

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state and my health had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

NOTE AND COMMENT The Princess Pat—less than a year old, and no historic regiment in the annals of war, suffered heavier losses or ever wrote a testimony of unshaken valor in a nobler language of wounds, sacrifice and death.

Pittsburg Gazette-Times.—It is now intimated that Kaiser Wilhelm now expects to eat dinner with his officers in the Italian capital instead of Paris. And one can almost hear him humming to himself: "There's no place like Rome."

The distinguished English physiologist who in a recent discussion before the Royal Sanitary Institute insisted that the short man is a more efficient fighting machine only emphasized what has been the growing conviction of scientific observers in late years. The small man presents less of a target to the foe, eats less, has usually a higher vitality and better resistance to infections, all of which are eminently desirable qualities in the soldier.—New York Herald.

For the first time in the history of New England prisoners will be put to work on the roads. About twenty from the Cumberland county jail will be taken to Cape Elizabeth to work on the highways. The men will wear ordinary overall and jumper suits, with good, strong working boots. The prisoners will be taken to and from work for the present in an automobile truck, leaving the jail in time to start work on the road at 7 o'clock. They will have an hour for dinner and quit work at five o'clock. Two guards will be employed, one for each ten men. Specially good fare is to be the lot of the prisoners working on the roads.

Canada has performed the striking achievement of changing in twelve months an unfavorable trade balance of $162,000,000 into a favorable balance of $6,000,000—an array of facts which show that the Dominion is rapidly approaching a position which must inspire the greatest confidence. These words preface a strong article in the Monetary Times on Canada's national position, which says: "Things in Canada are better than if there had not been war. A general reaction from a long period of rapid development and speculation together with a much needed readjustment of economic conditions had set in some time before the war came. The war has given sufficient opportunity generally to prevent this country from sliding to the point to which it deserved to slide as a result of economic sinning. It is easy to be an empty optimist, but the Canada of to-day is dutifully bound to do something of an optimist because a careful analysis of the situation reveals a long line of facts which give ample support to that position.

On a Grand Trunk train, a few days ago, a German-American, traveller for a Cincinnati firm of manufactures, surprised his seat companion by the vehemence with which he declared that he hoped Germany would be beaten in the conflict. "It sounds strange to hear sentiments expressed by a man of German origin?" was remarked. "Perhaps it does," was the reply, "and in all probability if I had never the way I do, but I have had an opportunity of witnessing the effects of Prussian officialdom—have been a victim of the system in fact—and I say the sooner Prussia is crushed the sooner will the people of Germany enjoy real freedom as we understand the term in America." He went on to say that he had three sons and that he hoped, in the event of the United States being drawn into the war, they all would fight against Germany.

SOCKS It is an axiom of war that an army wins victories with its feet. Napoleon knew it and constantly reiterated its truth. It is a veracity as unquestioned to-day as it was a hundred years ago. Because the present world conflict is fought largely in the trenches is not a reason why it should be allowed to fade into the background of our military consciousness. Because this is a machine war, because it combines the most modern achievements of inventive science with the discarded material of the Middle Ages, aeroplanes with hand grenades, chlorine gas with steel arrows, we should not forget that the most homely articles of wearing apparel are one in importance with munitions and even with food. This war will be won by socks as much as by shells.

Socks, more socks and ever more socks must be our slogan. You cannot sit down and demand them in the trenches. They wouldn't be worth mending anyway. A couple or three days' wear reduces them to pulp. And there is always the fear of blood poisoning or the worst of all evils for the soldier—a sore foot. Then, when the great moment of the charge comes, the man may be incapable of putting forth his best efforts and the fruit of perhaps a week of waiting and fighting is lost. Food, in the excitement of fight, may be, and has been, dispensed with for shorter or longer intervals; footwear is a sine qua non, an imperative necessity. To paraphrase a classic, between the choice of tobacco and socks, our watchword should be: Socks, our praeterea nihil.

Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Over 25 per cent. of the employees in the British postal department are women. Mrs. Amy Winship, who is past 84 years of age, is the oldest college student in the United States.

Fifty-three per cent. of the girl graduates of the Barnard college are engaged in paid occupations.

HIGH COST OF ACTING.

Salaries of the Past as Compared With Those of Today.

Our imaginations are so amiable in this world of dollars that we have already ceased to notice the bagatelle of a vaudeville salary of $3,000 a week, such as some of our actresses are said to have received. We are already calculating on the salary of the future. The salary of the past was not so ambitious. It was a thing to worry over, not to speculate upon.

In the late fifties of the last century Mrs. Drew and her mother received $16 a week for the two. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert received the same sum. At this time the custom was to give two plays a night, with singing and dancing between. The regular actors also did these specialties. They supplied their own wardrobes as well, and as the theater-going public was smaller there was necessarily a constant change of bill. The $16 was undoubtedly well earned.

The first person to receive a salary of three figures was Rose Eyrtinge, the most popular emotional actress of her time. Her first salary as leading woman had been $25, and at the time she considered it a great sum, for she had started on the stage at $7 a week.

Hamlet called the players "the abstract and brief chronicles of the time," and indeed in no other business today do we find so clearly the characteristics of our age. No other profession is more overcrowded and more of a gamble, yet those members of it who succeed in finding engagements should have little complaint to make against the high cost of living, with such changes in their remuneration within our memory.—New York Tribune.

THE TURKISH HERCULES.

Ahmet Bey's feat of Daring, Strength and Heroism.

The Turks tell of Ahmet Bey, an Ottoman officer who served against the Russians. Ahmet was possessed of a daring in keeping with his heroic proportions and physical strength. He was the beau ideal of a soldier, one whose military knowledge seemed instinctive.

It appears that Abdul Kerim Pasha, the commander in chief, while inspecting his troops one morning casually expressed the wish to capture a Serbian prisoner from the Serbian lines. Ahmet Bey, overhearing the remark, saluted and asked permission to get the commander a prisoner. He received the permission, although Abdul Kerim wondered at the request.

As he approached half a dozen rifles cracked, but Ahmet galloped on unharmed and marked down one sentry for his prey. The sentry fired at the audacious horseman, missed and started to run. Ahmet swooped on him like a hawk upon a chicken. He bent down, grasped the Serbian by the collar and swung him across the saddle in front. Then he galloped back, bending over his horse's neck to escape the bullets, and handed over the prisoner to the Turkish commander amid the shouts of the soldiers.—St. Louis Republic.

Not a Square Deal. Miss Mason was explaining to her Sunday school class the lesson for the day, the subject being the tares and the wheat.

"Now, remember, children, the tares represent the bad people and the wheat the good ones."

"Why, Miss Mason?" exclaimed a rosy cheeked boy, who had been listening through the lesson with deep interest. "Did you say the tares are the bad folks and the wheat the good ones?"

"Yes, James," replied the teacher, pleased at the lad's interest.

"Well, that's funny, I think," remarked the matter of fact child. "It's the wheat that gets thrashed; the tares don't."—Country Gentleman.

WARSHIP DESIGNS

Work Involved in the Planning of a Dreadnought.

A TASK OF MANY PROBLEMS.

The Monster Armored Naval Battery Must Be Steady in a Heavy Sea, Else She is Not a Good Gun Platform. Wonderful Accuracy in Results.

Talk of a Chinese puzzle. It is nothing to the problem set before a naval designer who has to build a battleship. Here he has a steel structure of such and such a length and breadth and depth, and into this space, which is controlled by hard and fast measurements, he has to fit so much coal, so much armament, room for so much ammunition, quarters for so many men, space for engines of a certain power and also allow for an immense weight of armor.

Take the original Dreadnought, for instance. The task which was given to Sir Philip Watts was to plan a battleship capable of steaming 4,000 miles at 21 knots, with room for 800 officers and men and able to carry ten twelve-inch guns with eighty rounds of ammunition for each.

She had also to be enormously, heavily armored. This armor alone when the sum was worked out was found to weigh nearly 10,000 tons and the necessary coal to weigh 2,500 tons. The guns and their mountings weighed 4,000 tons, their ammunition 450 tons.

When you add to this that the boilers and machinery of the first Dreadnought were calculated to weigh not less than 1,200 tons the reader may begin to get some faint idea of the difficulties before the designer.

We have not even mentioned the smaller but quite important details, such as boats—some of them large steam launches sixty feet long—anchors and cables of gigantic size and weight, torpedoes, etc.

To be a good naval designer a man must be far more than a mere naval architect. He must have the most extensive knowledge of all sorts of craft and be blessed with a large share of imagination into the bargain.

Now take the Dreadnought again. She is 480 feet long. If her hull had been built of the same shape as previous battleships she would have been very unhandy. Her great length would have prevented her from turning quickly, as is always necessary in a sea fight.

Sir Philip got over this difficulty by shortening her keel base. Under water she is very like a racing yacht, being much shorter below water than above. Another clever device of her designer was to fit two rudders abreast well under the stern. The same dodge has been adopted in all the Dreadnoughts, with the result that they are wonderfully quick to answer their helms.

Quite apart from the marvellous internal fittings of a great warship and the utilization of every inch of space inside the hull, the hull itself is a nerve straining problem. A battleship must not only be fast, she must also be a good sea boat.

This is all important, for if she is not steady in a heavy sea she is not a good gun platform.

To gain the requisite combination of speed and steadiness each new warship, as soon as her plans are complete, is built up in model, and these models are tested in a big tank 500 or 600 feet long. The models, which are built absolutely to scale, are drawn through the water at certain speeds, and the waves which they make are measured by a clever apparatus too technical to be here described.

The designing of a new type of battleship is not a one man job. When a new departure is to be made the members of the board of admiralty call together a number of naval experts, and the opinion of each is asked and discussed. When the general design has been approved then the director of naval construction and his assistants get to work.

The extraordinary accuracy of such work may be gathered from the following:
The Majestic, of 15,000 tons, was designed by Sir William White. When finished and armed she was exactly, to a very few pounds, the weight which he had estimated beforehand, while her center of gravity was within two inches of the point which he had previously fixed on.—London Answers.

Military Age in Montenegro.
In Montenegro in peace times the military age runs between the generous limits of sixteen and sixty-five, and on the first rumor of war the veteran and the schoolboy alike flock to the flag. And a story is told (in sober words of history) of one warrior of eighty, who, on being told he was too old, drew his pistol and shot himself as being of no further use to his country.—London Chronicle.

ARMY AND NAVY TERMS.

Origin of Some of the Titles and Expressions in Use.

Here are the origins of some of the terms used in the army and navy:
"Captain" is derived from the Latin "caput," meaning a head; "colonel" comes from the Italian "colonna," a column, the "compagna colonella" having been the first company of an infantry regiment, the little column which the "colonel" led. The title "lieutenant" comes from a word signifying "holding the place"—a. e., a lieutenant colonel is a sort of understudy for a colonel, a lieutenant looks after a company in the absence of the captain, and so on. The titles of "lance sergeant" and "lance corporal" originated in the fact that in the old days the holders of those ranks carried a lance instead of a halberd, round the head of which was twisted a slow match. Their duties were to go round the ranks with these torchlike lances and give fire to the matchlock men just before a battle took place.

The word "dragoon" was first used of a regiment of mounted infantry, so called from the "dragons," or short muskets, with which they were armed; the well known cavalry call of "Book and saddle" is really a corruption of the old French signal, "Doutte selle," or "Put on your saddles." "Admiral" comes from the Arabic "Emir of bagh," meaning "Lord of the sea"; "commandore" comes from the Italian "comandatore"; "mate" is from the Icelandic and means an equal, and the term "giving quarter" is believed to have originated in the agreement which existed in the old fighting days, that the ransom of a foot soldier should be one-quarter of his pay for one year.—Pearson's Weekly.

BELFRY OF BRUGES.

A Belgian Landmark That Goes Back to the Thirteenth Century.

Of all the cities of Belgium Bruges has best preserved its medieval characteristics. Bruges in Flemish means bridges, the city deriving its name from its many bridges, all opening in the middle to admit of the passage of vessels. It is connected with the sea, eight miles away, by the three canals from Ghent, Sluys and Ostend.

Dating from the third century, Bruges ultimately became the metropolis of the world's commerce. Seventeen privileged trading companies, from seventeen different kingdoms, settled there, while its importance was such that twenty ministers from foreign courts at one time had mansions within its walls.

The belfry of Bruges is probably the most famous in the world. It was built at the end of the thirteenth century. It is 353 feet high and possesses a carillon of forty-eight bells, regarded as the finest in Europe. It is really one of the detached municipal belfries which were erected in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries in certain continental towns as important symbols of their freedom.

Caxton, the first English printer, lived at Bruges, where he served out his apprenticeship after the death, in 1441, of his first master, Robert Lange (lord mayor of London, 1439-40). Caxton lived in Bruges for thirty-five years, when he returned to London and set up his press in Westminster—London Answers.

Wellington's Plans.

Wellington's reticence once drew a protest from Lord Uxbridge, the brilliant cavalry leader, who lost a leg at Waterloo and became Marquis of Anglesey. On the eve of the great battle Uxbridge, although next to Wellington in command, knew nothing of his chief's plans for the morrow's battle. With trepidation he approached the duke. If Wellington were killed Uxbridge would become commander in chief. What was the plan? The duke listened patiently. "Tell me, Uxbridge, who will attack the first tomorrow, I or Bonaparte?" "Undoubtedly Bonaparte." "Well, Bonaparte hasn't given me any idea of his projects, and, as my plans depend upon his plans, how can you expect me to tell you mine?"—London Standard.

Source of Supply.

"What is one of the principal products of the West Indies?" asked the teacher.
The class remained dubiously silent.
"Oh, come, think a little!" adjured the teacher, with patient encouragement.
"Billy, tell the class where the sugar you use in your home comes from."
Billy pondered bashfully for a moment, then, blushing, blurted out:
"Sometimes we buy it at the grocer's, but I think we usually borrow it from the folks who live next door."—Chicago News.
