HOUSES ARE WANTED BY US.

We are besieged by people every day of the week looking for HOMES to rent, owing to their not having sufficient money to buy.

We have now completed arrangements with a Moneyed Estate to invest their money in the buying of Houses for parties of good reputation. After the Summer's business our list is partially depleted, and we now invite parties with Houses to sell in any part of the City to list same with us, to meet the Fall's requirements.

We pay CASH for all houses transferred through our hands. Send full particulars immediately of the Property you have for sale. Our Motto: First Listed, first sold.

Lord Cecil's Dilemma

—OR— The Picnic

Woodall Forest

CHAPTER XLII.

As she stood before him in the dim light of the December afternoon, the firelight flickering in the strands of her gold-brown hair, he thought that she was the beautiful ideal of an angel, as conceived by poets and painters. That she had lately endured some great shock was apparent by the lines of sorrow about her mouth, by dark shadows under the pensive eyes—shadows that told of weariness and pain.

She looked at him a little curiously, he thought, and then he drifted into conversation upon the ordinary topics that people usually talk about, while Lord Cecil went to speak to the earl.

"We had news this morning that your papa was better," observed Herbert Gardner.

"Yes, much better," Gladys replied. "The sudden turn was almost a surprise for the doctors. I ought to be glad, but I am not."

"I understand," was the gentle reply. "Lord Stanhope has told me of some deep affliction, and with returning health your father but awakened to a recurring knowledge of it. But let us hope that the trouble may be but brief!"

She spoke hopefully, and his bright manner gave her confidence. While he looked at her he wondered if he dared offer consolation of another kind!

"I have often wished to see you, Lady Gladys," he remarked.

She looked at him in surprise.

"I did not know that you had ever heard of me until now!"

She looked at him questioningly.

"I have heard of you from Sir Charles Hastings—he is my oldest and dearest friend. At college we were nicknamed the Siamese twins!"

Your Home

Can be made more easily comfortable and pleasurable by the installation of this simple, economical device.

Save you one-third of your fuel bill. Keeps out cold and draft, dust and noise, deadens noise and stops rattle.

Ceco Metal Weatherstrips placed on your windows and doors relieves you of the bother with storm sash. They are cheaper than storm sash; far more effective, and last as long as the building. For both new and old houses alike. Let us tell you more about

She flushed painfully, then turned deadly pale.

"Poor fellow! he has met with a terrible accident—was shot, a few days since—fever followed—and he did not recognize me. I am anxious to learn how he is progressing, and I have written to Lady Hastings this morning."

He spoke rapidly, lest the situation should become embarrassing.

"He will not die," she whispered.

"You are sure he will not die?"

"No, there is no fear of that."

"Can you tell me, Mr. Gardner, when this happened?"

There was eagerness in her tones, and he knew why she asked the question. She was thinking of the letter she had sent to him—he was convinced that it was she who had written to Sir Charles—he was convinced that it was her handwriting on the envelope that he had picked up in one of the corridors, at Emden Hall.

"Yes," he replied, quickly, "I can tell you when it happened—almost to the minute. It was after dinner on the fifth of December. I don't know how it was—there is some mystery about it—but I shall hear all when my friend can speak to me—for we have no secrets one from the other."

"Then you do not think that he has been able to read, or to understand anything, since the fifth of December?" she asked.

"I am sure that he has not. You must remember that I was with him until a few days since."

She pressed her hands over her eyes, and was silent for a little while.

"I cannot quite comprehend it yet," Lady Gladys said at length.

"I am bewildered. I did not even know that he had been ill—and yet I have heard of him often enough from Lady Craythorne. Why did she not mention it?"

"You will pardon me, Lady Gladys," Herbert Gardner exclaimed. "You will pardon me for touching upon what cannot but appear to be delicate ground for one who is almost a stranger to you; but I want you to remember that Sir Charles and I were boys together; that my business has been his business; that we have rarely had a thought apart—never, indeed—until life's necessities changed our ways. I have heard from him of your goodness, your beauty, and of his great love for you. Tell me one thing, Lady Gladys. Have you written to my friend something which required an urgent reply, and have you wondered why that reply never came?"

A shade of annoyance crossed her face. Had this man seen what she had written? Had he dared to open her letter because he was Sir Charles' friend? She crimsoned at the thought that another should read the fond breathings of her heart.

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER II.

"I am not compelled to do so. You must understand, Iris, that there are two great powers in the land: aristocracy is one, and money is another. All the blue blood in the country would be silver without money; the power must work harmoniously, not disagree."

She raised her head with a proud graceful gesture peculiar to her.

"I would far rather," she said "have the consciousness of good birth than any amount of money."

"Quite right, my dear; so would I. Nevertheless, as I tell you the two powers must in this prosaic generation go hand in hand."

"Must I visit these people?" asked Lady Iris.

"They are sure to call. You may just return the visit; that is all they can expect from you, Iris."

"It is all they will get, papa," she said, smiling. "And now will you take me to see my mother's portrait?"

A shadow came over the earl's face.

"If you desire it, my dear," he answered slowly.

"I do desire it. I have often felt sorry that, unlike the other girls at school, I had no portrait of my dear mother in my locket. My school-companions often wondered why I had not one. Have a photograph of her portrait taken, and I will wear it in a locket—I love her so well."

"If I had known that you desired a photograph, Iris, I would have sent you one."

"I wonder," said the girl, half sadly, "that your own heart did not suggest it, papa. It is part of every girl's nature to love her mother. One of my greatest anticipations in coming home was that I should see the pictured face of my mother."

They went through the magnificent entrance-hall and up the grand oaken staircase to the picture-gallery. The gallery contained a superb collection of pictures. There was the portrait of the Tudor king who had built Chandos, and near him the flower-like face of his queen. Round the walls hung the Caledons of each generation—grim warriors, bland statesmen, and gallant courtiers, with their wives, "ladies fair of face and fall of grace."

"Take me to my mother's picture first, papa," said Lady Iris. It used to hang between the windows. Where is it now?"

"I removed it so that it might hang in a better light," answered the earl slowly.

They went down the long gallery, he quite silent, with a shadow on his face, she with a tender light in her beautiful eyes.

"No one could be happier than I am, papa—no father could be kinder or more indulgent than you," she said gently; "but do you know that I miss my mother? When the girls at school spoke of their mothers, my heart ached. There can be no love on earth so beautiful as that between mother and child!"

He was still silent, and the shadow on his face deepened. Lady Iris looked at him, with a tender little laugh.

"I am half ashamed to tell you, papa but I often dream of mamma when I am in great trouble—I dream that she is holding me in her arms, that she kisses my face and comforts me."

They stopped before the portrait of a noble, stately looking lady with a dark beautiful face and dark eyes.

"Mamma!" cried the girl, impetuously. "Oh if she could but speak to me—only one word! How beautiful she is! After all, it is but a picture, and, strange to say, my heart does not warm to it as it does to the dream-mother. Papa it is the loveliest face in the gallery."

He spoke then.

"She was both beautiful and good," Iris.

She bent forward and read the name.

"Guinevere, Countess of Caledon. How well the name suited her! Did she love me very much, papa? Was she sorry to die and leave me? Do tell me about her."

His voice was hard and cold as he answered—

"There are some things of which no man can bear to speak, Iris; and this one. I—I cannot talk to you of your mother."

ITCHY ECZEMA ON HEAD AND FACE

In Pimples, Could Not Sleep, Cuticura Heals.

"For about twenty years I suffered with eczema on my head and face. At first it broke out in pimples and when it was healed it left red and scaly. The itching and burning were so severe that I scratched and scratched the affected parts, and at night I could not sleep because of the irritation."

"I tried various ointments, but nothing helped. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using four boxes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Dyer, 12 Drexler St., Southfield, Mass., May 12, 1921.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

MY BEST.

If I were loyal to my best I should not whimper at the test. From dawn to dusk I should be fair, And bravely stand my bit of care; I should be friendly, just and kind, And big of heart and broad of mind, And find in every circumstance I'd made the best of Time and Chance.

The best of me, nor do I boast, Would keep me faithful to my post, 'Twould guard my tongue from bitter things.

The speech of malice and its stings, 'Twould spur me on in times of stress And bring me safely to success; The best of me would never let me stoop to things that I'd regret.

If to my best I would be true, Men would rejoice in all I do; With merit would my toiling glow, And none its worth could overthrow. Then scornfully no man could say: "Your hand has injured me to-day!" And no pale sufferer tell that I Had seen him want and passed him by.

But oh, so often I desert And speak the pretty things which hurt, And shirk the task, and spoil the day By madly rushing on my way; When selfish interests come first Then I am living at my worst. Lord, 'till the night brings me to rest, Let me be loyal to my best.

Fashions and Fads.

Narrow shirred girdles with large metal clasps are used on crepe de chine dresses.

The slashed overskirt is accompanied by an under section of different fabric or color.

Velvet is favored for both coats and suits. Paris has accepted it with marked popularity.

Japanese parasols in brilliant colors are more popular than any other sun umbrellas.

Blanket material of soft texture and brilliant colorings is used for striking beach capes.

Gold and silver brocade on a black background is effective for a formal evening gown.

A charming and beautiful hat is of flame velvet trimmed in isquared birds of the same hue.

Loops of georgette or of moire ribbon are an interesting trimming feature of some fall gowns.

Brocades in most brilliant colors, and velvets in plain and printed effects are worn for evening.

Unbleached jacket dresses with finely pleated or straight skirt are gaining popularity in New York.

A sports dress of mixed orchid tweed is bound in pearl gray jersey and has a circular cape to match.

Why Does A Cup of Tea Taste Better?

Some of the "kill joys" will tell you it is imagination. But you mustn't mind them for that is what they lack.

The joys of troutling are not for them. The muscle of the salmon reel they will never know. The beauty of the berry patch, the red of the partridge berry, the blue of the whort berry and the satisfaction of the well filled basket are not for them.

Even the beauty of our Newfoundland scenery, the glory of the Topsail sunset will leave them cold. But let us forget them and let us make for the old Southside Hill, now carpeted with the green and red of the partridge berry, or out to Topsail, or up to Manuela's River, or let us make for the old "Cow Path" leading to beautiful Holyrood (and along the said "Cow Path" the whorts never grew thicker than they do this year) and let us "boil the kettle", and I bet you it will be a good "cup of tea", unless your grocer has done you dirty altogether. For the secret of it is, you steep the tea as soon as the kettle boils, and any old tea will taste pretty good, I'll bet you.

But it is just as well to take the best tea with you, it doesn't cost much more. The last time we were out we had a splendid tea and it only cost us 65c. lb. It had a sort of artistic name—"Mount View". We bought it at Henry Blair's. They had another good tea there at 50c. per pound, but the clerk said "the best is the best", and we believe him.

Freshly boiled water is the secret of the cup of tea you drink out camping, fishing, berry picking or picnicking, but it is just as well to have the best tea.

You can get it for 65c. per lb. at Blair's "Mount View", that is the slogan.

S. Government Shies at Operations of Mines and Railways.

New York Schools May Have to Close for Lack of Coal.

WILL AVOID GOVERNMENT OPERATION IF POSSIBLE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. A proposal for the government operation of the rail and coal properties of the United States has been made, at least for the present, and administration leaders both in and out of Congress have centered their efforts on the coal situation. The coal situation is a serious one, and the White House is endeavoring to meet the industrial emergency. In the anthracite fields, the government is endeavoring to secure an agreement to insure the reopening of the mines was expected within a very short time.

MAKE THE LEAGUE UNIVERSAL.

GENEVA, Aug. 28. The question of the League of Nations becoming universal, which would mean the immediate admission of Germany and Hungary, is regarded here as sure to come up at the forthcoming meeting of the League of Nations Council in Geneva. The Swiss Delegation today received instructions to vote for the admission of Germany, if that country is nominated. The British, Canadian, South American, Spanish and Portuguese Delegations are understood to favor the admission of all applications.

NEW YORK'S COAL SUPPLY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28. Almost one hundred schools in New York, with an enrollment of two hundred thousand pupils, will be forced to close when the first cold wave arrives. Patrick J. Jones, Superintendent of Schools said today. Few coal users have more than a month's supply on hand, said a statement by the Real Estate Owners' Association that distributed 11,000 questionnaires. Seven hundred theatres are without a lump of coal among them, William Brandt, of the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce, said.

AMUNDSEN'S JOURNEY.

NOME, Aug. 28. Captain Amundsen, who last night transferred to the schooner Maud on his Arctic expedition, is now at Wainwright, one hundred miles southwest of Point Barrow, according to message from Capt. S. C. Cochrane on the east coast guard cutter Bear. It is thought here that Capt. Amundsen and party have transferred to the Bear due to heavy ice and may be planning to start at Wainwright the airplane flight which the explorer planned over the Arctic circle.

MINERS STILL ENTOMBED.

JACKSON, Cal., Aug. 28. Mine rescue crews worked without avail today in the Argonaut gold mine in which forty-eight men were trapped by fire at midnight. The mine is thought to be between the 4,500 and 4,800 feet levels, while the main body of fire is more than 1,000 ft. above them.

Elusive North Pole Again.

Did Peary discover the North Pole? It is a question that has been asked many times. It has always seemed strange that Peary should take with him on his final "dash" only a negro who could neither read nor write, and who was quite incapable of verifying or supporting Peary's statements, and leaving behind him a patient exploration within the Arctic circle, and even if he did not reach the pole, he undoubtedly came closer than anyone else.

The Prince was equally sure that Captain Amundsen did reach the South Pole, but said that he believed no man would ever reach the North Pole afoot or afloat. From the present attempt by aeroplane it is reasonable to infer that Amundsen shares the Prince's views on all points.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

Mother Why Not Try The Newer Form Of Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old!

The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks just fine. There can be no healthy, beautiful rosy-cheeked women without iron. Good physicians have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more of the newer form of iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks, and strength and vitality from their bodies. This newer form of iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in certain green vegetables, is highly recommended to thousands who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale, and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in soil deficient in iron.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women, full of life, vim and vitality. You can get Nuxated Iron from any druggist under an absolute guarantee that it will do the same for you or your money back. Thos. McMurdo & Co.

The Murder Trial.

ENQUIRY OPENS TO-DAY.

Wo Fen Game, the young Chinaman, charged with the murder of three of his fellow-countrymen, comes up before Judge Morris today for the preliminary enquiry into his case. Wo Fen Game attempted to commit suicide on the night of the murders with which he is charged, and he has only now fully recovered from his self-inflicted wounds. The evidence of Head Constable Byrne will be taken to-day as he is leaving the country shortly on a vacation.

SUNDAY'S RESCUE.—The Telegram is informed that 16-year-old Harry Cole, well known to all patrons of the Nickel Theatre, was the rescuer, from drowning, of the 14 Kavanagh at Long Pond on Sunday. Cole's act will be brought to the notice of the authorities.

"The Other Woman" Has Many Thrills.

THE NICKEL SHOWS GREAT MELODRAMA.

There is many a thrill in store for the patrons of the Nickel Theatre, to-night for the picture which opened there last night, a J. L. Frothingham production, "The Other Woman," Hodgkinson-released—fully lives up to the phrase which they have used to describe it—"the strangest story ever screened."

The audience last night followed engrossed the adventures and misadventures of Langdon Kirven and Avery Kirven—of "John Gorham and Naomi Joyce."

It would be unfair to divulge the complicated plot. Suffice to say that it is a perfectly reasonable story, told in an absolutely logical manner. The cast is a noteworthy one, and so uniformly excellent were the performances that it would be unfair to select any one member thereof for special mention. Jerome Patrick, Helen Jerome Eddy, Jane Novak, William Coughlin, Joseph J. Dewling—all were splendid. And even the minor characters performed in a highly creditable manner.

The production has been perfectly mounted, and the eye is charmed by a series of rarely beautiful sets. As has been said, the acting is truly great. Taking it all at large, "The Other Woman" offers the last word in screen entertainment. Don't miss it!

Pauperising Newfoundland.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Have you an unfailing supply of wealth in our country? Have you good Gen'l hidden away somewhere, who will give to us what we ask? To see the way it is given away in doles of flour, tea and molasses one would think so. Given away! you ask in surprise, yes literally given away. Don't our people work for it? In some cases yes, in more cases no. As a recipient told me only the other day, we don't do a tap for it. They tell me, Mr. Editor, it is not enough to work on but is only enough to impart bodily strength to enable them to stand upright. Why do our Government do this? Surely they are not blind; our people are being pauperised, and that by our own Government. While the Church is trying to uplift, the Government is just demoralising our people. If the workers are to be provided for, why not provide work on our roads; and if our Government must, as we all know they must, give relief, why not let it be in the form of dollars and cents. Our community life would be brightened by improved roads, and our people would be happy and contented, until brighter days dawned, and having earned their money they could buy what they required. If our wealth is so abundant, why not use it instead of throwing it away in an effort to degrade our workers by the present system? The best way to help a man to-day is the same as ever, help him to help himself.

Yours truly,
REV. S. ROWE.

OIL WELLS.

Nine times I bought some oil well stock, from salesmen with the gift of tongues; they said with Croesus I would walk till they said it till they sprained their lungs. Nine times my hopes were a running high, and I had dreams of princely state; I thought of gorgeous things I'd buy, when I had rubles by the crate. Nine times my vision knew a slump; the drillers only found six; and I was left upon the dump, a hopeless picture of despair. Then came a salesman from Long Beach, he said, "Our prospect is a peach, we do not deal in fakes or snafes. There's oil, my friend, 'neath Signal Hill, there's oil in windrows, heps and piles; and when our boys begin to drill, the oil will squirt at least five miles." "Nine times," I said, distraught and blue, "I've listened to that line of bunk; nine times to blithe young men like I've handed out my bottom bunk. I'm done with all your oil well stuff that cost me many hard-earned beans; I am no hog, I've had enough, and now I'll play the slot machines." The Long Beach wells are squirting oil, and men with shares dray price by day; and I, though wearied by such talk, still kick myself five hours a day.

The following gentlemen have also consented to become Directors:—
Hon. Tasker Cook Mayor of St. John's.
J. P. Kiely Proprietor Nickel Theatre
Ernest Shipman . . . Motion Picture Producer

Newfoundland Films, Ltd., has been formed for the purpose of producing a Newfoundland screen story, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Shipman, a Motion Picture Producer of world-wide repute. While the principal characters will be drawn from the Motion Picture centres of the United States, the minor roles will be selected from local talent.

The Newfoundland picture will convey to the world the beautiful scenic attractions of this Colony, and thus advertise this country to prospective tourists and others. Millions of people will see Newfoundland on the screen.

The public are demanding nature-made outdoor productions in place of the time worn studio-made fashion plate dramas, and a good reception is assured the Newfoundland film story.

The extraordinary financial success of "The Sky Pilot", "God's Crucible" and "Cameron of the Royal Mounted", all produced by Mr. Shipman, give some indication of what we may expect. The takings of "The Sky Pilot", which has been released but a short time, now exceeds one quarter of a million dollars, and is estimated to gross $750,000 when the returns are in from all countries.

In addition Mr. Shipman has produced film versions of three of James Oliver Curwood's Stories, which have already grossed receipts of over one and one half million dollars.

Mr. Shipman is confident of a ready market and when the Newfoundland picture is made and released in October, it is anticipated the Company will receive in cash from $75,000.00 to $100,000.00. This would enable the Company to return the original capital to investors—who would, however, continue to share in the profits during the life of the picture, which is at least five years.

A limited number of Shares are offered to the general public at $100 per Share. The Directors, however, reserve the right to refuse further subscriptions, if they consider that sufficient has been subscribed for the purpose of the Company.

WHICH IS YOUR HOUSE?

The House of the Much Ladies. One of the houses to which I always used to love to go was the house of some elderly ladies who were connected to the family by some link of third or fourth cousinship. There were three of them living together and my sister gravely christened it "The House of the Much Ladies." We loved to be taken there, partly because we liked the old ladies, partly because they had a whatnot on which were several rare treasures that laid hold of our childish imaginations. One was a conch shell in which, if you laid it to your ear, you could hear the roaring of waves. Always when I listened to those waves, I saw in my mind a picture of a tropic shore with palm trees on it where I was going to go some day. (I was right about that!) Then there was one of those old paper weights with a miniature village inside and a snow-storm ready to descend if you shook it. Also some quaint china figures of a shepherd and shepherdess; also a little box made of silver and ivory and ebony and sandalwood, brought home by a sea-faring uncle of the old ladies.

Why Not Develop Them?

Newfoundland coal fields, it has been estimated, are capable of producing 500,000,000 tons of coal, says a local dispatch to the Canadian Press, Halifax. There are three known distinct carboniferous areas in the geological formation of Newfoundland, one in the Codroy Valley, another in the country lying south of Bay St. George and the third on the upper reaches of the Humber River between Grand Lake and Sandy Lake.

Cookies Versus Conch Shells. We had a real aunt at whose home we always were given cookies, but I did not like it half so well as the House of the Much Ladies. There is an idea that the way to a child's heart is through his stomach. I think there is quite as sure a road through his imagination. Of course most of us Moderns do not have what-nots with conch shells and shepherdesses, but it is very simple to keep a few toys, a few books, a few treasures about that will make your home a pleasant memory to the child who comes there, and at the same time (to play up a selfish motive) keep him out of mischief. One woman I know always saves the children's pages of the Sunday papers and brings them out for visiting children. Not so poetic as the conch shell and the sandal wood box but quite effective just the same.

DELCO-LIGHT The Complete electric light and power plant

Specified and used by the U.S. Army and Navy

More than four thousand Delco-Light plants were delivered for war work. They were used to supply electric light in camps, storehouses, hospitals, Y. M. C. A. huts, airplane hangars, sub-chasers and other branches of the service.

In Red Cross hospitals at the front, Delco-Light operated life-saving X-ray apparatus.

Delco-Light was specified by the Government because it is dependable, efficient, simple to operate, requires little attention, and because it is AIR-COOLED.

The result of Government tests and the satisfactory use of Delco-Light on over 60,000 farms are your assurance that Delco-Light will give you the same dependable service.

It betters living conditions—increases farm efficiency, and soon pays for itself in time and labor saved.

To the Dover Patrol.

One of the finest war memorials yet conceived has been erected on the great French headland known as Cap Blanc Nez (Cape White Nose) which juts out into the English Channel from Calais, to a distance of six miles. This memorial is in the form of an obelisk, its height being one hundred and twenty feet above the highest level of the Cape, and it has been erected in perpetuation of the service and sacrifice of the men of the Dover Patrol (French) who rendered a service of surpassing value, during the war, in protecting the transport of millions of troops across the silver streak dividing England from France. This memorial was ordered and erected at the instance of an English organization as a tribute to the French sailors who co-operated with the British in patrolling the Channel during the period of the late war. At the dedication ceremony which took place not long ago, both the British and French nations were represented by guards of honor, battalions of infantry, distinguished officers of the two armies, and official spokesmen of their governments. Citizens, sailors and poets were present in thousands: ships passing, stayed their courses to permit of their crews witnessing the ceremony. Superb weather conditions marked this unique occasion, and at the close the allied comrades-in-arms, joined in the singing of "God Save The King" and the French battle song "La Marseillaise." The inscription reads:—

In Perpetual Memory of Our French Comrades of the Dover Patrol. "They died that we might live. May we be worthy of their sacrifice." To the French Minister of Marine fell the distinguished honor of unveiling the memorial, and as orator of the day, he told the undying story of the "four years of fighting and continuous patrolling" which kept the Channel free from German control. The Minister eulogised in eloquent language the epic of Zebrugg, and told of the deeds of "Swift and Broke, Branlebas and Oriflamme" and how the crews of these ships fought gallantly under constant menace of aerial bombs and submarine torpedoes. He paid tribute to the men of the Victive, Iphigenia and Intrepid "who performed prodigies of self denial and heroism," and he assured his audience that the names of the Dover Patrol and the great sailors under whose command it was—Hood, Bacon, Keyes and Ronarch—"stood out in letters of fire in the naval history of the Great War." The Minister closed in a peroration of more than passing interest. He saw in the war an occasion which had brought two peoples together for an amity "written in the blood of martyrs on the earth and in the depths of the sea," and he could therefore ask his hearers to "Swear by the heroic deeds of the Dover Patrol, and by the glory of its survivors, that so long as the cliffs of Dover and Calais stand facing each other, and so long as there remain in the recollections of mankind the feats of the Dover Patrol, so long will British and French friendship last."

On the death of Lord Northcliffe the Administrator, at the request of Ministers, forwarded by wire to the Viscountess Northcliffe, a message expressing the sincere sympathy of the Government of Newfoundland in her sad bereavement. His Excellency is now in receipt of the following reply from Lady Northcliffe:—

"To Sir William Horwood, St. John's, Nfld.,
"Most grateful to you and your Ministers for kind message of sympathy.
"MARY NORTHCLEIFFE."

Calcutta Leaves Forteau

FLAGSHIP GOES TO HALIFAX. H.M.S. Calcutta, which has been standing by the wrecked cruiser Raleigh, has left Forteau for Halifax, according to a message received to-day from West St. Modeste, via Fogo. The Calcutta was flying the flag of Admiral Sir William Pakenham, but the message does not state if he is remaining at the scene of the wreck or has gone to Halifax on his ship. There was to have been a naval regatta at Halifax this month, but the wreck of the Raleigh may cause this to be abandoned. In the Canadian Press dispatch (News Service) to-day there is a statement to the effect that the Raleigh has been abandoned by the Admiralty.

Rotary To-day.

WIRELESS DEMONSTRATION. Rotarians who lunched at the West End Candy Store to-day had an unusual entertainment, which took the form of a lecture on wireless telephony broadcasted from the office of the Marconi Company by Mr. J. J. Collins, assisted by Mr. Will Meehan. There were also songs by Messrs. J. Canning and A. Lawrence. Both lecture and songs were heard distinctly. Messrs. Collins and Meehan spent much time yesterday and several hours this morning preparing for the demonstration. An interior aerial was first erected, but this was not satisfactory, and was replaced by an outside aerial. The Rotarians greatly enjoyed this demonstration.

Shipman's Plans.

WILL MAKE MORE PICTURES. In the "Moving Picture World," the international trade paper, Ernest Shipman advertises the picture he will make in Newfoundland for fall release, and also refers to his others which he will release later. One of these will be entitled "The Lore of the Labrador." The other is to be a picture of the interior. The actors who will make the first picture are coming on the Rosalind, due here Thursday. It is understood that the Maritime movie people want $25,000 from this country to make a picture.

Sailed From Limeville.

WITH MINING TIMBER AND LIMESTONE. S.S. Watuka sailed for Sydney at noon yesterday with 21,413 pieces of mine timber and 1,032 railroad ties, says a message received last evening by the Assistant Collector of Customs from Limeville. A further message stated that S.S. Dagbild had sailed for Sydney with 12,000 tons of limestone on board.

Three Funerals.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BURIED TOGETHER. For the first time in many years, the little village of Colinet, picturesquely situated near Placentia, within sight of the ocean, amid surroundings composed of winding rivers and thunderous falls, and high overhanging hills, has lost three of its residents within 24 hours. Two of these were Matthew Nolan and his wife, who died within a few hours of each other, and were laid side by side in the little cemetery upon the hill. Mr. Nolan was 85 years of age and his wife but a year younger. The third death in the little village was that of Patrick Trimlett, whose body was taken to Salmoner where it was laid to rest.

Big Sporting Event.

TOMORROW'S HIGHLAND GAMES BID FAIR TO ECLIPSE ALL FORMER FIELD SPORTS—PRIZES MAGNIFICENT AND COSTLY.

Great enthusiasm is being displayed among athletes and sporting fans concerning the big sporting event of the season which takes place on St. George's Field to-morrow afternoon. The committee in charge of the Highland Games have left nothing undone to ensure the success of the affair. Prizes which are the most magnificent and costly ever awarded for sports in this city have been donated by prominent citizens who are keen in keeping the interest in outdoor sports alive as well as being eager to have the old time Highland Games revived. The most recent addition to the prize list is a handsome cup awarded the teams winning the school relay. The cup has been presented by Hon. Dr. Campbell and is to be given in addition to the individual prizes for the three competitors. It must be won two years in succession. It is hoped to have Macklin and Duckworth, the two lightweights who made such a hit at the big boxing meet last fall, stage an exhibition. This in itself, will be well worth going to see.

Slept in Open.

EVICTED FAMILY CAN'T GET HOUSE. Patrick Walsh, who with his wife and eight children, was evicted yesterday from his home in the basement of the Customs House, complained to the Telegram to-day that he was unable to find a house which he could rent. Walsh states that neither he nor his two sons can obtain work, and unless he obtains a house shortly the family will be destitute. The whole family, the youngest child being 7 years old, slept out on Water Street last night.

Future Of Wireless.

EXPERT'S HOPES OF PROGRESS. Wireless telephony is still in its infancy, and the enormous benefits which it will confer on the human race, as further progress is made, are inestimable, said Charles M. Ripley, Electrical Expert to the Telegram this morning. Mr. Ripley is with the General Electric Company of Schenectady, N.Y., who possess one of the biggest broadcasting stations in the world. He arrived here yesterday on a short vacation. Mr. Ripley is very enthusiastic over the future of wireless telephony. He believes that it is going to be a big factor in bringing about simpler and more efficient methods of education, while for the lonely man, it will provide the best company he could have. Mr. Ripley, who addresses local listeners-in from the Marconi Office to-night, has addressed hundreds of thousands of people through the same medium in various parts of the States, including Detroit, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and other cities. He says there are now over 1,000,000 listeners-in in America and receiving sets are still selling rapidly. Mr. Ripley once offered a prize for the best report of a wireless speech made by him and a boy of 15, who lived several hundred miles from the broadcasting station, sent in a wonderfully accurate report. Mr. Ripley leaves by the Rosalind on Saturday.

Time For Action.

AN OPEN LETTER TO HIS MAJESTY'S OFFERS LOYAL OPPOSITION.

I crave the favor of addressing the members of his Majesty's Loyal Opposition now holding seats in Parliament through the columns of the Evening Telegram and in so doing offer no apology for what your readers may term a candid and timely expression of the general thought and thinking of the people of the country on the whole. In so doing I feel I am but performing a duty and not a privilege. The question is asked: What of the Opposition? And few if any can answer. On various occasions Sir Michael Cashin, the Leader signified his intention of resigning that post, and it was correctly reported that he recently relinquished his claim on the support of his followers, but no meeting was called to elect a successor with the result that a marked apathy is displayed by friends and supporters of the party not holding seats in Parliament, and unless a something that will tend towards a reorganization of the party within the next few weeks begins, it is reasonable to predict that all attempts to do so after that period will prove futile, or in short, the government of to-day will be subject to very little inconvenience, the people, like the Opposition, will become equally as indifferent, and disinterested. It is unfair to the country that because of any personal differences the many thousands of people, and what was considered a strong influential and capable party should be sacrificed. I care not when an election will be held but I am only voicing the opinion prevailing throughout the country that the time has come for the fray, which was outlined in the Telegram. The time for the styled Liberal Labor Progressive Party owe it to the country to make known their future political policy. If it is their intention to carry on or reconstruct or must those not on the inside take it that they no longer seek the confidence of the people or their respective constituencies. It is with the idea of seeking the views of Sir Michael Cashin, members of the opposition, and those of your readers interested that I address this open letter in the Telegram. The time for action has arrived next month or next year but to-day—"Now's the day and now's the hour."

Newfoundland and Canada.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Lord Morris, formerly Premier of Newfoundland, is reported to have said in a recent interview that within a few years the Ancient Colony will join Confederation. This may be nothing more than the pious hope of a gentleman who is free to say what he pleases, or what he thinks will please those whom he is addressing, because he is no longer a responsible statesman. Some ten years ago when Lord Morris (then Sir Edward P. Morris) was head of the Newfoundland Government, he was much more cautious and non-committal on the subject of union, and rather gave the impression that Newfoundland was pretty well satisfied with the status quo and not inclined to merge her personality in the Dominion. Perhaps public sentiment has changed in the interval. The war of course brought Newfoundlanders and Canadians into closer fellowship than had ever existed in the past. They fought together, suffered together, learned to understand one another and to realize that they came from the same virile stock, and looked at most things from the same point of view.

After all, if union is to come, it is infinitely better that it should be brought about as the result of better knowledge and the conviction that Canadians and Newfoundlanders, being both neighbours and kinsmen, can achieve more for the common good together than apart, than by stress of economic conditions. The people of Newfoundland are proud, and justly proud of their traditions of self-government. The history of the Ancient Colony is one of which both they and the rest of the British Commonwealth have reason to feel proud. They have managed to carry on for several hundred years under physical and other conditions that would have dismayed a less sturdy and self-reliant race. There have been times when they have been tempted to join Confederation as a way out of financial embarrassment; perhaps as the lesser of two evils. However convinced we may be that they would gain very much more than they would lose by coming into the Dominion, it is well for both sides that union should not be brought about that way. The feeling that they had been forced by adverse circumstances would inevitably leave a bitter taste in the mouth of the Newfoundlanders. With the best intentions, they would probably come into Confederation more or less with a chip on their shoulder.

So far as Canadian opinion is concerned, we believe that it is very favorable to union. Sentimental as well as practical considerations make it desirable to round out the Dominion by bringing in the sister colony, but union would not be without its disadvantages to Canada, adding new problems to our present multiplicity. While we shall be glad to welcome our kinsmen as fellow-citizens, we have no desire, however, to hasten their decision. Improved means of transportation and communication are every year bringing us into more intimate contact, and making the two branches of the British Commonwealth better known to one another. We as Canadians can afford to wait until Newfoundland is herself convinced that she will be better off as a province of the Dominion than alone.

In the Realms of Sport.

TELEGRAM ROAD RACE NEXT WEDNESDAY.

One of the last acts of the late Mr. J. Herder, founder and proprietor of "The Evening Telegram" was to order from Schofield Goodwin & Sons of Manchester a magnificent silver trophy for an annual ten mile road race. Himself a sportsman, he was always an admirer of clean manly amateur athletics, and he always made it the policy of his paper to give freely the space of its columns for the promotion of such sports. It is a matter of widespread interest that the late Mr. Herder was engaged either to see the trophy made or to witness the race for which he intended it. The trophy has just arrived and is truly a masterpiece of the silversmith's art, being beautifully embossed and chased. It is the trophy of a worthy donor, and is being presented for local competition. The race will be held on Wednesday, September 6th, from a point near the St. George's Field. At the request of the trustees of the trophy, the National Sports Committee will control the race. Following are the conditions governing it:—

This cup is given for the purpose of promoting the spirit of clean, healthy sport among the amateur athletes of Newfoundland.

The competition for the cup shall consist of a 10 mile road race to be run during the holiday season in each year.

Judges shall be appointed by the Directors of the Evening Telegram Ltd., whose decisions, in all matters relating to the race, shall be final.

The winner shall be entitled to hold the cup for one year. The name of the winner, with the year of his victory and time, shall be suitably engraved on a silver plate attached to the base of the cup.

Should any competitor win the race three consecutive years or four years the Cup shall become his property for all time.

Approved bonds to the value of $200.00 shall be given by the winner before the Trophy is handed to him. The holder of the Trophy must return same to the Directors of the Evening Telegram at least two weeks before the competition each year.

The Cup shall be known as the Evening Telegram Marathon Trophy.

In addition three beautiful silver medals are being awarded for first, second, and third places.

TONIGHT'S CHAMPIONSHIP GAME.

Greatly weakened by the absence of Burke and John Phelan, the champions of two successive seasons, the B.L.S. enter the final lists tonight against the Saints. For twenty-one years the silverware has been handed about, no one team being able to retain it for three years in succession. Should the Irish win tonight then it will be theirs for keeps, but if they go down to defeat then the Saints obtain control of it and it is likely to be on the go for another quarter of a century. The lineup will be: B. L. S.—Goal, Joyce; backs, Higgins and Power; halves, Brien, Constantine, Fox; forwards, the three Phelans and two Halloys.

SAINTS—Goal, Joyce; backs, Barnes and Elton; halves, Elton, Foster and Brown; forwards, McNeil, Sawyers, Young, Tait and B. Sawyers. Fans are reminded that the game commences at 7 o'clock sharp.

C.E.'S FIRST WIN.

After bravely battling all the season, the C. E. I. secured their first win last evening when they put it all over the Stars by a score of four to two. They seemed to have taken on a new lease of life and right from the start went to it with a swing. Purcell for the vanquished started hostilities but Winsor equalized before half time. Then two more goals were scored by the Institute lads in the second, and just sharply before full time Bill Duggan scored for the Stars.

A.A.A. CHAMPIONSHIP.

A meeting of the National Sports Committee has been called for Thursday evening at W. J. Higgins' Office, to make arrangements for the A.A.A. Championship meet on next Wednesday, Sept. 6th. Practically the same programme as last year will be run for which gold medals will be awarded. A feature of this year's sports will be the finish of the Telegram Road Race.

Don't forget the Highland Games tomorrow.

Our sincere thanks to A. Harvey Thomas for his kindness in looking after this column during our absence.

Members of the Regatta Committee are reminded of the meeting tonight to finalize this year's business.

FINE STRUCTURE AT ROCKY RIVER.

The Rocky River Bridge, Colinet, is now nearing completion and by tomorrow, the work of laying down the concrete deck will have begun. The bridge is a fine structure of steel and concrete, and is carried on two arches. Now that the Department of Public Works has gone so far, it would not be unreasonable to suggest that a good motor road should be made between St. John's and Colinet, so that the beautiful salmon rivers of this country will become more approachable to visiting and local sportsmen.

Enquiry Into Manuel's Tragedy.

Judge Morris Takes Evidence at Opening.

Following an investigation by police officers who were engaged in discovering witnesses in connection with the recent dual drowning tragedy of Manuel's, the Magisterial Enquiry into the accident opened yesterday afternoon before Judge Morris. The enquiry is being conducted by Superintendent O'Neil. Two witnesses were examined yesterday. They were William Smith and Geo. Smith, both of Manuels. Before adjourning the enquiry, Judge Morris said that as the preliminary investigation into the Chinese Murder case was to come up for hearing to-day, he would have to take it, but that Mr. McCarthy, J.P., would preside of the drowning enquiry. The following is the official text of the evidence given:—

Magisterial Enquiry Into the Cause of the Death of Thomas Anderson and F. L. Southgate Who Were Drowned by the Upsetting of Their Boat When off Manuel's on August 19th, 1922.
WILLIAM SMITH, SWORN:— I live at Manuel's, South Shore, C.B. I live about a quarter of a mile from Manuel's beach. I was at home on Saturday, August 19th last. I was moving in my field somewhere about 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning and I noticed a small boat coming down the shore from Kelligrews. My son Walter was in the field with me. The field is about a quarter of a mile from the beach and right opposite. There were two men in the boat and they came ashore at Manuel's Beach and they went up the road towards the railway station. They were gone about time enough to go to the railway station when they returned again I did not know the men as they were strangers to me. They went back to the beach and got in their boat and put off. I think it was about twelve o'clock or thereabouts as I had not gone to my dinner as I generally go about 12 or 12.30 o'clock. The boat appeared to be a very small thing but I could not tell the build of the boat. I saw one sail on the boat and it appeared to have some kind of a gaff to the mast and a boom. The little boat looked to be right covered over with canvas. At one time I was a fisherman and knew all about boats, but I have not been fishing for about 20 years. At this time the wind was increasing fast and was about S.W.W. and was right off the shore; otherwise it was a fine day. In my opinion there was too much wind for a boat of her size to leave the shore when she did. The boat had only gone off the beach about 25 yards when she was very nearly turned over by the wind. She was then carrying whole sail and the men in the boat pulled down the sail and reefed her. Even after the sail was reefed in my opinion the boat was not too big for the boat. When they put the reefed sail on her the boat proceeded towards Kelligrews. After the sail was reefed the boat started right on her course. About a mile and a half, in my opinion from where I was we saw the boat upset and in about a minute she righted again and then went suddenly down again the sail going flat on the water. We saw what we thought was the peak of the sail flap two or three times on the water and that was the last we saw of the boat and men. The wind was blowing strong at this time and there was a big lull on. To the best of my knowledge the boat, when it upset, was about a mile from the beach and the boat was standing up about West, and the course the boat was going at the time of the accident she would not be able to reach Kelligrews. The intention of the men in the boat being, I presume, to stand off from the land for some distance and then tack and reach in for the land, what is termed beating to windward. When the boat upset my son, who was with me in the garden, advised me to get on my horse's back and report the matter to Const. Forsey at Manuel's. I harnessed my horse to my express and drove as quickly as my horse would go to Constable Forsey's house which was about a mile from my field. I rapped at his door and he came out and I told him what had happened and in trouble, and needed help, but I did not tell him it had turned over. I left Constable Forsey then and I came down to the office at Manuel's and told the operator to tell the operator at Kelligrews that the little boat which had left Kelligrews was in trouble. Up to this time I had not heard who the men were who were in the boat. I then returned to my home and put my horse away. That is all I know about it as I had no boat of my own. I was expecting that a motor boat or something would be out looking for them in the afternoon as I thought the news would have reached St. John's or Bell Island. My son has no boat either. There were four little boats hauled up on the beach on Manuel's since caplin were caught; there were two pieces of oars in one boat and none in the others. There was one boat on the collar at Manuel's but I did not think she was large enough to go to the rescue be that time. I did not know if there were any boats in the pond at Manuel's; the boats there are owned by people at Chamberlain. None of the boats on Manuel's beach were large enough to go out in. The wind seemed to drop away a bit coming on late in the afternoon and the sea got smoother. I did not see any fishermen on my way to Constable Forsey's. I saw a few boys at the end of the road but no fishermen or boat owners. Manuel's Bridge is about a quarter of a mile distant from Manuel's railway station and on my way to Constable Forsey's house I passed near the station. I did not know at the time that the men were working at Manuel's Bridge. I did not know of anything else I could have done that day to save the men's lives. I had no reason for not telling the Constable that the boat was gone. My reason for telling Constable Forsey that the boat was in trouble and needed help, was that I thought the poor fellows might have caught hold of the boat and might be able to hold on for some time. The boat that I saw on the collar at Manuel's was a fishing boat, a small skiff and was a two handed punt. She had sails on board and I suppose she had oars also. I do not think it would have been possible to get out to the scene of the accident in that boat. You could have rowed the boat to the scene of the accident if she was capable of going there, but no effort was made by any person to put out in that boat to see if she could get there or not. The accident, to the best of my knowledge, occurred about 12 o'clock and I immediately ran to my horse and caught her and tackled her to my express and drove as fast as she could go to Constable Forsey, and I should judge that I arrived there about 20 minutes after the accident happened. I do not know what Constable Forsey did but I returned to my place at Manuel's. All I said to Constable Forsey was that the little boat was in trouble and needed help. A man named George Smith came into the field just after the boat upset and he saw the boat when she came up the second time. He did nothing as regards rendering assistance as he was like myself powerless. In my opinion the boats lying on the shore, if put out, would not hold out twenty yards before they would fill up with water; the seams would be opened from the sun on the collar if she had put out I could not say what would happen. I am 60 years old, and was engaged seven or eight years fishing on the Labrador, but the last 20 years I have been farming. I have often crossed from Manuel's to Bell Island in an open boat but I could not tell if I ever crossed with as much wind blowing as was blowing on the day of the accident. I may have crossed with as much lull as was on at the time of the accident. Any time I went across to Bell Island I always went in something larger than was around the beach on the day of the accident.

GEORGE SMITH, SWORN:— I live at Manuel's and am 38 years old and am a farmer, I live about a quarter of a mile from Manuel's beach and about 100 yards from the house of William Smith. On Saturday August hard to row or sail and there was also too much lull. I could not say if there were any boats in Manuel's pond. I cannot say if there was anything done that evening by the people around Manuel's, Long Pond, Chamberlains or Fox Trap to go to the rescue of these men. After Smith had started to go to Constable Forsey's I went over to my house and got glasses,—they were binoculars and are good ones and I could see well with them. I looked around the horizon but could not see any sign of anything and I spent quite a while looking. From the time I saw the peak of the sail to the time I got the binoculars was about 2 or 3 minutes. The water appeared very rough and blowing hard. I have been fishing at Petty Harbour and in Conception Bay of Manuel's. I have also crossed back and forth to Bell Island in boats. I never crossed to or from Bell Island with as much wind as was blowing on the day of the accident, but I have been fishing in Petty Harbour with as much wind and lull as were on that day but I had a good boat under me. I would not cross to Bell Island that day in either of the boats that were on the beach that day or the one that was on the collar. In my opinion, even if the boat had a keel that the men could hold on to, they would not have been able to hold on to the boat long that day as there was too much lull. Looking through the glasses you could see the top of the lops breaking. The little girl Smith told me she heard William Smith say it when shouting out to his son.

Sene's Report.

TWO SCHOONERS LOST.

The Shipping Department has received the following report from the Sene sent from Makovik on Saturday. The captain reports the loss of two schooners, one at Spracklin's Island, and the other at the Farmyards. The Happy Jack, Capt. E. Sampson, was lost some 50 miles from Hopedale, her crew were saved as was all the fishing gear and 250 qts. of codfish, which was transferred to the schooner Alsace. The other sch. was the 'Jim and Max' lost at the Farmyards on August 16th. A heavy gale of Northeast wind prevailed at the time, and the vessel struck several pans of ice, and rapidly filled with water. The 300 quintals of codfish on board was saved, while the crew are now at Hopedale, where they will join the Meigle on her way South. The Sene also reported the ice had gone South from Hobron. The vessel commenced fishing on the 21st. He has no word as yet as to their catches, but it is believed the voyage will be an average one.

The Royal Swimming Club.

THIRD OUTING AT TOPSAIL.

The third outing for the season was held at Topsail on Monday evening. The journey was made by motor and the trip in and out was one of the delightful features of the affair. On arrival a dip in the sea was enjoyed by all and proved most exhilarating. A light supper was afterwards served, which was followed by a game of football. As darkness drew on the company arranged themselves for an open air impromptu concert. Songs and choruses were accompanied by a hocharina, each item being loudly applauded. The company left for home at half-past ten, but were surprised to be held up on the road by the Misses Miller, who had prepared refreshments for them. Needless to say these were greatly appreciated by all. A second hold up occurred at the Waldmere Ice Cream Parlour, where the proprietor, Mr. Cake, handed around drinks and ice-cream, much to the delight of the recipients. At the conclusion this was unanimously voted the best yet.

Bridge Disaster At Quebec.

A terrible disaster occurred at Quebec shortly before six o'clock on the night of August 29, 1907, when the South Shore section of the great cantilever railway bridge across the St. Lawrence collapsed and at least sixty workmen lost their lives. The bridge—which was to be opened for traffic in the following year—was being constructed by the Phoenix Bridge Company, of Philadelphia, and the majority of the men engaged in fitting the steel girders together were Americans. A construction train drawn by a small engine, and laden with heavy cranes, was apparently responsible for the collapse. The train ran on to the bridge from the north shore, and when it had travelled several hundred yards the engine driver felt the "structure" give slightly. He was in the act of reversing the engine, when the quarter mile long section—after swaying for a second—suddenly parted, and half of it dropped into the river with a tremendous crash. The engineer did not have time to save himself but went down while in the engine cab. He lost consciousness but in some miraculous manner was freed from the wreckage after striking the water yards down the river, dazed, but unhurt, some minutes later.

Kill That Fly.

PROMPTLY WITH THE FLY-KILLER THAT BRINGS GERMS INTO YOUR HOME.

It is the time to start the war against flies, the worst of household pests. They are so common that you do not look upon them as unclean but unavoidable, and take steps to get rid of them. This is a great mistake. Many people realize the great cause of the fly. Very few, however, realize the cause of a good deal of disease to older folk, sickness to infants, and death to infants. The cause is directly caused by the flies; and certainly infant mortality would be greatly reduced if house-flies were cleared away. Flies are laid in dirt—dusty, smelly corners of houses; in garbage, and ash-pits. The flies hatch out as soon as wind-blown over, live on filth and garbage, acquire disease germs by the same means. Then they come and visit our food, eat our sugar, contaminate our milk, giving us germs, and annoying everybody. Prevention Better Than Cure. In a very short time these young ones grow bigger, and lay their eggs. These are swiftly hatched in warm and summer heat, and the process is repeated many times in a few months. Still we have enormous numbers of flies. How, then, shall we prevent them? Start at once by getting into all the crevices—the way nooks and corners—dust-collecting—behind pictures, the top of high windows, and on the top shelves in cupboards, behind the walls and ceilings; and remove every speck of dust, wash the fly-eggs. Then keep the house airy. Such places have a few flies; but the hot, airless rooms, with big fires for cooking, and scores of flies without in the summer, if possible, or have all open in the early morning and evening. Finally—and this is most important—leave no food about for the flies to feed on. Wash up all dirty things immediately after use. Brush crumbs that fall; cover up all over night, especially sweetened milk, sugar, jam, or tinned milk. Wash all "meat" safes for food to be made by using wooden boxes, and scored, and putting wooden in framework of wood for a door. These will be insect-tight and dust-proof, but airy. The Grand Finale. Lastly, attend to the yard. See that the drains have lids, and if smells, use chlorine of lime. Above all, wash and ash in your ash-pit, potato-peelings, vegetable scraps, etc., in some well-covered receptacle for someone who keeps a poultry. If no one wants them, burn them covered, until you can see them. Never throw away dirty rags or fruit-tins; wash them. Scores of flies swarm round the sticky juice of a milk-tin or fruit-

Convict Wins Freedom.

IN LIFE SAVING ATTEMPT.

London.—The thrilling story of Thomas Gray's heroism in attempting to save a drowning prisoner of Peterhead jail has had a sequel in keeping with his courage—he has won his own freedom from prison. Gray, a convict in Peterhead jail, under life sentence when the incident in question occurred. About a month ago, Thomas Gray, Alfred Coates and other Peterhead prisoners were engaged loading stones beside a water-logged quarry hole at Stirlinghill when Coates leaped into the hole, which contained fifty-five feet of water. Coates had been sentenced to ten years of penal servitude, and was mentally defective, and his sentence evidently was paying on his mind. Gray at once threw off his coat, plunged in after Coates, gripped the drowning man, and made heroic efforts to save him. Those peering down into the hole were witnesses of a desperate fight, in which the issue was life or death. So violent were the struggles of Coates that both he and his would-be-rescuer were drawn under the water. Gray was compelled to relax his hold and come to the surface. Thus Coates went to the doom he sought, and Gray—thoroughly exhausted—was saved from death by another convict, David Alexander. At the inquiry Sheriff Laing warmly commended the action of Gray and Alexander. The former is now enjoying his liberty, and it is probable that the latter will receive some consideration from the authorities. Gray's crime of murder was committed in a moment of passion when he was under the influence of drink.

The British Soldier Watches Over Israel.

JERUSALEM, July 28.—This is the great Moslem Feast of Bairam, and Palestine and Syria present scenes of unusual gaiety and animation. The two countries are really one. Only the artificial division to suit the ideas of British and French mandates make them two. The people are the same. Aleppo, by the extraordinary French agreement with Mustapha Kemal of Angora, is now deprived of all its hinterland and all its trade, and must either die or be returned to the Turk again. The crops are being reaped, the barley cut, and the fields are resplendent with flowers. One can see prototypes of Ruth and Naomi in every field, cutting the corn with the sickle and gleaning afterwards as they did in Biblical times, on the southern slopes of Bethlehem. This scene probably has been painted a hundred times by American and European artists, but they have never got it quite right. For the women of the East squat on their heels to reap, using the left hand to hold the sheaf and the right to use the sickle. In pictures Ruth is always shown as gracefully bending but no Arab ever bends. In the East no one ever walks where he can ride, or stands where he may sit, or sits where he can lie down. This is the land of true repose. The Arab custom is to have three great blocks of arable land, and to cultivate them, one every third year, leaving the other two great fields lying fallow. They use the same primitive methods of cultivation as of old; a camel yoked to a donkey to pull the wooden plough, and the sickle as the only instrument of husbandry.

June Icebergs.

WARM WEATHER ADDS TO THE PERILS OF OCEAN TRAVEL, BY BRINGING GREAT MASSES OF ICE FROM THE ARCTIC REGIONS. June and July are reckoned the worst months for ice in the North Atlantic. It is at this time of year that the great Greenland bergs drift south to the danger of Transatlantic shipping. North Atlantic ice has claimed a terrible toll of human lives and property during the past half-century, and over and over again great liners have had the narrowest escapes from sinking after collision with huge bergs. The Titanic disaster is still fresh in our memories, though it happened no less than ten years ago. Other vessels have been more fortunate. The most marvellous escape was that of the liner, Arizona, which, forty years ago, gained the title of the "Greyhound of the Atlantic."

"TOMMY" ON THE JOB.

Jerusalem is a perfect kaleidoscope of color. Jews with long side curls and brightly-colored robes, not yet accustomed to their new-found liberty, slink along the pavement with downcast eye; young, bold, self-assertive Zionist Jews in white shirts open at the throat; Russians in white blouses; defiant, contemptuous Arabs with their flowing white head-dresses; Moslem women shrouded in black veils, and passing them the modern young women of Jerusalem in cheap silk stockings and high-heeled shoes. Up and down the street the picturesque Palestine Gendarmerie ride upon their grey Arab ponies, or talk to the town police, in khaki and black astrakhan fed. It would be hard to find such a strange mixture of races even on the East Side of New York. The sober British infantry or expedition artillery, smart and alert, take up positions along the Jaffa road to see the pretty girls go by. As usual Tommy Atkins is quite inconspicuous and it is difficult to believe that he alone allows all these warring races and creeds to meet and pass in peace. He keeps the peace in all the Near East now. Were it not for him many lives would be in danger. Not far distant from the ancient capital is a different picture. In the fields of Beerseba, Gaza and the Mount of Olives the traveler sees 10,000 crosses marking the graves of the British soldier dead, to whom the subject races of the Holy Land owe their redemption.

ice tumbled aboard her that at first it was feared she would sink before anything could be done. Neptune's Secrets. Her passengers stamped, there was a rush for the boats, and her officers had their work cut out to restore discipline. Her watertight compartments saved her, and eventually she managed to steam slowly into port. More recently the Anchor liner Columbia had an appallingly narrow escape from destruction by ice. Off Cape Race she charged a great glittering mass of flinty Arctic ice which, as usual, was shrouded in thick fog. Her bowplates were crumpled for fifteen feet, and her port anchor struck on the ice and was lost. Nine feet of water rushed into her hold before the leak could be stopped. The passengers were at dinner when the collision occurred. The dining-table was swept clear, and the passengers flung in every direction. One had a leg, another a collar-bone broken. Immense masses of ice fell thundering on her deck. This berg was a hundred feet high and a quarter of a mile long. Many of those fine ships which have been posted "Missing" at Lloyd's have no doubt, been sunk in collision with icebergs.

The City of Glasgow, for instance, a beautiful Clyde-built craft of 1,600 tons and the first of the Inman liners. She left England on March 1st, 1854, with 480 passengers aboard and was never heard of again. The Pacific sailed from Liverpool on September 23rd, 1856, with two hundred and fifty passengers and crew. She was fast and well found, but she was never seen or heard of after her departure. The City of Boston, the Colombo, the Erin, of the National Line—these are only a few of the Atlantic liners which vanished without a sign, victims either of ice or the treacherous derelict. Since a berg only shows one-eighth of its bulk above water, it is easy to understand what a fearful peril it is to navigate, especially as the atmosphere around it is almost invariably clouded by fog, through the coldness of the mass of ice.

to prettier teeth—you are welcome to it

A new-day method is bringing millions whiter, clearer, safer teeth. It is used by your friends, your neighbors. It is advised by dentists, urged by modern authorities. Glistening teeth seen everywhere now show the benefit it brings.

It combats the film
Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it. So much is left. It is also the basis of tartar. Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy or discolored. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. That is why so few escape tooth troubles, despite the daily brushing. They fail to end the film.

New methods found
Dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now careful people employ them nearly all the world over, largely by dental advice. A new-type tooth paste has been created, to comply with modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent. Those two film combatants are embodied in it for daily application.

Two other essentials
Two other effects are essential, as proved by modern research. The saliva contains two great tooth-protecting agents. One is a starch digestant which clings to teeth and gum them. Often they ferment and form acids. The alkalis are to neutralize mouth acids—the cause of tooth decay. Pepsodent stimulates those factors. It multiplies the starch digestant, multiplies the alkalis. Thus every use gives those natural powers a manifold effect.

Watch the film go
Note how clean the teeth feel after using Pepsodent. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. The after-effects are refreshing, and the mouth is left in alkaline condition.

These are facts you should know at once. Write us today for the 10-Day Tube. Cut out the coupon now.

Canadian Corps Strikes
Second Blow at Arras.

Fresh from Great Victory Before Amiens Corps Attacks on Aug. 26, 1918, as Preliminary to Smashing Hindenburg Line.

(Written for the Canadian Press.)
On August 26, 1918, the Canadian Corps, fighting alongside the Australians in front of Amiens, struck the first blow in the final offensive of the war. Tantalizing success was due largely to the surprise nature of the attack, but as the Corps fought its way east towards Roye, the enemy defence stiffened and the battleground over the old trenches of the Somme became more and more difficult. The attack perceptibly slowed up. Rather than see the bright weapons of the Canadian Corps dulled and blunted in that morass of old wire entanglement, swamp and tumbled in trench system, the Canadian Corps Commander proposed the Corps should be taken out of the line and thrown in elsewhere while still powerful in the offensive. To this the Allied Command agreed and it was decided that the Corps should attack again on its old fighting ground in front of Arras, on the line which the 2nd Canadian Division had held the previous spring and early summer. On Aug. 19-21 the through on Sept. 2nd turned his defence North and South and brought him face to face with a situation of real peril. It is the glory of the Canadian Corps that practically unaided it made the first breach of the Hindenburg Line. It was peculiarly a Canadian Corps show. This was not appreciated at the time, nor in official narrations since, where credit is given First Army, of which indeed for the purpose of this operation the Canadian Corps formed the right wing. New Volumes of the Encyclopedia Britannica, recently published, however, establish the truth of this contention. In the description of the Battle of Cambrai St. Quentin, of which this was the opening phase, it says as follows:—

WELL KNOWN REGIMENTS.
"The forces at the disposal of General Horne's First Army for these operations consisted of the I. and VIII.

Corps, to which the Canadian Corps were now added. The last named formation began to arrive in the Arras area on Aug. 22nd, and were put into action on the Right of Southern wing of the Army. Thus the front of Aug. 25, the eve of the offensive, was held as follows, from right to left: Canadian Corps (Carrle) (2nd Canadian, 3rd Canadian, and 51st Division in line, 1st Canadian Division in reserve; VIII. Corps (Hunter-Weston) (8th, and 20th Division in line, 24th Division in reserve); and I. Corps, (Holland) (55th and 16th Division in line, 15th Division in reserve). Of these forces, however, only those astride the Scarpe, i.e., the Canadian Corps, were to be engaged, the main axis of the attack being the line of the Arras-Cambrai road; the two remaining Corps were to stand fast, while making all endeavors to deceive the enemy and prevent him despatching reinforcements to other threatened points. The VIII and I. Corps therefore will not come again into this narrative." This is but a bare act of justice to the Canadian Corps. The Canadian Corps attacked south of the Scarpe east of Arras. On their left, north of the Scarpe, was the VIII. British Corps. During the week's fighting that followed, and indeed up until October when the Canadian Corps captured Cambrai, the VIII. Corps were unable to make appreciable progress and therefore as our penetration developed, an exposed flank was formed south of the Scarpe twenty miles deep, with the enemy in possession of the high ground to the north, including Oppy, Gaverelle and Greenland Hill, from which during the next six weeks they poured a galling flank fire on our troops; battery positions and supply trains and lorries working along the Arras-Cambrai road.

FOCH'S THIRD BLOW.
On Aug. 22nd, two Canadian officers moving north from Amiens paid a last visit to the Cathedral. Here they were joined by two Australian Officers, and together they admired that great Gothic temple. "So the Canadian Corps are going out to rest," one of the latter remarked. "It is always your luck. You go into a show for ten days or so, and then are pulled out for a rest, while we unfortunately from Down Under stay on fighting hard in the front line month in and month out." News of the offensive that broke on Aug. 26th must have come rather as a surprise to these Australian friends. The Battle of Arras was Foch's third blow in August 1918. First was at Amiens by the British Fourth Army. On Aug. 21st, the British Third Army attacked north of the Somme between Amiens and Albert in the direction of Bapaume. Thereafter the fighting gradually extended north and south until the enemy were dazed by hammer blows that fell from the sky. The Canadian Corps was again moved secretly and by the night. The enemy fully occupied by the Third Army and by the French in front of Roye, expected nothing else but an attack on the grand scale on their strongest sector. The attack was made at three o'clock in the morning, advantage being taken of moonlight to effect a surprise attack, with the 2nd Canadian Division, Major-General Sir Henry E. Burstall, on the right, and the 3rd Canadian Division, Major-General L. J. Lipsett on the left, with a total frontage of 6,000 yards. The infantry were supported by a magnificent barrage provided by 17

Brigades of Field and nine Brigades of Heavy Artillery, with the 5th Squadron, Royal Air Force, and the 3rd Brigade, Tank Corps, including about 45 tanks of the heavy Mark V. type.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS ENGAGED.
The attack developed successfully but the evening's defence was very different from that encountered in the run-away Amiens show. As the day wore on and the effect of the initial surprise was lost, the enemy contested every foot of ground, and inflicted heavy losses through his system of concrete machine gun posts and masses of wire. Nevertheless, objectives were captured, including the fortified villages of Wancourt and Guemappe, though it was not until evening that our 3rd Division established itself on Hindenburg Ridge. On our left by a very brilliant operation our 2nd Division captured the village of Monchy-le-Preux, which crowns a hill commanding the surrounding country. This hill had been carried by the gallant Newfoundland Regiment shortly after the Canadians stormed Vimy Ridge in April, 1917 but had been lost again in the enemy offensive of March, 1918. The attack was renewed the following morning by the same two Divisions, an advance of 4,000 yards being made along the Cambrai Road, and the Senese being crossed at Cherisy. This brought our men to the foot of the formidable Drocourt-Queant Switch. Renewed again the following day by the same Divisions, the men fighting desperately for every foot of ground. During the night of Aug. 28-29 the 3rd Canadian Division was relieved by the 4th British Division, temporarily under the Canadian Corps Commander, while on our right, the 4th Canadian Division, now arrived from the Somme, relieved our 2nd Division. The next four days were devoted to improving our line so as to afford suitable jumping-off ground for the great attack on the Drocourt-Queant Switch successfully carried out on Sept. 2. During all this period our Divisions including those temporarily relieved were under constant fire. Great demands were being made on Allied resources along the entire front, and for the first time our Infantry fought with a lack of adequate artillery support. Most of the tanks had been put out of action and the battle resolved itself into a ding-dong affair of attack and counter-attack, in which the enemy, with a greater concentration of Divisions, had all the advantage of his prepared positions. Our losses were heavy, the position seemed impregnable, but the Corps did not lose heart. The prize was great and on the 8th day of the battle it was definitely won, the enemy being driven back sullenly to east of Canal du Nord.

FAMILY EVICTED.—After being in for three years in the room of the Customs House, they had been given temporary shelter until they could find a home. A family named Walsh were evicted yesterday by order of the Board of Works. They were compelled to leave in the open last night.

downward trend of European nations and the effect upon the habits of the people involved. The cataclysm is well illustrated by the tale of two young Austrians, some years ago left by their father the sum of 20,000 kronen each. One was a thrifty, saving young fellow, and he added to his fortune until in 1919 he owned 60,000 kronen. The brother was a waster, a bon vivant, and invested his funds in a wine cellar, which he proceeded, aided by his friends, to drink dry. However, he kept the bottles, probably being so indifferent a business man that it did not occur to him that they had any value. Then came the drop in the kronen, until now the fellow who wasted his money on wine and kept the bottles, is far better off as regards purchasing power than is the brother who behaved himself and added to his store of Austrian currency. All of which reminds one of Mark Twain's story of the good little boy who ran into all sorts of hard luck and the bad little boy to whom nothing ever happened. — Saturday Night, Toronto.

How to Play Lawn Tennis.

FOREHAND and BACKHAND DRIVING.

By S. POWELL BLACKMORE

(Author of "Lawn Tennis Up-to-date" in Cassell's Magazine.)

Many suits are the same both for the forehand and backhand drives. In both remember the following points:

1. Keep your eye on the ball always.
2. Stand sideways to the net.
3. Full swing from far back to full extension of arm with racket point to net.
4. Transfer weight from back to front foot simultaneously with actual hit.
5. Never hurry the swing, therefore commence swing in plenty of time.
6. Don't press; speed of stroke comes from correct timing of the racket reinforced by body swing into the stroke.

Yet again, there are several features in the backhand stroke of the ground altogether different from the forehand work. Never attempt to play the backhand stroke without changing your grip. Thumb diagonal up the handle, that is the best of all backhand grips for general purposes. Keep the head of the racket above the waist and keep the elbow well into the side throughout the swing; this will ensure that the handle of the racket makes an angle with the forearm. In the forehand drive the handle of the racket and the forearm should at the moment of hitting make practically a continuous straight line.

In learning I strongly recommend shortening the grip one-half to an inch on the backhand by pushing the hand just clear of the leather button. Mr. F. Gordon Lowe, who has the best backhand drive of any Englishman, always does this. He agrees that this slightly foreshortened grip gives added control of the ball. At the same time in one respect I think he sacrifices speed of stroke. He does not believe in the full swing back of the racket. I do emphatically. Other things, such as correct body swing, proper stance, being equal, it cannot be too strongly insisted that speed of stroke is governed by the rate at which the player swings the racket on to the ball, therefore to acquire first-class hitting speed a full swing on to the ball must be acquired. In all other respects Lowe is an altogether admirable model. In the backhand ground stroke I recommend all closely studying the stroke execution of B. I. C. Norton. He has a perfect swing, and his footwork is, on his best days, faultless. Every ambitious player after studying the best available advice should supplement the ideas he has acquired by watching the best players. Here is a brief list to remember for the next Wimbledon or other opportunity of witnessing strokes.

Forehand Drives—Manuel Alonso, W. T. Tilden, W. Johnston, R. I. C. Norton, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, Randolph Lycett, F. T. Hunter, P. M. Davson.

Backhand Drive—Andre Gobert, W. T. Tilden, R. I. C. Norton, F. Gordon Lowe, A. R. F. Kingscote, P. M. Davson, Mlle. S. Lenglen.

Service—W. T. Tilden, Andre Gobert, R. Lycett, Mlle. S. Lenglen, F. T. Hunter, F. M. B. Fisher, and A. W. Asthalter for reverse American service.

Smashings—W. M. Johnson, A. Gobert, R. Lycett, M. Alonso, F. M. B. Fisher, Mlle. S. Lenglen.

Low Volleys—W. M. Johnson, W. T. Tilden, Mlle. S. Lenglen, R. Lycett, A. Gobert, M. Alonso, F. M. B. Fisher.

Among the emphatic don'ts I should warn the player against copying Norton's nervous service delivery; he is a sound model only in his ground strokes.

"Variety is the spice, essence and cardinal principle of tennis success." So says W. T. Tilden, the world's grass and hard court champion. I came across the quotation only the other day, and give it here because it confirms what I wrote in "Lawn Tennis Up-to-date" eighteen months ago. I have been severely criticised by the orthodox English school for urging the need for versatility. Many people will tell you that it is possible to have too many tennis strokes. English critics have said that of Tilden, Well, if he has too many, hitherto he has carried the handicap remarkably well.

It is an absurd fallacy. No one can know or play too many tennis strokes. The fundamental weakness of the English game is lack of variety. We have ridiculed the efficacy of spin, almost indeed, have regarded it as bad form. We have been satisfied that the plain drives were best, that cuts and chops spoiled a fellow's game.

Here, therefore, it is needful to emphasize that there are other ground shots except the drives already explained, and shots, too, of superlative winning value. For example, there is the "lifted" drive. This is invaluable on a slow turf court when the ball hangs and falls to bound to waist length. In making this drive the forward sweep of the racket, instead of being horizontal, is an upward swing. The racket starts forward from a point below and behind the right knee (when in the sideways position) and finishes above and to the right of the head. In place of the practically straight punch the blow is an upward glancing one, and the ball is struck just below its equator. A. H. Lowe is an excellent model for this stroke. To many this "lifted" drive comes more naturally than the horizontal swing; in these cases I say cultivate it for all you are worth. The spin on the ball makes it a most difficult one to volley; moreover, this drive can be made with tremendous power and yet the ball, because of the spin, will keep in court. Except by the very few like Nicolas Pietrangola, the Rumanian player, and Zengo Shimidzu, the Japanese, the lifted drive is not played on the backhand. This shot is a scoring one in a men's foursome.

Having acquired some degree of proficiency in the drives every keen player should cultivate the chop or cut stroke. This shot is of immense value, especially against the baseline driver. Don't listen to people who tell you it is bad form, or that it spoils the game. That is what the early English footballers at tennis tea-parties said of the adventurous explorers who discussed and exploited the smash. Nevertheless, we are so stupidly conservative, so fanatical, that despite W. T. Tilden's successes of recent years eight out of ten tournament players will still dogmatize about the uselessness of the chop stroke. Supposing it does spoil the game—the other fellow's game! Isn't that what every match player tries to do with his opponent?

The chop stroke is a downward glancing blow. It should be played from the sideways stance, and the ball should be hit just before it gets opposite the middle of the body. The racket travels from just above shoulder height to near the front knee, and the line of flight of the racket makes an angle of somewhere about 85 to 90 degrees with the ground. This ball can be hit very hard, and thus a tremendous amount of rotation can be put on the ball. The spin makes the ball skid along the ground on the bounce and keeps it low. It is a difficult ball to negotiate off the ground, especially on the backhand. Efficiently played the chop stroke will break up any orthodox driving game. Maybe that is why our experts have been so unanimous in discouraging the shot. Anyway, its acquisition is worth a little time and patience, for the chop will yield any player very high dividends. If you are opposed to a man who can make this stroke and you find you cannot handle it from the back of the court, then get up to the net after every return. You will, at any rate, have a more sporting chance of victory by volleying his chops.

know or play too many tennis strokes. The fundamental weakness of the English game is lack of variety. We have ridiculed the efficacy of spin, almost indeed, have regarded it as bad form. We have been satisfied that the plain drives were best, that cuts and chops spoiled a fellow's game.

Here, therefore, it is needful to emphasize that there are other ground shots except the drives already explained, and shots, too, of superlative winning value. For example, there is the "lifted" drive. This is invaluable on a slow turf court when the ball hangs and falls to bound to waist length. In making this drive the forward sweep of the racket, instead of being horizontal, is an upward swing. The racket starts forward from a point below and behind the right knee (when in the sideways position) and finishes above and to the right of the head. In place of the practically straight punch the blow is an upward glancing one, and the ball is struck just below its equator. A. H. Lowe is an excellent model for this stroke. To many this "lifted" drive comes more naturally than the horizontal swing; in these cases I say cultivate it for all you are worth. The spin on the ball makes it a most difficult one to volley; moreover, this drive can be made with tremendous power and yet the ball, because of the spin, will keep in court. Except by the very few like Nicolas Pietrangola, the Rumanian player, and Zengo Shimidzu, the Japanese, the lifted drive is not played on the backhand. This shot is a scoring one in a men's foursome.

Having acquired some degree of proficiency in the drives every keen player should cultivate the chop or cut stroke. This shot is of immense value, especially against the baseline driver. Don't listen to people who tell you it is bad form, or that it spoils the game. That is what the early English footballers at tennis tea-parties said of the adventurous explorers who discussed and exploited the smash. Nevertheless, we are so stupidly conservative, so fanatical, that despite W. T. Tilden's successes of recent years eight out of ten tournament players will still dogmatize about the uselessness of the chop stroke. Supposing it does spoil the game—the other fellow's game! Renounces Money.

WILL NEVER TOUCH ANOTHER PENNY.

BRIGHTON, Eng.—"Money is a curse and the root of all evil. I will never touch another penny so long as I live." This was the extraordinary resolution made by a Brighton man, who, of his own free will, has become penniless and is determined to live without money. He is Henry Mitchell, who until recently was a commercial traveller employed by a well-known firm, and was earning £600, or about $2,700 a year, and commencing. When Mitchell came to his decision he gave up his job, drew £200 commission due to him and gave it to his wife. He had £28 10s left. This he gave to the local poor, and with his last penny he bought a newspaper. Referring to his action, Mitchell, who is a middle-aged man, said: "I have come to the conclusion that money is the cause of all the unhappiness in the world. Three weeks ago I decided. I would never touch it again. In future I shall endeavor to lead the life of Christ on modern lines. I believe I possess gifts that the ordinary man does not, and as the result of my experience I shall be able to give advice to people with business or personal worries. In return for my services I shall be willing to accept only food, drink and lodging. All I ask for is bread and water."

When you go troutling, don't forget to take a bottle of STAFFORD'S MOSQUITO OIL; 20c. Bottle; Postage 3 cents extra.

Remember this, and it is of first-class importance: the full-length drive to the base line—against the volleyer who has reached a spot inside the service line—may frequently be a bad shot, simply because by intercepting the ball half-way he will have a nice volleying trajectory somewhere between the waist and the knees. This volley you want to catch at his feet, or to put the ball clear past him. Study the angles of the court and you will see that the passing stroke must frequently be a short ball, therefore a slow one. A similar principle applies in the forehanded game. The slow diagonal shot is the safe passing stroke, and if it does not actually win outright the ball will probably catch the opponent at his feet and is almost certain to put him in difficulties.

Dear Sir—
It is my duty to ask you please to publish the following testimonial re Dr. F. G. Kinsman's Heart Tablets in the local newspapers so others can read it for themselves, and oblige
Yours truly I am
(Signed) E. J. ROBERTS.
Dr. F. G. Kinsman's Heart Tablets are a wonderful medicine, and I wish all to know what they have done for me. Before I commenced taking them I could not lie on my left side at night; I had such a choking sensation in my throat that I could hardly breathe. I would have to sit up in bed at night and my heart would beat so much and so hard that I would think that my end had come. My left arm and side pained me. When I would walk any distance my heart would flutter terribly and I would have smothering spells. I have felt none of these symptoms since using Dr. Kinsman's Heart Tablets. Now I can lie on my left side with ease and can enjoy a good night's rest. I can walk for a long distance without being tired or exhausted.
