Eczema Covered Arms of This Healthy Child

Mrs. Alex. Marshall, Sprucedale, Ont., writes—

When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal these terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since.

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XXI.

One morning, when the Squire opened the letter-bag, he found it contained just such another thin, square envelope as the one which Sir Karl had received on that fatal day when he had disappeared. On this occasion the letter was addressed to Lady Allanmore. If he had followed his first impulse, he would have burned it on the spot, but he reflected that it might have some reference to the matter which was engrossing all their thoughts; so he took it up to Dolores, whose pale face grew paler as she recognized the handwriting.

"This is from Lola!" she cried. "Oh, papa, come to me while I read it!"

He sat by her side while she opened it, and all the light faded from her eyes as they traced the cruel words.

"I told you," the letter began, "that I should have my revenge—and I have had it. You won my lover from me, and I swore to you the time would come when you should suffer as you had made me suffer. I have kept my word; my revenge is complete, great as was the injury I received. I knew the time would come when Sir Karl would tire of you. Women of your type, Dolores, but seldom retain love. The time for which I waited has arrived. You have looked your last on the man you stole from me. It is my revenge, Dolores. What do you think of it?"

Lady Allanmore's face grew deathly pale, and her lips trembled as she gave the letter back to the Squire.

"Let us keep that, papa," she said slowly, "with the other. They may be useful some day."

"He is with her then; there is no mistake."

"There can be no mistake; this is proof conclusive," she replied. "I wish," she continued sadly, "that he had written to me, even had it been only to say good-by."

"It appears to me," said the Squire gravely, "that you are entitled to a divorce."

"No," she replied, with a shudder, "there is no need of a divorce. He is dead to me, he whom I loved so well; but I shall be true to him. My last faint hope is dead, papa, quite dead."

MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one who now can see what it does for me, I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 722 McLeod Street, Winnipeg, Man.

ture was English. There were Chippendale chairs and tables, superb marquetry work and the old china. Italian art and English ideas of taste and comfort combined could scarcely fail to have a pleasing effect.

On this fair evening a lady stepped from the open drawing-room window, and slowly and thoughtfully wended her way through the gardens skirting the avenue of beech and chestnut trees. She passed down the long, vine-shaded path till she reached a spot where the river rippled over the grass, which was studded with violets.

She looked slowly up and down the Arno, flushing red beneath the last kiss of the sun. Time had dealt gently with Dolores. Sixteen years had passed since her father had died so suddenly, leaving her alone in the wide world. It had been a terrible shock to her. For many weeks she had feared for her reason as well as for her life. Lady Fielden had come to the rescue; she had gone over to Scarsdale and, as it were, taken possession of it. She had sent the two little children, Kathleen and Gertrude, to her own nursery, and attended to Dolores with her own kind, motherly hands.

The Squire's death had been all the more unexpected from the fact that for some time previously he had seemed in such excellent health. His daughter always believed that the shock of finding her husband guilty of a great wickedness had killed him, although she wondered if it brought back to his memory some long-past sorrow of his own. From that day, now sixteen years ago, Dolores became an altered woman. She accepted the fact that her husband had deserted her for Lola. There was no other solution of the mystery; no news came from him. He was, of course, ashamed to write; he could have nothing to say to his deserted wife. A certain hardness and coldness that had been foreign to Lady Allanmore's nature gradually crept into it. Her father was dead, and she made up her mind to go away from the place where she had suffered the most cruel indignity that could fall to a woman's lot. Every one in the neighborhood of Scarsdale knew that she had loved Sir Karl—every one knew that he had deserted her, and for whom. She would go where none of her old friends would be able to find her. She would leave Scarsdale, never to re-enter it. Sir Karl would come back when he was tired wandering. She would not touch one farthing of his income—she was rich enough without that—and, furthermore, she would renounce his name. She would drop her title, and call herself Mrs. Chieffden.

Dolores had not intended to have one familiar face near her which could recall the unhappy past; but she could not refuse Frodscham, so she took him with her. She bade no farewell; she was tired of condolences, tired of sympathy, tired even of kindness. She longed to be away. She bore the brand—so shameful to all good and pure women—of a deserted wife, and she loathed it; she shrunk from the sympathetic looks she saw on the kindly faces of old friends. If they would but leave her alone, let her suffer in silence, let her bear her own griefs undisturbed! She longed with an unutterable longing to be free, to go where no one knew her, to take her children where their sweet lips should never learn even to pronounce the names that had been of such evil omen to her.

CHAPTER XXII.

The city of Florence lay smiling in the golden light of the setting sun. Never perhaps had the home of the poets looked more lovely. The sunbeams fell upon its domes and palaces, upon its magnificent churches and bridges, upon its countless works of art. On the banks of the Arno, not far from the city, stood a house known as the Villa Baira, surrounded by tall trees and brilliant flowers. No spot could be more favored. On one side of the villa rose purple hills—hills that were covered with vines and olives, and groves of orange and lemon trees, round the stems of which scarlet creepers hung in rich abundance, and masses of passion flowers of every hue, from deep crimson to creamy white. Red poppies peeped from among the grass, lilies grew in wild luxuriance, and the air was filled with a delicious perfume. The grounds of the villa sloped down to the river. There was no wall or railing at the brink, and some persons said it was not safe; but the mistress of the house had an artist's soul, and loved to see the water lave the bank. The trees by the river echoed with the liquid notes of nightingales, and birds of sweetest song haunted the orange groves. A long, sheltered walk led from the villa to the edge of the river, the trelliswork of which was covered with an enormous vine, which branched out on all sides, and just now was laden with hundreds of bunches of rich, dark purple grapes. Oddly enough, not a rose was to be found in the garden, neither white nor red. The mistress of the place was English, and had a strong repugnance to the odor of roses. If the surroundings of the house were attractive, the interior was a marvel of comfort and luxury. The rooms were large and lofty, the windows were framed in passion-flowers. The ceilings were painted, and the walls either paneled or harmoniously tinted. The furni-

A Social Problem

Like the poor, the habitual criminal is always with us. Addressing the grand jury at Belfast, Scotland, the Recorder, Mr. A. M. Langdon, observed that to magistrates and recorders all over the country the habitual criminal was a source of great trouble. He was a man who committed smaller or greater offences—stealing from people who could ill afford to lose anything; sometimes venturing upon premises where the loss would be less felt, but always engaged in crime from the moment he left prison until he returned again to gaol. The habitual criminal was one of a class—not a large class he was happy to say—that existed all over the country, and the difficulty that faced those who administered justice was how to deal with these men. "If you give them a long sentence," the Recorder went on, "the country is burdened with the charges of their keep; if you give them a short sentence they leave prison and repeat the same or similar offences against those who can ill afford to suffer by their depredation. Many years ago Sir John Anderson, who was at the head of the Prison Board, and devoted a great deal of attention to this subject, came to the conclusion that a system of preventive detention was the wisest course to adopt in England, and as a modification of the system which he proposed has been introduced. What I desire you to think about is whether that system should not be extended as far as possible. If by some system men of that class—an incurable, unemployable, and hopeless class—could be separated from the rest of the community, two advantages would result. In the first case, he explained, those who suffered—they were scattered about and generally poor people who could hardly voice their complaint—would be protected from further inroads upon their property and, in the second place, he was inclined to think that the expense in which the various communities were involved would probably be reduced, for the reason that if they could get rid of the habitual criminal class the likelihood was that so large a police force would not be required for the maintenance of order in a borough or county. "They are a class," the Recorder concluded, "who require constant watching, constant supervision, and, of course, they involve the whole country in expense. I make these observations for your consideration, and suggest that, at your leisure and when you discuss political matters, you should introduce the social element as well, and consider whether some measures cannot be taken to secure an extension of the system I have referred to, so that the peace may be maintained."—News of the World.

The immigration commissioner has had his attention directed to this condition through conversation as well as by mail. A few days ago he received a letter from a young lady who resides in Newcastle, Pennsylvania. "There is a great opportunity for further increasing the reputation of the province," commented the Immigration Commissioner, "about Manitoba as the old maid's paradise."

Now here it is just the other way; there are more women than men. Now if you know of a good honest man that wants a wife tell him to write or come here to Newcastle and he can get as fine a woman as ever walked on a pair of legs.

"I see that there are more men than women in the province of Manitoba," said the immigration commissioner, "but I see that there are more women than men."

Laxity of Police Blamed for Murder of American Consul

Grain Companies Offer to Sell out their Entire Holdings.--British American Nickle Co. goes into Liquidation.-- Fifty Lives lost when Freighter Founders

TEHRAN POLICE FAILED IN THEIR DUTY.

TEHRAN, Persia, July 21. Developments in the investigation into the killing of Robert Imbrie, United States Vice-Consul, which seem to indicate that parts at least of the Persian Government's protective forces failed in the duty of defending his life, when he and Melvin Seymour, another United States citizen, were attacked by a mob last Friday, have caused anxiety here and the diplomatic body in addressing a serious note to the Persian Government, it was stated today. The attack occurred in a crowded thoroughfare and although it is declared numbers of armed police and soldiers were present it does not appear that a shot was fired in defence of the victims. It is even alleged the soldiers formed part of the mob.

$300,000 FIRE.

CASTOR, Alta., July 21. Practically the whole of Castor's business section was destroyed by fire starting in the National Hotel Sunday morning. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

50 DROWNED IN FREIGHTER.

TOKIO, July 21. Fifty were drowned when the Nippon Yusen Kaisha freighter Natsua Yama Waru foundered off Goto Island, near Kyushu, July 11th, according to a report received here today. The freighter was an old vessel without radio and carried no passengers.

GRAIN COMPANIES WANT TO SELL OUT.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21. Thirty-six grain companies of the Northwest today offered to sell their entire holdings, including 1,062 country elevators in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Montana, to the American Farm Bureau Federation. These holdings also include twenty-two terminal elevators in Minneapolis and twelve in Duluth, with the total elevator capacity approximately placed at 65,000,000 bushels, according to the Grain Companies' announcement.

REBELS CONFIDENT.

BUENOS AIRES, July 21. The Federal assault against Sao Paulo, the Brazilian Metropolis held by the insurrectionists, may have already begun, according to indications contained in official despatches from Rio Janeiro. A recent communique issued by the Government referred to an airplane reconnaissance for operations that now are proceeding. The rebels numbering approximately 20,000 are said to be confident of the outcome. It is declared the revolutionary forces hold all the strategic points in and about Sao Paulo and have artillery placed on what are known as English Bluffs, which command the roads leading to the city. While the batches of wounded have been arriving in Santos, advice corroborate indications in the official communique that there was no general fighting last week, the rebels having been busily engaged preparing defenses while awaiting the promised major action by the Federals.

TRYING TO REACH AN AGREEMENT.

LONDON, July 21. Premier MacDonald this morning conferred for two hours with Premier Herriot, of France, Finance Minister Herriot, of Italy, Premier Tenuis of Belgium and Ambassador Kellogg of the United States, regarding ways and means of obtaining an agreement between the delegates of the Inter-Allied conference on the enforcement of the Experts plan, while the Plenary Delegates discussed the broad phases of the Dawes plan. The committee of Experts continued their efforts to reach an agreement on measures for bringing about the financial and economic unity of Germany. It is believed this will be realized by night, except for the question of railway control which remains a stumbling block to the plans for the excavation of the Ruhr.

OLIVER WILL CONTINUE IN OFFICE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 21. Hon. John Oliver will remain at the head of the Government, and in due course a constituency will be found for him. This became clear after a lengthy meeting of the Cabinet on Saturday night.

ADMIT THEIR GUILT.

CHICAGO, July 21. The fate of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Edward Loeb, indicted for kidnaping and murder of 14 year old Robert Franks, was rested today, "In the mercy of the Court." This resulted from a plea of guilt made today in the Court by Clarence Darrow, Chief Counsel for the boys and affirmed by them after they had been duly warned by the Court of the consequences of the plea. The degree of punishment will be determined after the hearing which is to start Wednesday.

WILL PAY THE PENALTY.

LONDON, July 21. Another stage in the explanation of one of the most revolting crimes which have come to light in recent years, was reached at Lewes Assizes, Sussex Saturday when Patrick Mahon was sentenced to death for the murder of Emily Kaye in a bungalow at Eastbourne; Mahon being intimate with the girl at the bungalow which he had rented. He dismembered her body and attempted to dispose of parts by burning and boiling. After the murder Mahon made attempts to have another woman spend a time with him. The prisoner's record showed him to be a thorough hypocrite and criminal.

A "TUBE" BABY.

LONDON, July 21. So seldom is a baby born on one of London's subway trains, that the christening of Thelma Ursula Beatrice Eleanor, whose initials spell tube, the English equivalent for the subway, was an affair which attracted the attention of Lord Ashfield, head of the system, and other railway officials. Lord Ashfield was permitted to act as godfather at the christening and presented the baby with a solid silver cup.

DEATH FROM WEIGHT.

ANSONIA, Conn., July 21. Mrs. Catherine Bristol, 49, whose funeral was held here yesterday, weighed in excess of six hundred pounds and was buried in a casket weighing 430 pounds. The woman's death occurred on the third story of her home, and a block and fall was used in lowering the casket from the rooms. Ten men acted as pall bearers, they carried the casket 100 feet during which they rested twice, Mrs. Bristol's death, physicians say, was caused by her increasing weight.

GERMAN BARON WOUNDED IN DUEL.

BERLIN, July 21. Baron Von Seiditz, aged 50 is lying in a Berlin Hospital with a bullet in his knee and the German capital's old set is busy discussing the duel which Baron Seiditz is alleged to have fought in reactionary Mecklenberg with Baron Von Elsen, who is a Russian from Latvia. The duel is said to have grown out of quarrels which developed in a Berlin Cafe.

PREHISTORIC HUMAN REMAINS FOUND.

OTTAWA, July 21. Word has been received here that last week after 15 years search, Dr. Frank Gulder has found the remaining parts of the skeletons of five prehistoric human remains, the skulls of which were discovered fifteen years ago by Dr. Harlem Smith at Council Bluffs, Iowa, in an ancient burial ground. It is claimed the skulls and skeletons represent an entirely different type of man from any other archaeological remains previously discovered in that part of the continent. It is suggested the five were visitors or that all other traces of their lives have disappeared. The heads were extraordinarily large and the skeletons those of very big men.

CHARGED WITH 17 MURDERS.

HANOVER, GERMANY July 21. Fritz Haarmann, known as the "Vampire Murderer," has been charged with 17 murders in an indictment just filed by the States Attorney. The investigation of eight other cases has not yet been concluded although the police believe they will be able to prove his guilt in these also, as numerous disappearances reported in various parts of Germany are being directly traced to his house where the crimes were committed.

BIG COMPANY GOES INTO LIQUIDATION.

OTTAWA, July 21. The British American Nickel Corporation, Limited, of Ottawa, with its big mill and refining plant at Descobens and extensive mining properties at Sudbury has gone into voluntary liquidation, following an action taken against the National Trust Company, involving six million dollars first income bonds of the Company. The big plant, employing nearly eight hundred men, will close down this evening.

FREED FROM PARLIAMENT DUTY.

OTTAWA, July 21. Members of the Government are scattering for a rest after the long and arduous session. The Prime Minister is at his summer home. Other members of the Government so far as possible are taking advantage of the respite. It is not likely that a meeting of the Cabinet will be called for some days, but important business has ahead before parliament is summoned again. In some quarters there is a feeling that a General Election is likely towards the end of the present year. When questioned on the point during the session Premier King replied that he could see no necessity for a General Election at the moment but declined to give and promise that Parliament would not be dissolved during the recess.

Wembley's Monster Organ

The monster organ at the British Empire Exhibition is one of the most amazing instruments in existence. It contains 3,000 pipes ranging from 32 ft. in height to 3 ft. It has five manuals with 75 stops, and over 85 miles of electric wire have been used in connection with its pneumatic action.

It can be heard perfectly all over the Stadium, even in its quietest moments, and its tonal effects are excellent. The reed stops, trumpets, and tubas are on very heavy wind and produce, so that it will be possible to produce a special fineness of tone and quality.

For its size it is a very sensitive instrument. An organist will be able to get out of it remarkable varieties of touch.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THOUGHT.

Take a little time to think just before you speak the phrase which comes flying to your lips. Just remember that it pays. Be as careful with yourself as you would be with the task. On which fame and fortune wait. Pause just long enough to ask if there's wisdom in the speech, will it serve you once it's said? After you have spoken out would you like that sentence read?

You are careful with your work, you don't blindly rush along. Without thought of what you do, whether right or whether wrong, you attempt before you start to look forward and to plan. Why not do the same with you, why not make yourself a man? Why not think about your life, why not give some thought to you. Stopping now and then to ask if this thing were good to do?

What will others say to hear from your lips some hasty speech? Or to see you, "blind to all, save the goal you hope to reach? Is it worth the brand of shame? Would a real man do this? Think your honor comes by chance or success by hit or miss? No, true character is made, made by sacrifice and toil. Made by men who stop to think ere their records here they epore.

Is it honest, is it clean, is it what a man would do? Should I want the world to know that I did it, once 'tis through? Will it lift or drag me down, will it serve me or betray? These are two things to ask yourself when temptation comes your way. Take the time to think it out and consider while you can. For 'tis only careful thought that can ever make a man.

Not a Fly-by Night Product

Pearline is no new product on the market, but a tried and proven commodity of great value and service. Fifteen, twenty years ago Pearline was helping the women of St. John's to do easier washing, and at that time Pearline was practically the only washing powder used. For some years it has been unobtainable locally, but it is here again now and already getting back its old time popularity. Pearline is without doubt the most efficient washing powder. For perfect cleaning be sure to use Pearline. At your grocer's.—July 22, 1924.

Secret Wireless Wave

AMERICAN INVENTOR'S CLAIMS--"PROBLEM OF MULTIPLE TRANSMISSION."

Remarkable results in the sphere of wireless telephony are claimed for the latest invention of Dr. John Hays Hammond, Jr., an American, whose recent tests in the distant control of battleships and submarines by wireless attracted considerable notice. At one stroke, it is asserted, important and perplexing problems have been solved, including immunity of messages from interception. Dr. Hammond claims to have solved the problem of multiplex transmission through the ether. For instance, in a test carried out in Rome a concert and a lecture were both transmitted simultaneously from the same aerial and on the same wave length, and were picked up separately on the same receiving aerial, while another station transmitting on exactly the same wave length was unable to cause any interference. The latter point is quoted as an illustration of the second result achieved by the invention—namely, an escape from "jamming." Further, the system is said to afford privacy of communication, for it appears that the waves sent out by Dr. Hammond's transmitter are virtually immune from interception by unauthorized stations. If not actually impossible, Dr. Hammond holds that interception of intelligible signals would be exceedingly difficult, while it would require such elaborate preparation that its detection and suppression would be comparatively easy. As to the means by which these results are claimed to be secured, Dr. Hammond explained that his method was to produce a secondary modulation in the radiated waves, and thus to form a characteristic wave that would yield intelligible signals—either telegraphic or telephonic—to a receiver acquainted with its characteristic and having the necessary apparatus to detect it. At the same time something is taken away from the ordinary wave that has to be reinstated at the receiving station before readable signals can be obtained, and it is necessary by prearrangement for the receiving station to know exactly what factor to use in order to rectify the wave. The multiplex result arises from the fact that more than one—perhaps even four—different characteristics can be applied simultaneously to the same wave, each conveying a different message. The reason why this at the same time eliminates is not perhaps so clear to the uninitiated, but Dr. Hammond said that his tests and demonstrations had shown that his characteristic wave can go through all ordinary waves and that many years of testing before officials of the United States army and navy had demonstrated that the system possessed extraordinary selectivity. It is understood that this system, upon which Dr. Hammond has been working for a considerable time, is preferably applied to short wave lengths.

Roads and Bridges Essential to Development

Keen interest is at last being taken in the movement to improve our roads and instead of making temporary repairs here and there as urgency demanded or political motive suggested, a system is gradually being formed the object of which is to build roads of a more permanent nature. In other words we are learning the lesson which the Romans taught our ancestors two thousand years ago. The system can be summed up in one word—durability.

It is foolish to imagine that we can "arrive" all at once. The nature of the country makes road building an expensive matter as the surface is most uneven and the erosive action of the numerous streams has resulted in the formation of deep water courses, which make bridges at frequent intervals indispensable. The extremes of temperature to which we are subject further add to the road-maker's difficulties. Again, the disproportion which exists between superficial area and population in Newfoundland makes it impossible to undertake extensive operations, as long as the money required for this purpose is allocated on the per capita basis. For that reason the raising of a loan on the plan suggested by Mr. Hibbs in his Road Booster should be given serious consideration. As against the difficulties, it may be mentioned that practically all the material necessary for construction work is available locally, and labour may be obtained at a reasonable cost.

To the Roads Commission and to the Motor Association a great deal of credit is due for the working out of the durability system, and the consequent improvement of the highways in the Peninsula of Avalon. It is to be hoped that they will be given every facility to expend the moneys at their disposal to the very best account, and that no other considerations will be allowed to affect the programme which they have mapped out.

Anyone who has travelled over the road between St. John's and Placentia cannot fail to have been impressed by the magnificent concrete bridges which the Government Engineer has thrown across several of the largest rivers. They furnish not only the visible proof of the "durability system" which has been introduced, but are striking examples of the economy effected by judicious expenditure. They form a combination of beauty of design and skilled workmanship, and their value as public utilities cannot be overestimated.

These bridges, however, are but miniatures as compared with those which have been built by Mr. Hall over such rivers as the Parachois in Bay St. George and Romaine Brook, or with the bridge in course of construction at Grand River in the Codrory Valley. We call particular attention to these erections not only because they make continuous travelling by road possible, but because the development of the agricultural industry of the country depends upon them. The completion of the Grand River bridge, for example, will afford access to one of the most valuable farming areas in Newfoundland. Already it is in part developed, but extensive operations are impossible owing to the difficulty of transportation. At present in order to reach the railway, loads have to be brought to the river, ferried across, and then the farmer has to make a second crossing to bring over his team. A further haul of several miles to the railway line follows. The amount of time lost, not to mention the unnecessary work which has to be undertaken, makes it practically impossible to farm this land at a profit, and the people of the country as a whole are deprived of the enormous supplies of produce which these lands are capable of raising. The same obstacles to development can be mentioned throughout the whole of the Bay St. George area which with an improved road system would be quite capable of raising sufficient quantities of cattle and vegetable produce to meet all demands in the local markets. The money expended in the past on wooden structures has been wasted. Every year they require extensive repairs, and must frequently be replaced owing to premature old age or because the freshets have carried them out to sea. Now that we have come to realize the truth of this, let us continue to follow up the new ideas. The progress may at first be slow owing to our straitened circumstances, but it can be sure, and it is certain that as our travelling facilities are improved and extended the revenue will be increased out of all proportion to the expenditure. It is an investment in the result of which, judging by the experience of other countries, there can be no doubt. It is an investment which is a duty that we owe to ourselves, whether we are producers or consumers. A parsimonious policy in this case means applying the brakes to the wheels of progress, and delay in launching out through lack of confidence in the outcome will only result in a considerably greater expenditure at a later date.

Fish Exporters' Meeting
His Excellency Sir Wm. Allard presided at a meeting of the Fish Exporters held to-day in the Council Room of the Board of Trade. The purpose of the meeting was to extend a welcome to Mr. Allan Taylor, fish merchant and trawl ship owner of Fleetwood, Eng., who is here at the instigation of his Excellency in conjunction with the Board of Trade and Marine and Fisheries Department. His Excellency gave an excellent address outlining the purpose of Mr. Taylor's visit, which he hoped would be productive of much good. Mr. Taylor following gave an interesting address on the methods of catching, curing and marketing of various kinds of fish. At the close a vote of thanks proposed by the Vice-President, Mayor Cook, was seconded by L. C. Oterbridge, Mr. Taylor will pay a visit to some of the outposts and note the methods of fishing, following which he will meet the exporters again.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

July 21st.—Up very betimes, and to the office, where the greatest hurry and bustle, and to apply myself to my work all the morning. Anon, comes Dr. Fenwick to see me, and brings with him Mr. Forey, that is no relation at all to my own friend Forey, nor did I know there was another of that name. This Mr. Forey comes from England, and seems a mighty pleasant fellow, whom it gives me the greatest pleasure to meet. By my morning sheet, I see how the Persians did slay the American Consul at Teheran, and diplomatic circles much aroused, albeit little like to happen save the sending of a note on one side and an apology on the other. The House sitting to-day on Supply, the Minister of Finance states how the duties on divers goods, which the War Government did remove by Order in Council, are done illegally, and must be replaced seeing how the spendings last year were in excess of the gettings. So the House passing to the business of the Flour Mill, the Prime Minister gives this his support, and explains the terms of the agreement, which in part do stand for the erection of a great mill with initial capacity of 1,000 barrels a day. The cost of machinery is to be 150 thousand dollars, and labour and material to cost half a million. To play a while at tennis this night, but Lord, no day for a such a game, and did close on 5 pounds before I did finish it.

Magistrate's Court
An ordinary drunk was released. A 21-year-old labourer, resident Field Street, charged with being drunk and fighting on the public street, was held over until Friday next for want of further evidence. The police are engaged searching for the second party to the fiscal encounter. In the meantime defendant signed bonds for his appearance when called upon. Three German sailors deserted, their vessel in a northern port, and having drifted into town applied for shelter at the Police Station. This morning they appeared before court and applied for safe-keeping. The law is up was no place for them and they were ordered to leave the court and search for a foreign vessel.

Repairs to S. S. Kellehaven
Repairs to S. S. Kellehaven are now going on at the Dry Dock. The ship's bottom suffered extensive damages, particularly the forward part, and as a result a number of the plates have to be removed and new ones put in. The lesser damaged plates will be straightened out and renewed at the shops, this alone providing employment for a number of skilled mechanics. The job will take about three weeks to complete.

A Disgraceful Encounter
A disgraceful little encounter between two brothers was witnessed on Allendale Road yesterday evening. Both men apparently under the influence of liquor proceeded to scuffle, the fight lasting for twenty minutes. When the police, who were called by phone, arrived, the ground was littered with strips of their clothing. One of the men was placed under arrest and a summons has been issued for the appearance of the other.

THE NINTH DEFEAT.
LONDON, July 22. During the committee stage of the Housing Bill the Government to-night sustained their ninth defeat, the adverse vote being 201 to 155. The defeat, however, carried no political consequences.

RUSHED TO DEATH UNDER A COAL
SYDNEY, N.S., July 22. William Thompson, 23 of Glace Bay, a surface man employed at No. 2 colliery Aberdeen, was instantly killed this evening shortly after six o'clock by being crushed under a coal box at the colliery slack pocket.

THE BANKERS MUST DECIDE THE SUFFICIENCY OF THE SAFE-GUARDS.
LONDON, July 22. Upon the reception which would financiers accord the report of the committee on defaults and sanctions, for the first time officially published to-night, will depend further developments in the Inter-Allied Conference which is seeking to launch the experts plan to solve the problem of Germany Reparations. This was the view expressed by careful observers after it was learned that the Financial delegates to the conference had a prolonged meeting this afternoon with Sir. Montague Norman, the governor of the Bank of England and Thomas Lamont representing the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company of New York. The meeting was held in one of the committee rooms of the House of Commons. Meanwhile the atmosphere about the conference continues one of hopeful anxiety. There are no grounds for pessimism but clearly the note of optimism in order to carry weight must come from the financiers, who are to advance a loan of 40,000,000 pounds to Germany with which to finance the Dawes plan. As the committee report now available to bankers sets forth the safeguards to surround this loan, the bankers themselves must be the judges of their sufficiency.

FEARED CREW OF MOTOR BOAT DROWNED.
SYDNEY, N.S., July 22. Friends and relatives of the three Glace Bay men Arran MacNeil, George Adams, and Wilson Jessome, missing since Thursday night last, when it is feared they lost their lives by the foundering of their motor boat in an attempt to reach a vessel in the ruff in a terrific gale, are still entertaining hopes that the men were picked up by the schooner Alice, the craft they were trying to reach when the storm broke. An effort has been made to get word to the Alice which parted her cable in the gale and was forced to run for St. Pierre, but so far without success. The general opinion is that the men are drowned.

FATE OF SLAYERS TO BE DECIDED.
CHICAGO, July 22. The fate of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr. kidnapers and slayers of the 13 year old Robert Franks was to-day placed in the hands of one man John R. Caverly, the Chief Justice of the criminal court of Cook County, when they pleaded guilty. Apparently the only question remaining to be decided is whether they shall hang or be imprisoned for a double crime without parallel in this jurisdiction. Robert E. Crowe, the States Attorney retracted his intention of asking the death penalty of the two college students. Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, the Attorneys for the defence, announced in court their purpose to use their clients safely incarcerated for life. "We have an intention of trying to restore them to society explained Mr. Darrow."

PASSENGER LINER IN COLLISION.
NEW PORT, R.I., July 22. Radio messages picked up here early Tuesday said that the Eastern S. S. liner Boston, carrying passengers, was in collision with the New York was in distress. The fragmentary messages mentioned that she had been rammed by, or had rammed some other vessel. The location was not given. The Boston is a new twin steamer on the Boston-New York Service with accommodation for 1088 passengers. Her cruise took her through the Cape Cod Canal in the early evening, thence down Buzzard Bay into Narragansett Bay and Block Island Sound.

BOSTON ABANDONED; FOUR PASSENGERS KILLED.
NEW YORK, July 22. Distress signals from the steamer Boston received here by naval communications late to-night stated that she was in need of immediate assistance and that all her passengers had been put off in lifeboats. The wireless call picked up here said the Boston had been rammed by another ship, the name of which was not learned, east of Point Judith. The U. S. S. Acushnet left Narragansett under forced draught immediately upon receipt of the S. O. S. calls it was stated at the naval communication station. It was stated also that four passengers had been killed when the LONDON, July 22. The Macdonald Government suffered two defeats in last night's session and the score is now ten since the Labor Party took office. The second defeat came late last night on the Labor amendment to the Housing Bill which the Government accepted but which was rejected by 13 to 119.

THE POSITION OF BOSTON AND PASSENGERS RESCUED.
NEW YORK, July 22. S. S. Boston, bound from Boston to New York, which was rammed amidships in a heavy fog last night off Point Judith, sent out a wireless at 5.15 this morning stating that several lifeboats crowded with passengers were missing. The steamer, which is one of the prize ships of the Eastern Steamship Company, was reported to have been in a spinning hole in her side. She was towed to Newport by the R. S. Commonweath, but it was reported it might be necessary to beach her, as she was very low in the water and might sink almost without warning. Four passengers are known to have been killed when the Boston was rammed by the oil tanker Swift Arrow, two and a half miles south of Point Judith. The number of passengers on board was unknown, but the estimates ran as high as 1,000.

House of Assembly Proceedings

MONDAY, July 21. The House met at 3 o'clock.

Petitions were presented by Hon. M. S. Sullivan and Messrs. Ashbourne, Cahill, Hallyard and Capt. Winsor.

Notice of bills were given by the Ministers of Finance and Marine and Fisheries.

Several members gave notice of question. House went into Committee on Supply. The Minister of Finance stated that the duties taken over by the late administration Order in Council had found to be illegally removed, and it was necessary owing to the large deficit facing the country owing to last year's over expenditure to put the duties again in force.

Mr. Hallyard again asked that control of the district moneys be placed in the hands of the members. He stated that he was during a visit to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries very courteously received, but the result was not satisfactory and he was not convinced that his request would be acceded to.

whom the money grants were sent. Mr. Gibbs explained his connection with the agricultural bill. He said that Mr. Corbett Rendell of Fogo district had kept a bill for a year or more and was only allowed $75.00 for his expenses, which did not at all reimburse him for his trouble. He could not get the money from the Dept. of Agriculture and Mines so he asked the Department of Marine and Fisheries to transfer $140.00 to the former Dept. so that the bill of Mr. Rendell could be squared. The trouble with the chain at Musgrave Harbor was that it was too short and more money was necessary to buy extra chain.

Mr. Cahill in reply to Mr. Hallyard said he was the junior member who had the industry by asking a question that the Hon. member referred to, and although being a junior did not propose to take either orders or advice from the member for Trinity. It was the privilege of the members of the House to ask questions of the Ministers of the Crown in a formal way and thereby bring out necessary information. Mr. Hallyard was probably serving in a far different administration during his term of office from that which he was in office to-day. He did not doubt but that Mr. Hallyard labored under the crack of the party whip very often, but things on the Government side of the House to-day were very different from those with which Mr. Hallyard was acquainted.

The proposition is to build a fire proof milling plant of reinforced concrete throughout for 2,000 barrels capacity, divided into two units each of 1,000 barrels capacity per 24 hours. Together with the necessary boiler house, warehouse and reinforced concrete grain elevator of 500,000 bushels capacity equipped with marine leg capable of handling 12,500 bushels per hour. The mill building will be eight stories high with an addition on one end three stories high for locker rooms, tool rooms and a motor room and on the other end an addition two stories high, one story of which is devoted to warehouse and one story to offices. On each end of the mill building there is to be reinforced concrete stair tower, so that there will be no openings or communication between the various floors. This is for fire protection. In one stair tower it is proposed to put a push button electric elevator. Adjoining the mill proper, which will commence on the third floor, will be a grain cleaning house, which will be divided from the mill by a fire wall. The packing and warehouse will be devoted to the two lower floors. The whole of this plant will be equipped with the latest and most modern machinery, fully equal to that in any mill in Canada or the United States.

It is intended to install initially one unit of 1,000 barrels capacity per 24 hours. The additional unit will be installed as soon as domestic and foreign market's warrant same. While the agreement leaves it open to its promoters to establish the plant anywhere in Newfoundland, I am authorized to say that it is approved, it has definitely been decided to erect the mill in St. John's although the actual location has not yet been determined.

The benefits to accrue to Newfoundland as a result of the establishment of this mill appear to me to be as follows: 1. The savings in trade balance. If the annual importations of flour amount to a value of two to three million dollars in cost, freight and insurance paid to outsiders, a very large percentage of this expenditure would be saved to the country in labour and material for packages obtainable in the country.

The by-products of the mill should necessarily provide the country with cheaper feeds thus affecting the cost of dairy requirements, meat, butter, eggs and other products and giving an impetus to farming enterprise generally. 3. With the operation of the mill company's elevator in St. John's it will be possible for importers of oats to bring in same in bulk and have them unloaded and sacked in this elevator and thus afford a considerable reduction in the cost of a commodity of very great importance to this country.

About two and a half million feet of log measurement lumber will be used in the manufacture of packages for a steady mill to be erected adjacent to a supply of timber, and this must necessarily give considerable employment and prove of considerable benefit to the lumbering interests of the Colony. 5. The establishment of a flour mill would ensure that under fair and legitimate competition with outside interests, the people will not be charged undue prices for the essentials of life.

The plant completed will cost about $850,000.00 and $15,000.00 is to be spent in machinery, the balance will be expended in labour and material, a considerable portion of which would be obtained locally, a great boon to this country under present conditions. 7. At least 100 to 150 men would be employed in the operation of the plant when completed, to say nothing of the hundreds who will receive indirect benefit therefrom in the cutting of coopership lumber and the transport of same to headquarters.

manufacturers. (The other changes noted by the Prime Minister were of a minor character.)

Continuing Mr. Monroe said: I would like to say that the promoter of this industrial enterprise is Mr. R. H. Palmer, a Newfoundland boy born in Trinity Bay. He has made a complete study of the Flour Milling Industry, and being anxious to do something for his native land has interested capitalists abroad to invest in a commercial enterprise which it is successful must be of great benefit to the country. He has placed his proposals before the business community through the Board of Trade in St. John's, and I understand they have met the approval of the majority of that body.

The changes give greater safeguards to the interests of the Colony. Under the former agreement coal was allowed in duty free, under this agreement the Company must pay the duty on coal as well as other Gazette" to be run by an official of the Government, called the King's Printer. Tenders would be called for the printing of this paper for the Government. The King's Printer would have charge of all printing and stationery under the supervision of the Colonial Secretary and it was intended wherever practical to ask for tenders for large orders and thereby save a considerable amount of money for the Colony.

Mr. Grimes asked the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that in view of the rapid decline of the Lobster Fishery will any steps be taken this year by his department to secure in the cause and device means whereby to protect this fishery from further decline. In reply the Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated that it was well recognized by him that the lobster fishery was in a pretty bad condition, and he was having the question discussed by the Fisheries Board at its first meeting.

Mr. Cahill asked the Minister of Public Works to lay on the table of the House a statement showing (a) the quantity of soft coal delivered to public institutions during the fiscal year 1923-24, by whom the coal was delivered, and a copy of the contract in each case; also copies of all tenders received for the supply of said coal; (b) the quantity of hard coal for the same period, by whom the coal was delivered and a copy of the contract in each case, also copy of all tenders received.

In reply the Minister of Public Works tabled the documents asked for. Briefly they were as follows: 1. (a) Quantity of North Sydney coal delivered by Messrs. A. B. Hickman & Co. Ltd. 5,144 tons. (b) Price per ton, $14.00. 2. (a) Quantity of Anthracite Coal delivered by A. H. Murray & Co. Ltd., 1,385 tons. (b) Price per ton, $23.00.

The following tenders for the supply of North Sydney coal with price opposite: Per Ton A. Harvey & Co. Ltd. $14.42 N.D. O'S & Trading Co. 14.00 A. H. Murray, Co. Ltd. 15.20 A. E. Hickman, Co. Ltd. 14.00 W. H. Hynes 16.00 M. Morey & Co. Ltd. 13.58 T. A. H. Hickman Co. Ltd., accepted.

The Minister of Finance and Customs gave notice of Ways and Means for Thursday next. The House adjourned until three o'clock to-day.

"Midnight" at the Majestic

REALISTIC PORTRAYAL BY THE ADORABLE CONSTANCE BINNEY.

At the Majestic Theatre last night the audience was tendered a delightful surprise. "Midnight" is the title of the modern feature which permits the adorable Constance Binney great scope as a screen star.

While the story verges on the mysterious type, and it would not be fair to disclose the plot, it hinges on a beautiful and unwise marriage of a beautiful young girl, a serenade, his disappearance, and her later love for a worthy young man, out of which grows a series of amusing occurrences. These hold the interest enthralled right up to the surprising denouement.

Playing the leading male role is Jack Mulhall, who has been seen in leading roles opposite Bebe Daniels and Mary Miles Minter. William Courtleigh, well-known to stage and screen plays the heroine's father, and Edward Martindel enacts another father role. Arthur S. Hall has the "heavy" role, and Helene Lynch, Sidney Bracey and Herbert Fortier complete the cast.

I. O. O. F. INSTALLATION AND INVESTITURE.

The installation, investiture and appointment of officers of Atlantic Lodge, No. 1 I.O.O.F. took place last night in their new and up-to-date quarters corner Adelaide and New Gower Streets, the installation being performed by the D.D.G.M., Bro. G. T. Phillips assisted by Past Grand Officers Bro. Robert Young, Duncan Cook, Geo. Soper, A. Waterfield, A. A. Alock, W. Gaulton and Gordon Phillips. A pleasing duty was performed by the D.D.G.M., Bro. G. T. Phillips, when he asked Bro. A. A. Alock, to step forward and receive from him on behalf of Atlantic Lodge a smokers set in grateful appreciation of his work in Oddfellowship. Bro. Alock replied in most suitable terms. Immediately following the installation a ceremony of the members sat down to a beautiful repast prepared by that well known caterer, Bro. Frank Roberts. The following toast list was also gone through:—

Vandalism Requiring Prompt Checking

Residents of Barras and Monkstown Roads have been put to considerable annoyance by a number of unruly boys who constantly raid gardens and lawns destroying all within their reach. These depredations go on in spite of all efforts made by owners to protect their property. It is time that a plain clothes policeman was detailed to round up these vagabonds.

CLEAN UP and KEEP CLEAN

This is what the New Government intends doing. We have been doing this for 25 years, as Cleaning, Pressing and Dyeing is our sole business. We devote our entire time to it and therefore we can give you better satisfaction than you can get elsewhere. Owing to the growth of our business we have had to remove to larger premises on the opposite side of the street (No. 22 opp. A. V. Duffy), which gives us ample room. We use the first flat, shop and showroom; second flat, repairing and pressing rooms; third flat, dyeing and renovating.

We would like you to see some of our work before sending elsewhere; all prices reduced since the New Year. Cleaning Orders given our first and personal attention. A rush job is our specialty. We call for goods and deliver them in two hours, if necessary. Suits Pressed while you wait; a nice dressing room; to change in. We can handle over one hundred pressing orders daily. In addition to Cleaning and Pressing, we clean and shape hats.

Gents' Suits Dry Cleaned—Hats Cleaned.
 Ladies' Costumes Dry Cleaned—Suits Renovated.

TWO MEN AND ONE JOB.

As I stood waiting the other day in the hardware store for a bundle to be done up I fell to thinking of the clerk who had waited on me. He was, somewhat past middle age. He had on a black alpaca jacket, a grey tie, chosen most obviously for qualities of service rather than beauty, and a pepper and salt suit. His face was thin and lined. His mouth drooped at the corners. His hair was grey. His manner was nervous. He had a dispirited, tired look. I had noticed that expression several times before when I had been in the store, but for some reason it struck me more sharply to-day.

"Poor thing," I thought to myself. "I suppose he has been through this monotonous grind wrapping up nails and screws and selling garden tools and kitchen ware day after day for years. No wonder he feels dispirited. What a life!"

Plump and Placid.
 And then as I was oozing pity and sympathy at every pore and looking about the shop as about a prison house that had made this poor man into such a nervous, unhappy, dispirited creature, I noticed another clerk, and the thought suddenly came over me "why he must be just as old as the other man but how differently he looks."

The man was plump and placid. He was altogether too apt to think of happiness as a matter of circumstance and yet we all know that if you put two people down into the same circumstances one would find far more happiness in them than the other.

For: "One ship goes East and another West." With the self same winds that blow; It's the set of the sail and not the gale That determines the way we go." How are you setting your sails?

looking. There were wrinkles in his face, but they were pleasant ones. He smiled when he asked his customers if there was anything more he could do for them. He did up bundles carefully and competently but without any trace of the nervousness that the other man showed. He did not wear an alpaca coat and his grey suit had a certain jauntyness about it.

 Now I know that both these men have been working in this shop for many years. They are familiar figures to me though I do not know their names. They have had, presumably, very much the same monotonous grind to live through. And what different marks it has left on the two of them!

Of course there may be great differences in their home life that account for their different appearance. But it is more than likely that the difference is also to be accounted for by their reactions toward similar experiences.

How Are Your Sails Set?
 We are altogether too apt to think of happiness as a matter of circumstance and yet we all know that if you put two people down into the same circumstances one would find far more happiness in them than the other.

its leg suffering?—No—Quite happy with its broken leg?—I never asked him.—There was a scene when the Court resumed after a short adjournment. One of the few amongst the considerable number of women in the court rose and addressed the magistrates. "I wish to make a protest!" she shouted.—"During the war 200,000 wives, babies, and infants were slaughtered and the R.S.P.C.A. did nothing, and our magistrates throughout were idle."—The interruptor was forcibly removed.—Sir Edward Marshall-Hall, addressing the magistrates on behalf of Mr. Cochran, stated: "I is unfortunate that this originated as it has. It has given rise to a great deal of fanatical feeling. I deeply resent the suggestion that because I am appearing for Mr. Cochran have no sympathy with animals.—At the adjournment a woman dressed as a lady called me a dirty traitor, and mentioned that she had heard me speaking on the platform of the Dumb Friend's League. I have done so, and hope to do so again, but I regret very much the fanatical feeling which is broadcast condemning anybody before they have a chance. I am a lover of animals, but I like to see fair play.—The magistrates refused for more than half an hour to consider their decision. When they returned the chairman stated that the case had attracted a great deal of public interest, and much had been written on both sides, not only in this country but in many others. A great deal of it was absolutely irrelevant to the point of view which concerned the Court. As in cases of ordinary common cruelty all they had to do as justices was to consider whether the evidence they had listened to during three hearings convinced them that certain specific acts of cruelty had been committed. They must be acts of cruelty according to the laws of this country and not of any other country. The magistrates were not concerned with the state of public opinion either in this country or in others. They all knew that opinion was very much divided, and there was considerable division of opinion on the Bench. They had reached their result by a majority of six magistrates to five. That decision, was that all the summonses must be dismissed.—The cowboys with loud whoops darted out of the court, and in the corridor threw their wide-brimmed hats into a circle and danced around them until policemen cleared them of the premises. As they left the court there was a great demonstration, well-dressed women crowded round them and shaking hands.—Mr. Roland Oliver, for the R.S.P.C.A. announced that he would have to take advice as to whether other summonses relating to other days at the Rodeo would be proceeded with.

DREAMS.
 Aunt Semma dries the dishes; as she plies her rag she wishes that she was a famous singer, singing for a thousand bones; she can see herself resplendent with a sash and a diamond, filling all a noble building with her wealth of golden tones. She can see the crowd applauding, saying that she knocks the yadding from the best and greatest singers of the present and the past; and her joy is all-pervading; in her vision she is wading from one triumph to another, so her happiness is vast. With gee-whizzes and odd-fishes, she consigns the blamed old dishes to the darkest, furthest limbo, where the old world's junk is thrown; she aspires to something higher, and such chores disgust and try her, and she hates her humble station as she plies her rag alone. Julia Ginger is a singer, and men say she is a singer, and they pay unholy prices just to hear the damsel sing; does this lovely Julia capture all there is of human rapture—is her life a round of pleasure, is she happy as a king? She is angry in the morning, for a critic's idle scolding puts her lower down than Melba, hardly up to Ellen Yaw; and she's rattled at the nooning, for some rival has been crooning, at another music temple, in a voice without a flaw. She is snorting in the twilight, and she tries to smash the skylight, for her name appears in letters on the bills, an inch too small; and perhaps at times she wishes she were busy drying dishes, far from all the tribulations of the folks who hire a hall.

The net expenses of the Department were $174,248 in excess of last year. A few items of the annual report may serve interest.

THE HOT WAVE ON HAND.

The weather has become extremely warm of late. One effect of the heat wave is an appreciable increase in water consumption. Since June 30th, Montrealers consumed some 5,000,000 gallons of water more daily than in the same period last year.

CAMP AND COUNTRY PLACES CROWDED.

The different camps in the Laurentine Mountains and elsewhere are crowded with the younger element, who are enjoying life in all its glory, while the country resorts are all crowded with city residents, and golf enthusiasts.

THE FOUR HANDS OF DEATH.

The four hands of Death, auto, dope, guns and moonshine, are still busy taking their toll of human lives. The six handits awaiting execution in the jail here could tell a tale of their mad career in which guns, dope and auto played a very important part. While the supposed good people play and dicker with deceit, lies, fraud, hypocrisy, greed of riches and bootlegging, the bad ones go after the dope, guns, moonshine and auto.

"The New York Sun, under the heading of 'Unconquered Tuberculosis,' says:—

"The victory is very far from won," says the New York Tuberculosis Association in making a statistical report on the national and world status of tuberculosis. The "needless scourge," it states, is only "to some extent being cut down," and any real victory will require long and hard fighting.

The opinion is supported by figures for the forty-one years from 1881 to 1922. These show that the absolute number of deaths of tubercular origin throughout the world is appalling in large. Even those who will not be surprised to learn that 18,420,000 people are officially recorded as having perished from tuberculosis during that period (an unofficial estimate of 100,000,000 is made by the association) will be depressed to know that in the United States 90,462 persons died of the white plague in 1922, while Germany lost 78,577, Austria 31,825, Japan 32,903, England and Wales 23,919, Italy 55,871 and France 60,264. For seven nations—484,811 in a single year. It is understandable how the past toll of tuberculosis can represent the total of all wars ever fought.

But the decline in death from year to year will also disappoint those who have believed tuberculosis to be an obsolescent disease. "Decline" may be used to describe what has taken place, and for while in some cases the figures show an increase they must be considered in comparison with larger populations and a tendency on the part of doctors to report deaths more fully and to include many as tubercular which were once given other classifications. Still, all this considered, it will be discouraging to Americans to learn that deaths in the United States in 1910 (75,211) were more than 15,000 fewer in number than those in 1922. And even in England, where the decrease has been practically continuous, a drop from 35,334 in 1910 to 33,919 in 1922, even with all modifying circumstances considered, does not indicate a prospective disappearance of tuberculosis.

All this is the darker side of the picture, but it is the more to be kept in mind because of the possibility of successfully combating the disease. Tuberculosis, where communal assistance and private co-operation exist, is a "needless scourge." Experiments on an extended scale have often proved that it can be readily made a relatively minor cause of death. But this hopeful fact will continue to have its grim irony while 8 per cent. of all deaths in the United States must still be classed as tubercular.

WHERE A GAY LIFE LEADS.

The avenues of life are many and sometimes lead to paths that bring shame, dishonor, disgrace and an untimely end. The following, taken from the "Evening News," of New York, should serve as a warning to the gay and the young to weave life well, for it's the path to glory or the path to hell.

It is only a few blocks from 8 East 30th Street to the white lights of Broadway.

It is only a few blocks in the opposite direction—to the city morgue. Ruth Hollister lived at that address—Ruth of the bright lights—Ruth of the chorus. Many men visited her there lately. Up to a little time ago there had been only one—Jacob Peister of 18 Linden St., Newark.

There was a party in Ruth's apartment to celebrate the 4th of July. And many men came, up to a late hour. When Peister let himself in with his key Saturday, he found Ruth dead.

She lay in her evening gown, her diamonds on her, and her rings. Her feet lay on the head of the bed, her head was on the floor, and a litter of cigarette stubs and ashes, and empty bottles.

There was a prayer book near by on the carpet, wet with gin and smeared with ashes—and through the window Peister could see the Cross on the Church of the Transfiguration. "The Little Church Around the Corner," touched with the red of the setting sun.

It's the old story of the country girl who came to Broadway—the moth and the fire.

Ruth, whose paths had always led from her apartment to the Great White way, was taken in the opposite direction—to the morgue.

Her mother came to the city yesterday from the home in Portsmouth, N.H., and identified the girl and made arrangements for her burial.

"This is my daughter, Mrs. Estelle McCullough," she said—but would reveal nothing of the romance that had changed her daughter's name from Estelle Flint.

Peister had little to say. He had "picked her up" in a movie, he said. He had liked her. He had lived with her—until recently.

A nice little kid she was—but he had left her. He did not say why. He had heard she was trying to be merry. Parties. Lots of men. And lots of liquor. A broken heart? Peister sneered. Peister was ordered held without bond by Magistrate Thomas F. Andrews, when Detectives John Sheedy and Frank Smith took him in to custody. It was believed Ruth might have been poisoned. Dr. B. M. Vance, assistant medical examiner, said last night. And it is probable Peister will be released.

It's only a few blocks to Broadway—and perhaps some other girl will rent Ruth Hollister's little flat, with the view of the golden cross on top of the little church.

CITY TREASURER'S REPORT.
The Star says editorially:
The Star says editorially:
urer of Montreal for the past year is distinctly gratifying. It shows that in population, area and wealth this city is advancing by leaps and bounds. It is well worth quoting a few words from the report relating to Montreal's "importance" as estimated at the present moment:
"Montreal is one of the largest cities in North America; it is the terminus of two of the largest railway systems in the world; as for its harbor, it is one of the finest equipped in the universe, while the water powers in its vicinity are unsurpassed."
Other glowing tributes might be quoted, but enough has surely been cited to create pride in any resident of the metropolitan city of the Dominion.
In the year 1910 the total revenue of Montreal was but seven millions;

it is shown, in the report in question, that in 1923 the revenue climbed to over twenty-six millions. As to the population, it was but a quarter of a million in 1901. In the vicinity of nine hundred thousand is the mark at the present time.

A commendable endeavor of the existing regime at the City Hall is the marked effort being put forth to provide more ample sinking funds for the debt. It is very lamentable that most weak business methods have been in evidence in the past in the matter of seeing that loans were liquidated with the passing of years.

MYSTERY CREATURES OF THE JUNGLE.

To those who imagine, as many do, that Nature has no further surprises in store for us in the shape of new animals and birds, the news that an expedition is in South America attempting to capture the hoazin, a very rare species of water fowl, will come as a surprise.

But the hoazin, with its cockatoo crest and its formidably powerful beak, is by no means the only mystery creature known to exist to-day. In the heart of Central Africa, where the jungle in many places has never been penetrated by white men, there is to be found a strange leopard-like animal, striped after the fashion of a sabre, but so far has evaded classification by natural history experts.

AN ANIMAL THAT FLIES.

What is known to be the hippo-horse is another mysterious beast that roams the African wilds. The natives have long spoken of it, but it was not until a few months ago that a white man, Mr. H. E. Lee, made its acquaintance.

He saw the animal half-immersed in a pool. Its mouth, cheeks, and ears were like those of a horse, but its head was like that of a hippopotamus, with two long, erect horns on its snout.

The New Guinea forests are believed to be the home of more than one animal unknown to natural history, while the dense jungles of Borneo and Brazil contain others, among them a long-haired tree creature that is said to be capable of flying.

The Giant Bush Pig of Kenya is another beast that is so rarely seen that its existence is doubted by some, although several reputable travellers claim to have observed it.

Keeping the Doctors Busy

A Disease That Costs $40,000 a Day.

In the course of a conference on tuberculosis held a few years ago, it was stated that this disease alone costs Great Britain so less than thirteen and a half million pounds a year. Think of it—more than a million a month, or about $40,000 a day!

Rheumatism is not usually counted as a serious malady; yet it cripples or partially cripples so many of us that it is reckoned that the labour lost through the affliction in this country is worth between five and six millions yearly.

Influenza is with us every year, and when a really bad epidemic strikes the country, as happened in 1919, about one in five of the whole population suffers. The sick roll from influenza in that year was nine millions, and there were nearly 150,000 deaths.

The Nation's Sick List.

The cost of treatment and value of lives lost did not fall far short of ten millions sterling, and absence of work and dislocation of trade must have cost as much more. So that one visit-

Falls, Yoho Valley, British Columbia, for the first annual Pow-Wow of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies on July 17.

"It will be a great event," said J. M. Gibson, Honorary Secretary of the Organizing Committee, who left Montreal earlier to prepare for the gathering, to be held at the Sun Dance Lodge, which is being erected for the occasion. In addition to the accommodation at Yoho Bungalow Camp, a camp of tepees is being put up, and these tepees will be decorated by the Stoney Indians. Members of the Alpine Club will pass through Yoho a week in advance of the Trail Riders' gathering, on their way north from Lake Louise.

The list of Trail Riders who are expected to attend the gathering includes men and women in high places in public business and professional life. A few of the 150 expected are: Dr. Charles D. Walcott, Honorary President, Washington; Midge MacBeth, the Canadian Angler, of Ottawa; H. B. Clifton, Chicago; President of Rand McNally Company; Col. W. W. Foster, of Vancouver, President of the Alpine Club of Canada; Belmore Browne, of Banff, artist, and the first to climb Mount McKinley; Dr. Russell Fowler, of New York; Lawrence J. Burpee, of Ottawa, President of the Canadian Historical Association; Frederick Nyren, the Novelist, of Nelson, B. C.; and Robert Hood, novelist of Vancouver; Frank N. Walerman and Robert H. Mainzer, of New York. Twenty girls from a Detroit school will be included in the gathering.

Horse-back is the mode of transportation that will be used by some of the members travelling long distances to the pow-wow. Henry A. Riviere will ride on horseback from Ft. Assiniboia, 250 miles; Buffalo Child Long Laugee, the Cree Indian, writer of tales of his own people, will travel horseback. Madeline Turner, the woman guide, will journey 150 miles on horseback, and Mrs. "Mill" Brewster will ride 130 miles from Kananaskis.

A commendable endeavor of the existing regime at the City Hall is the marked effort being put forth to provide more ample sinking funds for the debt. Jerry Houlihan and the Missus

GOING TO GIVE A HELP AT FRANK RAWLINS' GARDEN PARTY.

Do you know, Jerry, says the missus, what I am going to tell you? I don't, says I, but of course when you tells me I will. Well, Jerry, says she, I was asked to take a table at Father Rawlins' garden party next week. You were, says I? Yes, says she. You know, Jerry, the poor man went to a lot of expense to build a grand church in there at Kilbride, and shure if people don't give him a help out with it, he'll never have it clear. Well, begor, says I, I'll never say a word against you for that. That'll be one good turn you'll be after doing anyhow. And Jerry, says she, I was told to ask you if you would take charge of a wheel of fortune in there too. Well, says I, I will, but I must have the same man with me that I had the time of the Christian Bros. bazaar years ago, when we raffled four hundred pairs of vases in one night, but I heard they were all burnt in the fire afterwards. And who is the man you want with you, Jerry, says she? Poor Frank Walsh, says I. But sure, says she, Frank is down in the Fever Hospital now. I don't care, says I. I won't undertake that job without Frank, suppose he has to be brought in to Kilbride in the ambulance. Well, now, Jerry, says she, the first thing you have to do is get up early in the morning and get Mike Murphy to trim you up a bit and go down to see Judge Morris and get your license for many a thing now. If you want to run a car you have to get a license, and I often see in the papers that come from the Boston States that a man must get a license to get married up there. Why then, says I, it's the woman that ought to be made get that kind of a license because it's they that run the men alright. Well, now, Jerry, says she, what will you have on your wheel? Will you have numbers on the names like you had on the one at the Bazaar? There was Dexter, Harry, Poll, and Rose and Mand and names like that? Yes, says I, but I don't like the name of Mand, and I have reason too. When I was shipped to the fisheries up in Admiral's Cove, Permeuse, I was milking the cow one day for the woman of the house, and she nearly kicked the eye out of me and I remember to this day the cow's name was Mand. But anyhow I'll get up for that same what you say, Well, Jerry, how are you going to get in there now that's the next thing? We'll get in our wheel, of course. And what about me, Jerry? Begor, says I, I don't know about that seeing the days of free passes are over. Anyhow, says I, I'll think it out and maybe I'll be able to get you in with the band. And how will we get in our stuff, Jerry? Well, says I, I'll bother as one to get in with people, and the best way for you to get in years is with Ned Walsh, our milkman. But sure Jerry, says she, our ice cream will turn to water with the jolting going in. Not at all, says I, sure Ned has cold springs under his express. And how are we going to get out, Jerry, says she? Why, says I, we'll get out with Mr. Thos. Fitzgibbon, because I came out with him last year, and Jerry, never be ashamed to ask me for a lift, because says he, if I have to sit on the horse's tail myself I'll make room for you and the missus, Jerry, so, says I, if you want to be putting obstructions in the way about this and that we'll never get here or there. So, says I, bar the door and if anyone comes to it while I am in bed, tell them I'm gone trouting in to the Deadmen's Gullies and that I'll be home with the milkman in the morning.

Improving the Output

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—From time to time articles have appeared in the daily papers concerning the cure of codfish and prices for same, and in most cases the writer claims that supply and demand will and must govern prices. Now while I quite agree with these people I want to tell them right here and now that there never can be any great demand for our fish so long as things are allowed to drift along in the same old course that we for centuries have been drifting. And while I strongly condemn regulations in such a form as the Witty Willie brought upon us only a few years ago, I do not believe that before there can be any great demand for our fish we shall have to get down to a better system of curing, cutting and exporting this go fishing. How can this be brought about? A hard proposition, you say? Yes, I know it, but it only requires honesty, and justice to do this work. Let our Water Street merchants give up the trick of exporting a No. 2 article for No. 1 and let cutlers see that both buyer and shipper gets justice. Let favor be shown nowhere. Let a high price be paid for a good article and let the man who puts up a good article receive the benefit of his labour. This in itself will be an eye-opener to the careless slipshod easy going fishermen and if I am not mistaken we will soon have both supply and demand in real earnest. Why? Because our fish will take the lead in foreign markets, and the demand will be such that our exporters will be able to offer big money to entice our people to go fishing, and the result will be a paying concern right through. So now then gentlemen let us get interested if we never were before. We have a govt. that is going to work for our interests. Don't grumble if you have got to take off your coat and get down to it. Don't fret if you have had a good job and lost it (a dead head). Try to remember that your big salary was coming out of the pockets of some other poor beggar with little or no returns so I say don't grumble; it is no use for I have a man in Mr. Monroe that is going to see that office holders will earn their money in the future, then if he hasn't got a job for you, try coming out with us and help row the long boat. We have had to work too hard in the past because half the crew has been off on a picnic at the expense of the public. But Monroe says they must row now or get out. It is interesting to note that in less time than it takes to tell four coastal boats have been called in from different districts because it has been found that the returns from these boats have not been anything like in proportion to their expenditure. I wonder what about our boat the Malakoff down here. We would be long sorry to find ourselves without a boat, but go to it Walter. If it is necessary, we are prepared for it. Don't show any favour. Take Sir William's Motto and work it out for him "equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Now I guess I'll ring off with best wishes to the editor.

Yours truly, B. B.

"White Shoulders"

an Excellent Photoplay

OPENED TO LARGE HOUSE AT NICKEL LAST NIGHT.

Last night patrons of the Nickel witnessed an all-First National programme, headed by Katherine Macdonald's starring achievement "White Shoulders."

Because it has a story with a well-defined plot that is carried through without being marred by inconsistencies and impossibilities. "White Shoulders," a First National production, can be classed as far above the average picture.

Audiences will be found to appreciate the film particularly for that reason as well as for its other undeniably attractive features.

There is plenty of action—enough to please even the "fan" who prefers speed and strenuousness in his entertainment to anything else, and there is also quite enough of the romantic to cater to the picture patron who likes the spice of love intermingled with the films that he prefers to see.

Besides, Miss Macdonald wears an abundance of the sort of clothes that are quite up to the minute and that are bound to catch the fancy of the feminine picture-goers. So that everyone will be pleased.

Also incorporated in the film a ball to which the guests come bedecked in the dress of the early '60s—and the director can be complimented on the care which he took in the settings.

Buster Keaton created abundance of laughter in his famous comedy entitled, "The Playhouse."

Obituary.

MR. JAS. D. LOCKYER, J.P.

Sunday morning there passed away at his residence, 3 Allan Square, Mr. Jas. D. Lockyer, J.P., well known to many of our citizens and more especially to the members of our mercantile community. Mr. Lockyer became seriously ill about two weeks ago, but recovered sufficiently after a few days to encourage the hope that he would again be restored to health, hence it was rather unexpectedly that the end came at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Born at Greenspond in the year 1856, he was approaching his 60th year, a period of existence during which he fulfilled his obligations in a manner which earned for him the esteem and respect of all who had the pleasure of his social as well as business friendship. As a young man he first entered mercantile life as an employee in Twillingate of the branch business of the late Edwin Duder; then became managing agent for the same firm when they established a branch at Herring Neck, and retaining the same position when Mr. George T. Carter assumed the ownership of the branch of Duder's business there, until about 12 years ago when he retired from active control thereof, his son Frank assuming the management in his stead. Mr. Lockyer was twice married, first to Miss Carter of Fogo, who died about 23 years ago, and then to the widow of the late Rev. John Godden, nee Miss Julia Hollick of Rochester, Kent, England, who now survives him. In addition to his widow and his only son Frank, there also survive him one brother and four sisters, members of the Lockyer family of thirteen children of which James D. himself was the eldest, his brother being William S. of Trinity, and his sisters, Mrs. Capt. Arch Blandford, Mrs. J. Pierce, Mrs. J. Galway, of St. John's and Miss Isabel Lockyer, residing in Toronto.

After retiring from active business at Herring Neck, Mr. Lockyer moved to Trinity, the birthplace of his father Mr. John Lockyer, where he resided a few years, eventually coming to St. John's. Here he kept up the business connection with Mr. Carter and with his son Frank, at Herring Neck and consequently was always in touch with our mercantile community along Water Street, and ever evincing a deep interest in the Colony's commercial and public affairs as well as in our civic problems in his capacity as a citizen of St. John's. He was one of the best known members of the Board of Trade to whose rooms on Water Street he was a constant visitor, and always a welcome one to his many friends there who derived much interest and information that he ever expressed of what meant best for the country's success, commercially and otherwise. His honesty of purpose was always expressed with a clear sincerity which thus caused him to be ever highly regarded by those with whom he was brought in daily intercourse and who will now regret that his familiar appearance will be with them no longer. This afternoon his funeral will take place from the family residence, No. 3 Allan Square, after which his mortal remains will be interred at the Church of England Cemetery.

Within the Law

TORONTO, Ont.—(Can. Press)—

Many a Canadian woman wears masculine clothes, and assume a masculine name? She may, according to the law of this country. She may wear anything from a dinner-jacket to a Palm Beach suit; she may wear bell trousers and a Derby hat, stiff collars or "Prospectors' boots," without infringing on the law. She may call herself "Mrs." even if unmarried, and may also call herself Jack or Bob or any other masculine name.

The question arose when two young "fellows" were brought into court the other morning. They had been found in a boxcar in the terminal freight yards, and would soon have been on their way to Fort William and Port Arthur. The usual programme when hobos were found in the railway yards had been gone through when the smaller lad pulled off his cap and disclosed a mass of blonde curls. The pair were again marched before the Sergeant. The girl, sobbing a story of home neglect and a desire to "get away from it all," she was acquitted. Her much older companion was sent to Geulph reformatory. But the question came up: "Was the girl guilty of impersonation insofar as she wore masculine attire?" The answer was no.

Girls are going in for male attire more than ever. But in this country they may do so without fear of the law. Inspector McKinney of the Toronto Morality Department is sponsor for this statement. Only when a woman in masculine attire creates a disturbance of some kind on the street can she be arrested, on a charge of vagrancy.

In parts of the United States an unmarried girl may and has been arrested for calling her self "Mrs." and a small city in Kansas recently opened a strong campaign against girls wearing masculine and semi-masculine clothes, under authority of an old statute that a person must not wear clothes of the opposite sex.

A Plausible Rogue

WINNIPEG, Man.—Following a series of financial adventures which began in London, England, included many points in western Canada in his itinerary, E. P. Freeman, one of the most plausible "crooks" and military imposters has been run to earth.

He is now serving time in a United States Prison for manipulating worthless cheques, after extensive operations in many states of the Union. Freeman is well remembered by business men, veteran organizations, military authorities and police of many cities in Western Canada. He came to Winnipeg early in October, 1923, under the name of Kenneth MacLellan, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., bearing excellent references from former employees in England.

For a time after his arrival, Freeman spied out the land seeking such a position as would become a man with his alleged distinguished military record. During this period he occasionally adopted the titles of Lt. Col. and affixed to his signature the military honors of foreign lands. So good an impression did the "Colonel" create that he was employed by several influential firms in Winnipeg as a commercial traveller to cover western territory. Prior to his departure to the district assigned him, Freeman attempted to obtain sums of money on the strength of his military standing. He also addressed several of the fraternal and local service organizations, but eventually was branded as a "faker" by veteran bodies and military authorities.

City and provincial police endeavored to locate the masquerader, but he proved a "will-o'-the-wisp." Tidings of him came at various times from points all over Western Canada. He was known to have stayed at one of the hotels in Calgary, Alta., and maintaining his bogus rank, proceeded to the Pacific Coast, adding additional victims to his list as he moved on.

The authorities stuck with determination and persistence to their task of investigation. It was discovered that he had made his way into the United States, where it is said he continued his activities.

Finally he reached Buffalo, N.Y., and ultimately was arrested in that city on a charge of obtaining $10,000 by false pretenses. Freeman was convicted and given an indeterminate sentence of three years in prison at Auburn, N.Y.

If you don't fight film on teeth
Coated teeth are dingy

Do you admire the whiter teeth seen everywhere today? Don't you think they add to beauty and to charm?

Then learn how people get them. Millions now conduct the film on a delightful way. Make this test and note the changes which it brings to you.

The chief enemy of teeth
Film is the teeth's great enemy—that viscous film you feel. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it. Much of it clings and stays.

Soon the film-shedders, forming dingy coats. Then teeth remain unsightly unclean.

Film also holds food substances which ferment and form acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They which, later, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles in the old ways of tooth cleaning.
