We would specially call your attention to our Autograph Greeting Cards. These are being sent this year instead of the Private Greeting Cards of former years. They are put up in boxes of six sheets or cards and six envelopes, of eight cards and eight envelopes, of ten cards and ten envelopes; and we have a range of 12 different designs at 20c., and a range of fifteen different designs at 40c. per box. We would advise you to see them at your earliest convenience, for although opened but a few days, they are selling rapidly.

You ought to see our Single Cards in Boxes. We have a wonderfully large stock of these, almost a thousand, and the variety is almost as great as the number. The prettiest Cards, the choicest designs, and the most appropriately expressed greetings, we have them at 10c., at 15c., at 20c., at 30c., at 40c., at 50c., at 60c., at 70c., at 80c., at $1.00, at $1.30, at $1.50 and at $2.30.

CHAPTER XXI.

"Oh, it isn't true! It cannot be! Oh, God help me, God help me!" He gazed at her, as she stood with wild, dilated eyes and clasped hands, and his thick lips writhed and worked pittingly, remorsefully.

"Don't take on, dearie," he murmured in his guttural voice. "Don't fret about it. I'll— I'll take myself out of your sight. I'll go at once, and I'll never touch you again."

"Yes—go!" she gasped; then she wrung her hands. "But—but if you go, I—I must go. You—you are my father—"

"That's so, dearie," he said quietly, remorsefully. "It's the truth; you know that, feel that? How should I know Mary's—your aunt's portrait? How should I know you?"

"And—and where you go I must go!" she said with a shudder, scarcely knowing what she said. "Oh, God, it is cruel! Help me to think—to think of—"

Garling started and held up his hand. "Shh!" he whispered. "That's—that's a dog outside! My ears are quick. If—if he scents me—"

"Go—oh, go!" she panted. "Go, while there's time. And I—I, oh, what shall I do, what shall I do?"

Still listening, with his eyes turned sideways in a horrible fashion, he crept to her and laid his hand on her arm.

"Speak low!" he whispered in her ear, his hot breath on her cheek. "I'm going. You'll stay here. Don't be afraid! I'm not going to worry you. I've—I've seen you, and that's enough. Lord, how beautiful you are, and how—how grand! Like a young queen in—"

She shivered. How often had Vane used the same words!

"And, mind you, whatever happens, I hold my tongue. Not to a living soul while I'm living myself will I let on that I've found my daughter. No, no! I know what's due to you. I know the difference between us. And you can trust me, missie—Diana. Let me call you that once, I shall think of you by that name; I shall—"

His voice broke, and he turned away with a gesture of grief and despair that was not lacking in a kind of grotesque dignity. It was the father speaking in him.

Diana fought for calm, prayed for it.

"I—I must see you again," she said, with unnatural stillness, which belied the heaving bosom, the distraught eyes. "Can you—dare you—wait about the place, somewhere in the neighborhood, where I can meet you?"

He looked doubtful, and shook his head; then he drew himself up.

"That's—that's kind of you, missie. You want to see me again? I'll risk it. Yes, I'll risk it!" He thought a moment. "There's a little wood by the river, below the woodcutter's hut. If—if you're of the same mind to-morrow, I'll be there, miss, at seven o'clock in the morning." He saw her glance at the safe, and he nodded reassuringly. "That's all right. I'll fix things nice and neat, just as they were, and nobody'll know if they don't go to the safe. Will they be likely to?"

"No, I think not," she answered almost inaudibly.

"Right," he said with a nod. "Don't you be frightened an' upset, dearie. You won't see me again after to-morrow. You'll forget as such a man—"

He waved his thick arm with an action as of sweeping the gruesome fact of his existence away, and, turning to the safe, rubbed the spot on which he had been working with an oiled rag, then he carefully but swiftly, removed the filings from the floor, and, going to the window, as carefully pushed aside the bar, the bottom of which he had neatly cut through with a file. Then he paused and looked over his shoulder at the motionless figure, the white face, the eyes that followed his every movement as if she were fascinated by horror and loathing, and, drawing a long breath, he crept slowly, hesitatingly, toward her.

"Won't—won't you say 'good night,' just 'good night—father!'" he pleaded in a hoarse whisper. "I'd like to hear the word from you once, dearie! My little girl that I've thought of, dreamed of—"

She tried to speak, to say "good night," but her voice seemed frozen, and she hung up her hands and shrank from him.

With a gesture of apology, of hideous meekness, the meekness of a beaten hound, he turned from her, stepped on to the window-cill, and dropped from her sight. She heard the faint, very faint sound of the bar slipping back into its place, then all was silence.

How long she stood, staring vacantly before her, she did not know; but at last she started, awoke from the awful spell that held her, and, with a shuddering glance round the room, turned off the light and went upstairs. Her last steps were uncertain, faltering ones, she staggered as she shut and locked the door, then fell fainting across the bed.

When she came to the dawn was breaking, and the terrible reality of her position came crushing down upon her. She felt that but for the swoon her mind must have given way and that she would have passed into raving hysterics; even now, as weak and trembling, she sat up and hid her burning, aching eyes in her hand, she was assailed by the dread of brain fever, of some seizure in which she should reveal the horrible truth.

For in her heart, at the back of her throbbing brain, lay the conviction that the man had not lied, and that she was indeed his daughter.

At such moments the mind, like a slave too hardly pressed, revolts and refuses to perform its wonted task. She could not think, could not think even of Vane. She tried to do so, tried to picture the misery, the shame, that would overwhelm him and crush him as they were crushing her; but she could not see him clearly; she was moving, living, in a land of shadows, in a phantasmagoria too grotesque, too monstrous, for belief. She, Diana Bourne, Vane's affianced wife, the daughter of—

With unsteady steps she dragged herself to the washstand and bathed her face until the burning forehead felt as if it was bound in ice; then she slowly dressed herself, choosing one of her plainest dresses, and putting on a hat with a thick veil she again she looked at herself absently in the glass; was that white-faced woman with the dark shadows under her eyes, the strained lips, still quivering with horror, herself?

And she was going to meet the man whom she had last night detected in his vile work; she was going to meet—her father!

The clock chimed the quarter to seven, and with a start she looked round the room, holding her head with her hands in the vain effort for self-possession, for concentration of mind. She moved to the dressing-table on which lay the jewels, the trinkets she had worn last night. They represented a large sum, they were the tangible evidence of the vast wealth she had considered hers—some of them spoke eloquently of Vane, of the earl, who had given them to her with loving words, loving caresses; but she shuddered as she looked at them, remembering those other gems which her father—her father!—had come to steal.

Half blindly she selected those which she herself had bought, and others which Aunt Mary had given her, found her purse, and put it and the jewellery into her pocket. She stood and looked round again, at the bed in which she had slept and dreamt of the man she loved! Oh, why did not her heart break at the thought of him? Was it because she could not think clearly? Then, lingeringly, she opened the door and passed out.

As chance willed it, Janet, her maid, came out of her room at the same moment.

"Oh, miss, are you dressed—are you going out?" she asked.

Diana fought for a calm voice, even succeeded in forcing a smile.

"Yes. I did not sleep very well last night, Janet," she said, and her voice sounded strangely in her own ears, as if it were the voice of some other person. "I—I was restless. I am going for a little walk."

She paused, and Janet, with a lady's maid's eyes for details, set straight a lapel of Diana's jacket. As she did so, she felt Diana tremble.

"Why, you're trembling, miss," she said with concern. "Oh, do let me get you a cup of tea before you start."

"No, no!" said Diana quickly, and with a smile that she herself felt must be forced and unnatural. "I won't have any tea. I shall try and sleep when I come back. Don't disturb me."

CHAPTER XXII.

She went down the stairs, feeling Janet's anxious eyes following her, and, crossing the hall, went out by the back door. It was a lovely morning, and the sun shone on the lawns and fell athwart the hills violet with heather and golden with gorse. The beauty of the scene was an added pang to her tortured heart; all her life she would remember that view which she and Vane—where was Vane?—why was he not by her side to help her, to sustain her?—had looked at together.

Slowly she passed through the shrubbery, glancing at the barred window of the strong room and shuddering as she averted her eyes, and, skirting into the path that led to the wood, quickened her pace. She must not keep him waiting. He was in danger, terrible danger; and he was her father!

She gained the little wood, paused to see if she had been seen, followed; then, threading her way among the thick trees, suddenly came upon him.

He was seated on a fallen tree, his square chin sunk in his hand, his eyes looking gloomingly, yet expectantly, before him. In that moment no detail of his appearance escaped her. She saw that he had changed his clothes, and was now dressed like a workman in his Sunday best; noticed the massive head, the thick limbs, the great hands, the short, stubby hair. And she asked God to forgive her—every fiber of her being shrank from him.

He heard her when she was some way off, and springing to his feet, held out his arms, his lined and rugged face lit up with a smile of welcome. Of welcome!

Then, as he saw her wince and draw back, he let his arms fall to his side, and, with a gesture of resignation, motioned to her to sit down.

Perhaps only half consciously, Diana had been schooling, nerving herself for the ordeal; she was, in appearance at any rate, calm and unmoved; and she signed to him to seat himself beside her; he sank on the trunk of the tree, but at a little distance from her. It was Diana who broke the silence.

"Tell me—tell me everything," she said in a low voice, glancing at him for an instant, then fixing her eyes on the tree in front of her. "Keep—keep nothing back. I—I can bear it. You are my father?"

He inclined his head. "Yes; I'm your father," he said in his deep, guttural tones. "You've been wondering why I left you. I'd—I'd rather not tell you; but I've got to, I suppose."

He glanced at her, and she made a gesture of assent, almost of command. (To be continued.)

Messages Received Previous to 9 a.m.

LONDON, Dec. 1.
The Governor, Newfoundland, following from Press Bureau—The French Government report that the enemy are on the defensive in Belgium. They have made some unsuccessful attacks north of Arras.

LONDON, Dec. 1.
The Russian General Staff report attempted stubborn fighting continues in the direction of Lovicz. The German advance in the Szezwor vicinity has been repulsed, the enemy suffering heavy losses.

Carpathian passes were captured on Saturday. Over an extent of 31 miles, during the first half of November the Russians captured 600 Austro-Hungarian officers and 50,000 men.

HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Dec. 1.
There is nothing to report, apart from several German attacks north of Arras, without result. The general situation has not greatly changed from the 21st to the 27th. The enemy has exhausted itself in partial unproductive attacks. Our counter attacks have been somewhat profitable, and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. From the sea to the Lys the enemy attacked intermittently. A heavy German effort was made to ensure the destruction of Ypres. This ancient and magnificent city was abandoned the day the Emperor had to abandon all hope of entering it. Batteries not being considered sufficient to bring about the ruin of the city, the Germans brought an armoured train to Heuvelin and on the 22nd and 23rd under direction of a balloon, this train fired unceasingly explosive and fire brand shells. The cathedral belfry and Market Place collapsed successively. On the evening of the 23rd the grand square was nothing but a heap of ruins. Firing was too continuous for any great help, but our soldiers, working under shell fire, managed to save a great number of the inhabitants, the town records and several Museum pictures.

On the 24th and 25th we managed to establish ourselves to the south of Dixmude, on the right bank of the Yser. Further north our army corps have advanced 200 metres on the entire front, and maintained the advantage.

Several of our soldiers, of whom two, knowing the German language, managed to reach a German trench by crawling along in the night, heard German officers giving orders to attack. The German soldiers begged and prayed them to desert, and several revolver shots took place in the German trench. The Germans attacked with dishonesty. We have noticed that German infantry attacks are rare and always effected by much reduced units, strongly encompassed with officers.

The President of the Republic, accompanied by high officials, visited the battlefield in Argonne forest district, etc. During his visit the President decorated General Langie De Carry, Commander of the Legion of Honor, and General Sarrait and General Rater, officers of the Legion of Honor. The Foreign Minister published to-day a yellow book concerning the European War, composed of 160 diplomatic documents, filling 316 pages, concluding with the solemn declaration by Great Britain, France and Russia, not to sign any peace but co-jointly.

CONTRABAND ON NORWEGIAN STEAMER.

HALIFAX, Dec. 1.
Some twenty tons of crude rubber have been taken from the holds of the Norwegian steamer Sandefjord, ordered here to have the cargo examined, by British warships. Crude rubber is contraband. The ship has 7,000 tons of cargo, all of which will be discharged here and examined.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE CANNON AND PRISONERS.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(Official.)
A statement from the General Staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus, telegraphed to-day from Petrograd to the Havas Agency, says: In the Valley of the Euphrates a Russian column taking the offensive, dislodged the Turks from their positions and put them to flight. The Russians captured two cannon and also a number of prisoners.

ENEMY UNSUCCESSFUL.
PARIS, Dec. 1.—(Official.)
In Belgium the German infantry has essayed, without success, a sortie against those trenches to the south of Bixschote, between Bethune and Lens. After a rather brisk affair we captured a Chateau and Park of Vermelles, south of the Lys River. In Argonne we have advanced appreciably in the wood of Lagurrie. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report.

GERMANS ACTIVE.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.
Latest reports from Russian Poland, given out officially at Berlin, indicate that the Germans have resumed the execution of their plan to encompass the Russian right flank, and to force them back on the centre, at the same time cutting off the Russian communication with Warsaw. The carrying out of this plan, which began with the Russian defeat at Lipno and Plock, was later hindered by the arrival of Russian reinforcements, and the Germans for the moment were thrown on their defensive. Now after repulsing a number of attacks, the Germans appear moving forward in the direction of Lovicz. The German movements in this region have not been interfered with in the last few days. This, German military observers say, must be taken as highly favorable sign, as in their opinion, the German repulse of the Russian advances have probably been followed by a general offensive movement of the Germans toward Lodz.

THE CROWN PRINCE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.
A cable from London to the Evening Sun, says: All London papers, with two exceptions, as well as the leading provincial papers, to-day published what was purported to be an interview with the German Crown Prince. The editorial expressions of the various papers were typical "war-time" comments. The Birmingham Post carries a lengthy ironical editorial. Commenting on the reference to the strategic ability of the heir to the German throne, the Post says that the Crown Prince handled the strategic problem of facing the newspaper interviewer with conspicuous ability. The Express heads the story. An interview with the German Crown Prince, and editorially characterizes the interview as Germany's latest attempt to influence American opinion. The Daily Mirror's headline is, Crown Prince interviewed just before battle. He fearlessly asks to be told what Americans think of him. The Daily Sketch, in running comments with the story, says that the Crown Prince bewitched the correspondent by his affability, and that undoubtedly he had good reason to favor the American correspondent. The statement is obviously the German propaganda, says the Daily Mail. The Manchester Guardian says the interview is interesting in showing the German Government's efforts to win public opinion in the States. The motive is obvious throughout.

A Magnificent Display

FOR BELGIAN REFUGEES.

Yesterday afternoon a large gathering assembled at the Presbyterian Hall to see the work done by the ladies of St. Andrew's Patriotic Association, assisted by the West End Ladies' Aid, on behalf of the Belgian refugees. During the past few weeks these ladies have been making various garments for the children of the gallant Belgians who have had to flee from their homes to escape the scourge of Prussian Militarism, and as incentive towards eliciting the cooperation of other ladies in the community in this direction an exhibition of the articles was held yesterday. Many were the encomiums heard from ladies on all sides, which must indeed have been gratifying to the workers, who through proper organization and concentration of purpose had accomplished so much in so short a time.

At 4 p.m. Lady Davidson, who had graciously consented to open the exhibition, arrived and was received by Messdames R. H. Anderson, Melvin and McKean of St. Andrew's Association, and Messdames W. Barker, H. Crawford and Hanlon representing the West End Ladies' Aid.

Then followed an enjoyable concert in which the following took part:— Misses G. Strang, M. Doyle, J. Trappnell, M. Mitchell, J. Strang, Hanlon, J. Anderson, A. Hayward and L. Anderson. All the items were well rendered, and were received with much applause.

At the conclusion of the programme Rev. F. C. Simpson on behalf of the ladies of St. Andrew's, thanked Lady Davidson for honouring the gathering by her presence, and also those present for their appreciation of the ladies' efforts on behalf of the children of our brave allies. He felt that he was voicing the sentiments of all present, in congratulating Mrs. Anderson and her co-workers on the excellent display of clothing that had been made within such a short period.

Lady Davidson in a very pleasing speech expressed her great pleasure at being present, and her appreciation of the work of the ladies of St. Andrew's, and intimated that she would call all them to assist in making a supply of socks, shirts, comforters, mittens and cardigan coats, which will be sent forward to the members of the Newfoundland Regiment as Christmas gifts. She concluded her remarks by congratulating them on the grand display of garments which she felt sure would please the hearts of the little Belgians. The visitors then inspected the different articles that were nicely arranged on tables in the hall, after which tea was served by the Ladies' Committee.

The articles exhibited were women's and children's clothing prettily designed and of serviceable material, and which we understand, will be sent to France, as the refugees there are not as well cared for as in England, because of the French people being so busy attending to their own needs, caused by their living within the war zone.

To Mrs. Anderson and the other ladies who worked with her in this noble work, much credit is due, and the success of their efforts should be an incentive to further work by our ladies in this direction. Yesterday's exhibition gave ample proof that there are more ways to assist in the defence of the Empire than by shouldering a musket, and in rendering assistance to the Belgian sufferers, these patriotic ladies have merited the title of devoted daughters of Empire.

Sunderland House Zeppelin Bomb Proof.

London, Nov. 28.—The Duchess of Marlborough, following the example set by many prominent persons here, has fortified her home, Sunderland House, against a Zeppelin attack. A stout wire netting attached to heavy piles stretches across the roof at a height of several feet. Sunderland House is the personal property of the duchess, given to her by her father, who bought the site of the old Curzon chapel and built upon it.

Measures to prevent damage by bombs are still being taken by public institutions among others being the Tate gallery of British art. Some time ago the National gallery stored 250 of its finest paintings. Several of the best works of Turner, Burne-Jones and Rossetti, have been taken from the walls of the Tate gallery. In each room are big cans of sand to be used to smother any outbreak of fire caused by bombs.

Grandest Story Ever At the Nickel.

"THE WHITE GLOVE BAND."

The big three-reel Gaumont feature film "The White Glove Band" will be presented at the Nickel Theatre to-day. It is a remarkable picture which Nickel patrons have been looking forward to with interest. Much has been said of this marvellous story. It was first shown in Paris just after the outbreak of the war and it attracted wide attention there. The leading character is taken by the celebrated Parisian star Madam Claire Simonet who appears as The Fair "Mind". She is supported by a caste of gifted French artists. "The White Glove Band" is a most sensational detective story thrilling and impressive. Nothing like it has ever been seen in St. John's before. It has aroused much excitement and is certain to draw large audiences. All our readers should attend to-day's performance or they will miss a great picture. There are three other complete films which will give general satisfaction. Mr. Arthur C. Huskins will repeat his popular songs. Don't miss to-day's show, everyone is going.

"I Sleep Soundly, Feel Like New."

ALL WHO LACK VIGOR, THOSE WHO ARE DISPIRITED AND WORN OUT, SHOULD READ THIS CAREFULLY.

Proof That Health and Renewed Vitality Quickly Return When Right Remedy is Used.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night, and in the morning so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicines and mixtures, Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged-up system. My spirits rose. I felt much better. The sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color and ambition to work returned, and have remained. I am like a new man, and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, 5 boxes for $1.00, or postpaid from the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

At the Crescent.

The Crescent Picture Palace to-day is showing a remarkably strong programme, one in keeping with the Crescent's motto: "Nothing but the Best." Warren Keegan, supported by a strong Victor caste, features in "Forgotten Women;" the Nestor Company supplies a ripping comedy, "Their Two Kids;" with Lee Moran and Lemoine Langley. "A Brand from the Burning" is a gripping frontier western drama full of dash and excitement. Added to the above is twelve war slides, the latest issued, showing scenes at the front. That the Crescent has just received from London. We saw these pictures rehearsed and can guarantee some show to the Crescent patrons' Wednesday and Thursday. J. O'Neil Farrell, baritone, will arrive during the week. Mr. Farrell has been singing at some of the best picture houses both in England and Canada, and comes with a repertoire of the latest song successes.

"British Born"

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The production of "British Born," a thrilling drama in prologue and three acts, at the Casino Theatre last night attracted a large audience including His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson.

The play was under the management of Mr. T. M. White who was ably assisted by Messrs. J. O'Grady, J. B. Butler, T. J. Rölls, A. G. Sutton, and W. D. Edwards, while the Misses Carroll played their roles in their usual capable manner. The minor roles were taken by Messrs. J. T. Fagan and J. P. Phippard.

The scene of the prologue is laid in Liverpool. Laban Brood, a wealthy shipowner, is in love with Miss Hope, the daughter of a wealthy mine owner, and determines at any cost to win her. She is affianced to George Seymour, Brood's head clerk, against whom Brood plots with villainous jealousy, begotten of the love for the girl, and hatred of his rival. He lays a snare which is completely shattered by the bravery of the girl whose love for Seymour is unshaken by the villain's vile threats.

The scene of the play proper is laid in Bolivia, South America, where Seymour becomes the manager of a silver mine, owned by the father of his affianced bride, who by the way favours the suit. The treacherous rival follows them, and after making false charges has his wife to be victim almost in his power. Seymour is condemned to death, and as an Englishman fears it not.

The three acts are full of exciting situations leading up to a climax where the villain is foiled at every effort. The protection afforded to George Seymour, by the British Flag saves his life, when the treachery of his rival appears to be at its zenith.

Mr. T. M. White, as the villain, maintained his usual high standard by his realistic rendition of the most difficult role, while Mr. J. O'Grady, as Seymour, played with ease and grace. Miss Polly Carroll, as Mary Hope, was very realistic, and in the scenes with the villain, gave forth her lines with a firmness that delighted her audience. The comedy was supplied by Mr. T. J. Rölls, as Faggles, a clerk, and Miss Lucy Carroll, Nancy, a maid. Faggles' devotion to Seymour, his old friend, was only exceeded by his love for Nancy. The sudden rise to prosperity was too much for him, and while making love to Nancy the consciousness of possessing a fancy waistcoat, intercepted many would be avowals to his fair Nancy, much to the amusement of the audience.

The whole bristles with duty and patriotism and the plot is splendidly woven, and in the hands of such a capable troupe, could we feel sure be played again with the same success. The proceeds will be devoted to the Patriotic Fund.

The War Situation.

The war has now been on for four months, and the situation has developed sufficiently to show that the Kaiser over-estimated the strength and ability of his war machine, and under-estimated the ability of his opponents. We have now firm ground for the conviction that the crushing will not be done by Prussian militarism, but that the allies will eventually crush Prussian militarism. But there is much fighting to be done before that can be brought about, and probably much heavier fighting than has yet taken place. It is now nearly three months since the German advance reached its maximum and since that time, the Germans have been driven back out of a great part of France they occupied and a line has been established on the borders of Switzerland to the Belgian coast at Nieuport and for the past two months, they have hurled themselves in a vain attempt to break through this line and crumple it up. In doing so they have suffered in a far greater degree than ourselves and our French and Belgian allies, and not only lost enormous numbers of men, but their sense of success has been destroyed. For some time there has been a lull in German infantry attack, but extensive preparations have been under way on our side. Structural engineers and bridge-builders have been instructed to be ready for rush work in the theatre of war. British territorialists who have been acclimatizing in the base around Havre have been moved up to the reserve lines and other troops, territorial and colonial, have been transported to take their place at the base. These signs indicate a grim struggle in the near future in the western theatre of war. In the eastern theatre of war heavy fighting is going on. Galicia is almost entirely occupied by Russians. Przemysl is invested, and the Russians are proceeding to the investment of Cracow, the only formidable stronghold left in Western Galicia. In Poland itself the news is not illuminating. It is clear the newspaper stories of German army corps surrendering and being routed are exaggerations not borne out by official news from Petrograd. Fierce fighting is going on towards Lovitz. This is an important railway junction at some small distance on the Warsaw side of a line between Lodz and Plock. No decisive result has been reached, but it is evident that the German losses are very great, and in view of the enormous losses sustained by the Austrian and the mighty reserves of Russians, and the strengthening of the allies in the west, Germany can least afford the losses. German strength is being sapped all the time. In the early weeks of the war, their strength was at its maximum, while our strength is being increased in a much greater measure than it is being lost. During the past four months, Germany has been unable to secure any great victories of a decisive character. In the absence of these there can be no hope for her. The future is with us.

AUSTRIANS DRIVEN BACK ON CRACOW.

LEMBERG, To-day.
The energetic Russian advance is persistently pushing back the Austrians into Cracow. The information reaching here from trustworthy sources is to the effect that the Austrians are evacuating position after position with very heavy losses. It is stated the Austrian line of retreat is strewn so thickly with dead that the Russians have not time to bury them. The cold is so severe that the bodies are frozen. German officers are in supreme command at Cracow; they are placing machine guns, light artillery and wireless apparatus. It is reported, on the Cathedral and other historical edifices, drawing the fire of the Russians on those buildings. Recent arrivals from the Province of Galicia state the inhabitants of all regions evacuated by Austrians are facing famine.

EXTRICATING A GERMAN COLONN.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
The condition of German prisoners captured in the region of Lodz, is said to resemble that of the French troops during Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. Many have frozen hands and feet. They were wrapped in Indian kets and shawls taken from peasants. One private wore a woman's fur wrap. Prisoners say before their capture their courage was kept up by the statements that the Quarter master was bringing warm clothes which would be distributed in a few days. The reported use by Germans of monasteries, chapels and other public buildings in captured towns as stables, barracks and gun stations, is explained by prisoners as due to the belief that private buildings have been mined. The report from the front are that reinforcements sent for the army of General Mackensen near Lodz, are taking up positions along the Vistula River where the German resistance seems to have been least effective. The apparent purpose of this move is to hinder the Russian envelopment movement until the main German column is extricated from the line which runs from Strykow through Giesler to Szdek. Semi-official reports from Galicia indicate that the Russians

The German theory appears to be that the British fleet can only be beaten by launching against it large submarines and air attacks. It is reported that the German fleet has steamed again into the North Sea."

JOFFRE IN ALSACE.

PARIS, To-day.
General Joffre, during a recent visit to Thann, Alsace, received a welcome in the name of France Alsations gathered there. "We have come back for good," declared Joffre, "you are Frenchmen forever." The citizens of Thann gave Joffre assurance of their absolute loyalty, and when he was leaving shouted "Long life France, Long life French Alsace." A semi-official communication, concerning the German armies in the field made public to-day says: "Germany at present has at her disposal twenty-five and one-half active army corps of which twenty-one and one-half are operating against France and four against Russia. These figures show that there is a total of fifty corps of one half army corps, active or reserve, fighting for Germany on the two fronts, and not one hundred army corps as has erroneously been stated by the German Government. If the Territorial units (Landwehr) of which nothing was said in the German official communication, and which it would seem that eight Landwehr army Corps are engaged against Russia, that is to say, in all on the two fronts, thirty territorial divisions."

ANOTHER FIGHT FOR CALAIS.

LONDON, To-day.
A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph wires from Central France that once more the Germans have turned their faces toward the sea, and are trying to hack their way to Calais and the coast. A new army has been brought up on the scene and a new road has been chosen, and it is rumored the German fleet will not be idle. The failure of their efforts to reach the coast from the north is ascribed to two causes: inundations which overwhelmed and paralyzed their attacks, and the guns of the British ships which devastated their exposed flank. The country between Ypres and Arras is immune from those risks. There are no dikes to open and no naval guns to reach it. Of what use then, it may be asked, is the German fleet to prevent reinforcements coming from England. This threat, I imagine, is nothing but bluff, though the presence of German submarines in the English Channel and German air raids on the coast are evidences that the Germans have been maturing plans behind a screen they have drawn in Flanders. Telegraphing from West Flanders a correspondent of the Daily Mail says: Heavy fighting has begun near Elvordinge after the longest pause during the war. Promiscuous artillery fire by the Germans has been resumed at Ratspeelt and Pervyse.

THE KING IN FRANCE.

PARIS, To-day.
Report comes from good authority that King George is to meet President Poincaré. There is the greatest satisfaction over the King's trip; in fact it is the only topic of conversation among Parisians, who consider the optimistic tone of Field Marshal French's despatches and King George's trip as good omens. King George went to the base hospital, containing British, Indian and German wounded in France yesterday.

Sealing Commission.

(Tuesday, Dec. 1.)

The proceedings before the Sealing Disaster Investigating Commission were continued yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Little concluded the examination of Capt. Westbury Kean of the S. S. Newfoundland, having reference to weather conditions on March 21st and April 1st. The witness said: I do not know that our barometer was set to sea level before clearing last spring. The barometer is not always reliable in determining weather conditions. I did not read the barometer and thermometer together. I have known the barometer to indicate a heavy storm at Labrador which never came. Last spring on the day our men left, our barometer did not indicate a severe storm. The Toronto weather report might emphasize the reading of our barometer, but it happens sometimes that both are wrong. We don't get Toronto forecasts at the seal factory. The Newfoundland was of the wooden ship type, and I presume was surveyed, as she was insured. I don't know as a fact that the ship was surveyed. I have always thought this to be the regular course. As far as I know the ship was strong and seaworthy. I had no trouble or anxiety concerning her; she could not be regarded as a floating coffin. As far as I know, I regard the panning of seals as indispensable for a successful seal fishery, but would be willing to take my chances otherwise for a voyage, though it would be killing work for the men, who, I believe, would curse the day panning was done away with. I am sure the men would find it distressing and hard work. No doubt some seals are lost through panning, but the hardships to the men, in my opinion, would be more serious. The panning of seals induces men to travel further, but I am not prepared to say that is more dangerous, as there are dangers and risks in handling seals to the men. I have known men to travel as far as four miles, that is as far as my crew ever went. An average distance would be a mile or two. I did not see the Stephano again that day after seeing my men board her, nor did I see my men leave her, nor was anything reported to me that day about the Stephano or my men leaving here. I did not know that day whether my men had left her or not. I had wireless on the Newfoundland for some time with an operator. The next spring there was no operator. It was then taken out. I was not consulted about taking it out. The whistle was blown twice or more after some men returned at 1 p.m., later in the afternoon. Capt. Green, the navigator, kept the log. The barometric entries of log from Monday noon, March 20th, until the night of next day the 31st were quoted. The entry in the log at 4 p.m. on Tuesday the 31st showed the wind to be S.E. The wind would be blowing from the Newfoundland along the track the men made in the morning. He did not believe his men were on that track at that time. The wind was veering in the afternoon and the ice was wheeling easterly. The ship kept the same relative position to the track on the heavy hummocky ice as far as I could see. But it is utterly impossible to be certain about the wheeling of the ice. The ship kept the same position as far as I could see. As to food, the men always professed hard bread, and nearly all carry a bag of oatmeal, raisins and sugar, which is provided by the ship if desired, though many men carry these things on their own account. The master watches have their stock supplied by the cabin steward, as they have not time to prepare their food like the men. They sometimes have a piece of cold meat, and the men are never refused meat if they ask for it. I don't know that any men took meat that day. I think that the men might be taught to look out for themselves more carefully, as regards clothing and food, before leaving the ship, with advantage to them. Sometimes men are provided with warm clothing when it is not required, and vice versa. I have seen men go out in the rain with oil clothing on, and afterwards picked up the clothes which had been discarded by the wearers.

George Tuff, sworn and examined by the Attorney General, Hon. R. A. Squires. He said he was second hand to the Newfoundland last year. In 33 years old, and has been going to the ice since he was a boy. Was bridge-master at about 17 years of age. Has been master watch for 10 or 11 years, then second-hand or mate. I remember March 31st last well. Was on deck at daylight and left the ship with the men about 7 o'clock. It was a fine morning, and I thought it would continue. Wind very light from S.E. Was in the barrel early. Think Stephano was N.W. of us, also saw the Florizel and one of the Ventures. Saw several gangs of men on the ice. Stephano and Florizel, who appeared to be taking seals, told the Captain and he told me to take charge of our men and go out. I took four masses of watches and about 100 men. Our captain told me to board the Stephano and get further instructions there. I thought she was about 5 miles from our ship. The ice got worse for travelling over than I ever saw. It took us about 4 1/2 hours to reach the Stephano. About 10 a.m. while on the way I observed that we were going to have some weather, but I thought it would be mild. When we boarded the Stephano it was pecking snow. I saw no sun hounds that morning. After we had a mug-up the snow was thicker, but it was mild, and I asked Capt. Kean as to weather prospects, and he satisfied me about them, and I went on the ice, thinking of no danger. The men all had full opportunity to get food while on board. The propeller of the ship was going, but I don't know if she was moving, was told she was steaming S.W., which would be towards the Newfoundland. The Captain told me there was a spot of seals in this direction, and getting my bearings before leaving the Stephano, I found the seals. At this time I did not think it a time to work at seals, though I have killed them in much worse weather. Could not see our ship at this time. We lost very little time, and I thought it best to make for our own ship. This was about 1 o'clock. I knew the direction of our ship, and put Master Watch Dawson ahead with a compass. I heard one whistle from one of the steel ships, but saw no steamer. We travelled S.E. by E. until we reached our path, snowing thick all the time, but not enough to hinder us from getting along. Often have been out in worse weather. Between 3 and 4 a man, LePiere, gave out which caused some delay. When he could not get further I decided to stay with the sick man, and told the rest to go on to the ship. Two or three men, including Stanley Andrew, remained with me. As the men were in the path we came out in, I thought they would reach the ship. Sidney Jones led the men, and was then getting late. I concluded to fix up some shelter for the night, and remained until the middle of the next day. The weather was cold then with a gale of wind N. and W. Thought I saw a steamer through the drift, but it was a pinnacle of ice. I saw the Bellaventure later, and went towards her, probably about half a mile. Some of our men were nearer the ship than I, but she moved away from us before we could reach her. Several of our men were then dead, others dying, and then the Bellaventure moved away. I saw the Stephano come close that I could see the white paint on her bow, but she, too, changed her course, away from us. I then saw the Newfoundland, and decided to take another man to reach her, feeling sure that no one knew we were astray. After travelling an hour or so, we saw that our ship had got in clear water and was moving away from us. We remained all night, it being beautiful, starlight, intensely cold. Next morning my sight was gone, but our ship was seen by one of the men, and three of us walked to her. On the way some men met us and helped us on board. Adjournalment was taken at 6 p.m. until 3 this afternoon.

Burnt to the Ground.

Mr. Charles Parsons returned to the city a few days ago from Grand Falls where he had been working in the paper mills for the past five years and met with good success up to recently when the boarding house, owned by him, was destroyed by fire with all its contents. The origin of the fire is unknown. It broke out about three o'clock in the morning while the owner was at work and could not be got under control. The building was razed to the ground. The occupants barely escaped with their lives. Mr. Parsons lost practically all his belongings. The dwelling was insured but the contents were not covered.

"Man" or "Gentleman"?

"Touching your article on class distinction in this morning's paper, let me relate a little personal experience of recent date," writes a letter friend.

"Entering a department store I inquired of the floorwalker at which counter I might find underwear. He took me to a fellow employee and said, 'This man wants to buy such and such an article,' to which the employe replied, 'That is not in my department, but come with me and I will take you to a gentleman who will attend to you.'

"Please note the fine distinction between man (the customer) and gentleman (the clerk). Moreover, this is not an isolated case. It constantly happens in one way or another. Of course the matter is of no earthly consequence. Calling a fellow employe a gentleman does not make him one unless he happens to be one by nature. Nor does the application of the supposedly less complimentary term man, to the customer in any way detract from his true status. But it would be interesting to hear on what grounds and for what reasons the distinction is made. Let us know how these fine drawn distinctions are to be adjusted."

My letter friend is apparently piqued at being referred to as a man instead of a gentleman.

I must say I cannot share his point of view.

To my mind the simple word man is rather a fine title, and apparently there are others who feel the same way about it.

Shakespeare's epitaph of one of his characters is, "He was a man, take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again."

"A man's a man for a' that" is Burns' paean to simple manhood. While Kipling promises that if you can acquire all the most splendid virtues and finally, "If you can fill the unforgetting minute With sixty seconds' worth of distance run Yours is the world and everything that's in it. And what is more, you'll be a man my son."

No, if I were of the masculine gender I don't believe I'd mind being called a man.

Any more than, being of the feminine gender, I object to being called a woman instead of a lady. In fact I prefer the former characterization.

Which sounds finer to you, "manly" or "gentlemanly," "ladylike" or "womanly"?

It seems to me that womanly is one of the most beautiful words in the language. I don't care a rap about being considered ladylike but I should like to be thought womanly.

To my mind "man" or "woman" is the larger word. If a male is a man in the full sense of that word, he is sure to be a gentleman. Or if a female (how I hate that word, but there is no synonym) is a real woman, she is a lady too.

So don't worry, Letter Friend, because you are called a man. If you want to worry over anything, worry over deserving the title.

Seven Million Persons Are Starving.

THE PEOPLE OF WAR-SWEPT BELGIUM ARE CRYING OUT FOR BREAD.

New York, Nov. 26.—Thanksgiving Day found seven million starving persons in war-swept Belgium crying out for bread and only half enough food on hand to appease their hunger. Three thousand tons of food are required each day to feed the sufferers, yet to date the United States, upon which the Belgians must depend in the "land of plenty," has furnished less than half that amount. Ten ounces a day will save a human being from death by hunger.

The foregoing epitomizes a statement to-day by the American Commission for the Relief of Belgium, carrying a plea for the small quantity of food specified for each inhabitant of the stricken land.

A cable from H. C. Hoover, chairman of the London Commission, declared the situation desperate, and urged assistance immediately. He said the Commission was chartering several ships for despatch to the Atlantic seaboard, trusting that Americans would fill them with supplies.

The Middle States are leading in contributions, the Commission says. President Edmund James, of the University of Illinois, has started a movement to raise $500,000. Each of the ninety-nine counties in Iowa now will contribute a second car load of flour. Kentucky is giving freely, an example of its charity being shown the other day when J. S. Ellington, a blind and armless soldier, 82 years of age, of Marfield, contributed fifty cents. And in Kansas, ten thousand active workers have been organized for the cause in just ten days.

War Prosperity Will Precede Reckoning.

New York, Nov. 25.—Great prosperity for a time awaits this country, in the opinion of Sir George Paish, adviser to the British Treasury, who sailed to-day for Liverpool aboard the steamship Adriatic.

"During the war the United States will have great prosperity," Sir George asserted. "Your misfortunes will come later. No misfortune that falls upon a great number of people can benefit any other people for any great length of time. The world is now consuming its seed corn, and this means nothing but loss. The suffering will last a decade, possibly a generation."

"After the war England will be able to reduce her expenses for defence and will save in a few years more than the war will have cost us. No peace can be made until there is assurance that militarism is crushed for ever. Prior to the war our expenses on defence were $400,000,000 a year; after its close they will be cut in half."

Sir George expressed the opinion that no trouble would result from the re-opening next Saturday of the New York Stock Exchange for restricted trading in bonds. He thought that the London Exchange would re-open soon.

The R. M. S. Mongolian leaves Philadelphia for here on Thursday next.

The Trifler.

The man who loafs the hours away, who does not strive to earn his pay, full soon his job will lose; ere long his boss will rise in wrath, and chase him down the garden path, and pat him with his shoes. The poor are with us all the time, according to a book subtitle, we need not wonder why; so many dodge all kinds of work, and loaf and lounge, and fool and shirk, and let each chance go by. So many will not try to earn the coin they're drawing in return for hours they fool away; so many see their bosses swamped, yet don't endeavor to be prompt except when drawing pay.

The trifling, inefficient jay, who goes his bootless, futile way, across the modern stage—he is the human race's jinx, he is the riddle of the Sphinx, the problem of the age. As thick as sand is the sea, or as the dogs upon a flea, we see him everywhere; the more we muse and contemplate this human puzzle and his fate, the greater our despair. And while we muse, the men who toil must pay to make the kettle boil for him who will let his head, and see his howling children starve; must buy his coffin when he is dead, while he remains alive.

THE MUNSTER FUSILIERS.

They went out from Tipperary, 'twas a long way to go,
And they stepped so light and airy,
'twas a joy to see their stride;
Oh, they whistled "Garry Owen"
Just to keep their blood a-goin'
'Till the colleens were so proud of them that every tear was dried!

It was "Good-bye, Tipperary," and 'God bless you, Silver-va-mon,"
'Happy days, old Ballin-deary, sweet Clonmel and Galtymore."
'Fair you well, dear Suir River,
In the sunshine all a-quiver,
While we march without a shiver to a field of death and gore!"

Well, they fought for old Tipperary's name,
at Charleroi and Mons, Intrepid as their sires of old who knew now how to fly.
And the foe man all his years
Will remember the wild cheers
Of the Munster Fusiliers who went so gloriously to die!

Wedding Bells at Branch

On Nov. 28th, Mr. Ambrose English led to the altar Miss Mollie Power, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Power. The bride looked very pretty in her bridal robe, cream embroidered, and with hat to match. The bride was assisted by Miss Belle Power and Miss Bride Power. Mr. Nicholas English, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, P.P., after which the party proceeded to the hospitable home of the bride where thirty couples were seated to a well spread table. The comforts and needs of the guests were looked after by the mother of the bride. Music, songs and gramophone selections followed. Dancing commenced at 8.30 p.m. and each and all enjoyed themselves to the full. We join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. English a long and a happy future.—Com.
Branch, Nov. 29, 1914.

Complete Change of Bill At Rossley's.

Last night there was a good big house. After the stores closed the people flocked to see the beautiful pictures and funny sketch. Kelly and Mack had the crowd as usual in roars of laughter. They are a very funny couple and well liked. There is another complete change of pictures to-night and every one a masterpiece. Mrs. Rossley is once more rehearsing for the Christmas Pantomime and those who are in the know, say it will be some production. The songs for this Pantomime are new and have never been heard anywhere before. Many have been specially written.

Shakespeare's New Birthplace.

ENGLAND DISAVOWED.
Germany, which long ago despoiled us of Shakespeare, has now decided officially to promulgate Germany as his "true home." Herr Ernst Hardt, a German poet, recited at the Leipzig Municipal Theatre, as a prologue to "Twelfth Night," a poem setting forth that Shakespeare, who hated England's purely royal spirit, would have found the England of today as repulsive as Germans do, and would feel himself homeless there. "Our country, therefore, shall henceforth be his real home, in order that he may not, a heartless wanderer, wend his unappreciated way through the world."

PLEASENCE SELECTIONS.—Before the rise of the curtain at the Casino Theatre last night the T. A. Band discoursed several patriotic selections, including the National Anthem, Marsellaise, Maple Leaf, and Rule Britannia. Between the acts also a number of popular airs were rendered which were much appreciated.

Back From the North.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, returned from northern ports yesterday afternoon, after a quick round trip. Favourable weather was had practically all the time. The ship brought a small freight and as passengers in saloon:—

Violent Patient.

By the S. S. Prospero there arrived yesterday from King's Cove Constable Pittman in charge of a man for the Lunatic Asylum. While on board the steamer Constable Pittman had to give the patient his closest attention.

Hospital Crowded.

Not a Single Cot Available.
At present the General Hospital is filled up, not a single cot there being unoccupied; besides there are altogether twelve male and female patients, belonging to different outports, now in boarding houses in the city awaiting their turn to enter the institution. Outport patients should be cautious about coming on, before room for them is available at the Hospital.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 60c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Case Dismissed.

The case of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals against Capt. Masters, of the S. S. Louisburg, in which the latter was charged with cruelty, was continued yesterday afternoon and after all the witnesses had been examined Judge Knight dismissed the case, holding that Capt. Masters did all he possibly could under the circumstances.

The Second Son of the Kaiser.

Eitel Fritz, the second son of Kaiser Bill, on the day his elder brother got his first uniform, became particularly envious of it, and during breakfast he kept on saying that he too wanted a pretty suit of clothes. When the Emperor would not listen, the little fellow became obstreperous, shouting, "But I want a uniform!"

To cure him of this, the Emperor sent him in "arrest," the only convenient place at the moment being the large dining-room table, under which he was told to crawl. After a time, he was bidden to come out again, which he did, but with all his clothes removed excepting his under garments.

To the question what he meant by such conduct, he made reply: "If I can't have a uniform, I don't want any other clothes either."

There is no disputing the fact there is something fascinating about a military uniform, especially if it has just been Dry Cleaned at
