THE IMPORTANT POINT— in Buying Drugs is Quality.

Quantity really makes but little difference.

If You Want to Get Well, Or if You Want to Stay Well, use drugs that have real worth and use them with qualities that make them effective. We have drug knowledge as well as drug stock. 27 years experience in Lunenburg.

A LITTLE BIT OF SUNSHINE.
Goes along way. Your smile is sunshine, but it is a long way off when you are troubled with dyspepsia.

We Have Dyspepsia Tablets
That will fix you. With them we give directions for the diet, and it is very important that you follow them.

Perfumes—A real delight just like the flower.

TOOTH POWDER.
Many injure the teeth by neglecting them. A few injure them by brushing them with a powder that eats the enamel of the surface of the teeth. The proper tooth powder will not only clean the teeth, but furnish them with an antidote to some of the poisons that reach them through the food.

TOILET ARTICLES.
Keep off chaps—or cure them—if they have already come—by the use of Rose Glycerine Lotion. Keeps the skin as nice in winter as in summer. Even if washed in hard water, and a 15 cent bottle will last a long while.

TOILET SOAP.
You should be very particular about choosing your Toilet Soaps. Only those of the purest make should be used. We have an immense variety of English, French, German, American, and Canadian.

Get Up! Get Up!
It's time for business? The tired worker needs something to stir him out in the morning. These Alarm Clocks work all night to be sure you'll awake on time.

Jewelry—Pleasing and not expensive.

WATCHES
Our Great drive in the prices of Watches continues. From one Dollar upwards. One Hundred Dollars to clear.

A Mark That Counts—
Here are things, which make writing easier, make office work more satisfactory, make school work more enjoyable.

Novels—The latest books of popular writers.

RAZORS
All the old reliable makers' goods, made of the best steel, full concave, different styles of handles and every one fully warranted. Why scrape yourself with that old hatchet, when you can get the best at this price? Only a limited supply of these here.

PING PONG PLAYERS.
Declare it to be a most fascinating game and they ought to know. You can learn the game from the directions we give free with each set of Ping Pong things $1.20 up now. From 25c upwards when our Enormous Christmas stock arrives.

BEST GRAM-O-PHONES
and Newest Records.
A fine assortment of Autographs, Accordeons, Violins and Mouth Organs Music Books etc.

"AS HIGH AS MY HEART."

Oh, grandmamma, I can't—indeed I can't! Corinne said. It is not that I am contrary, only that I am so—so insultingly tall.

Grandmamma Lawson laughed heartily—it was her way to laugh obstacles out of countenance. Don't look so tragic, Rinna, she said soothingly. Remember Mason Fairlie has not yet proposed—

But he will. I saw it in his eyes, Corinne broke in. Again grandmamma laughed. Men were deceivers ever, my dear, she quoted softly. Especially with their eyes. I know, though you are in the way of knowing the look of serious intentions—you must have had at least twenty proposals since you came out.

Twenty-seven, Corinne said, herself beginning to laugh. Do you know, she went on, Mason's inches break my heart! You see, I am rather level headed, as becomes a Lawson. I have felt what a beautiful thing it was that we two could marry and so prevent any break up in the firm of Lawson & Fairlie.

I said as much to your grandpapa when he wanted to forbid Ford Lenox the house, grandmamma answered, her eyes twinkling faintly. Corinne flushed the least bit.

Grandmamma, how could Mason permit himself to grow up so short! A scant five foot four! Think of promising in the sight of all the world to obey the man you look down at by three inches!

There are worse lacks than height, Grandmamma Lawson began. Corinne shooed her head impatiently. Not in my case, she said. I've been so strenuous about it always, said so many times over and over the man I married had to be taller than myself.

Don't decide offhand. Wait until you have known Mason six months instead of six hours. You can't deny that he has a fine face and is through-out a gentleman.

Oh, he's splendid as far as he goes! Corinne said. But, dear, dear! Fancy going through life trying to keep step with those short legs! Why couldn't Mason be tall—as tall as Ford Lenox!

Leave the question to settle itself to-morrow—'tis time you were in bed now, grandmamma said, kissing Corinne upon both cheeks. A wise woman was grandmamma—too wise to give up at once a cherished plan or to strengthen Corinne's whimsical opposition by reasoning against it. Corinne had really a heart full of romance, for all her pretense of practicality. She would end by loving Mason all the better through feeling that to love him she had sacrificed something.

Upon a day three months later Grandmamma Lawson sadly owned herself mistaken. Corinne had said No to Mason Fairlie's suit and so decisively that that young gentleman was going back to his distant home the very next day. Worse still, grandmamma was pretty sure Corinne meant to accept Ford Lenox as soon as poor Mason was well out of the way. Lenox had been at the house almost constantly of late, running in at all hours, as one assured of welcome. He was staying with his uncle, the rector, the rectory stood in narrowish grounds between the Lawson place, which was wide and handsome, and the Fairlie homestead, wider and still handsomer. The rectory's ragged shrubbery and unkempt grass made it something of an eyesore to its neighbors, but respect for the rector forbade any protest. The most that could be done was metaphorically to turn their backs to it by keeping windows looking out upon it shut and sitting upon porches which faced the other way.

Thus it happened that upon the night after Mason's dismissal the rectory got a fire from top to bottom before anybody knew. Across the street their were vacant woods. The shout of a chance passerby gave the alarm and sent everybody within hearing scurrying to the rescue. Ford Lenox and Corinne among the rest. They had been together since twilight fell, sitting in the garden seat in plain sight of grandmamma and grandpapa, though almost out of hearing. The old people had sat hand and hand, now and then sighing a little at sound of chance exclamations or Corinne's laughter, sweet and shrill—too shrill to come from a perfectly quiet heart.

They found the rectory a pillar of fire. It was an old house, almost the oldest in town, and though its brick walls were thick and stanch the woodwork was dry enough to flash up like tinder. Every open window belched smoke—the easterly side the smoke was shot through with flame. A light wind drove the flames backward from the west wing, though smoke wreaths eddied well underneath the gable, round about a loaded fan light.

The master! The master! He's up there! the housemaid cried, darting at Lenox as he rushed through the gate. Lenox groaned. His uncle, he knew had made a place in the attic for his best beloved books. If, indeed, the fire had found him there, he was doomed beyond hope. The hall was full of flame, the stairway burning. It would be madness to risk passing it except in the face of certain death. The window was narrow and there was a ladder with not a ladder about that would reach within ten feet of the eaves.

You—you must not let your uncle burn! You must not! Corinne cried. Be quick! See the smoke! He will be dead before the engine comes.

I will save him—if possible, Lenox said, dashing inside the hall. A flash of fiery smoke sent him staggering back, gasping, with singed brows and scorched fingers. You see! It is impossible! he said.

Corinne was very white, but her eyes blazed. The tree! Try the tree! she said, pointing to an elm whose branches came within a long leap of the gable window eave. Lenox stared at her. The tree! he echoed. What could I do there?

Mason Fairlie will show you, Corinne interrupted. Mason had set a short ladder at the elm trunk, shot up it and was creeping and leaping toward the window. Slender boughs bent almost to snapping, stouter ones swung perilously as he swung from one to another, but nothing stayed him. He crawled almost to the tip of the bough, grasped the window, lay along it, nipped the twigs firmly with his hands, stroked above his head, sprang clear of it, gave himself a swing and caught his feet firmly over the sill of the open window. Quick as lightning he caught with one hand, let go the elm and vanished within. A shout went up from those below. It died in suspended breath when a minute passed and he did not reappear.

Smoke! They're both overcome, Grandpapa Lawson said in a dry whisper. The coachman made to follow Mason, but grandpapa waved him back. Lenox stood like a man dazed, staring hard at the window. All eyes, indeed, were on it save Jackson's. Jackson was the Fairlie butler and had come to half worship Mason. Horse blankets had been fetched so Mason might leap into them. Jackson snatched one, wet it, flung it over his head and dashed up the steps. Something he was sure Mason was coming down them, coming burdened with an insensible figure. When they met upon the landing, Jackson flung his blanket over three heads and seized the rector around the waist, gasping. Now—all together—Mr. Mason.

Mason hardly roared. Niagara of flame seemed to roar in his ears; his heart was laboring; he had almost no breath. But down, down, he crept, never slackening his hold, clinging to Jackson as a tower of strength, but with no thought of giving up. Through an agonizing minute they fought their passage, the board splintering their feet as the flame flared and flickered at their garments, and when at last they burst into saving outer space the stairs crumbled behind them.

I found him helpless half way to the upper landing. I had to fetch him down—there was no time to go back, Mason explained when he had breath enough to speak. Lenox knelt beside his uncle. Corinne was sobbing upon Grandpapa Lawson's shoulder. Suddenly she wheeled and flung both arms around Mason, saying impulsively, If only you will let me love you, I'm ready to kiss the ground you tread.

Even though I am so short! Mason said, looking up at her through singed eyebrows. Corinne laughed happily. You are magnificent—the greatest man in the world, she said, and just as high as my heart.

The Equator Defined.
A school inspector was recently examining a class in geography. He had previously given them a short lesson, in the course of which he had told them all about the earth's axis and the Poles at the ends thereof, and that the equator was an imaginary line running around the earth. Wishing to see how much they had learned, he at length asked:

"Now boys, what is the equator?" There was a pause, and the inspector smiled triumphantly, when a fierce-looking boy growled out the answer: "The 'quator,' said he, 'is a me nagerie lion running round the earth.'"

Looks in Cat's Face and Her Jaws Lock.

Cats are responsible for the state of the jaw of Mrs. E. Leitch Cunningham, who feels her mouth fly open whenever one of that species of animal starts toward her. She was in Bellevue Hospital twice yesterday with her jaws fixed and rigid, and if another cat runs toward her to-day the institution may again have the honor of entertaining her.

It is not safe for anybody to become indignant at the very name of the furry creatures. Many a time while walking peacefully in the street has she been confronted by a cat, and been obliged to walk home speechless for the muscles of her jaw became cramped and beyond the control of her will. To the estimable woman, who has lived for forty-eight years in this world of sorrow and of cats the strange idiosyncrasy from which she suffers is no joke. She says that when she was only a girl of sixteen a cat went suddenly mad in the house in which she was then living with her parents. The creature started withing and spitting and screeching on its course through the dwelling.

The impression made was one which she declares she shall never be able to forget. She leaped to a table screaming, then her screams suddenly stopped. She realized that she was staring at the infuriated cat and that her mouth was open as if she were shouting, but not a word issued from her lips. Her jaws were tightly wedged. The cat disappeared, but the jaws of Elizabeth would not come back. She wrote on a piece of paper that she had written and was treated for the supposed attack.

Since then she has been annoyed repeatedly by a recurrence of the malady. If the cat goes about its daily affairs and pays no heed to her she can control her jaws. The moment the creature faces her Mrs. Cunningham has the attack. In vain does she try to govern the maxillary muscles. As far as she is concerned she has lockjaw, although the surgeons do not agree with her diagnosis.

Two ambulance surgeons can testify to the peculiar manifestation of hysteria to which Mrs. Cunningham is subject. Dr. Kalliwel yesterday morning responded to an ambulance call at No. 447 Seventeenth street and found Mrs. Cunningham surrounded by sympathetic neighbors who were offering her all kinds of remedies for the relief of the rigid state of the jaws. The surgeon found that several of the marked symptoms of lockjaw were absent and he manipulated the muscles in such a way that the woman soon had the use of them. He told her that she was suffering from hysteria and to the hospital.

Dr. Halliwell was surprised yesterday afternoon while passing through one of the wards to see Mrs. Cunningham sitting up in bed with her mouth wide open. He approached her and placing a hand beneath her jaw, told her that there were no cats in sight and that she had better be calm. The jaws clicked back. Mrs. Cunningham was able to leave the hospital shortly after she had regained the use of her jaws. She had been taken there by Dr. Morris, who said that it was an unusual manifestation of hysteria. He declared that a well known specialist in nervous diseases had examined the case, but had been unable to afford Mrs. Cunningham any permanent relief.

Complimentary to Whistlers.
An old farmer once said that he would not have a hired man on his farm who did not habitually whistle. He always hired whistlers. Said he never knew a whistling laborer to find fault with his food, his bed, or complain of any little extra work he was asked to perform. Such a man was generally kind to children and animals in his care. He would whistle a child lamb into warmth and life, and would bring in his hat full of eggs from the barn without breaking one of them. He found such a man was careful about closing gates, putting up bars, and seeing that the nuts on his plough were all properly tightened before he took it into the field. He never knew a whistling man to kick or beat a cow, or drive her on a run into the stable. He had noticed that the sheep he fed in the shed gathered around him as he whistled, without fear. He never employed a whistler who was not thoughtful and economical.

A TRYING TIME

IS THE PERIOD WHEN YOUNG GIRLS ARE MERGING INTO WOMANHOOD.

MARKED BY PALE FACES, HEART PALPITATION, LOSS OF APPETITE AND GENERAL LASSITUDE—HOW TO OVERCOME THIS CONDITION.

After babyhood, the most perilous time in a young girl's life is when she is just entering womanhood. Pale faces, heart palpitation, feeble appetite, and bloodless cheeks and lips. This condition may easily develop into consumption, and to prevent this—to keep the young girl in good health and strength, mothers should insist upon their taking a blood making tonic, such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Henry McIntyre, Port Dalhousie, Ont., gives sound advice to other mothers in cases of this kind. "About three years ago the health of my daughter, Martha, began to fail. She grew weak and seemed unable to stand the least exertion. She suffered from distressing headaches, and fainting fits; her appetite left her and she lost flesh. I spent much money on medicines, but they did not help her. Then I took her to a doctor, and although his treatment was persisted in for a long time she seemed to be growing weaker. I began to fear she was going into consumption. Then I took her to the specialist, but his treatment was likewise unsuccessful. Finally upon the advice of a lady friend, a doctor practicing in Chicago, Martha began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before long there was a decided improvement in her condition and the time she had taken nine boxes of these pills she had gained fifteen pounds in weight. I would strongly advise all similar sufferers to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, as her case seemed as hopeless as could be."

All weak and ailing girls and women, sufferers from backache, headaches, indigestion to work or exercise, who show by their pale and sallow cheeks that they are in ill health, will find prompt relief, bright eyes, rosy cheeks and active health in a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can obtain these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail, postpaid, at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Never accept anything else which a dealer may say is "just as good."

British M. P. Arrested in Brussels, Belgium.
Brussels, Belgium, Nov. 19.—An Englishman named James Hardie was arrested here on suspicion of his having been connected with the attempted bank robbery by Rubino, the Italian Anarchist, on the life of King Leopold.

Hardie (thru) out to be James Keir Hardie, M. P., the former chairman of the Independent Labor party and well known labor leader in England. He was subsequently released and lodged a complaint at the British legation.

Mr. Hardie threatens to make his arrest an international affair, and will appeal to the British foreign office immediately after his return to England. He says he had a postal ruminance telegraphed to him and addressed to the Maison du Peuple, and that the police, through a breach of confidence, became cognizant thereof.

After Mr. Hardie's arrival at the police station the officers asked him if he knew Rubino, and he was only released when he proved he was a member of the British House of Commons.

The Wind Did It.

"I happened to be in a Wyoming town when a city lot was put up at auction," said a Boston drummer, "and in a spirit of fun I made a bid or two. It was knocked down to me at 40, and I was wondering if anybody would take it off my hands at half that when the city marshal called on me and said:

"Look here, pard, I want to lease your lot by the head."

"What do you mean by the head?" I asked.

"Well it's the only lot in town with a tree on it and I want to use that tree when there's a hanging to be done. I'll give you $5 every time I use it."

"And about what sum can you guarantee?"

"Oh, it will run $50 or $60 a year anyhow, but if times are good 'll go $80 or $90."

"I closed with him," said the drummer, "and in six months my income was $35. Then, not hearing anything further, I wrote to the marshal, and in reply he said:

"Sorry to inform you that your old tree has blown down and that we now have to walk a man a mile to hang him."

SKY SCRAPERS SWAY.

There is a fact concerning the big sky-scrapers that most people have never encountered," said a prominent New York architect.

"To learn this lesson one must live in a high building for a time—and wait. When a strongly tempered northerly wind is abroad he will have become acquainted with a feature of the sky-scraper of which he would previously have had no idea.

"I speak of the swaying, more alarmingly so at the top itself. This is no slight and scarcely perceptible movement. I know a 26 story building, which under a heavy sway one and one-half feet and this is accounted as not unusual by dwellers in these steel-framed edifices.

"If the structure could not sway it the whole not particularly unpleasant, and high dwellers have told me that they soon become accustomed to it. The swaying implies no fault in the construction of the building, but is simply a condition which it is impossible to eliminate. Allowance is made for it in the construction of the frame, which in the modern tall building is now universally of steel.

"If the structure could not sway it would fall; it is a necessity. Almost any observatory or lighthouse may be felt to sway under like conditions, but it is nothing in comparison to the motion felt by the workers in the upper stories of a 20th century skyscraper. The motion has been known to make sensitive female employees ill, obliging them in a few cases to resign their positions for ones nearer terra-firma, where the winds that blow, pass by unheeded."

Swallows a Watch.
Quincy, Ill., Nov. 13.—Maude Lillian Berri, prima donna of "The Sultan of Sulu," Opera company, has been confined to her room at the Newcomb hotel in this city and it is understood she will not be able to rejoin her company for several days. The singer was suddenly taken ill Saturday, and considerable mystery seemed to be connected with her condition. There was a rumor that the actress had been poisoned. Since the departure of the prima donna a delicate operation of a most unusual character, performed by Dr. Henry Hatch of this city, one of the best known surgeons in the West, was submitted to a delicate operation of a most unusual character, performed by Dr. Henry Hatch of this city, one of the best known surgeons in the West.

Dr. Hatch was summoned to the hotel and found the prima donna in great distress, bordering on convulsions. After a hasty physical examination he had the actress removed to his office, where he had one of the most complete X-ray equipments in the country, and made an examination which revealed, it is said, a foreign substance in her stomach. Miss Berri was placed under the influence of ether, and with assistance of another physician, Dr. Hatch is said to have removed from the stomach of the actress her little watch, a dainty affair, not larger than a 25 cent piece.

All parties concerned maintained mysterious secrecy about the affair, even members of "The Sultan of Sulu" company refusing to talk.

However, Dr. Hatch made an X-ray photograph, which was obtained by a Whig reporter, a friend of the family, and the unusual story was thus brought to light. As far as can be learned Miss Berri admitted losing her watch the day before and a complaint was lodged with the hotel proprietor where the actress was stopping, saying she had been robbed while taking an afternoon sleep in her room. On her arrival at Quincy, Mass., Miss Berri was afflicted with nausea and convulsions with the result as stated.

Dr. Hatch is an old friend of the prima donna and stands high in the profession. His original scientific investigations and experiments have given him a national reputation.

He has absolutely refused to give any information regarding the case, but admitted that Miss Berri was brought to his laboratory and that an X-ray photograph was taken. The Manager Braden, who is Mr. Henry W. Savage's representative with the opera company, admitted that Miss Berri lost her watch and that she had found it again, but refused to give any facts about the cause of her sudden illness. The actress, it is reported by her nurse, will rejoin the company in Peoria, Ill., on Wednesday.

REJECTED BECAUSE OF BAD COLOR.
Hundreds of packages of butter are rejected each week by expert butter buyers in Canada, simply because the color is bad. The shade demanded by home consumers and for export is the June golden that which can only be produced by Wells, Richardson & Co.'s Improved Butter Color. Other colors sold by some dealers are poor imitations, and must continue to give trouble and cause loss of money to all who use them. The government creameries and schools and the most experienced creamerymen and dairymen in Canada use Wells, Richardson & Co.'s Improved Butter Color at all seasons for the production of prize butter. No mud, no impurities, never droppage and clear. All druggists and dealers.

One night a judge, a military officer, and a minister all applied for a night's lodging at an inn, where there was but one spare bed, and the landlord was called upon to decide which had the best claim out of the three. "I have lain fifteen years in the garrison at A," said the officer. "I have sat as judge years at B," said the judge. "With your leave, gentlemen, I have stood for twenty five years in the ministry at M," said the minister. "That settles all dispute," said the landlord. "You, Mr. Captain, have lain fifteen years; you, Mr. Judge, have sat twenty years; while this old gentleman has been standing for the last twenty-five years, so he certainly has the best claim to the bed."

In Self Defense.

Wife—That's just it. I want to go so as to make sure that they don't gossip about me.

Meaningless and Dangerous Returns.

Canada is prosperous! This is the oft repeated message of the government's subsidized press.

Such evidence is accepted as convincing? It is a true measure of success that the country is growing rich as the result of the collection of duties on goods which should be made in this country?

If not, we must be prepared to rejoice that from 1897 to 1902, our imports from four foreign countries increased in this alarming way:

Table with 2 columns: Year (1897, 1902) and various countries (United States, Germany, France, Great Britain) with their respective import values.

We find that the increase in our purchases from the four leading sources apply to which we look for manufactured goods reaches the enormous dimensions of $87,354,508.

It is no benefit to us, therefore, that foreign factories are busily engaged in supplying our wants, and the rapid increase in our customs revenue and the value of our imports are only indicative that such is the case.

SILENT AS TO REASONS.

In a late issue of the "Progress and Enterprise" the editor expressed the opinion that the so-called "Bond Blaine Treaty" recently arranged by Mr. Bond between Newfoundland and the United States, would be beneficial to the fishermen of Lunenburg.

Lincoln's Protection Argument

AFTER TOWN INTERESTS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Editor

Dear Sir—As hydrants (4 in) have been installed in our town, and the Fire Department are putting in other new, and necessary apparatus besides the steam engine, I have written the Board of Underwriters at Halifax, advising them that Lunenburg is not fully equipped in the matter of properly fighting a fire in any part of the town, should such an unwelcome event occur.

As we were promised a new rating on fire insurance in the event of the town taking over the water system, I requested the Board to send an Inspector immediately and have the town re-rated. I am in receipt of a reply stating that their Secretary had left on Monday, the 17th inst., for Liverpool and Liverpool, and from those towns would proceed to Bridge-water and Lunenburg.

It will likely take him until the latter part of December to complete his inspection here, and we will likely have new fire rates on or about January 1st, which I trust will be very much lower than at present.

I have also been corresponding with the purchasers of the Lunenburg Ferry at Sydney stating that it had been intimated that they intended removing the works to some other town and asking them if such was really their intention, if they would not reconsider the matter, and be induced to continue operations here, as the plant was well installed, and I thought the field here just as good as in any town in the Province.

In answer to my communication they state that they are likely to run the works here for some time, and if they can see their way clear, will be pleased to continue the business as heretofore.

I have again written them, and hope that any efforts will be successful in having the industry remain in Lunenburg, as it is the only thing we have outside of shipbuilding and fishing, and we should do our best to induce the Company to operate here.

Respectfully Yours,
ALLAN R. MORASH, Mayor

Herring Industry.

The herring fishery at Bonaville Bay and Bay of Islands promises to yield as large a harvest as in past years. Last season Bonaville Bay yielded to the extent of $33,000, and Bay of Islands over $100,000. Not alone do these places benefit in the annual harvest, there is not a place between Bay of Islands and Channel but feels the benefit of the herring fishery. By St. George, Codroy and Channel have a number of vessels and men engaged in the industry and all will do well. Many comfortable homes and lucrative business places have been built up on the West Coast from the returns of the herring fishery.

The news from the herring resorts is more encouraging since our last issue. The fish are in Middle Arm in great numbers and good catches are secured. All the vessels in the Arm are taking cargoes and some will be loaded by the end of the week. The American vessel Independence, Capt. Ostick has about a thousand barrels and will probably be the first to get away to market. The Urania Capt. J. Potpas, Pierona, Capt. S. Brake have several hundred barrels.

All others are doing well. Several of the captains came into Biscoe Cove on Saturday and wired Biscoe coast parties who have been awaiting reliable news before sending swiftness. About forty American and Canadian vessels will be taking herring here this season and many of them will make two or three trips.

Washington, November 21.—The Isle De Luzon, one of the Spanish galleons captured at Manila by Admiral Dewey, is on route to New York with 48 of her men in irons. The vessel, which has been doing guard duty in the Philippines for about three years, started recently for New York, proceeding from Manila via Singapore. Advice received at the war department indicate that on the morning of the 10th, among the machinery of the boat shifted badly, creating a panic among the crew and causing a substantial mutiny. The result was the placing of 48 of her crew in irons. After her capture the Luzon was repaired at Hong Kong, and it is said that repairs were not properly made.

Boston, November 21.—George L. O. Perry, who is awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charges of murdering Miss Agnes McPherson and Miss Morton, is employing his spare moments in a rather elaborate way. To kill time, besides reading, writing by his mother, lawyer and spiritual adviser, Perry is knitting "longy" sweaters. Always having been a serious young fellow, Perry was getting nervous and ill at ease under the confinement, and the jail officials, being told by his mother that he was quite a hand at fancy work, it was considered a good idea to let him work in his cell.

Verdict Against Ship Troop.

In the Seattle admiralty court recently Judge Hanford awarded Albert Louis, a sailor of the ship Troop, of St. John, $3,000 damages against the vessel because Captain Kenney had refused to put back to Fusan to land the sailor when the latter had sustained fractures of his arm and thigh. The captain himself insisted on performing an amateur surgical operation, thereby, according to the finding of the court, acting in a most brutal manner and giving a striking example of man's inhumanity to man. The excuses made by the captain were declared by the judge to be transparently false and puerile. The Troop sailed from Fusan, Korea, and when but six miles out, Louis fell from the main upper top-sail yard to the deck below, fracturing the bones of his left arm and right thigh and suffering severe bruises all over his body. Instead of returning that short distance, the captain himself applied splints and bandages and then had the injured man stowed away in a narrow bunk in the fore-cabin. Here he lay until 25 days later, when the Troop rounded Port Angeles, and even then he was not landed for five days, the captain keeping him ill by the so-called "cook" Port Townsend marine hospital. Then it was found necessary to perform a very severe operation on Louis to undo the mischief caused by his being kept in the fore-cabin. As a result he can never perform the duties of an able seaman, and is deprived of his means of livelihood.

TREATY LIKELY TO BE KILLED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The New-England treaty is likely to meet the same fate as other reciprocity proposals. It is believed here that the Senators from Massachusetts and Maine will form the nucleus of an opposition, Maine having a slightly larger fishing interest than Cape Ann. In Massachusetts these senators will probably deem it more consistent with protective principle to safeguard the interests of producers, which may be individually larger, than of consumers, whose interest though greater in aggregate, is so distributed as to be unfeeling. The value of Newfoundland's trade under reciprocity to the markets of Boston is another one of those advantages so distributed as to be unfeeling. The senators have not yet read the treaty, but they look upon the old Blaine-Bond compact with disfavour, and this one is so much like it that they are not likely to have it called by the name rather than the Bond-Hay treaty. It is believed that the fraternity of protective interests is such that the New England senators would have no difficulty in summoning enough support to their cause to prevent a favorable two-thirds vote. The Californians have offered a tariff high enough to offset the disadvantage of their long railroad hauls in reaching the Eastern markets, compared with the waterborne fruit of Jamaica, and they will readily unite with any protective interest here. Enough States have concerns of this kind to form an alliance, apparently strong enough to dominate the situation.

CRANKS—AND CRANKS.
 *There are people, here and there who are cranky on the temperance question—people who have gone off on a tangent and can't think of anything else, just as there are men who are half-cracked on the tariff question, or the money question, or on anti-imperialism. Some minds are so constituted that they can't be stirred by any great question without becoming a little bit warped by the heat of their convictions. But that doesn't lessen the importance of the question, does it? There are women in this world, so I have heard, who carry the question of clothes to an absurd and ridiculous extreme. They live, move and have their being in fashion plates. They think of nothing else. But that doesn't prove that we all ought to abandon clothing in toto, does it? Neither does the fact that an hysterical woman or an emotional man occasionally gets carried away by temperance enthusiasm argue that the rest of us should shut our eyes to the evils of intemperance, or allow the dive-keepers and brewery interests to run our municipal, state and national politics.
 I know all your

STOCK ARGUMENTS.
 You say whiskey will let a man alone if he will let whiskey alone. But it's a lie. I can show you a dozen men among my acquaintances who have been made wretched and unhappy by whiskey, though they never drank a drop of it as a beverage in their whole lives. I have seen and so have you—fathers and mothers' heart broken by drunken sons; I know of a cryman driven from his church, his life wrecked by an inebriate wife; you have seen families degraded and brought to poverty, children robbed of food and care, wives sent to the wash-tub, sisters disgraced and shamed, all by whiskey—and they never tasted the stuff. And yet you tell me that whiskey will let a man alone. A man cannot make a beast of himself without doing some damage to society, and society owes it to itself to protect itself from that which makes men beasts.
 *You say if you want to make a hog of yourself and drink yourself to death, it's

NOBODY'S BUSINESS.
 Isn't it somebody's business if you choose to die of smallpox or cholera? Doesn't the community take prompt steps to prevent you, if possible, from spreading either disease? Can you go out into the street and commit suicide slowly and deliberately before a crowd of people? It is somebody's business, and it is society's business that you do not rob it of your worth by killing your soul and mind and body with alcohol. The talk about 'meddlesome Matties', the injunctions to 'mind your own business', come with very poor grace from a set of men who are ruining the business of a large portion of the community every day in the year.
 *There is no other vice which brings so surely or so quickly its punishment as does intemperance; there is no vice more insidious; no vice more tenacious, and yet

PLAY WITH FIRE.
 The state licenses men to sell the stuff, our 'best people' keep it on their sideboards, and some highly respectable citizens always carry a good supply of cloves in their waistcoat pockets. It's a mysterious thing, isn't it?
 *And yet, I believe the temperance cause is advancing. My pet temperance society, or my particular hobby may not be the instrument chosen by God for this great work, but, surely, there is a stronger sentiment for sobriety and temperance in this country to-day than ever before. In good society men are not expected to drink unless they so desire. In business men are decidedly expected not to drink, and every year sees the list of employments extended in which drinking is prohibited by unentimental corporations and employers. The temperance idea grows. A young man does not have to drink to escape ostracism. I believe sound common-sense, good business, and ordinary decency will finally open the eyes of the people who are not particularly concerned about the world's spiritual affairs. Let's hasten the day."

 Johnstone Murray, in Rain's Horn.

Chamberlain's Hope for South Africa.
 London, Nov. 19.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain received a great ovation at Birmingham, where a farewell banquet on the occasion of his departure for South Africa was given in his honor. Members of all parties joined in the demonstration. Mr. Chamberlain was accompanied by his wife and his son, Austen Chamberlain.
 Responding to a tremendously enthusiastic welcome, the colonial secretary paid an affectionate tribute to his wife (who was Miss Mary Estlin of Salem, Mass.), who, he declared, "had sustained him by her courage and cheered him by her sympathy. He had found in her his best and truest counsellor." Referring to his approaching trip, he said it was to be a matter of business and not a mere parade. He could not expect that all the bitterness in South Africa would die out, but he could say this for the government, that it would relieve all suffering.
 He said he was bound on a venture, with a possibility of failure. The government's desire is to make South Africa one united nation, united in heart as well as in name. Greater differences have been healed, Canada being an instance. High Commissioner Milner still retains the confidence of the government, Mr. Chamberlain said, and expressed the hope of seeing the representatives of every political section in South Africa, by which he could learn more in three days than in a month's study of despatches. He said he believed he would be met half-way, and would gain the friendship of the King's new Boer subjects.
 After Mr. Chamberlain's speech, a freewill procession and a fireworks display were made. The streets were packed with thousands of people, who at one point broke through the barrier, causing slight injuries to a few persons.

Thousands of Women Are Kept in Suffering and Many Die Owing to False Treatment.
PAINE'S CELYRY COMPOUND
 Never Fails to Banish Disease and Re-Establish Lasting Health.
 Thousands of women are kept in sickness for months and years owing to false treatment and the use of worthless medicines, and we are inclined to believe that Milton thought of this class of almost dying women when he said:
 "The angelic guards ascended, mute and sad."
 The common sense treatment of today for weak, run-down and suffering women, is Paine's Celery Compound. This marvelous medicine is spoken of in every part of the civilized world, and men and women of all classes find a new life from its use. A glorious example of the curing powers of the great compound comes from Winnipeg, Man.; Mrs. H. Harbour writes as follows:
 "A month ago I was very sick and happened to see one of your publications, in which I read of others being cured. I concluded to try Paine's Celery Compound myself, and I now thank God for the wonders it accomplish for me. I was suffering from heart disease, kidney trouble and general weakness, and some days was not able to stand without experiencing great pain. Since I used the compound I am able to get about the house and work, and can now eat anything put before me."

DON'T.
 Don't spare the rod if you expect to be obeyed.
 Don't trouble about trouble that doesn't trouble you.
 Don't expect to find uniformity of opinion on any subject.
 Don't condemn a thing until its inefficiency has been proved.
 Don't be ungallant—look at the faults of a lady with closed eyes.
 Don't get discouraged because you are unable to understand everything.
 Don't try to force in a knowledge of man—he always has an open seat of his own.
 Don't hit a man when he's down—it's sadder to throw rocks at him when he's up a tree.
 Don't marry for money, but always for love—but if a good girl has money there's no harm in trying to love her.
 Don't spread an ill report about your neighbor unless you're positive it is true—and don't flaunt it if he's bigger than you.

Women Rule a Town.
 HADDAM, Conn., Nov. 15.—Kansas has had a varied experience in the management of the State's affairs, but none has been so remarkable as the city government of this place, which is the first city in the United States to elect by a direct vote of the people a full city ticket composed entirely of women.
 Haddam is located in the centre of the great wheat belt, and the surrounding country is dotted with fine houses and barns, which bespeak for it much prosperity. The city enjoys a fine country trade, and the present incumbents who manage the government of the city have made it a model place in which to live.
 The mayor of the city is Mrs. E. N. Veder, a woman of strong personality and highly respected. She manages the office with entire satisfaction.
 The Council is composed entirely of women, and during their term of office have done much to beautify the place, having improved the walks, driveways and city parks.
 Mrs. Fannie Leibel is Police Judge and holds court in her parlor. She has a nice home and a family, but her household cares do not interfere with her official duties.
 Mrs. M. C. McNeill is Treasurer. She was sentenced to twenty years imprisonment for the attempted murder of her wife. He was also sentenced to five years for shooting and wounding Mrs. Hamilton. Both terms are to run concurrently. McNeill will be taken to Dorchester to-morrow morning.
 In the case of Thomas McNutt who sued the Western Assurance Company for loss by fire in 1901 which the company contested on the plea of misrepresentation by McNutt of the value of the buildings insured, a jury to-day declared that McNutt's valuation was not materially incorrect, the difference being $955 against $2,000. McNutt's insurance was for $700 and the company's adjusters placed the loss at $900, although the buildings were entirely destroyed nothing remaining except the cellar and cellar walls.

INCREASED WAGES.
 PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The Pennsylvania railroad company announced an increase of 10 per cent in the wages of all employees of the company east of Pittsburgh and Erie and now earning less than $200 a month. The advance became operative Nov. 1.
 This increase which was decided upon at a meeting of the directors will, it is estimated, affect about 99,000 employees.
 The various division superintendents were notified of the directors' action and notices announcing the advance were immediately posted.
 The cost of the increase to the company will be heavy. Estimating the average wage rate per month at $60 a man the additional expense to the company would be $354,000 a month, or about $4,250,000 a year.
 First Vice Pres. Fugh said the advance was due to the increased business of the company and also to the fact that living is at present more expensive than heretofore. He also said that many employees had not had their wages adjusted for some time and as they had worked faithfully for the interests of the company it was considered only just that they should receive some substantial recognition of their services.
 Robert Pitearn, assistant of Pres. Cassatt, said the announcement of the advance was entirely voluntary.
 JERSEY CITY, Nov. 14.—Just as the words: "I do" pronounce you man and wife" were about to be pronounced Monday night by Justice of the Peace Edward Markley, in his office at Jersey City, a constable put a sudden stop to the marriage by announcing he had a warrant for the arrest of the bridegroom.
 The bride fell in a faint and there was a great commotion among the friends who had been invited to witness the ceremony. The bridegroom took the interruption coolly and went to Police Headquarters with the constable, while the bride was taken weeping to her home by her friends.
 The bridegroom is Wabslaw Bergovich, twenty six years old, of No. 551 Henderson street. He is a car inspector for the Erie Railroad Company. The bride is Miss May Marinaska, twenty years old, who lives in the same house with Bergovich. The warrant for the man's arrest was issued Nov. 8 on complaint of Miss Antonia Wyzanski, of No. 565 Grove street. The complainant, who is about twenty years old, alleges breach of promise of marriage.

RESTORES THE DYING.
 CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A new discovery in relation to the prolonging of human life has just been announced by Prof. Jacques Loeb of the University of Chicago, who is preparing to take a position at the University of California.
 Salt and water, the "elixir of life" discovered by Dr. Loeb two years ago to be efficient in making turtles' hearts beat again with rhythmic throbs, has been found to be a powerful restorative for dying animals, and the scientist is a step nearer toward the goal of prolonging human life indefinitely.
 The experiments of which Dr. Loeb told his class were made by Asst. Prof. Edward P. Lyons in the laboratories at the university. While Lyons' experiments were carried on with the idea of ascertaining the properties of solutions of sodium and calcium as a life restorer, the announcements made by a Russian specialist some time ago regarding experiments made with the heart of a dead child are said to have been the immediate motive.
 The experiments can be taken from a baby after death and the regular heartbeat kept up temporarily by immersing it in a solution of salts," argued Dr. Lyons, "why cannot the heart of warm-blooded animals be restored by an injection of salts into the veins if done when the animal is at the point of death?"

RESTORES THE DYING.
 LONDON, Nov. 20.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Wellington, N. Z., cables that the eight survivors of the steamer Elgamito who were rescued from a raft by the British survey steamer Penguin admit that while their minds were unaltered by drinking the blood of their companions. The correspondent adds that the story of the survivors has caused a feeling of horror in Wellington, their action being regarded as inexcusable, as the raft was only four days and a half afloat.

RESTORES THE DYING.
 HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 13.—J. E. Miller, a prominent real-estate dealer of this city, is lying at the Houston Infirmary, the victim of an attack by rats. While asleep at his home he was awakened by a sharp pain in the head. Next he felt a nip on his cheek, and finally a sharp pain in the neck directly over the jugular vein. A deluge of blood aroused him to his danger.
 Compressing the wound with his hand, he arose and lit a match. In the corner of his room the gleaming eyes of an immense rat met his gaze, while others scampered away. A physician was summoned at once. Mr. Miller fainted from the loss of blood, and only by strenuous work was the flow stopped.
 At the hospital he was reported to be in a serious condition, but with the chances favorable to his recovery. Rats had never been seen in the house before, and the family are at a loss to account for the invasion.

RESTORES THE DYING.
 NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Wm. C. Mahoney, 53 years old, said to be a member of a wealthy Boston family and a graduate of Harvard, has committed suicide in this city because a woman who had refused to marry him and had caused his arrest twice recently for persisting in his intentions, had declared her purpose of marrying another. The woman, whose home is said to be in Paris, was employed in this city as a designer. Mahoney called upon her, entered a violent protest against her intended marriage, and then poisoned himself in her presence.
 Boston, Nov. 19.—William C. Mahoney, referred to as having committed suicide in New York, was known by many in the Bay District of Boston. He was the son of John Mahoney, of Waverley, N. Y., owner of a leather manufacturing establishment at that place, with offices in New York City. His mother has apartments in this city. Accord ing Mahoney's relatives here, he had been paying attention for two years to a young French woman engaged in costume designing in New York.

RESTORES THE DYING.
 HAVANA, Nov. 19.—The cigar makers in all city factories went out to-day, and it is estimated that a total of 30,000 employees are now on strike. Several demonstrations made by the strikers led to the arrest of the strikers, but the disturbances were not of a serious character.
