COLONY LIFE

Effect of Climate Overcome by Proper Food.

The necessity of pleasant, nutritive and proper food is highly appreciated in the Philippines, particularly by Americans unused to climate and native custom in cooking.

One of our soldier boys writes: "In this land of bad food and disordered stomachs, a nearly fatal attack of malaria left my digestion for many months in such a state, that food of any kind distressed me terribly. I suffered from the effect of drugs, but dared not eat. It was simply misery to live. The so-called remedies only seemed to aggravate my sufferings. Some friend suggested Grape-Nuts Food and I gave it a trial. To my surprise and pleasure, it did all and more than was claimed for it. I am now, after using the food for 18 months in good health; my digestive apparatus in perfect order, and I have long lost all feeling of pain or discomfort after eating. In fact, I live again, I would not be without Grape-Nuts for the It is not only the excellent effect of your food that renders it valuable, it is also delicious to the taste, possessing flavor of its own, and can

"'Way Down East" Comes to the Grand for Two Nights.

Company Is a Capable One and Audience Was Pleased.

However, when the dra-matic author—or authoress—is confronted with the problem of making the audience laugh, the foregoing fact does not seem to weigh down east. Grace Hopkins succeeds Flora Fairchild as Anna Moore, and she won the sympathies of her audience with her portrayal of the persecuted and deeply wronged heroine. Charles Riegel was forceful as Squire Amasa Bartlett. Miss Charlotte Huntington made a pleasing Kate Brewster, while Wallace Owen was good as the young-old professor. Charles C. Blanchard proved himself one of the cleverest members of the company by his work as Rube Whipple, the village constable, and he was responsible for much of the mirth of the evening. Marion Lester, as Mrs. Bartlett; Philip Yale Drew, as David; Fred K. Backus, as Lennox Sanderson, and E. H. Bender as Dr. Wiggins, were each seen in the same roles as on the play's former engagement, and all are worthy of mention. "Way Down East" will be repeated tonight, and as it is a wholesome and clean production, satisfactorily presented, there should be a large audience to greet it. Many patrons both of the lower and upper portions of the house complain of the disorderly conduct which goes on almost unchecked in the gallery. Tobacco smoke, horse-chestnuts and ribald remarks were among favors those sitting below them. The respectable element in the gallery complain that the place is in an unsanitary condition, being rarely if ever cleaned out. GRACE CAMERON COMING. Speaking of the Grace Cameron Opera Company, which comes to the Grand on Friday night in "A Nor-mandy Wedding," the Toronto World of Tuesday says: "The Grace Cameron Opera Company, presenting the comic opera, 'A Normandy Wedding,' opened a three-night engagement at the Princess Monday night. The production is comic opera in the strictest sense, with catchy lyrics and bright music. scenery is good and the chorus fair. Cameron, who was last seen here with the 'Foxy Quiller' Company, is a very clever little actress, upon whom the whole plot devolves. Throughout she maintains the character of an ignorant goose-girl of Normandy perfectly. She possesses a good voice and was called to repeat many numbers which were readily taken up by the large audience. Harry Brown, the leading comedian, was also well received."

FACTS FOR

It is surprising what an amount of really good money is wasted every year on the industrious programme schemer. Mr. Merchant, did you ever have any notion that this sort of thing was advertising? Here is what the fakir thinks about it. He has often told me so-I, a printer-sometimes his printer. He figures up what he owes for board, and the few hundred other things that man wants here below but can't pay for, which enables him to know definitely what he must get out of the programme, net. The rest is easy. He sees his printer firstlook at the order of events-finds out what the printing will cost from a "dummy" programme, that same old dummy that soon has "only one space left" that he wants you to take. From this he immediately determines what he must get for his spaces in order to pay the printer and net the board bill which was the real "ulterior motive" of the whole business.

He doesn't consider the advertising worth 5 cents. The programme is simply the easiest way he knows of to 'cop out" a week's board. There is another kind of programme that is claimed to be a sure thing for the advertiser. It is the "souvenir," which is to be treasured among the family heirlooms, to be handed down from generation to generation, each of which will see your ad. and hustle

BRITISH PRESS MUCH PLEASED

Cunard Arrangement Delights John Bull.

THE CANADIAN FAST SERVICE

General Belief That Imperial Government Will Extend Adequate Service.

London, Oct. 2.-The English press continues to discuss the steamship agreements with unimpaired enthusiasm, and with a disposition, as the St. James' Gazette remarks, to be thankful for small favors. The Cunard Company is admitted to have behaved well and to have made an excellent bargain. Close reasoners do not perceive anything in the agreement that will prevent the managers from entering into a pooling arrangement with the Morgan combination similar to the one which has already been made with the German companies.

ADVANTAGEOUS TO THE COMPANY.

The Cunard Company's arrangements for the construction of two bears his honors as the English king steamships of superior speed are con- of the air lightly. He says his trip sidered to be highly advantageous to of Sept. 19 was but a preliminary effort the company, especially as there are no requirements for a continuous operation of these expensive vessels when their records have been made. Several critics point out that it would have been cheaper for the admirably have been cheaper for the admiralty sible to navigate the air against a 30to have built two 24-knot cruisers outright, rather than to have agreed to tend to construct such an airship, and pay enormous subventions for the sake we purpose that it shall form a type of beating the German record. manufacturers are fully aware of the "I hope and expect extensive use made by German exporters of the fact that the fastest ships afloat are under the German flag, and that the general effect of this advertisement on the industries of the fatherland is worth what is paid in subsidies.

THE CANADIAN SERVICE.

Canadian officials are convinced from the liberal terms offered to the Cunard Company that the British Government will accept the Ottawa proposals for a fast service if satisfactory tenders can be arranged. There never has belp it still more I have put the probeen any doubt that the imperial aupeller forward, too, which gives me thorities here would pay one-third of a double impetus." the subsidy. The Canadian position of the two agreements, for the British Government, after negotiating with the Cunard Company and the Morgan combination, cannot reasonably de-cline to co-operate with the Dominion in establishing a fast mail service on the Atlantic and Pacific.

UNNECESSARY ALARMS. Neither Mr. Gerald Balfour's introduction of Mr. Morgan to the British public as an idealist on the trust question nor the Times' perfunctory efforts to dispel exaggerated and unnecessary alarms have reconciled critical editors here to the idea of American control over a combination of ocean freights. They find in the Government agreement with Mr. Morgan no evidence that he can be punished, if convicted of injuring British interests, except that afternoon by Chief of Police Fred he can be compelled to pull down the British flag. The Westminster Gazette suspects that Mr. Morgan would not have bound himself to the British Government in various ways without having a secret understanding that rates would not be cut between the Cunard Company and the combination.

A WAR OF SUBSIDIES. London, Oct. 2, 6 a.m.-Shipping experts talk of a war of subsidies as a result of the Cunard deal. It is expected here that the United States and Germany will retaliate. TRUSTS IN A NEW LIGHT RACE OF REAL

A University Professor Thinks They're Not So Bad.

In His Opinion They Are Less Harmful Than Formerly.

Detroit, Oct. 2.-Prof. John B. Clark, Ph.D., LL.D., instructor in political economy at Columbia University, lectured here last night on the trusts.

"When it comes to a question of submitting to conditions that are intolerable or attempting to perform feats that are impossible, you will always find the people willing to un-dertake the latter," said he. "But because the accomplishment of a certain object is an impossibility today is no sign it will be tomorrow, and it is possible there may be found a solution of the problem of controlling trusts, even though it has not as yet been discovered.

THE FORCES OF THE FUTURE. "The alignment between the forces of the future is not between labor and capital, but between the chain of remain independent. But before this is accomplished there will necessarily have to come a complete change in the atti-tude of the general public." TRUSTS NOT SO HARMFUL AS FORMERLY. The speaker declared it was only potential competitors that regulated prices at present, and it was not what s being done, but a fear of what might follow that keeps the trusts within bounds. On the other hand, he contended that the chief opposition to the trusts came not from organized labor, but from outsiders, and suggested that the consolidation which had been going on might have been beneficial to the workingmen. So far as the masses were concerned, he declared the trusts of the present day were not so harmful as those of a few years ago, when the while prices are elevated somewhat, the great strife in the direction of cheapening the cost of production, thus

At the close of Prof. Clark's lecture, in reply to an inquiry, relative to the coal trust, he declined to express an phatically that any attempt on the part of the Government to confiscate the mines would be an injustice as they had been acquired by the owners according to law. The law of eminent domain might be stretched a little however, and the mines taken over for a reasonable purchase price, and operated by the Government.

Exiled Polish Nobleman Receives Tardy Justice.

Detroit, Oct. 2.-Until yesterday morning Frank Langowski, who lives at 318 Sixteenth street, was known as plain Frank, who had considerable influence among the Poles of Detroit because of his education and breeding. Now he is known as Count Frank Langowski, and his friends are congratulating him upon the fact that he has received an official letter from St. Petersburg, signed by representatives of the Czar, assuring him that a check for 90,000 roubles, or $46,350, will be sent to him shortly, representing in-terest on an estate valued at 3,000,000 roubles, confiscated by the Russian Government after the Polish rebellion Mr. Langowski was a Polish nobleman at the time of the rebellion and took part in the war, his property being confiscated as well as the estates of about 800 other nobles. Langowski was sentenced to serve in the Siberian mines for life because of the part he took in the rebellion, but after having remained there fourteen years, he was pardoned, with other Polish prisoners,

The New Yellow Fever Germ.

The news comes from New Orleans that the long sought germ of yellow fever has been found, says the New York Herald. We have had so many positive statements on this subject heretofore that it is to be hoped that this most recent claim can be substantiated. So far, however, no very direct information is vouchsafed further than that the micro-organism is of animal origin and has been traced to the mosquito as the host. Such an assertion, if it can be scientifically proved, will be of great value as deand went straight up in the air about monstrating the new theory of yellow fever propagation by means of the insect in question. All that has been wanting up to this time is some positive knowledge of the active agency at work in the shape of a germ that can be transferred from the mosquito to man and from the human body to the mosquito.

From a bacteriological point of view these were the only missing links in the most interesting studies of Reed and Boardman, of the Havana commission. It may now be a question whether or not the marine hospital service, by its recent claim, will divide the honors of discovery with those already accorded the army. Practically speaking, however, the mere finding of the germ as the propagating agent of the fever will doubtless not alter the present methods of arresting epidemics. We prevent the healthy mosquito from biting the infected and we kill the insect when it, in turn, becomes infected. As a result yellow fever epidemics disappear by simply annihilating the carrier of the poison, whatever the latter may be. That we may now have found the true germ is a matter for congratulation, if for no other reason than that it has so long eluded the patient research of numerous other investigators.

ENGLAND HAS NOT

According to Official Income Tax Returns There Are Only Fifteen

There are only fifteen millionaires in Great Britain and one in Irelandat least this would appear to be so from the official income tax returns

According to the returns these sixteen persons make the sum total of individuals in this country who enjoy incomes of over £50,000, an this is about the "millionaire" level. It is true that there are 184 people with incomes of between £10,000 and £50,000, and, of course, a considerable number of these are just on the line across which they would be classed as Incomes of between millionaires. £5,000 and £10,000 are enjoyed by 424

To be an assessor of income tax one needs a heart of flint. To him the world is a Dantesque Inferno, filled vith delorous complainings. It is always, "The worst year I remember, sir," or "Hard times, very hard times," eyery year sees the nation "on its last financial legs." Unfortunately, the great majority of the smaller income people have no opportunity of pleading poverty. They are people with salaries; and the income tax man has access to the telltale wages list. But the millionaire is not a salaried man. For the most part he pays on an assessment provided by himself, and the above-quoted figures 'give one to think."

Down the scale the numbers gradually increase until of incomes between £160 and £200 there are no fewer than 138,456; while of smaller incomes exempt from taxation there are 112.397 But there is one singular exception to this steady gradation. There are comparatively few incomes of between £800 and £900, the number being 1,989 in Great Britain, whereas the figures immediately above and below are 3,935 and 2,641. There appears, indeed, to be a strange fatality about this particular size of income, for we find that it is rare, not only in the case of private persons, but also of firms, public companies and municipal corporations.

The return gives startling evidence of the large proportion of the burden which is borne by the comparatively poor man. Of incomes between £160 and £200 the gross amount assessed is £25,933,513; of the incomes between £200 and £300 the gross amount assessed is £24,215,614. But of incomes between £1.000 and £2.000 the gross amount assessed was only £2,252,524. It is interesting to note that there are in Great Britain, 86 firms with an income of over £50,000, but not one in Ireland, and that in Great Britain re are 656 public companies, and in Ireland 19, which have incomes of over £50,000.-London Mail. been lost within the city without being

PINERO'S REPLY TO CRITICAL REMARKS

Being a Letter Written After His Play "The Gay Lord Quex" Was Censured.

To the Editor of the Times: Sir: I observe from your issue of today that Sir Edward Russell has been administering to the members of the Institute of Journalists at their annual conference some grandmotherly admonition on the subject of the drama MANY MILLIONAIRES and theatrical criticism. This would not concern me greatly had not Sir Edward taken the occasion, in enforcing the familiar injunction that writers and spectators should always be on the side of the angels, to declare that my comedy, The Gay Lord Quex, is one which, on the score of flagrant immorality, is deserving of the severest censure. I have not the advantage of being a constant reader of Sir Edward Russell's remarks upon the current drama, but I am aware that his pre dilections incline to a class of production not of late years much in vogue upon our stage. Here Sir Edward has my sympathy, for it must be a sad matter for so earnest and industrious a critic as he has proved himself to be to find in the autumn of his critical life his gods displaced, to see work which he has loudly acclaimed either forgotton or treated with deliberate neglect. What I venture to complain of is that Sir Edward Russell in his chagrin at the mustiness of his ideals should allow his vexation to tempt him into unfairness towards work with which he is not in accord-work, perhaps, to which he brings, almost of necessity, an imperfect understanding. My object in departing from my practice of refraining from intruding myself upon the readers of the press is to challenge Sir Edward Russell to substantiate by extracts from my play (it is published) his charge against me of deliberate immorality. I challenge him to demonstrate by such extracts, if justly made, the "hard vileness" of Lord Quex; I challenge him to show that neither that character nor the play in its entirety displays "desire or preference of what is chaste," that, in short, the play contains "no sugges-tion of any feeling for the right side in life and conduct." That the comedy does not belong to the school of composition which labels each of its characters "wolf" or "lamb;" that it seeks to depict men and women as they are -not wholly virtuous nor wholly evil-I am prepared to admit. But I may remind Sir Edward Russell of the accepted dictum that a man should be judged by the good that is in him; and by this standard the Marquis of Quex is not. I submit, an unamiable personage. Lord Quex will not, I am convinced, be condemned utterly by in-telligent and liberal-minded people because of his lapses—any more than Sir Edward Russell is to be so condemned on account of his present variation from truth, good feeling, and good taste. I am, sir, your obedient ser-ARTHUR W. PINERO.

THE DIRECTORS GIVEN POWER

Annual Meeting of Shareholders Reveals Era of Unprecedented Progress.

Montreal, Oct. 1 .- The annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway was held at noon today, Sir William Van Horne in the chair. There was a large attendance of directors and shareholders, including Thomas Skinner, of London, Eng.; Sir Sandford Fleming and G. R. Harris, of Boston. The annual report was taken as read. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the shareholders upon the successful issue of the year's operaannum. They had put in their tender, but had had nothing but a simple approval of resolutions empowering the company to provide a trans-Atlantic service under any circumstance. Later in the meeting such a resolu-tion was moved and carried without discussion save for a reminder from Mr. John Morrison, that it would be

A DRASTIC REFORM.

A number of resolutions providing for extensions of the company's lines in the Northwest were approved, and then a drastic reform was made in the mode of electing the board of directors. Until this year the board of directors has been elected for one year only, but today a resolution was passed empowering the board to provide a bylaw by which one-fourth of the directors only should retire each year. All the old board will consequently decide among themselves who shall serve for one, two, three and four years. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, when asked for the reason for the change, said that the company's enterprises were now getting so important that it would be a calamity if by any chance foreigners should get control of the stock and seek to elect their own directors.

The new policy will secure continuity of management, and is merely help personally expressing my convictorlowing the example of big American' tion that the company has barely enrailways. Mr. Skinner took the op- tered upon the threshold of the exportunity to express the appreciation of the work of the board felt by the in store for it. In the course of his speech the president said that the statement submitted for approval furnished most satisfactory and striking evidence of build of Mr. Carnegie, that is, he is the company's position and of the short but robust. pany. A Woman's Confession Clears Up the Mysteries in the Atrocious Empire Killing.

New York, Oct. 1 .- Four men are now implicated in the murder of Capt. James B. Craft early Saturday morning in the Empire Garden Hotel at No. 38 West Twenty-ninth street.

Three of the men, Thomas and Robert Kelly and Alexander McEneaney, are now in the Tombs, and the police of the West Thirtieth street station are closely trailing "Jack" Kelly. If the crime is fastened upon these four men, or any one of them, it will great friend of "Jack" Kelly. This girl, who was in the Empire about the time of the murder, has told all she knows of the tragedy. When arrested by Capt. Sheehan on Saturday approval a resolution authorizing the afternoon she was closely guarded from for interviewers, and Coroner Jackson would not disclose a word of the confession she gave when arraigned before him at the criminal court building yesterday. The coroner sent her to the House of Detention on Mulberry street, and there no one is allowed to talk with her.

"Her evidence," said Coroner Jackson, "is the most important we have

Mamie Moore's confession has however, been learned by the American from a girl associate who lives with her at No. 116 West Twenty-ninth street, and by this girl the Moore woman's story is said to be as fol-left me at the corner of Broadway and Twenty-ninth street, and I went into the Empire. "I was sitting at one of the tables alone, when a man who was afterwards introduced to me as 'Capt. Jim' came and sat down alongside me. We commenced talking, and had a real jolly time, in which Thomas Kelly (Tobin), the waiter and his brother, Robert, participated. Jack Kelly, another brother, was in the place, and he frequently joined the party. "We sat there drinking some time, having, in all, I think, about four rounds of drink. Capt. Jim took bottled beer, and we all took cocktails. All of the beer was opened in

Jim all the time showed a large roll of bills which he carried. Then 'Jack' Kelly drew me aside and said: 'Say, May, someone wants you downstairs.' this time McEneaney was bringing beer for Capt. Jim. and I noticed then that the beer had not been opened at

"Capt. Jim was lying on the floor, and the four men, the Kellys and Mc-Eneaney, were pulling him upstairs. "I asked .Jack to return home with me, and together we left the place and entered the drugstore on Twentyninth street, where I purchased some medicine. When Jack left me half an hour later I think he went back to the Empire."

This confession, the police believe clears up the case. The theory entertained by the police as a result of this confession is that the four men, see-"Capt. Jim," decided to get it by Following out this theory, the police suggest that when the men found that the "knockout drops" had killed instead of stupefying "Capt. Jim," it was decided to get rid of the body by burning is up in the furnace. When the business of chopping up the body in the basement began McEneaney could not stand the horror of the act and summoned the police.

Mr. Young's Recollections. If Canadians know too little of Canaaian history-the charge is often made ►it is not because the records are few or inadequate. These have been enriched lately by Hon. James Young, of Galt, in the form of a handsome volume from the press of William Briggs, Toronto, entitled "Public Men and Public Life in Canada." Mr. Young explains that his aim has not been to produce a work of history in the strict sense of the term, but rather to embody his recollections of men and events. History is the biography of great men, and on this principle the author may claim to have made a valuable historical contribution, as his pages teem with biographical information, gleaned from his acquaintance with public men and public life which he tells us dated from his first connection with the press, in 1853. That was a time when, in Mr Young's own words "the relations of Church and State and several other questions affecting the happiness and equality of the people were still unsettled, and when the long political struggle between Upper and Lower Canada, under the ill-starred union of 1841, was becoming more open, bitter, and irreconcilable every year." The author carries his chronicle down to 1867, the year of Confederation. It was indeed a stormy period and while present-day Canadian politics may not be all sweetness and light, there is no approach to the rancor and fury of public life which made stable government in the pre-confederation era impossible. Mr. Young has given us a vivid narrative of those stirring times. The leading figures are cleverly and sympathetically portrayed and a strong light is thrown on the forces which were surely if somewhat con-

The chapters relating to the collapse of the coalition formed to carry through the project of confederation, have a special interest at this moment when coalition rumors are in the air. Hon. George Brown's position is stated by the author as follows:

fusedly working out many problems which are now happily solved.

"He (Mr. Brown) maintained that the Macdonald and himself had never been justified except as a temporary expedient to carry confederation; that there was a distinct understanding on both states, and one of the few that discussides that it was to terminate as soon Canadian affairs intelligently as that great object was attained; and that now, when confederation was ac-complished, to continue the coalition and extend it to the new Dominion for ordinary administrative purposes, was not only a breach of the original compact, but a mere office-holding device on the part of the Conservative leader which was certain to prove of an extravagant and demoralizing character. The unions of Conservatives and Reformers merely to hold office he considered immoral, and therefore the best interests of the new Dominion demanded that in forming its first cabinet there should be a return to party government, which it was claimed experience both in Britain and Canada had proven to be much the best in the public interests.

Mr. Young says the Reformers of Upper Canada generally disliked coalitions and fully agreed with their leader's views on that point, but the party was not entirely united on the point, as Messrs. Howland, MacDougall and Blair, who were in the coalition administration as representatives of the Reform party, not only did not share Mr. Brown's opinions, but had already consented as Reformers to accept portfolios in the first Dominion cabinet, soon to be formed. Leading Reformers deemed it advisable to call a general convention of the Reform party throughout the Province. This convention was held in Toronto on June 27, 1867. There are many Liberals still living who were among the delegates and they will agree with Mr. Young when he says that for influential attendance, earnestness of purpose, and hearty enthusiasm, it has never been excelled by any of the much larger gatherings which have since taken place. The question, "Party Government vs. Coalitions," was the storm center of discussion. The resolution on the subject which was presented to the convention was as fol-

"Resolved: That coalitions of opposing political parties for ordinary adadministrative purposes inevitably result in the abandonment of the principle by one or both of the parties to the compact, the lowering of public morality, lavish public expenditure and widespread corruption; that the coalition of 1864 could only be justified on the ground of imperious necessity as the only available mede of obtaining just representation for the people of Upper Canada and on the ground that the compact then made was for a specific purpose and for a stipulated period, and was to come to an end as soon as the measure was attained and while this convention is thoroughly satisfied that the Reform party has acted in the best interests of the country by sustaining the Government unconfederation measure was secured, it deems it an imperative duty to declare that the temporary alliance between the Reform and Conservative parties should now cease, and that no Government will be satisfactory to the people of Upper Canada which is formed and maintained by a coalition of public men holding opposite political

This resolution was carried with tremendous enthusiasm, only three or four delegates dissenting. This strong sentiment against the coalition prindple in 1867 did not prevent a coalition Government being formed soon afterwards in Ontario, but the party system reasserted itself almost immediately and has since governed in this Province. Coalitions have been useful even necessary, in this country, in tiding over a crisis in public affairs or breaking a parliamentary deadlock; The Leading Medium for Advertisers but these are extraordinary circumstances which do not appear on the horizon of Ontario politics at present.

Emile Zola.

The tragic death of Emile Zola removes the greatest figure in contemporary French literature. The criticisms of his work, which are now rife, illustrate the great difference between French and English standards, but however much Zola the author may be revolting to English literary ideals, there is only homage for Zola the man. The author might revel in naked realism and depict scenes from life over which decency should draw a veil, but the man himself was pure and rose to sublimity in the Dreyfus episode, when he martyred himself in the cause of justice. Although a stark realist, it would be unfair to accuse him of deliberately writing to pander to base appetites. He portrayed vice and human depravity in order to scourge it. His literary creed was that there was nothing in life about which the truth should not be told. But are such methods warranted by the results, measured either by artistic standards or by the influence for good upon society? Zola's motives may have been the highest-to chastise and redress social wrongs; but it is to be feared the motives of the vast majority of his readers were not worthy; that they read him merely to gratify prurient tastes. Many of his works are polluting to the unsophisticated mind, and their effect on the whole has been pernicious. Dickens used his genius to remedy abuses, but he did not find it necessary to grovel in filth. Foreign critics deride the Puritanism of English literature, but it is the glory of that literature that it is morally uplifting and seeks rather to interpret the sweet sanities of human nature, than dwell on what is bestial and abnormal.

Canada's Reasonable Attitude.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, a Republican authority, has been talking on trade relations with Canada, a very live issue in New England, where the leading commercial bodies are active in agitating for reciprocal arrangements with this country. Senator Lodge, the Boston Herald, tells us, does not venture to oppose reciprocity with Canada, but he finds the Alaska boundary dispute is a lion in the path, and as he is opposed to tariff revision, he exaggerates and gloats over this dispute as an agency for the prevention of closer trade relations with Canada. It coalition between the Hon. John A. is a pleasure to find the Boston Herald, one of the most authoritative and well-informed journals in the United Canadian affairs intelligently and fairly, taking the following ground: "The settlement of a disputed boundary and the agreement upon recipro-cal relations of trade between the two nations are separate and distinct propositions. One does not at all stand in the way of the other. We fear that the wish is father to the thought with Mr. Lodge when he represents one as dependent upon the other. And, in any event, why is this Alaska boundary dispute with Canada assumed to be left open? As we understand, Canada is altogether in a reasonable attitude upon the sub-She is ready to refer it to arbitration for settlement. Why need we object to that? Mr. Tarte in his reply expressed his pleasure at being able to be present at this indoor exhibition of this sort, as all gatherings such as this show a spirit of advancement and a tendency to make a united Canada for the Canadians. Mr. Tarte said: "I am Canadian, first, last and always, and will always, so long as permitted to do so, work for the best interests of our country. I also appreciate the fact that our French and English Canadians are now coming to know each other better, and have agreed to make a united effort to make Canada the greatest dependency of the greatest empire on earth." Mr. Marcil, when called on, referred to the fact that we must as Canadians

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue. It is a marvelous remedy, and does marvelous things, as the following testimonial proves: "After my baby was born I was left in a weak, sickly condition, totally un-fit for a mother's household duties. I was excitable and nervous, and trifling things bothered me very much. I somehow would not gain strength, although I took malt extracts and tonies all the time. A lady friend recom-mended Ferrozone, which I used with splendid results. The first box helped quite a little and when I had taken six boxes my former health, ruddy cheeks and good spirits, were fully restored."

You can't spend 50 cents to a better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone, and the sooner you get Feron your druggist supplying the genumbankment, washing the earth to ine Ferrozone which sells for 50 cents such an extent that the break follow-ed. Results Exceed Estimates, Say the Dealers.

Toronto, Oct. 2 .- Toronto apple buyers say that the crop throughout the province is turning out much better than it promised earlier in the season. Not only is it larger, but the quality of the fruit has improved, - fungus noticeable in the early autumn has pretty generally disappeared, and the apples have filled out well, without serious blemish. The crop is pretty well distributed, Satisfactory reports are to be bad from almost every section, and the dealers say that it now looks as if three times as many apples will be packed this year as were barreled last year. OPERATORS AND STRIKERS TO MEET ROOSEVELT FRIDAY

President Will Attempt to Impress Both Sides With the Gravity of the Situation.

MORGAN AND OTHERS ACCEPT

No Hesitation About Meeting the President and Strikers' Representatives.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.-President Roosevelt will make an effort to bring the anthracite coal mine owners and their striking employes together in the interests of the public good. The decision was arrived at when lawyers of the cabinet informed the President that there was no way under the constitution and form of government of the United States for federal intervention to end the strike. Every phase of the situation was canvassed, and the determination to have the mine owners and President Mitchell meet the President was reached, when it was found that no other method was open. At the conclusion of the conference today, which was attended by Secretaries Root, Shaw and Moody, Attorney-General Knox and Postmaster-General Payne, at the temporary White House, the following statement was issued:

INVITATIONS TO CONFERENCE.

The following telegrams are the result of the conference between President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet, which were held yesterday and today: Telegram:

"White House, Washington, Oct. 1. -George F. Baer, president, Reading Railway System, Philadelphia; W. H. Truesdale, president, D. and L. W. Railroad Company; E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board, Erie Railroad Company; R. M. Olymphant, president D. and H. Company; John Markle, New York: I should greatly like to see you on Friday next, Oct. 3, at It is quite certain that the invitation 11 o'clock a.m., here in Washington, in regard to the future of the coal supply, which has become a matter of vital concern to the whole nation. have sent similar dispatch to John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America. (Signed), but no word as to what passed between them was obtained. Theodore Roosevelt."

"John Mitchell, president United Mine Workers of America, Wilkesbarre, Pa.: I should greatly like "o see you on Friday naxt, Oct. 3, an admirable thing. As to results, at 11 a.m., here in Washington, in we can tell better when the operators regard to the failure of the coal supply, which has become a matter vital concern to the whole nation. have sent a similar dispatch to the presidents of the anthracite coal

Roosevelt."

THE PRESIDENT'S PLANS. At the meeting Friday the line of approach toward the setlement of the strike will be an appeal by President Roosevelt to both sides to come together as men, and not to allow false stand in the way of the termination of the great strike, which is fraught with such threat of misery to thouyond this the President cannot go. He must rely upon his persuasive abilities for a hearing at that place upon and his appeals to their sense of hu- charges of various natures.

Further Than This He Can- manity if anything tangible is to be accomplished. The President intends to lay before his hearers the situation as it appears to him with all the pros-pective horrors that will follow a fuel famine, and will urge them, in the interests of humanity, to open the mines and supply the demand for coal. The President has taken the action because he feels it to be his duty to do so as the executive head of a nation threatened with great peril. The President has, in a sense, taken upon him-self the burdens of an arbitrator in this great dispute between capital and labor, and though the arbitration is not compulsory, and is not even known under the name of arbitration in any of the invitations issued today, it is the hope of the President and his advisers that it will be effective. Just how, no one can say, though there is the suggestion of a temporary arrange ment which will tide over the cold weather. There will be no one present at Friday's meeting at the temporary White House but the principals. It is true that Friday is cabinet day, and that if o'clock, the hour appointed in the invitations for the meeting of the coal magnates, is the usual hour of assembling of the cabinet, but according to the present understanding that cabinet meeting will be postponed. The absence of the cabinet will give the President an opoprtunity to have a heart-to-heart talk with the operators and Mr. Mitchell, to induce them to talk to each other freely and to reason quietly and soberly, and finally to agree if possible to make concessions. on each side which will terminate the strike. And at least, if this last object cannot be directly attained, it is hoped that the foundations may be laid for an agreement in the near future-perhaps an agreement between the principals to have further meetings, and perhaps to refer open issues between them to third parties. It is stated positively that the President has no assurances from either side

Milward recently became bankrupt, and an investigation of his affairs shows that he has appropriated the money of his clients right and left. It is said that his appropriations have been discovered already to reach $150 .--

Milward was family solicitor to the Duke of Marlborough, but it is understood that happily he had never handled any of Consuelo's personal money. How much the Duke's own funds may suffer is not yet known. When Consuelo Vanderbilt became the Duchess of Marlborough in 1895, it was currently reported that W. K. Vanderbilt settled on her $10,000,000or to be more accurate—the income of

It was also said, and apparently with some authority, that the terms of the settlement included a direct bestowal of $5,000,000 on the Duke.

Some time before the announcement of the engagement the Duke of Marlborough's family solicitor, the same Robert Harding Milward, went over to New York, where he had several long consultations with Vanderbilt. It was not known until afterwards, however, that the length to which these negotiations were drawn was due to Milward's insistence that Miss Vanderbilt's wedding settlement should include the $5,000,000 for the Duke. Vanderbilt objected to the steepness of the figures, but Milward-acting for the Duke-insisted on the $5,000,000

Of the five cases originally Calver and Lanning vs. Hamilton two last named were settled out of court, while McGill vs. Wabash Railroad has been adjourned.

The first case taken up was that of Wilcox vs. Calver, an action brought by George W. Wilcox, proprietor of the Dominion Hotel, in this city, against Alfred Calver, owner of the and quartered three months ago. Southern Hotel, situated on what is known as the "Devil's Half Acre," a piece of land within the limits of the city, but assessed in the Township of Yarmouth. Mr. Wilcox's house is licensed by the West Elgin commissioners, while Mr. Calver's premises are under the control of the East Elgin board. Plaintiff claimed that he sold the Dominion Hotel to Mr. Calver for $7,000, but afterwards repurchased the place and business for $10,000, with the understanding that Mr. Calver would journed. Mr. Haviland-Burke was not enter business east of the L. E. and paroled, but Mr. Reddy was held in D. R. R. track. Plaintiff claimed that the defendant, in conducting the Southern Hotel, one block east of his premises, had injured his business, that a breach of the agreement had been committed. He asked the court to restrain Mr. Calver for a term of years from carrying on business at the Southern Hotel, as per term of agreement, and also claimed damage at the rate of $25 a week since May After hearing the evidence, 1, 1902. his lordship gave judgment, making the injunction perpetual. Reference was made as to the amount of dam-

Unless Relief Comes From Some Source Speedily-No More Gas To Be Had.

New York, Oct. 1 .- The coal situation in New York may be described as worse than ever today, on account of the increasing fear that relief may not come before much suffering has resulted. The weather prediction today was that it will be cooler tonight, with northerly winds. The supply of hard coal in the tenement districts is now at such a low ebb that dealers are charging their consumers a trifle over 1 cent a pound. Before the strike a pail holding 20 pounds of coal sold for 6 cents, the same quantity costs today 22 cents. In the Jewish quarter, fish boxes, packing cases and the timbers used in street construction are much in de-mand. The supply of coke is practically exhausted, and the large bakeries which formerly used this entirely for fuel are now burning cordwood. Owners of flats and down-town buildings are in a state bordering on which formed the basis of his call for a panic. A number said today that they were unable to get more than a ton of coal at a time, and in one case

Ottawa, Oct. 1.-The city hall was packed tonight at the public meeting to discuss the coal question. Mayor Cook and Ald. Ellis explained the situation, and after a number of speeches a resolution was passed instructing the city council to do what is considered best to prevent any possibility of suffering. It was charged that Ottawa dealers have enough coal on hand to last until the middle of January, and are holding it back for high prices.

The Railway Beautiful.

The work done by our railroads has been of great value because so widely extended, says the New York Independent. Those who travel are carried from one spot of beauty to another. In some cases the whole line of the road has been improved by planting choice shade trees and ornamental shrubs. One of our western roads is lined for several hundred miles on both sides with superb chestnuts and evergreens. The removal of the unsightly and the suggestion of cleanlisalutary pellets, taken before going to ness about the depots has been specially useful. Improvement becomes a passion. Near such depots cottages are sure to be neat and yards cleanly. This class of improvement necessarily involves the conventional, and that is not always a bad thing in a village. ABILITY TO CRY AT WILL IS PROFITABLE

Swindlers Don't Believe It Pays to Wear Smiling Faces.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone," is a fallacy so far as the criminal world is concerned. It is said that no matter how long or how loudly a man is able to laugh he is never so formidable a criminal as he who can weep at

The arrest in Chicago a few days ago of C. B. La Salle, of Kalamazco, Mich., calls attention to this fact in riminal psychology. La. Salle, who ordinarily was of a cheerful, happy turn of mind, was accused of no wrongdoing so long as he contented imse.f with smiling. But whenever he wept copiously there was always an aftermeath of accusations of forgery. H. A. Sheppard, manager of the Olmsted, until recently the vicar of St. Morrison Hotel; W. W. Johnson, a Agnes' Chapel, New York, was conseroofing contractor, with offices in the Association Building; Manning & Bowes, of State and Congress streets, paid for the tears with money. cording to Bowan & Co., private bankers in Kalamazoo, La Salle's unusual facility in weeping while telling his tale of woe was responsible for the ease with which he secured money il-It is a notorious fact, known to all good detectives, that the woman criminal most difficult to convict is she who obtains money by preying upon the sympathies. She can always cry and cry well, and, far from weeping alone, she gets her auditor to weep with her, and then gets the money. The sudden death of a relative, who, in fact, never existed; the coming due of a mortgage, which exists only in the imagination; sickness in a household which has no being, and any number of such devices with which pity is aroused are her best cards. But if a woman who can cry is a

Autumn Outings.

One way in which we may make the winter seem shorter is to make the summer as long as possible, advises the Boston Herald. The close of the summer vacation outing need not, necessarily, end all communication with nature as it is found in rural or seaside localities. In these latter days of the omnipresent trolley car it is possible for city dwellers to reach the country in a short time. The fields are never more beautiful than during the autumn. The fact that diaphanous garments, straw hats and open cars are out of season does not mean the sights and sounds of field and forest until next May or June comes round again. Those who stay out of doors as late as they can are not so likely to become tired of indoors before the signs of another spring are here.

"I am afraid you are making me altogether too fine, dear Miss Waldemar, for the position I am to occupy," she would say, when these pretty things were tried on to receive approbation or condemnation. "You know I am to be nothing but a seamstress for a long time yet, and I must not be too gay. The Campbells have a great deal of mpany, dear, and I am not sure that they will want to confine you altogether in the sewing-room; and of course in case Mrs. Campbell wished you to assist in entertaining at any time she would desire you to make as good an appearance as possible; while I want my dear boy to find you as attractive there as here, I will not have you hide yourself under dull, prudish dresses."

Annie smiled at the tone of fond authority which Miss Waldemar assumed; but as she was going to Mrs. Camphell's but as she was going to Mrs. Campbell's as a seamstress, she sensibly conjectured that any attempt to make herself par-ticularly attractive would be deemed out of pike by her employers. The time of Mrs. Campbell's return arrived, and one morning Audrey re-ceived a note from that lady, saying they had reached home, and she should come that afternoon to learn more about e seamstress of whom she had oken; for there were "piles of sew-g to be done," and she was anxious get it off her hands as soon as pos-

Miss Waldemar quietly slipped this note Miss Waldemar quietly slipped this note into her pocket, saying nothing of its contents, while she mentally resolved to see Mrs. Campbell by herself when she called, in order to relate something of Annie's history, and enlist her sympathy. Accordingly Mrs Campbell was received in the parlor with closed doors, and Audrey told her all she knew of the young girl's story; how interested she young girl's story; how interested she had been in the motherless child who had come to the same Vermont farmhad come to the same Vermont farmhouse where she was stopping, to spend the summer; how she and Rich had at had afterwards saved her life; and how he had accidently run accross her again only a few weeks since, learned of her friendless condition, and protected her against the persecutions of a boorish persuaded her to come to them until Mrs.

Campbell should be ready for her.
The good woman was deeply interested in the account, and her sympathy was at once aroused in behalf of the

"But I wanted a good, strong girl to take hold of the work and reel it off as fast as the dressmaker gets it ready; and I don't quite like to pile it upon Miss Waldemar thought a moment, and then she said:

Mrs. Campbell uttered a low exclamation of surprise, and the two women's eyes met and held each other's glance for a full minute, while each read some-for a full minute, while each read something of the other's thoughts.

Mrs. Campbell, knew well enough that hudrey had hoped Rich would meet his affinity in her beautiful daughter; while Audrey knew that the proud mother had been well pleased to have Grace favorably inclined toward the adopted bon of her friend.

But there was even more than this betrayed in Mrs. Campbell's glance; there was a quick shrinking, as if from a sudden blow or thrust, and Audrey saw at once that it was even as she had feared—Grace Campbell for her peace of mind.

Mrs. Campbell reviewed the situation rapidly. How could she receive into her home this rival in the affection of the one whom her daughter loved?—how could she bear to have her child supplanted in any way? But this young girl was in no way to blame for it—at least, she was innocent of having wronged anyone, and she was just as deserving of kindness and protection as she would have been under other circumstances; while, if the die were really cast, it would, perhaps be bettew for Grace to learn it at once and have the spell broken for all time.

Mrs. Campbell sked, with as much interest as if she had been pressing some noted person for a visit.

"Well, if I have not bed habits if I am fear I may get into bad habits if I am fear I may get into bad habits if I am fear I may get into bad habits if I am fear I may get into bad habits if I am fear I may get into bad habits if I am will every day, excepting when they had been out upon some excursion.

For a moment, however, it must be confessed that her mother-heart turned against the gentle girl with a feeling of bitterness and resentment for having come between, though so innocently, her dollzed child and the grand, manly heart she had hoped to win, but the Christian principle triumphed.

"I will take the homeless girl and do the best I can for her," she mentally resolved, and then smiled her own generous colved, and then smiled her own generous smile as she looked into Audrey's face and said, frankly, though with a regretul sigh: "I perceive that you as well as I, have been dreaming of other things, and let me say, once for all, that it would have been my heart's desire to have had have been my heart's desire to have had have felondship, more closely cemented. our friendship more closely cemented through our children, but fate has or-dained it otherwise and we will not yainly repine over what we cannot help. This little protege of yours shall come to me all the same, and I will make her life as comfortable as I can for your take. I will get some strong person to do the heavy sewing, and she shall attend to the light, fancy work—help shon or whatever else we can find that will be agreeable without trenching upon her independence. You and I are old friends, Audrey, and I will gladly do this for you even though I may suffer a twinge of disappointment over our shattered hopes."

Miss Walderrar reached out her hands and grasped those of her friend, while tears rushed to her eyes.

"Clara Campbell, I knew that you were noble woman, though I never fully realized how noble until this moment; and you will always be dearer for this little glimpse of your inmost self."

"It is a very faulty self, I'm afraid."

Mrs. Campbell rejoined, smiling, but wiping the tears from her eyes. "But, Audrey, I want to see this little girl who has captured your young architect—Miss nting. I think you wrote me her "There!" Audrey said, with a start, "I have been talking about her all this time and never once thought to undeceive you. She called herself Annie Hunting when the came to New York, because her father was so well known here she was a little sensitive about attracting attention. Here real name is Annie Hunting. Her real name is Annie Hunting "Noble! Noble! Surely she cannot be Adrian Noble's child?" exclaimed Mrs. Campbell, eagerly.

"Yes; her father's name was Adrian the gold there is in the world.

Noble," Audrey replied, her color heightening a triffe.

She could never speak that name without remembering that he had once pleaded with her to become his wife.

"Wonders will never cease!" responded her companion. "Why, fifteen years ago my husband and Mr. Noble were partners in business and we as families ware my husband and Mr. Noble were partners in business, and we, as families, were very intimate. His wife was a lovely, gentle little body, though an invalid. Her physician ordered a change of climate for her after awhile, and Mr. Noble withdrew his interest from the business and went south with her. The next we heard from them was that Mrs. Noble was dead, and her husband had left their child with a trusty nurse and gone abroad. That was the last we knew of him, until, a couple of years ago, while broad. That was the last we knew of until, a couple of years ago, while we were in Germany, we read of his eath in one of our home papers. We condered what had become of his little irl, but supposed that he had left her with friends and well provided for, for knew he was accounted a rich man. But I am shocked to find that his child a destitute and has her obliged to work. destitute and has been obliged to work

"How strangely some events are or-dered in this world!" Audrey remarked, greatly surprised by the account to which she had just listened. "And now I am sure you will be doubly interested in our "Yes, indeed. Do go and bring her to me. I am impatient to see her." Audrey arose at once and left the room, returning, however, almost immediately, accompanied by Rich's pretty flancee.

"Annie," she said, by way of introduction, "this, is Mrs. Campbell, and I am sure you will be glad to learn that she was an old friend of your father."
"Did you know papa?" the young exclaimed, eagerly, while her face flus with emotion as she lifted it to the splendid-looking woman who arose to did, my dear child, most intimately, of a lady?"

"Yes; I have done a good deal at fancy trimmings during the last year. But I thought you merely wished for a scamstress to do plain sewing," returned Annie, innocently.

"Oh, mercy, no! I am not going to put that kind of work. I have not

"Oh, mercy, no! I am not going to put you to that kind of work. I have not forgotten your suggestions, nor the planning you did upon that last dress that was made at Lord & Taylor's for Grace, and I intend to make the most of your taste and skill. There are pienty of people in the world who are only capable of doing plain sewing, but it is not so easy to find a person who can trim or drape nicely, or has fine taste, which I am sure you have," concluded Mrs. Campbell, sweeping an appreciative glance over the graceful figure before her, and noting every detail of her tasteful attire; and then she exchanged an intelligent glance with Miss Waldemar, which plainly said: "You need never fear that I shall put anything distasteful upon this dainty little being."
"Then," she continued, shrugging her interesting the state of the shopping of the state of the shopping of the shopping of the state of the shopping of the shopp

"Then," she continued, shrugging her shapely shoulders, "I dislike shopping exceedingly, and I have a notion that, with a little coaching, you would make an excellent shopper; so I may wish to send you out with Grace upon such expeditions if you do not object."

Annie's eyes twinkled merrily as she cald. "I am afraid you are overestimat-

"Well, then," said Mrs, Campbell, "I shall set Monday for you to come to me. This is Thursday, so that will give you three days more to yourself; will that

"Yes, indeed; and I will go to you early Monday morning," Annie responded, brightly "You will do no such thing, dear: I will send the carriage for you at nine o'clock, for we never like to hurry in the morning, and I could not possibly attend to you before that hour," said Mrs. Camp-

She was very grave, even troubled, on her way home. She did not know how She was very grave, even troubled on her way home. She did not know how far her daughter had become interested in Richmond Waldemar, for they had never exchanged any conversation upon the subject: she had only been able to judge by Grace's manner while in his society, but she was pretty sure she regarded him with very tender feelings. She resolved, however, not to tell her anything of what Miss Waldemar had confided to her regarding his relations

AT HARLEM.

Chicago, Oct. 1 .- Flying Torpedo, in the fourth race, at one and an eighth miles, at Harlem today, won easily over horses which heretofore have made him look like a selling plater. Against this horse the judges at Hawthorne ruled several days ago, denying his entry is the future, and later modifying the order by allowing him to race over slow and muddy tracks. The horse had speed to spare today. He allowed Lacrimae, the 3 to 2 favorite, to race Ed Adack, and when they began to stop he forged to the front beating Rolling Beer two and a half lengths to the wire. The stake was worth $1,580 to the winner. The track was heavy and holding. Summary:

to Discrimination in Favor of British Ships-Combine's Capitel $120,000,000.

New York, Oct. 1 .- The following details concerning the organization of the international steamship combination were made public by J. P. Morran & Co. today:

The International Navigation Comany, which controlled the American Line and Red Star Line of steamships, CONQUEROR OF PAIN has changed its title to the Interna-Jonal Mercantile Marine Company, and increased its capital from $15,000. 00 to $120,000,000, half of this amount being represented by preferred shares Ind the other helf by common shares. There is also an authorized issue of 50,000,000 of 4% per cent. bonds.

GRISCOM IS PRESIDENT. These directors and committees have been named: Directors, C. A. Gris-com, P. A. B. Widener, B. H. Baker, John I. Waterbury, George W. Perkins, E. J. Berwind, James H. Hyde, Charles Steele, Right Hon. W. Pierce, J. Bruce Ismay, Sir Clinton E. Dawkins, Henry Wilding and Charles F. Terry; executive and finance comnittee, C. A. Griscom, P. A. B. Widoner, George W. Perkins, Edward J. Berwind and Charles Steele; British committee, Sir Clinton E. Dawkins chairman), Right Hon. W. J. Pierce, . Bruce Ismay, Henry Willing and

Charles F. Terry. Mr. Griscom, head of the International Navigation Company, is to be president of the combination. new combination will embrace the American Line, the Red Star Line, the Leyland Line, the White Star Line and the Atlantic Transport Line, as well as one of two other companies. Charles Steele, who spoke for Morran & Co. in the foregoing details, was asked about certain statements attributed to Gerald Balfour, president of the board of trade of Great Britain. that the new combination would be ominated by British interests. Mr. teele said he thought that President Ealfour intended to say that the subdiary British lines would be so concolled, which he (Mr. Steele) said would be the case.

The statement that there would be to public vending or sale of the stock of the new company (those directly interested having subscribed for the Eteele.

O DISCRIMINATION BY BRITAIN It was intimated by Mr. Steele that n understanding had been reached rith the British Government by which o discrimination in favor of the Britsh ships will be shown in matters of nails, transportation, etc. The fact hat the British Government recently subsidized two vessels of the Cunard Line was not regarded by Mr. Steele as an act of discrimination. He pointed out that the White Star ships now a part of the combination receive substantial subsidies from the home Government. There will be no holding or securities company in connection with the new combination. It is a known fact that a syndical charged with the financial details of the combination was formed some months ago. Trustworthy reports also have it that a special underwriting syndicate has been organized to purchase the $50,000,000 of bonds, and this syndicate, it is believed, has already paid two installments, each of 25 per cent., or $25,000,000 of the total authorized bond issue. The major portion of this amount was paid in by the American interests identified with the combination, so that control of the bonds will lodge here. The German steamship lines do not figure in the combination, but it is unofficially declared that a "working" or "non-competitive" agreement has been reached with those companies.

For Internal and External Use.

In using medicines to stop pain, we should avoid such as inflict injury on the zystem. Opium, Morphine, Chloroform, Ether, Cocaine and Chloral stop pain by destroying the sense of perception, the patient losing the power of feeling. This is a most destructive practice; it masks the symptoms, shuts up, and, instead of removing trouble, breaks down the stomach, liver and bowels, and, if continued for a length of time, kills the nerves and produces local or general paralysis.

There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the cleast danger in either infant or adult.

HANGED HIMSELF IN BARN

Made Away With Himself.

The citizens of Ingersoll and its vicinity were startled yesterday morning to learn of the suicide of Mr. W. sturdy men, the buxom matrons, the on what is known as the McKay farm, and their merry voices and smiling about one mile south of Ingersoll. Tucker was the head of the little family, which consisted of his widowed mother, one brother and several sisters, Tucker rose early yesterday morning and started to do the ordinary chores around the farm. After milking one cow he abandoned his task, went into the barn and locked the door. Taking a tie-strap, he put one end around his neck, and, climbing into a wagon, he attached the other end to a thick wire running between two beams of the barn. He then jumped off the rig and slowly choked to death. His absence was noted by his younger brother, who on gaining an entrance to the barn, was horrified at seeing the body hanging there. He cut it down and sum-moned medical aid, but life was extinct. The physician in attendance was also the coroner, and he decided that there was no need for an inquest. It is supposed that Tucker's suicide was due to despondency over the failure of certain farm crops due to the wet weather. Tucker was only 25 years of

"'Way Down East," the pretty and elevating pastoral drama, closed its engagement at the Grand Opera House last night. As on the previous evening the audience signified hearty appreciation of the many excellent features of the play. The village choir quartet, composed of Misses Florence Leland and Laura Edwards, and vous system, which I had ascribed to Messrs. Frederick Freeman and Theo. J. Doucette, pleased the audience with their singing, of simple old melodies, and they were recalled several times. The quartet is a good one, and its members give evidence of careful individual and collective training.

AT THE GRAND TOMORROW .. The Toronto Globe says of "A Nor-Wedding," which comes to the Grand on Friday evening: "'A Normandy Wedding, comic opera, words and book by J. Cheever Goodwin, and music by Wm. Furst, was presented and bright costumes, attractive scenery, and for introducing a jingle of tuneful music. Miss Grace Cameron, the leading lady, who gives her name to the company, is vivacious in her stage action and sings pleasingly. Mae Cressy, her principal support in the econd feminine role, also makes a very favorable impression as a singer. Wiliam Herbert and Harry Brown in the principal male parts—the first senti-mental and the second grotesque—were both received with warm applause in their principal numbers."

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS USE OF BACTERIA BED COKE

Tenders for Civic Supply of Fuel of two lots of wood, one of 100 cords, and another of 60 cords, which he could Were Too High and Were Not Accepted.

No. 3 committee has finally decided the sewer bed coke must be used for fuel this year. The committee received tenders last night for the civic supply of coal and wood for the approaching season, but none of them were accepted. As it appeared to be impossible to secure hard coal, tenders for it were not asked for, but even the tenders for wood and soft coal were so high that none of them were accepted. For the latter three tenders, all at $9 per ton, were received, and for the former, only two tenders. get at $5 on the cars, or about $5 75 in London, and an effort will be made to get this and use it for the relief de-partment. Inspector McCallum gave away 67% cords of wood last year, and expects to require more this year.

A number of residents petitioned against the removal of the electric light from the corner of Regent and Waterloo streets, and several of them appeared before the committee and urged that the light be restored. This plan was not favored, but the commit-tee will recommend that another light be placed at the corner mentioned. The resignations of two firemen, John Smart and W. J. Brazier, were received and accepted. Three applications for these positions have already been re-

AN EYE-OPENER

Didn't Believe It Possible That Coffee Was at Work.

People often attribute their in health to some indiscretion in eating, and change diet in the hope of recovering their wonted good health; finding no change for the better in their condition, they are at a loss for the cause, never for a moment thinking that the cup of coffee which they take in the morning is the true source from whence all their ills have come. A lady in Philadelphia had her at-tention called to the pernicious working of coffee on the system by reading a little book on "How to Live." She says: "It was truly an eye-opener to me. All the many symptoms of the nervous stage under which I had been laboring so long, were here directly traceable to coffee drinking. Especially was it shown to be responsible for the complete 'breakdown' of my nermany different causes, and which had me so great that my hands shook like that of a toper whenever I carried things to my mouth or reached out to grasp anything. I found myself subject to frequent spells of despondency and gloom, a feeling of emptiness, with constant sour eructations. Now, like every slave to an inordin-ate appetitie, I was loath to believe that my favorite morning and midday beverage was the true cause of all this nervous wretchedness. Having noticed the advertisements of Postum Food Coffee, I determined to test it, and purchased a package and last night at the Princess by the Grace Cameron Opera Company. The work is a pleasing vehicle for displaying pretty apleasing vehicle for displaying pretty favorite drink ever since, and that is a year and a half ago. I had barely used it a week when I realized a general 'tone-up' of my system. First, my appetitle improved; next, I had no feeling of depression for days together, and a sensation of comfort especially of my stomach, was noticeable. After a month, I was aware that my hands no longer trembled, my narves were improved, and this improvement continued until I entirely recovered my "Whenever I learn of a case of nervous prostration, dyspepsia, or stomach "Alaska," Lincoln J. Carter's new trouble among friends and others. I at once urge the abandonment of coffee pany, Battle Creek, Mich.
