He announced a deficit of £1,029,000, which he said had resulted from an outlay of "£461,000 greater than the estimates, while the revenue had decreased £568,000. The differences, he declared, would have been neared if the late government had uot abandoned the Quetta railway. He thought it unfair and unjust to make a financial statement under such depressing ofrcumstances. The late government was to blame for the state of affairs. The article next criticizes America's "grand funeral boom," and says "it would have been more humane to have buried the Northern general with less ostentation." The Gazette then attacks one of its English clergymen, and asks, "Why should a dignitary of the English church use such language as Canon Farrar did on the occa-sion? It was as a man of war alone that he talked of Grant, who might have been treated in a better way than that by a christian church, and in a church more than any other associated with the great-ness of the English people. Canon Farrar treated with extraordinary forgetfulness lessons which every religious teacher should have drawn. He snifted battle afar off twenty years after it had ceased. Indeed, he was more like a soldier than a priest. One writer asys the black gown is the great distinguishing badge of the reformation. The black gown being worn by Jesuit and other Romanist preachers. Another says that to say Amen not Awmen is the great test of Protestantism. One wonders what the teaching has been in St. James' to have a congregation so full of absurd notions and so bitter about trifles which have lost all the little significence they once had. We notice that in writing about this church it is commonly called "St. James' cathedral." This name is given without any authority. St. James' ourch is not a cathedral." It has no more title to the dignity than any other church, and it would be well for the public and the ohurch people especially to know that this utterly fictitious hence is an usurped one.

Gifts of birth and of rank presently came, however, to count for eligibility as if they were gifts of the Spirit; and even kings sought for the relatives of kings a distinction which only by the attraction of mundane accidents of pomp and splendor could be considered as at all belonging to this world. For every cardinal was a potential pope; and every pope was a potential partisan or arbitrator in cases where sovereigns disputed with each other. In former times, indeed, kings had a right of presentation, and cardinals who had been created in accord-ance with such royal nominations were known as crown cardinals. The family pride and social pretensions of the popes themsplves tended to aggravate this abuse of selection; and the result was nepotism and other favoritism. Paul V., for instance, is described as having had a particular aim throughout the whole course of his popedom, 1605-21, to ennoble the Corte Romons, to impart a new and singular majesty into the sacred college, and to select such persons as were proper by their own grandeur to defend the henor of the church. To be Read Between the Lines-

The brief report which the cable gives us of Lord Salisbury's reply to the British ugar refiners will bear very careful readng; and it does appear as if there might be a good deal of reading in it between the ines. He tells the deputation plainly enough that nothing can be done to meet foreign war upon British manufactures, unless the country's commercial system be changed. Long ago the country deliberwill be content with nothing less. ately adopted free trade, and still adheres to it; and this is what exposes Britain to mmercial aggression by foreigners without any power to retaliate on her part. Or, as we may say-having tax due the government thereon gave abandoned protection, she is no longer able to protect herself. Between the lines the hint appears to be conveyed that if the sugar refining or other British interests feel themselves aggrieved by foreign bounties and foreign protection generally, their course in plain : they must lend a hand to restore to home industries the protection which they once enjoyed. Bat if ritish manufacturers refuse to do this, then the government can do nothing for them, and they must simply "grin and bear it." In other words, the government has not the power, and will not make the tions under it began about January 15. attempt-to remedy by executive action certain alleged evils, which can be re. five and one-half months, the amount of $14. nedied, if at all, only by the action of the whisky bonded for exportation under the egislature. As religious work is now carried on in all the churches, Mr. Beaty's own church is copied, it seems like taking a fight into far off space to argue that the pastor should not be paid at all. And yet it may be replied that, on one view of the matter, this extreme argument is but an exagge-rated or hyperbolical statement of a truth already acknowledged by many wise and good men— he over abundance of religious machinery, as we may call it—in the churches is far too much lost sight of amid the crushing and crowding of an elaborate church machinery. But not alone in Canada is there a distillers' question before the public. Over the border the same battle is now going on, but on a far larger scale. The facts are briefly these: During some years past the production of whicky in the United States has been immensely in 'excess of the de-mand, and the surplus remaining in bond has at last reached an enormous quantity. For a year or two past the distillers have been under joint agreement to restrict production to one-fourth capacity in each case, but stocks in hand still continue to the border the same battle is now going on, on the 3th day of April, 1384, Joseph F. Rainer dissolved partnership with Frank Sweetnam and John Hazelton, as plano manufacturers, and that said Joseph F. Rainer, with his son, will continue to manufacture the original cross-scale Planos, of which the said Joseph F. Rainer is the sole inventor. Since the above dissolution, Mr. Rainer, sr., has greatly improved the small Cross-scale Planoby adding one string more to each note throughout the middle, making three strings to each note instead of two, thus giving the Plano by adding one string three throughout the middle. There will be fifty-three notes from the troble down that will have three strings instead of twenty-four notes from the treble down as formerly. The undersigned will give to wholesale and retail customers the benefit of this improvement by letting them have these Planos for the same price as the ones formerly mäke with two strings. These Planos have now been before the pub-lio for 23 years, and have alwaysranked among the ways that we are weaker the same price as A. D. ciation of amateur carsmen, to Mr. Bos well's manly and indignant letter to the seemingly wanton affront offered to the Canadian association of amateur carsmen by the rejection of the entries of Messrs. Lsing, O'Connor and En-right for the coming regats on Oharles river. Mr. Boswell says: "If amateurs are to be confined entirely to university men, bank men, professional men, such as lawyers, students, etc., in your part of the world, I can assure you that is not my view. I cannot see why an honest mechanic cannot be as good an amateur carsman in every respect of the word as a collegian. word as a collegian. Your committee has struck a blew at rewing which I think will be hurtful, and I confess to a feeling of great disappointment. Three has been a want of courtesy on the part of your committee that to me is surprising. • • Without a word of notice, we hear that your committee had questioned the standing of some of our men, and had it not been for you, the president of the N.A.A.O., we nevershould have heard one word of any complaint of our men. Last year net a word was breathed into my ear of any question of atter having heard from you of what had taken place, made a thorough investigataken place, made a thorough investiga-tion of the conduct of these men, here to-day, without a single reason having been vouchsafed to us-three Canadian carsmen vouchsafed to us—three Canadian oarsmen —all of whom had been victors in your country—are disqualified by your com-mittee. I consider, Mr. President, that our Canadian oarsmen have been done a great injustice, and I now ask you, on behalf of the C. 'A. A. O., to be good enough to let me have the reasons for the disqualification of our men. * * I seems to me that your idea as to betting is that a man in a university orew might be allowed to make university crew might be allowed to make a wager and still remain an amateur, but Gleneig-the Nun, with Hayden & Co.'s a wager and still remain an amatieur, but not so a man who occupies a portion in a lower class of life, but who loves the pastime university man. My own opielon is, that not one of the three men now disqualified laved rowing less than your most enthusi-atic college man. Not one of them has been guilty of any improper conduct at any regatia, but because he has a little more muscle he is to be excluded." Mr. Bowell then asks that the decline is qualifying the gentlemen concerned by reversed and that the association furnish astisfactory reply, it is to be hoped that every amateur club and individual care
