Electric search lights on the ships of the squadron in the harbor have h electric lights and gay with flags and saips of the squadron in the harbor have been thrown across the city so as to illuminate the Castel Novo and the Castel Saint Elmo. An enormous crowd packed the square before the palace between 9 and 10 o'clock, while a chorus of 160 male voices sang a serenade. Shortly after 10 o'clock King Humbert, Queen Margherita, Emperor William and the Empress Augusta Victoria came out on the balcony and were chered for several minutes. Fireworks were sent up from the fort and the San Martino Monastery.

Plastered With Money. April 28 .- The poorhouse officials of the Parish of St. George-in-the-East, London, have informed American Consul-General New that they have had under their care since Dec. 17 last Mrs. Consul-General New that they have had under their care since Dec. 17 last Mrs. Mary Sinclair, aged 70 years. The police ound the woman wandering in the streets in an insane condition. At the time she was found she had in a pocketbook in her possession a draft for £500 on the Bank of England and the sum of $125 in American money, also three £5 votes, which were adhering to her back under a porous plaster. Previous to 1891 the woman had lived in New York for 40 years, where her husband separated from her two years ago, but sent her a quarterly allowance. The allowance known to have arrived was in September last, but it is thought that there are probably other similar allowances lying in the

EDWIN BOOTH.

The name of Edwin Booth, who Hess stricken with paralysis at the Players' Club, New York, is familiar from ocean to ocean. Mr. Booth's remarkable career has become historical. His genius is inherited from his father, Junius Brutus Booth, an actor well known on two continents. Edwin was born on the 13th of November, 1833, and that night was marked in the astronomical world by a great display of meteors. From infancy his surroundings tended to turn his thoughts toward the stage. It was at 15 that he made his appearance as Tressel, a messenger in Richard III. Earlier, he had been the constant companion of his father's travels and a close student of his art. His first leading character was as Richard III., which he took at the old Chatham Theater in New York, at the age of 17, without any preparation, acting as a substitute for his father. Next year he went to California; from there, after trying days, full of hardships, he wandered to the Sandwich Islands and Australia. In 1868 he opened his theater in New York, which cost $750,000. Artistic success met with financial failure, and after five years Booth was obliged to abandon his project, leaving the theater $200,000 in debt. In a year he had paid every cent of this amount, for his carnings were coromous. Most critics agree that Hamlet is Booth's greatest part. Next to his personification of Hamlet comes the character of the great cardinal in "Richelieu." He shows consummate skill also as Shylock, as Benedick, in Ingo, and as Richard III. Macbeth is an impressive impersonation, and as Bertuccio he transforms himself physically into a demoniacal personification of harded. Mr. Booth is now seriously ill.

Townsend is a lunatic. He will probably be removed in a short time to an asylum for the insane. The police, however, attach importance to the arrest and hope to be able to discover that some one was behind Townsend inciting him to the assassination of Mr. Gladstone.

Protestants Approve Gladstone. LONDON, April 29.—A large number of residents of Ulster belonging to the Prescontinuous to the communication, and to the communication of the resolution in opposition to trish home rule, which was sent to Lord Salisbury in the name of and as representing the opinions of the Protestants of Ulster. These home rule Protestants in the sent to Mr. Gladstone expressing confidence in Mr. Gladstone and his policy in regard to Ireland. Mr. Gladstone has sent a reply to the communication, in which sent a reply to the communication, in which he states that he is pleased to observe the existence of such an enlightened opinion as that held by his correspondents amid the sea of violence and intolerance at Belfast.

A NEW DEATH-CHAIR.

A NEW DEATH-CHAIR.

By Which the Vic im's Neck is Broken—Automatic, Not Electric.

Columbus, Ohio, April 29.—George Jeremiah, of this city, has just applied for a patent on a device for the killing of condemned persons. He claims its operation will be as nearly painless as it is certain and quick. It consists of a chair with a head-rest that moves upon a hinge to the chair proper. Seated in the chair, the victim lays his head back in a leather lined helmet, which being locked, holds the head like a vice. The body is similarly clamped in the chair. A trigger releases a spring which throws the chair seat one way and the helmet another. The head of the victim is dislocated by the tension movement, much as a chicken's neck is sometimes wrung. The inventor claims this method will soon supersede the present methods of capital punishment.

DUKE DE VERAGUA.

The Distinguished Descendant of Columbus bus who Will Visit the Fair.

The World's Fair will be bonored by a visit from the Duke de Veragua, who claims direct descent from Christopher Columbus. He will be the guest of the country. The duke's full title is Christobel Colondela Cerda, Duke de Veragua, Marquis de la Jamaica, Grand Admiral of the Indies. He traces his lineage through the granddaughter, Isabella of Cordova, whose father was Diego Colon, Columbus' son. Theduke has held few important offices, and, although admiral, has never been at sea; he simply bears the title by reason of his decent from Columbus. He is one of the grandees of Spain, and his palace in Madrid is a fine old-fashioned erection, worth nearly $500,000. He is said to be the breeder of the finest bulls in Europe. For a time Veragua was Minister of Public Works, and he is now president of the Spanish Cattle Commission. He is a Knight of the Grand Cross of Charles III. of Spain.

Commander of the world's Fair Astronomy Parade.

Rear Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, the ranking naval officer in the United States, who commanded the World's Fair fleet, which has been causing so great a sensation in New York, entered the navy as a midshipman from Massachusetts, in 1846, and went into the war as licutenant commander. He will retire within a short time. The review which took place off New York, was a dazzling spectacle, and its success was in no small measure due to the distinguished officer, whose portrait is given above. It included 40 vessels in all. Of these, 14 flew the American flag; 8, the Union Jack; 4, the flag of France; 3, that of Italy; 2, of Germany; 1, of Holland; and 4 of Russia.

New York, April 29.—On the White Star Line steamship Teutonic, which arrived this afternoon, were the Earl of Aberdeen, the Countess of Aberdeen, the Countess of Aberdeen, Lady Arnot, Miss Arnot, Mrs. Browne and Miss Sullivan. The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen are going to Chicago in the interests of the Irish cottage in dustries. An Irish village is to be presented there, and for a year nearly 400 girls have been preparing the exhibits at Clones. Lady Aberdeen started the Irish cottage industries about seven years ago and members of all parties in Ireland have become interested. She and her husband will remain is Chicago until about the middle of May. Lady Aberdeen brings over with her a valuable collection of Irish laces and other curiosities which will be exhibited in Chicago. Sir Richrrd Birbeck, one of the royal commissioners to the fair from Great Britain, was also a passenger on the Teutonic.

Death of Henry Taylor

Very Sudden Demise of a Prominent Personage.

Prince Bismarck, who has been ill at his home in Friedricheruhe, has just completed his 78th year, and the old man mey not last much longer. Bismarck's early life is full of interest. He sowed his wild oats until he was 32 years of age, and was fully 50 before the world had recognized his greatness. The record of his early years is full of discreditable deeds. It was not until 1847 that he settled down to some extent. His marriage to Johanna von Puttkamer had much to do with this. That year he had much to do with this. In '62 he was retail ada in connection with the commissariat department of the infantry—on the steamer Great Eastern, it is supposed. They landed at a Nova Scotian port in midwinter, and Mr. Taylor experienced all the hardships connected with the trip from there to Montreal. It was before the advent of railways in the Lower Provinces, and the celebrated "overland" route was taken. The journey was made on toot or in sleighs, and, owing to the severity of our Canadian winter climate, many of the soldiers got badly frozen along the line of march. From Montreal Mr. Taylor came up to the commissariat department of the regiment, then stationed at London. J. A. Nelles, Secretary.

Following is the report of the secretarymodities. Filed.

Charles B. Hunt—Re single tax question. Filed.
J. S. Larke, acting executive commissioner of World's Fair merchantile congress on finance and commerce—Asking that the board name a member to represent London on that congress. Referred to the council of the board to name someone if they see fit.

Medicine manufacturers of Canada—Asking that the board oppose the Patent Medicine Act now before Parliament. Received to late too set upon.

From Hobbs Hardware Company—Stating that W. C. Gillies, manufacturer of emery wheels, Detroit, was willing to start a factory in Canada, providing a joint stock company could be formed. Laid on the table until Mr. Glass' motion to form an industrial committee to look after such matters, be dealt with.

Mr. Glass then moved that an industrial committee be added to the standing committees of the board, the object being to advertise the city as a manufacturing center, and to set forth the advantages of this locality as an industrial point.

Mr. Campbell protested against what he called "bonus hunters," and if the committee were going to bonus any manufactories he did not think it right.

Mr. J. R. Minhinnick and Mr. Wm. Wright pointed out that the committee could not bonus anything—that would have to come before the voters. The motion then passed.

The following new members were then elected: J. A. Beddome, S. H. Craig, T. A. Mard, S. R. Bresk, f. M. Mayeil, T. G. Davey, H. F. Whetter, W. J. Blackburn, Thos. Orr, R. D. McDonald, John Graham, W. S. B. Barkwell, J. I. Anderson and H. C. McBride. The resignation of Mr. Studley Ashplant was accepted.

The annual report was read by Secretary Nelles. It was of considerable length, covering several type-written pages of foolscap, and referred to the business done during the year. About advertising the city, regret was expressed that, beyond 1,000 copies of a small pamphlet issued by No. 1 committee, nothing had been done towards that end. The mail service between London and St. Thomas had been considerably accelerated at the instance of the board. Re Saturday excursion tickets, new council: L. H. Scandrett, A. W. Porte, E. A. Cleghorn, M. Masuret, John Bowman, F. S. Jarvis, T. H. Carling, Thomas Beattie, Wm. Gartshore, John McClary, F. A. Fitzgerald and T. R. Parker.

This list was criticised by various members on the ground that a majority of the gentlemen named did not attend meetings of the board with anything like regularity.

the gentlemen named did not attend meetings of the board with anything like regularity.

The council was then elected as follows: John Marshall, W. J. Reid, W. M. Gartshore, R. Lewis, John Bewman, Fred J. Jarvis, A. W. Porte, C. W. Leonard, T. H. Smallman, A. B. Greer, W. Yates and J. W. Little.

Board of Arbitration—J. D. Saunby, J. Mattinson, James Burns, D. B. Dewar, A. Neighorn, Thomas F. How, J. Forrestal, S. Stevely, P. Pocock, T. R. Parker, George Taylor, John Green.

Western Fair Board—John Bland, W. Yates, W. R. Hobbs, R. Lewis, J. W. Little, John Campbell, W. J. Reid.

Mr. Parker advocated the election of an advertising and printing committee. Stop over privileges were going to be issued on all roads during the coming summer, and he thought that something should be done to advertise the city. Mr. Pearce warmly seconded the motion, and the following committee was then appointed: T. R. Parker, T. S. Hobbs, J. S. Pearce and S. F. Glass.

Mr. Alex. Fraser, of Westmeath, the millionaire lumber merchant, has returned to Ottawa from Toronto, where he offered three timber berths for sale, but was forced to withdraw them. He says American lumbermen refused to bid in consequence of the Finance Minister's threat to reimpose an export duty on logs.

At the Brantford Police Court on Friday morning the cases against a number of men for being present at a cocking main were called. All the cases were settled save two men, who denied being there. motion was carried to the effect that the club indorsed the action of the Trades and Labor Council in advocating the following principles: The gifts of God are intended for all and not for a few only; to impose taxes on improvements is to discourage the beneficent use of capital in employing labor; all duties and imposts levied on the products of industry, either imported or manufactured in the country, should be abolished, and government revenues raised by a tax on land values.

SWEPT OUT TO SEA.

Prince Edward Island the Scene of a Terrific Gale—Many Fishermen Believed to Have Perished.

Halifax, N. S., April 28.—A terrific storm swept over Prince Edward Island on Wednesday. The wind blew 40 miles an hour, and the weather was bitterly cold with heavy snow and hail. A large number of lobstermen were blown out to sea and undoubtedly perished. Four boats and their crews were blown to sea from Canoe Cove and six boats and their crews from Black Point. Four men were picked up by a tug off Point Prim. Two men named Howell and Johnston, of Crapaud, were blown of in their little cockleshell and had a miraculous escape from drowning. They were rescued after terrible suffering from exposure in an unconscious condition.

ANOTHER BIG BLOCK.

It was pointed out at the last ses sion of the Dominion Parliament, and was not contradicted, that the number of Ministers had been so multiplied that one in every seven members on the Government bide was a holder of an office bringing from $6,000 to $8,000 a year. And when a critic was told that Controller Clarke Wallace would in future take care of the custom houses and their patronage, and asked what Mr. Bowell, appointed to the office of Minister of Trade and Commerce would do now that he was stripped of these functions, he was gravely told that the duties of the Minister of Trade and Commerce had not been discovered, but that he would pick up something to do as time passed! Thus are expensive offices multiplied at Ottawa, and thus are minor offices multiplied also, for each Minister, be his duties many or few, must have a retinue of underlings. But this is not the worst feature. The multiplication of office-holders necessitates an increase In structures devoted to their uses.

There are four great blocks of Government buildings and a number of smaller structures at Ottawa. Within the last year er two the Langevin block was completed nid jobbery unparalleled in the history o the country, resulting in the taxpayers paying vastly more for the building than it is worth. When the appropriations were asked from Parliament it was represented that with the completion of this new departmental structure the wants of the country would be met for many years to come. But no sooner is the Ministry enlarged than a bry goes forth that the Ministers and their assistants are cramped for room, and that a new block must be put up as soon as Caron has the matter in hand. That fact will not reassure either Parliament or the will not reassure either Parliament or the country. If Caron is allowed to oversee the expenditure on a new Government building, we will have a repetition of the experience connected with the construction of the Langevin block, or the Postmaster-General's past record goes for nothing. It chould take a great deal more than his dictum, however, to move Parliament to put more money into expensive blocks of buildings at Ottawa. The present structures are big enough; if any change is necessary, let the host of office-holders be out down, beginning with the superfluous members of the Government, for whose benefit portfolios have been created out of all proportion to the number of inhabitants or the business requirements of the Do-

SEEING that the London Council is applying for power to take control of its own to 29 small cities from Maine to Texas, having their electric street lamps provided and maintained by private corporations, is interesting. It shows that the average annual cost per lamp to the cities is $106 01. A similar inquiry directed to 23 small cities that own and run their own electric street lamps shows that the average of that organization, which has been so annual cost per lamp to those cities is $63 04. In the latter case several of the cities obtain considerable income from lamps supplied to private persons, COUNTY COUNCILS TOO LARGE A bill has been introduced into the Legislature by Mr. Rorke calling for the amendment of the Municipal Act so as to provide for the reduction of county councilors by one-third. The new act fixes the representation at one for every 750; at present It is one for every 500 in the population, The result is that the county councils in such counties as Middlesex, Bruce, Grey and Simcoe are large and unwieldy. Mid-dlesex council, for example, is about half the size of the Legislature. The Legislature might do worse than "tinker" with the Municipal Act in the direction proposed by the member for Center Grey.

THE Saturday Globe is a capital paper, and no mistake. The Globe gets out an interesting paper, however, every day in the week, and we do not know that it ever was more influential than it is to-day. Of course, the tone and style are to-day different from that of days of old. The sledgehammer-pulverization style of 30 or 40 years ago was more exciting for the moment, but on the whole you do not make converts by the sledge-hammer-pulverization method. "Not too much zeal, my lord," has applica-

The subject of this sketch, whose picture given above, is one of the best known esidents of the city of London. He was born in the town of Paisley, Scotland-the birthplace of the poet Tannahill, of Prof. Wilson, author of Noctes Ambrosiana, Prof. Wilson, the famous ornithologist, and in later busy manufacturing days of ssible. It is announced that Sir Adolphe the Coates, Clarks, and Polsons, and of native place, Mr. Reid was early moved to seek his fortunes on the American continent, seek his forcunes on the American continent, and in the year 1842, when but 20 years of age, he was found in the United States. Three years later, he moved to Toronto, and in 1848, he resolved to engage in business in London, then a rising village. For 30 years he conducted a book-selling and bookbinding establishment, only giving it up when called on in 1878, to assume the responsible position of collector of customs at this port. The work of this office he has continued to perform ever since with satisfaction to the administrators of public affairs, and certainly without friction with the business public. Always taking a warm interest in educa tional affairs, Mr. Reid was for eighteen years returned by his fellow-citizens as member of the boards of common and high ht system, an inquiry directed school trustees. He believes that to the end of life, and does not cease when the pupil leaves school, and this has caused him to entertain the warmest interest in every scheme to increase the facilities for the self-education of the masses. As early as 1851 he was president of the Mechanics' Institute, and on behalf useful in days gone by, he presented an address of welcome to Lord Elgin on his nemorable visit to this city in the year named. When the Free Library Act was indersed by the citizens in 1884 Mr. Reid was elected a member of the board by the school trustees. For the latter portion of the three-year term he was appointed chairman, and as long as there was any prospect of carrying out the wishes of the electors he remained ready to do so. It was therefore natural that when the citizens, by a very large majority, again adopted the Free Libraries Act in January last the school trustees should make choice of Mr. Reid as one of their representatives on the library board. Despite the difficulties thrown in the way, Mr. Reid is one of those who does not despair of the wish of the electors finally prevailing.

In 1852 Mr. Reid was given a position as captain of the militia, in which he served for some time, and subsequently he was nominated as justice of the peace. He was one of the originators of the London Board of Trade, and vice-president of the organization for several years. In all legitimate efforts to advance the interests of his efforts to advance the interests of his adopted land and of his charming western home, Mr. Reid has always taken a warm interest. Though he has been for many years removed from the political arena, he feels proud of having for nearly 40 years battled by the side of the late Hon. Geo. Brown for those constitutional rights which are now triumphant. No man more loyal to the principles of British methods which are now triumphant. No man more loyal to the principles of British methods of government than George Brown ever stood on Canadian soil, and Mr. Reid gives evidence that he has the same strong confidence. He has trained up his large family of stalwart sons to have faith in Canada, the land of their birth. Each one of them has in succession, during the last twenty years, been active members of the volunteer force, and have never flinched in the hour of danger. They are still all around him, ready to detend their native land, no matter who may be the aggressor For 45 years, Mr. Reid has been as honored member of the First Presbyterian Church. His first pastor was Rev. Dr Proudfoot, his second a son of that father of Presbyterianism in the West, who recently succeeded by Rev. W. J. Clark. Mr. Reid has been chairman of the board of management for many years.

In 1851, Mr. Reid married Miss Aun
Jane McElroy, a distinguished graduste of Toronto Normal School. Their family have numbered nine-eight sons and one daughter. Seven sons are living.

In recent years, Mr. Reid's surplus energies have been devoted to promoting the welfare of St. Andrew's Society, a social and benevolent organization of which he is president, and in which he has taken much interest. Though a thoroughgoing Canadian, he has always entertained the warmest regards for the famous nation that gave him birth, and has striven to keep alive those characteristics of his race that are worthy of perpetuation in this demo-cratic new land. Naturally possessing a warm and generous nature, Mr. Reid has not only made many strong friends in his own walk of life, and kept them, too, but he has won the respect and esteem of hundreds of men and women who, less fortunate than he, have profited in an hour of need by his friendly counsel and financial aid. All honor to such a citizen!

The British and French ambassadors and the Italian minister sent regrets, as did also the Earl of Aberdeen, who had been expected to be present. The banquet was held in the main dining-room of the Hotel Waldorf. Covers were laid for about 400. The scene was a brilliant one, and the oratory was short, witty and pointed. New York, April 29.—The admirals and fleet officers of the American and foreign ships in thelharbor, received an invitation yesterday to visit the World's Fair. A special train was placed at their disposal by the New York Central Railway, and they were asked to name an hour when they could conveniently start. It is expected the train will start this afternoon.

A ONE-WHEELED SULKY.

A novel idea in the way of a trotting sulky has been perfected by Mr. Whiteman. It has but one wheel, and is kept upright by the shafts when they are attached to the horse. The wheel is the usual pneumatic-tired affair, with ball bearings, used on the "bike" sulky. It will be cheaper, lighter, stronger and simpler than anything heretofore used, and it is believed that it will develop many advantages in the way of lowering the time records.

Frightful Scene of Desolation in Oklahema—The Ghastly Death Rell.

GUHRIE, O. T., April 28.—The total number of persons who met death in Tuesday night's storm now reaches 90, and the injured number about 250, about 10 per cent. of them fatally. One of the greatest scenes of desolation in the devastated district is at the home of John Mullenix, Fayne county. The large barns and other buildings are completely gone, and the farm is stripped of every vestige of fonces, crops and orchards.

Mr. Mullenix is fatally injured. Mrs. Mullenix had just given birth to a child, and she was carried a mile and lay all night on the rain-soaked ground. She is alive, but will die. Her mother, Mrs. Oliver, and her brother, Davis Oliver, were both killed, as was her 10-year-old son. The babe that had just arrived in the world, however, survived its rough reception, and bids fair to live.

Private Members' Day in the House. Misstatements in Regard to Mr. Marter

[Special Dispatch to the ADVERTISER.] TORONTO, April 28.—This being private members' day, the business done by the House was of rather an unimportant character, as no matters of particular moment came up. Before the orders of the day were read the Commissioner of Public Works drew attention to the statements in the Toronto Mail and the Toronto Star that the Marter Mail and the Toronto Star that the Marter motion regarding prohibition had been shelved by the Government. Mr. Fraser said that the Government had no desire to shirk a division of the question, but Mr. Clancy, a member of the Opposition, had brought up his motion regarding the payment of living allowances to members of public institutions. By the rules of the House the matter had to be discussed, and the debate on it was proceeded with.

The House then took up the consideration of several unimportant motions.

Fair—Given the Freedom of Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The second section of the Columbus express, with the Duke of Veragua and party, reached Grand Crossing shortly after 9 o'clock, where the reception committee boarded it. The meeting between the World's Fair commissioners and the duke's party was entirely informal. The duke was especially enthusiastic regarding the evidences of prosperity and industry that he had observed on every hand the repeatedly referred to what he repeatedly referred to as "this great wonderful country." The mayor in a brief speech presented accostly casket to the Duke of Veragua. Within the casket were a series of resolutions of welcome handsomely engrossed and illuminated and a set of silver keys typelying the freedom of the city.

Beccher's Favorite Story.

A correspondent of the St. Louis GlobeDemocrat relates what he declares was Henry Ward Beecher's favorite story, which he never tired of telling. It may have been told before. It was the story of a traveling man who went to church one Sunday and fell asleep during the services.

After the minister finished his discourse he trequested all those who wished to go to heaven to please stand up, and all arose but the traveling man. An old lady in sitting down accidentally brushedupagainst the traveling man and woke him up. Just then the preacher said: "All those that wish to go to hell please stand up," and the traveling man, scarcely awake, and not knowing what the audience was doing, stood up. He looked around in a haif-dazed way and saw no one else but the minister standing, but he finally said: "Parson, I don't know what you are voting on, but you and I seem to he in a hopeless minority." don't know what you are voting on, but you and I seem to be in a hopeless minority."

His Repentance.

When Lady Oswal reached the station, it sappened that Oswald Cray was there. He was emerging from one of the private rooms with some plans under his arm when he saw her. Sae looked scared at the bustle of the station, and was leaning helpiessly on her maid's arm, uncertain where to go, what to do. Oswald hastened to her and took her on his arm. Parkins stipped behind quite thankful to see him; she was as little used to the ways and confusions of a station as her mistress.

Did he wish to stop her? If any such feeling was upon him, it must surely have feeling was upon him, it must surely have been instinct; a prevision of what the ill-fated journey would bring forth; of the influence it would indirectly bear on his own turne life.

He said no more. He led Lady Oswald at once to a first class carriage, placed her and Parkins in it, and then went to procure their return tackets. The time wanted yet five minutes to 4 o'clock, and he leaned over the carriage door and talked to Lady Oswald, ill as he could spare the time. No man had kinder feelings at heart than Oswald Cray, and it seemed to him scarcely courteous to leave her; for she was in a tremor still, until the train should start.

He talked to her in a gay, laughing tone of different subjects, and she grew more at take.

"So it is, my lady," answed Parkins, And the train went smoothly on, and in twenty minutes time Lady Oswald was deposited safely at Hildon station.

Sara Davenal was that day in a state of commotion almost as great as Lady Oswald's. But Sara's arose from a different cause, and was of a pleasurable kind. She and Caroline had never been separated since the arrival of the latter from the West Indies years before, and this last week or ten days absence had seemed to Sara likes so many months. Now that the day of the recturn had actually come, Sara was feverish with impatience and delight.

She dined early that she might go to the abbey to be in readiness to receive them. The precise time of their arrival had not been indicated, "early in the evening, but not to dinner; have tea ready." had been Mrs. Cray's words to her servants in the letter received by them on Friday morning. Sara was at the abbey by 5 o'clock hoping and waiting.

Mark and Caroline were beginning as prudently as their bast friends could desire; and waiting abboy by 0 clock hopfing as pradently as their best friends could desire; two maid-servants only, engaged under the careful eye of Miss Bettina, comprised their

After having tried every known remedy, and different physicians, and receiving no help, I was persuaded to try your Paine's Celery Compound, which I have been using for the past four months. I am happy to say that I am now a different woman and completely cured. I can recommend your Paine's Celery Compound to all my friends, for it has been worth hundreds of dollars to me. "Oh, Clara, that cloak you are wearing is a perfect fright! You ought to get a new one. Have you seen my new must?" Yes, Kate, I saw you at church with him Sunday night."

Five o'clock; half past five, six o'clock; half past six; seven o'clock; and still they did not come. Sara grew impatient; it is no use to deny it, and blamed them for want of punctuality. They had not bargained for her feverish longing.

She stood at the window, looking still, as she had done since 5 o'clok. It had grown into night since she stood there; would have grown to dark but for the brilliant moon that lighted the heavens. A servantame in. "Shall I bring lights, miss?"

"Not yet. I want to watch for the train."

The maid retired. Sara waited on. Waited and waited, until she felt sure that it must be half past seven; but then she was counting time by her own impatience, not by the clock. Her eyes began to grow weary with the intense and incessant gaze at the station, and she could see a good many people standing at its entrance in the moonlight, stragglers no doubt waiting for the train, wondering like herself, that it was not in, and what had come of it.

As she thus stood, there was a loud ring; at the door bell. Sara flew into the hall in glee; thinking how stupid she must have been not to observe them crossing the bridge round by the lines; flew into the hall, and was met by her aunt.

Miss Davenal! when she expected the bridgeroom and bride! But Sara had to make the best of it, and she did so in her graeeful, pleasing manner, drawing her aunt in by the hand to the dark room.

"They have not come yet, Aunt Bettina."

"Whatever's the meaning of this?" was the surprised question of Miss Davenal.

"All in the dark! And where are they?"

"They have not come yet, Aunt Bettina."

"Why, what has come to it?"

Miss Bettina all amazed, and scarcely be livelying the information, went hastily to the window, and looked toward the siation. At that moment, the other servant, Dorcas, came into the room. She was not a stranger to the family, having once lived with Miss Davenal, before that lady took upber abode with her brother. Dorcas was retting ont to the family, having once lived with Miss Sara," she whispered, "Yes, Kate, I saw you at church with him Sunday night."

Untold Misery—What a Well-Known Commercial Traveler Suffered, and How He Was Cured.—Gentlemen.—About five years ago I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time traveling for Messra. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine, and when the third bottle was finished I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of dyspepsia. (Signed.) T. S. How a Young English Immigrant was Duped—A Cunning Trick.

New Youk, April 28.—Henry Rowley, a young English immigrant on his way to Florida, stood with a friend last night admiring the decorations of the City Hall. A stranger came along, and soon had them engaged in conversation.

He walked with them toward Broadway, and suddenly stooping, picked up a pocketbook, which he opened under a gaslamp. There were two bills in the purse, one fifty and one $1 bill.

There were two bills in the purse, one mily and one $1 bill.

"Well, that's what I call luck," said the stranger. "We must divide fair. I'm always on the level. There's just $17 for each, but it is too bad the banks are all closed. We can't change the 50, and I can't see you to-morrow. Now, if either of you has $17, why you could give it to me, and I'll give you the 50. Then you two can whack up to-morrow." I can give you $17," said Rowley, unsuspectingly pulling out that amount and turning it over in exchange for the $50 bill. Then the stranger bid them good-night, and shortly after Rowley discovered that he had been duped with a Confederate bill.

SELF-PROPELLING SHIPS.

A New York genius has invented a machine for the self-propulsion of ships. It media not that love's gift be great.— Some splendid jewel of the soul for which a king might supplicate, Nay! true love's least, at love's true rate. Is tith most royal of the whole!

—James Buckham, in the Churchman.

DISCONTENT.

The landsman through a stormy street, And shades of night, was going: The wintry wind was paved with shifting sleet—The wintry wind was blowing.

"He aven pity grant, and help," said he. "To those who live upon the sea."

The sailor climbed a trembling mast, "Mid mountains round him flowing."

DIAMOND POLISH.

"Do you know that when your shoes glisten with a polish they are really covered with diamonds?" asked a shoemaker the other day of one of his patrons. "This is other day of one of his patrons. "This is other day of one of his patrons is true." He continued, "and I will show you why. Bone dust, which is the principal ingredient of shoe blacking, is almost pure carbon. The diamond you know is the principal of the polishing brush crystallizes the blacking and converts it into millions of infinitesimally small diamonds, and every man with a shine on his shoes may revel in the knowledge that he wears a cluster of diamonds on his feet." DIAMOND POLISH.

DICKENS "DAVID COPPERFIELD." Some interesting facts connected with Dickens' "David Copperfield" have been revealed by Charles Dickens, the younger. "I have," he says, "my mother's authority for saying—she told me at the time of the publication of Mr. Forster's first volume and asked me to make the fact public, if, after her death, an opportunity should arise—that the story was eventually read to her in strict confidence by my father, who, at the time, intimated his intention of publishing it by and by as a portion of his autohography. From this purpose she endeavored to dissuade him, on the ground that he had spoken with undue harshness of his father, and especially of his mother; and with so much success that he eventually decided that he would be satisfied with working it into 'David Copperfield.'"

THE SLEEPING HABIT.

THE SLEEPING HABIT.

"Talk about people going to sleep in church, why shouldn't they? I don't know any safer place on earth to sleep in than a church, and it seems all the more secure to me when I see the dangerous places chosen by some to do their dozing in. At Indianapolis the other day I saw a tinsmith asleep on the roof of a house, at the very eaves, and when two policemen stole up to and carefully awakened him, he got mad because they had disturbed his rest. He felt secure up there because he was used to it. I have seen a man sitting asleep on a painter's seaffold, swinging near the top of one of Chicago's sky-piercing houses, and when I spoke to him later about it he said it was nothing uusual; that he often took a post-brandial map in that way. There must be some sirth or seventh sense in a man that protects him during sleep; that enables him to wake up at a desired hour, etc. I feel more and more convinced of this when I see, as I do every day, teamsters sitting asleep on their wagons, nodding and snoring, but seldom if ever falling off. Especially on warm days can you see dozens of teamsters a-doze on their moving wagons, and I believe it is only those who are under the influence of liquor who fall off."—[St. Louis Globe.

DERELICTS ON THE OCEAN.

As a rule, the sailors on a derelictship and promptly rescued, because the Atlantic is a busy ocean thoroughfare. It sometimes happens, however, that no vessel heaves in sight for a week or a fortnight after, and the unfortunate seamen (the decks being flush with the water) are compelled to make dives into the cabin for scraps of food, or, if this is impracticable, have to endure the slow torture of starvation, up in the rigging if the waves are breaking over, or on the deck house or forecastle if the weather has moderated. It is not an enviable position at the best, and Mr. Clark Russell's pen is not equal to describing its horrors at the worst. The recent case of the crew of the Thekla will be fresh in the the minds of all. But cannibalism at sea is no new thing. It crops up now and again in all waters under such circumstances. A case very similar to that of the Thekla-only, if anything, more revolting—was that of the Caledonian, which became waterlogged and unmanageable in a hurricane and drifted for thirteen days with two cabins and provisions under water. During these thirteen days some members of the crew had to inraish food for the rest. The rescue of the remainder was effected by a mate of a Russian ship, who, in a heavy sea, went in a boat by himself to the doomed Caledonian and took off the hands. He was afterwards presented with a ship called the British Gratitude for his bravery. In February last, we learn from the United States Wreek Chart of the North Atlantic, there were no fewer that 45 derelict vessels in that ocean, and more than half of them were in the track of the transatlantic lines.—[Saturday Review. London Truth

THERE SHALL BE NO MORE SEA. THERE SHALL BE NO MORE
Though seas divide my friend from me,
Yet love is wider than the sea.
Though into harbor sail no ship
Freighted with message from his lip,
Or bring near the wished-for day
When on earth's shores we meet to say,
"The years were long, dear, without thee";
Yet hearts are strong where trust abides,
And Hope sits queen, whate's betides;
In heaven there shall be no more sea.

And, truly, "'tis a tale of woe" of one who had catarrh in the head for many years and who really had been "rotting" from hour to hour, until Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy came to his notice. He used it at first with slight signs of relief, but he persisted until a permanent cure was effected, and the world was again pleasant to live in. From his awful suffering he was set free by the expenditure of a lew dollars in that incomparable remedy.

AN IDEAL HOLIDAY.

When asked to give her idea of an ideal holiday, Miss Braddon, the novelist, replied that she would choose "a fortnight at Venice—the last week in April and the first in May—spent half in a gondola and half on the islands, with a picnic basket and a volume of Browning, Byron or Shelley."

MRS. STANFORD'S JEWELS.

It is said that Mrs. Leland Stanford has one of the most remarkable collections of jewels in the world. They are valued at $2,000,000, and include a set of pink, a set of blue, a set of yellow and a set of white diamonds. Some of these gems were owned by the Empress Eugenie and by Queen Isabella of Spain.

THE WHISTLING WOMAN.

"But has the whistling woman come to stay? Is it well for women to whistle? Are the majority of women likely to be whistlers? These are serious questions, not to be taken up in a light manner at the end of a grave paper. Will woman ever learn to throw a stone? There it is. The future is inscrutable. We only know that whereas they did not whistle with approval, now they do. The prejudice of generations gradually melts away. And woman's destiny is not linked with that of the hen, nor to be controlled by a proverb—perhaps not by anything."—[Harper's Magazine. THE WHISTLING WOMAN.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGED.

In last week's issue, Sala's Journal has a bright litte article on women doctors. The writer alludes to the somewhat sudden change in the estimation in which a woman doctor is held. Twenty years ago, nothing but redicule was poured on them for daring to set foot inside that profession which for the last century or two has been considered "manly." Physicians declined to consult with a woman, to the point of throwing up a case rather than do so. Now the old order is changed, and the 140 women who practice in Britain are everywhere received with courtesy and on the footing of equality. THE OLD ORDER CHANGED.

SOME OF THEM.

One of the ablest platform speakers in England is Mrs. Garrett Fawcett, widow of the blind Postmaster-General of that

The Empress of Germany has declined to

The Empress of Germany has declined to accept the presidency of an association reform among women, because she considers the present style becoming and healthful and thinks that coracts are a restful support without which women would be seriously uncomfortable.

Edison prefers women machinists for the delicate details of his electrical inventions. He says they have more fine sense about machinery in one minute than most men have in their whole life time. He proves the sincerity of his statement by placing 200 women on his pay roll.

A WONDERFUL SPINSTER OF OLD. A WONDERFUL SPINSTER OF OLD.

Spinster Annie Maria Von Schurmann was the name of a woman who lived at Utrecht during the sixteenth century. She was so learned a woman that all men of science of that day considered her a marvel. She spoke German, French, English, Italian, Latin, Greek and Hebrew with equal facility and even understood the Syrian, Chaldaic, Arabic and Ethiopian tongues. Astronomy, geography, philosophy and theology were her special hobbies, and she wrote many interesting pamphlets on these subjects. Aside from this she was a painter, sculptor and engraver of high degree, and played and devised several musical instruments. She was held in high esteem by and corresponded with many of the prominent savants of the age, even with Richelieu, Queen Anne of France, Elizabeth of Poland and Christine of Sweden. She died unmarried at the age of 72.

OF VITAL MOMENT.

The flippant manner in which a considerable number of our State legislators approach the annually recurring question of granting suffrage to women, as if it were a joke, instead of an issue of vital moment, is discreditable both to their taste and judgment. Our present system of restricted suffrage is a relic of the ancient time when voting was first introduced as a substitute for fighting, and only the warriors participated in the making of laws. It can no longer be claimed that the chief function of the citizen is his power to kill, and on any other basis there is absolutely no excuse for limiting the franchise to the stronger sex. There is no more laughable conceix than that man alone has the wisdom and intelligence necessary to properly use the bellot. OF VITAL MOMENT. There is no more laughable concert than that man alone has the wisdom and intelligence necessary to properly use the bellot. The mothers of the race have at least as much at stake in the government as any other class. The chief danger from the granting of suffrage to women would be to those interests that are hostile to social good. It is not a question as to whether the majority of women want to vote or not, but as to giving those that do want to the chance. Taxation without representation is opposed to all the instincts of just government, and not only the women who own property in their own name, but those who have contributed their share to the general wealth, either as housewives and homemakers, or in any other sphere, are taxpayers in the fullest sense of the term.—[Labor Leader, Boston.

A Midnight Mystery

In a cheerless apartment on the sixth floor of a new York tenement one cold, bleak, November night sat a young woman, whose face bore evident marks of intelligence and

November night sat a young woman, whose face bore evident marks of intelligence and refinement.

Two small rooms comprised the narrow domain to which she gave the name of aome. Their cheerlessness was increased by the absence of everything except the most accessary, furniture, and by the wailing wind, which found entrance at a hundred crevices, sending loy currents across the wretched garret. The young woman, crouching close to the dying fire of a small stove, was lost in sad reflections, from which she roused herself at intervals to glance at a little crib, wherein lay an infant, all unconscious of its mother's anxiety and distress. Her husband, Robert Desmond, the second son of an English nobleman, had fallen in love with Victoris St. Clair, the pretty and intelligent. American governess of his younger sister, and married her in opposition to the wishes of his family. The English aristocracy look with much disfavor on mesalliances of this kind.

Soon after their marriage the regiment in which he was a lieutenant was ordered to India. The young man resigned his commission, and, untrained as he was in any business or profession, found himself at 25 thrown on the world without a penny and with a young wife to support. His father, a proud but generous man, had disinherited him, but offered his son a sum sufficient, if properly invested, to maintain him in comfort for life, saying that all further intercourse between them must cease.

This money was accepted. The young further intercourse between them must cease.

This money was accepted. The young couple went to Paris, whence he soon plunged into the most luxurious life of that gay city. Though a man of generous involves and a royal and affectionate husband, Robert had an unfortunate passion for gambling. His little capital was soon lost at the card table. By the sale of Victoria's jewels and some money she had prudently saved, they were able to accumulate a little more than enough to pay their passage to New York.

After weary months in fatile efforts to obtain work, the little family which had been increased by the birth of a daughter, diffted from moderately confortable lodgings to this cheerless temment house. Their little capital, gradually diminishing, was now gone.

would only distress him. After sleeping heavily for an hour, Robert opened his eye and askid: "Victoria do not admit any one who may come to inquire for me. I am not soing out to-night and I must sleep undividual and and it will try to sleep again."

The Massachusetts W. C. T. U. has just added a new and interesting branch of work to its departments, with Mrs. Clara E. Withington, of Jamaica Plain, as superintendent. It is called "Securing Homes for Homeless Children." The main object is to secure a home for homeless, unprotected children. In addition to the city children, waifs will be sought in remote and less populous districts by the superintendents. The work will require persistent and tender influence where children will be placed in homes to be trained in habits of industry, temperance and truthfulness, and protected from vicious surroundings. It is not too much to say that Mrs. Withington, from her experience among children, is especially fitted for the important work.—[Boston Traveller.

TEN MILES OF SALOONS

TEN MILES OF SALOONS.

The Rev. George R. Niver, of the State Temperance Society, talked to a large number of young men at the Central Y. M. C. A. on Sunday about "Temperance," introducing some figures about the liquor traffic in Buffalo. "This city," said he, "has over 2,300 licensed saloons. Allowing 20 feet frontage for each saloon they would make 10 miles of solid blocks.

"Last year $10,000,380 went into the dram shops of our country, but 7,400,000 women have not a decent wardrobe to attend divine worship. Last year 3,004 wives were murdered by drunken husbands. The number of arrests in 1860 was 1 to every 3,843 individuals; in 1870. It every 7,92 individuals. If this ratio increases in like proportion for fourteen decades every man, woman and child would be a criminal.

decades every man, woman and child would be a criminal.

"Like the Israelites of old," continued Mr. Niver, "we need to erect a wall to defend our brethren, our sons and daughters, our wives, our houses and our nation. The four grand corner-stones of our nation are the church, the school, the press and the home; and the drink evil assails each. Six hundred theusand homes are made desolate through this curse every year. On the home must rest the responsibility of the future success and life of our country. How much longer will our system of Government endure when in one year sixteen and a half gallons of drink are manufactured to every man, woman and child, and every six minutes a soul is sent to eternity a victim to its curse?"—[Buffale Express.

ECONOMY THAT IS FALSE

YOUR OWN FLESH AND BLOOD THE MOST VALUABLE POSSESSION.

Every Consideration Should be Paid to Her Who Sees After the Family-Some Trite Truths About "The Servant of All" -Economy's Real Meaning.

Economy's Real Meaning.

There are certain forms of false economy which are constantly practised by the most conscientious of women, with a resultant waste and wear and tear on their own tempers and lives; as well as the happiness of those around them, that is positively incalculable. They save everything but their own flesh and blood, and never realize that that is the most valuable possession, and the most worthy to be saved that woman has. What on earth is the use of a best room or carpet or gown that no one uses, of a few extra dollars saved at the cost of one more wrinkle, and half a dozen back aches, or of a daughter's music lesson paid for by thankless self-denial; but this last belongs to a question deeper and more tragic than this of injudicious economies on which I am freeing my mind to-day.

and more traine than the straing and more traine so which I am freeing my wind to-day.

I tell you there is not one woman living, who is seeing after a family, be she mother, elder sister or paid housekeeper, who is not worthy of every consideration, convenience and pleasure that can be brought into her lot. The great question should be: "How can things be made easier and pleasanter for her?" not "How much can she save?" To begin with, the great question of the daily necessary labor: No woman, unless forced by the most biting powerty, ought to do the daily work for her family. No matter how sweet and nice they may be they will soon insensibly but agone the less decidedly, begin to expect the service of her, and the thanks and appreciation will be a minus guantity. She will be too tired to take part in the pleasures that come about, and will gradually cease to be counted in when they are in contemplation. It stands to reason that when her arms, back and head are aching after the day's monotonous work, she cannot be bright and atcrested in the plans and talk of the family at night. If she sees herself looking tired and worn, she won't care to go out for an evening anywhere, especially as she has doubtless bought some household article with the money intended for a new gown.

There cannot even be proper family especially as sne has doubtless bought some household article with the money intended for a new gown.

There cannot even be proper family discipline where the chief female member is a household drudge. Her very reproofs are sharpened by the nervous fatigue that is consuming her, and it is impossible to prevent the habit of saucy answers or uplifted voices, when the correction is not calmly made, while the flood of tears, which is the only natural relief for pent-up feminine nature, must always be a sort of concession to perverse childhood, which cannot but be demoralizing. And all of this spirit and heartbreaking work, will not, in nine cases out of ten, save more than a servant's wages. There would be less drunkenness and neglect on the part of husbands and boys, if the homemaker had time and energy to spare for them and had a and energy to spare for them and had a chance for thoughts above the daily chance for thoughts above the daily "chores."

Then there is the false economy of not using the best room, of keeping one place apart for "company," and making everyone behave and not move the chairs about, when they are permitted to enter. A sharp tongue is not half so terring as the costant straightening of tidies and plumping up of pillows after one. Boys and men appreciate a pretty room as much as girls, only they want to be comfortable there, and put up their feet and smoke if they want to. And why shouldn't they? A loving, energetic kiss, and the happiness of knowing they would rather be there than anywhere else, will be payment enough for the loss of the prim order.

The same thing holds true with pretty gowns: wear them all the time: they will only get old-fashioned and rusty if you don't, and you will feel lots better in them. Pretty, bright colors don't cost a cent more than ugly, old drab things; and, above all, don't pin them up every time you go into the kitchen. That flapping hump protruding from the apron behind looks ever so much worse than a grease spot, which can be removed in five minutes.

I think the word economy ought to be blotted out of the dictionary, or a tutor removed in five minutes.

I think the word economy ought to be plotted out of the dictionary, or a tutor should be provided by law to go around the go around the provided by law to go around the go around t and explain the meaning of it, which is —conscientious care of all one has: not -conscientious care of all one has; not toilsome, ill-advised saving of one thing at the expense of everything else. A woman's health, happiness and looks are of more value to her family than a few dollars, and daily pleasure and enjoyment of the brightness of life, is better than a lot of stored up things that are than a lot of stored up things that are too good for use.

We are here now for this life; why not make it as full and as pretty as we can? It will be more God-like; we will be honestly better for less rigidity and more happiness.—J. M. Burgoyne, in Jenness Miller Monthly.

HOW TO HANG PICTURES. Directions by an Art Dealer of Long Ex-

A prominent art dealer of long experience furnishes the following wise suggestions for hanging pictures.

It is a common mistake to hang them

It is a common mistake to hang them too high. If the picture is bad or disagreeable, then it cannot go too far out of sight; but why should not a good picture hang opposite the eyes of a person who stands before it, and not away above his head? Nearly all pictures are hung sloping outward from the bottom to the top—outward from the bottom to the top—and this is necessary in the case of oil paintings—but an etching often looks best when hung perpendicular and flat against the wall.

When two pictures containing figures are hung in juxtaposition, care should be taken that these figures should not be made to commit the rudeness of turning their backs on each other.

A minor consideration, but one which cannot always be regarded, is that the shadows in a picture should turn from the windows of the room where it hangs. Thus, if the shadow in the pictures fall toward the right, it would be well, if possible, to hang it where the light in these. light in the room comes from the left.

Another obvious rule is that, while large and bold subject may look well along at a height or at a distance from the spectator, a very small picture, or one containing minute figures, will be quite lost unless placed where it can be seen without difficulty.

A hint may also be given on a subject not directly connected with framing, but involving a popular error which seems to take a long time in dying out. ther obvious rule is that, while Reep Minard's Liniment in the House.

This is the supposed necessity for having pictures in pairs, or "companion pieces." It is very well to match a pair of carriage horses or the andirons in a fireplace; but artists' ideas do not run in pairs, and no really artistic picture should be dependent on some picture of the same size and shape.

It would be wrong to condemn any two pictures because they happen to correspond in subject or in size—because most rooms contain pairs of corresponding wall spaces which call for pictures of about an equal size. It is the only unreasoning insistence upon "companion pieces" which is wrong, for it degrades the pictures to the level of mere wall furniture.

DRESS.

Clothing Often but a True Reflection of Oneself

"For the apparel oft proclaims the man." Did you ever consider that our clothing is often a true reflection of ourselves. So far as dress can improve our personal charms, I can understand the love for it, for then it gratifies the desire for admiration, and, to a certain extent, is not blamable, for personal attractions are the gift of Providence, and therefore to be estimated in due proportion to their worth. The earth is not constructed on the principle of producing so much food for man's bodily wants; it has its cornfields, but it has also its wild flowers, on hill and moorland, to give us a sense on the principle of producing so much food for man's bodily wants; it has its cornfields, but it has also its wild flowers, on hill and moorland, to give us a sense of simple and touching beauty. Every woman ought to believe in the science of human beauty, and to cultivate it they should make the most and best of that which nature has given them. I am a believer in the right of a woman to look her best; it is not only her right, but it is really a duty for the mother of children to dress well and look her best; she should be to them the ideal woman, and ideality and slovenliness never go together. A dowdy woman seldom has good influence; slovenliness spreads to everything—a slovenly dress helps to create a slovenly mind; disorder without means confusion within. A neatly dressed person always meets with a respect which a slovenly one cannot demand. The art of dressing well lies in wearing that which is suited both to the time and place, and to one's position in life. It is not necessary that they be clean, whole and appropriate, and it is very desirable that they be becoming, and at least passably well-fitting. To be well dressed is to be comfortable, and to be comfortable means to be one's self, not ill at ease and likely to commit any mistake for which one would feel ashamed afterwards. Good dressing means propriety, not necessarily expense. No lady need be ashamed to dress plainly and cheaply. Not every woman can dress with intelligent economy and artistic taste.—Jessie J. Lambert, in Farmer's Advocate.

Dangerous Articles in Common Use.

Perhaps there is no article that is put to as many practical uses in the household as kerosene oil. It is used as a liminent, as a lubricant, as a detergent in the laundry; for oil stoves, for lamps and to kindle fires; and while it is a good servantitis a very bad master. A large percentage of horrible accidents is caused by the ignorance or carelessness of those who handle it. If fires are to be kindled with it never trust the can in the hands of ignorant servants or children, and never trust even yourself to turn oil directly from the can on the kindlings, lest there be an invisible spark of fire among the ashes, in which case it may ignite the gas in the can and cause an explosion with all its attendant horrors. The only safe way is to first turn a little into a cup kept for the purpose, and throw it quickly over the kindlings, and then touch it off with a match.

Another unsafe practice is to turn down a burning lamp low enough to smoke, for the purpose of saring oil or Dangerous Articles in Common Use

Another unsafe practice is to turn down a burning lamp low enough to smoke, for the purpose of saving oil or obtaining a subdued light. The vapor soon fills a tight room with a poisonous gas wholly unfit to breathe, and there have been instances of death caused by inhaling this gas through the hours of the night in a closed chamber. Either allow the wick of a lamp to be high enough to burn clear, otherwise extinguish it. The right way to do this is to turn it down so as to shut off about half the flame, and then blow slightly across turn it down so as to shut off about half the flame, and then blow slightly across the top of the chimney, but never direct-ly down the chimney, as this is unsafe. Lamps should be filled and trimmed in the morning, and never by lamp-light; after being filled, if the wicks are turned down it will prevent the overflow of oil on the surface of the lamp.—Country Gentleman.

Paper Pillows.

Paper Pillows.

Our English cousins are said just now to be "going wild over paper pillows." This is the way they are made: You tear the paper into very small pieces, not bigger than your finger nail, and then put them into a pillow sack of drilling or light ticking. They are very cool for hot climates, and much superior to feather pillows. The newspapers are printing appeals for them for hospitals. Newspaper is not nice for use, as there is a disagreeable odor from printer's ink; but brown or white paper and old envelopes are the best. As you tear them stuff them into an old pillow case, and you can see when you get case, and you can see when you get enough. The easiest way is to tear or cut the paper in strips about half an inch wide, and then tear across. The finer it is, the lighter it makes the pillows.

WISDOM'S WARNING.

LESSON V, SECOND QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 30.

Text of the Lesson, Prov. i, 20-33-Golden Text Heb. xii, 25-Doctrinal Suggestion God's Anger Against Sin-Commentary on the Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns. 20. "Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth on the Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

20. "Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets." When we read in the New Testament such words as these, "Christ, the wisdom of God," "Who of God is made unto us wisdom" (I Cor. i, 24, 30), we have so difficulty in understanding who is meant in this book by wisdom. Just as Jesus Christ is both the living personal word and also the written word, so He is wisdom as to His person and as to His utterances. It is no wonder, then, that it swritten, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom" (Iv. 7).

21. "She crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the opening of the gates. In the city she utterath her words, saying." The great multitude are in the broad way of self and self pleasing, with little or no thought of a hereafter and a day of judgment. They care not for the fact that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall, he also reap," and their only thought is pleasure and prosperity here and now (Math. vii, 13; Gal. vi., 7). Wisdom is represented as calling unto them as they hurry along their downward road.

22. "How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity, and the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge?" Simple ones, if they believe God, they are easily led aright. If they go astray, they are soon among the scorners and the fools. Yet wisdom loves them and cries unto them: "How long" "How long will thou refuse to humble thyself before Me" (Jer. iv, 14; Ex. x, 3)" (23, "Turn you at My reproof; behold I will pour out My Spirit unto you; I will make known My words unto you." He calls so lovingly, so patiently, so perseveringly, "Come unto Me; return unto the calls so lovingly, so patiently, so perseveringly, "Come unto Me; return unto the make known My words unto you." He calls so lovingly, so patiently, so persevaringly. "Come unto Me; return unto the Lord; turn, O backsliding children; take with you words and turn to the Lord." These are some of the many words of the Lord to the erring ones as He entreats them to come unto Him (Isa It, 3, 7; Jes. iii, 1, 7, 12, 14; Hos. xiv, 2). He only asks us to turn to Him, and He will do all the rest, giving His words and His Spirit, His words which are Spirit and Life (John vi, 63).

24. "Because I have called, and ye refus-

"Because I have called, and ye refus-24. "Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded." It does not seem possible that a people who had been so wondrously dealt with could so treat such love, but the human heart is still the same, and the same love on His part is turned away from by those to whom His hands are imploringly stretched out. How is it with you?

stretched out. How is it with you?

25. "But ye have set at naught all My counsel, and would none of My reproof." They mocked the messengers of God, and despised His words, and misused His prophets until the wrath of the Lord arose against His people, till there was no remedy. (II Chron. xxxvi, 16). They even went so far as to say, "We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement; we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves" (Isa. xxviii, 15). Like the men before the flood, whose houses God filled with good things, they said unto God, "Depart from us; what can the Almighty do for us" (Job. xxii, 15-18);

26. "I also will laugh at your calamity;

"I also will laugh at your calamity 26. "I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh." What-soever a man soweth, that shall he also reap, and he that soweth the wind shall reap the whirlwind." (Gal. vi, 7; Hos. viii, 7). Concerning all who take counsel against Him it is written, "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall heave them in derision." (Ps. ii, 4), and if have them in derision" (Ps. ii, 4), and i His loving invitations are persistently despised we must remember His words, "None of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper" (Luke xvi, 24).

"When your fear cometh as desols 27. 27. "When your fear cometh as desonation and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you." In due time these things will come upon all who despise His love and make light of His salvation. Because there is wrath, beware lest He take thee away with His stroke; then a great ransom cannot deliver thee (Job xxxvi, 18).

ransom cannot deliver thee (Job xxxvi, 18).

28. "Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me." Then shall they cry unto the Lord, but He will not hear them: He will even hide His face from them at that time, as they behaved them selves ill in their doings (Mic. iii, 4). He told Jeremiah that the intercession of Mossand Sample could not saye the pation, and selves ill in their doings (Mic. 111, 4). He told Ezekiel that the intercession of Moses and Samuel could not save the nation, and He told Ezekiel that the presence of Noah, Daniel and Job would be of no avail (Jer. xv. 1; Ezek. xiv. 14, 20). Sin may become so great that nothing will do but judgment. 29. "For that they hated knowledge and did not choose the fear of the Lord." They say unto God, Depart from us, for we desire not the knowledge of Thy ways (Job xxi, 14). The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, a foundation of life, a great treasure (Prov. i, 7; ix, 10; xiv. 27; isa. xxxiii, 6). But they had no reverence for God, no respect for His ways, no gratitude for His gifts. The fool says there is no God, and many a one who would not say, this wishes that there was no God. The carnal mind is enmity against God (Rom. viii, 7).

30. "They would none of my counsel; they despised all my reproof." Our Lord Jesus said that whoseever heard His words, but did them not, was like a man building on sand, only to have everything swept away (Math. vii, 26, 27).

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the perves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by hich the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

The introducing of queens, that was for a long time considered a hazardous experiment, is now performed with but little risk. Cages are now so constructed that all that is necessary to do with the queen and her convoy when they are received in such a cage, is just to take out the cork stopping the entrance, and putting the cage between the combs, or simply laying it on top. Of course, the old queen has to be previously removed. Sugar paste having been put in the cage stopping the hole from which the cork has been removed, it requires some time before the queen imprisoned is liberated, and during this time the bees and she become acquainted, and having liberated her themselves without any excitement, she is generally well received.

her themselves without any excitement, she is generally well received.

As we have formerly hinted, the spring is the best season for commencing beekeeping. Get one or two colonies to start with. If you can get them in movable comb hives, so much the better. If these are not available take good colonies in boy hives and have them transferred in box hives and have them transferred in May into whatever kind of hive you may select. Remember there are no in May into what.

In May into what in the parents on hives that amount to anything now. Do not believe any venders of patent hives. They are frauds. Langstroth, the American chaff hives, single and double stories, the Simplicity and many others, are all reliable and free from patents.

Soil For Young Orchards,

A correspondent of the Cultivator writes as follows about planting young writes as follows about planting young apple orchards:

I have noticed many articles of late in relation to the planting of young trees in old orchards, by the setting of young apple trees upon soil that has been previously devoted to orcharding, with the expectation of raising thrifty and profitable orchards. I think the farmer who sets out a young orchard upon soil that fitable orchards. I think the farmer who sets out a young orchard upon soil that has already produced one orchard will meet with disappointment if he expects to raise a thrifty and paying orchard. In all my experience and observation I have failed to see a right down, good, thrifty orchard which was set upon such soil. I believe this failure is due to the fact that the elements which go to support the growth of the trees, and the production of the fruit, have been exhausted, and so far reduced as to be almost incapable of the production of thrifty apple trees or far reduced as to be almost incapable of the production of thrifty apple trees or fair crops of fruit. However, some may say that they have no soil suitable for an orchard, unless they do take the same old site. The farmer, however, had better take up with a new site, if it is not as good for the purpose. He will meet with better success in this way than if he chooses the old site. Some of the best orchards I ever saw were planted upon new soil, or soil that stan if he chooses the old site.

Some of the best orchards I ever saw were planted upon new soil, or soil that had lately been cleared from the forest, or even before the stumps had been all cleared off. The trees grew smooth, and the fruit was large and fair, and the borers were few and far between. Therefore it is evident that the apple tree needs a soil which has not been robbed of those elements most essential to the production of a perfect tree and smooth, well-ripened fruit. The young farmer should not select an old orchard site for this purpose if he desires a good-paying orchard, but should take a new one every time to insure success. One may dress the old site, and redress it many times over, and he will never bring it back to the fertility essential to success until many years have passed away. One cannot afford to wait a series of years who desires a profitable orchard. Better let the old site be used for other purposes, apply the dressing to a new site, prepare the soil well, set carefully, and then watch over the trees, and success is assured.

Feeding While Milking.

A writer in favor of not feeding the cow while she is being milked makes the following point: "Now in the years that I have cared for and studied the nature and habits of animals I have noticed this, that, when left to their own way, the cow, the mare, the ewe, the sow and any animal that suckles her young, is seldom, if ever, seen feeding at the time of nursing their young, and they always appear at the time to be giving thought only to this one thing, that of yielding what they have stored up for that occasion." This we consider an unwarranted straining of the point. Cows, ewes and mares are often seen feeding while their young suckle. That the young take advantage of the time when the dam is idle, proves nothing but the common instinct of the young that this is a good opportunity to get a square meal. We have milked many a cow while eating her mess and never knew of an instance where they did not "give down" freely. The only inconvenience we ever encountered was from their reaching for food when it was not placed in their easy reach. As to the sow, when attacked by a dozen squealing pigs, as we have seen, each turging at a teat, what else by a dozen squealing pigs, as we have seen, each tugging at a teat, what else could she do but lie down and let them fill themselves? She would make poor headway foraging by dragging them along with her.

One method of destroying them is to strew over the soil leaves of green herbage that have been treated with Paris green or London purple by dipping in solution or dusting them with the poison. They eat these and die. Another way is to place board traps on the ground. They collect under these traps during the night and may be killed early in the morning. Another way is to dig them out, whatever signs of them are seen, and kill them. Some plants will be lost, but the work of digging them out is not as great as it would appear at first. They are easily found early in the morning, near where they have eaten the plants. they shelter themselves under stones, logs or other objects, burrow in the soil

A Road Requisite.

The essential requisite of a modern successfully paved road is a solid (well rolled) deep laid and water-tight foundation. Every street should consist of a substructure and a superstructure; the latter forms the wearing surface and protects the former from wet. The subsoil on which the substructure is laid is first drained and thoroughly rolled with a heavy steam roller until smooth and hard and conforming to the same curve as the finished road. Wherever possible all roads should be higher than the level ground. The primary difference between city streets and country roads consists in their manner of drainage, the latter being drained by longitudinal ditches on each side of the road, the former by underground sewers placed generally in the middle of the street. In all cases, A Road Requisite. derground sewers placed generally in the middle of the street. In all cases, the middle of the street. In all cases, whether a paved or macadamized road, a properly consolidated subsol is essential. Thorough consolidation can only be secured by the use of heavy steam rollers.

The tub will take up water very rapidly, and two or three hours' time is all it needs to absorb all the water it will hold. It is claimed that the odor will be removed, no hoops will break, the tub will retain its shape, the cover will fit and there is less shrinkage of butter from the absorption of brine by the staves and bottom of the tub.

The very best lettuce seed must always be dear. By this we do not mean that which will surely grow, but good seed grown from heads which tend naturally to leaf and only slightly to seed. The best lettuce, therefore, always seeds aparingly, while the poorest always seeds abundantly. Yet a little of the best seed is worth more than a big packet of the poorest.

In this condition Mr. Prendergast continued until last summer, when the physician frankly told him that his case was incurable. The news came as a terrible shock to his wife and children. Long before this, after a manful struggle, he had been fotced to give up work on his farm, but there had always been hopes of his recovery to buoy up his family and friends. But this statement that his case was considered incurable was like a strcke was considered incurable was like a stroke of impending doom, and his friends constantly dreaded to hear that he was no of impending doom, and his friends constantly dreaded to hear that he was no more.

Such was the condition of affairs at the close of last summer and a little later it was understood that Mr. Prendergast was getting better, and on the way to recovery. Lately one of his friends while in the Herald sanctum remarked, "Prendergast is on his feet again and as sound as a bell." Inquiry naturally followed as to what had produced this remarkable result, and we were informed that his recovery was solely due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The Herald had published the particulars of many remarkable cures by the use of this remedy, and while not by any means skeptical, felt a strong desire to verify a case in our locality, and accordingly drove to Mr. Prendergast's. On reaching the house it was ascertained that Mr. Prendergast was some distance away in the field mending a fence. Thither the scribe wended his way, meeting with cordial welcome and an invitation to come back to the house to dinner. After dinner we urged him to tell about the remarkable change that had taken place in his condition. At first he was inclined to put us off, saying that he hated to think of the old days of agony and misery. However, at last he told us all he had undergone, his story bearing out what has been said concerning his condition.

After the dectors had given him up, his wife, hoping sgainst hope, had urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He scouted the idea at first, saying that these things were all humbugs. At last, more to please his wife than anything else, he sent to Comber for some of the Pink Pills. He had not taken them many days when he found they were giving him relief. The pain lessened, his appetite began to return, and so did hope and confidence. He procured another supply and found himself growing daily stronger. Later he resumed work on his farm and found to his amezement that he could do a hard day's work without fatigue. In a word that he had completely recovered. He had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the outset without hope of benefit and merely to please his wife; now he finds them a life boat and an ark of safety.

The grafting season will soon be here. The young men ought to learn to graft; it will be a source of pleasure and profit at home, and quite a sum of money can be earned among one's neighbors. The scions should be cut now and buried in the earth, laid near the ice in the ice-house, or stood with their butt ends in the earth on the shady side of a building until time to use. To have the best success with grafting, the scion, or stick to be inserted, should be quite dormant when put in, while the tree to be grafted may be pushing into leaf. Just as the buds are opening on the tree is the time for the work. The sap is then quite active, and the union of stock and scion is sooner accomplished than at any other time.

The farmer who makes a good living out of his farm makes a success.
That there is no money in average crops is the testimony of all farmers. It is only those who make something more than average crops who come out at the year's end with a profit. There may be large crops that cost more than they come to, but these are the exceptions. Usually the large crop means greatest success in money-making.
