SIXTEENTH YEAR
U.S. MOST ISSUE MORE BONDS

THE GOLD RESERVE WITHIN $7,000,000 OF THE MINIMUM RECORD.

The Situation at Washington Coming to a Focus - A Road Issue Expected at Once - The Civil Appropriation Bill Passed - Forbidding Banks Holding Gold Certificates in Their Reserves.

Washington, Jan. 25.-Congress is face to face with the important danger that the Government may be forced to suspend gold payments or to make another issue of 5 per cent. bonds under the old resumption law.

As between the two alternatives there is no question which one the President will choose. He will direct Secretary Carlisle to negotiate the sale of another issue of 5 per cent. bonds, but the Secretary will not be able to place them at anything like the advantageous terms at which the last issue was sold.

The business of Congress in dealing with the problem of strengthening the Treasury, and the doubt whether it is possible to get a measure of any kind through, when taken in connection with the bonds term of the breach of faith of the part of Secretary Carlisle, have affected the credit of the Government to such an extent that there has been a decided depreciation in the market price of the last issue, and it is certain that a future issue will have to be sold at a low price.

There is even some talk as to whether the Secretary can negotiate a 5 per cent. coin loan at any figure above par as long as there is the constant threat in Congress of the passage of a free silver coinage measure.

A BOND ISSUE IMPERATIVE.
Cleveland May Act Without Waiting for Authority from Congress.

New York, Jan. 25.-The extraordinary withdrawal of gold from the sub-Treasurer's office was the chief topic of discussion in financial circles to-day, and even at the Stock Exchange the professional speculators were inclined to go slow.

The withdrawal of the metal to-day amounted to $4,750,000 and $1,000,000 more, making the grand total for the week thus far $12,000,000. Of this $7,200,000 will be forwarded to Europe to-morrow. It is viewed as the first step in the general impression to-day was that the administration will wait no longer for Congress, but will act at once.

Some had feared that a new issue of bonds would be made on Monday, and it was this that kept the market firm throughout the day.

Coming to a Focus.
This is the largest export withdrawal in a single week since the Treasury reserve was founded. The export movement, however, is by no means unparalleled. It is the largest since the week of four weeks ago, when approximately $20,000,000 in May of last year $22,000,000 and in the four weeks ending in April of 1893, the exports of gold were $18,000,000 and in the four weeks ending in May of 1892, the exports of gold were $18,000,000.

It is a fact that the gold reserve is being depleted at a rapid rate, and it is progressing rather than the mere fact of heavy exports of gold. The gold reserve is being depleted at a rapid rate, and it is progressing rather than the mere fact of heavy exports of gold.

By the House to-day. The total amount carried by the bill, as it passed, was $39,037,721.50, a net increase of $497,000 over the amount so reported.

The important changes in legislation were made by the bill. One was to restore to the Secretary of the Treasury the discretion that formerly was vested in him to issue notes of such denominations as he may deem best.

Another was to amend the law authorizing the issue of gold certificates, so as to make such certificates not receivable for customs duties until July 1, 1895, and forbidding their use by national banks in their reserves.

The amendments were stated, were considered by Secretary Carlisle to be of the utmost importance to the Treasury.

These horses are all fresh from the breeders, and have been selected with great care, without regard to cost.

Fishing Casualties Off the Banks.
Paris, Jan. 25.-Comte Kerviler has written a letter to The Figaro, treating the frequency of disasters to fishing boats on the banks of Newfoundland, and urging the State to take steps to prevent collisions with large vessels. It is impossible, he says, to prevent the fast passage of fishing boats due to their own carelessness, and they ought to be compelled to observe rigidly the rules relating to the display of signal lights.

Peace in Italian Africa.
Rome, Jan. 25.-A despatch from Massah says that Gen. Baratieri was received in the city yesterday on his return from his victorious campaign against the Mahdists. As peace has been restored in Italian Africa, the Government will send other very few reinforcements to the theatre.

Plenty of Money.
Money has been poured out like water in Durostrow's behalf, the home of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. It is understood that the Government has agreed to pay him a pension of £10,000 a year, and that the late Sir John's widow has been granted a pension of £5,000 a year.

MAY HANG A MILLIONAIRE
THINKS HIS BROTHER WAS KILLED

A Former Torontoian Supposed to Be Among the Victims of the Montana Explosion.

Mr. T. Moffatt of 66 Wood-street, this city, is inclined to think that his brother, William Moffatt, may be one of the victims of the recent explosion at Butte, Montana, in which 53 people were killed. Mr. Moffatt has received a number of letters from Canada.

A few weeks ago Mr. Moffatt received a letter from his brother, stating that he was coming to Toronto on a trip to Montana in connection with his business. Mr. Moffatt is a wealthy man, and his brother was a prominent citizen of Butte.

THE DRAYTON DIVORCE CASE.
Mrs. William Astor Will Assist Her Daughter in Defending the Suit.

New York, Jan. 25.-On Tuesday next Mrs. A. G. Drayton, the wife of the late Dr. Drayton, will make application for the right to amend the petition for divorce which she presented several months ago.

The petition comes before the court on the ground that the husband has been guilty of adultery and that the wife has been abandoned. Mrs. Drayton is a wealthy woman, and her husband was a prominent citizen of New York.

How He Did It.
His fortune had been securely invested by the elder Durostrow, and he enjoyed only the income. One day last February in the afternoon, he drove up to his home in a cab. Entering the house he picked up a quarrel with his wife, it is charged, and without warning he fell from the floor, where he lay for some time before he was discovered.

The homicide was arrested and committed to jail, where he has since been confined. The state has repeatedly sought to force him to trial, but in each case he has secured a continuance. He got a change of venue from St. Louis to this county, and when the case was called on January 14 his lawyers asked that a jury be first empaneled to inquire into his sanity.

The case is now being tried in this county, and when the case was called on January 14 his lawyers asked that a jury be first empaneled to inquire into his sanity. AT THE FARM.
Mr. Edward Farver and Editor Wrigley were discussing matters of beer and pork in the office of the Farmers' Sun yesterday, discussing them, however, in a purely academic fashion and in connection with the name of an old friend of theirs, mentioned this morning in some newspaper as possessed of a facile hardness in the despatch thereof. Mr. Farver, laughing with a side-shaking force, denied any responsibility for the article in question, though going far as to admit that, while he had seen some newspaper, he had never been seen as to the contents of the piece, inasmuch as the meat was hashed and therefore liable to cause doubt, even if the juicy steaks that flowed from the pie on its inclusion had the well-known toothsome and porcine flavor. He had, however, heard his friend call for a mutton pie and the second payment thereof, a practice quite common in the office of Waterloo, and a mark by which the native of that district might be fixed.

SPEAK NOW.
'This motto, which we owe to the inspiration of Edward Blake in calling upon his friend, Mr. Wood, is one applicable sometimes with greater appropriateness. On one occasion on which it was used, it lost the Sandfield Macdonald Ministry its power, and Mr. Blake some of his reputation. But there are times when it is exactly the thing to do.

Canada has a great opportunity to 'speak now.' There is a small island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence which is in serious trouble. It has the same relation to the British Empire as Sicily had to the Roman. It is the first province which England gained, and still remains British. There is, therefore, in this age of large unions, something anomalous in its remaining separated from a much larger country belonging to the same flag. This island is Newfoundland, and the country is Canada.

That Newfoundland is important to Canada cannot be denied. If it were in the hands of a hostile power, our front door would be commanded. It is a matter of vital necessity to Confederation to secure this outpost. It is further a matter of necessity that the people of Newfoundland should, when they become Canadians, feel that they have been fairly dealt with. If they considered that Canada was taking advantage of their necessities, the result would be that for a long time they would be discontented and dissatisfied. Now, therefore, is the time for Canada to speak. We have been headed off in the direction of Alaska. Do not let such a serious mistake happen again.

The Globe has its usual 'don't duck him if he pons' style taken great pains to point out the reasons why Newfoundland should not be, as it says too hastily, incorporated in the Dominion. Our opinion is that we cannot be too quick about welcoming Newfoundland with open arms. In the first place, they are our fellow-subjects. They come to us in their troubles. Let us receive them in such a manner as to show them that blood is thicker than water. It is not a negotiable settlement between debtor and creditor. It is a case of fair, large, liberal treatment. The establishment of a branch of the Bank of Montreal in the island was a measure endorsed by Canada to the fullest extent. It commenced in the right way by showing to the Newfoundlanders where their true help lay. It will be long remembered that it was not a British or American hand which extended the first assistance, but a Canadian one. This is the true way to make history. If our statesmen considered, like The Globe and its followers, only the selfish motives of a situation, ignominious resignation would be the fate of this country. We believe that a different spirit pervades our people and that in dealing with Newfoundland there is a more plucky way of looking at matters.

The difficulties which exist are the financial situation and the French claims. The former must be adjusted. There is a faith enough behind Canada to provide for a fair adjustment of past indebtedness and for future relations between the Dominion and its new province. The resources of Newfoundland have never hitherto on account of the peculiar political situation of the province. When greater wealth and concentrated power are applied to their better development we say without hesitation that the returns will greatly outweigh any indebtedness or expenditure Canada may be called upon to finance for her. The French claims are more serious. Here The Globe displays more than usual disingenuousness. If its conclusion means anything it means that Canada had better leave the question alone, because the French-Canadian will side with France if there is any dispute. To that statement there are two answers. If it is true the sooner we know it the better, because we shall be better able to deal with it. If it is false, then it is an underhand attack on a portion of our population, for which The Globe and its followers have never had any real affection. Wherever they thought there was a chance of gaining something by coquetting with the French-Canadian they have slobbered their effusiveness. When it comes to the point, the cloven hoof sticks out, and the horns and tail appear. We contend that in the first place the French claims will stand a better chance of being confined within legal bounds if England has to consent Canada's requests than if she has to deal only with a Crown colony like Newfoundland. Treaty rights must be respected, but must not be extended at the discretion of any one of the contracting parties. In the next place, France will herself be more cautious in advancing claims if she understands that she is dealing with Canada and not with Newfoundland and England. It means the appearance on the scene of a new power, which cannot be summarily set on one side like a small island. Thus England is likely to be firmer and France more cautious in respect to resisting or making encroachments. The French-Canadian, if they consider their own interests, as they are likely to do, will find that it is decidedly to their advantage, as Canadians, to have the French claims, if they consider their own interests, as they are likely to do, confined to within as narrow bounds as possible. England the other day sensibly gave up Heligoland in exchange for concessions elsewhere. France, in like manner, will exchange St. Pierre and Miquelon for some other advantage. There still exists in the minds of some French statesmen, and among some French-Canadian, a sentimental banking after old France, and a restoration of French rule in America. But it is only sentimental and Frenchmen have their hands in too much hot water already to put them into any more cauldrons.

If they will not consent to surrender their treaty rights then Canada must take over the island subject to those rights and deal with them as reasonably and fairly as possible. There are serious social difficulties in the island, a combination of race and religion quarrels, which must also be faced. These difficulties will disappear because the islanders will have a wider field for their energies. A bigger grasp of questions will be required and the undoubted courage and force of character of the Newfoundlanders will be exercised in a larger arena. The result will be an always has been an increase of tolerance and the exercise of greater give and take.

This possibility is now within our reach. Ambassadors are coming to Ottawa from Newfoundland to ask admission for that island into the Dominion. Canada must 'speak now.' We must secure the entrance of these men into our Canadian circle, and then we shall have rounded off our territory on the eastern coast. It will then be the next step to acquire Alaska and rectify our southern boundaries so as to correct the boundary of our territory on the western coast. Frank's Tugboat and Co's Auction Sale. All the costly English, German and Parisian goods belonging to Messrs. Frank Tugboat & Co. will be sold on Tuesday, Jan. 29, and will be continued every day until the entire stock is sold. This is one of the most important auction sales that has taken place in Toronto for some time. It will, no doubt, attract a very large crowd. Mr. Chas. M. Henderson will conduct the sale.

Icebound in Lake Michigan. Grand Haven, Mich., Jan. 25.—The steamer Wisconsin, of the American Line, bound for Detroit, was icebound in Lake Michigan, four miles out from the shore, and was unable to get to the vessel, but failed. The ice-bound vessel is in no danger of going to pieces unless it should be struck by a gale.

Escaped From an Asylum. Montreal, Jan. 25.—Joseph Daignault of Sherbrooke, arrested on a charge of forgery and arson, and removed from the St. John's Jail to the Longue Point Asylum, has escaped. He has been seen making his way to the north, and is after him and hope to catch him. The medical men are convinced that Daignault was only shamming insanity.

IMMEDIATE ACTION NECESSARY. The withdrawals of gold yesterday from the United States Treasury are said to amount to $7,000,000, and the actual gold reserve is now down to $65,000,000. The minimum reached by the gold reserve last January was $65,438,000. In June, before the 'reimbursement' of gold by New York banks began, the low level reached was $62,000,000. In August, before the new tariff receipts began, the reserve reached $52,180,000. In November, the day before payments for bonds subscribed, it touched $57,784,000. The present gold reserve, therefore, is only $8,000,000 above the minimum reached in 1894.

Students Want a Commission. The Lieut.-Governor, as Visitor, Asked for an Investigation. Varsity will be issued to-day with Mr. James A. Bell as editor. It will suggest that 'the best means that could be taken to clear up the whole difficulty would be to hold an investigation into the entire management of the institution. The Varsity promises the future course of the paper will be the same as it had been for some time before the recent trouble took place, and that while its liberty shall never be allowed to degenerate to license, its freedom of speech shall be jealously and faithfully guarded.'

More Than a Question of Present Cost. On Thursday morning The Globe had an article founded upon the Bertram Engine Company's figures in connection with installing an electric light plant for the city. In this article it concluded that the city should get the streets lighted in whatever way would be the cheapest for the citizens, and that apparently the Bertram plan was the cheapest. If the adoption of the Bertram proposal would effect a yearly saving to the city of $100,000, it would be a very good thing. The Globe's opinion, in the City Council should accept it, but if an independent existing company would render the service as cheaply, then, in The Globe's opinion, that contract should be given to such a company. This is all right as far as it goes, but there is a great deal behind the question of price as it appears on the surface. When the present contract was entered into our five years ago at $108 per light it would have been advantageous to the city to have installed a plant of its own. Even if the cost per light at that time should have figured up as high as $125, having given the Toronto Electric Company a contract for five years we find that they are now able to produce light for $75, which includes their profit. From the evidence which has been submitted it appears that the are light does not cost more than $65 a year. The Toronto Electric Light Company are therefore making a profit of $43 per year on every light in the city. This, roughly speaking, amounts to $50,000 a year. They made that out of the citizens last year. They will make it out of them this year.

It is quite certain from these figures that it would have paid the city to have erected its own plant, when the last contract was made, even if, as we have already stated, each light cost $125 or more at that time. We are losing $50,000 a year from being tied up to this company. The question naturally arising is whether the same line of reasoning does not apply to any light contract that may be made in the immediate future. If we should make a contract for a year, or two, or three, or four, or five, or six, or seven, or eight, or nine, or ten, or eleven, or twelve, or thirteen, or fourteen, or fifteen, or sixteen, or
