LONDON'S POPULATION, 47,769; INCREASE OF 3,065 FOR THE YEAR

Assessment Is Now $24,663,715, an Increase on Last Year of $1,867,760—Commissioner Grant Issues Interesting Statement.

The assessment department has finished the assessment of Ward 4, and now has the returns from the city complete.

The increase in assessment for Ward4 is $504,140, and the increase in population, 759.

The total assessment for the city for 1908 is $24,663,715, an increase of

The population is given as 47,769, an increase of 3,065—the largest ingrease the City of London ever had in one year. INCREASE BY WARDS.

The figures by wards are as follows:

	Population.	Assessment
Ward No. 1	467	$646,912
Ward No. 2		432,217
Ward No. 3	1,204	284,491
Ward No. 4	759	504,140
COMMISSIONER'S STAT	EMENT.

In connection with the figures, Assessment Commissioner Grant has issued the following statement:

As was expected, No. 3 ward gave the largest increase in population and No. 1 the largest in assessment. The following table will show the increase of land, buildings, business assessment and income.

It might as well be admitted that the value of buildings, here set forth as the increase is nothing like the actual value of buildings erected this year, for in estimating the value of property we set the land down at a reasonable value and throw the building in at what we consider an easy valuation for the entire property; neither can we consider isolated sales of property as in some instances property valued on a basis of recent sales would very much interrupt the whole neighborhood, as everyone can't sell at a good figure.

"Perhaps there has never been a time in the history of the city when the exercise of good judgment was more needed, for while the city's assessment on real estate might easily be increased seven millions to come any way near

MR. BORDEN IN LONDON.

The Conservative meeting last night was well attended, and Mr. Borden was a respectful hearing, but he has gifts which can stir a popular audience. Neither has he been fortunate in his platform support durpresent tour. Speeches of coarse denunciation, like those delivered by Messrs. Armstrong, Bennett and Beck serve to embitter politics and public life, and do no good, even from a party standpoint.

It was noticed that Mr. Rufus Pope. present. Perhaps if he had hand Mr. Borden would have the pasages of his address referring to western land deals. "There as saying, "that were mere beggars before the Liberal Government turned the Liberal Government turned things the way of Foster, Pope, Lefurgey and Fowler, whom Mr. Borden takes to his bosom, and who made fortunes in western lands by soliciting and acceptfrom railway corporations, which are frequent applicants to Parliament for favors and privileges. No one supposes for a moment that these politicians received any consideration if they had not been members of Parliament. Mr. Borden, by keeping them In his councils, is not in the strongest position to denounce graft or claim that the Conservative party is a new broom that will sweep clean.

Mr. Borden was unfortunate also in his references to preferential trade. Even Sir Charles Tupper takes the position that Canada should not urge any policy upon the mother country. Had Sir Wilfrid Laurier demanded a quid pro quo the political consequences In Great Britain might have been serious. There would have been an anticolonial party, and a straining of the imperial tie. The attitude of the Conservative party on this question is than they at present possess. neither candid nor courageous. Why It is not expected that the concesmother country?

Mr. Borden repeated his pronouncethere are many in both parties who demand. see no necessity for the experiment. Mr. Borden speaks only for himself and not for his party, his so-called platform being evolved out of his inner consciousness. His telephone and telegraph planks by no means command a united Conservative support as servative organ, has given him to understand. As for rural mail delivery every Canadian would favor it if it were financially possible. There is no evidence yet that Canada could undertake such a burden. Even Mr. Borden says he would not do it without previous investigation.

THE THIRD DOUMA ELECTION

The approach of the election of the third Russian Douma finds the people indifferent, and it is therefore not unlikely that the vote will be light. 'According to the Russian system the elections do not all take place simultaneosuly, but begin in a couple of provinces, the rest following in con-

In this election there will be fewer factors than in the two preceding elections, two parties, known as the peaceful regenerationists and the commerical industrial party, having disappeared from the scene, while the social revolutionists will place no candidates in the field. The recent gerrymander makes it impossible for the social democrats to secure more than a very few seats, and the probability Is that the rightists, the Octoberists-Liberals without a programme-and anti-Semites will command a majority in the new Douma. At the same time the cadets, the new party, which as yet lacks official recognition, hope to have a strong and able minority, and to attract to their side the more moderate and cautious of the October-1sts, who are so divided and shaky that they have not dared hold a national congress. The effect of the gerrymander has been to weaken the leftists, and to prove a serious blow to the genuine constitutionalists, the evident object of the bureaucracy being to place the control of the Douma in the hands of the nobles and wealthy landlords. Quite a number of these are Octoberists, while some are in open sympathy with the rightists. The belief is general that the court, which at one time

The leaders of the black hundred "union" go so far as to ac and revolutionary sympathies, because he has professed constitutional ideas and fought the fanatical reactionaries The union claims the confidence of the Czar, boasts that it was its influence that caused the dissolution of the second Douma, and predicts like treatment of the third in the event of its presuming to assert the least indeendence. For the present the union confines itself to demanding the exclusion of the Jews from the Doums and the outlawing of all parties calling themselves constitutionalist of socialist. It is not unlikely that its next movement will be towards depriving the Douma of all initiative and making it a purely advisory body.

REFORMS IN INDIA.

While domestic matters engaged a goodly share of the attention of the British Government and Parliament during the recent session, the former has not been unmindful of the situation in India, where the unrest appears to have somewhat subsided of late.

The agreement with Russia seems to have removed all anxiety as to the danger of encroachment by that power on the northwestern frontier of India. and a document recently issued by tthe Indian office shows that great reforms are about to be introduced within the peninsula. It is proposed to create an Imperial advisory council, which, it is hoped, will in some degree associate the great' ruling chiefs and territorial magnates of British India with the Governor-General in the guardianship of common and imperial interests, without impeding the free action of the executive govprovides for the creation of provincial advisory councils for the discharge of analogous functions within narrower limits.

Some twenty sovereign native chiefs will be included in the imperial council, the membership of which will be about sixty. The professional classes and the landowners, great and small, will be represented in the provincial councils. At the same time the ex-Isting Indian and provincial legislative councils are to be retained and extended, probably in a direction that will result in giving the native population a far more important influence does it not openly, in stead of covertly, sions will fully meet the demands of attack the British preference in the the leaders of the present agitation in Canadian tariff, seeing that there is India, as they aspire to parliamentary no prospect of a return favor from the government, some going so far as to ask for complete independence. > No doubt Mr. Borden was cheered last night by five members of the school board, who are pure civic patriots, and don't believe in pull or favoritism or nepotism.

Mr. Borden's meeting last night was a tranquil affair and there was no difficulty in seating the audience. If Laurier had come to London there would have been a different tale.

Mr. Bennett, of Simcoe, who has the most abusive tongue in the House of Commons, told a London audience last night that London was the Sodom and Gomorrah of Canada. It would have served him right if he had been hissed off the platform.

At 78 years of age, General Booth has started on another tour of the United States and Canada. The general is not one of those who, like Falstaff, would rather rust to death than be "scoured to nothing with perpetual motion."

Mr. Aylesworth said that if one credited what one heard Mr. Borden could be disqualified from sitting in Parliament. But he said this as a warning against believing hearsay evidence, as Mr. Fielding's enemies professed to do. The Minister of Justice has been misrepresented in this matter, but he has got nothing else from the Opposition press since he entered public life. Liberals appreciate his fighting qualities, if his opponents do

Lord Bishop of Ontario. The Lord Bishop of Huron will read the opening part of Holy Communion; the Epistle will be read by the Lord Bishop of Algoma, and the Gospel by the Lord Bishop of Niagara.

Previous to the sermon, "Oh, God, Our Hope in Ages Past," will be sung to the tune of "St. Ann."

The primate, Archbishop Sweatman, of Toronto, will be the celebrant, and special prayers will be offered by the Bishop of Huron for the diocese and the ministry of the church and thanksgiving for the 50 years of prosperity which the church has enjoyed. "And now, oh, Father, mindful of the love that bought us once for all on Calvary's tree" will be sung at communion

At the close of the benediction a six-fold festal amen, the composition of Mr. G. B. Sippi, will be sung by the choir.

The recessional hymn will be, "Forward! Be Our Watchword," sung to the tune of "St. Alban."

Those invited to attend the luncheon will be the clergy, the lay delegates, and many other prominent citizens whom the Bishop of Huron will invite. Bishop Ingram will respond to the toast "The Church of England." Other toasts which will be responded to are: 'The King," "The Jubilee of the Dioese," "The Church of England in Canada," "Our Country," and "The Empire."

While in this city Bishop Ingram may address the Canadian Club and Huron College.

Industrious Prelate.

The Lord Bishop of London is one of the most industrious of men, and his stay in Canada will be largely given over to the making of addresses and preaching sermons. So far, the bishop has visted and spoken in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. Friday he addressed a meeting at Trinity University, Toronto; Sunday he will preach in Massey Hall, and Monday morning he will address a meeting of the Canadian Club there, after which he leaves for London. On Wednesday the Lord Bishop will visit his brother in Aylmer, and will preach there the following Sunday, Sept. 22.

Monday will find him at Niagara Falls addressing a meeting of the combined parishes.

Guest of President Roosevelt.

On the 25th the Bishop will have arrived in Oyster Bay, where he has been invited to spend a couple of days with the President of the United summering at that popular resort.

On the 28th the Bishop will lay the corner stone of the new Anglican Church in Washington, D. C., while in the capital city he will address the annual international convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which was to have been held from the 26th to the 27th inclusive, but which was held over to meet the convenience of His Lordship.

The Conservative party always carried out its promises. He criticised the Liberal party and its policies, declaring that its history of late was not such as to fill the electors of Canada with hope for the future.

London was without a representative. Hon. Mr. Aylesworth often spoke of the Conservatives as having a divine right to power. It seemed on the contrary that the Liberals considered themselves as endowed with the divine right to rule. The Liberal party had brought forward dead men to vote, said the speaker, and by other acts shown that it considered its right to rule as divine.

"Mr. Aylesworth stated that he would willingly follow Hon. G. W. Ross and Hon. Mr. Hyman," said Mr. McMahen. "I don't know where he would follow them, to sunny California or to Japan, or the quietude of the Senate."

Right opposite the platform was a suggestive motto, "No graft." stood for, clean, honest administration of public affairs. Graft was the cardinal principle of the Liberal party today, declared. This visit to London was for the purpose of making the citizens of London better acquainted with the policy, the new, advanced policy of the Conservative party. The Conservative party want-ed these charge investigated, but the Liberal party had refused to investigate, and consequently the fearful results of that policy reflected no credit but rather blame on the Liberal party. The individuals were not responsible, but the Liberal party was responsible.

Public Ownership. Mr. Borden next referred to the plank in his platform relative to the public ownership of telegraphs and telephones. He said that Mr. Aylesworth was insisting that the Conservative party had stolen that policy from the Liberal party. He knew not when or where. He also said that Mr. Aylesworth had at another time, declared that these planks in the platform were absolutely valueless. The Globe had come out with an editorial declaring that it had stood for the state ownership of these utilities long before Mr. Borden had. These statements are confusing. He did not understand the attitude of the Liberal Admits Corruption.

Mr. Borden harked back to Nelectoral corruption. He was in favor of enacting more stringent laws to cope with it. He was in favor of appointing an independent officer, somewhat after the fashion of the public prosecutor in England, whose business it would be to see to it that these laws so amended would be thoroughly enforced. He could not say that the Conservative party had always been absolutely clean in election matters, but there never had been the organized corruption, backed by enormous campaign funds, as was clearly demonstrated in the case of the Liberal

There were many who years ago were paupers, but today were wealthy, because they were friends of the department of the interior. Mr. Borden made a plea for good men to enter public life. There was imminent danger of professional politicians obtaining control not for the benefit of the country, but for what they could get out of it. The Conservative party should see to it that none but the best, honest, straight-forward businessmen should receive the nominations. If such were done, the Conservative standard would be carried to victory at the next general an early train to St. Louis. Lajoie figured out that if his me loafed it would not be possible to fin ish the five innings necessary to make It a game. So easy fly balls wer dropped, men were walked, and every ball that was handled was thrown wild. With 7,300 people hooting and jeering the Clevelanders, Umpire Hurst finally told Lajoie that five inhings would be played if the teams were on the field until morning. "And if it isn't over then." he said

"I'll forfeit the game to them." A crowd of several thousand fans followed the Clevelanders when the game was finally over, with the score 10 to 0 in six innings of play. They were jeered all the way down to their hotel and kept busy dodging cushions and other missiles.

Thielman opposed Mullin in the first ontest. The one-bad-inning hoodoo which has hovered over Mullin and other Tiger pitchers so long was again in evidence. They scored off Mullin in but one round. That was the second. Thielman kept his hits scattered, with the exception of one inning, and in this the Tigers lost their chance by some poor coaching of base-runners.

Clarke opened this inning for the Naps with a hit over third that Schaefer fielded in neat style, but too late to get his man. Hinchman bunted. Pretty Wedding at Home of Mr. an Mrs. Farrow, Caradoc.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday afternoon (11th inst) at Pine Hurst, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Farrow, concession 5. Caradoc, when their youngest daughter, Rebecca, became the bride of Mr. Duncan Crawford, son of Mr. Archie Crawford, of concession 9, same township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. F. Clarke, Ph,B.. of Melbourne, in the presence of over hundred invited guests. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked well in a beautiful gown of white silk trimmed with embroidered chiffon, with which she wore a bridal veil and a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie Crawford, who wore a gown of white silk eolienne, trimmed with real lace, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Miss Mary Clarke, of Melbourne, dressed in white silk mull, made a very pretty flower girl, while Master Emerson Farrow, the bride's cousin, in a suit of black velvet, acted as page. The groom was supported by Mr. W. F. Farrow. Miss Arvilla Farrow and Mr. Ben Peirce played the wedding march.

After the wedding service a short reception was held, following which a dainty wedding dinner was served in a large marquee, the interior of which was very prettily trimmed with bunt-

The Polling to Take Place on Monday. Oct. 7.

Toronto, Sept. 13.-The Government yesterday fixed Monday, Oct. 7, as the date of the by-election to be held in Brockville, the vacancy in the constituency having been occasioned by the translation of Hon. George P. Graham from provincial politics to the Dominion cabinet. Nominations will take place a week earlier, on Sept. 30. William Richardson, town clerk, of Brockville, will act as returning officer. In the last 28 years two of the leading Liberal figures in Ontario have come from Brockville-viz.: Hon. C. F. Fraser, at one time minister of pubic works, and Hon. George P. Gra- sociation during the year. J. C. Carham. The former was unsuccessful in a contest in Brockville as far back as Snider, Provincial organizer, also spoke 1867, but was sent to Toronto as member at the general elections of 1879, 1883, 1886 and 1890, Hon. Mr. Graham represented the riding since 1898, having successfully passed through three general elections.

FOREST OF GUM TREES

California Man Sees Great Chance for Profit in Scheme.

Los Angeles, Cal. Sept 13. — There has developed throughout southern California renewed interest in the planting of eucalyptus trees for commercial purposes. It is said by those who have kept in close touch with the situation that several million young trees will be planted during the ensuing year.

George B. Southard or Riverdale declares that within a few years this timber industry will be quite as important as the raising of citrus fruits. Mr. Southard will plant 100,000 young trees next spring. These will be sugar. red and blue gums, varieties suitable for fuel, telegraph poles, and railroad ties.

Sometimes it seems becredence that mistresses should have been training domestics for so many years with so few results to show for it.

What has become of the servants that were trained is almost as large s problem as what becomes of the

Of course, some of the maids get married. They always do when they are ours!

Even the devastations of matrimony cannot altogether account for the prevalence of untrained "help" and the paucity of the well-drilled pervants for whom we long.

"I am too old to train ser I heard a woman say the other day. Too old and too busy!" When I was a young woman I used to take the greenhorns when they hardly knew one end of a fork from the pther, and drill them into passable cooks and chambermaids and wait-

"But now I refuse to do it. The vounger women can take their turn at work of that sort, now, but I have earned my promotion, and I take them already trained!"

This is a position many women would be pleased to assume if they could afford it. But apart from the scarcity of the trained service to which I have already referred, that which is satisfactory comes high. The servant who has been drilled in the right sort of an establishment, and who understands her duties, rightfully asks and gets higher wages than the majority of housekeepers can pay. In the circumstances the only thing to be done is for the housekeeper to go to work and do her own training. In one way this is not an easy task, except for those who genuinely love housekeeping work in all its branches, and are either possessed of long patience, or are so fortunate as to secure unusually good material to work upon.

I suppose I might admit to the rategory the woman who does not care how her house is kept, or her work is done so long as in some way it is accomplished; but I refuse to believe that we have any

the training of servants. Expect Imperfections.

The woman who has but one maid-of-all-work has alike her trials and her privileges. She can hardly hope to have a Pooh Bah of a domestic who is able to fill all branches of household work, and to do them well, although such have been found, once in a blue moon.

The mistress must resign herself to imperfections in the conduct of her household. If the maid is a good cook she can hardly be perfection as a waitress, and if she achieves success in this line she will doubtless leave something to be desired in her washing and ironing. These are the drawbacks of the onemaid-ed house.

On the other hand, there are no quarrels in the kitchen where there is but one maid. There are no jealousies, no special privileges to be accorded one to offset something granted the other.

It is an old saying that where more than one is working one gets in the other's way, and there is something in it. More than this, the one general housework maid, if she be really satisfactory, takes an

I do not mean by this that the mistress must have a fixed method to which her servants must adhere. Often I have learned from my servants new ways of performing old tasks; and always, when engaging a new maid, I give her a chance to try her way first in the hope that it may prove as good as mine.

In homes where the waitress them. takes also the duties of chambermaid it is hardly possible for her to get away from her dining-room work long enough to go to the bedrooms until after the family is upon the last course of breakfast.

One Task at a Time.

Then she can slip upstairs, open the windows which the careless occupants of the chambers may have left closed, strip the clothing from the beds, turn back the mattresses and prepare the rooms for airing.

This done, she may go back to the dining room in time to remove the dishes, clear the table and arrange the china and silver in the pantry preparatory to washing

If there be no especial hurry about the bedroom work she can leave this so that the fresh air will have a chance to do its work of sweetening while she goes ahead with the dishes, gets them clean and back in the closet.

Then she may go up to her bedroom work and finish that before she attempts the sweeping or cleaning, which in the best-regulated houses is distributed through the week instead of being lumped in one big day's cleansing.

How the work shall be apportioned to the several days is a matter mistress and maid may unite to settle. If the maid be sensible and conscientious, it is safe to leave her to dispose the times for her cleaning as she will, only supervistoil is appreciated and her shortcomings, if there be any, noted. It does a maid good, whether she be careless or careful, to feel that the eyes of the mistress are keen enough to discriminate between work well done and work p

Separate Big Tasks.

The biggest tasks of sweeping and cleaning the silver should not come too close together, and there should be an especial dispensation for window washing. If care and thought are used there is no reason why, in ordinary circumstances, the house should not be kept clean all the time, instead of being suffered to grow untidy and dusty, and then restored to neatness with one grand

I have spoken of the work which falls to the waitress in the house where two maids are kept. A good deal more study must be given to the duties of the maid-of-all-work. In her case it is almost essential that the mistress should assume part of the work herself. That is, she must dust her own dressingroom, make her own bed, either habitually, or at least on Monday and Tuesday, and, if the wash be heavy, take charge of the breakfast dishes on those days. The early rising recommended when there are two servants employed becomes even more important where there is but one.

Always it must be borne in mind by the mistress who undertakes to train a maid that a systematic habit of mind is the exception rather than the rule.

With the best intentions in the world the average untrained servant does not understand how to relied upon to do anything beyond plan her work, and it devolves upon the mistress to inculcate and practice system, and insist that it be followed by her employe, if she would not have the work at loose ends and never done.

The laundry work must not be allowed to drag over into the latter part of the week, and to avoid this the mistress must study to simplify the work on Monday and Tuesday, each home must decide that for and by getting an early start on those days afford the maid the enthat the division should be made couragement that comes from an

but not during her time of drill. First of all, last of all and all the time, the mistress must pray for and practice patience.

It is not always easy for a young impetuous housekeeper-and sometimes they do not lose their impetuosity with youth, either-to bear in mind that the workings of the untrained mind are curious and not to be fathomed by the educated AM in trouble, and not knowing how to get out of it, I should be greatly pleased if you could show me the way. I am a beginner in breadmaking, and as we are very fond of currant and raisin bread, I thought I would try to make bread, I thought I would try to make some.

The first trial was a success, but the next time I made it the batter never rose, although I was sure I had set it exactly as I did the first time.

The only difference was that I put in a little more sugar. Now, would that hinder it from rising? And would butter harm it, as I used milk instead of water?

Mrs. D. (Niagara Falls.).

Mrs. D. (Niagara Falls.).

Sugar and butter would have a tendency to check the rising.

But if, as you say, you put in only a little sugar, the work should have gone on favorably, if perhaps a little more slowly than at the former trial.

I think it probable that you set the batter in a cold place, or in a draught. Or the yeast may have been in fault. Good lively yeast will bring up a batch of bread that is badly mixed if you will give it time. It surely should have prevailed against the "little more sugar."

Tell us by what recipe the batter was mixed and we may help you more intelligently. Did you dredge the fruit well?

eating it. Most of it is sold to them and to newsboys. Bread that is real stale, awfully hard and dry, is crushed into fine crumbs and mixed over with molasses and spices, you know, and wet up into dough with hot water and made into Washington pie."
I can hardly think this is what our member wants. Does anybody know of another sweet that goes by the name of "Washington Pie"?

And even if you haven't treacherous memories. It is a great help in systematizing things and keeping each duty in its place to make out little lists of things to be done, bills to be paid, and, what is of equal importance, the clothing that must be bought to fill up gaps in your wardrobe that are imminent if not actually present. It is poor management to let underclothes and household linen run low before you begin to replenish the supply.

The list of bills, etc., should be made out the first of the month, and everything that is bought on credit should be set down there, so at the end of the month you are not suddenly overwhelmed by bills for things you had forgotten.

This may seem hardly worth while writing to you about, but if you know women you perhaps comprehend the significance of the friendly hint.

The survivors of past generations of toms to the popular mind are located in Africa or in the far East. The "new continent" is commonly supposed to be years ago. Yet in the heart of South America, near the southern border of Brazil, there exist at present tribes of savages not as advanced in civilization as the red men met by Columbus or the prehistoric Virginians found by Captain John Smith on these shores.

A trip among these so-called Indians partly in the interest of the Bureau of tunity to witness a strange ceremony. American Ethnology, is described in a "A loud, deep, prolonged hee-aw, ho-o, recent publication of the Smithsonian ah-h, was bellowed by a quartet of naked, which the bureau falls. Mr. Cook describes his journey through the wilderness to a rough ranch belonging to Senor De Carvalho near a Bororo village. He says:

"As soon as our arrival became known our ranch, scarcely more than an open shed, began to fill rapidly with our painted friends of all ages and sizes and both sexes, who came to observe us and to see the marvelous things we had brought them from our enchanted world. They pour in upon as regularly at the break of day and stay faithfully until the shadows of night begin to deepen; and though

CAPTAIN BLACKBURN'S TERRIBLE TRIP.

Captain Howard Blackburn, of Gloucester, is another famous Loner. He is known as the "finless fisherman," because of the fact that all but the stumps of his hands were frozen off on the Grand Banks. Instead of resting by his fireside after this accident. he went to the other extreme and joined the list of adventurous navigators. He built a tiny boat called the the approving shouts of the multitudes Great Western, and in 1889 sailed from his home port to Gloucester, England. It took him 64 days, and as all others had, he suffered terribly.

Sarsaparilla : Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poison-ous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism. The mixture is composed of harm-less vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, ing to escape. A policeman, who had not been notified, joined in and made things interesting with a regulation poice revolver. It was due only to the proverbial poor markmanship that the pictures were procured without the 'convict" being killed.

One of the peculiar features about moving pictures is that a blustery, windy day usually is selected for making the pictures. Trees may be seen swaying, skirts fluttering and hats rolling down the street. It's the action they want, and the wind produces it. In "The Escape from Sing Sing," which is one of the popular chases produced by the moving picture machine, a number of the pictures were taken on the roofs in New York City. This is one of the most exciting chases. The criminal may be seen leaping from roof to roof while people lean from winchase music: it has become a part of dows and shoot at the fleeing man. The French Duke of Avaray has been within the last week subjected to a good deal of injustice in articles contained in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and other organs of the American press in connection with the alleged forgery of a note for $1,200 bearing the name of his divorced wife, "Princess Montglyon," now at home at Tapan, N. Y. The information concerning the duke, which is presumably furnished by the lady in question, intimates that she possessed an enormous fortune at the time of her marriage, bequeathed to her by her father; that in 1883 she was married to the Duke of Avaray, "a French nobleman noted for his spendthrift habits"; that he "squandered his wife's fortune"; that "there was trouble about notes to the tune of 2,000,000 francs, of which she repudiated the signature, but which she eventually paid, in deference to the entreaties of a family conference, the paying of them practically wiping out her fortune."

The inference intended to be conveyed by the story is that the duke signed her name to the notes, and that she paid them to save him from disgrace. It is added that in 1892 she sued the duke for divorce and won her case.

Now, the real facts are these: The soithe time when, as the daughter of the every day in the year. Count de Mercy d'Argenteau, ex-secretary of the Belgian legation in Paris, she married the Marquis Hubert d'Avaray. He

The French newspapers at the time were among other things that she spent in the neighborhood of $40,000 on underwear in the short space of six months. She made sirable guardian for any minor, and insisted upon the lad remaining under the guardianship of his father, who confided the lad to his mother, the old widowed Duchess of Avaray.

It may be of interest to add that, according to general belief on both sides of the Atlantic, the great Marshal Ney survived his execution at Paris in December, 1816, for many years, the soldiers appointed to shoot him having purposely fired high. He is said to have escaped, and to have spent the remainder of his days either in South Carolina or in Georgia.

Looseness of The Bowels.

It is very seldom during the summer months that most people are not troubled with "looseness of the bowels."

Sometimes it only goes that far, but generally it develops into Diarrhoea, Dysentery or Summer Complaint and has a tendency to weaken the whole system.

When the bowels get loosened up in this way and you wish to check the unnatural discharge without bringing on constipation, there is only one remedy to use, and that one is DR. The top of the pyramid is about thirty feet square. It is as big as a good-sized parlor, and is one of the most interesting roof gardens known to man. As I sat there I could see the work going on in the sands below me, and I repeopled them with the men now being dug up under the superintendence of our Americans.

In my mind's eye I could see them as could see them dragging the great blocks over the road of polished stone, which had been made for the purpose, and observe the sweat rolling down their dusty faces under this blazing sun of Egypt, as, under the lashes of their taskmasters, the great pile grew. It was with three half-naked Bedouins that I climbed up to the entrance which leads into old Cheops. There is a hole about 45 feet above the desert on the north side. Going in here, we came a narrow stone passage so low that I had to crawl on my hands and knees. The passage first sloped downward and then up, and finally, pushed and pulled by my glack guides, I got into a great narrow the room where old Cheops, the king, rested undisturbed for 1,000 years or so before the looters came.

I had some matches and a piece of magesium wire, and by this means I was able to examine the interior. The masonry is wonderfully fine. The places where the stones are joined are almost imperceivable, nad you cannot put a knife blade between the cracks. The only thing left in this room is the great granite sarcophagus of King Cheops, and the cover to t has disappeared.

By going back through the hall one reaches another passageway which slopes downward to the Queen's Chamber, which is much smaller than that of the king. Down below this, reached by another passage connecting with that which I first entered, there is a subterranean chamber which is far under the base of the pyramid itself. The whole structure is intensely interesting, and if it could be explored by diamond drills or in some other way, other chambers might possible be found in the parts now looked upon as solid.

In no other business does the nose play such a prominent part as it does for any small defect in his sense of smell would cause him to be unable to hall, and after passing through it into blend even the most common of odors. Few blenders smoke; most of them do not drink, and some of them even avoid walking on streets where they might pass cheese of tea stores, or any store which might effect their acute sense of smell,

Perfume blending is interesting work, for new perfumes are made every day, and the experimenting the blender does sometimes last for months when trying for some new odor. There are days in the laboratory, however, when the blender must stop work on occount of the dull headaches caused by the odors of the material which he is working, such as civette and oil of Most of the flower odors come from Grasse, France, and are in form of pomade. The pomade is washed in alcohol which takes out the odor and leaves the unscented grease to be used for soap. This is called flower washing and the odor mixed with alcohol is crude perfume.
