

Our I's and....

...Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn., who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier, that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has, "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

BASIBALL
COUNTERFEIT TICKETS IN BOSTON.

When the Boston Baseball Club made its return for the Temple cup games that have been played in that city, it was found that from 1,000 to 1,200 counterfeit tickets had been printed and sold, causing a loss to the players of about $500. The printer who did the work on these counterfeit tickets made a slight error, and it was due to this that the discovery was made. In spelling the word "grounds" the letter "u" was left out. This was what first caused the Boston club to think something was wrong. These tickets were sold outside the grounds and were bought by many in preference to taking a position in line at the box office and being obliged to wait perhaps half an hour or more. One of the Bostonians said that the club felt it had a clue to the persons who had made the tickets, and that they had tried to find them, but they had failed. He detected the club would push the case as hard as possible.

TORONTO GETS THE STEINERT CUP.
Toronto World: President Powers was rather dissatisfied with the outcome of the Steintert cup games between Toronto and Syracuse, and when the teams refused to play out to the limit he felt inclined to call the series off and hold the trophy himself. But yesterday he had an interview with Manager Irwin in New York, who explained the position of matters, with the result that Magnate Kuntzsch, of Syracuse, has been ordered to transfer the cup to this city, and Mr. Stewart's demand will duly appear in Ed Mack's window, 112 Church street, next week. Mr. Powers is satisfied that Toronto's record in the past season series entitles it to the cup to the prize.

PLAYS.
The Louisville club has drafted Outfielder Richter, of Montreal.
The Syracuse pitcher is Buckenberger's fourth. He won the others for Guelph, Sioux City and Kalamazoo.
Frank Seale signs for a long time to the Boston. He simply says he'll be there next season, and that goes.
Gaston, the Toronto pitcher, has been removed to the general hospital suffering from a mild attack of typhoid fever.
Stenzel, of Baltimore, has made most doubles.
Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, most triples, and Duffy, of Boston, most home runs. Lajoie ranks fourth in doubles, fourth in triples and second in home runs. Taking the long hits together he ranks first.
Pitcher Bill Hill, of the Louisville club, has signed an ironclad contract, by which he will not receive a cent of salary next season if he touches liquor in any form. Much of his dissipation last summer is attributed to the bad example set by First Baseman Perry Werden, who will be released on account of his bad habits.
A German enthusiast picks the following league players for a German team, which would give nine representatives of any other race the warmest of a hostile: Catcher, Zimms; pitcher, Breitenstein; Klobedanz; and Hoffer; first base, Beckley; second base, Reitz; third base, Dahlen; shortstop, Lenz; left field, center field, Stenzel; right field, Stahl.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.
Berlin, Oct. 2.—Prof. Slaby, assisted by the military balloon corps, and experimenting with Marconi's wireless telegraph, succeeded perfectly yesterday in spite of adverse atmospheric conditions, in exchanging messages without wires at a distance of 21 kilometers.

A NEW ARMY REGULATION.
London, Oct. 2.—The St. James's Gazette says the British war office has elaborated a plan by which the volunteers of Great Britain will be liable for service abroad in case of war. Hitherto it has been impossible to call upon them for duty abroad, except for the defense of the colonies and in exceptional cases.

HEAVY LOSS OF THE BRAZILIANS.
London, Oct. 2.—The Brazilian legation in London has received a telegram from the government at Rio de Janeiro explaining that Canudos, the headquarters of the religious fanatics, led by Antonio Conselheiro, was captured, after a campaign in which over 3,000 Brazilian officers and soldiers were killed, wounded or invalided. The dispatch adds that Conselheiro is dead.

THE BANK RATE.
London, Oct. 2.—The financial articles in the morning papers discuss the prospects of a rise in the bank rate, if the export of gold to America continues. The Bank of England has not yet decided to raise the rate. The Daily Telegraph says: "As the metal has been shipped without showing any signs of profit loss, it is rather to be expected that other large sums may be deferred."

A 40-ACRE DOCK.
London, Oct. 2.—The municipality of Bristol proposes to construct a 40-acre dock, which will occupy an area of 40 acres, and also a large graving dock and grain sheds, the work to cost upward of £500,000. Parliamentary authorities are expected to sanction the scheme.

BRITISH OCCUPATION OF EGYPT.
London, Oct. 2.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, referring to the statement of Figaro that the powers have agreed to collectively ask England to evacuate Egypt, says: "No power has approached England on this subject, and Egypt for a long time, France tried to get Russia to support her, but only received Russia's earnest advice to do nothing with regard to Egypt beyond diplomatic negotiations."

WILLIAMS'S FADS.
Berlin, Oct. 2.—In the Bavarian Chamber of Representatives, Herr Schneider interpellated the government regarding the recent army maneuvers, claiming that Emperor William of Germany wrongly assumed command of the Bavarian army and needlessly sacrificed lives in the cavalry attacks. The premier, Baron von Crellesheim, and the minister for war, Baron von Asch, denied most of the assertions made, but admitted there were a number of suicides during the maneuvers, on account of the exhaustion of the troops.

MURDERED FOURTEEN WIVES.
Rotterdam, Oct. 2.—Gustave Muller has surrendered to the Rotterdam police, confessing the murder of his wife and child. As proof of the truth of his confession, he produced four human ears. The police, on searching the house, found the two bodies. Muller subsequently confessed that he had also killed his parents, mutilating their remains in the same fashion, and then the state that he had similarly disposed of fourteen wives whom he had married in various parts of the world.

FRENCH DEFENSES.
Paris, Oct. 2.—Vice-Admiral Besnard, the minister of marine, explained to the budget committee of the Chamber of deputies the naval works to be undertaken by the government, including new warships, expansion of the navy and establishing a naval base at Bizerte, a fortified seaport of Tunis, and the most northern town of Africa. The works will include the construction of a complete naval arsenal, with two dry docks and a breakwater. It is estimated that the entire cost will be between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 francs. The minister of war, Mr. Billot, would spend another 5,000,000 francs at Bizerte. At Ajaccio, capital of the island of Corsica, a boom will be built

How Western Creamery Butter Was Scooped Up.

THE EXPORT CHEESE TRADE.
The shipments of cheese from Montreal last week were again heavy, amounting to 81,597 boxes, as compared with 61,552 boxes for the corresponding week last year, thus adding another $800,000 to our exports in a single week, and bringing up the aggregate shipments of the season to 1,455,463 boxes, as compared with 1,168,229 boxes for the same period in 1896, showing the big increase of 287,234 boxes, which added to the increase of 184,802 boxes from New York, shows a total increase for the season from the two ports of 472,036 boxes, an augmentation which is unprecedented in the history of the cheese trade at this season of the year, which clearly demonstrates that the market there must have collapsed, under the enormous imports from Canada long ago. Of course, the future of the market will depend a great deal upon the proportion of the cheese sent forward of late that has gone into actual consumption.

COMPETITION IN BUTTER.
The exports of butter from Montreal and New York were as follows for week ending Oct. 2, 1897, and total for the season with comparisons:

Montreal for week.....	1897.	1896.
New York for week.....	17,201	15,248
Montreal to date.....	173,654	107,492
New York to date.....	171,377	156,738

It will be seen by the above that the exports of Montreal for the present season have increased 67 per cent, whereas those from New York have only increased 13 per cent. It should be stated, however, that a large percentage of the butter forwarded from Montreal was United States. Canada will have to look to her laurels in the competition for the British export trade, which is now in progress between her and the United States.

A PROFITABLE SCOOP.
A dealer from Western Ontario informed the Trade Bulletin that a Montreal firm bought up most of the August creamery in his part of Western Ontario about the end of that month, and that the butter was sold at 30 cents per pound, and that class distinctions are not forgotten there. On one occasion he found his way back to the provinces, and that class distinctions are not forgotten there. LARGE SALE OF CHEESE.
The sale of the Allan Grove Combination of 18,000 boxes of cheese, comprising August, September and October goods, was made at the close of last week, and aggregated in value $129,000. September goods were sold but believed to be at 2 1/2% for August and about 3% for balance.

CANADIAN HAY.
The export trade in Canadian hay has been very limited for some time, owing to the scarcity of ocean freight room from Montreal. The only hay going forward from this port is chopped hay on former contracts at 12s 6d to 13s per ton to United Kingdom ports, and after these are finished, it is feared there will be no more hay space available before January next.

CANADIAN WOOL.
Fleece wool is said to be rather scarce in the interior, last sales of which were reported to us at 21c to 22c a lb at point of shipment. It seems that American buyers picked up a large portion of the supply some time ago.

CANADIAN PEA-FED BACON.
By last mail from London, England, it is learned that the market for best brands of Canadian bacon continued to keep firm, although the quotations had declined about 2s to 2s 6d per cwt. Since the above was received, however, there has been a slight recovery in the market, and the quotations are now 2s 6d per cwt. The demand for Canadian keeps on the increase.

CATTLE FOR THE STATES.
United States buyers are actively buying up all the cattle they can secure in the Huntingdon section and in other parts of the Eastern Townships. They are taking all kinds of stock from calves up to three-year-old steers and heifers, as well as dry cows for stockers. They are saying that the Americans are paying better prices than they can get by shipping the animals to Montreal. It is reported that some of these herds have crossed the boundary line by the underground railway.

SYNDICATE SYSTEM IN QUEBEC.
Emile Castel, secretary of the Quebec Dairyman's Association, says the system of syndicate cheese factories works well in Quebec. There are about 27 syndicates in the province, each comprising from 15 to 35 factories. The total number of syndicate factories and creameries is about 400. Each syndicate receives a grant of $250 from the government to help pay expenses, and the operations of the factories are directed by a central instructor. There are two general inspectors who superintend the work of the local officers, the object being to secure as far as possible uniformity in the quality and appearance of cheese and butter. A special officer has been sent to the district below Quebec to try and introduce the syndicate system among the numerous small factories which exist there.

A Staff of Skilled Physicians on Duty From 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.—No Matter What Your Disease, Munyon Has a Specific Cure for It.

Mr. Richard Thompson.
15 Wellington street, London, Ont., says: "For three years I suffered greatly with rheumatism. The pains were so intense at times that I would almost drop from the excruciating agony which I suffered. It was only with the greatest difficulty that I followed my usual employment as a painter. I tried many physicians, and nearly every known remedy, but without success and without any permanent relief. A year ago I was persuaded to try Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. I did so without any hope of real benefit at the time. Contrary to my expectations, however, after giving the remedy a trial, I found, to my unbounded joy, immediate relief, and after the use of only three bottles of this wonderful Cure, I was completely restored to health. At my advanced age of 54 years, my recovery, after so much suffering, seems nothing short of marvelous. Rheumatism sufferers should consult Munyon, for he can cure them."

Cured By Mail.
If in doubt as to the nature of your disease, write to Prof. Munyon, 11 and 13, Albert street, Toronto, for medical advice, which is absolutely free.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC:

Beware of imitators who are copying our advertisements, appropriating our remedies and to the people of Ontario a year ago. You can easily distinguish between the original and the imitation. London, Saturday, October 9, 1897.

Now Let Sir Wilfrid Have a Rest.

Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier returned to Ottawa yesterday from Toronto. The Premier's time has been much taken up since he came back from Great Britain in responding to invitations to attend demonstrations in his honor. Wherever he has gone he has been received with the greatest enthusiasm, and the eminently satisfactory manner in which he represented Canada at the Jubilee of her Majesty has been recognized by all sections of the community. It has been freely conceded that no one that could have been chosen could have more fully set forth Canada's position, resources and aspirations than Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It has been recognized that with his advent in Great Britain, with a Message to the heart of the British people that at once seized their attention, and has since held it, a new era in the history of this auxiliary kingdom of Great Britain was inaugurated, from which results momentous in importance and in benefit to the whole people are certain to flow.

The Premier has not exhausted his opportunities to meet with and receive honor at the hands of his fellow-countrymen. From this London of the new world, from every center of population, have been sent to him invitations, but to all except a comparatively few the reply has been that for the present public business prevents the Premier from absenting himself from his official duties. The Premier exhibits wisdom. The public will concede that not only has he an arduous task before him in preparing for the coming meeting of Parliament, in devising new and better means for advancing the interests of this growing country, but, if he would wear well, he must take care not to overtax his physical strength. No man can be the center of such demonstrations as have been meted out to Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Quebec, Montreal, Halifax, Ottawa and Toronto, without experiencing fatigue. That is in the very nature of things. But with his return to the routine of official business at the capital, Sir Wilfrid will renew his strength, and be able by-and-by to visit other centers of population throughout the Dominion, and receive that welcome which his great talents and labors for the welfare of his native land will always command.

The Duke and Duchess of York had a pleasant time at Guisachan, Scotland, where they were the guests of Lord and Lady Tweedmouth. One day his royal highness was out deer-stalking in Guisachan Forest, but was unsuccessful. Lord Tweedmouth is brother of Lady Aberdeen. It was at Guisachan where Lord Aberdeen first met his future wife.

A Canadian Agent at Washington.

Much discussion has taken place about the decision of the British Government not to consent to the admission of Japan and Russia as parties to the proposed conference on the Bering seal fisheries dispute. It has been asserted, and we believe it is true, that the British authorities take this ground at the instance of the Canadian Government, which has good grounds for its attitude. In this respecting Canadian sentiment, the British Government demonstrates conclusively, as the London Standard points out, that in recent times a radical departure has been effected in British policy. No longer does the British Government regard the differences between a colony and a foreign state as of small importance. It is of vital interest to the imperial authorities, and as Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain says, it is now the policy of the motherland that in all matters where colonial sentiment does not clash with imperial interests it shall predominate. That certainly places a nation like Canada in a self-respecting position. How important, therefore, it is that we should at all times be able to make our influence felt at the earliest possible moment in sustaining our position in disputes that may arise. No doubt the British Ambassador at Washington does his best to serve this portion of the empire. But he has many matters to look after other than purely Canadian interests. What we need at Washington is a Canadian agent—a wide-awake, yet cautious, judicious, conciliatory Canadian—who will watch over, weigh, and promptly report to his Government on all questions arising or threatening to arise, which may affect the vast and intricate relations of this country with the neighboring republic. The sooner such a representative is appointed the better. No more important question could occupy the attention of Parliament at its next sitting.

The September returns of Canadian exports of produce to Britain show a very substantial increase. The new policy of Canada is having its effect.

Major Sam's Army.

Mr. Samuel Hughes, M.P., having resolved to advertise his prowess as a warrior, has offered a battalion for British service anywhere in the world. It is believed that on the receipt of this intelligence, the sanguinary Afridis and Orakzais on the borders of India will in terror flee to the mountains of Hepzadam. The Toronto Register asserts that the field chosen by Major Samuel is Egypt, and that he will proceed to the scene of conflict so soon as the Red Sea freezes over!

It has been well said that about the safest place for anyone in Great Britain is a railway train. During last year, according to the Government returns, there were 1,006 persons killed and 5,577 injured on the British railroads, 93 of the killed being passengers and 447 employees. The total number of passengers carried that year, exclusive of season-ticket holders, was 590,229,677, so that the proportion of passengers killed was 1 in 10,541,287.

The Story of Mr. Chamberlain and a Pair of Tongs.

Everybody remembers Mr. Chamberlain's observation with respect to the conference of Premiers, in which he said that however anxious he might have been to give the colonies a preference, the opposition from Canada—that is, from Sir Wilfrid Laurier—and from New South Wales was such that he would not touch the question again, at all events, for the present, with a pair of tongs—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Some time ago we challenged the Opposition press of Canada to give the day and date upon which the British Colonial Secretary made this declaration with which our contemporary again credits him. The assertion does not appear in any reported public utterance of the statesman named, nor in any official document to which he has put his signature. The probability is that the right honorable gentleman made no such declaration. If he believes in giving the British auxiliary kingdoms a preference in the Motherland, as an acknowledgment for a tariff like that of Canada, which is fixed to give to British goods imported into the Dominion a decided advantage over those imported from foreign countries, Mr. Chamberlain can be relied on to at an early date begin a campaign for the conversion of his fellow citizens to the idea.

Neither Canada nor any other outlying portion of the Dominion will raise a finger to prevent the British people from imposing a tax on grain or other food products imported into the Motherland from countries outside the British family circle. That point Premier Laurier made clear in his speech at the Toronto Board of Trade banquet. He knows—all practical statesmen, whether British or Canadian, know—that before the British people will effect a revolution in their trade policy, they will have to be educated as to their duty to themselves and to their fellow subjects living outside the British Isles. Mr. Laurier recognized this. His government forced a great advance when, through its preferential tariff scheme, it was enabled to prove the necessity for the immediate removal of the barriers to closer trade between the Motherland and the colonies imposed by the restrictions of the German and Belgian treaties. First, the Canadian Premier convinced his fellow Premiers from other portions of the Empire of the justice and propriety of the step, and then they unitedly convinced the British Government. That was a great step forward. It removed the barriers to preferential trade. But who will say that even this reform so necessary to the carrying out of Canada's new policy, would here have been possible if the Premier of the Dominion had followed the advice of his political opponents, and had stipulated that no advance was acceptable to the people of Canada which did not provide that the British should immediately tax all foreign breadstuffs for our benefit? Mr. Chamberlain could not have acceded to such a demand, even if Sir Wilfrid Laurier had foolishly made the demand. The people of Britain would first have to be reckoned with.

Knowing all these facts, we do not believe that Mr. Chamberlain exhibited the bad temper and indulged in the hot language attributed to him by the Toronto Opposition organ. But of this the British people can rest assured, everyone in Canada is ready to accept any preferential treatment at the hands of the mother country which they may devise. There are of course many ways that this can be done without waiting for a tax on foodstuffs. The British Government could vastly help Canadian interests, and incidentally provide work and homes for the unemployed on our vacant lands, by stipulating that the supplies for its army and navy, now bought from our United States neighbors, should be purchased in this part of the British Empire. Such a preference could be easily carried out. Will our Toronto contemporary help us to secure the approbation of the British authorities to this appropriate balance to the Canadian preferential tariff that will be in full force as soon as the year's grace for the German and Belgian treaties expires next summer?

Ocean steamship companies now provide almost every luxury that can contribute to the comfort of their patrons. We have not seen that any of the steamers yet supply a bicycle track, but if they come to lengthen and broaden as they have been doing in recent years, we may expect them to come to that.

Heads of Provinces.

The Lieutenant-Governors in a number of the Provinces will have to be filled by the Dominion Government at an early date. The Premier Province of Ontario will have for its chief executive Sir Oliver Mowat, who retires from the Ministry of Justice in order that he may represent her Majesty in the Government of Ontario. The term of Sir Adolphe Chapleau does not end till next December, and there is speculation as to whether or not he will retire, or have his tenure of office enlarged for a time. It is a matter for the Ministry to settle as it deems wise. In Nova Scotia, Hon. Mr. Daly entered on his second term of five years in July, 1895. Hon. Mr. McLeish is the Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick. He is the first appointee of the new Administration at Ottawa, and he took office last January. The Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba is Hon. J. C. Patterson, who was appointed September, 1895. In British Columbia, Hon. Edgar Dewdney ends his term next month. Not till 1899 will there be a vacancy in the Lieutenant-Governorship of Prince Edward Island in the usual course. Hon. G. W. Howland is the incumbent. Hon. C. H. Mackintosh, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Northwest Territories, could hold office till Nov. 1, 1898, but he has given notice that he will retire in January next. It is understood that he has been offered a good position as Canadian head of an English gold mining company.

Canada's export trade in cattle increased from 78,356 in the first nine months of 1896 to 107,338 in the similar period of the present year. This shows the benefits which resulted from the removal of unnecessary quarantine restrictions effected by the present Government at Ottawa.

A NOTEWORTHY ANNIVERSARY.

It will be 92 years on the 21st inst. since the greatest of all naval captains, the battle of Trafalgar, was fought and won, saving Great Britain from a threatened invasion by the French, and paving the way for the subsequent solidification and great expansion of the British Empire. Nelson died, but not until he knew that victory had been achieved, and had made his name immortal. If Trafalgar had never been fought Nelson would still have been famous, for he had already won the battles of the Nile and Copenhagen; but Trafalgar was necessary to the literal fulfillment of that prophecy he had made in the days of his neglect: "Never mind. One day I will have a Gazette of my own." The fleet under his command consisted of 27 sail of the line, four frigates, one schooner, and one cutter; that of the enemy of 33 sail of the line, five frigates and two brigs, and the largest of the enemy's ships carried considerably more guns than the largest of the British. The completeness of the victory is shown by the fact that the British captured nineteen of the enemy's vessels. Nelson, who was the son of an English clergyman, is described as having been a man of small, frail and attenuated frame, which seemed to contrast but poorly with the daring and impetuous spirit which "stirred and lifted him to high attempts." The anniversary of the battle will be celebrated in London by the decoration of the Nelson column in Trafalgar Square by the Navy League, and there will be unofficial demonstrations on the part of the navy in all parts of the world where the British flag floats.

A Hardware Store Broken Into—Sold Attempt to Snatch $80.

St. Thomas, Oct. 9.—The hardware store of John Martin, at Rodney, was broken into early yesterday morning by thieves and a quantity of cutlery, three guns and a revolver stolen.

The thieves entered the workshop by a window, then bored through the door next to the store, inserted a hand and drew the bolt. Mr. Martin estimates his loss at $80.

They next made an entrance into the store of Mintie Bros. & Co., stole some cash that was left in the till and other articles. Constable Stoller is on the track of the robbers and expects to arrest them shortly.

NEAR MIDDLEMARCH.

Thursday night about 10 o'clock two men attempted to enter the residence of Frank Hobson, who resides near Middlemarch, but the attempt was a failure. Mr. Hobson sold a quantity of wheat in the city, and when he got home had $80. He had the money on the table counting it and on looking up saw two men at the window. All the doors were fastened, and although the men endeavored to break in the door they didn't succeed.

Shortly afterwards Mr. Hobson went into the yard and came across one of the men, but he ran off. The police have been notified.

1,000 FAMILIES.

The Salvation Army Will Place Them in Arkansas Valley.

Denver, Col., Oct. 9.—Thomas Holland, national secretary of the Salvation Army, leaves for New York today. Commander Booth-Tucker will hold a conference with capitalists in New York, Oct. 18, when the last details of the proposed colony will be arranged. It is now definitely stated, however, that 1,000 families will be placed in the Arkansas Valley.

WANTS MARLBOROUGH HOUSE

Young Duchess Consuelo Desires to Recover the House Now Occupied by the Prince and Princess of Wales.

[London Mail.]

The Duchess of Marlborough has a new ambition. She aims not only at restoring Blenheim to its pristine splendor, but also to restoring to her husband and his heirs the London home which was theirs for many generations.

In other words she has conceived the daring project of winning back Marlborough House from royal control, and placing it once more in the hands of the Spencer-Churchills.

The magnitude of the task to which she has set herself may be estimated when one recognizes that Marlborough House has been the town residence of the Prince of Wales, and that the heir apparent has conceived the idea of making it his home.

But wealth, tact and social influence can accomplish wonders, and the abandonment of his town house by a Prince of Wales in favor of a subject with reasonable claims for its possession.

Marlborough House was built by Sarah, the first and greatest duchess of Marlborough, in the days of the old friary. A stipulation in the original lease was to the effect that the friary gardens should not be built over. For this reason the gardens, although in London's very heart, remain to this day spacious and productive.

The Marlboroughs lived in Marlborough House from the days of the great duchess down to the first decade of the present century, when the successive heavy losses of the then duke and his son, Lord Blandford, caused the family to part with it in order that Blenheim might be saved.

Royalty at once leased the house for Prince Leopold, husband of the ill-fated heiress of George IV. In 1831 the Queen Dowager Adelaide went to live there, and in 1863 the present Queen assigned it to the newly-married Prince and Princess of Wales as their private establishment.

The structure was much enlarged and improved on this occasion, so that should Duchess Consuelo succeed in regaining this lost gem of the Marlborough coronet, she will find it far more suitable to modern requirements than it was when fortune, the fickle, caused it to pass away from the house of Spencer-Churchill.

The chief authority for the rumor of the Duchess of Marlborough's intentions in regard to the house is a well-known London paper, whose name has long been a household word for his skill and ingenuity in managing the most delicate affairs.

IDEAL PROSPERITY.

"My idea of prosperity," said the statesman, "is so high that I feel confident that it will never be attained."

"That is too bad," said the sympathetic listener. "What is your idea?"

"That every man shall be so busy that he won't have time to seek office."

Barley, per bu. 32c to 34c
Rye, per bu. 32c to 34c
Clover, per bu. 32c to 34c
Hay, per ton 10c to 12c

Today's session was quite a busy one. Wheat, oats, rye and buckwheat were the main receipts. Prices for all were steady but rye, which sold down 50c to 60c being the price.

Butter and eggs were steady, and in good demand. The range for eggs was 12c to 18c, according to the quality and circumstances of transaction. Butter went at 16c to 20c per pound.

Chickens were very plentiful, at 40c to 50c per pair. Some sold at 60c. Ducks were easier, at 50c to 70c. Mutton quiet; prices steady and unchanged.

Apples were offered more freely, though even today they were not as plentiful as last week. Apples would be called scarce; sales at 10c to 20c per bushel. Apples, 10c to 20c; peaches, 10c to 20c; grapes, 10c to 20c.

Grapes steady, at 10c to 20c, according to kind and quantity. Peas steady. Potatoes firm, and offerings moderate. Potatoes were plentiful at 70c to 80c a bag, and sold only moderately well.

Cabbages brought 50c to 60c a dozen; cauliflowers, 25c to 30c. Squashes ranged from 10c to 15c, according to size and quality. Tomatoes steady at 50c to 60c a bushel.

Hay sold at 10c to 12c per ton. Live hogs were much easier, 5c to 10c; mostly 5c was paid. Live ducks and chickens were easy. Little pigs active at 4c to 5c; extra demand.

The rest of the list was unchanged; general trade good. Quotations:

The Investment of Funds.
"The investment powers of the North American Life were recently greatly enlarged, which no doubt will help materially to swell the already large realized profits heretofore earned by this solid Home Company, and add to its popularity as a policy-holder's company. The company can invest its funds in or on all classes of debentures, bonds, stocks or other securities of the Dominion or in any of its provinces or municipalities, as well as of well-established loan companies. It can also invest in or on the stocks and debentures of waterworks, gas, electric light or power, electric railway or telegraph companies incorporated in Canada. It has also power to buy its own policies as well as those of other companies or to make loans upon the same. This company regards the latter class of security as among the best, although there are many of the large foreign companies which do not buy or lend upon policies."—Monetary Times. In the Dining-Room.

SUNDAY, OCT. 10.
BREAKFAST—Grapes, Scrambled eggs, Bacon, Corn bread, Coffee.
LUNCHEON—Scalloped white-fish, Cucumbers, Bread and butter, Baked pears.
DINNER—Cream of barley, Baked ham, Spinach, Sweet potatoes in molasses, Rennet custard.

Cut out these recipes and paste them in a scrap-book.

Grapes should be laid in very cold water for a little time before serving; drained and piled up prettily in some odd dish.

Corn Bread—Put one pint of cornmeal in a bowl; add two tablespoonsful of brown sugar and three tablespoonsful of flour; then put into the center two tablespoonsful of butter and pour over the butter a half-pint of scalded milk. Beat up well; then add another half-pint of cold milk and two even teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a small teaspoonful of salt, and sugar and cream. Pour into greased gem pans and bake in a hot oven 20 minutes.

Coffee—Put into a French coffee-pot one heaping tablespoonful of ground coffee for each person; pour over it very slowly one cupful of water, boiling hot, for each spoonful of coffee.

Baked Pears—Fill a moderate-sized bakin dish with whole pears, ripe, but do not remove the stems. Pour around them one large cup of light-brown sugar, bake slowly until the pears are tender, basting frequently with the liquor. Serve cold, with sugar and cream.

Cream of Barley—Scald two tablespoonfuls of barley, drain, cover with fresh boiling water and boil three hours. Strain. Put one pint of milk and one pint of veal stock on to boil; add the barley, salt and pepper to taste. Beat two yolks lightly; pour them into soup tureen, pour over the boiling soup and serve at once.

Baked Ham—Wash the ham well in cold water. Put into large boiler nearly filled with cold water, add six cloves and a bay leaf. Place it over a slow fire, that it may heat gradually. Simmer gently fifteen minutes to every pound, skimming carefully from time to time. Allow it to cool in the liquor, then remove the rind carefully. Brush it over with a beaten egg and sprinkle with bread-crumbs. Place in a quick oven for about fifteen minutes to brown. Serve hot.

Sweet Potatoes in Molasses—Boil two pounds of sweet potatoes until they can be peeled, then put them into a pan or dish, grate a little butter over the top, lastly stir gently one tablespoonful of rennet through the mixture, stand in the kitchen until it thickens, when it should be placed in the ice-chest until very cold. This pudding should be made about an hour and a half before serving. The rennet (liquid) may be bought of a druggist. 25 cents a bottle, which if kept in a cool place, will last a great while. Sweetened and flavored cream as a sauce is of course an improvement.

—All Saints' Chapel, Hamilton road, was tastefully decorated last night with fruit, flowers and cereals in token of the annual thanksgiving service. Ven. Archdeacon Davis preached the sermon, which was based upon Christ's interview with the Samaritan, and was very appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Canon Richardson and Rev. J. W. Ten Eyck assisted in the service. The choir rendered excellent music, Mr. Robert McElheran singing the solo.

—Many readers of The Advertiser will regret to hear of the death of Mr. Wm. Reynolds, general superintendent of the International Sunday School Association of North America, who spoke so ably and earnestly at a late anniversary of the Dundas Street Methodist Sunday school. In 1887 Mr. Reynolds gave up his prosperous business, at the request of the international executive, to devote his entire time to the interests of Sunday school work in the States and Canada. When here he was in the best of health, and seemed to be good for many years in the work he liked so well, but it has been willed otherwise.

—Mr. E. R. McCormick, of Kamsloops, B. C., was united in marriage on Thursday evening to Miss Annie Strangeman, daughter of Mrs. Strangeman, of Lichfield street. The wedding, which was a private nature, was performed by Rev. Canon Smith, and at the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McCormick repaired to the residence of the groom's uncle, Mr. Andrew McCormick, Simcoe street, where they spent a pleasant hour with their friends. They afterwards left on a short trip prior to taking up their residence at Kamsloops. Mr. McCormick, who occupies a prominent position on the C. P. R., there, is a son of Mr. Wm. McCormick, of Richmond street.

—The West Lorne Pilot records the death of Annie E., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Westcott, and wife of Mr. Alex. McIntosh, of London. For many years the deceased had been in poor health, and it was generally thought by many friends that her life would not be prolonged for any great length of time. For the last few months she has been under the care of her parents and brother, who did everything possible to alleviate her suffering and to cheer and comfort her in her last days on earth.

Death came on Sunday, at the age of 29 years, and a funeral that took place from the family residence, the McColl cemetery, Eagle, on Wednesday, a short service being conducted at the house and the grave by Rev. W. Fansher, resident Methodist minister. A large number of friends of the neighborhood gathered at the house, and many followed the remains to the place of interment.

The Catholic Club.

Mr. John O. Dromgole Unanimously Chosen President.

Election of Officers—Another Year of Promised Prosperity—The Popular Retiring President.

The election of officers took place at the Catholic Club last evening at a largely attended meeting, and each successful candidate was warmly applauded as the result of the balloting was made known. Mr. John O. Dromgole was elected Mr. P. J. Murphy's successor to the president's chair by acclamation. The other officers are: First Vice-President—James McDougall; Second Vice-President—Joseph Costello; Treasurer—Rev. Father Noonan (re-elected by acclamation); Secretary—John Loughlin (re-elected by acclamation); Secretary of committees—James Leach (acclamation); Executive Committee—J. P. Murray, Ed Ryan, C. O. Wright, J. McDonald and James Connor; Auditors—P. F. Boyle and O. Labelle. Brief, happy addresses were given by the retiring president, Mr. Murphy, and the newly-elected officers.

One of the most agreeable features of the evening was an essay, read by Mr. John Dromgole on Canada. It was the first of a series, and treated of the discovery and early history of our two lands. Other features of the programme were a vocal solo by M. O'Hagan, and an address by John Burns. At the next meeting of the club on Friday, Oct. 15, a debate on the future destiny of Canada will be held.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Notes of Interest From the Stage—A Local Musical Treat.

Lillian Lewis closed her Southern tour last week and is now playing at Brooklyn, N. Y.

J. M. Barrie, author of "The Little Minister," met with an accident at the Haymarket Theatre, London, England, on Oct. 4, while he was directing a rehearsal of a comedy. A handrail against which his chair was leaning broke and precipitated Mr. Barrie into the stalls. He was unconscious for some time, but it is believed he has sustained no serious injury.

Thatcher, Primrose and West have two musical companies on the road this year under their names. Tom Shea and Emma Fields, of Marks Bros. Company, were recently married at West Superior, Wis.

Bessie Bonnell's Monte Cristo Company, which played in Toronto during the fair week, disbanded at Troy, N. Y., Oct. 1.

Geo. Walton, who has been playing "Skipped by the Light of the Moon" in England, arrived in America on Monday last. "The New Wing," which has been playing Guelph, Berlin and other Western Ontario towns, closed at St. Thomas on Friday last. "The Heart of the Klondike" is the name of a play to be produced shortly at the Star Theatre, New York. Julia Arthur and her company left Detroit, where they were burned out, for New York. An order has gone forward for new scenery, costumes and properties and assurance is given that "A Lady of Quality" will open at Wallack's Theatre in New York, on Nov. 1.

The Lilliputians have been fifteen years on the road as an organization so named.

Ed. H. Southern will play Claude Melnotte in "The Lady of Lyons." Joseph Proctor, actor, is dead at 51 years of age. He was a native of Massachusetts, and his retirement from the stage made Boston his home. He often played Othello to the rage of Julius Brutus Booth, later to the Othello of Forrest, Macbeth, Lear, Virginia, Richelieu and Jack Cade, his son. Annie E. Proctor, survives him.

A LOCAL TREAT.

A rich treat is in store for lovers of high class music in a recital that is to be given in Association Hall, on the evening of Nov. 26, when the famous Danish pianist, Mr. August Hylsted, will make his first appearance in London. The New York Musical Courier, in introducing this artist to the New York public, said: "Of course, royalty cannot make or destroy genius, but it is certainly an aid to it. Hylsted is a pianist, a musician when people who hear everything of the best show him marks of special admiration. He is a well-known fact that the Princess of Wales attended his concert in London. He has also been invited to Marlborough House, and has received charming souvenirs from host and hostess. He has visited for weeks at the home of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, when the former was lord high commissioner of Scotland. Last year, by the course of a concert tour King Christian of Denmark called him to the Castle of Amalienburg, and he was long and graciously with the pianist, long and graciously with the pianist, long and graciously with the pianist.

SPORT AT THE KENNELS.
London Hunt Entertain the Township Farmers—A Series of Games.

The rain yesterday did not frighten the London township friends of the London Hunt. About 150 of them assembled at the kennels and enjoyed the Hunt's hospitality, which was meted out liberally. The Italian harpers supplied music, and refreshments in plenty were served in a large marquee, under the care of the stewardess, Mrs. Smith. The sports were held in a drizzle, but this did not bother the contestants in the least.

The first event was a flat race, twice around the course. The winners were: J. Guest, 1. J. J. Breen, 2. James Anderson, 3. Also ran—L. Dyre and R. Gough. The second was a potato race, resulting as follows: T. Dyre, 1. and Breen, 2. J. Guest, Chas. O'Brien, Al. Mitchell and L. Dyre also ran. The novelty race, which included the

SPORT AT THE KENNELS.
London Hunt Entertain the Township Farmers—A Series of Games.

The rain yesterday did not frighten the London township friends of the London Hunt. About 150 of them assembled at the kennels and enjoyed the Hunt's hospitality, which was meted out liberally. The Italian harpers supplied music, and refreshments in plenty were served in a large marquee, under the care of the stewardess, Mrs. Smith. The sports were held in a drizzle, but this did not bother the contestants in the least.

The first event was a flat race, twice around the course. The winners were: J. Guest, 1. J. J. Breen, 2. James Anderson, 3. Also ran—L. Dyre and R. Gough. The second was a potato race, resulting as follows: T. Dyre, 1. and Breen, 2. J. Guest, Chas. O'Brien, Al. Mitchell and L. Dyre also ran. The novelty race, which included the

END OF TOWSER THE DRUNKARD.

A Dissipated Dog Killed on the Railway While Under the Influence of Beer.

[St. Louis Republic.]
"Towler," the tramp dog, who was known to almost every East St. Louisan, is no more. His met his death yesterday afternoon beneath the wheels of a switch engine near the railway depot, East St. Louis. His remains were buried on the lot east of the Marshall House.

"Towler" was about 7 years old and was a confirmed drunkard. He was well known to every saloon keeper in East St. Louis, and especially to the saloonists on the island. He drifted into East St. Louis from some point, and was a favorite with the saloonists, who were then quite young. One evening, as some of the men were drinking beer after their day's work, it was suggested that the dog be given a taste. An old can was procured and some of the beer poured in. The dog smelled it, tasted it, and in a few seconds had lapped it up. He then looked up at the men with pleading eyes that seemed to say, "I would like more, please." He was given more, and since then has always demanded his share of the beer. At times the men would ignore the dog's whines, but then he would jump in the air and bark until he received his drink. He also insisted upon getting a drink of each can, and as a result was frequently drunk. He had a small can that one of the machinists made for him, out of which he drank his beer. This can he was taught to hide and get when the beer time came.

He soon learned to go to the saloons for his beer, and when thirsty would desperately turn from water if it were offered him, and go to a saloon. He was very friendly to the barkeepers, and they in turn always gave him all of the malted liquor he wanted. For the last year he had been on one continual spree. At times he would even drink whiskey.

Yesterday afternoon, after making the rounds of several saloons and getting more beer than he could stand, he wended his way to where he thought he would meet some of his old railroad friends who would take care of him until he sobered up. Crossing the tracks at the relay depot he did not notice a swiftly approaching switch engine. He was in the center of the tracks before he became aware that there was such a thing on earth as an engine. It was then too late. The wheels of the engine passed over him, and he was killed. The two Towser's body, cutting him in two. Some of the switchmen gathered up the dog's remains and buried them in the evening.

Cured Weak Back for 55c.
For two years I was dosed, pilled and plastered for weak back, scolding urine and constipation. I took two boxes of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, relieved, three boxes cured. R. J. Sch. Toronto. One pill a dose, price 25 cents.

Granted $300.

The City Council Aids the East- ern Ontario Fire Sufferers.

A Unanimous Vote—2,000 People Homeless.

The city council held a special meeting last night to consider the question of aiding the Russell and Prescott county fire sufferers. Mayor Little announced that he had received a telegram the previous night, signed by Mayor Bingham, of Ottawa, W. C. Edwards, M.P., and Isadore Proulx, M.P., in which they stated that the fire had ravaged 200 square miles of Russell and Prescott counties, rendering 2,000 people homeless and in want. A strong central committee had been formed in Ottawa to dispense assistance, which was asked for by the city.

Ald. Farnell moved that the mayor be authorized to give $300 to the relief committee and to issue a resolution to the citizens stating the facts, and announcing that the city treasurer would receive and forward any sums handed him for the purpose. Ald. O'Meara favored the motion, particularly as the distress was in their own country. Ald. Farnell said the city had granted aid for sufferers in other countries, and the present distress being in their own province, appealed more forcibly to their charity.

Ald. Taylor also spoke in favor of the motion. He had never heard of a taxpayer grumble about such expenditures. The motion carried unanimously. There were present: Mayor Little and aldermen Taylor, Rumball, Douglas, O'Meara, Stevely, Cooper, Hunt, Turner, Drenay, Bennett, Watkins, Farnell and Gerry.

Another School.

A Two-Room Frame On. Recommended for the North End.

Mr. Fred Bryant recommended as Principal of the Colborne Street School—London West.

Pupils' fees.

No. 1 committee of the board of education, at its regular meeting last night, discussed the advisability of a change in the teaching staff of the Colborne street school, where Miss Coyne, who has been a faithful servant of the board for 34 years, occupies the position of principal.

Trustee Logan was not in favor of any change at present.

Dr. English moved that a gentleman principal's appointment be recommended to the board, to take effect on Jan. 1, 1898. This carried.

Dr. Wilson then moved that Mr. Bryant be appointed, and that all the teachers in the Colborne street school, from senior fourth to junior second inclusive, be reduced one grade, salaries to remain the same. This also carried.

Trustee Macpherson wanted to know if the appointment of a principal and the reduction in the grade would not displace one teacher.

The inspector pointed out that when the change took place two teachers would be required for the new Colborne street south school. Miss Trotter could then take Miss Sutton's place at St. George's school, Miss Sutton to be transferred to the north end, and one of the two teachers. This met with the full approval of the committee.

The question of the new principal's salary was taken up, much against the wish of some members.

Mr. Logan moved that since the appointment had been made, $300 be paid to the school for the month of 1898.

Mr. Greenies moved that a fee of $700, and the question went to a vote, and Mr. Logan's motion carried.

Mr. Macpherson—What was the extent of the salaries?

No one seemed to know, and Miss Cannon was asked to explain.

The young lady admitted being two minutes late for four mornings, getting to school thirteen minutes to nine instead of fifteen minutes to nine. She was sorry she could offer no other excuse than that of living too near the school. She thought teachers who lived too near were more liable to be one or two minutes late than those who lived further away.

The committee took a humorous view of this, and asked Miss Cannon to be punctual in future, which she promised to do.

Dr. Treadwell spoke for Miss Thacker, who was also charged with being two minutes late.

The committee decided not to charge a fee for pupils attending the Collegiate, who were under the guardianship of the following gentlemen: Alan McLean, Col. Robert Lewis, Rev. W. J. Clark, Alf. A. Booker, and John Campbell.

Mr. Richard Bayly appeared before the committee in reference to the fees of the London West pupils, who are at present attending the Collegiate, as the village was now practically part of the city.

Mr. Greenies and Mr. Macpherson thought there was no reason for such a move, and that London West pupils were as much non-residents of the city as the pupils in any other portion of the county.

It was decided to collect the fees for September and October, and after that to consider pupils from London West as resident ones.

The matter of Rev. Mr. Harris' children was an exceptional case, as he was transferred to London West after having paid for school privileges, and after Dec. 20 he would again be a citizen. The fees in his case were remitted.

Dr. Wilson and Inspector Carson had nothing new to report about the question of securing the mission on Richmond street north, which is under the supervision of Rev. P. Daniel, for public school purposes.

Dr. Wilson thought that as the board owned a good lot near the Aged People's Home, it would be just as economical to build a new school.

A motion passed recommending the board to erect a two-room frame school on the vacant lot.

Miss Rose Heburn's application to be placed on the substitute staff was referred to the inspector, and on motion the committee decided to recommend the placing of Miss Leggett and Miss Piewes on the list of substitute teachers.

The members present were: Trustees Dr. Treadwell (chairman), Dr. English, W. Wilson, Joseph, Johnstone, Macpherson, Greenies, Bridle, Logan, Principal Merchant and Inspector Carson.

Thorndale Fair.

The Attendance Spoiled by Miserable Weather.

Though Exhibits Were Up to the Usual Mark—The List of Winners.

The rain came down just in time to spoil the usual good attendance at the Thorndale Fair yesterday afternoon, though it did not affect the number of entries, which were about equal with those of last season. The directors have consolation in knowing that, while the rain militated against the exhibition, it will vastly benefit the farmers through the whole country.

WOMAN AND THE WORLD

The Ideal Hostess.

She must make you feel individually that you are the favored guest. She must make you feel perfectly at home. She must see everything, and yet possess the art of seeming to see nothing. She must never look bored. She must know how to get congenial people together. She must know how to keep conversation always going. She must never let anyone be slighted or overlooked. She must know when to ask the amateur musician to display his or her talents. She must be perfectly unselfish about her own pleasures. She must remember that nothing is so tiresome, so surely death to all enjoyment, as the feeling that one is being entertained.

Tidiness.

In days gone by, before the new woman appeared upon the scene of action, girls were rightly taught the good old-fashioned principle of tidiness. "Neatness" hardly expresses the meaning as well as does the quaint, old-time word. To be "tidy," Webster tells us, to be arranged in good order; neat, kept in proper and becoming tidiness. Nowadays girls are neat to a certain extent, and in a certain way. They bathe freely, and become clean; but are they tidy? Frequently they are not. Their hair is often loose and prone to tumble down; their gloves are sometimes ripped at the finger-tips, and one or two buttons are lacking from their boots. The collar is often fastened on with an ordinary pin that is very obvious; and the veil has occasionally a hole over the nose or chin. Our girl is charming, but is she as careful as she should be? The other day (says an American writer) I was making a morning call at a friend's house, and there met another caller, a woman who made a most agreeable impression upon me. She was not elaborately dressed, but her black tulle gown fitted her well, and there was not a spot or a speck of dust on it. I knew that it had been brushed carefully before she left her room. Her linen collar and cuffs were snowy white, and did not show the least of her proper places. Her gloves did not wrinkle, but buttoned smoothly over the wrist; her shoes were like the rest of her attire—dainty, her bonnet rested firmly and straight on soft brown hair that, while wavy and fluffy, was neatly dressed. A thin veil covered a fresh complexion and bright face. The tout ensemble gave one the idea of daintiness and delicate finish. In speaking of this woman afterwards to a man who knows her, I said: "There is something about her appearance that charms one. What is the secret?" "I will tell you," he said. "She is a well-groomed woman. There are never any rough or loose ends about her. 'You mean that she is tidy,' I said to him. 'You call it tidy,' I say well-groomed. We both mean the same thing." However one may express it, in sporting terms or with the old-fashioned word—tidiness is the condition not worth striving for? Nothing is so detrimental to the fascination of beauty or personal charm as the lack of this quality.—The Woman.

Men as Kitchen Maids.

It is an interesting development of the woman suffrage agitation that Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal, Boston, is devoting a good deal of her time and attention to finding situations for men as kitchen maids. She says that the chief difficulty she meets in the way of getting housework for her proteges to do is the conservatism of women. In her experience there are always more young men willing to take domestic service than there are female housewives willing to give them a trial. She affirms that it is as hard to convince some women that a man can do housework as it is to convince some men that a woman can be a principal of a public school. But, she continues, the women who venture upon the new departure are sometimes rewarded by finding in it a perfect solution of the vexed domestic problem. Mrs. Isabel C. Barrows, who is one of the innovators, proclaims that the young man now doing her housework is a help to her, and has had 19 years. The man giving such distinguished satisfaction is a college graduate, who finds his education most useful in the kitchen. It may be necessary to explain that Miss Blackwell and Mrs. Barrows are giving themselves heart and soul to the task of finding employment for Armenian refugees. These refugees are almost all men, and when unable to find work in their trades or professions, they have, in many cases, shown their willingness to take any work they can get by going out to service. Miss Blackwell says that during the last eight months between 100 and 200 Armenians have come to situations through her assistance, and that she has yet to receive the first complaint from any employer of dishonesty or any serious misconduct, even in the case of those who proved unskilled at their work and had to be sent back. From which appears the good sense of some numbers of Armenians, as well as the oppor-

Practical Directions for the Housewife.

[Philadelphia Record.] It is well to have nice things and doubly well to know how to take care of them. The following hints will not come amiss to the careful housekeeper: Wash the linen in salt and water, look brighter. Silk handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt and water and ironed wet to look well.

Yellow spots on the linen or cotton produced by the iron may be removed by setting them in the boiling sun. Velvets should be held over the steam of boiling water and kept well stretched until the moisture has evaporated. When ammonia is used to remove stains on colored fabrics, if the color is dulled, a little weak oxalic acid will wash black stockings in weak soda, to which is added a tablespoonful of pearl ash, and the color runs. Iron on the wrong side.

An excellent starch for dark clothes, blue calicoes, etc., is made by mixing cold coffee left from breakfast, instead of pure water. Make the starch as usual.

Colored muslins should be washed in a lather of cold water. If the muslin be green add a little vinegar to the water. If blue a little ammonia, if black a little salt.

A heaped-up teaspoonful of chloride of lime mixed with one quart of water will remove mildew. Rinse the cloth in clear water as soon as all the spots have disappeared.

Black serge or cashmere dresses are improved and cleaned by being sponged with this mixture. A tablespoonful of ammonia and another of spirits of wine to three of boiling water.

For scorches in linen spread over them the juice of an onion, and a quarter ounce of white soap. The articles should be exposed to the sunlight after being saturated with the mixture. Velvet or plush that has become creased, and whose nap is matted, should be dampened on the under side with clear water. Then hold the goods tight over the face of a hot flatiron and rub the matted place with a clothes brush.

Nothing is so easily spoiled or made shabby as a veil. Instead of tossing it into a corner, or hanging it up, it should be tumbled heap until wanted again, stretch it carefully over a bit of cardboard or other stiff material, as is always done in the stores.

Black silks of every description are much benefited by having the dust removed by rubbing with a clean towel, and then sponged on the wrong side with the following mixture: A teaspoonful of soft water and seven or eight drops of liquid ammonia.

Put one ounce of oxalic acid into one pint of water; one cup of this in a bucket of water. Put your clothes into this water, stirring them all the while, and when you take them out, wring them out. This mixture will not injure the finest fabric in the slightest degree.

It is a great mistake to keep choice lace for years without washing. Many women believe that it is ruined by soap and water, and will keep some lace for ten or twenty years and, turning yellow with age and rotting with the dust it has accumulated till it really drops to pieces.

If you wish to clean a mackintosh cloak lay it flat on a board or table, brush it with a stiff brush, and then some plain yellow soap. Thoroughly brush the cloak, and the dirt will come off. Then rinse thoroughly in different sorts of cold water, and hang up to dry, not near a fire.

What Mrs. Frank Leigh Thinks About Life Assurance for Women.

Toronto, April 8, 1897. THE ONTARIO MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE CO., Waterloo, Ont. Gentlemen,—My Ten Year Endowment Policy in your company for $2,000 matured on April 1, and on April 2 I received your check for $2,017.32, the $17.32 being the profits for the last year. The profits of my policy have been applied to reduce the annual premiums. I wish to thank you for your promptitude, and to express my entire satisfaction with my investment, which yielded me (besides the insurance during the term) three per cent compound interest—that is, I received back in cash $11.54 more than I paid in premiums. I regard endowment insurance as the very best plan for systematic saving, the compulsion of paying for a premium being an adequate incentive when any voluntary plan might fail. Life Assurance on the endowment plan ought to be very popular with women, it is so easy, so satisfactory, and in a comparatively small sum, it can be made to pay for itself. Yours very sincerely, MRS. FRANK LEIGH.

Picked Up in Passing.

We find this advertisement in the columns of the British Weekly: "On salt John Wesley's First Pulpit at his first Church in Bristol, brought to Holyhead in 1829—Apply to Rev. Evans, Holyhead."

The oldest living creature in the world is said to be a giant tortoise recently removed from the Island of Aldabra, in the Indian Ocean, to London. It weighs over a ton, and has a record going back 150 years. How much longer it may have lived no one can say.

The New York Freeman's Journal hits off the nonsense of theosophists as not numerous in this country, but they are numerous enough to differ widely among themselves. There is no unifying principle in such man-made doctrines.

The Dancing Masters' Association has denounced the waltz as a romp, and bid it out of fashionable society. Lord Byron tried to ridicule it out of existence because he was a cripple. It has survived the assaults of satirists and moralists for a century—now we will see what the dancing masters can do.

The other day, at Mayence, Germany, Madame Christine Coudin celebrated her 101st birthday. She well remembers the impression which Napoleon I. made on her as a child. She is in such good health that she has since she expressed her 60-year-old son a wish to come to this country and visit her grandchildren.

It will be a comfort to bald-headed people to know that they have less chance of becoming criminals than people who have a great deal of hair on their heads, if prison records in Indiana are to be taken as a basis for general estimates. In this regard, too, these records show an unusually small number of bald-headed prisoners.

"Pilgrimages" nowadays are by no means the laborious and painful affairs that they once were. Pilgrims to a shrine at Temesvar, in Hungary, for example, recently received permission from the bishop to make the journey on bicycles. And it is even said that some of the cowboys of South Dakota are speeding their herds while mounted themselves on bicycles instead of horses. Truly, the world moves, larger and faster.

Men are but too apt to judge God by their own standards. A man in England put on the weather-vane of his barn the inscription, "God is love." Spurgeon remarked to him, "You mean to say that God's love is as changeable as the wind?" "Oh, no," said the man, "I mean that God is love which ever way the wind blows." That man was possessed of the truest, because the Christian, philosophy of life.

So Mr. Jones gave $500 to missions at his death. The question was asked of a lady pastor the other day. And the answer was: "I did not say he gave it, but that he left it; perhaps I should have more explicitly said that he relinquished $500 because he could no longer hold it." The distinction needs to be kept in mind. One gives only when living; he relinquishes at death. There is plenty of scripture commendation for giving; but none for leaving one's money to be given after death. The stiffened fingers of Death can no longer hold.

The most curious thing in the newspaper line at present in operation appears to be the material on which an enterprising editor of Madrid prints his journal. This is a kind of linen coated with a composition which is easily removable by water. When a subscriber has read the news he sends his paper to the washerwoman, and it comes back a handkerchief. Two queries, however, arise in this connection: Why is the periodical still called a "paper," and what would a subscriber with only an average amount of nose do with so many handkerchiefs?

The famous American dentist, Dr. Thomas W. Evans, who has long been resident in Paris, is now on a visit to this country. He opened his Paris office in 1846, and in time came to possess the patronage of Napoleon III, through whose friendship he gained a distinguished and lucrative practice. After Napoleon's fall, Dr. Evans saw that the Empress Eugenie was safely conducted outside of Paris, and he took her in his own carriage from seven o'clock to Calais. With the exception of Queen Victoria, Dr. Evans has attended the teeth of every sovereign in Europe.

While the astronomer is sweeping the face of the heavens with increasingly powerful lenses year by year, the explorer reaching out farther and farther toward Arctic or even Antarctic lands, the mineralogist is scrutinizing the earth with renewed interest and piercing deeper down toward its center. Prof. Wm. H. Dall, of Columbus University, for example, is directing the sinking of a shaft near Pittsburgh, by means of which he hopes to reach a depth of 10,000 feet by Nov. 1. It is expected that in this way valuable information will be obtained respecting the strata of the earth, and the comparative heat of its crust at various depths.

For Boys And Girls

A Long-Felt Want.

By Carolyn Wells.

One day wee Willie and his dog Sprayed on the nursery floor. He had a forlorn catalogue, And turned the pages o'er.

Till all at once he gave a spring. "Hurrah!" he cried with joy; "Mamma, here's just the very thing To give your little boy!"

For when we fellows go to school, We lose our things, you know; And in just little vestibule They do get mixed up so.

"And as you often say you can't Take care of 'em for us, Take care of 'em for a rubber plant And an umbrella tree!"

From St. Nicholas.

How Daisy Helped.

"Oh! there's lots of trouble in this world!" the cook said as the grocer's boy passed out of the door.

Daisy, resting in the wide, cool porch, turned her blue eyes toward the speaker.

"Who has lots of trouble, cook?" she asked.

"Lots of people," said the cook. Daisy pondered a while, her chin resting on her plump little hand. Then she said suddenly, "Do you, cook?"

"I didn't bring half the things I ordered. He says the children are all sick and the grocer's worried, so he backtill he's delivered what he's got with him; and Kathie is in the garden gathering peas, and I can't leave these cakes even to call her."

"I'll go," Daisy said, jumping up and tying her white sunbonnet. As she ran across the lawn a group of children—summer boarders like herself—called to her to join them. But she shook her head and hurried down between the long rows of peavines.

"To go to the grocer's, is it?" said Kathie, despairingly. "Ah, how I ever get peas enough for dinner."

looking quite pleasant as Daisy finished her head."

"I'll help Mrs. Verne take care of the baby," she thought; and she ran upstairs with a happy song on her lips. The mother's face brightened.

"Oh, Daisy, dear, you are like the sunshine!" she said. "Baby has been all night, and an worn out for want of sleep. Would you sit by his crib for a minute or two, while I bathe my head?"

"And then we'll take him out-doors," said Daisy eagerly. "Under the big trees it is lovely and cool! And I'll hold him while you rest in the hammock."

Ten minutes later Daisy sat rocking slowly under the trees while the baby slept quietly in her lap. The tired mother in the hammock close by had forgotten her troubles and was sleeping.

"Oh, Daisy, I never can thank you enough," Mrs. Verne said, when she came to look over Mrs. Verne's much better baby looks! And I feel so much better able to take care of him."

"I have been so worried," she added, confidentially. "You see it costs so much for us to stay here, and I was afraid to let the baby sleep away—baby was no better, and I was growing sick, too."

"There's the dinner bell," said Daisy. "Let me take care of the baby while you are eating."

"No, dear, thank you," the young mother said. "The baby is so good now. I have to dress first—and I'd rather not go now."

Daisy had an observant little girl, and she had noticed how Mrs. Verne in her worn dress shrank from observation. She did not press the point, but she had a delightful "picnic" dinner they had under the trees! Daisy's mamma was away for the day, and no scolding was to be feared. The little girl, so she and Mrs. Verne ate at their leisure, and then the young mother lay in the hammock with her baby on her arm. Daisy waited until they both slept again.

When Daisy's mamma returned and saw her little daughter's bright face she said: "What has my little girl been doing all day?"

"Helping," said Daisy. "Clearing away trouble," said Daisy. "Clearing away trouble," said Daisy. "Clearing away trouble," said Daisy.

"You are big now, why, I thought you were a little girl!" said Mrs. Verne.

"I'll bring a breeze from a cold, I'll bring a breeze from a cold, I'll bring a breeze from a cold, I'll bring a breeze from a cold."

"The fan waved high and fast— 'To pinch your nose and nip at your hand.' To freeze you asleep with icy hand. And quilt of snow that will last."

"But I like it too, dear Auntie Anne, An' to feel my feet go creep, I'll sit my eyes if your tender fan Will make our baby run off wild a man An' let poor Dorothy sleep."

Rex

It was moving time. Grandma said she could pack her trunk herself, if it was set on a chair.

"My bag isn't what it was once. You called me things, Lawrence, if you'd like."

Grandma knew it would keep him out of mischief. Rex, the very knowing dog, wanted to help also. He watched the work gravely. Pretty soon he trotted off, though the nursery whistled him back. In two minutes he came bringing in his mouth a worn-out slipper. Standing on his hind legs, he dropped it into the trunk, and barked, as if to say, "There!"

"Rex, grandma doesn't want that!" Lawrence threw it out of the window. Rex looked ashamed, but soon he went, coming back with the slipper, and again dropping it in the trunk. Then he came back with a new slipper, and an uncommon interest. All at once he dived in and brought out that same old slipper, showing its lessons for small boys. "It's a long word, but you may as well learn it now, Rex, perseverance. Try again. That's what Rex did.—New York Observer."

Bedtime.

Three little girls are weary— Weary of books and play; Sad is the world and dreary— They have no more to say. Six little feet are aching; Bowed is each little head; Yet they are up and shaking When there is mention of bed.

Bravely they laugh and chatter, Just for a minute or so, Then when they hear their clatter, Sleep comes quickly to woo. Slowly their eyes are closing, Down again drops their head. Three little maids are dozing. Though they're not ready for bed.

That is their method ever— Night after night they protest, Claiming they're sleepy never— But when the clock strikes twelve, Nodding and almost dreaming, Drowsily each little head Stays forever scheming Merely to keep out of bed.

The Poets.

De Massa ob de Sheepfol'.

De massa ob de sheepfol' bin, Dat guard de sheepfol' bin, Look out in de gloom'n' meadows, Whar de long night rain begin— So he call to de hire'n shep'd, Is any sheep de dey all come in?

Oh, der says de hire'n shep'd, Dey's some, dey's black and thin, And some, dey's po' ol' wedda's, But de res' dey's all bring in, But de res' dey's all bring in.

Den up t'ro' de gloom'n' meadows, T'ro de co' night rain and win, And up t'ro' de gloom'n' rain-paf, Whar de sleet fa' p'cin' thin.

Dey all comes gadder'n in, Dey all comes gadder'n in, Dey all comes gadder'n in, Dey all comes gadder'n in.

The Sea.

A lonely sail in the vast sea-ruo, I have put out for the port of gloom.

The voyage is far on the trackless tide, The watch is long and the seas are wide.

The headlands blue in the sinking day, Kiss me a hand on the outward way.

The fading glows, as they dip and veer, Life me a voice that is good to hear.

The great winds come and the heaving sea, The restless mother is calling me.

The cry of her heart is lone and wild, Searching the night for her wandered child.

Beautiful, weariless mother of mine, In the drift of doom I am here, I am thine.

Beyond the fathom of hope or fear, From bourn to bourn of the dusk I steer.

Sweet on in the wake of the stars, in the stream, Of a roving tide, from dream to dream.

—Bliss Carman.

Lost Opportunity.

"There is a nest of cherishes in the glen. When we come back we'll see the glad young things."

He said. We came not by that way And time and thrushes fare on eager wings!

"Yon rose," she smiled—"but no; when we return, I'll pluck it then." 'Twas on a summer day.

The ashes of the rose in autumn's urn Lie hidden well. We came not back that way.

We do not pass the self-same way again, Or, passing by that way, no thing we find As it before had been; but dearth or dearth we find.

Hath come upon it, or the wasteful wind. The very earth is envious, and her arms Reach for the beauty that detained our eyes; Yea, it is lost beyond the aid of charms, If, once within our grasp, we leave the prize!

Thou traveler to the unknown ocean's brink, Through life's fair fields, say not "Another day. This joy I'll prove," for never, as I think, Never shall we come back this self-same way!

—Edith M. Thomas.

The Everlasting No.

Thou hast seen for once and all the vision, Thou hast felt high discontent, And knowest the bitter sword of great ambition, Not for these short-lived follies thou wast meant.

Yet which to follow of the striving voices, Faith, knowledge, nature, still to meet Surfeit in pleasure, in faith superstition, In knowledge weariness, in love deceit?

Forth to the wilderness? Ah, I see only Desert winds shaking the desert reeds: Ignorance and thirsting still and lonely Shall solitude suffice my thousand needs?

What though the inner eye be filled with seeing, What though the mountain and the plain be great, Only to think and brood in dreams of being, This cannot solve the riddle of our fate.

Sight of the stars and conscious sense of duty, These are but drops in the still vast heart. These have been known and felt and loved their beauty, With half my soul, nor filled the other part.

—Herbert Warren.

STANSTEAD JUNCTION, P.Q., Aug. 12, 1893. MESSRS. C. C. RICHARDS & Co.

GENTLEMEN,—I fell from the bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for the being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. In ten days was nearly well. I can sincerely recommend it as the best Liniment that I know of in use. Yours truly,

"At what age were you married?" she asked, inquisitively. But the other lady was equal to the emergency, and quickly responded, "At the parsonage."

The tickets to a village ball were not transferable, and this was the way they read: "Admit this gentleman to ball in Assembly Rooms. No gentleman admitted unless he comes himself."

The ruling instinct is strong in a thrifty housewife. "My dear," said the husband, who had to tell his wife that he had failed, "the wolf is at the door." "Call in! Come in! Come in!" said she, absently.

Minister (to elderly female crofter)—I'm sorry to hear your potatoes are very bad this year, Janet. "Deed they are, sir; but I've reason to be thankful to Providence, what other folks are as badly off as myself."

"I shot a turkey once," said the returned traveler, "so big that it took five men to hold him. After the usual expression had been passed around, he continued, 'I meant to hold him after he was cooked.'"

Mrs. Mulvaney (the laundress)—I made, ma'am, and it's miserable! I made, ma'am, and it's miserable! I made, ma'am, and it's miserable!

Kind neighbor (accompanied by a large mastiff to a little girl very much afraid of him)—He's a good dog; he never hurts anyone. Don't you see how he wags his tail? Little girl (still shrinking back)—Yes, I see; but that isn't the end I'm afraid of.

Willie (handing his uncle a bottle of glue)—I hope you will have a very happy birthday, Uncle Dick. Uncle Dick—Thank you little man, but what is this for? Willie—Oh, I thought you would be so pleased with it. I heard papa say the other night that you never could make your stories stick together.

As two Highlanders were walking through Govan one afternoon, a trolley car passed them. Both were struck with astonishment, never having seen any before, but at last one of them managed to gasp out: "Lor bless me, Tougill! did you ever say the likes of that before? Ta coach has run away frae the horse."

Among the replies to an advertisement of a musical committee for a candidate as organist, music teacher, etc., was the following: Gentlemen, I noticed your advertisement for an organist or music teacher, either lady or gentleman. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services.

A certain rector in a Suffolk village who was disliked in his parish had a curate who was very popular and, on his leaving, was presented a testimonial. The curate, in the envy and wrath of the rector, and meeting with an old lady one day, he said: "I am surprised, Mrs. Bloom, that you should have subscribed to this testimonial." "Why, sir," said the old lady, "if you'd bin a-going I'd have subscribed double."

Dorothy has a baby brother who has recently been ill with the coming through of his first teeth. Think he has the hottest head I ever saw on an infant. It has caused Dorothy great anxiety. She stood at the mother's knee one day gently patting the little head.

"Be careful, Dorothy," said the mother. "You know poor little brother is sick. He is cutting his teeth." Dorothy patted the bald head reflectively.

"Mamma," she said. "It is going to make him sick when he cuts his hair!"

The Bladder

CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

I was troubled for three years with inflammation of the bladder, the neck of which was nearly closed up. Doctors and medicines gave me no relief until I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Seven boxes completely cured me. I work in Tuckett's tobacco factory, and all my fellow-employees know of my disease and can testify to my wonderful cure.
