WRECKED ON TRIAL ISLAND.

The Tug Velous Carried on the Rock by. the Tide-Loss of Life.

Victoria, March 25.—The tug Velos with the barge Pilot in tow, left this city Friday night for Hoddington Island to procure a cargo of stone for the new Parliament buildings. On board the tug were Contractor Adams, Capt. Anderson, Mate Cheristen, Engineer Low and three other members of the crew. When passing Trail Island, which is a barren rook, about two miles from the harbor, the captain found to take the inside passing. This island is the most noted place on that portion of the coast, on account of its fierce tide. When in the midst of these tide rips the tug's rudder chain broke and at full speed she ran on the rocks. The barge Pilot brought up against her and as the barge passed Mate Christiansen sprang aboard of her. The barge had twenty-five stone cutters and laborers aboard. The barge drifted past the tug, breaking the hawser outters and laborers aboard. The barge drifted past the tug, breaking the hawser and went ashore on Trial Island, all who had been aboard of her escaping to shore. The men who had reached the shore had The men who had reached the shore had no boat and could do nothing to assist the unfortunate six left aboard the tug of which Capt. Anderson is now the only survivor. Finally the tug went down stern first, leaving her bow partly above the water. Contractor Adams and three of the crew were quickly washed away and drowned. Capt. Anderson and Engineer. Low, however, had lashed themselves to the davits and there they remained for some time, being exposed to a fierce gale accompanied by ratin and sleet. Finally Capt. Anderson announced his intention

It was also decided at yestermy's Calinet meeting to call a session of Parliament on the 18th of April.

All of the Fractures Could Not Have Been Caused by One Line of Force.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

The Doings of our Representatives Daring the Past Week.

Goronto, March 21. —There was a warm debate on the second reading of Mr. German's bill in the Ontario Legislature yesterday. The bill provides that the poles and wires of telegraph, telephons and electric light companies may be taxed for municipal purposes. It also provides that the income derived by shareholders who hold stock in railway companies shall be taxed. Mr. Hardy thought the bill too sweeping in its provisions but advised that it should go on another stage so that it might be considered fully in committee. A warm debate followed, after which the bill was read a second time.

Mr. Whitney moved that in the interests of the people of this Province and, in order that the producers may secure the full benefit of the sums annually expended to aid the dairy interests thereof, the butter trade deserves to be encouraged. He said that a resolution was passed last January unanimously by the Ontario Creamery Association asking Government aid to place butter on the English market during the winter months. The Dominion Government had acted upon the suggestion and had begun to purchase all fresh made creamery butter at 20 cents during the winter moines. The Johnston Government had acted upon the suggestion and had begun to purchase all fresh made creamers butter at 20 cents per pound for shipment. He would like to have asked for financial aid but the rules of the House would not permit him to do so. He had asked the Minister of Agriculture some days ago if he had received a copy of the resolution passed by the Ontario Creamery Association and if the Government intended doing anything to assist the butter men of the Province. The answer had been that the Government had not decided what to do yet. He trusted that the Government would decide to grant financial aid and that they would announce their intention to do so before

Hon. G. W. Ross introduced a bill to amend the Pharmacy Act. In 1893 a bill was passed permitting grocers and other dealers to sell patent medicines under certain conditions. The privilege was granted for a year only. Last year a similar bill was passed and the present bill extends the same privileges for an indefinite period much to the disgust of the drugglists.

M. Verne is singularly modest about his work, and showed no desire to talk about either his books or himself. Had it not been for the kindly assistance of his wife, whose pride in her husband's genius is delightful to witness, I should have found it difficult to presuade him to give me any particulars about his literary career or his methods of work.

"I cannot remember the time," he observed, in answer to a question, "when I did not write, or intend to be an author; and as you will soon see, many things coaspired to that end. You know, I am a Breton by birth—my native town being Nantes—but my father was a Parisian by education and taste, devoted to literature, and, although he was too modest to make any effort to popularize his work, a line poet. Perhaps this is why I myself began my literary career by writing poetry, which—for I followed the example of most budding French literature—took the form of a five-net tragedy," he concluded with of a five-act tragedy," he concluded with a half sigh—half smile.

two large fireplaces. The extra cost of these fireplaces is very slight, and, as long as fuel is so cheap, there is no reason why the great majority of farm houses should not enjoy a fireplace in the sitting room. It is really a necessity for ventilation in the closely-built houses required by our long winters. Entering the front door, we have a cozy vestibule, with convenient closet. Portieres or a door may shut off this vestibule from the hall in cold weather, for the hall is well lighted from the double windows on the stair landing. A sliding door opens into the living room, and a hinged door into the dlining room. The kitchen may be reached from both the front and back of house without going through any room. The dlining room. ing through any room. The dining room can also be reached from both front and The door between it and the pantry swings both ways, and so does the door between pantry and kitchen, but an ordinary door closes the pantry from the back hall. But

I really think that my love for maps and the great explorers of the world led to my composing the first of my long series of geographical stories.

"When writing my first book, 'Five Weeks in a Balloon,' I chose Africa as the scene of action, for the simple reason that less was, and is, known about that continent than any other; and, it struck me that the most ingenious way in which this portion of the world's surface could be explored would be from a balloon. I thoroughly enjoyed writing the story, and, even more, I may add the researches which it made necessary; for then, as now, I always tried to make even the wildest of my romances as realistic and true to life as possible.

"Once the story was finished, I sent the manuscript to the well-known Paris publisher, M. Hetzel. He read the tale; was interested by it, and made me an offer, which I accepted. I may tell you that this excellent man and his son became, and have remained, my very good friends, and the firm are about to publish my seventieth novel."

"And what, monsieur, are your methods of work?" I inquired. "I suppose you can have no objection to giving away your recipe?"

"I cannot see." he answered, good-humoredly, "what interest the public can find in such things: but I will initiate you into the secrets of my literary kitchen, though I do not know that I would recommend anybody else to proceed on the same plan; for I alyays think that each of us works in his or her own way, and instinctively knows what method is best, Well. I start by making a draught of

Some Valuable Hints From an Old Hand at There is money in early lamb raising if you live within easy access of some good market and have a natural grass farm. Lambs do not bear long transportation, and twelve to twenty hours is as long as they should be en route to market. Begin by purchasing a flock of two-year-old sheep, say August 1, after their, lambs are weaned, about half Southdown and half Meritio, or natives. Give your flock good pasture, and avoid all excitement of dogs and noise, and got your sheep as familiar with you by quiet and kindness as possible, giving them salt twice a week, and when winter first sets in take them from pasture and have a nice large, dry yard connected with your sheep barn fenced with a four-foot board fence, and then a three-foot wire netting on the top, so that it yes can't get in to bite or scare them. Have the barn dry and warm, but not to light, and with windows opening to the south for sun, as sheep like that in winter, and a small room in one end made quite tight and warm by ceiling inside, filling in with sawdust so as fo avoid trost, in which to keep your grain, sait, etc., and also to place your ewes a few days before they drop their lambs, and also a few days after, till they and their lambs are strong enough to be placed with the flock; and movable partitions in this room are very useful, so that it may be divided into two or three or omre parts as necessary, in case a sheep does not do well or falls to own her lamb (and here let me say sometimes a dog tied in one corner will effect a num of that fault in a room are very useful, so that it may be divided into two or three or omre parts as necessary, in case a sheep does not do well or fails to own her lamb (and here let me say sometimes a dog tied in one corner will effect a cure of that fault in a few hours). If you can have a spring or very small stream in the yard do so, and if not you must water from a well, once a day will do, till near lambing time and then always twice.

Now as to feed: Sheep farmers always raise corn and they wish to feed some stalks in early winter, but they should be cut and cured early and fed once a day only, and at night feed hay; and supposing you have fifty good ewes (and that is all ever should be kept in one party, and twenty-five is better), feed at night one-fourth bushel of sound whole corn, and you may gradually increase this feed so that by January 15 you are feeding one-half a bushel; after this time add good sound oats gradually, so that by February 15 you are feeding half a bushel of each per day and if you have good early cut fine hay, natural meadow or clover hay, together with one bushel of carrots or roots of some sort, this is grain enough, and your sheep will not require a great amount of hay, and only feed just what they readily will take, as many farmers make their sheep dainty by feeding too much hay; better keep them a little hungry for hay.

And now about the care of your lambs: Have a frame or pen of hemlock boards, thirteen feet square in the yard, three boards high and the bottom one raised so the lambs can pass under (not the sheep) FEEDING EARLY LAMBS the lambs can pass under (not the sheep) and in here have small troughs and sprin-kle ground oats and corn, equal parts, and a little salt, and the lambs will soon kle ground oats and corn, equal parts, and a little salt, and the lambs will soon learn to eat it, and continue this course till grass has a nice start and then turn out your sheep and lambs in the daytime and fair weather, but yard and grain at night till feed is flush and weather warm. About April 15 you will have some lambs fit for market, and by June 16 you should have them all sold. If you sheep have been well handled they will be fat and you can sell them for mutton and have your flock all disposed of at a sharp advance on the cost by July 20, and the mutton sheep usually sell well at that time, and then buy a new flock for the coming winter in September. In this way you have a heavy fleece on wool, a valuable lamb and an advance of cost of sheep of from one to two dollars per head, a fine lot of manure and only a few or no sheep. In August and September the month's feed is shortest and they do the land most harm and with good care they always pay well.—Farm Journal.

When An Incubator is Profitable.

To hatch a few chicks, as fifty or one hundred in course of a season, the hens are the cheapest; but to hatch in larger numbers, as one hundred and more, and when we want them hatched, the incubator is the cheapest. Why? 1. Because it costs just the same to care for and feed each setting hen of twenty as it does for one. The capacity of the hens to cover eggs does not increase only as we increase the number of hens. The incubator can be built with any capacity we desire. It costs but little more to run a large machine than a small one 2. Because we can hatch when we desire. Early chicks are more valuable for breeders or the show pens, than those hatched later in the season. Hens do not often wish to set in winter, therefore if early chicks are desired, the incubator is the more reliable setter.—Ohio Farmer. To hatch a few chicks, as fifty or one

Its cure is, of a course, dependent upon the restonation of the consulted told him, disease of the liver, heart or kidneys. Its cure is, of a course, dependent upon the restonation of the organs to a normal condition. It is a common saying that, in full-blooded persons an occasional nose-bleed is beneficial; and this may in a certain sense be true, inasmuch as the mass membranes are thus relieved of congestion. But it is safe to say that bleeding from the nose is never anything but a sign of weakness.

The treatment of an attack of nose-bleed consists in absolute rest and cool applications of the head. The extremitties should be warm. That there are hundreds and thousands of infelictious homes in America no one will doubt. If there were only one skeleton in the closet, that might be locked up and abandoned, but in many a home there is a skeleton in ahe hallway and a skeleton in all the apartments.

"Unhappily married" are two words descriptive of many a homestead. It needs no orthodox minister to prove to a badly mated pair that there is a hell. They are there now. Sometimes a grand and gracious woman will be thus incarcerated, and her life will be a crucifixion, as was the case with Mrs. Sigourney, the great poetess and the great soul. Sometimes a consecrated man will be united to a fury, as was John Milton. Sometimes, and generally, both parties are to blame, and Thomas Carlyle was an intolerable soold, and his wife smoked and swore, and grenerally, both parties are to blame, and Froude, the historian, pulled aside the curtain from the lifelong squabble at Craigenputtock and Five, Cheyne Row.

Some say that for the alleviation of all these domestic disorders of which we hear easy divorce is a good prescription. God sometimes authorizes divorce as certainly as he authorizes marriage. I have just as much regard for one lawfully divorced as I have for one lawfu divorce is one of our national scourges. I am not surprised at this when I think of the influences which have been abroad litating against the marriage relation For many years the platfor ntry rang with talk about a free love country rang with talk about a free love millennium. There were meetings of this kind held in the Cooper institute, New York; Tremont temple, Boston, and all over the land. Some of the women who were most prominent in that movement have since been distinguished for great promiscuosity of affection. Popular themes for such occasions were the tyranny of man, the oppression of the marriage relation, women's rights and the affinities. Prominent speakers were women with short curls and short dresses and very long tongues, everlastingly at men with short curls and short dresses and very long tongues, everlastingly at war with God because they were created women, while on the platform sat meek men with soft accent and cowed demeanor, apologetic for masculinity and holding the parasols while the termagant orators went on preaching the doctrine of free love.

divorces. If you want to know how easy it is, you have only to look over the records of the states. In the city of San Francisco 333 diverces in one year, and in twenty years in New England 20,000. Is that not easy grough!

If the same ratio continue—the ratio of multiplied divorce—we are not far from the time when our courts will have to set apart whole days for application, and all you will have to prove against a man will be that he left his newspaper in the middle of the floor, and all you will have to prove against a man will be that her husband's overcoat is buttonless. Causes of divorce double in a few years—doubled in France, doubled in England and doubled in the United Estates. To show how very easy it is I have to tell you that in western reserve, Ohlo, the proportion of divorces to marriages celebrated is one to elever; in Rhode Island is one to thirteen, in Vermont one to fouteen. Is not that easy enough?

I want you to notice that frequency of divorce always goes along with the dissoluteness of society. Rome for 500 hundred years had not one case of divorce, Those were her days of glory and virtue. Then the reign of vice, began, and divorce became epidemic, if you want to know how rapidly the empire went down, ask Gibbon.

What we want in this country and in all lands is that divorce be made more and more difficult. Then people before they enter that relation will be persuaded that there will probably be no escape from it, except through the door of the sepulcher. Then they will pause on the verge of that relation until they are fully satisfied that it is best, and that it is right and that it riage in fun. Then men and women will not enter the relation with the idea that it is only a trial trip, and if, they do not like it they can get out at the first land-ing. Then this whole question will be taken out of the frivolous into the trem-endous, and there will be no more joking about the blossoms in a bride's hair than about the crypress on a coffin.

endous, and there will be no more joking about the blossoms in a bride's hair than about the oppress on a coffin.

What we want is that the congress of the United States change the national constitution so that a law can be passed which shall be uniform all over the country, and what shall be right in one state shall be right in all the states, and what is wrong in one state shall be wrong in all the states.

How is it now? If a party in the mar-small be right in all the states, and what is wrong in one state shall be wrong in all the states.

How is it now? If a party in the marriage relation gets dissatisfied, it is only necessary to move to another state to achieve liberation from the domestic tie, and divorce is effected so easy that the first one party knows of it is by seeing in the newspaper that Rev. Dr. Somebody on March 17, 1895, introduced in a new marriage relation a member of the household who went off on a pleasure excursion to Newport or a business excursion to Chicago. Married at the bride's house. No cards. There are states of the Union which practically put a premium upon the disintegration of the marriage relation, while there are other states, like our own New York state, that had for a long time the pre-eminent idlocy of making marriage lawful at twelve and fourteen years of age.

The congress of the United States needs to move for a change of the national constitution and then to appoint a committee—not made up of single gentlemen, but of men of families, and their families in Washington—who shall prepare a good, hence it effects one compensation of the construction of the construction of the construction of the committee of the construction of the proper states of the construction of the committee of the committe teo—not made up of single gentlemen, but of men of families, and their families in Washington—who shall prepare a good, honest, righteous, comprehensive, uniform law that will control everything from Sandy Hook to the Golden Horn. That will put an end to brokerages in marriges. That will send divorce lawyers into decent business. That will set people agitated for many years on the question of how shall they get away from each other to planning how they can adjust themselves to the more or less unfavorable circumstances.

More difficult divorce will put an estoppel to a great extent upon marriage as a financial speculation. There are men who go into the relation just as they go into Wall street to purchase shares. The female to be invited into the partnership of wedlock is utterly unattractive and in disposition a suppressed Vesuvius. Everybody knows it, but this masculne candidate for matrimonial orders, through the body knows it, but this masculne candidate for matrimonial orders, through the commercial agency or through the county records, finds out how much estate is to be inherited, and he calculates it. He thinks out how long it will be before the old man will die and whether he can stand the refractory temper until he does die, and then he enters the relation, for he says, "If I cannot stand it, then through the divorce law I'll back out." That process is going on all the time, and men enter the relation without any more principle, without any affection, and it is as much a matter of stock speculation as anything that transpired yesterday in as anything that transpired yesterday in Union Pacific, Illinois Central or Dela vare and Lackawanna.

ware and Lackawanna.

Now, suppose a man understood, as he ought to understand, that if he goes into that relation there is no possibility of his getting out or no probability, he would be more slow to put his neck in the yoke. He would say to himself, "Rather than a Caribbean whirlwind, with a whole fleet of shipping in its arms, give me a zephyr off fields of sunshine and gardens of peace."

zephyr off fields of sunshine and gardens of peace."

Rigorous divorce law will also hinder women from the fatal mistake of marrying men to reform them. If a young man by twenty-five years of age or thirty years of age has the habit of strong drink fixed on him, he is certainly bound for a drunkard's grave as that a train starting out from Grand Central depot at eight o'clock to-morrow morning is bound for Albany. The train may not reach Albany, for it may be thrown from the track. The young man may not reach a drunkard's grave, for something may throw him off the iron track of evil habit, but the probability is that the train that throw him off the iron track of evil habit, but the probability is that the train that starts to-morrow at eight o'clock for Albany will get there, and the probability is that the young man who has the habit of strong drink fixed on him before twenty-five or thirty years of age will arrive at a drunkard's grave. She knows he drinks, although he tries to hide it by chewing cloves. Everybody knows he

he drinks, although he tries to hide it by chewing cloves. Everybody knows he drinks. Parents warn, neighbors and friends warn. She will marry him; she will reform him.

If she is unsuccessful in the experiment, why, then the divorce law will emanetipate her, because habitual drunkenness is a cause for divorce in Indiana, Kentucky, Florida, Connecticut and nearly all the states. So the poor thing goes to the altar of sacrifice. If you will show me the poverty struck streets in any city, I will show you the homes of the women who married men to reform them. In one case out of 10,000 it may be a successful experiment. But have a rigorous divorce law, and that woman will say, "If I am affianced to that man, it is for

Let me say to the hundreds of young people in this house this afternoon, before you give your heart and hand in holy alliance use all caution. Inquire outside as to the habits, explore the disposition, serutinize the taste, question the ancestry and find out the ambitions. Do not take the herose and the heroines of cheap novels for a model. Do not put your lifetime happiness in the keeping of a man who has a reputation for being a little loose In morals, or in the keeping of a woman who dresses fast. Remember that, while good looks are a kindly gift of God, wrinkles or accident may despoil them. Remember that Byron was an unore celebrated for his beauty than for his depravity. Remember that Absalom's hair was not more splendid than his habits were despicable. Hear it, hear it! And lying together in silence perhaps we will agree.

And if yere we meet in heaven I would not think it queer

If we loved each other better because we quarreled here.

And let me say to those of you who are in happy married union, avoid first quarrels. Have no unexplained correspondence with former admirers; cultivate no suspicions; in a moment of bad temper do not rush out and tell the neighbors; do not let any of those gadabouts of society unload in your house their baggage of gab and tittle tattle, do not stand on your rights learn how to apologize; do not be so proud, of so stubborn, or so devilish that you will not make up. Remember that the worst domestic misfortunes and most scandalous divorce cases started from little infellotties. The whole piled up train of ten rail cars telescoped and smashed at the foot of an embankment lof eet down came to that castrophe by getting two or three inches off the track. Some of the greatest domestic misfortunes and the wide resounding divorce cases have started from little misunderstandings that were allowed to go on and go on until home and respectability and religion and wide resounding divorce cases have started from little misunderstandings that were allowed to go on and go on until home and respectability and religion and mortal soul went down in the crash, crash!

And, fellow citizens as well as fellow Christians let us have a divine rage against anything that wars on the marriage state. Blessed institution! Instead of two arms to fight the battle of life four; instead of two eyes to scrutinize the path of life, four; instead of two shoulders to lift the burden of life, four. Twice the energy, twice the courage, twice the holy ambition, twice the probability of worldly success, twice the probability of worldly success, twice the propects of heaven. Into the matrimonial bower God fetches two souls. Outside that bower room for all contentions, and all bickerings, and all controversies, but inside the bower there is room for only one guest—the angel of love. Let that angel stand at the floral doorway of this Edenic bower with drawn sword to hew down the worst foe of that bower—casy divorce. And for every paradise lost may there be a paradise regained, and after we full our home here may we have a brighter home in heaven, at the windows of which this moment are familiar faces watching for our arrival and wondering why we tarry so long.

why we tarry so long.

Testing Electrical Resistance.
Professor Swineburn is now engaged upon some interesting experiments calculatined to establish a standard of electrical resistance of the individuals of the human family according to temperament, complexion, race, etc. The data so far deduced are necessarily orude and inaccurate, and it is not claimed that anything is known respecting the difference in the electrical resistance of representatives of the various temperaments, but it has been shown that there is a wide range of resistive power in the various subjects.

A summary of the results on 500 subjects tested indicates that the resistance to a continuous current will vary from 3,320 to 10,000 volts; also that there is a great difference in power of resistance, varying with time of day, fullness or emptiness of the stomach, etc.—St. Louis Republic.

Method in His Madness.

The Medical Press tells a story of a gentleman who went to visit a friend who was an inmate of a lunatic asylum. When he had been there about half an hour he looked at the "clock and asked if it was right. The lunatic gazed at him with a look of compassion for a minute or so, and then said: "Do you think it would be here if it was right, you lunatic?"

PROF. BLACKIE. Sketch of an Extremely Interesting and Sketch of an Extremely Interesting and Attractive Personality.

Professor John Stuart Blackie, who died in Edinburgh in his 86th year on the 2d Maseh, 1895, was, in many respects, one of the most remarkable and attractive characters of his time. A Greek scholar of rare accomplishments, an admirable writer and a keen, original thinker, it was chiefly his strong and unconventional personal attributes which secured him the recognition and esteem of his entire generation. As is the case with Mr. Gladstone, there was in the late Professor's temperanent an exquisite blending of both conservative and radical convictions, without a trace of the possimism that not infrequently accompanies old age. Buoy-infrequently accompanies old age. Buoywithout a trace of the pessimism that not infrequently accompanies old age. Chriss says that what he is to the church you ought to be to each other, and if some times through difference of orinion of difference of disposition—you make up your mind that your marriage was a mistake patiently bear and forbear, remembering that life at the longest is short, and that for fhose who have been badly mated in this world death will give quick and immediate bill of divorcement written in letters of green grass on quict graves. A week ago it was reported that Mr. known auctioneer, was dangerously ill. Since that time, we are pleased to say, his malady has taken a favorable turn and he is now in a fair way for recovery. We are pleased to learn that Mr. S. H. McBratney of North Augusta has moved to Athens and will carry on placksmithing in all its branches in the Wm. Layng carriage shop at the west end of Main street. In connection with Willard Aseltine Mr. McBratney will carry on the manufacture of carriages of all kinds as well as do horseshoeing and general job work. His announcement will appear in these columns in a week or two.

The literary entertainment under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. of St. Paul's Presbyterian church came off as announced and proved a gratifying success. Principal Mills of the high school read "The Scot Abroad," which was well received. Abroad," which was well received. Miss Maude Addison's recitals, "The Miss Mattle Addison's rectain, 11... Laughing Chorus," and the "Union Jack," composed expressly for her, were given with fine effect, especially the latter piece, which thrilled every loyal heart by its patriotic sentiments. The lecture by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Cameron, on the "Four Cultures" was brimful of interest and instruction and mention of Queen Victoria's serious condition, concerning which there is much private discussion. Mrs. Crawford writes that on arrival at the rallway station at Nice the Queen "seemed unable to raise her head. She looked up and around under her eyclids, as if wanting strength to look otherwise. One might have thought she did not feel her feet under her as with the assistance of her servants she tried to descend the sloping gangway from the train into the station." It is wellk nown among those familiar with court affairs that rheumatism of the knees has lately not only developed complete loss of power over both legs, but has extended to the back and arms, and that a fatal issue is to be feared at almost any time.

The reports of the Queen's condition seriously affect the Parliamentary situation. With the death of a sovereign Parliament is immediately dissolved. This contingency is undoubtedly an important factor in all the present calculations. The political atmosphere, in fact, is charged with sensational possibilities. The Government organs have published this week very involved and evasive denials of the reports of Lord Rosebery's intention to resign the Premiership but the Opposition journals repeat the rumor daily. Meanwhile Lord Rosebery is in almost complete retirement in the country and the Premiership practically is out to commission. His physicians give only the guarded opinion that he may soon recover. Those who saw him at the brief Cabinet meeting the other day say his hair has turned quite white within the past month in consequence of his intense suffering and continued insomnia. Of course this situation cannot last and unless some relief is speedily found he will certainly resign at no distant date. There has not been an hour in the past, three weeks when he would not himself thave done so except for the opposition of his friends.

Rumors of dissolution increase. In addition to the Cabinet's anxieties over the very and the prewers and the Irish Nationalists, fresh troubles and the Irish Nationalists, fresh troubles are developing over the Speakership. Mr. Campbell-Bannerman does not care to undertake the drudgery imposed upon the occupant of the chair, and his colleagues cannot spare him from the War Office. Mr. Leonard Courtney has refused to take the place unless he can have the assured support of the whole House. The Conservatives wish to put Sir Matthew Ridley forward as a candidate, but the Government side would feel it hard to hand over the Speaker's chair to the Opposition. Consequently the latter are discussions as the consequently the latter are discussions.

Opposition. Consequently the latter are discussing the possibilities of Mr. Lockwood or Mr. Gully.

There is a feeling that the chairman night to be elected by acclamation, but here is an approximation. There is a feeling that the chairman ought to be elected by acclamation, but there is an apparent impossibility of accomplishing this result, and the probability that the Conservative, Sir Matthew White-Ridley, may secure the position adds not a little to the worries of the Prime Minister.

Mr. Gladstone himself seemed physically vigorous and walked across the platform from the cat to the curb with erect bearing and firm step. His profile is a good deal sunken, but to lock him in the eye, he is as alert and strong faced as ever. The prediction would be foolish but it can at least be said that men's thoughts have been growing accustomed at a rapid rate the last few days to the idea of Mr. Gladstone's re-assumption of power as quite among the possibilities.

The above picture substantiates my statements. This costume went to a tea the other evening, and if there had not been rules against turning round in an area of less than six feet square there would have been less tea and many ruined dresses. There are nine divisions across the front of the bodice, which in itself would be sufficient to give arrivent breadth; but the stiff sleeves and the wide the front of the bodice, which in itself would be sufficient to give mynerent breadth; but the stiff sleeves and the wide flounce of lace, give the breadth of dress at least, and the hips—well, they are eclipsed.—Washington Pe t.

They Lost Their Shoes Charles D, Hart, of Philadelphia, who as an extensive traveler has spent consi erable time in Japan, says that the inte esting people of that country, though the esting people of that country, though their advance in civilization has been rapid, retain some of their primitive simplicity. The Japanese always leave their shoes at the door of a house when they-enter and walk inside in their stocking feet. When the first railroad was started from Yokohoma to Tokio all the Japanese gentlemen were crazy to ride. They hurrled to the station, kicked their shoes on the platform and entered the train. When they arrived at Tokio they eagrly looked around the platform for their shoes, and great consternation prevailed when these shoes were nowhere to be found.
