INTERESTED IN THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION

Ambrose Kent, One of the Principals in Establishing Braverburn Sanatorium, Visiting Victoria.

Ambrose Kent, of Toronto, and Mrs. Kent, are at the Dominion hotel. They are on a pleasure trip to the west, and are visiting the various points of interest for a few days. Mr. Kent is the proprietor of one of the largest jewellery businesses in Canada, and his house is known all over the Dominion.

The patients are obliged to spend at least one hour daily in the open air. In the winter time to obtain this condition a tent was tried, but this was found unsatisfactory. Last year a better arrangement was arrived at when by putting roof upon posts and making the sides of canvas open air conditions were obtained.

...The promoters of the sanatorium have in contemplation a further development by the erection of a large two-story building of a new class of disease afflicted. The new scheme contemplates the establishment near Toronto of another institution of this kind. The necessary land has been secured consisting of about twenty acres at the head of Bathurst street.

THE DEFENDANT TELLS HIS STORY

PROSECUTION CLOSED THEIR CASE TO-DAY

More Details About the Fracas on Elizabeth Street Last Sunday Morning.

Webster at any time—he was trying to hold him until the arrival of the constable. Cross-examined by Mr. Moresby, she denied having talked with her husband about this case either last night or in the court passage yesterday afternoon. She didn't remember her husband saying to Mrs. Pizarro: "Go to say that and stand by it"—he didn't say it. Mr. Moresby pressed the witness for an answer as to the exact position of the two before they grappled, using the photographs. She stated, she said, by the big gate inside the yard, and they rolled close to the rose bushes. The plank was in the yard, lying alongside the house lengthwise. She couldn't say where her husband grabbed Mr. Webster.

Question: "Mrs. Curran, how is it you are so clear about Mr. and Mrs. Webster and you can't tell what your husband did? Answer: "He grabbed him by the shoulders." Question: "You're not trying to keep anything back, are you?" Answer: "No, sir." Continuing, she said she heard her husband say: "I've got my man, and I'll hold him until the constable comes." Witness endeavored to pull Mrs. Webster's hands from her husband's mouth. She didn't see her husband biting Mr. Webster on the hands. During the course of her evidence Mrs. Curran frequently complained of extreme nervousness, as a result of last night's fracas. She said she felt helpless, to get through the cross-examination. This closed the case for the prosecution, and Mr. Moresby opened that for the defence. He asked the witness to state strongly to Mr. Curran's annoying conduct in the court yesterday. Mr. Higgins at once stood up for his client, and observed that doubtless his learned friend made up his mind to get getting worsted at repartee by Mr. Curran.

Mr. Moresby: "Do you really think so?" Continuing, Mr. Moresby briefly outlined his case. The trouble arose over a plank which had been left in front of Mrs. Hastings's house by corporation employees. Mr. Webster's daughter having remarked on the dirtiness of the street on Sunday morning, he went out and laid it across the muddy part in front of his house. Curran threw it across the road, and Mr. Webster replaced it. Curran then got it and was engaged in his own yard when Mr. Webster came out of his house and jumped on the end of it, causing Curran to drop it. Curran then sprang at Webster, threw him down, and tried to choke him. Mrs. Webster came to her husband's assistance. It was false that she inflicted the wounds on Curran's face. Those scratches, Mr. Moresby said, where the rose bushes in which they struggled, and Mrs. Webster struck him with a stick, but Mr. Webster didn't hit Curran with a rock afterwards, and that Curran again attempted to strangle his client. Mr. Webster was not guilty of assault. Mr. Curran's daughter was very muddy. (Witness indicated on the photograph where he laid the plank.) He then returned to the house, and being told by his daughter that Curran had removed the plank, he went out and found it lying where it formerly was. He at once replaced it and returned to the house, and about five minutes afterwards Curran said to Mrs. Webster: "Come dragging the plank away. Witness ran off by the time Mr. Curran reached the gate. There was three feet of the plank still on the street, and witness called it toward his own yard when Mr. Webster was lifting it up to pull it out, and Curran rushed at him. They had a scuffle, and Curran pulled witness in his yard, and shouted "that he had got his man now where he wanted him." They scuffled and worked among the rose bushes. Curran got witness down, and held him, grasping him by the throat, and attempting to choke him. Curran told his wife to telephone for a policeman, and when she returned, Curran had witness's thumb in his mouth, and was chewing it.

Cross-examined, she said her husband did not strike Curran before he touched the plank. The statement that he did so was a lie. When Webster stooped to pick up the plank Curran was around the side of the house. Webster asked her to pull Curran's tongue out. A week ago Sunday Curran had insulted her. Cross-examined she said her husband did not call her. He was shouting and punching Curran in the face. She did not put her hand in Curran's mouth in attempting to get him off her husband. Her husband was getting black in the face from choking. Curran might have scratched his face on the rose bushes. "You're nothing but a cannibal!" she said all she said to Curran. She said it on the street. It being 5 o'clock an adjournment was asked until this morning. The Webster-Curran case was resumed in the police court this morning. Public interest is beginning to flag as the attendance was not as large as on previous days. The proceedings commenced about 10 o'clock, and up to 2 o'clock the hearing was still in progress. It is expected that the defence will be finished this afternoon, when counsel will deliver their addresses, and the case will probably be concluded. But the end is not yet by any means. Several charges, four it is said, have been levelled against Curran, and as these will be stubbornly contested, the court will be very busy ventilating them for a fortnight. This morning three witnesses were examined. They were Mrs. Campbell, Langdon James, who came to Mr. Webster's assistance, and Mrs. James. The first witness had a number of passages-at-arms with Mr. Higgins during his cross-examination. She objected vigorously to him putting the same question twice, as if to insinuate that "she wasn't telling the truth." With considerable emphasis she informed counsel that "every word of her evidence was the truth." All the defence witnesses told stories generally bearing out that told by the defendant.

Display of Fruit Highly Commended. Annual Exhibition Opened Yesterday. Covichan Fair a Great Success—Judge Campbell Impressed With Show of Apples. The annual exhibition which opened at Duncans yesterday and is being continued to-day under the auspices of the Covichan Agricultural and Horticultural Association added another success to the long list standing to the credit of that society. This year's fair taken all round exceeds any previously held in that district. There are, perhaps, not so many entries of produce as in former years, but the really splendid display of fruit, especially apples. The farmers are evidently devoting more time and attention to the latter, hence the large and extremely creditable display in this line. The stock exhibited, however, would do credit to any show. It is not the intention of Duncans to make this exhibition the Victoria fair this year, but a number of individual fruit growers and stock breeders have signified their intention of competing in these classes. Barkley and Bonnell's entries will be particularly interesting to those interested in breeding, and it is learned that both these gentlemen intend entering largely, breeders of Saanich and other outlying districts, who also intend competing by bringing their own men opponents, while if the display of fruit is anything to go by, competitors with Covichan exhibitors will have to look to their laurels. The hall presents an exceedingly pleasing appearance. Stands along each wall and up the centre of the room are covered with splendid specimens of vegetables, fruits, etc., the whole being set off by the green and white bunting. Undoubtedly the feature of the fair this year are the inside exhibits consisting principally of roots, vegetables, fruits, flowers and plants. The display is of a high order, and the largest and best display in the district. The roots and vegetables ranking next. The display made by the ladies in home-made preserves of different varieties, notably cherries, peaches, and apples, is of excellent quality, and it is good to see the ladies are so well complimented on their skill. The interest the fair sex take in the show was also shown by the ladies who had their own exhibits. There were all varieties from plain needlework to silk embroidery. The knitting and crochet work was also especially good. Alex. Campbell undertook the tedious task of judging fruit and vegetables in the absence of Mr. Palmer, who is up country. Mr. Campbell has done the work for two seasons, and is, therefore, qualified to undertake the task. The judging made by Covichan farmers in fruit growing. He says that the exhibit is better than he has ever yet seen, the fruit being very few blemishes compared to other years, and being all colored and clean. In judging collections he pointed out that the fruit should be as symmetrical in shape as possible, and of uniform size. He also pointed out the slightest blemish, and a better chance of winning, if they possessed a nice color. Among the varieties of apples which he especially commended were the Golden Russet, the Golden Wonder, Road Island Greening, Blenheim Orange and Wealthy. There is also a big display of Gravensteins. Mr. Campbell spoke highly of grapes and peaches grown in the Covichan district. Referring to these fruits he said: "I've seen grapes and peaches grown in this district in the open air that are as good as those as any you could get grown under glass in England." The exhibit of pears was also large, and creditable, while a variety of crabapple was an exhibition that was greatly admired by the judges. The display was also very good in the open air, being especially creditable. Vegetable marrow and Hubbard squash were fairly well represented, while the roots, comprising among other varieties carrots, parsnips, shallots, onions and potatoes were all good. Speaking in reference to fruit, Mr. Campbell said he was particularly impressed with the color and quality of the Golden Russet apples and other varieties. He pointed out that this year the sun had been much obscured by smoke, rendering this peculiarly gratifying in the Covichan district. The results of the judging were as follows: FIELD PRODUCE. Best bushel of spring wheat—1, J. McPherson. Best bushel of barley—1, W. Bazett. Best bushel of oats—1, W. C. Duncan; 2, Mr. Elkington. Best bushel of field peas—1, Mr. Brown; 2, Mr. Elkington. Wilson. Best six Early Rose potatoes—1, J. McPherson; 2, W. C. Duncan. Best six any other kind, early potatoes—1, P. Flett; 2, J. McPherson.

Entries to Close on Monday Next. The Managing Board in Session Last Night. Sports Committee Reported Their Programme—Cut Out Appropriation for Children's Sports. Every indication points to an exhibition this year that will equal if not exceed the expectations of the most optimistic. All the elements of success are positively assured, with the exception, perhaps, of public patronage, and, given the necessary inducements, this most important essential should be generously extended. The entry list is exceptionally large already. If they continue to flow in, the magnitude of the display will be a distinctive feature of the exhibition. The outlook for the stock exhibit is especially promising. New exhibitors will be represented quite extensively, showing that last year's fair was exceedingly successful in arousing the interest of farmers and exhibitors of vegetables grown from Messrs. Sutton & Sons' seeds; the collection to be limited to 12 varieties—1, A. R. Wilson. FRUITS. Best collection of fruit—1, J. H. Hadwin; 2, J. H. Hadwin. Best winter apples, 5 kinds, 5 of each variety named—1, G. T. Corfield; 2, F. H. M. Dougal; 3, H. H. Bousall. Best autumn apples, 5 kinds, 5 of each variety named—1, H. Bousall; 2, G. H. Hadwin. She Has Repented. Mrs. Mary Waggoner Apparently Sorry She Eloped With Merrill. "Mrs. Mary Waggoner, the Chehalis woman who left her husband and child for Ben Merrill, a brother of the convict who escaped from Salween and was afterwards murdered by Harry Tracy, his companion in crime, has already bitterly repented of her act," says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. "While Detective Lane has not yet succeeded in finding the woman and Merrill, he has located the lodging house where they spent three days, and in conversation with the landlord and occupants of the place has learned that Mrs. Waggoner was continually in tears while there. "The husband of Mrs. Waggoner came to Seattle several days ago and requested Chief of Police Sullivan to find his wife. He said he was willing to forgive her if she would return to her home and child for the little child she had deserted, who was continually crying for her. Detective Lane was detailed on the affair, and discovered that one day had been spent by Mrs. Waggoner at a lodging house on Pike street. "All trace of them was lost until last Tuesday, when the detective learned that from Pike street the two had gone to the Chicago lodging house, 908 First avenue south. They registered under assumed names, but positive evidence was secured that they were the eloping pair. "I learned that Mrs. Merrill was in tears almost all the time she was at the Chicago house," said Detective Lane. "She and Merrill remained there three days, September 13th and 14th, and Mrs. Waggoner told one of the women who lives there that she missed her children very much, and intended to return to them. Her actions showed bitterly repented the step she had taken. "H. D. Waggoner, the deserted husband, has written to the local police to send a look out for the couple, and offers a liberal reward for information of the whereabouts of his wife. SAANICH SHOW. The Heavy Rain This Morning Greatly Interfered With The Annual Exhibition. The thirty-fifth annual fall exhibition of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society opened at Saanichton this morning under most unfavorable conditions. The heavy downpour of rain prevented the farmers from bringing stock, poultry or produce to the show grounds until late in the day, and, as a result, judging of the exhibits did not commence until late in the afternoon. The number of those on display this afternoon are not so numerous as they have been in other years, but what there are present are of a very fine and thoroughly indicative of the resourcefulness of the surrounding country—a district that is capable of producing the best in either the fruit or vegetable line. The exhibits of the district have also on exhibition some very excellent looking cocker, preserves, needle and other fancy work which, when shown elsewhere in the province, will undoubtedly be pretty hard to beat. But the feature of the whole exhibition this year will, it is expected, be the stock, which, judging by the improvements made along this line throughout the district during the past year, the conditions for the exhibition are most favorable. The reduction of creameries and thoroughbred stock, is looked to be the best on record. All will be on the grounds to-morrow when, during the morning, the prizes will be awarded. The conditions of the horse racing and other amusements for the entertainment of the visitors, concluding in the evening with the customary ball given in the hall. A CROWDED SCHOOL. Sixty Children Being Accommodated Where There Should Be Only Forty. The trustees of the little school in Esquimalt are in difficulty. They find it impossible at present to provide proper accommodation for all the children in the district, and the promises of the government for a new building appear to be no nearer being fulfilled now than they were a year ago. The conditions as they exist leave an attendance at the little school in the village at something like 60, while according to the statement of a trustee to a Times representative yesterday, there is only accommodation for 40 children. The crowded condition of the school, he remarked, was shameful. There were in all 180 children in the district, who were divided between the Victoria West school and the school at Craigflower road. All these children, he explained, should find accommodation in one building, and they would be attending the school if the government lived up to its pledges. A plot of ground on Lampon street had been secured and paid for by the trustees long ago, and a building was to have been erected costing $7,500. Now the wet season is coming on the trustee thinks that the school will not be built this year. It was most unfortunate that the building, and to have a stone foundation, a feature about its construction that will be greatly interfered with by bad weather. Plans, the trustee stated, had been prepared, but have been rejected for a third time, although for what reason he is unable to explain. Vienna, Sept. 27.—At a meeting of the wire nail manufacturers here yesterday it developed that eighty per cent. of the members favored the formation of a combine. It is anticipated, therefore, that a combine will be shortly formed in spite of the opposition of the minority. THE FIGHT FOR THE YUKON SEAT

Sketches of the Careers of James Hamilton Ross and Joseph Clarke, the Leading Candidates.

The career of Mr. J. H. Ross, commissioner of the Yukon, is aptly described by the paradox: An uneventful life full of events. In other words he is and always has been a man of activity.

The name by which in the Northwest Territories he is even yet most widely known is "Jim," a friendly contraction of James Hamilton Ross. He was born in London, Ont., May 12th, 1856, son of John Edgar Ross, a grammar school teacher, and with his father and a brother came first to Lake Winnipeg, where they engaged in the fur trade.

He was educated at the Grammar school there, and with his father and a brother came first to Lake Winnipeg, where they engaged in the fur trade.

The first thing the council did with Mr. Ross when he had taken his seat was to make him one of a select committee to consider a petition from Mr. H. J. ... and Mr. J. H. Ross, two Regiments, who wanted permission to brew and sell beer in the Northwest Territories.

The calm stream that was marking the progress of the new country has been interrupted by a number of disasters that experience shows to be inseparable from the early history of all communities.

The thread of this history now returns to the work of the Northwest council. The elected members were chosen for two years only, but we find Mr. Ross again in his place, re-elected for Moose Jaw.

per capita was given the provinces, as well as additional sums as compensation for the public lands that were being sold by the Dominion government.

Good pioneer business that for a maiden session, and the next was like unto it. A new member joined the council in the person of Mr. J. G. Turriff, the present commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

Before the council again met an event happened to Mr. Ross of the greatest tributes but truthfully described as the most important event in any man's career.

Mr. Ross was a successful pioneer, had become a foremost citizen of the Northwest Territories, and had taken his legitimate position in the front rank of legislators.

for stout demands for urgent reforms. The reply made a vigorous demand for parliamentary representation, which the recent census warranted; the C. P. R.'s exemption from taxation was disparaged; there was a sly hint that the rebellion might have been avoided.

Another important event in Mr. Ross's career took place before the Northwest council again met. The Dominion government had acceded to the demand of the council so strongly urged by Oliver and Ross for parliamentary representation of the Territories.

session. Mr. Ross continued to represent Moose Jaw. Even the great measure of autonomy granted did not work to the satisfaction of the newly constituted assembly. It was felt that the Lieutenant-Governor did not allow his advisory council that control of financial matters which it was thought they should have.

The Battle For Responsible Government. A crisis had been reached and the battle for responsible government went on with considerable vigor.

myself and to my constituents, I must place myself in such a position as to be able by voice and vote to advocate those principles and protect the interests of those who elected me to this House.

Troublesome Times in the Legislature. A new speaker was then proposed, but the clerk declared no election had been held. The members dispersed and next day the assembly was prorogued by proclamation.

The full significance of this action on the part of Mr. Ross will never be forgotten. It at once drew to him the attention and confidence of the people as showing him to be a man who did not allow his private interests to interfere with his public duties.

corner stone is pure and honorable Liberalism. The conduct of public affairs in Dawson City shows that Mr. Ross knew in the Northwest. Indeed he is repeating the words there that he achieved here. He trained the Territory and the swaddling clothes period and he is one worthy of a government whose in good stead in the far north. and all will wish him a pleasurable and many.

Mr. Ross is still in the recovery from his previous illness. From 1882, when he struck Moose Jaw, he has been working for the public, he has done it and the hope may long be seen in the future, which, as Mr. Ross is "always on the side ways protecting public interests and advancing public interests."—Wm. Yukon territory is beginning to warm up to the excitement of the first campaign in the territory for the election of a member to the parliament of Canada.

The pacification of South Africa, and the establishment of a direct line of steamers, has naturally caused the Canadian manufacturers and shippers to examine the conditions which surround the new field of trade and commerce.

At the very moment when the song of peace thanksgiving was being sung in Pretoria, the publication branch of the agricultural department was issuing an article manifesting the value of Great Britain's newly-acquired subjects.

The Canadian department of agriculture has received many inquiries as to what South Africa requires and how it may best acquire it.

In the first place, South Africa requires everything that Canada has to offer, and it requires it in two grades—of that country which will be supplied in open competition at market price, and the best that can be supplied irrespective of price.

Naturally, the first must receive primary consideration, especially when the fact is recalled that in the year that was proclaimed the South African market turnover to the United States of America was $1,000,000,000.

Business cannot be done in South Africa by proxy any more than it can in India, Ceylon, etc., etc., unless the business methods of any firm before they will do business with them.

The United States, New Zealand, and Australia are all doing well in South Africa, and the United States is the most successful. Now the tide is at the flood, and if Canada neglects so great an opportunity to her apathy and indifference she must be attributed future failures.

What does South Africa require that Canada can supply by her newly-organized direct trade lines?

THE SAANICH SHOW CLOSED SATURDAY

A GOOD SHOWING IN CATTLE AND HORSES

An Excellent Class of Sheep Were Also Exhibited—Large Attendance From the City.

Rather a attendance at the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's show, which was quite gratifying to the management, there being present a large number of visitors from the city and a good turnout of the farmers of the district.

The show in some respects exceeded that held in former years, but for all might have been more representative of the district. There are several big stock farms in the district that had not sent a single exhibit.

Next to the cattle, the best showing was made in horses. There was exhibited a splendid class of light and heavy draught animals, and all looked in the pink of condition.

Included in the poultry was an exhibit of an entirely new breed in this province, that of the Rhode Island reds, of which a very fine pair were shown by George Anderson.

The prize list in the show was as follows: Best Bull—Bull, 3 years old and over, R. E. Knowles. Bull, 2 years old, 1, G. R. Knowles.

Best Heifer—Heifer, 1 year old, 1, G. R. Knowles. Heifer, 2 years old, 1, G. R. Knowles.

LOOKING FOR PULP LANDS.

Brother of Great British Journalist En Route to the Coast.

Mr. Harnsworth, brother of Alfred Harnsworth, the Napoleon of Journalism, is en route to the coast for the purpose of looking for pulp lands.

He is accompanied by Messrs. H. Hector and Geo. Mansson. He has also conferred with a number of newspaper proprietors of the United States, and it is altogether likely that the great resources of his noted brother are behind whatever project he has in view.

There would not be any reason for surprise if in ten years Canada was supplying most of the paper for the United States and England, but even in the world, the supply of pulp in the United States is now being rapidly consumed, and then the big newspapers of that country will have to look to Canada.

British Ship's Services in Constant Demand at Buenaventura—Some Incidents of Present Conflict.

That H. M. S. Phaeton, Captain Fleet, is rendering good service in southern waters in the protection of British interests, endangered in consequence of the conflict waged between the revolutionists and government troops in Colombia, is indicated in a private letter received from one of the ship's company, and addressed to an officer of H. M. S. Amphion.

The Phæton, it would seem, has not unmoored since going to Buenaventura and there is no explanation given of when she is likely to change her position. She will shortly have the assistance of a very formidable American fleet in endeavoring to prevent the construction to property. The Wisconsin, the flagship of Admiral Silas Casey, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Squadron, is now near the scene of the fighting, having received rush instructions ordering her south at a time when a visit to Esquimalt was being contemplated.

NEW FORT OPENED IN THE NAVY YARD

GUNS WERE GIVEN A TESTING YESTERDAY

Some Rumors About Garrisoning of Esquimalt and Further Strengthening of the Station.

The opening of guns out in Esquimalt yesterday morning had a more than common place significance. It proclaimed in no uncertain terms the establishment and completion of another fort along the coast line that now commands the Straits between this port and Race Rocks.

The new fort is situated in the navy yard immediately opposite the one so long uncompleted. It is a battery of Esquimalt harbor, and is mounted with those heavy guns corresponding in size, it is understood, to those which arm the other forts along the coast. To test the guns, targets were yesterday morning placed several miles out from shore, and the big pieces of ordnance ammunition levelled on them.
