—OR—
For Daisie's Sake

CHAPTER XI.
SHE COULD NEVER FORGET.

Mrs. Fleming was lying glibly. She had reserved that role—a very conspicuous one—for herself; but to further Royall's plans, she had decided to give it to Daisie.

Aunt Alice here put in frankly: "Daisie can oblige you just as well as not, if she chooses. She doesn't have to go home till the first of September, and this is only the twenty-fourth of August. The truth is, she was going off in a huff with me because I scolded her for breaking off with your cousin; so I think she ought to stay and help you to-night."

Mrs. Fleming quickly discovered that she had a powerful ally in the old lady; so between them they harassed and worried her into consenting to the plan of Mrs. Fleming, little thinking, poor girl, that she was being cunningly enmeshed in a spider's web.

The widow was exuberant in her thanks, and begged Daisie to come home with her at once in the carriage. "Because we have a rehearsal directly after luncheon," she said; "and, my dear, you must take your prettiest things with you, for, really, I shall keep you with me several days at Sea View."

In vain were Daisie's protests, since her delighted aunt joined Mrs. Fleming in a chorus of dissent.

So the unhappy girl, blown hither and thither on the winds of destiny, went upstairs and packed up what they directed; and the triumphant little schemer carried her off in triumph, rejoicing inwardly at her success.

She was, in fact, very anxious to marry the girl off to Royall, so as to rid herself of a rival should Dallas Bain ever reappear.

It was true that a cloud of mystery hung over the young man, and that in his abrupt and hurried leave-taking he had given no hint of his future whereabouts, merely expressing a vague hope that they might some time meet again; but Lottie Fleming knew that, despite the width of the world, the most unexpected encounters are always happening, and she by no means despaired of meeting Dallas Bain again.

"Let me but get Daisie Bell married off safely to Royall, then I will find Dallas again, and wind my toils around him," she mused, as she rode by Daisie's said, weaving in her busy mind the details of a plot that would have made her spring from the carriage in dismay had she even guessed at her companion's thought.

But the wondrous X-ray that is to lay bare the secrets of the mind to startled gazers not being discovered yet, Daisie rode on in peace, getting somewhat reconciled now to the prospect of the visit, having, like all healthy young girls, a keen appetite for social pleasures.

She knew that she would not forget for a moment her dream of love and its woeful ending, but she thought that participation in the evening's amusement might dull the keen edge of her pain. Her pride was aroused, too, and she was determined that Mrs. Fleming should not see that she was pining over Dallas Bain's desertion.

Daisie did not mean for any one to guess that her poor heart was broken, so she hid her part with the rest, laughing and singing like the happiest girl in the world, though all the while her poor heart was calling tenderly:

"Oh, Dallas, my love, come back, come back!"

CHAPTER XII.
AN UNBIDDEN GUEST.

Far away, amid the busy haunts of the world of men, he had sought forgetfulness, and found it not.

He was a haunted man—haunted by a face, a voice, a wealth of golden hair, a soul—for was not Daisie's soul always following and seeking his in the mystery that held him from her side? So at last, by the force of her yearning, she drew him back.

He was proud and angry, but insensibly his heart began to soften, he began to invent excuses, to believe that he had been too hasty, had judged her too harshly.

"I did not let her explain. I left too quickly. If I had waited, she might have justified herself, he thought.

He began to doubt the cunning lies Mrs. Fleming had poured into his ears at their last interview.

"What if her story were false? Perhaps she was trying to turn my heart against the girl, because she wanted to win me herself!"

The more he thought of it, the more he began to soften toward the girl whose beautiful image filled his great, passionate heart.

And, because she haunted him so, because he began to realize all the strength of his love, and the pain of their separation, he suddenly determined to return to Gull Beach.

"I will go and hear her story. Perhaps she can justify herself," he said to his beating heart, as he opened the cottage gate.

All was still and quiet, but a light shone through the parlor blinds, and he hoped that she was there thinking of him in sadness and tears that would change to love and joy when she saw him enter the room.

It's heart was beating almost to suffocation as he rang the bell at the door.

There was a little delay, then it swung open, and in the glow of the hall lamp he saw a rather grim old lady in a widow's cap and gown—Daisie's Aunt Alice.

She recognized him at once—the disturbing cause in the broken engagement—and stiffened herself implacably.

"Good evening, Mrs. Bell. I see you know me. Is Miss Daisie at home?" he inquired eagerly.

"No; she has gone away," curtly.

"May I ask where?" humbly.

"Certainly. She is up at Sea View, staying with her friend Mrs. Fleming, cousin to the gentleman she is engaged to marry."

She saw Dallas give a great start of surprise and dismay, then he cried huskily:

"Is she—engaged to him still?"

The old lady, seeing her opportunity to head him off, and pitiless to Daisie in her desire for the grand match, answered stolidly:

"Certainly she's engaged to him still. What made you think the match could be broken off when they just dote on each other? Daisie's been a bit of a flirt, I know, but she's in dead earnest this time."

"Good evening!" Dallas answered abruptly, turning from her, and stumbling down the steps, like a drunken man, so hardly had he been struck by the remorseless blow of the woman, who banged the door shut after him, chuckling maliciously:

"Guess I paid him out for his meddling with that match I was so set on. 'Twasn't a story I told, either, for Mr. Sherwood told me he didn't consider the engagement broken at all, and hoped soon to persuade Daisie to wear his ring. Now I've sent that fellow off about his business, I hope, so he won't interfere any more."

But Dallas, dazed with pain and woe, was making straight for Sea View.

All hope was dead in his breast now, for the mere fact of Daisie's presence at Sea View, as the guest of Royall Sherwood's cousin, seemed to prove the truth of Mrs. Bell's assertion.

But a dumb longing in his breast made him yearn for a single look at her face again to ease the ache at his heart ere he turned away forever to carry his pain into the heedless throngs of the busy world.

"She is only a wretched little flirt, after all, yet she has wrecked my peace of mind, and I cannot thrust her from my memory," he groaned, as he went on to Sea View, meaning to see Daisie, himself unseen, and then depart forever.

As he went into the grounds he saw that the place was brilliantly lighted up, and heard the swell of music blending with the murmur of the sea as the tide rolled in to the shore.

"Madam must be holding one of her gay receptions. I wonder what she would say if she knew I was so near?" he muttered, as he dragged himself up the steps and hid on a balcony, where he could peer, unseen, into the room.

He saw the brilliant drawing-room gleaming with lights, adorned with flowers, and crowded with guests sitting about as if waiting for something.

What?

And was not that a wedding march that rose on the air from the screen of plants yonder where the band was hidden?

His wandering eyes suddenly discovered a white dais erected at one end of the room, over which swung from broad white ribbons a magnificent floral wedding bell.

A bridal party entered the room and advanced toward the dais, on which suddenly appeared a tall, pale young man in clerical garments, with an open book in his hand.

Louder and louder rose the strains of the joyous wedding march while Dallas looked on with dazed eyes and a numb pain at his heart, wondering what would happen next.

He was not left long in doubt.

He saw Mrs. Fleming and Daisie Bell advancing to meet Royall Sherwood and his best man at the altar.

Something—a grinning demon—seemed to clutch at the gazer's heart and stop its beating, for Daisie was the bride—a wedding veil hid the dazzling sheen of her golden hair.

CHAPTER XIII.
"HER OWN AGAIN."

Dallas Bain watched with straining gaze that scene within Mrs. Fleming's brilliant drawing-room, and his heart was wrung with a pain more bitter than death.

The vague belief and hope that had brought him back to Gull Beach were dashed to earth now, and despair reigned in its stead.

She had not loved him, after all; she had but played on his credulity to gratify a coquette's vanity. The proof was here before him as she stood there all in bridal white, speaking the solemn words that bound her for aye to another.

"Fool that I was to return," he muttered, in fierce self-scorn; and just then he caught a flutter of drapery near him, and a shrill voice giggled: "La, me! if this ain't Mr. Bain come back again! Howdydo, sir? Looking at the play, are you? But it does seem awful real like, don't it? They got their parts well, certain! He's even putting the ring on her hand, and now the women are kissing the bride. Ha! ha!"

Dallas grasped Letty Green's arms so convulsively that she winced with the pain.

"Ouch! don't pinch so! What have I done?"

He muttered fiercely, like one beside himself.

"What does this mean? Is it a play, as you said, or a horrible reality?"

Letty giggled, shook her fiances, and twittered:

"Oh, it's a play, sir, of course, and they've been practicing on it for a week. Though, for certain, them two principals are engaged; but I don't think the wedding day is set. 'Tis whispered they have quarreled, and Miss Bell won't wear his ring; but my mistress says 'tisn't true at all. But, la, sir, what are you doing out here peering through the window like us servants? Why don't you go into the drawing-room along with the quality?"

"I don't care to go in yet, Letty. I just came unexpectedly, and I want to look on for a while unseen," returned Dallas, with a long sigh of relief as he glued his face to the window and watched the scene within, singling out the beautiful form of Daisie with renewed hope and love.

He murmured exultantly:

Stock Market Report!

Stocks are pointed higher. The decline which began last November seems to have run its course, and apparently the turn in the general price movement has begun.

It is our opinion that a pronounced improvement in stock market prices is ahead, unless, of course, some drastic and unexpected situation develops, but we are taking the logical position that there is a bottom to everything and surely it seems to have been reached.

We are in the market to buy or sell any listed security and we have unusual facilities for the prompt handling of your orders.

For the Delicate and Tender Facial Skin KIRK'S JAP ROSE SOAP Golden Transparent

FACIAL skin troubles come at times from not thoroughly washing the face and from leaving the undissolved impurities of cheap, adulterated soaps in the pores of the skin. When these pores become so clogged, trouble begins and beauty vanishes. Because, it is through these pores that the skin breathes, so to speak. And to retain a healthy, beautiful skin, these delicate pores must be kept clean of undissolved soap, as well as of dirt and dust.

JAP ROSE is absolutely soluble in any kind of water, cold or hard. Moisten the cake, and every atom of the pure oils and chemically pure glycerine in this golden transparent soap—JAP ROSE—changes almost instantly, into clear, pearly bubbles of pureness, that cleanse thoroughly and hygienically every delicate pore of the skin. There's not a particle of sediment. A dash of water, and as if by magic, all is gone.

AS you value your health and good looks, do not use a soap on your face which contains any adulterants or impurities, and which does not wholly and almost instantly dissolve.

YOU can use freely and safely on the most delicate and tender skin, JAP ROSE soap, a scientific blend of the purest oils. CUBS WIN FROM IRISH.
In a spirited contest the Cubs won from the Irish last night by a score of 5 to 1. Both teams produced a good brand of ball, but Channing's gang could not stand up against the offerings of Hall and Canning. The Cubs are now second in the list, being one game behind the Lions. Interest in the waiting season is at a low ebb, as was evidenced by the attendance last night.

"A man on first and third," said he, "Here's where we work the squeeze, 'Oh, Charlie, dear, not right out here, 'It is so public, please."

The last but one of the League series will be played this afternoon, when the C.E.I. and Red Lions will meet in mortal combat. This should prove one of the most interesting features of the C.L.B. Sports' programme this afternoon. It is not known how the Institute lads can make steering way without the guiding hand of A. Harvey Thomas, (which gentleman is at present in Grand Falls as advance agent for Manager Orr and his All Stars), but one thing can be depended upon and that is, apart from their own coterie of fans, all the rest will be rooting for the C.E.I. in the hopes of making a playoff between the Lions and Cubs possible. Only one more game remains to be played, viz:—Cubs and Wanderers, and this will have to stand over until the Grand Falls series are finalized.

"I SEEN—
"I seen a lovely play last night," said Little Lucy Gray.
While sitting on the grandstand on a lovely summer day,
"Look at that corking double play!" her escort he did cry—
"I seen a lovely play last night," fair Lucy did reply.
"O'Leary's quite a pitcher!" said Lucy's eager beau,
"I knew he'd be a corker when I saw him start to throw.
"He'll be another Rossiter if he goes along this way!"
"Ain't Jimmy Evans handsome!" murmured Little Lucy Gray.
"I've seen a lot of ball clubs, but the Irish take the cake."
Her suitor said to Lucy "they're the class and no mistake!"
"I seen that Kittens Fraser and I'm awfully glad I went—
For I'm so tired of movies," said Lucy to her gent.
"That was a fierce decision!" exclaimed the escort then,
"Just look at French a-talkin' back—
"thinks Ches is not a fren!
I never saw a man like Dug—his heart's in every play!"
"Am I as fat as that there blonde?" asked Little Lucy Gray.
"Aw rats! I guess we lose it!" said Lucy's steady knight,
"I always seem to hit the days the fellows aren't right.
It always makes guys feel like cranks to watch that kind of play."
"Who won—the Irish or the Cubs?" said Little Lucy Gray.
C. L. B. Sports Committee will hold a Dance at the Armoury, Harvey Road, to-morrow (Wednesday) evening at 8.30 o'clock. Be sure you come and finish up the day's sport. Gent's tickets, $1.20; Ladies', 80c. C. L. B. Band.—aug31,21

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place on Monday morning in His Grace Archbishop Roche's Oratory, when Conductor J. D. James led to the altar Miss R. Redmond. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss M. Redmond and Miss H. James, sister of the groom, while Mr. T. Mullrooney supported the groom. The bride received a handsome prayer book as a memento from His Grace the Archbishop. After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents where breakfast was partaken of. The groom's present to the bride was a cheque and to the bridesmaids cameo pendants. The wedding party motored to Brigus where Mr. and Mrs. James will join the express to-day en route to Sydney and different other places where their honeymoon will be spent.

In Opposition to Regulations.

At the meeting of the Amalgamated Fishermen, held on Tuesday night, strong opposition to the fish regulations was expressed. The prices of provisions and fish were discussed at length, and considering the local voyage was none too good, the question of making two ends meet seemed quite a difficulty.

Mythical Benefactions.

The Advocate extols the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Honorable W. F. Coaker, as the benefactor of the fishermen of the South, South West and West Coasts in the following words: "When once it becomes apparent to the fishermen of the West Coast that Mr. Coaker's fight on the regulations means a fight to secure to the fishermen an extra $1.50 and $2.00 on a quintal of fish, they will be in a position to judge as to whether Coaker's attitude toward West Coast exporters who are knocking the regulations, is to be construed as an insult to West Coast fishermen or otherwise." Fine words these, but they go no farther and mean no more than other words of a like nature made from time to time in support of those pernicious regulations of which Mr. Coaker is the father, and which have done so much injury to the main industry of the dominion. Words have failed to show the benefit of the regulations and more concrete proof is needed. To claim that because of these enactments by Mr. Coaker the fishermen of the South and West Coasts have been receiving $10 and $11 per quintal for their fish this season is utterly deceptive. They have not and no person is better aware of that than Mr. Coaker himself. Still, if he can produce proof to substantiate the statements of his paper, there is not the shadow of a doubt but that he will be given credence. Those of the West Coast fishermen who have been engaged in the voyage since October last, and whose catches were salted in during the fall and winter months and made the past spring—and that number comprises all who prosecute the winter and spring fishery as carried on in Western districts—have been obliged to ship their fish in order to square accounts and settle with their sharmen. Have these men received $10 and $11 per quintal? We think not. Then there were those who did not contract accounts, but bought their outfits for cash. Their fish are yet in store, not improving in quality or quantity or value, as being light salted for the Portuguese market every day's storage beyond shipping time induces deterioration. Positively these men have not, nor will not receive any such figures as $10 and $11 per quintal when the time comes for them to sell—if it ever does. Standardized fish only of extra No. 1 quality can command such prices, and as it is obvious that this fish was not made "under the rules," to entertain ideas that top-notch prices will be paid is the height of folly.

"Reliable reports received from the West Coast show that already West Coast fishermen are cognizant of the true aspect of the position. They are as fully prepared to stand by Coaker in his efforts as are the fishermen of the North." Thus the Advocate. Yet if all reports from North are to be believed, the fishermen there are not quite so keen in their eagerness to stand by Mr. Coaker as the Advocate would have us believe. "At one time Mr. Coaker could repeat the veni, vidi, vici of Caesar, but not to-day. A change has come over the spirit of the dream of the North. So far as the West Coast is concerned Coaker's name is anathema, and apart from a very few, who do no fishing themselves, the bulk of the real fishermen regard him as the man who is responsible for the present gloomy condition and disastrous outlook. Here is a description from an important fishing centre on the West Coast, that is absolutely correct, and will serve as a foil to the "Reliable Reports" reaching the Advocate:

"Affairs are looking serious on the coast at present, because of the fish regulations. Fishermen from Isle aux Mortes, Burnt Islands, Rose Blanche and other places are quitting their skiffs, reeling up their lines, drying their trawls, and going to the lumber woods seeking employment, as the merchants will not supply for the coming fall and winter fishery. It is an unheard of thing for these men to be abandoning the voyage at this season, when it is about now that they begin to make ready for the fall catch."

Such advices are by way of evidence that no such price as $10 and $11 was received by these men, who from their boyhood have grown up in the fishing boat and who never let up on their avocation until compelled this year by Coaker's regulations. The picture is not overdrawn, but is an accurate limning of just what is taking place. Sort of discounts those "Reliable Reports," does it not? And so the tale could be similarly told of places other than those mentioned. It is not so rosy in the Northern sections. Men are quitting the fishery by hundreds and going to the lumber woods, and those who are not seeking local employment are leaving the country as fast as rail and steamer can get them to North Sydney, where their courses diverge. Taking these things into consideration it is plainly apparent that the country has yet to be shown that the regulations are for the fishermen's welfare.

Exporters' Spokesmen Appointed.

The second meeting of the Fish Exporters was held in the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday evening when the Fish Regulations were further discussed. A communication was read from Mr. Coaker asking the Licensed Fish Exporters to meet him in the Grenfell Hall to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Four sessions will be held, viz., to-morrow afternoon and night, and again on Friday evening and night. The meeting appointed three spokesmen, Messrs. E. A. Bowring, R. B. Job and J. B. Patten, of Grand Bank, who will put the views of the exporters on the different matters before the meetings.

Interests of Imperial Trade.

Capt. Evan J. Edwards, H.M. Senior Trade Commissioner in Canada and Newfoundland is at present in the city in the interests of Imperial Trade. Yesterday, in company with Secretary Patten, of the Board of Trade, he visited the Ropewalk and other industrial centres. During his stay, Capt. Edwards will address the members of the Board of Trade on trade matters.

Motor Association Meeting.

Many Road Improvements Reported. A largely attended meeting of the Nfld. Motor Association was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. White presiding. It was announced that 84 motorists had paid the additional tax. This is not levied by the Motor Association but is due on all cars and the Minister of Public Works is planning to prosecute delinquents. The money is needed to pay for work actually done on the roads. Mr. Reg. Harvey reported that the tractor and other machinery being imported from Canada would arrive in a few days accompanied by an engineer who will start operations at once. The condition of Waterford Bridge Road was discussed, and it was decided to request the Commission to attend to the same immediately. Mr. T. Soper reported that good work had been done for a distance of about 4 miles at Topsail Hill and through Topsail and also at Kelligrews at a cost of about $3,500. The large boulder near Manuel's station and other near Kelligrews have been blasted out, ten or twelve bridges rebuilt and the road repaired towards Seal Cove. Mr. Soper requested the members to report bad sections and obstructions so as to assist the committee in their efforts. The matter of driving on the left side under the new traffic regulations, was taken up, and it was pointed out that it is impossible to drive in safety near the Sudbury Tannery, foot of Garrison Hill, north side of Military Road and other points. A deputation was appointed to interview Inspector General Hutchings in the matter. The Association is very active, the executive meeting weekly and keeping in touch with the various committees. All motorists are urged to join up.

Annual Meeting of Scotia A. A.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the above Association was held on Saturday, August 28, 1920, in the "Engineering Office" of the N.S.S. and Coal Company. A number of old enthusiasts were present, including the resident manager, Mr. C. B. Archibald, and Staff Officials of various Departments, together with many other employees prominent in athletic circles. The meeting being duly opened, Mr. E. S. Spencer was moved to the chair to conduct same; and Mr. H. C. Gover was appointed Secretary Pro. Tem. The Association being the present holders of the Bell Island Football League Trophy, and on notification by the League that two opposing teams had challenged for competition, therefore resolved to again form a Football Club and defend the cup. The following were then elected as officers of the football club. Captain—Mr. E. S. Spencer. Sub-Captain—Mr. E. J. Rees. Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. H. C. Gover. League Delegates—Mr. W. Lindsay, Mr. R. G. Watson, Mr. A. R. Proudfoot. Lay Representatives—Mr. T. M. Blackwood, Mr. J. L. Mews, Mr. H. C. Gover. Linesman—Mr. Peter Brign. Goal Judge—Mr. Leslie Rees. Colours—The colours of the team in former years being "Blue and White," the Club decided to stand by same, and uniforms are in course of preparation accordingly. Judging from the expression of sentiment by the players, they are greatly encouraged by the magnificent representation of staff officials at the meeting, and will without doubt, give a good account of themselves in the coming games. After due consideration for the effort displayed by the opposing teams, in challenging so late in the season, the Association advised their lads to prepare "top coats" in the event of the weather-man, being unkind. Spectators will do well to profit by this advice. The teams challenging are "The Cadets and Dominion." The series consist of two rounds, in all, 6 games, and the fixtures are:— Wednesday, September 1st, Cadets vs. Scotia. Saturday, September 4th, Dominion vs. Cadets. Wednesday, September 8th, Scotia vs. Dominion. And the next round following in the same order, on the 11th September, 15th and 18th.

Music by the Band will be an additional feature, Bandmaster Morris having prepared a special programme for the occasion.

Ingraham Brought Double Tow.

The tug Ingraham, which left port yesterday morning to tow in the French barquentine St. Jacques, reported four miles S. E. of Cape Spear, returned to port with a double tow. The tug had just begun towing the Frenchman along when a Portuguese banker, the Voador, signalled for assistance. The Ingraham with her tow bore down on the distressed vessel and made fast a tow rope. The St. Jacques was on the banks during the heavy northeast gale of last week, and being heavily laden with more than 5,000 qtls. of fish, strained and sprung a leak. Her captain decided to run to St. Pierre for repairs, but weather conditions were not favorable and he had to change his course to St. John's.

The Voador was also fishing on the Grand Banks and felt the same storm as the St. Jacques, and in trying to ride it out lost her rudder. Her captain, however, used "drags" to steer to port and made good progress. She hails for about 1700 quintals of fish. The rudder of the Voador will be hauled by Diver Squires and she will be able to proceed without delay. The St. Jacques will likely have to go on dock for repairs. Hon. Tasker Cook is looking after the interests of both captains.

GUTTA PERCHA TIRES

for Rough Roads and Steep Hills.

Motors, in a country like Newfoundland, need tires that have a tread designed for extra hard service, one that grips the road and insures traction on hills and rough places, and lessens the likelihood of slipping when the roads are wet or sloping.

We know two things about Gutta Percha (Maltese Cross) Tires—they Outlast and Outperform any tire we ever knew about before. Come in and let us show you what the best-made Tires are like.

Lissette's Crew Arrive by Train.

The captain and crew of the French tanker Lissette, which was abandoned on Monday morning last, arrived in town by train yesterday from Trepassay. The Lissette was out in the storm of last week and springing a leak, attempts were made to reach St. Pierre. Despite the efforts of the crew at the pumps, however, the water gained and the vessel sank, about 20 miles off Trepassay. All the dories left the schooner, but in some unaccountable way the second mate was not with the number when they were picked up by a fisherman named Fitzgerald off Trepassay, who navigated them to harbor. The crew on arrival were taken to the Seamen's Institute, and will be sent to St. Pierre at the earliest opportunity. Hon. Tasker Cook, French Consul, is looking after their interests.

Organizing the Elks.

Organizer Alkman, of the Elks, who is at present visiting the city, has established a lodge at Grand Falls, with Dr. Scott, as Esteemed Exalted Ruler. Grand Falls with its cosmopolitan population has joined up largely and under the elected executive promises to be progressive in every way. St. John's has a charter membership of one hundred with over eighty applications for membership to be considered at next meeting; and being non-sectarian promises to be one of the finest fraternal institutions in Newfoundland. It is hoped in the very near future to establish lodges in all the principal centres of the Dominion.

Notice to Medical Practitioners!
Controller's Department.

For the more accurate record of Ales, Wines and Spirits dispensed by the Controller's Department, and by Medical Practitioners and Licensed Druggists, as provided for by the Prohibition Act, it has been found necessary to make a slight addition to the particulars called for on prescription forms, and pending the issue of a new series the additional record must be made on each prescription as indicated in the following paragraphs.

- Doctors practising in St. John's will write on the reverse side of each prescription issued, the house number and name of street and of the person prescribed for.
- City Doctors prescribing for non-residents will write on the reverse side of prescription the name of locality and the name of district of the person prescribed for.
- Prescriptions issued by City Doctors for residents of localities outside St. John's who may be visiting the city must show such person's temporary City address in addition to their permanent residence.
- Doctors practising outside St. John's will write on the reverse side of prescriptions issued by them the name of locality and the name of district of persons prescribed for.
- Outport Doctors prescribing Spirits for persons residing in St. John's must write on the reverse side of prescription the house number and street of the person prescribed for.

On and after September 1st, compliance with these conditions will be insisted on by this Department and by all Druggists dispensing Spirits.

Prescriptions issued prior to September 1st under the old form will be honored up to and including September 8th.

The co-operation of the Medical Profession is confidently relied upon for the enforcement of the above rules.

The new series of prescriptions will provide space for these additional details.

The C. E. F. Is No More.

OTTAWA, August 25.—The Canadian Expeditionary Force is no more. The fourteen N. C. O.'s who were employed to conclude the statistical work of the army, yesterday wrote "30" on the concluding page of a mass of records covering every unit and every man who ever donned the Canadian uniform.

Just the number of records kept of every individual man would come as a surprise even to the soldier whose records they are. The Militia Department has original and duplicates of about twenty-one army forms relating to everyone who served.

Asked, what was to be done with the thousands of apparently useless books and army forms, a Militia Department official stated that they would be carefully preserved and locked away.

Half the charm of a salad is its coldness and crispness.
If you use a washing machine, dissolve soap before using.
A dish of grated cheese is nice passed with a cream soup.
Substitute borax for bluing and the clothes will be whiter.

Cream dressing is most appreciated when served with fruit salad.

To-day's Messages.

POLISH OFFICIAL.

WARSAW, Aug. 31.
Further gains on the northern front are reported in a Polish official communique to-day. Polish troops occupied Augustow, West of Grodno, where they were enthusiastically received by the population. Lithuanian detachments encountered by Poles have been most friendly. Bolsheviki are continuing to give way before Polish pressure in Bialystok sector, says the communique. The Poles have occupied Sokolka, Grudek and Narew. It is reported that the Russians are preparing to make a series resistance in the region of the Malanarawka River. Poles are resisting repeated efforts of General Budenny's cavalry to break through near Samose in a movement to encircle Lemberg. Przeworski, which had been temporarily evacuated by the Poles, has been regained in a counter attack. Bolsheviki attacks upon Laeworse, East of Lemberg, have been repulsed with heavy losses. General Budenny's forces have been driven out of the region of Sydzowow and Chodorow, South of Lemberg.

SUPPORTING THE MINERS.

To-day hunger strikers received the following message from Lord Mayor MacSweeney, from Brixton jail: "Greetings to all my comrades in Cork jail. I am with them in spirit, thinking of them always, and praying hourly for their welfare."

Nothing in Its Class, Declares William Coombs

It Took Only Two Bottles of Tanlac To Put St. John's Man On His Feet.

"I have taken only two bottles of Tanlac but they have hit the spot and I'm in great shape now," was the characteristic statement made recently by William Coombs, of South Side, St. John's, N.F.
"I had been losing ground so fast during the past few months that I was beginning to look like I was going to get down to where I couldn't make a living for myself and family. My system was all run-down and my appetite was so poor that I had reached the point where I hardly cared whether I ever ate anything or not. My stomach was all out of order and the little I ate seemed to do me more harm than good. I was troubled all the time with constipation and often had dizzy spells and dull, mean headaches. I felt weak and good-bye to all day long and lots of mornings was so fogged out that I simply had to force myself off to work."

"Several of my friends had tried Tanlac but they have hit the spot and I that I started taking it myself about three weeks ago. I began to pick up right away and now it has straightened me out so fine that I feel like there was never anything the matter with me. I have a corking good appetite, enjoy what I eat and never have a sign of trouble with my stomach. The constipation has been relieved and those dizzy spells and headaches have all disappeared. I have been built up considerably and feel well and strong once more. I can work hard all day now, eat a good, hearty supper and go to bed and sleep like a log all night long. I can say for Tanlac that I have never run across a medicine that I consider in its class."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Storey, Ferrisouse; Mrs. Jos. Quina, Renewa.—adv.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT WOULD GREAT GRANDMOTHER HAVE THOUGHT!

I heard a woman the other day—to be exact, she was the person I know best (or least) in the world—complaining that she could not have a gas stove in her summer home. She has an excellent kerosene stove, which by a new process converts the kerosene into a flame almost as strong as gas, but—"It's so much work to take care of a kerosene stove," she complained. "I'm always filling the tanks or teaning something."

I sympathized with that complaint naturally. And then for some reason I fell to thinking of what the woman's great grandmother would have thought if she could have had the help of that stove in the summer.

Would she have thought the work of filling and cleaning toy high a price to pay for a marvellous liquid fuel, which would be brought to the house in cans and save her husband or herself the heavy work of chopping and carrying wood?

We Forget the Lesser Ones.

There are so many intricate and extremely modern inventions for saving labor and time and making life more luxurious, that in the glamour of them I think we lose sight of the innumerable familiar and less spectacular helps with which practically every home is supplied.

I don't believe we even recognize many of them as labor-saving devices.

Count the labor-saving devices in your own kitchen. A gas stove and electric lights, you may tell me, are all you have. What about the running water? You don't think of that as a labor-saver because you have always had it. You ought to spend one summer with a pump or, worse still, jugging water from a well.

And what about a simple labor-saving device that costs less than a fraction of a cent that no home—not even the poorest—is ever without, and that measures about three inches long and an eighth of an inch through and saves hours of time and much anxiety in every home. You have guessed it of course—the match. You never thought of it as a labor-saving device, did you? Well, get a boy scout sometime to show you the labor it saves and I think you'll have a new respect for it.

A Few More.

Then how about your egg beater and your meat grinder? The very poorest homes may be without these, but I am sure that a census would show that 90 per cent. have these labor-saving devices. I can remember when I was a girl being called on to cut up meat by chopping it for half an hour or so in a wooden bowl with a meat chopper.

Oh hand, I cannot recall any more of these small but large labor-saving devices, but I am sure if you watch your home you will find they are legion.

And if you pass from mechanisms that save labor in the home to all that organization and machinery have done outside the home to save the housewives' labor (as, for instance, by laundry service, by supplying her with canned foods which, when you stop to think of them, represent canned labor, too) you realize how great a change there is from our great grandmother's day.

Two Great Wonders.

An efficiency expert declares that machines save half the housekeeper's time by giving her the products machinery has made and by giving her machinery in the home.

When I compare to-day with my great grandmother's day I am always filled with two wonders—first, how grandmother found time to do all she did; second, what I—and the other women—are doing with all this time that is saved for us.

Hardly What He Wanted

"Show him up," said the patient editor, and the fuming visitor was conducted into his presence.

"I want an explanation!" cried the visitor, shaking his fist in the editor's face.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the editor.

"See here!" shouted the visitor. "What do you mean by publishing my resignation from my political office in this way?"

The editor raised his eyebrows in surprise.

"Why, I thought you gave out the story yourself."

"So I did," replied the retiring politician, bursting with rage; "but I didn't tell you to print the news under the head of 'Public Improvements!'"

HOMESICK.

Jack Johnson, of the golden smile, remained abroad for quite a while. And when he left our well known shore he thought he would return no more, for prison doors were swinging wide, with warders beckoning inside. He'd lead a glad free life abroad, and gain and blow a princely wind, and chum with foreign earls and dukes and baronets and other flukes. He stood the gaff for eight long years, still gazing homeward through his tears; at last he rose and cried, "Oh, gee, my native land looks good to me! These foreign countries all grow stale—I'd rather be at home in jail!" Said Emma Goldman, when she went, "Your boasted land's not worth a cent; I shake its dust from off my boots; it's ruled by grafters and by plutes; in Russia they've the proper plan—it's founded on the rights of man." She's had some months of Russia now, and grief is throned upon her brow. She, like a dead game sport, admits that she is tired of Russia's fits, and she would give her roller skates to see again the good old States. Unhappy is that weary wight who to this country says, "Good night," who sees the lights upon our shore, and knows he'll see them never more.

Not to Be Trusted.

When has the principle of Bolshevism yielded to the principle of truth? A leaf from the book of German Imperialism was taken by the Red leaders when they began their organization. The word of the Moscow Government is not as good as the word of the German Empire, which never was given with other intentions than to serve the purpose of the moment. Promises made at Minsk by emissaries of Lenin will be illustrative of the adage that the promises of dishonest men are made, like pie crust, to be broken.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Otherwise Engaged.

The gushing maiden was talking music with a man she met at an evening party. Presently he happened to mention that he had once been introduced to a certain famous Italian tenor.

"Have you really?" she cried. "How lovely!"

In the ensuing silence she gazed on him with the reverence due to one who had consoorted with greatness.

"Tell me," she pleaded then. "What happened? What wondrous tones did you hear? Ah, you lucky man! Tell me what he had to say?"

"Well, he didn't have much to say," confessed the man reluctantly. "He was eating macaroni at the time, and, you know, that doesn't help conversation!"

Koval Is Committed.

Sydney, Aug. 26.—Mike Koval, former principal in the Marinelli murder case, was committed for trial to superior court on a charge of perjury by Magistrate W. R. Hearn this morning. During the trial of the Marinelli murder case, Constable Edwards swore to certain matters which Koval had told him concerning the murder. The Edwards testimony was supported by Jailer Karn. Constable Edwards and ex-Jailer Karn were the witnesses at the preliminary hearing this morning. It is expected that Koval will elect to be tried under the Special Trials Act, and his case will probably come before Judge Finlayson next week.

Is Your Writing Small?

It has been said that 90 persons of each hundred have literary ambitions. If you are of the ninety, your ambitions may be realized, your handwriting is naturally small!

It is extraordinary, and seems to something more than a mere coincidence, that literary geniuses—practically all of them—write exceedingly small.

Thackeray's writing was extremely neat, but so small that it could hardly be read.

Dickens's penmanship was of minute order, too. That, and his direction for writing, made his "dog" a trial to decipher.

Captain Murray's handwriting was so fine that it was said that when a composer rested from his work he was obliged to stick a pin where he left off in order to be able to find a place again.

Charlotte Bronte's writing was so fine that it appeared to have been traced with a needle!

The same "small" rule obtains among the majority of present-day writers. Thomas Hardy and Kipling are instances.

The moral seems to be that he who writes "small" has it in him to write "big" stuff.

Incidentally, it may be noted that poets, from Byron onwards, scribble. The born poet, it is claimed, could write small or straight, if he tried!

Under Bolshevik Rule

If the Bolsheviks know nothing about us, we know a great deal about them, and the pass to which they have brought their unhappy victims in Russia. We know that food is so scarce that the best meal for all but Bolshevik officials is "the half of a berry and some boiled birdseed." We know that the population of the towns is perishing of pestilence. We know that strikers are shot down and that workers are forced to labor long hours without holidays for an inhuman system. That is Bolshevism as it really is, and it has no attractions whatever for the British democracy.—London Daily Mail.

Ludwig Spohr, The Adonis of Composers.

(John o'London's Weekly.)
 "The young artist from his earliest youth," Ludwig Spohr, one of the greatest composers and violinists of his day, says of himself, that he "was very susceptible to female beauty; and already when a boy he fell in love with every pretty woman." In fact, until his volatile heart found a secure anchorage in Dorette Scheidler, it "enshrined a new divinity every few weeks, and was loyal only to each until another was available. Few men have been better equipped for love and the conquest of woman than this gifted composer. Tall and broad-shouldered, with the muscles of a Hercules and the erect carriage of a soldier, he had a strikingly handsome, clean-shaven face, with well-cut features; large, magnetic eyes, and a beautiful mouth of mingled firmness and sweetness. And to these physical qualities he allied a character "beyond reproach," and a clever tongue and charm of manner which few could resist.

Court Director of Music at 15.
 Born at Brunswick one April day in 1784, the son of a physician, with a passion for music, Spohr was a clever violinist and had composed several violin duets before he saw his seventh birthday; and was already marked for a brilliant career in music. And such rapid progress did he make that at fifteen he was director of music at the Brunswick Court, with a fame which extended far beyond the bounds of the Duchy. Three years later he was touring Europe and winning laurels in many lands, in company with his master, Francis Eck; and it was at this time that we read of his first real adventure in love.

The young lady who made this first serious impression on Spohr's plastic heart was a Miss Lutgens, a girl of thirteen, with "a wealth of curly dark hair, large and very beautiful brown eyes, and a dazzling white neck"—a little bundle of witcheries and wickedness, at sight of whom the young musician fell head over heels in love.

A "Little Witch."
 But the "little witch," as he dubbed her, proved herself a heartless coquette, "full of cruel caprices," transporting him to Heaven one moment by her smiles, the next plunging him in despair by her coldness, until, as he confesses, "I was obliged to run away to preserve the remnants of my sanity."

But Spohr soon found distraction and oblivion of his "momentary madness" in the flattering reception that met him everywhere on his tour, from Strelitz to St. Petersburg, where the Empress was so delighted with the boy's brilliant playing that she appointed him solo violinist in the Imperial Orchestra at a salary of three thousand five hundred roubles. Spohr had had many fugitive love-affairs—in fact, it is said he lost his heart at every town on his route, only to recapture it before he reached the next—before it was again seriously in danger when he met the beautiful Rosa Alberghi, who sang in several of his concerts.

She was lovely and gifted and reciprocated his passion; but her bigoted devotion to her own Church and her intolerance of his religious views gradually built up such a barrier between them that, we are told, "he avoided a declaration; and when they bade each other farewell, he had so schooled himself that he did not lose his self-control, while Rosa burst into tears, flung herself into his arms, and pressed into his hands a card with the letter R worked upon it with thread made of her raven-black tresses."

The Perfect Woman.
 In June, 1805, Spohr, whose fame by this time had spread throughout Europe, was invited to Gotha to play at a celebration in honour of the birthday of the Duchess, who was so delighted that he was appointed concert-director to the Ducal Court. And it was at Gotha that he made the acquaintance of the charming Dorette Scheidler, who as his wife was to bring him for nearly thirty years the greatest happiness his life held.

In Dorette he had at last found the one perfect woman whom he had sought so vainly. She was a highly-gifted musician, a brilliant player on the harp and the piano; and it was during the "happy hours" they spent together in practising that he learned to love, with a pure and deep devotion, the woman whose gifts of mind and beautiful nature and character more than matched her musical talent. One day, after they had been playing together at the Court and were driving home, he found courage to say, "Shall we not thus play together for life?" For answer Dorette burst into tears. "She sank into my arms," he says, "and the contract for life was sealed."

A Great Happiness.
 In such dramatic fashion did Spohr, the fickle and volatile, come to his great happiness—which was to grow through the long years, during which they were seldom parted. Together they travelled all over Europe winning joint laurels, and when children came to bless their union, they took them with them. In sunshine or shadow they were always perfectly happy in each other and their little ones.

THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

And Escaped an Operation by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hazelhurst, Ga.—"I have used your remedies for only ten months, and they saved me from an operation. Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so ill from a female trouble that I was forced to stay in bed for a week at a time with weakness and pain, but your medicine has done so much for me that I am recommending it to all suffering women. It certainly is a great medicine and is a sure road to health for women. You may publish this letter if you like."—Mrs. W. C. LITTLE, R.F.D. A, Hazelhurst, Ga.

Women who suffer from headaches, nervousness, backache, the blues and other symptoms of a functional derangement should give this famous rest and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such ailments of women after other medicines have failed.

If you want special suggestions in regard to your condition, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of long experience is at your service, and your letter will be held in strict confidence.

And so it was to that last day in 1834, when Dorette, whose health had long been failing, passed peacefully behind the veil.

But Spohr was not fated to walk the rest of his life's journey alone. Two years after Dorette had been laid to rest, he found such compensation as any other woman could give in Marianne Pfeiffer, who, though she could never take Dorette's place in his heart, proved an excellent wife.

Red Russia Challenges the World.

Once more Soviet Russia shows herself in her true colors, and the blood that is staining the soil of Poland and Northern Galicia is directly chargeable to her breach of faith, her sutergifery and her vacillation.

Throughout their negotiations with Poland the Bolsheviks have employed every possible evasion, and have sparred for time from motives that are contradicted by their professions. They added delay to delay, and when the Poles appealed for a truce pending the negotiations for an armistice, the offer was rejected. The conference at Minsk was time and again postponed on plausible excuses until it was clearly apparent that if the Bolsheviks desired to make peace, as they averred, they would have hastened their diplomacy and slowed down the march of their armies.

Kamenoff, who acted as spokesman for the Soviet Government, in handing to the British Premier the terms on which the Bolsheviks would consider an armistice, stated implicitly that nothing that was not of a secondary nature had been omitted from the summary. On this point Lloyd George laid stress in his speech in the House of Commons. He reverts to it again in the statement now issued from Lucerne:

"To have added such a condition (the arming of the industrial workers of Poland), after Kamenoff's pledges to the British Government, is a gross breach of faith, and negotiations of any kind with a Government that so slightly treats its word becomes difficult, if not impossible."

The London Times, which has consistently and vigorously attacked Lloyd George since the days of the Paris conference, has nothing but praise for his handling of the delicate Russo-Polish negotiations. "In an address admirable for reasoning and for courage," says the Times, "he has laid before the nation an explanation and a defence of the Allied attitude towards the Polish problem so frank and clear, so convincing, moderate and firm that it will command the approbation and the confidence he demands."

Soviet Russia gave notice to the world that she would not interfere with the domestic government of Poland, and that she would recognize her independence. She endorsed the promise thus given in the statements issued by her leaders after the first meeting at Minsk. Yet she treats this promise with scornful disdain and issues supplementary or "secondary" terms contrary in letter and spirit to the promises she had made to the British Premier, which set forth as a fundamental of any armistice that the proletariat shall be armed.

Soviet Russia allied with both Communist and Monarchical Germany, by secret bonds is seeking to upset the Versailles Treaty, and to join hands across an annihilated or a Sovietized Poland. Fortunately, the Bolshevik cards are on the table and strength of purpose, determination, unity or effort and common sense will resist the blandishments of the enemies of civilization by firm and conciliatory methods so long as their efficacy prevails, and, if needs be, by force, in the last resort, to the utmost limit of endurance.—Montreal Daily Star.

From Rameses to Zaghlul.

Egypt, after the lapse of centuries, is to make an experiment in self-government, according to an announcement in the London Times. Eight months ago Lord Milner, the British Colonial Secretary, visited Egypt at the head of a Commission which was named to investigate existing political conditions and, if possible, to devise a remedy for the unrest that had overlaid the country since the assumption of the protectorate by Britain during the war.

The Milner Commission faced tremendous difficulties in the accomplishment of its task, the chief of which was the undisputed hostility of the Nationalist party, whose leaders not only refused to state their case to the Commission, but did everything in their power to thwart its aims. If Lord Milner has succeeded in finding a way out of the impasse, some common ground on which forces, with views as wide apart as the poles, can erect a promising edifice of government he has performed another great service for the Empire and for the peace of the whole world.

The Egyptians are the earliest people in the world known as a nation. When Abraham entered the delta from Canaan they had long been enjoying the advantages of a settled government. But the Ethiopians, the Assyrians, the Persians, the Greeks, the Romans, the Turks and the French conquered them in turn and under successive suzerain powers they sank lower and lower into barbarism and weakness.

To-day there is a small party of Egypt that believes that a broad scheme of self-government should be initiated. The experiment is a risky one, for there are no Egyptians to-day trained for executive work.

The new Egypt will be watched with interest and with earnest hopes of success and prosperity.—Montreal Daily Star.

The Most Important Man on a Newspaper.

A "copy-taster" is a man whose palate is his "news" judgment, and whose judgment is his chief stock-in-trade. He starts work about four o'clock every afternoon, and remains at his desk till long after the normal man or woman has gone to rest. He sits there passing a silent judgment on the world's affairs, calculating public interest in this event and that incident. And it is his judgment that gives you the news you read at your breakfast-table when he is just preparing to get into his bed.

At his elbow there are many wire or wicket baskets into which "copy-boys" drop mysterious little pieces of paper. Some are cablegrams from out of the way quarters of the globe, others are typed manuscripts from the editorial rooms, the result of the news-editor's efforts and the reporters' ingenuity.

His Arduous Job.
 He reads each news item carefully, assesses the value according to public interest and importance, and marks it with a code letter, which tells the sub-editors exactly the kind of title or heading that should be put on the news, and the amount of space it should occupy when set in type.

A very large amount of news is placed in a basket at the copy-taster's side. That is the "W.P.S.," and everything placed therein is considered not to be of sufficient importance or interest to appear in the paper.

Every item of news that reaches the copy-taster's desk is weighed against other news. Thus, when a correspondence in Bath, for example, sends to the London newspaper offices something which he considers of great importance to the town of Bath, the copy-taster surveys its value as compared with a cablegram from New York probably of international and world interest.

It is calculated that every night a newspaper receives an average of five time more news than it can possibly print.

The copy-taster, therefore, while judging the requirements of his readers, must endeavour to give them an intelligent summary of the world's affairs. Apart from that, it is his business to cultivate certain tastes in his readers, and to endeavour to mould their opinions. He does this to some extent by giving greater prominence to certain news, causing the reader to assume that it is important because of its length and the nature of its position in the paper.

An Uncrowned Ruler.
 A copy-taster on a leading London daily newspaper must be a man of considerable intelligence, widely read, and alert. He must possess a good memory in order to recall in a moment whether he has seen the same news item published previously, for no paper can afford to repeat news unless it is considered of extreme importance. It is necessary for him to judge public taste to a nicety, and, above all, to detect anything creeping into the news service in the form of a "leg-pull."

The success of a newspaper, its circulation and its appeal to individual readers largely depend upon the palate of the copy-taster. His judgment

Sugar Market is Demoralized.

Toronto, Aug. 26.—President Hugh Blain at the opening of the Wholesale Grocers' Convention at the King Edward Hotel to-day, said that since the war confusion had been worse confounded than ever. Everywhere there was a wall of distress "even in our land where plenty abounds."

"We are pursuing a course of extravagance and thriftlessness. The shock of the war seemed to have distorted the moral and industrial fibre of the world."

"The high cost of living—the result of these conditions—has been largely attributed to the distributor, the so-called 'middlemen' while as a matter of fact the responsibility rests with the producer," said Mr. Blain.

"In my experience, the distributor actually made a lower percentage of profit on his turnover during the war than he did previously."

Over 125 wholesale grocers from all parts of Canada were present when the address of welcome was given by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Aarmand Chaput, of Montreal, replying to His Honor, pleaded for more unity between Ontario and Quebec.

"By her position, Quebec holds the gate of the federation and I may say the key that opens the gate that will lead to the midst of our great country," he said.

"We in Quebec enjoy more liberties, less labor troubles and more freedom of language and religion than anywhere else in the Dominion. We are all here for a sole object, of uniting forces to battle in the life of business and fair play for all."

A telegraphic message was received from J. H. McLaurin, President of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States, dated at New York, expressing regret that he could not attend the convention in Toronto, owing to "the extremely critical condition of the sugar market of the United States." Mr. McLaurin stated in his message, that the sugar market was demoralized, and many wholesale grocers throughout the country were threatened with financial ruin. He stated that he was being deluged with letters and telegrams in consequence.

President Hugh Blain stated that the sugar business in the United States was ten times worse than in Canada.

In a discussion of "the uniformity owing to charging sales tax," J. W. Charles, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, claimed that the manufacturer should make an allowance of one per cent. discount to the wholesaler all along the line. He declared that it was the average retailer and not the public, who was made "the goat" throughout the country.

"It would be easy if price lists were adhered to by the wholesaler," remarked Mr. McIntosh, of the Toasted Corn Flakes Co., London, Ont., "but price lists are not being adhered to."

Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who addressed the convention this afternoon on "the Canadian system of banking," stated his belief that high prices, as compared with prices before the war, would last for another generation, though he thought they would not continue as high as they have been. "The price of all commodities and all services," Sir Edmund said "will have to be high until we have broken the back of the war debt."

An Example of Plain Living.

(From the Louisville Courier-Journal.
Dem.)

Governor Coolidge was not like Abraham Lincoln, born in a log cabin, but he lives as modestly as a book-keeper or a mechanic, as all descriptions of his home and his habits show. He has not, apparently, devoted his thought and equipment to making money. He has been otherwise interested. Yet who would say that he has not made a success of his life in an age, and in a country, in which success commonly is declared to be always measured in money. There are millions of plain men who enjoy life a good deal without making money, and without becoming governors. There are so many, if the truth were told, that if they were counted perhaps there would be a reversal of the judgment that America is a country in which every one lives to get rich, where every one means "money" when the word "success" is used, and where every one strives for money until stricken by paralysis or heart failure, and dies unrepentant, unshriven, as a result of having neglected body and soul in quest of gain.

Attempted to Swim Channel.

Halifax, Aug. 28.—Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., who failed in an attempt to swim the English channel from Dover to Calais, Thursday, being taken from the water ten miles off the French coast, is a nephew of Wm. Connolly, of Sydney. This was the first attempt since the outbreak of the war to swim the channel. Sullivan is regarded as one of the best long distance swimmers in the United States and has frequently swum out to the Boston Lightship and returned, a distance of sixteen miles. On August 21, 1915, he swam thirty three miles in fourteen hours.

Ponzi Jaunty as of Yore.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Charles Ponzi, on leave of absence from the East Cambridge Jail, to-day revisited places familiar to him in the palmy days of his career as a popular financier. His tour was in connection with the effort of his receivers to round up what remains of his property for the benefit of creditors.

As jaunty in demeanor as in the heyday of his popularity, Ponzi again to-day attracted crowds in the business district, and policemen mounted and on foot patrolled Newspaper Row while the throngs sought a glimpse of him.

Why Be Seasick?

Perhaps there is no complaint for which more different remedies have been suggested than for that distressing malady sea-sickness. But in this particular form of illness what is one man's meat is only too often another's poison.

For instance, in some cases a small dose of opium acts like magic, curing at once all that horrible dizziness. In others this drug is quite useless.

Dr. Dubois, a distinguished French physician, has laid it down that the very best preventive is to inhale pure oxygen gas. The amount he recommends is from thirty to forty pints. Oxygen relieves the strain on the breathing mechanism, and gives the lungs a rest. He has found this treatment excellent if the gas is used before starting or before the patient begins to suffer.

A treatment which the contributor has personally tried and found extremely useful is an eminently simple one. Get a flannel bandage twelve feet long and about six inches wide, and wind it firmly around the whole of the abdomen. It seems to steady one's inside?

Some people swear by a similar but lighter bandage wound around the forehead.

But perhaps the best preventive of all is to lie down flat before one begins to feel "swimmy," and to keep quiet for the first twenty-four hours at sea. That and fresh air and a little starving work wonders.

Atlantic Adventure.

Three Men's Voyage in a Five-Ton Yacht.

Three intrepid gentlemen have just crossed the Atlantic in a five-ton ketch, the Typhoon, which is only 37 feet long on the water line. They came from Baddeck, Nova Scotia, expressly to see the international motor-boat racing, and were only three weeks on the voyage. "We just jumped into a boat, and without any trial trip headed from Nova Scotia for Cowes," declared Mr. Washburn Nutting, one of the party. "Our best record on the passage was from Cape Race to Bishop's Rock, Scilly Islands. In one week we did 1,038 miles. From Cape Race to Bishop's Rock took 15 days 9 hours 25 minutes. Experience proves that the passage can be made comfortably and safely in a properly designed boat, regardless of her size. I hope to return to New York by the same boat. We shall go back along the French coast and then via Lieben and Bermuda, which, I think, is about 4,000 miles." Mr. Nutting, who is managing editor of the Motor Boat Publishing Company, reported to Mr. Garfield Wood, vice-commander of the Motor Boat Club of America, who warmly congratulated him and his two companions, Mr. F. W. Baldwin, of Toronto, and Mr. Jim Dorsett, of Washington, Columbia, on the completion of their adventure. "It is a case of 'Three Men in a Boat' without the dog," he added.—Ex.

William R. Dodge, of Milford, has an exact account of every cent he has earned and spent for personal or family expenses for the last year. It shows these minimums: In 1889, butter 30 cents a pound; lard, 8 cents a pound; milk, 5 cents a quart; in 1894, sugar, 4 cents a pound; in 1897, eggs, 15 cents a dozen; in 1898, butter 30 cents a pound; in 1899, coal, $5.50 a ton; in 1905, potatoes, 50 cents a bushel.

The Soviet government of Russia is in quest of a pretender to the throne of the czars, says a writer in the Albany Times-Union. An individual claiming to be Czar Nicholas is said to be in Siberia, where he is clustering about himself a large following which he may use in an endeavor to enforce his claims to the sceptre of all the Russias. He alleges that his existence is due to the sacrifice of a faithful servant, who was killed in his place by the Bolsheviks at Ekaterinburg over two years ago. That the Soviet government view him as a dangerous rival to its rule may be gleaned from the fact that it has offered a reward of 2,000,000 rubles for his apprehension.

Max Henry Newman, writing in the Jewish Advocate, says: "There is always something worth knowing, so here is something. It relates to Ernest Nathan, who for seven years was Mayor of Rome. His father was an English Jew and his mother an Italian woman. He lived in England until he was 13 years of age. Mr. Nathan was very prominent in Rome as an editor, author, lecturer, social reformer and political leader. He opened debating rooms for young men and was foremost in the movement for the public schools, a well-paid staff of teachers, fresh air and playgrounds. He proved to be a valuable city official."

Oil of Vanilla

Just received a small shipment of Oil of Vanilla. This is the actual oil obtained from the Vanilla Bean and has not got alcohol or other preservative added to it. Two teaspoonfuls will flavor a ten-gallon batch of Ice Cream. It will be found much more economical for manufacturing purposes than any brand of Vanilla Extract.

Orders should be placed promptly as this will be the last shipment received this season.

Bedrooms & Beds

There's nothing more important to the bedroom than the Bed itself, is there? From the point of usefulness or ornament it ranks first. Does your Bed suit your taste? Does it harmonize with your room? Does it give you the sleep-comfort you need? No? Well, then it's time to discard it and get another, quick.

We are showing All-Brass, Brass and Enamel, and All-Enamel Beds in all sizes and very fine designs. Each and all of which Beds can be fitted with Springs and Wool or Felt Mattresses if desired.
