The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XXI. A WEEK OF SUSPENSE.

Her mother saw and trembled; but she dared not speak. She dreaded one of the outbursts of passion which always made her feel like a reed shaken by the wind and gave her a nervous headache for half a week.

And Clifford Revel, the clever, astute schemer, did he see nothing of it—did he guess nothing of the hidden passion of the woman whom he loved and schemed for?

It sounds improbable, but it is the fact that he did not.

Clever men are apt to be too clever, and to entertain too great a contempt for other men.

He looked upon Lord Edgar as a fool, a simple, honest fool, and it never occurred to him that Edith could regard his cousin in any other light.

If any one had told him the actual state of Edith's feelings he would have laughed the idea to scorn. Edith Drayton love Lord Edgar! It would have seemed incredible to him. If he noticed that she was particularly kind to Lord Edgar, he put it down to her cleverness, and her willingness to play his, Clifford Revel's, game.

He came to the house pretty often, and he generally found Lord Edgar there, but he told himself that Lord Edgar was only invited because Edith knew that he wished to keep Lord Edgar quiet, and he thought that it was all done for his sake.

He was a little too clever and far too self-assured to suspect that she could choose Lord Edgar before himself. He came and went, and, although he never said a word more of his love, or referred to that evening in which he had let fall the mask and showed her his real nature, Edith knew what was in his mind, and she never felt his soft, smooth hand in-closing hers, never felt the dark, soul-piercing eyes rest upon her face, but an inward shudder passed through her.

Her sensations were those of a bird who looks at the serpent lying beneath the tree, at the shining, beautiful, dreadful thing who will fascinate it with its glittering eyes and destroy it with its cruel fang.

It was Monday afternoon, the beginning of another week of suspense. Lord Edgar had been to Clifford Revel's in the morning and received the

to be living in the past, in that short, sweet past I have told you of.

"Yes," she murmured, and he did not read the silent agony in her eyes. "I told Clifford that I would not leave the affair in his hands beyond to-morrow," he said. "Sometimes I upbraid myself for trusting it to him. I feel that I ought to have done something—Heaven knows what! but he overpersuaded me—rightly, I have no doubt. I can not wait beyond to-morrow. To-morrow I shall advise. I hate the idea, I loathe it as much as I did the employment of a detective, but I must do something! Great Heaven! she may be—be ill, or—or in want; they were not rich! There, the thought maddens me," and he turned his head aside that she might not see the anguish depicted in his face.

But she knew it was there, and the knowledge tortured her.

"He would not suffer one little jot of this if it were I who was missing," she thought.

"What can I say?" she murmured.

"Nothing, no," he responded. "And I, what can I do?"

There was silence for a moment; she drew close to him. She longed to say to him:

"See, look at me, I stand here ready to console you. She fled from you, she deserted you; forget her. I will help you to do so. I love you as much or better than she could do! Forget her and turn to me!"

But the time was not ripe—not yet. She took up the cigar-case that he had thrown down, and with her own hands drew out a cigar; she thoroughly understood men—him above all others.

"To-morrow is not yet," she said. "It is still to-day. Do not be unhappy—more unhappy than you can help. It—may I say it?"

"You may say what you please," he said, gratefully.

"Well, I would say that sorrowing will do no good. Try and forget for to-night."

"Forget!" he said. "Ah, Edith—it happened sometimes that he called her, all unwittingly, by her Christian name, and her heart throbbled when he did so—ah, Edith, it is evident that you have never loved!"

She smiled a wan smile.

"No? Well, perhaps not. But still I can understand. Will you not light your cigar?" she asked, winningly, pleadingly. "It makes me unhappy to see you wretched and restless! You should always be free and happy, and full of laughter. I always picture you so!"

He smiled ruefully.

"So I was till this love came to me," he said.

"This is the primeval curse, 'Love's feet are softly shod with pain,'" she murmured.

He looked at her.

"Poetry? How clever you are! I don't know anything about poetry. Is love always such a worker of unhappiness?"

"They say so," she said, trying to speak lightly.

"By Heaven! I think you are right," he said, with a sigh. "If I know her, my sweet Lela is as unhappy as I am."

"You do not think that she has forgotten you?" she murmured, dove-like.

"Forgotten—" He started and stared at her. "Ah, if you knew! She is as true as steel, as staunch as a woman! Why, it was her very love for me, I am assured, that caused her to fly from me. I am sure of that. I shall know and understand it all when I see her. When!" and he sighed.

She took up the dainty match-case and lighted a match, and bending in graceful recognition of her graciousness, he took it from her.

But he could not stand idly smoking. There was a restless fit upon him, a longing to be doing something in the search for his darling that made it impossible for him to remain even beside this beautiful creature.

"I think I will go," he said, suddenly. "I am boring you! Heaven only knows why you bear with me as you do. I sit in moody silence for hours at a time; I am absent-minded, and, in fact, a complete bore—and yet you tell me that I am welcome here. Why is it?"

She flushed for a moment, and then looked up at him.

"Is there no such thing as friendship in the world?" she said, in a low voice.

"Friendship! Yes, that must be it!" he said, his simple, honest nature seeing nothing of mockery in her words.

STRENGTH FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restores Health and Strength.

Lansing, Mich.—"After the birth of my child I was not able to stand on my feet. I was so weak I could not get up."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash, and I got better right away and was soon a new woman and could work hard, and I can recommend these remedies to other young mothers who are weak and ailing as I was.—Mrs. ORA O. BOWERS, 621 Homer Street, Lansing, Mich.

Women who are in Mrs. Bowers' condition should not continue to suffer from weakness and pain—but profit from her experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience is at your service.

"Yes, you are a true friend! You, whom the world worships and serves—as it should do for your beauty and worth—have found it worth while to bear with a wretched unfortunate like myself. Yes, it is true friendship! If anything should console one it should be the reflection that I have two such friends as you and Clifford."

She started and glanced up at him as if half suspecting that he had spoken in sarcasm, but she met the steadfast gaze of his honest, handsome eyes and turned her own aside.

"Ah, Heaven! to be loved by such a man!—by one who was so pure and honorable himself that he thought all the world pure and honest also!"

"I will go now," he said.

"What will you do?" she asked.

He puffed at his cigar in silence for a moment.

"I shall take the chestnut for a spin," he said. "He is eating his head off in the stable and wants a run. I'll go right out of London, somewhere—anywhere!" He flung his cigar into the street impatiently.

Edith sighed.

"That is how I feel, too! often; but women can not go alone, somewhere anywhere."

"I wish you could go with me," he said. "But you dine at the duchess' to-night?"

She inclined her head.

"Yes, I am sorry to say. But my thoughts will follow you."

He took her hand and held it for a moment. He had no suspicion that his touch thrilled through her; that she longed to throw herself on his breast and murmur, "Take me with you, now and always!"

"Good-by," he said. "I hope you will have a pleasant evening. I prophesy a great triumph for you—this is an easy prophecy; you always have a triumph. Good-by."

His strong hand pressed her slender one for a moment, and then he strode from the room.

She stood at the window watching him, and slowly raised the hand he had grasped to her lips. Suddenly she started; the tall, thin figure and clean-cut face of Clifford Revel crossed her view, and she heard his ring at the bell.

Her hand dropped from her lips as if she had bitten it, and she held it inclosed protectingly in the other one as the servant announced him and he entered.

It was not the first time she had seen him alone since his proposal and her promise to accept him—when he was the Marquis of Farintosh.

German Democratic Government—Geneva Peace Treaty—Expected—Schedules Terms Unaccepted

BOLSHEVIK GUNBOAT SUNK. ARCHANGEL, May 12. One Bolshevik gunboat is reported to have been sunk on the Dvina River Sunday during an engagement between the British river flotilla and land batteries and the enemy fleet. The Allied flotilla, aided by airplanes, also conducted a brisk bombardment along the Viga River.

SOCIALISTS SPREAD THEMSELVES. PARIS, May 13. The League of Nations Covenant was described as a league of governments and executives rather than of peoples and parliaments, in a statement issued by the International Socialists last night, criticizing the peace terms and the covenant. It is declared that the covenant seems to be the instrument of a victorious coalition dominated by five great powers, rather than an organ of international justice on which all nations ought to find a place. The statement is signed by the Socialists who were appointed by the Berne Labor Socialist Conference to make a study of the covenant and the treaty.

U. S. AIRSHIP PROGRAMME. WASHINGTON, May 13. Contracts for at least five hundred airplanes of the very latest type will be awarded American manufacturers under plans prepared by the Army Air Service and sent to Secretary of War Baker to-day for his consideration. The primary purpose would be to keep the industry in such condition as will ensure its rapid expansion to meet the requirements of a national emergency.

FURTHER HONORS. PARIS, May 12. The University of Prague has decided to honor several Allied statesmen by conferring degrees upon them, says a message from the Czech-Slovak capital. The men to be honored are David Lloyd George, the British Premier, Clement Pineau, and Premier Clemenceau of France, Prof. Marinsky, President of the Czech-Slovak republic, and President Wilson, who will be made Doctors Honoris Causa.

GERMAN THREAT. PARIS, May 13. The heads of the two German Democratic parties and the parties of the Centre have informed Chancellor Scheidemann that their parties will withdraw their representatives from the Government, in case the Cabinet decides to sign the Peace Treaty, according to a despatch from Berlin received here to-day by way of Basle.

Germany is willing to make integral reparations, but the conditions in the Peace Treaty take from her all means of doing so, Philip Scheidemann told the National Assembly yesterday, according to the version of his speech received here. # Socialists Criticize the Peace Terms.

German Democrats Threaten Government---General Opposition to Peace Treaty --- Not What Was Expected---Scheidmann Declares Terms Unacceptable.

BOLSHEVİK GUNBOAT SUNK.

ARCHANGEL, May 12. One Bolshevik gunboat is reported to have been sunk on the Drina River Sunday during an engagement between the British river flotilla and land batteries and the enemy fleet. The Allied flotilla, aided by airplanes also conducted a brisk bombardment along the Viga River.

SOCIALISTS SPREAD THEMSELVES

PARIS, May 13. The League of Nations Covenant was described as a league of governments and executives rather than of peoples and parliaments, in a statement issued by the International Socialists last night, criticising the peace terms and the covenant. It is declared that the covenant seems to be the instrument of a victorious coalition dominated by five great powers, rather than an organ of international justice on which all nations ought to find a place. The statement is signed by the Socialists who were appointed by the Berne Labor Socialist Conference to make a study of the covenant and the treaty.

U. S. AIRSHIP PROGRAMME.

WASHINGTON, May 13. Contracts for at least five hundred airplanes of the very latest type will be awarded American manufacturers under plans prepared by the Army Air Service and sent to Secretary of War Baker to-day for his consideration. The primary purpose would be to keep the industry in such condition as will ensure its rapid expansion to meet the requirements of a national emergency.

FURTHER HONORS.

PARIS, May 12. The University of Prague has decided to honor several Allied statesmen by conferring degrees upon them, says a message from the Czech-Slovak capital. The men to be honored are David Lloyd George, the British Premier, President Poincaré and Premier Clemenceau of France, Prof. Marsaryk, President of the Czech-Slovak republic, and President Wilson, who will be made Doctors Honoris Causa.

GERMAN THREAT.

PARIS, May 13. The heads of the two German Democratic parties and the parties of the Centre have informed Chancellor Scheidmann that their parties will withdraw their representatives from the Government, in case the Cabinet decides to sign the Peace Treaty, according to a despatch from Berlin received here to-day by way of Basle.

SAYS TERMS WILL DESTROY GERMAN.

PARIS, May 13. Germany is willing to make integral reparations, but the conditions in the Peace Treaty take from her all means of doing so, Philip Scheidmann told the National Assembly yesterday, according to the version of his speech received here. The Chancellor criticised vehemently the actions of President Wilson.

THE GERMAN SCHEME.

PARIS, May 12. The German plan for a League of Nations submitted by the German delegation at Versailles and now in the hands of the Peace Conference Committee on the League of Nations to which it was referred, contains sixty-six articles, together with a supplement setting forth the charter for an International Labor League. The special aims of the League of Nations devised by the Germans are set as follows: A.—Prevention of International disputes; B.—Disarmament; C.—Securing freedom of national minorities; E.—Creation of an International Workers' Charter; F.—

Legislative Council.

The Council met at 4.30 yesterday. The bill respecting Domesticated Deer was read a third time.

The following bills were then referred to Committee and passed without amendment: "An Act further to amend the Weights and Measures Act, 1916"; "An Act to Extend and Amend the Business Profits Tax Act, 1917"; and "An Act to amend the Income War Tax Act, 1918."

"An Act Respecting the Control and Management of the Harbour of Grand Bank" was read a second time.

On moving the adjournment, Hon. W. J. Ellis said that if permitted he would detain the House a few minutes longer so as to answer several criticisms made by the Hon. Mr. Anderson on himself and the Government during the session. Patience, he said, had ceased to be a virtue, and he would no longer take insults from the hon. gentleman. He then entered upon a defence of members of the Executive who, he claimed, were always honest and straightforward in their dealing with matters that concerned the Colony; and had proven themselves equal to any emergency. From hearing Mr. Anderson talk, we would infer he was a model of business ability, and that he, (Mr. Ellis) knew nothing. But he had before him figures which showed that at various times the hon. member had not been up to time in some financial transactions with the Customs Department, and that really he was under an obligation to the Government, who, if they had chosen, could have closed his business. Mr. Ellis then proceeded to prove that he was a better man than Mr. Anderson, by pointing out that whereas the latter, who ran for Mayor of the city in 1906, barely got enough votes to save his nomination fee, he (Mr. Ellis) had served in the Municipal Council for twelve years; in his first election coming second on the poll, and in a later election defeated Mayor Gibbs. He had also served eight years in the House of Assembly, and no one could say he was discourteous to any one while there. He had borne the insults of the hon. member so far, but was not going to stand for them any longer.

Replying, the Hon. Mr. Anderson stated that the financial matters referred to occurred at a time when business was in a critical stage here because of the war, when money was going out and none coming in. Those obligations, however, had since been met with interest, and he didn't see what right the leader of the House had to introduce them into the discussion. If in the heat of debate he had said things not complimentary, they were not intended to be offensive, and did not justify Mr. Ellis's attack.

Hon. Mr. Squires expressed strong condemnation of the contemptible attack which had been made on the Hon. Mr. Anderson. It was hardly credible that politicians and public men had sunk so low as to go to the files of a department of the Crown and there obtain information that should have been sealed in the breasts of officials—information of a purely private character—and use it as a bludgeon to stop criticism or debate. If this were continued no public man, no business man could feel safe, for at the slightest provocation his business secrets would be revealed and his private affairs made bare to the public. Men who were capable of doing such things were not fit for the positions which they occupy.

Hon. Mr. Squires gave notice of questions, after which the Council adjourned until the usual hour this afternoon.

Veteran Tells of a Terrible Experience

Before He Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Postmaster of Hereford Points the Way to Health to Other Sufferers From Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Hereford, Que., May 13th. (Special).—Mr. A. Peabody the veteran postmaster here, is one of the many old people who claim to have received a new lease of life through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Peabody is in his 84th year, but wonderfully strong and active for one of his age. But he was not always thus. "For six years," he says, in telling his story, "I suffered from kidney and bladder trouble. I had those sharp, stabs, lightning pains through my muscles, even to my finger tips."

"In March, 1917, I was taken with a shaking chill and deathly pains through my abdomen, groins, and the small of my back. I was confined to my bed for three weeks, during which time I often had to get up as often as twenty or thirty times a day."

"I tried many remedies, but got little benefit till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. In three days I got relief, and three boxes cleared all the pains out of my system. I also rest much better at nights."

"I am always glad to tell other sufferers from kidney and bladder trouble what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me."

Complete Victory.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Mr. Gosling, in commenting on Mr. White's letters in the Daily News said in your issue of yesterday's date:—

"The additional section noticed 'by Mr. White was submitted by me to the Council and then again 'to the members for St. John's.' This is quite true, but I may say for the information of your readers that, though the section was submitted by Mr. Gosling to the Council, the necessity for such a section had been pointed out two years ago by the Citizens' Committee."

The Committee desired that only the owners of property not built upon should pay anything towards the cost, and that owners of adjoining property not directly benefited should be exempt from paying any part of it.

The protest of the Committee has now been listened to by the Mayor and Council. I consider it a complete victory for the Citizens' Committee.

I think Mr. White can hardly be blamed for objecting when he had only the Charter before him. I hardly understand why members of the Legislature are protesting in the Press. Possibly the mantle of Donald Morrison has fallen on them and they too "had not read the law." Surely they had no intention of protecting land-sharks even for another few months!

In the above connection I write only as a private citizen, not as Secretary of the Committee.

Yours truly,
May 14, 1919. WARWICK SMITH.

Hindenburg—After the Armistice.

General is Compelled by Revolutionists to See American Interviewer.

An article of very great interest appears in the current issue of Everybody's Magazine from the pen of Herbert Corey, the war correspondent. As soon as the armistice was signed Corey took the grave chance of slipping across the border. He even got as far as Berlin and the impressions that the trip left on his mind are valuable in the extreme. He brought back the impression of an unrepentant Germany. Perhaps the most interesting part of his article is the account of his interview with Von Hindenburg.

The officer of the Rath (Soldiers' and Workmen's Council) who had us in charge at Cappel differed from the usual military adjoint in that he was a true revolutionist. He was slender and corseted and diffident, and clicked his heels most sensationally when he saluted.

He came to us with this plaint when we were somewhat merrily inclined. We were at dinner and engaged in demolishing our fifth goose in two days. Goose meat is not covered by the meat cards in Germany, and so he who has the money may eat goose when he will. We had the money, and although we had lost our appetite for the German's best friend, hunger had driven us to it. Everything had become a joke to us in the reaction from the depression occasioned by too much goose. "I knew Hindenburg would not see us," we said. "We knew it all the time."

"Ah!" said the young lieutenant. He bowed and heel-clicked formally to each of us as he withdrew. An hour later we were told to present ourselves at the Field Marshal's office on the following day. The little lieutenant accompanied us, perhaps to see that his orders had been obeyed. We found the Field Marshal a pathetic figure, his clothing hanging loose upon his gaunt frame, his grey eyes sad under his overhanging brows. But his eyes stared in anger at the sight of this unknown little man in an officer's uniform. Officers do not enter the Field Marshal's rooms unbidden.

"Who are you?" he demanded, in a true Field Marshal's roar. "I am the president of the local Rath," said the little man. He bowed and heel-clicked valiantly, and if his spirit was shaken his knees were not. "I arranged the interview for these gentlemen and I have come with them."

"That was all. But I shall remember Von Hindenburg's face as he turned toward his chair, long after I have forgotten what he said. Enemy or not, the Field Marshal had been a great soldier, and even to-day, with the Empire crumbled about him, he remained the idol of the people and the army alike. Every man we met spoke bitterly of Ludendorff and Von Klueck and Von Tirpitz and the lesser figures of the war, but only affection and respect were manifested for Hindenburg. To see him forced to obey a Rath made up of men who are patriots, but can only seem to him a body of unclear rebels, had something about it which touched the heart."

"You have come to me at a moment of great depression," said the Field Marshal, slowly. "This is the time of my country's greatest sorrow. What is it that you wish to know?"

"One had no time in which to phrase courteous and circumlocutory queries. We blurted out the question in which we were all most deeply interested. 'Why did you remain at the head of the German armies under the revolutionary government?'"

In Rodach, Duchy of Coburg-Gotha, Germany, parts of the body of an 11-year-old girl who had been murdered recently was discovered in the kitchen of the Mail Hotel, whose keeper had purchased it as mutton. A Lichtenburger, who was known to be carrying on an illicit trade in meats, was arrested and confessed. He had sold pieces of the body to three different parties.

The Charter Clauses.

The ten clauses of the new Charter of Incorporation for the city of St. John's, which are now being debated in Committee of the House of Assembly, preparatory to their passage or rejection by that body, appear to be veritable bones of contention, and it is doubtful how the mass of citizens regard them.

Meanwhile the city suffers. It is not at all perfectly clear to the ordinary citizen as to what is meant by the various opinions ventilated in the newspapers. What is quite visible to him, however, is that conditions in the city are rapidly becoming worse and worse as time goes on, and no Municipal benefits are accruing, though taxes have to be paid with unremitting regularity.

LONDON, May 13.
In the House of Commons, Commander Wedgwood asked regarding the report that the entente were preparing to attack Petrograd, in cooperation with Finland. Sir Bonar Law replied that a British squadron was available at Helsinki in the case of emergencies, but no such arrangement, as suggested, had been made. Obviously if anything of the sort were contemplated, it would be impossible to say anything in regard to it. Mr. Bonar Law declined, amid cheers, to give any undertaking that the Government would not be committed to attack Petrograd in cooperation with Finland, without the Commons being acquainted with the operations, but emphasized that no such proposal was at present contemplated.

HUSBAND BEGINS TO TALK.
When a man undertakes to become a missionary in his home he is well advised if he seeks to win converts by the practice of principles rather than by the persuasion of preaching. By so doing he avoids the grave danger of seeming to usurp the traditional feminine privilege of "the last word." Because, she says, her husband "quoted Scripture" to her and gave her "Biblical admonitions." Mrs. George Duckett of Hamilton has left him, and is suing him for $10 a week alimony. They had lived happily for twenty-five years until the husband joined a religious sect to which the wife does not belong. The moral is—but is there a moral?

More Fliers Arrive.

Capt. Alcock, D.S.O., and Lieut. Brown arrived in town yesterday by express. They will attempt the transatlantic flight in a Vickers bomber, which is now on the way here by steamer, to arrive in a day or two. It will be a couple of weeks before their flight will be made, and in the meantime they are to select and prepare a suitable ground, maybe at Mt. Pearl.

House of Assembly.

(Yesterday.)
Yesterday's sitting was very brief. The Minister of Finance gave notice of a bill to amend the Insurance Co. Act, 1906. The Municipal Inspection of Food on Sealing Steamers, Refining of Cod Liver Oil, Local Affairs and Workmen's Compensation bills were read a third time; the Beaver bill went through the Committee stage; and the Tenants' bill was read a second time. The other items on the order paper were deferred, after which adjournment was taken till to-day, when it is expected the Budget will be introduced.

Carl Trapnell at the Majestic.

Mr. Carl Trapnell's singing at the Majestic Theatre was a splendid success and the rendition of Jack Turner's great song, "Zero Minus One," was encored by the packed house, so that he was obliged to appear a second time and sing "The End of a Perfect Day." A novel idea of the Majestic was practiced last evening, when the name of to-night's picture was shown on the wall of the theatre during intermission. This picture is "Woman and Wife," featuring Alice Brady. The picture is an admirable adaptation of the ever popular "Jane Eyre," the story does not depart markedly from the original but it shows the skillful touches of a master directing hand in strengthening weak points and bringing the story more clearly in line with modern form.

May Have Sports Day.

As there are many good athletes, including a baseball nine, aboard the U.S.S. Chicago, it has been suggested that a sports day be held before the ship's departure. The ground of St. George's field is not yet in a good condition, but a few days sun would soon work the trick. That the sports day will be arranged is greatly desired by the baseball and other fans of the city.

The Clyde at Port Union.
The Dundee left King's Cove at 1.30 p.m. going to Port Union.

Would Not Sing National Anthem.

The St. Catherine's Open Forum, which has been held in Griffin's Family Theatre for the past five Sundays under the auspices of the Labor Educational League and addressed mainly by speakers of Radical Socialist tendency, has never had the National Anthem called for until last Sunday. When as a result of newspaper suggestion the Chairman announced that "God Save the King" would be sung, and asked for special emphasis on the lines "Confound their politics, Frustrate their knavish tricks." A pianist played the air, but the audience scrambled to the open door without singing a word.

How America Would Punish Kaiser

Thirty varieties of monstrous crime are laid at the ex-Kaiser's door by the sub-committee of the Commission on War Responsibility in Paris, but while the British, French and Italian members are reported to have prescribed capital punishment, the Japanese and American members can not agree to it. Japan still holds that emperors rule by divine right. To hang even an ex-Emperor would be a sacrilege. The American members seem ready to content themselves with a "moral indictment," not through any chicken-hearted reluctance to deal squarely with "the world's greatest criminal," but because the machinery for bringing him to trial and execution appears to them inadequate if not altogether lacking. As the New York Tribune puts it, "Mr. Lansing is a lawyer, with a lawyer's concern for legalities and precedents. He could not find what express statute the Hohenzollern violated or discover international machinery for conducting his trial on joint account." To The Tribune, Mr. Lansing's position looks legitimate enough in principle, but nevertheless conducive of huge injustice:

"The whitening bones of the Lusitania children still strew the sea. The body of Edith Cavell is in the grave. Across a continent rise the crosses of the unidentified dead. In countless homes there is a vacant place. But the arch-criminal, with a rotten, lives in a luxurious castle, and to his credit stands a great sum of wealth while Germany pleads inability to make reparation. A strange world, my masters!"

The Springfield Republican, a paper not commonly given to advocating rash measures, thinks it is time we broke with legality in such matters and created outright a basis for the future prosecution of rulers who may lay the foundation of wars:

"If there could be a grand inquest after every war, in order to fix the moral guilt of every one concerned in causing it, the world might be the gainer. A trial of the Kaiser, however far removed it might be from an imperial or legal procedure, might be an excellent departure from previous international practice if it should establish a precedent that in later times could be broadened and applied on a comprehensive scale."

Desirable though this radical procedure might be in certain respects, it appears to the New York World a pronouncedly un-American, not to say un-Anglo-Saxon, way of handling the case, and at the same time anything but good policy, for—

"All the traditions of the English-speaking peoples are squarely opposed to the principle of expost facto laws, whatever the offense may be and however just the demand for punishment. A trial of the former German Emperor without due process of law would not be an impressive proceeding, and might do far more harm than good. It would enable his supporters in Germany to picture him as a martyr, and in the end the Wilhelm legend might become as prolific a source of mischief as the Napoleon legend." This, however, is not necessarily an argument for giving him his liberty, and the New York Times would cage him up and claims to see ways of doing it legally, and believes that, on the whole, it would come nearest to punishing him as he deserves, since "capital punishment seems miserably inadequate in his case."

"That would end his sufferings at once. Remorse, the tortures and torments that will prey upon his mind and soul would seem to be a penalty more nearly commensurate with his crimes; so long as he holds his former greatness in memory he must be the most miserable man on earth. That he must be under restraint, a prisoner, that he must never be a free man, is indicated by common prudence. There the Conference will be upon solid ground, with a multitude of precedents to justify the process against the ex-Kaiser, with the whole body of international law for the guidance of the court. There will be no difficulty in drawing up the indictment against him for many and flagrant violations of international law; and the supreme law of self-defence and safety gives abundant sanction, after conviction, for a sentence imposing restraint or imprisonment. The decision of the Council that he must be placed on trial may be expected to lead to that end."

Under the head-line, "Naughty, Naughty Wilhelm!" the Pittsburg Gazette-Times ridicules the plan to let him off with a mere reprimand, and declares, "Keen disappointment will be felt over the decision reported to have been made at Paris that the former Kaiser can not be legally executed for starting the world-war and ordering or approving the atrocities which characterized the German operations." As for the objection that it is bad policy to make a martyr of him, the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record asks: "When a vile criminal has been hanged, does he become a martyr?" and the Asheville (N.C.) Citizen emphatically objects to "chastising the gallows."—Literary Digest.

Too Much "Know Thyself."

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Am I like that?" is a question a friend of mine always asks when anyone with disagreeable fault or mannerism is being discussed.

I do not think she asks, as so many people do, merely with the desire of getting the pleasant flattery of reassurance. I think she really is anxious to know herself. But I also think that she is one of those people who carry self-analysis to a point where it does not actually cease to be a virtue, it certainly hangs precariously over the edge of the precipice.

"Know thyself" is, of course, one of the most important precepts ever formulated as a foundation for character, but knowing one's self is one thing and thinking about one's self all the time is another.

Sometimes Self Analysis Becomes Egotism. I think we all know people who carry this habit of self-analysis to the verge of egotism. One form of this excess is the one I indicated above in which the victim of this habit is constantly asking other people's opinion of his or her character. "Am I this, or am I that?" "Will you give me your honest opinion as to whether I did right in this or that?" "I want you to be perfectly frank with me." (Were you ever unwary enough to accept an invitation to be perfectly frank?) Frequently I think this form of self-analysis degenerates into unbridled egotism and becomes nothing more nor less than a desire to keep one's personality in the foreground even by discussing its faults.

Don't Be TOO Much Interested In Your Motives.

Another form of self-analysis carried too far is the habit of constantly analyzing one's own motives. True, the man who would be surprised as his neighbor (or rather such more so) if told why he does things is living in the dark and blundering along through life, as anyone who lives in the dark must. But the man who is constantly in-pecting and dissecting his motives not only takes the life out of them, just as he would if he kept pulling up plants to look at the roots, but also is apt to spend too much time and energy that way.

They Mark Time Instead of Marching
People who are too introspective are likely to lose their proper perspective on things outside themselves. They are likely to become so absorbed in the academic interest of the great subject "myself" that they forget to use that knowledge as a means to an end.

And whereas, self knowledge is the first step towards self development, one won't get anywhere if one steps and marks time there.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.
Lettuce jellies, fruits or sweet sauces may be put in mince-pie filling. A closet with no window can be ventilated by means of an electric fan. Soapstone sinks can be cleaned with sandpaper. Finish with linseed oil. A white enameled set, hand painted, is convenient when going picnicking. Have window screens put into the windows early and the flies will be fewer.

Sprinkle raisins with cornflour before chopping and they will be less sticky. If children are to be healthy they must learn both obedience and self-control. Save washing windows so often by shining them with tissue paper occasionally.

Household Notes.

Egg cups mold jellies prettily. Drop a lime-drop or clove into each teacup. Cold cereal will seldom impair the flavor of soup. Potatoes may be boiled and served in their jackets. The plainer the design on silverware the better. A dredge box of flour is a handy kitchen utensil. Every rubber ring should be tested before using. Beef and parsnip stew makes a substantial luncheon dish. When the piano is tuned be sure that the piano tuner is reliable. When a rolled dough is desired use more flour than usual. Use a flannel rag moistened with vinegar to shine singlass. Two asbestos mats together will serve as a good fat-iron rest. Potatoes and oysters may be scalloped together very successfully. Salsify and potato soufflé make a good "fain dish" for luncheon. Automobile oil can be used for household purposes as an economy. Embroidered linen chair-covers look cool and protect Summer dresses. Sewing-machine oil should be put on any rust spots on umbrella frames.

Just Folks

THE BLACK SHEEP.
He was our black sheep once. So long ago That many here don't know the slipp he made. An' wonder why in town he's allus stayed. We were too slow an' out o' date for him. He was cut out in greater depths to swim. He'd know the world an' travel to its ends. He'd have rich men, not simple folks, for friends. We pleaded with him here to be content. But no! the city called, and off he went.

He called us boobs an' sneered at us back home. Told 'em all his city friends our customs queer. An' at our ways an' habits used to jeer. Made us his laughin' stock, until the day He stole to meet some bills he couldn't pay. Then for a friend in vain he looked about. An' one of us went down an' bailed him out.

We paid his bills an' got him squared away. An' brought him home to start his life again. An' here he's lived an' washed away the stain. Here all has been forgiven an' forgot. The black sheep's fleece is now without a spot. Sometimes you see the Lord real trouble sends. So that a man may come to know his friends.

Judge Works by Both Times.

His Honor Judge Gauld, of Hamilton, has attained novel distinction. All axioms to the contrary, he is now called upon to be in two different places and to do two different things at one and the same hour. Moreover, he is at both places and does both things—at the same hour. Greatness has been thrust upon his Honor. The ardent devotees of daylight saving and the rigid adherents of standard time have combined toward this end. At 10 o'clock in the morning, as County Judge or Local Master, he sits in court presiding at the jury trial of an offender or sits in chambers issuing a commission to take evidence, while at 10 o'clock the same morning he is busy in Division Court adjudicating the collection of an account or dealing with a debtor under judgment summons. In the first case he is required to work on daylight saving, and in the latter case on standard time.

Is Peace Unconstitutional?

We do not know whether we favour a League of Nations or not; we are not sure what sort of a League we would have, if we could. But we are entirely clear that in the arguments against the League there is to be found a vast amount of sheer nonsense. A favorite plea against the League, so far as the United States is concerned, is that it is unconstitutional. The right to make war and peace resides, under our Constitution, with the Congress. If we enter a League of Nations we agree not to make war; and the Congress loses its constitutional rights in the premises. Or, perhaps, the constitutional aspect is not emphasized; perhaps we are solemnly told that we, as a nation, must not give up our God-given privilege of making war when and upon whom we please. Very good. But what is the difference between a treaty with one nation, and a treaty with a score of nations? Peace can be made only by a treaty, in any event; and our treaties, we hope, are binding. So the moment we make a treaty of peace we are bound not to make war, except in defence of the terms of the treaty. Then, whether we put the matter upon the basis of constitutionality, or upon

Interesting Story

of U.S. Officers and Ships now at Trepassey

TREPASSEY, To-day. Special to Evening Telegram. Lieutenant A. J. Jongsomward, Medical Corps, and Lieutenant J. P. Owen, M.C., of U. S. S. Prairie, are daily ashore, giving free advice, medical treatment and medicine to the people of Trepassey and vicinity. Lieutenant C. D. Sanderson, Dental Surgeon, has also been giving his services ashore. The three of these gentlemen are expert specialists, men in the very top hole of their profession. They would accept no remuneration and refused absolutely to accept any loss or emolument whatsoever. Needless to state they are a godsend to Trepassey, and there are more than grateful people who are more than grateful to see the kindness of the medicines in their treatment. Over a hundred and fifty patients have so far been treated.

Captain Arthur Crenshaw, Flotilla Commander, and senior officer present, has had one of the most interesting careers of any officer in the United States Navy. When a German sailor was interned at Honolulu, where he was then posted, and her name changed to Carl Schurz, he was ordered to bring her to Key West, Florida, a distance of 2,500 miles. The Germans had wrecked the compass, so that it was from two to three degrees out, and to make matters even worse out, his crew consisted almost entirely of reserves of little experience. The route took him through the Panama Canal, and when at last he had arrived at his destination he had no more than twenty-five tons of coal remaining. This was regarded as being a most remarkable feat in navigation. Captain Crenshaw soon licked the crew into one of the finest in the Navy. At present he is commanding the fifty-nine ships connected with the American Navy's attempt at a Transatlantic flight.

Captain G. T. Ghent, of the U. S. S. Prairie, the flagship of the flotilla, has also had a most interesting career. On the last, a transport, and formerly a passenger ship, he was blown right into the ocean when she boilers exploded, and was picked up unconscious. As a result of this he spent three months in hospital. He is constantly leave for Plymouth, England, to return with the planes on her decks. All the destroyers that are connected with the Transatlantic flight have a speed of 35 knots, or roughly 39 miles per hour. Each is equipped with wireless telephone, some of them capable of talking at a distance of two hundred and fifty miles. Each set costs $800.

The Proposed New Meth. College Home.

The movement now on foot for the purpose of erecting a new College Home for the Methodist people of Newfoundland, is being well organized, and the committee in charge are laying excellent plans for the starting of the campaign.

Last evening the executive met at the Board of Trade rooms, and Mr. Holtzmann, the American expert in such matters, was also present, and much mutual help was given; and the best of good feeling prevailed. The committee is composed of gentlemen of the highest standing in the community, and they have already done much for the great cause of education in our midst; and now that they see the necessity of further advancement, they are determined to unite their efforts and make this campaign a success.

In this we feel that they will have the sympathy of the public, and also the hearty co-operation of those more directly identified with the Methodist College; and there cannot be any room for doubt as to the final result of their work. If nothing else, the object of the campaign itself should mean success; but when so much zeal is displayed by the promoters, this success is doubly assured. Their work in the past is an augury for even better service in the future. We therefore commend this movement to the earnest consideration of our people; and we give it our warmest support, and hope that within reasonable time the new home will adorn our city, and that the ideals of which the project is for the future and the results which are possible to flow from it will tell for the good of our land. Education has done much to date; but it can do more; and such a movement as this of which we write will be a powerful agency in this direction. We wish the committee well in their good work, and trust that their deliberations will meet with that support and find that response which they so richly deserve. They are out for victory. Let us then do our part to hasten it on.

Devil Dances in London.

By Elliott O'Donnell.
A WARNING AGAINST SYSTEMATIC FRAUDS.

Now that Spiritualism has become a fashionable hobby, the inevitable harpy is very much in evidence, and nowadays more so than under the sinister guise of black magic.

Two classes of people are to be found dabbling in this darker side of spiritualism. One, that class which genuinely believes in the nearness of the supernatural powers of evil, and desires to get into touch with them in order to ask their aid in helping them to acquire money; and two, that class, common or garden fakers, which, knowing how a certain section of the public are always fascinated by anything labelled wicked, starts clubs and cults for the alleged purpose of trying to get in touch with spirits, for as big a fee as possible.

Both classes haunt London. Dealings with the former first, there is in the West-End a lady who nightly prays to the evil spirits to assist her to obtain money.

In the centre of one of her rooms is a kind of altar, and hanging over it the portrait of a notorious witch, said to have flourished somewhere about the middle of the sixteenth century. On the altar itself are a besom handle and a big stone basin reputed to have once belonged to the witch.

Anointed with Fat and Herbs.

At midnight the lady in question approaches the altar, mutters a series of incantations, learned from an ancient volume of Oriental magic, and, kneeling down, prays to the spirit of the witch to come to her in her sleep and tell her how to get money the following day.

Probsim (Atheseriflips)

That done, she anoints her forehead with a mixture of fat and herbs, prepared from a recipe in the same volume, and then goes to bed, when, she declares, she is not infrequently visited in her dreams by a black bull or greyhound that gives her certain advice; and she has only to follow it in order to obtain the money she needs.

Another lady, the holder of a first-class degree at one of the Universities, chancing to come across a book on black magic in a library in Switzerland, determined to put it to the test. Consequently, on her return to London she took a studio out Chelsea way, and now has it converted into a kind of chapel. The walls are decorated with devices of skulls, crossbones, eyes, little fingers, and representatives of Oriental evil deities.

Once or twice a week she holds private services in this chapel, and occasionally sacrifices such small living things as mice, birds, and rabbits. She claims the spirits conjured up there have brought her money; and it is a significant fact that she was married comparatively recently to a rich old man who conveniently died soon after the honeymoon.

Dances with Evil Spirits.

So much with the genuine believers; now for the fakers.

There is somewhere in the neighborhood of Soho a cult that professes to indulge in black magic.

The headquarters consist of a big room decorated with the most extraordinary fantastic devices and hieroglyphics, purporting to be Egyptian and Arabian, and sundry smaller rooms, each stated to be reserved for the rites and ceremonies appertaining to some particular god of evil.

On certain nights in the month a service is conducted in the big room, at which all members of the cult and a few specially privileged outsiders are present. A high priest, accompanied by female subordinates, clad in a Egyptian and Arabian presides; and the ceremony consists in readings from some book, alleged to be at least

Mr. Lloyd George Overdoes It.

(Daily Mail.)

A popular politician is like a spoiled child; criticism is as intolerable to the one as chastisement is to the other. Mr. Lloyd George is merely more impatient than others because he is more of a politician, and he bears correction with less dignity because he stands in a peculiarly conspicuous position, which he has sacrificed a great deal of his independence and freedom to obtain. He is devoted to "tactics," sometimes at the expense of policy, and he has surprised even some of his warmest admirers by his purely personal attitude of mind where they expected breadth of statesmanship.

Nevertheless, many of his hearers recently must have been surprised at the violence of personal feeling which he displayed in his attacks on The Daily Mail and his gross diatribe against a certain "great newspaper proprietor," who, we imagine, has never been concerned to know anything about Mr. Lloyd George's personal feeling towards him and, we are sure, cares as little for his hostility as for his more friendly approaches.

All this sort of thing is one-sided and peculiar to Mr. Lloyd George. He is a politician who sees that the careful bargains and the "clever tactics" by which he gained a great parliamentary majority at the general election have not won him an increase of public confidence, but that, on the contrary, the elections at Leyton and Hull prove the truth of the warnings which The Daily Mail repeatedly gave him. His new Cabinet of discredited politicians is not a success, and his performance up to the present date have caused nothing but disappointment.

Apart from his attack on the Northcliffe Press—as to which, we gather, the general opinion in the House is that it was very much overdone—the Premier gave his hearers very little information on the subject which he had undertaken to discuss—namely, the proceedings of the Peace Conference. It was the telegram from 300 members of Parliament which brought him to London, and his assurance to them was the same as he gave them in his telephoned reply to their telegram—namely, that he stands by his election pledges and that the peace terms will be found to be entirely in accord with those pledges. We will withhold our opinion as to this until we see the terms, but we have no doubt that in any event Mr. Lloyd George will vigorously maintain that he has kept his word. The country will look, as we said on Monday, at his work as he performs, and it will form its judgment on a fair comparison of the two things. We suspect the otherwise inexplicable ferocity of his allusions to the Northcliffe Press was due to a fear that the expectations he has aroused will not be fully satisfied, and that he wishes to discredit his critics in advance. Meanwhile we shall continue to refresh the memory of our readers by reprinting his pledges from time to time.

Politicians, as this country has learned to its bitter cost, have to be "kept up to the mark," and the fact that Mr. Lloyd George does not like the process any more than Mr. Asquith did will not deter The Daily Mail. We are not clear as to whether the Premier's wild accusation of "sowing dissension between the Allies" was directed against us. In a speech in which melodramatic insinuations and mere buffoonery were so mingled it is difficult to know how much is meant to be taken seriously. In any case, it is extravagantly untrue. There is no sort of foundation for it, as our readers well know. We have often suggested that when politicians attack newspapers in the House of Commons they should be required by the Speaker to quote the words complained of. Mr. Lloyd George quoted nothing for the very good reason that there is nothing to quote. He was at pains to explain that The Times is not a "semi-official Government organ." The Times, no doubt, can speak for itself, but we sincerely hope that nobody thinks anything of the kind about The Daily Mail. Our relations with politicians are of quite a different character. There has been no Government in our brief history that we could consent to serve in such a capacity—least of all the present one.

"The First Sunday School in the World."

Bishop J. C. Hartzell, writing to Zion's Herald, says: "Recently while on a visit with Mrs. H. J. Helm, of Pittsburgh, to Savannah, Ga., one of the oldest and most beautiful cities in the South, I learned that John Wesley had founded a Sunday school in that city in 1738. That was nearly half a century before Robert Raikes, started his Sunday school for boys (1780) at Gloucester, England.

As one enters Christ Church he sees on each side of the door a bronze tablet. One commemorates the work of George Whitefield, Wesley's immediate successor, and the other reads as follows:

"To the Glory of God in Memory of John Wesley, Priest of the Church of England, Minister to Savannah 1734-1791, Founder of the Sunday School of the Church. Erected by the Diocese of Georgia." Rev. Dr. John D. Wing, rector, kindly gave me the following items from the official records of Christ Church. "Rev. John Wesley assumed charge in 1734 and started a Sunday school

Under him Mr. De La Motte every Sunday morning instructed the children of the church." "Every Sunday afternoon it was Wesley's custom to meet the children of the congregation before service and hear them recite the catechism, question them as to what they had heard from the pulpit in the morning, instruct them still further in the Bible, endeavoring to fix the truth in their understandings as well as their memories. This Sunday school was established in Christ Church, Savannah, nearly fifty years before Robert Raikes originated his scheme of Sunday instruction in Gloucester, England, and eighty years before the Sunday school was established in New York, and is still carried on." "This is believed to be the oldest Sunday school in the world."

Church Lads' Brigade.

PRESENTATION TO LIEUT.-COL. RENDELL—UNVEILING OF THE SHRINE.

Last night at the armoury Headquarters a ceremonial, unique in the history of the Brigade's long life in the Colony, was performed. The building was crowded with friends and supporters, amongst whom we were glad to see the Brigade's first Lieut. Col. Sir Joseph Outerbridge, and the Brigade's first Major, Major Warren and Mrs. Warren, and Capt. Hugh LeMessurier. Capt. LeMessurier has just arrived from England and from Flinders fields, where he has put in several years of good war service. Also former Lieut. E. A. Bowring and wife, Lieut. C. B. Carter, Lieut. Fred Rendell, Captains N. Snow (the founder and organizer of the band), and C. Bert Dicks.

After an exhibition of drill and presentation of chevrons to many lads promoted last night, and the presentation of the Outerbridge Shield to the winning Squad, No. 3 Section of F Co., under Corporal Hooker, a solid silver salver was presented by all ranks, Officers, N.C.O.'s and lads of the Brigade throughout the Colony, including Bell Island, to Lieut.-Col. R. Rendell, O.B.E., as a souvenir of esteem and affection from "his boys." Lieut.-Col. Rendell has given 15 years of his life to placing the Church Lads' Brigade. When in 1904 it was struggling along under adverse circumstances, financially poor, but trying to do its best with the means and facilities then obtainable, Col. Rendell "burnt his bridges" after him, by selling out the old Armoury, King's Road, and attempted with the late Mrs. R. C. Rendell, playing "Auld Lang Syne." Lieut.-Col. Goodridge, who was at that time for the Brigade, to provide funds to build the present Armoury, and Col. Rendell has, thank God, lived to see the job through successfully and the building out of debt—the final payment of five thousand dollars liquidated through his foresightfulness by providing Endowment Life Insurance some eight years ago which has now matured. Col. Rendell's life has not been lived in ease, he has erected a building devoted to the moral and physical improvement of many a lad, whose education and training received in the Brigade has been reflected in many parts of the world. Look at the record alone of C.L.B. lads in the war!

Col. Rendell then officially passed over his command to Lieut.-Col. Goodridge, the band playing "Auld Lang Syne." Lieut.-Col. Goodridge, who has himself on making a fine farewell address to the former Colonel-in-Chief, Lieut.-Col. Rendell was dressed in full C.L.B. kit, and honored the Brigade by wearing his medal as an Officer of the Order of the British Empire. The Shrine was then presented by Col. Rendell to the Brigade as a memorial to these heroic lads, former members of the Brigade, who have laid down their lives in France and elsewhere in the Great War.

The Shrine has a copper cross in the centre with some 80 brass plates surrounding the same, each containing the name of a dead hero. There are 60 more names to go on the Shrine as soon as they are here from England. The Shrine has a permanent fixture in the Armoury and is kept locked, except on Thursday nights. The Shrine is covered by a pair of purple curtains, for the work of which the Brigade is indebted to Mrs. R. G. Ash, wife of the Battalion Paymaster, who made them as a labor of love. Over the Shrine a special electric light is fixed, throwing the detail in great prominence. The speech by Col. Rendell, O.B.E., was as follows: Officers, Non-Coms, and Lads—

It is my privilege to-night to ask your acceptance of a small personal token to the memory of members and ex-members who have fallen in the Great War. This is what is known as a War Shrine, made of teak wood taken from the timbers of the British training ship Britannia. It at present contains on metal plates the names with date of death of 80 of our heroes. To this has to be added 60 more names we know of, and probably as time goes on still more.

The records of these members have been compiled as carefully as possible and are kept in a special book for that purpose held by the Women's C.L.B. Memorial Association. I am indebted to Miss Lush of that Association for valued help in making out this list in a way which corrections and additions can be readily entered. So much for the dry facts in connection with this Memorial, but what does it mean otherwise?

"Over the Top" is a common expression in connection with this Great War, and over the top went so many of our brave heroes never to return. We all have to go over the top sooner or later never to return but how different is our going from that of those we desire to honour to-night? Take any of us, no odds what his position, and we all live more or less selfish lives. Our main object is to live, and if death threatens through sickness, old age or any other cause, then no efforts are spared to prolong life. Millionaires would readily give us their millions in order that their stay on earth might be prolonged. The same applies in all other ranks of life. Compare such action with that of those we now meet here to commemorate. Without hesitation they went over the top and so offered up their young lives in order that we who have been living at home with our backs to the front, should not have to pay the price of their martyrdom. No thought of self with them, but only that we who remained behind might benefit. Can anything be more noble than this, and does it not liken them unto Our Saviour and His great sacrifice? In these war days I think we have all been more or less dead, and what has been going on and do not yet appreciate what has been done.

Some 64 years ago one of the greatest deeds of warfare was performed. It was immortalized by Lord Tennyson in his poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," with which you are all more or less familiar. This took place in the Crimean war, and referred to the exploit of some 600 cavalry charging the Russian artillery. Of this number only about 200 returned, and it was considered a wonderfully heroic action.

But now it pales into significance with the hundreds of actions during the past 4 years and in many of which our own heroes took part. Take, for instance, that of Beaumont-Hamel, in which our Battalion advanced 800 strong, and only about 80 returned. This also in the face of other Battalions having been practically wiped out in previously attempting to carry an important stronghold, and the Newfoundlanders knowing that a similar fate awaited them. There is nothing more heroic or glorious in the annals of history and never will be.

Should we, then, allow our sorrow to pre-empt our pride in such a glorious sacrifice and death? I say no, emphatically no. Last Fall when some preparations were being made for peace celebrations in the way of a display of bunting, etc., a little girl said to me, "Grandfather, will daddy be home to-morrow?" At the moment I was somewhat dumbfounded over the question and made an evasive reply. I make it now, however, in connection with this presentation. No, child, and children, daddy won't be home to-morrow. No parents, your sons won't be home to-morrow. No, brothers and sisters, your brother won't be home to-morrow. No, wives, your husband won't be home to-morrow. Why? Because he is already Home in Our Saviour's Home, where we who remain behind hope eventually to meet them. And shall we not so order our lives that when the end comes and we also "go over the top" it will be with the assurance of eventually meeting them there.

So sure as I am standing here, so sure do I feel that all our departed comrades are now awaiting us in Our Father's Home, and so why should we grieve? Yet it is only human nature that we should mourn, and so in now presenting this Shrine I have a sentimental wish for our Band to play the Dead March, because it seems to me that such sweet though sad music tends to bring together the spirits of our departed heroes without our own souls.

The Shrine will now be uncovered while the Band plays and we all stand at attention. The Shrine was then unveiled by Col. Rendell "to the memory of our heroic dead," after which a solemn "Dead March in Saul" was played, whilst many a tear dropped for the boys that never came home.

We were glad to see Captain Arthur Anderson present, O. C. of Heart's Content Company, who took a prominent part in the proceedings. The building was lit up by electric light for the first time, it being recently installed by Mr. Wm. Winsborough, and is a great improvement. We congratulate the Rev. and Lieut. E. H. Fletcher of the C. L. B., formerly Rector of St. Mary's Parish, on the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, recently conferred on him after passing his exams. set by King's College, Nova Scotia.

Neptune's Certificate.

From one of the officers of the U. S. S. Chicago we have received one of the most interesting documents to reach this office for a long time. This is a two foot by eighteen inches certificate, a copy of which is given every American sailor upon first crossing the Equator. The certificate is beautifully printed, and reads like this:

DOMAIN OF NEPTUNUS REX.

To all sailors wherever ye may be, and to all mermaids, sea serpents, whales, sharks, porpoises, dolphins, manies, eels, suckers, lobsters, crabs, pollywogs and other living things of the sea, greeting: Know ye: That on this (blank) day of (blank) 191— in latitude 00000 and longitude (blank) there appeared within the limit of our Royal Domain the U. S. S. Chicago, bound southward for the Equator and Pacific Ports. Be it remembered: That the said vessel and officers and crew thereof have been inspected and passed on by ourself and our Royal Staff. And he it known: By all ye sailors, mariners, land lubbers and others who may be bounded by his presence, that (blank) having been found worthy to be numbered as One of Our Trusty Shellbacks, has been gathered to our fold and duly initiated with the Solemn Mysteries of the Ancient Order of the Deep. Be it further understood: That by virtue of the power invested in me I do hereby command all my subjects to show due honor and respect to him whenever he may enter our realm. Disobey this order under penalty of Our Royal displeasure. Given under our hand and seal this (blank).

NEPTUNUS REX, Ruler of the Raging Main, DAVY JONES, His Majesty's Scribe.

MARTIN—DRISCOLL.

At Cochrane St. Church, on May 8, 1919, by the Rev. Dr. Bond, a very quiet but pretty wedding took place, when Susie, youngest daughter of Mr. A. Martin, Cabot Street, was united in matrimony to Mr. Allan Driscoll. The bride who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Collins, looked pretty in a dress of champagne silk with hat to match, and was attended by Miss Fanny Heath, who wore blue silk which was very becoming, while Mr. W. Anthony acted as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party drove countrywards, thence to the bride's future home, where a very pleasant evening was spent by about sixty guests. The groom's present to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid a birthstone ring, and to the best man gold sleeve links. The Telegram joins in wishing them many years of happiness.

Schooners Held Up.

There are quite a number of schrs. from the northern outposts now ready to sail for their respective home ports, but they are unable to do so, on account of the ice which was reported yesterday to be inside of the Wadhams Islands. There are also a number of schooners in the northern outposts that are waiting for the ice to clear off in order to come here for their summer supplies. Up to the present only one schooner has succeeded in getting around Cape Freels. However, the off-shore wind of yesterday will have had a little effect in giving the ice a move though to-day's in breeze may more than counteract it.

Memorial to Nurse Dickinson.

A preliminary committee met at Mr. Justice Johnson's chambers yesterday to devise means for the collection of contributions for a public memorial to the late Miss Ethel Dickinson, V.A.D., who died from an illness contracted while nursing those stricken in the late epidemic. Influential names were added to the committee which will meet again on Monday, the 19th inst.

"Gaspe" Reported.

A wireless message to James Baird, Ltd., from the White Star liner Cedric reported the schooner Gaspe on the 10th inst. as 540 miles S. W. of this port. The vessel is bound here with a cargo of molasses from Barbados and wished to be reported all well.

SOUND SLEEP!

To ensure sound, refreshing sleep, restore the nerves and allay digestive unrest, for this purpose nothing is so good as a cupful of "OVALTINE" taken just before retiring. It is a concentration of the nutritive, digestive and tonic properties of Milk, Milk and Eggs, flavoured with Cocoa, and is rich in those elements which rebuild the nervous system and correct the digestion. During the whole process of manufacture "OVALTINE" is untouched by hand.

"Ovaltine"

BUILDS UP BRAIN, NERVE AND BODY.

"OVALTINE" also makes a delightful beverage, which is taken with or between meals instead of tea, coffee or cocoa, having the added advantage that little or no sugar is required. Merely stir the crisp, golden granules into hot milk or milk and water (a little condensed milk may be substituted if fresh milk is not available).

THE KING AND THE TURF.

The announcement that King George proposes to run his horses at Ascot elsewhere this season and that they will carry the Royal Colours has been welcomed. It is understood, however, that the whole position will be considered by His Majesty after the present flat-race season comes to an end, and that the future of the Sandringham thoroughbred stud will be determined. For several years, ever since His Majesty took to the turf, in fact, after the death of King Edward, the Royal stud has been run in a very serious manner. Much will depend upon the attitude of the Prince of Wales, who is not much attracted to the turf at the present time.

THE Waning of Khaki.

Given the least observant must not have noticed the difference in the London streets in the past few weeks. It looks as though a new race of men had come down, or, rather, as though the war were a nightmare fading away and we were as we were. A month or two ago well-dressed young men in civilian clothes without an arm in a sling were everywhere. People noticed. Now suddenly and Bond Street are full of young men in smart, waist, beautifully creased clothes, telling ties, and spats. Single eyeglasses have become quite common—one had almost forgotten all about them. How the wearers get on without them in the trenches? These demobilized young men are even sporting flowers, and out of fashion long before the end almost as though it were with the increasing heat of the sun. Signs of the old interests coming back again everywhere. One of the best I notice is in a Strand tailor's window, where trenchers and naval boots and the like were formerly the only wares. To-day there is a pair of very heavy boots and a tremendous nail in the sole up for inspection, and below them the legend—"For Alpine climbing."

BROTHERS IN THE HOUSE.

Numerically the strongest family representation in the two Houses are the Murrays, the Harmsworths—Viscount Elibank and Lord Murray of Elibank in the House of Lords, and Colonel A. C. Murray and the Honorable Gideon Murray in the House of Commons; Viscount Northcliffe and Lord Thorneycroft in the Lords, and Sir Herbert Harmsworth and Cecil Harmsworth in the Commons. Other couples in the House of Commons are "Harry Benn" and Captain Hamilton Benn; Lord Hugh Cecil and Lord Cecil; Austin Chamberlain and the Honorable Chamberlain; James Craig and Captain Charles; Major Frederick Guest and the Honorable Oscar Guest; Colonel Walter Guinness and Captain Rupert Guinness; Harry Hope and J. D. Hope; and Lord Locker-Lampson and Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson; Sir

Children's Diseases Are Not Necessary

They Add Nothing to the Well-being of the Child and Invariably Leave the System in Worse Condition Than Before They Came

In fact, they often sow the seed which, in adult life, develops into disorders of the heart and blood vessels and degenerative diseases of the kidneys. So if children escape any child's disease they are the gainers in general health by just that much. It may be that years are added to their lives or chronic invalidism avoided. Then there is the enormous risk which every child runs who has measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, or other diseases.
