> Disaster Caused by Train Hands Going to Sleep-Several Lives Lost,

Bloomfield, N. J., Nov. 14.—A wreck becurred on the Lackawanna Railroad at Huntley, Union county, yesterday, morning. The engineer is reported to have been killed, and several passengers are said to be hurt. A freight train left Summit shortly after 5 o'clock bound for Port Norris. When the engine got nearly to the top of the hill a coupling pin broke, and the caboose and four freight cars went down the incline and dashed into the newspaper train, which leaves Hoboken at about 5:30 o'clock. The newspaper train was going very fast at the time. The crash betwen the two was terrific. The engineer of the newspaper train was killed, and his fireman was badly injured. The wreck immediately caught fire, and the four freight cars were burned, with their contents.

Buggies and Carriages.

Mis-Statements Regarding Canadian Importations Exposed.

In 1876 the carriage makers of the United States brought some hundreds of buggies to London, which were sold by auction on the Market Square farmers and other at prices far below what Mr. Campbell or Mr. Thompson could make them for. It was a gain to the American maker and his workmen.-London Free Press. Why don't the N. P. organs try to some arguments that will by falsehood? What say the official Tables of Trade and Navigation on the subject of carriage imports? Let us take two years under the Mac-kenzie regime—one of them the year the Free Press has chosen-and two since the N. P. got to work to "protect" the trade:

Imports. Exports. Balance. 1876 $85,291 $17.945 $67346 1878 85,429 58,409 27,020

"I am half distracted, Capt. Shandy,"] said Mrs. Wadman, holding up her tive designs of the season. The model is cambric handkerchief to her left eye of mastic colored ripped silk, lined with as she approached the door of my Uncle Toby's sentry box; "a mote-or sand-or something-I know not what, has got into this eye of mine; do look into it-it is not in the white."

In saying which Mrs. Wadman edged herself close in beside my Uncle Toby, and squeezing herself down upon the corner of his bench, she gave him an opportunity of doing it without rising up. "Do look into it," said she.

Honest soul! thou didst look into it with as much innocency of heart as ever child looked into a raree showbox; and 'twere as much sin to have hurt thee.

If a man will be peeping of his own accord into things of nature, I've nothing to say to it

My Uncle Toby never did; and I will answer for him that he would have sat quietly upon a sofa from June to January (which, you know, takes in both the hot and cold months) with an eye as fine as the Thracian Rhodope's beside him, without being able to tell whether it was a black or a blue one. The difficulty was to get my Uncle Toby to look at one at all. 'Tis surmounted. And-

I see him yonder, with his pipe pendulous in his hand, and the ashes falling out of it-looking-and lookingthen rubbing his eyes-and looking again, with twice the good nature that ever Galileo looked for the spot in the

In vain! for, by all the powers which animate the organ-Widow Wadman's left eye shines this moment as lucid as her right; there is neither mote, nor sand, nor dust, nor chaff, nor speck, nor particle of opaque matter floating in it. There is nothing, my dear paternal uncle! but one lambent, delicious fire, furtively shooting out from every part of it, in all directions, into thine.

If thou lookest, Uncle Toby, in search of this mote one moment longer thou are undone.

An eye is, for all the world, exactly like a cannon, in this respect, that it is not so much the eye or the cannon in themselves, as it is the carriage of the eye-and the carriage of the cannon; by which both the one and the other are enabled to do so much execution. I don't think the comparison a bad one; however, as 'tis made and placed at the head of the chapter, as much for use as ornament, all I desire in return is that whenever I speak of Mrs. Wadman's eyes (except once in the next period), that you keep it in your fancy.

"I protest, madam," said my Uncle Toby, "I can see nothing whatever in

"It is not in the white," said Mrs. Wadman. My Uncle Toby loked with might and main into the pupil.

Now, of all the eyes which ever were created, from your own, madam, up to those of Venus herself, which certainly were as venereal a pair of eyes as ever stood in a head, there never was an eye of them all so fitted to rob my Uncle Toby of his repose as the very eye at which he was looking; it was not, madam, a rolling eye-a romping. or a wanton one-nor was it an eye sparkling, petulant, or imperious-or high claims and terrifying exactions, which would have curdled at once that milk of human nature of which my Uncle Toby was made up; but 'twas an eye full of gentle salutations-and soft responses-speaking-not like the trumpet-stop of some ill-made organ, in which many an eye I talk to holds coarse converse, but whispering softlike the low accents of an expiring saint-"How can you live comfortless, Captain Shandy, and alone, without a bosom to lead your head on-or trust your cares to?"

It was an eye-But I shall be in love with it my self if I say another word about it. It was my Uncle Toby's business .- Selected, "Irish Humors," Lawrence Sterne.

One-Third of Next Year's May be Done by the Street Railway Company

At Less Than Three-Quarters of the Present Rate.

An Investigation That Did Not Pan Out Market Rents to be Raised - Is the Proposed $50 Transient Trader's License Unlawful?

There is a fair prospect of the city getting at least one-third of the street vatering done next year at less than three-quarters of this summer's rate. No. 3 committee also counts on a great saving in water. At last night's meeting of No. 3 committee the following letter was read from Manager Carr, of the street railway company:

"The London Street Railway Company is prepared to make a contract for a period of not less than five years for sprinkling the streets upon which for sprinkling the streets upon which our tracks are laid. Ald. Powell read a communication from the city engineer suggesting that owing to the low rental, any repairs thought necessary in the market buildings be done by the tenants.

"I think the idea is all right myself," said the chairman. "A man who rents a cheap house or cheap store should make the repairs himself. Ald. Weld-But I don't think we

Ald. Powell—I went with the engineer this week and looked at the posts. We decided to remove them and place sheet iron around the posts to keep horses from eating them through.

The bottom had fallen out of Ald. Pritchard's charges, but he went on: "Well, that don't clear the market clerk in not properly attending to his business.

favor of that suggested by the mayor, and moved by Ald. Skinner. The sub-committee was instructed to recommend an increase of rent, graded as they think proper.

TAXING TRANSIENT TRADERS. Ald. Powell explained that when the bylaw authorizing the increase of the icense fee of transient traders to $50 a day was sent to the solicitor, he thought the word "day" a clerical error, and substituted "year." Ald. Garratt, which had been suggested by the mention of wood. The members present were: Powell (chairman), Mayor Little, Ald. Garratt, Ald. Weld, Ald. Skinner, Ald. Pritchard, Ald. Ardill and Clerk Bell.

THE ONLY HELP.

A Victim of Bright's Disease for Many Years—Cured by Dodd's Kid-ney Pills.

Neepawa (Special), Nov. 11.-Mrs. T. H. McKee, formerly of Listowel, came here as a last resort. Had suffered ten years with Bright's disease. Reported to be past help and dying, her reappearance on the street in apparent good health was a pleasant surprise. The explanation given was that her little boy had insisted that she should use Dodd's Kidney Pills and prophesied that they would cure her. She says: "From the first few doses I began to feel better, and after taking four and a half boxes, I say it with heartfelt gratitude, I am perfectly cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only medicine in the world that has ever cured a case of Bright's disease at such a stage.

A SCHOOL QUESTION IN ENG-LAND.

Canada is not alone in having a troublesome school question. In England also they are growing hot on the subject of religious instruction in the schools, and the aggressive attitude of the clergy of the State Church in support of "voluntary" as against "board" schools has called forth very determined protests from the Nonconformist bodies. The Church people are demanding a more liberal allowance of public funds for the voluntary schools, and the Nonconformists are protesting strongly against any such aid.

By a unanimous vote the Congregational Union has resolved to resist any further endowment of sectarian schools out of taxes or rates, and has declared for such an extension of schools boards as will bring unsectarian schools within everybody's reach. The foremost champion of the body, Dr. Joseph Parker, argues that when we teach what is national we can have national money, but when we teach what is denominational we must support individual beliefs at individual expense. To this, however, Cardinal Vaughan answers that he only asks to be relieved, in whole or in part, from the teaching of secular subjects.

The champion of the Wesleyans, Hugh Price Hughes, urges that rellgious teaching can be given in board schools on the basis of a common for services in their own chapels, they a British sportsman, for a taining them in the State churches, feat, and if he believes he has not had Fisher Unwin, Paternoster Row, Lonregards religious instruction in the first good opportunity to prove his

the position of that democratic body dishonesty. Has the noble lord lost his was very strongly put by two or three head? speakers. Rev. Mr. Bloomfield, of Coventry, argued that there never would be fair play for free church life while there was a sectarian monopoly of elementary schools in rural England. There are 9,000 small parishes in England, with a population under 1,000, he said, without any school board, and where the children are compelled by law to attend denominational schools, whatever may be the convictions of their parents; and four-fifths of these schools are managed by the incumbent in the interests of the State Church. "Under the present system, out of every pound spent on the denominational schools, the denominations find about 3s 6d," continues this body. "But Northwest strike a flowing well? if the archbishop's proposals become law, that 3s 6d would be practically cation would be free to them, yet they ish and American statesmen entertain- the stuff was stolen, and that it was would still have absolute control of it. ed the same lofty sentiments and ex-Our answer to these intolerable pro- pressed them as fearlessly as he, the posals is that £3,600,000 a year to irre- union of the Anglo-Saxon race, to comsponsible managers who boycott our mand universal peace, would be near repeople from the teaching profession alization. and prevent unsectarian schools being opened in the rural districts is far too much. The working out of this poiicy was illustrated by Mr. Williams, the lifelong friend of Spurgeon, who referred to a case at Lower Darwen. where 147 Nonconformist children out of a total of 152 had been forced into & Church school. The position of the Baptists was unanimously asserted in a resolution offered by Mr. Williams, which demanded that the school board system should be extended to every part of the country, board schools placed within easy reach of every family, scholars and teachers equally treated in all public schools, and all such the end. The course was about six miles in length and extended over the country east of the cricket grounds and finishing at the cricket club house, taking the first man in about 40 minutes to cover the distance. A most lu-dicrous sight was presented at a large swamp, which was crossed, where every one was compelled to walk knee deep in the black mire, and some of the unfortunate ones even deeper than this. One of the hares (McEvoy) was caught by Hugh Niven about a mile and a half from the finish, but Cleaveland finished four minutes ahead of the first hound. The finishes were made in the order below: 1, Cleaveland; 2, Hugh Niven; 3, McEvoy; 4, Tommy Atkins; 5, Frank Reid; 6, H. Kerrigan; 7, Bert. Screaton; 8, Geo. A SERIOUS CHARGE

Against an Unmarried Woman Living Near Owen Sound.

A Jury Say She Is Responsible for the Death of a Barnado Boy-Ellen Findley Under Arrest.

Owen Sound, Nov. 14.-The little village of North Keppel, or, as it is better known here, Big Bay, and vicinity was thrown into a state of intense excitement last Sunday morning when it became known that George E. Green, an innocent, simple Barnardo waif, about 16 years of age, had died the night previous in the house of Ellen R. Findley, on lot 42, con. 25, of the township of Keppel, and all sorts of ugly rumors were set afloat. Miss Findley is an unmarried woman about 40 years of age, of very masculine appearance, and who bears an unenviable reputation in the neighborhood. Ellen will not allow her father or any of her friends or relatives to interfere in any way with the management of her farm, which she has worked, with the assistance of the deceased and a little girl named Mary Brown, who have been living with her during the past summer, she doing the ordinary work Gaudauer's Challenge-Other Sporting ing, mowing, harvesting, etc. In fact, of a man on the farm, such as plowrumor says there is not a man in that part of the country who would care to pit his strength against her.

Early on Monday morning Coroner Cameron and Provincial Constable C. C.Pearce started for the scene of the fatality. A jury was summoned and viewed the remains and a post-mortem was ordered.

Ellen R. Findley was the first witness. She deposed that the boy came to her place in May last and had been nothing but a trouble and a nuisance ever since he came, although she fin-ally admitted that he had often milked six cows morning and evening, and carried the milk about half a mile to the house; that he had drawn wood get. She had never struck, beat, or abused him in any way. She could not account for the appearance of the body, which was covered with wounds, bruises and ulcers from head to foot. Grand Transformation in the Old City Hall.

Flowers, Music, Lights, Cafes, Grot- Indeed tos and Booths.

A May Day in the Middle of November -Ladies Who Are in Charge of the Affair-Last Night's Programme.

The staid old City Hall has undergone some wonderful transformations in its time, but never has the metamorphosis been so complete or so captivating as the present. For sweet (organized) charity's sake, the hall has been changed into a veritable flower garden. Outside the chill winds of November whistle; inside the air is heavy with the perfume of fragrant flowers, and the atmosphere is as enchanting as a sunshiny May day. Everywhere there is the subdued rippling laughter of young ladies in picturesque oriental and occidental costume, who deal out coffee and tea, bon-bons and flowers from enchanted booths; everywhere there is the low hum of conversation among the groups of visitors, who are vaguely wondering whether the scene is, or is not, real, and above all is to be heard delightful strains of music. The scene is pretty in daylight; it is doubly so at night, when the brilliant lights shed a refuigent glow over everything, forming shady nooks, where charming tete-a-tetes may be held, and making visible the smallest and most properties. unobtrusive blooms. The northern booth is a leaf from far-off Japan, and here the heavy-headed chrysanthe-mums appear to raise their crowns above the level of their companions in proud superiority, for are they not natives of Japan? Everything here is in keeping with the nature of the representation. There are queer dragons of shapes and colors that would have given old St. George a succession of seven fits; there are Japanese rugs, Japanese ornaments, Japanese decorations, Japanese costumes, and, it is whispered that one or two of the young ladies, in order to make the semblance more complete, had actually acquired a few phrases of Japanese lingo! The ladies in charge are: Mesdames Robert Burns, H. C. Paterson, S. N. Sterling, T. Savon Weld Misses Carling ling, T, Saxon Weld, Misses Carling, Ethel and Kathleen Hutchinson, Re-

They Are

That's what the people are saying in reference to the big and varied shipment of New Fall Tweeds now on sale. "Indeed they are cheap," only vaguely expresses the situation, but the half has never yet been told in our ads. Were we to go into detail and even briefly describe the annually for each pupil. merits of one-haif of the seventeen hundred yards of the very desirable Dress Goods just to hand, you wouldn't read it. Not you. You would want to come down and see and examine for yourselves anyway. A great many people have done so

While the beauty and bigness of the stock creates a wondrous surprise in the mind of the beholder, the LITTLENESS of the price creates a surprise still more remarkable. But that's our way of doing business. Large quantities of goods can be sold at close figures, and we have the large quantities. We have bought all one manufacturer had.

$2 50 Buys a Suit

Any piece in our big show window goes into your hands if you place $2 50 in ours. Just the same, it's not a fair exchange, as we've sold the same quality of goods for $1 a yard. But the advantage is yours. These goods are all 54 inches wide, and five yards will make a full pattern dress. Don't delay about selecting. You know as well as we do that the pick of the stock belongs to those who come early. It is worth a good deal to get just what youv'e been looking for. Don't let some one else get it.

Building Badly Scorched-A Lamp Exploded and Caused the Fire-Four Runs in Twenty-Four Hours.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening the city firemen received an alarm from a South London box, making four runs inside of 24 hours, two of which were from No. 6 ward. The scene of this fire was the large frame store at in the day, but sold out, causing an easy market. Liquidation is beginning in December, and may cause some the corner of the Wortley road and Craig street occupied by Mr. W. Ramsay. A portion of the building was rented by Messrs. Stein & Young, fur-niture dealers, and it was in this portion that the blaze originated. Shortly after 5 o'clock Mr. Young was in his shop and had removed the glass to light a small table lamp, when the flame ran down the wick, causing an explosion which scattered blazing coal oil in every quarter. The fire was beyond Mr. Young's control almost immediately and the department was summoned. Indications were at first that the building would have to go, as flames were shooting from the roof and the interior was burning furiously in many places. The smoke was dense, and for a time prevented the firemen East Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 14.-Cattle from reaching the seat of the fire, but after an hour's hard work the blaze was extinguished. London. Nov. 11.—A better feeling prevailed in the live s'ock mrkets today, and va ues, on the whole, were a trifle firmer for both cattle and sheep. At Liverpool States cattle were quoted at 10½ to 11c, and at London choice Canadians were 10c, and sheep. 11½ to 12c.

Mr. D. H. Elliott, live stock and meat salesman, of Liverpool and London. writes as follows: "The trade here for sound heavy horses has somewhat brisker, at last week's quotations, good vanners, perfectly sound, selling very freely. Trammers, if anything, are bringing rather better prices. Pitters, about 14 to 144 hands high, have been much sought after. French chunks have been in request, and met with a ready sale, blood ones being of no use, or anything that looks like blood; nothing but workers, and they must have plenty of hair and bone about them. They cannot be too low to the ground, nor too thick or heavy, and are wanted, like little cart horses, from 14 hands high, the prices realized for that class being from £24 to £25. There is a demand for some fancy carriage horses with plenty of quality about them, nice and fresh, which have been realizing from £50 and upwards. There is no inquiry whatever for small drivers at present. "Marking Horses—Horses that are marked with tags generally arrive here with the t gs torn off, which makes it very difficult to distinguish the different horses, and it would be a distinct advantage if shippers would stamp them neatly on the forefoot. Marking them under the mane is objected to by buyers on this side. -Abraham Waucaush, an aged Indian from the Muncey reserve, was this morning brought before Judge Edward Elliott and adjudged insane. Great Naval and Military Activity in Russia.

Five of Her Warships Sent to the Scene-Meanwhile the Massacres Continue Britain Has Twenty Ships On Hand.

Constantinople, Nov. 14.—There is very little change in the situation here since this morning. The Italian fleet is on its way to Salonica Bay to join the British fleet of about twenty warships already there. The French fleet is expected there shortly. The representatives of the powers, as a result of communications with their governments, have had another informal meeting at the French Embassy. When the three squadrons unite, and Sir Phillip Currie, the British ambassador, returns, some decided steps upon the part of the powers may be anticipated. News received here today from the district of Van records fresh massacres of Armenian Christians there. The Kurds of Van are said to be attacking and pillaging the Armenian villages, and the Turkish officials are reported to be powerless to preserve order.

A telegram made public today says that a massacre of Armenians had been commenced at that city, but, according to the Porte, order has been restored there. CHAPTER II. It was a garden deep in the heart of Provence, Provence the fair, Provence the intoxicating, Provence of the Provencals, neighbor of Languedoc and Dauphiny; that region redolent of the traditions of poet and troubadour, of the court of Love and Beauty, of Blondel and his lion-master, of the dear, prolix, impossible, inconsequent ro-mances that drove Don Quixote mad, but whose flavor, like a drop of attar, has been found sufficient to perfume half the more modern works of fiction. It was a garden innocent of the chilling and formal science just coming in-vogue in France under the auspices of Le Notre, the impress of whose style is still to be seen, not only in the gardens of Versailles, but all over France, and even England; a garden left very much to nature, who, sweet wealth of color and perfume, of riotous bloom, of glowing sunlight and alluring shadow, of food for every sensuous capacity of eye and ear, and that subtlest of senses, the sense of smell, enough in this one garden to gild all Switzerland with a charm her grandeur has hever attained.

The place was oid and irregular, and succeeding generations of Montarnauds had left the impress of their taste in now a dense mass of evergreen form-ing a background to a great clump of gorgeous bloom; now a fountain, again an arbor, a winding labyrinth leading to a hidden nook of shaded and perfumed rest; again a broad, glowing expanse of massed flowers, geranium, salvia, calceolaria, hydrangea, dahlias, everything that is positive and imperious of color and form, all weltering in the thick yellow sunshine that seemed to sink into every pore like wine into the lips of a thirsty man; around these lay borders of pansy and mignonette, and all that is fragrant and unobtrusive, and ready to lend perfume to the beauty of their soulless neighbors; and anon broad ribbons of tulip-beds, and trellises where passion-flower and jasmine and scarlet cypress climbed tumultuously over each other to the very topmost hold, and then waved their long slender arms hither and you in the effort to grasp at something more. the Angel of the Anunciation bears, their milk-white chalices powdered with the gold dust of promise; liles of the valley at their feet; lilies from "Mamzelle! Mamzelle Valerie! Ma Japan, that land still locked in mystery, yet ginging from her half-opened door this or that object of art and wonder to the French who stood knocking, louis d'or in hand; lilies of Palestine, Solomon lilies, flaunting beneath the Provencal sun robes whose marvel was selected as the type of gorgeous apparel by him who was born among their glory. And the roses! at the roses we pause; for he who has not seen Provence reses in Provence knows not the meaning of those five letters, knows not why the rose is queen of flowers, knows not why the rose is the type of love, knows not why the dear old mediaeval legend changed Bohemian Elizabeth's hidden charity to roses rather than to another flower. The color, oh, the impossible color! for the heart of the summer pulsated in its glow, the soul of the sun burned in its intensity, the deep rich light permeated every vein of the petals sumptuous in their substance, and marvelous in their size. No, no! we cannot describe the roses of Provence; but they are there, and you may see them; pass by

Paris and go, if you are wise. Besides the evergreens, the olive, the pepper trees, the ilex, the flowers and the labyrinth, there were the birds who made bridal journeys from all the rest of France to this garden; the butterflies who floated over the flower beds like blossoms detached and drawn upward by the sun god; and there was Valerie! Valerie, who all day long flitted through the garden, embodying flower, and bird, and butterfly, and Provencal summer, all in her own mignonne figure; Valerie, who loved them all, and was beloved by all, and had feasted all her life upon their beauty, and whose beauty was a feast and daily food to them. A slip of a girl, hardly 17; lissome as a passion-flower her clear skin pale and dark with the passionate colorless glow of the South, her purple-black hair hanging in two shining braids from a head fit to be modeled for Hebe; her smooth, low forehead based by two straight black brows, beautiful and threatening as a just-defined thunder cloud; her great lustrous eyes full of slumberous passion, full of the joy of happy girlhood, full of pride and courage, and with a power of pathos nascent in depths which the birds and the or dreamed of. But her mouth!—there man, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale was perhaps the keystone of Valerie's agents. beauty. Yes, the petals of the roses were velvety and pulsating with fire, were of a color impossible to define or reproduce, were fragrant and delicious to the touch; but the rose leaves were not alive, they did not curve and pout and suddenly part in dazzling smiles above little pearls of teeth; they were not the lips of Valerie, nor could they by movement produce those little wells of mirth and caresses and possible tears, the fossettes, the dim-

Francois said to himself as he stood Thora's Only One Recommendation of the state grapes she pulled from the vine above her head, while she sat throned upon a seat formed in the lowest branches of an oak near the borders of the gar-den. Flecks of sunlight pierced the foliage and lay like golden ornaments upon the whiteness of her dress, glowed in the ruby bracelet upon her arm, and lighted the dusky masses of her hair to purple sheen. Yes, it was her mouth, that mouth whose coy kisses had grown so rare within the last year, but had become so much more precious than the soulless caresses of childhood Last night, when they quarreled and were reconciled, she kissed him twice,

All Grocers.

"Well, Monsieur le Baron," broke in the ringing voice of Valerie, "are you envying El Moro his feast, or are you composing a Latin poem for your tu-tor, or have you gone to sleep? You stand there leaning against that tree, and looking at me as if you never had seen me before.'

"Perhaps I wish I never had," replied Francois a little moodily, as he sauntered across the space of sunlight between the cork tree and the oak, and stood leaning against the latter, his arm resting on the footstool of the rustic seat.

"Perhaps you-there, run away, mon Moro; run and catch a cricket to take the flavor of the grapes out of your mouth—perhaps you wish you had never seen me, Francois? And why: She leaned one cheek upon her hand, as she stooped smiling toward him, and the other hand rested lightly and caressingly upon his head. He caught it in his own, and, raising his face, looked long and ardently up into hers. And it is a pity some great painter had not been hidden among the roses to catch that picture, and make himself immortal by it; for the Baron Francois was nearly as handsome as a manly man should be, and had inherited from his Norman mother all the high and haughty characteristics of her race—the cold, clear eyes, blue prodigal, in this her beloved summer land, had pleased herself by heaping thin-lipped mouth, and tawny golden hair. His figure, too, differed largely from the delicate elegance lapsing into sensuous roundness of his Provencal sires, and was tall, large-boned, powerful and soldierly, like those companions who followed William the Conqueror to the field of Hastings. But just now the steely eyes were dim with tender tears, and the severe mouth was tremulous with loving words; and the hand fit to wield a battle-axe was clasped in timid constraint over the tiny fingers

> "Because, if you do not love me, and love me always, you will be the mis-fortune of my life."

> "What, I, little I? I who can never learn the fine things you and the abbe try to teach me? Litle, frivolous, childish I, who am fit for nothing but to play with El Moro, and pelt Mademoiselle Salerne with roses, and tease old Marie's life out, and sing chansons to my guitar, and—"
> "And make the joy of my poor life,

Valerie." "I again? What! poor little I, the present joy and possible misfortune of life to so very grave and learned a youth as Francois, le Baron de—" "Francois, the lover of Valerie!" interposed the young baron, catching in his own the other little hand and covering them both with kisses, beneath whose breath a dusky crimson crept Lilies were there, queen lilies such as slowly up into the girl's cheek, and

"Mamzelle! Mamzelle Valerie! Ma petite! where, then, do you hide? Answer, for the love of the Virgin! Mamzelle, I say!"

"Now what does Marie want, do you suppose?" exclaimed Marie's nursling, in a tone of comic vexation. "Has she found another egg in my canary bird's nest, or has the cat turned over in her or-oh, horrors! has she discovered the fearful rent I made in my new dress last night, by running against a rose bush in the dark? Now that was your fault, Francois, and-"

"Here she is! I was just going to propose escaping into the labyrinth; but it is too late. Well, Marie, here is Mademoiselle Valerie."

let, Samuel L. Sumner, Silas E. Curtis,

The book evidently served as a minute book, as on the following blank leaf is an evident account of Lodge Mount Moriah's inception. It reads: "Grand convention assembled in due form, Westminster, January twentythree, one thousand eight hundred and three, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-one. Present our brothers: Abner Everett, W.M. (pro tem.); Cyrus Allen, vice-president (pro tem.); Nathan Tomlinson, moderator (pro tem.); Thomas Fisher, secretary (pro tem.); Calvin Martin, treasurer (pro tem.); Ura Schofold, tyler (pro tem.) Ira Schofield, tyler (pro tem.).

"At two o'clock the installation of the following officers commenced in due form: Bro. Charles Duncomb, W.M.; Bro. Wm. Putnam, S.W.; Gardner Myrick, J.W.; Henry Merrick, Sec.; Joseph House, Treas.; Joshua Putnam, S.D., Bart. Swart, J.D.; Wm. A. Sumner, Tyler."

on the following page appears the names of Joshua Fish, Eb. Hartwell, Samuel Smith, Caleb Burdick, Aaron Kinney, and the words, "Moriah Lodge removed from Westminster the ninth day of December, 5,834, to London, as per constitution, page 49."

Then appears the officers of the lodge on Dec. 27, 1834; Wm. Putnam,

W.M.; Gardner Myrick, S.W.; Wm. Niles, J.W.; E. B. Hartwell, Sec.; Silas E. Curtis, Treas.; Samuel L. Sumner, .D.; Abel Sumner, J.D.; Dudley Mer-Tyler; Joshua Putnam (?), Joseph Flannigan, Master of Ceremonies; Levi Myrick and Thomas Putnam, Stewards. Other names appended not already mentioned are: John Cole, Allan Cam eron, Benjamin Bartlett, Henry Hull, John Brown, Andrew McCormick, Jas. Farley, Rufus Colton, Willard Wheeler Philo Bennett, and Elijah E. Duncomb.

As well as being to some extent a minute book, this old and musty little paper-covered pamphlet was evidently used by the treasurer, as such words as terwards Toronto). The type is pica size, and the paper printed on one side only, the blank side being reserved from the original text, and additions.

Article first sets the meeting for the last Tuesday preceding full moon, at tyler was exempt from dues, and was allowed a fee of half a dollar. The initiation fee was $20, $2 of which had to be paid when the name was proposed. They had a way of securing the attendance of members in those days fining absentees one "York ng." Some lodges would add shilling." greatly to their wealth if the practice were still in vogue. They had also another way of keeping funds in the treasury in those days, when any member indebted to the lodge to the extent of $1 was not allowed to vote or be eligible to any office. The degrees yards range, while out hunting were paid for in installments, not in a lump sum on initiation.

The little book which Mr. Gillean now possesses throws light upon the early history of the lodge that has hitherto escaped observation. Mount Moriah, or Maria (it is spelled both ways in the book of bylaws) was the first Masonic lodge of the district, and available records hitherto have only gone back to 1829, eight years after the institution of the lodge. The lodge was No. 773, English Register, or No. 20, Provincial Grand Lodge Register, The lodge must have been a kind of a regimental one, as it traveled from place to another, meetings being held at places owned by the members and at inns. In 1846 the charter of the lodge was surrendered, and the majority of the members joined St. John's, 209a, now the oldest lodge in existence in London.

THE ELBE LOCATED.

But She Is Too Far Down to Be Reached by Divers.

The North German Lloyd Company sent a professional diver to try and lo-cate the wreck of the Elbe, and to report about the possibility of getting at bodies, which may still be held in the wreck, and also to attempt to extricate what valuables might be gotten at. He what valuables might be gotten at. He reports as follows:

"We set out on the wrecking steamer Elise and hovered for almost two weeks around the spot where the Elbe sank. She lies listed over to the port side at a depth of over 40 fathoms (240 feet); favorable results could therefore hardly be expected. In spite of this hardly be expected. In spite of this we tried our best to descend to the vessel, but among six professional divers, two Germans, two Frenchmen, and two Englishmen, not one could dive deeper than 170 feet. I attempted it daily for six consecutive days, but when I got to the depth mentioned, which was the greatest depth reached by any of those on board, the pressure of the water upon my body was so powerful that it seemed to me all the air was pressed out of my body. It was difficult to breathe; the ears began to pain, and bleed, and a numbness seemed to penetrate the head, which I concluded was the beginning of waning consciousness. Since, with a of consciousness would be fatal, the attempt to reach the Elbe had to be abandoned. From the deepest point I reached I could see the hull of the Elbe as through a fog. She is listed to the port side, and the masts and smoke stacks could plainly be seen."

He began by bitterly deuouncing ex-General Master Workman Powderly and other former officials for attempting to disrupt the order. He declared that these efforts had failed, and that while the order had decreased in membership it was today united and harmonious.

FIVE DROWNED.

New York, Nov. 14.—Five lives were lost this morning by the capsizing of the steam oyster boat James W. Boyle, near Rockaway Inlet. The men on the boat were the Captain Peter McDonald, jr., 28 years old, of Princess Bay; Engineer John Finn, 38 years old, of Rondout, N. Y.; deck hand John Newbury, 40 years old, of Tottenville, S. I.; John Carroll, deck hand and cook, 40 years old, of Hoboken, N. J., and Walter B. Wood, constable, of Oyster Bay, S. I.

Trespasses

There is a great deal in the papers nowadays about Dodd's Kidney Pills. Scarcely a daily paper, or any paper, in fact, but you may read the particulars of some one who has been at death's door and It seems that at last there is a medicine that has been designed and advertised for a single purpose, and it answers expectation. Dodd's Kidney Pills is for the kidneys, and every day it becomes more and more certain that all diseases result from impure blood and kidney diseases.

The doctors know this to be true. They understand that the blood must be as pure as distilled water. You can't make water pure with drugs.

It is nonsense to say you can. You must filter it. And so must the blood be filtered, and that is what kidneys are for. A grateful old farmer who had been cured at a hopeless stage of diabetes said: "People ought to buy Dodd's Kidney Pills the same as groceries, and never be without them in the house."

The moment any of the symptoms are felt, such as chills, fevers, creeping sensations, backaches, headaches, etc., then you ought to take a few doses of Dodd's Kidney

They are so much like the stitch in time. It is wonderful how like a "shoulder to the wheel" they are for tired kidneys. Except sitting in a draft, over eating and over-drinking has more to do with poor kidney work than any other cause. Then Dodd's Kidney Pills affect us like forgiving our trespasses.

What is the cause of sallow, sickly skin, nervousness, depression, lack of ambition, hysteria, sleeplessness, Bright's disease, diabetes, paralysis, female troubles?

The plain, unvarnished truth is, the kidneys are failing or have failed to do blood filtering work. They want the help, the cleansing that only one medicine in the world can give, that is, Dodd's Kidney

It is said that a dog in Mulliken Mich., possesses and uses daily a full set of artificial teeth. The dog is very old, and is a family pet. A LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson Cameron, states: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than a half-bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with re-luctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I dcubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

The why and the wherefore of the fight on the market on Tuesday between Colborne Griffiths, of London township, and John Hall, of Simcoe street, were investigated by Police Magistrate Parke this morning, and Hall was assessed $3 for the privilege he took of punching his opponent. The row started in a very simple way. Griffith drove on to the square, and after tying his horse to a verandah post, fed him some oats in a box. Hall's pacer was standing a short distance away, and when the box was placed on the ground pulled up and shoved his nose into it too. Griffith made a kick at the intruder, whereupon Hall threatened to kick him. There was a doubt in Griffith's mind whether or not he could do it, and that doubt caused the fight and the arrests. [Hall's lawyer tried to persuade the court that Griffith received his injuries by rub-bing his face on a plank walk, but P. M. Parke thought Hall's fists were re-

Misses Patterson and Steele are pianists of exceptional ability, the former's playing being characity, the former's playing being characterized by a strong, vigorous technique, while the playing of Miss Steeele is beautifully delicate. Miss Maud Ferguson displayed a splendid soprano voice. Mr. D. Arnott made his first public appearance, and sang in an ex-cellent manner. He possesses a rich tenor voice. GILMORE'S BAND.

If anyone is to take the testimony of the press as given in recent utterances upon Gilmore's Band-the new Gilmore's under Victor Herbert-he is bound to consider it the most remarkable organization of its kind this country has ever had. For instance, one noted musical writer asks per-tinently, "Why does the management con-tinue to call it Gilmore's Band' when it is far more a huge orchestra?" There is more of the orchestra than the band about it. -William Butler, an old London boy, is Victor Herbert has brought it up to a standard wherein it is a dangerous and powerful rival to the best of the great orchestras. Its playing is equally finished here in grand concert on Tuesday next. In the old days Gilmore's Band was the first and really the greatest military band of the country. The new Gilmore's Band of the present, under the famous Victor Herbert, is said to be as much finer in every way than the old band as that was finer than an ordinary regimental band.
