Rising, I brushed my hair and looked at the clock. It was almost tea time, and I decided to go to Mrs. Paul Smith's. Polly expressed great sorrow at my departure. "Do stay, Aunt Amanda. The girls are going to have company to-night, and you and I can sit up here and have a good comfortable chat." Gathering my belongings I started for

"After all," she reasoned with herself, there can be no great hurry about paying Janet. She was not to go away until the end of the month, and that isn't here yet." The dress was bought, and in the interest of making it, and the tournament, the days passed by without an obtrusive thought of the white face and the cough for which change was needed. The tournament took place in a neighboring town, which was

Does our correspondent belong to that school which advocates a single tax and that on land at its original value? And, if so, would he tax these two men at the same amount? It would seem so, as he assures us that "to tax wealth is to tax labor, which we hold to be unjust." Or does he go much further in the direction of socialism and believe that there should be no individual ownership of fand or of wealth of any kind? Hamilton, Ontario, gives his views upon the question of prohibition and kindred subjects.

The liberal leader is favorable to temperance legislation and temperance work, but does not favor a national prohibitory law. To quote his own words he "thinks local option preferable to national prohibition." This is equivalent to saying that the Scott Act is preferable to a national prohibitory law, as in his opinion it answers the same purpose as a prohibitory law and produces good results. Neither does Mr. Laurier appear to have any sympathy with plebiscites, thinking them opposed to the spirit its down the late appear to have any sympathy with plebiscites, thinking them opposed to the spirit its down to the spirit in the liberature of the spirit is the proposed to the spirit its down the late Robert Spurr, at the advanced age of ninety-for or years. at the close of his lecture we were more fully convinced than when he began that his ideas are wild and visionary, his theory wholly unsuited to the age, and away beyond the sphere of practical politics. Portions of his address were simply appeals to the unthinking, bordering on what might be called claptrap, advocating an ideal state of affairs in which, to use his own words, there should be "no taxes at all and a pension for everybody."

The present invasion of the state of Delaware by the single taxers appears to us to be ludicrous in the extreme. The state is principally agricultural. Some years ago its legislature abolished all land taxes and now raises its entire state revenue by taxing railroads and liquor saloons. The single taxers are now asking the farmers of Delaware to do away with this system and tax land instead. Rum and railroads are to be free and land only taxed,—and there are people outside of lunatic asylums who expect farmers to support such a policy.

Perhaps we do not quite understand our correspondent, but it seems to us that some of his arguments if followed to their legitimate conclusion would lead to rather startling results. For instance, he says: "To tax wealth is to tax labor, which we hold is unjust," etc. Suppose, for instance, one man has a farme market value of which is MARGARET DEWOLFE MARSHALL.

also in Cuban waters. Nevertheless, the insurrection is still being carried on with vigor, and so far with a considerable degree of success. The rebels have recently organized a provisional government, of the republican form, which they are asking other governments to formally recognize.

It is difficult at present to predict how the affair will terminate. Even if Spain succeeds in crushing out the insurrection she ought not to expect to continue for all time to govern Cuba as she has been doing. It is contrary to the spirit of the age to tax a people heavily and allow them no voice in the spending of it, or to deny to an intelligent people every vestige of self-government. Spain, it appears, has yet to learn the lesson which Great Britain did at the time of the American revolution.

Weekly Review of Business in Canada. Weekly Review of Business in Canada.

New York, Sept. 6.—Bradstreets to-morrow will say: There were 184 business failures in the United States reported this week, against 207 in the like week a year ago. Fall trade at Toronto has opened quite satisfactory, the volume of orders placed, particularly on millinery, being ahead of last year. Crops in the province of Quebec are fairly good. Country merchants have asked for a renewal rather more frequently than expected. Montreal reports general trade somewhat behind expectancy. Nova Scotia country merchants are buying very conservatively. In New Brunswick crop prospects are fair. There are 33 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, against 29 in the like week a year ago. Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and Halifax amount to $16,785,000 this week, against $14,876,000 in the like week a year ago.

Baptists on Prohibition. In the Baptist Maritime convention, in St. John, the committee on temperance submitted a report in which occurs this sentence: "Your committee are convinced that no Christians can consistently support a candidate for the Dominion parliament who is not pledged to work and vote for the prohibition of the traffic in strong drink, irrespective of the attitude of his party, and regardless of the consequences to bis party of that vote."

On motion to adopt this report, the following amendment was moved and carried by a large majority:—

Resolved—That this convention is of the opinion that Christian citizens should seek to bring out and elect worthy temperance men who can be depended on to advance and support prohibition.

Tidings From Captain Slocum

WHO IS SAILING ROUND THE WORLD IN THE Mr. B. R. Ruggles, of Westport, received a letter last week from Capt. Slocum who is making a trip around the world in his forty foot sloop Spray and who was, at the time of writing, Aug. 10, at Gibraltar. As the Captain has a large number of friends in the county we take pleasure in publishing some extracts from the letter which Mr. Ruggles has kindly handed to us and which will doubtless prove of interest to our readers.

"The Spray discovered Spain Aug. 2nd, 28 days sail from Cape Sable, having called at Fazal to which port she was 18 days from Cape Sable.

"John Bull is doing the handsome thing by the Spray. The old craft is now the guest of Admiral ships and among guns of great calibre! The Senior officer of the port having taken charge of the sloop brought her into the arsenal. Gun-boats even made room for her!

"Some one warned me that I would lose my voice, too. I was told that I had a musical voice and that it would be a pity to lose that? Now, few of my friends ever heard me sing, but it occurred to me that I might by the aid of song keep my voice intact, I was surprised at my success. I believe that my voice is even improved. "Home Sweet Home," "Annie Laurie" and "God Save the Queen" went rolling free over the ocean. Turties and sea lions poked their heads up to catch the airs. Stanley Vidito on Deck. HE LEADS A SOMERVILLE POLICEMAN IN Boston Globe, Aug. 24.

Boston Glode, Aug. 24.

Officer Reick of the Somerville police department walked into the Somerville police station, this morning, having handcuffed to his person, Stanley Vidito, whom he arrested in Rockland, Me., last night, after an expendingly availing chase.

in Rockland, Me., last night, after an exceedingly exciting chase.
Vidito was arraigned in the Somerville court, Aug. 9, charged with the larceny of a bicycle. The case was continued until Aug. 13, Vidito failed to answer, and his default was recorded. His bondsmen, Messra. Bleigh and McRae, immediately conferred upon Officer Reick the power of attorney and he started after Vidito.

He received word that Vidito was in hiding in a house in the suburbs of Portland, Me. When he arrived in front of the house in company with a sheriff of the county, Vidito was given the cue that he was wanted by his host. He quietly dropped out of a rear window.

by his host. He quietly dropped out of a rear window.

Officer Reick, however, suspected the move, and appeared at the rear side of the building just in time to see the disappearing form of Vidito. A chase was immediately started. Vidito plunged across fields, into woods, and at last he came to the brink of a river. Without any hesitation he dove into it and swam beneath a raft, and finally reached the opposite shore.

Officer Reick jumped into a boat close at hand, and arrived at the opposite shore almost as soon as did Vidito. The man continued his flight, and reached Rockland, before he was captured, after a run of over four miles.

In court this morning, he was again arraigned, and the case was continued. Bail was fixed at the sum of $300, but no one appeared this time to furnish the required sum. [The Stanley Vidito above referred to is well known here, being one of the witnesses in the cases of The Queen vs. Miller and Parker, and married the principal in the affair, Grace Fegan.]

A Big Storm Coming. A Big Storm Coming.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Prof. E. Stone Wiggins, referring to his prediction of a great storm in September, 1883, has the following prediction of a great storm during this month:

'On looking over my calculations of this storm made in September, 1882, I find reference to a sister storm on September 21st, 1895, twelve years afterwards. On the 18th of the present month the moon will pass over the sun's disk, a few degrees west of San Francisco, causing a solar eclipse. Mars and Venus will both be in conjunction with the moon on that day. A great storm, therefore, will sweep the shores of all the continents from the equator to the poles as early as the 17th, but on the east coast of North America will reach its climax with high tides by the will reach its climax with high tides by the afternoon of Saturday, 21st inst. FOSS Cures Weak Stomach

Rev. G. Osborne Troop, who has been spending a long vacation in the Old Country, returned to Montreal, by steamer Vancouver, in spirit, and declares that his trip has done him a great deal of good in more ways than one. It was the first time that he had ever visited the Old World, and as he arrived shortly before the general elections he saw much of the national side of Englishmen which otherwise he might not have. The general opinion among churchmen is that they have much to be thankful for in the defeat of the liberal government, which is universally regarded as a bad set back to the friends of disestablishment and disendowment.

Politics, however, are not much in Mr. Troop's line, and he had more pleasure in attending the mass meeting which was held in Exeter Hall upon the receipt of the news of the massacre in China. There was no talk of reprisals or revenge, but the carnest outpouring of spirituality which marked the whole proceedings, and the unanimous action of the dissenters who joined with the members of the Church Missionary Society in prayer for the work in the future.

High church and low church are both terms to the carnest pastor of St. Martin's, and he could not say whether one or the other was growing, but incidentally he mentioned that he was surprised to learn that in London alone two hundred of the ministers in charge of Church of England places of worship administer Holy Communion at the evening service.

"I do not mention that because I am as "I do not mention that because I am an advocate of the practice," he said, "but merely because I was surprised to find that there were so many churches in London which are so distinctly evangelical as to allow the innovation."

The Archbishop of Canterbury is a modest prince of the church in the estimation of Mr. Troop, and well adapted to draw the various sections of the church into closer communion and create common interests.—Star.

A Woman's Heroism.

A gentleman who has travelled all over world, says that the coolest act of heroism he ever witnessed was performed by a woman. He was driving on a hot summer tra cost than that required for cultivating day up a road cut from the side of a moun- the crop than may be grown during the se tain. On one side of him was a wall of rock; on the other side a precipice falling off farmers in compelling them to kill weeds as to a valley, which was perhaps half a mile wide. Across the valley another road it has in providing grain and fodder, and if wide. wound up another mountain, and on it, that are drilled or broadcast, and which ca toiling upward, he saw another team with a not be cultivated—such as wheat, rye, bar solitary occupant—a woman. Such moun- ley and oats—there would arrive a time when tain paths are not only steep, but are rarely wide enough for two teams to pass, ex-

The two teams were crawling slowly upbe cultivated, and in so doing there is a savward. In the peculiar clearness of the atmosphere and the utter stillness of a California canon, both sight and sound carry however, is too limited, as the land is thus

All at once the gentleman's ear was struck by a strange noise falling upon the quiet— quick and sharp. He listened; it came from across the canon; and turning, he saw to his horror, tearing down the steep ascent at full gallop, a pair of powerful horses attached to a heavy wagon, such as the Mexicans use Fighting Consumption.

Consumption or tuberculosis has been the subject of early and more vigorous efforts to check its transmission into Prussia than else where, as is natural, considering that Dr. that while from 1875 to 1887, before his discovery, the deaths from tubercle or consumption, were 31 in 10,000; since 1887 there has been a gradual decrease to 25 in 10,000. Agricultural.

The Rotation of Crops. Rotating the farm with different crop serves not only to prevent loss of fertility

made to produce grain of some kind ever year, which is detrimental as depriving it of certain plant foods, and leaving an excess, comparatively, of that which cannot be uti lized by grain crops.

GREATER DIVERSITY OF CROPS. One cause of weeds flourishing on some soils is that they thrive on plant-foods left over by the grain crops, a condition which renders the soil impoverished for other grain crops, yet very fertile for weeds, because the weeds are able to get a good start, make rapid growth, secure abundant moisture below the surface, and deprive the land of that which was not utilized by the crops, the results being that the soil is still further impoverished. This may be prevented by growing root-crops after corn to be followed by clover or some grass crop. No two crops of the same kind should be grown on the land in succession and a crop that is sowed or drilled should be followed by a planted crop the next year to keep the soil clean. Wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, corn and clover, followed by wheat again, is a rotation practiced by many progressive farmers, but turnips, carrots, beets, cabbage, millet and peas or beans are added to the list whenever it can be done with advantage. ROTATION ADDS FERTILITY.

Such crops as clover or peas, when turned under, add nitrogen to the soil, while millet and Hungarian grass kill out weeds, even without cultivation. The soil can be made very fertile by the use of artificial fertilizers, if a rotation of crops is followed, because the clover lessens the cost of nitrogen, but there was clear as before, the silence unbroken, will be a loss of the fertilizer used unless appropriate crops are grown for converting the salable, and to keep the soil "balanced" in brain. -A very cheap and warm temporary shell ter for stock may be made by setting posts firmly in the ground and covering with a roof of poles or long rails. Over this lay covering of straw or course hay. Cover this with a few poles or boards to hold the straw in position. Set other posts two feet out ward from the first ones. Wire a few poles to each set, filling in the spaces with straw firmly crowded into position. By having a door at one side the result will be as warm a Prussian prisons and insane asylums show a in a barn basement. For shedding rain pro perly, make one side three or four feet higher than the other, or make it level, putting a The death rate from this cause among religional load of straw on top in the form of a pyramid to shed the rain. While this and other forms of temporary shelter are cheap and require no direct outlay for material, yet rather the follow up their construction year after year a permanent structure of wood should be erected. This should be built in a substantial manner, making the foundations solid, and nailing each piece firmly in position. The roof should be not less than a quarter pitch, and, if possible, obtain all boards a year in advance that they may become properly seasoned. If convenient plane the surface of the boards to be exposed to the weather, and by giving them a coat of paint the general and by giving them a coat of paint the general appearance of the premises is improved and the durability prolonged. Not infrequently a farmer who has a surplus of grain or coarse fodder can gain more money in feeding it on the farm than in selling it, thus needing additional room which is readily provided by temporary shelter.

PAGE WOVEN WIRE FENCE Has the Highest Award

Is the unequalified approval of every customer. Our fence has won at every Fair or Exposition where entered. But what does a practical farmer care for that! The fighting qualities of a soldier are proven on the field of battle, not on dress parade.

Don't fail to keep it before the people that ours is the only perfectly self-regulating fence of fered. Don't loose sight of the great saving in posts, as with some other fences the posts alone costs as much as our fence complete.

I believe we have the best fence for the money on earth. I base my belief on the fact that one string of fence sells lots more. Fage fence has proved itself by far the best for farmers' use, and we know from the orders already received that our business will boom with that of the farmers.

The Household.

Children's Bed-Time Hour.

Let your child always go to sleep with a glad thought in its heart and a smile on its face. The next morning, as it springs from its bed, the glad thought will burst out in songs, and the smiles in shouts of laughter. If a wrong has to be reproved, let the child be assured of forgiveness, and let the mother be assured that forgiveness is accepted be-fore the eyes shall close. Let the child fall asleep loving all and assured of the love of all. Then, after the little prayer has been said, the child, at peace with all on earth, and with the smile of heaven's love on its face, will drop away into peaceful slumber white and smooth as a freshly washed and ironed piece of snow-white linen.

It is always a solemn thing to fall asleep. We can never know where the waking mand us. Any night, the rosy child or the healthful mother may sleep into the sleep of death. Then always let the good-night kiss be accompanied with a word of peace; a word of love and sweet tranquility. It is a piece of downright cruelty, one of the crimes which law cannot reach, for a thoughtless and fretful mother to scold her children away rom her presence at night, and to drive them to bed with sharp and angry words. Of all the sad sounds ever heard in this sorrowful world of ours, the saddest is the suppressed sob of a little child, the smothered cry of a ounded heart, coming from beneath the bed clothes, as it weeps itself to sleep because of a mother's unkindness. The mother may be work-worn and weary, and the children may be tired and cross, but let no mother ever so far forget herself as to lead her children to forget that she is their mother. Let her remember that not only her words, but the tones in which they are spoken, will, at that most solemn moment, make the deepest and most lasting in her mouth at the table I'll slap $2 on the they may determine their weal or woe for
