COMPENSATION RATES BOOSTED

Lumbering and Kindred Industries Must Pay Higher Rates.

An extra edition of the Royal Gazette contains notice from the Workmen's Compensation Board of an addition in rate of assessment upon employers and industries of Class 2. This increase is not unexpected as it has been known for some considerable time that claims in certain classes were too great in aggregate to be met by the assessment. The increase varies from 50 cents for sub-division 1, which includes minor woodworking industries, to $4 for logging; driving etc. Opposition to the increase was strong in certain quarters.

The details of the increase are as follows:

1. Artificial limbs, wicker and wicker work, wooden articles, springs; boat building not over 25 feet; manufacture of canoes; coffins; cooperage; hand work; carpenter, joiner or cabinet work (shop only); furniture manufacture, including assembly; installation of pipe organs; mattress making; upholstering organs and pianos; picture framing 50 cents.
2. Sawmills; shingle mills; lath mills; box, barrel and shuck mills; excelsior manufacture; lumber yard including delivery of lumber carried on in connection with sawmills wood cutters $2.00.
3. Planing and moulding mills; saw and door factories, including lumber yards and delivery in connection with same; commercial lumber yards $2.00.
4. Logging, cutting of timber; pulpwood, firewood; railroad ties or sleepers; river driving, rafting; booming or the transportation of logs, timber; pulpwood; firewood; hauling lumber $4.00.
5. Pulp mills of pulp and paper mills $2.00.

MOVE TO EXTEND ANGLING SEASON

Fly Fishermen Are Anxious to Enjoy Sport on Rivers All September.

Fredericton, Sept. 15.—The fishing season for salmon in New Brunswick closes to-night, and fisherman are anxious to enjoy the sport on the rivers all September.

Along the St. John river the season has at times been especially profitable for the fishermen, and generally speaking the catch in the nets has been well up to expectations, the light rainfall having the effect of producing a reasonably steady run of fish.

On the North Shore in some districts the run of fish has not been so good, and recently a movement was inaugurated to have the net fishing season for salmon on the Miramichi extended, and the catch has been described as "extremely light." No definite information that the extension would be granted, as yet, has been published.

It is quite likely, however, that there will be a general extension granted of the season for salmon angling in New Brunswick, the dates specified for the season last, and it is expected that the season may be extended to one month, and may be continued to September 30. The rate of closing of the season for angling season used to be September 1st, and the inspectors at a conference at Fredericton, Sept. 10th, the Provincial Government at that time is said to have recommended curtailment, and upon that recommendation the season was closed on September 1st.

Some of the fishing clubs in the province have recently taken the matter up with the Federal Government and J. J. F. Winslow, K. C. of this city, who has been acting as solicitor for some of those interested, stated this morning that, while he has not received any definite information as yet as to Ottawa's decision, he had been advised that Hon. C. W. Robinson as Minister of Lands and Mines was making a recommendation which was favorable to extension of the angling season until September 30th as in the best interests of the province because of the possibility of attracting large numbers of non-resident sportsmen to New Brunswick during the month of September.

JAILED FOR FEEDING WIFE TO JERSEY MOSQUITO
Maya Lanning, N. J., Aug. 15.—Because he drove his wife from her home in the middle of the night to remain outside and feed the mosquitoes which she asserted were the worst ever known, a man was sentenced to jail here to await action by the October Grand Jury. Sentences were pronounced before Magistrate R. G. Brown.

His wife, Mrs. Margaret Scott, who preferred a charge of assault and battery, testified that her husband came in about midnight Tuesday, quarrelled with her and drove her into the street, where she was obliged to remain until early morning when she found nothing but thin night clothes.

LATE NEWS FROM DALHOUSIE

Special Meeting of the Dalhousie Social Club—Mrs. Jas. Martin Died Yesterday

Dalhousie, Aug. 15.—A special meeting of the members of the Dalhousie Social Club was held last evening in the Club rooms with President Murray McKay in the chair. The following resolution of the members of Dalhousie Social Club in a special meeting assembled expresses their deep regret in the loss by death of one of their most valuable members in the person of the late J. Edwin Dean, and that this resolution be placed in the minutes and a copy of same be addressed to the widow Mrs. J. Edwin Dean.

Alderman Vallant was appointed secretary of the club to replace the late J. Edwin Dean who had always been a most efficient official and from the first took a great interest in the club.

K. OF C. TO LAUNCH ORDER FOR BOYS

"Columbus Esquires" to Be the Name of the New Movement.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—The launching of a new movement for boys under the name of Columbus Esquires was formally decided on today by the Knights of Columbus, at the 41st annual international convention of the order which is in session in this city. The movement will be conducted through the 8000 councils of the organization. Approximately $60,000 will be expended in the launching of the movement in the form of two men from each metropolitan centre who will take special courses for two years in this movement. It is estimated that there are at least between one and two million Catholic boys between the ages of 14 to 18 who will be eligible for membership in the branches of this new organization.

Deputy Supreme Knight Martin H. Cannon, of Great Rapids, Mich., is chairman of the committee in charge of the development of the movement. In no case will a branch of the organization be established unless the bishop of the diocese approves of it.

The movement will be distinctly not in competition to the Boy Scouts.

The Knights of Columbus convention through Judge Wm. J. Day, of Boston sent a message to President Coolidge extending the sincere good wishes of the 800,000 members of the order and expressing the hope that his administration of his office might bring him the satisfaction that comes from the consciousness of duty well done.

Bishop Couturier of Alexandria, Ont., addressed the convention and stated that the organization was destined to play an important part in the history of both Canada and the United States and that it existed as a permanent bond between the two nations.

FINDINGS OF THE FOREST CONFERENCE

Chief Forester Prince Returns From Attending the Sessions at Ottawa.

Chief Forester G. H. Prince, of the Department of Lands and Mines, has returned from attending the sessions of the British Empire Forest Conference at Ottawa, where he was the official representative of New Brunswick. L. S. Webb, assistant forester, has left for Ottawa to join the Conference party on their tour through western and central Canada.

Mr. Prince said to-day that he anticipated valuable results from the Conference when the final findings of the gathering have been made public at the conclusion of the sessions. Particularly will these findings be of interest to this province in the comprehensive treatment of the subject of forest fire prevention, he said.

Before leaving the session of the conference at Ottawa on Saturday, Col. Graves, chief forester of the United States, delivered an interesting address on the World's Forest Survey. This was the only address delivered by a forester employed outside of the British Empire.

25,000 HOUSES SUBMERGED BY TIDAL WAVE ON KOREAN COAST
Tokyo, Aug. 15.—Tidal waves, combined with severe storm, have submerged 25,000 houses along the Yalu River and on the west coast of Korea. No estimate of the loss of life has yet been received, but it is said the damage to crops and the lumber industry will be heavy.

TWO BAD FIRES LAST WEEK

Sargent Residence Badly Damaged—Buildings Burned At Tide Head.

A serious fire was narrowly averted on last Friday night when a blaze, originating from the electric wiring near the back staircase broke out in the residence of Mr. James Sargent on Argyle Street. The fire was discovered about 10.30. The brigade responded to the alarm with its usual promptness and by its timely and efficient work was successful in confining the flames to the rear interior of the building. The inmates assisted by neighbors rescued the furniture and other household effects so the loss in contents was not severe. Both the building and furniture was covered by insurance. The blaze did not occasion very heavy damage but the damage by water will be considerable, aggregating to at least $1000.

Fire at Tide Head.
The house, barn and several outbuildings belonging to John Christopher at Tide Head were destroyed by fire which broke out on the premises about 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon last. The local fire brigade responded to the call, sent by Christopher unable to save the Christopher buildings, were successful in keeping the fire from spreading to other nearby buildings.

A strong northwesterly wind was blowing at the time and the blaze made rapid progress spreading from the Christopher house on the south side of the road to a barn and another small building on the opposite side of the road. A barn belonging to Robert Mair also caught fire but the good work of the fire department saved this from any serious damage. The blaze also spread to the woods nearby but was extinguished before it had made much headway. Mr. Christopher's loss will be considerable but it is understood that he carried $3000 insurance.

SEED POTATO GROWING INDUSTRY

Steps Which May Revolutionize Industry Considered at Fredericton Meeting.

Fredericton, Aug. 15.—Steps which revolutionize the certified seed growing industry in New Brunswick are being discussed by a gathering of leaders in the potato trade at the second annual provincial potato field day at the Dominion Experimental Station here to-day.

New Brunswick had 3,135 acres of seed potatoes entered last year with 1,248 passing the final inspection and reports show that there are 2,784 entered this year; these figures place New Brunswick in the front rank of the provinces of Canada in this certified seed growing industry and show great possibilities for future.

In addition to growers many prominent dealers and shippers from the potato belt were gathered this morning together with officials of the Fredericton and Provincial Department of Agriculture and buyers from potato growing districts of the United States, including New York and West Virginia. A new Brunswick Certified Seed Growers Association was expected to be one of the results of today's conference.

SUMMER SCHOOL CLOSED FRIDAY

Campbellton Lady Heads List in Honors—Others Do Good Work.

Sackville, Aug. 11.—The closing exercises of the "Summer" School of Method for Sunday School workers, which has been in session here for several weeks, were held in the Sackville Hall, Friday evening, and proved of an interesting nature. Rev. H. S. B. Brotherton, conducted the devotional service, which was followed by a report on the progress of the school. The report was given by Miss M. J. McMillan, who was in charge of the school. She stated that the school had been very successful, and that the workers had gained much from the course. The exercises were closed by a song and a prayer.

MUST CUT BURNED TIMBER THIS YEAR

Hon. C. W. Robinson Says Burned Lumber Must Be Saved.

Fredericton, Aug. 13.—The water in the river is unusually low for the time of year, and it is still receding. The largest run of salmon in several years is now on. Friday night at 10 o'clock, the water was out of the river, and the fish were being taken in large numbers. The fishermen are very busy, and the catch is expected to be very large. The water is expected to rise again in a few days, and the fishing will continue.

MORRISSEY BRIDGE REPAIRS STARTED

Chief Engineer Wetmore Says Traffic Will Be Resumed in a Few Weeks.

Fredericton, Aug. 17.—Resumption of traffic over the Morrissey bridge at Newcastle, which was severely damaged when struck by the Norwegian steamer Woldingham on Friday of last week, throwing the draw span in the air, is expected within a few weeks, according to Chief Engineer A. E. Wetmore, of the Department of Public Works, who has returned from making an examination of the damage sustained. Mr. Wetmore said this morning that the damage to the steel superstructure was not as great as last year, when the bridge sustained heavy damage from a similar accident. The damage to the crib-work under the bridge, however, is more serious, and it will be some time before the bridge can be opened to traffic. Repairs which are being commenced this week are expected to be sufficiently advanced within the next few weeks to permit the resumption of traffic over the draw span.

Dover, England, Aug. 13.—Enrique Tirabocchi, Argentine swimmer, landed here at 12:33 o'clock Sunday afternoon after swimming the English Channel from Cape Grima, France, in the record time of 16 hours and 33 minutes. After 18 hours and ten minutes in the water, Chas. Tob, of Boston, Mass., abandoned his attempt to swim the Channel at 6:45 o'clock Sunday morning. He was within two and a half miles from the English coast when he gave up. With fortunate turns in the tide, Tirabocchi took nine hours less for his journey from the French side to Dover than Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., required last week to traverse the route in the opposite direction. The Argentine swimmer also cut five hours and 12 minutes off the record set in the 70's by the first man to swim the channel, Captain Webb, an Englishman, who later lost his life trying to negotiate the rapids at Niagara Falls.

FACE APPEARS ON CHURCH WALL

Phenomenon Is Attracting Hundreds of English and American Visitors.

London, August 9.—The face of Dean Liddell, who died more than 25 years ago has appeared on the east wall of Christ Church Cathedral at Oxford according to the Daily Express. The mortar and cement in the wall are drying with age in such a way as to leave a white patch of cement the size of a man's head, standing out from the darker color of the wall. This patch has assumed the exact features of the famous dean. The face appears in profile. The chin, nose and the head, with a bald crown, and to carry white hair below the face. The face is clearly formed. The head faces his wife's tablet, which is engraved in Latin "Farewell, Sweetest and Dearest, Farewell." Has Supernatural Significance. Two explanations are offered. The first is the natural one of coincidence. Those who hold this theory say that the face has been accidentally formed by damp stains. The second is that of supernatural significance offered by spiritualists. They declare that it was there by "thought impressions of some one in the other world, or in this. Constant mental concentration on the face of the dean, coupled with concentration on the memorial window that honors him, would cause such a phenomenon, they declare. Attracts Many Visitors. Hundreds of English and American visitors are flocking to Oxford to study the picture, while controversy rages in spiritualist circles. Dean Liddell was the father of the famous Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" was written. The plot of the story was thought out in the Dean's garden, only a few yards from the Cathedral.

At last mother earth has been rested by a down-pour of rain and everything is looking at its best.
Owing to the continued drought of the past two weeks the hay has not been much more than a quarter of a crop in most localities. Farmers were fearing for root crop and grain but the rain has encouraged them and they are hoping for better results.
We are pleased to report that the winter factory, which started operations here this spring, is progressing very satisfactorily. The farmers have responded to the call and notwithstanding that it is the first year of operations in this line of agriculture quite a lot of milk is being sent and butter is being made in large quantities and of especially good quality.

The term schooner "Favonia", Captain Harting, is at present lying at our wharf taking on cargo for C.
H. Nadeau of this place. The schooner is reported to be a very fine line model and accommodation for officers and men are of the best. They also carried three passengers Mr. Holman and son and Mr. Campbell, owner, all of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Herbert Baker and sister Miss Mildred, of Montreal, are visiting their vacation here, guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Camlot.

Dancing parties are the order of the day. The Church of England people entertained at a dancing party in the "Lodge" chaperoned by Mes-sieurs Camlot and Stewart and was entirely a success, specially well socially and was thoroughly enjoyed by
all. Then followed a dance on Friday given by the members of our local hockey team which was also a very successful affair. Both were attended by the best of the people and we are glad to report there was no evidence of liquor and consequently everything went very smoothly. One of the gentlemen guests who attend the dances bought and presented poppies to the ladies, in remembrance of the good time spent. All ended with three cheers for P. D. C. and three for the guests.

Miss Jean McPherson is at present spending a holiday with her parents here and enjoying a pleasant outing.
She returns to her duties at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on the 15th, inst.

The Rev. Mr. McCannan was here
on Friday night last and held services in the interest of the Quebec Bible Society. A well attended meeting was present at the church, collections were good and the officers were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Results of last year's work of New Carlie Academy have been received and all have passed with very few exceptions, which speaks well for the unfolding work of the principal, Mr. J.
H. McQuinn. Mr. McQuinn has again accepted the responsibility as principal of the academy for the ensuing year. We are glad to note that one of our best Daniel pupils, Miss Margaret McQuinn, is in order.

We are sorry to report the death of Mr. Russell Almond, second son of Mr. Gavin Almond of Sackville. He was taken ill at his home sometime ago with severe intestinal trouble.
Dr. Morel attended him and ordered him to Royal Victoria Hospital, where he was attended by the skillful doctors there, but skill and loving attention were of no avail in his case.
He passed away on Saturday night in Montreal. His body arrived at his home on Monday, for interment to take place on Thursday afternoon. Very few friends were present at the funeral services for the deceased.

The Great Western Stampede

CLATTERING hooves of the cow-boys, nodding head-dresses of the Indians with their stolid squaws and families, cow outfit, real old-time chuck wagons and other figures of the last great west, led the modern motor about the streets of Calgary, during the great stampede. Cow-boys and cow-girls, dressed in all the bright colors which their predessors wore in the early eighties—these were the prominent notes in the great symphony of color.
Calgary took on the appearance of frontier days with hitching posts along the main streets and the old cow-boys ponies stood in front of the skyscrappers of the modern city.
In the great parade in which several thousand participated, Mayor Webster struck the keynote in his wonderful leather chaps, blue silk shirt, pink handkerchief and huge Stetson hat. The stimulating contrast of the new and the old was evident in the rear of the big airplane overhead while the pioneers' and old-timers section of the parade, vehicular Red-river carts, original Hudson's Bay reindeer skin robes, and the old-time prairie schooner, complete with trailer. The store in the ancient wagon
was going full blast and all the housewifery requirements were there. On the trailer were a load of ducks and geese, some spare firewood and tied behind, walked a white goat and a cow. The Sarcos, Blackfoot and Stoney Indians, resplendent in all
their feathers and war-paint, headed garments and smoke tails, were everywhere in evidence. Clerks
in gaudy-colored shirts, telephone operators as cow-
girls, cow-boy sports, cow-boy yells, bucking horses,
made a week famous in the annals of sport in the world.
Back about 1905, Alberta cow-boys visiting Calgary, gave up the practice of hitching their ponies on the eighth avenue but during stampede week, the chuck wagons were parked in front of modern retail buildings, horses were tied in front of dignified banks—the cow-boy literally "pitched camp on the main drag." To add to the great wild west picture was to see "Tony," a black pony ridden by a typical westerner, make his way through a cafile or to see Mrs.
Duck Thief making her way to Eighth avenue, just

out. The tapes poles crossed over her horse, dragging behind and the family followed, quite comfortable except for the car track crossings.
The buffalo barbecue was a new interest to the present generation, even if old-timers were quite at home in enjoying their buffalo sandwiches. Five buffalo were obtained from the Watnwright herd and the committee served over twelve thousand sandwiches and virgin beer.

They were driven by the men of 1905, 1870 and 1880 and drawn in many instances, by venerable hags that looked as if they too, had survived the days of the rutted prairie trails to walk through in the days of the great west.
There was the real old-time prairie schooner, complete with trailer. The store in the ancient wagon
was going full blast and all the housewifery requirements were there. On the trailer were a load of ducks and geese, some spare firewood and tied behind, walked a white goat and a cow. The Sarcos, Blackfoot and Stoney Indians, resplendent in all
their feathers and war-paint, headed garments and
smoke tails, were everywhere in evidence. Clerks
in gaudy-colored shirts, telephone operators as cow-
girls, cow-boy sports, cow-boy yells, bucking horses,
made a week famous in the annals of sport in the
world.

GIRL HEARS FOR FIRST TIME WHEN SHE DONS RADIO GEAR

New York, Aug. 11.—Harriet Hall, 10, who lives in Newark, had never heard a sound in her life and for the last six years has been going to the Bruce Street Lip Reading School to try to learn how to tell what people are saying without being able to hear them. But this was a difficult process. Last week she went to visit her uncle's house, John H. Hall, when she got to her uncle's house he was giving a concert over his powerful new radio set. The next number on the program was a soprano solo by Miss Louise W. Planché. As she started singing Harriet, fully placed the two handpieces on the girl's ears. The girl screamed and threw them to the floor. Her uncle induced her to try it again, and after a time she became fascinated by the sounds that came to her, although she was unable to distinguish words from music.

EARTHQUAKE IS FELT IN QUEBEC

Belle St. Paul, Que., Aug. 13.—A sensation was created in this town and the surrounding district lying east of Cape Tourmente, and extending for several miles east by a slight earthquake over the week end. The residents of this section of the province have from time to time been accustomed to light manifestations, but for the last four years there have been no earth tremors reported. The tremor lasted for five or six seconds and in some sections the houses were immediately left by their occupants. Fear was entertained that some of the houses would crumble and the old church seemed greatly affected.

It Works From Both Ends

A local merchant upon whom we called recently gave us a first class talk upon "buying at home." We certainly agreed with him in all he said, and more too. The Graphic has always preached this doctrine, and lived up to it.

But what of our local merchants? A genial solicitor for wrapping paper, paper bags, etc., had induced him to order his counter check books from him, "just to make up a good sized freight shipment."

Our local merchant clean forgot that our local printers could supply these counter check books at the same price. He sent out of town for them.

But it's a poor rule that won't work both ways.

THE DEAD END.

The Dead End is the title of the New York Evening World of Monday gave to an editorial on the Maritime Provinces.

The article is short enough to read and is short enough to read and is short enough to read.

It is a melancholy and perverse fact that the two Maritime Provinces are the "dead end" of Canada.

Blessed with a mild climate, thanks to the benevolent Gulf Stream, possessing fertile soil and inhabited by a people descended largely from the best of the Colonial stock, both have languished ever since they joined the Canadian Federation.

Why this should be is hard to explain.

Nova Scotia claims that the Ottawa government is remote and unsympathetic. The huge shoulder of Maine obtrudes between the provinces and the rest of their sisters.

Their wishes cut no figure in Canadian councils, dominated as these are by Ontario.

Disassociated, they believe they would prosper—or more probably turn to affliction with the United States.

Admittedly, Maritime Province conditions to-day are unsatisfactory. Where are they satisfactory? Admittedly, conditions will not rapidly get better, here, elsewhere.

Considering their future, the Maritime Provinces cannot blind their eyes to the fact that if they are the dead end of the Canadian confederacy, Maine is the dead end of the American Union, even with Boston as its true capital.

Are conditions in Maine much better than conditions either in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia? An exodus from Maine is one of the many problems of its rulers.

Maine does not offer evidence of growth and prosperity sufficiently alluring to create a Maritime belief that the dead end of Canada would become the live end of the United States merely by joining the Union.

Neither is there reason for inferring that the views of Maine cut a greater figure in national councils of the United States than the views of the Maritimes cut in Canadian affairs.

Would not Maine enjoy more rapid growth and greater prosperity as a province of Canada, with Montreal as its true capital? Is not such prosperity as it enjoys today in a very large measure the result of its proximity to Canada and of the failure of Canadian statesmen and Canadian men of business to remember that the Maritime Provinces are a part of Canada?

ROAD MAKERS.

The condition of the highways or the Province should be a matter of great interest to every citizen. Even though we may all enjoy the delight of rolling along these roads in auto or carriage, yet we know that the roads form a true asset to the life of the community.

New Brunswick by the improvement of its main thoroughfares in recent years has greatly added to its resources, and any endeavor to aid in the good work should have our support. It must be recognized that with all that has been done there is yet room for improvement, and if in some way a sense of individual responsibility for the upkeep of our roads could be impressed upon every citizen it would be a great gain.

It is one of the barriers in the way of progress today that we have the habit of looking for governments to do a great many things which should be done by the individual and our road policy is such that we expect the government to do it all. But why should we not take enough interest in our highways to occasionally lift a hand.

In the cities, if a sidewalk becomes covered with ash or snow, or is obstructed in any way, the owner of the property in front of which the sidewalk runs feels it to be a duty to take broom or shovel and engage in some manual exercise. But on the same principle surely out through the country the property owner in front of whose land the highway runs might occasionally remove a stone or two, or fill in a cavity, or remove a barrier.

We are not suggesting that responsibility be transferred from government to private owner, but only that we take enough interest in our highways to aid just a little in a practical way in their upkeep. There are many cases where a few moments' work with a crow bar, a shovel or a pick would have saved many dollars to the owner of a conveyance. It might not be out of place to suggest that owners of automobiles who travel much over certain pieces of road which need slight repair might occasionally place a shovel in the back seat and spend a few moments in physical exercise, without the loss of any dignity.

All over the country there are spots where the work of a very few moments on the road would make a great change in conditions.

MANY WISH TO COME TO CANADA

Police Summoned to Deal With Harvesters At South Hampton.

London, Aug. 13.—A desperate struggle to secure berths on the liner Pittsburgh sailing from Southampton and calling at Halifax was made by the last batch of would-be Canadian harvesters. They had failed to get away from other ports and were determined to sail from Southampton.

The last boat train arriving at that port became an almost frenzied mob when they reached the dock. They surged against the barriers until the latter gave way. Extra police were summoned and then they began a struggle between the men who were bound to get to Canada at any risk, and the police. The struggle lasted an hour, but nobody was seriously injured.

A number of prospective harvest hands were left behind notwithstanding their expressed determination to get aboard the ship and their equally determined attempt to do so. However, they will be taken aboard Wednesday. In the meantime they are being provided with temporary lodgings.

On the other day a little man about ten years of age brushed a banana peel from the sidewalk into the gutter. He was a road maker. And in city and country we can show the same spirit. Be a road maker!—Ex.

Hon. Arthur Meighen left New Brunswick on Saturday night on his return to Ottawa after spending some four weeks in the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Meighen sought to combine pleasure and politics during his sojourn in the East. As a summer visitor to the Maritimes, the Conservative chief minister doubtless found much enjoyment in their delightful scenery and cooling sea breezes; but, as a politician, there are no indications that he found the prospects pleasing.

In fact, in the constituency of Cape Breton North and Victoria, where Mr. Meighen made strenuous efforts to defeat the King government candidate, the electors, while friendly to tourists, emphatically informed the Tory leader that they had no desire to assist him in his attempt to return to power at Ottawa.—Transcript.

FUNNY, ISN'T IT?

"Isn't it funny? That a man who thinks he is a business man will get up in the morning from a newspaper advertised razor, and put on advertised shoes, seat himself at the table and eat advertised breakfast food, drink advertised coffee, put on an advertised hat, light an advertised cigarette, ride to his place of business in an advertised car, seat himself in an advertised desk, in an advertised chair, then turn down a newspaper advertisement solicitor on the grounds that advertising does not pay."

SEVERE STORM HITS QUEBEC

Lightning Causes Outbreak Of Forest Fires At Little Cascapedia.

Quebec, Aug. 11.—The violent storm which reached Quebec early this morning was responsible for an outbreak of fire in the forests along the Little Cascapedia River. During the storm lightning struck a number of trees which caught fire and while it rained heavily for some time the downpour was not sufficient to quell the outbreak and today it had assumed serious proportions.

At Petit's Bergeron's the fire was reported under control, but at Little Cascapedia and Estevanville the situation is said to be critical. The heavy rain which fell last night and this morning in some districts helped a great deal, but in no district was it sufficient to completely extinguish the fires.

Here and There

A discovery of excellent ocher (raw sienna) was recently made near Billingsville Station on the Dominion Atlantic Railway. The ocher is uniform throughout, with very little gritty matter in the main body. The material is being used to produce a variety of colors from reddish brown to black. Prospecting is still going on.

Canadian Pacific S.S. "Metagama" westbound from Glasgow via Belfast, recently docked at Montreal and Quebec, with the record number of 382 cabin and 1,078 third class passengers. This constituted a record only for ships of the size and type of the "Metagama" the Canadian Pacific Empress liners often having a far larger list.

Canadian Pacific Railway officials estimated that 43,000 bushels of wheat would be required to harvest the entire crop this year. They expected to supply only 9,000 from the prairie provinces and British Columbia and made arrangements to carry over 50,000 from Ontario, Quebec and the east.

United States factories turn out chewing gum to the value of $41-000,000 annually. The extent to which this product is used in this country can be appreciated when it is known that at the Canadian Pacific Railway Station at Montreal, a man is continually employed in removing gum stains from the marble floor.

Despite the fact that the new Basilien at St. Anne de Beaupre is still in course of construction, many thousands more have visited the shrine this year than in former years, and at frequent intervals the Canadian Pacific Railway has been called upon to add special equipment to its regular train to accommodate the pilgrims. The Redemptorist Fathers are investigating a large number of cases claimed to be miraculous.

E. L. Richardson, manager of the Calgary Stampede of 1923, held under the patronage of the Prince of Wales and Governor-General Byng, announces that, owing to the enormous success of the great rodeo July 9-14 it will be staged annually instead of at intervals of several years, as heretofore. The recent Stampede was attended by 137,800 people.

Only once in the history of Glasgow was the gold production record in 1922 exceeded, and that was in 1913, when the total output reached the peak of their yield.
During 1922, 1,200,000 ounces of gold were mined.

The value is set at $38,116,460, an increase of $7,777,777 over the 1921 figures. In 1920, 1,350,000 ounces of gold were mined and the value was $27,338,683.
Canada's trade is climbing ahead.
Total trade in the three months ending June was $482,544,438, an increase of $18,242,056 over the corresponding three months of last year. For June alone total trade was $172,720,215, an increase of $44,844,732 over last year. Domestic exports in the three months ending June were approximately $20,000,000 and imports approximately $21,000,000.

HEAVY LOSS AT NELSON MILL

Planing Mill and Large Quantity of Lumber at Nelson Destroyed.

Nelson, Aug. 9.—Damage estimated as high as $250,000 was done here today by a disastrous fire which originated in the planing mill of William Sullivan, Limited, and fanned by a hurricane, jumped the road, swept several buildings out of existence and destroyed from 5,000,000 to 9,000,000 feet of dressed lumber. At one stage of wind and fire the adjoining villages of Newlanville and Craigville appeared doomed to destruction, but a sudden change in the wind worked their salvation.

Fire fighters from Chatham and Newcastle, aided by streams from two powerful tugs, the Newcastle engine and a host of "frantically working" millmen proved practically helpless in the face of the gale. The men concentrated their efforts mainly and successfully upon saving the Big Sullivan mill. Last night the flames were still burning along a frontage of half a mile, but the worst of the danger was believed to be past. There is said to be about $80,000 insurance on the mill.

Among the buildings destroyed were: The Sullivan planing mill, offices, boarding house, and cook-house, a dwelling and two barns. One of the barns had taken fire earlier in the day but the flames had been extinguished. Only a few men will be thrown out of employment as the big lumber mill will continue to operate.

The fire originated in the Sullivan planing mill and is believed to have come from sparks from the chimney of the lumber mill, which were blown against it and fanned into a flame by the gale. The wind caused the flames to spread with amazing rapidity and a few minutes after the outbreak was discovered the big mill was a roaring mass of fire. Grave fears for the safety of the lumber mill slightly to leeward were entertained, but the hurricane, which had caused a confusion, proved to be an effective safeguard to the mill from which the fire was started, and it was saved, as was a large quantity of lumber piled on the wharf behind it, part of which was the property of W. Malcolm Mac-Kay, Limited, of St. John.

DO YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
That with keen business competition prevailing, most business men are prone to increase their business by increased advertising.

That they realize that the people over it to themselves and to their pocketbooks to read Advertisements.
That the thirty people read the advertising columns because it is a business proposition to do so. Advertise.
That advertised goods are best by test, they protect the buyer. Advertise.

That the merchant who builds his business by advertising, quality and service, is the successful business man of today. Advertise.
That the consistent advertiser always keeps clean, up-to-date stocks.
Advertise.
That if he had not lived up to his advertising and his business dealings
he would not be in business today.
Advertise.

That aggressive business men are insuring the soundness of their future growth by advertising.
That it pays to be known as a li ve business man, they are judged by their advertising.

ATTACKS BRITISH FOREIGN POLICY
Ramsay MacDonald Says Labor Party Determined to Make Change.

London, Aug. 10.—Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the Labor opposition in the House of Commons, says the Labor party is determined to change Great Britain's method of conducting business with other nations.
In an article in the New Leader Magazine he condemns what he stigmatizes as the bureaucracy of the British foreign office with its "queer men-talities."

Stockholm, July 21.—A Swedish archeologist has lately discovered an unusual number of relics that date back twenty to thirty centuries B. C., the latest find being a tomb and shrine of heathen worship of the Stone Age.
The tomb is estimated to be about 4,000 years old.
This tomb is situated in Lockaleager, Sweden, the most southerly province of Sweden, and until a short time ago it lay buried beneath ten feet of earth. But of late a large stone slab, it has a central chamber about ten feet by five. Around it is a circular pavement of slabs, from which radiate a number of curious walls marked by stones. A considerable quantity of human and animal bones were found, together with flint daggers and spear heads.
But the most interesting discovery was that of about 7,000 fragments of ornamented vases, which had been thickly strewn outside the tomb. The shattering of these vases probably took place, according to the archaeologists, in connection with heathen religious ceremonies. The shattering of the weapons indicate an advanced civilization.

The Locka-leager tomb is estimated to be about 4,000 years old, the Swedes have evidence that their country was inhabited at least 1,000 years before this tomb was built. A skeleton of that period, now on exhibition at Gothenburg, was found in an ancient oyster bed, many miles inland from the present coast, at a point from which the sea began receding during the Stone Age.

Chicken.
The minister and his bride were preparing to eat a bit at a luncheonette. They were busily engaged with the bill of fare when the waitress, who was a much calmed and perfected young miss, came up to take their order. Suddenly the young minister looked at the waitress, and said, "How is the chicken to-day?"
"Pretty good," said she, retorted,
"How are you?"

COST OF INSULIN HITS WELL-TO-DO

Wealthy and Very Poor in Favored Position—Self-
Treatment

London, Aug. 10.—Much discussion is going on in the London press regarding the proper use of insulin.
Thousands of diabetic patients cannot get the remedy at present, either because they are not rich enough or not poor enough. The rich can pay for service of a private doctor and the very poor can get free treatment in hospitals, but middle class diabetics are stunted of substance which is necessary to their lives.

It is not entirely a question of the cost of the substance but also of the expense of continued injections by a doctor. The effect of insulin are not permanent and patients may require lifetime treatment.
British researchers are attempting to produce insulin in a form in which it can be taken through mouth instead of by injections through skin. Nearly there is a demand that patients or their friends should be trained in the method of making injections.
Dr. Banting himself has the "testimony of a man who finds self-injection as easy as shaving." At the present time the Medical Research Council, which controls supply of insulin, will not let it be sold to any but qualified doctors and hospitals. The usual fee for a blood test is thirty shillings and, added to the cost of insulin and attendance, it is a serious thing for chronic diabetics.

OBITUARY

Daniel Adams.

The community was shocked as well as grieved to learn on Tuesday, Aug. 7th, of the sudden death of Mr. Daniel Adams, an aged and highly respected resident of Glenelg.

Mr. Adams was in usual health and was called upon the afternoon of Monday, Aug. 6th, to attend to a matter of business. About ten o'clock he went to repair a nearby fence and did not return at dinner hour. The family waited for him to return to dinner but when he did not arrive at the usual hour they grew uneasy and went in search and his body was found about three acres from his home.

Coroner Martin was immediately summoned and found death was due to heart failure.

Deceased was seventy years of age and was a faithful member and trustee of the Presbyterian Church as well as a willing helper in the Sabbath School. His wife, the late Mary Jane Pollock, predeceased him seventeen months ago.

Mr. Adams was well and favorably known and his demise will be keenly felt by a large circle of friends and relatives.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father, three sons, Robert of Tourville, P. Q. Wallace and Levi of Glenelg, and four daughters, Mrs. David Gilles of Bonnyville, P. Q., Mrs. J. P. Boudreau, Mrs. Augustus A. Thompson and Mrs. James P. Pollock of this place. Also an adopted grand-daughter, Rita MacDonald at home. He is also survived by thirty-nine grand children and three great grand children.

The funeral services held on Thursday afternoon were conducted at the church and grave by Rev. E. C. Salter, assisted by Rev. J. R. Miller of Piquish, N. S. Upwards of fifty wagons as well as a number of automobiles followed the remains to Flat Lands cemetery where interment was made.

The pall bearers were: Wallace Adams, Levi Adams, William Noble, Angus Noble, William Pollock and James Kierstead.

Much sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

Campbellton, N. B., August 16th, 1923

WHY NOT A FAIR?

At one time this summer it was hoped by a few citizens that Campbellton might hold some sort of celebration or fair here this autumn but judging from all visible signs there has been no definite move made to organize any event of this nature.

This is obviously a mistake. It is a lost opportunity.

All around us in towns and cities

there will be held within the next

months fairs, celebrations and exhibitions which bring in a host of people to these different centers and greatly stimulate the autumn trade. These events have been tried out year after year in many small towns and we cannot remember of an actual failure in any one case. There is no doubt but what a similar enterprise would benefit Campbellton equally as well.

Besides the greatly increased trade from the surrounding districts during the event there is the value of the enterprise from an advertising viewpoint. The idea has solid merits and deserves the consideration of every thoughtful citizen. If nothing can be done this year it means that we have

let one more chance to increase our business slip by, but if the undertaking should be considered feasible for this year, then let us start something at once. If, on the other hand there are intentions of holding another Hospital Fair, why not let everybody take a more active interest for the town's sake and make it a bigger and better event than ever.

A GOOD DOCTRINE.

The good doctrine passed along from one Canadian Board of Trade to another, that Canadian ports should get

Canadian trade, is attracting more and more attention, and there is an increasing prospect that shippers, east and west, in increasing numbers, will come to recognize the national importance of the movement. It is a noble selfish plan of the port cities.

It is a natural part of any sound national transportation policy. It is a principle recognized by both the Liberal and Conservative parties that our ports and railways should handle the highest possible proportion of Canadian trade, and but lately the government of the day granted an increase tariff advantage to British goods entering this country direct.

It should be possible through a chain of Boards of Trade spanning the Dominion to influence the shipping and railways by steadily pointing out that all-Canadian transportation

mean more money for the country and greater unity. In many cases the shipper gives little thought, if any,

to the route. In many cases he is unaware of the fact that he can get

as good or better results by specifying

in all-Canadian route than by neglecting that service to the country and to himself.

Discussion of this matter by business men throughout Canada through their various organizations will do much to impress upon many thousands, who now give it little thought,

the simple fact that as this country

grows, the importance of this movement will increase.

N.B. DEATH RATE

IS THE HIGHEST

This Province Has Heaviest and

British Columbia Lightest

In Canada

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—New Brunswick

has the heaviest infant mortality rate

and British Columbia the lightest, according to report upon Canadian vital statistics for January, 1923, issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The infant death rate, figured upon a basis of one thousand living births,

is recorded as follows:

Prince Edward Island 92.7

Nova Scotia 128.3

New Brunswick 142.4

Ontario 115.0

Manitoba 115.4

Saskatchewan 94.5

Alberta 97.5

British Columbia 72.9

The rate of infant mortality for

January, 1923, was higher than that reported for the same month in the three preceding years for which there are national records.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Alex. MacCurdy were served and the majority were children they had to scatter each other home in bands.

public attention more and more upon

this healthful policy will mean in turn

a growing recognition of the necessity for equipping the most useful ports

adequately to handle the business of the country. This is a matter in which the Local Board of Trade might lend very appreciable assistance. As an organization it is somewhat silent

Regina, Sask., Aug. 15.—Victor

Masson, French farmer of Dunas,

Sask., paid the supreme penalty for the murder of Jean Chouveau, Mrs.

Marie, last February at 4.30 this morning in the jail here.

The execution was carried out without a hitch and a few seconds after the bolt was pulled life was pronounced extinct.

The only remark made by the condemned man after he had mounted the scaffold was "bon jour". It was in the nature of a farewell to his spiritual adviser, Father Blanchus.

said that apples throughout the pro-

I am an Alredale terror and my name is Buddy.

I certainly thank you for your kindness as I am on a long trip

Another passenger on the "Empress of Asia," when she last sailed from Victoria, was little Annette

Bradish, who was making the long trip across the Pacific for the purpose of joining her parents, Adjutant and Mrs. J. Swanson, who are engaged on the missionary work of the Salvation Army at Yokohama.

Throughout the voyage Annette was the special charge of Purser

John Mori, who has, on more than one previous occasion, seen that little ones were safely delivered to their waiting parents and friends.

The little voyager soon made friends

with other of the lady passengers, and although she was very glad to see her parents again she found the journey far too short for her liking.

Years ago the idea of sending a child on such a long journey alone

would not have been entertained for one moment by its guardians, but youngsters can now travel around the world in perfect safety alone, and many, particularly European settlers, find it very convenient to first

make sure of the position and standing after immigration, and then have their children brought to them by, and under the very sure care and protection of the Canadian Pacific. On her last voyage the

"Montcalm" brought six children from the old land to friends on this side of the Pacific.

OBITUARY.
Daniel Adams.
The community was shocked as well as grieved to learn on Tuesday, August 14th, of the sudden death of Mr. Daniel Adams, an aged and highly respected resident of Glenelg.

Mr. Adams was in usual health and ate his breakfast as usual that morning. About ten o'clock he went to repair a nearby fence and did not return at dinner hour. The family waited for him to return to dinner but when he did not arrive at the usual hour they grew uneasy and went in search and his body was found about three acres from his home. Coroner Martin was immediately summoned and found death was due to heart failure. Deceased was seventy years of age and was a faithful member and trustee of the Presbyterian Church as well as a willing helper in the Sabbath School. His wife, the late Mary Jane Pollock, predeceased him seventeen months ago. Mr. Adams was well and favorably known and his demise will be keenly felt by a large circle of friends and relatives.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father, three sons, Robert of Yerville, F. Q. Wallace and Levi of Glenelg, and four daughters, Mrs. David Gilles of Runnymede, P. Q., Mrs. J. P. Boudreau, Mrs. Augustus A. Thompson and Mrs. James F. Pollock of this place. Also an adopted grand-daughter, Rena MacDonald at home. He is also survived by thirty-nine grand children and three great grand children.

The funeral services held on Thursday afternoon were conducted at the church and grave by Rev. B. C. Salter, assisted by Rev. J. R. Miller of Pictou, N. S. Upwards of fifty wagons as well as a number of automobiles followed the remains to Flat Lands cemetery where interment was made.

The pall bearers were: Wallace Adams, Levi Adams, William Noble, Angus Noble, William Pollock and James Kierstead.

Much sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

WHEN THE ALARM RINGS.
A word of warning to car drivers who seem bent on getting to fires before the brigade would seem to be in order. Nearly every time a fire alarm is rung in a large number of cars start racing to the scene of the alarm. Purchasers work of the fire department but are also endangering their own lives and the lives of others. According to current sense the fire brigades and their apparatus should have the right of way when a fire breaks out and those who persist in letting their curiosity get them in the way should be taught a lesson. A similar offense is that of motorists crowding in around a fire. It is to their own interests to have the firemen do their best work when a fire is in progress but they cannot do this if they are not allowed sufficient room.

Of Interest to Women

Women Get Some Advice As To Their Ambitions in Athletics

(Charles D. Wardlaw, Instructor in Athletics at Columbia University, in N. Y. Sun.)

That women have made remarkable progress in all branches of athletic sports during the last ten years is well known to every one. Whereas in 1913 the girl who was proficient in basketball, baseball, hockey, golf, tennis or track was the exception, now, in 1923, she who cannot take part in at least one of these sports misses much of the modern girl's opportunity for happiness.

The question is "Why should woman be so much interested in athletics and what are the best sports for developing her to live a full and natural life? Should her training be only physically constructive and hygienic, or should she be permitted to indulge in all sports to the limit of her endurance and desire?" The whole sisterhood of physical educators, and the brotherhood, too, have been earnestly discussing this problem since the last Olympic games. There are extremists, some in Boston and others in California; but there are many "open minded conservatives." I may call them, who, living and teaching somewhere in between, have a saner middle view.

There is no avoiding the truth that motherhood is "the first day of woman"; but we must not lose sight of the fact that under modern conditions, which involve small families, it occupies a period of a very few years in the cycle of a woman's life. There is a long stretch of time both before and after that can be devoted to activities other than the bearing of children. We cannot claim, as some would, that only those exercises, recreational or corrective, which develop the woman for this function should form a part of her bodily training. True, in her earlier years this should be the governing and controlling factor. As a safety valve, regulates steam pressure so should the thought of the adolescent girl be, "Will this particular sport prove detrimental to my maternal years?" and when the safety valve of her common sense functions she should obey its direction. Since unfortunately, few girls think of this, it remains for the physical educator to plan what her exercise should include. There may be a long period after motherhood when recreation and health is the aim and at this time the only question she need ask is, "Will this exercise be too severe a strain upon me?"

Considering all this, we may well inquire, "To what extent should women indulge in athletic pursuits?" With sane thinking the reply will come, "To such an extent that the amount of coal used to warm them will be provided and healthful living assured."

If a pan of popcorn is shaken the large fluffy kernels come to the top, the smaller and unpopped grains lie lower down in the pan, but the best ones serve as an incentive to the shaker to bring the poorer ones up to a more desirable form. So in the great field of athletics there are women whose ability brings them to the surface and to universal recognition. They are the incentive to encourage those who have been less fortunate in their progress. If physically so formed that they can stand the more severe training they should be permitted to

Eride Playing

Piker Game

If standards of living continue to rise as they have risen in the past, we may expect an age of idleness. A home economics expert declares that forty per cent. of the yearly salary of a young married man is necessary to furnish a home comfortably, according to modern ideals. At the present time, eight of every ten couples beginning married life furnish their home wholly or partially on the part-payment plan.

The part-payment plan is not to be condemned on this account. On the contrary, it is to be commended, for without it, marriage would have entirely disappeared from our social life. The road to matrimony is paved with easy instalments, and the instalment salesman is the very god of love. Marriages are not made in heaven; they are made in the furniture department. Here is a piece of sound advice for all unmarried young men: Never meet the instalment man and you will never have to meet the instalments.

And Then the Awakening.
The question is, how long will this state of things continue? At the present time, it is still possible for a young man to be dazzled into matrimony, and to awake to realities only at the mournful sound of the electric set descending the stairs under the rude urgency of the instalment delivery man. He discovers himself to be part owner of any number of things, from which he may be separated at any moment, and complete owner of a young woman from whom he cannot be separated so long as they both live. And long, long, before he has completed payments on a piece of platinum engagement ring with basket setting, he finds himself in a long struggle with a creditor. Enslaved by a part of his home belongs to himself, and the rest (with powers of seizure) belongs to a cynical stranger down town.

Then there are the sole conditions upon which matrimony is possible for eight out of every ten young men. For there are few modern girls so besotted with love as to be willing to accept marriage without a checkered set, a refectory table, a victrola, a floor lamp and a set of andirons. These must be supplied before married life can begin, and there are very few young men who after having bought shrouded bouquets of opelia roses and attended at a polo gigante cause for each of the ushers and tickets for Buffalo and points west, having recompensed the minister and tipped porters and ordered taxi, pay hotel bills—there are very few young men who having involved themselves in this expensive merely as a preliminary to matrimony, are still in a position to furnish a home in the style to which all the bride's friends are accustomed, cash down.

The time is coming when these young men will revolt. And when they do, one two three four five six seven eight nine ten eleven twelve thirteen fourteen fifteen sixteen seventeen eighteen nineteen twenty one twenty two twenty three twenty four twenty five twenty six twenty seven twenty eight twenty nine thirty one thirty two thirty three thirty four thirty five thirty six thirty seven thirty eight thirty nine forty one forty two forty three forty four forty five forty six forty seven forty eight forty nine fifty one fifty two fifty three fifty four fifty five fifty six fifty seven fifty eight fifty nine sixty one sixty two sixty three sixty four sixty five sixty six sixty seven sixty eight sixty nine seventy one seventy two seventy three seventy four seventy five seventy six seventy seven seventy eight seventy nine eighty one eighty two eighty three eighty four eighty five eighty six eighty seven eighty eight eighty nine ninety one ninety two ninety three ninety four ninety five ninety six ninety seven ninety eight ninety nine one hundred.

No More Exemption.
There is really no reason why the bride should claim exemption from all the taxes involved in matrimony. In the old days she provided a dowry, and the dowry did its part in furnishing the new home. Today try their skill in new competition. But the limit of their activity should be such sports as are beneficial to womanhood. At best the expense in sport can be comparatively few, for though the great, mass immediately below may have produced satisfactory results the majority are not so physically constituted that they can absolutely excel.

Women as well as men should be permitted to develop skill in that which they undertake, but they should never forget that what is undertaken by them should not necessarily be in emulation of man's physical activities, that is, the development of large muscle or the ability to stand long protracted physical strain. These are not necessary either for the function of motherhood or for recreation. Therefore those activities which lead to this purely masculine development should be barred at least to the adolescent girl.

Hiking, dancing, golf, tennis, swimming, basketball, baseball with an indoor ball, soccer, hockey, fencing and modified track and field sports are all valuable. Modern girls do these things and do them well; but wrestling, boxing, putting the shot, pole vaulting, tugs of war and the like were never meant for women. It is a ridiculous thing for a track and field committee, promoting a women's field day to bar the high jump, the low hurdles or the discus throw from their meet; but it is a vicious thing for them to permit running three or four heats in the fifty yard dash, two or three heats in the one hundred yard dash and relay racing all in one afternoon. Yet this occurred in a big meet in the Metropolitan district only last fall.

If women would learn to control these matters in a sane, moderate way, not permitting themselves to be led to extremes in either direction by the twaddle of the faddist and the publicity seekers on the one hand and the ultra conservatives on the other, they would have no difficulty to have for them the gifts that God can give, the ability to recreate and to live healthfully, by the two achieving the purpose for which they were made, and appreciating to the full the joy of healthful living.

Why Do Babies Cry?

Most young animals are endowed at birth with certain natural means of defence against the hardships of the world into which they have been launched. A hungry lamb can run towards the mother ewe when it needs milk. A puppy which falls into his food trough can clamber out again and shake the wolf from his paws. A kitten can curl up and go to sleep when it feels tired, for its mother will never keep it awake by too many attentions. But a baby has only one means of expressing his wants—the cries.

He cries when he is hungry, hot, cold or wet. He cries if his clothes are too tight or if a pin is sticking into him. He cries if he is tired of lying in one position or if he is sleepy. Finally, and most of all, he cries when he is in pain.

Some mothers only resent the suggestion that "ideal" knowledge can teach them more than they have learned from experience and maternal instinct with regard to their babies' cries. One can almost hear the indignant protest:

"Cry: If course I know what he wants when he cries. Haven't I brought up six before him?"

Nevertheless it is a good sign that the majority of modern mothers do wish to learn more about the health of their babies.

Mistakes in feeding are a frequent cause of crying. An undernourished child sleeps badly and whimpers continually. He cries in his cradle until put to the breast; he cries during the feed because he is not getting as much as he needs and he cries after because he is still hungry. An overfed child cries after a meal because he is suffering from indigestion or colic. His cries are not continual but come by fits and starts.

Feeding is often a cause of crying, but a cause that is easy to detect. The child will dribble, the gums will swell, the teeth will begin to appear, and the trouble will pass.

Babies a few months old sometimes cry loudly and continually without any apparent reason and are very difficult to calm. If no other reason can be attributed to the cries it is possible, though not necessarily always true, that the cause may be inherited disease and the doctor should be consulted. Syphilitic babies often cry persistently. Irritable crying may also be a symptom of scurvy, which does not generally show itself until about the eighth month from the birth of the child. In an inert condition but will cry on being handled as this is painful to him. A sleepy or uncomfortable baby will cry fretfully, but the cries usually cease when he is made comfortable or put to rest.

The cry of a baby in pain according to the cause. If the pain is intermittent the cry will also be intermittent. The cry will be loud and loud, with tears in the eyes. (If the baby is more than four months old) and clenching of fists. The very ill baby does not cry loudly. There is no weeping or wailing, with sometimes a turning of the head from side to side. Mentally-deficient babies, of course, behave quite differently from normal ones, and often do not cry at all when in pain.

Moderate crying is natural in young babies but a well-trained baby will not cry for long without some reason, and the mother should learn to recognize the nature of his cry. If he has been put down to "temper" or ordinary mischievousness until other possible causes have been investigated. Babies who have been spoiled by being taken up as soon as they cry or by being fed between their correct meal times because they have cried for it, naturally develop into small tyrants and will scream lustily if their caprices are for once neglected. But if good habits have been taught from the first, no baby will give trouble in this way.

It is not natural for a baby to cry long and often and if he does it must be regarded as of sufficient importance to report to the doctor or nurse. It may be just the indication which they need to help them to discover some baby ailment.

she is satisfied to supply the sheets and pillow cases as her share of the bargain, and to leave the groom-elect and the instalment man to work the rest out between them. This is manifestly unfair, and it is a situation that is rapidly becoming impossible. The bride of (tomorrow) will surely be a dream of an accordeon player georgette negligee trimmed with elvish in favor of a refrigerator, and will hold her trousers test around the four-ring gas range which represents four sets of hand-sewn underwear.

There is no reason, indeed, why the bride should not pay her half in the matter of the engagement ring. After all, the groom is engaged to the bride just as much as the bride is engaged to the groom, and the ring is a symbol between them. And it is a very unreasonable arrangement that the bride should wear the ring the rest of her life, while the groom is compelled to pay for it all the rest of his life. No, the marriage game, as the bride has played it in the past has been a piker's game. She has evaded all the financial responsibilities and has been content with making the groom a compliant gift of herself. And meantime the expense of inflicting hand and foot on the groom has been becoming daily more insupportable. It is time that the brides take a hand.

DEAD FOR 3 MINUTES,

ONTARIO MAN

BROUGHT BACK TO LIFE

London, Ont., Aug. 10.—Some days ago, a London man, 65 years of age, died of shock on the operating table at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was being treated by Dr. Percy Banghart, for an advanced condition of cancer.

For three minutes his heart and lungs ceased to function and to all expectation knowledge he was dead.

Dr. Banghart injected a strong solution of adrenalin directly into the man's heart, and within a few minutes he revived, emerging even from the anaesthetic. The operation was completed without anaesthetic and today the man is taking nourishment and in a satisfactory condition.

Others have been revived with adrenalin in London hospitals, but in all previous cases life was prolonged only a few hours.

What's In a Name?
An English motorist was stopped by a policeman on account of poor lights.

"I'll have to take your name, sir," "John Smith," was the reply.

"Don't try that on me, sir," warned the man in blue. "I want your proper name and address."

"Then if you must have it, it's William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon."

"Thank you, sir," said the policeman, jotting it down. "Sorry to have troubled you."

"Don't mention it," said the motorist, driving on.

"There," he said, "my pal told me to put a bob on this horse. Thanks, so you and children passed through here on Sunday enroute to Carleton, P. Q."

GUIDES SET NO FOREST FIRES

Game Clubs in New Brunswick Set Record for Forest Protection.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—The private fish and game clubs of Quebec and New Brunswick set a record in forest fire prevention that may prove an object lesson to other sections of the woods, according to the Canadian Forestry Association.

Scarcely one fire in either province is attributable to the professional guides and the thousands of experienced sportsmen who are members of these organizations. The right club rules and additional carelessness of guides and members with all forms of fires while in or near a forest has proved most effective.

On the other hand, the fires set by amateur fishermen and campers this year have been numerous and destructive. Camp fires, unattended, lighted cigarettes, thrown into piles of leaves and other forms of reckless conduct have destroyed hundreds of square miles of the finest forest areas in Eastern Canada.

In a recent interview Dr. C. D. Howe, President of the Canadian Forestry Association, said: "We Canadians are spending less than a cent an acre as an insurance rate on forest fires than the United States. We are willing to invest more money in it."

WHEN USING WILSON'S FLY PADS

There is only one way to kill all the Flies

This is it—Darken the room as much as possible, close the windows, raise one of the blinds where the sun shines in, about eight inches, place as many Wilson's Fly Pads as possible on plates (properly wetted with water but not flooded) on the windows ledge where the light is strong, leave the room closed for two or three hours, then sweep up the flies and burn them. See illustration below.

Put the plates away one of the sun of children until required in another room.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SILVER DAGGER

RANDALL PARRISH

AUTHOR OF THE STRANGE CASE OF CAVENDISH

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—A New York heavy stone, Philip Seven, United States agent, receives a small box which he opens. He finds a silver dagger, a small compartment containing a key to a revolutionary movement in this country seeking to overthrow the Chinese government. The writing mentions a rendezvous, and Seven decides to investigate.

Here was a strange coincidence; if nothing more, for Gustave Alva had been one of the names signed on the letter. Beyond doubt, the dagger, abandoned from foundry was his property, and what better spot could be selected in which to meet and conduct a scheme of crime? What a place to hide arms for shipment! Whatever else it may have felt regarding my venture vanished in the presence of that unusual man. This was unquestionably the place named in the letter as a rendezvous; here was where the recipient of that letter was to go and receive instructions; where he was to use the mysterious rapier, and the conspirator "Cavendish" in order to gain admittance. The knowledge that I was actually upon the threshold of such a discovery brought with it a determination not to lose the advantage. But what could I do? What further steps might be safely taken alone?

The night was dark, a slight drizzle in the air, no one above except from necessity. No sign of life was visible for the full extent of the block, until the saloon on the further corner came into view. Its glowing hospitality invited me, and I strode along the opposite walk, my coat collar turned up to shut out the drizzle, and feeling crossed over to where I could peer in through the dingy windows.

The man behind the bar was unmistakably Polish, and of no high type, and at first I saw no other occupants of the place except two roughly dressed men at a table, just inside, who were playing cards silently. The room was clean enough, and quiet, yet I felt no inclination to enter. Those were not lusts it would be safe to question, and I would have turned away, but at that instant I perceived the indistinct figure of a young woman in the further corner, sitting beside a table alone.

Her presence stimulated my curiosity. She appeared to be young, not badly dressed, and her figure in such a place unattended rendered her of some interest. It surely could do harm if I dropped in for a sandwich and a glass of beer. I crossed to the bar, furtively watching, but no one except the proprietor apparently paid the slightest attention to my entrance. The two men never glanced up from their cards, and the girl—for she was scarcely more—stirred her head and stared at me without interest. I spoke to the barman in English. We exchanged a few words—his own speech very broken—while he prepared the sandwich, and the only thing unusual I noticed was the passage of a slight signal between him and the woman across the room. I could not be sure even as to that, but gained the impression that he shook his head negatively, as though to negate some question.

Unless it might be the intense hermetic blackness of hair and an extremely clean complexion, there was nothing typically Polish in her appearance. Indeed she impressed me as thoroughly American in features, dress and manner, somewhere in the twenties I should judge, with brown eyes, and a face decidedly pleasant to look upon, although, with a figure not at all exceptional, and dark hair, hardly, never seemed to stand out as an individual. However, somehow she drew my attention, and I found that that dainty salon—she did not in any sense belong. She was evidently, not there seeking company, for she was not drinking; and yet there must surely be some meaning to her presence.

The proprietor appeared to be leaning one hand on the table.

"There is nothing new," he asked, "is this will answer?"

He fingered, tempted to question me,

"You have not been in before? Perhaps you do not live near?"

"I do not," I replied frankly. "I travel out of Boston, and sell lumber. I have been doing some business with the yard down below."

"I see. You are not from New York, are you?"

"No, Boston has always been my home."

"Once I live there, too, when I first come north from Rye. What you think about this war?" We lapsed into silence.

"Oh, I don't know; he seems to be more than holding his own."

"Each, yes, but how this country go in, what then?"

I looked up quickly into his face, with a swift desire to test his own opinion.

"This country? Why should it go in? There are Germans enough over here to stop that."

"Not Germans—no. But international, revolutionaries. They are more than you think. 'Tis time for them to strike a great blow."

"You are Polish, are you not?"

"Yes, from Warsaw. I come over six years."

"Naturalized?"

"I have first papers—why you ask suspiciously."

"I merely questioned from curiosity. My eyes wandered once more to the girl across the room, and he noticed the glance.

"You wonder what she is doing here?" he asked. "I tell you. She was my niece, an old sister to wait for a friend to walk home with me all this, and ordered another glass of beer as an excuse to linger there a while longer. What was the party like who she came to call for the girl? I did not have to finger long to gratify my curiosity. The side door opened silently, and a man stepped briskly inside, shaking the raindrops from his coat as he greeted the barman cheerily.

"A dirty night, Jane," he said, glancing swiftly about, his eyes sweeping over me sharply. "Business not very good, I suppose?"

"Dead. It's no good now any more, with all the factories closing up because of the war. Just some saloons drop in for a beer. That makes no change."

The newcomer laughed, evidently put quite at ease by this quick explanation. I was watching him. A rather thick-set fellow with a turned-up mustache and a disfiguring scar on one cheek, which gave to his eyes a peculiar expression. Watching the fellow I must have missed some signal, for he whistled about suddenly and confronted the man who had stepped into the room and stood expectantly, one hand resting on the table.

assured that I had finally lulled every suspicion to rest and passed out through the front door.

The street was deserted and rain-swept, the few lights showing mere pin-points in the darkness. I plunged straight across the street, as though headed for the nearest car line, and then, in the shade of darkness, retraced my steps, passing the corner, until I attained the side entrance. Here, assured that I was safely beyond observation, I paused to gain some conception of my surroundings.

Across from where I stood appeared the dim outlines of a long, ramshackle building, apparently a shed of some kind, while beyond the saloon was a row of one-story dwelling houses, seemingly exactly alike, and exhibiting no evidence of being occupied.

In which direction had the couple turned after their exit through the side door of the saloon—to right, or left?

Jane had unconsciously pointed in this direction when he told of where the girl lived, and although that was doubtless a lie intended to deceive, it was no more than natural for him to have unconsciously designated the proper point of the compass.

I advanced cautiously, finding the narrow sidewalk one of boards, in very bad condition. It was only when I attained the end of this row of houses, and entered the entrance of a narrow, dark alley, that I found the slightest proof that I was, by good fortune, upon the right trail. It was above this opening that the incandescent bulb flickered dimly, yet, in spite of wind and rain, gave me glimpses of the mud underfoot. The two must have been the only ones passing that way since the drizzle began, for their footprints were yet visible in the soft mud of the crossing as they advanced beyond the safety of the board walk. By bending low, and keeping my own shadow out of the way, I was able to trace their progress for two or three yards quite easily, and then, to my surprise, the footprints turned abruptly to the left, and disappeared entirely.

To all appearance the two had proceeded down the alley, Black, unlit, unvisited, as that gloomy passage appeared, the mud must have turned into it and groped their way forward. Where? For what purpose? I could think of but one possibility—the Alva iron factory, the mysterious meeting place at 823 Gans street. Beyond all question this was the place where the two had met, and there would be an entrance at the rear.

Here I go on alone, unmarked as I was, knowing nothing of what I was to encounter? I hesitated, my heart beating like a trip-hammer, yet, after the danger seemed to have passed, I decided to go on. I was still young, and venturesome; the situation appealed to me—well, the memory of that girl's face remained strangely insistent. Odd as it may seem, her preoccupation, almost reckless desire to have an immediate hand in the game.

I found two footprints of her narrow shoe in the mud after the turn had been made, then all trace vanished. I crept forward, enveloped in a shadow, keeping as closely as possible to the high board fence at the left. The way was rough, unlit, and my progress consequently slow, being anxious to make as little noise as possible. The passage was so dark, I could not see as far as I had gone, and was only aroused to my position by finally finding myself against a pile of lumber which completely blocked the further end of the alley. I recalled dimly that the newcomer, having been coming along the side of the Alva factory, up to it reached Gans street. Then the place I sought to enter, behind the protection of this high fence, along which I had been so cautiously feeling my way.

The silence was profound, stupefying, uneasy. Against the lighter lead of the upper story I felt the abate to raise the upper story of the building, but it was all black, gloomy, deserted hole. Any fall, I might have had it at the two I had attempted to follow had come there vanished as I strained my eyes for some gleam of light, or any other sign to denote their presence. I still believed they had crept down the alley, but this was not

I cursed inwardly at the delay. Their goal, beyond doubt they had entered some gate along the way, and I had missed it entirely.

I hardly know what impelled me to grope my way back along the fence, feeling for a gate. Curiosity, no doubt, and a lingering desire to learn certain of what was inside the barrier. The entrance was found, a mere wooden door, held by an iron clasp, which opened instantly to my touch. I stepped inside, closing it quickly behind me, and stared uneasily through the enshrouding blackness.

ONE 50c BOX BROUGHT HEALTH

Years of Constipation Ended By "Fruit-a-lives"

The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

Anyone who suffers with miserable health; who is tortured with Headaches; and who is unable to get any real pleasure out of life, will be interested in this letter of Mrs. Martha de Wolfe of East Ship Harbor, N.S.

Mrs. de Wolfe says, "For years I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicine seemed to help me. Then I tried 'Fruit-a-lives' and the effect was splendid; and after taking only one box, I was completely relieved and now feel like a new person."

Weddings

McLEOD-HICKS. The quaint little church at Dalhousie Junction was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock when Annie Mildred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hicks, became the bride of A. Albert McLeod of Sydney, N. S.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. E. J. Shaw of Dalhousie, took place under a many-colored arch of wild flowers.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Longhorn's wedding march played by Miss Mattie Cook of Dalhousie and was charmingly attired in a wedding gown of white canton crepe trimmed with pearls. She wore a bridal veil and carried a bouquet of opelia roses and sweet peas. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Laura Dickie, who wore a gown of Nile green canton with black pleated skirt to match and carried a bouquet of carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Ian McKenzie, a cousin of the bride. Little Betty McDonald and Bertha Hicks made charming flower-girls.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home where Mr. and Mrs. Hicks assisted the bride and groom in receiving their friends. The beautifully decorated table was centered with the bride's cake which was a gift of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. H. Nelson.

The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch, to the bride a diamond ring, to the best man a fountain pen, to the flower girls, rings and to the organist, gold evergreen pencils.

The bride who was a popular young lady in her community was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts.

The happy couple left this morning for a honeymoon trip through the Maritime provinces. A host of friends were on hand to extend their best wishes.

The bride's going away costume was a navy blue travelling suit of velvet with hat to match and mink fur.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. McLeod join in wishing them a long and happy married life.
