so abruptly that he almost started, for he was aroused to the consciousness of the fact that he was staring at the older girl.

"Yes," he said. "I have traveled a good deal. It's very beautiful, though. Perhaps some of the bits along the Portugal coast—and Sydney Harbor."

The tone of his voice was so unlike that of the Withycombe fishermen that Clytie's attention was attracted to him, but only faintly and transiently.

"Oh, I know," said Mollie. "Australia raves about Sydney Harbor, and when the ship is going into it they run about among the strangers and ask them what they think about it. One man hung a board across his chest with "Yes, it's a fine harbor; but you didn't make it!"

Jack laughed. "That's a good story," he said, approvingly.

"I should have thought you'd have heard that," said Mollie. "If you've traveled much."

"I have," he admitted, "but it's worth hearing again."

His sang-froid gave Mollie pause for a moment; then she said:

"Are you living here, Douglas?"

"Yes, for the present," replied Jack.

"You know it very well?" she asked, casually.

"I only arrived here a week or two ago," he answered, with strict veracity.

"You're a sailor, then?"

He nodded. "Yes; and several other things; tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor, apothecary—yes, most of 'em, barring the thief," said Jack, cheerfully.

"Mollie!" murmured Clytie, in an undertone; and Mollie was silent for a moment or two; then, as if she were pining for intelligent conversation, she began again.

"I suppose you have some friends, relations, here at Withycombe?"

"No," said Jack, calmly, and looking over his shoulder. "Nary one. I just happened to come to the place."

"I'm taking a bit of a holiday."

"Oh, then, why didn't you say you didn't want any work when I asked you to row us?" she demanded.

"Well, this is scarcely work," he said, with a smile. He was amused by her sharpness and pertinacity, and was rapidly taking a liking to her. "I mean—that it isn't hard work."

"You've done a good deal, I suppose, in your time?" she suggested.

"A fair amount," he said. "Oh, yes."

"Have you been ill? Why did you want a rest?" she asked.

"Just laziness," said Jack.

"You don't look lazy," she remarked, with the frankness which in any one but Mollie might have been offensive; but Jack laughed, as most of her victims did.

"Appearances are deceitful, miss," he said, suddenly, remembering that his manner of speech was rather too free and easy for his assumed character. "I'm one of the laziest of men—when I get the chance. It isn't often I do, though."

with smiling but unobtrusive interest, as they made their way over the rocks to the sea edge.

she added, looking round.

A young man, in a blue jersey and fishermen's long sea-boots, was sitting on the edge of a boat with his

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. S. JOHNSON, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years experience is at your service.

arm folded and a pipe stuck in the corner of his mouth. He had been observing the girls for some time. Mollie went up to him.

"Can you take us for a row?" she asked, with the calmness, the freedom from embarrassment, which belonged to Mollie.

He took the pipe from his mouth, and his hand went up to his hat, but dropped again, even in the act of lifting the sailor's cap. He eyed her for a moment; then, as if regretting his hesitation, said:

"Certainly, miss." And began pushing his boat into the tideway.

"He will take us," said Mollie, returning to Clytie, who had seated herself on a rock and was looking out to sea.

The young fellow launched the boat, and brought it to a boulder and stood waiting. He helped the two girls in without a word and shipped the oars.

"Not far," said Mollie, "and keep near the coast, in case—" She broke off and looked steadily at the fisherman. "What is your name?" she asked in a casual fashion.

"Douglas—Jack Douglas," he replied.

"Oh! Well, don't go too far out, Jack," she said, more casually even than before, and stifled a yawn.

Bake the potatoes, then cut in half, and scrape out the middle. Mix with the other ingredients until smooth, add cream, fill the cases and bake in the oven until a golden brown.

The Rat Problem.

The suggestion has been made that the rat problem might be best solved by making use of the skins of the rodents for the purposes of leather. Somebody with the gift of guessing computes that there are 100,000,000 rats in this country, and the damage they do would cost at least 5,000 armies a day to supply a small modern tannery. Nobody wants the rats; they belong to anybody that can catch them. That is the only problem—to catch them and skint them, and then deliver the goods. There is not enough leather to go around. Fish skins are susceptible of tanning, and there are rat skins which make good leather, large enough for many purposes.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New One-cent Coin.

The Minister of Finance is con- sidering the design for a new one-cent copper coin. The present one-cent piece while of excellent design is of so large size as to make it in- convenient to carry more than two or three in the pocket. The new coin will be slightly larger and slightly thicker than a ten-cent piece so as to be readily distinguishable to the touch. It will take some time to have the die made and the coins issued for circulation.

Tribute to Canada.

Canada has done wonderfully well thus far with its war finance, and there is every reason to expect that she will keep this pace to the end. Canada is enormously rich in unde- veloped resources and her promises to pay are among the best securities in the world. As a matter of fact, there is practically no difference be- tween Canada and the United States so far as financial responsibility is concerned. After the war there is bound to be a rapid development of Canada's resources with great in- crease in the visible wealth.—Buffalo Express.

Why Not?

Her lover sent her flowers,
And the flowers scent the air.

In a Liberal Mood.

"The judge was very nice."
"Yes?"
"Gave me a divorce, permission to marry again, and intimated that if I didn't do better than I did the first time he'd grant me another divorce."

The Wonders of Observation.

Long ago a keen observer of hu- manly recorded his discovery that a small borrower never leaves the bank without glancing one way and moving off in the contra direction. A rival observer has just turned up in the Christian Science Monitor to report his conclusion, after years of patient observation, that a brass band and a small boy never move in opposite directions.

Caribou.

Migrating caribou along the Yukon river near the American-Canadian border were so thick during the first week of October that the United States Government steamboat Gen. Jeff Davis had difficulty in navigat- ing among the animals swimming in the river. Thousands swarmed the shores and waters. Members of the crew said they lassoed a dozen and hauled them aboard for fresh meat.

Wanted to Advertise.

The military authorities reject the name "Londonview" proposed to be given the new million-dollar hospital to be erected south of the city and a committee will now make a selection from a list of battle names. The military folk object to the institution being made to serve advertising pur- poses.

Whisky and Religion.

Leon Swift was fined $10 in a St. Catharines police court recently, the result of a quarrel over religion that developed on a G.T.R. train after the doctrinal disputants had filled up on Niagara Falls whisky.
