Town Council Held Two Meetings

Sewerage Question Discussed at Length—Town's Account Stays With Royal Bank

Town Council met in adjourned session on the 28th ult. His Worship Mayor Morrison in the chair. Aldermen all present.

Minutes of last two meetings were read and approved.

A communication was read as follows:

Newcastle, May 30, 1917.

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Newcastle.

Gentlemen:
The Newcastle Steamboat Company find it necessary to build a new hull this season for their boat, "Dorothy N." and would like to build it in the town instead of at their property at Rosebank.

Would you please let us know if you would give us the right free of charge, of using the old Ferry Slip for this purpose?

We would also ask what charge per annum you would ask for rental for this slip, should we decide to haul up our boat at the close of navigation in future.

Yours truly,
Newcastle Steamboat Co., Ltd.
Per D. Morrison

The Mayor said that he had told Mr. Morrison that he thought the council would probably be willing to rent the slip at $10 a year, nothing said about hauling up the boat.

He suggested a motion to that effect, and it was moved by Ald. Sargeant, seconded by Ald. Troy that the Town rent the Ferry Wharf to the Newcastle Steamboat Co., one year from date at $10 a year. Carried.

Moved by Ald. P. Russell, seconded by Ald. Durick, that the matter of renting slip for hauling up purposes be deferred till another meeting. Carried.

Petition for sewerage extension from Mackay's corner to the Lonsbury Co corner, was read from the residents of that section, and on motion it was referred to the committee on petitions, as was also a similar petition from the residents of Jane Street.

An application from Mr. D. Pigott for use of the Council Chamber for the training of a Choral Society on Monday and Friday evenings was read, and on motion action was deferred until next meeting.

Adjourned to meet again, Wednesday evening, July 4th.

The Town Council met in adjourned session last evening. Mayor Morrison presiding, all aldermen present except Ald. P. Russell, who came in later.

Town Clerk read a letter from Mr. R. M. Rivo, the extension of water and sewerage to the houses he proposes building on George St.

Ald. Ritchie asked for information and the Mayor said the plan could be seen at the town clerk's office.

Ald. Durick said the matter should be taken up at once, and made a strong plea for sewerage extension to encourage building.

A petition from the residents of Upper King Street, Falconer and Upper Pleasant Street was read and on motion was referred to the Committee on Petitions.

The monthly accounts were ordered paid, as were two old accounts of 1916.

The Finance Committee reported only one tender for the Copeland house of $50, which was not entertained. On motion of Ald. Troy the Finance Committee were authorized to sell the house by public auction on July 25th, the upset price to be $80.

The Mayor said that there had been a lot of complaints regarding the need of a stack catcher on the smokestack at The Gear Works, and on motion of Ald. Sargeant and P. Russell, the town clerk was authorized to see the manager of the Gear Works and ask him to have a spark catcher installed.

On motion of Ald. Doyle and Troy the charge for the use of the Town Hall for dances in future be $15, the amount to be deposited with the town treasurer on delivery of the key.

The Appointment to Office Committee recommended the following re-appointments:

Authors of School Accounts—P. J. McEvoy and J. H. Sargeant.
School Trustees—H. Whittam.

The matter of sewerage was then taken up and discussed at length, a full report of which will be published next week.

Ald. Troy moved, seconded by Ald.

Durick that the Light and Water Committee be given the power to get the opinion of an engineer re the cost of building the necessary sewers in town, and report at the next meeting.

Ald. Ritchie said he proposed introducing a bye-law at the next meeting fixing the annual rental for sewerage at $5, payable quarterly.

Ald. Doyle moved an amendment seconded by Ald. Ritchie that the Committee ascertain the cost of putting the water and sewerage up to Mr. Rive's property, and report at next meeting. On the suggestion of Ald. Sargeant the motion was changed to include the upper end of the town and the amendment was carried.

Ald. Durick moved that the Light and Water Committee be instructed to correspond with the C. G. Ry. authorities relative to the sewerage on Jane street. Carried.

Ald. Sargeant moved that a committee be appointed to ask the Board of Trade to assist in the matter. Carried. The Mayor appointed Aids. Troy, Sargeant and Kingston as the committee.

On motion of Aids. Troy and Durick, the same committee were given power to wait on the T. I. L. and ask their assistance in the matter.

Ald. Doyle asked if any action had been taken re the lighting of the bridge.

Ald. John Russell said he had taken the matter up with Mr. Veniot, but was told that it was a town affair and he could give no assistance in the matter.

Ald. Troy read tenders he had received from the two local banking institutions re the town's business, and moved the tender of the Royal Bank be accepted. Seconded by Ald. Ritchie.

Ald. Durick said the object was to get the best rates for the town's accounts on hand at the present time. According to the tenders received it was six of one and a half dozen of the other. The Royal Bank had been handling the funds for the past sixteen or seventeen years and had always given satisfaction. The Bank of Nova Scotia was just as reliable. Their interest was compounded every thirty days and the Royal Bank every six months. Both banks should have a share of the town's business. He favored the Royal Bank having the current account. The council should give the other bank a chance. No tenders had been asked for in the past seventeen years. He moved in amendment seconded by Ald. Kingston that the Mayor and Town Treasurer be authorized to transfer the Savings account to the Bank of Nova Scotia and that the Current account be allowed to remain in the Royal Bank of Canada.

Ald. Ritchie could see no object in changing the accounts. No use taking two bites to a cherry. The Royal Bank had been here much longer than the Bank of Nova Scotia. They evidently had faith in the town. They were also large tax payers, larger he thought than the Bank of Nova Scotia. In the first few years of the town's incorporation they had financed the town, that the Bank of Nova Scotia at that time, probably, would not have done. It was not business anyway.

Ald. Durick said it was business, it was dividing the account. The Royal Bank was getting the largest account. The Bank of Nova Scotia was equally as far ahead in the Savings account. Both banks were large tax payers in the town. It was giving each a little and was going to increase our interest.

Ald. J. Russell—"Very little."
Ald. Troy—"Thirty-five cents a thousand."

Mayor Morrison agreed with Ald. Durick. He would like to impress upon the Aldermen the fact that they were custodians of the people's money. The tender of the Bank of Nova Scotia against the Royal Bank was a saving to the Town of Newcastle of $1.75 a year. It was a question of whether our cash of office allows us to vote against a motion that will add $1.75 more to the revenue of the town. One point he wished to impress was that it was business to give to the bank that gave the largest interest. In this case both were equal but the method of computing the interest gives $1.75 more. He would Every part of the program was well carried out. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was excellent. Miss Wathen's reading showed great elocutionary ability. Miss Crocker's Class Prophecy was well prepared and pleased the audience immensely.

The essays were well read and displayed much depth of thought. Everyone present felt that the class of 1917 will make their mark in a manner worthy of the best traditions of their Alma Mater. The whole proceedings reflected great credit upon their capable and painstaking teachers. Principal J. D. Keane and Mr. J. H. Drummie.

The thirteen graduates, each of the girls in white and carrying a handsome bouquet, made a very pleasing picture. Both during the exercises and afterwards, they received hearty congratulations from all sides.

Thursday evening, after the graduating exercises, the class were entertained at the home of Miss Delphine Clarke, and on Friday afternoon, the class with their principal, had a group photo taken. On Friday, on invitation of Montgomery Vye, the class picniced at Wilson's Point.

During the year the class had a very pleasant organization with the following officers:—President, Elva McCurdy; Secretary, Marion MacArthur; Executive Committee, Constance Wilson, Mona Lindon and Jean Wathen.

Rev. Dr. Squires, Inspector MacFarlane, Mayor Morrissey, Professor Peacock, and Principal Keane, also addressed the assembly, but lack of space prevents us publishing their addresses in full.

Prussianism
(By Constance C. Wilson)
It may be said of the present time, that Prussianism has been so widely, and so frequently discussed as to render it too commonplace a theme for an essay on an occasion like the present, nevertheless, with the progress of the great world struggle and the momentous changes to which it is giving rise, we are all too prone to forget the root-cause of this struggle and of these changes, or at all events to treat it as a matter of second rate importance. No argument is necessary to support the assertion that we should never allow this un-men, money and munitions. The princes of India who were supposed to be disloyal sent assurances of loyalty accompanied with princely contributions. The Maharaja of Bikaner in a speech delivered in London, shortly before the Imperial Conference last month, said: "Those who say that India is held by the sword do a grave injustice both to Great Britain and to India. British rule in India rests on firmer foundations. It is based on the principles of justice, equity and fair play."

Canada instead of taking advantage of the situation to declare her independence, made England's cause her own and besides furnishing some hundreds of thousands of men, established munition plants all over the country and organized Red Cross societies for the comfort of the soldiers and the relief of the wounded. She determined, in a word, to stand by England to the full extent of her resources, and to help her on to a victorious end.

Australia not only furnished men, but also by her fleet of fast cruisers assisted materially in clearing the seas of the German commerce raiders.

In Ireland to all appearances, "a house divided against itself" the several factions agreed for the time, to lay aside their differences and unite to fight the common foe. Ulsterites and Nationalists are fighting side by side in the trenches of France and Flanders and are daily being drawn much closer together by the consciousness of a common cause.

The Boer generals who fought so fiercely against the forces of Britain, having tasted the liberty which comes from British rule, took up arms in defence of that liberty, expelled the invaders from her territories and carried the war successfully into her enemies' dominions. So much for the accuracy of Prussian calculations as to lack of sympathy among the people of our Empire.

Many things might be said as to the lessons to be drawn from this grand spectacle of co-operation and the various considerations to which it gives rise. To dwell on each of these would be to extend beyond reasonable limits the time allotted me. But I must refer to the consideration which has not failed to impress itself on all reflecting minds

All this had its effect on the people. They came to regard Prussia as the one and only state and to despise all foreign ones. In their own mind, they were the people chosen by God to rule the world, and to them ought all men bow down. They grew selfish and arrogant, working only for their one great aim, to make Prussia the ruling power of the earth. Says a present day writer: "The German people have become a great power under the guidance of the Hohenzollerns; they were promised by their military autocracy a future of dazzling wealth and dominion beside which the prosperity they had attained would seem almost contemptible."

The German government is in effect a military despotism and in the words of Mr. Balfour "has pursued steadily, remorselessly, unscrupulously and appalling, the object of dominating the civilization of mankind, and has focused all the resources of knowledge and of civilization into one great task of making itself the moral and material master of the world."

Being a despotism the people were educated along the lines best suited to the purposes of their rulers. From their earliest infancy, their children were taught an unquestioning obedience to the state, the individual being nothing, the state everything. The consequence of such an ideal was to make the subjects mere puppets in the hands of those higher up. As a further means to attaining their end, they built up a system of espionage, by which they were able to keep in touch with the preparations of other nations and at the same time conceal their own objects. German subjects were sent all over the world to engage in all kinds of occupations and to be at the same time paid servants of the state, reporting in minute detail, things apparently trivial but which combined with others were of great importance to the Fatherland. The system taken as a whole was well nigh perfect, the only weakness being the inability of the German mind to understand the domestic situation in foreign countries. For example, German officialdom was firmly convinced that the Liberal government in England would never go to war, that they dared not do so for fear of a revolution in Ireland, an uprising in India, a declaration of independence in Canada, and a secession of the states in South Africa. It is a sad truth, that Ireland was, apparently, on the verge of civil war, and since the South African states had been at war with England but a short time before there may have been some slow process for supposing that they too, would not remain loyal. But the calculations of the Prussians were altogether wrong. Instead of the British Empire dissolving in ruin, as they fondly hoped, the several parts rose in their might in the cause of liberty and righteousness. Not a single one of his Majesty's dominions but sent its splendid contribution of and that is the prospect that this apparently unparalleled evil may indirectly be the cause of much permanent good. The British Empire has become more firmly consolidated; the French and British have become brothers, the English-speaking races are being drawn more closely together; Great Britain and the United States of America being more friendly than at any time since the Secession of the colonies.

We cannot tell how long this war will last but we earnestly hope and fervently pray that at the end we shall see Prussian Militarism crushed, that autocracy with its inevitable train of evils will be a thing of the past, that democracy will be everywhere established and that the age will come of which the poet has written when

"The war drum throbs no longer and the battle flags are furled,
In the Parliament of Man, the federation of the world."

Dear Mother—

Studebaker

The Reasons for Studebaker's Leadership

STUDEBAKER is supreme in Canada because Studebaker Cars stand up and give the service.

The Series 18 Studebakers are even better than the Series 17.

They are maintaining the leadership the Series 17 established throughout the Dominion.

Because they embody ninety distinct improvements in mechanical construction, convenience and comfort over the Series 17.

Because they offer all the improvements, all the refinements suggested by four years' close study of the performance of 300,000 Studebaker Cars in actual service in every part of the world.

In them Studebaker gives you the QUALITY that stands up and gives service under the hardest tests on Canadian roads.

In them the many economies made possible by vast resources, the savings obtained through the development of steadily improved manufacturing methods and the installation of the latest and best labor saving machinery are turned to your advantage.

That is why Studebaker is able to offer you so good a car at so low a price.

That is why the Studebaker is a most economical car to buy.

It is economical to operate because Studebaker's "made-in-Canada" quality reduces "upkeep" to its lowest possible terms.

It is economical to drive because of great gasoline economy in ratio to power, because of great tire economy in ratio to weight and carrying capacity—Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

It is economical to own, because it brings a very high second-hand value in case of re-sale or trade-in.

For these reasons you owe it to yourself to investigate the Canadian-built Studebaker before you buy a car.

Let us give you a Studebaker demonstration today.

unmixed calamity, in which there was not a gleam of hope that the dark days could be the heralds of brighter seasons. But, aside from the deplorable bloodshed, the sacrifice of noble lives, the destruction of prosperous homes, the laying waste of fertile territories, and the upheaval of the world in general, a great deal of good has resulted from the struggle, and more is yet to come.

Perhaps no nation has profited as much from the war as has Russia—the most backward and down-trodden of the European peoples, with the most absolute and despotic of governments. Early in the war Russia gained Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic, which served to make her any more efficient in every way—physically, mentally and morally—and saved her from a complete defeat. Then while the Czar and his favorites were seeking to make the country believe they were occupied in finding ways and means of successfully carrying on the struggle for the overthrow of "Prussianism," the common people of Russia, sobered by Prohibition, set themselves to the task of recovering their own rightful freedom and privileges, in which task they appear to have grandly succeeded. The chief difference between the French Revolution of some one hundred and twenty-five years ago and the recent overturn in Russia is that the former was largely one of mob and massacre while the revolution of 1917 was characterized by very little bloodshed. This happy difference was due, in a great measure, to the sobriety resulting from Prohibition.

For years many of the noblest and best citizens of Russia had been exiled to Siberia for agitating for political reforms. Since the Revolution these political prisoners have been released, and are now helping in the reconstruction of their beloved country, of which they have now good reason to be proud.

The prompt action of all the British colonies in the crisis of 1914 has been abundant proof of their devotion to their motherland. Germany, as well as other nations, was of the opinion that Canada was ready to break all connection with Great Britain, at the first favorable opportunity, but within one month after Britain's declaration of war more than thirty thousand Canadian troops were assembled at Valcartier, training for overseas service in defence of the British Empire.

Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland and the Union of South Africa all showed themselves proud to honor the Union Jack; while India, the dependency which might be least expected to aid the Empire, has done nobly in sending men and money for the common cause.

For the first time since the schism of one hundred and forty-two years ago the United States of America is the ally of Britain. This will have the effect of destroying any unfriendly feeling which may have persisted in the hearts of the American people towards their kindred in this country and across the sea. The reunion of the two great English-speaking nations is an event of the greatest significance.

Even the German people are seizing the opportunity afforded by the war to demand Responsible Government and a Democratic constitution that has been so long denied them. The people of Prussia have already been promised electoral reforms at the end of the war, but they expect, as the result of increased agitation, to obtain their freedom in the near future, whether the war ends soon or not.

The cause of Women's Suffrage has progressed greatly during the war. The women of the belligerent nations have proved themselves willing to do their "bit" in helping their men to win, and they have thrown themselves wholeheartedly into Red Cross and all other kinds of patriotic work and they have successfully occupied positions previously filled by men. As a result the cause of Women's Suffrage is now regarded much more favorably in many countries than ever before. The women have been granted complete political equality in Russia this year and over half of those of Britain will be qualified to vote at the next general elections. The women of all western Canada have also gained the full rights of citizenship since the war began and those of Ontario have won the right to vote.

The need of money and material to carry on the war has taught us self-denial and economy as nothing else would have done. We have found that we can live comfortably and healthfully on less than we have been accustomed to have. The serious state of affairs as regards food supplies is interesting us in increased production. So much food has been destroyed by enemy submarines and because of the battle fields of France and Belgium and Poland being used as battlefields and trenches that it is necessary to produce more food immediately. Germany was the first to realize this necessity, but the other nations quickly followed her example. This increased production, if continued after the war, will be a source of great benefit. Many large estates in England, which were seized by the nobles and taken from the common people centuries ago, are now being all used for agricultural purposes and thus being restored, in a measure, to the descendants of those from whom they were unjustly obtained. We are awaking to the fact that for years we have been criminally wasting material which might have been used profitably thereby saving much needless expense. Every patriotic person will use this opportunity of increasing the yield of our land.

With so many White nations united in a common cause, the danger of the invasion of any one of them by the Japanese is averted, Japan being now an ally of the United States, against whom she was, by many shrewd observers, suspected of harboring unfriendly feelings.

This war will, we hope—and we have every reason for so hoping—be followed by treaties which will insure to all nations greater freedom, more justice and wider opportunities, than they have ever yet enjoyed, and usher in a world-wide peace that shall endure very much longer than any which the pages of history have yet recorded.

The Union of 1867
(By A. Elva McCurdy)

The Confederation of the Canadian Provinces, the most important landmark in Canadian history, is an event with which we are all more or less familiar, nevertheless since we are about to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary the present seems a most opportune time to consider certain aspects of our political history from the time that we came under British rule to the great year of 1867.

We all know what Canada is today with its population of nearly eight million people more or less evenly distributed between the Atlantic and the Pacific, engaged in industrial and agricultural pursuits which are developing the incomparable natural resources of the country. The west is connected with the east by four railroads carrying the products of the prairie to the Atlantic seaboard and the industrial products of the east to the farmers in the west. The country enjoys happiness and prosperity under a well regulated form of government where the interests of the different races and creeds are fully protected and promoted.

Let us compare this present greatness with the state of affairs prior to Confederation and then we shall better appreciate the importance of that achievement.

The most difficult problem which during the earlier stages of British rule in Canada confronted the people and their leaders was the diverging and often conflicting interests of the French and the English.

As far back as 1774 it was deemed both just and expedient to make such concessions to the French as would enable them to retain their own laws in civil matters and through which the rights and privileges theretofore enjoyed by their church and its clergy might be continued to them.

Time has amply shown the wisdom of these measures. The loyalty of the French Canadians was to receive a very real test the very year after the passing of the Quebec Act when the war between Great Britain and her colonies began; and to their everlasting credit let it be said that it was not found wanting.

Seventeen years later the Province of Quebec whose southern boundaries had been greatly modified at the close of the Revolutionary War was divided in such a way as to create two new provinces: Lower Canada almost exclusively French, and Upper Canada with its English laws and English traditions. Besides these two political divisions British North America embraced the so-called Atlantic Colonies consisting of New Brunswick, a separate province since 1784, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, each of these quite separate from the other, and all practically isolated, from Lower and Upper Canada.

But the act of 1791 did not cure the evils it had been expected to cure. Though in many ways it was unquestionably a step in the right direction, it was lacking in one important respect. It did not embody in its provisions a principle now regarded as fundamental in British political institutions: the right of a people to govern themselves through their chosen representatives. "No government," said the great Mr. Gladstone, "No government, however good can take the place of self-government."

Discontent soon became rife in French Canada culminating in the rebellion of 1837 and 1838 when the French Canadians took up arms and bloody fighting followed. After this rebellion was crushed the great mass of the French Canadian people remained sullen and distrustful.

The Transformation

Right in the heart of the great city of Toronto, in the centre of the principal business district, close by the cross-roads of main traffic, stands the "second longest bar" in all Canada. Observers say they used to count hordes of men entering this stronghold of the Traffic. Were the frequenters of the bar better men when they came out?

On September 16th, 1916, Prohibition went into force in Ontario, and, of course, the bar lost its license. On the 16th of April, 1917, the old bar was busier than ever! But what an arresting, beautiful transformation! Would that you and your sons could have been there to see the sight. The old bar-room was a bevy of flowers. Fifty fair ladies served refreshments to Toronto's most prominent citizens and their wives, and not one of them all but was proud to be seen in the old bar-room.

The aching, worrying hearts of the army's mothers are relieved now when they see their sons enter this building—for the old bar is helping to save men now instead of ruining them.

The hotel is now the "Y.M.C.A. Soldiers' Club," one of the Young Men's Christian Association's long chain of clubs, marquees, huts and "dug-outs" extending from Vancouver to the firing line in France—those helpful sentinel-posts that safeguard our precious soldier men and boys wherever soldiers are congregated. To the Y.M.C.A. Canada owes a debt of gratitude she never can adequately repay.

Like New Brunswick, the Traffic in Ontario has the opportunity, after the war, of putting Prohibition to the test at the polls. But Prohibition in Ontario is being enforced, and the old strongholds of the Traffic—the long bars we mean—are one by one being turned to useful purposes. Many of the hotel buildings that depended for existence upon bar trade are now devoted to commercial enterprises—constructive instead of destructive.

Does New Brunswick want to return to the destructive license system, and again be a partner in the old business of John Barleycorn and Company, Limited?

Or does New Brunswick want to maintain Prohibition for ever? If so, Enforcement must be province wide, must be both strict and effective.

Help to Enforce Prohibition

Every man and woman in this province shares the responsibility for the proper enforcement of Prohibition—not the officers of the law alone. Your duty is clear.

THE JUBILEE OF CONFEDERATION

On July 1, 1917, Canada celebrated the Jubilee of Confederation—the completion of the first fifty years of the life of the Dominion. The date finds Canada with a record of achievements and resources such as few young countries possess, and it finds her also throwing herself into the world's struggle for liberty in a way that sets the final seal of nationhood upon her brow. It is a fitting time to pass in brief review the more remarkable of these achievements and resources.

In 1867, Canada comprised four provinces, embracing a narrow strip along the Lower Lakes and the St. Lawrence, with a half-frontage on the Atlantic.

In 1917, there are nine provinces and a large unorganized territory, embracing half a continent, stretching from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from the United States to the Pole.

The greatest single factor in the progress of Canada has been the opening up of the West, which the above extension in political control made possible.

In 1867, Canada embraced an area of 540,000 square miles, with a population of 3,600,000.

In 1917 her area measured 3,729,665 square miles, with a population of about 7,600,000.

In 1867, immigration was small and the greatest single factor in the sporadic; before 1900 it had increased to 20,000—45,000 annually; in 1913 it reached 402,000; and in 1914, 385,000.

Canada has since 1900 taken the place of the United States as the chief magnet for old-world migration. Wheat crop of 1871, under 17,000,000 bushels; crop of 1915, 426,746,000 bushels; crop of 1916, 220,000,000 bushels.

In 1871 less than 2,000,000 acres were sown to wheat; today the acreage in Saskatchewan alone is 8,500,000, and the total for all Canada is close upon 15,000,000.

Oats in 1871 yielded 42,500,000 bushels; in 1915, 523,684,000 bushels. Barley in 1871 yielded 11,500,000 bushels; in 1915, 60,699,000 bushels. Hay in 1871 yielded under 4,000,000 tons; in 1916 nearly 15,000,000 tons.

The total value of Canadian field crops in the last 15 years alone has risen from $195,000,000 in 1901 to $841,000,000 in 1915.

The total value of live stock has increased by three times in the last fifteen years alone, i. e., from $268,000,000 in 1901 to over $800,000,000 in 1916.

There were few manufactures in 1867; today the annual product is valued at over $1,300,000,000. Such products as wood pulp, automobiles, electrical apparatus, coke, and electric lighting were unknown in 1868, but now run into a value of many millions annually.

The magnificent waterways of Canada provided the earliest means of communication. In 1868 about 200,000,000 had been expended on their improvement by canals; to date the expenditures on canals exceed $106,000,000.

A rebellion and from causes very like those that have given rise to the discontent in the lower province. The mission of Lord Durham to Canada as a Governor General and special envoy to inquire into the causes of the rebellion was an event of great importance in our political history.

In his famous report to the British government he showed a remarkable and very sympathetic appreciation of the real causes of the discontent and experience was to show how sound were his recommendations for improvement.

The outcome of Durham's mission was the Union Act of 1840 providing for a single parliament for Upper and Lower Canada with an equal number of representatives from each of the two provinces, but neither was this act to afford an adequate solution of the problem.

Racial strife became more bitter than ever, and parliament was the scene of constant bitter fighting. This time it seems as if the discontent was to be found more among the English people. The cry went up that the French were resolved to master Canada which was bitterly resented by English politicians and newspapers as well as by the great mass of English people.

To illustrate this feeling it is only necessary to quote the following words of the "Montreal Gazette" in 1849: "Rouse yourselves, meet, resolve, and hurl your defiance against the French 'Masters' of your country."

The result of this agitation was a riot in Montreal during which the Parliament buildings were burned. Similar riots took place at Toronto at the same time, all of which are an evidence of the tense feeling between the French and English populations.

The years following the disturbances of 1849 were full of continued strife. The party lines in parliament were drawn very tightly. As a consequence of the provision that Lower Canada should have as many representatives in parliament as the upper province it became practically impossible for the government in power to pass any laws or carry out any public works. Opposition was always to be encountered from either one side or the other.

On an average ministries endured for about six months. The development of the country was hindered, its credit became poor and an extensive immigration started to the United States.

This most unhappy state of things compelled the leading minds of the time to try to find some way out of their difficulties by creating a new constitution for the country, a constitution which would provide for union where union was indispensable and for separation where separation would best serve the interests of all.

Among the men that worked out this great problem I shall mention the illustrious names of Sir John A. Macdonald, Mr. A. T. Galt, Mr. George Brown and Mr. Georges Etienne Cartier. These men had different ideas, but it was out of those manifold ideas that the project of a Confederation of Canada grew.

The four Atlantic colonies having secured, happily without any violence, a responsible form of government, had during the same year conceived the idea of a political union among themselves, and had arranged in the year 1864 for a conference to be held at Charlottetown to discuss this question.

To this conference came representatives from Upper and Lower Canada with the purpose of seeing whether the Atlantic colonies could be induced to join in a greater union—to embrace all British North America. As a result a conference was held in Quebec in October 1864 where the representatives from the Atlantic colonies met the leaders from the upper provinces and the act of "federation" was drafted. This act was later submitted to the Imperial Parliament and on the first of July, 1867, it became law uniting four of the provinces of British North America and containing provisions for the admission of other provinces then existing as well as those that might be formed in course of time.

Thus was a new nation brought forth on this continent—a nation which on account of its material resources, the enterprise of its people and their loyalty to the principles of justice and right, as present day events are showing, was destined to play a conspicuous part in the drama of the world's history.

Standing at the fiftieth anniversary of the union of Canada, we pay homage to the memory of the men who had the wisdom and the foresight to conceive and carry into effect this Confederation, the foundation of our country's greatness.

Class Prophecy
(By Pauline L. Croker)

The twenty-fourth of May dawned clear and bright, surely an ideal day for the picnic which we had been looking forward to all spring.

Several were conveyed to the grove near French Fort Cove, an old historic spot familiar to us all, and while some of our number explored the quarry and old mill site, and others went fishing, I preferred to remain behind and guard the lunch baskets as I had unknown to the others brought my Chemistry with me in anticipation of the Chemistry paper which awaited us on the morrow—that dread paper which perhaps even now was being prepared by our teacher.

As usual I felt no desire for study but began to think instead how our school days would soon be over and that we thirteenth would be separated. An intense longing came over me that I might like Tenyson "dip in to the future" in order to see where each of my classmates would be ten years hence. "So you shall" I heard a voice say and looking up I saw standing before me a little old man clothed in brilliant yellow, with a wand in his hand. While I still gazed at him, astonished and incredulous, he touched me with his wand, and then, I was seated in a large yellow aeroplane, my tiny guide at my side, gliding through the air at what seemed to me a tremendous speed.

On, on we sped, and as I became accustomed to the motion I noticed that ours was not the only air craft in the sky. There seemed to be hundreds flying in all directions.

I inquired of my guide why aeroplanes were so common and he replied "This is the year nineteen hundred and twenty-seven. This afternoon you and I shall visit your classmates of ten years ago and you shall have the privilege of seeing each of them at their chosen vocation."

Then gradually the machine began to descend and finally stopped at the entrance of a large opera house in Toronto.

We entered the building and found within a large audience listening in rapture to the sweet tones of a beautiful golden-haired prima donna whom I at once recognized as our old class Secretary, Marion Carruthers MacArthur. My guide informed me that she had just returned from a tour of Europe where on account of her magnificent voice and charming personality she had captivated her audience.

"But," he continued, "now I shall tell you Miss MacArthur's great secret which I myself have just recently learned. She leaves the stage next month to become the bride of a gentleman who is very prominent now as he was ten years ago in the financial world."

He now asked me to scan the orchestra to see if I should recognize any one there, and whom do you suppose I saw occupying the position of first violin? R. P. Randall McLean, of course, for although as I was told he had at first spent a few years teaching school, yet when he found that occupation too tedious had preferred the dignity and honor which violinists receive as their just due.

"Yet he does not seem to be satisfied," my guide continued, "and I think that in no distant day you may see him a legally qualified medical practitioner."

Leaving now the opera house we stopped at the door of a lecture hall and looking in saw a large stage. The speaker of the occasion was a lady, not very tall, and after gazing at her intently for a few moments I recognized M. V. Jean Wathen. Those curly locks of hers were caught up loosely, still she resembled the Jean of the old Academy.

I was told by my guide that she was giving a series of lectures and was being warmly received because of the fact that among her most interesting subjects was one entitled "The advantages one derives from a Dimple." "But," he added, "the inducements offered by a certain gentleman of the clerical profession may soon cause Miss Wathen to waver in her determination to devote her whole life to lecturing."

Having said this, he again started the machine and away we went soaring over housetops, lakes, forests and prairies and descended before a comfortable looking farm house. Through the window could be seen seated before an open fire-place a tall gentleman and by his side a kindly looking lady. The man was fondling in his hand an old battered German helmet and appeared to be telling the lady of his experiences in capturing this relic of the Great War. There was no difficulty in recognizing this lady as Delphine E. H. Clarke, and I now realized why she had watched so patiently for the Overseas mail in those old days.

Journeying now to a nearby town we came upon a large college in which the chief branch of instruction was Domestic Science. In the Assembly Hall I saw a trim looking lady in stiff white cap and apron instructing a class in the most economical way of making a strawberry shortcake, and to my surprise I recognized this lady as Evelyn Price. "But" said my guide, "quite recently during a fit of absent-mindedness, she put a puff of water into the dough and the result being fourteen loaves instead of four, her class was obliged to eat stale bread for a whole month thereafter!"

On the outskirts of this town we saw a large, lonely looking building. Volumes of smoke were pouring from the windows, and frequent flashes from within gave me to believe that we were near a large chemical laboratory. My guide informed me the Professor, Donald Montgomery Vyve of international reputation, was in

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be removed and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces of the Eustachian Tube. Catarrh Cure cuts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the Eustachian Tube.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Catarrh Cure. Send for our Circulars. All Druggists sell it.

Safe, Clean Cooking

SAFE, because the oil tank is away from the heat, and because the height of flame cannot vary. Clean, because there are no wicks to smoke or need trimming.

Burners can be regulated to give degree of heat desired, and when not in operation are left completely up out of oil contact. The asbestos lining and dead air space, and glass door of "Success" oven ensure heat retention and visible baking.

An economical cooker and baker, beautiful in appearance.

A Nervous Breakdown

Can be Averted by Feeding the Starved Nerves With Rich, Red Blood.

Nourish your nerves—that is the only way you can overcome life's worst misery, nervous exhaustion. The fits of depression and irritation, the prostrating headaches, the weakness and trembling of the legs, the unsteady hand and the imperfect digestion that mark the victim of nerve weakness, must edn in nervous breakdown, if neglected.

Nourish your nerves by the natural process of filling your veins with rich red, health-giving blood. Your nerves are crying out for pure blood and the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to make new, rich blood. This explains why these pills yield to ordinary treatment. For cases of nervous diseases that did not have proved successful in so many examples, Mr. Wilfrid Donald, West Flamboro, Ont., says:—Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a serious condition. I was not only badly run down, but my nerves seemed to be completely shattered. I slept badly at night, and when I got up in the morning was as tired as when I went to bed. I seemed to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. At this stage I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks I felt much relief, and continuing the use of the pills they completely restored my health. I can now sleep soundly eat well and am enjoying complete freedom from the old nervous troubles."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mrs. Enley Mullin, Redbank, spent the day in town, Mrs. Mullin, who has been ill the greater part of the winter, is now almost entirely recovered under the skillful care of Dr. Beaton. Her many friends are glad to welcome her out again.

MR. ROSEBURG

April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-lives'." I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with sassy Head-aches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. Guard Baby's Health In The Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea, and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. William's Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
