On motion of Ald. McCoig, seconded by Ald. Scane, the deputation from the Historical Society was heard.

J. S. Black stated that the sunken gunboat had been discovered up the river. The Historical Society had been formed and permission obtained from the Government to own and raise the boat. It had been brought down to the Park. The society had spent $250, the amount of their stock and about $25 more. It would cost in all about $400 after the boat was placed on the Park and a shed built over it. Nearly everyone would like to see this historic relic preserved, as it was closely associated with Canadian history. By burning, it had been saved from General Harrison, afterwards President of the U.S., and the boat would a tract American visitors. Its appearance and structure told that it had been built for speed and war. The society, in addition to the boat had, 170 six pound cannon balls, 27 twenty-four pounders, ten forty-two pound shells and a collection of cannister and grape shot. All these would be turned over to the bity and could be placed in the building with the boat. If the relic were not taken care of it would be carried away by relic hunters processed.

piecemeal. For a reasonable sum the city could provide a relic of the first order. N. H. Stevens said that he was glad to follow such a worthy here as J. S. Black. He said that the Historical Society had undertaken the task of finding the relic, not knowing whether they would be successful or not. The work had been managed successfully and as cheaply as pos-sible. Now that the Society had taken all the risk and secured the boat, all the city had to do was to step in and take the old warship off the hands of the Society. It would be a valuable asset of the city and attract people to Chatham. It also prove an educator of the Maple City children. Council asking for a grant of $500 for the First of July celebration.

It was the opinion of the Council that two weeks was too short a time in which to get up a celebration and the request was not granted.

The reports of the various contait-tees, as already published in The Planet, were adopted last night, with the exception of clause 5 of the Board of Works report, which read as follows: & D. R. R. be allowed to place the Binder Twine spur by commencing between the main line on Colborne street and then leading back to the south and that in so doing the railway assume all responsibility and shall plank the main line on Colborne street and the Binder Twine spur between the rails to a distance of at least 50 feet inside of the property line on the east side of Adelaide street.

The Mayor said that this clause gave the railway company the street from one block to the other. They had plenty of room for the track on their own premises and he wouldn't small. allow the railway to have the street.

Ald. Scane-Do I understand that the spur will not connect with the present track but that a new one will be laid along Colborne street?
The Mayor-That is it.

Ald Pritchard—The Board of Works looked into the matter carefully. The spur couldn't be trun from the main track without spoiling the tar macadam and, if this were attempted the Fanning Mill Co. and the property owners would at once issue an in junction and stop the work. The Council had promised the Binder Twine factory a spur and the Board of Works destred to keep this pro-

Ald. Marshall-I don't care for th

Lake Erie R. R., and you can tear i off the street if you want to. But the binder twine factory is a good thing for the city and I want to help, it in every way I can. When an in-dustry does come here you boot it out of the city instead of extending the right hand of fellowship. You promright hand or relievants. For promised the factory exemption from taxes, free water and a spur, and I for my part, shall give them this. If the Lake Eric R. R., won't grant the spur unless they charge four or five times for it, and the binder twine Co., can't say give the Lake Eric the privilege they ask. If the railroad is using us as a go between we can't help it The railroad say that the spur wou not pay them to put it down without this concession. And, if they put it in for nothing they must have some concession. It is not the railroad bu the binder twine factory we want to help. I took $20 in stock to help i but I don't care for that, and wi sacrifice the stock for the spur. It is the Binder Twine Co., that we want to oblige. I don't care one fig for the

ANOTHER BIG STRIKE.

Yesterday morning five thousand trackmen employed on the Canadian Pacific Railway quit work because the company has refused to accede to their demand for increase of pay amounting to about 2 ocents a day all

At present it would be imprudent to express an opinion as to whether the grievance of the trackmen is great erough to warrant them in quitting work in a body for the purpose of compelling the company to come to their terms. It is a very serious step which the trackmen have decided to take. It may result in great injury, not only to the C. P. R., but to the country as well, for it may obstruct the main artery of traffic in the Dominion and cause widespread loss to shippers and importers, and inconvenience and danger to the travelling public.

No doubt the trackmen feel that they have a grievance, but have they exhausted all the resources of negotiation before resorting to the extreme course of striking? It is certain that the communications sent by the strike leaders to the company's officials are are not as diplomatic and conciliatory as could be wished. Their tone is of a character to raise the aggressive spirit of the company.

General Manager McNicholl commits himself to this statement: "Our track force are receiving generally a higher rate of pay than is in effect on any other railway on this continent." We don't know whether this claim can be substantiated; but it is made by a responsible official of the C. P. R., over his own signature. If it be true, we do not think that public opinion in this country will support the trackmen in the aggressive action which they are taking. At any rate, the statement, if not true, should have been publicly disproved before the strike was ordered.

THE DUEL AND THE JOURNALIST.

There was a time when the code duello as practised in the outskirts of Paris, and, one may add, in the costume plays of the American stage, was the exemplification of the most rarified essence of politeness to be found in any kind of human intercourse, comments the Hamilton Post. But alas! these are degen- scope. grate days. The duel seems to have fallen into the hands of two of the might benefit ethers besides the least reputable classes of Parisian graduates of Johns Hopkins Universociety - its counts and its journal- sity. It is sad to have the duel robbed of all its picturesqueness, but the one consolation is that nothing could better hasten its extinction.

THE SEX THAT KEEPS SECRETS.

Lately we have been reading our fill of the Aurora robbers, and have had many details of their past careers. Their features were known to us through newspaper portraits, their antecedents were made public, and it may be said that the police found out about them what justice needed to know, while the reporters have not failed to gratify public curiosity in regard to these men.

But what of their women friends What we know of the women in the case is pretty much guess-work Strange that the sex which cannot keep a secret should baffle investigating detectives and reporters.

Let us do the sex justice. The women cannot keep the little secrets because they do not want to, but the big secrets they can and do keep forever. Man doesn't tell the little secrets, because he forgets them, and prides himself upon not telling what he doesn't remember; but if he has any secrets that he ought to keep forever locked in his bosom, he tells them; tells them in bursts of drunken confidence to the chance companion of his debauch; tells them, perhaps, in sentiScreen Doors and 1 Windows

INDISCRIMINATE READING.

In an address given by President Gilman of Johns Hopkins University to the graduating class he deplored what he called "an era of Carnegie-too much reading." He gave the students this advice:

The publishers are constantly putting forth new attractions in the field, and the reviewers excite our appetites. The death of Hon. A. S. Hardy re moves a well-known figure from Canadian public life. Mr. Hardy was a keen politician, and as a cabinet member brought much natural ability and a well-trained legal mind to bear on the framing of provincial legislation. He was Sir Oliver Mowat's right-hand man, and though he did not shine so much as a leader as he formerly did as the trusted lieutenant of that veteran statesman, he put through some good measures during the period he directed the fortunes of the Reform government at Toronto. Notable among these was 'the placing of an embargo on logs, which has done much to foster the interests of Ontario which were formerly at the mercy of the Michigan mill owners. This was a measure which the opposition had advocated for years previously ,but to Mr. Hardy was due the credit of being convinced of a good thing by his political opponents. Unfortunately the state of his health prevented his retention of the office of premier, a post which he had earned by long and faithful service to his party.

Court of Revision.

The Municipal Council of Harwich met in court of revision on the assessment roll of said township for 1901, on Saturday, May 25th, at ten a. m., to hear and determine appeals against said roll or any part thereof. Members all present, and having prescribed to the necessary oath for qualification to sit as members of such court, proceeded to hear the complaints which had been filed with the clerk.

After all the evidence was taken, it was moved by Young and Buchanan, that as Mr. Hutchison and others have shown that there are inequalities in the assessment roll of the township of Harwich in various localities, and this is also apparent to the assessor, resolved that the assessor exercise his authority under the statutes and reconsider the assessment of said localtities.—Carried.

"The rate last year," said, the alderman, "was 25 mills, and judging from the amount of money the Council have already expended this year, it is not probable that the rate for the present year will be any small-

"The expenditures so far this year are equally as great as they were at this time last year. "Will the expenditure this year be

'No, I don't think so," replied Mr. Scane. We hope to make the rate a few mills less than last year, but this will all depend on the estimates hand-ed in by the different committees. "I thought that the Parks and Cemeteries committee would not spend as much as they did last year, but they have already expended $847 on improvements and they now contemplate putting down a couple of wells in the cemetery, so that their expenditure will easily reach $2,000.

"The Board of Works have up to the present time expended a little less than they had at this time last year. "The estimates from the Property ommittee will be about the same as

A WILL CASE.

The case of Knight and others against Frances Augusta Scott came on for argument this morning before His Honor Judge Belt. The proceeding was commenced by the said Frances Augusta Scott filing a caveat against the granting of pro-bate of the last will and testament of Charles Wesley Knight, late of the Township of Chatham, bearing date the 5th Dec., 1900, in which she was not remembered, and attempting to get up and establish a prior will dated the 19th Dec., 1899, under which she was one of the executors and also a beneficiary. The evidence was taken on the 27th and 28th day of May and on the 17th day of June, May and on the 17th day of June, and an adjournment was granted until this morning for argument. It was held that the undue influence, over and incapacity of the testator as set out by the defendant Scott could not be sustained and that there were no suspicious circumstances to warrant the proceedings taken by the defendant, and an order was granted to the plaintiff for probate of the last will and testament with costs against the defendant. J. B. Rankin, K. C., for plaintiff; M. Houston for defendant.

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beauti-ful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Greenhouses receive such words of commendation every day. Tele-phone No. 181.

Unabated. Officers Groves and Dodson on Night Drive -Will Take Time, but Eventual Recapture Assured: As yet no news has been received of the trio of desperate convicts who escaped from Castle Mercer on Sunday afternoon. The vigilance of the authorities, however, continues unabated. It is now generally believed that the fleeing criminals have safely reached States, but the services of the Amrican officers have been secured and will be kept up unceasingly until recapture results. Sheriff Gemmill has thoroughly organized the efforts of the officers and is sparing no trouble or expense

A NIGHT DRIVE.

Tom Groves and James Dodson drove through to Wallaceburg Sunday night in quest of the runaway jail birds. They reached this city as the bells were ringing seven o'clock yesterday morning.

P. C. Groves gives an interesting account of his trip. "We threaded the concessions for three miles back of Chatham," said that Maple City officer, "but we could get no trace of the jail jumpers. We then went to the home of Siddals' uncle but we found that the family were bad friends. It was late when we reached there and I can tell you that the milk and cookies we were given tast My ribs had begun to knock together inside from hollowness and I felt as gaunt as the Sarnia tunnel. The wind, too, was cold, and we had no vests. The food we got at the relative of Siddals renewed

We had a great time on the road between here and the Glass Town. We enquired from every one we met if they had seen anything of the men we wanted. I never knew that to many young fellows in Chatham township had girls. Nearly every rig we met contained a young fellow and his girl, but they proved useful in giving us information. We were stopped at Wallaceburg by two men who were guarding the bridge, and I guarding the bridge, and I guess they thought they had the men sure when we struck the bridge. But when we proved that we were seekers not skippers, the Wallaceburgers treated us well. Jim and I were go-ing to watch Babbit's Orossing in the the St. Clair, but we learned that this place was already guarded by two

ABOUT STITCHING.

Stitching is to be very elaborate.
You remember how carefully all stitching was once made to follow the seams. One row of stitching each side of a seam was the acceptable tailor-made finish. Then there came three or four rows. Now there is stitching, but rarely is it put on in rows. In place of the plain row stitching there is a trimming made out of the machine stitch. Machines that will sew a chain stitch are sought and the stitching is done with the chain upon the right side. A very coarse silk, Corticelli Stitching Silk, is chosen and the stitching Silk, is chosen and the stitching is done with a big needle and a long stitch. It is put on to follow, a pattern, and the most elaborate designs are car ried out in the machine stitch. Great scrolls are used for bordering seams. Up the skirt they go in such a way as to form a panel, and, around the foot, they are carried, making a deep

Mr. W. E. Hamilton, B. A., of this sity, received this morning an autograph letter from General Baden-Powell, dated from South African constabulary headquarters.

The former had sent him drawings of a system of field signalling invented by the late Sir W. R. Hamilton whem a school boy some 80 years ago, and the General says "the signalling system which you suggest appears to be almost identical with that which we use in semaphore sig-nalling, and which all my officers and men have for use in the field just as you suggest."

THE SMART SET FOR JULY.

The publishers of The Smart Set declare the July number of that magazine superior in many respects to all previous numbers, and the opinion is which readers will doubtless concur. There is not a heavy line in all the 160 pages, but the number scintillates with smart humor that is as exhilarating to the heated brain as a rollicking ocean breeze. The literature of blood and of mud has no place in The Smart Set, but all its fiction is of that vivacious and enchanting character so hard to write, so easy to read, so rarely found in periodicals and so refreshingly enjoyable to the and so retreshingly enjoyable to the amusement-loving world. As a magazine of real entertainment The Smart Set has no rival.

AN HUMBLE

She felt toward her bushand as she had never felt before. Often and often she had experienced a feeling of dislike for some trait of his character, but it was not until now that she felt that she hated the man himself. There had been many times when his absence was a relief to her, but it was never until this night that she had wished with all her heart that she might never see him again.

That James Melvin had much to do with her feelings she could not help but admit, although the admission caused her face to burn with shame The knowledge that another man, and that man at that, could be the means of making her despise her husband was bitterly humiliating, and she wished with all her heart that she could dispise Melvin as well; but, alas, that was something she could not do.

While she sat there Sim came into the room. It was late, and he had walked two miles out into the country and back. He was restless and uneasy and far more unhappy than he had ever been in all his life. Mrs. Mann's prophecy, coupled with the words Louisa had spoken, had made a much deeper impression on him than he would have admitted to any living soul, than he even liked to admit to himself.

That there was something lacking in his married life he knew only too well, and he had known it from his wedding day, but never until now had it occurred to him how serious that lacking might be. That Louisa did not love him as a wife should he had been long assured, but the possibility of her loving another man was something that had never crossed his mind until this day, and the bare thought of such a thing fell on him with a crushing blow. "Great God!" he cried aloud as he tramped the lonely country road. "Such a thing cannot, must not, shall not be! It would kill me. O God, it would kill When he entered the room, Louisa did not look up, and when he spoke her name she paid no attention to him. He waited a moment, then asked her what was the matter. "Nothing," she replied between her

"Nothing." "But it is somethin, Loueesv. You know it is. Won't you tell me what?"

She shook her head. "Did you hear what Mary Mann said this evenin down there on the street?' he asked. She shook her head again.

"She said you didn't love me an that if ever you got to know that stranger you'd love his little finger better than you love my whole body. Do you know what I told her?"

"Well, I give her a settler, I guess, for once. I said, 'Miss Mann, you are a-lyin when you say any sich a thing as that, an if you was a man I'd whup you till your hide wouldn't hold shucks.' Them's the very words I said to her, an I meant 'em too." He paused as if expecting his wife to speak, but she remained silent. He hoped that she would be pleased with him for speaking so strongly in her defense, and he felt hurt when she took no notice of his words. Presently he went on, saying: "Them was hard things you said about me down there today, Loueesy, an I'd never 'a' thought you'd 'a' done

it. I guess, though, you didn't mean it, did you?" "Do you want me to tell you a lie?"

she asked in turn. "No, of course not."

She arose and swept out of the room, leaving Sim dumb with astonishment It was the first time in her life that she bad ever shown such spirit as that, and he did not know what to make of it. Still, he was more rejoiced than angered by her words, for he reasoned that they proved conclusively that she had not been struck by Melvin's appearance and that there was no probability of Mrs. Mann's prediction coming true.

Almost light hearted he went out on the street and walked up and down in the cool night air. He had been walking so for a quarter of an hour when in passing a house he heard his name called softly. He stopped and looked around, and a woman stepped out of

NEWEST STYLE OF BEGGING.

It Is to Go Up to a Man In a Restau rant and Ask Him For Dinner; "The greatest exhibition of nerve I ever saw," said the man who eats in an up town restaurant a good deal, "was put up the other night by a friend of mine who happened to dine with me very unexpectedly and whom never expect to see again. "He did not look like the genteel nanhandler you meet on Fifth avenue with a hard luck story and a tale of other days. As he walked into the restaurant on Thirty-fourth street where I was dining no one would have thought that he was going to do what he did. His clothes, to be sure, did not fit the place, but they had been good ones when they were new. He was middle aged.

"I was just preparing to devour my steak when he came rather hesitatingly toward my table . When he reached t, he pulled out the vacant chair opposite me and sat down. Then I saw him take up the card and noticed that his fingers shook a little, although he had not been drinking. In a moment he touched me on the arm and in a quiet voice said:

"'I beg your pardon, but would it be too much to ask you to buy me something to eat?"

"For a minute'I didn't speak. I was so surprised at getting such a request in the kind of a restaurant I was in that I didn't know what to do. Then I looked down the aisle and saw my waiter heading for my table, the usual smirk on his expansive countenance. "'Give your order quick.' I said as the waiter came up. Then I went on with my dinner.

'Give me a beefsteak rare, fried po tatoes, lettuce, then some black coffee and a piece of mince pie," said my guest in a voice that seemed strangely composed. After the waiter had gone the man put down the dinner card, looked at me for a moment and then said: 'I suppose you think I'm a good one, but I'm actually starving. I haven't had a thing to eat since yesterday noon. I've begged, borrowed and been tempted to steal even to get something to eat, but it was no use. I had to do something or go plumb crazy. You think it's funny, I know, that I struck this place, but if I'd have struck a beef stew joint or anything under this it's dollars to daughnuts that the kind of man that eats in them would have turned me down hard.' "The man was ravenously hungry. When he got through, the platter was as clean as I ever saw one. He never tried to continue the conversation While the waiter was getting his coffee I saw him figure up the price.

"'It's going to be $1.25,' he said. "'I knew it.' I said, and when I thought none was looking I passed the money under the table. When he got it, he said, "Thank you,' and I think his voice kind of shook. He took the check from the waiter and without another word went out, paying at the desk as

WHAT COLOR TELLS IN HORSES. Araba Relieve the Chestant Is the Strongest and Swiftest.

Whether or not a horse's color is an indication of his breeding and powers of endurance is a much disputed question. The color theory doubtless originated among the Arabs, for centuries famous as horsemen. Its exponents say that it is the result of constant observation and growing child in perfect health; it nourishes the body and keeps the bowels regular. Malt Breakfast Food being predigested, is readily absorbed by the system, quiets the inlong study, but many competent horsemen deride it as a superstition.

Be this as it may, the chestnut is the Arab idea of perfection. In this connection it is significant that the majority of flamed and irritated stomach and successful race horses have been chestnut All hildren thrive on Malt Breakfast in color. Chestnuts also seem to have carried off the greatest number of honors in the show ring. The Arabs, like the dictionary, make but little distinction between the chestnut and the bay and contive land said: "Ireland's cup of missiders the latter color about as desirable ery has been overflowing for years as the former. The dictionary defines bay as a shade of chestnut. Horses of a rich seal brown are good The mother who would be horrified to look upon, but among the Arabs rarely fetch a large price, as they are considered lacking in hardihood, prone to sickness, with little or no endurance. Roan horses mits her to enter that unknown land are by many regarded as very hardy, but of womanhood without counsel or caution. Then, in utter ignorance, all horsemen do not concur in this opin ion, and, as the race horse trainers express it, the roan color indicates a cold cross somewhere in the breeding.

whole future life. Dr. Pierce's Favor-The black horse is, in the American ite-Prescription has been well named mind, suggestive of the funeral, which "God-send to women." It corrects possibly accounts for some of the prejrregularities and imparts such vigorudice against it. A black horse is a ous vitality to the delicate womanly organs, as fits them for their import-ant functions. Many a nervous, hysnightmare to his groom, for his coat shows the slightest speck of dust or dirt, and a little gust of wind often spoils terical, peevish girl has been changed hours of hard grooming. When a black horse has been exposed to the sun and use of "Favorite Prescription" has es-tablished the sound health of the orweather for some days, his coat fades to a rusty, washed out color.

White horses always suggest the circus. Their coats are even more difficult to keep clean than a black horse's and are seldom in presentable condition. It is most disagreeable to drive behind a gray or white horse during shedding time. Then one's clothing is sure to be covered with clinging hairs that are very notice-

Piebald and skewbald horses attract too much attention to the rider or driver to be considered quite the thing and, like the white horse, remind one of the saw dust ring. A mixed coat is a pretty strong indication of low breeding.

There is an ancient tale of a band of Arabs being pursued by their enemies which sums up their theory about a horse's color. Among the fleeing band was a man with unusually keen eyesight, Dear Sirs,-Within the past year I know of three fatty tumors on the head having been removed by the ap-plication of MINARD'S LINIMENT and from time to time he would describe to his leader the horses ridden by the "What manner of horses do they ride?"

"Black horses." "Then there is no need of haste." At the noon halt the leader again ask-ed, "What manner of horse do they ride

"Bay horses." "Then we must ride harder." A few hours later the leader asked

"They ride chestnuts." "Then we ride for our lives."

'Are they horsed again?"

One of the most pleasing features of last season's entertainment at the Grand Opera House was the Lyceum Course of high-class concerts at popular prices. | Full houses received enhusiastically every number on the course of Mr. Cairns was so encouraged by the patronage accorded the venture that he is now offering for next season what he claims to be the biggest dollar's worth ever offered in any course in the country. The course for 1901-1902 will com-prise seven numbers and the season ickets will as last year, be one dollar, with ten cents extra for each enter tainment for reserving seats. Anyhis chances on a seat is enabled to hear such attractions as the famous 'Fadettes" for less than 15 cents. This hardly seems credible, but the policy of a large number at a low price rather than a small number at a high price has made it possible, and local concert-goers reap the benefit. We are pleased to learn that last season's course was a success financially and that, judging from the progress being made in the sale of next year's tickets the subscribers' list will
